Talk of More Troops Being Sent Into Country — General MacCreedy Makes Suggestions to Government.

London, May 12—Reports of an unusual number of activities by armed and masked men in various sections of Ireland were received in London today. The reports began trickling in early in the morning and by noon had reached the proportions of an avalanche.

"BLUEBEARD" IS SUED BY WOMAN

Los Angeles, Cal., May 13—Mrs. Catharine Wombacher, whose suspicious husband caused the arrest of James P. Watson, recently filed a suit to annul the marriage. She is one who caused arrest of Watson in California.

As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram," said the Times reporter, "is gathering material for a scenario to be entitled 'The Trail of the Lost Women.' There are no women in St. John. They have been swallowed by the sea."

OLD CLOES DAY IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., May 13—Threadbare coats, shiny trousers, last year's staves and re-soled shoes were the order of the day here, signalling the opening of the city's second organized drive on Old Clothes Day.

A Second Organized Drive Against High Cost of Living.

London, May 13—The registrar-general's annual report shows the marriage rate to be the highest on record and the death rate the lowest. While the birth rate has not yet had time to recover from war effects it is steadily improving and fewer children are dying in infancy.

THE MATTER OF A HARBOR PATROL

Believe Shipping People Would Contribute to Its Upkeep. Opinion of Mr. Ledingham. That the suggestion of Commissioner Bullock to have the shipping concerns of the city contribute to a fund that will enable the city to establish a harbor patrol is being entertained favorably by the shipping people of the city.

MATTER OF PAY OF TEACHERS IN FREDERICTON

Fredericton, May 12—The Fredericton School Board dealt with the salary question yesterday. Objections were taken to the fact that for St. John a minimum of $700 has been set, while for Fredericton the minimum is $800.

FARMING OUTLOOK IN EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

Sherbrooke, Que., May 13—Seeding has been going on throughout the Eastern Townships during the last few weeks. Work on the farms has been held back to quite an extent by the cold and raw weather and, in addition, the farmers are finding it a rather difficult task securing sufficient help.

"NICKY" DOES NOT LET POLICE CAUSE HIM WORRY

Cleveland, May 13—Through friends here Armet, alleged "master mind," last night transmitted an ultimatum to those seeking to capture him. In substance it was: "I will not compromise on a demand that my bail be not more than $50,000. I stand on $50,000 as a matter of principle."

FARMERS MAKE DEMANDS TO THE PARTIES IN STATES

Chicago, May 15—Recognition for farmers will be asked of the platform makers of each of the two great American political parties at their June conventions by representatives of the various farm organizations of the country.

BORDEN MAY HOLD OFFICE FOR SOME MONTHS

Ottawa, May 13—Sir Robert Borden presided over a meeting of the cabinet. The budget, it is understood, was under consideration. Of what Sir Borden's intentions are he has given no indication, but it is learned on high authority that he has no intention of retiring for some months at any rate.

DEATHS IN MOTHERLAND

London, May 13—(By the Canadian Associated Press)—The death of the following has occurred: Lord Digby, Dorsetshire; J. G. Bulstee, a steepie chaser; Percy Wheeler, a chancery lawyer; C. F. MacLaren, a Scottish iron master, and Hugh Thompson, an artist.

WEATHER REPORT

Maritime—Moderate winds, showers tonight. Friday, strong northeast and north winds, cooler and probably rain in eastern portion. Gulf and North Shore—Fresh northwesterly winds, fair today and on Friday.

CLEARING HOUSE FOR AFFAIRS OF THE EMPIRE

London, May 13—(Canadian Associated Press)—Lord Milner, at a luncheon to Mr. Watt, Australian treasurer, advocated a sort of clearing house committee for imperial affairs.

JAMES SNOW IS ELECTROCUTED IN HALIFAX

Halifax, May 13—James Snow, foreman electrician at the pump house, fell from a scaffold, met instant death by electrocution today. While connecting wires on the platform of the pump house he came in contact with a live wire and received a shock of about 500 volts for seven minutes before the power could be shut off.

LOCAL NEWS

VISITING SHIRINERS. Shriners arrived in the city on the Montreal train today to attend a degree meeting here. AT THE HOSPITAL. Inquiry at the General Public Hospital this morning elicited the information that Mrs. Anne Stone, who was injured by being struck by an automobile in Main street on Tuesday, is resting fairly comfortably.

JARVIS SCORES GOVERNMENT ON NAVY MATTER

(Canadian Press.) Toronto, May 13—Declaring that no body wanted war, but that provision for war must be made, and that a strong merchant marine, a strong navy and a strong naval policy for Canada were essential, Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody, former minister of education for Ontario, in addressing a convention of delegates to the Navy League of Canada, Ontario branch, here yesterday afternoon, urged the importance of training boys to man the merchant marine, which was vital to commerce, he said, and which became an integral part of the navy in time of war.

LOCAL WRESTLING

The sporting editor of the Times received a letter today from Arthur Larabar, a wrestler from Halifax, saying that he is in the city seeking a match with Joe Irvine. He says the latter must meet him or stop making excuses as to side bets, etc. He says he is agreeable to meet Irvine winner to take all. Joe Irvine is at present working on his father's farm in Oranmore, but recently said that he would willingly meet Larabar if satisfactory arrangements could be made.

PUT EMBARGO ON COAL TO CANADA

Proposal to Congress in Bill Because of the Matter of Pulpwood. Sharon, Pa., May 13—As a retaliatory measure for the present Canadian embargo upon pulp wood paper, United States Representative Willis J. Hollings announced here today that he would introduce a bill in congress soon for placing an embargo upon coal to Canada. He said he is gathering data now with that end in view.

FARM LABOR IN WEST ONTARIO SCARCE AND SMALLER ACREAGE SOWN

Sarnia, Ont., May 13—Shortage of farm help is keenly felt throughout rural localities of western Ontario. So acute has this become that a largely decreased acreage sown is the alternative. One prominent Plympton farmer said that in an area of 1,200 acres, only fifty acres are sown to crop. Showers and warm weather are badly needed for crops.

FATHER CARLETON WAS VERY ILL, BUT BETTER THIS MORNING

Winnipeg, May 13—The dominion labor party last night cancelled all previous negotiations of their candidates for the provincial election in this city, which have hitherto included the imprisoned labor leaders, and will submit to the membership a new list of names from which a ticket will be drawn a fortnight hence.

BARGE AGROUND

Quebec, May 12—The steam barge Atikagan, with the barge Thunder 103 in tow, grounded in the St. Lawrence to night off Madame Island. The Atikagan left here this afternoon at three o'clock for Sydney and when off Madame Island she lost her rudder and drifted ashore. The tug Lord Strathcona and Busy Bay of the Davie Shipbuilding Company, are preparing to go to the assistance of the two vessels.

SCHOONER WRECKED

New York, May 12—The American schooner Florence Thurlow, which sails from Boston, was wrecked in a collision tonight about seventy-five miles southeast of Sandy Hook with the steamer Laramie, which reported the accident by wireless. The crew of fourteen men were rescued.

PROPAGANDA FUND

Montreal, May 12—A million dollar fund for the propaganda of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was foreshadowed tonight at the annual dinner of the Montreal branch. Among the guests were Colonel W. Grant Morden, Sir James McKechnie, head of the Vickers firm of England, and many of the business leaders of the province.

AGAINST SULTAN

Constantinople, May 12—Turkish Nationalist troops have repulsed forces loyal to the sultan near Iznik and are advancing toward the Dardanelles. They have released all prisoners recently taken at Brusa and Adababazar would not agree to join Mustafa Kemal's army. Descriptions to the Nationalist army are reported to threaten the sultan's forces with collapse.

COMMON COUNCIL

City Must Make New Bank Arrangements Regarding Loans — Harbor Commission Up Again—The Lumber Inquiry.

The fact that the city's overdraft amounted to nearly $500,000 and that the banks were curtailing loans, were among the statements made at yesterday's meeting of the common council. The mayor said new arrangements would have to be made with the banks on July 1.

Commissioner Frink took his seat in the city council. The report of the committee of the whole was adopted except the section recommending the tender of C. Simon & Company for excavation and re-fill in Douglas avenue, which is to come up again.

The mayor spoke about the small demand for city bonds and Mr. Thornton said that the Douglas avenue residents were willing to buy bonds if the street work would be carried out there.

Reference to the commissioner of public works was made of an application of the owners of the Globe-Atlantic building for permission to erect a sign over the sidewalk in Prince William street.

W. E. Lane of 180 Wright street, asked the city to pay part of the $400 or $500 water damages he claimed to have sus-ained through the flooding of his dwelling. The request was referred to Messrs. Jones and Frink.

On motion of Mr. Thornton the warrant of William H. Ruddock, resigned from No. 1 Salvage Corps, was cancelled. The vacancy on the school board, caused by the death of James V. Russell, was laid over until Mr. Bullock attends the council.

Dr. Frink said that No. 1 stone crusher needed repairs costing $821 and he was authorized to purchase two manganese steel jaws. He also called attention to the fact that the Elco truck had been out of order seven months and would require $812 for the necessary renewal of two parts. He was authorized to procure them.

Mr. Jones said that the county housing board desired water pipes for fifteen houses in Fairville at a cost of about $2,000. As the revenue would amount to $282 annually and similar arrangements had been made in Landsdowne and Mount Pleasant avenue, he thought the same arrangement would be profitable to the city. The council agreed to furnish eighteen-inch pipes.

Commissioner Frink brought up the matter of the harbor act and moved that it be taken up at a special meeting of the council, and this was agreed to. The date will be set later.

Mr. Jones moved a resolution that the city commission be a committee to investigate the whole matter of trespassing and cutting and report its findings to the council, the city solicitor to represent the city at the hearing. Dr. Frink seconded the resolution, and it was adopted unanimously. Mayor Schofield will name the date of the hearing.

Your Spring Clothes

There is something about the new season and its balmy breezes that gives a man that jaunty, gingery feeling—that is, if he is dressed in Clothes such as ours. The smartness of our new Spring Suits and Topcoats, and the sense of good grooming that they influence, make a man throw out his chest and assume an unconscious swagger of pride and self-satisfaction. Isn't it wonderful what good quality, good style and good fit in clothes will do to a man's appearance and independence?

TO GO ON STRIKE. Pittsburgh, May 12.—Passenger and freight engineers and firemen of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroads, in session here tonight, voted almost unanimously to go on strike at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. "Good wine needs no bush," says an old adage. The same holds good about "B" Brand Cider. All dealers. The Maritime Cider Co. St. John, N. B.

The Evening Times and Star

ST. JOHN, N. B., MAY 13, 1920.

The St. John Evening Times is printed at 27 and 29 Canterbury Street, every evening (Sunday excepted) by The St. John Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd., a company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act.

THE WHEAT SHORTAGE.

The wheat shortage is a fact which cannot be brushed aside or obscured. The situation must be faced, and for some time to come high prices for flour and other wheat products must be paid. The Toronto Globe reminds us that Europe faces a wheat crisis and that "Mr. Charles McCurdy, the British minister of food, told the house of commons on Thursday of last week that there would be a falling-off during the present year of four million tons in the supply of wheat from the North American continent, while India, which has an increase of a million and a half tons, would not be in a position to increase exports to Britain."

The West End Improvement League, at its meeting last evening, discussed more than playgrounds. While it completed its organization to carry on baseball and athletic activities on a much wider scale than heretofore, Chairman Scully and others referred to other matters which might well engage its attention. There are many ways in which such an organization can serve the community, and if the people rally to the support of the League they will surprise themselves by the results they will accomplish.

The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated has applied to the Quebec Public Service Commission for authority to increase its rates for gas from $1 per thousand feet gross and eighty-five and eighty cents net, to $1.10 gross and $1 net. Why should gas be so much cheaper in Montreal than in St. John?

The Canadian National Railways are boosting the St. John Valley Railway and the attractions of that region. Why not provide a train service that will give the people a chance to enjoy the pleasures described? Both city and country people want an adequate summer service out of St. John.

If the citizens are to enjoy the summer recreations to the full they should have daylight saving. If there are to be gardens, and there should be more than ever, daylight time will make their cultivation easier.

The vocational training board in this city should be placed in a position financially to carry on and extend its work in keeping with the need that has been demonstrated during the last six months.

There is a great shortage of farm help in western Ontario, and the result, it is said, is a greatly decreased area sown to crops.

The city council will undoubtedly regard with hearty sympathy the appeal of the north end for a playground.

Sir Arthur Currie will be in St. John on May 31. He will receive a very warm welcome from the citizens.

PROFIT WELL UP TO $1,500,000 Report on Operation of Government Merchant Marine.

Ottawa, May 13—A total profit of $1,466,761.38 on operation of the government merchant marine from the commencement of the service on March 1, 1919, to December 31, 1919, is shown in the annual report tabled in the House of Commons yesterday.

TAXI SPEEDS FOUR BLOCKS WITH DEAD MAN AT WHEEL. New York, May 12—Speeding for more than four blocks in the heart of the city with a dead man at the steering wheel, a taxicab plunged into a stone wall skirting Central Park, after narrowly escaping collision with other automobiles.

CARMEN TO ASK FOR CONCILIATION BOARD. Montreal, May 13—At a meeting of the carmen last night it was unanimously decided to make application for a board of conciliation for the Montreal Tramway Union. The offer of the tramway commission in answer to the men's demands for 75 cents an hour and an eight hour day, was rejected unanimously. The commission was willing to split up a sum between $250,000 and $300,000 in wages for the next year which commences July 1.

RING-GILES. Last evening at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Ring, 110 Portland street, Miss Florence Alola Giles, was united in marriage to Wellington Ring, by Rev. G. D. Hudson, pastor of the Victoria street Baptist church. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Charles Giles of the Fuller Construction Company, Moncton, looked charming in a wedding gown of white silk mull and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and pink roses. Many beautiful and valuable gifts were received including many pieces of cut glass and silver. The groom is wearing a handsome mahogany clock from her former employer, James S. Gregory, while the bride received a substantial sum in gold from Mr. McAlary, Douglas avenue, in whose employ she formerly worked. Mr. and Mrs. Ring will reside at 114 Victoria street.

DIED LAST EVENING. Ernest Walter Adams, a native of St. John's, Antigua, B. W. I., died last evening at the home of Mrs. George Hector, 81 Spur Cove road, after a lingering illness. He was twenty-five years of age and is survived by his father and mother and eleven brothers and sisters, all of St. John's, Antigua. He had been a resident of this city for eight years. His funeral will take place Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

SHOES. I priced a pair of shoes today; I asked the price, and went away. The dealer begged, in frenzied tones, that I would hand him twenty bones, and clothe my hoofs in shining kid, as other gorgeous spendthrifts did. "Nay, nay," I said, "again, nay, nay! I'll fall for no such graft today. I will not pamper my old feet, and make them think they're cute and sweet. I yearned then in a frugal way, and I won't let them get too gay. If they were shoes at such a price they'd soon be feeling too blamed nice, and they would look with high disdain on feet attired in leather plain." Then I went home and climbed the stair that leads up to the attic bare, where all the household junk's been thrown, for years whose number is not known. And there I found old shoes galore; a dozen pairs were on the floor, all lying in a straggling heap, though there is times when shoes were cheap. I had the cobbler fix the soles and sew a few unsightly holes, and now I've shoes enough. I won't, to last me till at last I'm shot. You see the moral very well: One way to beat the H. C. L.

CANADA—EAST AND WEST THE BUDGET ON NEXT TUESDAY

Sir George E. Foster Announces in Commons Premier Takes His Seat—Discussion Over Franchise Bill Clause Relative to the Use of Provincial Lists.

(Canadian Press.) Ottawa, May 13—Yesterday in the House of Commons Sir Robert Borden took his annual budget. Sir George E. Foster announced that the budget would be brought down on Tuesday and that on Monday night the House would take committee on supply. A bill giving municipalities power to regulate employment offices was given first reading. Senate amendments to the act respecting honorees were modified and the bill returned to the senate. A bill to amend the supreme court act was reported from committee. The Franchise bill was again taken up in committee. Clause 92, dealing with the use of provincial lists where such were not more than one year old was amended on motion of Mr. Gauthier so as to provide that lists could be obtained by any person applying therefore "for the purposes of this act," on payment of a fee. Hon. W. S. Fielding intimated that he might bring in an amendment asking for provincial lists to be used in Nova Scotia. He understood that this course would also be satisfactory to the people of Nova Scotia. R. H. Butts, of Cape Breton, strongly criticized Mr. Fielding on the ground that in 1920 Mr. Fielding disfranchised large numbers of the Britishers while now he was leading the cause of aliens. A. L. Davidson of Digby and Annapolis, Mr. Fielding's suggestion that provincial lists in Nova Scotia be used for federal elections was open to serious question. These lists were revised by municipal councils appointed for their political leanings. Mr. Gauthier said he would hesitate to adopt the Nova Scotia lists. For one reason the appeals in Nova Scotia were to a sheriff, who had generally no qualifications for the decision of legal points. He intimated that later he would propose an amendment providing that in rural sub-divisions, a voter whose name was not on the list would be given the vote on the oath of two residents, and on his own oath that he was qualified. The lists proposed under the bill would be up to date and provide against plugging. Mr. Gauthier said he would accept the provincial lists where possible, but in most provinces this would not be possible because they had not been revised since last election. He would accept any lists not more than a year old, provided they were subject to the provisions of the appeal clauses of the present bill. William Duff of Lunenburg said that he doubted very much if the revisers in Mr. Davidson's county had really been appointed by a political council, as Mr. Davidson stated. Mr. Davidson remarked that this he withdrew. Mr. Duff said that he had not doubted anybody's word. He suggested that Mr. Davidson should be informed on the point. He knew something of procedure in the neighboring county, and he did not believe that this was true. Mr. Davidson still objected strenuously, and Deputy Speaker Bolvin ruled that only on the understanding that Mr. Davidson would not accuse Mr. Davidson of mis-statement could the debate be allowed to proceed. Mr. Duff assented. Considerable debate centered around the report of one man in P. E. Island being able to swear out an affidavit containing the names of 600 men and get them on the list.

DREAM NO MORE. I walked beside the evening sea, And dreamed the dream that could not be; The waves that plunged along the shore Said only—"Dreamer, dream no more!"

IN LIGHTER VEIN. For some one else. Johns—What kind of a girl is she? Jones—The kind that everybody says will make a good wife for somebody some day.—Stray Stories.

The "Perks" Reduced. Agent—"I have called, sir, to show you our new patent cast-iron register, prevents all peculations, sir; makes it utterly impossible for any assistant to steal a penny." Mr. Slowgo—"Don't want it." Agent—"You don't?" Mr. Slowgo—"No, sir. The man next door put in one of them things yesterday and before night the whole staff had struck for higher wages."

Agreeable. Motorist (arrested for speeding)—A fine morning, isn't it, judge? Judge—It is. Ten dollars, to be exact.—Home Sector.

A tramcar collided with a milk cart and sent can after can of milk splashing into the street. Soon a large crowd gathered. A very short man coming up had to stand on tiptoe to see past a stout woman in front of him. "Goodness!" he exclaimed, "What an awful waste!"

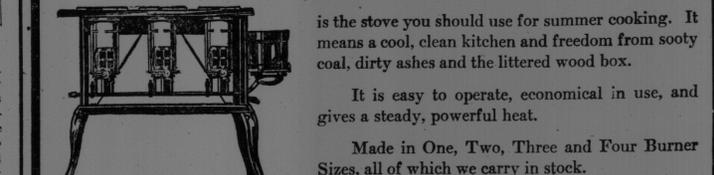

The stout woman turned round and glared at the little man, and said, sternly: "Mind your own business!"

The Amorous One—"Do you ever peep through the keyhole when I am sitting in there with your sister?" Small Brother (with a burst of candor)—"Sometimes. When mother ain't there."—London Blighly.

SELL KAISER'S THRONE FITTINGS IN NEW YORK. New York, May 13—The imperial German throne and furnishings of the throne room are to be sold here at auction. Household effects of former Kaiser Wilhelm, the former Kaiserin and other members of the German imperial family, seized in the imperial palaces of Berlin and Munich for unpaid bills after the emperor abdicated and went to Holland, also will be sold under the hammer on May 22, so one of the city's largest art collectors announced yesterday.

Sixty-five pieces are in the collection which was brought here two weeks ago by the purchaser and importer, Valdeur Forelun.

BRILLIANT ADDRESSES AND LARGE GRADUATING CLASS MARK THE U. N. B. ENCAENIA AT CAPITAL

Colonel Murray MacLaren's Inspiring Words To The Graduates

Professor A. W. Duff of Worcester, in Alumni Oration, Recalls Incentives Which Urged Life Work of Great Men of Science and Draws Lesson—H. D. McKnight's Vaedictor—Alumni and Alumnae Meetings

Fredericton, N. B., May 13—This is encaenia day at the University of New Brunswick and there was a large gathering at the exercises, which were of much interest. The graduating class is large this year.

At two o'clock the academical procession was formed in Dr. Cox's lecture room. Half an hour later the proceedings were opened by His Honor Lieutenant Governor Pugsley taking the chair.

At three o'clock came the conferring of degrees, presentation of prizes, etc. Addresses to the graduating class by Colonel Murray MacLaren, C. M., G. M., the alumni oration by Prof. A. Wilmer Duff, M. A., D. Sc., of Worcester, Mass., and the Vaedictor by Hilton D. McKnight followed.

Colonel Murray MacLaren's address to the graduating class was as follows: Members of the graduating class of 1920: The University has allotted to me, on this encaenia day, the pleasing duty of warmly congratulating you upon the successful completion of your undergraduate curriculum.

Diligent application has been required to satisfy the standards and now, you are passing out from the university. As loyal sons and daughters you are not leaving her but, will surely, in the future manifest the interest and affection in her welfare to which she is fairly entitled.

The steadfast aim of our venerated and honored institution has ever been to offer a training thorough and sound. Amid the peaceful surroundings of the College hill, without ostentation she sought to impress upon her students, whatever things are true, whatever things are honest, whatever things are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report.

Many of you have had the glory of fighting for your country; all have enjoyed the advantages of a university life, of receiving instruction from a staff of able and earnest men, invaluable instruction and mental training, and, not least of all, of forming friendships, you have studied with diligence which no doubt varied with the individual but all, I am satisfied, have worked hard and with a purpose.

Muller once said that Oxford would be Paradise regained if the long vacation lasted the whole year. You have not harbored such a thought. This was not the utterance of an undergraduate as one might assume. Here amidst my present surroundings let me say, but only so to you as a student, that I am a professor. To be fair, however, it will be admitted that Muller's wish was for an opportunity, for uninterrupted work and thought.

Given good health, the future is in your own hands for the making, the responsibility is placed squarely upon your shoulders, there is no shirking, no safety with full appreciation of the difficulties before you, with courage in your hearts, you will gladly and proudly pass on.

You may be assured that the University will follow your progress with keen interest, your welfare will be her hope, your distinction will be her glory. I would that I might say something helpful to you today, a word of wisdom. Much can be done to cultivate it. The ancient philosophers according to Cicero, defined wisdom to be the knowledge of things human and divine, and the causes by which these things are regulated; a study that if any man despises, what can he think deserveth of? As a guide to wisdom, I urge upon you the contemplation of the lives of eminent men.

It is striking, though not surprising, how frequently it occurs that with great professional attainments and splendid scientific capabilities, there is associated nobility of character. It is hardly as much an association as that the possession of a noble character is an important factor and assists so much in the full achievement of a successful vocational life. Character is essential in bringing out and making the most of literary, scientific and all other attainments.

It is but a few years since I had the privilege of being shown the Bodleian library and having had the treasures pointed out to me by the regius professor at Oxford, the late Sir William Osler. Osler was one of the most eminent physicians of his time with remarkable literary gifts. From his intense humanitarianism and qualities of heart and mind, he has been described as the best loved man in the world. He filled professorial chairs successively in four universities, Montreal, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Oxford, and termed himself a university tramp. His addresses on academic occasions are memorable. One of his ideals was to cultivate such a measure of equanimity as would enable him to bear success with humility, the affection of his friends without pride, and to be ready when the day of sorrow and grief came to meet it with courage befitting a man.

To the students of Toronto University he told the secret of life. The master word, he said, I propose to give you in the hope, yes in the assurance that some of you at least will lay hold upon it to your profit. Though a little on the master word looms large in meaning, it is the open sesame of every portal, the great equalizer in the world, the true philosopher's stone which transmutes all the base metal of humanity into gold. Not only has it been the touchstone of progress, but it is the measure of success in every life. And the master word is Work. Write it upon the tablets of your heart and bind it upon your forehead.

For our peace of mind, we should never forget the deep conviction which the hatefulness of strife, of the uselessness of its disastrous effect and the still deeper conviction of the blessings that come with unity, peace and concord.

In the autumn of 1914, a few weeks before his end, there came to see the Canadian Overseas Forces, then in Salisbury Plain, an old man, the greatest British soldier of his day and yet his grandest work, though ineffectual as it proved, was done at the age of eighty, when, perceiving the danger the Empire stood in from unpreparedness, he carried on his glorious campaign against the ignorance, the apathy and the long standing prejudice of the country, the clarity that the tendency to forget the lessons of past events as soon as those events are over seems to be almost irresistible. Nothing apparently but the sole disaster is likely to cure us of the inveterate belief that somehow or other we are exempt from all the laws which govern the rise and fall of nations, and can always rely upon some miraculous interposition of Providence to see us through the hours of danger.

Throughout the country he dared to urge his convictions, which fell for the greater part upon unwilling and hostile ears. Like Cassandra's his word of warning wisdom went unheeded and were soon followed by those dire consequences, which the whole world now realizes. Yet his brave independent spirit and patriotism and the complete vindication of his appeal should surely cause the British nation to be proud and thankful for such a man as Lord Roberts.

Think of the motto of our university "Sapere Aude," dare to be wise. Be dauntless in acquiring wisdom. It means in pursuing one's course in life, diligence, application, independence, resolution, abnegation, an open mind, steadfastness of purpose. Write it upon the tablets of your hearts and bind it upon your forehead.

The motto of the University of Aberdeen, chosen from the Book of Proverbs, gives the guidance to the basis of Wisdom, Timor Domini Initium Sapientiae. When visiting Aberdeen, the granite city of the North, in 1917, I saw on the walls of Marischal College the quaint words placed there in 1698 by its founder the fifth Earl of Marischal: "They have said, 'What sayeth the Lord?' There is in them a breath of Boreas. Yet the spirit of the saying is, that we should not be carried away by popular clamor or prejudice, but courageously pursue the path of wisdom. Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom. Sapere Aude."

"This is the work that year by year, While in her place the school is set Every one of her sons must hear And none that hears it dare forget. This they all with joyful mind Bear through life like a torch in flame, And falling fling to the host behind— Play up, play up, and play the game."

And now, graduates, on behalf of the University, I bid you farewell and God speed.

Prof. A. W. Duff, in his alumni oration, said:— When asked by the Alumni Society to speak as its representative at the exercises of today, I hesitated at first because after many years of absence from Canada, I could not feel that I had any acquaintance with matters peculiar to this province or to Canada at large. But after the great world struggle, in which Canada took such a gallant part, we have come to realize that there are many problems of pressing importance common to men everywhere, and so, having accepted, I felt inclined to speak on some of these wider issues and especially to emphasize the value of that fuller understanding of each others motives that has come to the English-speaking nations and the supreme importance to the whole world of preserving this good will. But these are topics more suited to a different occasion. If there is any answer from the youth of a man has to offer to the youth of the next generation on an occasion like this it is most likely to come from the fruits of his own most familiar experiences. I propose, therefore, to speak to you on what may seem a somewhat limited theme, "The motives of scientific work," but I hope to be able to show you that conclusions drawn from this narrower field have an application of some value to all forms of intellectual work and even to work of any kind.

I hope you will not think me guilty of levity in the treatment of a serious theme if I put the matter in a way that would, after all, have appealed to Socrates in his search after human motives. A distinguished astronomer who is something of a humorist as well as a philosopher, is in the habit of asking his fellow workers, "If you were cast away on a remote island from which you could never hope to escape, and if you found there a fully equipped observatory and library, would you go to work on astronomy or not?" Now it is true that such scientific Robinson Crusoe is likely ever to exist and a man can never be certain what he would do in very improbable circumstances. Yet, since the question is a somewhat novel and striking variant of the more general and more vague inquiry, "Why do some men, who might be otherwise engaged, pursue research?" it is not without interest, considering the extent to which the world has depended for its progress on scientific discoveries. But how can an adequate answer to such a question be obtained? You would not, I believe, be satisfied with a person's answer from any but one of the great investigators who have given a new impetus or direction to the progress of discovery of Nature's secrets. Of course I speak only of physicists; there are perhaps not more than half a dozen among our contemporaries. Not having them here as witnesses I propose to offer other evidence which is, I believe, both positive and pertinent. The lives of many of the great of the past, who were perhaps only dimly aware of their own motives, tell us in no uncertain way of the spirit that animated them. If the few facts which I shall narrate are familiar to many of you, I can only plead, in the words of Carlyle that "Great men, taken in any way, are profitable company. We cannot look, however imperfectly, upon a great man without gaining something from him. On any terms whatever you will not grudge to wander in such neighborhood for a while."

The Name of Newton. Highest in the roll of physicists stands the name of Isaac Newton. His popular fame rests on his discovery of the law of gravitation, but, to the physicist, he is the greatest master of the science, who laid broad and deep most of the foundation on which the immense structure of physical science has been erected. It is no exaggeration to say that his discoveries in physics, if divided among half a dozen other men, would endow them with immortal names in the history of science. But Newton was not only the greatest of physicists, he was also one of the greatest of pure mathematicians. In a very real sense it may be said that nearly all mathematics and most modern engineering are founded on that bagliest of the non-mathematical among college students, the Differential and Integral Calculus, of which Newton and Leibnitz were independent discoverers. The tails of the process by which Newton made his great discoveries and the well-known Royal Mint and a member of parliament who took his duties seriously. He was also very active in the administration of Cambridge University and devoted to the study of natural subjects, especially Theology, on which he wrote several works; he even quaintly expressed the hope that his Commentary on the Book of Revelations would live, even if his scientific work should prove to be unimportant.

Turning now to the question of how Newton was able to accomplish so much in science, we may note first the extraordinary power of mental concentration which he possessed. The only opinion that this was the only exceptional talent which he possessed. At times, in his immersion in profound research, he would forget to eat and to sleep, and would spend entire nights of time and space and even omitted his ordinary meals without being in the least aware of it. It is said he passed five days without sleep, but it is probable that an abnormal physical condition had something to do with the circumstances. Now it is evident that such concentration on one subject could come only from the profound satisfaction which the occupation afforded. Indeed nothing can be more evident than that Newton's chief impulse in his scientific work was the pleasure he derived from the game he played with nature to wrest her secrets from her.

The thought of any material profit from the occupation or even any desire of the fame of accomplishment must have been a distraction that would have made such absolute concentration an impossibility. If there is any doubt about this, it is settled by an incident that took place early in Newton's career. When he had published the first instalment of his great work on Optics, he became involved in a dispute with Lucas, a mathematical professor at Liege. After conducting the controversy for some time with great patience and courtesy, he wrote to a friend: "I see I have made myself a slave to philosophy, but if I get free of Mr. Lucas' business I will resolutely bid adieu to it eternally, excepting what I do for my own private satisfaction or leave to come out from me; for I see that a man must resolve to put out nothing new, or to become a slave to defend it. . . . Philosophy is such an impertinent litigious lady that a man has as good as engaged in law suits as have to do with her." Luckily he was persuaded to break this resolution.

Newton's Investigations. Newton was the greatest physicist of the seventeenth century. Let us turn now to his most eminent successor in the eighteenth century. With one possible exception, probably no physicist ever lived so completely for the pleasure of research as Henry Cavendish and, by virtue of his wealth and position of the wealthiest man of his time, in his three London houses Cavendish lived, with slight exceptions, the life of a hermit. Every Thursday he died with his fellow-members of the Royal Society. His dinners on other days were ordered by a note placed on his hall table and his servants were directed to keep out of his sight on pain of dismissal. The only relative he saw was his nephew and heir, and him he only saw for a few minutes once a year. About once a year also his tailor visited him by appointment, when his services had become indispensable. The only evidence that Cavendish was not a complete sybarite of science is the fact that, at regular hours on certain days he attended at one of his houses, where he kept his books, to lend them to anyone who could use them intelligently. Some of his investigations were communicated by Cavendish to the Royal Society and the reputation of being one of the greatest living scientists, but the most of his discoveries were completely described in documents which were sealed and filed away in his study and were not published until nearly 100 years later, when it was found that he had anticipated many of the important discoveries made later by Michael Faraday, William Black and others. When we contemplate the life, the possessions and position of this singular man of genius, we must admit that the keen pleasure he derived from research was almost the single impelling motive in his life, while there is no evidence that he was constitutionally lacking in any of the ordinary capacities for pleasure.

Among the leaders of Physics in the 19th Century I choose William Thomson, Lord Kelvin, as a representative. Any of his great contemporaries, Faraday, Maxwell or Helmholtz would serve my purpose equally well, but Kelvin's life is a singularly agreeable one to contemplate. While popularly known as the creator of the Atlantic cable, in the extraordinary range of his work he recalls and even excelled Newton; for since Newton's time a new and very important branch, that of Electric Currents, has been added to Physics by the discoveries of Volta and Faraday. In fact, the range of Physics has now become so wide that it is improbable that Newton and Kelvin will have a successor to stride the Science as a Colossus. It is, on the whole, the one least capable of practical application of problems, is worthy of consideration by those who think that the conditions of life on this continent are hostile to idealism. No one who ever saw Newton could doubt that behind the glare of his eyes and the singular intensity of attitude of his burly figure lay a character of unusual strength and intensity of purpose of which he would have been found in the front line of almost any profession that he might have chosen. Life on the astronomer's island would have had some compensations for Gibbs.

Born in Noya Scotia. Of a different type and temperament was Simon Newcomb. Born in Nova Scotia and resident, I believe, in New Brunswick, he went at an early age to the United States and ultimately became the greatest astronomer of his day. It is a curious fact that astronomy is the only branch of pure science in which America leads the world and it is, on the whole, the one least capable of practical application of problems, is worthy of consideration by those who think that the conditions of life on this continent are hostile to idealism. land to ask who was this Kelvin who was claiming to have invented all of Sir William Thomson's instruments. Kelvin's success as a scientist was only equalled by his gentleness, courtesy and humor (and these the present speaker has some cause to remember, for he works for a time where Kelvin was a frequent visitor) and in consequence he possessed a host of warm friends in all ranks of society. Hence it will be admitted that Kelvin's life was nearly one of perfect success. If we now inquire what was the motive of his immense activity, we must admit that he enjoys the fame and glory that came to him, that he did not despise any of the good things of life, and further that in the work for the good of his fellows a strong sense of duty played an important part; but the excitement, glee, and humor that permeate his prodigious correspondence show that it was the game of research that filled him with the deepest delight. If landed by shipwreck on the astronomer's island, Kelvin would probably have at once taken out his little green note book and added some notes that had just occurred to him on his most recent invention, as he was accustomed absent-mindedly to do among his guests on his own yacht.

and delights in the exchange of thought. The publication of a piece of research is also a source of pleasure as marking a more or less definite completion of an undertaking.

But while you may be inclined to grant all this as regards the generals and captains of the research army, you may very properly ask whether it applies to the much larger number of those in the ranks who plan no great scientific campaign and expect no niche in the temple of fame.

One motive, however, which is sometimes popularly thought to be the chief motive in science, must be nearly entirely excluded. Few if any great discoveries have been made by men who had in mind some immediate practical application of the discovery.

One of the most regrettable failures in the history of the human mind is that of the man who discovers large natural abilities in pursuing such a variety of different objects, many more or less frivolous, that he does nothing thoroughly and thereby loses all the zest of positive achievement.

A Means to Some End. But I should be leaving the members of the graduating class with a wrong impression, if I have seemed to suggest that personal success of a material kind is the only, or the principal, object of life.

Now is there, I believe, any need to limit such statements to the scientist. Those who speak with authority on art, music, and literature tell us in no hesitating way that the great artist like the great scientist, is moved chiefly by the fascination of the work, and the lesser artist produces work of intrinsic value in proportion to the zest the work has for him.

Here, however, I must leave the subject of the motives of creative science or creative art. But in these remarks I have not been speaking without a proper regard for the purpose of our meeting today. The young men and women who are now graduating will go into various occupations for which their training here will have in some degree fitted them.

As a slight contribution to that success I will offer but two suggestions. Success in any line of work is largely in proportion to the pleasure derived from the activity. It is true that to all of us many parts of our work are less interesting than other parts.

Another college year has passed beyond recall with its failures and successes, with ambitions that have been realized, with ideals that have not been attained, and we of the class of 1920 stand with our foot upon the threshold of the open door about to step out into "the wide, wide world."

Before we pass finally from the halls of our alma mater, it is in order briefly to review the history of the class. In the autumn of 1916, as freshmen, we numbered thirty-two. We were subjected to a mild form of instruction by the sophomores and learned that in college life "the first great law is—to obey."

tellectual occupation, no matter how commonplace, that cannot be turned into a source of pleasure by doing it well. Thus the man who does whatever lies before him with resolute zest and faithfulness can come to derive a degree of pleasure from it that this enjoyment will form an incentive for further effort.

But I should be leaving the members of the graduating class with a wrong impression, if I have seemed to suggest that personal success of a material kind is the only, or the principal, object of life. Every man must aim at a livelihood that will release him from sordid anxiety, but this after all is but a means to some end. I shall not attempt now to consider the question of what that end should be, but I may add one reflection drawn from our most recent experiences. The world has in the past tried many devices for government.

The education of youth is the nurture of the soul of the race. The lack of higher education does not threaten the individual with starvation of the body, but the community which does not provide for a liberal degree of higher education risks the decay of the spirit of humanity and progress in its midst.

This institution of learning had its first beginnings one hundred and thirty-five years ago. Founded by those who founded the province and at nearly the same time it has, in its successive forms of Academy, College and University, served the Province faithfully as a beacon light of learning on a hill. Those who have gone out from its halls have in the words of a Latin poet served as runners in the race to hand on the torch of life.

The valedictory. The valedictory was delivered by Hilton D. McKnight and was as follows: Your Honor, Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Senate, Mr. President and Members of the Associated Alumni, Mr. Chancellor and Members of the Faculty, Fellow Students, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Another college year has passed beyond recall with its failures and successes, with ambitions that have been realized, with ideals that have not been attained, and we of the class of 1920 stand with our foot upon the threshold of the open door about to step out into "the wide, wide world."

honor. Custom had made us the leaders of the freshman class and we were painfully vigilant lest harm should in any way befall them.

During those trying days in 1917 consequent upon the maritime losses, the collapse of Russia, the failure of the French offensive, the disaster which had overtaken the Italian arms and our own failure at Paschendaele and Cambrai where the fighting men paid with their lives for the tuition of the higher command, during this sombre period we endeavored to keep alive the college activities against the drawing of a brighter day.

But had we known, even then the tide was turning. The long sought leader had been found. Marshal Foch, "the organizer of victory," had assumed the supreme command and defeat was no more. And then the glorious Hundred Days which made the world safe for free peoples; those crowded hours of glorious activity which will live for ever in our memory.

When we returned to resume our work in the junior year college had secured a new lease of life. A large freshman class and the first of the returned students from overseas brought about a happy result. The ranks of our class were augmented by two of these men, making our number fifteen. On the successful conclusion of the war, all college functions were revived on a pre-war scale.

Our senior year has been one of the most successful in the history of the college. In addition to the return of former students from overseas, there has been the largest enrollment of new students on record. We might now survey very briefly the events of the past year. Much of the time at college must be spent on the purely academic subjects of the prescribed curriculum and yet the primary object of a college course is to fit us for the duties of life, and the development which comes to us from study is one-sided when not supplemented by that which is derived from an active participation in college affairs.

Especially is this true of the debating society. A university may teach a man to reason soundly and furnish him with authority but unless he can express himself clearly and forcibly, his influence will be limited. Many of our most distinguished graduates, those who are making themselves felt as leaders in the world, were active supporters of the debating society and look upon the weekly debates as an important factor in our course. It is to be regretted that they were not participated in by as large a number as should be the case, and we cannot too strongly urge upon those who remain the great importance of constant attendance at the meetings.

During the year the issues of the University Monthly have been regular and timely, excelling especially in technical articles.

Another phase of college activity which rightly can be made a powerful complement of our scholastic attainments, is athletics. There is a very noticeable tendency to overlook the real object of college athletics. Not the winning of games but the physical improvement of the largest possible number of players is the result most to be desired. In some of the larger colleges prizes are awarded, not for the best athletes among the students, but for those students who show the greatest improvement in their physical condition. Thus the greatest incentive to indulge in healthful exercise is extended to those who most need it.

The organized societies of the ladies' department have also had a prosperous year. The Ladies' Debating Society has held some interesting and instructive debates, while the Ladies' Society has added much to the social life of the college. During the past year another name has been added to our list of Knickerbocker scholars. Gregory Bridges has our best wishes for a successful career in the so-called gentler sex, gained a popular victory over the young ladies of "Foster" knock.

The merry clerks of Oxenford they read and they are told. Of famous men who drew the sword in furious fights of old. They hear and mark it faithfully, but never clerk who write. What yestern rises 'twixt book and eye from any nearer fight.

This university has contributed very largely to the teaching profession. A very large proportion of the most successful teachers in the New Brunswick are graduates of this institution, which, moreover, is the head of the provincial scene of education. By the establishment of a department of education at the university, we would secure a closer connection between the provincial system of education and the examination for teachers' licenses. The graduate could then be required to teach for a stated period in his own province before going elsewhere.

A large number of schools in this province are closed through lack of teachers. Alberta, on the other hand, reports that a teacher is available for every school, many of them trained at the expense of the New Brunswick taxpayer. Year after year good professors are leaving us. Just when they begin to understand conditions here and learn are offered come from outside and they go. The university needs more money.

In August, 1914, England possessed roughly 100,000 motor cars; today Canada, with less than one-fifth of Britain's population, owns twice that number of automobiles. We have millions for luxuries but pennies for education. To you, Mr. Chancellor, and gentlemen of the faculty, we desire to express our appreciation of the just and impartial treatment we have always received at your hands. If our lives are successful, we owe it in a large measure to the training we have received here. For four years you have been our guides, advisors and friends. We thank you for your patience with us and for your faithful interest in leading us to think for ourselves. In bidding you farewell we carry away with us only the most pleasant memories and the best wishes for your future success. To the citizens of Fredericton we extend our hearty thanks for the many tokens of thoughtfulness and kindness which have come from you to us. The days we have spent in your beautiful city will ever be remembered with pleasure, largely because of your efforts to make our stay pleasant as well as profitable.

WOMEN BACKING THE SOLDIER BOYS. When the history of the war has been written, the work done by the women at home will impress itself upon this nation as few even now realize. Literally, millions of women left their homes and took up war activities in the front lines. Some have worked at the expense of health, and are now suffering from headaches, backache, dragging-down pains or some derangement. It should be remembered that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for more than forty years has been restoring such women to health and strength, and is now recognized as a standard remedy.

Moosepath Park showed signs of life today for the first time since the close of the racing season last fall. Owing to unfavorable weather and track conditions the race horses have been unable to work out this spring and they will not be ready for campaigning for some weeks. This afternoon Leonard Dryden had his three recent importations, Dot Owe, King Wilkes and Amoson for a work out.

THOUSAND DOLLAR BILL IS FLASHED BEFORE COUNCIL

Contractor Offers It as Security for Completion of Contract—New Equipment for Water Department—That West Side Horse.

A $1,000 bill dropped nonchalantly on the table before the commissioners of the city at their committee meeting this morning came within an ace of creating a small panic, but it showed the board that Charles Simon of the contracting firm of C. Simon & Co., was prepared to guarantee that his company would carry out the work of trenching and back fill for which they had tendered in Douglas avenue and as a result the committee recommended the acceptance of their tender. The big bill was not retained, however, as the contractor is willing to sign an agreement that the work will be carried out to the satisfaction of the city.

Commissioner Bullock recommended renewal of a lease of lot 44, Brooks ward for seven years at annual rental of $8 to J. Wesley Pike. Carried.

Commissioner Bullock asked for authority to advertise for new boiler tubes for the ferry steamer Ludlow. Granted. In the matter of the tender of C. Simon & Co. for work in Douglas avenue and Hawthorne avenues, Commissioner Jones moved that the company be given the contract for both jobs. The estimated cost for Douglas avenue is $2,501 and for Hawthorne avenues $869.

Chas. Simon, a member of the firm produced a $1,000 bill which he offered to deposit for a guarantee of the proper completion of the work.

Commissioner Jones moved that he be authorized to dispose of a one-ton truck and Ford touring car and to call for tenders for two one and three-quarter ton trucks and a new touring car. He proposed sending one truck to the west side and remove the horse at City Hall West Side, which has been stabled there for eleven years.

Mr. Thornton said he had been advised by the board of health that the horse must be removed.

Mr. Jones said that somebody was bound to get the horse out of City Hall and he was just as determined to keep it there for the present, even if he had to take it to court.

The motion carried and tenders will be called for immediately.

SYMPATHETIC PEOPLE ARE VICTIMIZED

A woman who said her name was Smith, and who lives in St. Andrews street, has victimized many citizens by telling a pathetic story and asking assistance. She takes a baby with her, and goes very poorly dressed. Recently she told a sympathetic lady that if she could get to her mother in Amherst she would be all right. She was provided with clothes, a ticket and several dollars in cash, and accompanied to the train. That was on Thursday. On Saturday she was back with another child that had been in Amherst, and has again been soliciting help.

GENERAL MEETING OF COMMERCIAL CLUB CALLED

Friday evening at 8 o'clock His Worship Mayor Schofield will address the meeting for twenty minutes. Subject—Do It For St. John.

Progress reports will be submitted by the following:
P. W. Thomson, on new hotel.
Col. B. R. Armstrong, on Man. Ind. and transportation.
T. P. Regan, on reception to press delegation.
A. P. Paterson, on souvenirs for press delegation.

A. M. Belding, on athletics and playground outlook in different sections of city.
The meeting will be asked to discuss the advisability of securing prominent speakers to address St. John audiences on subjects of interest to the club in its present endeavors.

MERCHANTS OF CITY DECIDE FOR DAYLIGHT TIME

"Undoubted Benefit, Convenience and Economy to All"

Determine to Observe New Time From May 22 to September 11 and Ask Mayor Schofield to Make Proclamation.

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, St. John branch, with the vice-president, E. A. Dykeman in the chair, the question of daylight saving was discussed today and the following resolution passed:
Resolved, that the Retail Merchants' Association are of the opinion that daylight saving is of undoubted benefit, convenience and economy to all concerned; therefore:

Resolved that we as merchants doing business in the city of St. John, do adopt the daylight saving hours on May 22, continuing to Sept. 11 inclusive; further Resolved, that in order to do away with unnecessary confusion this association are of the opinion that it would be to the best interests of all if his worship the mayor would request the citizens in general to adopt daylight saving on that date.

A copy of this resolution was sent to the mayor and common council asking them to recommend it to the people.

Trains to Co-Operate.
Following the action of the Retail Merchants' Association this morning, officials of both the C. P. R. and C. N. R. said that their companies were prepared to adjust their suburban schedules to meet the new arrangement, provided the general public fell in line with the retail merchants. The banking people have already expressed themselves as ready to follow the action of the merchants and it is expected that most of the offices will also adopt the measure. The application of the new time to the city schools will have to be dealt with at a meeting of the board.

PLAYGROUND FOR THE NORTH-END

Delegation from Improvement League There Asks City to Purchase Site—Commissioners Will Visit Property.

A large delegation of citizens from the North End appeared before the common council in committee this morning and asked that the city acquire an area immediately adjacent to the old Shamrock grounds for the purpose of establishing a community playground and athletic field. The estimated cost is $12,000. The delegation was given a thorough hearing and consideration was promised.

Among those present were Charles H. Stevens, president, and F. W. Haman, treasurer of the North End Improvement League; Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts, minister of health; George Scott, W. H. White, W. K. Turner, J. C. Harrison, James Taylor, R. P. Haman, Roy Robertson, J. A. Kennedy, Rev. Neil McLaughlin, Thomas Armour and Charles Sullivan.

Mr. Halsey, president of the Playgrounds' Association, and A. M. Belding were present in the interests of that body, and both spoke on the matter.

Mr. Stevens said that some time ago he had been informed that the city would buy, so soon as a proper piece of ground was located. He said that this had been done and the property was situated just beyond the old Shamrock grounds on the Lansdowne avenue extension. It was 650 by 350 feet, whereas the Shamrock grounds were 300 by 400 feet. The proposed site was better than the old grounds. It was proposed to lay out a quarter-mile track, baseball diamond, football field, etc., and install playground equipment. This property would cost about $12,000 and Armstrong & Bruce valued the land as building lots at $24,000. The site was intended as a permanent playground and recreation field for the North End. He asked the city to purchase the property and the North End Improvement League would undertake to develop it.

Mr. Belding said that playgrounds had been developed in the West, South and East Ends, and the North End was without a public playground, and now was the opportune time to get a location at a reasonable price. The North End ought to have a playground. He was sure the people then would put their backs into the work of development.

Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts said that one of the first matters considered as an asset of all progressive cities was public playgrounds. He felt satisfied that the council would recognize the needs of the North End in this respect. He argued that the people of the North End had contributed to what had been done by the city for other playgrounds. He said that one of the most important problems facing the medical men today was the social disease problem and recreation was recognized as one of the greatest means of fighting the disease. This and physical development tended towards better citizenship and was one of the best arguments in favor of the project.

W. K. Halsey said that the North End not only needed a playground but they wanted it. The playground Association was behind the project, which was the last link in the chain of playgrounds in the city.

Mr. McLaughlin spoke on the spiritual and physical aspect. There were many children in the North End whose only playground was the streets, where their lives were constantly endangered. He felt satisfied that a playground in the North End would fill a long-felt want.

The mayor said the request did not seem out of reason, as it looked like a safe deal for the city. He was pleased with the enthusiasm shown in the matter of playgrounds and he hoped it would continue. He said the movement had his entire sympathy and he suggested a visit to the site by the council. This is being arranged.

I Sure Had One Fine Slumber Last Night!
Those Hercules Springs Are Great
Never knew a thing from the time I blew out the electric light till big Benjamin fired the get-up gun at 6:30—and I now feel fit enough to sell a suspension bridge to the natives of Zambesia.
Heard that the Hercules Spring was the modern way but it wasn't till I had Everett equip my new bed with one that I proved the rumor to be founded on truth.
Absolutely no sag to the spring—a window demonstration a few weeks ago showed kegs of nails piled on one spring for hours, and the thing sprang right back level when the load was removed!
Possibly we can equip your bed with a Hercules Spring?

LIVED AS RECLUSE THROUGH 24 YEARS

As Hidden From the World as If Dwelling in a Wilderness—Was Unhappily Married.

London, May 13—A dilapidated twelling in the quaint little village of Tidhurst, Sussex, surely will be known as the "House with the Green Shutters."

The secret was revealed only when she died recently. Years and years ago, when she was thirty, she married a man younger than herself.

Even the woman's closest relatives did not know her whereabouts for years. She had not even told her sister.

Years passed. Every day the wife without a husband must have studied the advertisement columns of the newspapers she had fixed upon.

"She was a complete puzzle to us," said a neighbor of the mysterious double house yesterday. "We knew she was there, but for years and years we never saw her. She never put her face outside the front door."

"Save Money," Her Injunction. "When the war broke out and my husband joined she became more friendly. Occasionally she would put her head out of the back door and inquire about the war.

"You should always keep your front door locked," you never know who might walk in unexpectedly," was another of her sayings. She seldom talked about herself. But on one occasion she told me that if ever I wanted her I was to knock on the side door.

"In the depth of winter I've seen her hands swollen up with lead, but she never complained. Her clothes were old and ragged and her appearance suffered from general neglect."

"If some one knew I am living here my plans would be upset."

TO LONDON EXHIBITION. Montreal, May 13—The C. P. O. liner, Scotian, sailed this morning with Canada's first contingent in its drive on the world trade, a second will leave tomorrow on the Venetia.

ENGLAND REVIVING SHOW AT OLYMPIA

International Horse Exhibit to Be Held After a Lapse of Six Years. (New York Times.) The ninth International Horse Show of England, held annually at Olympia, will open its doors to the public on June 16, after a lapse of six years, and will remain open for ten days. Always a social function of interest, the exhibition promises this year to outline all previous efforts in this direction.

King George is again patron, and the English directors are the Earl of Leonsdale, chairman; Sir Gilbert Greenall, Bart., C. V. O.; Sir James Buchanan, Bart.; Arthur E. Evans, O. B. E.; Walter Lloyd, Walter Winans and R. G. Heaton, managing director. Judge Moore, with E. T. Stotesbury, Clarence H. Maynard and Lawrence Jones, represent America. Canada is represented by Colonel Sir Adam Beck, George W. Beardmore and Sir Montague Allan, C. V. O. Francis P. Euren, as before, is secretary of the show.

In all there are 101 classes, for which prizes are offered amounting to $35,000. Pre-war entrance fees are maintained. The new classes are many and interesting. One is for trotters and pacers, for which there is a large demand nowadays in England.

Another novelty will be a Marathon drive for horses in single harness, which will cover a course of twelve miles, finishing in the Olympia Arena. A third will be for horses in private use and not kept for show purposes, and yet another where champion cups will be awarded for the best trotting horse and the best pacer.

FROM PIT BOY TO CHAMPION

Story of Georges Carpentier—Was Born in Lens, a Mining Town Well Known to Canadian Ex-Soldiers.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.) In "From Pit Boy to Champion Boxer," the biography of Georges Carpentier, written by F. Hurdman-Lucas, we learn that the French fighter was born in what his enthusiastic biographer calls the "obscure mining town of Lens" in the year 1894, and is now something short of twenty-six years old. As a writer we consider Mr. Hurdman-Lucas to be a clever boxer or something, but at least he appears to have first-hand knowledge of what he tries to write about.

He mentions that Georges' parents were of the peasant class, and that the boy was sent to work in the mines when he was twelve years old. He has also the theory that the lad's physical prowess was derived from his grandfather, who was a man of unusual strength and above the ordinary stature, while his parents appear to have been nothing out of the common.

Descamps' Academy. Francois Descamps, who later was to win fame and fortune as Carpentier's manager, had recently opened a boxing and athletic academy in the town, and here he laid to rest on every opportunity. Though of frail build he was unusually symmetrical and Descamps, a good judge, thought the lad might make a gymnast. He gave him some acrobatic lessons but soon perceived that he had a natural bent for boxing. He had not only the grace and speed, but he had the fighting instinct. The quickness with which he came to skillfully use the "mufflers," which Mr. Lucas has apparently nicknamed the boxing gloves, delighted Descamps, and presently he arranged with Georges' father to allow the boy should quit the mine and become a pugilist. Georges was then earning five francs a week which he turned over to his mother and Descamps agreed to pay her the same amount. So he became Georges' manager, and mentor, and for all practical purposes his father.

Child Knocks Out a Man. Descamps appears to have had some slight ring experience, but perhaps not so slight as to justify one to speak slightly of it in his presence. At any rate he was qualified to teach the boy. Mr. Hurdman-Lucas holds the Aristotelian theory that all knowledge is born in one, and that Georges merely needed to have his lore on the subject "drawn out," as he says. His ring debut was made when he was thirteen years old and weighed less than 100 pounds. His victim was an alleged pugilist traveling with a little circus who used to curdle the blood of audiences by his challenges, probably a run-soaked rather of some fourth-rate boxer. But he was heavier and bigger than "the mere chit of a boy," as Mr. Lucas calls him, and the fact that he was knocked out after a local attraction. Several others of the same tribe were polished off in quick order by the lad, and Descamps believed this kind of practice was extremely useful to his protégé.

Wins on a Fool. His first engagement of any importance was with Kid Salmon, whom the author speaks of respectfully as "the roundabout" and it may be said here the names of nine-fifths of the "Sitting Anthearts, K. O. Cokes and other ferocious sluggers whom he mentions are unknown to fame. But when an Englishman had challenged at Carpentier's weight, and in vain until Descamps matched Carpentier with him, and at that time the notion that a Frenchman could lick an Englishman seemed a mere fantasy. The fight took place when Carpentier was fourteen years old, and to everyone's indignation. Indeed, we are informed that Descamps had to carry him struggling and kicking from the ring. It was in this fight that Mr. Hurdman-Lucas first saw Georges.

The next three or four years saw Georges growing from a flyweight to a lightweight, then to a welterweight, and finally to the middleweight and light heavyweight, which is what he is called today. His successes were by no means unbroken. Several times he met defeat, but only once was he knocked out, and then by a Frenchman named Gloria, the best man of his weight in France. He began to meet Englishmen of some note, and usually won, the result being to wear old Albion, as the writer says, that "the foreign juke was knocking at the door." He lost to several Americans, including the Dixie Kid, Frank Klaus, who taught him the art of in-fighting, which hitherto had been absent from his repertoire, and Billy Papke. He then fell his indignation. Indeed, we are informed that Descamps had to carry him struggling and kicking from the ring. It was in this fight that Mr. Hurdman-Lucas first saw Georges.

TRIAL OF RADICALS BEGUN IN CHICAGO

Expected to Take From Four to Six Weeks to Get a Jury—Right of Each Side to 300 Challenges.

Chicago, May 12.—Twenty-six radicals, who are said to have gathered here last September to form the communist labor party, were tried in criminal court on Monday, charged with conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States government and with criminal syndicalism.

What effect Secretary of Labor Wilson's ruling that membership in the communist labor party did not constitute grounds for deportation, will have on the trial is problematical. The state contends it will have none as the defendants are American citizens charged with conspiracy.

The outstanding figure of the group in court Monday was William Lloyd, millionaire sergeant-at-arms of the communist labor convention, and son of the late Henry D. Lloyd, said to have been a rich Boston philanthropist. He is a close friend of William D. (Big Bill) Haywood, former secretary-general of the I. W. O.

It is estimated the trial will last three months. Selection of a jury is expected to take from four to six weeks and to exhaust a vast number of challenges on each side will have 300 challenges.

THIN PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Two Weeks Time in Many Instances.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing muscles, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curves of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

"Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is expensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION!—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Ferronose (double strength) and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar.

BANKS ARE NERVOUS

It is said that some of the banks which have been good buyers of prime acceptances in recent months are not at all keen on adding to their holdings now and are not reinvesting their funds which become available through maturities of old bills.

The reason, they say, is that there still is some nervousness about what the federal reserve board and the reserve banks are likely to do with acceptances whether they will continue buying as they have been, or will insist on treating all bills as rediscounts.

CHINESE LAUNDRY SOON TO GO?

Boarded Windows in United States to Prove Decline of Mongolian Trade.

New York, May 12—The Chinese laundryman, with his Oriental methods and his primitive hand labor, is rapidly becoming an extinct institution in the United States.

all over the country are bearing witness to the steady decrease of Mongolian laundries, which when at their zenith numbered one or more to every city of 5,000 or over in the United States.

The passing of the Chinese laundryman, and his quaint methods, has behind it a story which dates from 1849.

When gold was discovered in California in 1849 there was not a transcontinental railway in the United States. The "Great American desert" stretched across the greater part of the Mississippi Valley, and the Central West believed to be an unfit habitation for civilized man, was practically bare of settlers.

There was no Panama Canal, and no large steamers carried passengers from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast by water in a week or two.

Despite these handicaps, familiar to readers of American history, thousands got the gold fever and set out for the Far West in '49, either in prairie schooners or in ships which traveled via Cape Horn to the booming village of San Francisco.

Followed Gold Rush.

By the very nature of the journey, and the principle of the survival of the fittest, those who attempted the trip toward the new-found gold fields were almost all men, and the few women who did accompany their husbands on the trip were greatly outnumbered.

The rush to the California gold fields was not more than started when the new arrivals on the Pacific Coast found that their clothes got dirty rapidly and that they had no means of washing or laundering them. Of course they could rise out a pair of socks or a shirt in a mountain stream, but the method proved very unsatisfactory, and there were no women to do the work, and no laundries to attend to it; everybody was hunting for gold.

Some enterprising Californian conceived the idea of sending the miners' and prospectors' laundry in shipload lots to the Hawaiian Islands, in the Central Pacific Ocean, where the natives of those islands laundered them and returned them in the course of several months to their owners. The average time for the round trip of the laundry ships was six months. Obviously this arrangement, too, had many difficulties.

How Chinatown Grew

There was a sprinkling of Chinese along the Pacific Coast—mostly coolies who had drifted in with ships which carried gold seekers to the new bonanzas.

Some of these found themselves out of work in the gold district, and unable to pan the sands for gold with any degree of success because they were always faced by Yankee wits which kept them far in the lee of their competitors in the search for wealth.

History does not record what Chinese first saw and noted the need for laundrymen, but not many months after the crowds began arriving in San Francisco to prospect for gold the first Chinese laundry opened up in the Golden Gate city.

It was flooded with work, for the miners soon found the Orientals to be careful workers, and even though they were slow they had much the advantage over the method of sending laundry to the Hawaiian Islands.

Within six months the Chinese in California had started laundries which drew to them every Chinese in the West, and soon began to attract immigrants from China in large numbers.

There soon grew to be a Chinatown district in the growing city of San Francisco, which was entirely given over to the laundering of the miners' clothing.

As the population of California grew and the west became more thickly populated and its wealth showed signs of permanence, the easterners began to project transcontinental highways and railroads, and within a few decades the two coasts were bridged with means of travel.

Migrated Eastward.

By this time there were more laundries in San Francisco and California than the demand warranted, so some of the Chinese moved eastward, until only about twenty years ago the Chinese laundry with its typical Mongolian bearing baskets of clothes on their shoulders to little one-room shops where a tub, a wringer and a wash board constituted the complete equipment, was a common sight.

Then came the inauguration of the modern laundry plant. Public laundries run by American business interests were started in the chief cities of the country, and the smaller towns shipped their laundry there in increased amounts. Later the smaller towns came to have laundries, until the country was dotted with public laundries, which did the work more quickly than the Chinese laundries and with more system and accuracy, if not with more sanitary methods than the Orientals.

And today the Chinese laundry is growing to be a relic of the nineteenth century. One by one the Mongolian methods of laundering are being forced out of existence by the constantly enlarging field of modern laundry plant, with its up to date equipment and American business methods.

Laundrymen freely predict that the only Chinese left in the laundry business five years from today will be those who are in the employ of single private families.

EXPECT A SHORT PACK.

(Bangor Commercial)

The canners of the country are not anticipating a very successful season in their industry. In all lines, except perhaps that of corn, it is predicted that the season's pack will be very much abbreviated. It is the prediction that one would expect. The main causes are the inability of the packers to obtain tin cans in sufficient quantity; the scarcity of labor and prospects of reduced production upon the farms, probably with reigning high prices for vegetables and fruits; the scarcity and high cost of sugar and the inability of the canners to sell futures

WONDER INHUMAN FATHER NOT KILLED LONG AGO, SAYS JUDGE

Nelson, B. C., May 13—Agreeing with the view of Mr. Justice Morrison that it was a wonder that Seto Ginn Kee was not killed years before, a jury here yesterday acquitting Seto Ginn Kee of the charge of manslaughter. Among the practices of the dead Chinese logger was tying his son to a tree in winter and deluging him with water, after which he would force him down his throat.

REVOLTERS AND CARRANZA MEN IN HARD FIGHT

Rebels Hurry Strong Reinforcements to Decide Issue

Aguilar Wants to Go to Mexican President to Share His Fate — Obregon Appeals to People to Resume Their Work.

(Associated Press)
Vera Cruz, May 13.—Furious fighting between rebel troops and forces commanded by President Carranza occurred yesterday at Hacienda Tamara, on the Mexican national railroad north of San Marcos, state of Puebla, according to despatches received here. The area of the battlefield is reported to be approximately five square miles. Carranza is said to have directed the operations of his troops personally for eight hours on Tuesday. Terrific storms have swept the mountain region where the struggle is going on, and telegraphic communication has been interrupted in the immediate vicinity of the scene of battle. It is known, however, that heavy rebel reinforcements have been sent to San Marcos by rebel chieftains, artillery being rushed forward to force the surrender of the troops still loyal to the president. General Guadalupe Sanchez has gone to Esperanza with his personal staff and five trainloads of troops to co-operate in what is believed to be the decisive action of the rebellion. Esperanza is about thirty miles southeast of San Marcos.

General Candido Aguilar, who is at Jalpilla, near Orizaba, is begging the rebel authorities for permission to join the president and share in his fate. General Aguilar on Tuesday sent word to the rebels that he desired to pass through the lines to San Marcos, and permission was given on the condition he would lay before Carranza the true situation, and tell him of the guarantees given him by General Obregon, through a military commission headed by General Trevino.

The Dutch steamer Zuyderdyk sailed from Vera Cruz today after having been detained here for some time. When she arrived it was announced she had in her cargo airplanes which had been bought in Europe by the Mexican government. There was a suspicion, however, that her real mission was to take on board a large amount of gold coin sent here by President Carranza for deposit in European banks. When this report became current and a thorough search was made by officials. It was found she carried no Mexican money, and she was given permission to leave.

American destroyer No. 292 and the transport Maumee arrived here today. General Obregon has spread broadcast by telegraph an appeal to the people to return to their customary vocations. In explaining the cause of the revolution, he says a revolt was necessary to liberate the country from a regime which was breaking down the intellectual and material life of the people and which was violating laws.

CARMEN IS GIVEN WITH FINE EFFECT

Imperial Filled Last Evening for Artistic Production of Popular Opera.

"Carmen" was the offering of the Boston English Opera Co. to a capacity house at the Imperial last evening and it proved the acme of the season's remarkable triumph. It affords ample opportunity for a display of the finer points in the singer's art and advantage was taken by all the performers. The production was pronounced a huge and delightful success.

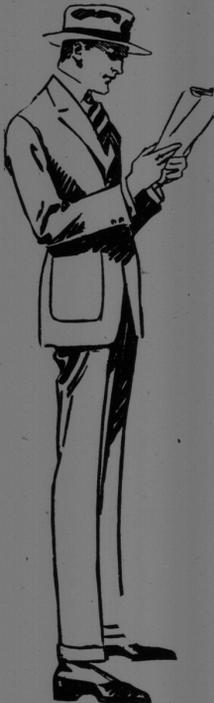

The settings were particularly splendid. The tavern scene in the second act, and the robbers' retreat in the mountains in Act III each received hearty approval of the audience. The pert capricious Carmen was cleverly and artistically portrayed by Miss De Sellen. Her solos, "Love Is Like A Bird," "Valse The Walls of Seville," and the gipsy song brought out to perfection the richness of her beautiful contralto voice. Miss Eden scored another success as Michela, the peasant girl rival of Carmen, and was especially good in her duet with Don Jose in the opening scene, and in the aria in act III.

As Don Jose, Mr. Sheehan's solo were artistically rendered and the feeling and expression with which he carried out his part in the concerted numbers were of high order. His flower song in the last act was one of the gems.

Stanley Deacon, in the role of the torreador, took every advantage for artistic rendition. The richness and power of his baritone voice were demonstrated in the torreador song and so prolonged was the applause that he was forced to encore. His duet with Carmen also was greatly appreciated. Mr. Geis, as the captain, had a fine role, which he executed in finished style.

Particular mention should be made of the work of Miss Carley and Miss Margaret Gilbert, as gipsy girl friends of Carmen, and Mr. Goller and Mr. Feins as smugglers. Their quintette with Miss De Sellen in the last act was a bright, harmonious piece of work which received well merited applause.

This was Miss Gilbert's first appearance here in solo work and she won the favor of all in solo and concerted work. Lynn Griffin, as the brigadier Morales, gave an excellent rendering. The chorus work was again one of the features and in the smoking song in the first act they were heard to perfection. The augmented orchestra gave a delightful musical interpretation which assisted materially in the success of the opera. The favorite "Bohemian Girl" was the vehicle for the matinee yesterday afternoon and it pleased a large audience. Miss Morrill, Mr. Griffin, Mr. Northway, Mr. Fein, Mr. Goltz, Miss Barron, Miss Lannon and Mr. Hewitt had the principal roles which were artistically rendered. The repeat performance of "Robin Hood" is the selection for this evening. It proved most popular on Monday.

EXHIBITION DATES SEPT. 4-11

The St. John Exhibition Association has fixed its dates for Sept. 4 to 11 inclusive. This will be the first exhibition in St. John since 1914, as the exhibition plant has, for the last five years, been employed for military purposes. The militia department has just handed back the plant and paid a substantial amount to offset damage done by their occupation, so that the association is in a position to expend more money than is usually the case and therefore expects to make this year's show a distinct success in every way. In addition to some splendid free acts in front of the grand stand, contracts have been entered into that will make the midway more elaborate than ever. These contracts include some seven riding devices and about fifteen big tent shows; in fact, it is said the midway will this year resemble a first class summer carnival rather than the "fakir's row" of former years.

THE FRENCH STRIKE.
Paris, May 13.—The Federation of Labor has decided to extend the strike movement by calling on the electric light, gas and furniture trade workers.

The Late Wm. H. Denmore, who died recently at Brownville Junction, Me., the Bangor Commercial says:—
He was born at Sheffield, Sanbury Co., N. B., on the 20th of February, 1860, and was a son of the late John and Caroline Denmore. He lived at Fredericton Junction for a number of years and moved to Brownville Junction, Maine, in June, 1916. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Miss Laura, at home and one son, George, at Greenville Junction, Maine. One brother, George A. Denmore, of Houlton, Maine, and four sisters, Mrs. C. C. Grant of Green road, N. B.; Mrs. Irving Whitten, Clinton, Me.; Mrs. John Andrews of Marysville, N. B., and Miss Annie Denmore of Malden, Mass., also survive. The body was taken to Fredericton Junction, N. B., for burial.

Carpenter in Montreal.
Montreal, May 12.—Georges Carpentier, wearing the smile that has made him numberless friends in the States, was given a fine welcome by the seven thousand fans who thronged the Mount Royal arena to see him in an exhibition bout tonight. Previous to the bout he was presented with a traveling bag by Mayor Martin, on behalf of the Canadian Hockey Club. He showed he has weight behind his punches when he floored his second of the three rounds, sparring partner, Jules Lanaers in the MONTREAL AND THE NEARBY MUNICIPALITIES.

Montreal, May 13.—Twenty-four out of thirty-three municipalities on the island of Montreal were represented at a meeting of mayors here yesterday to elect five delegates to represent municipal sentiment to the legislature through the charter commission now sitting in Montreal. The feeling was against annexation to Montreal unless the people of the municipalities were given an opportunity to express an opinion prior to such annexation.

QUEBEC PREMIER AND LADY GOUIN AT BUCKINGHAM

London, May 13.—(By the Canadian Associated Press)—Premier and Lady Gouin lunched with the king and queen today at Buckingham Palace. The premier was also notified today that he had been created commander of the Legion of Honor. The insignia will be officially conferred in Quebec by the president of the Franco-American committee. Premier Gouin will sail on the Manitoba tomorrow.

Pitchers Will Find a Way.
New York Times: Allan Sothoron, chief trick ball pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, says that the new rule prohibiting frog deliveries will not prevent the use of the so-called "sailer" this year. Sothoron says that as soon as the ball is hit once by the bat it leaves a mark on the smooth cover of the ball, and this one bruise will enable the pitcher to use this spot in throwing a ball that comes up so mysteriously that the batters imagine it is floating up to them. Sothoron believes that pitchers like himself, Cicotte and Miller, for instance, will be able to throw the so-called shine ball without rubbing the ball on their uniforms. The Brown star contends that if batters think they are going to have an easier time making base hits this year they are mistaken, for it is going to be just as difficult as ever.

No Coaching From Bench.
Boston, May 11—Coaching from the players bench is prohibited in the American League. President Dan P. Johnson in a formal order sent to all clubs in the league and received by the Red Sox today, announced that a player removed from the bench by an umpire hereafter is automatically suspended for three days.
Coaching from the bench, Johnson declares, "has been carried to an extreme by two clubs in the organization, this spring, and has become a positive nuisance. The 'riding' and abuse of visiting players is unsportsmanlike, and does not belong in baseball."

AQUATIC.
The Shamrock Crew.
London, May 13—(Canadian Press)—Although Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, is an Irish yacht, the challenge being sent by the Royal Ulster Club of Belfast, she will have an entire English crew. She also was built in England.
Capt. Albert Turner, her professional skipper, and all but two of her crew are from Essex. The two exceptions are from Cornwall. The average age of the men is thirty-five years.
Three were in the crew of Shamrock III, when she raced in the United States seventeen years ago. They are Edward Herd, mate; William Clark, chief cook; and Arthur Barnett, seaman. Herd was a seaman on the old challenger. Clark is looking after the stomachs of the men, but is a veteran at trimming sheets and will take a hand in the forthcoming races.
All the men were in the war. Several who went to the United States on the challenger in 1914 hurried back home when the war started. Most of them were on patrol vessels. A few planted mines.
Shamrock IV is Captain Turner's largest racing yacht. He has been racing thirty years, however, one of the craft he handled being the 19-metre Gavia. He has had 15-metre craft, 20-tonners and half waters.

THE RING.
Technical Knockout.
Jersey City, May 12—Lew Tonder, of Philadelphia, scored a technical knockout over George Papin, the French light-weight boxing champion, in the sixth round of a scheduled 12 round bout here tonight.
"If we fail to get this money," Mr. Laffen added, "we shall have to reduce our representation considerably or withdraw altogether. If we have to withdraw we might as well put up the shutters, because if we cannot interest the British public in the Olympic games this year the Olympic games never will appeal to them."

Creating A Panic!

Every Price

HERE

A MONEY SAVER

This is the last call. We're through — finished — done. The management has decided to sell out every item at terribly mutilated prices. This is final. The stock must be moved. To move it we require the attention of the public for the next big week of bargains. These prices prove us to be doing our share; you do yours. Come early and be prepared. We are creating a panic among profiteers.
