Andrew McEwan Fired Three Shots at His Wife, Formerly Miss Anna O'Brien of the Border Town --- She May Die --- Quarreled About Their Child --- He Tried Also to Kill Himself.

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—In a fit of jealousy, and anger because he had been outwitted in a battle for the possession of their child, and because of domestic differences, Andrew McEwan, 30, of various addresses, shot and probably fatally wounded his pretty wife, Anna McEwan, 23, yesterday, while she was at work in the restaurant of Samuel A. Low, corner of Howard and Bulfinch streets.

"You will tell!" yelled her husband, five flashes from his eyes, but Mrs. McEwan only by a barely perceptible motion of her head, replied in the negative. Without a word of warning, McEwan reached to his coat pocket and drew a 32-caliber Colt magazine gun, firing point blank at his wife.

THE NEW REPORTER GETS A 15 LB. TURN P

Ald. Lewis tolled up stairs to the den of the Times new reporter today with a load that taxed even his powers of endurance. He had brought the burden from St. Martins, with this inscription: "Mr. Sam Woodbury sends the Times New Reporter one large turnp, sixth 28 inches, weight 15 lb., and chis-enge Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to find a larger one."

CANADA EXCITES LIVELY DISCUSSION IN GREAT BRITAIN

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—A special London cable says—Ernest Terry, replying in the Yorkshire Post to Smith, the government commissioner, declares that the report of the government commissioner, who had been in Canada, is not a fair one. He denies any antagonism to Canada, and deprecates the circulation of glowing accounts by the government agents which he says are generally untrue. He challenges Smith to deny that there is a house famine in every industrial city in Canada, and asks if Smith's invitation to go out to the west is official. He remarks that England would be glad of disinterested information, referring to the Barr County, and says he understands that the greatest ambition of the settlers was to see Dr. Barr hanged, drawn and quartered. He reiterates that if the Englishman is unopposed, it is not a good sign. Canadians are impatient of criticism in the west.

THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

BLAMES THE BEEF TRUST. Mr. Hiram Hornbeam has an axe out for the Chicago Beef Trust. He is convinced that the soulless Yankee corporation has set out to crush the New Brunswick meat industry. "It's this way," said Hiram to the Times new reporter this morning. "Ever since last winter we been promised them new sanitary fittings 'n' toilets in the St. John country market. Ever since last winter the place has been festering with rot 'em. Now if that keeps up long enough no man that doesn't want anything from typhoid fever to the jim-jams 'n' buy anything in the market. He'll say it's a plague spot, an' keep clear of it. Now why ain't the place fixed up? Because the contractor can't get the fixin' from Chicago? Why can't he? Because that Beef Trust has put out the claws 'n' grabbed 'em. Kill the trade in the market—make the people take to eatin' canned meat—that's the hull story. By Hen! It makes my blood bile to think Hiram went to see Mayor Sears this morning, to enquire if Chicago was the only place in America where they sold fittings for toilet rooms." He declares that if they can be got anywhere else, "True," said the Times new reporter, "Well," said Mr. Binks, "I'm thankful they didn't."

CHAPTER XXX. The Schooner. Marguerite's aching heart stood still. She felt, more than she heard, the men on the watch preparing for the fight.

"What is the meaning of this?" "I think, citizen, that there is no one there now," replied one of the soldiers impudently.

The voice came nearer and nearer; in the vast immensity of these lonely cliffs, with the loud murmur of the sea below, it was impossible to see how near, or how far, nor yet from which direction came that cheerful singer, who sang to God to save his King, while he himself was in such deadly danger.

"You ordered us to wait, citizen, until the tall Englishman arrived and joined the four men in the hut. No one came," said the sergeant sullenly. "But, citizen, the four men who were there before, had been gone some time, I think."

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving Day, as a festival, has not yet attained in Canada the general significance which it holds for the people of the United States, but as the years pass it is recognized more and more as a holiday. There are not the family reunions that might be expected to mark such a national festival, but there come with Christmas, which will continue to be the most joyous of all seasons.

EAST AND WEST

The lure of the west for people of the maritime provinces is now almost an old story, but that the call of the farther west should induce people to leave the farms of Manitoba is a new development. Yet the situation is regarded as sufficiently serious to warrant the Winnipeg Free Press in setting forth the advantages of a province which only a few years ago was itself the centre of interest for the immigrant.

A GOOD SHOW

DEATHS FROM FOOTBALL

(Montreal Star). The death of two students of Toronto University already this year from over-exertion during practice games of football, has awakened the authorities of the university to the necessity of taking some precautions to prevent young men, physically unfit, from joining in these gruelling contests.

When a young man dies of heart failure after a game of football, it is a sport which should not be attempted by any but the most robust. Now it is idle to expect the young men to restrain themselves. Youth is notoriously reckless; and that is one of its charms to those of us who are older and more prudent.

No student who could play football intelligently would be at all likely to voluntarily seek to put himself out of the game by a medical examination, even if he had secret misgivings on the subject of his health. He would expect to get through all right. Even adults have a fatalistic feeling that, while accidents may happen other people they are immune.

Here is where the authorities should step in and do their duty. They should insist upon the medical examination; and then insist upon its result being heeded. Deaths as the result of too great strain on the playground constitute a serious arrangement of those who are responsible for the physical and mental well-being of the boys.

GREAT HONOR FOR THE BALL PLAYERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The members of the Chicago National League baseball team were guests of the Chicago board of trade at the Auditorium Hotel tonight. Five hundred of the team's admirers attended the dinner. President Murphy stated that about $7,000 had been divided among the players, in addition to the lower end of the money in the world's series.

"We gave the men nearly $3,000 from exhibition games," said Mr. Murphy, "and today we divide between $2,000 and $4,000 more in bonuses and presents."

HE DOES NOT FEAR ANY COMMISSION

SALT LAKE, Utah, Oct. 16.—Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, cannot be enjoined from using the funds of the Mormon church in commercial enterprises, nor can he be compelled to render an accounting of the tithe fund in his care as trustee of the church. A decision to this effect was rendered today by Judge Moore of the state district court.

KIT'S INTERVIEW WITH T. P. O'CONNOR

How the Great Irishman Impressed this Toronto Writer--His Plea for Religious Tolerance in Canada--The Dawn is Breaking.

(Kit in Toronto Mail and Empire). Seated opposite to him, in his sitting-room, at the King Edward, I had time to observe the most notable Irish politician of the day. Next day I had time to observe the most notable Irish politician of the day. All at once the whole of it and meaning of this man's life flashed upon me. A fine head and face. The black hair, turning grey at its curling edges, the eyes, wide brown eyes, with their little lines of happy humor, the brows, one arched, the other peaked in the middle, unerring sign of deep appreciation of the merry side of life; the nose, slightly turned up at the end, which would stand for courage in woman; but means wit in man--all these features suggested the Irishman as we think of him, humorous, merry of heart, and keen of vision. It was the mouth which revealed the soul of the man. I have always maintained that it is by the mouth, not the eyes, we may read the story of a human life. In the human document before me I was reading patience, ineffable patience, and waiting. This one feature, indeed, the whole countenance, in repose the whole face, assumed this patient, listening, waiting expression. It was only when the man began to talk, when the eyes smiled, and the little merry lines began to show themselves, and the warmly cadenced Irish voice began to waken memories of home and childhood, that the eyes smiled, and the whole life of this man means and what was stamped forever upon his lips--almost hopeless fighting, almost hopeless endeavor, almost despairing effort--but such infinite patience.

Of the men who have gone out with the hopelessness and despair and longing set forever on their dead faces. Will you ever know, O Erin, what your dead and gone sons have done for you? For every green sod that lies upon your broad bosom, for every little blade of grass that springs dew-washed, upon those sods, some life has been laid down.

And the fight goes on. The fight for what you Canadians have freedom.

CANADA, LAND OF LIBERTY.
 "You know," said T. P., looking out at the sunshine, "it is not merely the lovely climate of Canada, so crisp, so clear, that impresses me. It is the independent, the free hearing of the people. Every man goes about with, he laughed, 'an almost reckless air of liberty. There is no such depression and listlessness as we have at home.'

"Canadians are very loyal to Empire." "They ought to be. Who would not be loyal to the land that has given us life and saw her population decreasing, as we see it in Ireland every year--if the young Canadians were leaving Canada to settle in some other land, only the old men and women and the little children were left in this country, do you think the heart of Canada would be as glad and as strong and as happy as it is today? There is a great gladness in this land. It is all very wonderful to me. I see a great future for Canada, and I am proud to be a Canadian, and I am proud to be an Irishman, and I am proud to be a citizen of the Empire."

"We are looking out, very still for a moment. Maybe some sadness was stirring in some other Irish heart, too. 'I have a correspondence column on a paper here,' I told him, 'and sometimes one will write asking, What is the Irish grievance anyway?' and another will write, 'You Irish are all assassins!' and 'Is there any history of Ireland?' No, Mr. O'Connor, tell me why the Irish question, the ins and outs of it, is not better known."

THE LECTURER'S DIFFICULTIES.
 A glimmer of humor crept into the brown eyes of the man before me. "This is the way. An Irish member or lecturer gets up, makes a speech lasting an hour and a half. He explains the whole Irish question. He tells Ireland's story since the union. He'll be doing it tonight. He has to enter on religious ground, because that is the pivot on which the whole story swings. He does not go back to the penal times, because that is unnecessary. It has been so disastrous a history since the union that in itself it is enough to move the heart and soul of every Irishman who has in him the sense of fair play--that great 'fair play' on which England and Englandmen so pride themselves. Well, our lecturing Irishman, perhaps, gets a little hot-headed--Can you blame him?--He says

"I have a correspondence column on a paper here," I told him, "and sometimes one will write asking, What is the Irish grievance anyway?" and another will write, 'You Irish are all assassins!' and 'Is there any history of Ireland?' No, Mr. O'Connor, tell me why the Irish question, the ins and outs of it, is not better known."

BANKERS IN CONVENTION

Would be Severe on Officials Who Rob the Depositors.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16--At the bankers' convention today the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, that should a commission be appointed by the American Bankers' Association to formulate a plan for the purpose of creating a permanent emergency currency, that it be the sense of this convention that such a commission, appointed, should have as some of its members a sufficient number of trust company officials to represent the importance of the trust companies as financial institutions." The savings bank section was presided over by President Edward E. Duff, of Pittsburgh. In his annual address he advocated the expenditure of large sums to prosecute bank officials who rob depositors.

Chairman Lucius Teter, of the executive committee, in his report stated that the savings bank section represents about $2,800,000,000 of the resources of the American Bankers' Association and has a membership of 1029.

NEW PARLIAMENT OF THE PERSIANS

LONDON, Oct. 15--Despatches from Tehran received in St. Petersburg give some interesting particulars of the inauguration of Persia's first parliament. The shah made two speeches. The first dealt with the election of new deputies, and in it he declared that he recognized that the principal foundations of imperial power and progress rested on an alliance of the government and the people, and he had made the strengthening of this alliance the chief object of his reign. He expressed the hope that the gift of the constitution would ever be preserved.

The ceremony took place in the great court of Tehran, in the presence of the diplomatic corps, many of the army officers and the entire priesthood. In his speech, which was read by the governor of Tehran, the shah said that Persia had been his dream, and he now believed that the people were ripe for self-government, and that they would not abuse the freedom, and that parliament would give active support to the government in its efforts for the happiness, progress, and power of Persia.

The speech was acclaimed with great enthusiasm.

SHE HAD NERVE

A young woman entered a doctor's shop where advice and prescriptions were given free to persons in poor circumstances. Having been furnished with a prescription for her medicine, which she was told could be bought at a neighboring chemist's, she asked what the medicine would be likely to cost.

"About two shillings," said the doctor.

"Could you give me the money?" she asked.

"One moment; let me see your prescription again," the doctor said, and, taking the paper, he scored out the name of one of the ingredients.

"What was that for?" was the next question.

"Well, you see," answered the doctor, "I had something in the nerves, but I see you don't need it."

A WILD PANDEMONIUM ON PARIS RACE COURSE

Crowd, Furious at What They Deemed a False Start, Attacked Bookmakers, Scrambled for the Money and then Fought With Police.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—One of the most extraordinary scenes probably ever witnessed on a race track occurred at Longchamp, Bois de Boulogne, Sunday afternoon. A riot of wild proportions turned the race course into pandemonium, and violence reigned unrestrained for over an hour and a half. Men and women were assaulted and injured, shots were fired, and the mob, in the excess of its fury, resorted to incendiarism, joyfully burning the betting booths, and twice attempting to set fire to the grand stand. The cause of the rioting was the crowd's belief that there had been a false start. When this belief proved to be unfounded, the crowd, which had become infuriated by the electric shock, the people seemed to go mad, but with a clear and definite purpose, namely, to wreck vengeance on the managers of the races and the operators of the betting system, the Paris mob, the trouble started at three o'clock, when the third race was called. They were probably 100,000 persons present. Only three horses got away. Those left at the start were so patently false in public estimation, that the people supposed the horses would be recalled, but this was not done, and as the spectators refused to believe that the stand was extremely excited and those who in the immense field seemed to go wild, as one man, the crowd cried, "Catch the robbers!" Those in the field made a rush for the many betting booths, which were practically one building in the field. Men and women were killed, and many were injured. Meanwhile the fire was spreading.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONS

Table with columns: Details of Battle Royal Between the Sox and Cubs in Chicago. Rows include American, National, and various player statistics.

OVER 7,000,000 PEOPLE SAW GAMES. NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Careful compiling of the daily attendance figures for the season 1906, shows that the combined games of the American and National Baseball Leagues during the season just closed, Chicago alone, if these figures included the attendance at minor league games, and at the post-season series in Chicago, the total would reach 7,000,000, representing in gate money $3,000,000.

This year's figures in the National and American Leagues, however, show a decrease of more than 48,000 from last year, the American League falling behind by 132,670, while the National League showed an increase of 49,903. Despite the decrease of the American League and the closeness of the National League, this was the best season the Nationals have had since the Americans came East, and the best season the older organization has had in its history.

The grand total of the American League was 2,638,076, while the total of the National League was 2,781,213, it being the third successive year that the Americans outdrew the Nationals. The difference in the two leagues' figures this season was 136,863, while last year's difference showed 309,442, the Nationals making a gain of 169,579 on the Americans.

The Chicago Nationals lead all the teams in both leagues with a total of 104,900, outdrawing the White Sox by nearly 70,000. While the latter won the American League championship, their figures show a decrease of more than 100,000, while the Cubs' figures increased 145,000.

O'Brien, a local boxer, he succeeded in putting out after nine rounds of fighting. In the terms of the match O'Brien had agreed to put out each man inside of ten rounds. QUEBEC, Oct. 17.—(Special).—Henri Bourassa yesterday took the stump for Mr. Robitaille, a Liberal, who is running in opposition to Mr. Amyeot, the government candidate.

Mr. Bourassa advised his hearers to send to the house of commons a manly independence instead of a party slave. He was passing when it was necessary to send voting machines to parliament. THE UNION MUST BE RECOGNISED

The question of the recognition of the Longshoremen's Union will again be a factor in the coming winter port season. It was learned yesterday from a reliable source that in Montreal at least five of the lines doing business here in the winter season have agreed that while the rate of ship laborers according to the agreement drawn up here some months ago will be paid, the Longshoremen's Union or any union shall not be recognized; in other words the steamship people interested wish to hold themselves free to employ whom they like irrespective of membership in any Longshoremen's organization.

The lines referred to are understood to be the Allans, Head Line, Donaldson Line, Elder-Dempster and C. P. R. Three lines, however, namely, the Battle Line, Furness Line and South African Line, are proposed to stand by the agreement in its entirety, which means that the Longshoremen's Union will be recognized.

The rate of wages agreed to is 30 cents an hour, 40 cents on grain, half time for waiting after 7 o'clock and double time for Sunday and holidays. That the steamship people will be asked to recognize the Longshoremen's Association, is the opinion of John Killen, acting business agent of the association. Both Mr. Killen and Mr. Daley expressed the opinion that there would be no likelihood but one organization of this season.

HARRY THAW'S CASE
