Chicago, Ill., Jan. 6.—Evidence in support of the government's charge that the practices of the old packers pool in fixing the price of fresh meat by means of a system of profit margins and apportioning the business on a non-competitive basis were continued after the organization of the National Packing Company in March, 1902, was read to the jury yesterday in the trial of the ten Chicago packers under indictment for criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade.

IN PRISON, BUT PUT THROUGH A STOCK DEAL

C. W. Morse Made $2,000 in a Wall Street Operation

Offered Half the Profits to the Warden - Story Leaked Out Following Quarrel Between Official and Atlanta Editor Over the Matter

(New York Herald) Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 2.-How Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker, made $2,000 in Wall Street through the courtesy of the warden at the Atlanta penitentiary here, William H. Moyer, and then incurred the wrath of the warden by offering to share his profits, has been revealed by an argument between Mr. Moyer and F. J. Seelye, editor and publisher of the Atlanta Georgian. Mr. Seelye, a close friend of Mr. Morse, accuses the warden of subjecting the banker to "prejudicial treatment" as a disciplinary measure for purposes to divide the money.

According to the story told by the warden he allowed Mr. Morse to send a cipher message in the spring of 1910 and Mr. Morse made $2,000 by selling "short" on the stock. Mr. Morse then made the offer to share his profits with the warden, but was told never to make a similar proposition.

So incensed was the prison official, according to Mr. Seelye, that he decided to punish the warden by leaking the story. Mr. Seelye is a friend of Mr. Morse and has visited him frequently in the prison. He printed a story last Thursday morning at a congressional investigation into Morse's treatment in the penitentiary, citing an instance in which his was allowed to have been placed in solitary confinement in a dungeon for giving a "kick" about to be discharged a "paltry" sum of money.

Mr. Moyer, angered, invited the Atlanta newspaper man to the prison to show them just where Mr. Morse was kept in solitary confinement and to explain the circumstances. Mr. Seelye went in person.

Warden Assumes Charge When all the newspaper men had assembled Mr. Moyer read a statement he had prepared for the general public, made in Mr. Seelye's paper. He declared that Mr. Morse had been kept in solitary confinement for giving a "kick" of about $40 found in his possession. As soon as Mr. Morse did so he was released, he said. He showed the visitors to a fair sized, well lighted and well ventilated room in which, he said, Mr. Morse had been kept.

"I question the accuracy of some of your statements," Mr. Moyer said, "but I have been reliably informed that Mr. Morse had no mattress and no blanket and had to sleep on the floor with only his coat under his head."

"That is absolutely untrue," retorted the warden. "When you see such a man as Mr. Morse himself and the physicians attending him at that time."

The warden called in two deputies, in charge at the time and both declared they would talk with Mr. Morse had both mattresses and blanket.

Mr. Seelye asked the warden why, if he was not prejudiced against Mr. Morse, he had written of the general public when Morse was removed to Fort McPherson hospital that "he did not seem to me to have the appearance of a man whose condition was critical."

Mr. Moyer declared he had not made any report regarding Mr. Morse since his transfer except to transmit reports from the pool surgeons.

"You have been prejudiced against Mr. Morse ever since that gas deal," charged Mr. Seelye, "and I think your treatment of him has been reprehensible."

"You are at liberty to print any facts in your possession regarding Morse's treatment in this prison," retorted the warden, "but I warn you to stick to facts or I shall hold you personally responsible."

Tells of Stock Deal The "bug" wanted to know about "that gas stock deal," Mr. Moyer said on March 11, 1910, soon after the banker became a prisoner, he gave Mr. Morse permission to visit his home in New York. The next day, he said, he reported the matter to the attorney general and was instructed not to permit Mr. Morse to send messages again. Some time later, he said, Mr. Morse came into his office and told him he had won $20,000 out of that gas stock deal, and wanted him to have half.

"Forget you ever told me that," Morse, I said to him, declared the warden, "and do not ever say anything like that to me again."

Mr. Moyer said this incident was known out when the prison was investigated last spring by one of the most competent officials of the department. Mr. Seelye asked the warden if he knew anything about a check for $1000 made out by Mrs. Morse to Mr. Morse which had found its way to the department. Mr. Moyer replied that he had never heard of the check until it was shown to him at the investigation. He said it was being held for Mr. Morse by one of the clerks.

The office for which Mr. Morse was kept in solitary confinement was described by the warden as follows: A deputy gave a man pass $1.25 and a pearl handled knife to Mr. Morse, and both were "arrested." The warden did not believe the story Mr. Morse told as to how he had obtained them from another prisoner and ordered him into confinement. When Mrs. Morse called and learned her husband was in trouble she told the warden she had slipped about fifteen one-dollar bills into Mr. Morse's pocket. Later, Mr. Morse confessed to having received the $15 from his wife and about $2 from his business partner in addition to $3 from a discharged prisoner which he had already admitted. He said he had given the money to another prisoner for safe-keeping. The money was recovered and Morse was taken from isolation.

He was reduced to second grade and lost twenty days of his "good time."

Mr. Felder, counsel for Mr. Morse, left for Washington, after being present at the interview, with the avowed purpose of learning from the attorney general whether the warden had been asked for an opinion on Mr. Morse's condition.

THE "CYCLONE" CHEAPER POWER IN 1912 SAVES 30% A CLINKER CUTTING, SHAKING AND DUMPING GRATE FOR ANY TYPE OF BOILER

Will give ten to thirty per cent. more power without increasing the coal consumption. Will save ten to thirty per cent. in coal if only the same power is developed. Will give the same power from a boiler with slack coal as you can now get with Run of Mine, and save almost the total difference in price between Slack and Run of Mine Coal. Will prolong the life of the boiler and furnace brick work, saving boiler shut-downs and repair bills. Will save the fireman one of his hardest tasks, that of facing a hot fire while cleaning and give him more time and energy for other duties.

ONE OF THE MANY LETTERS RECEIVED FROM SATISFIED USERS: Milltown, N. B., January 31, 1910. Mr. F. W. Blizard, St. John, N. B. Dear Sir: We are enclosing you tonight through our Head Office in Montreal, an order for another set of Cyclone Shaking and Dumping Grate Bars for one of our boilers. We are glad to say that we have had no reason whatever to regret the installation of the first set of these bars. We have now had them in operation several months, and we find that we get more perfect combustion and much better fires, and greater economy in our use of coal with these bars, than we have had from any system of firing that we have tried at this Mill. It is our intention, during the coming summer months, to complete the installation of these grate bars under our other boilers. The Canadian Cotton Mills Co., Ltd. This concern operates seven large plants in Canada. The original of this letter, and many others, shown on request.

Every ton of coal you save in the next twelve months is so much added to net profits on the 31st of December, 1912.

THE HEIGHT OF POLITENESS The politest intimation ever addressed to the governor of Bonavia was probably that of the governor of Bonavia jail to a man about to be hanged. The execution was fixed for one p. m., and the governor was to sail for England on leave two hours later. The time for the boat's sailing was changed from three p. m. to midday. The governor was equal to the occasion. He addressed an official communication to the convict as follows: "The governor presents his compliments to Mr. X., and desires to know whether he would suit his convenience equally well to be hanged at ten a. m., instead of at 1 p. m." ENJOYING THEMSELVES M'Donald and M'Tavish had met at M'Donald's house for the first time for three years. Of course, they were intent on enjoying themselves, and they did. It was about three o'clock a. m. before they thought of parting. By then they were both very full. M'Tavish was the first to rise. "Well, Donald, I'll be going-home-guys-nite." "Ye are no' gann the noo said M'Donald. "wait and I'll ca' ye a cal." When the whole arrived M'Donald did helped his friend to the door, saying: "Gud nite, Hamish, an'-hie-sud' ye a' (for cal), tak' the first yin-hie-as the first yin a' no there."

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NEWS OF THE WEEK IN ST. JOHN

Seldom if ever before have the weeks following Christmas been so filled with entertainments for the younger set, the members of which are now home for the holidays. In all respects these functions have been up to the standard set for the older society folk inasmuch as the table appointments were as handsome, the refreshments as delicious and the music furnished by an orchestra, as enjoyable, as at any of the previous parties given this winter.

After luncheon bridge tables were formed. Miss Helen Sidney Smith being the bridge winner. The guests were Mrs. Hazen, Mrs. J. D. Kelly, Mrs. J. Douglas Hazen, Mrs. George K. McLeod, Mrs. Harold C. Schofield, Mrs. H. B. Robinson, Mrs. Percy Thomson, Mrs. Roy Campbell, Miss Mabel Sidney Smith, Miss Maynard, Miss Tibbitts, Fredericton.

WAR AMONG ADVOCATES OF PEACE

Italy Has Other Conflict Than That Over Tripoli IS A WORDY BATTLE

Peace Apostles of the Country at Variance With Those of Other Lands and Principally With the International Bureau

(Copyright, 1911, by Curtis Brown.) Rome, Dec. 27.—Italy is fighting valiantly a second war, which is not at all in Tripoli, though it arises therefrom. It is a war of words, and judged by the fierceness of the language which fills it it is a great war. Had General Canova only half such ugly ammunition he would have subdued Tripoli, Barca and Fenicia in a week. And this wordy conflict not only causes no small pain to reverent men, but gives infinite material for sneers to cynics, who hold that peace societies are frigid, useful only for providing young apologetic with secretarieships at $1,000 a year.

Peace Apostles of War The painful fact is that Italy's peace apostles are at war with the peace apostles of other lands, and in particular with the permanent international bureau of peace, which is the central organization of all other peace bureaus. These peace bureaus exist to make peace; and in times of peace they do this assiduously, self-devotedly, with every Christian zeal. Every year prizes them, some say their subscriptions and have old ladies embrace them in their peace flags. But the moment peace is broken between two governments peace is immediately broken also between at least twenty peace societies; and the big war with Mussers, hovitters, and aeroplane is no heavier than the war among the peace folk.

The present peace war is mainly between Italy and Switzerland. Both are sacramental shrines of pacifism. Italy has forty peace associations, all with religious names, such as the "Paloma," "La Nobilissima Compagnia della Pace," "La Lega della Fratellanza," "Pace e Libertà," and many others. And Switzerland? Why Switzerland is the ark of the covenant of pacifist internationalism. At Bern are the International Copyright Bureau, the International Industrial Property Bureau, the World Postal Union, and more. Geneva, as all men know, drew saw modified, on paper, the horrors of war; and finally Bern's greatest glory is the possession of the "Permanent International Bureau of Peace." This bureau of peace is the greatest thing of its kind on earth, but when a crisis threatened that the bureau was permanent, while the peace war was not, he hit the truth.

War of World Peace The bureau organizes for united action a few thousand peace associations, with 600 affiliations. Nobody would ever think there were so many peace associations did not constant wars draw attention to the fact. The total incomes and outlays of the 184 associations are no less than $67,000 a year, not including special donations, and every penny goes on peace. The bureau's services are praiseworthy. In 1910 the Norwegian Storting awarded to it the Nobel Prize. It has literature, libraries, archives. It is presided over by the famous "ancient captain of artillery, Gustav Moth." One of its vice-presidents is Baroness Bertha von Suttner, the venerable mother of world peace, and it has among its members all the cream of peace promoters. There are Fried, the German peace of honor the glories of this particular war. He explained that it was a peaceful war, as the Turks would not fight; and that even if they did fight, the fighting of the Italians was really peace fighting, and only seemed like war; and when a contributor complained that Italy did not first appeal to The Hague, he published a footnote about the contributor's intelligence, and proved conclusively that appealing to The Hague is really the worst kind of war, and that going to war is much more peaceful. And all the other Italian peace societies imitated Signor Moneta, and declared that, though they still hated war as much as ever, this war must be regarded as a genuine service to peace. Naturally the permanent bureau was somewhat shocked by this reasoning. The peace societies, before they knew war was coming, had appropriately chosen Rome for a great demonstrative congress and intended to begin this congress on September 23 last. Naturally the congress had to be abandoned "owing to the sanitary condition of Rome." The secretary of the permanent bureau at Bern, M. Gobet, smelt in this a piece of Italian treason, and addressed to Count de Gubernatis an indignant protest accusing him of knowing all the time about Italian plans for a war, and calling the action of Italy "an odious attempt."

Count Gubernatis retorted in kind. "The newspaper L'Espresso," he said, "has forwarded and sent Count Gubernatis a protest that 'we cannot listen to Italy's claim to divide Tripoli when she has not civilized Calabria, and has left Sicily and Sardinia to rot in misery.'"

"Dear colleague and friend," replied Count Gubernatis, "the ancient Romans owned Tripoli." "They also owned Genoa," retorted Lefontaine, "are you, therefore, going to reconquer France?" "Meaning, other pacifists joined in, and 'insult worthy of the Bern bureau, which is friendly with Turkish butchers,' was the retort made to Lefontaine's remark about Calabria."

"Illustrious friend," wrote Gubernatis, "I am sorry to hear that you are in bed for two months. Was in Bed Two Months. DOCTORS DID NOT SEEM TO DO HER ANY GOOD. A cold, however slight, should never be neglected, for if it is not treated in time it will, in all probability, lead to bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or some other serious throat or lung troubles. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains the lung healing virtues of the Norway Pine tree, which, combined with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines, makes it without a doubt the best remedy for all coughs and colds. Miss N. McCumber, St. Martin's, N. B., writes: 'In January last I contracted a heavy cold which kept me in bed nearly two months, and the doctors didn't seem to be able to do me any good. I tried several proprietary medicines, but all in vain. One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and when I had taken three bottles I was completely cured, and I feel as well to-day as I ever did, and I am sure my lungs are once more sound, thanks to that wonderful remedy.' Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

represent Europe. The Italians have two study champions. First comes Signor E. T. Moneta, who is president of the "Federation of Italian Peace Societies," lives at Milan, and is vice-president of the "International Union of Peace Societies." Next comes Signor Count Angelo de Gubernatis, president of the "International Union of Peace Societies," a brilliant Orientalist, and has a particular horror of bloodshed when any one except Italy sheds it. Until about the first of October Signor Moneta and Count Gubernatis agreed with the Bern bureau (of which they are members) that all wars were wrong and repugnant. But when their own country rushed into war against Austria, and the count and all the peace societies of Italy discovered that though all wars are wrong and repugnant there are exceptions, and that the war which Italy has entered upon is a striking exception. And the pacifist organ, La Vita Internazionale, suddenly became a mouthpiece of the Roman War Office, and published in its spring articles which began "Secondo le regole elementari della strategia," according to the elementary rules of strategy," explaining that General Canova should attack the Turks without delay and wipe them out of existence.

"Peace Fighting" But as the permanent bureau at Bern was preparing an angry protest against Italy's conduct, while the Italian pacifist members were all thirsting for Turkey's blood, naturally an autumn campaign was inevitable. It is going on today. On one side are the pacifist Italian generals, Moneta and Gubernatis; on the other pacifist pashas. Gobet of Bern and Senator Lafontaine of Brussels. Lafontaine is one of the ablest members of the Bern bureau. "Moneta fired the first gun with a dithyramb on the war in the pacifist Vita Internazionale, and lymned in the style

"In Italy every one applauds the war except the pacifists." "Your letter desolates me," replied Lafontaine. "And the pacifist press printed the correspondence with little notes about 'gingo fever,' 'ferocious Turk,' 'Musselman fanatic' and 'jihad' which is a hypocritical pacifism." And finally out came another issue of La Vita Internazionale in which Signor Moneta explained that he was a stronger pacifist than ever; but in this particular war he was for war to the hilt.

"Why not be frank? Although friend of peace my old soldier heart throbs with indelible rapture at the vision of this glorious struggle. A spectacle variably comforting. For although the peace feeling, as I have explained elsewhere, daily becomes more and more general, we live nevertheless in an age in which moral and political progress depends entirely on force." And a few pages further on he printed a paragraph: "The peace movement in South America makes comforting progress. In Uruguay."

And the permanent International Bureau of Peace at Bern was much distressed at all this. It explained that the only nation whose pacifists could distinguishedly and effectively condemn the war was Italy, and that all the Italian pacifists had become sanguinary militarists. But it went on steadily issuing protests against the war, and M. Gobet repeated repeatedly his "Italy's odious attempt." By this time the war spirit of the Italian pacifists had heated to boiling point, and now it is announced that all the Italian members of the permanent International Bureau of Peace of Bern are to be on the more reasonable, elastic arrangements of the peace societies will propendize for peace only until war breaks out, and that then they will not go worrying and spoiling the war makers' joy.

"Eternal peace—when no one is on the warpath"—is the motto of the peace societies. VIVIAN CARBERT. OLD PETERKIN'S HOBBY Old Peterkin, my neighbor, is a kindly, gentle soul. Devoted to the sacred cause of Peace, Arbitration is his hobby, and Disarmament his goal. And he hopes to live until all conflicts are abolished. "But that day," says he, "won't come till the peaky five-and-drum 'marchin' time." "An' the military band, an' the pipers struttin' grand, an' 'bolished by the law an' made a crime!" Old Peterkin's philosophy to me is true and just. There's a military microbe in our blood. And when the drums arouse it with their 'rat-a-tat, at-at, You might as well attempt to stem a 'flood.' So the day has got to come When the passion-stirring drum, An' the glory, raising baggage and the pipe, An' the military band, Shall be banished from the land As adjuncts of barbarity and strife. Old Peterkin acknowledges with 'nothin' an' 'shery of shame.' 'That he himself can't witness a parade And listen to the music 'tout bein' over-come. By a silly fightin' spirit in his head.' 'So,' says he, 'I stand right plumb, That the peaky five-and-drum, An' the bugle-squad a buglin' marchin' time.' Must get out of 'this fair land, 'Cause they're nothin' but a nuisance an' a crime!" Where's that "Music of the Future?" Where's the Sousa who will write The Marches of Humanity, to thrill The bosoms of the multitude with noble thoughts of Night. Instead of wjth the butcher-lust to kill? We are waiting—let him come. And transform the five-and-drum Into powers that will aid man's upward climb. And, with his magic wand, Change the agencies of the band Into agencies of civilization!" —J. W. Bengough.

BISHOP CASEY'S JUBILEE. A Tribute to His Lordship in Catholic Register and Canadian Extension

The Catholic Register and Canadian Extension, published in Toronto, has the following reference to the recent jubilee of Right Reverend T. Casey, Bishop of St. John:

"His Lordship Bishop Casey, of St. John, New Brunswick, recently celebrated the silver jubilee of his ordination to the holy priesthood. There were many evidences and testimonials of affection from the clergy and laity of the diocese, and with good reason, for this hard-working young bishop, though the most modest of men, has won the respect of all classes and all creeds.

"His private life like his public life, was no less simple and democratic as the humblest curate in the diocese. The Catholic people have confidence in him because he is always promptly trying to advance the interests of religion in his diocese. The non-Catholic public respect him because he is tactful, diplomatic and kindly, and takes a genuine interest in everything that makes for the civic and social advancement of his home city and province."

The fishing schooner, Kemwood, Captain Sims arrived in port today with 40,000 pounds of fish.

PRISONER TELLS THE POLICE COURT HE IS GREAT DETECTIVE

McFarland Remanded for Examination—Colored Boy Charged With Stealing—A Watch Theft Case

William McFarland, arrested in Charlotte street between twelve and one o'clock on drunkenness charge, caused considerable commotion in the court. Policeman Lucas told of finding him wandering about in Charlotte street and of placing him under arrest as he did not know where he was going. The prisoner took the stand and told a story that resembled somewhat those appearing in dime novels. "I was drugged, not drunk. I am a private detective and have dealt with some of the biggest criminals in the world and they are after me now. I attended the smoker in Keble's assembly room last night and on my way home a man came up to me and said: 'I got you, you're mine.' At the same time making severe passes in front of my face. From then on my mind was a blank." The prisoner was remanded and will be examined.

Henry Frederickson, a twenty-two year old German arrested on charge of stealing a watch, the property of Miss Mitchell from a house at Red Head, was arraigned in the police court this morning, and after the evidence of the complainant and Detective Killen was taken, was committed for trial. Mitchell said that the prisoner boarded in the same house with him and occupied the same room. Yesterday at noon, he missed his gold watch and valued at $20. Frederickson was also missing from the house. Mitchell said he told Detective Killen of the affair. He identified the watch found on the prisoner as his.

Detective Killen told of arresting Frederickson in a house in Pond street. The watch was found in his possession. The prisoner at the time told him that Mitchell had loaned the watch to him and that he intended to return it.

When asked if he had anything to say to the charge the prisoner replied that he had only taken the watch for a short time and had intended returning it last night. "There's too much of this supposed 'loaning' business going on in this town now-a-days," said His Honor, "and the sooner a stop is put to it the better. You will be sent up for trial."

Walker Stewart, a little colored lad charged with stealing fifty-five cents from the store of Isaac D. Parks in Duke street pleaded guilty. He told the court truthfully that two other boys had told him to take the money. Mr. Parks said that he had been missing money from the till for some time. Several evenings ago he put some marked money in the till and later found it at an outdoor grocery store. On enquiry he found that young Stewart had given the money for some beer and candy. The matter was referred to the court until this afternoon. Stewart's baby brother is dead at home.

Six other prisoners charged with drunkenness were dealt with in the usual way.
