Courage.
Who falls to strike when man's assailed,
For fear of selfish pain or loss,
Who weakly cowers when right is called,
Upon the proud world's heavy cross,
Who fails to speak the splendid word
Of bold defiance to a lie,
Whose voice for truth is faintly heard
When party passions mount on high,
Whose throats are straggling cause opponents,
Who dare no stand alone with God—
That man is coward, and no deeds
Can prove his courage, battle needs,
Are sought beside a coward's life.

Who dreads with trembling face,
Nor braves his tempter to the ground;
Who champions not the truth, the poor,
Whom power and strength by craft he
Who bows to flattery to his fitting,
And craves what he knows is weak;
Who patters with a deadly wrong,
And who with words of peace,
Who craves with soft opinions,
Nor dares his own true thoughts proclaim;
Who never will by martyr's trail,
Run on before his time—
Is coward, and no work appears,
Who shrinks from duty, and who
Who courage shall outlast the years,
But every coward soul shall die.

The Fiery Furnace.
Continued.
After two days.
I have been ill—at least I have said I have been ill—and no one doubts it. I have lain here listening, thinking—O! how I have longed to hear Marion mention his name! How ardently I have listened the conversation to personal channels, and what what bare and barren results! Once I heard his footsteps in the garden!
Marion has just been here. There will be no dread for me in the studio any longer. All his work is for nothing! The statue is a mass of shapeless clay. It is all a mystery. No one knows anything about it. Marion's face was expressionless as she told me.
"Does Mr. Stone feel very badly?" I asked timidly, my heart sick with sympathy.
"Naturally, it was a masterpiece." "Who can have dared to do it?" I cried passionately. "Who can have dared?" Marion shrugged her shoulders indifferently and I almost hated her for it, and she knew I knew her.
"It was a shameful act, I stammered hotly. 'I would as soon desecrate a temple as to have a man's head and hand. The work of a man's head and hand. Greeds is not for the individual. It belongs to the multitude (passionately.)"
Marion looked at me through half-closed lids—coldly.
"You should let Paul hear you," she said cuttingly. "I am sure he would appreciate such enthusiasm." "I can't!" And she rose slowly to her grand height. "I have decided to terminate my engagement," she said meaningfully as she swept toward the door. "I don't know if father told you."
"He has told me nothing."
"Seems to me in July," she explained with cruel ease, "and he won't consent to a separation—and so we are to be married next month."
She merely refrained from looking at me and opening the door with out haste of any sort, she left the room.
I turned my face to the pillow and wished that I were dead.
Three weeks before the wedding.
Marion has gone up to town. The wedding is to be very quiet, just the family and a few friends. All week the boxes have been coming, boxes full of billows, gauzy things, gowns after gowns of almost untraced splendor. Marion robes herself like a queen and it suits her. She over shadows her clothes. When she puts them on they become but an inconspicuous part of a perfect whole.
The wedding is to be here. Marion asked that it should be, and I had nothing to say. My time of trial will soon be over.
I have scarcely left my room these last weeks. I cannot meet him and I will not.
I used to complain, I think, because I was lame. I have forgotten it now. Something more vital, crueler, has laid me, I have learned to worry too long, just to hear one voice, to look in a stern face whose eyes accuse, to put out a faltering hand and reach—touch even his coat—his glove—anything that belongs to him; and because I bore my affliction so fully God has let me know the sting of a worse pain, and there is no rebellion left in me. If I can have elence and solitude I ask nothing more.

Then in the day.
It was past six o'clock and I went slowly down into my deserted court for the first time in weeks. The first day had put off all her gay, riotous color and found the sober gray of a winter day.
The garden was deserted, the flowers had faded, the water lay in the basin still as glass, with faint sunset colors on its bosom, and one early star. I dropped heavily down on the marble ledge and laid my crutches aside. There were a few water lily leaves, but the flowers had gone to sleep. No one would ever thrust water-lilies in my hair again or call me fair! I had one day out of a lifetime. One joy—There was a stop on the gravel. Without warning I knew, my heart was fluttering up to my throat, and a sudden burning color sprang to my cheeks. My hands were cold.
He bore down upon me like a giant relentlessly. There was almost wild exultation in his eyes.
"Do not go!" he called almost before he reached me. "Wait just a moment—"

I had not the power to stir. I sat dumbly staring at him.
He came, and held out his hand and I put mine into it, and we looked into each other's eyes. I tried to smile but something in his face checked the effort.
"Angela!" he whispered softly. "Angela!" Let me look at you. No, do not cover your eyes—they are mine. There shall be no reservation now. One hour out of my life I will take. One hour, sweetheart!"
I trembled.
"I looked in her face in dazed wonder. Was it then—was it—dear Angela? She was smiling gaily, light heartedly. Her face was pale, but so vividly radiant that she had an almost unearthly beauty.
She squeezed my hand encouragingly, and then bending, kissed my cheek.
"With my love," she said softly, and reaching over laid my hand in his.
"I cannot!" I cried, snatching my hand away dazedly. "I will not."
"But you must!" her voice was natural and quiet. She turned quickly and gathered up her gown. "Two is company," she whispered softly, "and three."
But she was gone. We stood dumbly watching her as with a little song on her lips she trailed slowly by. Proud, erect, stately. The rosy color of the sunset kissed her white gown. She seemed to sway a moment as she reached the turn of the path, but in herself and passed on. Between the roofs of sleepy hollyhocks, under the bending branches of the trees—
As she went the night dropped down suddenly, and gathered the garden in its shadowy arms; but out of the darkness came the brave, pure notes of my sister's song; fainter—lighter—sweeter—

Moving a Church Tower.
The remarkable feat of moving a church tower to permit of the church being enlarged is being accomplished in Belgium. The work is being done by two engineers, and the vast undertaking occupies only eight workmen. New foundations have been prepared for the tower about thirty feet away, and along the machinery constructed for its transport the tower, which dates from the fourteenth century and is said to weigh 2,700 tons, is now being moved. Already about 8 feet has been covered, and it is hoped that the tower will be in place by the end of the week have reached its new site. Large crowds assemble each day to witness the singular spectacle.

Pain, helplessness and suffering are overcome by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

I was badly with kidney disease and after a long time could not get up without help. I was completely laid up with kidney disease and backache. I had forgotten everything in a joy so mad, so cruel, so delicious that I was drunk with it!"
"Let me go!" I panted faintly. "I am ashamed!"
"Live you!"
"Hush—O! you must not." I struggled helplessly, and his tender hands unloosed themselves.
"One moment, just a moment, child—"

Are You Loyal to Your Community?
No word appeals more strongly to the average person than loyalty. We all love to be spoken of as loyal to family, friends, country and to our ideals. We should also include our home city.
There is no doubt of our sincerity in this, and we would feel very offended were it questioned, but is this loyalty always of the high sort; is it intelligent and active, or is it sometimes a sentimental and pleasing fancy with which we delude ourselves?
The happiness of the people of a city depends largely on the prosperity of the community as a whole, and this prosperity depends in part upon the amount of money circulated there. The more money the people send away for things they can buy from their own merchants, the poorer the community will become and, conversely, the more they spend at home; the more the place will thrive.
Do those who patronize distant mail order houses ever think of the harm done? If all the good people in Boston, for instance, should ignore local merchants and for one year buy all their supplies in Chicago, Buffalo and New York, there would be 'For Sale' signs on the city hall, Young's, the public library and the old North church. The same principle applies to all communities.
Patronage of home merchants is the life of a city. The mail order houses by offering attractive (?) premiums with indifferent goods, have drawn from us large amounts of money which, if spent at home, would have helped to pay for schools, paving, and general civic improvements. Outside business houses do not pay any part of our taxes.
But, 'Business is Business' some say. Yes, but business is more than that, it is reciprocity, and it should be apparent to everyone that business dealings with those who are working for the same local interests as ourselves will be far more productive of good, than trading with people who are far away, who buy nothing from us, and whose only interest in our community is the amount of money they can get out of it.
Do you recall when times have been hard that these mail order houses have extended you credit to help you over the hard places? Will they? Not in a thousand years—it's money down, or no goods. The local merchants are the ones to whom we must turn for assistance, but how can we do so with good grace or reason unless we support them in prosperous times?
They are alert, intelligent and progressive, and, if given the opportunity, will sell better goods at the same, or lower prices, than the mail order houses can or will and deliver them at once—no express charges, no long delays, no disappointments.
Let us cease, then, enriching a few people in whom we have no sort of interest, at the cost of lasting injury to our own community. Try supporting our own home business for a time.
Surely, loyalty, in this instance, means spend your money at home.—Exchange.

Alum Water a Good Healer.
Whether your foot or your tongue is tender there are few remedies equal to weak alum water. Alum hardens the cuticle quickly, and so makes an excellent foot bath, especially for summer, when the feet are inclined to burning and are sensitive.
When using it for a sore tongue, make a weak solution and do not swallow it. It can be used in stronger proportions on the outside of lips for fever blisters.
Strong alum water is said quickly to allay the burning of frost-bitten feet, and is employed effectively for nervous twitching, which is aggravated by leather.
Do not use alum water for dyspepsia, as is sometimes advocated. It is injurious when used internally.

Agriculture the Chief Industry.
Last year the four largest occupations in Canada employed the following numbers: Agriculture, 716,937; manufacturing, 359,873; domestic, 277,755; transportation, 234,236. Besides these the professional class numbered 94,619, mining employed 35,998, and the fisheries gave work to 21,024. The forest and lumber industry employed 16,213, and a miscellany of occupations engaged 4413. In considering matters of trade, the fact must be borne in mind that agriculture is to-day, and is likely to remain for all time, the chief industry of Canada, and cannot be ignored.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., NOV. 18, 1910

Our Streets Again.

The disgraceful condition of Wolfville's principal street has been the subject of general comment during the past few weeks. The season has certainly been especially unfavorable and roads everywhere are reported to be in a very bad state. In all the small towns of Nova Scotia complaints are being made and the authorities are called upon to take immediate steps for reform. It is, therefore, not surprising that Main street should be in a bad condition. It is surprising, however, that our people should patiently put up with this state of affairs year after year. That other towns are content to stand still in the matter of street improvement is no reason why Wolfville should do likewise. In many matters of municipal reform our town has led the way, and certainly in the matter of streets no town is in greater need of active measures being taken than Wolfville. In our opinion there is no reason why Main street should not be made a credit instead of a disgrace to our citizens. There is no engineering difficulty in the way and the street is straight and wide enough to meet every need. The difficulties in the way are no greater than were faced when our splendid water service was secured or our complete sewerage system installed. We were told that the expense incurred in providing these requirements would bankrupt our citizens, but no one has felt the burden and the town is better and more prosperous because of these works. The same result would follow street improvements. With a paved Main street and modern sidewalks our town would be made much more attractive, and in years to come our people would not cease to congratulate themselves on their good sense and business acumen which induced them to undertake the work. We do hope that before another spring comes definite arrangements will have been made for taking up this matter in a business-like way. In the meantime THE ACADIAN will be glad to have citizens further discuss the subject through its columns.

Conservatives and Liberals seem highly delighted over the result of the bye-election held in Digby county upon the 15th inst. Mr. Wall, the Liberal candidate, secured a majority of about one half that secured by Big party in 1906. A bye-election is hard to win by the opposition, and the cutting in two of the majority seems to be as much as the opposition expected.

The Municipal elections were held upon the 15th inst. also. Some good men were elected in this county and a much better Council will gather for county business at Kentville in January than for some years past. Some old faces will be missed, but on the whole the changes will be beneficial. Politically, we do not know the complexion of the new Council and we care less. The country is being ruined by partisan politics, and if such is not kept out of our municipal and civic contests, the very worst conditions can be expected. The parties that introduce federal or party politics into municipal contests deserve to be beaten with many stripes, but unfortunately they do not always get all that is coming to them, or rather, their punishment may be delayed. We fondly hope that our new municipal council will prove the best, and that the voters will, after all have done for the best of all interested.

We understand that our former townsmen, Mr. Charles F. Crandall, has recently been appointed editor of the Montreal Daily Herald. Mr. Crandall graduated from Acadia in the class of 1890, was editor of 'The Star', St. John, N. B., 1902-1905, and editor of 'The Daily Sun', St. John, from 1906 until it was purchased by 'The Daily Telegraph'. Mr. Crandall has been for several months editor of 'The Evening Echo', of Halifax. The Montreal Daily Herald is one of the leading newspapers in Canada, and we congratulate Mr. Crandall upon his appointment to this important editorship. Charlie is one of our most brilliant young men and we look for his eminent success in Montreal. He is a son of Mr. Noble Crandall, who formerly lived in Wolfville.

The Reviewer.

THE CHILD AND CITIZENSHIP.

The wisdom of the age may be rightly estimated by its regard for child life and the degree in which are created conditions conducive to its development. Civic sanity becomes apparent in the treatment of child life. It is more than a matter of development. All the greater interests of life are dependent upon it. No town, no village, no city can afford to consider the matter of cost so far as its children are concerned. Economy is a fatal policy when, by reason of it, conditions are not at their best.

A civic playground for children is a sure sign of progress. It shows an intelligent and practical appreciation of the fact that creation must be by means of re-creation, that the faculties of the child must be by means of exercise and development, and that the natural energy of the youth should be bound to come out either in healthful play or in wholesome mischief. Children must play, whatever the people must pay.

The town or people that forgets the child will be forgotten. The citizens of 1920, upon whom the high enterprises of our country will depend, are our streets to-day. If they are simply drifting in the current of the streets, exposed to all the buffeting and contaminations of the crowd, or forced to collect their dividends of pleasure from secret places and 'no trespassing' fields, they will not contribute much to good citizenship when the time comes for them to take the places of influence and power. If they see nothing but restrictions and mud, and hear only curses and violence of every kind, if they have no place of recreation where all is fair and straight and manly, under supervision that will incorporate into all their games and fun the spirit of honor, then how shall they do honor to the citizens of 1910, who have not sense or generosity enough to give them a chance.

In this town, small as it is, or ambitious as it is, there is no asset of greater value than the little child. Take all the wealth of every citizen and pile it in one glittering pile, and you have not a fraction of the value of the little baby life that was born in this town yesterday. There is no method of human occupation whereby one may adequately estimate or express its worth.

A child is the culmination of all creation. It is the final product of all the age old forces. All centuries find their fulfilment in its life. In every child's face you may read the history of thousands of years and many times ten thousand lives, all of which he contributed something to its chances. In the lives of boys you will read the history of the past more truly than in the leaves of books.

And the child is the future, just as it is the past. It holds in embryo the forces that shall give to humanity its greatest achievement in the days to come. The future can be only the fruition of what the child holds in trust for it. Its power can be but the development of that which beats feebly in the cradles of today. Its love can be but the continuation of that feeling that causes a million little arms to reach out for some pleasure of today. And its hate, let every good citizen take notice, shall be in large part the result of the fact that other little arms are denied their right, and childhood sours into disappointment.

The child offers to the good citizen the supreme chance to affect the future. Through the life of a child stretches illimitable areas of influence. If you, good citizen, business man, church member, father or not, would write large, and for eternity, write on the tablets of childhood Touch one moment of a child's life and you have affected its whole life and you speak in a little child's ear, and your words shall reverberate through the centuries. Bring to bear an impulse of good upon a young life, and you have set in motion an influence whose limit of reach no man can even prophesy.

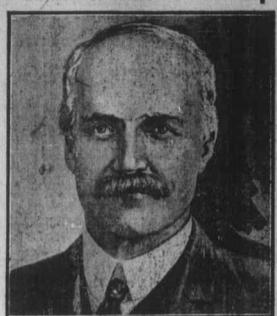

What use is it to talk about building a town beautiful, unless every effort is made to build the character beautiful in child life. In Wolfville we have no civic playground for the children. They are restricted at every turn, summer and winter. Our streets are full of small children, and what is the town doing to build up good citizenship. Business men have their cars wide open for every chance to make a dollar. They speculate, they lay awake nights planning some business venture, and no doubt our citizens are as clever in making money, as the average in our country. But do you want to do something for the future? Are you interested in anything but selfish gain? Do you desire to do something real for the advancement of some one but yourself? Do you want Canada, and Wolfville in particular, to excel in the things that count most truly? Then you will find in child life the children you meet daily, the medium for the satisfaction of your desire. In that plastic clay you may mould the ideal, making more happy, more pure, more unselfish and worthy, the citizenship of the future. Who will be the first in our town to make the start? It is not enough that you look after your own, you will-to-do and representative citizen. It is not enough that you pay your bills, that your bank account is growing, that your home is comfortable, and that you are able to surround your own child with generous provisions, amusements and education.

Think of the less favored home, and child. What that child is made by your help for future will become.

Baptist Church. Rev. Dr. Catten, President of Acadia University, occupied the pulpit on Sunday. In the morning he preached an eloquent and scholarly sermon from Acts 10, 19, emphasizing the point that there is no vision without a task; stating that the Christian who saw the vision and ignored the inescapable task was but a poor specimen of a follower of Jesus Christ.

A Long Race. The Nova Scotia sportsman, Frank J. Robinson, has issued a challenge that should interest the breeders of orthodox trotting bred animals. Mr. Robinson is the Provincial Secretary of Nova Scotia for the Canadian National Breeding Bureau. He has challenged any ten trotters to race against the thoroughbred Zipsago from Halifax, N.S., to Yarmouth, N.S. a distance of about 225 miles, all to go in harness. He also offers to race Zipsago for three miles against the six best horses in Nova Scotia, they to go as a relay, a half mile each.

Mother's Little Treasure. What mother does not look upon her baby as a little treasure. What mother would not rather suffer herself than see her precious little one suffer. The well child brings joy to the home—the sick child brings misery, despair and care. But, mothers, there is no need for your baby to be ever sick and ailing; even during the much dreaded teething time. What you need is to keep him well as an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, destroy worms and make teething easy.

A Needed Lesson. La Patrie, of Montreal, dealing with the bye-election at Drummond, says in substance:—The election of Mr. Gilbert in Drummond and Arthabaska is surely one of the most amazing events in our political history. To the liberal party, needless to say, the result meant a crushing disappointment, while its opponents, dissatisfied liberals, conservatives, and nationalists, are overjoyed. It was all so unexpected.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S CATARRH POWDER 25c
is sent direct to the consumer. It is the best remedy for Catarrh of the Bladder, Prostate, Uterus, Vagina, etc. It is sold by all druggists.

He had long hair and a peevish look. He wrote a poem entitled, "Why I Live." He signed it Augustus and sent it to a magazine.

The editor wrote to him as follows: "My dear Augustus, the reason why you live is because you sent the poem by mail instead of bringing it personally."

The old, old story, told times without number and repeated over and over again for the last 30 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health.—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by Rand's Drug Store.

Steward's mother was making sandwiches of deviled ham. The little fellow came along and, seeing the can with the picture of the imp on it, regarded it earnestly awhile, and then said, "Mamma, what is that stuff?"

"This, Oh, this is deviled ham!" He looked seriously at the mixture and in an awed voice inquired: "Why, mother, have they killed him?"

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by Rand's Drug Store.

"The only thing I find to say against you is that your washing bill is far too extravagant. Last week you had six shovels in the wash. Why, Jane, my own daughter never sends more than two!"

"Ah, that may be, mum," replied Jane, "but I've got your daughter's sweetheart in a bank clerk, while my young man is a chimney sweep. It makes a difference, mum."

Healing Power a Marvel.
No remarkable is the healing power of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder. It is a simple application are often a marvel to persons who witness them for the first time. Mrs. C. Hopkins, of Georgia, tells how her son was cured of a severe case of Catarrh of the Bladder, which had started in a wound received at a thrilling. He was promptly cured and a cure was effected by three boxes.

He was very bashful and she tried to make it easy for him. They were driving along the seashore and she became silent for a time.

"What's the matter?" he asked.
"Oh, I feel blue," she replied. "No body loves me, and my hands are cold."

"You should not say that," was his word of consolation. "For God loves you, and your mother loves you, and you can sit on your hands."

The Greatest Blunder of His Life.

In the Creer Library, Chicago, is a book in which five hundred men, out of work, have written of the greatest blunder of their life. It is a collection made by Dr. Earl Pratt. Here are some of them:

"Didn't save what I earned."
"Didn't, as a boy, realize the value of education."
"If I had taken better care of my money, I would be better in health and morals."
"Did not realize the importance of sticking to one kind of employment."
"The greatest blunder of my life was when I took my first drink."
"One of the greatest blunders of my life was not to perfect myself in one of the lines of business. I started out to learn."
"My greatest blunder was when I left school in the fifth grade."
"The turning point in my life was when, at fifteen, I ran away from home."
"Spent my money foolishly when I was earning good wages."
"When I let myself be misled to thinking that I need not stick to one thing."
"Self-conceit, and not listening to my parents."
"Was to fool away my time when at school."

The Man at Forty-Five.

Is forty-five to be the dead line? Most corporations follow a ruling that men forty-five years old and over shall not be given permanent positions because they have passed the years of efficiency. Now, according to the discussion in some of the conferences, notably the M. E. conference held at Evansville last week, ministers who do not enter the profession until they reach or pass forty-five will come under the same restriction to a certain extent, or at least be discouraged. If these restrictions continue what is to become of the man of forty-five or over who has not found a place in life or who may desire to change his trade or profession at that period? The theory that his period of efficiency is passed is pure fiction. The real trouble is whether he will be able to work long enough to entitle him to the same pensions on quitting that those are entitled to who have given their whole life to a trade or profession. He may not be, but this feature of pension and insurance schemes should be so adjusted so that there will be no hindrance to the capable man of forty-five getting employment if he wants it. The fact is that a man at forty-five is at his very best, and in all probability can give the best service of his whole life.

A Good Position.
Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8 hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $80 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R. and Wireless officials, and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa.

The Dollar is King.
A Toronto clergyman has been getting into hot water because of a sermon in which he alleged that the present generation of business men had not that high sense of honor and truth which was the rule, rather than the exception, in past years. While it is quite possible that the reverend gentleman's statements were somewhat too sweeping, it is a matter of common notoriety that "sickness," or "saintness" are the names applied to day to day transactions which our fathers and grandfathers would have called by the more honest names of robbery. It is useless to hide one's eyes to the existence of facts, and one of the most potent of all is that the dollar is king; that wealth is worshipped; that money counts; that more and more, things are estimated and valued merely from the money point of view. Hence, a frantic desire to get money, and all but too frequently at the cost of that first principle of honor which used to be the basis of the boast that an Englishman's word was as good as his bond. It is useless to deny that there is too much glossing over of offences, too much whitewashing. The fact is proved by the mere existence of such words as "graft" and "boodle," which are venial transgressions. They should rather be labelled "theft." When all is said and done, it is better to err on the side of over-scrupulousness than under-scrupulousness; to denounce dishonestly by whatever name it may be called, than to countenance it.

Cheerfulness.
You can just so long live in this world, better smile the days through than to frown them away. There is nothing in life but that cheerfulness makes it easier to bear. Cheerfulness always puts a song in the mouth; a whistle in the lips.
"Give us, oh, give us," says Carlyle, "the man who sings at his work. Be his occupation what it may, he is more than equal to any of those who follow in the same pursuit in silent sullenness. He will do more in the same time—he will do it better—he will persevere longer."
Cheerfulness will run unimpeded all day. A sad countenance needs lubrication every few minutes. A continued state of cheerfulness shows a wise head behind it. Cheerfulness is the home makes every house a sanctuary of joy. Cheerfulness at the table makes every meal a feast. Cheerfulness at our work makes every task a duty. Cheerfulness is health; its opposite, melancholy, is disease. Cheerfulness is the very spirit of religion. Without it, like the spleen of old, always brings an evil report. Pygmies are giants. Hills are mountains. All streams are oceans which cannot be bridged. There is a serenity in life which is always cheerful. Cheerfulness is the eagle which God mixed with the dust out of which He formed every creature. Let's keep the sugar stirred up.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by Rand's Drug Store.

Men are respectable only as they respect themselves.

Red Rose Tea stands alone in its sterling quality. Its reputation has been earned by sixteen years of uniform goodness. No other tea even pretends to be better. Some may claim to be "as good" but why take a substitute when the price is the same as Red Rose

Prices: 30c., 35c., 40c., 50c. and 60c.

The Teeth.

Are they neglected? Some show it. Others will in course of time. And what a sin it is to shirk duty! Even when brushing once a day does wonders. This brushing should take place before retiring. A tooth powder is necessary to a thorough cleaning. And quite as important as brushing is the thorough use of dental floss. Every particle should be removed from between the teeth once a day at least.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Grantville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forgot to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R. D. Grantville, Vt.
No other medicine for women's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has proved curing female complaints such as indigestion, ulceration, local weakness, fibroid tumors, irregular menstruation, nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying through the period of change of life. It is recommended by Mrs. Barclay as "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

The "Chemics" of Bread

LET us look a bit into the chemistry of bread. For we want our bread not only to seem good but we want it to actually be good. And as bread is a question of flour and flour a question of wheat we see that wheat is where we have to begin.

Gluten, starch, water and phosphates, are the principal component qualities of wheat. And in proportion as these qualities are more or less present is the wheat more or less valuable so far as nutrition is concerned.

The nutritive and bread-making qualities of wheat are the things that make it more valuable than rye or oats or barley or corn as human food.

The quality of nutrition, too, is what makes one brand of flour more valuable than another. If it were not for nutrition

A Positive Cure For Rheumatism
For many years, both during Father Morrissey's lifetime and since he passed away, his No. 7 Tablets have been curing many of the worst cases of rheumatism in Eastern Canada.
During his lifetime it became the custom, when people could not get relief from other sources, to consult Father Morrissey, and few indeed did so in vain. His standard prescription came to be called

Father Morrissey's No. 7 Tablets and it can now be procured from any druggist or dealer in medicine.
No. 7 Tablets act directly on the kidneys, stimulating them so that they can remove from the blood all the Uric Acid, which alone causes the rheumatism. Two or three weeks' treatment cures ordinary cases, while with the worst chronic cases it seldom takes more than three or four boxes of No. 7 Tablets to thoroughly eradicate the rheumatism from the system.
In every case, right from the start, the sufferer gets relief from the torturing pains and aches.
We would be glad to refer you to one-time rheumatics, now well through taking Father Morrissey's No. 7 Tablets.

Good Health For Young Girls.
What is needed is the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.
Perhaps you have already noticed that your daughter in her teens has developed a fitful temper, is restless and excitable. In that case remember that the march of years is leading her on to womanhood, and at this time a great responsibility rests upon you as parents. If your daughter is pale, complains of weakness and depression, feels all tired-out after a little exertion; if she tells of head aches, or backaches, or pain in the side, do not disregard these warnings. Your daughter needs help for she is probably anaemic—that is, bloodless. Should you notice any of these signs, lose no time, but procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for her. Her unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich impoverished blood and by doing so they repair waste and prevent disease. They give to sickly, drooping girls, health, brightness and cheer, with color in the cheeks, bright eyes, a lightness of step and high spirits. A case typical of thousands cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that of Miss Grace Cunningham, Winnipeg, Man., who says: "I really cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they have made me feel like a new girl. I was pale and almost bloodless and thick that on an average I missed at least three school sessions a week, because I felt like a broken down person, and too weak to do anything. The doctor's medicine I took did little more than keep me in hope; it certainly did not cure me. Then I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they soon made me feel like a new person. Day by day I gained strength and color, and I have your medicine to thank for it."
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fruits of the Traffic.
A young man on the west side found dead on the roadside.
A man struck dead in Albert county, and another awaiting trial for murder.
A man drowned in P. E. Island, and his companion held on suspicion.
An old man found drowned in the harbor.
A young man stabbed to death, and his assailant in the Penitentiary for a long term of years.
These tragic things within a few days in our midst. They are but samples of what is occurring every week. Many of the most heart-breaking cases do not reach the ear or eye of the public. All traceable to the drink traffic. Is there any other such diabolism.

A Costly Blue Ribbon.
"How much do you get for wearing that piece of blue ribbon in your coat?" sneeringly asked a tipsy young man in an omnibus in London.
"I cannot tell you how much I get," quietly replied the gentleman, who was Mr. F. N. Charrington, of the brewers of that name, "but I can tell you how much it costs me to wear that ribbon—exactly £20,000 a year."
Many years ago, when a young man, Mr. Charrington relinquished his share in the brewery business, he happened through being from a public house in the east end of London, and starting him in the face above the door, was his own name, "Charrington." From that moment he vowed he would sever his connection with "the trade," and he has nobly kept his vow.

Railway Employees and Total Abstinence.
A progressive Dutch journal gives some interesting facts as to the total abstinence movement amongst railway and tramway employees in Europe. The English Society is credited with 43,000 members, that of Sweden, with 4,500, of France, with 3,200, of Finland, with 550, of Switzerland, with 350, of Denmark, with 500, of Holland, with 400, of Norway, with 450, and of Austria-Hungary, with 125 members. In Holland, partially, and in Norway entirely, it is forbidden to have alcohol while on duty. In some of the countries the abstinence can obtain non-alcoholic drinks at a cheap rate, and in Finland tea is supplied gratis for the night service, and at half-price in the daytime. It is shown clearly to be to the advantage of the railway service to have total abstinence more general, and it should be encouraged by those who have the management. There is no doubt that of two men of equal natural ability and education, the one who is "sober" is the more valuable servant to the company. This fact has been long recognized by the officials of some railway lines in Germany, and since societies for abstinence amongst employees on German railways is considerable, and is rapidly growing, and the abstinence has a decided financial advantage over his drinking comrade.

Sharing the Last Crust.
A pretty story is told in the "Life of Louise Alcott." Once in her childhood the weather was extremely cold and the supply of coal for warming the house was very low. Saturday afternoon came, and as the darkness fell, heavy flakes of snow filled the atmosphere. The child of a neighbor poorer than the Alcotts, who themselves were poor, knocked at the door and explained that they had no wood, that the baby was ill and her father away from home. There was no hesitation on the part of the Alcott household. "Divide our stock with her," said Louise's father. "Either the weather will moderate or wood will come. Before eight actually set in a farmer driving to town and not caring to breast a snowstorm drove into Mr. Alcott's yard and left a load of wood. It is no wonder that Louise Alcott, brought up in a home of self-
