MAYOR'S STIRRING INAUGURAL SUBMITTED TO CITY COUNCIL

Staple Department Rev. A. H. MacGillivray Opens New Year With Earnest Prayer—Civic Committees Appointed According to The Planet's Slate-Adjourn Till Evening

THE MAYOR'S INAUGURAL.

His worship Mayor Marshall de-livered the following inaugural:-

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 8, 1906. To the City Council, City of Chatham, for the year 1906.

To the City Council,

City of Chatham, for the year 1906.

Gentlemen,—I congratulate you upon your elections to the honorable positions of aldermen of the city of Chatham for the year 1906. I congratulate the old members for the renewal of the further trust and confidence which the electors have placed in you, showing that your actions and municipal careers in the past has met with the approval of the electors in general, and that they are willing to still further entrust you with the management of their important civic affairs.

I congratulate the new members who have been elected for the first term, showing that the ratepayers have every confidence in your ability to successfully transact and handle the parliamentary machinery of our mun.cipality with credit to yourselves and the city in general, to the older and tried members as well as to the newly elect, allow me to say you must not consider that because you have seen newly elected, that because by substantial votes of the electorate you have attained the honorable positions you now occupy, that this is all that is required of you; remember that you have now become the to-be-criticized, and not the critics, the eyes of the public are upon you, they expect you to well and ably look after their municipal governmental affairs as good true, upright and faithful servants, and I trust and well know that you will one and all do this, not lending yourselves to any faction, party or clique of any nature whatsoever, that you will all put your shoulders to the municipal wheel and work for the interests of this fair city of ours in peace and harmony, without prejudice to your colleagues or any individual or set of individuals, but that you will work for the fairest, if not the fairest city to be found within the borders of our beloved Dominion.

It is not necessary for me to say to you that we have the most pro-within the borders of our beloved Dominion.

It is not necessary for me to say to you that we have the most progressive city for its size that is in Oanada to-day. It is not necessary for me to point out to you the great unpresedented strides that we have made during the past few years. It is not necessary for me to advise you that we have many miles of sewers, many miles of granolithic silewalks, that we have many of the less and most poted industries in our midst that can be found in Canada to-day from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, that we are surrounded by a rich agricultural country, that our people are progressive and up-to-date, you know this as well as I, and it remains for each individual alderman to still keep in mind the fact that we must still progress; we cannot stand still, so long as we dan do so on a safe business-like basis, keeping in mind the fact that economy in all branches of the civic department is our watchword, and that each and every dollar that is basis, keeping in mind the fact that economy in all branches of the civic department is our watchword, and that each and every dollar that is expended is spent where it will count and that the expenditure is justifiable and in the interests of the general public.

Undoubtedly we will have a busy year, although a great deal has been accomplished in the past there is still a great deal to be accomplished, and the citizens who elected you are now looking towards you to assist in the carrying out of such accomments safely, economically and well. Everything that has previously been commenced during the present year.

To the Finance committee I may say that you have a very strong, intelligent and capable body of committee men and a great deal of responsibility rests upon you to look after the financial department, see that all officials of trust looks carefully-after their various departments, that each official from whom it is accessary to require bonds are properly bonded, and have a properly bonded and h

The City Council for 1906 duly inaugurated the business of the year this morning.

His worship Mayor Marshall asked Rev. A. H. MacGillivray, M. A., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, to open the proceedings with prayer for divine blessing on the year's work, and the aldermen rose during the earnest prayer.

Ex-Mayor Geo. W. Cowan was invited to the platform and accepted, amid applause.

There was a liberal attendance of the citizens, who took a lively interest in the proceedings.

The aldermen were seated as follows from the left:—Ald. Austin, Soullard, Stone, Bensen, Edmondson, Radley, Massey, Potter and Thompson.

The minutes of the last meeting of the old Council were read by City Clerk Merritt and approved.

THE MAYOR'S INAUGURAL.

His worship Mayor Marshall delarge bonus to the last mentioned railway company for the building of their line through the city of Chatham, at which time a part of the agreement under which they obtained the bonus was that they were to establish workshops here, and because of the removal of the shops from Chatham, the Pere Marquette Company who had amalgamated with and taken under their control the bonused railway, paid over to this city under pressure the above mentioned sum because of the removal of the old workshops from the city, and which sum was used by the city for the last year in order to give the citizens a low tax rate, it must be remembered that we have no windfalls of this kind to fall back upon for the year 1906, therefore in order to keep our tax rate down to a normal condition it is imperative that the most rigid economy is practised, and it is your duty to call attention to the other spending committees that this most rigid economy is kept strictly in mind, that the lower our tax rate the better it will be for the city's increase towards progression, because as a general rule new comers will ask what is your tax rate, and too high a rate has a bendency to keep people from establishing either their business or their homes with us if we have an exhorbitant rate. We have quite a number of local improvements and other debentures for sale, and we must not impair the city's liability or credit by stepping beyond our means, and I adylse you to see that whatever debentures we have for sale are gotten ready at as early a date as possible. Watch the money markets and be ready to seel that whatever debentures we have for sale are gotten ready at as early a date as possible. members you should be able, and I know you will be able, to make a number of radical changes that are absolutely meessary in the management of the largest expending committee of which our Council is composed. During the last year, in fact during a number of the past years, it has occurred to many aldermen and to many of the largest and heaviest ratepayers that there has been a number of weak points in connection with your department, and I strongly advise you to at once get together and devise ways and means whereby the weak points may be gotten over and new and strong points substituted. I may more particularly call your attention to the fact that numerous complaints have been made by several, in fact many ratepayers, as to the management of the inspection of the local improvement work, more particularly sewers and pavements, and such complaints have not been unde without just cause, more particularly I may refer to the inspection of sawers. In many cases an inspection is appointed over a small job on which only two or three men are sometimes at work, thus increasing the cost of inspection and the cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection costing en altogether too large an amount when taking into consideration the contract price and cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection and the cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection to sting en altogether too large an amount when taking into consideration the contract price and cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection and the cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection of the countract price and cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection of the countract price and cost of the sewers to the individual ratepayer, in many cases the cost of inspection and the cost of the sewers the cost of inspection and the cost of the se without any consideration as to the inspector's qualifications, and frequently the party not understanding the mature of the work in any particular, is not a competent man by any means. This frequently causes an endless amount of trouble, and many of the complaints that have been made with just cause as to inspection is because of this promiscuous appointment of non-qualified inspectors, thus causing the ratepayers, the Council, in fact all parties having any connection with such work amoyance, dissatisfaction and poor work. I therefore advise the Board to see that none but the most qualified and up-to-date inspectors are appointed on all public works, men who will without fear or prejudice see that none but the best of materials and the best of work is done according to plans and specifications, thus insuring good work and the proper value for the money expended.

I further advise you to see that as more untradate inspections is not see that and more untradate inspections is not a see that an one to the money expended.

I further advise you to see that a more up-to-date inspection is made of sewer connections. Numerous complaints come into the Council of bad connections being made. See to it that this branch of the work is more carefully looked into, because it is Indeed a very important one. Bad work means loss of money to the ratepayers, and still further a menace to the health of the citizens. Look carefully after this branch of the work; see that a responsible working official is appointed; one who thoroughly understands this branch of the work then in case of responsibility as to bad work it will more easily be possible to place the blame where blamable. I further advise you that it is im-it will more easily be possible to place the blame where blamable.

I further advise you that it is imperative that you exercise the most careful, rigid economy on all works you may undertake, because by the practise of such economy is the only way in which you can keep expenditures within the safe bounds of the taxable means of the ratepayers.

I further call your attention to the fact that as we now have eight and one-half miles of good pavements it is not necessary to unnecessarily crowd new pavements down. Our local improvement debt has now reached a very large sum and a halt should be called or we will beyond the shadow of a doubt impair the city's credit. Do not undertake new pavements unless at least over one-half of the ratepayers desire such pavement and unless such work is absolutely necessary, and if possible do not undertake initiative proceedings unless absolutely necessary. We have been during the last

A WINTERLESS WAIL.

Let the last fault-finder with the ordinary Canadian winter confess his error and vow never again to grum-

Here is the third day of January and never a sign of snow as yet. It would almost seem as if Nature had forgotten how to make snow and wrap the earth in it. The moon rides in the sky at night as if the month were October. By day children tumble on the grassy lawns, unmindful of the chill and damp, and catch cold. In the morning the citi-zen starts to walk to his office and makes his way through swirling bliz-zards of dust.

Better snow by far. Give us the real old Canadian winter with dirt and m'erobes frozen down solid until the spring freshets carry them away. It is all right to save money on coal. But where's the saving, after all, if clothes are ruined, eyes blinded, and a thousand different varieties of disease germs are breathed into the system? Good old winter will be received with general welcome when it comes.—Toronto Star.

It is a fact that the neonle of Canadian content with the second of Canadian content with the second

It is a fact that the people of Canada like their winter season-it is only when they miss it that they realize how much they do. They then have an opportunity of knowing how disagreeable is a land where there is no winter. The tropics have their soggy, enervating humid 'rainy season," the temperate zones have their raw, cold rains and fogs, or their beastly dust blizzards, and both have a miscellaneous collection of insect pests and retiles bred of the climate to aid in making burdensome the lives of man and beast. What Canadian who was in South Africa would not prefer a clean Canadian blizzard to a February Cape dust storm? One thousand men we know of after a year in the snowless south, sent up a glad, spontaneous cheer when they saw the snow on the cabin roof of a tug that met the troopship off Halifax

Still it is the habit to deprecate our winters, to apologize for them and to be sensitive about reference to them on the part of outsiders as if the Canadian winter were a sort of national family skeleton. Yet here we have a Canadian newspaper bewailing the fact that our regular winter has failed to keep its engagement this year. You never miss the good old winter until it fails to The action of the voters of the towaship in turn at the by-law down has eaused no end of comment, and it is being quietly said that the end is not yet, and that the friends of the injured men will seek to have a resubmission of the by-law, for the entire amount, if possible, when the benefits of the route will have had a chaose to operate favorably on the show up, and we are bereft of our skating, skeeing, tobogganing, snowshoeing, hockey and sleighing. It is the mistaken apologists for the Canadian winters who have made it almost treason to suggest a winter carnival, an ostrich policy of burying chance to operate favorably on the consciousness of those who proved themselves ingrates at the election on Monday.—London Free Press. their heads in the snow and thinking to make people believe there is no

The true policy of Canadians is to make much of our winters and let outsiders know that instead of a season of hibernation, it is one of the jolliest, most enjoyable seasons of the year. The average intending in this country knew how much real afraid of the winter itself as he is discouraged by the idea that it is a dreary, lonely season during which people keep indoors as much as they can and there is nothing to do but

If the people who consider settling in this country knew ho wmuch real enjoyment and good sport Canadians iget out of their winters, the knowledge would prove an inducement to immigration. Instead of that the false sensitiveness which resents any reference to the season and incidentally suppresses the real truth, that it is so enjoyable that we miss it sadly when winter fails to come, conveys a wrong impression to the outsider.

Pathetic Incident In Life of English man Who Came to Canada.

man Who Came to Canada.

Here is one of the many incidents which happen in a great city, and which contains much heart interest.

During the early part of last summer there came to Toronto, from England, a man who had been trained in the insurance business. He left behind him a wife and daughter. His object in coming here was to find employment. He was not successful. He wrote to his family regularly, but refrained from telling them of his hard luck, but at last he had to tell them of his failure here. They wrote him immediately, advising him to come home, and asking what money he required. He never received the letter, nor have his friends in England heard from him since.

Several letters for him came from England to his old address. They were "returned" marked "not here." The daughter wrote to an acqualatance Terento, a pathetic letter, asking him

DOWNED BY-LAW

Township of Oover Does Not Look Kindly o Recompensing of

An affair that is a commentary An affair that is a commentary on the modern proclivity of getting something for nothing has been disclosed in the Township of Dover, where the ratepayers have just turned down, by a majority of 55 votes, a by-law drawn up and submitted to them with the intention of recommentary general men who have compensing several men who have, in the estimation of the majority of those who are in a position to be disinterested, done a great deal for the county, and particularly for Dever.

for the county, and particularly for Dover.

When the Chatham, Wallaceburg & Lake Shore Electric Railway was some months ago seeking a right-of-way from Chatham to Wallaceburg, they were inclined to favor the more direct line along the Chatham-Dover town line, and were almost on the point of going in that direction when a number of residents of the Baldoon Road in Dover Township came to them and promised to secure a right-of-way for the railway free along that road. The company listened to their proposal, and finally, the right-of-way having been secured, rean through the township along that route to Wallaceburg.

Unfortunately for the sponsors, Messrs. Roderick McKenzie, John Ross, J. G. Glover, W. F. and Sam R. Montgomery, however, the route which they thought would be given free of cost, as they at first estimated, about $1,500, but which afterwards turned out to be nearer $3,000, so, in order to recoup themselves for their expenditures, which they ed, about $1,500, but which afterwards turned out to be nearer $3,000, so, in order to recoup themselves for their expenditures, which they held, and rightly, in the opinion of disinterested parties, they had assumed for the benefit of the township at large, they had a by-law drawn up for raising over a period of years the sum of $1,500, the same to be submitted to the voters of the section of the township interested most directly, as mentioned in the by-law, and embracing a tract of country than which there is none finer in the west. The remaining $1,500, about which they learned later, they preferred to allow to be paid by themselves rather than ask for a change in the matter mentioned in the by-law.

The by-law was submitted on New Year's day, and, as has been said, the majority against it was 55 votes. As a result of the decision of the voters, the sponsors of the right-of-way will have to make good to a number of those along the Baldoon Road who charged for their property, yet benefit to the same extent as those who did not, while a still larger number by their votes showed their unwillingness to do "the square thing" and help pay for a right-of-way for the road that will help the township, and particularly those along the line, immeasurably. The action of the voters of the towsphip in turning the by-law down has eaused no end of comment, and

HISTORY OF ASTRONOMY.

About the Heavens,

The first of a series of lectures at the Biological Building of the University of Toronto to be given to the students upon subjects not fully dealt with in the curriculum was delivered by Prof. Baker on "The History of Astronomical Knowledge." The lecture was very entertaining, and was attended by a large number of students, and as it was public it was also attended by a number of outsiders. Prof.

tended by a number of outsiders. Prof. Baker dealt first with the appearances in the heavens which would have presented themselves to the notice of early astronomers. There were three of these appearances which would have tion. There were several passages in the "Odyssey" which gave evidence of more than ordinary knowledge of the motion of the heavenly bodies. Prof. Baker read a few of the passages which served to illustrate the point.

which served to illustrate the point. The early astronomers had been unaware of the chief cause of the appearances which they were trying to explain; namely, the motion of the earlt with them on it.

The earliest conception of the universe that had deserved the name of a "licery" was that the stars were fixed in a crystaline sphere, which during the day revolved about the earth from east to west. The motion of the sun and moon from west to east, however, had also to be accounted for, and this was done by simply multiplying the spheres in which the planets moved. This hypethesis, however, was itself not ample, which the planets moved. This hypothesis, however, was itself not ample, and had to be modified, and the course of modification led to the modern conceptions of the universe. The sphere theories, however, were clurg to for a long time, and were amplified to serve the increased perception of appearances; by the theories of eccentric spheres and epi-cycles.

The system of Capernicus had made the sun the centre of movement around which the planets revolved. Subsequent developments had been due to the use of the telescope. The genius of Newton had deduced the law of the planets being detained in their orbits by the force of an attraction in the sun. Finally, the secret had been wrung from the heavens and the law wrung from the heavens and the law of gravitation had been discovered. The law alone, however, was discovered. What gravitation itself was had still to be learned.

VENTILATION.

This Scheme Lets In Fresh Air Without Creating a Draft.

Where the windows of the sleeping room are situated too near the bed del-icate persons often deny themselves the much needed fresh air in the natural fear of taking cold. A simple device I saw not long since consisted merely of a thin, smooth board the exact width and length of the window ledge (less the side strips), which was fastened to the sash edge of the ledge. The board was hinged perfectly flush with the sash and when not in use lay flat on the ledge, where it was out of the way and yet convenient when needed. When fresh air was wanted the window was raised the width of the board, which was then lifted and the board, which was then lifted and pushed forward to act as a support for the sash. Thus the window was opened in the middle, the current of air entering between the top of the lower sash and the bottom of the upper one, the bottom of the window, where drafts are to be most feared, being closed by the board. This simple draft screen may be put in place by even a feminine carpenter, and, if varnished or painted to match the rest of the woodwork, it will be scarcely noticeable work, it will be scarcely noticeable when not in use. Of course the board may be as wide as desired, the greater width allowing a freer circulation of air, but when wider than the window ledge it will be a little more conspicu ous when down.—Good Housekeeping.

Evidence In the United Empire Loya list Claims For Losses and Services-Ontario Archives.

The most important event in the early history of Upper Canada is the coming of the U. E. Loyalists. It forms the foundations and basis of our provincial life and institutions. Much has been written about the U. E. Loyalists, which historical relies the control of the control been written about the U. E. Loyalists, much of historical value still remains to be given to the public, and as their descendants are numerous, powerful, characteristically tenacious of the partiotic principles, and sensitive to the good name of their fathers no doubt documents bearing on their services and sufferings will continue to appear in print for years to come.

In his researches through the papers and literature of the later part of the 18th century respecting Ontario, Mr.

and literature of the later part of the 18th century respecting Ontario, Mr. Alexander Fraser, the Provincial Archivist, got on the trail of a valuable and voluminous manuscript concerning the services and losses of the U. E. Loyalists, a copy of which, having come into the possession of the Bureau of Archives has been issued in the form of his Second Report.

The origin of the manuscript and its preservation are a story in themselves. The British Parliament passed an act in 1783 appointing a commission selves. The British Parliament passed an act in 1783 appointing a commission to classify the claims of U. E. Loyalists. The chairman was John Wilmot and no time was lost in grappling with the work assigned to it. But it soon became clear that certain claims must be presented and evidence heard on the spot. Two commissioners, Mr. Jeremy Pemberton, and Cot. Thomas Dundas, therefore came to Canada on this duty. Mr. Pemberton was a barrister of Lincoln's Inn, and had been appointed to fill a vacancy on the commission. Cot. Dundas belonged to the ancient Scottish family of Arngask, branches of which had given leading men to bar, bench, and Parliament. He owned the picturesque estate of Carron, Stirlingshire, and there his family resided during his absence in Canada. These commissioners held sittings in Canada from 1785, until 1783, and obtained much interesting evidence from the claimants who appeared in person or by agent. teresting evidence from the claimants teresting evidence from the claimants who appeared in person or by agent. They told where they had been located before the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, the value of their holdings, stock, chattels, or business, as the case might be, which they had lost on account of their loyalty; also what services they had rendered to the British cause, and in what capacity, and where they had settled in Canada, making altogether valuable sworn evidence ing altogether valuable sworn evidence as to their circumstances in life, and the quality of the people who first, in large numbers, settled down to hew out homes for themselves from the Ontario forests. As the evidence proceded the commissioners wrote it down and made notes and observations as to its gen-uineness. The manuscript containing this evidence, and part of that pertaining to Canada received in London, by Chairman Wilmot, was taken to Carron Hall, by Col. Dundas and left there by How it was discovered and rescued from obscurity is thus told: In 1844 Gen. Sir Henry Lefroy was in Canada organizing a magnetic sur-vey by order of the British Government. In 1846 he married the daughter of Chief Justice Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart, and through this relation-ship became interested in the early history of the country and in the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, which had then issued a letter pointing out the advantages of accumulating all manuscript material relating to the history of America. In 1880 Sir Henry Lefroy married, as his second wife, a grand-daughter of Col. Dundas, the U. E. Loyalist commissioner, and white staying at Carron Hall, in 1864, he say staying at Carron Hall, in 1864, he saw the original manuscript for the first time. His old interest in early Canada revived and he suggested that the MS. would find a fitting home on this side of the Atlantic, but there being no public Archives Office in Canada, at that time, and remembering the appeal made by the Smithsonian Institute for such material, Sir Henry advised his wife's family to send the MS, there. This was accordingly done, but it remained there, apparently neglected, till an Act of Congress was passed transferring all manuscripts in pessession of the institute to the Archives of Congress, where they have since remained. During the lapse of years the 35 volumes forming the manuscript had received little or no attention and had become through damp and decay very frail and difficult to read. The officials of Congress have more recently employed a special worklic Archives Office in Canada at that more recently employed a special workman, for more than a year, in repairing the tattered leaves and it is from the MS. so restored that the copy now in Mr. Fraser's custody was made. The manuscript differs from the transcript in the Public Records Office, London, in that it contains notes and references made by the commissioners during the proceedings, indicating their opinion of the evidence, sometimes caustically expressed. Considering the faded condition of the original, the copy taken dition of the original, the copy taken has been, apparently, very successfully accomplished and in the printing for publication the Archivist has reproduced the spelling, abbreviations, and phraseology of the manuscript, literally, as is customary in such cases. The original pages of the MS, are given for facility of reference, and a very full index—a huge labor in itself—is furnished as is also an instructive introduction. The whole comprises two parts, of some 1,500 pages, and is a monument to the industry of the Archivist, for a great deal of other work in the way of copying, collecting, and classifying, was being carried on during the preparation and progress of the volumes through the press.

Among the familiar names of Loyalists to be found in the report the fol-

WOMAN'S INTUITION.

Try to Flavor This Sixth Sense With

Woman has heard altogether too much about her intuition, her wonder ful sixth sense that enables her to fump in the dark and arrive at the very spot to which men are feeling their way inch by inch with a lantern her flash judgment that no amount of patient investigation could improve on

Women have been patted on the head so much for the gift of second sight that they have come to presume on it, to count their judgments infallible because they did not work for them and to shirk all patient plodding because they can arrive so much quicker at a jump.

As a natural consequence the woman who is given to this habit has a judgment that is utterly untrained and unworthy.

Not one woman in fifty can show a well balanced mind which judges inde-pendently of her own prejudices and desires or a proper sense of proportion to help her separate the trivial from the important. The feminine estimate of anybody or anything must be cor-rected because of so many side influences that half the time it is worthless An occasional inspiration or coincidence that lands her in the center of a bullseye will not make up for this. Women have every faculty of arriving at sane, impersonal judgments, and when the world gets tired of praising them for inspirations which they do not possess they may shake off the mental slovenlines and develop these faculties to their normal power. Wom an's intuition will be just as valuable. They will reach what they have in view by a rational, logical process rather than by shutting their eyes and jumping hopefully. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

More Terrible Than War!

More terrible than war, famine or pestillence is that awful destroyer, that hydraheaded mours tor. Consumption, that annually sweeps away more of earth's inhabitants than any other single disease known to the human race.

"It is only a cold, a trifling cough," say the careles, as the irritation upon the delicate mucous membrane causes them to hack away with an irritable tickling of the throat. When the irritation settles on the mucous surface of the throat, a cough is the result. To prevent Bronchitis or Consumption of the Lungs, do not neglect a cough however slight as the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages soon leads to fatal results. If on the first arpearance of a cough or cold you would take a few doses of

VISITORS FROM THE NORTH.

Characteristics of Several Varieties o the Owl Described.

The owl is a ghostly bird, always suggesting some vague association with welrd and uncertain visitors of the night. The long, fremulous call of the great horned owl, the mirthless, questioning laugh of the barrel owl, and the timid, wailing whistle of the smallest member of the family are allke replete with the spirit of shadowy mystery, coming out of the night as voices of the unknown. The lightness of their silent flight among the close branches or across the open sky is in itself suggestive of the unearthly, and in the dimness of intellectual twilight they have helped the active fancy to people the air with welrd and threatening phantoms. The snowy owl, ghostly in its arctic plumage, is diurnal in its habits, and this may have saved the The owl is a ghostly bird, always habits, and this may have saved the timid from many discrdered imaginings. The most dreaded enemies are those we create ourselves, and the terror of a white owl moving silently among the dark evergreens would make the wood, at right a place who were the woods at night a place abhorred. Nature in her eternal adjustments has made the snowy owl diurnal, the white that would warn the crouching sparrows and skurrying rodents in the night being an easy concealment among the hummocks of snow in the open northern day.

The Island sand bar and marshes have been visited by a small party of snowy owls this winter, and they have not shown the innocent confidence in man peculiar to other strangers from the far north, says a writer in The Globe. The herring gulls are searcely more alert in discerning the proximity, of guns or more accurate in estimating their range. They have moved about their range. They have moved about uneasily, with steady flight, freely traversing the Island and marshes. Mice, rats, sparrows, and other pests, have learned of the new danger, and are ready to seek cover on the first appearready to seek cover on the first appear-ance of expanding white wings in the upper air. The snowy owl likes a commanding perch, where he can sit erect and turn his round white head thoughtfully from side to side, searching the ground with his wonderfully ing the ground with his wonderfully discerning vision. From such a perch he can drop down with startling suddenness on any mouse or squirrel that ventures out of cover. On the Island the buildings that are associated with the noisy hilarity of summer are selected by the snowy owls as points of observation. One bird fell a victim through the easy concealment afforded by adjacent buildings, but the others are far more cautious than their occaare far more cautious than their occasional diminutive victims.

The snowy owl breeds in the far north, but generally makes a winter visit to the lake country. He has not the stay-at-home habits of his nocturthe stay-at-home habits of his noctur-nal relatives. Though quite wary, he is so large and conspicuous that death continually threatens. A discouraging proportion of these visitors are gen-erally destroyed. When the ice forms in large, irregular cones and barriers along the shore, a snowy owl can easily anong the shore, a showy own can easily find a perch that will give his telescopic eyes a wide range. Though beautifully conspicuous he cannot be approached, and the advances of an observer are construed as an unfriendly act. A long excursion over the ragged edge of the ice-bordered lake shows the futility of all such overtures. This grandest member of the owl fami-ily has a good reputation as a destroyer of vermin, but that would not save him if exposed to the destructive weapons of what his enemies call civiliza tion. He owes his survival to a fond-ness for the great, unpeopled north, where, protected by the color of the long winter, he lives and moves in long winter, he lives and moves in peaceful harmony with the great arctic

The claims of veterans located before the withdrawal order passed will hold good. In ordinary cases of settlement the minerals are reserved by the Crown. All the claims that have been assigned by veterans to other parties will be cancelled unless settlement duties are performed as in the case of the ordinary settler. Prospects are fairly good for a number of law suits over claims in this district.

Canadian Crime Steady.

"There has been a lot of talk about the increase of crime in Canada, but in thirteen years the number of our prison inmates has shown very little variation. Notwithstanding the great increase in population, many of whom are foreigners, our record will compare favorably with that of any country, in the civilized world." So said paré favorably with that of any countr; in the civilized world." So said Mr. W. B. Archibald, Dominion Parole Officer, recently, while talking to the Ottawa Canadian Club upon the work in which he is engaged. Mr. Archibald eilegized the improved management of Canadian prisons, where convicts were taught a trade, and if so minded might lead honest lives. There had been 1,082 men released from penal institutions on parole, and only twenty-four of these had been returned to prison for having again committed crime. About seventy had had their licenses cancelled for failure to report to the police or other causes.

TO HOLD THE SKIRT.

A Homemade Fastener That Is Sim-ple and Satisfactory.

A homemade skirt and waist fasten-er, proving more satisfactory even than the elaborate ones sold for goodly prices in the stores, may be made from a couple of dress hooks and the safety pins from a discarded pair of side garters.

These are the little pins used to fasten the garters to the corset and having a separate slide on one side through which the elastic passes. They are preferred to the ordinary safety pins pecause of this slide, which prevents the hooks from slipping out of place.

Sew the dress hooks to the inside of the skirt band, one on each side of the center of back. Pin the safety pins in the waist as high up as it is desired to lift the skirt band and fasten by slipping the hooks into this little slide in the pins. This will hold the skirt securely in place, and if the pins are fastened to the substantial part of the clothing the waist also will be held down snug and trim.

Each skirt will need a pair of hooks, but only one set of the pins will be necessary, as these may be transferred from one waist to another. By this method of fastening there is no sewing, no fussing and no sagging of skirts .-Ladies' World.

Candle Grease Accidents.

Candle grease is a peculiar thing. It has an individuality all its own. When a candle is being carried about in the dark it has a quiet little way of teasing one. Hot drops trickle down on one's fingers unexpectedly and there is a great to do, but almost before the exclamation is out the wax has congealed to white, most innocent looking drops clinging to the fingers that don't hurt at all. But sometimes the hot drops find their way to the garment and conzeal most comfortably in the meshes of some woolen weave or a cotton or silk fabric. Then there is much distress There is an instant remedy for this. Bathe the spot with alcohol, rubbing the goods upon itself gently, then rinsing with more alcohol. It may be remembered that wax dissolves

Montreal, Jan. 8.—A special from Rigaud, Que., says:

Posses of farmers are scouring the country to try and get a trace of three bodies that have been mysteriously stolen from the cemetery here. The bodies were those of Julien Gauthier, which was deposited in the mortuary Saturday week, and of Mesdames Lynch and Elizabeth Rosen, which were deposited there some weeks ago. The discovery of the theft was made when the body of the child of Ferdinand Leger was being deposited there. The three coffins were found empty, and the grave clothes that had enshrouded the bodies were found strewn about

SAD DEMISE

Geo. B. Charron, an aged and re spected resident of Dover, passed suddenly away yesterday with an attack of heart failure.

He declines to regard Mr. Balfour's free trade tenets as having more than a nominal place in the estimation of the majority of the Unionists, whose fiscal reform policy he holds is fraught with incalculable mischief to the nation and the Empire.

He characterizes protection as immoral and oppressive, based, as he says it must be, on the exploitation of the community in the interest of favored trades and financial groups, and declares the policy of his Government will be te hold fast to the time-honored principles of Liberalism—peace, econwas born in Dover Township, where he lived all of his life. At the time of his death he resided on the 8th Yesterday he went to visit his nephew, Mr. David, on the River road, and was suddenly tak-ed ill and expired within a few hdurs. He had a family of fourteen children, twelve of whom survive him. He has a brother 65 years of age who is the youngest of a family of twelve children. Alex. Charron, who manages the Big Point Club, is a son of deceased.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning to the Big Point cemetery.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late kobert George McCosh took place Saturday afternoon from the rectory, William street. The ceremony, which was private, was artended by only a few of the intimate friends of the family.

Rev. Mr. Hodgins, assisted by Rev. Mr. Colles, read the impressive and sonorous scripture appropriate to the occasion and Cowper's majestic poem "God moves in a mysterious way His mercies to perform."

At the graveside the final rites weae con-summated when the burial service was in-toned be ore the body was lowered into the kind, warm lap of mother earth, to be cradled in sleep until the final day, "and the spirit returned to God who gave it." "Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher, all is wanity."

See that every dolar that is expended makes its mark, that none but the best workmen are employed, men who give the most efficiant service for the moneys paid them, carefully guard all branches of the works department, so that when your services as aldermen for 1903 have ended the electors will say, Well done good and faithful servants. To the Property Committee, say, you have a good, active, intelli-gent body, men from whom I expect good, workable results. There are many matters that need your undiwided attention in order to bring about a more satisfactory state of affairs. The New Market affairs are not in as satisfactory a state as they should be. There still remains besides matters of more minor de-New Premier's Savage Attack on Late old market front. A great many hot and unnecessary debates have taken place over this problem during the your that has passed and nothing definite was arrived at. I refer you to this point in particular, Take time to thoroughly consider the matter during the next three months. Weight carefully every vital point and arrive at a solution of this knotty problem, as to whether to sell the front portion, whether to erect a new market front, or whether to re-pair the old one. Take every detail into your careful consideration and report in due course.

I further call your attention to our toy.

The Premier declares that the last decade represents a well-nigh unbroken expanse of misifanagement and legislation conducted for the benefit of

Elect io Lighting Department. It is not, and practically never has been, in a satisfactory state. Beyond the shadow of a doubt, the department is costing more money than it should for the results that are, or have been, obtained, and the fitizens naturally are becoming impatient. A great deal of overhauling and tinkering has been indulged in without the proper results. Look carefully after this department; go to the root of the whole affair; probe the matter to the very root, and see if it is not possible to obtain a more satisfactory state of affairs than now exists; and if results are obtained the people will rise up and call you blessed. is costing more money than it should

To the Industrial Committee, I may say have the right men in the right place—active, pushing and progressive. Keep on the lookout for new industries. If good, stable concerns can be induced to locate with us, treat them with fairness and liberality to the extent not prejudicial to the interests of our already established citizens, for it is beyond argument that industries benefit the house-owner, the merchant, the builder, contractor, professional men, and workmen, as well as our already established manufacturers. The more of a Manchester that we can build up, the more progressive, noted and happy we will all become. Be untring in your efforts in this department, and may success crown your efforts, and, as years go by, may To the Industrial Committee, I

mittee, permit me to say, that there are a number of important matters that need due consideration in connection with our revered City of the Dead, in order to place the cemetery in a more presentable, tidy condition. Many of the head stones and monuments are toppling over; many graves have been unnecessarily built up above the level, causing a very uneven surface, nee sitating extra labor and expense in keeping them presentable and respectable. I know that in many cases the friends of the departed are non-residents, but as nearly as it is possible to do so, nection with our revered City of the such friends should be notified to assist in putting in shape the last rest-ing places of their beloved. Look carefully after these matters and do the best you possibly can, although in the face of many obstacles. I adin the face of many obstacles. I advise you to make application to the Minister of militia, through the proper channels for a grant to be made to assist in keeping Tecumseh. Park in a first class condition, and I believe if this is done the Government will assist in this respect. Do the best you can in connection with all of the above, and no man can do more.

To the Railway Committee, I may say your committee is practically a new one. There are many subjects and matters that will come within the scope of your work. During the last few months the Wallaceburg. Chatham and Lake Eric Eailway electric line has been built and is now in operation between here and Wallaceburg. The city will soon be called upon to pay over to this company $35,000 being a portion of a loan that is to be granted them under and by virtue of the by-law passed by the people at the municipal clustions of 1904. The Company are now asking that this money be handed over. It is for you to see that all parts of the agreement as embodied in the by-law is carried out. Deal with the company consistently and in good. To the Railway Committee, I may by-law is carried out. Deal with the company consistently and in good apirit according to agreement. See that the company have carried out their part of the bangain and with the assistance of the Finance Committee see that good securities are gotten for the loan we make them. See that the matter of the bridge question is carefully handled—this is very important. Meet the Company fairly, squarely and intelligently, and fairly, squarely and intelligently, and I am certain the company will reciprocate. Another railway, the Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore Rapid Railway Co., have asked for an entry and franchise into our city, and undoubtedly will be here inside of eight months. See that this company are frairly treated; however, not detrimental to the interests of, or the injury of the ratepayers along the streets over which they are allowed to run. This railway will undoubtedly be of great benefit to this city. Therefore, without pajulate to the company or the ratepayers, encourage them so far as you possibly and consistently can, thus further assisting in making the Maple City a railway city second to none in our land. In conclusion, I may say, work together harmoniously, in our land. In conclusion, I may say, work together harmoniously, intelligently and in unison, for in unity is strength.

Take every one of your colleagues into your confidence, make the year 1906 a red-letter one in the annals of our city, let each man do his duty without shirking, be ever ready to push together for the interests and in the interests of the people whom you are serving, and when you are through the year 1906 I trust it may be said by them that the star Council of the City of Chatham was the Council of the present year, and I assure you if this is not said it will not be the fault of the mayor who presided over you.

"There you refer to it's chief charm," replied Nikola, with a grim chuckle. "If it were different in any way to the ordinary hansom, detection would be easy. As it is I am prepared to defy even an expert to discover the mechanism without sufficient. even an expert to discover the me-chanism without pulling it to pieces."
"What is the mechanism, then, and what purpose does it serve?"
"I will explain."
"I will explain."

He placed the lamp he held in his hand upon a bracket on the wall, and then approached the vehicle.

"In the first place examine these cushions," he said, pointing to the interior, "You have doubtless remarked their softness. If you study them closely you will observe that they are pneumatic. The only difference is that the air used is the strongest anaesthetic known to science. The glass is frost air used is the strongest anaesthetic known to science. The glass in front, as you will observe now that I have lowered it, fits into a slot in the apron when the latter is closed, and thus, by when the latter is closed, and thus, by a simple process, the interior becomes air-tight. When this has been done the driver has but to press this knob, which at first sight would appear to be part of the nickel rein-support, and a valve opens on either side of the interior—in the match-box in the right window, in the cigar-cutter in the left; window, in the eigar-cutter in the left; the bas escapes, fills the cab, and the result is—well, I will leave you to imagine the result for yourself."

"And then?" I muttered hoarsely, scarcely able to speak distinctly, so overcome was I by the horrible exactness and ingenuity of the muddesort.

"Then the driver places his foot upon this treadle, which, you see, is made to look as if it works the iron support that upholds the vehicle when resting, the seat immediately revolves and the bottom turns over, thus allowing the body to drop through on to the road. Its very simplicity is its charm. Having carried out your plan you have but to find a deserted street, drive along it, depress the lever, and you have but to find a deserted street, drive along it, depress the lever, and be rid of your fare when and where you please. By that time he will be far past calling out, and you can drive quietly home, conscious that your work is accomplished. Now what do you think of my invention!"

For a few momests I did not answer, but sat upon an unturned her.

swer, but sat upon an upturned box close by, my head buried in my hands. The agony of that minute no man will The agony of that minute no man will ever understand. Shame for myself for listening, loathing of my demoniacal companion for tempting me, hatred of Bartrand, and desire for revenge, all struggled within me for the mastery. I could scarcely breathe; the air of that hateful room seemed to suffocate me. At last I rose to my feet, and as I did so another burst of fury seized me.

"Monster! Murderer!" I cried, turning like a madman on Nikola, was testing the appliances of his awful invention with a smile of quiet satisfaction on his face. "Let me go, I will not succumb to your temptations. will not succumb to your temptations. Show me the way out of this house, or I will kill you."

Sobs shook my being to its very core. A violent fit of hysteria had seized me, and under_its influence I was not responsible for what I said or did. Nikola turned from the cab as calmly as if it had been an ordinary hansom which he was examining with a view of purchase, and, concentrating his gaze upon me as he spoke, said quietly:

"My dear Pennethorne, you are exciting yourself. Pray endeavor to be calm. Believe me, ther is nothing to be gained by talking in that eccentric fas-hion. Sit down again and pull yourself together."

As I looked into his face all my strength seemed to go from me, Without a second's hesitation I sat down as he commanded me, and stared in a stupid, dazed fashion at the floor. I no longer had any will of my own. Of course I can see now that he had hypnotized me! but his methods must have been more deadly than I have ever seen exercised before, for he did not insist upon my looking into his eyes for any length of time, nor did he make any passes before my face as I had seen professional mesmerists do. He simply glanced at me—perhaps a out a second's hesitation I sat down An Early Awakening.

The quiet French town of Annonay had a deplorable thrill of the nerves the other night. The parish church hell ringer awoke at twenty minutes past midnight, read the time for 4 a. m. by mistaking the hands and, rushing to the church through the deserted streets, began ringing out the morning "angelus." The church is situated pretty well in the centre of the town, and the unwonted clamor startled the entire population from their beds with apprehension of some imminent calamity. The police had to climb the belfry to put an end to the untime w performance.

he make any passes before my face as I had seen professional mesmerists do. He simply glanced at me—perhaps a little more fixedly than usual—and all my will was immediately taken from me. When I was calm he spoke again. "You are better now," he said, "so we can talk. You must pay particular attention to what I am going to say, and what I tell you to do you will de to the letter. To begin with, you will now go back to your hotel, and, as soon as you reach it, go to bed. You will sleep without waking till four o'clock this afternoon; then you will dress and go for a walk. During that walk you will think of the man who has wronged you, and the more you think of him the fiercer your hatred for him will become. At six o'clock you will return by your hotel and dine, going to sleep again in the smoking-room till ten. When the clock has struck you will wake, take a hansom, and drive to 23, Great Gunter Street, Soho. Arriving at the house, you will ask for Levi Solomon, te whom you will be at once conducted. He will look after you until I can communicate with you again. That is your program for the day. I order you not to fall in any single particular of it. Now you had better be off. It is nearly six o'clock."

I rose from my seat and followed him out into the passage like a dog: "My mother has been suffering for many years from rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pennsylvania. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in Tact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by all drugglets.

"Get in," said Nikola, opening the apron. "My man will drive you to your hotel. On no account give him a gratuity, for I do not countenance it, and he knows my principle. Good night."

I obeyed him mechanically, still without emotion, and when I was seated the cab drove out into the street.

Throughout the journey back to the hotel I sat in the corner trying to think, and not succeeding. I was only conscious that, whatever happened, I must obey Nikola in all he had told me to do. Nothing else seemed of any importance.

On approaching my residence, I wondered how I should obtain admittance; but as it turned out, that proved an easy matter, for when I arrived the servants were already up and about, and the front door stood open, Disregarding the stare of astonishmen with which I was greeted, I went up-stairs to my room, and in less than ten minutes was in bed and fast

Strangely enough, considering the excitement of the previous twenty-four hours, my sleep was dreamless. It seemed only a few minutes from the seemed only a few minutes from the time I closed my eyes till I was awake again, yet the hands of my watch had stood at half-past six a.m. when I went to bed, and when I opened my eyes again they chronicled four o'clock exactly. So far I had fulfilled Nikola's instructions to the letter. Without hesitation I rose from my bed, dressed myself carefully, and when I was ready donned my overcoat and went out for a walk. walk. The evening was bitterly cold, and

The evening was falling. To keep my-heavy snow was falling. To keep my-self warm I hurried along, and as I went I found my thoughts reverting continually to Bartrand. I remembered my life at Markapurlie, and the cat-and-dog existence I had passed there-with him. Then the memory of poor old Ben's arrival at the station came back to me as distinctly as if it had been but yesterday, and with its coming the manager's brutality roused me afresh. I thought of the fight we had afresh. I thought of the fight we had had, and then of the long weeks of nursing at the wretched Mail Change on the plains. In my mind's eye I seemed to see poor old Ben sitting up in bed and telling me his secret, and when I was once more convalescent, went over, day by day, my journey to the Boolga Ranges, and dreamt again the dreams of wealth that had occupied my brain then, only to find myself robbed of my fortune at the end. Now the man who had stolen my Now the man who had stolen chance in life was one of the richest men in England. He had in his pos-session all that is popularly supposed to make life worth the living, and while he entertained royalty, bought while he entertained royalty, bought race-horses and yachts, and enjoyed every advantage in life at my expense, left me to get along as best I might. I might die of starvation in the gutter for all he would care, At that moment I was passing a newsagent's stall. On a board before the door, setting forth the contents of a covening forth the contents of an evening newspaper, was a line that brought me up all standing with surprise, as the sailors standing with surprise, as the sailors say. "Bartrand's Generosity.—A Gift to the People," it ran. I went inside, bought a copy of the paper, and stood in the light of the doorway to read the paragraph. It was as follows:—

"Mr. Richard Bartrand, the well-known Australian millionaire, has, so we are informed, written to the London County Council offering to make a free gift to the city of that large a free gift to the city of that large area of ground recently occupied by Montgomery House, of which he has lately become the possessor. The donor lately become the possessor. The donor makes but one stipulation, and that is that it shall be converted into public gardens, and shall be known in the future as Bartrand Park. As the ground in question was purchased at auction by the millionaire last week for the large sum of fifty thousand pounds, the generosity of this gift cannot be over-estimated."

To the surprise of the newsagent I crushed the paper up, threw it on the ground, and rushed from the shop in a blind rage. A hatred more latense, more bitter, than I could ever have believed one man could entertain for another, filled my breast. Under its influence all my scruples vanished, and I wanted nothing but to cry quits with my enemy.

For more than half an hour I hurried along, scarcely heeding where I went, thinking only of my hatred, and gloating over the hideous revenge I was about to take. That I was doing all this under Nikola's hypnotic influence I now feel certain; but at the time I seemed to be acting on my own initiative, and Nikola to be only playing the part of the deus ex machina.

At last I began to weary of my walk, so, hailing a hansom, I directed the driver to convey me back to my hotel. As I passed through the hall the clock over the billiard-room door struck six, and on hearing it I became aware that in one other particular I had fulfilled Nikola's orders. After dinner I went into the smoking-room, and, seating myself in an easy chair before the fire, lif a cigar. Before I had half smoked it I was fast asleep, dreaming that I was once more in Australia and tossing on a heed of stelesses, in the smoked it I was fast asleep, dreaming that I was once more in Australia and tossing on a bed of sickness in the Mail Change at Markapurlie. A more vivid dream it would be impossible to imagine. I saw myself, pale and haggard, lying upon the bed, unconscious of what was passing around me, I saw Bartrand and Gibbs standing looking, down at me. Then the former came Bartrand and Gibbs standing looking down at me. Then the former came closer, and bent over me. Next moment he had taken a paper from the pocket of my shirt, and carried it with him into the adjoining bar. A few minutes later he returned with it and replaced it in the pocket. As he did so he turned to the Jandlord, who stood watching him from the doorway, and said—"You're sure he's delirious, that he's not shamming?"
"Shamming? Poor beggar," answered Gibbs, who after all was not such a bad fellow at heart. "Take a good look at him and see for yourself. I hope I may never be as near gone as he is now."

"So much the better," said Bartrand with a sneer, as he stepped away from the bed. "We'll save him the trouble of making us his legatees."
"You don't mean to steal the poor secret, surely? "I wouldn't have told you if I'd hought that"

"More fool you then," said Bartrand.
"Of course I'm not going to steal it, only to borrow it. Such chances don't come twice in a lifetime. But are you sure of your facts? Are you certain the old fellow said there was gold enough there to make both of them millionaires half-a-dozen times over?"
"As certain as I'm sitting here," an-swered Gibbs.

"Very good; then I'm off to night for the Boolga Ranges, In ten days I'll have the matter settled, and by the time that dog there gets on to his feet again we'll both be on the high road to fortune."

to fortune."

"And I'm only to have a quarter of what you get? It's not fair, Bartrand."

Bartrand stepped up to him with that nasty, bullying look on his face tifat, I knew so well of old.

"Look here, my friend," he said, "You know Richard Bartrand, don't you? And you also know what I can tell about you. I offer you a fourth of the mine for your information, but I don't give it to you for the reason that I'm afraid of you, for I'm not. Remember I know enough of your doings in this grog shanty to hang you a dozen times over; and, by the Lord Harry, if you make yourself a nuisance to me I'll put those on your reverse." you make yourself a nuisance to me I'll put those on your track who'll set you swinging. Stand fast by me and I'll treat you fair and square, but get up to any hanky-panky and I'll put such a stopper on your mouth that you'll never be able to open it again."

Gibbs leaned against the design.

Gibbs leaned against the door with a face like lead. It was evident that however much he hated Bartrand he feared him a good deal more. A pret-tier pair of rogues it would have been difficult to find in a long day's march, "You needn't be afraid, Mr. Bart-rand," he said at last, but this time in no certain voice. "I'll not split on you as long as you treat me fairly. You've been a good friend to me in the past and I know you mean me well though you speak so plain."

"I know the sort of man with whom I have to deal, you see," returned Bartrand with another nasty sneer. "Now I must get my horse and be off. I've a lof to do if I want to get away to-night."

to-night."

He went out into the verandah and ushitched his reins from the nals on which they were hanging.

"Let me have word directly that carrion in there comes to himself again," he said, as he got into the saddle. "And be sure you never breathe a word to him that I've been over. I'll let you know all that goes on as soon as know all that goes on as soon as we've got our claim fixed up. In the meantime, mum's the word. Good-

A Mighty Desert Wind. The samiel is a hot, noxious electrical wind which passes over the sandy deserts of Arabia and Africa. It moves with the quickness of lightning and passes in narrow currents for a few minutes at a time. It deals instant death to every man or beast happening to face it, and it is said that it so de-composes them that their limbs fall asunder. The approach of it is indicatasunder. The approach of it is indicated by thick haze in the horizon, and travelers, if they have time, throw themselves on their faces, with their feet toward it, till it has passed. The sirocco is another blighting wind, which prevails in Italy and adjoining districts about April. The West Indian hurricanes are of a totally different description, being simply vortexes of great force, and they have been known to blow heavy cannon out of a battery and carry a man over a ten foot wall.

COLD SETTLES IN THE BACK.

It hits people in a tender spot and makes it mighty hard to brace up. Nerviline takes that kink out of your spinal column in short order; it soothes, that's why relief comes soon. Nerviline penetrates, that's why it cures. Five times stronger than ordinary remedies, Nerviline can't fail to cure lame back, lumbago, sciatica, and neuralgia. Nerviline is instant death to all muscular pains For nearly fifty years it has been the largest selling liniment in Condada. Better try it.

BIRD BREAD 10 CENTS, COTTAM BIRD SEED, 19st., London, Ont. VALUE OF OLD MEN.

Those of Threescore Years Said to Be Most Useful Citizens.

America is the young man's country, we are told, because so many of the conspicuous figures among us are young nen. The thing is said conventionally as if there were some moral virtue in being young; as if, too, the greatest tragedy in American history was not the death some forty years ago of half a million men in the prime of life, which deprived our generation of its wisest counselors. Experience is the only school which, gives a degree honored of all men, and a man of three score, with the vigor of life still in him, should be the most useful citizen of a community. The awful catastrophe at Baltimore furnished a splendid in-stance. The conflagration had been raging for twelve hours. Chief Horton of the fire department had been disabled by a live wire. The fighters were without a head. Then William C. McAfee, veteran fire chief, retired for age and accounted an old man, of-fered his services to the mayor. They were accepted. Donning his oilskins and grabbing his trumpet, the old chief went into action. At once the men knew they had a leader. They needed one. The fire was roaring down to the river bank, where were some great resin works filled with turpentine. And as they went so must go East Bal "There will be the deuce to pay if the fire gets into that resin," yelled Mc-Afee through his trumpet. "If enough of you men will follow me, we'll go in there and dump the whole outfit into the bay."

They followed the leader, and they saved East Baltimore.

TREE PLANTING.

Some Valuable Pointers That Are Well Worth Remembering. First cut off smoothly the broker root ends which are over half an inch in diameter; next trim the top if it cannot be easily reached from the ground after planting. With an oak or other hardwood tree cut back severely, reducing the number of buds 60 per cent to 80 per cent. If the leader is cut off, a tree later forms two leaders, which are apt to split the trunk and ruin the tree. After the hole has been prepared it should be partially refilled, so that the trees are at their natural level. Spread the roots out straight. Work fine, mellow soil under the center of the tree. In the case of fine roots it may be nec essary to do this with the fingers. With coarse, fibrous roots the earth can be packed in with a pointed stick.

Next see that the tree stands ver-tically. The simplest way is to stand off, then hold up the shovel so that it forms a plumb bob and take a sight Then stand around and look at the tre from a direction at right angles to the first line of sight, seeing that the trunk stands erect on both lines. Packing the earth firmly around the center will hold it in position in most instances.

Watering fall planted trees is rarely necessary, as the ground will generally Blind Men and Smoking. "Why is it that a blind man never smokes?" asked Smith the other day. "Because he would not know whethe he was pulling on a lighted cigar or an unlighted one," replied Jones. "If a man shuts his eyes he can't tell whether he is smoking or not, unless he in-hales his smoke. The inhaler is generally able to feel it passing through the double flues of his chimney nose. But I have seen the experiment made of blindfolding a smoker who doesn't inhale and then placing a lighted and unlighted cigar in his mouth alternately. He was never able to say when he was smoking. He was absolutely unconscious of the cloud of blue vapor that was blown from his mouth when he had the lighted Havana between his teeth. A man has to see it in order to enjoy a smoke."

An Odd Prescription. Dr. William Osler in one of his Bal-timore lectures recited a quaint old cure for the gout-a cure from a seventeenth century work that was designed to show gout's hopelessness.
"First, pick," said this odd cure, "s handkerchief from the pocket of a spinster of thirty-five who never wished to wed; second, wash the handker-chief in an honest miller's pond; third, dry it on the hedge of a person who was never covetous; fourth, send it to the shop of a physician who never killed a patient; fifth, mark it with a lawyer's ink who never cheated a cilent, and, sixth, apply it het to the gout tormented part. A speedy cure will fol-

A Little Ambiguous. Mr. Gladstone was much bothered by young, unknown authors, who sent him their published works for his judgment. So his secretary was instructed to use this ingenious formula of acknowledg rent: "My Dear Sir-Mr. Gladstone in-structs me to say that he is in receipt of your book, for which he returns thanks. Be assured that he will lose no time in perusing it."

Will Cause Irritation In France, But Will Not Lead to War Though Conference Fails.

London, Jan. 8.—According to offi-scial information received in London from Herlin, Germany not only de-mands that all the powers shall par-ticipate in the execution of reforms in Morocco, but that the work of watch-day the frontier shall be divided among them, thus realizing fears expressed them, thus realizing fears expressed by an official of the Foreign Office in an interview with the Associated Press last Thursday, that there was some fear that the German delegates might insist on regulations clashing with what France considered her special privileges, for instance, the policing of the fuority.

If Germany persists in this attitude in the conference, it is believed a most electrons situation will arise, as France eis certain, to resist, and Great Britain will support France. The British Government, while believing the conference finally will reach a satisfactory metitement, realizes that persistence by Germany in her demands will cause irritation.

In official and unofficial circles the possibility of war is considered the re-modest, even if the conference falls, particularly as those who are inspiring the German policy do not belong to the war party, but are powerful com-
