"Something more potent than that," answered the Jester; for when would repentance or prayers make Gush do a courtesy, or fasting or vigils persuade him to lend you a mule? I throw you might as well have told his favorite black bear of thy vigils or penance, and wouldst have gotten as civil an answer.

"Go to," said the Pilgrim, "thou art but a Saxon fool."

"Thou sayest well," said the Jester; "had I been born a Norman, as I think thou art, I would have had luck on a wye side, and been next door to a wise man."

At this moment Gurth appeared on the opposite side of the most with the mules. The travellers crossed the ditch upon a draw-bridge of only two planks breadth, the narrowness was matched with the straightness of the postern, and with a little jockey in the exterior pallece, which gave access to the forest. No sooner had they reached the mules, than the Jew, with hasty and trembling hands, secured behind the saddle a small bag of blue buckram, which he took from under his cloak, containing, as he muttered, "only a change of raiment—only a change of raiment." Then getting upon the animal with more alacrity and haste than could have been expected from his years, he lost no time in so disposing of the skirts of his gaberaine as to conceal completely from observation the burden which he had thus deposited on crupper.

The Pilgrim mounted with more deliberation, reaching, as he departed, his hand to Gurth, who kissed it with the utmost possible veneration. The Pilgrim then stood gazing at the exterior pallece, which were lost under the boughs of the forest path, when he was disturbed from his reverie by the voice of Wamba.

"Knowest thou," said the Jester, "my good friend, Gurth, that thou art strangely courteous and most unwontedly pious on this summer morning? I would I were a black Prior or a barefooted Friar, to avail myself of thy unwonted zeal and courtesy—certainly, I would make more out of it than a kiss of the hand."

"Thou art no fool thus far, Wamba," answered Gurth, "though thou arguest from appearances, and the wisest of us can do no more. But it is time to look after my charge."

So saying he turned back to the mansion attended by the Jester.

J. E. COLLINGS, Editor.

FREDERICTON, NOVEMBER 29, 1879.

THE LANDS OF MANITOBA AND THE NORTH-WEST.

A REPORTER of the Halifax Herald called upon Messrs. Cowan & Bigger of the Agricultural Delegation. The interviewer is worthy of reproduction and we set it the following from it:

Reporter—What parts of this country have you visited?

Mr. Cowan—We have been through Quebec and Ontario, up the lakes to Duluth, thence to Manitoba; then back through Dakota and Minnesota, through New York by rail; from there we came to St. John, and to-day we came over to Digby and up through the Annapolis Valley.

Reporter—What is your opinion of Manitoba, as compared with Minnesota and Dakota?

that our Canadian lands are equal to if not superior, for grain raising, to any within American limits.

Time was when we thought the stories of the lands of the North-West only the vapourings of the itinerant lecturer; but the pushing policy of the present Government has dispelled the haze of uncertainty which hung over this region. Within two years from now a line of railroad will have been constructed from Winnipeg to Fort Ellice, on the Assiniboine. This will open up fertile lands where almost fabulous crops may be raised. A line of railway is already completed from St. Boniface, opposite Winnipeg, to the boundary, near Emerson, here connecting with the American system of railways through Minnesota to St. Paul and Duluth. A branch railway is also half built between St. Boniface and Thander Bay, which road will connect with the main Canadian line.

Lord Elphinstone, an English nobleman, became so taken with the region, that he purchased, recently, a farm at Riding Mountain, Little Saskatchewan, containing 12,000 acres. There is a great future for the North-West, and great fame for the Government whose policy has created that future.

OUR COUSINS ON THE OTHER SIDE.

We do think that it would not lessen our estimation of our American cousins, did they, when they travel down East, have a little more regard for the amenities of life. We had occasion to travel on the cars the other day for a short distance. We met the western train at the Fredericton Junction, and had a ticket for our destination, which we thought gave us the same rights and privileges as all others.

We found, however, when we entered the car, that the seats were all occupied. There was a troupe of minstrels on board called the "Gaiety Club," that had been performing in St. John, the evening before. The ladies and gentlemen of the company occupied the whole car, it requiring apparently four seats to hold two of them. We were at first inclined to think it was a private conveyance for these parties, but on further enquiry, we ascertained, that we were on the regular train, for the accommodation of the public, and where all had equal rights.

It would not be fair, perhaps, to take those whom we found there as an index of American chivalry and etiquette. They may have been of those who live only to gratify their own animal instincts.

One thing impressed itself on our mind, and it is this: that their modesty is far in advance of our simplicity. But however depraved the age may be, we require and expect the proprietors must teach the gay that they can't be so at our expense.

We do think it ought to be the conductor's duty to see that way passengers on our railroads have rights and privileges as well as those who come from the hub of creation. Should the same scene occur again, we shall feel compelled, in consideration of our own rights, to appeal to the conductor, and should he not be competent to redress our grievances, we shall consult the manager or superintendent. Our convictions are that we must protect ourselves; indeed this is the foundation of the National Policy. Our desire is to be civil, and not only civil but generous to all we meet. We are not disposed however to allow the outside world to come to the conclusion that we are either to be despised or trodden upon, because we are forbearing and patient. Ours is the Golden Rule; we want others to do to us as we should do to others.

HAVE WE BECOME EFFETE.

We saw the other day a number of rugged looking foreigners on the train going westward and on enquiring who they were, learnt they were Danes going to establish themselves in New Denmark. Our first impulse was to say, Welcome all who come, we have thousands of spare acres for you, where if you are energetic there is a bright future for you. Provided the class of settlers that go out on our lands are of the proper kind, courageous and persevering, we care not whether they are foreign or native. We hope the Danes, therefore, will in time improve, though at present they appear behind the others.

But we offer no objection to any, because they are foreigners. We are all foreigners for that matter—we came yesterday, you came to-day, and some one else will come to-morrow. It is only a question of time. The only people who have a right to consider themselves natives are the Indians, and yet they now are strangers in their own country. While we were thus musing, we asked ourselves, Why is it that our own young men are every day going west, while others are coming to take possession of the land which they might have and enjoy. The only solution we can find is, that the rising generation of the country will not farm—they will do almost anything else. Of all the young people who have grown up in our midst, during the last thirty years, we know of scarce one that has turned his attention to this means of an honest and honorable subsistence. Are they too effeminate to bear the labor of the field? We think not. There are many young men whom we know who, did they roll up their sleeves, take their axe in hand and go straight into the woods, could, after a few years exertion, live out for themselves an independent existence.

The great trouble with our young people is they have been nursed in the lap of ease; our boys must all be lawyers, doctors or merchants; our girls must be school maids, telegraph operators or professionals of some kind. The ordinary occupations of domestic life are beneath their intelligence and dignity.

Looking at these things in all their mood and tense, it is better perhaps that there should be an amalgamation—new blood infused into the system. The heterogeneous mass of which the nations of Europe is composed, may be, and perhaps is, the very source of their vitality and life. Were we inclined to agree with Darwin in anything, it would be in this, that the evolution of selection must result in good.

D. G. SMITH AS A "CARD" DISTRIBUTING MEDIUM.

Mr. D. G. SMITH, the Editor of Mr. Snowball's paper, pays an unconscious tribute to the Surveyor General when he says: "It was only Mr. Smith who wrote for him (the S. General), the election card which he said he could not get around in his peculiar circumstances." Poor Mr. Smith was, evidently, fool enough to allow the Surveyor General to use him as a card distributing medium, but those who look upon Mr. Smith in worst aspects, could scarce believe him fool enough to tell the public through his paper that the Surveyor General had used him in such a capacity. We are reminded of the Jew Shylock who whines about the way Antonio used him on the Rialto, when he spurned him as a cur and used him as he would a puppy. He took his Jewish revenge, but was holst with the petard he had prepared for his high-minded enemy. Let Mr. D. G. Smith take warning.

But the most disingenuous part of the paragraph from which we clip the above humiliating extract is where the writer tries to stir up an illfeeling between Hon. Robert Young and the Surveyor General. He tried a few days ago to sow discord between the latter gentleman and Mr. Costigan, but failed in that as he must miserably fail in his present attempt; and all his lowly conceived schemes must fall him; for the tact of a fool, though mixed with the malice of a demon can effect naught unless it be confusion and disaster on the head of its author.

"HE WHO IS WITHOUT SIN, &c."

MR. JOHN'S SPEECH at the Ottawa Banquet has taken the Grits against the grain. The St. John Telegraph, which is "everything by starts and nothing long," says things of Sir John which is shameful for a pious man like the Telegraph's editor. Mr. Elder knows the story that Sir John was intoxicated at the Quebec Banquet is a vile slander, yet he repeats it; and more than that, insinuates Sir John was in a similar condition at the Ottawa Banquet. Mr. Elder is extremely sensitive to remark on his own shortcomings, and the newspaper points to them is set down as "unscrupulous" by the Telegraph. If Sir John have any faults, why has not Mr. Elder mercy on Sir John? Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones.

A writer in a French newspaper gives a dark picture of the manner in which Russia is going to work to pacify the Caucasus. He states that all attempts to organize the country having failed, it has been decided to depopulate it, and orders have been given for the inhabitants to be driven from their hamlets and villages and transported to the coast. The mode of operation, he says, is simple: "During the darkness of night a Cossack regiment surrounds a village, and, when morning breaks, all the inhabitants, without exception, are disarmed, clothed in the gray, convict dress and marched away thousands of miles—some to the frozen shores of Archangel, others to Siberia. The idea of peopling the immense tracts of Asia, Russia with Caucasians has haunted several ill-regulated minds at St. Petersburg, but these mountaineers of the south soon become homesick and die in the melancholy 'backwards.' In the sixteenth century there were 8,000,000 inhabitants in Siberia, and now there are only 4,000,000, although there is an influx of 120,000 convicts every year. After attending to the sanguinary scenes enacted during the Turkish war, the writer says that 2,000 Caucasians have just been transported, and that what remains of the population will speedily follow."

"PLENTITUDE" is how the scholar of the Hc. Herald writes plentitude in his leader of Thursday.

Suicide of the Scorpion.

[Times.]
Doubts having been expressed at various times, even by learned naturalists as to the reality of the suicide, or self-destruction of the scorpion by means of its own poison, and these doubts having been again started by Mr. R. F. Hutchinson of Peshawar, as the result of his own observations, I think, writes Mr. Allen Thompson to Nature, it may be useful to give an articulate account of the phenomenon as it has been related to me by an eye-witness, which removes all possible doubt as to its occurrence in certain circumstances. While residing many years ago during the summer months at the baths of Lucca, in Italy, in a somewhat damp manner, my informant, together with the rest of the family, was much annoyed by the frequent intrusion of small black scorpions into the house, and their being secreted among the bed-clothes, in shoes, and in other articles of dress. It thus became necessary to be constantly on the watch for these troublesome creatures, and to take means for their removal and destruction. Having been informed by natives of the place that the scorpion would destroy itself if exposed to sudden light, my informant and her friends soon became adept in catching the scorpions and disposing of them in the manner suggested. This consisted in confining the animal under an inverted drinking glass or tumbler, below which a card was inserted when the capture was made, and then, waiting till dark, suddenly bringing the light of a candle to the glass in which the animal was confined. No sooner was this done than the scorpion invariably showed signs of great excitement, running round and round the interior of the tumbler with reckless velocity for a number of times. This state having lasted for a minute or more, the animal suddenly became quiet, and turning its tail or the hinder parts of its body over its back, brought its recurved sting down upon the middle of the head, and piercing it forcibly, in a few seconds became quite motionless, and, in fact, quite dead. This observation was repeated very frequently; in truth, it was adopted as the best plan of getting rid of the animals, and the young people were in the habit of handling the scorpions with impunity immediately after they were so killed, and of preserving many of them as curiosities.

The Chinese Literature.

[Celestial Empire.]
The education which qualifies a Chinaman of to-day is in all its greater bearings precisely that of say a thousand years ago. There are the twenty short chapters, containing almost all that is authentically known of the life and teachings of Confucius; there are the works of Mencius in seven sections, compiled in much the same manner as the preceding, with a view to set before the world the sententious utterances of these great ethical teachers of antiquity, and further, there are two abstruse philosophical treatises, which, with the above-mentioned more lengthy works, go to make up that portion of Chinese literature known as the Four Books.

When these have been learned by heart, the student proceeds to commit to memory, in like manner, as much as possible of what we vulgarly call the Five Classics, consisting of the Book of History, which deals with a period extending from something like B. C. 2300 to B. C. 700; of the Book of Changes, in which a system of philosophy is based upon the permutations of a given number of unmeaning symbols; of the "Book of Poetry," which may be said to correspond in many ways with our psalms of David; of the "Book of Rites," in which official etiquette and court ceremonial are treated with an impracticable minuteness; and lastly of "Spring and Autumn," an historical work from the pen of Confucius himself, recording the chief events of the Sage's native State for about three centuries previous to his own time. These are the works which candidates at the public examinations are supposed to have at their finger ends, though sometimes they only have them up their sleeves in the more tangible form of a diamond edition. At any rate the success or failure of a candidate is made to depend upon the ability he displays in elucidating themes taken from the volumes, and the skill with which he can throw off a copy of verses, correctly rhymed and accented, and teeming with elegant and appropriate allusions to the past.

It will readily be conceived that, in view of the nature of the test before him, the candidate does not confine himself to a mere parrot knowledge of the texts upon which he will be examined. He pores over some after some of commentary and other exegetical aid, comparing the conclusions of the scholars who flourished at various literary epochs, and interprets the difficult passages, each more or less in accordance with the spirit of the times in which he lives. He reads volume after volume of the ponderous histories of See-Ma-Kwang and See-Ma-Ts'ui, and lingers over favorite poets and essay writers in the hope of attracting to himself something of the inspiration which secured them success and carried them on to fame.

The knowledge that is really useful is invariably gained afterward. The Chinese official begins life with a stock in trade which would better fit him for a pedagogue; the intimate acquaintance with men and their motives, which so often distinguishes the statesman in his later years, is picked up in the arena of public business, and not derived from books. His mind is doubtless qualified to receive a specific receipt of practical knowledge of real life, by the course upon which he has been trained; but as an offset to this, he imbues, with his learning, an aptitude for abstract and immutable principles, and a firm belief of the superiority of the past over the present, both of which cling about him and encumber him through the whole of his official career.

ONE TON OF WOOL

Wanted at the Establishment of T. G. O'CONNOR, November 1, 1879.—4f.

Local Matters.

Park Seventy-five barrels of pork have been shipped to Boston for Mr. A. Gibson.

Council Meeting. The regular monthly meeting of the City Council takes place on Tuesday evening next.

Market. Mr. Farmers patching their roofs and killing their pigs.

Another Purchase by Mr. Gibson. Mr. A. Gibson has bought 1600 acres of wild land at the head waters of the Nashua for $100,000.

On the Track. No. 4 locomotive of the N. B. Railway is off the track at Upper Keewick station. Mr. P. A. Logan, Supt. of Car Works, has gone up with a crew of men to look it on the rails.

New Green House. Mr. John Mackey of this city is putting up a green house on his farm, 11 miles from the city. It is to be used entirely for fruit raising purposes. It will be 60 feet long and 18 feet in breadth.

Lumber. Mr. H. Turnbull, of Boistown, is to cut about 1,000,000 feet of lumber this winter on what is known as the Middle Head branch of the Miramichi. A dozen men started from town yesterday morning en route to his headquarters.

Messrs. Kilburn & Aiken of this city have 70 men employed in the lumber woods on the Aroostook. They have three camps and have contracted for getting out 8,000,000 feet.

A Lonely Robin. Yesterday morning a robin perched on a naked tree on Brunswick street, and poured out the most delicious song. It remained on the tree all day, but as the shades of evening came on, with melancholy cry he rose and flew to the chestnut woods. It is very rare indeed to see a robin at this season.

U. D. S. The University Debating Society meet this evening to discuss the advisability, pro and con, of holding a conversation about the first of February. The Freshmen complain that heretofore the work in getting up an entertainment of this kind has invariably fallen upon their shoulders, and a very interesting debate is expected.

A Fredericton Singer. We are glad to find the following description of a concert at Kennebunk in the Kent correspondence of a St. John paper: Mrs. E. Fair, of Fredericton, sustained her part of the programme so admirably, with her sweet voice and careful rendition of "Come back to Erin," that the ladies here lately contented with hearing her again in "Coming through the Eye," and with which they were fairly entranced. These two ladies give a selection of instrumental music—Mrs. Fair with the piano and Miss James with the harp.

"From a Far Country." One of the young men who left Fredericton for the west last summer, sends us the following respecting affairs on the general division of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He says: "I do not like the country as much as I anticipated; we have had snow from the middle of September. The thermometer registers 15° below zero, with plenty up its sleeve." Most of the men who have made up their minds that there are a few places in this vast universe worse than New Brunswick, and Manitoba is one of them."

Our attention has been repeatedly called to the practice of sitting on the sidewalks indulged in by some of the boys attending the public schools in the city. It is becoming dangerous for school passengers to walk the streets after school is out and after dark. Only yesterday an elderly lady while passing out of Queen Street was swept off her feet by a sled coming down Queen Street.

LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL. SIXTEEN young men from Chatham go West on Monday. The work on the Kent Northern is rapidly progressing.

The festival held recently at St. Malch's Hall, St. John, realized $1,700. A BAZAAR will be held in the new Roman Catholic hall, at Richbuck, July next, in aid of the new convent at St. John's.

BEARS AND MINISTERS.—Two bears and one cleo gyan have been seen on the Casside Valley road, Cumberland, this season. Ministers should visit their people, at least as often as the bears.—Am. Gazette.

A boy named Jaman, aged thirteen years, perished in the snow storm on Thursday, near St. Eleonore, P. E. I. "Capt." Jones says he has traced a vein of copper for four miles on the Bay Shore, near St. John's.

Miller says the Halifax Chronicle libel suit came to an end on Friday, the Chronicle apologizing.—Post.

The following is from a late number of Forest and Stream: On the 24th July last I left Fredericton, N. B., with intention, if possible at that time, of securing some live beaver of the spring growth. I reached Slate Island, on the South-West branch, on the evening of the 15th. When I was there some ten days previous to this, I had set a steel trap at an old camp about one and a half miles east of the Miramichi, where I had noticed traces of beaver. Going back, therefore, to where I had set this trap, I found it gone. I had a junk of wood attached to it which weighed about forty pounds; the trap itself weighed twenty-six pounds.

I noticed the weeds and grass along the old lumber road broken down, evidently by the clog and trap. I followed the track for about 100 yards, when I found that Bruin had been there. He was easily traced by holes in the ground, broken bushes, and a trail of the log. I found that he had several times set the clog fast between two trees, but cleared himself after great exertions by turning it around till he got it out. After following his track, in all its windings, a distance of not more than half a mile, from where the trap had been set, I came to a hill side, pretty steep, covered by hardwood, where was a pile of blown down trees. Among these I caught a glimpse of Bruin's black coat, and approaching nearer, saw a very large bear, with my trap fast to his nose; one tooth of it had passed directly through his nostril. As soon as he saw me he made violent efforts to get the trap and clog free from the trees among which they were entangled, while attempting which they were entangled, and he should have been able to clear them from the trees. Seeing this, I thought he should hear the trap from his nose and make off. I put a ball into him almost immediately. This animal would weigh about 300 pounds, was very poor, and had been in the trap, from appearance, about four days.

ST. JOHN has three new official assignees—Samuel Gardner, H. C. MacMonegal and John B. Armstrong. Mr. Anglin, writing of these appointments, says: "Hurrah for Sir Samuel and the N. P.!"

The Telegraph calls the Fredericton Reporter a "parrot,"—meaning, of course, as we have often said, that it never advances an opinion of its own. The Telegraph did not hit it bad that time.

Potatoes. A Gibson farmer lately lost 80 barrels of potatoes. They were put in a cellar in bins, and having been taken from wet (intervel), ground, rot set in, and with the exception of those, not near the outside were all destroyed.

Shut Down. All the saw-mills at Woodstock have shut down.

OUR INDUSTRIES. The Tannery of Messrs. Brown & Palmer, Westmorland Street, was found on investigation by a St. J. Reporter to exhibit a business activity totally unexpected, and to be able to show as creditable a record as some of its bulkier and more ostentatious competitors. The present firm are both young men full of vim and a proper estimation of the value of their prize, and came from the United States where long experience in the leather trade have enabled them to carry out their business here very successfully. Since 1877 a great many improvements have been made about the premises, and there is now on the order book work to the value of $10,000. The year has seen a great improvement in the tanning business and the firm have been busy since spring, especially during the fall. Messrs. Brown & Palmer are strongly in favor of the N. P., and speak in unmeasured terms of its efficiency in drawing out the potential energy of the country, and converting it into active force or sidle steam, as well as the encouragement it gives to enterprise in producing a commercial basis for capital and industry.

A GUY FOR REFORM IN THE SCHOOLS. To the Editor of the STAR: Sir.—No. 75 of THE STAR contains, certainly, a pertinent question. It asks, in the name of common sense, for what are Free Schools established? And why are taxes levied upon the people that these schools may be sustained? If it is an admitted fact, that, at the least, the poorer classes need an industrial element in the education of their children, why do not our education authorities provide for so serious a demand? It is also too true that our Common School system is not adapted to the wants of the poor, whose children can spend but a limited period in school. Funds are absorbed by the high-salaried officials that might be otherwise appropriated to the education property, and adapted to the actual requirements of the common people. What is to be gained by this enormous outlay? Fifty-three student teachers received at the Normal School on probation! That is a strange comment on our Free School standing. Does this Normal School educate the student teachers, or merely test their qualifications? It is a pretty expensive test, at any rate. Why could not Teachers be left for five years to study in the Free Schools, and come qualified to teach the common people? In this poor little province have we the necessity to keep in perpetual motion this enormously expensive machinery, for the manufacture of the most common piece of hardware, for whom the country is being impoverished in more senses than one?

The article I quote from, and your editorial on "Our Common Schools," should be printed in gold, or written as with a sunbeam, and penetrate every dwelling in our heavily taxed province. Yours, T. HOBBS.

REFORMATION. Superintendent N. B. Railway, P. A. Logan, Supt. of Machine Works, send the following from Upper Keewick: "Nobody here knows anything about it." Mr. John Allen, Station Master at Gibson, states: "I am informed of anything happening on the road. Have heard nothing about this matter from the conductor or train hands."

There is nobody knows anything about the "struggle" except Mrs. Johnston. Mr. Harry Beckwith and the Telegraph's correspondent. We think of the three, Mrs. Johnston is to blame; for we cannot believe the correct pond would make it.

Personal. W. C. Miller, Esq., the indefatigable editor of the Sackville Post, is registered at the Park under an assumed name.—St. John Paper.

"Creditors" are so merciless now-a-days that it is necessary to resort to this kind of thing. Mr. John H. Reid writes on his way home from the Queen Hotel last evening was seized with a sudden illness. He is lying in a very precarious state.

Rev. Mr. Mulvaney is in St. John, at the Park. Mr. A. B. Wilmot passed through this city yesterday with 120,000 salmon eggs for the Rapid de Femme factory, so the Sun says. Did the Sun count the eggs?

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED
IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda will accomplish this. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specimens, in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, and we make the unqualified statement that Scott's Emulsion is being used with better results and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrophula, Anemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of Children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet is truly marvellous.

See What Physicians and the People Say About It.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September 2, 1876.
GENTS.—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrophulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen.—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrophulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SEXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen.—Within the last two months I have very freely tried SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly agreeable and elegant form.
December 10th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen.—In September, 1879, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter I began to lose blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats and short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I afterwards bought a dozen bottles, with the following results: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pain in spine disappeared, strength returning, and my weight increased from 115 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, "What cured you?" and I answer, "SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL."
and he bought two more, then got a dozen, and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and that so all I can make known your valuable medicine. Very truly yours, January 10th, 1879. H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live longer than a few weeks at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced feeding, and now am able to ride and walk, and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover.
For sale by all Druggists @ $1.00 per bottle. I am grateful to R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.
