COMMISSIONER BUSY COMPILING YEAR'S BUDGET

Believes Announcement of Tax Rate Will Be Late.

SURPLUS IN 1921

Ex-Mayor Little's Prediction On Leaving Office Proven Correct.

At the conclusion of his term of office as mayor, E. S. Little was heard to offer to make a wager that the 1921 council would be found to have wound up its term of office with a surplus of between $5,000 and $15,000. The stake suggested was a new hat. The offer was not taken up and the result is that the ex-mayor is out a new hat. The figures are not yet complete, but are at a point where it is just a question of how much the estimate of the ex-mayor will be exceeded.

All the civic bodies concerned have adopted the bylaw setting forth the principles of the new commission government scheme, and the new civic organization will get down to work next week.

The first and important task of the year will be the survey of the estimates.

Mayor Wilson says the reservations made by the board of education, the last body to adopt the new scheme, will not affect the commission, the reservations being only to protect the board.

As matters are now shaping up the tax rate of the city should be struck before April 1. This will be a week or so later than last year.

Practically all the estimates with the exception of No. 1 committee are about ready and have been sent on to Finance Commissioner James Bell.

"I haven't the slightest idea of how the tax rate is going to be this year," said the finance commissioner when asked how the outlook was shaping up.

Right now Mr. Bell is not so much concerned with the tax rate as he is with the amount of increase which the various boards are asking. The total expenditure of 1921 out of the tax rate was $2,300,000, and there is less than $100,000 of this uncollected.

Doctor Saves Boy's Life By Operating With Penknife

CINCINNATI, O., March 10.—Surgery with a pen-knife, Wednesday, saved the life of two-year-old John Washington, who was taken to a Cincinnati hospital with a peanut lodged in his windpipe, causing strangulation. The child had stopped breathing when Dr. C. C. Payne arrived at the ward Wednesday night.

Realizing the death would ensue before he could send for surgical instruments, Dr. Payne took his pen-knife, slit open the boy's throat and incised the trachea just below where the peanut was lodged. This permitted the passage of air and the child soon was revived. Later the peanut was removed.

The doctor explained that had he waited until a surgical knife was obtained from one of the surgical wards the boy would have died.

SEES BLOODSHED IN PALESTINE RULE

R. C. Archbishop of Tyre, Syria, Scores Zionist Movement in Holy Land.

JEWS NOT BEST OF TYPE

Zion Colonists Are Only Tenth of Population and Slated to Govern Under England.

Windsor, March 10.—(Canadian Press).—In an interview today, Rt. Rev. Maximos Saigh, Roman Catholic archbishop of Tyre, Syria, who is visiting the border cities, scored the Zionist movement in Palestine and predicted that bloodshed massacres and revolutions will take place in Palestine as long as the Zionist and English protection are allowed to remain.

The archbishop is making a tour of the United States and Canada under orders of the Holy See and the patriarch of the Malkites, who are Greek Catholics in communion with the Roman Catholic Church.

"During the war England promised to make a new home for the Jewish people—to give them a national home where they might have their own government and language," Archbishop Saigh said.

The archbishop stated that thousands of Jews from American and European countries had flocked to Palestine since the conclusion of the war, but that they were not the higher class of Jews.

"Do you think that the English made a mistake in giving the Zionists power in Palestine?" the archbishop was asked.

"Beyond a single doubt it was a big mistake."

"Why?"

"Because it is against the elemental principles of justice. In Palestine only one-tenth of the people are Jews and if the people have any right to choose their own government it is impossible to see by what right one-tenth of the population can impose their will and authority on the balance of the people. The fault certainly is England's as she put the Zionists in power."

ASKS PROBE OF ROCK SHOWERS

Chicago, Cal., March 10.—Showers of rocks that fell "from the clouds" on a warehouse have been baffling the police, neighbors and various officials and unofficial investigators.

Today J. Charge, owner of the warehouse, posted the offer of a reward of $200 to the person revealing the source of the rocks.

While the town marshal and a committee of newspapermen and others were examining the corrugated iron roof yesterday a shower of large, smooth rocks fell, sending the investigators scurrying for cover.

Others, standing on the street at the time, declared the rocks seemed to come straight from the clouds.

Those employed in the building reported that the mysterious bombardments of the roof have been occurring periodically for three weeks.

SOVIET SAILORS KILLED.

Constantinople, March 10.—Fifteen members of the crew of the Bolshevik transport Corki were killed and many wounded when the ship's cargo of hand grenades exploded at Trebizond, on the Black Sea. The explosion also did some damage to the town, where great quantities of munitions have been received lately from Russia. Trebizond is in Asiatic Turkey, and the reference to the movement of munitions from Russia would indicate that the Turkish Nationalist army are being supplied from that source.

PROGRESSIVES TAKE SPHINX-LIKE ATTITUDE

Short Debate On Speech From Throne Is Now Anticipated.

CUT SENATE MAJORITY

Exit of Two Conservative Members Precipitates Thursday Caucus.

BY JOHN J. McLELLAN.

Ottawa, March 10.—Present indications point to a short debate upon the speech from the throne with practically no participation in the debate by members of the Progressive party. From what has been learned from the members of the latter party it is understood that they find very little need for a display of their oratorical talents, most of which today are unproven qualities, by debating on the speech.

This morning the Hon. Mr. Crerar gave out that his party would refrain as much as possible from outbursts of eloquence for some time.

Considerable interest is being shown in the meeting of the National Liberal committee taking place here this morning. So far just what are its hopes and aims have not been ascertained.

Many of the members have taken advantage of the week-end adjournment to return home, particularly those who live within easy reach of the capital.

While the Senate is rearranging itself the majority of the Conservatives in the upper chamber has been cut down by two. Yesterday the Conservatives of that august body rallied in caucus to prevent further decimation of their ranks.

It looks as though the senators will have little to do the coming session. Though how Hon. Sir George Foster, turbulent as he was in the Commons, will content himself with the quietude of the Senate opens up a vista of speculation.

FOUR MONTREAL FAMILIES ARE OVERCOME BY GAS

Eleven of Victims Rushed To Hospital, One in Serious Condition.

Montreal, March 10.—Four families living on St. Dominique street were the victims of a leakage of gas, and eleven of the tenants had to be rushed to the General Hospital in two ambulances this morning. Only one of the eleven victims is in a serious condition, but nine others were admitted to the hospital suffering from the effects of the gas. Charles Rosener smelled the fumes about 6 o'clock this morning, and tried to arouse the rest of the family. Being unable to do so, he staggered to the telephone and notified the General Hospital. Doctors and ambulances were immediately rushed to the scene. They found that not only the Rosener family had been affected, but three other families resident in premises adjacent had also nearly smothered. They were all unconscious when the doctors entered their homes. The escape of gas appears to have come from the main of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company in the street. An investigation revealed the fact that the gas company was notified of a leak yesterday, but owing to the message being given over the telephone in broken English, the inspectors went to the wrong street.

STRIKE COST $100,000 ALREADY.

Ottawa, March 10.—A total of over $100,000 has been spent since the commencement of the printers' strike in this city, 40 weeks ago, and no sign of a settlement is yet in evidence, according to J. K. Peffers, financial agent of the local branch of the Typographical Union. Ottawa is not alone in the fight, however, since Toronto has 800 men out and Montreal has 300.

PREFERS BRIGHT LIGHTS TO WIGWAM

Counsel Says Wife Deserted Defendant, Did Not Like Farm and Stayed in City.

HAS NO VICTORY BONDS

Mrs. Fisher Pays Costs As Magistrate Finds Case Is Under Jurisdiction of Indian Act.

"It's not a case of the husband deserting the wife, but the wife deserting the husband," declared A. G. Chisholm, counsel for Abraham Duncan Fisher, an Indian who resides on the Muncey reserve, charged with a breach of the Wives' Maintenance Act in police court, Friday morning.

"Mr. Fisher is willing to support his wife out on the farm, but she refuses to go back there, preferring the bright lights of London, and city life," continued Mr. Chisholm. "My client served overseas and has shared his pension of $70 a month with his wife. They lived here while he was taking a course at the Technical school, and now she refuses to go back to the farm.

"His wife is the holder of several thousand dollars Victory bonds. She also has several bank accounts and holds promissory notes for considerable sums. In other words she is woman of means.

"I don't think that your worship has any jurisdiction in this case, because Fisher is not enfranchised. The Indian act provides the means whereby she can get her deserts.

"This puts an entirely different light on the case," said Magistrate Bartlett. "I didn't know about this before."

"He don't know what he is talking about," said Mrs. Fisher, turning a scornful countenance on Mr. Chisholm. "I haven't got any Victory bonds, and you can search the banks for any money. I haven't got any. I don't own any land but my children do. I have lived here three years."

"I can't do anything for you," stated Mr. Bartlett. "I have no jurisdiction because your husband is not enfranchised. You will have to pay the costs in the case, Mrs. Fisher."

SAY HOME BREWING ON WANE.

Hamilton, March 10.—Speakers at the Dominion Alliance meeting yesterday reported that home brewing was on the wane. That is not true of Hamilton, where druggists say that it is on the increase. About twelve permits a day are being issued to home brewers by the customs officials. A summons has been issued against one who failed to take out a permit.

OPPOSE RELEASE OF ALI BROTHERS

Sir William Vincent Severely Condemns Men for Treasonable Activities.

TRIED TO SUBORN TROOPS

Believes India Is Seething Under Spirit of Lawlessness.

Delhi, British India, March 10.—Opposing a motion in the Legislative Assembly, yesterday, in favor of liberating the Ali brothers and other political prisoners, Sir William Vincent, the home minister, severely indicted the Ali's for treasonable activities in their alleged attempts to suborn the troops and intrigue with the king's enemies.

Sir William added that many persons thought a storm of strife was about to break throughout India, which would cause serious bloodshed. He himself believed the country was seething under a spirit of lawlessness and local reports all confirmed this view.

The motion to liberate the imprisoned men was rejected unanimously.

LITTLE CHANCE TO STOP COAL STRIKE

Indianapolis, March 10.—Hope of a nation-wide coal strike being averted by the government's appeal for the operators and miners meeting in a wage conference seemed to have vanished today among officials of the United Mine Workers of America on account of the continued refusal of some operators to meet with the miners to negotiate an inter-state wage agreement. Union officials, however, refrained from any announcement on their future plans.

The officials were optimistic that public opinion would be with them in the controversy with the mine owners and were hopeful that the operators' refusal of the government appeal would be accepted as a defiant attitude on the part of the operators.

LIMERICK SITUATION QUIET.

Limerick, March 10.—The situation in Limerick this morning was quiet, but still critical. Business has suffered greatly since the advent of the hostile forces and the traders express themselves as most anxious for peace. Quartermaster Hurley was released from Tipperary yesterday after four days hunger strike. Capt. O'Shaughnessy, the liason officer who was arrested on Monday, has started a hunger strike and his early liberation is expected.

SCHOOL BOARD CUTS FIGURES TO $750,000

Trustees Decide On Substantial Reduction in Contemplated Program.

WILL BUILD ONE SCHOOL

Agree To Enter Into Commission Form of Government.

"Economy, Economy, Economy!"

Seemingly reconciled to the fact that the ratepayers were viewing with misgivings many proposals for expenditure, the members of the London Board of Education, in special session Thursday afternoon, reduced their estimates to what they term an appreciable minimum, approximately $750,000, including the contemplated building program.

As revealed in The London Advertiser Wednesday it had been proposed by the various committees to spend sums in 1922 that would aggregate approximately one million and a half dollars.

A building outlay alone of more than half a million dollars has now been slashed to the bone.

No new collegiate institute will be sought this year, while the advisory vocational committee has decided to forego the extensions at the technical school.

Not Be Advisable.

Each committee in submitting its estimates for the approval of the board, pointed out that it was practising economy to the very last letter. When it was announced that the proposed new collegiate institute, the addition to the technical school and other buildings were not to be undertaken this year, the chairman stated that his committee was fully aware of the fact of what they were doing. They admitted the schools were needed, but they thought conditions at present were such that it would not be at all advisable to ask the taxpayers for new buildings.

Only one building will be undertaken, and that one in the south-east section of the city to relieve the congestion of the Ealing and Chesley avenue schools. This will be an eight-room structure, which will cost approximately $75,000. Land will be purchased in London West for a school that will be built probably in 1923.

The board also decided to enter the commission form of government, advocated by Mayor Cameron Wilson. This was the first matter to receive the attention of the board, and much debating took place. Mayor Wilson, Jared Vining, chairman of the public utilities commission, and City Clerk Baker attended the meeting, and answered the steady fire of questions asked by the trustees.

For Benefit of City.

At the beginning Mayor Wilson explained the commission form of government, stating it was for the benefit of the city that it should be carried out. He said he also heard that it was to put some man in charge of all civic affairs. He denied this rumor.

It was then decided to take the proposed constitution up, clause by clause. Trustees Silverwood and Udy led in the attack, generally. Mr. Silverwood asked the first question. It referred to clause 7, with regard to appointing the secretary of each board which co-operates in the scheme, to represent his board officially at the meetings of the commission. Mr. Silverwood said the agreement could get along very nicely without the clause.

"Frankly, officers of one body should not be on another board," he asserted.

Mr. Vining said he urged the same objection, but he pointed out that if the commission should desire information the secretary of each board, as a rule, held the information.

Trustee Campbell suggested the

CARMEN TO APPLY FOR BOARD NEXT

Ald. John Ashton Says Appeal Will Be Made Before End of Month.

NO IMMEDIATE HURRY

Anticipate Some Moves From Company But Are In Position To Meet Them.

No further action will be taken by the employees of the London Street Railway until next week at least, Ald. John Ashton, a member of the executive of the Street Railwaymen's Union, stated Friday afternoon.

"Our next move," explained Ald. Ashton, "will be to apply before the end of this month to the department of the federal minister of labor for a board of conciliation. The federal authorities cannot refuse us that much. As a matter of fact it was to them that we have made our appeals in the past."

"We have plenty of time at our disposal. There is no immediate hurry for a week or two. We notified the company more than a month ago that we desired to break the then existing contract on April 1, and incidentally asked for certain increases in salaries as well as other changes in working conditions."

"To keep within the statutes of the act governing such matters we will accordingly seek a board. This is something that the company has failed to do, but in any event our action before the first of the month will bring matters to a head. In the meanwhile we will mark time. We believe that the company is after something, but we expect to be in a position to meet them."

SEIZE $500,000 WORTH OF DRUGS

New York, N. Y., March 10.—One hundred pounds of narcotics and an alleged drug vendor were in the hands of the police today as a result of a raid on the headquarters of a drug peddling gang believed to have engaged in the wholesale smuggling of the habit-forming poisons the past several months.

The drugs seized were valued by federal officials at $500,000 vendors prices.

Luigi Parmengiani, 39, a grocer, was the man under arrest. It was in his home that the federal sleuths claimed to have found the drugs last night. A passbook was found in the house, the officers said, showing that Parmengiani had made savings deposits totalling $165,000 since March, 1921.

Vancouver, B. C., March 10.—Russian aristocrats, dispossessed of their lands by revolution, are coming to Canada to settle on prairie farms, according to H. J. Koukolevski is already established with his family near Bassano, Alberta, and ten families to whom he introduced the subject are coming in May, says Mr. Loughran.

Montreal, March 10.—Gordon McGregor, manager of the Canadian Ford Company at Ford, Ont., who is undergoing treatment here at the Royal Victoria Hospital, did not, according to his nurse, have a very good night, but is making satisfactory progress towards recovery. Mr. McGregor was permitted to get up this morning.

VICEROY'S STAND CREATES FURORE IN GT. BRITAIN

British Political Authorities Presage Early Removal of Official.

Former Governor-General Is Mentioned For Important Colonial Position.

BULLETIN.

London, March 10.—The Earl of Derby, former secretary of war, has been offered the secretaryship for India, in succession to Edwin S. Montagnu, who resigned yesterday, according to reports in the parliamentary lobbies. In the event of Lord Derby's refusal, the Duke of Devonshire is mentioned as the likely appointee.

London, March 10.—Removal of Lord Reading as viceroy of India, it is believed in some quarters, will be the final denouement to the publication of the Indian government's note. There is nothing tangible on which to base this belief, but it is not improbable as a sequel to the virtual dismissal of Edwin S. Montagu as secretary for India.

The probable effect in India of Mr. Montagu's resignation is the subject of much anxious curiosity, and there are some misgivings that the removal of the champion of India's political reform may have a dangerous repercussion there. Equally momentous from the domestic political point of view is the effect the whole affair may have on the fortunes of the government, especially as to the position of Premier Lloyd George. Some believe the chances that the premier will make good his threatened resignation have been considerably increased, and that, if he also takes the view that American abstention from the Genoa conference lessens the prospect of success there, the country may soon learn of his definite retirement. The successor to Secretary Montagu must be appointed soon, in view of the dangerous situation in India, but the post is a difficult one to fill.

Devonshire May Be Chosen.

The opinion in the lobbies overnight was that Winston Spencer Churchill, who was first mentioned as likely to be appointed, is too intimately concerned in the Irish settlement to allow his removal from his present office as secretary for the colonies.

Talk is mostly centering about the Duke of Devonshire, former governor-general of Canada, although other possible appointees are mentioned. The duke is a Conservative, and should he be chosen it would make the third replacement of a Liberal minister by a Conservative within ten days. This would give the cabinet an emphatically Conservative complexion.

All the newspapers give utmost prominence to the Montagu incident this morning and comment on his retirement.

The Daily News, Asquithian Liberal, one of his warmest supporters, while expressing sorrow at the retirement of "one of the best secretaries of state India ever had, says: "The difficulty of the Moslem problem in India hardly justifies wanton complication of the no less difficult situation in the near east, and cannot justify the formal announcement to France that our policy in Asia Minor is determined by the exigencies of our position in India." In this animadversion, the News includes Lord Reading.

Approves Montagu's Removal.

The Westminster Gazette, another cordial supporter of Mr. Montagu, condemns him on similar grounds. The Times, while approving his removal, says: "The circumstances

Carrington Tells How To Look at Your Own Brain!

BY HEREWARD CARRINGTON.

Special To London Advertiser.

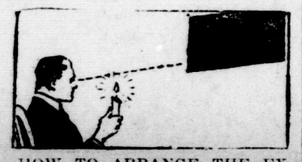
SEEING his own brain may strike the average reader as a frank impossibility at first glance.

And, indeed, the fact that the sight can somehow be turned inward, so as to see the inner portions of the head, is a relatively new optical discovery.

Nevertheless, it is a fact that inner ramifications of blood vessels can be seen, as a simple experiment will show.



HOW TO ARRANGE THE EXPERIMENT FOR SEEING YOUR OWN BRAIN.

Hang a black cloth upon the wall, a little above the level of your eyes when you are seated in a chair. Place the chair three feet from the wall. Have all the lights in the room extinguished, except one candle.

Seat yourself in the chair, facing the black cloth. Now, hold the lighted candle on a level with the tip of your nose and about six inches from it. Next, without blowing on the candle, move it slowly backward and forward sideways, in front of the face, across the tip of the nose.

Now You See It!

As you are doing this, lift the eyes to an angle of 45 degrees, without lifting the chin, and gaze intently at the black cloth. Do not try to see the black cloth, but gaze in its direction, as it were. Do this for about 30 seconds.

Now, as you are doing this, you will begin to see, forming before you in space, a pinkish-grey background and on it a ramifying network of blood vessels, which resemble the veinings on a leaf or the branches of a tree in winter.

These will be almost black in appearance. As this begins to develop before you, watch it intently, and in a few seconds it will begin to stand out clearly before you in space—your own brain!

There is nothing "occult" about this; it is purely an optical oddity anyone can try for himself. No one else can see your brain while you are gazing, and you can see that of no one else. Each person must see his own!

Is It Your Brain?

What is it that is seen in this experiment? Is it really the brain? There is a good deal of controversy on the point—some contending that the brain is really seen, and others that it is the retina—the nervous coating at the rear of the eyeball.

WHAT YOUR BRAIN LOOKS LIKE.

But, in any case, it is a curious and weird experiment, which is bound to create no end of astonishment and amusement among your friends. Try it and see!

The idea of seeing one's own brain is surely interesting enough to attract anybody!

FIND DEATH OF ROLFE DUE TO 'CIDER OR DRUG'

Negligence in Not Sooner Investigating Condition of Deceased.

WILL ANALYZE POWDERS

Authorities to Ascertain Nature of Contents of Papers in Pocket.

BY WILLIAM SHARMAN.

GLENCOE, March 9. — "Charles Frederick Rolfe of London died from excessive use of cider or some poisonous drug as found on his body or a combination of both. We further consider that his companions, Edward Maloney and Frank Newn, were very negligent in making no investigation earlier as to the condition of deceased."

Such was the verdict returned here tonight by the jury impaneled to consider the unusual circumstances attending the death, between Bothwell and London, early Tuesday morning last, of Charles (Happy) Rolfe of the latter place.

With Dr. W. H. Woods of Mount Brydges, coroner, presiding, the inquest opened shortly after 2 p.m., and was not concluded until 7 p.m. Frank Newn and Edward Maloney, who left London with the deceased shortly before his death; John Riley, at whose residence they had visited at intervals the preceding evening, and William Atkinson, in whose machine they were riding, and who also was a visitor at the Riley home, were the chief witnesses today.

Conducts Examination.

A. R. Douglas, London, assistant crown attorney, conducted the examination, while Provincial Officers Arthur Palmer and George Tustin also attended the proceedings. Officer Palmer submitted the report from the London Public Institute of Health respecting the analysis of a quantity of cider taken from the Riley home. It developed that the beverage was absolutely non-poisonous but possessed of a 18.6 "kick."

Contrary to an earlier decision, the coroner and other authorities in attendance decided, following the hearing, not to send the contents of the deceased's stomach to Toronto for examination.

John Rolfe, Woodstock, father of the deceased, reached Glencoe at noon, identified the body as that of his son, testified to that effect at the inquest, and left for home at 3 p.m., arranging for the transportation of the body by the same train.

John Edward Rolfe, a brother, of St. Thomas, arrived in time to view the remains before removal to the home city. Mr. Rolfe explained that he was in total ignorance of the death of his brother until he had been told this morning in St. Thomas.

Find Hypodermic Syringe.

What proved to be the most important phase of evidence submitted was that of the chief of police here John B. Henry, who discovered Thursday morning in the inside pocket of the deceased a hypodermic syringe, two needles for the same, and three small packages, each containing a white powder, said by the police to be a drug.

The post-mortem conducted by Dr. Glenn, of Wardsville, strengthens this belief, it transpiring that punctures to the number of two hundred, three of them quite recent, such as made by a syringe, appeared on the body. Provincial Officer Palmer informed the Advertiser Thursday night that these powders will be analyzed at once to determine their identity.

Technically, Dr. Glenn believed that death was caused by "some agent that depressed the circulating and respiratory apparatus." Questioned by the crown he admitted that this might be caused by a large quantity of alcohol or by poison, but declined to state definitely just what particular poison, if any, was, in his opinion, responsible for death.

Dr. McIntyre Testifies.

Dr. A. A. McIntyre of Glencoe, who assisted Dr. Glenn with the post-mortem, was likewise unwilling to place the blame upon any particular poison or liquor. He explained further that no examination had been made of the contents of the stomach.

Edward Maloney gave London as his address. He met the deceased Monday last. He had known him but two weeks. They were working together as house-to-house salesmen. Shortly after noon, Monday, they went to the Bellvue Hotel where they remained an hour. Then they proceeded to the home of John Riley, 575 William street. Here he encountered the man whom he was working for, William Atkinson.

Witness stated that after a visit of an hour or two, during which they had a few drinks of cider, he came back down town, while Rolfe remained. About 8 o'clock he returned to Riley's with Frank Newn. The same persons were in the house. He remained about an hour, having more cider. He then departed accompanied by Rolfe and Atkinson.

After driving Atkinson to his home, witness stated that he and Rolfe returned to Riley's again and while the latter remained in the car he entered the house, where he stayed about ten minutes, but did not have a drink.

Maloney then related how he started out to drive Rolfe home, proceeding to the vicinity of the Victoria Hospital, where he believed the latter lived. In the meanwhile Rolfe had almost fallen asleep and could not give any intelligible reply. Witness tried two houses without success. He could not locate the right house.

Failed To Get Room.

After driving around for a few minutes he proceeded to the Bellevue and the Richmond hotels, at which places he endeavored without success to ascertain where Rolfe lived. His efforts to obtain a room at the latter hostelry also proved fruitless, he said.

Witness then related how he drove back to Riley's and got Newn, who was just going to bed. After driving around for several minutes, during which period they stopped at a Dundas street garage and secured five gallons of gasoline, they proceeded west out of the city. Once or twice, he says, they tried to waken Rolfe.

At Bothwell, Maloney records, they stopped at a barn and questioned two men as to where they were and the distance to either Chatham or London. Deciding to waken Rolfe they discovered that he was apparently seriously ill. Accordingly they made hurried inquiries as to the nearest doctor, who proved to be Dr. Glenn of Wardsville. Driving to the latter's home an examination was made by that physician who pronounced their companion dead.

Questioned by Assistant Crown-Attorney Douglas, witness disclaimed all knowledge of Rolfe's financial position.

Met For First Time.

Frank Newn, 131 Maple street, told how he had met Maloney at the Bellevue hotel about 9 p.m., Monday. They went to Riley's where he remained until early Tuesday morning, when he left with Maloney and Rolfe, the latter being unconscious in the back seat of the car. His evidence from that time on was the same as Maloney's. It was the first time that he had ever met Rolfe, he said. He had been treated to cider but suffered no ill effects.

William Atkinson, 116 Dundas street, testified that he was a traveling salesman. He met Rolfe about two years ago, but did not see him again until last Christmas week. He used to meet him, he said, in the Richmond Hotel and the adjoining poolroom. Both Maloney and Rolfe had just commenced working for him.

Witness related how he went to Riley's about 11 a.m. Monday and remained until 8 p.m. He also had had several drinks of cider. Preceding witnesses had already testified that they had driven him home about this time.

John Riley, 575 William street, testified that he invited Atkinson into the house about 11 o'clock Monday morning. After dinner Rolfe and Maloney, both strangers to him, arrived to see Atkinson. Everyone had several drinks. He did not count them or charge for them, he said. The cider was there and they were allowed to help themselves. Maloney left just before supper time.

Ate Canned Lobster.

Riley testified that Atkinson and Rolfe remained for supper and the latter among other things consumed a somewhat large quantity of canned lobster. Witness thought that Rolfe was suffering from the effects of something, but did not think it was cider altogether.

Questioned by the crown, Riley stated that he had obtained 20 gallons of cider last October, since which time he had numerous friends who came and enjoyed a drink now and again, none of whom had experienced any ill effects that he had ever heard of.

Riley testified that Rolfe, Maloney and Atkinson all left together about 9 o'clock. That was the last he ever saw of the deceased. Maloney came back twice, the last time early in the morning, when Newn departed with him.

John A. Johnson and William McMaster, both of Bothwell, testified that the party drove up Tuesday at 6 a.m. and inquired the way to Windsor. Their evidence corroborated the testimony of Maloney and Newn regarding the drive from that point to Dr. Glenn.

Conscience-Stricken Dad Finds It Doesn't Pay To Smuggle Gifts.

WINDSOR, March 9.—Smuggling of Christmas gifts across the Detroit River may be profitable if one reckons in dollars and cents, but it doesn't pay in the long run, one border father has concluded.

He bought his presents in Detroit and dodged the customs officials on his way home. The matter bothered his conscience so much that today he sent a letter containing $5 to the collector of customs. He signed himself "Dad."

NEW MATCH BEARS MARK "MAPLE LEAF"

Big Manufacturing Concern Will Locate In Town of Pembroke.

PRODUCT NON-POISONOUS

Canadian-Made Article Claimed To Be "Rat-Proof."

A match manufacturing company, which associates in its directorate three of the largest match companies in the world, and which combines in its industrial and technical operation the most modern and up-to-date equipment of two continents, has invaded the Canadian market with marked success.

The firm is known under the name of the Canadian Match Company, Limited. One-third of the stock is owned by McGuire, Paterson & Palmer Company of Canada, Ltd., another third by Bryant & May, Ltd., of London, England, and another third by the Diamond Match Company of the United States. The firm, therefore, is mainly British in its make-up.

It will be only a short time until Pembroke becomes the largest center of match production in the Dominion. Already the large splint manufacturing plants of the town are supplying the whole of the industry in England. The new plant of the Canadian Match Company also has been in operation since December.

The trade mark of the superior product is "Maple Leaf." Among the notable features of the Canadian-made article is the chemical treatment of the matches, which is of such a nature that rats and mice will not gnaw them; the sticks are unusually long and strong. The most remarkable innovation is the fact that the matches are absolutely non-poisonous.

The personnel and directors of the firm is made up as follows: President, Sir Alexander MacGuire, London, England; vice-president, Mr. A. G. Woodruff, in charge of production at Pembroke, Ontario; directors, Mr. George Cahoon, Jun., of the Laurentide Paper Company; Mr. E. A. Dunlap, Mr. B. C. Sneed, Mr. D. P. MacGuire and Mr. W. A. Fairburn.

The general sales offices at Montreal are located in the Beardmore Building, 59 St. Peter street, with Mr. George C. Cummings in charge as general sales manager.

In an interview, Mr. Fowler Manning, who is director of sales of the Diamond Match Company, said: "The sales operations of the Canadian Match Company began Feb. 20, and the reception accorded by the wholesale dealers and their salesmen could not have been more cordial and encouraging. We have 20 salesmen in the field, who are meeting with pleasing success."

OFFICES OF PROVINCIAL SAVINGS BRANCH OPENED

Will Pay 4 Per Cent Interest Compounded Half-Yearly On Deposits.

Important news to the people of Ontario in general and the farming community in particular is found in the official announcement of the opening of the Province of Ontario Savings Offices.

At the last session of the Legislature, after considerable discussion as to the financial situation in which the farmers of Ontario find themselves today, an act to finance agricultural development was passed.

An important part of this act related to the establishment of a form of government banks for the receiving of deposits from the general public, the fund so accumulated to be available to farmers in the financing of their business.

The government was authorized to guarantee the safety of deposits with the full credit of the province and to pay depositors a rate of 4 per cent interest, compounded half-yearly, with the privilege of withdrawal by check.

In the interval since the passage of the act authorizing these government savings offices the work of organization has been going on. A managing director, in the person of M. H. MacKenzie, has been appointed. Head offices have been opened in Toronto. Offices have also already been opened in several central points in Ontario where they will best serve the public, and more are to be announced later when arrangements are perfected.

Those wishing to make use of the government savings offices should either call upon the manager of the office nearest to them or write to the head office at Toronto, asking for full information. The savings offices were planned particularly with farmers and their banking requirements in mind. It is now up to the farmers of Ontario themselves and the general public of Ontario's cities and towns also to make the Province of Ontario Savings Offices a success.

SCORES HOUSING BOARD'S ACTION

L. O. Swift Indignant Regarding Purchase of Pine Lawn Dwelling.

PRICES FLUCTUATED

Shown That Commission Did Not Know Number of Houses On Hand.

"If the commission does not want me to buy a house, it could not have done anything more to discourage me. There is absolutely no finality of any kind with the findings of this commission. If I had not gone so far and spent so much money, I would certainly withdraw. It's most disgusting and grossly unfair."

Thus did L. O. Swift, a purchaser of a Pine Lawn house, score the housing commission on Thursday night, over the purchase of the house in which he is now living.

Swift purchased the house at a price above what they are now selling. He had a clause inserted in his agreement, providing that if there was a cut in the price later he was to benefit. The house he chose had a furnace in it. It was broken, he complained. He offered to pay the bill for changing the furnace. The commission did not agree.

Later the commission ordered the furnace out and a new one in. Under this agreement Swift was to waive an allowance of $70 provided by the commission to clean up his house, it having been previously lived in.

The commission claims that Swift should pay for the furnace.

As It Stood.

Swift claims that when he purchased the house he took it as it stood. He had offered to meet the sion, he contended, read that the house should be sold for $3,399 as it stood. He ha doffered to meet the expense of the new furnace. The commission declined his offer. He objected now to paying extra for the furnace.

Cimmissioner Cunliffe said that Swift should have been charged with $245 for extras, furnace, hotwater system and fixtures.

Swift said that he purchased the house as it stood. There followed a long drawn out argument.

City Clerk Baker pointed out that the difference between the commission and Swift was only $81. He told Swift that for this amount of money he was getting a furnace and other extras.

"I have also got what others haven't got, a very dirty house," came back Swift. "The whole thing is that the commission does not want to keep its word. It wants to make me pay another $81."

Chairman Hessel said the trouble was that Mr. Campbell gave Swift the wrong prices.

Swift retorted that it wasn't Campbell, it was the commission. Here, he said, he would give evidence of the lack of finality in the commission statements. He first approached the commission to buy a house, and was told that the house would cost $2,200. Later he was called up and said that a mistake had been made. The price did not include the furnace. Later he told him that the price would be $3,399 including the furnace. Now the price is being changed again.

Cannot Be Misled.

"I cannot be misled, gentlemen. Let us be straightforward, and if we have made a mistake, admit it," shot Swift at the commission, adding that if the words of the minutes of the commission meant anything they were to the effect that he was to get the house as it stood for $3,399. He wanted to pay for the furnace change. The commission would not allow it. Now I want you to stand by your minutes."

Commissioner Tallant moved that the matter be laid over until the next meeting, and all the agreements pertaining to the house be presented at that meeting.

The minutes which Swift says holds the commission to its agreement reads:

"Upon motion, the secretary is instructed to notify Swift that the commission will replace the furnace with a new one, but that he will have to waive claim to any further reduction of house prices, etc."

That all is not well with the commission was further evidenced during a discussion over a couple of houses which have been thrown back on the hands of the commission. They have been held some time.

"What price are they to be sold at?" asked the clerk.

Some of the members of the commission thought they had been listed. But the fact that no price had been fixed for their sale prevented this.

The fact also came out that the commission does not know how many houses it has for sale. It does not know which owners are paying regularly or not. This was discussed at last meeting.

Finally City Clerk Baker made this declaration to the commission:

"What puzzles me is why we cannot have this matter cleared up so that we will know just what we have got for sale. Who can tell what houses are vacant, and what houses are not?"

Claim Vacant Pine Lawn Houses Used To Stage Poker Parties

THE city of London, it is claimed, has been harboring a poker game on its premises. The fact that the game has been run without the city's permission may relieve the city from responsibility to the law.

The vacant city houses at Pine Lawn are the scene of the game. Sunday is usually the day on which it is staged.

Members of the housing commission Thursday night revealed the fact that the houses of the commission have been used for this purpose. They also revealed the fact that an effort has been made to break up the game by pouncing down on the participants while it was in progress.

The keenness of the game evidently sharpened the wits of the players. To date they have proven too slippery for the commissioner-sleuths.

A watchman is to be appointed to guard the houses.

SEES MUCH ABUSED SITE FOR HIMSELF

IS NEAR SEWAGE PLANT

Proposed London School Would Also Be Bounded On East By River and County.

Moved by the veritable storm of protest emanating from East London residents, Trustee Thomas Rowe declared Friday morning that he intended to visit the property recently acquired by the board at the corner of Dakin and Price streets, upon which it is proposed to construct, at the cost of $80,000, a school to relieve the congestion at the Ealing and Chesley avenue public schools.

This is the site which, as explained in the Advertiser, February 24, has been roundly condemned by Mayor Cameron Wilson, who termed the land as quite suitable for certain purposes, as "raising pigs," or "growing potatoes."

In conjunction with scores of ratepayers of that district the mayor referred to the fact that lying but a short distance east of the site, and actually the nearest building of any size is the city's sewerage disposal plant. Exception is taken also to the fact that the school when completed would be bounded on the east side by the river and county.

Trustee Rowe declared emphatically Friday morning, that he would take a look for himself, holding that now is the time to prevent any errors being made. He explains that he was not on the committee which made the recommendation.

BUCHANAN WILL PROVE ASSERTION

Accepting the challenge of Ald. F. K. Watkinson, issued through the press Thursday, E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the public utilities commission, stands ready, he states, to submit the original time slips for the men who were employed upon the extension of the water service at the bowling green of the St. Matthews' Church.

On Friday morning, Mr. Buchanan consulted the pay records of the various employees whom he states were engaged on this particular undertaking, and found, he claims, that ten men in all were at work, six for a period of eight hours and four others for a period of five hours.

Ald. Watkinson charged at a recent meeting of the city council that the public utilities commission employed but three men for a period of eight hours, while they sent in a bill for 68 hours. Manager Buchanan flatly denies this and has the proof, he contends, for what he sets forth in reply.

He explains further, that in the preparation of the bill no charge was made for considerable detail and work of supervision by other members of the waterworks department.

HARRY MERRITT, the veteran sergeant-at-arms of the city hall, is confined to his bed as a result of a fall. He was going down the rather wobbly city hall stairs when he fell. He believes that his heel caught in the stairs, although some of the city hall officials have expressed the opinion that the vibration of the stairs may have shaken him off his feet. In any event, Mr. Merritt has a fine black eye where he struck. He will be confined to the house for a day or so.

WILFRID SMITH of the city clerk's staff at the city hall is confined to his home through illness. He will be laid up for some time and a substitute has been secured to temporarily fill his post.

The Advertiser was informed at noon, Friday, by the crown officials that it will be decided in a few hours whether any further action will be taken by the authorities respecting the death of Charles (Happy) Rolfe, who died either Monday last or early Tuesday morning in company, presumably, of Edward Maloney and Frank Newn.

Provincial Officer Arthur Palmer explained that a decision would be forthcoming within a few hours.

"Who Sold Me My House?" Asks Puzzled Owner of Members of City Commission

Who did I buy my house from?

J. Goodwin, St. Thomas, a purchaser of a house built on Regent street north, this city, with money loaned by the housing commission, attended the meeting of the commission Thursday night, seeking this information.

"Hayman and Willis say I did not buy it from them. They built the house."

"The commission says I did not buy it from them. They provided the money."

"Gentlemen, will you tell me whom I did buy the house from?"

Goodwin took over the house built for a man named Richards. He says it's a bungalow. He bought it for an all-year-round home. He took it over in the summer. In the winter he says he found it was an ideal summer house.

Mr. Goodwin is trying to find out from whom he bought the house so that he might notify the party that he does not intend to make further payments on the house until such time as the summer house is converted so that it may also be a winter home. He says he wants the windows fixed and the casement put in place so that the snows of the winter will not come in every time the curtains fly up in the winter breezes.

"Gentlemen, that house is costing me $4,659, and I think I should get a pretty fair house for that. Seven tons of coal have been burned this year and the eighth is on its way. And that furnace. Why it isn't any bigger than a sugar barrel."

Further conversation with the "proud" houseowner revealed the fact that Hayman and Willis have a mortgage on the house and he said he was not meeting their payments and did not intend to until they fixed the house.

"That's the procedure I would suggest," said Chairman Hessel.

Goodwin went away, dubious as to his bargain, but smiling.

CITY ENCAMPMENTS ENTERTAIN CHIEFS

Officers of I. O. O. F. Given Big Reception by Members of Organization in London.

OUTLINES ORDER'S OBJECT

Degree Teams To Be Brought To City To Confer Work On March 30.

One of the finest receptions that has been tendered officers of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in this city was given Grand Patriarch Walter Cross of Hamilton and Grand Senior Warden Henry Dakin of Galt Thursday night by London encampments. Arriving in the city at 8:15 by G. T. R., the two officers were met at the station by Canton London, No. 1, under the command of Captain W. S. Cosby, and escorted to the lodgerooms over the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Following the reception in the main lobby, the evening opened with community singing. Patriarch A. C. Cummer, P. G. C., chairman of the evening, gave his address of welcome next. A lantern lecture by F. Robins followed, and was much enjoyed.

Mr. Robins showed views of England, France and Belgium, including views of battlefields and cemeteries of the Canadian soldiers. A cornet solo by Harold Bentley, a solo by Frank Aldridge, and a reading by Mrs. Glintz followed, after which the grand patriarch gave a short speech on the general work of the order.

Misses Brown and Fitzgerald entertained with a dance. Following the speech came a reading by Miss Metcalf, and a solo by Mr. Picehurst. The grand senior warden, in his address, spoke on the reasons why one should become an Odd Fellow. A comedy sketch by Alfred Ashford and "company" was much enjoyed.

Following the program supper was served. The evening's program was in charge of Patriarch Fred Barnard. Grand Warden Bro. W. G. R. Bartram of the Grand Lodge of Ontario; District Grand Master W. A. McRoberts of District No. 14, and District Deputy Grand Patriarch G. Jewell were among those present.

The grand patriarch promised to bring several outside teams to the city to confer the Encampment degree on a class of candidates on March 30.

COL. MACKIE TO SPEAK IN CITY

An evening dinner meeting under the joint auspices of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs will be held in the Tecumseh House, Wednesday, March 15.—The guest of honor is to be Lieut.-Col. H. J. Mackie of Ottawa, who is to speak on present political and economical conditions in Russia.

Col. Mackie has served Russia as a soldier, diplomatic agent and philanthropist. Having wide artillery experience commencing with the South African war, he spent the winter of 1914-1015 at Petrograd attached to the Central Artillery Russian headquarters. Later, he was on loan to the Russian government and conducted their proving grounds in Canada and the United States, where the Canadian and American-made munitions were tested. In August, 1921, when Canada signified its desire to adhere to the Anglo-Russian trade agreement, at the request of Premier Meighen, he went to Russia and made a survey of trade conditions. While in Moscow he was asked by the Russian minister of foreign affairs to journey to the Volga famine area, and spent September and October, 1921, making a survey of conditions there; among other things examining carefully into the conduct of the Red army in regard to the convoying of food and also into the methods of conducting and extending feeding kitchens.

CLAIMS TRUSTEES NOT BUSINESSLIKE

J. B. Wright Charges Tenders For School Fixtures Not Given Proper Consideration.

A. A. BICE REPLIES

Says All Moves Were Made To Avoid Possible Prejudice.

That No. 2 committee of the board of education is to all intents conducting itself in an unbusinesslike manner in its consideration of tenders, is the charge hurled Friday morning by Trustee J. B. Wright, chairman of the advisory vocational committee.

Trustee Wright contends that the manner in which the members of the public school committee are dealing with the lights in the new Victoria School is "a pretty poor way of doing business."

"It appears to me," declared Trustee Wright "that this threatens to become a case similar to that of the Wortley road school, when fixtures were placed in position and subsequently changed, although some of the trustees claimed that they knew nothing about them."

"For instance, it is claimed by one of the electrical firms that has tendered on the Victoria school lighting system, that the committee has not asked the price of any particular fixture, but has first gone ahead and had the lights placed in position for inspection."

"It is also claimed that the hydro people, as an instance, placed fixtures in two rooms, but the committee considered only those in the one room. It has also been stated that the hydro fixtures were then removed without the hydro department being notified."

Trustee Wright is of the opinion that the committee in question should exercise more judgment in its method of business.

"He doesn't know what he is talking about," Trustee (Rev.) A. A. Bice, chairman of No. 2 committee, replied Friday afternoon, when questioned concerning the Victoria school lighting situation.

"We have not bought any of the fixtures as yet," explained the chairman. "We went to the school and viewed several types, but have not come to any definite decision. When we made the inspection we were unaware as to the firms who were submitting the various samples. We did not even know the figures. We adopted this procedure in order that there would be no possible prejudice in the affair."

SECURE C.I. FOR MEETING OF SCIENCE RESEARCH BODY

Arrangements are under way for the next meeting of the scientific research committee of the chamber of commerce. An effort will be made to secure the auditorium of the collegiate institute for this gathering.

Addresses will be delivered by competent speakers on subjects dealing with science as applied to London industries. The following committee is in charge: E. H. MacDermid, A. Burton, S. Frank White, M.P., E. V. Buchanan, John Gunn, C. H. Ivey, Frank Gordon, Frank McCormick, Thos. Faust, S. W. Best, Dr. G. W. Morden, Professor Bowman and Professor Dearle.

On Tuesday evening next the annual meeting of the United Welfare Fund Association will be held at the chamber of commerce, with whom the various organizations of the city will be asked to participate, as they have in the past, the chamber of commerce, the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions' Clubs, etc.

It is believed that the association's financial objective this year will be about the same as in 1921, $155,000.

TO SHOW PHOTOS OF STYLE MODELS

One of the best displays of photographic art ever seen in London is that which will be made in the Darragh Studio window, on Dundas street, Saturday, when portraits of the artists taking part in the fashion show being held at the Grand under the auspices of The London Advertiser, will be exhibited.

The portraits will be on display during the following week as well as Saturday.

The portraits are real works of art and are a credit to Mr. Darragh, proving him to be a photographer of exceptional ability.

DR. PRINCE STILL WAITS FOR GHOSTS

New York Investigator Declares He Finds Nothing Uncanny in Nova Scotia House.

CONDITIONS REPEATED

Expects To Remain in "Haunted House" Until Something Definite Occurs.

Halifax, March 10.—In a third installment of his investigation of the alleged haunted house of the MacDonald family at Caledonia Mills, N. S., Dr. W. F. Prince, the New York scientist, says in part: "If the sounds heard by Harold Whidden, the newspaper reporter, and Police Constable Carroll were normal we have a greater claim to expect that under similar conditions the sounds would be repeated, in which case they might be traced to their source. Observations thus far are of interest as bearing upon this theory.

In the first place, rude as the old house is, it is extraordinarily staunch and firm. It is almost impossible for a 200-pound man, climbing or descending the stairs, to evade any creaking sounds. The boards of the floors do not creak as we walk across them. The shingles on the roof appear to be firm. There are no blinds and the window sashes are as solid as the hewn beams of the house. We have had fairly stiff winds, but no clapping, rumbling or any other kinds of sounds have been caused.

"What I have just said is of interest in connection with the sounds which Messrs. Whidden and Carroll heard on the second night of their stay. Not only does Mr. Whidden declare that he, used to the sounds caused by the northern winter winds, never heard the like before, but he asserts that at the time there was little wind, certainly not more than we have had during the visit now in progress. On Tuesday night the wind was from the southeast, it is now from the north. Why have we not at any time, day or night, heard any sounds if coused by the wind?

Yesterday afternoon it rained very hard, today it is dry and chilly, furnishing still more variety in weather conditions. The 'slap' felt by Whidden and the nearly contemporaneous touch felt by Carroll is another complication of the experience, upon which no further light has been thrown, as the facts have not thus far been duplicated. But our time is not up. Perhaps we may have better luck."

PROMINENT HINDU TO VISIT LONDON

Londoners will have an opportunity during the last week in March of hearing Victor M. Ilahi-Baksh, national secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in India. Ilahi-Baksh is at present touring the world and speaking on the present conditions in India. He is well educated, having graduated from the Northwestern University of Chicago and obtained an honor graduate certificate from Oxford University, England.

He will arrive in London Saturday morning, March 25, and will address the "prep" class of the "Y." In the afternoon he will speak at a private house conference. Sunday morning he speaks at St. Paul's Cathedral, and in the evening at the First Presbyterian Church.

On Monday he is scheduled to address the Rotary Club at their luncheon and the Y. M. C. A. senior businessmen's class in the evening.

TRIAL POSTPONED UNTIL SATURDAY

At the request of Chief Robert Birrell, Lee Goey, proprietor of the City Cafe, 360 Richmond street, will not be tried on a charge of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling till Saturday morning.

Lee and his friends appeared in court Friday morning and when they heard that the fireworks had been postponed till Saturday they lost no time in vanishing from the court.

The cafe was raided Thursday night at 8:45 o'clock by Inspector Thomas Lucas and Sergeant Wm. Middaugh. The officers seized one full case of Imperial whiskey and 14 separate bottles of the same brand. Eight bottles of Chinese liquor was also found.

Lee Goey objected strenuously to the officers searching the premises and carried his objections and talk to such an extent that he was arrested on a charge of obstructing a police officer in the carrying out of his duty.

"From what I am told Lee's language must have been very bad," said Chief Birrell, in asking for an adjournment of both cases.

High School Sets Fashion When It Comes To Kitchen Rugs

"I HAVE just been inquiring of one of the chool trustees—Mr. Udy, in fact—just what is fashionable in kitchen rugs," said Thomas Loveless today.

"I overheard a conversation among several of the men standing in line waiting for a chance for a job, at the employment bureau. One of them was seriously concerned with this rug problem."

He stated that when he was leaving home his wife told him that the linoleum on the kitchen floor was worn out. She opined that the fashion of the day was rugs for the kitchen. She instanced the kitchen of the new Collegiate Institute as an example.

She was not certain what was "the mode" in kitchen rugs, turkish or velvet. She opined that he should make inquiries, if he could afford the time, between the moments when he was searching for a job to buy bread for the babies.

Mr. Loveless tried to help him out and was on information bent when he encountered Mr. Udy.

MEREDITH LIVED OWN PHILOSOPHY

Dr. Tamblyn Interprets Poet and Novelist At Western University Extension Lecture.

SPIRIT OF HUMOR, KEY

"Intellectual Or Thoughtful Laughter, The Sword of Common Sense," His Answer to Life's Problems.

A short sketch of the life of George Meredith, poet and novelist, was given by Dr. W. F. Tamblyn at the public library under the auspices of the Western University extension department Thursday evening.

Although far less known by the general public than Robert Louis Stevenson, yet the two were very similar in their philosophy of life. Both had a taste for the life strenuous and perilous, said the lecturer.

At the age of 21 Meredith married a widow who was his senior by some years, which venture did not turn out very happily.

After wandering about Europe, during which time he spent a legacy that had come to him just after his marriage, he became a war correspondent for the Morning Post in 1866.

Was a Success.

Although successful as a journalist, Meredith preferred to write his own novels, even if that work did not net so large financial returns.

After leaving the Morning Post, Meredith became reader for Chapman & Hall, publishers, and during that time he figured in several lawsuits as a result of some of his verdicts on the novels submitted.

In 1851, at the age of 23, Meredith published his first book of poems, on which he lost money, and for some time only published his novels.

Meredith for the most part lived according to his own philosophy, and his aim as a writer was to pave the way for a firmer footing to those who were to succeed him.

For the social, moral and religious problems of today, Meredith prescribes more brain, the interpreting and harmonizing of our natural impulses by the spirit of humor, or as he calls it sometimes, "intellectual or thoughtful laughter, the sword of common sense."

Meredith's Ideal.

Meredith's ideal of living could be summed up in one of his own phrases, "the rapture of the forward view."

Perhaps the most popular of Meredith's novels is his "Egoist," which was one of the few books written by him to have a second edition. This second edition was published in the same year as the first in 1879.

In his old age, the author was showered with tributes, as though everybody wanted to make up for not recognizing his ability before.

Dr. Tamblyn classified Meredith as having a power and charm of language baffling analysis.

DISAPPROVE OF RENTING HOUSES

Housing Commission Frowns On Proposal To Lease Pine Lawn Dwellings.

URGES SALE BY AUCTION

Reports Purchaser Allowing Payments To Fall Into Arrears.

The housing commission on Thursday night frowned on the proposal to rent houses which are now up for sale. However, it decided that any renting that is to be done will be through the clerk only and not through realty men.

The commission also decided to push ahead with its clean-up proposals in regard to delinquents. City Treasurer Bell reported on a number of purchasers who are behind in their payments. Solicitor Weekes reported on cases where he had failed to make a settlement. In both instances the commission authorized that the purchasers be given thirty days' notice to settle, while in others they ordered immediate action to take over the houses.

Sale by Auction.

G. N. Weekes, the solicitor, raised the point of putting the houses up for sale by auction before they are disposed of privately. This would avoid any claim that might arise later that the house was worth more money than the commission received. This question will be considered at the next meeting.

The commission also decided to allow George Turner to occupy one of the Pine Lawn houses, his rental to be the amount of the regular monthly payment. He is to act as watchman of the houses and for this work will be allowed a sum of $10 a month if he decides that he will purchase the house he takes over.

Much damage has been caused to the vacant houses, and it is believed that Mr. Turner will prevent this. He will also have charge of the keys of the houses and will allow their use to those trying to make sales. At the present time great difficulty is experienced in obtaining the keys when required.

The report of Treasurer Bell showed that there were several persons living in houses whose payments fall far below what they should be. For instance, in one case a Pine Lawn purchaser has occupied his house since May of last year and has paid only a little over $100 on a $4,000 purchase.

To Collect Arrears.

Another has occupied a house since October of last year and paid $22.84 on a $3,500 purchase. It is a woman in this case, and Commissioner Cunliffe stated that the woman moved out of the house on Thursday. He moved that the solicitor take immediate action to collect all the arrears.

"I have concluded that everyone thinks it is easy picking; it's the citizens money and they believe that they can get away with anything. We cannot allow this to go on," was the comment of Chairman Hessel.

Commissioner Tallant stated that there seemed to be some trouble over keys. He thought Mr. Campbell, realty dealer, was holding the keys out too long and the result was that no one else could get them. He recommended, and it was decided, that all keys must be left with the clerk and when taken away must be returned to the clerk's office the same day.

Mr. Campbell said that he had several would-be purchasers who could not pay down the full 10 per cent. He suggested that they might accept a smaller amount. The commission was firm against this. The 10 per cent rule on all purchases stands.

One of the purchasers who is considering giving up his house wants reimbursement for his improvements if he returns the house to the commission. Among the improvements he outlined to the solicitor were a goat house, chicken house and a peach tree.

TURN DEBATE ON "HOUSE PARTY" IN LEGISLATURE

Rumors of Alleged "Hilarities" of Last Year's Session Reintroduced by Raney.

HELD SATISFACTORY QUIZ

Attorney - General Claims Probe Findings Warranted No Prosecution.

TORONTO, March 9.—The debate in the Ontario Legislature again swung this afternoon to a discussion of the now historic "last night party," alleged to have been staged in the parliament buildings by members of the Legislature a year ago.

It was reintroduced by Attorney-General Raney in a statement, in which he took the position that it was for the house, if it so desired, to take action on reports of the irregularities on the part of its members, rather than for the attorney-general to launch prosecutions in the Toronto police court.

Sam Clarke (Northumberland), gave some interesting sidelights on what used to happen in the Legislature twenty years ago, "when more liquor was often consumed in this house in one day than is consumed now in a year." He said that at that time there was a bar in the house, where liquor was sold, and when it was too crowded it could be obtained in the basement. "In fact, in those days honorable members often had difficulty in finding their seats." He thought a lot of undeserved publicity had been given to this very small and almost insignificant affair.

Deplores Name Mentioned.

Mr. Clarke expressed regret that the name of the provincial treasurer, Hon. Peter Smith, had been brought into the affair, because it was alleged it took place in his office. Mr. Clarke said anyone who knew Mr. Smith knew his good nature had been imposed upon, and that the provincial treasurer had no knowledge of what was going on, in fact he was in his seat in the house on the night in question.

G. G. Halcrow (Hamilton) and R. R. Hall (Parry Sound) expressed the opinions that a great deal had been said about very little, and thought it should be forgotten.

W. F. Nickle took the opposite view, maintaining that the charges were serious, that it should have been the duty of the attorney-general to prosecute.

"Are law-breakers to be law-breakers?" he asked, and referred to the premier's speech to the temperance delegation at noon, when Mr. Drury had stood for a thorough enforcement of the Ontario temperance act. He argued that this was quite different from 20 years ago when it was legal to drink liquor in public.

"The bar then had no license," retorted Mr. Clarke, "so it was against the law at that time."

The debate on this subject closed without any steps further to inquire into the allegations.

"Members Chief Actors."

Mr. Raney, in his statement, said that the information of the alleged irregularities came to him two months after the close of the session, and included allegations that members of the Legislature had been the chief actors in the affair and that they and others had consumed liquor in the building. He continued that the Legislature was the highest court in Ontario and is not only the custodian of its honor, but that it has complete jurisdiction over its own members. It was pointed out that the offence, if committed, was committed during the hours when the Legislature was in session, when the members should have been in their places in the house and was committed within the actual precincts of the house.

The information, while pointing strongly in the direction of an offence against the Ontario temperance act, would not in itself have been sufficient to secure a conviction, he stated.

Mr. Raney continued that he at once took up the rumors with the prime minister and was assured by the premier that the latter had already conducted an inquiry sufficient to satisfy himself that no members of the cabinet were implicated in any irregularities.

"After that I took no further action," Mr. Raney's statement said and continued:

"Exact Duty Doubtful."

"On this statement of facts the question is whether it was my duty as attorney-general to have started a police investigation of the conduct of fellow members of the house, and then, if the facts as they might be reported by the police appeared to justify prosecution, to have given a direction for the laying of information in the Toronto police court against the members concerned. I do not conceive that to have been my duty. The attorney-general is the servant not of the government, but of the house, and for him, without the authority of the house to start an inquiry into charges respecting the conduct of honorable members of the house under circumstances as above indicated would have been in my view an impertinence and a discourtesy to the house and against parliamentary practice.

"It has been pointed out that the time for prosecution under the Ontario temperance act has now elapsed, but the time has not elapsed for action by this house, and if such inquiry were to result in a finding of improper conduct against members of the house it would be within the powers of the house to enforce penalties on the offending members compared with which the appropriate penalties of the Ontario temperance act are insignificant."

Paid Insurance Premiums.

In answer to an inquiry by W. H. Casselman, the U. F. O. member for Dundas, the Legislature was told today that the firm of Maguire & Connon, of which Mayor Maguire of Toronto is a member, was paid insurance premiums by the Ontario Hydro Commission last year to the amount of $31,067.71, more than twice as much as any other firm received. The Royal Insurance Company, of which the mayor is agent, also received $78,-651 direct.

While the answer to Mr. Casselman's question does not show it, it is understood that the Maguire firm had the distribution of about a million and a quarter dollars of insurance on the Nipigon plant. The commission as broker is said to amount to 25 per cent of the premiums.

Haunted House Puzzles Scientist "On Job."

CALEDONIA MILLS, N. S., March 9.—"It is the biggest mystery I have ever had to deal with," Dr. Franklin Prince, director of the American Institue of Scientific Research, is quoted as saying with reference to the unusual manifestations at the homestead of Alex. MacDonald near here, by Dan MacGillivray, who returned from a visit to the alleged haunted house today.

"When I asked Dr. Prince if he had got to the bottom of the mystery he wasn't inclined to talk," added MacGillivray. "However, the doctor said he was going to stay on the job until he had found out something."

HUNT FOR EMBEZZLER OF MONTREAL SHOW FUNDS

Man Believed To Be F. D. Gustin Sold Demonstrators Space.

MONTREAL, March 9.—The local police are looking for a stock salesman believed to be F. D. Gustin, also wanted in Toronto and Hamilton, who acted here as agent for an electrical and household building exhibition in which he sold space to demonstrators.

The salesman failed to account for several checks given him by prospective exhibitors, and cannot now be located. His embezzlements in Toronto, according to the police, amounted to $5,000. In Hamilton, he is alleged to have swindled a prominent doctor out of $2,000.

The promoters of the exhibition are refunding all money paid to the salesman.

DO YOUR BOWELS Move Regularly, or Do They BECOME CONSTIPATED

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by allowing the bowels to become constipated, and there is no other trouble which flesh is heir to that is more liable to be neglected, because material inconvenience may not be felt, at once, from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of the decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing violent sick and bilious headaches, internal bleeding or protruding piles, heartburn, jaundice, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS, will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, and removing the constipation and all its allied troubles.

Mr. Samuel Buckler, Tatamagouche, N. S., writes: "For over a year I suffered with constipation. I took several different kinds of medicine, but could only get temporary relief. I was told to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I procured two vials of them, but after I had taken one I found that I was relieved of my trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend Laxa-Liver Pills for any kind of constipation."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Advt.

DRURY STATES O. T. A. IS NOT TO BE CHANGED

Monster Deputation of Dry Forces Received by Premier at Toronto.

WILL BACK UP RANEY

Enforcement of Present Law To Be Objective of Government.

TORONTO, March 9.—Efforts of the Ontario government will be devoted to enforcement of the Ontario temperance act as it exists today, rather than to securing amendments to the principle of the measure itself.

Enactments of such amendments without the direct sanction of the electorate might provide a loophole for further amendments, tending to weaken rather than to strengthen the act.

Such, in effect,was the reply given by Premier Drury today to a monster deputation from the Dominion Alliance convention which waited upon the premier and W. E. Raney, attorney-general, requesting a tightening up of existing temperance laws.

"You come to us," said Mr. Drury, in answer to the deputation, "asking certain amendments to the law, and with certain suggestions for its betterment, from your viewpoint, and, I may say, from my own viewpoint as well. I have been a lifelong teetotaler and temperance worker. But we must consider whether it is expedient to change the law. There have been great assaults recently from the other side. Only yesterday a monster petition was delivered to me. I thought it was a lot of laundry packages, it was so bulky.

"Imperfections of the law, to my mind, are not the immediate thing to be bettered so much as enforcement of the law. It might be better, in the interests of the permanency of prohibition, not to move too fast in legislation, but to keep the thing where it has, by custom and precedent, been placed—in the hands of the people. I give you my word that this government will not introduce any amendments to loosen the act, but let us entrench ourselves before we go further. For the safety of the law we should stand by the principle of administering the law as expressed by the voice of the people. It is not a matter of legislative action—that way lies danger. Once admit the principle that the law can be vitally amended, and you are open to the danger of amendments in the other direction. Let us enforce the law as the people have suggested."

To Banish Alcohol.

"Our purpose is not simply to do away with the greater evils of intemperance; we seek to banish alcoholism from the race," declared Rev. Ben Spence, secretary of the alliance, who was the first speaker. "Alcoholism is a racial poison; more of it gets into a people, the more degeneracy there'll be in the next race. We are opposed to liquor, whether sold over the bar, by the bootlegger, or no matter how it is sold."

Specifically, he continued, the alliance objected to the sale of native wines; to the abuse of doctors' prescriptions; and to any proposal to increase the alcoholic content of temperance beer.

Referring to the Liberty League petition, bearing 207,000 signatures, which was presented to the government yesterday, he recalled that the league had set out to obtain 500,000 signatures by last September. The number obtained, he declared, indicated that sentiment against prohibition was weaker today than at the time of the referendum in 1919.

Wants More Rope.

"Why," he continued, "I could go out with a petition to get your attorney-general hanged, and get more signatures than this one has. But, he resumed, when the laughter had subsided, "we don't want him hanged. We do, however, want you to give him more rope so that he may go out and hang the bootleggers of the province."

Evils of a temperance law, Mr. Spence averred, came from laxity rather than from strictness of enforcement. He presented the memorial passed by the alliance convention last evening.

Mrs. Asa Gordon, of Ottawa, and Mr. E. H. Cleaver, of Burlington, also spoke briefly in support of the requests submitted.

SCORES KILLED IN FRENCH STORM

PARIS, March 9. — Nearly all France has suffered heavily from the unusualy violent storm which began three days ago, causing heavy material damage and considerable loss of life, and the effects of which were still being severely felt today in interruption of communication and destruction along the coasts, particularly in the northern departments, whence come reports of numbers of persons killed and injured.

On all sides telegraph and telephone lines were blown down, cutting communications generally. The storm off the coast stopped virtually all marine traffic, and steamship communication between France and England was rendered impossible. A number of fishing boats were wrecked, and one of them, the Marie Therese, is reported to have sunk with the loss of 15 lives.

TTACKS BETTING RACE TRACKS

Delete "Gentlemen" From Speech From Throne.

OTTAWA, March 9. — By Canadian Press).—The entrance of a lady member into the halls of Parliament necessitated a change in the speech from the throne. In past parliaments the speech has always opened with the words: "Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate; Gentlemen of the House of Commons."

The speech today was addressed to "Honorable Members of the Senate; Members of the House of Commons.

Miss Agnes McPhail was responsible for the change.

ST. THOMAS GAINS NEW INDUSTRIES

Second Factory Secured Within Ten Days Will Employ 25 Workers At Start.

WILL MAKE NOVELTIES

Artcraft Leathers, Limited, Will Be New Manufacturing Line For Dominion.

ST. THOMAS, March 9.—The Artcraft Leathers, Limited, manufacturing purses, wallets and novelties, will open a factory in this city in the very near future. The industry is the second to be secured by the local chamber of commerce in the past ten days.

The company is capitalized for $40,000, and will operate under a Dominion charter, for which an application has already been made. About $15,000 worth of stock has already been subscribed, and the balance will be sold locally.

The officers of the company are S. Campbell, C. Bosca and George Ragan of Springfield, Ohio.; and J. T. Stewart and F. W. Sutherland of this city.

Temporary quarters have been secured for the factory at St. George and Talbot streets and manufacturing will start as soon as machinery can be placed. About 25 hands will be employed at first.

It is believed that a big market will be found for the goods, for at the present time practically all leather goods sold in Canada are purchased in the United States, despite a tariff of 40 per cent. The company will also seek markets in other parts of the British Empire.

CLAIMS REDUCED PRICES AID FARM-TO-CITY MOVE

California Agriculturist Tours Ontario In Co-operative Marketing Interests.

TORONTO, March 9. — Aaron Sapiro of San Francisco, who, at the request of Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture for Ontario, is lecturing in various sections of the province on the co-operative marketing of agricultural products, was a guest at a luncheon given by the government in the parliament buildings here today.

Mr. Sapiro said because the farmers in the United States were not being paid enough for their products there was a greater tendency than ever for the people to leave the farms for the cities, this having been shown in the census of 1920.

Speaking of a co-operative marketing organization to which he belonged, Mr. Sapiro said:

"You say you produce the best apples in the world. Well, perhaps you do; but the fact remains that we 'sell' ours in London and throughout England in competition with you."

This organization, he said, had spent $400,000,000 in advertising its members' products.

FEAR GIRL SOUGHT DEATH IN RIVER NEAR FREEPORT

Police Find No Trace of Jean T. Moore of Kitchener.

KITCHENER, March 8.—The only available information in the hands of the police in connection with the disappearance of Miss Jean T. Moore, a popular society girl of this city, is that on Wednesday afternoon, March 1, about 2 o'clock, she got off a Kitchener-Galt car in the vicinity of the Freeport Sanatorium.

Later she was seen boarding a Kitchener-Galt car at 8 o'clock in the evening. She wasn't seen on the car after it left Freeport. The only inference that is left the police is that in a demented condition the girl sought her end in the Grand River, which is near the car station at this point.

That Miss Moore was suffering from nervousness of a chronic nature is established. It is now believed that her disease must have rendered her temporarily insane and caused her to leave her home here in the manner she did, leaving no trace behind.

BURGLARS LOOT BURFORD STATION

BRANTFORD, March 9. — High County Constable Fred Kerr has been busy the last few days investigating a robbery which occurred at Burford late Saturday night. On that evening the Grand Trunk station was broken into. The thieves gained entrance by forcing open the door of the building with an iron instrument. Then they devoted their attention to the express office, and succeeded in carrying off a large quantity of goods, mostly tobacco, valued at about $200.

In company with G. T. R. Detectives Soulding and Weller, Constable Kerr followed up every clue available, but without success so far.

He intimated this morning that the theft was perpetrated by someone in the vicinity of the village. A motor car is believed to have been used to carry the goods awoy.

A Disorganized Party.

ALL THE world loves a winner. The fact that a man wins takes the breath out of the critics, but the fact that he does not win serves to fill the critics with a brand new supply of breath which they use with purpose and point.

The Conservative members of parliament met in Ottawa in advance of the session's regular work. They sought to find out what happened at the last election, and a good many of them—defeated ones—have come to the conclusion that enough people did not vote for them.

The Journal, the Conservative organ in Ottawa, does not mince matters. In this way does it pay the appreciation of the party to the men who got out and fought the last Dominion election campaign:

Yet many Conservatives, we imagine, will look upon the present gathering in Ottawa and find it difficult to enthuse. And the reason—we desire to be frank—is the personel of MR. MEIGHEN'S general staff. While the battle raged last December, and there could be no thought of schism or disunion, hundreds and thousands of Conservatives all over Canada stifled criticism and discontent. They were dissatisfied with the management of the campaign, with the calibre of many of the men who surrounded the prime minister; but the exigencies of the fight imposed silence. That necessity, however, no longer exists, and MR. MEIGHEN may as well be told now that there are thousands of loyal Conservatives all over Canada who believe that unless and until he makes a new start with new men, he is doomed to wander long in the wilderness.

In the elections of last December, MR. MEIGHEN was his party's only asset. Some of his colleagues were good men, but none of them were strong or brilliant men, while two or three of them were positive liabilities. Nor was that all. An even greater defect, and, we believe, a more disastrous one, was that the management of the campaign was turned over to men who did not even belong to the elective chamber. They were men whose political records did not inspire confidence, men whose pale prestige fell far short of what the public desired in a time of crisis, men whose real character was revealed by the fact that when MR. MEIGHEN came to fight for a place in parliament, in Grenville, they were far from the smoke of battle.

A fine piece of delayed butchery! All through the campaign the Journal praised the men it now damns; plead with voters to turn over the affairs of the country, its finances, its administration, its resources and its future to the very same men it now says were neither "brilliant" or "strong," and indeed in some cases were "positive liabilities."

* * *

MEANWHILE, what does MR. MEIGHEN face? A party that is not united under his leadership. Quebec Conservatives realize and say so openly, that as long as MEIGHEN leads the Conservatives, there is no chance of making any inroad on the solid Quebec. "HON. ROBERT ROGERS, one of the best practical politicians the Conservatives have, is very anxious for MEIGHEN'S resignation.

In his following in the House, MEIGHEN has representatives of only three provinces out of the nine forming the Confederation. His eastern representation consists of five members, and in British Columbia, eleven; the rest are in Ontario. In Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, MEIGHEN has not a single representative.

When the Liberal party was defeated in 1317, it retained a representation in all save two provinces.

MR. MEIGHEN made it very evident, in the first few minutes of the present House, that he is out as a carping critic, and not as a constructive builder; that he is willing to pick up the small things in political life rather than school his followers to function as helpful critics of legislation.

Such tactics will not rebuild the "dilapidated annex," which he now has the privilege of leading. Ottawa knows and the country knows that the Conservative party is in a bad way.

Balfour Accepts.

THOUGH HIS mother was the daughter of a marquis and in spite of the fact that his political affiliations have always been unmistakably Conservative, the RT. HON. ARTHUR JAMES BALFOUR has for thirty years steadfastly declined all honors which would deprive him of the privilege of being called just plain "Mister."

There is nothing churlish about the eminent British statesman; his courtesy and affability are as characteristic as his conservatism. But when it has come to the question of accepting titles he has hitherto turned a deaf ear to his sovereign's persuasion. Now he has relented.

At the age of 75 he becomes a knight-companion of the Order of the Garter, a distinction specifically bestowed as a reward for his great services at the Washington disarmament conference.

Unquestionably Balfour deserves any honor which King George may care to bestow. And his dignity cannot be lessened by his acceptance. Canadians can have only admiration for the stubbornness with which he has declined to accept a title, but they should have no censure for his final surrender.

Any British statesman who holds out as long as Balfour held out merely as a matter of principle is somewhat of a hero, and a man who is 75 and still "going strong" must be forgiven for abandoning his stand if he accepts a title rather than waste further energy in framing polite refusals.

An Illegal Plan.

THE PROPOSITION of the city of London to build a big dance hall at Port Stanley, running out into the lake, is entirely illegal and should not be proceeded with.

It may be argued by some that the charter of the London and Port Stanley Railway could be used as authority, but the charter itself is illegal, and was ultra vires the Dominion Parliament. It had no right to declare a municipality a Dominion railway, as it did by the statute of 1914. Any rights or powers the city of London has or could get, it must get from the Ontario Legislature.

What right could the city of London have to build a dance house twenty-three miles away from its boundary line?

The Drury government has given strong evidence of its desire to legislate within its rights and to do its duty in directing and protecting municipalities. Surely running a dance house should be left to private enterprise. It is stated that this enterprice, it carried into effect, may cost as much as two hundred thousand dollars.

How much more good such an expenditure might do in many other ways!

Let every effort be made to stop the erection of a dance hall by the city, whether it can be made to pay or not.

LITTLE 'TISERS

France has banned the use of the word "boche" in all official documents. The word is undoubtedly one of contempt, and exceeding wisdom is shown by the Gallic government in attempting to erase it from the spoken tongue. There is little reason now to hurl such epithets as "boche" and "Hun" at Germany. These small acts can but deepen smoldering hatreds, and such childlike manifestations should be abolished.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

[By Digby Phillips.]

NO. 157—MEASURING CONCENTRATION.

Can you tell by looking at a man whether or not he is capable of great mental concentration?

In a woman, her hair, whether knotted or bobbed, generally prevents your discovery of this capability, but in a man it is not so difficult to tell from the development of the back of his head.

There is a certain area, in the center of the back of the head, just below the rather large area, which, as explained in a previous article, indicates the individual's measure of self-esteem or dignity. This area is also just above that in which lie the faculties which produce the phenomenon we know as "homesickness," and it is the measure, of the individual's natural ability to concentrate.

You must not assume, however, that these mental faculties of memory, sound, tone, dignity, reverence, etc., are set for the individual within irrevocable limits by the shape of his or her skull. The skull shape indicates the equipment in these various lines with which the individual starts, so to speak, without allowances for exercise of will power and the formation of customs and habits.

If your bump of concentration is not well developed, it is possible for you to learn to concentrate better than the person with natural abilities in this direction who does not try. But you will not be able to go as far as he does with the same amount of effort.

LOOKING OVER OTTAWA

By A. R. K.

DR. RANKIN of North Perth is at Ottawa by reason of an outstanding win, in which the personality of DR. RANKIN played no small part. Stratford city used to return a Conservative majority—not so in the last contest when it gave a RANKIN majority of over 800. DR. RANKIN believes there is need for the Liberals to follow up their advantage and go on with the work of organization. He is in favor of no departure from present lines—straight Liberal is good enough for him. A commanding figure, well over six feet in height, a warm handshake and a genial personality, DR. RANKIN is admirably equipped to look after the interests of his constituents.

* * *

THE abolition of the Senate would not be welcomed by members of the Commons, is a statement that has been made on more than one occasion, and there is some ground for it. Many a time a Commoner has voted for something, in order to please some of his constituents, and at the same time prayed that the Senate would assassinate the idea when it passed to that chamber. The reasoning goes farther:—The man in the Commons, whether he likes to admit it or not, has to keep looking ahead to the next election, and his course must be framed accordingly. Not so with the Senators—they do not have to go back, and for that reason can face matters of public moment and interest with less bias and less "next election enthusiasm." Not a popular argument, perhaps, but it has quite a share of force and fact.

* * *

AND speaking of the Senate also brings up the point that right now this chamber has a Conservative majority of about 30, enough and to spare to kill off any legislation the Commons cares to bring down, should the upper chamber wish to adopt obstructive tactics. There are some matters coming up in the session where this point may be well tested.

OTTAWA LIVES for the opening of the house. The hotels begin to look prosperous. Sample rooms suddenly hatch a couple of beds in the corner. The little old spare bedroom is treated to a coat of paint, a new wash-stand, and gets itself in the paper as a desirable bed-sitting-room for a member at a price that makes the new indemnity look like the old one used to. Renting buildings to the government is a favorite and recognized pastime at Ottawa, and renting sections of them to the unsuspecting public is likewise another sport that is gathering more devotees every day.

* * *

IT'S just an open question if TOMMY CHURCH of Toronto, did not pull a bone when he let go his life work as mayor of Toronto, and got himself seated on a cold opposition bench at Ottawa. Of course he didn't reckon on being in the opposition when he took the plunge. And they do tell that his wisdom and his advice are not swallowed at Ottawa as they were when he used to spoon-feed Toronto. It must be rather amazing to be a water carrier after having played the bass drum for seven years in the biggest city in the world.

* * *

THE premier has a secretary, MCGREGOR by name, who has the happy faculty of making callers on the chief realize that they mustn't come with the idea of spending the afternoon and staying for tea. It's a bit like a well regulated lodge room, outside and inside guards. And just about the time a caller gets going in good style, said secretary announces the arrival of the next caller. As a traffic regular, MCGREGOR'S a wonder.

* * *

MEMBERS of the press gallery, although they do love to warm up to the member who likes to talk, are willing to hand a bouquet to the Progressives at Ottawa as the greatest band of say-nothing-at-all politicians who ever invaded the capital. There is not another group that have carried out the idea of saying nothing at all in advance of the party caucus. In nearly every case there is a leak some place, and it does not take long to find it out. MR. CRÉRAR'S followers simply had nothing to say apart from the fact that crops were low in the West and freight rates high.

* * *

W. G. RAYMOND, M.P., of Brantford, has room 413, and he is the sole occupant, many of the other members having to double up. MR. RAYMOND is not afraid of the "13" on his room, as he explains that 4 and 3 make 7, and the 1 signifies his sole occupancy of the room.

* * *

SENATOR McCOIG is taking up his quarters with the senators. Oldtimers who meet him around the premises cannot get that "senator" title yet, and it's a warm handshake and "Hello, Archie." Few men are better known on Parliament Hill than the senator from Kent.

COMMON SENSE WAYS TO KEEP WELL

Coffee Drinking vs. Sleep

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

I HAVE often heard people say that drinking coffee at night does not interfere with their sleep, and I have always doubted their word.

Of course, they might be such constant drinkers of the black beverage that one cup before bedtime means little. Such people as a rule have already so drugged their nerves that they refuse to react to the stimulus of one cup.

Persons unaccustomed to the use of coffee will find the drinking of one cup before bedtime will interfere with sound sleep.

Tests made on men who were not coffee drinkers showed that three or four cups of coffee taken with breakfast, seriously interfered with the sleep of these men 14 to 20 hours later. The effect of coffee on the nervous system continues for a comparatively long period.

The fact that coffee will keep you awake is made use of by students just before examinations, in their "grinding" sessions. The excessive use of coffee in this way is often followed by a derangement of the stomach and nervous system of the drinker for days.

Caffeine, which causes the "anti-sleep" effect in coffee, is also believed to cause increased rapidity of thought. If the use of caffeine be continued for any length of time it may result in a delirium which closely resembles that of alcoholism.

In emergencies when it is necessary to keep awake for a long period coffee serves a useful purpose. But in all such cases it is used to insure wakefulness, the very condition the average man or woman seeks to avoid.

Defense of House Sparrow

By NEWTON TRIPP, Forest, Ont.

PART III.

In this last part of my defence of the house sparrow, I will deal more particularly with the sentimental phrase of the question. Neltye Blunchan, in "Bird Neighbors," reports a Mr. H. E. Parkhurst as saying:

"Of course no self-respecting ornithologist will condescend to enlarge his list by counting the 'English' sparrow—too pestiforous to mention!" And then she says:

"And yet of all bird neighbors, is any one more within the scope of this book than the audacious little gamin that delights in the companionship of humans, even in their most noisy city thoroughfares?"

I would add, were it not for these hardy, sturdy little birds, which remain with us during our cold northern winters, we would scarcely know that there were such things as birds in the winter. They afford me a good deal of pleasure during the winter as I watch them eating weed seeds in my garden to satisfy their hunger.

At a joint meeting of the two leading bird societies of Nebraska, held in Omaha in 1921, a list of the birds recognized on their field day was published in a late number of Wilson's Bulletin, in which the House Sparrow did not appear. And when the members were asked, if they were not there, the reply was that they were, but they did not count.

No self-respecting ornithologists would condescend to add the English sparrow to their list, indeed! And yet they will include such birds as Crows, Blackbirds, Blue Jays, Cowbirds, Shrikes, Hawks and Owls, which, unlike the English Sparrow, which only interferes with the nesting of a few birds where their own homes are, not only interfere with the nesting of these few birds, but go roaming about almost everywhere, eating the eggs and young of all but the larger birds; who also kill and eat the parents, too, in very large numbers, and who no doubt in many cases leave their young to die slowly of starvation. Where does any comparison come in?

* * * *

JACK MINER of Kingsville, Ontario, in one of his public addresses, referring to another species of sparrow, spoke of it as "one of God's sparrows," not the "English Sparrow."

It would be interesting if our friend Jack Miner would state how he accounts for the existence of the English Sparrow. He also calls them "Germans" because they have interfered with the nesting of some of his pet swallows, and because of that he states, "There are no more Sparrows." Who is the German?

It is said of the Germans that in some of their colonization schemes, where the natives interfered with their plans, "That there were no more natives." It seems to me that it illbecomes omnivorous man, who kills and eats almost all he can lay his hands on, to call any of his fellow-creatures hard names because some of their habits in that respect do not suit him.

Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter of Indiana, a most interesting writer on bird life, in her otherwise splendid book, "Homing With the Birds," winds up with a terrible denunciation of the English Sparrow, saying:

"A flock of English Sparrows in a location where warblers and finches are homing means worse destruction to the birds than a plague of influenza, typhoid and smallpox combined means to human beings."

It is not difficult to show that this is an over-statement.

I would ask, are these Sparrows as a rule found "homing" in the same location with warblers and finches? I would say from my extended observations they are not.

Just before this denunciation, after extolling the benefits of warblers as insect destroyers, with which all are agreed, she says many warblers choose extremely high nesting sites, others nest lower, while others select bushes only a few feet from the ground. These variable locations make these birds a prey to "all outdoors," from the Crows and Jays of the high tree tops to the red squirrels of the middle locations, and the snakes, weasels and skunks of the ground, and that they suffer peculiarly from the impositions of the cowbird, to which all are agreed also.

What I would like to know is, what is left for this terrible English Sparrow to do? Further on, referring to the depredations of other birds, such as Crows, Hawks, Jays and Owls, she says:

"Here we are helpless, as nature must preserve her own balance," and in this way excuses these bandits. But must the House Sparrow be made a scapegoat to let these go free? We must not touch her pet Horned Owls, Chicken Hawks and Blue Jays.

I wonder if the name "English" (a misnomer) has anything to do with the feeling against these sparrows in some quarters?

So far as I can learn these sparrows referred to in Matthew x-29, where it says:

"And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father." How shall we expect that same notice if we wantonly destroy them?

I do not claim that the house sparrows are the most lovable of our birds, but I do claim that they have a right to fair play in their endeavor to answer the end of their being in bird economy.

Shakespeare somewhere has said: "The evil that men do live after them, the good is oft interred with their bones." This may also be said of such birds as robins and house sparrows. We can see something of the cherries and grain they eat, but not the innumerable insects and weed seeds they destroy.

With this I rest my case and await the decision of the jury.

HALE ST. S. S. WINS BANNER

Had Largest Attendance At Religious Education Council Convention Thursday.

NEGLECT CHILD TOO LONG

Rev. C. A. Myers Says Child of 14, Not 40, Needs Help.

A banner offered for the Sunday school having the largest percentage of its enrolment present at the convention of the London Religious Educational Council, held in Cronyn Hall, Thursday evening, was won by Hale Street Methodist Church, which had a percentage of 16. Other churches were not far behind the mark set by Hale street, and Cronyn Hall was filled to capacity.

During the evening session, Rev. C. A. Myers, M.A., in a very forceful address, dealt with the aims and methods of religious education.

"Educational evangelism should be the aim of the church," said Mr. Myers. "We are too prone to think of it as religion and evangelism, and separate instead of combining the two."

A Generation Ago.

"A generation ago the aim of religious education seemed to be mainly in preparing souls for the next world. The object now is to further the cause of Christ, not only in preparing men for the next world, but to help them live Christian lives in this world, in business, politics and every other walk of life. We concern ourselves too much, however, with trying to help the boy when he reaches the age of forty, when our object should be to help him at the age of fourteen. If we do that the rest will take care of itself.

"We must give the children usable knowledge, not the sort which they can only bottle up in cold storage to be used when they reach the age of thirty. Children are not born with religious knowledge, but they are possessed of the capacity of knowing God, and we fail if we do not, through our influence, give the child a right conception of God.

"Our children are not being given adequate religious training. We neglect them too long. The religious life of children must be saved and from their earliest childhood they must come under the influence of educational evangelism.

"Teachers should concern themselves with the daily life of the children and help them to bear the fruit of the training they receive in Sunday school."

In conclusion, Dr. Myers stressed the enormous field of Christian activity which lay in connection with boys and girls of the teen age and spoke of the vast work which was being carried on by various organizations which particularly concerned themselves with young people.

Home As Channel.

Supporting Mr. Myers in his contention that educational evangelism commences in the home, Rev. Dr. Hiltz spoke effectively of the home as a channel for religious education.

Modern homes are not fulfilling their duty in presenting the child with the right ideals to influence it through life," declared the speaker. "Even the church cannot supplant the home in this respect. Ideals are formed in the home and the responsibility of the child's early religious training lies with the parents.

"Moral forces are transmitted from generation to generation and we must hold ourselves responsible for transmitting the right ideals to our children. No religious revival can be effective unless it affects the home and no amount of effort on the part of the church can be properly effective unless it has the support and co-operation of the home."

Reports Given.

During the afternoon session, various reports were given and departmental conferences held. Mrs. W. L. Armitage, in a report concerning girl's work in the city, stated that a girl's cabinet had been formed which would formulate the program for over 700 girls in the city who were connected with organizations for 'teen age girls.

The following officers were elected: President, G. W. Hofferd; first vice-president, P. D. Mitchell; second vice-president, R. C. Dearle; secretary-treasurer, I. Taylor; secretary, J. Lovell; associate secretary, O. D. Newton; finance committee, I. Taylor, E. E. Reid and George Copeland; children's work board, Miss E. A. Wright, Miss McIntosh and Miss L. Young; girl's work board, Mrs. W. L. Armitage and Miss H. D'Avignon; boy's work board, W. D. Beamer and L. M. Moulding; adult division, Rev. F. W. K. Harris; young people's division, Rev. W. Jewitt; department of home religion, Rev. Denny Bright; teacher training department, Rev. N. S. McKecknie; missionary department, John Holman, and temperance department, Mrs. M. R. Crawford.

GET FIVE-CENT FARE

Hamilton Street Railway Comes to New Agreement With Council.

Hamilton, March 10.—The Hamilton street railway, under a new agreement with the city council, enforced a straight 5-cent fare, commencing this morning. As a result one case was taken to the police court before 9 o'clock. Walter Unsworth offered a ticket which he had bought at the rate of six for 25c, and when the conductor refused to accept it, Unsworth was arrested on a charge of being disorderly. The magistrate laid the case over, holding that if the alleged disorderliness consisted in Unsworth's refusal to give his name, the police had no right to arrest him. Evidence on this point will be submitted later. Unsworth complained that he had been beaten in the cells by the police, while the police say he fought like a maniac.

A MEETING of the London Collegiate Institute Literary Society, in the new collegiate auditorium, on Friday evening, March 10, the feature of the program will be a debate. In addition to the debate there will be a musical and literary program.

MILK CHARIOT NAG WANDERS

"Oh, where, oh, where, has my little horse gone?" This was probably the cry of a driver of a City Creamery wagon this morning when he found his horse had disappeared from the point at which he had left it. He did not have to go very far to catch it. Nevertheless the circumstances under which Dobbin left his anchorage are rather amusing, and yet natural.

Even a horse gets lonesome at times, and this particular horse felt that way this morning.

The scene of the happening was on Queen's avenue between Clarence and Waterloo streets. The driver left his horse standing in front of a residence between Wellington and Waterloo. While he was delivering his milk a team of horses belonging to the Daly Coal Company was proceeding west on Queen's avenue.

Evidently the milk chariot nag felt lonesomeness coming on, so he immediately started to follow the coal team. Down Queen's avenue to Clarence street went the procession and had not the driver of the coal wagon noticed that there was no driver in the milk wagon, the City Creamery might have been minus a horse. As it was, the driver of the team stopped and held the milk horse until his master came along.

MRS. SMITH'S PUPILS GIVE RECITAL IN WESLEY HALL

Students Delight Large Audience With Fine Musical Entertainment.

The senior pupils of Mrs. Nello McHardy-Smith were heard in a most successful recital at Wesley Hall on Thursday night, March 9, and delighted a large audience with their exhibition of well - developed technique and power of expression.

Assisting with the program was Miss Ulah B. Kennedy, whose clear soprano tones were admirably suited to her choice of Benedict's "La Capinera." A flute obligato played by Ingeborg Hausch, rendered Miss Kennedy's solo particularly effective and enhanced its beautiful melody.

Two delightful piano solos were given by one of Mrs. McHardy-Smith's younger pupils, Fred Underhill.

Miss Freda Merrison of Sarnia, was heard to advantage in Mendelssohn's concerto in G Minor, a number of rare beauty.

A Saint-Saens concerto in G Minor, a composition which requires much skill, was brilliantly rendered by Miss Madeline Simson, who played the several movements with particularly fine understanding of the theme.

Another enjoyable feature of the program was Miss Mildred Baker's piano solo, a Lizst concerto in E Flat. And the minor tones of a Mozart concerto were beautifily rendered by Mrs. George Copeland. A Chopin number played by Miss Iva Smith, another youthful and talented pupil of Mrs. McHardy-Smith, was especially pleasing.

Orchestral accompaniments were played on the organ by A. D. Jordan, and at a second piano by Mrs. McHardy-Smith..

clause be removed, as it looked ambiguous.

Mr. Vining—"I don't know whether I am within my limits or not, but if the board regards the clause as a hindrance it may be eliminated."

Mayor Wilson said a clause should then be substituted, as it was of importance. "I wouldn't like any controversy over the matter," he said.

Trustee Bice asked what difference it made to the board. Mr. Silverwood said that if any information was desired by the commission it should come from the board in question.

It was finally agreed that if the commission wanted any information the representatives would furnish it.

Trustee Udy then asked for explanation on clause 8, with regard to adopting resolutions of a legislative matter. Trustee Silverwood also asked Mr. Vining to explain the word "legislative," raising the objection that it might interfere with the board carrying out any works.

Mr. Vining answered that the board of education could carry on any works without fear or hindrance from the commission.

Trustee Campbell asked if the board could withdraw if they saw fit. The answer was in the affirmative.

"If the commission ordered the public utilities to build a third reservoir, would they absolutely have to abide by that ruling?" asked Trustee Rowe.

No Power to Order.

Mr. Vining replied that the commission had no power to order anything done, only, had power to make a suggestion.

Trustee Bice then put things on a different angle, by saying that the members were staring at an ant, but thought it was a camel.

Trustee Silverwood then said he or any other member of the board was not trying to nag the commission, merely getting some information. "On the contrary," he said, "I believe that commission form of government is a good thing, and will benefit the city greatly."

The debating on clause 8 then came to a close, and clause 4 taken up. Mayor Wilson cleared this by replying to the question, "What does it mean?"

"It simply means that if the board of education is granted $150,000 for a new school, the commission is to see that the money is spent on that and nothing else," he asserted.

Clauses 10, 11, 14 and 15 were taken up respectively, with only minor amendments being made to suit the board.

Trustee Rowe moved that the board of education join in with other bodies for commission government, and it was seconded by Trustee Udy. Chairman Edwin Smith of the education board, Trustees Silverwood and Campbell were appointed representatives to the commission.

ROTARY IDEALS ARE PANACEA

Club's Tenets Apply to Ills of Business and of Nations.

NEEDS HARD WORK

1,500 Rotary Delegates At Detroit Hear Cure For Deflation.

Detroit, March 10.—"World peace will be possible only when business men of various countries, affiliated by a similarity of ideals, such as are embodied in the purposes of the international Rotary clubs, become united under the banner of industry and commerce," William S. Coopock, of Council Bluffs, Ia., second international vice-president, told the Rotary clubs of the ninth district. The address was delivered at the first session of the annual Rotary conference in the ballroom of Hotel Statler.

More than 1,500 club members from the ninth district, which includes Michigan and Western Ontario, were in attendance when the two days' convention was opened by George Barnes, district governor. Luncheon meetings in four dining rooms closed the morning session.

Webb Advocates Publicity.

Rotary, its purposes, ideals and definitions, was lauded by speakers in short addresses at the afternoon meeting. "Rotary means service, and anything that is big enough to interest the community is big enough to occupy the attention and efforts of Rotarians," Jeff B. Webb, president of the Detroit Rotary club, told the assembly in advocacy of club publicity of the right sort.

Philanthropy and utility were declared the two outstanding features of Rotarian service. Reports from committees on "the best things done the past year" includes a recital of assistance to homeless, crippled and defective children.

Rotarian influence in business and its beneficial effects occupied the major of the afternoon conference. "The Relation of Labor to the Present Industrial Condition" was the theme of an address by Charles Doll of the Mt. Clemens Club.

Clarence Carlton spoke on the "Principles of Rotary as a Stimulant to Business."

"Business has been over-stimulated," he said. "What business needs is a more personal element that is known as hospitality. Rotary means hospitality in theory and practice, and its application to business is one method of assuring prosperity. Hard work and hospitality are the remedies for any business that is suffering from deflation."

Service for Humanity Urged.

The closing address of the afternoon was made by Perry Shorts, vice-president of the Second National Bank of Saginaw. His topic was "Service in Business."

Dealing with the abstract qualities of kindness and humanity, Mr. Shorts urged the assembled Rotarians to broaden the viewpoint of life and take as an especial charge the care of some suffering or afflicted child or despondent widow. "Surplus money has never brought joy to any man, but service will gladden our lives and make them something to look upon as a benefit to humanity," he said.

A reception for the visiting officials and their wives was held in the evening. A banquet, followed with a dance, closed the activities of the first day. The election will be held Friday.

Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, was scheduled to address the delegates after the banquet. In a telegram to Jeff Webb, the secretary regretted his inability to attend and gave important naval duties as the reason for his absence.

PAUL D. BELL, 93, HURON PIONEER, PASSES AWAY

His Physical Pioneers Was Source Of Many Pioneer Tales—Burial In Hensall.

Special to London Advertiser.

Hensall, March 10.—Paul D. Bell, one of Huron's most widely-known residents, passed away at his home, a mile west of here, early this morning at the age of 93 years. Mr. Bell, who retained his faculties to the last, was a son of the late Robert Bell, who in the pioneer days of Huron county, started the Kippen Mills.

Paul Bell was a giant physically, and his athletic prowess was known over a wide territory. Pioneer tales revolve around his feats of strength, and at raisings, bents of timber which required the handling of half a dozen men he easily handled by himself. He was anchor man on the Huron tug-of-war team, which many years ago took the honors from the Bruce county team after they had retained them for years at the Caledonian games at Lucknow.

He was widely read, took a deep interest in affairs of church and state, but never stood for public office.

He is survived by three sons and three daughters. His funeral will be held Monday from the family residence to Union Cemetery, Hansall.

THE TRAIL RANGERS of Centennial Methodist Church Sunday School were entertained by Miss Tuft's class of young ladies, Thursday evening. A most enjoyable evening was spent in games and music after which the young women provided appetizing refreshments.

CENTENNIAL METHODIST Church Trustee Board, at a meeting, Wednesday evening, passed unanimously a resolution in appreciation of the services of their minister, Rev. A. E. Thompson, and invited him to stay for the coming conference year. Arrangements concerning the assembly of the London Conference to be held in June were completed as far as Centennial Methodist Church is concerned, and the following billeting committee appointed: T. R. Wright, W. J. Wilkie and I. H. Reid.

AUTO DEALER SUES G. T. R. FOR HIS WRECKED CAR

Claims No Warning Given At Crossing of Freight Car's Approach.

A. H. Burrows, an automobile dealer in London, has taken action against the Grand Trunk Railway for $1,500 damages as a result of an accident on Oct. 27, 1921, when his motor car was struck and wrecked by a string of freight cars which were being backed across the Adelaide street crossing. The plaintiff claims that his car was being driven carefully and lawfully along Adelaide street, and alleges that without giving the necessary and statutory signals of bell and whistle as required by the railway act, the freight train was shunted over the crossing, at which no person was placed to watch and give warning.

The Grand Trunk Railway denies allegation contained in the plaintiff's claim, and says the accident complained of was not caused by reason of any act nor neglect on the part of the company nor its servants. They also claim that the plaintiff did not use proper care.

The case will be heard at the spring assizes, which open March 20 before Chief Justice R. M. Meredith.

W. H. Biggar of Toronto is acting for the defendant, and J. M. McEvoy of London for the plaintiff.

MAY USE OLD VICTORIA AS BRANCH HIGH SCHOOL

Trustee Smith Favors Innovation Proposed by Former Board Chairman.

There seems little doubt but that the old Victoria School, South London, just vacated for the new building, will be used during the year as a branch high school.

In the closing hours of last year's board of education, the retiring chairman, Thomas Coleridge, as champion of the unit high school system recommended that this school be employed for that purpose.

On Friday afternoon Trustee Edwin Smith, chairman of the present board, announced that he was favorable to the same suggestion, which has been repeated several times within recent weeks, and urged by many of the ratepayers.

"It would be an excellent undertaking," commented the chairman, "and falls in line with our adopted policy of economy to the limit. The school is in pretty fair shape and I believe that it would require but little re-modelling. Furthermore there would be plenty of class rooms available and the lower grades could be taught there."

The chairman intimated that this matter would receive the earnest attention of the board in the immediate future.

But one school will be constructed this year, the proposed building on the Dakin street site. "Whether this will be built either," said Trustee Smith, "is even yet problematical. It is for the board to decide. There has been sonsiderable opposition recorded in various quarters lately, but whether this will have any effect I cannot say."

KING AND MEIGHEN WERE CONFUSED ON DOCUMENTS

"Passage At Arms" Due To Misunderstanding Concerning Premier's Conference Report.

Ottawa, March 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Talking at cross purposes was, it now appears, at the bottom of the passage at arms between the premier and the leader of the opposition in the House of Commons yesterday over the report of the conference of premiers in London last summer.

Hon. Mr. King laid on the table a report of that conference, and in doing so took Rt. Hon. Mr. Meighen to task for surrendering Canada's equality of status with the other parts of the empire.

Mr. Meighen stated on Wednesday that he had received a report of this conference, which was marked "secret," and he had asked the premier to request Mr. Lloyd George for an intimation as to what parts of the report might be regarded as public.

It now develops that the two leaders were talking about two different documents.

The report tabled by Mr. King had already been tabled in the British Parliament, and its contents are public. In this report the secret communications, made by the British ministers to the conference of premiers, have been omitted. In addition to this a full report of the proceedings, including these secret communications, has been sent to Mr. Meighen, who represented Canada at the conference, and it was in regard to this report that he desired the Canadian premier to make inquiries.

During the interchange of repartee in the house yesterday Mr. King was talking of the public report tabled. Mr. Meighen was referring to the secret report sent to him under the seal of confidence.

REGARDED AS POLITICAL TRICK

Fredericton, N.B., March 10.—In the provincial Legislature yesterday afternoon the address in reply to the speech from the throne was adopted, after an amendment by the opposition expressing regret that the government had not announced a policy of economy and retrenchment had been defeated by a vote of 25 to 14. The progressives divided on the ultimate escape save a constitution amendment, their leader, A. Chase Fawcett, stating that some regarded it as a mere political trick to suggest want of confidence in the government.

TEN SERIOUSLY GASSED.

Montreal, March 10.—Ten people were seriously gassed early this morning, when a pipe exploded in the basement of a tenement at 582 St. Dominique street. The victims were rushed to the General Hospital, where it was reported that although they had inhaled a great deal of the poisonous fumes, none were in any immediate danger. The pipe broke while everybody in the tenement was asleep, with the result that the gas rapidly spread throughout the entire building before it was discovered.

OFFER ROMANTIC PLAY AT MAJESTIC

Penwarden and Secrest Present "Dawn of the Mountains" To Appreciative Audience.

MISS GUSTIN TRIUMPHS

Displays Exceptional Ability in Title Role of Splendid Drama of Kentucky Hills.

"Dawn of the Mountains," one of the best comedy-dramas yet put on by Messrs. Penwarden and Secrest at the Majestic Theatre, drew a large and appreciative audience Thursday night.

The scenes are laid among the Kentucky mountains, the drama dealing principally with a mountain feud between two Kentucky families, and gives the entire company ample scope.

However, the honors of the play go unreservedly to Miss Gertrude Gustin, who displays exceptional ability in the character of Dawn McNair, a girl of the hills, who has never had a chance to receive any education. The principal character of the play, Miss Gustin, carries the whole action of the production along with a vim and dash that is particularly pleasing.

Miss Rose McDonald as Sally McNair, another young lady whose home is among the foothills, was also good, as were Thomas Crawford, Curley Monette, Rickey Secrest, Harry Lackhart, William Malone and Jack Cook.

Duncan Penwarden, as the aged mountaineer who had taken part in more than one feud in his day, was, as usual, exceptionally good.

Alfred Rigali, who was with the Grew Players, playing the Majestic Theatre all last season, was welcomed by the audience Thursday night. Mr. Rigali was splendid as the jealous young lover, who was always looking for trouble and always managing to find it.

Delhi, India, March 10.—The government has definitely decided to arrest Mohandas K. Gandhi, the non-co-operationist leader. He is now in the Ajmere district, about 220 miles southwest of this city.

Indian Secretary Of State Resigns

LONDON, March 9.—Edwin Samuel Montagu, the secretary of state for India, resigned that office today.

His resignation was forced, some 24 hours after the event, by the publication yesterday of the dispatch from India which caused a furore of condemnation in the British press—the message from the Earl of Reading, viceroy of India, to Mr. Montagu, setting forth the feeling in India regarding the necessity for revision of the treaty of Sevres between Turkey and the allies.

The announcement of this new sensation was made by Austen Chamberlain, the government leader, in the House of Commons, which was at white heat over the situation and which greeted the news with loud and prolonged cheers.

Mr. Chamberlain said the government was unable to reconcile the publication of the telegram on the sole responsibility of the cabinet and the duty which all the governments of the empire owed each other in matters of imperial concern.

Montagu, in retiring, accepted full responsibility for the publication of the dispatch, and Mr. Chamberlain, while not specifically stating that the resignation had been demanded, made it clear that the imperial government was unable to recognize the publication of the report on the sole responsibility of the secretary for India with the collective responsibility of the cabinet.

Press Condemns Action.

Chamberlain made the point that Lord Reading's dispatch should have been regarded as confidential. This, too, is the main grievance of the press, which has condemned, not the contents of the dispatch, but the publication of what, it is claimed, gives the Indian extremists a new lever to be used in their anti-government campaign and at a time when the situation in India was causing much concern.

Chamberlain said, in effect, that Montagu's acceptance of responsibility absolved the viceroy and the Indian government. Whether this view will be adopted by the British press remains to be seen. Some of the newspapers have been attacking the viceroy strongly and demanding his recall.

The Indian crisis, which has developed a sensation, if anything exceeding the recent crisis over the premiership, threatens to involve the prime minister and the coalition in still graver difficulties. The resignation of Edwin Montagu, secretary of state for India, which in many quarters is called a dismissal, has excited such intense manifestations of joy in the "die-hard" camp that there is an inclination to see some connection between the two crises.

Moreover, it provokes speculation concerning the position of the viceroy, Lord Reading, whose action in publishing the Indian government's note is interpreted as an item to force the hand of the imperial government.

Had Document Published.

Lord Reading, desiring to publish the offending document, sought permission of the secretary of state for India, who is technically his superior, to make the statement public in India. Montagu, without consulting the cabinet, and while the prime minister was confined to his room ill, gave permission, and Lord Reading had the statement published in India, from which country it was telegraphed through the ordinary channels to the British press.

Montagu's cabinet colleagues take the ground that he should have withheld permission, and simply brought the matter to the attention of the premier and the cabinet for their mature consideration.

Nothing is known yet regarding Montagu's successor, or what position Lord Reading holds in the next affair from the official viewpoint, but it is believed that the next India secretary will be a Unionist, and probably a member of the House of Lords, which would be a concession to the Unionists, who are demanding greater influence in the coalition.

A story is current that the prime minister while lying in bed looking over the morning papers was amazed to read the India document. He immediately summoned Secretary Montagu and other minister to Downing street.

Lord High Chancellor Birkenhead, Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Churchhill considered the matter with the premier, and it was unanimously decided that Montagu could not properly retain office. Thereupon, the premier sent to Montagu a formal request for his resignation.

In it understood that the remaining members of the cabinet later indorsed the action taken.

The announcement of Secretary Montagu's resignation was received in the House of Commons with fierce welcoming cheers from a majority of the Unionists and "die hards," the latter particularly evincing pleasure.

Some of the radicals profess to believe that Mr. Montagu's retirement is intended to appease the "die hards," although at the same time generally admitting that the untimely publication of the offending document gravely prejudiced the negotiations for revision of the Sevres treaty, and was likely to produce a serious effect in India.

See Crisis Near.

A serious side of the crisis is that the views expressed are said to be those not only of the viceroy, but also of all the provincial governors. But even the moderate members of the House of Commons and those some times described as "pro-Turkish," agree that it is impossible that Turkish rule should be resorted in Jerusalem, Mecca and Medina.

Although it is denied that there is any question of the recall of the viceroy, it is considered among the possibilities that if his policy is rejected he may ask to be recalled. Among the names mentioned tonight as possible successors of Montagu is that of Winston Churchill.

The troubles accumulating around the head of the prime minister and the government are likely to delay Mr. Lloyd George's visit to Wales, although no change in his plans has been announced.

In his letter of resignation to the premier, Mr. Montagu says:

Explains Attitude.

"When I received last week, the Government of India's telegram conveying that government's views on Turkish peace, with the request for permission to publish them. I circulated it to the cabinet. It was only after I received an urgent on Saturday repeating the request for permission to publish and asking for an immediate reply that I felt it my duty to accept the responsibility of sanctioning publication.

"I did not conceive it possible that there should be any question that the Indian Government should not be allowed to state their views upon a question so vitally affecting the peace of India, nor did I think it was possible or right to prevent them from informing the people whom they govern on views they felt it their duty to put forward on their behalf. The Government of India would be the first to acknowledge that it is the duty of his majesty's government to take many wider aspects into consideration, and that peace cannot be achieved if the Indian point of view only is considered."

He concludes by expressing the belief that "the policy which, under your leadership I was authorized to carry out in India, will win through to success."

"I AM AFRAID that the fact that we are going to give all ratepayers 30 days to appeal against a local improvement after they have been notified of the cost is going to tie up the launching of our spring work for a time," said Ald. Ashton. "There is no question about it, the scheme is the proper one, but the unfortunate point about it is that it is coming at a time when work should be launched just the moment we are able to get it under way. The fact that no work is ready now s gong to make for delay."

POLICE BAFFLED NO LONGER.

Hamilton, March 10.—The operations of two housebreakers, which have baffled the local police for over a week, came to an end suddenly last night. John Friend, 101 East 23rd street, and Russell Vansickle, 410 Concession street, were arrested shortly after eleven o'clock at the east-end incline.

Caught with booty in their possession, consisting of brooches, watches and gold lockets, as well as three loaded revolvers, the young men "fessed up" to the whole thing immediately they were arrested.

This morning they were sentenced to twenty-six months and twenty lashes each.

HOLDS RECEPTION.

A delightful social event of Wednesday afternoon was the post-nuptial reception of Mrs. John Tanton (formerly Miss Grace Claypole), who received for the first time since her marriage at her home in Peel street, St. Marys.

Mrs. Tanton looked very pretty in an ivory satin gown, with overdress of georgette, and corsage of Russell roses, and was assisted in receiving by Mrs. (Dr.) Smith, Miss C. B. Stiles and Miss Cassie Claypole, of London. Miss Smith wore a large black picture hat; Miss Stiles a smart frock of navy blue silk, and Miss Cassie Claypole was gowned in blue silk. The hostess received her guests in the drawing-room, where ferns and flowers were artistically arranged, harmonizing with the soft rose tints. The living-room was very cosy with its flowers and soft lights, with a huge basket filled with golden daffodils and other spring flowers. Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. Leah of London presided over the numerous guests to the tea-room. The pretty tea table was exquisitely arranged with its central basket filled with pink hyacinths and tulips resting on a fluffy mass of frille. Streamers of pink and white were caught to the corners of the table, where tall unshaded rose candles cast a pretty glow. Mrs. Lamont and Mrs. McIntyre poured tea, the former wearing a navy blue silk, with beaded corsage, and black hat, and the latter gowned in rose charmeuse with gold lace and chiffon hat. Charming tearoom assistants were Mrs. Frank Leah of London, who wore a smart blue silk dress, with touches of burnt orange; Miss Grace Fitzwalter in blue silk and flesh colored georgette, and Miss Edith Irvine wearing a smart taupe silk gown beaded to match. Little Mary Hine made a charming door attendant.

WITH THE BRIDES

JENKINS—WALKER.

A quiet wedding took place March 7 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. Walker, Cayuga, when Minerva E. Walker was married to John Jenkins, Rev. Walter C. Almack officiating. The bride wore a lovely gown of white crepe de chine, with an overdress of satin, and a veil caught with orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins left on a honeymoon which will be spent in western cities. Upon their return they will reside in Oneida.

McKILLOP—PATERSON.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, March 8, at 7 p.m., when Jean Isabel, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Paterson of Taylor was united in marraige to John Henry (Bee) McKillop, only son of the late J. A. McKillop of Muirkirk. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. E. Goaling of Duart. The wedding party entered the drawing-room while Miss Donna Paterson, sister of the bride, played Lohengrin's Wedding March. Mr. Douglas Paterson, the bride's brother, attended the groom and Mrs. (Dr.) J. R. Macpherson was matron of honor. During the signing of the register Mrs. L. E. Goaling sang de Hardelot's "Because." The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of blue kittenear satin with gypsey bead girdle of Indian red, and carried a shower bouquet, and Mrs. Macpherson was attired in black poiree with a hat of black pyroxylene with silver trimmings and carried pink and white carnations. After the ceremony dinner was served at a table decorated in pink and white. Guests were present from Windsor, West Lorne and Duart. The happy couple left for their home at Duart, the bride going away in a smart suit of navy duvetyne and hat to match of visca braid. Mr. and Mrs. McKillop have the good wishes and congratulations of their many good friends of Taylor and Duart.

Smart for Misses

BY MARIAN HALE.

LONDON, March 9.—Summer togs for the little miss of 7 or 8 are quite as smart as those designed for her mother. The same loose beltings and cleverly cut and tailored collars are found on her coats, and her hats, just as are mother's, are procurable in the very fabrics of which her frocks and wraps are made. The costuming of the small girl is a delight and an art.

A popular fabric for the fashioning of girls wraps and hats is En Tour, which is used for the model shown. En Tour is of medium weight and turns the dust nicely.

RENEWING GOWN.

Possibly you are one of the women who bought a one-piece serge dress which opened down the side? If it isn't worn out, and you're looking for some way to bring it up to date, have it cleaned and then buy some canton crepe of a harmonizing or contrasting tone and put a bias piece about eight inches wide from the neck to hem line at the side where the gown fastens. This cascade effect is being used on the newest frocks.

ORANGE SALAD.

Cut the oranges in half between the stem and seed and loosen the pulp as with grapefruit. Dip each bit of the flesh into mayonnaise and return to its place. Add a little of the dressing and some ground nuts on top. Serve with sandwiches of tea cakes.

CORAL.

Coral is one of the smart colors for evening wear. It is used a great deal as a background for beaded designs. Sometimes the coral tone is effected by the use of autmn brown tulle over pink.

CONVENIENCE.

A metal top on the kitchen table is a great convenience. It is easier to clean than wood, and dough can be rolled out on it without the use of the customary wooden board.

BURNED KETTLES.

When the bottom of a kettle becomes scorched, fill the kettle with cold water, add a few lumps of soda, and boil for a few minutes.

"IF WINTER COMES"

The Greatest Novel of the Present Decade

BY A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

(Copyright, 1922, Little, Brown & Co.)

He talked animatively,—these long pent up enthusiasms. She attended, rapt and gleaming-eyed, following him with most delicious 'Yes—yes" and with little nods; and he suddenly became aware of how poignant to him was the sympathy of her interest, —and stopped. Thus to pour out, thus to be heard, was to experience the exquisite pain that comes with sudden relief of intolerable pain, as when an anodyne steals through the veins of torture. He stopped. He could not bear it.

"Well, that's all," he said.

She declared, 'It's splendid. How well you're doing, Marko. I knew you would." he paused. "Not that that matters," she said.

He asked her, "What do you mean —'not that that matters'?"

She made a little face at him. "Marko, you're not to snap me up like that. I've noticed it two or three times. I mean it doesn't matter what a man does. It's what he is that matters."

He laughed. "Well, that lets me down pretty badly if that's the estimate. I'm awful, you know."

She shook her head. "Oh, you're not so bad."

"You don't know me. I've been growing awful these years."

"Tell me how awful you are. Does Mabel think you're awful?"

"You ask her! I'm the most unsatisfactory sort of person it's possible to meet. Really."

"Go on; tell me, Marko. I like this."

"What, like hearing how unsatisfactory I am?"

"I like hearing you talk. You've got rather a nice voice—I used to tell you that, didn't I?—and I like hearing you stumbling about trying to explain your ideas You've got ideas. You're rather an ideary person. Go on. Why are you unsatisfactory?"

How familiar her voice was on that note,—caressing, drawing him on.

He said, "I'll tell you, Nona. I'm unsatisfactory because I've got the most infernal habit of seeing things from about twenty points of view instead of one. For other people, that's the most irritating thing you can possibly imagine. I've no convictions; that's the trouble. I swing about from side to side. I always can see the other side of a case, and you know, that's absolutely fatal—"

She said gently, "Fatal to what, Marko?"

He was going to say, "To happiness"; but he looked at her and then looked away. "Well, to everything; to success. You can't possibly be successful if you haven't got convictions—what I call bald-headed convictions. That's what success is, Nona, the success of politicians and big men whose names are always in the papers. It's that: seeing a thing from only one point of view and going all out for it from that point of view. Convictions. Not mucking about all round a thing and seeing it from about twenty different sides like I do. You know, you can't possibly pull out this big, booming sort of stuff they call success if you're going to see anybody's point of view but your own. You must have convictions. Yes, and narrower than that, not convictions but conviction. Only one conviction—that you're right and that every one who thinks differently from you is wrong to blazes." He laughed. "And I'm dashed if I ever think I'm right, let alone conviction of it. I can always see the bits of right on the other side of the argument. That's me. Dash me!"

She said, "Go on, Marko. I like this."

"Well, that's all there is to it, Nona. These conviction chaps, these booming politicians and honors list chaps, these Bagshaw chaps—you know Bagshaw?—they go like a cannon ball. They go like hell and smash through and stick when they get there. My sort's like the footballs you see down at the school punt-about. Wherever there's a punt I feel it and respond to it. My sort's out to be kicked—" He laughed again. "But I couldn't be any other sort."

She said, 'I'm glad you couldn't be( Marko. You're just the same as you used to be. I'm glad you're the same."

He did not reply.

VII.

She sat briskly forward in the big armchair in which she faced him, making of the motion a movement as though throwing aside a turn the conversation had taken. "Well, go on, Marko. Go on talking. I'm not going to let you stop talking yet. I love that about how people get success nowadays. It's jolly true. I never thought of it before. Yes, you're still a terribly thinky person, Marko. Go on. Think some more. Out loud."

Caressing—drawing him on—just as of old.

He said thoughtfully, "I tell you a thing I often think a lot about, Nona. You being here like this puts it in my mind. Conventions."

She smiled teasingly. "Ah, poor Marko. I knew you'd simply hate it, my coming in like this. Does it seem terribly unconventional, improper to you, shut up with me in your office?"

He shook his head. "It seems very nice. That's all it seems. But it does bring into my mind that you're the sort of person that doesn't think tuppence about what's usually done or what's not usually done; and that reminded me of things I've thought about conventions. Look here, Nona, this really is rather interesting—"

"Yes," she said. "Yes."

Just as he used to bring ideas to her; just so, with "Yes—yes," she used to receive them.

But he went on. "Why, convention, you know, it's the most mysterious, extraordinary thing. It's a code society has built up to protect itself and to govern itself, and when you go into it it's the most marvellous code that ever was invented. All sorts of things that the law doesn't give, and couldn't give, our conventions shove in on us in the most amazing way. And all probably originated by a lot of Mother Grundy-ish old women, that's what's so extraordinary. You know, if all the greatest legal minds of all ages had laid themselves out to make a social code they could never have got anywhere near the rules the people have built up for themselves. And that's what I like, Nona—that's what I think so interesting and the best thing in life: the things the people do for themselves without any State interference. That's what I'd encourage all I knew how if I were a politician—"

He broke off. "I say, aren't I the limit, gassing away like this? I hardly ever get off nowadays and when I do!—Why don't you stop me?"

She made a little gesture deprecatory to his suggestion. "Because I like to hear you. I like to watch your funny old face when you're on one of your ideas. It gets red underneath, Marko, and the red slowly comes up. Funny old face! Go on. I want to hear this because I'm going to disagree with you, I think. I think conventions, most of them, are odious, hateful, Marko. I hate them."

VIII.

He had been strangely affected by the words of her interruptions; a contraction in the throat—a twitching about the eyes. . . But he was able, and glad that he was able to catch eagerly at her opinion. "Yes, yes, I know, odious, hateful, and much more than that, cruel—conventions can be as cruel, as cruel as hell. I was just coming to that. But they're all absolutely rightly based, Nona. That's the baffling and the maddening part of them. That's what interests me in them. In their application they're often unutterably wrong, cruel, hideously cruel and unjust, but when you examine them, even at their cruelest, you can't help seeing that fundamentally they're absolutely right and reasonable and necessary. Look, take quite a silly example. There's a convention against going to church in any but your best clothes. It's easy to conceive wrongness in the application of it. It's easy to conceive a person wanting to go to church and likely to benefit by going to church, but staying away because of feeling too shabby. But you can't help seeing the rightness at the bottom of it—the idea of presenting yourself decently at worship, as before princes. That makes you laugh—"

"It doesn't, Marko. I can see much worse things just on the same principle."

He said pleasedly, "Of course you can, can't you? Look at all this stuff there's been in the papers lately about what they call the problem of the unmarried mother. Now there's a brute of a case for you; a girl gets into trouble and while she sticks to her baby she's made an outcast; every door is shut to her; her own people will have nothing to do with her; no one will take her in—so long as she's got the baby with her. That's convention and you can imagine cases where it's cruel beyond words. But it's no good cursing society about it. You can't help seeing that the convention is fundamentally right and essential. Where on earth would you be if girls with babies could find homes as easily as girls without babies?" He smiled. You'd have babies pouring out all over the place. See it?"

She nodded. "I do think that's interesting, Marko. I think that's most awfully interesting, Marko. Yes, cruel and hateful and preposterous, many of them, but all fundamentally right. I think that's absorbing. I shall look out for conventions now, and when they annoy me most I'll think out what they're based on. I will!"

"Well, it's not a bad idea," he said. "It helps in all sorts of ways to think things out as they happen to you. You don't realize what a mysterious business life is till you begin to do that; and once you begin to feel the mysteriousness of it there's not much can upset you. You get the feeling that you're part of an enormous, mysterious game, and you just wonder what the last move means. Eh?"

She did not answer.

Presently she said, "Yes, you do still think things, Marko. You haven't changed a bit, you know. You're just the same."

He smiled. "Oh, well, it's only two years, you know—less than two years since you went away."

"I wasn't thinking of two years."

"How many years were you thinking of?"

"Ten."

They just sat there.

PERHAPS these recipes for using canned fish will appeal to you. They are a bit out of the ordinary and quite economical.

Canned or smoked fish is apt to become more or less monotonous and unpopular unless carefully prepared and served.

Salmon Pie.

One and one-half cups flaked salmon, 1½ cups cold mashed potatoes, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Salmon and Macaroni.

Two cups flaked salmon, ½ cup macaroni broken in inch pieces, 3 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup white sauce.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE MOUNTAIN'S STORY

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

The mountain shook as though it had a chill.

NANCY and Nick stopped until the rubber mountain ceased trembling. They hadn't forgotten what had happened to the Fairy Queen's messenger nor to the goat. Both had been bounced off.

They grabbed the rubber plants growing near by and steadied themselves until everything was quiet. Then they took another step. But instantly the same thing happened again. The mountain shook as though it had a chill.

All at once the children heard laughing. "Ha, ha, ha, hee, hee, hee, oh, ho, ho, ho!" went the voice. "I—I'm so ticklish. Oh, please! Please stand still until I get my breath. Oh, oh!"

"Who are you talking to and who are you?" exclaimed Nick.

"Oh, ho, ho, ho! I—I'm the mountain, and you're walking on my tummy."

Just then Nancy saw a little bench and she pulled Nick over to it. "Jump up on it and tuck up your feet," she said.

But the motion had started the mountain all over again. He shook and shook until Nancy thought if he didn't quit her head must fly off. Nick held onto the record for dear life.

"There!" gasped the mountain. "Now, I'm better. And I'll tell you my story. I really tried to be quiet, for Princess Therma saw you coming, in her Castle of Mirrors, and sent me word to be good. So I took a dose of anti-ticklish powders and told Snip-Snap, the bird who takes care of me, to scatter an extra coat of pebbles and gravel over my tender places. But you see it does no good. I'm hopeless."

"It's too bad," said Nancy. "Mother doesn't allow us to be tickled. She says it's bad for our digestion, and we always get the hiccoughs."

"Digestion! Oh, please don't mention it," begged the rubber mountain. "I haven't any. Do you know what I'm made of? Plum puddings that cooked too long and got soggy. I ought to be called plum pudding mountain instead of rubber mountain."

POLLY AND PAUL AND PARIS

CHAPTER XLII.—The Studio Party.

By Zoe Beckley

PAUL had been called away to supervise an important installation in the north of France. It was in an area where the few hotels that had been rebuilt were so crude that it was decided for Polly to stay in the little flat with the good concierge at hand.

"You've been moping in the house too much lately," announced Norma Bradly, dropping in from the art school one day. You're booked for a party tonight! Oh, no protests—it's a very nice party in the studio of my friends the Crassards."

"But I'll be a fifth wheel! I haven't any escort."

"Nobody has escorts, they just come. Put on that heavenly cerise foulard with the wide neck and little straps at the shoulders, and the snips of sleeves. You're the only woman on earth that's got decent elbows!"

The Crassards' home was in an ancient by-street in the student quarter, picturesque beyond words.

As the two went in, everybody shouted a welcome, and the painter and his wife made Polly feel instantly at home. The studio's high north window had a bright red curtain drawn across it, against which were great graceful branches of leaves and berries. Below it was a broad couch heaped with cushions, on which half a dozen young folks were holding forth with guitars, ukuleles, a wheezy zither and a banjo with a cracked head.

"Ah, here they are! I began to think they weren't coming." Norma nudged Polly to look. It was Miss Rand and George Barray.

"Why didn't you tell me they'd be here?"

"Because, silly, you might have balked at coming. Now, listen, Polly darling, and do as I say. I'm a wise bird, if I am an old maid. Just you be a little nice to Barray—you know, a bit of zip and sparkle—and you'll have io eating out of your hand."

"Biting it off more likely," said Polly. But she felt her spirits rising in the merry atmosphere, and when George Barray caught sight of her and came over holding out both hands to greet her, she couldn't suppress a flash of vainglorious pride.

"Come sit with us!" sang out Norma. "Polly's Queen o' the May and I'm her lady in waiting."

"Doesn't take much urging to sit at these feet!" murmured Barray, flinging himself on a cushion beside Polly's neat ankles. "If I were king—" he began to quote, but got no further. The crowd caught the phrase, which appealed to its carnival spirit.

"You are, you are! You're elected unanimously!" shouted somebody. The rest took up the cry.

Hubbub ensued. Barray was dragged to the chair on the model's platform. Another was put beside it. The clamor broke out again.

"Choose you queen!"

"Speech, speech!"

"Queen, que-e-e-n!!!"

Polly never knew how it happened, but suddenly she felt herself borne aloft and placed in the chair beside Barray, while the company cheered and pounded with glee, and the "king" bent solemnly and placed a kiss of salute upon her cheek.

"Suzannah" Is Mabel Normand's Next

MABEL NORMAND AS SHE WILL APPEAR IN "SUZANNA," HER NEXT PICTURE. BELOW, WALTTER McGRAIL, HER LEADING MAN.

BY JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, March 9. — Mabel Normand's current production, "Suzanna," is about half completed. Mack Sennett expects to have it ready for release next June.

"Suzanna" is an adaptation of a new novel of the same name by Linton Wells. The action takes place in 1835.

Wells, who is working in close co-operation with the producers, tells me that the picture will be historically true to the most minute detail when finally completed.

Advance photographs sent to me show Mabel Normand as a hoydenish maid in Indian costume and feather headdress. To some this may not seem historically correct. Neither Indians nor frontiersmen are credited with a sense of humor or a love of fun in histories.

Wells' version of history promises more veracity than school textbooks. A race without a sense of humor of the love of fun could not have faced the hardships of pioneering.

Bravo for Wells! He has written the joy of life into history.

Claims Exercises Cure Weak Vision

BY DR. WILLIAM H. BATES
Author of "Perfect Sight Without Glasses."

IF you wear glasses, discard them. You can be cured of near-sightedness, far-sightedness and astigmatism if you learn to rest your eyes.

DR. BATES.

It is not quite as easy as it sounds.

Yet school children have done it as well as adults. Among my assistants at a hospital clinic are sixteen girls between 10 and 14 years old. They used to wear glasses. But they helped cure themselves and are now curing others.

All eye trouble is caused by strain. If the normal eye strains to read at a near point, it becomes far-sighted. If the eye strains to read at a distance, it becomes near-sighted—always.

But this condition is only temporary. Remove the strain and the eyes become normal.

Cannot Remove Strain.

The wearing of glasses cannot remove the strain. If it did, the eye would become cured and glasses would no longer be necessary. As a matter of fact, once a person starts wearing glasses, the strength of the lenses may have to be increased, steadily.

Yet when people break their glasses and go without them for a week or two, they frequently observe that their sight has improved.

The human eye resents glasses. Every oculist knows that patients have to "get used" to them—sometimes they never succeed in doing so.

Glasses have been prescribed on the old theory that the eye changes its focus for vision at different distances by altering the curvature of the lenses of the eye. When the ciliary muscles, supposed to control the lens, get into a continuous state of contraction or expansion, the eye becomes permanently out of focus and correction is necessary.

This correction is supposed to come with the wearing of the glasses. But cure? Never.

The problem puzzled me. I studied the eyes of the lower animals and particularly fish.

I soon discovered that the errors in refraction are due not to a permanent deformation of the eyeball, but to a functional and therefore curable derangement in the action of the extrinsic muscles—brought on by strain.

Remove the strain and the eye becomes normal.

But Strain of Mind.

Primarily the strain to see is the strain of the mind. To secure relaxation requires considerable time and much ingenuity. The same method cannot be used with everyone. But the best way to bring about this rest is:

First—Close the eyes.

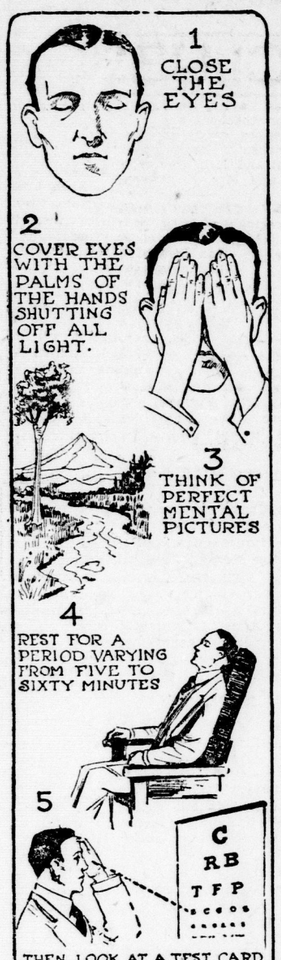
Second—Cover with the palms of the hands, shutting off all light.

Third—Think of perfect mental pictures, about the snow, grass, sunset.

Fourth—Rest for a period varying from 5 to 60 minutes.

Fifth—Then look at a test card with one eye and then the other.



DR. WILLIAM H. BATES' EXERCISES FOR CURING DEFECTIVE VISION.

The sight will be improved and the eye strengthened. In some cases five or ten minutes' treatment is sufficient to restore the eye to normal. In other instances it is necessary to continue the relaxation for several months.

Continue this exercise for a few minutes a day to prevent a relapse. When the cure is complete, it is always permanent.

CARE OF NAILS.

To prevent finger nails from cracking rub a little cold cream into them at night. This softens and nourishes them, and gives them a healthy, well-kept look.

BOOKS

EDITED BY CARR.

EXPLORERS OF THE DAWN. By Mazo de la Roche. New York: Alfred A. Knopf. $2.50.

YOU know how perfect and adorable children are—your own—and the ones you read about in novels? Well, just imagine three healthy, normal, action-loving boys left by a father in the care of the woman who had been his governess when he was a boy.

Can you imagine their life during almost two years' of separation from their only living parent?

It would have been a sad one if it had not been for Mary Ellen and the time Mrs. Handsomebody hurt her leg and had to stay in her room for three short and glorious weeks—glorious for the boys and Mary Ellen —and the whole day when she was at her brother's funeral.

Young John tells the story. He is 8 years old. Angel is a year older, and the Seraph but five—"stubborn, strong and jolly as a pie"—following where Angel and John led "with a blind loyalty."

And so these boys could almost always find some joy in life. When sent to their room as punishment there were hours of playing pirates on and under the bed, when visiting the bishop there were wonderful talks with the white-haired man who knew little boys and loved them.

There was the time when at midnight they searched in the yard for hidden treasure and found it! and the time they found Harry and invited him to tea, eventually returning him to the arms of his father and the girl he loved, and the dog who spent three wonderful weeks with them while Mrs. Handsomebody was in her room nursing her leg—the attempted robbery and the eventual return of the dog to her anxious mistress after she had given the boys the delighted experience of one morning finding her the proud mother of three beautiful pups.

The book is humorous, charming, written in a style which appeals to both young and old, and, as Christopher Morley says in his preface, "There will be some readers, I think, who will look through it as through an open window, into a land of clear, gusty winds and March sunshine and volleying church bells on Sunday mornings, into a land of terrible contradictions, a land whose emigres look back to it tenderly, yet without too poignant regret—the Almost Forgotten Land of Childhood."

STRATFORD GOES TO EXETER MONDAY WITH 3-GOAL LEAD

INDIANS PLUG OUT 6 TO 3 VICTORY

Ice Was Heavy and Fast Play Made Almost Impossible as Result.

MUCH LONG SHOOTING

Think Lead Can Be Maintained on Home Ice of the Exeter-Zurich Crew.

STRATFORD, March 9.—Stratford Seniors took a three-goal lead on Exeter tonight in the first of the Senior Northern League semi-finals. The score was 6 to 3.

Played on heavy ice the going was sticky, and was not conducive to good hockey. Long shooting and long passing featured the play.

The first period gave Stratford one. The second brought three more for Stratford, and two for Exeter.

On tonight's play the Indians should pull out a win Monday in Exeter, and go into the finals for the silverware.

The teams:

| Stratford. | | Exeter. |
|---|---|---|
| Norfolk | Goal | Cook |
| Berger | Defence | Hoffman |
| Richards | Defence | George |
| Morenz | Center | Hoffman |
| Carson | R. W. | McKinnon |
| Kelterborn | L. W. | Siebert |
| Griffin | Sub | Robinson |

Referee—Wade, Woodstock.

ASTON VILLA HUMBLED

Enthusiasm of Notts Team Not Abashed at Villa's Reputation.

LONDON, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The ignominious exit of Aston Villa from the English Cup competition was largely attributable to the wonderful enthusiasm of the Notts County team, who showed themselves not in the least subdued by the great name and tradition of their opponents. The Notts forwards made for goal at express speed, and at every opportunity were dangerous, although Villa's display was quite unworthy. Their forwards were devoid of combination, while their backs and halves were utterly unreliable.

Walker scored for Villa in three minutes from the start, but four minutes later Notts equalized through Chipperfield, and following up quickly gained a lead, Hill netting, following faulty play on the part of the Villa backs. Dickson, however, Villa's center forward, acting in combination with the rest of the forward line, placed the score once more level and just before the interval gave Villa the lead.

On the resumption of the desperate struggle for supremecy Villa looked winners up to within five minutes of the close of play, when Notts scored from a mix-up in front of Villa's goal and again equalized the score. The winning goal came towards the end of this period, Cook rushing in and scoring while Villa's back stood foolishly appealing for off-side.

NORTH MIDLAND GO DOWN 19—0

LONDON, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—In a rugby county championship final today at Birmingham, Gloucestershire defeated North Midland 19 to 0. There was a fine attendance at the match, 8,000 passing through the gates.

Gloucester continually attacked during the early stages, their forwards giving an excellent display of open play. After twelve minutes a brilliant passing movement by the Gloucester three quarters ended in Cook scoring a try. Near the interval fine footwork by the Gloucester forwards enabled Ayliffe to dribble over, Millington converting. The score was 8 to 0 at the interval.

Gloucester monopolized play in the second half, but excellent defence work by North Midland caused many movements to be badly finished. Corbett finished a fine run by scoring a try, which Pickles converted. Following this Pickles kicked a penalty goal, and a few minutes later Dix scored a try.

L. and D. F. A. May Not Govern League Football This Season

AURA LEES ARE CHAMPS

With Two-Goal Lead Held St. Marys To Tie.

TORONTO, March 9.—Aura Lee are junior O. H. A. champions. By drawing, 2 goals to 2 in the second game with St. Marys, Toronto, tonight they won the round by 6 goals to 4 and earned the right to play the premier team of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association.

The teams put up a stiff battle in tonight's game, but Aura Lee had the edge on their opponents. The losers were unfortunate in losing Eddie Burke, midway in the second period. Burke was accidentally hit on the temple by one of his teammates. He was removed to the hospital.

Scouting Another Word For Gambling.

Bob Gilks, veteran baseball star, now scouting for the New York Yankees, is always good for a yarn. Here is his latest:

"I was running the Shreveport club of the Texas League in 1907. We were battling for first place, and, about Aug. 1, I decided the addition of another pitcher would cinch the pennant for us.

"The club didn't have much money, but we decided to beg or borrow $1,200. For that amount I figured I could purchase a much-touted pitcher who, I believed, would turn the tide in our favor.

"The pitcher I bought was more or less of a 'flivver,' and never got out of the minor league ranks. His name means nothing to my story.

"When I purchased this pitcher from a small Texas League town, the manager told me he had a likely outfielder of great promise, who was just the boy for my circuit. He offered me the fielder for $300.

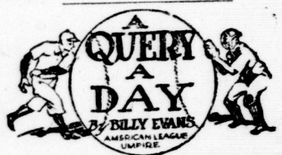
"I wired back to Shreveport to see if they could dig up another $300. I did this after I had watched the kid for a couple of days and liked his actions.

"The town had been milked dry, and I came home with the pitcher, but not the much-touted outfielder.

"We won the pennant that year, and also some glory. However, had I grabbed the outfielder who was offered for $300 we would have made a lot of money.

"I will give you one guess. Well, it was Tris Speaker.

"All of which merely proves that scouting is a tough job. You often pick up the flivvers and pass up the peaches."



There is a runner on first base. On the pitch he starts to steal second. The throw from the catcher beats him. The second baseman, who covered on the play, received the ball six feet in advance of the runner, who slid in feet first. The second baseman touched the runner with the ball. The force of the touch, however, knocked the ball in the air, causing the fielder to juggle it three of four times. He finally retained possession of it before it touched the ground. In the meantime the runner, who had tried for second, had reached the base and was standing on the bag. Is the runner out?

UP until 1920 the runner would have been called out on such a play if the fielder finally retained possession of the ball before it touched the ground, just as a batter is out on a fly ball, no matter how much it is juggled if finally held.

However, a change has been made relative to base runners. In such a case the moment the ball is juggled it makes void the touch. If the runner reaches the bag before he can again be touched he is safe. In the play you cite the runner was safe.

Here's Golfing Professor Who Doesn't Believe Experts and Their Books

BY BILLY EVANS.

Here's a professor who doesn't believe in books—golf books, at least.

I have reference to Victor E. Helleberg of the University of Kansas, known throughout the West as the "golfing professor."

The professor swings a mean stroke on the course of the Lawrence Country Club at Lawrence, Kan.

While not ready to take on Chick Evans, Jim Barnes or Walter Hagen, he is far from being in the "dub" class as a golfer.

Professor Helleberg insists that the golf experts who have been laboring for years with pen and typewriter to make clear to the would-be golfers as to how the game should be played are all wrong.

Professor Helleberg teaches psychology at the University of Kansas. He declares all golf authors are ignorant of the psychology of the game, to judge from their writings.

"Practice is the only sure way to learn to play golf properly," says Professor Helleberg.

"A golfer learns his strokes by a trial and error. He is guided by the pleasurable feeling that accompanies a successful effort.

"One is utterly unaware of the details of co-ordination, and if any attention is paid to some particular detail of the stroke as outlined in the golf books, the usual result is failure until that detail is automatically assimilated by innumerable trials."

Professor Explains Why.

In explaining the difficulty in following the instructions as they appear in the many books that have been written on golf, the professor quotes from one of them as follows:

"Now as to the simultaneous, yet rhythmic, movement which completes the shot.

"At the moment of impact (right at the instant; not the smallest fraction of a second earlier or later) the player should straighten the elbows, stiffen the wrist, and let the body go forward a few inches with the club.

"The quick action of the elbow and wrist will push the face of the club under the ball as both go forward, and the body, moving slightly in the same direction, will assist in the project.

"This description may make the shot appear like a piece of jugglery, but it is a faithful explanation of the shot as I plan it myself, and as I have seen others plan it."

Experts Are All Wrong.

The impossibility of doing what the author has directed in this bit of writing is explained by Professor Helleberg by a mathematical calculation.

"A moving picture of a golf player has been taken," he says, "showing the club head and the ball as nearly as possible at the moment of contact.

"The speed is so great that the picture is nearly blurred, but it is evident that the club could not have been in contact with the ball more than while traveling the width of the head—not more than one-ten thousandth or one-five thousandth of a second, according to Professor's Tait's calculation.

"This shows the utter impossibility of doing what the author first quoted requests the beginner to do."

The professor does not deny that some valuable suggestions might be made in books, but he does deny that any golfer can know his shots through introspection.

Only through pictures taken by a speedy camera such as used for motion pictures can the actual analysis of a stroke be made, he believes.

BAPTISTS HAVE SIX GOAL LEAD IN FIRST

Tillsonburg C. I. Lose 8—2 in W. O. S. S. A. Semi-Finals.

ELLIOTT STARRED

College Wing Scored Four of Team's Goals—Return Game On Saturday.

WOODSTOCK, March 9. — The local college hockey sextet secured a six-goal lead over the Tillsonburg Collegiate here this afternoon in the first home and home game in the second round of the Western Ontario Secondary Schools League semi-finals. The game was played on slow ice, but notwithstanding the play was fast at times, combination was not played much, but the college showed some fast individual efforts. Elliott was the particular bright star for the winners. He played his position on the right wing admirably well and packed a shot that was dead on. He scored four of his team's goals. McCuaig was also very useful, while Camelford and Lycett on defence played well both offensively and defensively.

Best For Losers.

Rogers in goal, Pollard, Eichenburg and Vallee were best for Tillsonburg. McCuaig notched the college's first goal in four minutes when he scooped in a rebound off Elliott's shot. Day made it 2—0 two minutes later when he also slammed in a rebound. Lycett went from end to end and made the score read 3—0 at the close of the period. The second period found Tillsonburg checking closer, and while the college had many shots they managed to bulge the net but once. Elliott shooting a beauty from the side. Rogers stopped many hard ones in this period. Eichenburg scored the visitors' first counter with a shot from outside the defence, and in the third period Elliott slipped three in before Pollard notched Tillsonburg's second counter. The last counter went to the college when Rogers dropped the puck into the net after making the stop. The second game will be played in Tillsonburg on Saturday.

The line-ups:

| Woodstock Col. | | Tillsonbrug Col. |
|---|---|---|
| Harper | Goal | Rogers |
| Camelford | Defence | McQueen |
| Lycett | Defence | Eichenburg |
| McCuaig | Centre | Pollard |
| Elliott | R. W. | Vallee |

WANT CENTRAL CONTROL OF BALL

WOODSTOCK, March 9.—With the baseball season near at hand and organization soon to be undertaken, the question of a central control of all amateur sports in Woodstock is again occupying the attention of many of the local followers of sports. A committee has been appointed and the workings of such organizations in other cities and towns in Ontario will be ascertained, and it is just possible that a mass meeting will be held in the near future to discuss the proposition.

HEADS LACROSSE CLUB.

ST. CATHARINES, March 9.—The Athletic Lacrosse Club has been organized for the coming season with Ald. J. B. Wright as president, who was also nominated for second vice-president of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association.

Word from Delaware, Ohio, says Buzz Wetzel is expectted there next week to look over the spring training situation and arrange for grounds and billets, if he decided to pitch camp in the old spot. Grounds and a gym are a big consideration, and Delaware, Ohio, gets the call more on this account than the brand of weather it boasts.

Stratford, Exeter and Wiarton ought to give thrills to the dying moments of the N. H. L.'s senior series. Stratford and Wiarton at least have both proven that they were only a goal or so from being O. H. A. intermediate champs, and the Exeter-Zurich combination isn't to be treated lightly in this hockey triangle.

It will be far easier to stop that pernicious whisper that the Kitchener intermediates beat the seniors 8 to 0 in a practice game, now.

Quite a number of players and even some of the officials of the London and District Junior Soccer League had it brought rather forcibly to their attention at Monday night's meeting that although the game is taking root here, it's still a British institution in as far as its laws are concerned. The word junior, with the exception of its relation to rugby, has come to a point where an age limit of 21 years is inferred and taken for granted, in Canada Soccer legislation, modelled as it is after the British pattern and transplanted to this country, still considers "junior football" as any soccer played other than senior, and of course juvenile, and in some cases it is even synonymous with "amateur" in British football circles, because few of the junior players are paid.

The league faces a problem. If junior football is accepted by affiliation with the O. J. F. A., then it will include men up to any age, and several of the clubs will be unable to compete.

If the league continues as last year, they will be playing outlaw football, but will be saving the game for youngsters under 21.

It will take a lot of judgment to decide which is best for the interest of the game itself.

GUELPH FIVE WIN IN JUNIOR PLAY-OFF

31—15 Score Against Galt In O. B. A. —Stratford Is Next.

GUELPH, March 9.—The Guelph Junior O. B. A. five clinched the basketball honors by defeating Galt here tonight by 31 to 15. The local lads simply outclassed and outplayed the visitors at all stages of the game, and at no time was the result in doubt. After the first five minutes of the first half the home team displayed combination and shooting ability that was unbeatable, and the decisive victory precisely indicates the margin the Guelphites had over the Galt team. Brown and Hamilton were the chief point-getters for the locals, but every player turned in a grand performance, and it would be difficult to pick out any outstanding star.

Roelofson, Gaskin and Bennett were the best for the losers. As a result of their victory the Guelph team now meets Stratford in home-and-home games in the first of the sem-finals.

The line-up:

| Guelph. | | Galt. |
|---|---|---|

REGINA CAPITALS WON TWO TO ONE

10,000 See Vancouver Beaten On Own Ice and At Own Game.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 9.—Playing spectacular hockey at all stages, and making frequent use of their substitutes, Regina Capitals, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, by winning the first match of the two-game series 2 to 1, handed the Vancouver Millionaires a setback in their Stanley Cup aspirations here last night. Almost 10,000 saw the prairie speed artists trim the locals at their own game of seven-man hockey, on artificial ice.

It was an exhibition of open play, both teams letting loose with all their stuff in mad efforts to bulge the twine. The Capitals proved themselves a great hockey team, and one that will require a lot of beating.

The second game, under eastern rules, will be played in Regina on Saturday night.

CLINTON ELIMINATES LISTOWEL HIGH 12-3

Play Winner of Woodstock-Tillsonburg Series in London Monday.

CLINTON, March 9.—The local Collegiate eliminated Listowel High School team from the W. O. S. S. A. series here tonight by a score of 12 to 3. The game was a sudden-death affair, and the teams came to a mutual agreement to play it here.

The locals had the edge at all stages on the visitors from the northeast, and are conceded a good chance against the other teams still in.

They play the winners of the Woodstock College-Tillsonburg game on Monday night in London, it was reported here tonight.

| Clinton. | | Listowel. |

CLASSICS of the DIAMOND

When Clarence Rowland, who is now managing the Columbus team of the American Association, came to the Chicago White Sox much comment was made in the press about Comiskey picking a "bush league" manager instead of some one schooled in big league ways.

The busher thing was overdone from Rowland's point of view. To players on the opposing teams, umpires and the press, he was simply a "busher."

Rowland came to the majors with plenty of pepper. On close plays he would dash in at the umpire, as had been his custom in the minors.

The American League umpires didn't like the idea. They told Rowland it would be unfortunate for him unless he changed his ways. However, it was impossible for him to change overnight.

In one of the first games after his debut Umpire Dic Nallin found it necessary to put Rowland out of the game. Rowland didn't like the idea of going. It so happened that Nallin was only serving his second season as a big league umpire.

Exasperated at Rowland's failure to immediately leave the field Nallin, in a loud voice, shouted:

"Hurry up and get out of here, Busher. You must still think you are in the minors."

Nallin frankly admits that Rowland's reply gave him one of the best laughs of his life, though he didn't indulge in it until the game was over.

"That is what pains me. When I look at you I still think I'm in the minors," said Rowland. "I expected to be put out of a lot of ball games, but I hoped it would be some regular big league umpire. We bush leaguers ought to stick together."

FIRST METHODISTS CHURCH CHAMPS

Blanked St. Andrews 6—0 In Final Tilt of Great Season.

First Methodists emerged last night champions of the Church League as a result of blanking St. Andrews' Presbyterians, 6 to 0. The game was much closer than the score would indicate. First Methodists did not look as flashy as the men frae the kirk, but their combination on the rather sticky ice proved much better than the losers' individual work.

First Methodists made it an uphill climb as far as the St. Andrews' prospects went, when they notched three goals in the first period. St. Andrews kept threatening in the second, but were turned aside and Firsts got another tally. They added two more in the final session.

Yorkie Richardson refereed the final game of a series which produced some hockey and developed some fine talent.

| First Methodist. | | St. Andrews. |
|---|---|---|
| Daniels | Goal | Marr |
| Dennis | Defence | Stewart |
| Chowan | Defence | Wilkins |

DECIDE QUESTION AT "Y" TONIGHT

L. and D. Run Five Leagues Contrary To D. F. A. Constitution.

NEW PROPOSAL

St. Thomas and District and L. and D. Leagues Both To Operate Though Practically Same.

The London City League will meet tonight at the Y to organize for the coming season. The big decision to be made is whether the L. and D. will govern or the clubs themselves.

According to the Dominion Football Association constitution, associations are permitted to run cup ties and shield competitions, and leagues must be run by the clubs themselves.

However, the Toronto and District is running five leagues, and if the locals decide to follow this precedent things will proceed as they did last year.

A New Proposal.

A new arrangement, which should work out well is proposed for St. Thomas and London. It is that London and District should run a league under the governing body to be determined upon tonight, with St. Thomas teams included. St. Thomas and District League would start when this was through with London teams included. This switching of the seat of government and the government itself between the two cities, should add considerable zest to the league campaign, and is an equitable arrangement for both cities.

There is no reason to believe that the clubs will wish to depart from under the wing of the L. and D. Council for their league schedule. Opinion seems to be fairly evenly divided on the subject, and only the result of tonight's vote will determine just how matters stand.

SPURS BEAT WELSH

Cardiff Loses 2—1 In Replayed Cup Contest—Three Teams Left.

LONDON, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—In a replayed association cup match today Tottenham Hotspurs defeated Cardiff, 2 to 1. The official attendance was 53,626, and the gates were closed half an hour before the game started. Gate receipts were £3,795.

The other teams now left in the race for the cup-tie honors, won by Hotspurs last year, are Preston North End, Notts County and Huddersfield. The semi-final games will be played on March 25. Hotspurs meeting Preston, and Notts County Huddersfield.

In a third division, southern section, soccer match played today, Swansea and Charlton drew, 0 to 0.

Amazing scenes were witnessed at the replayed fourth round English Cup Tie match here today between Tottenham Hotspurs and Cardiff. Crowds besieged the grounds hours before the start.

After 35 minutes of play Gill scored for Cardiff, leaving the game 1 to 0 at half-time in favor of that team. The Cardiff goal had many thrilling escapes, and after quarter of an hour Dimmock breasted through. Ten minutes from the end Spurs were given a free kick. Grimsdell shot at goal. Blair intercepted the shot, but before he could clear, Wilson rushed up and scored.

GOLF FAVORITES COME THROUGH

PINEHURST, N. C., March 9.—The leading favorites in the spring tournament came safely through today. In the first round of match play, Arthur Yates of Rochester, former Yale and All-American football star, winner of the qualifying medal, went around in 77, against B. Warren Corkran, the Baltimore expert, and won by 2 and 1. A. Lucin Walker Jun., of New York, Columbia captain and intercollegiate golf champion, who qualified in second place, shot four birdies in a row in his match with C. R. McMillen of East Orange, and won, 4 and 3.

RUSSIAN RELIEF ISSUE DEBATED

Question of British Government's Attitude Heatedly Discussed in Commons.

WILL SUPPLY MEDICINES

Cannot Propose Grant From Public Funds, Chamberlain Explains.

LONDON, England, March 9.—The question of British government relief for the starving Russians was heatedly debated in the House of Commons this afternoon. The debate was precipitated when Austen Chamberlain, the government leader, announced that in view of large sums already voted for European relief and the grave distress existing among the British people, the government was unable to propose a grant from public funds but would make every effort to aid in supplying medical stores for Russia.

George Nicoll Barnes of Glasgow, asked if Mr. Chamberlain was aware that the United States government had given $12,000,000 and was feeding 7,000,000 women and children in Russia, as against Great Britain's 700,000. He also asked if Mr. Chamberlain knew that there was a seed shortage of 5,000,000 pounds for spring sowing and that if this seed grain was not forthcoming the Russian people next year would be faced with a catastrophe even worse than the present.

Mr. Chamberlain said he knew that the United States had devoted an even larger sum than Mr. Barnes mentioned for the purpose of famine relief.

It was probable, added Mr. Chamberlain, that Great Britain would shortly be asked by the League of Nations to vote a further sum for combating the spread of typhus from Russia into Europe, "and I cannot altogether overlook the fact that the Russian government has resources of its own which are being applied to matters much less urgent."

There were cries of "shame" at this from the Labor benches.

The Speaker of the house refused to accept a motion by Mr. Barnes for adjournment to call attention to government's attitude on the Russian situation.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—"If I were hanged on the highest hill
"I know whose love would follow me still—
"Mother o' mine."

"If Mrs. Harding only knew; oh, if she only knew," sobbed Mrs. Mary Rice of New London, Conn., today, lamenting she had missed the U. S. president's wife by half an hour when she wanted to plead for executive clemency for her son, John McHenry, youthful murderer.

"She would have seen that my boy didn't die tomorrow," cried the little grey-haired women in black.

"They shan't hang him," she said, choking. "He's willing to give his life to His service. He'll help those he's harmed—pay what he can earn in prison.

Her supplications finally won her a week's stay of execution from Chief Justice McCoy of the district supreme court in order to give the boy more time to "prepare his soul" and his attorneys more time to try for a commutation to life imprisonment.

McHenry has offered to mortgage himself to the widows and orphans of the two men he killed. If his sentence were commuted to life imprisonment, giving them all his earnings in prison. Should he live 40 years more, he estimated this would amount to $100,000.

WON'T HALT EXECUTION.

ON PRESIDENT HARDING'S TRAIN, March 9.—The special train conveying President Harding and Mrs. Harding and their party to Florida for a week's vacation, reached Jacksonville shortly after noon and, after a brief stop to change engines, started on the last lap to St. Augustine.

President Harding arose at 8:30 and after breakfast went over some 50 recommendations for pardons, but no decisions were announced.

The case of John McHenry, sentenced to be hanged Friday, was again brought to the attention of the president, but he found he could not interfere.

ARMED MAN WITH BULLDOG SOUGHT

Ransacks Two Brantford Homes and Flourishes Revolver When Interrupted by Householder.

NOTHING FOUND MISSING

Citizen Also Held Up by Two Young Men Who Fire Wild and Flee.

BRANTFORD, March 9.—"Hands up, or I'll shoot!" was the greeting S. G. Read received when he entered his home at 14 Dufferin avenue, last night about 9:35.

A young man with a savage-looking bulldog at his heels stood in the doorway of the house with a revolver swaying dangerously in the face of the homecomer. The burgler backed out through the door and, closing it after him, fled down the street.

The police were notified, and Sergt. Donnelly responded, but there was no sign of the intruder. The house had been ransacked from cellar to garret, but Mr. Read was unable to say whether or not anything had been stolen.

Half an hour later the police received a call from S. Symons, 142 Brant avenue, who reported that his home had been broken into and ransacked during his absence. Detective Stanley responded. This was evidently the work of the same young burglar, whose pet bulldog seems to be his inseparable companion. Footprints of a man and a dog were discovered. No sign of the marauder, however, could be found. No plunder had been secured so far as was learned.

Half an hour later, at 10:45, the police received a third call. This was from the Wilson coal yard. E. C. Tench, 168 Nelson street, had been held up by two young men. One of these hold-up men waved a revolver in front of Mr. Tench. He fired, but Mr. Tench jumped aside, and the thugs turned and fled down the street. The bullet went wide. The police have a good description of the two men, and an arrest is expected at any moment.

LOAN COMPANIES MEET AT TORONTO

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Executive Committee's Report Shows Substantial Increase In Aggregate Assets of Firms.

TORONTO, March 9.—The annual meeting of the Land Mortgage Companies' Association of Ontario, was held today and was attended by representatives from the leading loan companies of the province.

A report of the executive committee showed a substantial increase in the aggregate assets of the 22 companies which now total $133,657,715.

The president, C. W. Cartwright, referred to the entry of the Ontario government into the field as a borrower by way of deposits and to the probable outcome of this development at the expense of the people of the province.

The officers and executive committee were unanimously re-elected, viz: R. S. Hudson, Toronto, honorary president; C. W. Cartwright, Hamilton, president; George H. Smith, Toronto, first vice-president; Walter Gillespie, Toronto, second vice-president; T. D'Arcy Leonard, Toronto, secretary-treasurer.

Committee: Messrs. A. B. Fisher, Edward Saunders, Toronto; J. W. Stewart, St. Thomas; A. M. Smart, London; Hume Cronyn, London; J. E. McElderry, Guelph; J. W. Davidson, Stratford; Walter Helm, Port Hope, and D. M. Cameron, Hamilton.

The latter two take the places of W. C. Noxon who is now the agent-general for Ontario in England, and E. F. Dwyer, who has resigned from his active connection with the Security Loan and Savings Company.

RIDDELL'S RULING FAVORS WESTERN NEWSPAPERS

Orders Return of Fees Paid To Fort Francis Pulp Company.

TORONTO, March 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Mr. Justice Riddell has given judgment in favor of fourteen Western Canadian newspapers who sued the Fort Frances Pulp and Paper Company for the return of a large sum paid by them in excess of rates fixed by the tribunal appointed by the Dominion government for this purpose.

The counter-claim of the company against the newspapers is dismissed. Costs are to be paid by the company in both cases. Justice Riddell upholds the appointment of the tribunal by order-in-council. The company argued that this appointment was ultra vires of the Dominion government.

The fourteen papers claimed $125,762 from the company, whose counter-claims on the papers amounted to $2,500,000. This amount represented the difference between the price allowed the company by the tribunal and that to which the company claimed it was entitled from the papers.

Justice Riddell in his judgment gave it as his opinion that the appointment of such tribunals to fix prices would be within the power of the Dominion government in time of peace, as well as in time of war.

The paper tribunal was a war-time measure.

VETERANS PLACE CLAIMS BEFORE CABINET FRIDAY

Appointment of Committee On Re-establishment May Be Outcome.

OTTAWA, March 9.—(By Canadian Press.)—The Dominion executive of the Great War Veterans' Association, headed by president R. B. Maxwell, will interview Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and members of the government Friday afternoon, when the veterans' legislative program will be placed before the cabinet.

While definite announcement of the program has not yet been made by the veterans, it is understood that one of the important requests deals with more favorable consideration for the soldier settlers, especially with regard to the handling of loans. Other requests, it is understood, are along the line of further re-establishment proposals, and which will probably be considered by the parliamentary committee on soldiers' civil re-establishment.

It is expected that the appointment of this committee will be one of the first sessional acts of the government.

The last and best offers in the business world are found in the the open door of the Want Ads.

ANCIENT COLONY EXPLOITS MINES

Newfoundland Regarded by Industrial Heads as Land of Opportunity.

OPEN COALING STATION

New Company To Take Big Step Toward Developing Inexhaustible Coal Supply.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., March 9.—Much interest is being shown in the industrial possibilities of the ancient colony. Just now a company with an authorized capital of $5,000,000 is being organized to exploit the coal mines on the Little river near the St. George coal fields on the west coast, and its officials announce that development work will commence this spring. The company plans to create a bunkering station at Little River, believing steamships using the Strait of Belle Isle will call their for bunker coal.

A representative of a Canadian firm is here with a proposotion to establish a flour mill, which he says would employ five hundred men.

The United Towns Electric Company, which, within a few years has extended its hydro-electric system to practically all the towns and settlements on Conception Bay and Trinity Bay, have important plans for further water power development, and are reported to be trying to make an arrangement with the Reid Newfoundland Company to distribute power in St. Johns.

The project of the Armstrong and Whitworth Company of England, in conjunction with the Reid Newfoundland Company, to establish large pulp and paper making industries in the Humber River Valley, has become the subject of much controversy.

The government's attitude to the proposals of these companies has not been disclosed, nor is the precise nature of the proposals known. In some quarters it is said that the government has been asked to guarantee the company's bonds to the extent of $5,000,000; in other quarters it is said the proposals would involve the government in obligations amounting to $18,000,000.

Needs New Industries.

The island's need of new industries is generally recognized. Young men are growing up who have no inclination for fishing, and unless opportunities of employment are afforded they must emigrate.

The Humber project would doubtless be a great boon for the colony, but the government with a war debt of about $16,000,000 is not anxious to assume new financial obligations, and Sir Robert Bond has come out in opposition to what he calls a "measure which may strike a fatal blow at the autonomy and independence of our country." In the view of the St. John's Telegram Sir Robert's pronouncement on the subject presages his re-entrance into the political life, a possibility which is contemplated with general interest

The Daily Advocate, organ of Hon. W. F. Coaker, minister of marine and fisheries, is plainly in favor of very substantial government assistance to assure the realization of the big Humber project, and, as head of the Fisherman's Protective Union and various co-operative enterprises, Mr. Coaker wields a very considerable influence. The minister is a vigorous advocate of aggressive and radical economic policies, and a battle between him and Sir Robert Bond would certainly enliven the political life of the island.

HURLED AGAINST WALL

Cedar Springs Farmer Injured While Attending Sick Horse.

BLENHEIM, March 9.—John S. Russell of Cedar Springs was almost fatally injured at his home yesterday. He was attending to a sick horse, and while trying to give it a bottle of oil the animal reared and struck him in such a manner as to throw him violently against a cement wall. The injuries he received were mostly on the head, a big section of his scalp being torn away. Fears for his life were at first entertained, but today he is reported as considerably improved and out of danger.

ELEVEN HURT IN FALLS EXPLOSION

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 9.—Eleven men were injured, one fatally, in an accident in No. 2 tunnel shaft at Little Fourth street and the hydraulic canal yesterday afternoon.

A further accident today occurred when a driller, boring into the rock in the side of the tunnel head, struck an unexploded charge of dynamite which had been overlooked by the workmen.

The explosion tore away a side of the tunnel and hurled the workmen in all directions. The shaft was filled with smoke and debris and the work of rescue was carried on with difficulty.

The torn and bleeding workmen were brought to the surface in lift buckets and rushed to hospital.

Why they fit

Semi-ready Suits fit better because of their design and because of the staunch inside tailoring they stay good to the end.

If that inside staying breaks or fails we make it right—cheerfully, and with the full knowledge that it pays to give satisfaction.

Inside tailoring can be scamped or neglected—and money thus saved to the maker. The buyer may not find that out for a week or ten days. Shape-staying is part of the bench-tailoring. There are other technical details in the proper tailoring of a suit. Any or all of these may be neglected to save $5 in labor cost in a coat.

Lay a Semi-ready coat side-by-side with a cheap coat, and the untrained eye will see the difference at a glance. A Semi-ready Suit does not cost any more—for the label in the pocket meets the problem of a reasonable price.

To Help Put on Good Firm Flesh and Round Out Your Face and Figure

Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets Often Produce Most Surprising Results. Get a FREE $1.00 Package Today as Explained Below—Try Them for Ten Days and Watch the Results

Science has at last shown how we sometimes grow weak, thin, and emaciated on an abundance of food (lacking in vitamines) while with a much smaller amount of food, rich in vitamines, we may quickly take on good firm flesh, increase in weight, and make a remarkable gain in strength, energy and endurance, provided your blood contains sufficient quantity of oxygenated organic iron to enable your body to assimilate your food properly.

Without organic iron both food and vitamines are absolutely useless as your body cannot change lifeless inert food matter into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

For centuries scientists tried in vain to make organic iron. At last the problem was solved so that you may now obtain pure organic iron like the iron in your blood from any druggist under the name of "Nuxated Iron."

It has been arranged to give every purchaser of Nuxated Iron, who wishes something to help put on flesh or increase weight, a large regular $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets absolutely free. Be sure to take only Nuxated Brand Yeast Vitamine Tablets with Nuxated Iron. Do not be mislead by imitations which often contain drugs.

Orangemen in Session at Sarnia Condemn Treaty Between Irish and British.

ATTACK CATHOLIC PLEA

Protest Legislation Raney Proposes to Abolish Appeals to Privy Council.

Special To London Advertiser.

SARNIA, March 9.—Led by H. C. Hocken, former mayor of Toronto, members of the Loyal Orange Lodge, Ontario West, in annual session here today expressed their keen determination to stand ready to aid their comrades in Ulster; condemned in no undecided manner the recent treaty consummated between Ireland and Britain, and asserted emphatic opposition to the separate school clauses set forth by Bishop Fallon of London.

Exception was taken also to the proposed change in provincial legislation championed by Attorney-General Raney, the Orangemen holding steadfast in their contention that the same, if placed in effect, would deprive free-born citizens of rights dating back to the days of the Magna Charta.

Among the 600 in attendance from all points of Western Ontario were H. C. Hocken, D. MacPherson, K.C.; Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Conservative party in the Ontario Legislature; E. T. Essery, Joseph Carson and William Clark of London, and Captain Joseph Thompson, chief whip for the provincial Conservatives.

"You know that there has been agitation going on and growing in force each day," said Mr. Ferguson.

"It strikes at the very basis of our citizenship. It would alter the very basis of that citizenship in this country, because, as you know, education is the basic fact that shapes all our institutions. My own view is that the only way to breed and develop a patriotic citizenship is by one system of public schools."

The compromise that the exigencies of the situation seemed to necessitate in the early days of the province was an unfortunate thing for this country, in Mr. Ferguson's opinion. "And it is unique in this respect that there is no other country that has such a system of education in the world."

"We will stand to the letter of our bond the agreement having been made," Mr. Ferguson declared, "but we intend to see, at the same time, that our rights are not invaded one hairspring."

Oppose Catholic Plea.

Introduced by Brother Hocken the following resolutions were passed with hearty unanimity:

"That the grand lodge having learned through the public utterances of M. F. Fallon, lord bishop of London, that a petition has been presented to the government and legislative assembly preferring certain requests regarding Roman Catholic separate schools, thus re-opening sectarian questions which it was solely agreed by responsible representatives of the Roman Catholic hierarchy on the occasion of the enactment of the act respecting separate schools, in 1863, would be regarded especially by the Roman Catholics generally as a final disposition of all their claims for special legislation of this nature; and which if these questions are now reopened and the prayer of the petition is granted would lead to a great extension of the rights and privileges claimed to have been conferred by the act of 1863, do hereby denounce such attempt as a gross and deliberate breach of faith and most emphatically protest against the enactment of the legislation sought or an extension of whatever rights and privileges were conferred by that act, and we call upon the government and legislature to preserve our non-sectarian educational system and the public funds from invasion and division upon any principle not now justified by the law of the land, and we also register our most deliberate and emphatic protest against any concurrence by the government in the submission of a stated case or any device which is calculated to procure only a one-sided judicial declaration upon any of the questions involved, and ask instead that such legal questions as may arise be raised and disposed of by the courts in the ordinary course of court practice unaided by government intervention."

Extends Ulster Sympathy.

"Resolved that this lodge, disapproving of the so-called treaty between the British government and the Sinn Fein leaders and believing it to be an ineffective measure to secure peace in Ireland, extend to the people of Northern Ireland our deepest symphty in their present perilous position; that we condemn in unmeasured terms the recent raids by Sinn Feiners on the borders of Ulster, which we fear are but the prelude to aggressions of a more serious nature, and we pledge ourselves to render all the assistance in our power in their endeavors to preserve intact the area formerly granted to the Parliament of Northern Ireland in 1920."

"Whereas it is proposed by Attorney-General Raney that the Legislative Assembly be asked to pass legislation abolishing certain appeals to his majesty's privy council, thereby severing the ties which bind our Dominion with the motherland and also depriving every British subject in Ontario of his inalienable right as such to bring his grievance to the foot of the throne. Therefore, this grand lodge on behalf of the thousands of citizens who contribute to its membership enters a most emphatic protest against such legislation."

Windsor Crowds Fail To Notice $20 Bills on Pavement.

WINDSOR, March 9.—Three $20 bills lay on the corner of Wyandotte St. and Moy avenue. Hundreds of people passed, but did not notice. Shortly after a workingman, his eyes tear-dimmed, reported his loss. He claimed to have dropped the money from his pay envelope. He obtained the address of the finder and set out to reward her.

ONTARIO "DRYS" WANT $15,000

Discuss Question of Raising Funds to Cover Campaign Deficit.

OFFICERS ARE LAUDED

Huron County Delegate Raps "Interference From Two-Cent Politicians."

TORONTO, March 9.—The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance, in annual session this afternoon took up the question of raising about $15,000 to cover the deficit which was largely incurred by the plebiscite campaign of 1920. The matter will be further considered.

Reports from county representatives indicated that traffic in liquor was gradually being suppressed. Some eastern counties were still getting considerable liquor from Quebec, and Haliburton complained of a plague of "moonshine" stills.

The necessity for Dominion-wide prohibition was voiced by several, and Rev. John Brant, of Boston, secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, told the convention that the experience of the United States was that prohibition could not be near anywhere nearly effective until it became a federal measure.

Rev. John Bailey said the temperance forces might soon be confronted with the biggest fight in their history. Undoubtedly a vote would be forced in Manitoba and interests which had heretofore not been altogether too friendly towards each other were combining for the purpose of bringing about the same thing in Ontario.

Mr. Cooper of Huron advised that Inspector Ayearst and other officers be let alone and a good enforcement of the law would result. "We don't want interference from two-cent politicians," he declared.

The representative from Haliburton said they had unusual conditions in that county with their lumberjacks and river-hogs. It was a rough country, but it contained good people. The bush was full of stills and moonshine. They had a man named Joshua up there, and someone asked him if he was the Joshua who made the sun stand still. The fellow replied: "No, I'm the Joshua who makes the moonshine."

If the government would send a good detective there he could collect a lot of fines from these moonshiners in a few days.

Ben Spence, referring to criticism of the motto of the alliance, said that when the matter had been spoken about the previous day he had not been present. It had been referred to as an alliance motto. As a matter of fact it was his motto, and hung up in his office and it expressed just what he was doing. If there was anything worse than the thing they were trying to beat he did not know of it.

DEPLORES ABANDONMENT OF HOUSING PROPOSITION

Women's Organizations Want British Government To Proceed With Scheme.

London, England, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—At a conference of women's organizations today concerning public health and child welfare, Dr. Marian Phillips said that owing to the almost entire cessation of building since 1914, housing conditions in Great Britain had fallen into such chaos that it was almost impossible to handle the problem.

One and a quarter million houses, said Dr. Phillips, were required today in Great Britain, and barely a quarter of a million were being built. In England and Wales more than a quarter of a million persons were living in homes of one room. In Scotland conditions were still worse.

Dr. Sloan Chesser, describing conditions in Glasgow, said two to three thousand women died there annually in childbirth, and there was a terrible amount of child disease, owing to the poisonous housing conditions. Thousands of families went knowingly into cellars and other verminous dwellings, in which one would not put farm animals.

A resolution was adopted expressing deep disappointment over the government's abandonment of its housing scheme.

"WILL COME BACK STRONG"

Windsor Man Confident He Can Clear Himself of Charges.

WINDSOR, March 9.—"My family are not going to have to carry their heads in shame forever. I am going to come back; I am not dead yet, and I will come back strong," W. J. Doran, president and trustee of the United Leasing Trust, for whom warrants have been issued by Detroit police for an alleged embezzlement of $500,000, told a reporter at his Windsor office, 3 Ouellette avenue, today.

Doran, who lays claim to being a Canadian citizen, seemed confident of his ability to clear himself of charges of fraud and embezzlement.

The Michigan Securities Commission last May passed a law requiring all dealers and companies handling oil leases to have their properties inspected by geologists in the employ of the commission, according to Doran.

South African Government Determines To End Existing Situation.

JOHANNESBURG, March 9.—The government, determined to end the present situation created by the gold miners' strike, today mobilized artillery, imperial light horse and other units, to reinforce the police here. The public also was warned that airplanes will use machine guns, if necessary.

At Germiston last night a band of raiders marched into the Primrose mine and intimidated the workers. A fight ensued in which two natives were killed and the manager of the mine, with several others, including police, were wounded.

Natives armed with various kinds of weapons, yesterday took a hand in the strike situation, when they dispersed a band of extremists who previously had threatened and defied the police, as well as exploding large firecrackers around the new law courts.

FEARS BELFAST ORANGE ATTACK

The Provisional Government Claims Wholesale Onslaught on Catholics Is Planned.

PASSES FIRST READING

Irish Bill Indorsement by House of Lords Now Believed Certain.

LONDON, March 9.—The Irish Free State bill formally passed its first reading in the House of Lords today. The debate showed a disposition by Lord Carson, the Marquis of Salisbury and the Marquis of Lansdowne to endeavor to amend the treaty between Great Britain and Ireland.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, who broke his long parliamentary silence to intervene in the debate complained that the treaty had been thrown at the heads of the lords to take or leave, but with a plain indication of what might happen in the latter event.

Despite the rather threatening tone of these "die-hard" speakers the belief prevails that the bill will pass the House of Lords without serious difficulty.

BABY WOUNDED IN SHOOTING.

BELFAST, March 9.—There was considerable shooting in Belfast during the noon hour today. The only casualty reported was a baby boy, who was shot in the thigh.

ORANGE ONSLAUGHT LOOMS.

DUBLIN, March 9.—The provisional government claims to be in possession of knowledge of an intended wholesale onslaught by Orangement on Catholics in Belfast tomorrow.

Eamon de Valera today refused to make any statement regarding the Limerick controversy, saying he considered the situation too delicate for discussion. Negotiations for a settlement of the trouble are continuing in Dublin between Mr. de Valera, Arthur Griffith and Richard Mulcahy and Commandant Barry of the Limerick invaders.

HOLD MULCAHY RESPONSIBLE.

LIMERICK, March 9.—A proclamation extensively posted in Limerick today asserted that Richard Mulcahy, minister of defence in the Dail Eireann cabinet, "by a breach of trust is alone responsible for the present Limerick situation."

The proclamation declares that Mr. Mulcahy "solemnly guaranteed that the Dail Eireann would keep the Irish republican army as such intact until the election. He has not kept his word. He refuses to allow the Limerick brigade of the Irish republican army to occupy vacated barracks in Limerick City, because they would not take them over on behalf of the provisional government, but insisted upon maintaining their status as a part of the Irish republican army."

Both the Irish republican army regulars and the insurgents strengthened their strategic positions today.

REPORT RICH NEW SILVER STRIKES IN YUKON DISTRICT

High Grade Veins Discovered In Keno Hill.

Dawson, Y. T., March 10.—Rich new silver strikes have been made in Keno Hill. Recent arrivals from that district report that high-grade veins have been opened on the Croseus, Crystal Gulch, Gambler Gulch, Slate Creek and Stone claims.

The Slate Creek Company are opening up a vein five feet of steel galena ore at a depth of 65 feet. The Yukon Gold Company is shipping 30,000 tons of ore this winter from vein No. 9 on the Rico claim. At a depth of 300 feet the ore proves richer than ever. Another vein has been opened up a mile away on the same claim facing Faro Gulch. It has high-grade ore at a depth of 70 feet.

On the Sadie Claim, the Treadwell people have two shafts down about 100 feet. Treadwells have several million tons blocked out for removal from the McQuort Ciencloh claims adjoining. This will be taken out next winter for shipment. The vein there continues down solid with an average width of three feet of solid ore, assaying 200 to 500 ounces of silver, and lower grade ore on the sides. It is expected that the population of Mayo camp, which has already nearly half the population of the Yukon Territory will be doubled this summer.

The White Pass Company is starting construction of a new steamer Mayo to help handle ore and other business for the camp.

OFFER PRINCES FOR ADOPTION

Moscow, March 10.—Little princes and princesses by the score are available in Russia for adoption by wealthy foreigners. The parents, where there are any, are willing, and even anxious, to let their children go because of their own poverty and inability proprely to care for and educate them.

The mother of little Chafi Khan, Prince Kadjar, a near pretender to the throne of Persia, is one of the many who are willing to part with their sons. Prince Kadjar's great grandfather was one of the two brothers who disputed the Persian throne. When he failed, he fled to Russia where the family became of political consequence.

The correspondent has been told by such mothers that unless some means of getting their boy abroad the careers of the child will be ruined. If ever the country is returned to the Czars these children will return to estates.

British Columbia To Pass Buck on Taxes To Quebec

VANCOUVER, March 9.—Premier Oliver has decided not to further protest to the Dominion government regarding the federal taxation on liquor. He believes that Quebec, with its solid 65 members, may take the initiative at Ottawa on this question, so he proposes to pass the buck to them. Quebec and British Columbia are the only provinces practically interested in the removal of the federal tax, which amounts to $15 on each case of liquor.

It is announced that prices of hard liquor sold by government stores in British Columbia, are to be reduced by about thirty per cent, irrespective of whether the tax is removed or not. An arrangement has also been reached with the brewers to provide a 5 to 7 per cent beer at a reduced figure, probably $1.60 per dozen pints, instead of $2 as at present.

MAN TAKES OWN LIFE IN WINDSOR ROOMING-HOUSE

Edward Lesperance Advises Landlady Of Intended Rash Action.

Windsor, March 10.—Edward J. Lesperance, aged 25, an employee of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, committed suicide at 8:45 o'clock this morning at his rooming-house, 726 Lanspeary avenue, by shooting himself. Death was instantaneous. Windsor police who investigated reported that they did not discover any direct reason for Lesperance's rash act, but believe that he may have been slightly demented. They learned that he had been talking to Mrs. Thomas Crawford at his boarding-house a few minutes previous to shooting himself, and that for no apparent reason he said to her that he was going to shoot himself. She thought that he was joking, and paid no further attention to him until she heard the shot. Rushing to his room, police say, Mrs. Crawford found the door locked. She summoned other occupants of the house, and they battered the door in. Lesperance was lying on the floor, a large bullet hole through his head. The bullet had entered his right temple passing out through the left temple, and lodging in the wall. The gun was found lying on the floor between his hands.

A note which lay on the dresses, said: "Please God, forgive me for doing this. I leave all my property to my father, Alfred Lesperance."

THINKS WOMAN SUFFRAGE WILL TRIUMPH IN QUEBEC

Henry Miles Sponsors Measure In Provincial Legislature.

Quebec, March 10.—The debate on the woman suffrage bill, which was presented in the Legislative Assembly on Wednesday, began in the House yesterday afternoon when the measure was called for second reading. Henry Miles, member for St. Lawrence, Montreal, the promoter of the bill, spoke at some length in support of the measure. He affirmed his belief that the cause of woman suffrage would triumph in the province, and he asked the house to give the matter careful study. He praised the qualities of the women of the province of Quebec, and urged the government to grant their desire to participate in the work for the progress of the province.

Premier Taschereau tabled in the House yesterday a stack of petitions for and against woman suffrage. The petitions came from various parts of the province.

It is said that the petitions against suffrage were signed by more than 25,000 women, while the petitions in favor contain about two thousand signatures.

HAVE NOT FACTS IN LINK CASE

Hamilton, March 10.—M. J. O'Reilly, K.C., solicitor of St. Joseph's Convent, issued a statement today concerning Miss Link, the missing London girl, who was said to have been in the convent at one time. He said that both the mother superior and the secretary at the convent at the time Miss Link was supposed to have been there had since passed away, and the present mother superior and secretary were not acquainted with matters so far back.

"Any information that we might possibly be able to supply in regard to the case will be gladly given to any persons entitled to such information. Any inquiries if made in the proper manner, to me, as solicitor for the convent, will be gladly answered," said Mr. O'Reilly.

AWAKES TO FIND HER DREAM TRUE

Toronto, March 10.—Florence Patterson, aged 19, an English girl, who has been employed for some months in the kitchen at Willard Hall, on Gerrard street, was found in her room on the first floor stabbed by a knife at 3:45 this morning. She was admitted to the emergency ward of the General Hospital, where an examination showed that her wound was not serious.

To the police and the attendants Miss Patterson stated that she had been dreaming that she was stabbed by a man, and when she woke up she smelled liquor, and found that she had been stabbed in the breast. Further than that no statement could be obtained as to how the woman had been injured.

Dier & Co., which failed in January, have been increased by $325,000 through contributions to the general creditors fund, it is announced today. Charles A. Stoneham, head of the brokerage firm of Stoneham & Co., and one of the owners of the New York National League Baseball Club, came forward with $200,000, while Col. Henry D. Hughes and E. Franklin Shrimpton, formerly partners in the collapsed house, have made up the remainder. At a meeting of creditors held last night it was reported that of the $4,000,000 for which the firm failed, about $1,000,000 was "in sight.'

GIVE IRISH CHANCE AGAINST OTTAWAS

Both Teams Have Broken Badly On Home Stretch, Upsetting All Form.

Ottawa, March 10.—The Citizen sport editor, dealing with tomorrow night's play-off in Toronto, says:

"Never in hockey history have champion finalists clashed under such peculiar conditions. Ottawa raced through the National League's first half, but bumped into trouble on the home stretch, and have wound up by losing four games in succession. Toronto started the Senators on the downward path, after which they lost to Toronto again, Canadiens and then Hamilton. Ottawas are even money choice, but on their performances in the past few games there are few, if any, critics who are willing to wager much on the chances of the Senators.

"Then, to complicate the speculation, Toronto St. Patricks also broke badly on the home stretch. They defeated Ottawa here ten days ago, and then had to go to the wire at top speed to win from Hamilton at the Queen City. All the Ottawas were out to practice last night at the Arena. They did a little skating to limber up; afterwards a meeting took place, during which there was a heart-to-heart talk, which ought to bring good results. The Ottawa club owners had no criticisms to offer over Wednesday's game, and still expressed confidence in the ability of the Senators to redeem themselves by beating Toronto, both at the Queen City and in the capital.

"The champions will be at full strength for tomorrow's game, and will start out against Toronto with Benedict, Boucher and Gerard on the defence, and Nighbor, Broadbent and Denenny on the attack, with Bruce, Clancy, Frank Boucher and Bell in reserve."

The Journal says: "Ottawa will be working hard all the way. If the Senators should lose out it is likely that some radical changes will be made next year, and the boys will be out there strong trying to save their positions. This year has been a prolific one for good amateurs, and there are a number of simon-pures who could break in next season, and with coaching make the grade."

ANIMALS AT ZOO ARE FED POISON

GALT, March 9.—Three raccoons and a fox of the collection of animals at Victoria Park have passed to the happy hunting grounds by way of the poison route. Some one, at present unknown, but for whose identity an investigation is now being made, threw poisoned food into the animal pens.

REFORM PLAN FACES FAILURE.

London, England, March 10.—The whole reform scheme in India faces failure in the event that the Indian legislature refuses to pass all the new taxation proposals, declares a Bombay dispatch to the London Times today, dealing with the assembly's budget debate, when the members threatened not to vote the new taxation unless the military expenditure was reduced.

The Times correspondent says that if this refusal occurs the only alternative to economy is taxation by ukase, adding: "Such a course involves the scrapping of the whole reform scheme and it is impossible to contemplate the re-creation of any legislature as constructive as this one. Taxation by ukase will involve a resort to sheer despotism with no ultimate escape save a constitution even more liberal than that which may now be scrapped. It would be a tragedy if the reforms were wrecked on this financial rock."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

GREENS TO MARK SATURDAY MARKET

Hay Went Slowly At Poorly Attended Mart Friday.

There was a small attendance at the local market on Friday.

Fifteen loads of hay were offered for sale, but the demand was slow. The price ranged from $16@19 per ton. Only two or three loads, however, sold for the top price.

The straw market was dull. One load sold for $10 a ton.

One load of old oats sold for $1.80 per cwt.

Eggs and butter were steady.

It is expected there will be a good market on Saturday. Eggs were the feature of last Saturday's market, and it is believed that green stuff will be the feature fo rthis week-end. Vegetables have been plentiful for the past few weeks, and the demand has been equally as good.

The price of rhubarb dropped 25c per dozen last Saturday. Eggs are in demand and will also be plentiful, it is believed. The price dropped to a new low level last Saturday—in fact, it was the lowest price asked since last fall. It is not expected they will drop lower than 30c per dozen wholesale and 35c retail, the price asked last Saturday.

Chicago, March 10.—Rallies from yesterday's weakness developed in the wheat market today during the early transactions. Liquidating sales on the part of holders has apparently ceased, and leading interests absorbed the other selling. There were also indications of export business having been done ever-night. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged to ¾c lower, were followed by numerous minor changes and then by gains all around.

Corn and oats showed independent strength. Export inquiry for corn continued, and the movement from farms was said to be practically nothing. After opening unchanged to ⅝c lower, the corn market scored a moderate general advance.

Oats started ¼c off to ⅝c higher, and then hardened a little more.

Liverpool, March 10.—Wheat—Spot, No. 1 northern, 13s 10d.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, March 10—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—Changes among leading shares were limited to fractions at the dull and irregular opening of today's stock market. Studebaker, the most active feature of the previous session reacted moderately, and other motors, as well as oils, equipments and food specialties were inclined to ease. Obscure miscellaneous stocks, including Remington Typewriter and American Safety Razor, were strong. Prices steadied within the first half hour on buying of rails. Early quotations for foreign exchange again reflected unsettled political conditions abroad.

Life and Character Reading.

Life and Character Reading.—10 PT

People of this date are born under the planets of Jupiter and Neptune and the sign of Pisces, and are seldom satisfied with giving and they will empty their pockets and spend all their vital forces they have on hand, and then fret because they have not done more. Those born under this sign do not demand quite so much as they give, if they did they would be the most difficult persons on earth to live with.

The average child born on this date is affable, sensible, kind-hearted and exceedingly sensitive. Even in early childhood they dislike being dependent upon others and illustrate one of the chief weaknesses of this sign by wanting to give all they have and then more.

Engineers, railroadmen and mechanics will do well to watch the Want Ads.

Is After Britton

NEW YORK, March 9. — From across the water comes another European fistic champion seeking new fields to conquer.

Pete Hobin is the latest arrival. He lays claim to the welterweight title of Europe.

Hobin is a Belgian. His home is at Antwerp. He is 23 years old, weighs 146 pounds when not in training, and is only 5 feet 5 inches tall.

The European title holder is unquestionably the shortest welterweight in the world.

However, what he lacks in height he makes up in breadth. He is on the type of Bob Moha, who in the old days was known as the "cave man" of the middleweight division.

Like Georges Carpentier, Hobin was an aviator in the late unpleasantness with Germany. He wore the colors of his native land, Belgium.

Hobin comes to this country unheralded. Georges Carpentier was wildly received, made the hero of the hour, and carried with him the well wishes of many an American in his flight with Dempsey.

PETE HOBIN.

Unlike Carpentier, Hobin has slipped into our fair country almost unknown. However, he may meet with much better success than the much touted Georges.

Hobin has taken part in 96 bouts during his ring career. He has never been knocked out. On five occasions he has lost the decision. In turn, he has kayoed 47 of his opponents.

Hobin comes to this country to seek a bout with Jack Britton. He is modest in his claims and feels that before camping on the trail of Britton he should prove to the American public that he is a worthwhile contender.

If Hobin makes good it is his intention to remain in this country and become an American citizen.

He never lets his opponent stay if he can put him away. That accounts for half of his bouts ending in knockouts.

WINDSOR GOLFER WINS

Only Canadian Left In—W. E. Greene, London, In Consolation.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 9.—Ned Deall of Quebec, former North and South champion and the Dominion's representative in the first sixteen, was defeated by Fred Elliot of Boston today. W. S. Hodgens of the Lambton Club, Toronto, met a similar fate in the seventh sixteen, losing to W. H. Race of Meriden. W. E. Greene of the Hunt Club, London, Ontario, and Charles McLean of Toronto, were relegated to the consolation section of the ninth sixteen. E. E. Beals of Windsor, Ont., came through all right in the eleventh sixteen with a 2-up victory over M. N. Upson of New York. P. L. Patterson and F. G. McMurrich of Toronto were also among the losers of the day. Players defeated in the first match rounds are, of course, still in the running for the consolation trophies.

VAIL WILL BE IN 500-MILE GRIND

Brooklyn Boy Who Surprised Dopesters in 1916 Will Carry No. 9.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 9.—Ira Vail, the Brooklyn boy, who flashed across the speed horizon in 1916, has again filed his entry for the 10th annual 500-mile race of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30. In making his entry Vail has not nominated a car, but whatever car he will drive will carry the No. 9 in the Memorial Day event.

Vail finished sixth in the 1921 500-mile race, the only event of the year in which he competed. After the race he turned the car over to Frank Elliott of Los Angeles, who drove the Leach Special in a number of events on the Pacific coast, finishing third at Fresno and Los Angeles, and sixth at Santa Rosa Speedway.

Back in 1916, when New York's Sheepshead Bay Track was running several races a year, Vail finished second to Eddie Rickenbacker in the May races. His showing was out of the ordinary, as he had taken a stock Hudson, cut 22 inches out of the frame and drive shaft with an electric torch, and shortened up the car for speedway racing. In 1917 he was one of the stars of the Hudson factory's team, winning a number of races. Although his car was several miles an hour slower than the winners in the last Indianapolis race, Vail by consistent driving managed to win sixth place when the "rail-birds" had all figured that he was out of the money before the start of the contest.

Vail is wintering in Los Angeles, and it will not be surprising to the fans if he shows up at Indianapolis with a new car, and one that will make the best cars Europe and America produce step to beat it.

Tommy Milton, world's speed king and champion driver of 1921, entered in the Indianapolis 500-mile race, and "Gar" Wood, world's water speed king, are fast friends. The friendship of the two, one having made 154.6 miles an hour on land, and the other 80.56 on water, the fastest any humans have traveled on the two elements, dates back more than a decade. At that time Wood was a Ford dealer in Minneapolis, and sold Milton his first car. Milton was unable to reach the pedals of the Ford, and Wood, not wishing to lose the sale, solved the problem by fitting extensions to the pedals, so that the youth could manipulate the car.

However, neither cares for the sport the other follows. Wood does not care to ride 150 miles an hour in a motor car, and Tommy refuses to try 80 to 90 in a motorboat.

SUDBURY WOLVES DEFEAT FRUIT BELT ALL-STARS 5-3

Northerners Smooth Stick-Handlers and Heavier Than Grimsby Team.

GRIMSBY, March 9.—In an exhibition game of hockey played in the Grimsby arena tonight, the Sudbury Wolves defeated an all-star team picked from the fruit belt by a score of 5 to 2. The visitors were much heavier than the locals, and that, together with their clever stick-handling and teamwork, won them the game, while the locals were handicapped by lack of practice together. Despite this fact the game was fast, and the Wolves were taxed to their limit to obtain the three-goal margin which was no indication of the play.

The line-up:

| Sudbury | | All-Stars |

| Ironstone | Goal | C. Stewart |
| Boucher | Defence | Reading |
| Langlois | Defence | Mitchell |

CLAIMS CANADA DOES NOT WANT COLONIAL RANK

Premier King Scores Tory Leader on Report of London Conference.

DEBATE BECOMES LIVELY

Meighen's Breach of Rules of House Brought To His Attention.

OTTAWA, March 9.—(By Canadian Press).—Sharp cross-firing between the prime minister and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition, enlivened the brief proceedings of the House of Commons this afternoon following the formal opening of Parliament.

Members of the Commons, preceded by their newly-elected speaker, had been to the Senate chamber, where his excellency the governor-general had formally approved the election and read the speech from the throne. There was a few minutes' delay to permit the prime minister to change from the Windsor "uniform" he had worn in the Senate chamber. Then, following a few formal preliminaries, Mr. Mackenzie King submitted a motion that the address in reply to the speech from the throne should be considered on Monday, and given precedence over other business.

Immediately Mr. Meighen complained that the customary notice had not been given to the opposition. Mr. King was sorry that the notice had been overlooked, but retorted that he thought Mr. Meighen would be aware of the usual custom. "Mr. Meighen," warmly added the prime minister, "did not even permit his excellency to read his address before saying what business he wished Parliament to take up."

Premier Claims Equality.

A few minutes later there was a piquant reference to a statement made by Mr. Meighen on the previous day. Mr. Meighen then intimated that he had a report on the conference of empire prime ministers, but it had come marked "secret," and he suggested that Mr. King should communicate with Mr. Lloyd George that it might be tabled. Today Mr. King himself tabled a copy of the report. He saw no reason, he said, why the Canadian government should consult the Imperial government to reveal the contents of a document which had been tabled in the British House of Commons and was a public document. Mr. Meighen had emphasized that Canada stood on the same footing in London as the mother country. Would it not therefore be just as reasonable to ask the permission of South Africa or Australia?

Mr. Meighen interjected that the conference had been called by the Imperial government, and the Imperial government should be consulted before the report was made public.

"Let me make myself clear," sharply rejoined the premier. "The conference was a conference of representatives of different countries, all of whom met on a basis of equality. For that reason I don't propose to return to the colonial status so far as this country is concerned by asking permission to quote from the report."

Clash Between Leaders.

Immediately after the return of the members of the House of Commons from the Senate this afternoon the first two items of business involved the assertion of historic rights of the popular chamber. In the first instance the speaker announced that he had asserted those rights before his excellency, and that they had been admitted by the representative of the crown.

In the second place the premier introduced a bill respecting oaths of office to assert the right of the Commons to transact business before considering the speech from the throne.

This bill is introduced at the opening of every session of Parliament for this purpose, but never gets beyond the first reading.

The premier moved that the speech from the throne be the first order of business on Monday.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen said that though it was customary, he had not been given an intimation that the debate would be adjourned until Monday.

Mr. King replied that he was sorry he had overlooked giving notice to the leader of the opposition, but he had assumed that Mr. Meighen would have expected such a course, as it was in accordance with the usual practice of Parliament.

Mr. Meighen replied that it had not been the invariable practice of Parliament. The late government had got down to business earlier.

"The leader of the opposition will have ample time to discuss all matters," replied the premier.

"I may observe, he added, "that Mr. Meighen did not so much as permit his excellency to read his speech before saying what business he wished Parliament to take up. We on this side of the house will do everything necessary to facilitate the transaction of business. I think we can get along without the suggestion of my right honorable friend."

The premier's motion was then carried.

On motion of the premier the committee to strike the standing committee of the house was appointed. The speaker presented the report of the librarians of Parliament and of the commissioners of internal economy. The first petition of the session was presented by Hon. Charles Marcil. It asked for better railway accommodation in the county of Gaspe.

Reports Are Produced.

Half a dozen annual reports and other public documents were then presented by various ministers.

In response to a request made yesterday by the leader of the opposition, Premier King tabled the order-in-council covering the transfer of her fisheries to the province of Quebec. The prime minister also tabled a copy of the report of the conference of empire prime ministers which took place in London last year.

In doing so he said he saw no reason why the government should ask the Imperial government for directions in regard to revealing the contents of the report. He understood, and it had been emphasized by the late government, that representatives of all the overseas dominions had been on exactly the same footing in London as those of the mother country. Therefore, it would be just as reasonable to ask for permission to make the report public from Australia or India, as it would be to ask for permission from the Imperial government. If Mr. Meighen, who attended the conference, was aware that some of its proceedings were secret he must act accordingly.

Mr. Meighen said that it must be remembered that the conference had been called by the Imperial government, and that he thought the Imperial government had the right to say whether or not the report should be made public.

Mr. King replied that he did not propose to allow Canada to return to the status of a colony by asking for permission to make the report public. He said that he had requested the British government to furnish him with a sufficient number of copies of the report to distribute among the members.

The premier then tabled a document in connection with Canada's part in the recent disarmament conference at Washington. He explained that the report of Sir Robert Borden, who represented Canada at the conference, would be made in due course.

On the prime minister's motion to adjourn, Mr. Meighen asked that all correspondence in respect to reciprocal trade between Canada and Australia, conducted either by the past or present government, be laid on the table.

The house adjourned at 4:40 p.m. until Monday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Canadian Woman Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—"I can not speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Life was a misery and work was a burden. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said that he could do nothing for me owing to my condition, but told me to expect another miscarriage. My husband's grandmother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I started it right away and everyone noticed what a different woman I was in a short time. I went and engaged my doctor and he did not know me, I was so well. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a 'fine bouncing baby' to use the doctor's own words. I am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I can not help recommending such a medicine, and anyone seeing me before I took it and seeing me now, can see what it has done for me. It can do the same for anyone in my condition. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. Emily Davis, 721 McGee St., Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Jailed For Week For Objecting To Returning Home To Wife

ST. THOMAS, March 9.—Because he maintained that to be sent back to live with his wife for one week in order that the dove of peace might venture back into the family, was not justice as he saw it, a young man of this city will serve one week in the local jail for contempt of court.

The man, charged in police court with attacking his wife, occasioning actual bodily harm, had been found guilty.

The magistrate wished to deal leniently with him, and so ordered the couple to go home for a week or so and patch up the quarrel. The prisoner immediately began to mumble a protest.

"I won't have you mumbling here," declared the magistrate; "if you start acting that way I will send you downstairs for a while."

"All right; send me. I don't call this justice anyway," broke in the prisoner.

"Well, for that you will serve one week in jail for contempt of court."

The quarrel arose when the husband hid a pair of his wife's dancing slippers to prevent her going to a ball, after he had given his consent. The woman then went to a neighbor's home to mind the children so that their parents could go. The husband, she said, started a quarrel in the morning.

The husband claimed that his wife had threatened him with a knife, and that he was merely acting in self-defense.

STRESSES CANADA'S VARIED ACTIVITIES

Canadian Manufacturers' President, in Washington Corrects View, Canada Is Purely Agricultural.

INDUSTRY'S GROWTH

Declares Canada's Transportation Problem Is Similar and Reflection to That of U. S.

Washington, March 9.—(By Canadian Press).—The wide scope of the development of Canadian manufacturing, transportation and financial interests, and the fact that Canada is by no means merely an agricultural country, are being impressed on the people of the United States by President J. S. McKinnon of Toronto, of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Mr. McKinnon, who was in Washington recently, gave out an interview in which he stressed the extent of Canadian interests other than agricultural, which is not always fully appreciated on the United States side of the border and, perhaps, is not fully understood even by many Canadians.

"The popular impression that Canada is primarily an agricultural country is one that has very little basis, in fact," said Mr. McKinnon, "Canada is building herself up along four distinct though interrelated lines of development. They are agricultural, manufacturing, transportation and finance. While, as I said, Canada is not distinctively an agricultural country, advances during the past decade along that line have been remarkable. In 1900 the total value of her agricultural products was $364,000,000, in 1910 this value had increased to $663,000,000, while in 1921, even after a decided drop in the prices of many agricultural products, the total value was estimated at $1,975,000,000. During 1921 Canada produced more than 300,000,000 bushels of wheat, or about one-half the amount produced in all the United States.

"Even a more remarkable increase, however, has been made in the amount and value of manufactured products. In 1891 their total value was $469,000,000; in 1901 it was $718,000,000; while in 1921 it had reached $3,520,000,000, notwithstanding the industrial depression that was prevalent at that time. Of the 8,500,000 persons living in Canada today, about two million are dependent upon the manufacturing industry for their livelihood. Canada's exports of manufactured articles during the past year amounted to $47.20 per capita, as compared with a value of $50.80 per capita for the United States. Six hundred United States factories now have branch establishments in Canada, which represents a capital investment of $400,000,000, and provides employment for 87,000 persons. Manufacturing in Canada has received a great impetus during the war, and there are now more than 2,000 varieties of articles manufactured there that were imported in 1914."

Concerning the development of transportation, Mr. McKinnon said that the Canadian government is confronted with problems very similar to those of the United States. About half of the 38,000 miles of railroad in that country are now government-owned and are now showing an operating deficit which is causing concern. Part of this deficit, he said, was no doubt caused by the increase in railroad wages in the United States during the period of government control, which were reflected in Canada.

Program Outlined in Speech From Throne Wins Favor of Crerar's Followers.

BY JOHN J. McLELLAN.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Ottawa, March 9.—The tenor of the speech from the throne, foreshadowing as it does legislation on the more vital problems of the time, is the source of favorable comment here tonight.

The current opinion of the members is that it is the first step in the fulfillment of election pledges and promises.

On the other hand, a great deal of criticism is being levelled at the head of the Hon. Arthur Meighen for the pettiness of the type of politics he exhibited yesterday and today.

At today's meeting the leader of the opposition expressed surprise at the three-day adjournment, asking why Parliament should not proceed with the order bill.

The question is heard in the corridors: "If the leader of the opposition is so anxious that the house delve into important problems why has he shown such a decided tendency to hamper matters by quibbling on relatively unimportant things?"

Hon. T. A. Crerar today only asked one question, and that concerning a matter of external affairs, the printing of the report of the peace treaty as given by the Canadian representative, Sir Robert L. Borden.

In general this asking of few but pertinent questions is considered as an indication of the policy that will be purpsued by the leader of the Progressives throughout. The Progressives are at Ottawa to definitely retain their status as a bloc. That is assured. They admit frankly that the government need not sit in fear of them.

The situation in a nutshell is that the Tories are without a definite policy other than that of opposition, while the Progressives have certain "wants" which may not necessarily be formulated into a policy.

The "wants" of the Progressives, it is felt, will be fully satisfied by the program of the government as outlined in the speech from the throne.

When the time comes the Farmers will throw themselves actively into the debates, that time being when questions in which the Progressives are vitally interested present themselves.

Such at least is the opinion of the two Progressives from Middlesex, Messrs. Hodgins and Drummond, who were seen today by The Advertiser just after they had heard the speech from the throne.

These two members, one from East and the other from West Middlesex, both occupy the same office in the Commons.

This is perhaps the only instance in the house where two representatives of one county have arranged to co-operate in the best interests of their constituents by arranging to have one room.

Neither of them expect to participate to any great extent in the debate on the speech from the throne.

BIG FIRE BREAKS OUT IN ARSENAL

QUEBEC, March 9. — (By Canadian Press.)—Damage, which will probably be in the vicinity of $200,000 and will put 200 men out of work, resulted from a fire which broke out in the main plant of the Dominion Arsenal at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

With all the city fire departments fighting the outbreak, and all the forces of the permanent militia and the city police on duty to keep the crowds back, the blaze was well under control at 7:30 o'clock.

Wedlake was appointed second vice-president, and assumes the position of works manager.

COULDN'T ATTEND HOUSE OPENING

Mr. Stewart just recently recovered from an extended cold.

EXPLAINS U. S. GENOA REFUSAL

Government Official Declares Move One to Help Parley Gain Objective.

INTERPRETS HUGHES NOTE

Claims Communication Expression of Willingness to Render Aid When Called.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Refusal of the United States to participate in the Genoa conference may be viewed as the first step a campaign of "tactful pressure" to promote economic rehabilitation of Europe, it was said today by a high official of the American government.

It should not be regarded, this official said, as an indication of the United States' desire to hold aloof from the grave problems confronting European nations.

Secretary Hughes' note to Italy conveying the declination of the United States of the invitation to participate in the Genoa meeting should be interpreted, it was said, rather as an expression of willingness to aid whenever it was felt that its aid could be rendered effectively.

The United States cannot afford to enter into a situation where the help expected from it cannot be given, officials explained, adding that the United States government must be viewed as holding its support in abeyance until such time as the European nations "get down to brass tacks" in the matter of setting their houses in order.

Economic problems regarded by this country as of supreme importance of consideration of methods of world rehabilitation, it was argued, include principally the rearrangement of German reparations and balancing of budgets by certain foreign nations.

Without consideration of these questions, in the view of the United Stated, is was said, there could be no practical attempt at world-wide economic readjustment.

PAYS $1,500 FOR BROKEN PLEDGE

BROCKVILLE, March 9.—After four and a half hours' deliberation the jury in the $3,000 breach of promise action brought by Miss Annie Elizabeth Aistrope of Montreal, against Alexander Argue of Lyndburst, a drover, this afternoon brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, giving her $1,500 damages.

Justice Orde complimented the jury upon the verdict, which had coincided with his own conclusions, and said that he had hoped the circumstances might warrant larger damages being granted Miss Aistrope.

TORONTO, March 9.—Fire losses in Canada during the week ended March 4 are estimated by the Monetary Times at $1,292,200, as compared with $860,000 the previous week.

Fire losses in February totaled $4,062,400.

SEES DANGER IN "FIRING" CAVALRY

LONDON, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Sir Philip Chetwode, deputy chief of the imperial general staff, declares that the decision to disband five more cavalry regiments, making nine altogether, was fraught with danger to the country.

"We are faced," he declared, "with greater overseas responsibilities than in 1914, yet we have the smallest army for a century."

Hardly any of the present-day officers, added Sir Philip, had seen cavalry work, and nobody who had served only in France and Flanders knew what war of movement meant. It was very improbable that there would ever again be a war of trenches.
