Exhibition of Ranch Bred Silver Foxes

An unique exhibition under the immediate management of the Commission of Canada, will be held in Montreal on November 24, 25 and 26. It will be the first international exhibition of ranch-bred live silver foxes. Fur-farming is rapidly becoming a scientific branch of animal husbandry and, although little more than a decade old, is one of Canada's most flourishing industries.

While the greater number of Canadian fox ranchers are to be found in the Maritime Provinces and chiefly in Prince Edward Island, there are many in each of the other provinces and the number is steadily increasing. The interest evinced in Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada generally demonstrates that many Canadians are desirous of embarking in the fur-farming of mink, beaver, fisher, marten and other fur-bearers.

Present advices indicate that fully 150 animals will be brought from Prince Edward Island alone. It is confidently expected that other provinces will send an equally large number in proportion to the number of their fur-farmers and many enquiries have been received from the United States. The Secretary of the exhibition is F. C. Nunnick, Commission of Conservation, Ottawa.

A healthy growth of the industry should do much to check the rapid depletion of wild fur-bearing animals and to steady unstable conditions in the large fur markets. It is confidently expected that the exhibition at Montreal will result in the formation of the Fur Breeders' Association of Canada, which can do much to establish and keep accurate breeding records of pedigreed fox-stock and, in general, advance the interests of the industry.

LETTER FROM MRS. WAKELIN

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered greatly from weakness, seemed to be tired all the time, and had no ambition to do anything or go any place. My nerves were in bad shape, I could not sleep at night, and then came a breakdown. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and several of my friends advised me to use it. I am quite able to do all my own work, and I would strongly advise every suffering woman to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."

Mrs. CHARLES WAKELIN, 572 Christie St., Toronto, Ont.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

PRICE vs. VALUE IN SHOES

In buying shoes (and everything else as well), it's value you want. Imported shoes cost more because of the freight, duty and exchange. These things don't add to the value of a shoe. They only increase its cost.

This store has one mission in life. That is to give you the best value. Made-in-Canada shoes are today better value, grade for grade, than shoes imported from any country. They reflect the very latest and best styles and shapes. The material is honest. Workmanship is high grade. And so, because the prosperity of this store depends upon service to our customers, we sell and recommend Made-in-Canada Footwear, knowing that we can thereby give you the best value and satisfaction.

Ten Years After

Ten years ago the first packages of KING COLE TEA were packed and put on the market. The time that has elapsed since then has been filled with hard work and with many difficult situations to be met and overcome. But withal, it has been a period of unquestionable, steady and persistent progress. KING COLE TEA has never looked back. Every year has brought its increase. Today its sale is ten times greater than the first year's business. This is the public's remarkable tribute to the worth of KING COLE TEA. It speaks for unusual service.

CLEANING UP

By MYRA E. MAJOR
(Copyright, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

There were six boarders at the home of Mrs. Luella Goodwin and they were a congenial and pretty well satisfied sextette. There was a Mr. Edith Gray and his young wife, the two Misses Ward, spinsters, Gordon Lisle and Millie Forrester. The young man last named was an industrial engineer, the young lady an assistant bookkeeper, and with them principally the story has to do.

The Grays had just started out in married life, Gordon Lisle was at the time working on a salary and Miss Forrester was a beginner in her then existing position. She and the Grays were content to occupy rooms on the third floor, while Lisle had an apartment in the half attic. The Misses Ward, having an income from a small estate, were able to pay for more pretentious quarters on the floor below, but these grades of means did not affect the regard with which Mrs. Goodwin considered them. All were welcome to the double parlor on the first floor, and many pleasant concert evenings they passed, Mrs. Goodwin the delighted high priestess of so much harmony and comfort, Millie at the piano, Lisle accompanying her with his violin, the spinsters always called upon for an old time duet and the Grays in an ecstasy of enjoyment sentimentally holding hands.

It was when there was a break in this perfect circle that Millie grew sad and thoughtful and the others lost their former home interest. The young man had told his friends enough to indicate that he had fingered in the city to contest a lawsuit which involved a large amount due him from an engineering corporation. The case went against him and he was a very much disappointed man.

"Somehow I lost all the important papers in the matter," he told Millie sorrowfully the evening they parted. "I have got to go back to hard work, penniless and defrauded. It is a disappointment to have you go out of my life, Miss Forrester," he added with deep feeling, "for your company has been a pleasure and an inspiration to me. I have asked my sister, Mrs. Bartley, to invite you to her home, for she will miss you, too, and it will be a solace to me to realize that you two are sometimes thinking of me."

"I shall never forget you," answered Millie with truth and emotion, and she broke down in tears after his departure.

Once a week after that an invitation came to Mrs. Goodwin's home. Lisle's sister. They became true friends and more so than ever when on one occasion Mrs. Bartley told Millie that she was the only girl Gordon had ever loved and Millie, overcome, confessed that he had won the affection she had never before revealed. In heart sympathy those two read the frequent letters the brother wrote to his sister and they sent back messages of hope and cheer.

Mrs. Goodwin, the kindly landlady, took her first vacation in twenty years and by a mere coincidence exactly at the time that Millie was apportioned hers. A helpful impulse came to the latter after she had decided that she would remain in the city during the two weeks' spell of leisure. Mrs. Goodwin had been kind and motherly toward her and Millie set at work to repay all her friendly consideration. The portly landlady did her best, but amid her multitudinous duties she neglected cleaning house that spring. The vacant room that Lisle had occupied had not found another tenant.

In a systematic way Millie started to have a grand surprise for Mrs. Goodwin when she returned. Mrs. Gray gave her what assistance she could and the cleaning up program was good practice for the bride of a year and gave Millie a new insight as to household work.

Somehow it happened, yet engrossed her to work in the room that Lisle had occupied. It had not been touched since his departure and he had left some framed pictures on the wall, there was an old straw hat in a closet and in wastebasket pencil sketches of bridge and conduit work that he had mapped out. On a window ledge Millie came upon a faded rose bud. She wondered if it was one she had worn in her hair and gave to him one evening.

Millie did not evade a thorough renovation of the neglected room. There was a wardrobe chest of drawers set in a niche and all of these she dislodged and scrubbed and made sweet and clean. As she was setting one back in the place her eyes fell upon a crushed package of papers wedged in behind a lining board and the bottom of the wardrobe. She drew it forth. Ten minutes later, hurriedly dressed and all in a flutter, Millie hastened from the house to seek the sister of the man she loved.

"These must be the missing papers your brother so often told me about," spoke Millie breathlessly. "Oh! if so, do they not mean something to him?" and Mrs. Bartley uttered a glad cry as she looked them over.

"Oh, Millie!" she cried joyously, "they are the precious documents, indeed! We must wire Gordon at once. You glorious girl! You have restored his fortune and!" she paused and bestowed upon Millie an interrogative glance.

"Yes," replied Millie frankly and fervently, "and love, true and lasting, as it was his long ago."

and the sealed air-tight carton keeps it "Good".

Windmill

Barbados Super-Fancy Molasses

It is the fruit juice of ripe, Golden Ribbon sugar cane—not crushed by steel, nor cooked by steam—but, as in days of old, it goes through wooden rolls with windmill's aid, and is cooked over the open fire in open kettles.

It takes 100 lbs. of this Golden Ribbon Cane to make one gallon of "Windmill" Barbados. Nature alone gives it its sweetness, flavour and colour.

Nothing added—nothing extracted. Full of the food elements that give heat, energy, and endurance, and well balanced with minerals, fruit salts, that give health to the blood and strength to the body frame.

Yet costs no more than common molasses, or compounds in which there is practically no food value.

No fancy cans to raise the cost—Sold in bulk only.

Be sure you get the good, old-process, "Windmill" Barbados—it savors of fruits and flowers of Barbados.

We guarantee Windmill to be absolutely pure and highest grade Barbados Molasses.

Bell of this village. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in their bereavement.

Mrs. P. R. Sample has been confined to the house with a severe attack of la grippe.

ABOUT THE STORAGE BATTERY IN YOUR CAR

A fully charged battery consists of a container to hold the three cells that go to make a 6 volt battery. Each cell is contained in a hard rubber jar. The Active Elements of a cell are the Positive plates which are made of finely divided peroxide of lead, pasted and formed on lead grids; the Negative plates are made of sponge metallic lead, also formed on lead grids. These two plates being insulated from each other by treated wood separators are immersed in the electrolyte or liquid which is the remaining active element of the battery.

Electrolyte is made of chemically pure Sulphuric Acid, which has a specific gravity of 1.800, diluted with distilled water to 1.300. On discharge the acid is gradually taken into the plates until the gravity of the remaining liquid drops to 1.150 when the battery is practically discharged. At this point the peroxide of lead and sponge metallic lead in the plates is partly changed to sulphate of lead. This is known as normal sulphating and can easily be removed by recharging. Abnormal Sulphating, which is very injurious and hard to remove begins when the battery is allowed to remain in this condition, and if left for any considerable time will cause the end of its usefulness or leave it with a capacity so small that it will require a recharge from an outside source very often. The Sulphuric Acid in the electrolyte does not evaporate, but the water does, so nothing but pure water should be added except to replace loss from spilling or a leaky jar. Replacing water which has evaporated with acid is a mistake too often practised by charging men to make the battery "show more charge." Enough acid is already in the battery, however, and adding more only deludes the person who puts it in. This mistake is carefully guarded against by the manufacturer of the battery by printed instructions with each new battery and should be strictly adhered to by everyone connected with the use or care of a battery.

A battery in a discharged condition will freeze at 13 degrees above zero, $\frac{1}{4}$ discharged at zero, $\frac{1}{2}$ discharged at 38 degrees below zero, $\frac{3}{4}$ discharged at 60 degrees below zero, a fully charged battery at 100 below zero.

In charging a battery the action is exactly the reverse to that of discharge—the current being passed through in the opposite direction the acid is driven out the plates into the Electrolyte, the gravity rising again to 1.300 when fully charged. The plates are again changed chemically to their original state.

Do not allow your battery to remain discharged. Take it to your Garage Man and have it recharged. Do not use anything but pure water to replace evaporation and never allow the tops of the plates to become dry. Keep battery hold down clamps tight. If the engine fails to take hold after a reasonable use of the starter, find out why, as it takes a large amount of current to run your starting motor uselessly discharging your battery. If the terminals become corroded, scrape clean and wipe off with a cloth dampened in dilute ammonia, coat with vasoline and you have a perfect contact. Batteries must have a refreshing charge at least once a month during the winter. Take your battery to the Central Garage where it will receive proper and careful attention during storage. We specialize on Battery Repairing.

TO PRESERVE OLD LANDMARK

Creation of National Monument Area Assures Security to Posterity of Famous Mullan Tree.

The Mullan tree, landmark of the old Mullan trail, the first highway connecting Montana and Idaho with the coast, will be preserved to posterity through the creation of a national monument area by the president.

On July 4, 1861, Capt. John Mullan, leader of the party having charge of the survey and construction of the Mullan trail from Walla Walla, Wash., to Fort Benton, Mont., closed his work at the connecting point of the roads from the east and west, at the head of the Fourth of July canon, between Wallace, Idaho, and Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. There he marked appropriately a huge white-pine tree, which since that time has been known as the Mullan tree. Tourists seeking souvenirs of their jaunt along the Yellowstone trail have damaged the ancient tree so much that forest service officers have found it necessary to take steps to protect it, and, to accomplish this, have submitted a petition proposing that a national monument area be created, which has been approved.

When Paint Causes Wood to Warp. Coatings of equal moisture resistance should be applied to all surfaces of a wood product which would give dissatisfaction if it were to warp in service. Tests at the forest products laboratory, Madison, have shown that even when wood is properly kiln dried, no coating entirely prevents it from picking up or giving off moisture and, consequently, from swelling and shrinking under the influence of varying atmospheric conditions.

Varnish, shellac, and other moisture-resistant finishes merely decrease the rate at which the moisture changes in wood occur. The higher the grade and the more coats applied, the slower will be the moisture changes.

Unequal coatings on opposite surfaces of a wooden article cause unequal rates of change in moisture content and hence unequal shrinkage on the two sides of the piece. The result is that the wood tends to cup or twist out of shape.

Dog Saves Felina Chum.

Deuce, an Irish terrier, proved at a fire in the pet shop at 270 Livingston street, Brooklyn, that the term "cat and dog life" sometimes means the opposite of hate, combat and commotion. Deuce had been living in amity with seven blooded cats in the shop for several weeks. When the fire started he saved himself, and then watched the firemen rescue the cats. Apparently he counted them, for when the men stopped rescue work after bringing out the sixth he came out carrying the seventh by the scruff of its neck. Deuce had to open a cage to do it. When he released the cat on the sidewalk, the latter purred and rubbed against his legs, until the shop owner gathered up both animals and took them away.

MORE OR LESS A MYSTERY

Few Seem to Know the Real Facts Concerning the So-Called Monkey of Mons.

Are you acquainted with the monkey of Mons?

An army officer brought home from Belgium a replica—a tiny silver figure with one clawish hand posed reflectively against its chin and with a look of introspection in its deepest eyes. In showing it to a friend he mentioned that, like a number of officers who had been to Mons, he carried the thing as a mascot. The friend told a woman about it, and she, being unacquainted with the monkey of Mons, asked a soldier who had been there.

"Never heard of it, but you can't judge by me, as I was only in Mons a couple of days—got great coal mines there, though."

Another soldier who had been to Mons long enough to go sightseeing was impressed mainly by the cathedral of St. Waldrup—built in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, Gothic architecture, and the monkey must have been there, of course, but—

Then the woman extended her inquiry to a private who had hobbled around Mons for two hours while waiting to get away.

"Sure I saw it! Bronze statue in a street—or maybe it was one of those gargoyles things on the church wall, but anyhow, I saw it—at least it looked like a monkey, though I wouldn't be willing to swear to it."

Which is the why of this cry: "Are you acquainted with the monkey of Mons?"—Washington Star.

THE GO-BETWEEN

By ALVAH J. GARTH

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"You are surely my friend, Tresham," projected Willie Burton. "Not so much as I was," seriously replied Hugh Tresham. "I don't like the bright, flippant way in which you treat what you call your 'friend' with a young lady for whom I have the highest admiration and respect."

"Surely you aren't hit yourself in that direction!" called Burton derisively. "We won't discuss that," replied Tresham with dignity. "You and I have known one another for a good many years and I am a passably loyal fellow, but the autocratic and indifferent way in which you treat the wounded of a trustful, sensitive heart hurts me."

"Oh! fix it up for me, ambassador royal!" spoke Burton airily. "Of course, I broke an engagement to take Vera to an entertainment and did some flirting with others under the provoking huffiness of the little scold, but that is no reason why she won't make a move towards a reconciliation. Honest, I'm sorry, and I think a lot of her. Tell her so, smooth it over. She's got a cool $50,000 in her own right, is pretty as a picture and I'll marry her tomorrow if she's agreeable."

Hugh Tresham was something more than annoyed. He did not at all like the mission upon which he was being sent.

"You are straining my sense of propriety and justice, Burton," he observed. "You are asking an extraordinary duty of me, but I will hope that if I break the ice and open the way for you to effect a reconciliation, you will prize the treasure among womankind as she deserves to be."

"Yes, I'll turn over a new leaf," declared Burton. "Of course, I'm not going to report to her in tears or any of that sort, but if Vera will let bygones be bygones with nothing more said, I am willing to be reasonably meek and humble."

There was the trace of sneering audacity and egotism in tones of the unworthy lover and Tresham went his way with compressed lips and a pained and thoughtful face. Burton, the son of one of the most influential residents of Bayville, had been known to Tresham, just establishing a moderate law practice, for a long time. The latter owed many favors to Burton and until the past year had held him in high regard. He had been pained and disappointed at a great change in him, however, but was too loyal to tell others so.

It was a hard task he had assumed. There was a basis to the insinuation on the part of Burton that Tresham thought more than ordinary of the belle of Bayville society. From the first time that Tresham met Vera Driscoll he had realized that he had come across the only woman he could ever love.

Tresham reached the Driscoll home to find Vera seated in a garden hammock. She greeted him graciously, but her brow furrowed, those charming lips lost their smile and there was no encouragement in her eyes as Tresham clearly and at once divulged the motive of his call. He said all he had promised Burton to say. The dark expressive eyes flashed with something like scorn.

"Do you not think that the penitential appeal of Mr. Burton should have come from his own lips direct?" she asked.

"I have fulfilled a mission to a friend," responded Tresham simply. "May I hear a reply message to him?"

"I will think over what Mr. Burton has said," was Vera's reply. Then the fair face cleared and she became the entertaining hostess complete with a man she respected and esteemed. Tresham sighed gratefully as he left her presence. Its charm enhanced in his estimation the gulf of wealth between them, while emphasizing his convictions of the unworthiness of Willis Burton more decisively than before.

A week went by. Burton turned and then sulked when he found that Miss Driscoll was not at all eager to take him back into her good graces. Then mysteriously it became known that the uncle of Vera, who operated a large manufacturing enterprise, had failed, and it was said that all of Vera's fortune had been lost in the crash.

It was just after then that Burton received a note from Vera, asking him to call. He did not reply and she was glad for reasons of her own. It seemed that a penniless bride was not the fancy of this very worldly and selfish young man.

Nobody looked down upon Miss Driscoll when she readjusted her life in accordance with a changed financial condition. She was a general favorite and preserved her wonted cheerfulness and exerted her helpful influence as before.

Willis Burton married into a newly rich family and counted the dangle of money bags like the cad he was.

Crown Dating From 1000 A. D.

The rumor, current in the European press some months ago, when the Bela Kun administration ruled in Hungary, that the Hungarian crown was to be sold, seems to have disappeared, and the later government apparently means to keep it. It was an odd circumstance, says a writer commenting on that rumor and its disappearance, that, with so much talk of discarded insignia of royalty, the one crown actually mentioned as being for sale should have been the most ancient one, with a single exception. In Europe, for example, is comparatively modern, and was made no longer ago than 1871 for the former Kaiser's grandfather. The crown of Hungary traces back, at least in legend, to the year 1000, and the sum of 100,000 Swiss marks, about $19,000, which, last summer, was circumstantially reported as the price for which it was to be sold, does not seem particularly exorbitant.

A GUARANTEE

The publishers of The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal are doing the right thing with the public. Ninety per cent of newspapers have already raised rates. The Family Herald publishers guarantee a full year's subscription at the old rate of $1.00 a year to all who remit before December 1st, 1920. We learn that many old subscribers are renewing for two years in advance and the number of new subscribers are being added. It is a great paper and the best value on the Continent.

Wonderful improvements have lately been made in The Family Herald. Members of the Imperial Press Conference, who lately visited Canada, say it has no equal in the British Empire. Canadians should appreciate such a paper at the price. After December 1st they may have to pay more.

Painter's Fame Came Slowly
August Renoir, seventy-eight years old, the famous French Impressionist, died recently at Cagnes, France, on the day that his picture of the Pont Neuf fetched 100,000 francs at an art sale. In his youth he often paid for his dinner with a picture. Renoir was one of the first of the Impressionists. He worked to the last, and died with his palette in his hands. "I feel I am just beginning to know my trade," he said when he was well over seventy.

Black Opal, Found in Nevada in 1917, Was a Quarter the Size of a Brick.
What is believed to be the largest uncut gem in the world has come to light in a recently opened mine. The stone, which was discovered in the spring of 1917. The stone is a "black opal," so-called because of its dark tones predominating. It shows mostly dark peacock blues and emerald greens, with a considerable amount of red, and several less prominent shades.
In size this great gem approaches a quarter of an ordinary brick, being three and fifteen-sixteenths inches in length, three and one-eighth in width, and two and one-eighth thick at the bulkiest point. Its weight is eighteen and six-tenths avoirdupois ounces, which expressed in gem diction is 613.88 grams or 2,535.56 carats. More than a pound of opal is surely some stone. And it is all solid, uncracked, flawless gem material, free from matrix or adhering rock except for a paper-thin skin encrusting the two major surfaces. Little specks broken from this skin here and there reveal the brilliant play of colors within, while the exposed ends and edges exhibit the full refracting radiance of the mass.
This stone is about half again as large as the largest of the noted gems of the world. The Cullinan diamond was roughly the size and shape of a small fist, and, if it had been an opal, would have weighed but 3,729 carats. It is compared with the new opal on this basis since the specific gravity of the diamond is 75 per cent greater than that of the opal.—Archile Rice in the Scientific American.

HOWARD-JAMER

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. S. M. Jamer, Red Rapids, N. B., on Wednesday Nov. 3, at 10 a.m., when her youngest daughter, Leovercia Zita, became the wife of Perley T. Howard of Carleton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Neil McLean. The drawing room was prettily decorated in green and white. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. Herman Jamer of Andover. The bride looked charming in a navy blue suit with panne velvet hat, carrying a large bouquet of flowers. A dainty luncheon was served after the ceremony. The bride who has been at Fort Fairfield for the past two years is a popular and very successful nurse and will be much missed. The groom is a prosperous young farmer of Carleton. Many costly and beautiful presents were received which testify to the popularity of the young people. They left by auto for parts unknown amidst a shower of confetti and good wishes.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

Mrs. Beale Campbell and daughter Margaret went to Woodstock on Wednesday, returning on Saturday.

Miss Fair of Fredericton who has been visiting her friend, Miss Pauline Balloch, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Downey are occupying the house of Ludlow Clark temporarily until their own new home is vacated.

Guy R. Balloch arrived from Montreal on Friday, called home on account of the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. R. W. Balloch.

Mrs. G. G. London returned last week from Waterville, Me., where she had been spending some time with relatives and friends.

Rev. W. J. Harlow returned on Friday from New Glasgow, whither he had been called to fill the pulpit of the Baptist church the previous Sunday.

Dr. H. R. McIntosh wishes to inform his many kind friends and patrons that he has returned from a protracted visit to the western states and has resumed the practice of dentistry in our town.

The annual meeting of the Shareholders of Centreville branch of the United Farmers will be held on Saturday evening, Nov. 13, at 8 o'clock for the election of officers and other business.

Rev. Hugh Miller and Rev. H. B. Bell are getting things well under way in their new charges, the Methodist and the United Baptist Churches respectively.

Among the teachers in attendance at the Centreville and Victoria Teachers' Institute held at Woodstock last week were Mr. Nicholson and Miss Strath of the local staff, Misses Mary Harlow, Hazel London, Florence Williams and Vida Hamilton of the adjacent districts.

A pleasant social event of last week was Mrs. Willard M. Bruce's "at home" to her friends on Wednesday and Thursday. Mrs. Bruce was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. G. L. White. On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Lee White and Miss Mollie Cady served refreshments in the dining room and on Thursday Mrs. Ruel McClatchey was assisted by Miss Addie Irvine.

The members of St. James' Episcopal Church had an especially joyful service on Sunday when they basked for the first time in the gentle rays of heat coming from the new furnace, recently installed through the efforts of the Ladies Guild. A new basement and foundation have also been added during the last year by the indefatigable efforts of the present rector, Rev. J. Ross-Jones.

A general meeting of the stockholders of the Centreville Hotel Company was held in the Opera House on Friday evening. A majority of the company were present. Several flattering offers have been received for the hotel proposition but the directors of the corporation deem it more advisable towards town betterment to count an offer of occupation as hotel premises than an outright sale, when the property may revert to other lines of venture. No peremptory decision was made however and the secretary is still open to carry negotiations towards a definite option on either sale or rental. The place has made money a great many times to former proprietors and could easily be put not only on a paying but very profitable basis. The building is in excellent condition and the furniture and equipment new and modern. An extraordinary opportunity to the right party.

Centreville has really awakened after quite a period of hibernation. Of late or at least up to the present season everything and everybody seemed to be going along the even tenor of their way. Not that all business affairs and commercial enterprises were not keyed up to the last notch. Merchandising was never carried on on a larger or more profitable scale than during the last decade. Each year saw records broken on sales; the stores and the faces of the merchants have been radiant with smiles at each well merited increase. The people are wonderfully prosperous, money is in the air and plentiful and the good folks have all cut loose their purse strings and bought all the good things their hearts wished for. Now to put Centreville up another notch, a real little property boom has started. The most recent transfers worth mention we quote: Amos Downey sold his very attractive home on South Main Street to H. W. Smith, and then reinvested in the Stanley Webb house, both sale and purchase greatly enhanced prices on the original value of the property.

On Saturday H. B. Hazerman purchased the valuable lot of H. B. Estabrooks in the heart of the business district and will gladden the vacant spot with a substantial structure in the near future. The writer knows of at least a half dozen little quiet deals that are being pulled and which will all make work for the lawyer and the register of deeds within a few days. 'Tis really encouraging to see things beginning to hop a little and let the merry dance go on, say we all. Like every other town and city on the map just now, housing conditions form the most complex problem. Some of our good neighbors have actually been obliged to seek new fields of endeavor in other towns on account of their inability to secure suitable accommodations. The climate here has never really been so salubrious as to enable the poor man with a family to get along without a shelter. It seems really bad to the casual observer that some of the blessed bondholders of our fair city could not see their way to build a few commodious houses for rental to their less favored brothers. At the rates of rental they should be able to garner much more healthy dividends on their dollars. At the same time it would greatly help a lot of us who are working on our first million with a mighty poor start.
