The Romance OF A Marriage.

CHAPTER XVII.

The major didn't enjoy his drive by any means. The moonlight that flooded hill and vale possessed no charm sufficient to soothe or console him, as, wrapping his cloak round him, he lay back, and setting his lips tightly, muttered, "The idiot! The stupid, senseless, young idiot!"

It was strong language for the major, who detested strong language just as he detested tobacco and bad wine; but if he called his handsome nephew an idiot once he called him an idiot twenty times during the remainder of that tedious journey.

"And just when I had prepared the way to a really eligible and advantageous match!—just when I had arranged matters with that awful sugar-baker! And he might have had the old place back again and renewed the line of Powis! It is too bad—too bad! Lord! If one could only give young men brains in addition to their youth, what a fine thing it would be. The idiot!" and he actually groaned.

But it was not a groan of resignation. The major was not the man to set his heart upon a thing and be easily turned aside from the path to it without an effort. Before many miles had slipped from under the pair of good horses, the major's keen brain was hard at work trying to hit upon some scheme—some plan to upset Sir Herrick's love-affair.

Never had the major, the pink of insolent ease and selfishness, thought harder than he did to-night.

"If the fool were like other boys, it would be easy, quite easy," he muttered. "I should only have to set my lace hard, and pronounce the usual threat of cutting him off with a shilling, to stop the affair. But that wouldn't do with Rick. I am afraid. No; I know Rick too well to suppose that anything like the stern parent or guardian business would be of any avail. Confound him! With the Powis pride and self-will, it would only make more obstinate. Rick's just the sort of idiot to do it out of sheer obstinacy and contradiction. He'll marry the girl on his own few beggarly hundreds a year, and laugh at me. What on earth can I do? Argument? You might as well argue with a stone wall as argue with Rick when his mind's made up and he's set upon a thing. And so to appealing to his common sense; a man in love never has any common sense, I'm surprised at Rick; I'm shocked, positively shocked!" and he leans back and strokes his aristocratic head with a positive sense of shame for Sir Herrick.

For the first time he felt—this man of the world—that Sir Herrick had done something to be ashamed of. He had done many wild things, some few bad ones, had Sir Herrick; but the major had never felt ashamed of him—had been ready to make excuses for him; and while paying his gambling debts, and listening to the stories of his wild exploits, had always been able to murmur in the midst of voices the old excuse, "Boys will be boys; youth, my dear madame—youth will have its day!" But now that Sir Herrick proposed to marry a girl without rank or wealth, the major felt that the young man had indeed sinned; and if allowed to carry out his crime, would sin beyond the reach of pardon. "It simply means ruin!" he murmured. "Social ruin! Something must be done to prevent it!"

But he could not exactly see what that something should be, and he arrived at Lord Hurstley's still puzzling his brains, and looking so weary and exhausted that Lord Hurstley and a select few of the guests, who were awaiting his return in the card-room, were quite appalled; it was so strange a sight to see the major anything but fresh, and youthful, and smiling.

"I've had a very trying day, my dear Hurstley," he explained to his host, who remarked on his appearance—"very trying. I think there must be something peculiarly exhausting in the—er—moonlight. Besides, I have made the acquaintance of some very strange people; quite—er—I might say, savages, and the experience, though novel, has been rather trying. I think—with a bland smile, distributed freely round the group of listeners—"I think I will really go to bed."

"Do," said Lord Hurstley, and he rang for the major's valet. "It's a long ride. What on earth made you stay? The ladies were inconsolable."

The major made his beautiful bow and kissed the tips of his hands in acknowledgment. "The fact is," he said, with something like a sigh—not quite, for the major never sighed—"I met my nephew—Herrick, you know."

"Really!" said Lord Hurstley, white one or two of the men murmured an ejaculation of surprise, "Where?"

"At the house of the savages," replied the major, with a smile. "He is staying, you know," looking round with an apologetic smile, "you all know Rick's eccentricity—he is staying at—actually—at a wayside inn."

A smile ran round the group, and a friend of Sir Herrick's, who was dealing, laughed outright.

"Just like Rick," he said. "At a wayside inn," said the major, sadly, as if he had said that his nephew was in a jail.

"What's he doing there?" asked Lord Hurstley, sorting his cards. "I believe he explained that he was fishing," murmured the major, idly. "Fishing!"

The man who had dealt the cards laughed. "Fishing, eh? Just like Rick. Well, major, we sympathise with you."

"Bring him here," said Lord Hurstley, good-naturedly. "Would to Heaven he'd come!"

thought the major, as he said, aloud: "Thanks, dear Hurstley; I'll convey your kind invitation."

"So Rick is wandering in the wilds with a fly-rod," said the dealer. "I wonder what Flossie thinks of it," he added in an under-tone; but the major, though his face did not proclaim it, heard him.

"Good-night," he said, with sweet sadness; "I will go to bed. If I stayed I should only bore you. Good-night!" And he went up to his bedroom—the most comfortable room in the house, by the way—where his valet was waiting for him.

For the first time since he had entered his master's service the man—one of the best valets in the kingdom, "a treasure," as the major admitted—silent, discreet, and an artist in "making up"—for the first time this admirable servant found the major restless and uneasy.

"I wish you wouldn't pull my arm," Morgan, he moaned, as the man gently rid him of his coats; "and don't speak about the room so. Have you got new boots on? There's draught somewhere, I'm sure. And they told me this room faced south!"

And he continued grumbling in this vein, to the amazement of the man, who never uttered a word until the last office had been done, and the long-suffering "treasure" was leaving the room, when suddenly, without reason, the major brought his white hand down upon the dressing-table and exclaimed:

"I've got it!"

"Beg pardon, sir, what did you say?" said the valet, pausing.

"Nothing, nothing, Morgan," replied the major, with his usual bland smile. "Good-night. Stop, Morgan."

"Yes, sir."

"I'm afraid I have been very irritable, and—trying to-night, Morgan."

"Indeed, no, major," returned Morgan in his subdued voice.

with a bland smile of triumph on his face, "I'm all right now. I am better. Good-night, Morgan. Oh! by the way, I shall have to get up quite early to-morrow. And give my compliments to his lordship, and ask if I can have something to take me over to Powis to-morrow. Good-night. I am all right now, Morgan."

Then as the man departed, inwardly amazed and wondering, the major leaned back in his chair and smiled with ineffable satisfaction.

"I quite forgot Flossie!" he murmured. "All is not lost yet. How did I come to forget Flossie?" and with a sigh and a smile of positive relief, the hardened man of the world sought his repose.

Lloyd George Lesing.—At the present time Mr. Lloyd George is in absolute control of the majority of the House of Commons. However, he is no longer a political leader, but a stubborn, forceful and remorseless personality. In fact, he is no more a party man at the present time than was William Pitt the Younger when he got into the saddle. The difference between the two is that the present Premier's backing is being worn down by constant attrition, while the other "war premier" grew stronger every day inside and outside Parliament.—New York Herald.

Jellicoe's Recall Significant.

Simms Quarrels With Daniels--U. S. Navy Trailing Behind--Chinese Regiment With Bolsheviks -- Allies Send Extradition Note to Holland -- Former Empress of Germany to Retire from World.

OPINION OF ADMIRAL SIMMS.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17. A special despatch to the Montreal Gazette from Washington says Admiral S. Simms of the Navy War College formerly in command of American forces in Europe, asserted before Senate Naval Affairs Commission yesterday that the morale of the American navy has been shot to pieces because of "flagrant injustices." In a formal statement the Admiral set forth that departmental censorship prevented constructive criticism and as a result the United States navy was trailing those of other nations. The Admiral especially resented the action of Secretary Daniels' Board in reviving recommendations submitted by himself. The recommendations inserted by Dr. Daniels included one for his brother in law, Commissioner David Worth Eagleton who lost the destroyer commanded in a fight with a submarine and been greeted with ridicule, throughout the navy, the Admiral asserted.

BOLSHEVIKS ATTACK LETTS.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 18. The Bolsheviks are throwing large forces on the Letts, including Chinese regiments, says a despatch to the official Lettish bureau from Riga. The Letts everywhere, says the despatch, have repulsed the enemy's powerful counter-attacks with numerous enemy losses, and captured a number of villages in the advance on Resesshitz.

JELlicoe CALLED TO ENGLAND.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 17. Admiral Viscount Jellicoe, former First Lord of the British Admiralty, has received an urgent call to England, and for that reason has cancelled his visit to Brazil and Argentina. This announcement was made by the Minister of Marine to-day, following the receipt of a message from the Admiral. Sir Robert Borden, Canadian Premier, was to have sailed to South Africa with the Admiral's party, but no word was received as to Sir Robert's plans in the circumstances.

HEAVY FLOODS IN GERMANY.

COBLENZ, Jan. 18. Flood waters in the Rhine and Moselle rivers here have reached the highest stage in 136 years, according to official German reports, lower parts of Coblenz along the Moselle and Rhine are under water.

NOT ALL IN ACCORD.

PARIS, Jan. 18. The Prime Ministers of the Allies, it appears, were not in entire accord respecting decisions upon limited opening of trade with Russia. Lloyd George proposed the measure seemingly to conciliate labor forces of England. Premier Nitti supported Lloyd George and explained that the decision would have good effect upon the political opinion in Italy where a good deal of Bolsheviki agitation is reported.

CHANCES OF REFLOATING TANKER POOL.

LONDON, Jan. 17. Prospects of saving the British tank steamer Auroral, which stranded on Thursday at Lister, Norway, while bound from New York for Copenhagen and Helmsingfors, are poor, according to advices received here to-day.

PRINTING PLANT DESTROYED.

BUFFALO, Jan. 19. The buildings of the Buffalo Evening Times were burned to-day. Damage to the Evening Times and adjoining buildings will reach half a million. The firemen were handicapped in their fight by below zero weather.

BIG FIRE IN CALGARY.

CALGARY, Jan. 19. Two men, Thomas Huckville, of Gleichen, and J. McBride, of Youngstown, were suffocated to death, five firemen were more or less seriously injured, with property loss sustained of nearly half a million dollars in a fire which destroyed the Empire Hotel and Grand Central Hotel and three stores on Sunday morning. The remainder of the other hundred odd guests escaped in their night clothes in bitter cold weather.

DESCHANEL'S VOTE.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 19. Deschanel received 734 votes for President.

NO WONDER WOOLENS ARE DEAR.

LONDON, Jan. 19. The Central Profiteering Committee has had an explanation given it of exorbitant clothing charges. In giving evidence Mr. McKendrie said that Yorkshire spinners' wool profits ranged from 400 to 3000 per cent. over what War Office allowed on yarn. Sydney Webb said that when the report of the committee on worsted yarns was issued and the public got to know the actual facts from firms' books of profits made by worsted spinners and other sections the trade would be shocked. What was happening in worsted yarns was happening in cotton.

TO CARRY WHEAT CARGOES.

LONDON, Jan. 19. The recently built White Star liner, for the North Atlantic service, was by order of the Shipping Committee transferred to the Australian service. The Times now foreshadows other transfers from the North Atlantic lines both in Australia and Argentina for wheat cargoes.

THE FIRST SINCE THE WAR.

LONDON, Jan. 18. The Corussa, the first German ship to enter London since the war started, has arrived from Hamburg and has been the object of much curiosity. She loaded foods and domestic necessities for Germany. Two other German steamers arrived later.

ADVERTISING BY FILM.

LONDON, Jan. 18. Sheffield says it has filmed its steel manufacturing plants, and the result is a strikingly fine advertisement for the city's industries. It will be exhibited in eighty-six principal towns of Europe, America and overseas dominions and dependencies.

Liberal-Labor Candidates at Topsail Road.

Attended by practically every voter in the section, the Liberal-Labor candidates held a most successful meeting at Topsail Road on Saturday night. Messrs. Linegar and Martin, Sir M. P. Cashin and Messrs. J. R. Bennett and J. R. MacDonnell delivered addresses of a deeply interesting nature, and the crazy policy of the Government in driving out competition in the local fish markets, the fish situation and other such important subjects were handled without gloves, and the intelligent Topsail Road men could not fail to realize the rottenness of the present Tory Government. The "Joan bugaboo" was torn to shreds by Sir Michael Cashin, and not a leg to stand on was left Squires and Brownrigg. Topsail Road goes to the Opposition!

A. B. C. Meeting.

The George St. Adult Bible Class meeting held yesterday afternoon, was one of the best attended since its inception. An address by Mr. H. E. Cowan on Civil Re-establishment of our soldiers and sailors was received with satisfaction by those present. Mr. L. C. Mews rendered a solo. Much interest is being taken in the attendance contest and the scores of the opposing divisions show that the contest is very keen. Next Sunday's session will show an increased attendance, a bright and educative programme having been arranged by the committee in charge.

Cadet Old Comrades.

Yesterday the Cadet Old Comrades held a meeting at which 20 new members were enrolled. Since the formation of the association nearly 300 members have joined up. Yesterday the Club Rooms were opened for use, and the members may there enjoy comfortable quarters every night until 10.30 o'clock.

Directions for the Guidance of Electors in Voting.

Each elector, on entering the Booth Room where the poll is to be held shall declare his name, surname and addition. After so doing he shall receive a Ballot Paper in the above form. Each elector, if required by the Deputy Returning Officer, the Poll Clerk, one of the Candidates, or one of their Agents, shall before receiving his Ballot Paper, take an oath of qualification. The voter is to vote only for two candidates.

After receiving his Ballot Paper, the voter shall go into one of the compartments, and, with a pencil there provided, place a cross in the division containing the name or names of the Candidate or Candidates for whom he intends to vote, thus, X. The voter will then fold the Ballot Paper so as to show a portion of the back only with the initials of the Deputy Returning Officer, and shall hand it so folded up to the Deputy Returning Officer, shall, without unfolding it, ascertain that it is the Ballot Paper which he furnished to the elector, and then immediately place it in the Ballot Box. The voter shall forthwith leave the Polling.

If a voter inadvertently spoils a Ballot Paper he may return it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who will give him another. If a voter votes for more candidates than he is entitled to vote for, or places any mark on the Ballot Paper by which he can afterwards be identified, his vote will be void and will not be counted.

If a voter takes a Ballot or Ballot Paper out of the Polling station or fraudulently puts any other into the Ballot Box than the Paper given him by the Deputy Returning Officer, he will be subject to be punished by a fine of Five Hundred Dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding Six Months, with or without hard labor.

HYPOCRITICAL SOLICITUDE.

The solicitude displayed by the backers of Coaker for the welfare of St. John's, is too transparent to deceive. Arant hypocrisy is stamped all over their declamatory utterances...

The shackles are not yet firmly rivetted upon labor in this city, though the final link in the chain is ready for closing. The shadow of the man with the hammer, ready to complete the last act hangs over the tolling masses...

But a gleam of hope lightens the darkness. Comes the opportunity on the twenty-second instant to kill the menace which confronts the homes and families...

illies of the men of St. John's West. The weapon of the ballot is placed in their hands, a weapon with which they can do decisive battle, as other patriots did before them...

Coaker's Fish Deal.

With their usual effrontery and consummate nerve, Squires and his clique of Coakerites attempt to camouflage the bungle they made of the fish regulations...

Coaker, on his now famous European tour, made a deal with the Consorzio whereby he was to supply them with 300,000 qtls. of fish, on which he stood to make a profit of $3 to $5 per qtl.

Now there's the whole story in a nutshell, and we ask our readers if ever they have known such high-handed measures, which threaten to jeopardize the whole fish trade of Newfoundland...

Flour and Sugar Still Soaring.

A well known Water Street business man, whose authority is unquestionable, assures us that the highest grades of flour were being offered Saturday to the wholesale trade at $16.00 L.O.B.

"hope that this will be reduced by $2.00." We understand that the Canadian Government have agreed to waive the $2.00 tax, referred to above...

Coddling the Electors About Flour.

The 'Post' and 'Star' in their report of the meeting held in the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday night state that "Mr. Squires (Mr. Brownrigg) showed by quoting from Harvey & Co's advertisement in the Telegram that flour is cheaper, and warned all supporters of his party, etc."

Now this was a very nice little speech and sounded very plausible, but the great Henry did not state that the flour which Harvey & Co. were advertising was GOVERNMENT STANDARD grade. In other words, the grade of flour which the 'Star' was so much disposed to designate last Spring as HOG FRED.

American Mails Only.

Notwithstanding the statement in this morning issue of the Post, that no inconvenience has been caused by the failure to send mails by S. S. Kyle which sailed on Saturday, and that all mails for foreign countries have been despatched by S. S. Runa, it is just as well for the public to know that mails for the United States only are on board the Runa...

Removing the Gulches.

At last a "gulch gang" gang has been placed on Water St. West and this morning saw the beginning of operations in that direction. This section, extending from Job Street to the end of the car line was the worst in town and caused great trouble to teams obliged to pass over it.

Boys Nearly Drowned.

Two boys of 12 and 14 came perilously near to being drowned at half-past three yesterday afternoon. In company with other boys they were playing around on the ice near the Reid Rd. Co. trestle bridge, Railway Station, and fell in when they went near the edge of the ice.

Hard on the Coopers.

The present labor scarcity in the city—especially along the waterfront—was never so bad, and more than half the coopers in the city are walking around with their hands in their pockets. A number of coopers were laid off on Saturday, and one coopers' shop, at least, has had to close down. Tery times are hard times.

Personal.

Mr. A. G. Hines, who was born in Little Bay Islands and left here for the U.S.A. twenty eight years ago, came by the Rosalind on a business trip in the interest of Clifton Thayer & Co., a wholesale boot and shoe firm of New York.

C. L. B. BAND CONCERT.—Assisted by the leading artists of the city, takes place in the Methodist College Hall on Tuesday night, January 20th. Tickets: Reserved seats 75c., on sale at Gray & Goodland's. General admission 50c.—Jan 19, 11.

Men of St. John's West!

On Thursday, 22nd next, you will be called upon to record your votes in the present political contest.

Your decision at the Polls will be final! Ask yourself on entering the Booth Room if you can honestly vote for the Tory Candidates, Squires and Brownrigg—the men that are associated with the political party that are anxious to see the "grass growing on Water Street."

Can you in justice to your homes and your families, disregard the warnings of the press—that the whole business and prosperity of the country is jeopardized by Coaker's insane Fish Export Regulations.

St. John's West was always remarkable for doing the right thing at the right time, and it was only by the split vote of the Labor Candidates last fall that Squires and Brownrigg "faked" in as representatives of your district.

Undo this harm on Thursday next, by voting for Martin and Linegar, the Labor Candidates, and do not be found "asleep at the switch" in your country's darkest hour.

Drowned in New York Harbor.

According to messages received in the city Saturday, a young man named Dunphy, son of Mr. P. Dunphy was drowned in New York harbor a few days ago. Two of the deceased's brothers were members of the N. F. Regiment and made the Supreme Sacrifice. The unexpected ending of the young man's life is a severe blow to his family.

The Railway Tie-Up.

Since early Saturday night a snow storm from the N.E. to S.E. has been raging along the railway line and up to this morning it showed no signs of abating. No trains were moving yesterday, and it was useless to operate the rotary ploughs. The Carboner train which was to go out this morning has been cancelled. The conditions existing along the railway line for the past month are the worst since the cross country service opened.

At the Majestic.

Despite the inclemency of the weather of Saturday evening a full house turned up at the Majestic Theatre to see dainty Shirley Mason in "The Rescuing Angel." The patrons who saw this splendid Paramount Picture were not sorry for having braved the weather and from all sides came expressions of pleasure. Shirley Mason, supported by handsome Harry Morris, was certainly worth seeing. Cleverly taking the part of a girl who has married a millionaire for the purpose of reinforcing her father's fortune she ultimately finds that she loves the man whose money to gain she has married. The complications that arise from this double predicament are unique and will be sure to arouse interest. To lovers of good, clean, wholesome photoplay, we advise: see "The Rescuing Angel," for it is without a single objectionable feature and contains all of the qualities which go to the making of a big production.

Rod and Gun.

"That Race at Les Rapides" is the title of a thrilling story of the North Country written by William Macdonald, which appears in Canada's premier sportsman's magazine, Rod and Gun in Canada for January. Another interesting narrative is entitled, "The Legend of the Buried Room," this deals with rum traffic of the famous Hudson's Bay Company in Temagami, Bonnycastle Dale, the best known natural history writer in Canada, contributes his usual monthly article, telling with pen and picture the story of the natural life on the Atlantic Coast. Fishing through the ice in a wholesome winter sport, this very few people enjoy through lack of knowledge—Robert Page Lincoln has a descriptive article telling of the fine points of the game in this magazine. For the gun "crack" there is the usual high grade Department with a special article dealing with all the latest goods on the market. Rod and Gun in Canada is published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, at Woodstock, Ont.

Soldier-Trapper Shot Himself.

A message received by the Department of Justice from Bonavista states that Mark Hicks, of that place, had met death on the night of the 15th, under very sad circumstances. Hicks, who was a returned soldier, having been through the Gallipoli campaign and wounded at Beaumont Hamel, went in the woods on Thursday to attend to his traps and upon his failure to return, a search party was organized. This failed to find him, however, and it was not until Friday morning that his body was found near the railway track about a mile from town. His dogs were standing by and one cartridge of his gun was found to have been discharged. A doctor's examination showed that death was resultant from gunshot, the contents having entered the trapper's head. An enquiry is being held.

Coaker's Fish Must Go.

The S. S. Clyde we learn is being sent to Port Union to load a cargo of Labrador fish to be brought here for shipment to Europe. Thus while freights for the outports are jamming up the sheds receiving them, the only available steamer is taken to suit the interests of Coaker, who apparently does not care a cobbler's curse so long as Port Union is served. What do shippers of freight think of this? What do the consignees of much needed, held up goods think of it?

Shipping Notes.

S. S. Runa sails at midnight to-night for New York direct taking about 8,000 barrels cargo. S. S. Rosalind sails for New York via Halifax on Wednesday night. S. S. Shuba is now loading freight at Sydney is expected here on Friday next. It is likely the S. S. Cranley will sail this evening for Heart's Content to land 8000 tons of coal for the Reid Newfoundland Railway. S. S. Campello with 2,500 tons of coal is expected from North Sydney by the end of the week. Schooner Valeria has arrived at Grand Bank from Boston, with a general cargo to S. Harris Ltd. Schooner Gwendolyn Warren arrived in port yesterday, 43 days from Macelo, in ballast to Bowring Bros. Schooner Smuggler sailed at noon to-day for fish laden for Oporto.

Bitten by a Dog.

This morning a young man while proceeding along New Gower Street, was bitten in the leg by a vicious dog. The police were acquainted of the matter and will have the owner of the animal summoned.

McMurdo's Store News.

Why not try a milk shake? With Malted Milk and Choccolate (or other) flavour, milk makes not only a very refreshing food drink, but one which is most tasty and pleasant to the palate. Taken between meals it bridges the interval between breakfast and dinner or between dinner and tea quite admirably, and this without impairing the appetite for the next meal. Malted Milk is gently stimulating, and supplies fluid to the body to balance the amount taken from it by the dry heat so often excessive in shops and office buildings. Price 15c.

Bungling the Mails.

The mails which should have gone by the Kyle, but missed here through the inexcusable bungling of the new Minister of Posts, have not left the city yet. The Minister of Posts wanted to have them go by the Runa, which leaves this midnight. However, as the mail is partly Canadian and the Runa goes direct to New York, the steamer could not take them and they now have to be hung up until the sailing of the Rosalind, which will be Wednesday night or Thursday morning. Tery times are hard times!

A man, charged by his wife for failure to support her, was forced to sign bonds for $100. A sailor who had refused to go aboard his ship was ordered to be mentally examined by a doctor.

BORN.

On Jan. 17th, at 36 Flower Hill, a son to Mr. and Mrs. T. Trahey. On the 15th inst., a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Malone, Lake View Avenue.

DIED.

On the 15th inst., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Malone, Lake View Avenue. This morning, at the General Hospital, of tubercular meningitis, Stanley King, R.N.R., aged 23 years; funeral on Wednesday, at Bauline. Drowned on board the s.s. Manhattan, on the 15th December, from New York bound to Greece, Thomas Francis, aged 22 1/2 years, second son of Patrick and Ellen Dunphy, 21 Central Street. May his soul rest in peace.—Boston papers please copy.

IN LOVING MEMORY of our dear daughter, Fannie Driscoll, who passed away January 18, 1919. Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep. Of those whose eyes have ceased to weep. When they who wept so oft before Shall wake again to weep no more.—Mother.

IN LOVING MEMORY of my dear brother, James Ivey, who lost his life on the "Ethel," January 1917, at the age of 26. May his soul and all their souls rest in peace. We miss thy kind and willing hand. The voice we loved is still; The place left vacant in his home Will never more be filled. Our eyes are dim with weeping And our hearts are sick and sore; A widowed mother left to mourn Her boy she'll see no more.—Inserted by his loving sister, Mrs. James Hamilton.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Harold Oswald Grimes, died January 18, 1917. Three years have passed our hearts still sore. As time flies by we miss him more; The call was short, the blow severe. To part with one we loved so dear. God called him home, it was his will. But in our hearts he liveth still.—Mother.

CASH'S Tobacco Store wishes to draw Smokers' attention to their recent shipment of the famous Old English

B.B.B. BRIAR PIPES. Also to again remind smokers that in connection with our Pipe Department we have a regular up-to-date PIPE HOSPITAL where ordinary repairs can be done and stems fitted at the shortest notice. JAMES P. CASH, Tobacconist.

Motor Car and Motor Truck Owners. I have a splendid equipment for general automobile work and can guarantee first class overhauling. Every engine tested under its own power before being put back in the car, thereby getting over the greatest enemy an engine can have, that is of leaks. All oil leaks are detected and made right, consequently you can be sure of a good and lasting job. I also have a Hempy Cooper reballing and reboring machine for crank shaft and connecting rods, which insures quiet running, as all bearings are in perfect line. With this equipment we can do work quickly and much more practical than heretofore.

SPECIAL NOTICE. My Garage will be closed from March 10th until April 15th, as I am taking my entire Mechanical Staff on a visit to the Motor Factories with a view to giving first class service. Parties wishing to have their cars overhauled for the coming season would be wise to have them done immediately. For instance, parts may not be possible to replace them here, in which case I can get them while away, thereby saving a lot of inconvenience and disappointment when the car is wanted. One thing is sure, cars that are overhauled in the winter months are given better inspection than those done in the rush season; so just call us up and we will get your car in and have it done right away. I have a supply of repair parts in stock. Room for about 50 more cars. Ford Trucks taken care of with dispatch.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A TIME TO SHIRK.

When you are dead tired or half sick, do you push yourself to do as much as usual, or do you give in to your feelings?
I dropped in to see a neighbor of mine the other afternoon and found her lying on the couch, utterly worn out. "I've felt wretched all day," she said, "but I was bound I wouldn't give in, and I've done my regular work and cleaned the pantry. Just come and see if it doesn't look as if I did a pretty thorough job in spite of everything."

And So Did She.

I went and saw. The pantry did look as if she had done a thorough job. And so did she.

She had dark circles under her eyes, she was pale as a ghost, and the flush of excitement with which she showed off her party, and boasted that she wasn't the sort to give in to her feelings, advertised the fact that she was utterly worn out.

I wonder if, when I asked above if you gave in to your feelings, you didn't think I was going to deliver a lecture on not giving in.

As you perceive now, I have the contrary idea in mind.
I think there are certain physical and mental conditions when, if you drive yourself to work that work will use up twice as much energy as if you had waited until you were in a normal condition.

There is, of course, certain work that absolutely has to be done—though I think that if we really counted the cost of doing it, we could cut that down a lot.

Such Work is Sheer Extravagance.

But all unnecessary work done under such conditions is extravagance. It is like buying a thing when, if you could wait for a day or two, you could get it for half as much.

Of course, there are times when you don't feel quite right, but when if you set yourself to go resolutely and cheerfully to work, you can work out of the megrims that possessed you and feel better for the effort.

But there are other times when every bit of work you do is done up hill—times when you feel as if there were lead in your veins that dragged down your arms and made every step an effort—times when your brain feels irritated and confused and every thought has to be fairly dragged out of it.

You Have to Decide for Yourself.

In other words, there is a time to work and a time to shirk, a time to humor yourself and a time to be stern.

Nobody can ever tell which is which, except the individual concerned. And even he can't tell unless he will use a lot of sincerity and a lot of common sense, and will admit frankly to himself whether his own weakness is to work too much, or shirk too much—and deal with his problems accordingly.

Important!

Every man starting out in business will have to go over a hard road and find out its turnings for himself. But he need not go over his road in the dark if he can take with him the light of other men's experience.

A Cheap Saver.—Now that a faculty of commerce is to be established in Dalhousie University, it may not be long before the degree of "bachelor of commerce" will be a necessary qualification of young Nova Scotians applying for positions behind the ribbon counter or at the ledger-keeper's desk.—Hamilton Herald.

THRIFT.

The sanest thing on earth is thrift; it is the slogan of the wise; without it human beings drift to joints where paupers sweat the flies. All workers now are in demand, there's no excuse for idle lads; employers in the market stand and offer forty kinds of scads. Work brings a lordly recompense, such as it never brought before; no delegate with any sense will let a wolf camp by the door. 'Tis harvest time for those who wish a bank account to rear and raise, to put some money in a dish, and save it for the rainy days. Said rainy days are bound to come, with walling winds and heavens dank; then happy he who has a sum of kopecks salted in the bank. It matters not, now much you earn, if you believe, and think, and say, that coin was merely made to burn, to throw at birds, and fool away. What profits it to shed your sweat, and through the long hours toll and spin, if you are evermore in debt, and dodging bailiffs and their kin? Be thrifty now, while money flows to every till in tinkling streams, and be prepared for Fate's hard blows, and spend old age in pleasant dreams.

Fashions and Fads.

Pearls are very much in vogue. Jackets are short and straight. Bodices choose to be square cut. Glace kid is used for sports coats. All evening gowns are sleeveless. Blouses show high-in-the-back collars.

Checked material is popular for suits. Lace collars and cuffs are worn much. There are girdles of stiff black moire. A few bell skirts are coming into favor. Dress skirts begin to show draperies. Kimono sleeves are still a blouse feature. Full vests are made of supple fabrics. The vogue for belts is said to be waning. Patent leather belts are painted by hand. Heavy cotton crepes are promised for spring. The newest lingerie blouses button in the back. Hats of Napoleonic shape are fashionable. Flowered chiffon is excellent for dance frocks. Blue-gray is an excellent shade for the negligee. Separate coats show a tendency toward the fitted waist. Frocks of serge are brave with tiny steel buttons. Black and genanium red is a favorite combination. Cloker collars are favorites; so are the shawl types.

Just Folks

A MAN'S JOB.
It's a man's job to be cheerful in the face of grief and care; Any weeping can be tearful. And a victim of despair, But it takes a man to swallow All the bitter in the cup, And to live for what may follow, Without ever giving up.

It's a man's job to be kindly. It's a man's job to be true. None can shut his eyes and blindly Try to journey this life through And not see the wrongs about him Or the hazards in his way; There are times when fate will frown him And his feet will go astray.

Not in fools and craven creatures Are the worthy virtues found, Not on blank and lifeless features Do the cheerful smiles abound; He who to his best is living And for truth and honor stands, And is cheerful in life giving, Has a man's job on his hands.

To be kind and thoughtful ever, To be strong in times of need, To put all your best endeavor In an effort to succeed, And to fall and keep on trying, (And not lose your cheerful ways, Is a job, there's no denying, For a real man, nowadays.

Mr. M. P. Cashin Refutes Mr. Brownrigg's Statement.

Editor Evening Telegram
Sir.—Mr. Brownrigg is reported as stating publicly that I raised a loan under the 1919 Act of four millions, at a cost to the Colony of over $180,000, and that he raised a loan of one million under the same Act at a cost of $2,000.

If Mr. Brownrigg made these statements, he either does not know what he is talking about, or is deliberately misrepresenting the facts.

The loan I raised was for FIVE millions, not FOUR, and this amount had to be paid IN NEW YORK on July 1st to take up the loan raised there in 1916 by Sir Edward Morris. The interest on this loan was 7.71 per cent, PAYABLE IN NEW YORK ON JULY FIRST. At the rate of exchange on May 15th, the day when the tenders were opened, this was equal to $100.36 for payment in Toronto. That is, if we had wanted to use money to use in Toronto or Montreal instead of in New York, we would have received TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS MORE than our five millions.

As it was, the exchange on New York cost the Colony $114,500, not $0,000 odd, and the buyers of the bonds took the risk of New York exchange going up between May 15th and July first—which it did.

Outside of this $114,500, the balance of the cost of the loan is made up of the cost of engraving and printing the bonds, legal expenses, extra work in the Finance Department, and other incidentals. I cannot remember how much these expenses totalled, but Mr. Brownrigg can get the detailed account from the books of the Finance Department, and I challenge him to publish the exact figures.

The other statement, attributed to Mr. Brownrigg, that he raised the other one million dollars of the 1919 loan at a cost of $2,000, is childish. In the first place I raised half that million myself before I went out of office at no cost at all, and in the second place the comparison which he and his associates seek to make between the cost of the two parts of the loan is absurd, as the exchange question does not enter into the cost of the local loan at all.

Before I left office I had applications on file for half the million dollars to be offered locally, but I did not advertise for subscriptions or call up those offered, both because the bonds were not ready for delivery and because the Colony did not need the money at the time. When Mr. Brownrigg came in he began filling up the papers with advertisements, and I presume this is what cost the $2,000.

It is now up to Mr. Brownrigg either to repudiate the wild and untrue statements attributed to him, or to publish the detailed figures of the cost of the loan, and base his criticism on them, or to admit that he has misrepresented the facts for the purpose of trying to discredit my administration as Finance Minister.

Yours truly,

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—Although I am not a fish exporter, I have followed the various arguments on the Fishery Regulations as I never followed a public question before. Since the days of the old time fishing admirals, when it was unlawful for anyone to own a house or lands, there has never been anything so drastic and harmful to the country. No wonder the judges of the Supreme Court turned it down, and the voters of St. John's West will turn it down with a vengeance next Thursday.

I have been expecting to see in the papers something concerning these fish regulations which the public appear to know nothing about. I refer to the taking over of the St. John's Trade Review by the Water Street fish exporters, who are members of the combine. It is well known that this paper has a fairly large circulation in all the countries that buy Newfoundland codfish, and when Mr. Hawes came here last fall, one of the first things he did was to secure the Trade Review.

To show how unreliable its market report is, I need only call attention to the fact that all the fall it has been quoting Common Cod Oil at $240 to $250 per ton, when the price was from $280 to $290. Even in Saturday's issue Canadian Butter is quoted at from 60 to 65c per pound, when it was selling from 85c to $1.00 per pound. The same may be said of Oleo, Kero Oil, etc., the wholesale price of which is from 10 to 20 per cent higher than that quoted in the Trade Review.

The voters of St. John's West would do well to open their eyes and consider all these things before they cast their votes on Thursday next.

Yours truly,
WATCHMAN.

Some Advice
From Citizen.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—I notice by this morning's Post in the editorial column, a reference to the Krie's mail, and it surely is a statement to make a monkey laugh. Mosdell, no doubt, must be a fathead if he thinks he can so gull the people of this town. He admits it is true that the Krie sailed without mail matter, but he goes on to say that it is equally true that all foreign mail matter was despatched on the s.s. Runa, which vessel sailed on Saturday night. Has this man lost his senses, or what is wrong? The Doctor ought to take some of that dope which he was so ready in prescribing last fall for other people, to straighten him up a bit, as the Runa, I notice, is lying at Shea's wharf, taking on board the fish belonging to Smith and Shipman, which fish Coaker declared he would not allow to go out of the Narrows. Anyway, Smith and Shipman have pulled the wool over Coaker's "blinkers," and the Runa is loading up with the fish; and our Postmaster General, Mr. Halfyard, will have to wait until that fish is put on board before she can take his mails. This is what the old skippers before now used to call "putting a round peg in a square hole." Mr. Halfyard may have been a very good school teacher, but when he comes to take over the management of the public's post office we find that he is not equal to the position, but of course he was Mr. Coaker's second hand, therefore he was pitched into this position because Coaker said he should go there. My poor friend Squires, you have my sympathy! At one time I never thought that you would allow yourself to be bossed by Coaker, but Coaker will whip you into shape, and you will be led by the nose to do the things which he desires you to do. Take my advice, Mr. Squires, while Coaker is away, and make a contract with some Esquimaux with dog teams to carry the mail across the country to Port aux Basques. They would get to the shores of Cape Breton just as soon as they are going to get there now. Wake up, Squires, and do something while you have the time, and while your boss is on the other side, for he is surely going to have the time of his life. Why could not the Allies have Mr. Coaker, while he is over there, to try Big Willie and Little Willie? I am sure he would be just the man to fill that job, because we all remember when his sympathies ran in that direction. It is a pity the "F.P.U." was lost last fall. It would be nice if she was about as our worthy Postmaster might be able to charter her and send her off with the mail at full speed. Anything will do for the underdog, now that their boss is in power.

Yours respectfully, CITIZEN.

There is a young officer in the British army belonging to the regiment of which the Prince of Wales is the dominating figure, who is the absolute double of the heir to the throne, says a London despatch. So remarkable is the likeness that advantage has been taken of it to the extent that he has been deputized for the Prince when the latter has been ill, reviewing troops and attending functions, and nobody has been any the wiser. In London the young officer has a most embarrassing time. In Bond St. and Regent St. he is saluted by generals and officers, much senior to himself, being obviously mistaken for the King's son. The young officer is known to many friends as "Harry," and belongs to one of the best British families.

By a majority decision rendered by the Court of Appeals, Montreal, the proprietor of a theatre has the right to seat spectators where he wishes within the limits of the place corresponding to the price the spectator has paid for his ticket of admission. The judgment is a reversal of a decision of Mr. Justice Fortier, rendered in the Superior Court on March 4 last, maintaining an action which Sol Reynolds, a colored man, entered against Loew's Theatre, claiming damages for alleged breach of contract in refusing him a seat he demanded at the theatre after he had purchased his ticket. Loew's Theatre appealed on the question of principle involved in the issue, and on that appeal they succeeded by Monday's judgment.

Indoor Golf.

By F. O. D.

(On Saturday Night-Toronto)
To the real golfer—the man, that is, who plays imaginary approach shots on the street corner waiting for a car—the interval between the last game in the fall and the first of the following spring is a dreadful one. It is eternities long and as barren of refreshment as the Sahara desert or a U. F. O. committee meeting.

Incidentally, talking of approach shots on the street corner, it is not a thing to be recklessly done. We speak whereof we know. We used to have a very handsome epony cane. It was beautifully balanced, and of a most delectable and lustrous blackness. Then one very frosty evening, we stood waiting for a night car, and a nice round little ball of snow involuntarily teed up on the edge of an adjacent lawn. It was just the size of a golf ball and it stood up dutifully from the frozen grass.

Looking at the pretty little white ball of snow on the lawn, we felt that it was a chance to try out certain original theories of our own on the subject of stance and swing. So we moved over to the slabster sphere, and took a firm but graceful position, and then with our walking stick reversed proceeded to address the ball.

A few preliminary waggles and we caught the improvised club slowly back. We did everything that we could have done—we turned our left foot in just the correct amount, and our wrists were bent under the shaft, and our head was as still as the head of the Sphinx, and our eye never for a fraction of a second wavered from the ball. Then the silver-mounted club head started down with the ease of a falling stone. Harry Edens himself could have done no better.

It was the prettiest shot we have ever made—or it should have been. Just as we made our perfect follow-through, the head of our stick slipped right at the ball, and what following through we did was done in about ten inches of the shaft, which we still clutched in our hands. That innocent and inviting snowball had formed on the end of a galvanized pipe, which some plumber had stuck in the lawn there, presumably for the purpose of watering it. We hit the pipe full and true in the middle of our walking stick handle, which stopped dead and then made a lovely parabolic sixty feet in the air over our head. The silver mounting sparkled beautifully in the frosty air but we had no joy of it. We were thinking of the ten dollars we had paid for that stick—at pre-war prices, too—and we said things which should have made that little gob of ice melt right off the pipe.

Possibly it is the recollection of this unfortunate incident which has made us so chary of any practicing except what is done with real clubs on real turf. We always have a feeling that something is going to happen, something unpleasant, whenever we try it anywhere else. Even the backyard work which some of our friends put in for the improvement of their short game has no appeal for us. If we were to go out into our landlady's back yard with a putter, we know perfectly well that we would somehow manage to drive the ball through the kitchen window and bang that splendid woman on the occo as she bent over the evening hash. It is our destiny.

Of course, lots of fellows do this sort of thing; and possibly they find that it does their game a deal of good. We met one wild man the other day who confessed that he practiced putting on the bed room rug and played short approach shots into the bed itself.

"I putt against the leg of the bed," he explained. "It's great fun and keeps the eye true."

We told him that he showed wonderful self-control in not boring a regulation hole down through the rug and the bedroom floor and sinking a tomato can in it so that he could putt properly. And no doubt there is also a lot of splendid sport and exercise in crawling under the bed after the balls and enticing them out from beneath the bureau where they would be almost certain to seek refuge.

"But how about those approach shots?" we asked. "Surely to heaven you don't take turf, do you?"

For the benefit of the untechnical reader it may be explained that when a real, honest-to-gawd golfer plays a short approach shot, he tears out a slab of grass about the size of a baby's grave. His idea is not so much to hit the ball as to move the whole neighboring section of lawn up to the flag. This is supposed to prevent the ball from rolling off the green when it gets there, and all the more earnest players do it.

Of course this sort of thing isn't so bad on grass, for you really can put the slab of turf back—most of them don't—and it will go right on growing. But on a rug! How the dickens are you to replace divots there? That's why we asked our golfing friend about taking turf in those bed-room approaches of his. His expression became rather thoughtful, not to say rueful.

"Well, it is a bit hard on the rugs," he admitted. "I have holes in several of mine as it is."

"What does your wife think of it?" we asked. That's the sort of fellow we are—always trying to dig painful information out of people.

"Well, you see, my wife doesn't play golf, and . . . and . . ."

We hastily changed the subject. We had an idea of just what his wife thought about it, and just how clearly and frankly she explained her ideas to him. We know what our landlady would think of us if she caught us making holes in our bed-room rug with a mashie-niblick. We would be lucky if she didn't take the club away from us and run us around the block two or three times. You see, our landlady doesn't play golf either, and . . . and . . ."

Now this friend of ours wants us to join one of those indoor golf schools. It seems that the energetic professional, not having anything to do in the winter, and being thoroughly aware of the golf fiend's insatiable craving for practice, has invented the indoor school. He simply takes a big room somewhere and hangs it with nets and puts a few thick mats on the floor and there you are. You can go up there and for a nominal fee of a dollar or so an hour—or is it a half hour—you can swing yourself black in the face and warty on the hands, under expert supervision.

"It's the best thing in the world to loosen up your swing," said our friend, "and if you have a chronic slice or anything that . . ."

We stopped him right there. We have a slice, a boomerang slice which comes to heel like a bird dog; but we don't believe that any amount of expert supervision could do anything for us indoors. You see our ball goes away sweet and clean and straight for the flag. And then when it gets about a hundred yards away from us and from the commanding glance of our eye, it notices something in the next field which attracts it. So it turns right around like a aeroplane doing a hair-pin curve, and usually we never see it again. For the display of our slice at its infernal best we require nothing less than a ten-acre field. For fifty yards we drive as straight as Chick Evans. It is after that that the trouble starts. We explained all this to our friend, but still he insisted on the excellence of indoor golfing.

"The pro will see what's the trouble with you right away," he said, "and he will be able to tell you just what you are doing wrong."

Of course, the pro would know what we were doing wrong. They always know. From a long and fruitful experience of dubs, they can recognize all the various symptoms of dubdom. They can even detect what a dub is thinking, if he ever does, and they don't mind telling him—nice frank lot of fellows, professionals. But what good does mere telling do?

We are quite convinced that we could attend every golf school in town all winter long, and could practice by the hour, and could get the feeling that we had finally conquered the darn game; and then next spring we would go out on the course, and the ball would feel like a set of picks, and we would swing ourself right off our feet, and if we hit the thing at all it would go sailing away into the neighboring woods and conceal itself in some poor little dicky-bird's nest.

That's the worst of this practicing. You can learn to do the trick perfectly, so long as nothing depends on it. How often have we slipped away alone on a quiet afternoon and put in an hour or so playing mashie shots or something like that behind a convenient hill. The balls always behaved beautifully. They were like little children just before Christmas. They would do everything that we expected of them. We could stand sixty or seventy yards away and drop them on a space about the size of a tea-cloth.

Then on the strength of this performance we would issue a challenge to someone we had been hoping to beat, and would get ready to give an exhibition which would shatter his golfing morale forever. In fact, at first we used even to feel a little guilty about getting in all this preliminary work—it seemed like a rather mean advantage to take of our friends, rather Tuetonic, you know. But after one or two trials of the system, we quit worrying about this aspect of the matter. The only thing that bothered us after that was to find an explanation for the gawd-awful performance we would give with the very club which the day before was a fairy wand in our hands. And we have never found an explanation. It is just golf psychology, that's all, however much or little that may mean.

But still one goes on practicing. This is one of the curious features of the disease. There is always some little point or other one wishes to work out, some tendency one has to correct, some new theory to experiment with. Even though the usual effect of all the theorizing and practicing is to blow one's game higher than a kite, the temptation is one which no true golfer can resist. It is this which causes stout, middle-aged men, presumably in the continued possession of their mental powers, to sneak into the drawing room, when the family isn't around, and practice full swings before the mirror. The usual result is that they bring the electrolier down in fragments on their bald heads and get into nasty arguments with their wives, but it doesn't stop them—nothing in the world can.

Having proved to the reader and to ourself the utter futility of indoor schools, we now begin to wonder if we have quite got over our distressing habit of dropping the right shoulder in our iron shots, and whether a little coaching might not be a good thing for our swing. We have had a good deal of trouble with our swing, and we can assure the reader that next to a bad heart or a floating kidney there is nothing like a bad swing to worry a fellow. Perhaps if we were to . . .

But the wise reader knows what all this is leading to. And if the reader,

St. John Woman Gains 20 Pounds in a Short Time

Was All Run-Down After Flu—In Perfect Health Since Taking Tanlac.

According to the testimony of the multiplied thousands who have used it there is nothing more invigorating than Tanlac to persons suffering from the after effects of Grippe, influenza, pneumonia, and typhoid fever, and bronchial troubles, or who are in a run-down condition from any cause.

Among the many hundreds of New Brunswick people who have realized the powers of the medicine is Mrs. Agnes Henwood, residing at 61 Marsh Road, St. John. In relating her remarkable experience with Tanlac, Mrs. Henwood states that she has not only gotten rid of all the after effects of influenza, but that she has also gained twenty pounds in weight.

But let Mrs. Henwood tell her own story. Here is her statement: "If anyone who reads this testimonial is suffering from the effects of the 'Flu' I want to advise them to try Tanlac for that is the medicine that gave me back my health and built me up so wonderfully, after everything else failed to help me. I had three attacks of influenza and was down in bed from December, 1918, to April, 1919. I was so weak I simply could not walk. My appetite was gone and I was so sick at the stomach all the time that I could scarcely retain a mouthful to eat. My nerves were so completely shattered that the closing of a door or just any little noise would upset me. I had fearful headaches with the kind of dizzy spells and my condition was most serious and distressing."

"One day my husband got after me to try Tanlac, saying that other people were getting good from it, so I began taking it and the very first bottle did me a world of good. My appetite soon returned, I got so I could not eat without having that nauseated feeling, and then I commenced to get back my lost weight and strength. I have taken six bottles of Tanlac now and my headaches as well as all my other miserable feelings are gone. I have also gained twenty pounds in weight and am feeling stronger and better than I did for years, ever before I had the 'Flu'. So now that I have tried Tanlac I can conscientiously recommend it to others who are wanting something to relieve their sufferings and build them up. It is the only thing that ever helped me and I believe it will help anyone in a run-down condition like I was."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffet, by Thomas Wakely & Son; in Elacenta by James Murphy & Son, and in Topsail by J. K. Bursell.—adv.

Wonder what upset your stomach— which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.

some day when the mercury is at twenty below and the blizzard is howling, should meet us sneaking along with a set of golf clubs—well, be merciful, friend, be merciful to a stricken man.

Burns' Birthday.

Sunday, January 25, being the birthday of Scotland's immortal bard, St. Andrew's Society is making elaborate preparations for commemorating that anniversary so dear to all Scots. On Saturday, 24th, the Telegram will publish an interesting article from the pen of four talented local historians, Mr. H. F. Shortis, entitled "Scotchmen in Newfoundland." Burns was to Scotland what Tom Moore was to Erin, and the soul stirring strains of the melodies of the latter still bring a thrill to the heartstrings of Irishmen the world over as they raise the bold anthem of Erin go Bragh, which has the same effect upon them as the Scots who have Burns when sounded by the pibroch so loved by the people of the land of Highland Mary.
