

CONFERENCE.

Final Draft of the Station Sheet.

Several Reports Presented, and Amounts Voted For Different Funds.

FREDERICTON, June 20.—The stationing committee met again on Saturday afternoon and completed its work, and the final sheet, when the following changes were made:

Rev. Mr. Marshall goes to Carmarthen street. Rev. Mr. Pinkerton to Westford. Rev. Mr. Flemington to Point de Bute.

After the usual opening exercises and the reading of the minutes the second section of the Sabbath school reported the appointment of Rev. Mr. Lucas as field secretary at a salary to be determined later both as to the amount and to the method of raising it.

Quite a number of the members of the conference were excused from further attendance, which has thinned the ranks greatly, and by tomorrow morning will be little more than a corporate guard to hold the fort.

The sustentation fund committee made its final report, which gave the receipts as $2,159.22 from the circuits, $250 legacy left by the late Senator Prowse of Prince Edward Island, a similar amount having been received last year.

The following amounts are reported for circuit purposes: Circuit incidentals, $517.50; House rent, $971.00; House keep or hire, $7,765.00; Removal expenses, $375.00; Sunday schools, $1,214.16; Epworth leagues, $5,583.97; Ladies' Aid societies, $5,541.47; Trustees boards, $3,569.67; All other purposes, $2,223.80.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

No One but Roosevelt Mentioned for the Nomination.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Without a disturbing element to impede the smooth operation, the first day's programme of the national convention was carried out like clockwork.

The keynote of the campaign of 1904 was sounded by Hon. Elihu Root in his speech as temporary chairman. His address was a review of the past administration and a defence of the republican politics in general.

From the quiet, yet unmistakable, enthusiasm provoked by Senator Fairbanks' arrival at the Coliseum, his nomination for vice-president is but little less assured than the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president.

The request of the trustees of the Derby circuit to be permitted to sell some property at Blackville and apply the proceeds to the repairing of the Derby parsonage, was not complied with.

Rev. Geo. Steel presented a request from the Wesleyan office asking the conference to initiate a movement to secure at least 1,000 new subscribers to that paper during the present year.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearce delivered his lecture on Christian Socialism in the Methodist Historical Society to a fair sized audience. The people were much pleased with it.

FREDERICTON, N. B., June 21.—The first business today was the acceptance of a recommendation from the Methodist Historical Society to the effect that at least of the minutes of conference be given to a brief synopsis of the work of the society up to date.

At yesterday's proceedings it was agreed that Messrs. E. C. Hennigar, Morris, H. H. Marr, W. R. Pepper, probationers, should go to college.

The address of Rev. Dr. Chown on Temperance and Moral Reform, was listened to with great attention, and delivered in a very effective manner.

During the year he had travelled 16,000 miles, visited 250 addresses, and had come in close contact with a number of public men. His references to political corruption in Ontario were particularly interesting.

During the year 553 baptisms had been performed, 428 marriages solemnized and 785 burials had been attended.

The Epworth League committee reported 57 leagues, 1,177 active members, 77 societies, total 1,974, the income of which amounted to $1,473.88. The committee recommended that missionary for the foreign field be supported by the Epworth Leagues and other Young People's Societies. It was also recommended that the Rev. 1. Barker v. Maher—C. H. Ferguson. 2. Green v. Scovill—Scott E. Morrell. 3. Mandell v. Kennedy—C. J. Coster. 4. The Cumberland Coal & Railway Co. Ltd., v. St. John Pilot Commissioners.—C. J. Coster.

The following grand jurors were summoned:—Beverley R. Macaulay, foreman; Michael A. Finn, James G. Leslie, Geo. E. Holder, Thomas L. Coughlan, Geo. L. Barbour, Frederick A. Peters, Wilfred M. Barlow, Edward W. Slipp, W. Tremaine, Gard, Frederick W. Daniel, Harry W. Machum, Oliver O. Akerley, Richard O'Brien, John Seely, Walter F. Leonard, Robt. R. Patchell, Wm. V. Barlow, Frank G. Best, Edward J. Finlayson, D. Carleton Clift, James R. Ferguson, J. Harvey Brown, and Henry J. Sullivan. Five grand jurors were absent.

The judge addressed the jurors briefly, regretting that there were so many of them absent. One case only required their attention and that was not very serious. Louisa Bailey was charged with stealing a number of articles of the 23rd May in the dry goods store of F. A. Dykeman a piece of silk and the evidence, his honor thought, was sufficient to warrant the finding of a true bill against her.

The grand jury found a true bill. The court adjourned till ten o'clock today when the criminal case will be taken up.

IN THE EQUITY COURT. In the case of Cool v. Cool, in which certain real estate was devised to the defendant on condition that he support his wife and child, and his married sister, a declaration was made that their support and maintenance should be a charge on the real estate. In a reference was ordered to settle the amount of the charge, the payment of costs, etc. F. C. Barberie of Dalhousie and Hazen & Raymond for plaintiffs; H. A. Landry, J. C. Bathurst, and A. A. Stockton for defendants.

Guardians of the estate of Sarah Elizabeth Miller, an infant, filed their accounts and petitioned that they be retained in the office to have some of the papers referred to. Mr. Ewing for petitioners.

In the case of Coleman v. Coleman, motion by P. H. Hughes that plaintiffs be allowed to prove their case by affidavit unless the infant defendant, Coleman, appears in twenty days. Order accordingly.

In the case of Chas. Johnston v. D. Hazen, administrator of the estate of Margaret Hazen, deceased, et al, on return of the order to show cause why the decree for distribution of the estate should not be cancelled, Col. J. R. Armstrong appeared for C. Lowell Anderson, Mildred F. Anderson and G. Austen Anderson, all living in the state of Wisconsin, U. S. A. These three claim as children of a half brother of the late Margaret A. Hazen, and therefore entitled to one-sixth of the estate. All other heirs except David H. Anderson disclaim having any knowledge of these claimants when the decree for distribution of the estate was made in March last. Since then the administrator has paid out some $5,000 in settlement of certain donations mortis causa, but it is not desired to disturb that payment. The court ordered the rest of the decree to be cancelled with leave for the new claimants to appear. It is probable claimants will have to issue to the U. S. and England to take evidence with regard to the new claims. Matter of payment of costs.

The case of the Continental Trust Co. v. The Mineral Products Co. et al was set down for hearing this morning.

The case of Chas. R. Collison & Co., Ltd., v. Frederick N. Theriault came on for hearing yesterday. The plaintiffs have brought a bill for the foreclosure of certain lands mortgaged to the defendant and that defendant be declared a trustee for his father in return of a crown grant decree for the plaintiff were examined, the case standing over until today. Geo. Gilbert and Dr. A. O. Earle for plaintiffs; A. Landry, J. C. Bathurst, and Dr. A. A. Stockton for defendants.

OTTAWA LETTER.

OTTAWA, June 19.—The debate on lobsters and oysters was held on Friday evening when Mr. Frontoine was again in the frying pan. Prefontaine is a pretty decent sort of fellow with ambitions, but perhaps not so much as he would like to have.

Mr. Kaulbach urged the minister to increase the bounty, whereas Mr. Copp of Digby, who does not talk much in the house, asked the member for Lunenburg if he would advocate an increase in bounty on oysters as well as to the fishermen.

When the house at night took up Prefontaine's estimate, Mr. Lafrey and Mr. LeBlanc were divided among the federal bounty to fishermen.

When pushed into a corner by Mr. Lafrey and Mr. LeBlanc, Mr. Prefontaine was held to decide the share of the bounty.

ANOTHER INSUBORDINATE.

A despatch to the papers from Ottawa states that Auditor General J. L. McDougall has applied for superannuation. This announcement is likely to be correct. It is in accord with a statement by the auditor himself in the introduction to his report for 1903. This statement precedes his review of the history of the Davis canal lighting contract.

But the auditor general found that he could not always succeed so well, nor can he obtain full information of the transactions under the existing audit system, so as to prevent the plunder of the treasury by the various ingenious means of paying contractors money to which they are not entitled.

To meet some of these difficulties he proposed three simple and reasonable amendments.

"First. That no contracts be made with the government after the work is completed.

"Second. That in contracts given without tenders, or where tenders have been called for and the lowest tender has not been accepted, the proper officer of the department be required to certify that the prices are fair and just.

"Third. That in all cases the technical officer on whose expert knowledge the department relied when making the contract, be required to furnish the fullest information to the auditor general, and all other government officials who have the duty of dealing with contractors."

He points out that in the case of the canal contracts such information was not furnished, and the saving of money was dependent upon an accidental communication.

Mr. McDougall stated in his introduction that the amendments be required were absolutely necessary to enable his office to do its duty, and closed with the statement: "I feel so strongly on this point that if parliament does not see its way clear to bring the matter up this session I shall at the end of the session ask to be superannuated."

The only action of parliament in the required direction has been taken by a private member on the opposition side of the house, after he had waited in vain for the government to move. Of course the bill of Mr. Lennox is not allowed to pass.

Mr. McDougall is an able and faithful officer. His vigilance, fearlessness and determination to fight every illegal payment to the point when he is overruled by the ministers comprising the treasury board, and the frankness with which he then prints the whole story in his report make him a terror to hoodling contractors and hoodling ministers. This splendid officer was appointed by the Mackenzie government in 1878. He had been for one term a member of the Ontario legislature, and had served two terms in the dominion parliament. He was always an ardent and uncompromising liberal. Mr. McDougall is no doubt a liberal still, but regarding himself as a judicial officer, he has under both governments administered his department without fear or favor. There is not in his work or his writing any indication that age is telling on him. He is sixty-five, three years older than the premier, thirteen years younger than the secretary of state. Mr. McDougall is good for several years of effective service if the government will only permit him to perform it. But the ministers are dissatisfied with him for the same reason that they are offended with Lord Dundonald. The difference is that they cannot turn him out of office when he turns on the light. They can only obstruct him and tire him out.

TWO STATEMENTS.

The minister of militia has given the government organs this grossly unjust and deceptive criticism of Lord Dundonald's statement:

"What strikes me as rather peculiar," said Sir Frederick, "is the course which he followed, according to himself, to benefit the militia. His own story is that he pursued the dishonest course of remaining in the employment of the government and under the control of the minister simply and solely to look out and watch for something so that he could do the minister the utmost possible harm. He says he did this in preference to retiring. That is the avowed object which he pursued while all the time pretending loyalty to the government and loyalty to myself, with whom he was on the best possible terms, sending me letters and notes daily. As I have said, this was a rather strange course to pursue, at least it strikes me that way."

The fairness and veracity of the minister may be judged by reading his language in connection with the statement of Lord Dundonald, to which the minister refers. This is what Lord Dundonald said:

"My only reason for remaining in my post was to benefit the militia of Canada, but my efforts were so persistently blocked that I came to look upon the case as a hopeless one. I was forced to reflect very seriously upon what I could do to effect my object—the improvement of the militia. It seemed to me that, imperfect as is the training, great as is the lack of armament, numerous as are the faults of detail, there lies behind all these evils a far greater evil—the indifference of the men who govern the country to the welfare of the militia. It seemed to me that the best way to help the militia of Canada was to let daylight into the working of the system. I realized, moreover, that the new militia bill would soon be discussed in parliament, and that it was my duty to give a warning of certain dangers to the force which would be the result of the proposed amendments."

"A course offering many attractions was to resign and issue a public statement giving my reasons. So far as I personally was concerned it would have been by far the easier and more pleasant course. The objection was that by so doing I would give neither the government nor the people of Canada any real opportunity to pass judgment upon the matter brought to their attention. My protest would have been made, it is true, but not in a manner that would have attracted attention to the evil."

"It seemed better to make a public protest, and to leave with the government the option of heeding it, or of opposing the system which is destructive to the efficiency of the national defence."

THE SEAPORT PREFERENCE. The house of commons has adopted a resolution in favor of limiting the Canadian preference on British goods to articles which are imported through Canadian ports. This policy was long ago advocated by the St. John board of trade and delegates from this city brought it before the dominion board at a Toronto meeting. It has long been supported by this journal, which took the view that the condition should have been a part of the preferential tariff in the first instance. One step more should be taken. The law should provide that the goods be produced of the empire received direct at a British port from a British port, and carried under the British flag. So far as eastern Canada is concerned the last proposed condition is not of so much immediate importance as it may be later, but British shipping is entitled to British preference as well as British goods and British ports. Mr. Fielding has spoken in favor of the resolution, and it is said that Mr. Legan, who introduced it this year, acted under his instructions. There is nothing original now about the proposition. It is familiar to the country and to parliament.

If Mr. Fielding really desired to promote this national port policy he could do so more effectually than by expressing his sympathy with it. A few days ago he proposed legislation affecting the tariff preference. He did that as finance minister, and his resolutions became law on the spot. That was the time for him to limit the preference to goods imported by way of Canadian ports. Instead he continued to foreign ports the same privileges as Montreal and Quebec, St. John and Halifax. We have therefore the interesting spectacle of the finance minister introducing legislation giving Portland, Boston and New York the benefit of the Canadian preferential import trade and two weeks later voting that they should not have this benefit.

PRIVATE INFORMATION.

Among the paragraphs which Sir Frederick Borden struck out of the report of Lord Dundonald was his reference to the condition of the permanent forces. The commander stated that "the permanent corps with an establishment of 95, were 207 under strength, had 277 enlistments and 154 desertions. The two small instructional batteries at Kingston were "practically reduced to one." In a report intended to disclose to the people of Canada the condition of their defensive force, this would seem to be an essential portion. But Dr. Borden put his pen through it, as he seems to have thought everything in the report that did not commend the whole organization. After he had mutilated the document, printing only such extracts as were satisfactory, and had done so against the protest of the commander who had written it, the minister gravely informed the house that the portions which had been withheld were private and confidential, and therefore could not be given to the public.

DE MONTS AND CHAMPLAIN.

De Monts and Champlain were in the same relative positions of authority when they reached St. John as when they explored Annapolis Basin. But the central character of the Annapolis celebration is De Monts, while in St. John Champlain's name is the more prominent. In the expedition of 1604, Champlain is in Canadian history the greatest of all the men whom France sent to this continent while she claimed and sought to maintain supremacy here. Soldier, navigator, geographer, author, administrator, statesman, Champlain presented a remarkable combination of high qualities. He was not a man of letters, but his writing has a style about it, indicating a strong and marked individuality. He illustrated his story with maps of his own and with quaint drawings. His annals are singularly free from exaggeration or careless errors. While many of the charter holders of his time were mere adventurers, serving their own ambitions, Champlain seems to have been a just and patriotic servant of his country and king. He presented to the colonists and to the natives a type of strong, brave, true manhood, and of genuine leadership. De Monts makes a good appearance on this memorable voyage. His large toleration and his good disposition are commended. But he was not near the beginning of a great career as Champlain was on St. John's day, 1604. The navigator and historian was the earliest Canadian statesman. Had his successor exhibited half his powers, with equal moderation and justice, France would not so easily have been dispossessed. A great part of the thirty years of his life after 1604 was spent in Canada, where he met with success and defeat, but suffered no dishonor. British victory removed him from this continent, but as an old man he returned to Canada to die by the banks of the St. Lawrence.

AN ABANDONED POLICY. With a majority of fifty-five to sixty the Laurier government may sometimes think that it can pass any legislation. That idea seems to have possession of Mr. Sifton when he asked his colleagues to place the Manitoba electoral lists under federal control, and also in the mind of the other ministers when they agreed to his proposition. It was, however, discovered that such legislation could not pass earlier than Christmas and perhaps not then. There is a limit to the power of a majority when outrages of a certain class are attempted.

THE TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. The provincial temperance convention held in this city yesterday is an event which rightly claims a share of public attention. It will be observed that the addresses and the resolutions were practical in their character and moderate in tone. To serve any good purpose a convention of this kind must be definite in its statements and demands, seeking such legislation as seems likely to be obtainable, and likely to be effective. No doubt all, or nearly all those who attended yesterday's meeting are in favor of Dominion prohibition. That failing, they would support prohibition for the province. Meanwhile they commend the Scott act, which is prohibition for the municipality. For such portions of the province as will remain under license these reformers ask for certain amendments to the license laws, with the object of giving the local authorities larger powers to regulate and restrict. These amendments were presented to the government last winter, but no action was taken by the ministry. It is proposed to give the government a few months more time. The further announcement is made that if nothing is done or promised in the way of amendment of the license law an attempt will be made to substitute the Scott act for license in those counties which are now under the license law.

TOO BUSY TO ASK FOR A RAISE. (Leslie's Weekly) A year ago, a manufacturer hired a boy. For months there was nothing noticeable about the boy except that he never took his eyes off the machine he was running. A few weeks ago, the manufacturer looked up from his work to see the boy standing beside his desk. "What do you want," he asked. "Want me pay raised."

"What are you getting?" "Three dollars a week."

"Well, how much do you think you are worth?" "Four dollars."

"You think so, do you?" "Yes, sir, I've been thinking so for three weeks, but I've been so busy busy I haven't had time to speak to you about it."

THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION. Some zealous supporters have discovered that the celebrated Admiral Cochrane, an ancestor of Lord Dundonald, quarrelled with the government authorities of his time, and was banished. The charge is true, though it has not much to do with the present case. But history knows Cochrane as a splendid fighter, who won many victories over England's enemies, and it has very little to say in favor of some of the political officials who interfered with his work, and degraded him. The old naval officer was the foe of the political meddler and the spokesman who were the enemies of the country at home, but like his descendant was not so successful in his warfare against them as he was in his struggle with the open and foreign enemy.

COLONEL DENISON'S ADDRESS. The stirring and impressive address given by Colonel Denison last evening was, like the president of the Royal Society himself, out of the common way. There will always be as many theories and stories of the origin of the revolution, and as many judgments of the characters concerned in it, as there are lecturers and writers on the subject. The lecturer of last evening looked at the question from the point of view of a loyalist and a descendant of fighting loyalists, but as a master of military strategy he certifies that the British rulers at home, some of their officers on the ground, and the loyalists in the colonies were to blame for the success of the continental cause. The discussion of the influence of the loyalists on the history of the continent after the revolution was an interesting study in political and military history, and was followed with deep interest.

Hopewell Hill.

HOPEWELL HILL, June 20.—Joseph H. Carnwath of Riverside died at his home at that place this morning, from cancer of the stomach, from which he had been suffering for several months. The deceased, whose death causes sincere regret throughout the community, was about 28 years of age, and was the youngest son of the late Jas. Carnwath, merchant, of Riverside. He leaves a young wife, a daughter of the late Capt. W. A. Copp of Riverside, and eight sisters and three brothers, the latter being W. J. merchant, and Dr. J. E. M. of Riverside, and Charles of British Columbia.

Resolved, that this meeting of the ratepayers of School District No. 2, Hopewell, assembled at its June annual meeting of 1904, hereby repeats its protest against any proposed alteration of the boundaries of the district, as such proposed alteration would be without due regard to the number of children and the ability of the district to support an efficient school, and in violation of section 5 of Schools Act of 1900, and pledges itself to take all lawful steps to resist such alteration. It was decided to have the resolution printed in the St. John Telegraph and Sun. The teachers' union and the question of increased salaries for teachers received considerable attention by the meeting. C. A. Peck, R. C. spoke of the number of New Brunswick teachers going west to get better salaries, and advocated an increase in the government allowance to teachers, sufficient to bring the total salaries up to the Manitoba standard, with the stipulation that, in return, the teacher should work five years in his own province. Mr. Peck brought a motion along this line, which was seconded by H. H. Stuart, but after debate, which showed a strong feeling in favor of increase, was not pressed to a vote.

Important Time in Every Girl's Life

IS BETWEEN FIFTEEN AND EIGHTEEN YEARS OF AGE—HOW TO AVOID THE DANGERS THAT ARISE DURING THIS PERIOD.

The mental activity of school life, coupled with the terrible strain that must come during these years, taxes the vitality of even the strongest. A girl at this age often does not understand the physical changes she is undergoing. She will in all probability be nervous and puzzled. She should have the benefit of good motherly advice and a long treatment of Ferruzone, which will supply new energy to bear her safely past the critical period. Ferruzone is the best remedy to take in early womanhood, because it contains so much nerve and blood nourishment. It corrects all derangements, cures bearing-down, pain, nervousness, and prevents headache. Ferruzone revitalizes young girls, gives them vim, buoyancy, strong nerves and healthy body. Every girl should use Ferruzone, and wise mothers will see that their daughters have the benefit of this health-giving tonic.

Mrs. W. E. Michel, of Richmond, writes: "I can strongly recommend Ferruzone as a good tonic for young ladies. My daughter has been taking Ferruzone for the past six months, and it has worked wonders for her. Before using Ferruzone she was anemic and nervous and had no strength. But Ferruzone has built up her whole constitution and gives her strength and vitality. If all the mothers I ever meet I don't think one of them compares with Ferruzone. It certainly brings health and strength to young girls."

There is no remedy half so effective as Ferruzone. A trial soon demonstrates its merit. Get Ferruzone from your druggist today, and let it build you up. Beware of fraudulent substitutes and insist on having only Ferruzone. Price 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. By mail from the Ferruzone Company, Kingston, Ont.

A decision of much interest to exporters of fish in the province has been handed down by the board of United States general appraisers. Fish imported to the States in brine are dutiable by weight at the rate of half a pound. About six months ago the general appraisers ruled that the brine surrounding the fish must be included in the dutiable weight.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF TEMPERANCE WORKERS

Several Resolutions Passed Which Are Calculated to Forward the Work--Addresses by Prominent Gentlemen.

The convention of temperance delegates from all over the province opened in Leinster street Baptist school room Wednesday afternoon and continued in the evening. The attendance was large and much enthusiasm was shown.

Mr. Hamilton was chosen chairman for both meetings. Mr. C. Simpson, grand secretary of the Temple of Honor, was elected secretary.

The chairman said that as efforts to obtain temperance legislation had been unsuccessful, they had decided to issue a call to all interested to a convention. A provisional programme had been drawn up, which the convention might alter in any way they thought fit.

Mr. Thomas considered the resolution a very easy one to move, or he thought there would be no difference of opinion among them and the resolution stated that the sale of liquor was illegal in many parts of the province. There were about two votes in favor of prohibition to one against.

Dr. McLeod, Fredericton, had much pleasure in seconding the resolution. He understood there was a school above him. It was in the interest of those boys in the school that he was speaking.

It was a fact that temperance sentiment was taking a stronger form. They had plenty that manifested itself in speeches, enthusiastic meetings and so on, but they wanted something more solid.

Dr. Roberts, Jacksonville, supported the motion. He spoke very bitterly of present election methods.

Mr. Goldsmith objected to the use in the committee's recommendations allowing an extension of the license had been reduced to the legal number.

Mr. Everett continued reading the amendments to the act. He also read at length extracts from his report as grand scribe of the Sons of Temperance.

what action the government propose to take with reference to these suggestions.

The resolution, that in case the government do not before the 1st of October next make known that they intend to use their utmost power to have passed through the legislature at its next session such measures as would be satisfactory to the temperance people, steps be then at once taken to put the Canada Temperance Act in force in the city and county of St. John.

Mr. Woodburn emphasized the importance of acting together. He felt sure that if the matter were laid before the people of the city and county of St. John it would be carried. He said that the government tied them by giving the ladies the ballot.

Mr. Kelly, St. Martins, thought that the only way would be to band themselves together, that they might force the legislature to give them what they wanted. He intended to move a resolution for women's suffrage.

IT WAS A GREAT CELEBRATION.

Corner Stone of De Monts Statue Laid

—Addresses by Distinguished Representatives.

ANAPOLIS, June 22.—The great De Monts celebration is at an end. Unlimited success has attended it from the start to finish, and even those who had looked forward to the event with the most sanguine anticipations were agreeably surprised.

Mr. Woodburn emphasized the importance of acting together. He felt sure that if the matter were laid before the people of the city and county of St. John it would be carried. He said that the government tied them by giving the ladies the ballot.

up Nancy Lee. He regretted very much the fact that the size of the Ariadne would not allow her to come all the way up, and paid a high tribute to Hon. Mr. Longley for the part in which he had conducted the celebration.

The next speaker was SIR CHARLES PARSONS. When introducing him Mr. Longley said he believed him to be the ablest British officer who ever filled the position of commander-in-chief in British North America.

Sir Charles spoke of the excellent situation of the fort and drew attention to the fact that in his party De Monts must have had some able soldiers, whose judgment certainly equalled that of any soldier of the present time.

F. B. WADE, M. P. for Annapolis Co., was asked to speak in the name of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He said that he had asked the premier for an appropriation to the monument fund and was sorry that it could not have been completed in time to be included in the celebration.

WANTED. WANTED—At Hartland Superior School, a second class Female Teacher for intermediate department. E. C. ORGAN, Secy.

FORWARD. By Edna Dean Procter. Dreamer, waiting for darkness with sorrowful drooping eyes.

Linger not in the valley, bemoaning the day that is done! Climb the eastern mountains and welcome the rosy skies—

Never yet was the setting so fair as the rising sun! Dear is the past; its treasures we hold in our hearts for aye;

Woe to the hand that would scatter one wreath of its garnered flowers; But larger blessing and honor will come with the waking day—

Hail, then, Tomorrow, nor tarry with Yesterday's ghostly hour! Mark how the summers hasten, through blossoming fields of June,

To the purple lanes of the vintage and the levels of golden corn; "Splendors of life I lavish," runs nature's exultant runs; "For myriads press to follow, and the harvest is yet unborn."

Think low eger the earth is, and every arid that shines; To circle the grander spaces about God's throne—

Never the least moon lingers nor the largest sun declines— Forward they roll forever these glorious depths to sea.

Dreamer, waiting for darkness with sorrowful drooping eyes. Summers and suns so gladly, and wherefore art thou railing?

Climb the hills of morning and welcome the rosy skies— The joy of the boundless future—may, God himself, be thine!
