Every Congressional District of Ohio Will Have Delegates Pledged to His Support---No Hostility to Taft But Teddy is Man Most Available as Standard-bearer.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 3 .- The names of two candidates for presidential delegates, pledged to the support of Theodore Roosevelt, will be found upon the official ballott in every congressional district of Ohio in the May primaries, according to a prediction made to-day by Walter F. Brown, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and head of the Roosevelt movement in Ohio, President Taft's home state.

In a statement made public here, Brown said:

"The active organization in Ohlo, which is already numbered by thousands, pledged to effect the nomination and election of Theodore Roosevelt as president in 1912, is actuated by no motives of hostility

"The people have decided to elect some other man than Mr. Taft to the presidency. The man most available as Republican standard-bearet is Theodore Roosevelt. It can be accepted beyond any question whatever that Colonel

Roosevelt, the in he sense seeking the Republican nomination, will yield to the genuinely popular demand for his leadership."

He also assured his audience that the alleged feud between himself and Premier Asquith was a myth.

Mr. Lloyd-George also made his first incursion into international politics since the speech delivered by him last summer which so inflamed public opinnations must realize fairly what conditions of peace must be.

Speaking on the subject of the reduction of armaments, the chancello of the exchequer said he believed that the present was an advantageous moment to consider the question. It was in the interests of France, Germany, Russia and Great Britain that there should be a better understanding.

He continued: "I believe with candor, frankness and boldness, it is attainable. The world would be richer for it, taxes might be reduced and the it, taxes might be reduced and the money which would be saved that is

Will Knock the Famous Ulster Deliverance of His Father Into a Cocked Hat---Unionists Make Show of Belief That Home Rule Is Dying Fast and That the Bubble Will Be Pricked.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(Special).—It would be impossible to over-estimate the importance to the Irish Home Rule cause of the "col-lision of incompatible ideals," as the Earl of Dunraven calls it, that is scheduled for Feb. 8 in Belfast, Mr. Churchill's chivalrous determination to address the Nationalists in the Orange stronghold has brought the whole controversy, in the judgment of Sir W. Rebertson Nicoll, a staunch friend of the Irish patriots, to a new turning point.

As the event will be hig with influence upon his own future, it is thought probable that Mr. Churchill, who makes no secret of his willingness to go much further than a majority of the ministers on behalf of Ireland, will take advanced ground.

By persons who are aware of the favor in which he stands with Mr. Asquith and who know how much freedom his chief allows him, it is thought that the first lord of the admiralty will indicate the chief features of the Home Rule bill, until now a close secret.

There is little doubt that he will make a speech that will knock the famous Ulster deliverance of his father, Lord Randolph, into a

In the Unionist camp there is a noisy show of belief that Home Rule is dying fast; that "the bubble will be pricked at Belfast"; that the Radical coalition will have been smashed ere "Grouse Day," Aug. 12; that the next general election will leave the Liberals in a hopeless position in parliament, and that Bonar Law, with a shibboleth of "new men, new policies," will clear away the "socialistic and Irish secession-ist heresies" and begin a "genuinely prosperous era for the Kingdom."

John Redmond tersely answers: "I would like to know how the King feels about it, for the King is a fair man."

On the other hand a strong pressure is being brought to bear by those who have suffered from the money trust to have the same investigated.

Mr. Arthur E. Stillwell, president of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway Company says that the trust Railway Company says that the trust is worse than the Mafia. Mr. Stillwell has built nine hundred miles of railway upon which he has raised $25,000,000. He therefore seems to know what he is talking about and he corroborates everything said by F. S. Untermeyer before the committee on rules. He says that not only has the enterprise being refused credit by the financial groups which make up the trust but that any one else extending such credit did so at the risk of finan-cial ruin. He says the trust is pow-erful internationally and declares that: "Its freemasonry is that of that: "Its freemasonry is that of freebooters grown arrogant thru immunity. Its whisper is that of the Mafia without its risk. Its 'White Hand' does the dirty work of the Black Hand' without the excuse of poverty. SUNDAY LEGISLATION

In a rescut issue of The Washington, D.C. Heraid, there appeared a reort of an address by Mr. Alonzo T. Jones on the subject of religious legislation for the District of Columbia. In the course of his main argument that the congress of the United States is prohibited from religious legislation in any and every phase or suggestion and therefore from Sunday legislation he took occasion to refer to the origin and character of Sunday laws. The first of its kind was an edict of the Roman Emperor, Constantine, issued about the year 314 providing that on Friday and Sunday "there should be a suspension of business at the courts and in the other civil offices, so that the day might be devoted with less interruption to the pur offices, so that the day might be devoted with less interruption to the purpose of all Monday or from 7 to 8 p.m.

offices, so that the day might be devoted with less interruption to the purpose of Revotion." This was extended by an edict of 321 to include "the people residing in cities," and "such as work at trades." These edicts were issued by Constantine, not as emperior, but in virtue of his office and authority as Pontifer Maximus—head of religion. Thru all the ages following, Mr. Jones contends, no attempt was made to give Sunday legislation other than an exclusively religious character until the present day attempts in the United States to sustain Sunday legislation against the American, constitutional and Christian principle of complete separation of religion and the state.

In proof of his thesis Mr. Jones states that between the Sunday legislation of Constantine and the statute of Charles II. there were more than a hundred distinct pieces of such legislation. All of them before the time of Henry VIII. was the direct act of popes or canons of church councils. After the English reformation the king acted as head of the church and civil orders were revoked for "invading and usurping the episcopal jurishings of the currency of Upper Canada. That religion was the religion of the Church of England and that Sunday law is the model after which the American statutes have been passed. For the brief on the proposed bill issued to congress quotes this statute of Charles II. in full. Mr. Jones' point is that any Sunday law after that model is an infringement of the constitutional provision that congress "shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibing the free exercise thereof."

The World's Awakenin

Sometimes it happens that a great movement is going on about us—it jostles our own small sphere and we awake to find a marvellous change in some custom or means for enjoyment, that we have been among the last to realize.

HE world, to-day, is awakening to an appreciation of music. Composers, teachers, professional musicians, students of domestic sociology have been amazed at the swiftness with which all civilized nations and races have turned during the past decade to this most engaging of all the Arts.

In far away Australia and New Zealand, in the Americas and Europe, this growing interest has been apparent. Even Germany, the classic stronghold of Music, has shown it strongly. France and Italy, Spain and Portugal, Russia and Denmark—Rulers and people alike are turning to Music as never before in history.

Ability to Produce Music Now Available to All

HOSE who have not experienced the fascination of actually playing a musical instrument—of producing music—cannot possibly appreciate it. It is a pleasure unlike all others, and beyond words.

This ability the Pianola offers to all. It gives immediate mastery of the piano to its every possessor.

No matter how little he previously may have known of music, it makes a real musician of him. It bridges the years ordinarily spent in learning how to play and ushers him at once into the full joy of playing.

It gives him a greater technical skill and a greater repertory than any pianist possesses. And it teaches him how to use this skill and this repertory, so that even Paderewski himself says of the performance of the Pianola, "It is perfection."

The Pianola Piano

A REMARKABLE feature connected with the Pianola is the unusual interest taken in it by the leading personages of the different nations. The Rulers of nearly every substantial power are owners of Pianolas. In England not only the King, but every branch of the Royal Family has a Pianola.

The patronage of Royalty and the long list of distinguished owners here and abroad has not made the Pianola great. It but serves to emphasize the extraordinary power of this instrument to give substantial pleasure even to those who have access to the best of everything, including music.

The Pianola in its most convenient, modern and popular form is the Pianola-Piano. This is a combination of the piano and Pianola in one complete, compact instrument, playable both by hand and with a music-roll.

The success of the Pianola-Piano since its introduction has hand and with a music-roll.

The success of the Pianola-Piano since its introduction has been nothing less than phenomenal. This success has inspired many imitations. Not one of these, however, approaches the many initations at the independability of construction, delicacy of Pianola-Piano either in dependability of construction, delicacy control, expression features or musical result. The unanim preference shown for the Pianola-Piano by famous musical musical educators and discriminating purchasers throughout world proves that it stands not only supreme, but absolutely a among all instruments of its type.

Why Have I Had to

To the Members of the Lord's Day Alliance and the Ministerial Association of Toronto:

Reverend Gentlemen: How can you be consistent in clamoring for the annulment of the Ne Temere Decree because of its encroachment on the civil rights of those concerned, while at the same time you are petitioning our civic authorities to place restriction on the personal liberty of thousands in the matter of innocent and healthful recreation in our public parks on the so-called "Lord's Day," although the same is in no sense illegal or destructive of good citizenship?

It must certainly now be quite evident to all that the primary incentive back of the whole Sunday law movement is essentially the religious regard for the day, and the desire on the part of your-salves to secure state recognition of the same thru the enactment of prohibitory measures directed against acts on said day which are in no sense criminal or uncivil. The very name of our Dominion law, "The Lord's Day Act," the insertion of the word "Sabbath" in the proposed city bylaw instead of the usual proper name for the day, and the frequent use of such terms as "Sabbath desecration," "marring the sanctity of the day," "violating the fourth Commandment," etc., are alone sufficient to warrant this conclusion.

If the union of church and state is wrong when the Roman Church is involved, is such an alliance not equally wrong in principle in the case of Protestantism?

Furthermore, when history conclusively shows the Sunday itself to be an institution of the Roman Church, without any Biblical authority whatever, is not your position as Protestant ministers of the gospel a peculiarly embarrassing one?

Here are some quotations from authentic Roman Catholic publications which should warrant your thoughtful consideration:

The following is from "A Doctrinal Catechism," by the Rev. Stephen Keenan, bearing the imprimative of John Cardinal McCloskey, Archbishop of New York:

Q .- Have you any other way of proving that the Church has power to institute festivals of precept? A.—Had she not such power, she could not have done that in which all modern religionists agree with her,—she could not have substituted the observance of Sunday the first day of the week, for the observance of Saturday the seventh day, a change for which there is no Scriptural authority.—Page 174.

Q.—When Protestants do profane 174, seventh day of the week, do they follow the Scripture as their only the Sacred Volume?

A.—On the contrary, they have only the authority of tradition for this practise. In profaning Saturday, they violate one of God's commandments, which He has never clearly abrogated—"Remember thou keep holy the Sabbath day." Q -- Is the observance of Sunday, as the day of rest, a matter clearly laid down in Scripture?

A.—It certainly is not; and yet all Protestants consider the observance of this particular day as essentially necessary to salvation. To say we observe the Sunday because Christ rose from the dead on that day is to say we act without warrant of Scripture; and we might as well say that we should rest on Thursday because Christ ascended to Heaven on that day, and rested in reality from the work of redemption.—Page 352.

To the same effect is the following extract from "An Abridgment of the Christian Doctrine." composed in 1649, by Rev. Henry Tuberville, S.N., of the English College of Douay, approved and recommended for his diocese by the Rt. Rev. Benedict, Bishop of Boston, and published in New York by John Doyle in 1833:

Q.—How prove you that the Church hath power to command feasts and holy days?

A.—By the very act of changing the Sabbath into Sunday, which Protestants allow of, and therefore they fondly contradict themselves by keeping Sunday strictly, and breaking most other feasts commanded by the same Church.

A.—Because by keeping Sunday they acknowledge the Church's power to ordain feasts, and to command them under sin: and by not keeping the rest by her commanded, they again deny, in fact, the same power.—Page 58. The Rev. Dr. Challoner, in his work, "The Catholic Christian Instructed," puts the matter even more forcibly, on page 252, as

Q.-What are the days which the Church commands to be kept A.—First, the Sundays, or the Lord's Day, which we observe by apostolical tradition, instead of the Sabbath. Secondly, the feast of our Lord's Nativity, or Christmas Day; His Circumcision, or New Year's Day; the Epiphany, or Twelfty Day; Easter Day, or the day of our Lord's Ascension; Whit Sunday, or the day of the coming of the Holy Ghost; Trinity Sunday; Corpus Christi, or the feast of the blessed Sacrament. Thirdly, we keep the days of the Annunciation, and Assumption of the blessed Virgin Mary. Fourthly, we observe the feast of All Saints.

Q.—What warrant have you for keeping the Sunday, preferable to the ancient Sabbath, which was the Saturday? A.-We have for it the authority of the Catholic Church and apostolical tradition.

Q.—Does the Scripture anywhere command the Sunday to be kept for the Sabbath? kept for the Sabbath?

A.—The Scripture commands us to hear the Church (St. Mact. xwiii., 17; St. Luke x. 16), and to hold fast the traditions of the Apostles (II. Thess. II., 15), but the Scripture does not in particular mention this change of the Sabbath. St. John speaks of the Lord's Bay (Rev. i., 10), but he does not tell us what day of the week this was, much less does he tell us that this day was to take place of the Sabbath ordained in the commandments. St. Luke also speaks of the disciples meeting together to break hread on the first day of the week (Acts xx., 7). And St. Paul (I. Cor. xvi., 2) orders that on the first day of the week the Cortathians should lay by in store what they designed to bestow in charity on the faithful in Judea; but neither one nor the other tells us that this first day of the week was to be henceforward the day of worship, and the Christian Sabbath; so that truly, the best authority we have for this is the testimony and ordinance of the Church. And therefore they take no notice of other feativals ordained by the same church ligion; since Sundays and holidays all stands upon the same foundation, viz., the ordinance of the Church.

Now Raverend Gentlemen, what are you going to do about it?

Now Reverend Gentlemen, what are you going to do about it? Will you come forward in the pulpit and the press with the Biblical proof of your position, or will you continue your overtures to "Caesar" to bolster up by legislation a religious institution which has no other foundation than "the traditions of men"? RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

Yet, from numerous observations and conversations, the fact has crept thru the doors of the magazine editorial offices that the general public, where it is concerned at all, labors under a misconception as delicious and profound in the instance of the magazine schedule as in that of the newspaper. There is extant a prosperous and persistent hallucination, it seems, that magazines are "made up" each month from the manuscripts that are sent by mail or delivered in person to the editors and their assistants by volunteer contributors. That this phantasm is more widespread than even the semi-laymen may believe is indicated with no small definiteness by jetters from volunteer (or directly uninvited) contributors, at appears opportune, therefore, that the doors of the editorial rooms be opened a little way so that the layman public may be the editorial rooms be opened a little way so that the layman public may be afforded a peep into the general mechanics of the system whereby the periodical publications are filled from

Of course, every now and then one of these writers finds himself unable to meet the "order," and in such instances the spassed on to one of the other writers known to the office. Curiously enough, this holds true frequently even in the case of humor. For a Christmas number, for example, invitations to contribute humorous articles on, let us say, Santa Claus, may be extended (really assigned) to such men as George Fitch, Kin Hubbard, George Ade and others of the established comic coterie. And there are numerous cases on record where "poetry" has been actually ordered from the better known magazine stanza contributors by the editors. The queer scund that this may produce in the ear of the layman is, however, not entirely without its justification, its sound sense, as it were. The subject matter of a poem may be suggested to a verse writer by an editor despite the loud wails that have to do with "inspiration." The editors, remember, print verses for the pleasure of the present reading The editors, remember, print verses for the pleasure of the present reading generation, not for posterity—and the pleasure of the present reading generation has permitted itself to be analysed and defined with no mean amount of

The Pursuit of Fiction. One of the most able of the metro-politan magazine editors assured the present writer recently that it was becoming more and more necessary every year for the magazine possessed of ambition to "go out and search for its own material." "Yes," he supplemented, "and I speak of fiction as well as of special articles." Desirable fiction is "so, few and far between and in such demand" (to quote the editor's phraseology) that it must be pursued, literally.
Under the head of fiction is included, in the editor's category, both the serial in the editor's category, both the serial story and the short story. It has be-come no uncommon thing among the magazines to bid for stories from the pens of established writers. The drab fact always remains that small reliance may be placed by the editors on the contributions from the climbing set of writers of fiction. Out of five hun-dred casual fiction manuscripts receiv-ed in a magazine office, manuscripts from the great and growing volunteer army of contributors, it is the exceptional moment that reveals one fit for use. Indeed, things have recently arrived at the point where a fiction staff has begun to spring into magazine being. One publishing house that concerns itself with the so-called "popular" fiction where a so-called "popular" fiction. The magazine editors have their lists self with the so-called "popular" fiction pays a certain number of writers a regular weekly salary, and thus practically controls their work. Another relies on five or six men to supply it regularly with the longer fiction. Of course, the products of both of these publishing concerns, as already mentioned, are of the so-called "popular" variety, but these cases are straws that indicate which way the correlated editorial wind is blowing. One monthly magazine has "tied up" all the work of a well-known writer of fiction until October first, mineteen twelve, and has purchased in advance the next six short stories of one of the fiction lead-

The World's Leap Year Baby Mugs

As was stated in a recent issue, The Toronto World will present a beautiful silver birthday mug to every baby born in Ontario on the 29th of next February. These children will only have an anuiversary once in four years, and it is fitting that their first birthday should receive some special recognition. There are no conditions or entrance fees attached to the award, the only regulations to be observed are

1.—Only babies born in Ontario are eligible.
2.—Babies must be born between the bours of 12.00 midnight, Feb. 28, and 12.00 midnight, Feb. 29.

3.—The entry for the award must be made by filling out the coupon which will be found printed in another por-

PROF. R. L. MULVENEY

We draw attention to the descriptive advertisement of Professor Multive advertisement of Profess individualism. He holds that co-partinershap and arbitration are the ultinershap and arbitration are the ultinershap and labor troubles. Within a few weeks after Mr. Phillips' arrival in New York he spoke (in some cases a number of times) under the auspices of the World's Peace Movement. The People's Institute, The Labor Temple, The League for Political Education, The Women's Suffrage Movement, Plymouth Church, Brooklyn; Mount Morris Faptist Church, and social and religious organizations. Dr. J. Herman Randall, pastor Mount Morris Baptist Church, New York, says: "From Mr. Phillips' first sentence he held the closest attention of his audience, both by his subpect matter and his most effective delivery. His elequence at times is of the finest type, and thru his whole address there was an apparent moral and sufficient and his most effective delivery. His elequence at times is of the finest type, and thru his whole address there was an apparent moral and sufficient the sa man to hear and remember."

Every church and labor organization should hear Mr. Phillips' lecture on "The Church and Labor Problems."

of water would apparently flit it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this Larasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowers, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victim to surfer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other toms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowe, consumption of the lungs, chronjo dyspepsja, nervous prostration, melanchola, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Muyeney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms, and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince us of this alarming fact. Some of the in his possession are enough to convince A HOST OF INTERNAL DEMONS.

The Great Unpurchased Reputation of the Gerhard Heintzman Piano

That foolish "aversion" about paying for reputation has found its way back to its own level. It is not REPUTATION that is paid for in a high class article, but the QUALITIES that have made that reputation.

REPUTATION in a piano, as in a man, sums up all that it really is-proves its right to consideration.

BROKE HIS BABY'S BONES

Humane Society Witnesses Private Performance, But Will Not Interfere With Career.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 3.—Humane society officers here witnessed a private performance yesterday given by a three-year-old boy whose ankles and wrists had been broken when he was ten days old in order to make him an acrobat and wrestler. The youngster is the son of R. G. Neof, a Greek, who claims that he was a student of physical culture in Greece.

Neof told the officers that he had broken the wrists and ankles of his son when he was ten days old and a month later began, training the baby for an athletic career. In his performance the Neof child dislocated his ankles and wrists at will and caused them to assume many unnatural positions. By bending backwards with hands and feet on the floor in a wrestler's bridge, the child easily supported 150 pounds on his chest.

The humane officers decided not to interfere wth Neof's plan of developing the child, but exacted a promise that no public exhibition would be given by the boy for at least five years.

Princess Mary A Debutante

Make First Public Appearance

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.— A London cable says: Princess Mary, the only daughter of King George and Queen Mary, will be sixteen on April 25, and it is rumored that she will make her first public appearance when the statue of Peter Pan, by Sir George Frampton, will be unveiled.

The statue represents James M. Barrie's fairy hero and is to be erected in Kensington Gardens, where the original Peter Pan of Barrie's book had his haunts and wonderful adventures. Princess Mary will unveil the statue, and the function is to be entirely a children's affair, with hundreds of London's poorer children as guests of honor.

The House of Quality Hair Goods

103-105 Yonge St., Toronto

This appearance of the Princess Mary will be a special one in honor of the children, and she will not make her formal debut until she is eighteen years old. In public the young princess, like her brothers, is wonderfully self-possessed, and never fidgets or looks nervous, no matter how much attention is directed toward her or how long she is under the battery of curious eyes. In private she likes nothing better than to romp with her father, who dotes on his only daughter.

Railway Bridge Blown Up While Train Was Crossing-Several Passengers Were Killed.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A railway bridge was blown up to the east of Mukden, Manchuria, this morning at 3 o'clock and a train was wrecked, several pas-sengers being killed. According to a news agency despatch from Tientsin, received here to-day, the outrage was committed at Chintzulin, where the railroad from Shan-Disappear haikwan to Mukden passes over a river. The crime had been carefully prepared, the viaduct being undermined and charges of dynamite placed Wonderful, Effect of Calsium Sul phide Treatment on Every Kind in position. ipen Col. Wm. J. Bryan. Col. Bryan is practically taking charge and it will go hard with any Democratic candidate for the nomination who witholds his sanction from the proposed investiga-tion. The investigation will probably, lay bare the fact that three or four financial groups in New York City not only control the national banks, the only control the national banks, the railways and many industrial corporations, but stifle all independent initiative and competition. This it will be shown is done it many ways, including interference with newspapers, legislatures, political conventions and so forth. As already stated the so forth. As already stated the eastern Democrats look askance at the inquisition. They may succeed in stifling the inquiry, but the net result will be to align the masses of the party upon Mr. Bryan's side.

Sun Reviles Bryan.

Needless to say that The New York
Sun. "which is supposed to be controled by Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan denounces the proposed investigation and reviles Mr. Bryan. The Sun

"At the bidding of the man who number of sixteen years the evil genius of his party, his partisans in the house of representatives are trying to force an 'investigation,' wider, more vagrant, far-reaching miscellaneous and variously irrele-vant than even old experience of money power,' at present 'the money trust,' could expect. The Henry resolution seems to assume the existence in the Democratic party of a special craw for the maceration of flubdub.

"We need not now consider the large warrant which it is proposed to give to a special committee, the theory of the powers and functions of congress upon which the resolution rests, the just resistance that might be made to some of its many arms. Its purpose is wholly political. It seeks to injure business for the sake of politics. It hopes to use the exsufficate and blown surmise of so elastic an inquiry to fan the old hatred against 'Wall-street,' that is, against business and industry. It is an attack on credit, on confidence; it is the hand of ignorance tampering with the complex, delicate machinery of finance and trade.

"Under sensible and skilful leadership the Democrats of the house have been lessening distrust of their party, have kindled the hope and even the belief that it was again equal to the responsibility of power. Is it? A Democratic caucus in the house will determine. The Henry resolution is an echo of the bediam of Bryanism. The country still hopes that the Democracy has been discharged cured."

Two Feuds Must Be Wiped Out Before Celestial Clans Settle Down-Influential Chinamen Killed-Oriental Business at Standstill. .

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Pacific coast cities from San Diego, Cal., to Vancouver, B.C., found themselves today confronted with a Chinese tong war. With three men already bullet riddled, and an armistice flagrantly violated, mercenaries and leaders of the great Chinese family societies made ready to defend themselves and avenge their friends. While tong wars are strictly Chinese affairs, they interrupt all business doffe with Orientals.

Two distinct feuds must be wiped out before the clans in Portland. Ore, San Jose, Cal., San Francisco and other places may lay down their strictly modern fire arms which have replaced the hatchet of former days, and turn over to Occidentals the taxicabs in which they pursue and escape.

At Sán Jose, Lee Kee, a member of the Hip Sing Tong is dead, and Wah Get, a Hop Sing Tong man is under arrest. This feud, starting in the beating of a Hop Sing man, who was collecting a gambling fund, has swept over the efforts of a pacification of the six companies, the supervising body of all the tongs. Tuis Song and Wong Yuk Sun. This news, reaching Portland, led to a rush for quantities of arms purchased early in the day. In Portland also the situation is accentuated by the Hop situation is accentuated by the Hop Sings and the Bow Lung Tong, over the recent murder of Seid Bing, who was a Bow Lung man. Finally the Suey Sing Tong is lined up with the Hip Sings to fight the Hop Sings, altho it is not generally known just where the Suey Sings come into the fray.

HIGH-CLASS SCOTCH SUITS.

Among the firms noted for the quality of their imported woolen goods none has a higher record than the Aberdeen Woolen Mills, which deals with all classes of British-made goods. Than these there are none better for substance and quality, and the Aberdeen company, making it a practice to buy direct, is in the most advantageous position to meet the needs of consumers. The famous milling towns from which it imports include Howick, Galashiels and the other centres of the industry in the Waverley district. As the Aberdeen company, redistrict. dustry in the Waverley district. As the Aberdeen company make up these high-class cloths in their own workshops, and thus avoid all intermediate profits, it is able to supply thoroly upfo-date and superlor suits at the straight price of $15-its only price. None who have given these suits a trial have been disappointed or failed to appreciate the excellent value given in return for this moderate cost.

The committee appointed by the mayor to consider plans for the Bloorsireet viaduct did not meet Saturday afternoon owing to the city engineer's report not being completed. As soon as the engineer makes a report the committee intends getting right down to business and get this very necessary piece of work pushed thru.

Glenmount Park faces on Gerrard Street. The northern part is a level plateau, and is the highest point for miles around. From the level eminence a magnificent view of the Beaches, the lake and bay, and the big, lively city is presented. In an idle moment a banker, whose term of service in Wall-street has been long, said anent the present situation: "Never in my experience have I seen conditions so dull as at present. General business is fairly good. but merchants are buying for immediate needs only and caution, which in many cases has developed into actual fear, has kept the lid on expansion and activity.

Annual furniture sales are sow being pushed and it is reported they are already meeting with an excellent response. The outlook for spring business looks most satisfactory, altho some apprehensich is felt regarding the condition of some of the grain not yet marketed in the west. The early resumption of building operations in this vicinity is foreshadowed by the demand for metals and other lines of supplies. Paints, oils, etc., are also active for this time of the year. most cases. Deliveries are fair. Collections are generally satisfactory.

Montreal reports say business has held fairly steady during the past week and the general situation shows no change from that previously reported. A good seasonable trade is noted in wholesale lines. Spring goods are going out well and indications continue to favor a large turnover. Factories are busy and all kinds of label.

J. M. Robertson, M.P., parliamentary secretary of the board of trade, said the real difficulty in connection is well employed. Some increased de-mand for hardware lines is noted. said the real difficulty in connection with home rule had been the claim that Ireland should have complete, absolute and unchecked fiscal autonomy. That, said the minister, was the vital problem. It meant separation and putting Ireland on the footing of a seifgoverning colony. To give fiscal autonomy would mean the disintegration of the United Kingdom. He could see no hope for home rule if the measure included it. Staple groceries continue to move well. Orders for footwear are good and factories are busy. There is also a good local demand for leather. Country trade is active. Deliveries of produce have increased somewhat, but prices are steady. Money is fairly steady. Collections are fair to good. Winnipeg reports say general trade there and thruout the west is steady in character and of good volume for

Two Splendid Opportunities In Moose Jaw--the Railway City

Get one of the latest maps and take a look at Moose Jaw. You'll see it is the Hub of a great railway wheel. Railway lines run out from Moose Jaw in every direction. Eleven different lines of the three Great Transcontinental Systems are in operation or under course of construction.

30 Miles of Tracks

Moose Jaw shares with Vancouver, Winnipeg and Calgary, the distinction of being one of the four Grand Divisional Points of the C. P. R.'s Western System. There are over 30 miles of tracks in the C. P. R. freight yards. The terminal plant cost over $3,000,000. The C. P. R. pay roll in Moose Jaw aggregates $200,000 monthly. Moose Jaw certainly well merits its title-"The Railway City of Saskatchewan."

It is in this great railway centre—this city of wonderful growth-that we have two splendid real estate opportunities to

The need of the formation of a municipal department of the government, or a sub-department under the control of one of the present cabinet ministers, was also urged upon Mr. Hanna. This department would have to deal entirely with civic affairs.

Extension of home rule in municipalities was also urged. It is claimed that the powers of municipalities as outlined in the Municipal Act are insufficient, and it is urged that power to make application to the Onbe given to make application to the On-tario Railway and Municipal Board for necessary legislation not included in the act. This procedure is followed by the local government board in England, and has worked very successfully.

Want Fire Marshal Chief Ten Eyck of the Hamilton fire department presented a strong case in favor of the appointment of a provincial fire marshal. "The fire waste in this country enormous." said the chief. "I amounts to $23,000,000; or about $3 pe capita of the entire population of the Dominion. In European countries where proper precautions against fire are taken, the per capita loss is only on an average of 33 cents. The government pays for the protection of forests and some measures should also be taken for the protection of buildings." Mr. Ten Eyck said that if a fire marshal invested with proper authority were appointed, the fire waste would be reduced by one-half. and the incendiary fires also reduced one-half, as had already been done in removal of all such structures as are deemed to be a damage to the life and property of the people. Mr. Kent referred to the bursting of the 30,000 gallon tank in Hamilton, and the great amount of damage caused thereby. Another amendment requested, was that the powers of towns and villages be extended to townships.

CANNOT UNSCRAMBLE EGGS.

Replying to a question in regard to enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law, a prominent lawyer, with affiliations in the Wall-street district of New York, says: "According to Blackstone, the extreme of the law is the extreme of injustice"; and also, according to the same authority, 'he who takes all that the letter of the law gives him is a rogue at heart. All laws must be interpreted and enforced by the rule of reason; otherwise we get tyranny, opotherwise we get tyranny, op-pression and persecution and, as Blackstone also said, 'the abreast of civilization as ex-problem of the law is to keep it pressed by public opinion. At this advanced day and stage of civilization you cannot un-scramble eggs',"

THERE NEVER HAS BEEN a large body of oil bearing shale drilled in the State of California without producing oil in profitable quantities. Out of 152 wells drilled in Coalinga in the year 1908 EVERY WELL was profitable. Out of 327 wells drilled in the Kern River field in the same year 321 were successful. In the year 1910 over 90 wells out of every 100 drilled in the whole state were a success.

In view of these facts do you taink that any group of successful business men and practical oil men, all of whom have given the matter personal attention and special investigation, would choose with every care and after taking the best expert advice, a section of land for the production of oil without having a good chance of success?

"Such a thing is imposs'ble," you say, and I heartily agree Mr. A. L. Darrow is president of the Fort Sutter National Bank of Sacramento and an oil man of large experience. In a per-may be found in that district.

"The reports of the U. S. Geological Survey confirm my own belief that there is a large body of oil in that region, and in view of the fact that the shale of the canyons is saturated with oil and because of the formation in that section I have personally invested in the project. It is my conviction that an unusually large body of high-grade oil will be found at a depth of from 2000 to 3000 feet." Mr. R. W. Nuttall is an English geologist of wide experience in California, having reported at different times within the past twenty years on all the fields, and it is his proud boast that he not been comfirmed by actual operations. In a personal letter to myself he says:

"The conditions to be found in Lopez Canyon Territory, expecially the portion of it selected by me for the Blue Bear Oil Co. not only show the presence of high-grade oil in the permeated shales, but CONFORM TO EVERY OTHER CONDITION THAT WOULD INDICATE AN OIL TROUGH OF GREAT MAGNITUDE." When these and other men of standing express such pronounced opinions, and when I confirm their words by going on the ground and finding conditions exactly as they describe, and more especially when I find them giving practical proof of their confidence by investing money in the Company. I am sure that there is a first-class prospect of success.

Now, I want you to invest some of your money in this wonderful money maker, known as California Oil. I have invested and be a GREAT SUCCESS, and when we are successful the reward will be fabulous. A flowing oil well is an embarrassment of riches. If you would like to hear more about it, drop me a post-care and I will call on you and explain fully how you may, on a very small investment, secure returns that will astound you.

More has been heard of the investigation into the steel trust, but the company has filed a reasonable reply, and in the disposition of the Great Northern ore lands seems to have forestailed any action the courts might take. It is exceedingly difficult to suggest what might be the outcome of the investigation into the so-called money trust. Combinations of money are entirely in the control of the people themselves, and the only way of attracting funds from the banks and loan companies will be for the government itself to offer by the private institutions.

The Domestic Life of Great Writers

SUNDAY MORNING

It has so frequently been charged that the growth of fame in the world of literature means the gradual destruction of marital felicity, that we have been induced to look the ground over in the hope of dispelling what we confess to feel a totally wrong idea of the literary temperament.

We cannot convince ourselves that we have altogether succeeded in the attempt. However, we submit the following more conspicuous examples brought to our notice in the course of our search, leaving it to the reader to form his own conclusions.

There was the dil-assorted marriage of Edward Bulwer Lytton and Rosina Doyle Wheeler. Miss Wheeler was cultured, educated, vivacious and beautiful when she married the novelist. But the honeymoon over, her husband took her to a lonely country house and shift her completely out of society. He insisted upon her hunting up references and copying his manuscripts. Lady Lytton's life was a long and terrible tragedy. In course of time she rible tragedy. In course of time she became embittered against both her husband and the son, the "Owen Meredith" of literature. She survived her husband ten years, and died friendless

A marked contrast to the gloomy life of the Lyttons is the bright and happy life of the Kingsleys. Charles Kingsley, the distinguished clergyman and author, traced his spiritual regensection to the sustained afforts of eration to the sustained efforts of Farmy Grenfell. Theirs was a long courtship of five years, and perhaps no wedded life ever more thoroly attained to the true blessedness of the marriage bond than that of Charles

Dante was married to a notorious scold, and when he was in exile he had no desire to see his wife, although the mother of his six children. William Shakspere lost the sympathies of the world, when as a youth of eighteen, he married Anne Hathaway, who was eight years his senior. She was a coarse and ignorant woman who had no sympathy with the romantic conditions of her husband's life.

John Milton was not great in the character of either husband or father. His first wife was disgusted with his gloomy home and soon ran away from him. His daughters were left to grow up utterly neglected, and the poet characterized them as "undutiful daughters" in his last will and testament.

Dr. Samuel Johnson's wife, was old enough to be his mother, but he con-tinued to be under the illuston of the wedding-day, when he thought he had married one of the most beautiful wo-men in the world. When she died at the age of sixty-four, he being only forty-three, he mourned her loss as Lord Bacon enjoyed but little do-mestic bilss, and "loved not to be with his partner." Dryden "married discord in a moble wife." Addison sold himself to a cross-grained old countess. Shel-lay's first mentioners. ley's first marriage was unfortunate, a model of do tic happiness. Molier was married to a wife who made him most miserable. Rousseau lived a most wretched life with his partner. Steele, Steme, Churchill, Coleridge, Byron and Charles Dickens have been recorded in history as "indifferent husbands."

Anecdotes of Great Writers

The conversation of Edgar Alian Poe was at times, says R. W. Griswold, almost supermortal, in its eloquence. His voice was modulated with astonishing skill, and his large and variably expressive eyes looked repose or shot fiery tumult into theirs who listened, while his own force relaxed. while his own face glowed or was changeless in pallor as his imagination quickened his blood, or drew it back frozen to his heart. His imagery was from the worlds which no mortal can see but with the vision of genius. Suddenly starting from a proposition ex-actly and sharply defined in terms of utmost simplicity and clearness, he rejected the forms of customary logic, and, by a crystalline process of accre-tion built up his ocular demonstrations in forms of gloomiest and ghastwest grandeur, or in those of the most airy and delicious beauty—so minutely and distinctly, yet so rapidly, that the attention which was yielded to him was chained till it stood among his wonderful creations, till he himself dissolved the spell, and brought his hearers back to common and here exists ers back to common and base exis-tence by vulgar fancies or exhibitions of the ignoblest passion.

Burns, in his autobiography, informs us that a life of Hannibal, which he read when a boy, raised the first stirrings of his enthusiasm; and he adds, with his own family averaging that with his own fervid expression, that "the 'Life of Sir William Wallace' poured a tide of Scotish prejudices into his veins which would boil along them till the floodgates of life were shut in teternal rest." He adds, speaking of his retired life in early youth, "This kind of life, the cheerless gloom of a hermit, and the toil of a galley-slave, brought me to my sixteenth year, when love made me a neet." love made me a poet."

Dr. Watts, whose passion for the cele-brated Mrs. Rowe, then Miss Singer, is well known, having called one winmorning upon that lady, and perceiving that the fire and the conversa-tion were getting dull, took up the poker, and putting it in the fire said: "Allow me, madam, to raise a flame."

Moore relates, in his "Life of Lord Byron," that, on a certain occasion, he found him occupied with the "History of Agathon," a romance by Wieland; and, from some remarks made at the time, he seemed to be of opinion that Byron was reading the work in question as a means of furnishing suggestions to, and of quickening, his own imaginative powers. He then adds: "I am inclined to think it was his practice, when engaged in the composition of any work, to excite his vein by the perusal of others on the same subject or plan, from which the slightest hint caught by imagination, as he read, was sufficient to kindle there such a train of thought as but for that spark had never been awak-

Poor Derby County! After having sensationally beaten Newcastle United in the first round, they are made to bite the dust themselves, and that on their own grounds, too, where for many years they have defied all-comers. Their victors were Blackburn Rovers, who recently have ex-hibited such form as has placed them at the top of the league and made them hou favorites for the national cup. It was certainly a big admerement to win at Derby, and, looking over the list of other clubs, f cannot see one which is likely to

Even the present cup-holders, Bradford City, seem not to be due much consideration this year, about that by their victory over Cheisea to-day they are still in the running. Two notable choos deteated to-day are Manchester City and Liverpool. The former, playing on its own ground, was reasonatory expected to beat Chiham, but they failed and we can estimate write must oe the technique in Manchester tometh, the former of the consolation in the fact that their other team, manchester funced, returned victorious from Coventry, and, by the arge score they put up, seem to have got their feet at last.

Liverpool, like manchester, have to bewail the loss of one club, but it is just a matter of question whether the channel asts there don't feet sofer over the fact that better one out of the former was never dreamt of the drapue, and was not looked upon as average good only draw with Bury than they do about Liverpool's deteat of the first and holding it. suits were as expected. In all five games were left undecided to-day.

The Scottish Cup. Ties.

With regard to the Scottish ties, the cabled results are rather unsatisfactory. The result of the most important the of all. Hearts v. Hibernjans, was eagerly waited for, and when it became known that only a friendly game had been played there was much disappointment. The reason for substituting a friendly game is not given, but it is surmised that the ground was unplayable owing to severe frost, which prevails in Scotland at the present time. A similar reason, it is believed, is responsible for the fact that the re-play between abedien and St. Mirren was declared off in time to prevent the Paisley team traveling. What hopes King's Park had of making themselves famous by beating Falkirk were basted completely, for the First Leaguers romped home easily. Airdreoniabs were too much for Kaith Rovers at the second asking, and Dundee let Partick Thistle understand what a difference there is between playing at Firhill and Dens Park. ing, and Dundee let Partick Trijstle understand what a difference there is between playing at Firhill and Dens Park.

Peterhead was brave enough to tackle the long journey to Armadaje, but it was a fruitless one.

Rangers, the leaders in the Scottish League competition, were only able to draw with Hamilton Acas, to-day; but, as they have such a commanding lead, they could well afford to give the Hamiltonians one of the points. Celtic, bowever, had a victory over Thir Lanark, and as runners-up to the Rangers they must be credited with reducing the handicap by one boint. A victory by Queen's Park is always hatled with delight by the Glasgow folks, and that of the amateurs over Kilmarnock to-day comes at a pleasing time. Wells, the popular holder of Lord Lonsdale's lightweight belt, is at home again threatened to take him from us forever. After his weeks of torture from the exhe was well enough to be moved. Matt was taken to Bournemouth, accompanied by his mother and a nurse, and there for by his mother and a nurse, and there for the past month he has been recuperating. So beneficial was the treatment prescribed for him that he has regained the strength and weight he lost during his illness, and now he declares that he feels fitter than he ever did in his life. His injured ear, that was the cause of his trouble, still gives him a bit of trouble. But in the hands of the specialist to be engaged that will be eradicated within a fortinght, and Matt will go on the warpath once more, seeking the scalps of those who attempted to boost themselves to the top when they learned of his mistorium. Matt during his convalescence wisely abstained from taking an interest in pretters musilistic but he could not wisely abstained from taking an interest in matters pugilistic, but he could not help but learn of the humorous efforts of Fred Weish, Knockout Brown, and Leach Cross, all of whom he has defeat-ed, to claim the crown that is in dispute between himself and Ad Wolgast, who, by the strongest coincidence that has

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 3.—With one second to go, a long shot from Johnson, made the count six all in the Westminnster-Vancouver hockey game here last night and the teams had to battle 3½ minutes overtime before Nichols scored the deciding goal for Vancouver. The early stages of the game were slow, due to sticky ice, but play improved as the game progressed and the final stages were very exciting. Johnson was hit in the eye by a terrific shot from Lalonde and the he persisted in finishing the game despite the views of his team mates, he had to be rushed to the hospital after the game. Cobb's Rules For Playing Ball Points Of Playing In The Field

Georgia Peach Tells How to Play the Outfield and Infield Positions of the Baseball Team.

By Tyrus Cobb. hampion batsman of the world and best all-round ballplayer the game

"You can't become a great batter by copying. You can't become a great baserunner by copying alone, but copying the style of a great fielder will assist materially in making it much easier for the fielding aspirant.

"Therefore to lay down the first rule for the young player who takes to this end of the game I would say in so many words: You can become proficient in fielding only by hard practice and watching the big leaguers and copying

"One of the most important things which the outfielder must constantly remember is never to hold the ball, but get it back into play again as quickly as possible. Seconds, yes, fractions of seconds, are valuable when a play is taking place and the time saved by a quick return or the time lost by failing to get the ball back in a hurry may mean the prevention of a run or the Block All Ground Balls!

"All ground balls should be played safely by blocking them with the body and legs. Naturally there will be times when you will have to scoop up the ball on one side or the other on the run, there being no time to get squarely behind it. If there is a chance to block the ball, however, do so. Don't try to make a grandstand play out of the stop and draw the applause of the spectators over what appears to be a most diffi-cult play; for the ball may get away from you. Outfields are not as smooth as diamonds.

"Always back up the other outfielders on balls hit to them near your territory Remember, the you may be the centre-fielder or the left-fielder, your duties as a fielder do not end with any invisible line surrounding your territory. You are part of a team and should at all times support its other

"You should also back up the infielders on all ground balls and on all throws to them from the catcher. A ball sharply hit along the ground that looks as with the bat is excusable, so that it if it were going straight into an inon all ground balls and on all throws to them from the catcher. A ball charpif it were going straight into an in-fielder's hands, may often take a jump to either side in the last few feet and get by him. You should be there to get it. It's the same with a thrown ball from the catcher. In his anxiety to get the chance. The mere fact that a fly the ball down he may throw too high or too low. If it gets away from the player for whom it is intended you should be there to recover it and prevent any further damage being done.

Learn to Time the Ball.

"If you are an infielder you should devote all your time, or at least the major part of it, to practising on ground can't make it at the beginning, the breaks in your favor will be of no help, while if you make the attempt you can avail yourself of every such opportunity.

So long as long Learn to go to either side with

The Individual League at the Athenaeum Club, is certainly a great contest. The league is made up of most of the best players in the city, and the winner of a match is always in doubt, for the tail-enders are continually putting it over the leaders when least expected. Last week George Robnson was in great form, rolling 979, and Bill Karrys was the unlucky poller that happened to be scheduled to meet the big fellow when he was just right. Karrys lost four out of five games, but Karry's lost four out of five games, but manages to hang on to first place in his section by a narrow margin. In the other section, Aiex Johnston is still leading. However, Bill Stringer and Glen Armstrong are dangerously close, and it is hard to pick the winner yet. There will be $102 in prize money in Indianapolis Scrapper Thinks That McFarland and Himself Should Battle for Welterweight Honors.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 3.-When 'ackey McFarland of Chicago announced his intention of battling in the welterweight class in the future, he took on an immediate occupation, for now Roy Bronson of Indianapolis, who also recently deserted the lightweight fold to class as a welterweight, and, who claims the world's title in that class, comes forth with a deffor the "Stockyards Boy" and offers to wager $1000 that he can make good the defence of his claim to the top notch in the welter division. Bronson offers almost any kind of a bout which McFarland would choose, but would prefer one in which the question of supremacy could be decided without doubt.

From 1860 Until Now-The Most Valuable "National" Race on the Continent as Well as the Most Ancient Continuous Fixture-Up-to-date Policy of the O.J.C.

Loud-sounding as the title is at the head of this story, it is not my purpose to write even a partial history of Queen's Plate. Indeed, to do so would take a great deal more space and a great deal more time than are at present at my disposal. It is interesting, however, to be able to recor dithe fact that the King's Plate, run for each year at Toronto, in May, has become not alone the most ancient annual fixture

Little then did he recognize in consenting to advocate the giving of the handful of guineas that go with the Plate he was laying the foundation of the oldest race in America and the most valuable fixture from a general point of view. But such has proved the case and thanks to the even-forward policy pursued by the O. J. C., the course of the event has ever been upward and onward.

The day of vengeance is at hand, even the day wherein an outraged womanhood has burst the bonds of silence decreed by Mrs. Sophia Grundy, domineering despot of social circles and systems.

domineering despot of social circles and systems.

This is the month of February in the year 1912, which being divisible by four meaneth that it is Leap Year and the open season in young, stalwart and marriageable males wherein the lonely spinster may go gunning for a side partner and board-bill-squarer for the rest of her natural life.

Behold the poor and unprotected males are, in the language of the ancients, "up against it for fair." For the fair ones may put them to the wall with marriage upon the one and the purchase of a silken frock upon the other horn of the dilemma. During this month of this year the only safety of the unmarried man lies in flight and that flight had better be speedy and on occasion must needs be sustained for, of a very truth, there be females who are capable of doing marathon stunts of no small merit or demerkt, (as the case may be.)

Behold many have already sought shelter within the refuge of a chosen marriage, choosing rather to select the known dis of a self-selected union than to face the perils of an unsough entrapment.

Others of the unmarried and destrable males have taken to the tall and uncut timbers, resolved to hide out during the period of danger and to venture into traveled paths only so often as the hunger for beer, tobacco and brotherhood becomes insupportable, insufferable and all that sort of thing.

During this month of this dread year the unmarried and close-fisted you'th walks alone and lonely in desert places while the spare spinster with a lean and hungry look goeth forth seeking whom she may devour. The unmarried man sleepeth lightly with one eye either altogether or half opened, while the aforesaid spinster sleepeth not and goeth about with one or both eyes alert for the main chance.

The young man looks upon the henpecked husband end journeys several more parasangs into the desert and envieth Elijah, who had a couple of trained crows in his commissariat department to help him out in his hour of need.

Word hath been received of a certain attractive and equally enterprising young man who hath employed an office staff of stenographers whom he was careful to select for their good looks and winsome ways, to citp from a multitude of newspapers the illustrations showing forth the hard lot of the wives of drunkards. He then hied him into the streets and acquired a hopeless state of intoxication having bired a policeman whom he met by appointment to run him in. Appearing in the police court, he had long and vicious accounts of his behavior printed in various newspapers for which he paid at the rate of $10 per line for three insertions. He then had dispatched to his various female acquaintances, by registered mail, copies of the accounts of his drankenness. Behold it was a wily plot, but it availed him nothing for he was, as saith the immortal Slopinover, "copped out" by an ancient and angular female who had slipped in among his aggregation of blonde typewriters and, as all his fortune had been expended in the operations above outlined, he was not possessed of the wherewithal, to purchase the alternative silken frock and was dragged screaming before a bespectacled parson and hurled into the yawning gates of matrimony.

In these days Cupid, having joined the Boy Scouts, has cast aside his antiquated bow-and-arrow and goes about sighting at the unwary with a high power Winchester magazine rifle guaranteed to kill, main and lay by the hills at unholy and united of range.

Behold, this is the time when those who have lingered long in the pleasant paths of single blessedness see now the horrible spectre of matrimony staring them closely in the face and when the ways of escape seem few and difficult of access. The unhappy eligibles are to be seen daily sneaking unto their offices and places of employ by dark and devious ways, even by back streets and secret alleys.

One will and wholly desirable youth has devised a wise scheme to put off the evil day and to divert the hunt upon a false and fraudulent scent. He has procured the services of one who, the lured into the bonds of matrimony, has maintained some small remnants of his early bloom and youthful chaerfulness of counterance. This one, he sends before him in all his goings and comings so that the attentions of the huntresses may be diverted from himself unto this other and that he may, by this means, he saved harmless from the females desiring husbands.

Nevertheless the tale of the slaughter is heavy and none but the parsons are rejoiced in all the ranks of the males and unto them, it is a full and plenteous season even a rich harvest making good unto them the lean days of student starvings so that they wax fat and

But among the hunted, there is fear and trembling and hiding in dark places while among the captured appear the forced and unnatural subject of a spurious gatety. For, having been captured, they have set themselves to lay traps for their more lucky brethren who have escaped and they go about the purchase of wedding rings and furniture striving for an appearance of joy and declaring loudly that all is well with them and that they rejoice.

But the wary and wise one putteth his tongue in his cheek, smileth a smile of unbeltef and sneaketh behind a fence or bolteth around a corner whenever a female of marrying age approaches.

Thus the hunt sees on to the tune of shoutings of trimuphant females and the meanings of the captured.

EDITORIAL

The Dickens Centenary.

Charles Dickens died on the ninth of June, 1870, at the comparatively early age of fifty-eight and left the world his debtor. Since the time of Shakepere no Englishman has created so many vivid types of character irradiated with infinite humor. When one considers the circumstances attending his early life it must be admitted that, in this again like the great dramatist, his genius was intensely intuitive and accompanied by remarkable and quick power of observation. As a boy he devoured the works of Smollett and Fielding, Defoe and Goldsmith, which with translations of Gil Blas and Don Quixote he found in his father's library. He had the good fortune too to have in his first starts in working life experiences which later proved invaluable. Knowledge of shorthand enabled him to become a reporter thru which capacity nothing could have resulted more fortunately for his literary career. The sketches he contributed to The Monthly Magazine and Evening Chronicle revealed the true bent of his genius soon to flower in the Pickwick Papers, which with the introduction of Sam Weller stepped at once into a popularity that has never been paralleled. It was the beginning of that wonderful array of characters so inimitable and diverting that even the sinners among them must be forgiven.

M. Maurice Dekobra, a French writer, in a recent article con-M. Maurice Dekobra, a French writer, in a recent article contributed to "La Revue" discusses the perennial question—What is Humor? As a preliminary he invited eight well-known Englishmen of letters to define the elusive subject of his enquiry. George Bernard Shaw, whose own humor M. Dekobra says is "saturated with ferocious irony" tersely replied that "Humor cannot be defined. It is a primary substance which makes us laugh. You might as well try to prove a dogma." This last remark is an exquisite example of Shavian irony. Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, took two and a half pages of print to express his conception of humor and offers the opinion that "in English literature, laughter and tears are more closely allied than in that of other countries." William Leonard closely allied than in that of other countries." William Leonard Courtney like Mr. Seaman points out the close affinity between laughter and tears and sums up humor as the minute observation of shade and the power to drive away melancholy by an irony, now grave, now gay, which shows the insignificant brevity of everything that moves the human life with its alternation of light and heart. But after all these and other efforts to define the indefinable, humor remains and the pathos which is its inseparable associate.

It is the tritest of trite criticism to say that Dickens was a humorist incomparably delightful and continually bubbling over with the exuberance of his own high spirits. The astonishing amount of pure fun to be found in his books is a tribute to his prodigious, indeed over-abounding energy. This extraordinary fecundity runs often to caricature, but so excellent is the caricature that many more would be gladly welcomed were they only forthcoming. But humorists like poets are born not made and it is not every humorist who has creative power, wide sympathies and high moral purpose. All these Dickens possessed in magnificent measure and because of them he still commands and will continue to command not only admiration, but affection. This intimate personal note finds expression in the Dickens Fellowship, founded in 1902, to encourage mutual good will in the spirit of its eponym and to stimulate the study and discussion of his works. Among its branches in the chief cities of the United Kingdom, the Imperial States and America that of Toronto leads in the number of its members and stimulated by its enthusiastic president, Mr. E. S. Willis loyally carrying out the objects for which the fellowship was established. Charles Dickens was an inspiration to the Mid-Victorian age and one which the world will not willingly let die.

Home Rule Difficulties

With the opening of the Imperial Parliament close at hand British public opinion is being increasingly focussed on home rule for Ireland. It was a necessary preliminary to the introduction of this measure that the veto power of the house of lords should be restricted and Liberals being a unit on the question and the Nationalists heartily supporting that legislation was compelled after the dramatic moments still too recent to be forgotten. Now that generalities about the right of Ireland to self-government will no longer suffice and the cabinet has had to undertake the arduous task of setting down in black and white the details of their bill, difficulties that were ignored or slurred loom up in their true

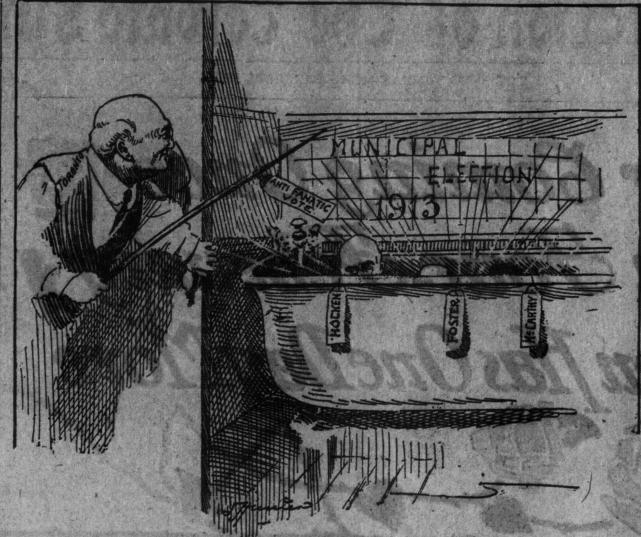

The crucial points the government have to meet are the nature and extent of the powers to be granted the Irish Parliament and the financial support to be accorded the Irish executive. The first of these is best explained by drawing an analogy between Ireland and Canada. Is the Irish Government and Parliament to occupy the position those of Canada hold towards the mother country or that of the Ontario Government and Legislature to the Federal Government and Parliament? The relation of Canada to the United Kingdom is one of large independence. Within the Dominion tl.: federal control is supreme and exclusive. Canada manages her own affairs uncontrolled, save in so far as she may voluntarily subordinate her interest to imperial necessities.

This is what the Irish Nationalists want and they immediately and warmly repudiated a remark made by the lord advocate of Scotland to the effect that the Irish Legislature would be similar to that of British Columbia. Mr. Redmond has freely asserted in England that the Imperial Parliament must remain in control and if he is sincere in that affirmation, it is plain enough that Ireland will not become another Canada. Theoretically, no doubt, the In:perial Parliament has power to pass legislation affecting Dominion affairs, but it is certain this power will never be employed except at the request of and for purposes approved by the Canadian people

The problem of Irish finance bristles with difficulties and fiscal uthorities differ considerably about the arrangement to be made. The imperial authorities have interposed their credit in connection with the land purchase legislation; old age pensions have imposed heavy burdens which on account of the number of old people in Ircland are largely shouldered by the wealthier parts of the Unite! Kingdom; Mr. Lloyd George's scheme of national insurance, much disliked by the Nationalists has imposed liabilities which Ireland cannot assume unaided. Then there are further questions connected with the amount of Ireland's contribution for imperial purposes and her right to impose subsidiary taxation.

Over a year ago it was found that Ireland now costs England $10,000,000, more than Ireland contributes. No Irish Government can start with that handicap and even if economies are made in the administration many years must pass before they can become effectual since existing life interests must be regarded and compensated. Looked at from any point of view the problems to be solved are serious and if the government can overcome them in an acceptable way it will deserve no small measure of credit.

IN DUE TIME

He will get them where he wants them when they take their annual bath.

Let Them Slide.

The four thousand representative citizens who crowded Massey Hall on Wednesday night, voiced, we believe, the sentiment of a large majority of the people of Toronto in their opposition to a restrictive bylaw now before the city council with reference to Sunday Slides.

These men and women are not working for wide-open Sunday-indeed it was plainly emphasized that Toronto does not want the American idea introduced. Yet the sentiment of the meeting was strongly in favor of affording every opportunity to those who cannot get out during the week to enjoy the blessings of fresh air and outdoor recreation on Sunday. That is the gist of the situation. Surely no one can come to harm who employs a few hours on Sunday in recreation that will produce good-nature and robust health.

Altho the council has siready gone on record grounds for a change of front now that the matter has been thoroly thrashed out. It is the duty of the council to listen to the voice of the people. That they are for leaving things as they were before some ill-advised people called for action seems certain.

Too Soon to Laugh.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier "recalled with glee the predicament of the government in the Ne Temere debate," says a newspaper report.

The strength of the government will be proved according to its ability to extricate itself from any "predicament" in which it may be placed by situations such as the promulgation of the Ne Temere or such like decree.

The Ne Temere decree is a piece of unfinished business left over by the late government. The Borden administration may not be competent to settle it to the satisfaction of all the people of Canada, but it is entitled to a chance and Sir Wilfrid Laurier is free to extract satisfaction out of the situation in the meantime.

But the fact is that Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not grapple with a question that was formidable before he left office; neither has he evolved a solution which would clarify the situation as it exists to-day. He proposes, as is his right, to let his opponents work out their own salvation. But it is too soon to laugh.

Inconsistency.

The virtuous Globe abhors the sight of South Renfrew Conservatives contesting a bye-election in defiance of a saw-off agreement made by the executive of the two political parties-a pact which threatens to deprive Hon. G. P. Graham of an easy return to the House of Commons.

But did The Globe protest when its own teader went over the heads of his own representatives and refused to carry out an arrangement by which an Ontario cabinet minister escaped the vexations of an election trial, in return for a like concession to a Conservative opponent? Not at all, because it was politically expedient.

"Honor" is a virtue which The Globe requires in the words and deeds of its adversaries, but which finds no place in the code of morals it sets up for its friends. A bargain's a bargain, and the South Renfrew affair does not smell sweetly; but the newspaper which excuses every fault committed in the name of Liberalism is playing the part of a Pharisee when it reads lessons in ethics to Conservative opponents whose chief sin is their tendency to copy some of the tricks and devices that were employed to prolong the life of a government that outlived its usefulness by many years.

MOTOR GAR MAGNATE CONDEMNS SPEED SHOWS

Claims That High Speed Centests Hurt the Automobile Business,

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Believing that high-speed motor-car racing no longer serves a useful purpose, besides bringing discredit upon motoring and the motor-car trade, Benjamin Briscoe, presiby Chief Joynes at 7 a.m. The chauffeur, who was also engineer and mechanician, occasionally poured a bucket of gasoline into the tank and went over his machine with an oil can.

The steam fire engines at work during the same period each required two men in attendance, an engineer and a fireman. Their total consumption of fuel was more than 25 tons of steam coal. The bill for running the gasoline pump at full speed for thirteen hours came to $4.50.

An average of one gallon of gasoline to an hour of service was maintained. The total number of miles covered the total number of during the two weeks of duty was 322. All told, 198 trips and 1294 stops were made. The entire number of pounds hauled thrount was 411,136.

When the run terminated an examination was made for the first time of the mechanism and et was said that the truck showed no effects of the stremuous test it had been thru. FACTS FOR MOTORISTS

No other tire in the world is constructed just like Dunlop Traction Tread. It imitates none; followed no other models; just blazed a trail of its own. It was but fitting that the name Dunlop should be stamped on this tire, which is as far ahead of its competitors as the other basic Dunlop ideas were ahead of the competitors of their time.

ADVANTAGE No. 1

In the first place, the carcass of the Dunlop Traction Tread is moulded in one piece; in other words, the Anti-Skid effect is not stuck on the tire, but built into it. Not only does this mean a tire ensuring maximum safety, but it also means a tire capable of showing

ADVANTAGE No. 2

In the second place, the Anti-Skid surface of Traction Tread is made twice as deep as the common run of so-called Anti-Skids. When the pavement is greasy or the roads are muddy, the value of this greater depth is readily apparent. The car responds to the most delicate touch of steering great or brakes. The grip on the road gear or brakes. The grip on the road is always secure, always certain.

ADVANTAGE No. 3

In the third place, users of Duniop Traction Treads never experience the consciousness of tire contact with road as is so common with the so-called Anti-Skid — the tire that is merely decorated with corrugations after the carcass proper is built.

ADVANTAGE No. 4

In the fourth place, with Dunlop Traction Tread—as with no other tire in the world—the Anti-Skidding surface is the biggest part of the tire. That means the Anti-Skidding surface will give indefinitely long service. Yet when that extra his convention that extra big corrugated tread is worn down the motorist has as good a plain cover to still ride on as is to be found anywhere. Dunlop Traction Tread simply means more for the money—and the better kind of rubber, too.

ADVANTAGE No. 5

In the fifth place, while we do not ourselves say "throw away your chains," Dunlop Traction Tread goes ahead and says it for us. We have received many letters in which motorists claim chains are no longer necessary since the advent of Dunlop Traction Tread. Take the ordinary so-called Anti-Skids and on rainy days they are either not

It has served to remind the Liberal party of the great truth that direct taxation is no more popular with the wage earn is no more popular with the wage earning classes than its with the wealthy classes, and it has also recalled to the politicians' memory the really great issues which still underlie the difference between the 'two great partis in the state. A NEW WIND SHIELD.

What does 35% duty add to the value of a Car?

UTOMOBILE buyers are so used to paying "The Canadian price" for a car that they have formed the habit. When they pay $2,200 for a car, they forget that it is only a $1,500 car they are getting: that the extra $700 is not real value but customs duty. They are forgetting that the 35% duty is an outlay which does not give any return in service. That it adds cost without adding value.

The Tudhopes have overcome this heavy customs charge by manufacturing in Canada on a large scale. They have adapted to Canada designs and models which have been prepared at enormous outlay for the larger. American market. Tudhope Cars are made entirely in Canada—in a factory which is not surpassed in equipment by any on the continent. The output is large—the cost of production is low. Tudhope Cars are produced in Canada for as low a price as is possible in the United States.

In fixing the price of the Tudhope. The 35% which we save by manufacturing in Canada is an actual saving to the buyer.

"Girls From Happyland". I hat funny little Dutchman with the funny slide, Billy W. Watson and the "Girls From Happyland" will be the attraction at the Gayety Theatre during the coming week. Those familiar with burlesque entertainments know only too well, that the name of Billy W. Watson bears more than a mere guarantee for excellence and merit. Among the many burlesque comedian none has achieved greater prominence that "Billy," the fast and furious merrymaker, who is known thruout the country as "the whirlwind comedian of the nation."

This season's offering consists of two bright and brilliant burlettas, including a new version of the two everstudents in the schools.

As a special attraction on the week's bill Manager Shea has secured George H. Primrose, dean of American danthe burlesque stage. In this particular burletta Watson is seen at his best. Mrs. Gene Hughes is a reacure, with her delightful one-act comedy, Youth." Mrs. Hughes was seen in Toronto last laughter on top of laughter with results which must be most flattering to suits which must be most flattering to season, and her success is remember-ed. "The Light Eternal," the drama with a purpose, which met with public approval on its first presentation in this city last season, will be the offering at the Grand Opera House all next week with matinees on Wednesday and Sat-urday. Theatregoers will remember the production when it is mentioned that this was the play in which Eugenie Blair presented the character of "Ar-temia," a powerful emotional role. This season another talented actress will present the character. Louise Dunbar, for years recognized as one of the leading actresses on the stage, will be seen in the leading role and is credited with having an exceptionally strong supporting company. The staging from a scenic point of view, is a massive one and the production in its entirety is one that should appeal to all lovers of

This week will be given up to the concerts of our great choral society, the Mendelssohn Choir, in combination with the famous Theodore Thomas Orwith the famous Theodore Thomas Orchestra, which has recently been adjudged by the leading critics of New York and Boston as the equal of any similar organization on this continent. So great is the interest displayed in New York regarding the concerts to be given by these two organizations on Feb. 27 and 28, that the box office returns already indicate capacity houses. For the Toronto concerts Dr. Vogt and Mr. Stock have prepared programs which, for comprehensiveness and importance surpass any yet presented by them in combination. The principal works that are new to Toronto music lovers are "The New Life," which is again given in response to many urgent requests for its repeti-tion. In this work the choir will be assisted by a quartet of eminent soloists, and the entire orchestra of nearly one hundred players. Probably no religious work in recent years has been so important as this finest sacred composition by the great mas-ter of the modern Italian school. At times it borders upon the dramatic, not for the sake of mere display and effect, but because it was Verdi's own method of expression, all the more so

Vera Michelena, Who Resigned as Social Queen to Go on Stage

The glamor of the stage has lured many a society queen from the realm of five o'clock teas and ballroom fes-Society has oftentimes been shocked and startled by the advent of some favored belle into the glare of the footlights, but it is doubtful if any class of society was ever so thoroly stirred to its very depths as was the Washing-ton Four Hundred when beautiful Vera Michelena resigned her social throne and queenship to become a "trooper" in other words, to accept an engagement with a theatrical company.

Miss Michelena comes to this city this week as the prima donna of Joe Weber's "Alma, Where Do You Live?" Company Anyone at all familiar with the society circles of Washington and New York will readily recall the phenomenal popularity of Vers Michelene in the al popularity of Vera Michelena in the smart set of those cities a few years ago. Her beauty and attractiveness, the vivacity of her manner, and her intellectual brilliancy promptly made her a pronounced favorite, and it was not long before she had half the eligible men of Washington at her feet. Her weekly salons came to be looked upon as the event of events in the Capitol City, and there were gathered the elite of the country. Cabinet members, senators, congressmen, foreign diplomats, and upon more than one occasion the president and the first lady of the land graced these social functions at the Tiring of the constant social whirl, Miss Michelena became enamoured of the stage. Success in amateur theatricals instilled a burning desire into her mind to achieve still greater honors on the stage. Without another thought as to the consequences, and with characteristic impulsiveness, she took the step that meant an entirely new life on the one hand, and perhaps a rigid social ostracism upon the other. Whatever has been the result socially, she appears to be perfectly satisfied with her present position, and has never regretted for a moment the action she took.

A Great Louise

Montreal Opera Company's Produc-Opera.

Between three and four hundred real Opera Company is Chapentier's guests gathered Saturday afternoon at "Louise," to be presented during the Government House, Ottawa, in the ball-second week of the organizations en-experts from Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. The ball-room has been newly decorated in cream and gold, with long golden satin curtains at the windows and a new electrolier in the centre of the ceiling. Interesting full-length portraits of His Late Majesty King Edward VII., and Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra as well as excellent life-size paintings of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught have been recently hung at the far end of the room and on either side of these are portraits of the two preceding governors-general, the Earls Minto and Grey and their Countesses.

The guests sat or stood around the The guests sat or stood around the conspicuously from the ensemble (it was not Charpentier's intention that they should) until the close of the opera, when the city begins to recede into the background before the person-al tragedy which it has brought about—the tragedy of the terrible scene between Louise and her dying father, in which the girl who will not give up her lover is cast off with her father's curse. Dramatically this scene was a great personal triumph for M. Huberty vocally it will be as great later on, but last night he was worn out by arduous rehearsals and the tremendous length of the opera on top of a massed effects. At times these characterizations verge on the vaudeville, and tend by their aggressive nature to distract the mind from the general picture. The scene in the dressmaker's workshop, picturesque as it is, is excessively confused and unilluminating, and considering the length of the operatit would seem as if it might profitably be dropped.

"The staging is the most beautiful that has ever been executed in Canada. And it is not scenery for the mere sake of scenery, meaningless extravagance such as is so common on the American stage. The atmosphere and beauty of Paris are essential to the companion of the sinfulness and shortcomings of many of their flocks—a condition many ministers do not have a chance to become acquainted with The mewspaper man, by his everyday dealings with a community and having to rub against the people in their "work-day" occupations, becomes acquainted day" occupations, becomes acquainted and beauty of Paris are essential to the tale because they are a vital part of the combined influences which work upon the mind of the little workinggirl Louise born and the workinggirl Louise, born and raised in a "respectable" and religion-dominated household, and turn her into the Pagan and passionate mistress of later acts. In the ordinary opera that task is usually left to the lover alone; but we are here in presence of a drama of ideas and tendencies, not of in-dividuals."

Fritzi Scheff vs. the Queen o Sheba

Think of the Queen of Sheba having Theatre this week.

You'll remember, to quote from Biblical lore, that the Oriental queen when she set out to part Solomon from some of his wisdom that "she came to some of his wisdom that "she came to Jerusalem with a very great train, with camels that bore spices, very much gold, and precious stones." Well, every time Queen Scheff moves with her royally appointed production of the comic opera "Night Birds" she also has a "very great train" to which is attached a private car for the song queen's exclusive use and an extra queen's exclusive use and an extra large baggage car in which to transport her famous cream-colored limousine, which, as anyone will admit, has a dozen camels, even if they had eight legs and four humps apiece, lashed to the starting post. Then Madame Fritzi has "very much gold," in fact gets it at every performance. Re-garding her "perclous stones"—the best satisfaction is to get the evidence first hand by attending some new persons and the satisfaction of the satisfaction is to get the evidence first hand by attending some new persons and the satisfaction is to get the evidence of the satisfaction of the satisfaction is to get the evidence of the satisfaction is to get the satisfaction in the satisfaction is to get the evidence of the satisfaction is to get the satisfaction in the satisfaction is to get the evidence of the satisfaction is to get the evidence of the satisfaction is to get the satisfaction in the satisfaction is to get the evidence of the satisfaction is to get the satisfaction in the satisfaction in the satisfaction is to get the satisfaction in first-hand by attending some performance of "Night Birds." And, finally, as to the "spice" those conversant with the little prima donna's lattistic temperament can tell you that the performance of the country of the she has quite a-plenty of the cayenne

But where Madame Scheff puts it all over the Sheba celebrity is in having a popular noyelist for a husband. Perhaps you have forgotten that the event of two years ago in literary and musical circles was the engagoment and marriage of Fritzi Scheff and John Fox, Jr. Now, Mr. Fox in place of spending all his time writing successors to "The Little Shepher of Kingdom Come," and "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," devotes a goodly portion of it to endeavouring to keep his talented wife from feeling lonesome along the threatrical trail.

This wanton hindrance to Irish progress is caused by a British minister, who, actang in direct opposition to the policy of his own government, is using his official position to destroy an Irish movement to which he owes the existence of his office.

The bringing of the ten are to the practice of farming and of cooperative methods into all its business, thus furnishing the means and the organization thru which a more comfortable and socially more attractive life could be evolved—these are the main lines of an attempt to build up in agricultural Ireland, emerging from an agrarian conflict, centuries old, a new social order had to be built up. Legislation could clear the ground, but nearly the whole of the work of reconstruction would have to be done by the people themselves. Thus we began with the would have to be done by the people themselves. Thus we began with the organization of voluntary effort, which I will for convenience call the movement, and followed it with a successful demand for state assistance, which I will call the policy. The movement, I had better say here, is directed by the Irish Agricultural Organization Society (familiarly the LA.O.S.), the policy by the department of agriculture and technical instruction, the former dating from 1894, the latter created in 1899.

"Sir Horace himself has very modestly told of his work in letters to The London Times, which in a leading article on Sir Horace's letters, says:

"The first business of opinion both in Ireland and here is to save the co-operative movement from the calamity with which it is threatened by the malignant politics of Mr. Dillon, the jealous personal malevolence of his now servile instrument, Mr. T. W. Russell, and the light-hearted cynicism of Mr. Birrell, the chief secretary for Ireland, who allows Mr. Dillon and Mr. Russell to work their will."

built into the walls of Buckingham Palace, and the Queen snared her confidence with no one. So long as she was physically able to do so she opened and closed the safe herself and arranged its contents. When she was too feeble to do this she employed an old and trusted secretary, but even he had to work under the royal eye. He was never allowed to keep the keys nor to read the letters that he handled.

Queen Victoria was always a voluminous letter-writer, and she was in constant communication with most of the royalties in Europe. Every domestic secret and privacy of royaity during half a century is said to be represented by the contents of this wonderful safe, and it is easy to believe that the modern historian would find his hands full if he were permitted to browse among these letters.

But probably he will have to wait a few hundred years, and then his popular audience will be a languid one. It is one of the ironles of life that we can never have things when we want them, and when we do get them we have usually passed the age of desire.—M. A. P.

SUNDAY MORNING

When the woman sins the scarlet in society being made aware of it, whips her skirts some inches higher than usual around her feet, and steps quickly away from muddy paths. The cardinal sin—the unforgiveable one, is as most of us know, the being tound out. Society is very particular it regard to this. The sin may have been committed, the state of sin may be very well known, but unless she be very specially and publicly informed, Society ignores it. Now, Jennie Gerhardt was a poor band at cealing her sins. She only con-ded her virtues, and society being which grips the reader and sends him cealed her virtues, and society being concerned only with discovered sins, pald no heed to undiscovered virtues. This book by Dreiser, is already the talk of two continents. Critics appeared to be rather timid in their reception of it until Arnold Bennett with temperamental frankness voiced its greatness. Fie was followed by wm. J. Locke, the delightful author of quaint tales, the creator of the believed vagabond, of Septimus, of Quixtus and glorious Clementina. When these, two front-rank literateurs sounded in clarion notes the success of Dreiser's master-work, the pack of critics took up the cry and a chorus of praise is yet sounding. So that even a "cricket on the hearth" may sing his small chirp, as long ago a cricket in the wheat field sang his pean to the star—to Love immortal.

Jennie Gerhardt is the daughter of an honest, sturdy German, a glass-blower by trade who lives in a western town. The family is large and young, and very poor since the father is ill and out of work. The mother and Jennie get work as charwomen in the largest hotel in the town. Here sensitor Brander sees them scrubbing the stairway, and he notices Jennie's beauty and freshness as she stands Briefly he sang, too briefly all—selzes her. But there was more worth, better material in Jeanle Gerhardt. She was intensely human, womanly and modest. When you leave her at the end of the book staring at the campty years, at "days and days in endless reiteration." your eyes are dutte wet. She is a big woman all round, this poor Jennie, big of heart, of brain, of yiew, a very comprehending woman and an utterly unselfish one.

Again under the promise of marchage, but more because of the terrible pressure of poverty, Jennie succumbs to the assaults of love and she and her Rochester set up house together. The girl is afraid to tell him of her carelessness in leaving one of the child. Vesta, and one day thru her carelessness in leaving one of the child's toys about, he finds out the truth. While feeling grieved for he capnot bring himself to marry the sirl who has so deceived him. And he does not care to give her up just then. Jennie's tragedy comes later then. Jennie's tragedy comes later in the book. Again there is a sacrifice. Again it is on Jennie's than this in justice to the story cannot be related here.

But further consideration of the line does not care to give her up just then. Jennie's tragedy comes later this view of the Dickens question. It may be that they are right. But some to the belief that not in cold monuments, but in alleviation of his family's Sympathy with numarity excites on the story cannot be related here. But further consideration of the workmanship is worth while. The author is no surgeon of the soul like Flaubert, who in Madame Bovary stands coldly by, and with knife and scalpel dissects the very nerves of a woman's mind, and with satire that is almost demonlac crowds we and dishonor on the head of the living man who finds out how terribly his dead wife has deceived him. Grim and stark as is the realism which informs the story of Jennie Gerhardt, it is told with something very like genuine concern and even admiration for the head of the reading the soul through two with something very like genuine concern and even admiration for the head of the reading the soul is that at the end of the reading the soul is confronted with the old eternal rid-

HEN Poverty comes in the door, Love flies out of the window." It doesn't always work-that little proverb-but given a special kind of maid and man you'll get a great mix-up when you follow the right recipe. Take a little girl named "Peaches," who needs silk stockings and a new frock every week-end if she's going to keep on living, who goes to Fifth-avenue for her extra hair and gets a new lot every three months; who likes to Summer on a beach approved by the French madame named "La Mode" in a perfectly dry bathing suit; who Winters in Russian sable and a touring car; who can't even take a tuck in her petty skirt, and glories in it; take a young chap with an appetite for good things to eat, and soft things to wear, with nose and eyes that are easily offended when things lack that last little polish that whispers "I'm the right thing-I cost good, green money"; with a palate for good cigarets and a heart for fast driving; with a love of good service and shining silver, and a hand that slips easily in and out of his pockets; and then over this pretty mixture spread a thin layer of affection.

Let it sit awhile, just long enough for poor little Love to get acquainted with the house and imagine that maybe he's going to get to stay—then put in the wolf-and the whole thing will go up in thin smoke, and vanish in thin air as quickly as you could pinch up your mouth and say "Piff." And Love will take one look at the fast melting layer of affection and do a "Mutt and Jeff" out of the window. Leastways, I TRIED to make him do one-Nell

In the debate on Mr. Lancaster's Bill to amend the Marriage Act, it was argued that the decree "ne temere" had no power to change the civil law of marriage—that it dealt only with "its validity or nullity in the sight of God.". But, to make quite sure, the question is to go, for still further fin-al settlement, and decision, to the Privy Council. Does not that seem to settle, with absolute finality, the doubt which has been expressed as to the existence of a sense of humor in

At the enquiry into the alleged pref. about is that the foreigner DOES get preference shown to Italian "navvies" on the car-lines construction, Mr. Burnell said, "As a rule we get better results from foreign laborers than from Englishmen. Remember, I do not say there are no good Englishmen." It does not appear in the evidence what is the exact nationality of the witness but, presumably he is not a dispusse. ness, but, presumably, he is not a disburse. Britisher himself. There is an ness, but, presumably, he is not a Britisher bimself. There is an excess of caution—as in one who might say, "Well! conceivably there may be SOME fairly decent Britishers on this broad earth, only—frankly—I have never met one!"—and a consequent disinclination on Mr. Burnell's part to commit himself to any exact statement of his personal opinion (if he has enough sense to form opinion (It. he has enough sense to form one), a hesitancy, as it were, to assert plainly that there are no good British workmen, which distinguishes him as a witness, careful to the point of absolute uselessness. If he had even said, boldly, that he had never had the opportunity of senior or appearance good portunity of seeing or engaging a good British construction worker, that would, at least, have clearly, convinc-ingly, justified his wholesale dismissal of them, and, incidentally, have been some excusing reason for his evident preference for Italians. The deduction one is compelled to draw from such of his evidence as is worth the consideration of men able to, and un-prejudiced enough to, weigh it for its worth, is that he is a man too flabby in judgment to decide whether be would prefer to drink milk or milk mixed with lukewarm water when he feels he requires something to really stimulate his thought gear. I shall be sorry if, in this paragraph, I have failed to make myself quite clear to Mr. Burnell—probably I have, but, homest. I have tried my' best. The trouble is that I am only a Britisher too, so he will doubtless understand how difficult it is for me to make my meaning clear.

After the explanation which informs the sentence immediately preceeding this, Mr. Burnell will also understand how difficult it is for me not to draw the conclusion from the evidence led into the enquiry, that, at the bottom of the whole dispute is a cash consideration received from the workmen, by some one, for their selection 'to do dishe work for which they draw the wage," as Rudyard says. It seems clear—indeed, it seems the only deduction to draw, from the fact that British workmen, in a land flying the British flag, are laid off, so that men of an allen flag may be employed, that, whoever it is that is getting the "rake-off" finds it easier to achieve comparative riches thru the agency of the foreigner employed than thru the medium of likely enough—their own fellow-countryman. The foreman denies getting the rake-off from the Italians, and it is openly suggested that he receives it by way of the Employment Agencies. If the enquiry is to be as completo as, to be of any value, it should be—call the way of the Employment Agencies. If the enquiry is to be as complete as, to be of any value, it should be—call the Employment Agents to give evidence, but no evidence can be accounted as trustworthy unless it be given on oath, and even then perhaps a little skill. trustworthy unless it be given on oath, and, even then, perhaps, a little skilful cross-examination would tend to straighten out the remembrances of the witness to some noticeable extent.

Merits and Demerits of Shakspere

The San Francisco Bulletin remarks:

"Praising Shakspere gets lecturers no space in the newspapers, but vigorous censure is sure to win anywhere from a few lines to half a column. Professor Elmer Edgar Stoli of the Western University of the Modern Language Association in Chicago and drew a prize—twenty-one lines in the press dispatches.

"According to Professor Stoli, we have been sadiy deluded. He tells us that Shakspere was not an accurate portrayer of human emotions, and, therefore, not a good dramatist. Shakspere's villains were not true to life; their mental processes were short measure and they talked to themselves. In fine, Professor Stoli could not stand for Shakspere as a dramatist. Yet he wasn't mean about it, for he admitted that William was some stage manager.

"No doubt these cruel words struck the shade of Shakspere like a chill blast. Perhaps the old master shivered, but as his unseen presence is still felt it is safe to assume that he has recovered from the shock and will continue to bear our mixed and sometimes inhospitable company. He has withstood greater blows, such as the fell stroke of G. Bernard Shaw, who once declared that he could write a better play than Shakespere. The Shaws must give loud evidence of their eccentricity, and as for the Stolis, they are here to-day and nowhere to-morrow, striving vainly in the interval to impress on the world the fact of their existence."

I am not going to defend Professor Stoll. He may belong to that type erratic United States professor—all too common—who publicly contro-

The did not really do so to advantage unless we grant certain conventions from the professor. Stoll's objection that Shakspere's characters talked the three that they did, and that they did so in a way that no human being is likely ever to have done. But the "soliloquy" and the "aside" are acknowledged conventions of the drama, and they have a definite purpose—they are the device by which the dramatist may present to his audience the innermost coording to the likelihood of things, it would be utter foily to suppose that the supplied of things, it would be utter foily to suppose that the supplied of the device by which the dramatist can show this.

George Bernard Shaw has said a good many outlandish things in the course of his career, but I think he has scarcely gone so far as to claim that a certain play of his on a certain subject was better than Shakspere's bost—be did claim that a certain play of his on a certain subject was better than Shakspere's bost—be did claim where than in his criticism of "The Pligrim's Progress," presented as an appreciation of Shakspere's where than in his criticism of "The Pligrim's Progress," presented as the course of his career, but I think he has scarcely gone so far as to claim that a certain play of his on a certain subject was better than Shakspere's where than in his criticism of "The Pligrim's Progress," presented as an appreciation of Shakspere's work than in his criticism of "The Pligrim's Progress," and he does this no better anywhere than in his criticism of "The Pligrim's Progress," are considered than the could obtain the course of his career, but I think he has been provided for this grant which has been provided for this grant which has been provided for this part of the course of his career, but I think he has criticism of "The Pligrim's Progress," and he do

Admirers of Shaw should not run away with the idea that he (the great G. B. S.) entirely condemns Shakspere. On the contrary, he prides himself in having done much to educate the public up to seeing the real beauties of the great dramatist. "Notwithstanding all these drawbacks," speaking, of "As You Like It," says he, "the fascination of it is still very great." Of "Henry IV. Part I.," he remarks, "well acted, the play is a good one, in spite of the fact that there is not a single tear in it." And good one, in spite of the fact that there is not a single tear in it." Thomas Orchestra Wins Fresh Laurels In Masterpieces

> Will Give a Matinee on Thursday Afternoon Next at Massey

That superb organization, the Theodore Thomas Orchestra of Chicago, will present a program of orchestral works next Thursday afternoon at Massey Hall, including masterpieces by Beethoven, Brahms, Wagner and Liszt, the symphony being that most beautiful of Brahms' orchestral creations, his No. 2, in B minor. This symphony was written $\frac{1}{2}\text{The in the symphony was written $\frac{1}{2}\text{The opening subject is beautifully set for wind instruments, and is thoroly melodious, the horis fairly giving out festive strains. The second theme is ently been given in Montreal. In "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," her Mile, rips thru the opera in a gorgeous yellow silk dress, trimmed with black netting, as picturesque, as sparkling, igine. She is vivacity personified. Her gestures are delightful in their lear significance; her vocal coloring clear significance: her vocal coloring of the florid music exceptional in its range and in its technical perfection. She elected to sing the "Air du Mysodi," in the singing lesson scene, and before she had finished it the audience was sitting upright in astonishment. Never since Calve's superb wind instruments, and is thoroly melodious, the horns fairly giving out feative strains. The second theme is sung by the 'celios and violas, followed by a succession of passages almost stormy in their effect, after which the first theme returns and the movement glides peacefully along to the Coda, in which the horn is used with fascinating effect and a paculiar tone-color is given by the quaint pizzicato string accompaniment that follows. The third movement, in beauty and vivacity resembles the opening movement and strongly pariakes of the Haydn spirit. It begins with an exquisite pastoral melody for the reeds which is most deliciously treated and full of charming variety. It then rushes on to the Presto, which is a merry rustic dame abounding with sparkling humor and boisterous gaiety. In the finale the preceding themes are handled with great skill. After treating them in variations and with constantly changing shades of tone-color, he gives free rein to his powers, and the movement rushes on with constantly increasing vigor and spirit to a brilliant and sonorous close. Josef Linevinne, the celebrated plantet, will be the soloist and will be heard in the Liszt A Major concerto, with or-chestral accompaniment. ment. Never since Calve's superbrendering of this beautiful melody several years ago, has any singer given it with such beauty of phrasing ruch certainty of intonation, such gracefulness and case. Altogether her Rosina must go on record as a brilliant success. Her Juliet, too, in the Shaksperian-Gounod setting, was an example of sweet and charming girlishness; her balcony scene with Sterlin in the second act was most bewitching in its graceful winsomeness, and in the concluding and more tragic developments she displayed a keen perception of histriomic values while her waltz song was rendered with that case and abandon which won for her an easy way to the hearts of the audience, a position which she has securely maintained as the operatic performances have progressed. These two operas are on the Toronto bill, and much interest is aroused in the local appearance of this brilliant Canadian artist.

Centenary of Charles Dickens' Birth Celebrated Thruout World This Month

Author of "David Coppererfield," "Nicholas Nickleby," "Great Expectations" and Other Inimitable Studies of Real Life Was Born on Feb. 7., 1812

"Lord, keep my memory green." Had Charles Dickens chosen so to pray with the words which he made the spirit of his story, "The Haunted Man," and could he look upon the world to-day, he would behold ample fulfilment of his prayer for his memory has indeed been kept fresh and green with a luxurious verdure accorded to the memory of few.

This is no more than just. Indeed it is bare justice and nothing more for, now that a hundred years have elapsed since the birth of this great genius (Feb. 7, 1812) and nearly half that period since his death, men have that period since his death, men have come to know him as one of the greatest—benefactors of us, the English-speaking peoples and indeed of mankind at large.

Dickens' Centenary.

Dickens Appreciation by Lord Rosebery

'Dickens taught us how to laugh. The world, when 'Pickwick' appeared, was not a very gay world. It was, I admit, somewhere about the time of the Coronation of Queen Victoria, but when we read the literature of that time we see little trace of anything that could amuse anybody. The old jokes, the jokes of Scarron and the Restoration dramatists, and even the humor of Fielding and of Goldsmith no longer provoked laughter; but in this island, washed as it is, I think Lord consfield said, by a melancholy ocean, laughter is a physical necessity. And after all am I not right in saying that a laugh, a real laugh, at any literary product, except of course, a comedy on the stage any laugh over a book that you are reading is almost the rarest luxury which you can enjoy?

'Well, now, we live under a sunless sky, surrounded by a melancholy ocean, devoured, as our French friends tell us, by the spleen, and it is a physical necessity for the English nation, and even for the Scotch nation and the Welsh, to laugh. It is the most glorious and the most innocent of all the enjoyments. It exhilarates all social relations. Was not the laugh of Frank Lockwood something that would make a stuffed bird rejoice, and those who have listened to that splendor of merriment which he could impart by that laugh realize the intense value of that emotional exercise of ours. 'I do not think the literature of the early days of Queen Victoria or of the reign of William IV. was very exhibarating; but now anyone who tastes Dickens, and I suppose from the sale of his works the number of people who taste Dickens must be almost coterminous with the races of the world, and who feels depressed, who feels unhappy, who feels physically unwell, has only to take down his 'Pickwick,' and read a few pages possibly that he almost knows by heart already, and he will find himself indulging in that innocent and healthy exhibaration of membered. This is so because Dickens was not one who wrote in lofty style come all the Captains Cuttle, all th for the learned few but a great master Messrs. Pickwick and Samivel and to be found such public men. We hall with loving there will Dickens be remeet and greet with unrestrained wel-

The characters he depicted were more than written into literature, they were porn into the lives of those who read and to ay we pick out our lanned by the graterul oreath of English meadows. Of this he wrote:

"I have put five mirrors in the chalet where I write, and they reflect and refract, in all kinds of ways, the leaves that are shivering at the windows, the great fields of waving corn, and the sall-dotted river. My room is up among the branches of the trees, and the birds and the butterflies fly in and out, and the green branches shoot in at the open window, and the lights and shadows of the clouds come and go with the rest of the company. The scent of the flowers, and infeed of everything that is growing for miles ard miles, is most delicious."

Surely this brings us nearer to Dickens, the man as well as Dickens, the writer. In it we may partake in a measure of that great privilege of his intimates who, so says his grandal ameasure of that great privilege of his intimates who, so says his grandal anything in the great joy of his companionship.

We are shown the place which gave to lim and to us "The Old Curiosity Shop," Staple Inn in London which came to us "These and to be "Eleak House." These and a host of others together with the great pictures which have visualized David Copperfield, Dombey & Son, and makes one feel less timid as to the result if that uncouth jar chanced to fall to earth. And there is the frail sister, of beautiful form and mould, fashioned from the same clay, but made more lovely at the hearts of the real people that David Copperfield, Dombey & Son, and all the rest of the real people that David Copperfield or us.

Perhaps there has never been a writer who so wrote himself into the hearts of all the people as Dickens has done and therefore it is fitting that to-grant from the same clay, but made more lovely at the heart of the Potter. It would fall and crash into a thousand fragments. And there you have the whole problems there has never been a writer who so wrote himself into the hearts of the real people that to-grant from the same clay, but made more lovely at the hearts of the Potter. It would fall and crash into a thousand fragments. And there you have the whole problems there is the frail sister, of beautiful form and mould, fashioned from the same clay, but made more lovely at the heart of

When the Faderland is Ready.
Perhaps the wisest remark which has been let fall in the past few months was made by a writer in The Century Magazine, who stated that Germany would fight when she thought she could surely win. That is the German method—to get ready and then strike. It was Bismarck's method in the Franco-Prussian war, his curt telegram was not by any means the cause of that war. He was ready and France was not, therefore Germany grasped the opportunity. Some of the wisest men in England boldily state that Germany is getting ready—again. It matters little, even if clever men like Lord Longdale come back to England with assurances of the Emperor William's great love for the England. The Kalser Journal, altho known as a war lord, has probably stopped more international trouble than most monarchs. As a matter of fact he has been known to close the throttle when the majority matter of fact he has been known to close the throttle when the majority of Germans had decided to go ahead. But even a monarch cannot always hold back a nation, as has been proven many times before in the history of the world. No one should forget the close call last summer when Eng-

The "Feminist" movement in France dates from the Revolution of 1759, when Olympe de Gouges presented to Marie Antoinette the "Declaration of the Rights of Women." It was not until 1830 that the feminist movement in France again became active, and then for a time it followed a rather unfortunate course. The extravagance of the "Saint Simoniens" brought ridicule and discredit upon the party, which not even the genius of a Georges Sand was able toneutralize.

In 1846 feminism in France became completely identified with Socialisma a quanced views on the relations of the sexes held by some of its prominent advocates, tended for many years to create a prejudice in the minds of the majority, which greatly retarded the progress of the woman's movement, and which the efforts of the "Tinion Francaise pour le Suffrage des Fem-

Fritzi Scheff's Brilliant Career

A Graduate of Grand Opera, Now Recognized as America's Leading Light Opera Prima Donna.

FRITZI SCHEFF graduated from grand opera to become the leading light opera star of the American stage. She is a daughter of Vienna, and evidently "to the manor born," for her mother, Anna Scheff Jaeger, was one of the best-known prima donnas in German opera.

Because she sang so well at three years of age the little Fritzi was regarded as a prodigy. But her mother, wisely knowing that one prima, donna is worth a dozen child wonders, refused to allow her daughter to sing in public and instead commenced to give her vocal training. Until she was 17 years old, Fraulein Fritzi was a hard-working student, for be it known, success in grand, opera is not attained without hard work. At-17 she made her professional debut as a prima donna, appearing as Juliet in Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," and scoring an instantanceus triumph. And such recognition dld her beauty, piquancy and above all her flute-like voice win her that she became the talk of the hour. Oddly enough, the second role with which she won success, was Adele, in Johann Strauss' masterpiece, "Night Birds" (Die Fledermaus), the very part in the very play which is her present season's medium. And it was while singing this part in those early days that Maurice Grau met her and immediately determined that she was just the singer he wanted for the Metropolitan Opera Company, of which he was then the presiding genius. He made her an offer that almost staggered her, and the next season saw her as a member of Grau's famous grand opera company singing for the first time such stamped her individuality on the New Madame Scheff's light opera reper-York public that writers began to make toire includes "Babette," "The Two

A HAPPY INTRODUCTION.

New York Evening Post: The first. explanation that leaps to the mind of the amazing speech in which the governor of Michigan prepared to introduce Senator La Follette at a political rally, is that Gov. Osborn was seized with a sudden ambition to go Mark Antony one better, and to bury Caesar, as well that he would be delighted to vote for him for president, if he was a choice between that and being hanged. SONG-ADORNED COMEDY

THIS IS THE BEST WILSON PLAY SO FAR PRODUCED

A SPLENDID CAST BIG PRODUCTION

Al. H. Wilson, credited by many with being the most popular singing comedian, will be seen as the central character in his new song-adorned comedy, "It Happened in Potsdam," an adaptation from the French by Cyril Reed, which is described as a dainty love romance set in a frame of mirth and comedy. It is written along the usual Wilson lines of mirth and refinement, not a word or situation in the piece being calculated to offend the most modest person. The author has provided a delightful atmosphere, with the result that it is said to be the most characteristically German comedy presented in years. Mr. Wil son is acknowledged to be one of the sweetest-voiced singers on the stage, and in "It Happened in Potsdam" he has ample opportunity to display the strength and control of the eccentric German who returns from an extended journey to the Orient for the purpose of marrying the sweetheart of his boy-like sing and his artistic love making is of the kind that is both pleasing and amusing. The play is said to be constructed along lines different from those introduced in any of Mr. Wilson's previous offerings. A description of Mr. Wilson's new vehicle would not be complete without mention of the musical part of the program. With each new production he can be depended upon to furnish several new songs and he has not made an exception this season. Thruout the action of the comedy there are interspersed several tuneful melodies that will no doubt be appreciated by those who admire the Wilson style of sorgs. They include "When You Part From the Girl You Love," "Songs of Old Fatherland," "Her Smile" and "Loves of Bygone Days." He will also introduce a selection from the best of his favorite songs made famous in the
