The tables were well patronized during the evening.

WINGERDER RESORT SI WORKING AND IT WAS BOOKED AND IT WA

Thus, to the merry sound of the marriage bells, and amid the general rejoicing of friends and neighbours, the chief personages of our story entered upon a favourable phase of the normal coudition of human experience. Story-tellers of the olden time would have added here—"After which they lived happily all their days." We cannot, in justice to truth and nature, follow the example of these writers, for we all know that perfect happiness is not be enjoyed here. Pain and trial, sorrow and affliction, are mingled more er less in the lot of all, and the gayest and brightest marriage days are followed some time or other by days of cloud and shadow. Thus it ever has been, and ever will be, while the mortal pilgrimage shall run, and those whose fortunes we have been tracing were not made exempt from this common law of life any more than others. But, in comparison with the trials through which they had come, their life was now peaceful and happy. The eventful past was not forgotten by them, but its recollections only served to make the present more enjoyable. In the still summer gloamings, or by bright winter fires, they would recount the adventures and sufferings of that bitter time—not to bewail or regret them, but its recollections only served to make the present more enjoyable. In the still summer gloamings, or by bright winter fires, they would recount the adventures and sufferings of that bitter time—not to bewail or regret them, but to mark the hand of Divine Goodness which guided and sustained them through all, and brought them at last to the desired haven. No one was forgotten who had been kind and helpful in these troublous times. Philip and Annabel transmitted a substantial token of their gratitude to Steive Redshanks for his important services in the far West, and even the postmaster at Porsley and the landlord of the Bue Boar were not forgotten. Nay, the very kitten whose playful gambols had been the West, and even the postmaster at Porsley and the landlord of the Bue Boar were not forgotten. Nay, the very kitten whose playful gambols had been the means of Annabel's discovery and deliverance was made to participate in the deep gratitude which dweit in their hearts, for it was invested with special privileges in the household, and adorned with a red morocco collar and a silver bell, which tingled sweetly wherever it went. And no one knew why it was such a peculiar favorite with the master and mistress of the mansion but Jim Potts and Bally, his rosy little wife, who, as the confidents of their corrows, were now large sharers in the sunshine of their prosperity.

And so farcwell.

The Reason Why.

The reason why the magnificent Retail Grocery Establishments in the Alma Block and on Lower Wyndham Street, belonging to John A. Wood, are so very popular with the intelligent public:—
Because the Goods are all of the best quality.
Because the Prices are invariably the lowest.
Because the Clerks are corteous and obliging.
Because the Stock is the largest to select from.
Because the Weights and Measures are always correct.
Because in fact, the proprietor understands his business, desires to please his customers, makes good use of his capital,
