HAS NO EFFECT ON THE MASSEY HARRIS COMPANY

Sir Lyman Jones, President of Local Concern, Says New Tariff in United States Will Not Mean Anything.

SASKATOON, Sask., Oct. 7.—Sir Lyman Jones, President of the Massey-Harris Company in an interview expressed the opinion that the provisions of the Underwood Tariff Bill, permitting the entry of farm machinery free into the United States would have practically no effect on Canadian manufacturers and said the American companies were so firmly established they feared no competition. Asked as to the effect if Canada were to place farm implements on the free list he said the American plant of the Massey-Harris Company might do a little more business. Speaking in a general way he said that the subject opened up the whole question of free trade and propounded the question whether people were prepared for direct taxation. Money, he said, seemed scarce in the west and more than one good crop was needed to liquidate the existing indebtedness of the farmers. Sir Lyman left last night on a shooting expedition after a seven-hour stay over and will later proceed to Edmonton.

LIMBS AND HEAD ARE TORN FROM HIS BODY

Terrible Fate of a Foreigner, Matthew Concie, at the Massey Harris Works This Morning--An Inquest is to be Held.

Matthew Concie, a Croatian, 25 years of age, while lacing a belt in the blacksmith department of the Massey-Harris Co., at about 10 o'clock this morning, was mutilated beyond description. The head was severed, both legs and both arms torn from the body and other mutilations of a most dreadful nature were sustained. The man was employed as the operator of an eye machine. He was lacing a belt which was around a loose pulley and the main drive shaft. Although no one is known to have actually seen the cause of the horrible affair, it is stated that it is quite probable that the clothing of the unfortunate man, who would normally be working close to the pulley, caught, and, as the pulley was very close to pipes and other obstacles he was caught and torn to pieces. Portions of the body were found in different places. It is also thought that his fingers may have become tangled in the lace. Coroner Fissette was called and at 12 o'clock a jury viewed the body at Beckett's undertaking parlors, and an adjournment was made until Monday night, at the Police Station. The deceased had been employed with the Massey-Harris Co. for five years. He was single and has no brothers residing in this country. He resided in the Devon Building, Dalhousie Street.

Church News For the Sunday

RAWDON ST. MISSION. A very large and happy gathering took place at Rawdon St. Mission, Sunday, there being scarcely standing room in the church. The occasion being the lecture and sermon on "Sowing the Seed," by Dr. Bier, illustrated by magic lantern. The sermon was very impressive and instructive. Among many other things, the doctor said that in preaching the Gospel, there were four different kinds of ground: 1st, the way side, where the fowls of the air came and snatched away the seed; 2nd, the stony ground, that had no room for deep root for the seed; 3rd, the ground that was choked with briars, thistles and thorns; 4th, good ground into which the seed fell and brought forth fruit, some thirty, some sixty and some a hundred fold. The seed heing the word of God and the ground being the hearts of men it was up to the hearers to hear with the understanding heart and to bring forth the fruit on Jesus Christ we would be saved. Mrs. Boyce had charge of the organ and Miss Sterne rendered two solos in a very acceptable manner. ALEXANDRA PRESBYTERIAN. A special sermon to young men was preached by the Rev. D. T. McClintock at the morning service. He took for his subject, "Joshua as the standard—Joshua and his ideals." The Rev. D. C. McGregor occupied the pulpit in the evening and delivered a splendid address on evangelism and social service; first, the prevention work; second, the rescue work. An anthem was sung by the choir and solo by Miss Agnes Heath and Mr. W. T. Cullen. Previous to the sermon, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," was pleasingly sung by Miss Corbett. The sacrament of baptism was observed during the service. The congregation will commemorate the Lord's Supper next Sunday at the morning service. Preparatory service will be held on Friday evening of this week. BALFOUR STREET. At the morning service at Balfour St. Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. J. Whitelaw, gave a very helpful sermon relative to the Y.M.C.A. His text was "Is the young man Absalom safe?" and he dwelt very strongly on the fact that the home should not relegate her duties to the Sabbath school or kindred institutions. He showed that there have been three great places for the religious training of the boy, the home, the Sabbath school and the Y.M.C.A. A relative to the opening of the new Y.M.C.A., he urged the people to remember it in their prayers. In the evening a large congregation heard the pastor preach from the text, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH. The services both morning and evening were particularly interesting. In the morning a special service for children was held. In the evening a most instructive address to young men was delivered by Mr. Veigh to a large and appreciative audience. The musical numbers for the day consisted of anthem, by the choir; solo, Mr. Crooker; solo, Miss Campbell; solo, Mrs. Brooks; solo, Mr. Hollnake; numbers by Male Quartette. SYDENHAM STREET. Rev. Mr. Masson of Onondaga, occupied the pulpit, both morning and evening in Sydenham St. Methodist church yesterday. The reverend gentleman preached two thoroughly practical gospel sermons and the audience thoroughly appreciated his efforts. Rev. Mr. Snyder will be back to his own pulpit next Sunday. Hamilton Board of Trade has asked the trades' council to support a demand for an immigrants' hall. Fire which did $60,000 damage destroyed the Hunter block on Main street, Pembroke. John Beck, aged fifty-five, of Dover, dropped dead as he entered the Grand Union Hotel at Berlin.

HOT REPORT GIVEN ON BRANTFORD JAIL

Dr. Bruce Smith Says Male Corridors Are Not Fit to Live in--Vermin is Found in Beds--Trenchant Criticism--Some Facts.

"The male cells and the corridors of this jail are the worst in the Province of Ontario, and only for the fact that an industrial farm is proposed in this district, the jail would be condemned, and the necessity of a new set of cells and corridors would be insisted upon. In the meantime careful attention to making the best of what is apparently so defective must be done. The ventilation is wretched. Prisoners kept in these corridors in idleness must of necessity become worse instead of better, on account of their detention in such a jail." This is a portion of a report forwarded to Sheriff Ross by Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, in which is given the minutes of his inspection of the county jail on September 15 of this year. Toilets Dirty and Un tidy. The Inspector also reports as follows: "On inspection of the general condition of the building, as regards cleanliness, it was found satisfactory, particularly in the female corridors. Some of the beds and bedding, in the cells occupied by the male prisoners, were untidy, and some were not free from vermin. The male corridors and cells in this jail are not as clean as the female corridors. The conditions found around the toilets were very unsatisfactory, being both dirty and untidy." Other Portions. Other portions of the report are: "There were 9 males and 1 female, making total of 10 prisoners in residence. The number of commitments to this jail for the past year was 300. There were 30 suits of clothing reported to be on hand. The prisoners are bathed, in many cases, weekly. The jail register is properly kept and up to date." APPOINTED CHIEF. LETHBRIDGE, Alb., Oct. 7.—Inspector Skilton, who came to Lethbridge from Toronto is appointed to succeed Chief of Police Davis resigned.

MULLOY FARM SOLD TO HAMILTON MAN

The second largest farm in Brant County has been sold. The Mulloy farm which has been operated for some years by the Oak Park Stock Company, has been sold to Mr. W. G. Bailey of Hamilton for $50,000. The farm consists of 540 acres and is next in size to the Bow Park Farm. It was owned by Mrs. Brown of Pittsburgh, widow of a well-known Pennsylvania millionaire, who for some years has leased it to the Oak Park Company. The new owner, Mr. Bailey, is a retired miller of Hamilton, and up until a few months ago was a partner with D. B. Wood, ex-Mayor of this city. Mr. Bailey ran for the Board of Control in Hamilton last year and was defeated. He proposes to take up life on his recently acquired property. The farm was established by the late Captain Mulloy, and is situated about five miles from Brantford just off the Paris road. It is one of the most famous in all Brant County for its productiveness in both wheat and thoroughbred stock.

BRITISH PRESS LAUDS PEACE CENTENARY

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The Times and the Telegraph publish to-day editorials on the appeal of the British committee for $300,000 to celebrate the centenary of Anglo-American peace. The Times says: Under the treaty of Ghent successive generations of nations which have numbered between them 536,000,000 people, have lived together in amity for a century. That is a concrete and definite application of pacificism to nearly one-third of the entire population of the globe. It needs more imagination than most of us possess to realize, however imperfectly, and however faintly, what a vast amount of human happiness depended on this fact. Undoubtedly it is a good example and a good augury for the future, and other nations cannot ponder it without being in some degree impressed by the thought of the blessing it brought and the evils it averted. In a sense this hundred years of peace is an event not only in the annals of the nations between whom it exists, but also in the history of civilization.

ter F. Hutton played a piano solo, H. Wilson a violin solo, and Master R. Ellison sang two solos very sweetly, all of which were enjoyed very much.

A guessing contest was then engaged in, which was won by the Misses N. Manuel, M. Bartle and M. Tobias and their partners, each of the ladies receiving a prize. A Pleasing Reception

The reception accorded last evening by the Colborne St. Epworth League to Mr. H. J. Bassett, the president, and Mrs. Bassett, just returned from their wedding trip to Ireland, was of a very novel and pleasing nature. The intermediate league were the entertainers, and well they entertained. Miss Gladys Harris presided very pleasantly, and in a few well chosen words, welcomed the president. The following programme was provided: Chorus by the league; piano solos, Misses Gertrude Ingleby, Martina Ingleby, Lena Church; duet, Misses W. Young and G. Verity; solo, Lavine Huff; readings, Misses Eva Smith and Edna Hanna. A feature of the evening in which the senior leaguers joined, was the giving to Mr and Mrs. Bassett two beautiful candle sticks. Golf Notes

Your correspondent visited the Hamilton Golf Club yesterday afternoon in order to get a line on the play of the fair candidates representing the Empire at Wilmeton next week in the American Ladies championship tournament, and judging from the sample put up by the English champion, Miss Dodd and the ex-champion, Miss Ravenscroft, backed by Miss Harrison the Irish champion, together with Miss Portley of Victoria, and Miss Florence Harvey of Hamilton, the Empire's interests are in very fair hands in more ways than one.

It would be difficult to imagine anything more attractive than Miss Dodd's perfect swing and straight powerful play from tee to green. Yet one can add to that youth and modest charm of manner that makes this den of this naturally falls upon the chief character, "Peg" the actress, cast for this must have exceptional ability and with Miss Elsa Ryan in the role there is nothing lacking. It is difficult to imagine that she is not a real Irish colleen.

Miss Ryan sustains impulsive Irish girl character faultlessly. Her acting is most clever. The other members of the company become of a minor nature, but everyone in the company adds something to the success of the piece. Particularly is this true of Mr. Gilbert Douglas, the "I-saynow" you son of Peg's aunt. His interpretation of the part is clever and on occasions divides with Miss Ryan the applause of the house.

Mrs. Fanny Addison Pitt, as the elderly and very proper Mrs. Chichester, who is constantly being shocked at the outbursts of "Peg" is exceptionally good, while Mrs. Lewis Broughton as Christian Brent sustains their parts well. Two other clever members of the company are Mr. Henry Stanford in the role of Jerry, who eventually weds "Peg," and Mr. Frank Burbeck, the solicitor, Mr. Gordon Burby and Miss Wilda Mari Moore round out the cast in the parts of English house servants.

"The Albanians are falling back along the line," says The London Daily Telegraph's Belgrade correspondent.

Music and Drama

After witnessing a performance of "Peg O' My Heart" at the Grand Opera House last night, one understands why Mr. J. Hartley Manners' comedy remained on the New York stage for a whole year. The reason is the worth of the play.

It is the wholesome Irish humor of the piece that pleases. As the burden of this naturally falls upon the chief character, "Peg" the actress, cast for this must have exceptional ability and with Miss Elsa Ryan in the role there is nothing lacking. It is difficult to imagine that she is not a real Irish colleen.

The following are some of the debutantes for the coming season: Miss Marjorie Bell, Miss Isabel Crozier, Miss Dorothy Shannon, Miss Muriel McEachren, Miss Zillah Worthington, Miss Jessie Peuchen, Miss Marjorie St. George Wilkie.

Quite a number of Brantford Rod and Gun men are getting ready to go north. The birding season opens next Wednesday. Mr. Fred Frank, W. P. Kellett and others will make their usual journey to the wilds for deer and moose.

The Y.W.C.A. will hold a convention in Winnipeg from November 17th to 18th of this year. The speakers will include several of the best known men and women of this continent. Professor Graham Taylor, of the School of Physic Harvard, and Miss Louise Helquest, the American secretary whose headquarters are New York, will be among them. Bruce Walker, the Canadian immigration officer, will speak on "Immigration as it Affects Young Girls." Mr. Walker will deal with the immigration problem in all its phases as it directly affects young women of all nations as they come into this country. About 150 delegates are expected from all over Canada, also representatives from different societies who are interested in P.W.C.A. work, such as the Daughters of the Empire, Women's Canadian Club and the National Council of Women.

ASK ME NO MORE.
 Ask me no more. The moon may draw the sea.
 The cloud may stoop from heaven and take the shape,
 With fold to fold, of mountain or of cape.
 But, oh, too fond, when have I answered thee?
 Ask me no more.
 Ask me no more. What answer should I give?
 I love not hollow cheek or faded eye.
 Yet, oh, my friend, I will not have thee die!
 Ask me no more, lest I should bid thee live.
 Ask me no more.
 Ask me no more. Thy fate and mine are sealed.
 I strive against the stream and all in vain.
 Let the great river take me to the main.
 No more, dear love, for at a touch I yield.
 Ask me no more.
 —Alfred Tennyson.

The petitions on file with Township Clerk Smith for local improvements were filed.

PRISONER ESCAPED.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 7.—Peter Miller, a prisoner at the County Jail, remained to await trial on a charge of theft at Port Burwell, made his escape this forenoon, while coal men were placing winter supplies in the basement of the jail. Poses are searching the country for him.

Spectacular Performance

(Canadian Press Despatch)
 HAMILTON, Oct. 7.—"The Garden of Allah" was presented at the Grand last night before the largest and most fashionable audience of the season. It was truly the most spectacular performance seen here in years, and it some respects it is more spectacular than Ben Hur, but less sensational. Manager Walter of the Radial line provided two special cars at 645 to the Brantford contingent. The lower part of the house is sold out for tonight. A matinee will be given on Wednesday, and the engagement will close on Wednesday night.

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Possibility of Russian, Manchurian and Indian wheat being shipped to the Pacific slope and of Argentina taking steps to complete in Atlantic ports of the United States formed the weight on the wheat market here today. WINNIPEG, Oct. 6.—Under the pressure of 2,707,000 bushels of wheat in two days and 1500 cars in eight, prices opened 1/2c to 3/4c down and closed with a loss of 1/2c. Oats and flax were steady to slightly lower.

The Ducks

An Irishman had to go to law, and in consultation with his counsel, he was told that he had a good fighting chance. Paddy, who was anxious to win the case, was meditative for a moment, and then said: "Do you think it would be any use to send the judge a pair of ducks?" "No, no, you mustn't do that," said the lawyer; "if you send him a pair of ducks he will be sure to decide the case against you."

A day or two later the case was heard, and Paddy won with flying colors. Amidst his congratulations Paddy remarked: "It was just as well I sent the judge them ducks."

"No, mamma, but I don't think the chicken we had for dinner was quite dead!"

NO STAMPEDE.

The Toronto Globe features an editorial from the Ottawa Citizen (Conservative) in which the latter paper comes out with a straight article in favor of Reciprocity and pokes sarcasm at Protection.

The Citizen on more than one recent occasion has attacked Sir James Whitney, and now apparently intends to turn its guns on the Borden ministry in the respect named at least.

The course which it adopts in these or any other public directions is of course peculiarly its own business but it cannot be claimed because the paper is published at the seat of a Conservative administration, that any greater weight attaches to its views.

Meanwhile it may be taken for granted that Premier Borden and his associates will not be stampered into any hasty action with regard to the revised condition of trade levies on the other side of the line.

President Wilson and his advisers have done what they believe to be a good thing for their own country, and their own country alone.

That's their affair. Johnny Canuck should, and will, handle his own interests as his affair.

PEOPLE OF PROMINENCE.

At a meeting of the National Council of Morals, held in the Old Land, Dr. Hutchinson emphasized the fact that except in rare instances, the brilliancy of parents is not transmitted to the children.

The incidents are certainly very few and far between. Perhaps the most notable exception was in the case of the Earl of Chatham. He was one of the greatest English orators and statesmen in the eighteenth century.

and, his second son, "Pitt, the great Commoner," became even more so. His genius and ambition displayed themselves with unheard of precocity. At the age of 23 he became Chancellor of the Exchequer and shortly afterwards Premier. When it comes to a number of members of one family holding prominent public positions for centuries, there are two notable illustrations. First of all the Cecil.

As far back as 1547 William Cecil (afterwards Lord Burleigh) was recognized as an all powerful man in the councils of the nation, and Henry VIII. presented him with many offices. The Marquis of Salisbury for many years premier during Victoria's reign, is a descendant, so is A. J. Balfour, ex-Premier of Britain, and still one of her foremost leaders, Lord Robert Cecil and so on. In fact, a dull Cecil is a rara avis.

The Marlborough family comes next. John Churchill, the greatest general and statesman of his time, was born in 1650, and at an early period achieved distinction. His descendants have included many men of high mark, such as Lord Randolph Churchill, in many respects one of the most picturesque of British statesmen, and Winston Churchill, present Lord of the Admiralty, and undoubtedly a man of unusual brilliance and versatility.

Notwithstanding such illustrations, the fact that men and women who attain great prominence, either without offspring, or else fail to transmit their exceptional mentalities, is almost the absolute rule. Cromwell never left any child worthy of his enormous talents. He did try to make something of his son Richard, made him first Lord of Trade and Navigation, and other things, but he did not show any ability, and when on the death of his father in 1658, he became head of the Commonwealth, his ineptitude became so conspicuous that he was fired in seven months. Shakespeare, Burns, Lincoln, Wellington, Goethe, and a host of others in letters, statesmanship, art, and music, etc., never brought into the world anyone much worth while as notables.

Of the childless leaders we have Carlyle, D'Israeli, George Eliot (the nom de plume of the greatest woman writer), and so on, and in our Canadian life, Premier Borden and the ex-Premier Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The unlikely parentage from which geniuses springs is also another notable feature. Shakespeare's father was a yeoman of no education. His mother, Mary Arden, was of better stock, but not remarkable. The father of Buras was a small nursery gardener and had to struggle all his life with poverty, and his mother was a woman of humble parts. Lincoln, now quite generally regarded as the greatest man of the United States, in his brief autobiography wrote: "I was born Feb. 12, 1809, in Hardin County, Kentucky. My parents were both born in Virginia of undistinguished families—second families perhaps I should say." As a matter of fact, from the standpoint of those who would like to physically regular marriages, that union would never have been allowed, and the father was one of the most shiftless of creatures. Yet from such stock there sprung a Lincoln.

The subject and the illustrations could be greatly enlarged upon, but enough has been said within the limits of a newspaper article.

HON. MR. CROTHERS AND LABOR.

Mr. Crothers, Minister of labor in the Borden Cabinet, who recently returned from a trip to the Old Land, gave this interview to the Ottawa Journal—

"Of the two criticisms of my administration of the Labor Department made at the Trades and Labor Congress, I will say nothing at the present time. I do not desire to enter into any controversy. I will merely say that in a few words they might be completely answered."

"My time on the other side of the water, was taken up in gathering information in England, Ireland and Wales respecting labor conditions there with the view to utilizing it, if possible, on behalf of the work people of Canada. I was especially interested in the many legislative enactments in recent years provided in the interests of labor. Notwithstanding the many efforts in that direction, and the numerous philanthropic movements for the betterment of the working classes, it is probably true that in the United Kingdom labor unrest is more acute now than ever before. This is somewhat discouraging, and suggests the question why so much discontent in the face of so much effort aimed at its removal.

My visit has confirmed the conviction that, while legislation has done much and is capable of doing more for labor, the real remedy lies beyond its legitimate scope. The labor problem has baffled the skill of the wisest statesmen. The fear and complete remedy, as I see it, lies in the general and practical recognition of the fact that a workingman is not a mere machine—that he possesses all the essentials of humanity, and that any treatment of him on the assumption that he is wanting in any of these is doomed to failure. Employers there are not a few who realize that the working classes have emotions as well as muscles, and their reward is the prosperity and happiness of both parties.

"The Old Land is a paradise for the wealthy few, while for the less fortunate many their prospects are not the brightest. Large numbers of English people came over the water with their children coming to join husbands who have made a good start in Canada. On the way over I spoke to many of these people, nearly all of whom had relatives here, and were going to assured employment. They seemed to realize that Canada was no place for the wretched, and that success could be achieved here only through energy and character. All they ask is opportunity. Such people will make good citizens and materially increase our greatest asset."

Six professors and surgeons attached to the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania have been indicted by the Philadelphia Grand Jury of twelve hills charging that they "did wantonly and cruelly torture and maim dogs" in regard to vivisection.

COUNTRY AIR.

Though I dine amid the splendours
Or a palace day by day,
Where the lights are softly glowing
And the music throbs away;
Watch the people all around me,
But not caring for the fare,
For I'm longing for the open
And a breath of country air.

With an appetite that's jaded,
Day by day I wonder through
All the stuff that's piled before me,
Caring not just what I do,
All around me folks are laughing—
It's their way to denden care;
While I'm longing for the open
And a breath of country air.

Take me back into the country,
Where the winds are blowing free,
Where the sunshine and the shadows
Mingle into mystery.
There I'll chat aside my foppery,
For the old bird's tail prepares
And I know that I'll be happy,
Drinking in the country air.
—Harry M. Dean.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

A chewing gum factory has been burned at St. Catharines, by gum.

Woodstock increased by eighteen people last year. In other words Woodstock, doesn't.

A Canadian hosiery factory announces that it will make a four story addition. Probably that results from the fair sex showing so much of them.

Because of no criminal cases at Chatham, Justice Meredith was presented with a pair of white kids. Bet the town will count 'em in the population.

Word comes from Leamington that a man growing onions on a marsh area of a little over eleven acres, will this year realize $7,200. No doubt he thinks their aroma to be as sweet as that of roses.

It is announced that the Duchess of Connaught will accompany the Duke when he sails for Canada on Oct. 17th, to resume his duties as Governor-General. That is good news for no more deservedly popular pair ever occupied Rideau Hall.

It will be pleasing to the Brantford and many other friends of Mr. E. G. Henderson, General Manager of the Canadian Salt and Chemical Co., Windsor, to know that he has been elected as Vice-President of the Canadian Manufacturers Association. Mr. Henderson is a splendid type of a business man. For many years he has been closely identified with leading manufacturing interests and has always done what he could for the advancement of the Dominion of Canada.

There has been another Canadian victim of the Spanish prisoner game whereby a large sum of money can be secured by the trifling operation of sending a wad to get it. The letters are dated from Spain, but those in the game are believed to be located in the States. Any man or woman who will part with a nice roll of bills for something they can't see, must have been practising the simple life from infancy, yet that there are such, is proved by the lengthy career of the fraud. A Courier file of twenty nine years ago, shows that the stunt was attempted on a Brantford citizen of that period and even then the dodge was so old that it sported grey whiskers.

HOME BAKERY—FRESH BREAD EVERY HOUR
HE WORKED HARD FOR A RAISE.

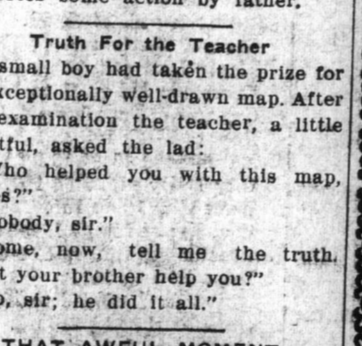

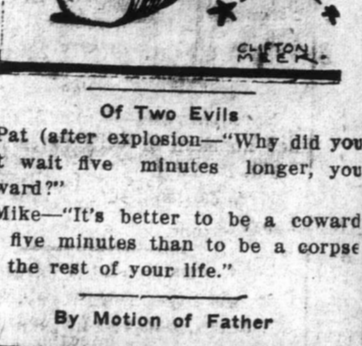

Rang for Refreshment
An old woman with a peaked black bonnet got aboard a through train. She turned to a boy and pointing to the brake cord, asked: "What's that?" "That's the bell cord; it runs into the dining car."
The old woman hooked the end of her parasol over the cord and gave it a vigorous jerk. Instantly the brakes were set and the train came to a stop.
The conductor rushed in and yelled: "Who pulled that cord?" "I did," calmly replied the old lady. "Well, what do you want?" shouted the conductor.
"A cup of coffee, and a ham sandwich."

A Wise Bird
A parrot happened to break loose from its cage, and perched itself on the roof of a house. An Irishman who was assisting to capture the bird obtained a ladder for this purpose, and was just about to get hold of the bird when the parrot exclaimed: "What do you want?"
Pat was quite taken by surprise. He raised his hat and said: "Beg pardon, sorr; I thought ye was a burrd."

Had It Located
"Which tooth are you going to have pulled, Sam?"
"Upper six, sir," answered the Pullman porter.

File
This sure would be a dandy world, life would be one big bubble, if money could be borrowed just as easily as trouble.

That Distant Rasping
"Silence in court!" called the usher fiercely.
"Good gracious," gasped the judge, "what is this noise? It's quite impossible for me to conduct the case amid such an uproar."
The defendant leaned over the side of the witness-box, a broad grin upon his face.
"I don't think there's anything to worry about, my lord," he said. "It doesn't sound to me as though the disturbance is anything more serious than the plaintiff outside filing affidavits."

As It Should be
A class of boys had this sentence given to them for correction:
"We saw a marble bust of Sir Walter Scott entering the hall."
One of the boys handed in the following version, which bears infernal evidence of having been made in springtime:
"Entering the hall we saw Sir Walter Scott bust a marble."

SONG OF PEACE.
The grass is green on Bunker Hill,
The waters sweet in Brandywine;
The sword sleeps in the scabbard still;
The farmer keeps his flock and vine.
Then who would mar the scene today
With vaunt of battlefield or fray?
The earth has healed her wounds of breast;
The cannons plow the field no more;
The heroes rest! Oh, let them rest
In peace along the peaceful shore!
They fought for peace; for peace they fell,
They sleep in peace, and all is well.
Lo, peace on earth! Lo, flock and fold!
Lo, rich abundance but increase,
And valleys clad in sheen of gold!
Oh, rise and sing a song of peace,
For Theseus roams the land no more,
And Janus rests with rusted door!

KNOWLEDGE
Is a Better Guide Than Instinct When Buying
By HOLLAND.
KNOWLEDGE is more widespread today than ever before. Twenty-five years ago much buying was done by instinct—done in a haphazard way that is a thing of the past like the spinning wheel and the tallow candle.
Your grandmother trusted largely to luck—you depend on knowledge when it comes to spending money. What causes the difference? Advertising.
Publicity has revolutionized business. It has increased business honesty, has advanced business ethics and has ended slipshod methods.
To gain the advantage of these changed conditions you must have knowledge. You must know values. You can learn them only by studying advertising. In no other way can you learn what is best and what the best is worth.
CARELESS BUYING
OFTEN MEANS
DISAPPOINTMENT.
Equip yourself with the knowledge necessary for economical buying. If you have money to spend you owe this to yourself and to those for whom you buy.

World's Series Arouses More Interest Than Any Athletic Event in World

Only Thirty or Forty Thousand See Games—Fifty Millions Interested—How the News is Sent Out.

COACH WILBUR ROBINSON

Of the Giants Is Busy To-day.

Nothing causes more interest than a world's series struggle. According to the census of 1910 there are nearly 100,000,000 people in the United States and Canada. It is safe to say that at least fifty millions of these persons will watch with keen interest all the latest news of the gigantic struggle as it is flashed over the wires of the electric scoreboards or through the newspapers.

Only between 30,000 and 40,000 fans are fortunate enough to see these games as they are played. How the news is supplied to the other 49,500,000 forms a very interesting sidelight. Nearly every minute of the game is supplied with a running description of the game that is read to the waiting patrons. In most of the larger cities the fans get a very good idea of the game as it is being played from the electric scoreboards. Others content themselves with getting the score by innings off a plain scoreboard and then reading the detail in the papers after the game or the next morning.

In some of the smaller towns and villages the fans must be satisfied with a telegram after the game from the nearest telegraph office, telling which team won and who pitched. Yet the interest is the small town is every bit as keen as in the large city, or in the cities represented by the contesting teams. The little boys in the farm towns 2,000 miles away are just as well informed as the members of both teams and of the records of the pitchers who take part as are the youths in the big league cities.

On the eve of the great battle the demand for the news is so great that the telegraph companies having made preparations to carry bulletins of the progress of the games into every little village in the United States, Canada, and Cuba. Every daily paper in the country has ordered the score by innings and in every city of 2,500 running story of the games as they proceed.

It is estimated that over ten thousand telegraph operators will be required to send, receive and relay the reports of the games. At least one hundred wires will be strung into every one of the ball parks, and these will cover the entire country and Canada. News will also be flashed by wireless and cable to Europe, Cuba and every other place where the game is played. Reservations will be made at both fields to handle from 250 to 300 spectators.

Sporting Comment

BY FREE LANCE

The water polo season opened Wednesday night, and before morning dawned the first real autumn rain of the season came down. It is wonderful how sports affect the weather. It is said that the croquet tournaments last summer brought on the dry spell.

The fans and others may be interested in the information that the game in Chateauguay will not be called on account of rain and mud, and when there is mud in Chateauguay, as a considerable part of the world knows, it sticks closer than a brother—closer even than a mother-in-law.

Just to remind the players and the fans too, of what might happen if both of either became real bad and, unfortunately, the annual threat is made that the world's baseball series will be discontinued should things go wrong. That may be good tactics but, all the same, the threat should be taken with a grain of salt. The magnates will not throw away a big plum like that until actually obliged to do so.

The Newark baseball Club is said to be for sale. Well, now ought to be the time to sell, with the laurels fresh upon its brow. The time to sell a horse is when he has just captured the blue ribbon; the time to sell a gold mine is when the paying streak has been struck; and the time to sell a ball team ought to be when it has just won a championship.

The seasons of the big baseball leagues have gone out like lamb's-ear petals at that for the pets of the fans, the Giants and the Athletics, won handsily. But the world's series is going to come in like a lion, and to the team that loses the series will go out like a jackass. Well, that is the way it is, with most things in life. It all depends on the point of view; or, as the fable in our old spelling-books used to put it, it is all a matter of whose ox is gored.

Barry is anxious to meet Durnan. That is natural and proper. Great men usually wish to meet one another just to see who is the greatest. Barry's title, outranks that of Durnan, but it might be found, if they rowed a race, that Barry's title is not well founded. The meeting should be held next season. Barry might come across, try fortune on Toronto Bay, have a look at Canada, and get a stake in the country, which, in the end, would prove more profitable than any stake he ever won with his sculls.

JOHNSON BEATEN BY COLORED TWIRLER. SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The baseball game between Walter Johnson's All-American team and the Mohawk Colored Giants here came near developing into a riot. With 6,000 persons on the ground, the negro players went on strike, refusing to play until they received six weeks' salary alleged to be due them. At this announcement the crowd surged upon the field and it was with difficulty that the police prevented disorder.

After a long wait the financial difficulty was settled and the game started. Walter Johnson was opposed by Wickware, one of the best negro pitchers in the game, and the great Washington twirler lost the decision in a 1 to 0 game, which was terminated by darkness at the end of the fifth inning. Johnson struck out eleven men and allowed only two hits.

BIG CHIEF BENDER

Said to be Connie Mack's great Indian hope in the big series starting to-day.

SALE OF TICKETS BADLY MANAGED

Scalpers Secure a Large Number and Demand Exorbitant Prices.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Before the facts became generally known yesterday that the ticket-scalpers had secured a general supply of the coveted pasteboards for the world's series games, President McCaffery of the Toronto club met a scalper in the lobby of a downtown hotel and was offered two tickets; good for three games. The scalper's price was $20 per ticket. McCaffery purchased one, and while the National Commission were congratulating themselves that the brokers had been foiled for once at least, McCaffery burst in upon them, holding aloft the tell-tale ticket. In an hour the scalpers were busy throughout the downtown districts, and the commission sat back, non-plussed. The management of the New York Nationals alone have returned to would-be purchasers the sum of $108,000, there being no tickets available with which to meet the demand.

To Increase Circulation. A new abuse in connection with the distribution of tickets has crept into the sale this year: Newspapers from more end of the country to another have succeeded in getting large quantities, with which to conduct rebus and other competitions calculated to increase circulation. The commission has already formulated plans to check the abuse next season. Even boxes are being offered for sale by the speculators. The par value of a box at the Polo Grounds is $25 for one day. Each box accommodates four persons, and the scalpers are demanding $150 for the use of the little enclosures. Several of last night's papers made the plain statement that politicians close to the Giant management and to the commission have been favored with large blocks of tickets, which have been turned to speculative purposes. This, of course, is angrily denied by the distributors.

COBB AND DAURET LEAD THE HITTERS. CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Complete unofficial batting averages compiled yesterday show Ty Cobb as the season's leader in the American League and Jake Dauret as virtually the top man in the National. Records for the season for the first four men are: American League. Name G. A. B. H. P. C. Yngling, Bro., .32 .60 .24 .400. Danager, Bro., .153 .454 .169 .388. Jackson, Cle., .149 .335 .197 .368. Played Full Game In 31 Minutes

[Canadian Press Dispatch] NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—In an exhibition game here yesterday afternoon, the champion Giants and the Philadelphia Nationals set a new record for speed for a full game between major-league teams, the time being 31 minutes.

With McGraw hustling in new players in rapid succession, the contest resembled rapid-fire target practice on a battleship. The Giants won by 4 to 1. Preceding the game, there were several field events. In a hundred yard dash, Loebert beat Thorpe in 13 seconds. The jumbo hitting contest went to Thorpe with a rap for 414 feet and Loebert won the run around the bases in 15 seconds. The score: R. H. E. Philadelphia 00001000—1 3 0. New York . 1002001—4 8 2. Why The Giants Lost First Game Of World's Series

Player-Author Gives Reasons in His Own "Langwidge"

BY A ATHLETE.

We ought to have trimmed 'em. When Egan, the big slob, said I was out at second, he musta been full of hops, the big boob. I like t'know where he was at las' night, the big bum. Some of them unps ought to be on the chain-gang, the big boobs. Matty pitched wrong to Collins. That little bum couldn't hit a curve ball with a mattress. Matty's been pitching long enough to know how to pitch, but sometimes he pitches like a fool. I wisht he'd let me tell him somethin'. But d'ya think he'd listen to me? He knows it all. He oughta know he didn't have speed enough no more to get one past that guy.

Wisht Mac had let me wallop when I had the big Indian—three and nothin' that time. 'Member? Merkle was on third base. I looked 'round and Mac gives me the sign to take one. That's rotten baseball I think. I took one that I could have hit out of the park. Then the big Indian hooks one on me and I missed. Then I'm looking for another hook and he comes with a fast one. And the Catfish calls me out. That las' one was a fool outside. If I'd a known he was goin' to call it on me, I'd a hit that one out o' the park. The big run.

Then there was that third innin' decision when Egan calls me out at second, the big slob. Barry missed that far. I wouldn't lie about 't. He missed me that far. If I'd a been out, I'd never opened my clam. But Barry missed me that far. The big slob. He was lookin' out in 'high fall' somewheres. Barry missed me that far. Bet if you was to go to Barry now and ast him, he'd come through and say he missed me that far. The big runny. I'm glad we don't have them umpires in our league. No wonder. Milan steals bases. He's powerful out all the time, but the ump's is looking out the window. Why Barry missed me that far. I ain't no pitcher, but I bet I know as much about pitchin' as some of them pitchers. Ja see what Matty handed Collins? He slips him a fast one right over the heart when all he had to do was to hook one and Collins would have fell dead. Matty's been pitching fifty years and he don't know no more'n a baby. McGraw oughta tell them guys somethin'. But no, he sits on the bench and don't say nothin' 'till the innin's over. And then it's too late.

Member when Merkle was on third base? I'd a busted 'er up right there if Mac had let me alone. But he makes me take one when I had the big Indian three and nothin'. That first one came right over and I coulda hit out of the park. But no, I had to stare there and take it. Then he comes across with a hook and I missed it. And then I'm lookin' for another hook and he comes with a fast one and Klem calls it on me. The big run. It was a mile outside. But if I'd knew he was going to call it on me, I coulda hit it way out o' the park. Some of them unps oughta be on the chain gang.

How long's this Egan been umpiring? I thought Finneran was the worst I ever see, but this Egan's got him skun. Didja see what he pulls on me? Mac tells me to steal and I goes. Schang makes a perfect of a world's series. Dolan, Chappeg, but I give 'im the hook and Barry missed me. Egan says: "Yer out." I says: "What fer, you big score.—Pittsburg 0; Cleveland 3.

PITTSBURG COULD NOT HIT "CY" FALKENBURG.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—"Cy" Falkenburg held the Pittsburg National Leaguers to two hits in the opening game of their post-season series yesterday and Cleveland took the first game 3 to 0. Only about 5,000 fans turned out to see the game. However, they saw a contest worthy of a world's series. Dolan, Chappeg, but I give 'im the hook and Barry missed me. Egan says: "Yer out." I says: "What fer, you big score.—Pittsburg 0; Cleveland 3.

SNODGRASS

Who made a $30,000 muff for the Giants last year is out of the series with a bad leg.

rum" He walked away. He knew well what I'da said to him if he'd stuck around. He walked away and didn't give me no chance to say nothin'. Barry missed me that far. The big, no-good slob. Matty's been pitching a hundred years, but he don't know no more about pitchin' in no kid. He goes and hands Collins a fast one when the old hook woulda knocked him dead. His fast one ain't what it was. It's straight as a string and it don't hop. But he goes and slips it to Collins and that's jes' what Collins was layin' for. At that, it was a wild pitch. It was about six feet over Collins' head, but he was just lucky enough to meet it. No wonder them Athlet's wins the pennant every year. I never seen a team have the luck break for them like it does for them big slob. We'da got them though, if Mac'd left me alone when Merkle was on third base. The big Indian had me three and nothin', and I wanted to take my wallop. I knowed he would not have nerve enough to hand up three hooks, and I knowed the first one was a-go'in' to be a fast one. But I looked at Mac and he shook his head no. He makes me take the first one and it's a string one, right over the heart. Then the big Indian hands me a hook and I swing at it 'cause it'd be a strike anyway. So I swung and missed and then he comes back with a fast one when I'm lookin' for another hook, and the stuff's off. I took it and Klem says it's a strike. Migan knew he'd call 'em all strikes. It was that far outside.

Bender pulled a boner at that. He oughta walked me and took a chance on Larry. But he got away with the big lucky slob. But he never would have got away with it if it hadn't a-been for Mac and then Klem callin' that third strike on me. Well get 'em to-morrow. Big Rub' 'll make 'em quit like dogs, the big lucky runs. They was ready to quit to-day, only Egan and Klem wouldn't give 'em no chanct.—Chicago Tribune.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk.

Then again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing.

Only the other day, Mr. Marsh of 101 Delormier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema.

OPEN INQUEST INTO CHISWELL SUICIDE

Dr. A.V. Becher Presides at His First Case as a Coroner.

London Free Press: The inquest into the suicide of Leander Chiswell, the Richmond street man, who on Sunday morning, after a futile attempt to shoot his wife, ran out of the house pursued by his father-in-law, Mr. Jas. Gallagher, and into a coal shed near by and put a bullet through his own brain, was opened yesterday at noon at the morgue of Smith, Son and Clarke.

It has developed that Chiswell took out an insurance policy for $245 in August last. Just whether or not the policy will have to be paid, owing to the death wound being self-inflicted, is a question, but the insurance company has been notified of the death.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—Owing to the outbreak of two cases of smallpox on board the White Star liner Megantic, seventy second-class passengers, most of them bound for points in Ontario, were yesterday placed at Grosse Ile. They will be there for three weeks until all danger of infection is passed.

Attempt to Wreck Train.

KINGSTON, Oct. 6.—What looked like a deliberate attempt at wrecking a train on the Grand Trunk railway occurred here at midnight. A switch connecting the siding at Anglin's Mill was left open, and a suburban train, backing into the city, was derailed. Two cars left the tracks.

First Snow in West.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6.—The first snow of the season is falling this morning in many parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, with the temperature around the freezing point. A snow is yet reported from Alberta and Winnipeg districts have so far escaped.

A WONDERFUL COLD CURE.

Just think of it, a cold cured in ten minutes—that's what happens when you use "Catarrhoxone." You inhale its soothing balsams and out goes the cold—sniffles are cured—headache is cured—symptoms of catarrh and grippe disappear at once.

Arthur Hughes, a Montana ranch man, was arrested in New York for conspiring with his wife and another man, also arrested, to swindle an insurance company of $8,000, by taking the body of a stranger to his home and causing a fire which charred the remains, which were then alleged to be his own.

HISTORIC ROOM IN C.P.R. BUILDING.

The old room at the Canadian Pacific offices in Montreal, in which Sir William Van Horne, as successively, manager and president, sat and pored over the map of Canada and drew his plans, and thought out great undertakings, is being knocked out of all-rememberable shape of its former self to correspond with the great scheme of reconstruction.

In this room Sir William used to receive his visitors, varied as to importance and distinction. The great ones of the earth have foregathered in the old room which has almost a historic significance.

Some of the older officials, who remember the room so well, and the many times they have appeared before the president, to discuss large things with him, as well as enjoy the president's epigrams when he had a little sentimental regret that its glory has departed.

Cricket

The St. George's and Paris cricket teams played their off on Saturday to decide who should hold the Roberts and Van-Lane trophy for the coming year, and after an exciting game the Paris team were left victorious with two wickets to spare.

Paris batsmen could do little or nothing with the bowling of Stewart and Johnson, and eight of their wickets were down for 15 runs, but upon a different complexion was put on the game, and together they hit off the 21 runs required to win the match.

WING AND WING IN A CLASSIC IN A PAGE

BY JAMES TENIMORE COOPER.

1789 - 1851

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY J.W. MULLER. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

The Hanging of Prince Caraccioli.

"Wing and Wing" is one of the novels that Cooper wrote after that period of his life when he travelled in Italy and spent his time in his own country, after having spent some time in Europe with his family, and he wrote the novel in the years, 1840 and 1841, when he was in his thirtieth year. It is a story of the life of a young man who is brought to the notice of the British government by his services in the Italian army.

TOWARD the close of a fine August day in 1788 a fairy-like craft came steering toward Porty Ferraio in the Island of Elba, which was to become famous in after years as the residence of Emperor Napoleon. She was a three-masted lugger, spraddling an enormous canvas as she came down wind, and with a sail fanning on each side like the heavy plumes of a sea-fowl.

Had her homely canvas not betrayed her, she would have deceived even the keenest eyes into believing her much smaller than she really was, for she had a low hull painted black and relieved only by a single and almost imperceptible line of red beneath the canvas, while the rigging was so deep that nothing was visible above it except at intervals the cap of some mariner taller than usual.

The people of Porty Ferraio, always in fear of the French, were suspicious and fired a couple of shots across her bow in answer to which the stranger broke out the friendly English colors. He anchored close to the shore, but in such a position that none of the guns of the fort could be brought to bear on him. Then the captain landed and made a visit of ceremony to the vice-governor of the island.

The sailor was tall, athletic man of about 25. He was attired in an undress uniform, which he wore with a smart air. His eyes were coal black, his hair was black and his chin was hidden by a beard as black as his hair and eyes. His face was classically perfect, and might have served as the model for an antique god. Although he looked so decidedly un-English, he introduced himself as Captain Smith of the English war lugger, Wing-and-Wing, and the simple vice-governor, who had only a vague idea that England was an island something larger than Elba, accepted his statement without question. Had he known a little about the unimpeachable language of Brianna he would have observed that the stranger called himself "Jacques Smeeth" and pronounced the name of his vessel as "Wing-an-Ving."

"Captain Jacques Smeeth" was, in truth, Raul Yvard, and his lugger was the celebrated French privateer, Le Feu-Follet. She had earned her name, which meant "Will of the Wind," so thoroughly that all Lord Nelson's captains were on the lookout for her, and though some of the British fleet were more than a little afraid of her, hardly a day passed without bringing news of a daring and successful attack on shipping almost under the guns of the British fleet. The fastest cruisers had under their lee, the marine Jack of Yvard had vanished to windward like a wreath of smoke, and the British ships were left to wonder how he had done it.

To lay his vessel in the trap of the little port which was visited frequently by British cruisers was an act so daring that even he had good reason to believe that he had done it. He had an excellent excuse in the object that had brought him, which was to see Ghitia Caraccioli, a young girl who had been a frequent visitor to his home. By some means she had come to the little port, and he had been waiting for an opportunity to see her.

Raul was desperately in love with her, and she had confessed her love to him; but he was a true son of the old French Republic that defied not only the King but the institutions of the Church. He believed in a church nor a deity, while Ghitia was a devout Catholic. Deep and true though her love was, she refused steadfastly to marry him.

tain Raul had prevailed on Ghitia to come aboard with her uncle and let him take her home, and he felt certain that the frigate would not return.

Two minutes afterward Le Feu-Follet was gliding out of the harbor on the other side, with Ghitia and her uncle safely aboard. When daylight brought its usual calm the privateer lay about four miles from the harbor. The next instant flames burst from the foremast, and Raul paid little further attention to his baffled enemy, for it was impossible that she could get near him when the breeze started, and in the meantime he was quite safe, for it would have been madness to send a small boat expedition against him.

The Englishmen, however, were not so. A boat slipped quietly away from her and entered the harbor. Soon afterwards a frigate came out and stood across the bow of the warship. The latter, still flying French colors, promptly lowered her sails. These soon gained the foremast, which was barely crawling before the frigate was too high to stir the frigate's sails, and she lay motionless.

The use was well planned. Had Raul not been positive that the frigate was British he would infallibly have fallen into the trap by trying to lay the frigate to rest, and then he would have been shot. He had, however, sworn more than before that it was the Prosperine.

Therefore the privateer was prepared for the unmaking of the craft, which as the frigate had drifted near enough to the lugger to shelter the advancing boats. Le Feu-Follet's sweeps were run out, she pounded, heavily loaded with cast-iron shot, full into the smaller vessel. The English boats dashed around her bow and stern and made for the lugger. A frigate ran to the leading launch brought her across from the on-coming enemy. A cheer arose as they came on a breeze started up and Le Feu-Follet spread her wings.

The English, perceiving that their attempt had failed, sheered off. The lugger bore down on them, but chivalrously refrained from firing at the retreating boats, instead, though the frigate was approaching with the leading launch, the privateer ran down to the lugger, and having ascertained that their stratagem had been successful, they bore down on her, set her afire. By some means she was done, and she was left to burn. The lugger was left to burn, and she was left to burn.

When Captain Cuffe and his first officer were rowed up the cove, and while they looked down the bay for a vessel, the privateer was slowly drawing near, and she was slowly drawing near. The privateer was slowly drawing near, and she was slowly drawing near.

Prince Caraccioli, the famous Neapolitan admiral, attracted by the King of Naples, had entered the service of the republic declared by the French invaders. With a recovered a little she approached him for life if he would tell where the lugger could be captured. Raul's first words were enough to show Captain Cuffe that he was a man of a privateersman of the common stamp. "I pardon you if you can pardon yourself," said he, rising. "An officer in such honorable service should think long before he tempts a man to an act like this. But, I repeat, monsieur, I forgive you if you can forgive yourself."

As the evening approached a great silence settled on the craft, which was the silence of the ship, intensified by which every ripple had died with the dying down of the wind. Captain Cuffe delayed preparations as long as he could, but at last he wanted only half an hour before sunset, and the foremast began to reeve a rope at the foreyard-arm, while others rigged a grating under running this fresh danger. In reply Raul again begged her to marry him, and again she refused, as gently and yet as firmly as ever. He rowed swiftly and soon reached a lonely part of the harbor, where a fisherman sat in his shabby yawl apparently waiting for him. It was Ithuel Bolt. In a few moments Raul and his companions were in the yawl and the two sturdy men began urging her way to the opposite side of the harbor, where Ghitia and her uncle were to be disembarked.

They were almost half way across the bay when the Prosperine came down under full sail, bound out. She made a sheer towards the small boat. An officer halted, asking who they were. Raul answered that he was a fisherman of Capri, and was ordered aboard. The sailors threw a net overboard, and Raul and his companions were in the yawl and the two sturdy men began urging her way to the opposite side of the harbor, where Ghitia and her uncle were to be disembarked.

The officer offered him a duet, and proposed to take him to a private cabin, and the lugger of the harbor, Raul answered indignantly, giving them a reply that would send the frigate on a wild goose chase. All was going well, and he was enjoying the trick immensely, when the tables were turned unexpectedly. Two men came on deck. As soon as he saw them the Frenchman perceived that he was in a plight. They were the Vice-Governor and the postmaster of Elba, whom Captain Cuffe had picked up at Naples.

Thick with it as they were, they could not fail to recognize a person with such striking features as those of Raul Yvard. The privateer was alert and quick to extricate himself from unpleasant situations, but this was one that presented no opportunity. He was taken below, a prisoner and a prisoner, and he was taken below, a prisoner and a prisoner.

The next morning at dawn the Ring-dore frigate and the sloop of the Prosperine came down the slope of the bay, and they were taken below, a prisoner and a prisoner. The privateer was alert and quick to extricate himself from unpleasant situations, but this was one that presented no opportunity.

Raul was on deck in a moment. As he appeared the guilty officer cast himself into the sea and sank. Raul hardly looked. He ordered the sails down and the pumps sounded. Then, seeing a frigate coming in the gray light, he sent a boat's crew away to seize her, while the rest of the men were set to work lightening the ship of its armament and ballast.

Thus, by the time the sunlight shone on the sea and brought their plight to the people on shore, Raul Yvard had already taken great steps toward retrieving the disaster. A kedge anchor was carried out to deep water and men began work to leave the vessel on. In the meantime, as he knew that the British cruisers would hear of his predicament before he could get his guns back on Le Feu-Follet, he prepared to fight them off where he was.

Some ruins on the rocky islet on which they had struck offered him a spot for a battery, and there he planted most of the guns as fast as they were taken out of the lugger to lighten her.

By this time the captured felucca was alongside of the rock, and the preparations were completed before the privateer began to move in answer to the strain that the British cruisers made her. She stirred, slipped and suddenly fell into deep water, rolling nearly deck under for want of ballast.

While she was still rocking the first British boats appeared around the cape at the entrance to the bay. Yvard saw that there were three launches, mounting cannon, and four boats containing small arm men only.

They had some distance to go before they could come to close quarters. In that time the lusty privateer's crew, which consisted of more than sixty men, managed to get her about her bowsprit. The British boats were ordered to make her steady enough for fighting. She was moored near the felucca in such a manner that the guns of both vessels could be brought to bear on the approach to the land battery, while they were protected from direct attack by a ledge of sunken rocks that stretched between them and the direction from which the enemy was most likely to come.

The privateers now had nothing to do except to await the attack. Suddenly Raul saw a small boat coming from the land, and he saw that it was a British boat. He saw that it was a British boat, and he saw that it was a British boat.

Raul besought her to leave him, but she would not. "I will remain, Raul," she said firmly. "There may come a moment when you will be glad to have the prayers of believers amid the noise of war."
