What Shall We Drink?

Cocoa is the most healthful beverage that there is. We are always reading warnings from medical men regarding the danger of using tea and coffee, but they never warn us against cocoa. There are, however, degrees of purity in cocoa as in other foods. At the head of the list stands Cleveland's, made by a process used by the early Dutch settlers in America.
 Cocoa is the most healthful drink there is. Cleveland's is the purest, most nutritious, most delightful Cocoa there is. Try it. One tin means many more.

Daniel O'Connell—"The Liberator"

IRISH ERIN has given the world many a genius and many a Lover of Liberty, but none greater than the eloquent O'Connell. This noble Irishman unselfishly devoted every moment of his life to regain the Freedom of his Fatherland. His oratory, because of its flaming earnestness, exercised a powerful influence over the House of Commons and hastened many reforms for Ireland. Daniel O'Connell was the first to realize the irresistible strength of a union of millions of Irishmen, and to this end he labored night and day. Huge mass meetings were everywhere organized throughout Ireland and addressed by the masterful O'Connell. When confident of success and with victory in sight he was arrested and condemned to prison. When liberated his splendid constitution was shattered, but he continued until his dying hour to work and pray for Irish Liberty. It is needless to say that Daniel O'Connell was opposed to any Prohibitory legislation which invaded the Natural Rights of Man. He would no more vote for such tyrannous enactments than will our millions of Irish-American citizens. They know that there is no evil in the barley brews and light wines of their fathers—EVIL ONLY IS IN THE MAN WHO MISUSES THEM. For 57 years Anheuser-Busch have honestly brewed honest beers, and they are proud of the popularity their great brand Budweiser enjoys with those of Irish blood. Our Irish citizens have helped to make our nation great among the nations of the world. Seven thousand, five hundred people are daily required to keep pace with the natural demand for Budweiser. A Great Intrigue,

CHAPTER XXXII.

He saw that her face was white to deathliness behind the veil which she always wore, and he naturally looked after the man. There seemed to be something familiar about him, but Harry's acuteness had been deadened by his illness, and he did not recognize in the over-dressed individual, the man Sinclair, whom he had arrested in the park. Marie Verner had, however, and the shock of the meeting had frightened her.

"Are you ill?" he asked.

"No," she said, "only a little faint. Let us go home; I hate being pushed against."

"But it was against me he pushed," said Harry, as he called a cab.

"It is all the same," she said, lightly. "I thought you were going to quarrel with the man, dear."

Harry laughed and said no more, and forgot about it before they reached the yard.

At last the day but one before the wedding, arrived. Harry had got the license and the tickets for France; the new furniture had come home, and Marie declared that her trousseau was completed.

Harry was sauntering down the yard in the absent-minded fashion that had become habitual with him, when Mr. Doyle came up, leading a horse.

"Hello!" he said. "Just the man I was looking for;" and throwing the bridle to one of the stablemen, he linked his arm in Harry's.

"Thinking of the day after tomorrow, lad?" he said, chuckling.

Harry pulled himself together and smiled.

"All ready, eh?" said Mr. Doyle. "That's all right. I've told 'em to put those two grays to the carriage, and I guess there ain't a better pair of grays in London. But that's not what I wanted to tell you. Look here! I've been thinking that the old woman was scarcely good enough in the servant line for such a couple of swells as you two, and I've advertised for a young girl to help her, and do the parlor maid business, you know. I've picked out the dearest of the lot that came in answer to it, and I've got her in there," and he pointed to the office. "Go in and see if you fancy the look of her."

"We'd better leave that to Miss Verner, hadn't we?" said Harry, with a smile.

"Well, I thought she'd be here," said Mr. Doyle. "Never mind, you go in and see if you think she'll do. I'm going down to the Number 2 stable; come and tell me what you think of her."

Harry sauntered leisurely to the office and opened the door. A young girl who was sitting with her back to him rose as he entered, and, turning round, dropped a curtsy.

Then suddenly she uttered an exclamation of terror and shrank back, clutching the desk, and gasped out his name:

"Master Harry!"

Harry started, and strode up to her.

"Susie!" he said. "Why—why! Is it possible?" and, with a flush on his face as the sight of her recalled the past, he held out his hand.

Susie took it and clung to it, trembling like an aspen leaf, her face white, her eyes starting.

"Why, Susie," he said, smilingly, "how I must have startled you! Did you think it was my ghost?"

"Oh, Master Harry! Master Harry!" she panted, and she stood pressing her hand to her heart.

"There, sit down," he said, in the gentle tones she remembered so well. "Sit down and get over your fright, Susie! What a surprise it is! You are the very last person in the world I should have expected to see here."

But she seemed to pay no heed to him, and, still keeping her terror-stricken eyes upon his face, exclaimed pantingly:

"Oh, Master Harry! what are you doing here?"

He smiled.

"I am working here, Susie. You know I was always fond of horses. I am helping a gentleman who buys and sells them. I shall be a partner presently, I expect," he went on, talking to give her time to recover herself.

"Here in London—not abroad, not in Australia, or somewhere out of his reach!" breathed Susie, with trembling lips. "Oh, Master Harry, is it safe?"

Harry stared at her.

"Is it safe? Is it a safe business, do you mean, Susie? Yes, if you understand it."

"Business? No!" she exclaimed, with troubled, frightened air. "Is it safe for you, I mean? Oh, Master Harry! I did so hope that you would have gone across the sea!"

Harry looked round the office amazed and perplexed. Could the sudden and unexpected sight of him have turned her brain?—but, no, that was impossible.

He made for a carafe of water and poured her out some, and she drank a little, her teeth playing castanets against the edge of the glass.

"Now, Susie," he said, "Come, my girl; what's the matter?"

"Nothing, nothing, Master Harry," she replied, as if she had repented of what she had said. "It—it was the surprise of seeing you that upset me."

"I see," he said, soothingly; "you did not expect to see me here in London. You didn't know that I had left"—he hesitated—"Darracourt?"

She eyed him nervously.

"No, Master Harry."

"But you have left Darracourt, too?"

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belleville, N.S., Canada.—"I doctored for ten years for female troubles and did not get well. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I write now to tell you that I am cured. You can publish my letter as a testimonial."

Another Woman Recovers.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, No. 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultants) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

he said, kindly. "Why did you do that?"

Her trouble came back to her as he put the question, and she hung her head.

"Yes, I've left Darracourt," she assented, with a choking sob. "Oh, Master Harry!" and the tears welled to her eyes.

"Come, come," he said, gently; "you have had some trouble, Susie. Have you quarrelled with the marchioness?"

"The marchioness!" exclaimed Susie; "then—then they are married?"

His face grew dark and his lips twitched.

"Yes; they are married, Susie," he said in a low voice.

Susie rocked herself to and fro.

"Married, married!" she murmured. "Oh, my poor young mistress! Oh, dear! oh, dear!"

Harry leaned against the desk and looked at her gloomily, looking through her to the vision of Lucille, which her words called up.

"Oh, my poor, dear, sweet mistress! Do you remember her, Master Harry? How beautiful and happy she used to look, and how good she was!"

"I remember," he said, dully.

"And married to him!—to him! Oh, Master Harry, he is a bad man! My heart aches for her!"

"And mine, Susie," he said, in a low voice. "But is it all past and done," he added, despairingly; "all past and done, Susie. There is no use talking about it. Tell me about yourself. How did you come here?"

Susie got her troubled mind back again to the present.

"I—I saw an advertisement, and—and answered it."

"Little thinking you were going to enter my service, Susie," he said, with a sad smile. "But you haven't told me when you left the Court?"

"I—I left the morning after you, Master Harry."

"The morning after I did!" he said, his brows contracting as her words called up the scene of his departure. "Why, how did that happen? Had you quarrelled with—Miss Lucille?"

"Quarrelled with her!" she exclaimed, then faltered and hung her head and whispered, "Yes, Master Harry."

He was silent a moment. There was evidently something mysterious, something she wished to conceal from him, and he would not press her.

"And so you are coming to wait upon me, Susie?" he said. "I fear you will find it a change from the luxury of the great Court."

"A change!" she echoed. "Oh, Master Harry, if you knew how I have been hiding and skulking in corners lest she should hear I hadn't gone abroad to Australia after all—" she stopped and looked at him in terror. "Oh, what have I said?" she gasped.

"Not much, Susie," he said, kindly. "But why don't you go on? Whom did you promise that you would go abroad, and why?"

Deer Hunting. By GERGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old St. John's."

Deer hunting is a sport which is enjoyed with passionate enthusiasm by thousands of Americans. No man who has handled a gun and has made himself fatal to animals and birds is satisfied until he has shot a deer. The reason of this is a mystery. A deer is a large mark and is much harder to hit than a sparrow.

Of course he's played since nineteen-f-o-u-r when Port Scott, Kansas, box scores bore his waddin'-scundin' name. An' he spent five years in the bush before he got his big league push to make his bid for fame.

Horse Bolled and is Killed.

A fine horse, owned by Mr. McDonald, ran away yesterday afternoon and was killed. The animal, which was frightened by the steam-roller on Prescott Street dashed across Water Street late lightning, throwing the driver out, and striking a sharp iron railing at the entrance to Job's Cove. The horse was badly injured and was killed instantly. The cab attached was wrecked and the loss to the owner is a heavy one.

Liner Captain's Daughter Cares for Belgian Girl With Hands Cut Off. New York, Sept. 26.-Captain W. J. Roberts, of the American liner New York, which arrived to-day from Liverpool, said that his daughter at his home in Liverpool was caring for a little Belgian girl whose hands had been cut off by German soldiers. "She is a pretty, sweet haired little thing about six years old," the captain said, "and I cannot understand how any man could commit such a barbarous act on an innocent child."

Antwerp.

All eyes are now centered on Antwerp, and the great question is: Has Antwerp sufficient fortifications and soldiers to hold out against the formidable siege guns which the Germans are able to bring against it and against the German soldiers assaulting it. It has been spoken of as impregnable, but a term like this cannot be regarded as absolute, it is merely a relative one, and it is a question of the strength of defence against the strength of attack. The London Morning Post claims to have authentic information to the effect that Antwerp has fallen, but it will be observed that neither the British Press Bureau nor the Belgian Minister confirm the report. The Official Press Bureau says it is unable to confirm it, and the Belgian Minister has received no confirmation of the report. On the other hand there is an absence in the message of what might be expected if the report were absolutely baseless, viz. official denial from both these sources. We must, however, hope that the report is unfounded. The Daily Mail correspondent on Friday said four assaults on No. 4 fort at Vieux Dieu were repulsed. An Ostend correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing on Thursday, said the Belgians made a successful sortie from Antwerp, drove the Germans back across the River Nethe, captured 30,000 Germans, the retreating Germans being forced to abandon their guns. We have also the Amsterdam despatch which sets forth that 32 German ships have been blown up in the Port of Antwerp. Why German ships should be mentioned particularly is not clear, unless it means that the British, Belgian and other shipping have been kept intact to take away as many of the retreating forces as possible, and the remainder of the shipping, German in particular, has been destroyed to leave no shipping there at a base which might be used against England. This may have been done as a precaution in case of the fall or surrender of Antwerp, but no amount of shipping would be of use for such a purpose as long as the mouth of the Scheidt was guarded by British warships, and whilst the battle fleet of Germany are held up in Heligoland Bight and the Baltic Sea. We however cling to the hope that the Belgians and British can hold out at Antwerp, once the Germans get there it will be difficult to dislodge them and should war be concluded with Germans in possession of Antwerp and with sufficient strength at that time to insist on the retention of Antwerp, it would be as Napoleon put it a loaded pistol held at the head of England. As to the war itself, the capture of Antwerp would put heart into the Germans after their several failures of the past five weeks, and would be the most serious reverse met with as yet by the Triple Entente. It would mean a greater prolongation of the war than is as yet contemplated, for neither Britain, Belgium nor France could conclude peace without dislodging Germany from Antwerp and the rest of Belgium. After writing the above, a later message came in which sets forth officially both from the German and the British that the Germans are in possession of Antwerp. The British official message is to the effect that Antwerp was evacuated by the Belgians yesterday.

Pa-pay-airs (Bell) now called Bell-Airs has a great reputation for indigestion and the various forms of dyspepsia, and are in pretty general use throughout the American Continent, which reputation extends to Newfoundland, where many people claim to have obtained great benefit from these pills. Price 90c. per bottle of 100 tablets. We have still left a small number of these bars of Brown Windsor Soap formerly noticed in this column, which we are selling at the low price of 20c. each. As these bars contain more than 1/2 lb. of good soap, we can reasonably call this a good bargain.

Athletes Gone to the Front.

We were informed to-day that among those gone to the front with the 10th Regiment are a number of our city athletes; a notable showing being made by the Crescent Hockey Club and C.E.I. Football Club, the former club sending 6 of its members and the C.E.I. 9. We feel sure that when the full list is made known it will be seen that the different athletic clubs of the city are well represented, thus proving that our young men are as willing to take their places in the "line up" of the grim battle front, when duty calls, as they were in the different sports.

SAVED!

(By Harold Begbie, in the London "Chronicle." More than one thousand men have joined the colors from The Salvation Army Social Institutions.

A little chap in uniform, he took me by the arm, His eyes was like a melting bun, his voice was like a charm; He says, my friend, you're hungry, and your clothes are thin and frayed, Now, come along, says he, and join the King of kings' brigade! I says, I was a soldier once, but now, no never more! I'll see this country smashed, I says; I've had my whack of war! Poooh—poooh, says he, you've never yet put up one single fight, You're down because you funk'd; now come, and wash your spirit white.

Ho, I've slung my sins behind me! I've a feel of soap and water, And I'm marching to the front, And I'm in with Christian men; If old Satan wants to find me, Ho, a bloke can stand some slaughter, It's there he'll have to hunt, When he knows he's born agen!

Yes, he took me to a shelter and he give me bread and soap, He didn't teach me how to drill nor how to loop the loop, But the little chap he taught me how to wash my sins away, And he prayed me into Heaven and he signed me on K! There was others there the same as me, the blackest lot on earth, He treated all like mother's sons; God knows, says he, your worth, His Blood and Fire it shook us, but his kindness did the trick, And we're off to do some fighting, and we hope to get it thick.

A thousand strong and more we are, all taken up and saved, A thousand broken, wretched brutes who loafed and boozed and raved, And but for these Salvationists, ha, there's a tale to tell! We might have been in prison now and finished up in hell; Instead of that we're marching with a Hallelujah swing, A thousand men and more salute for England and the King! We've lost our taste for Wrong, and got the feel for what is Right, And we've learned the finest trick on earth for winning any fight.

Ho, we slung our sins behind us, We've a feel of soap and water, And we're marching to the front, And we're in with Christian men; If the Devil wants to find us, Ho, a chap can stand some slaughter, Why, it's there he'll have to hunt, When he knows he's born agen!

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(Official.) The general situation has not changed much. To our left both cavalrys were engaged north of Lille and La-basse, and the battle is raging on a line fronted by Lens, Arras, Bray sur Somme, Chaulnes, Roye and Lassigny. At the centre of the Oise and vicinity of the Meuse nothing important is noted. To our right in Woivre there is an artillery duel on the entire front. In Lorraine and Vosges and in Alsace no change is reported.

Bosnia.—The Montenegrin troops continue their advance in the direction of Sarajevo, and have nearly reached the fortifications which protect the town at a distance of eight kilometres.

SEVERE FIGHTING AROUND ANTWERP.

LONDON, Oct. 9. A despatch to the Chronicle from Rosendaal, Holland, dated Thursday evening, says severe fighting is progressing outside of Antwerp. It is said that shrapnel struck Erasmus Hospital in Fontaine Street, breaking many windows. In Turnhout and its vicinity many houses have been destroyed. It is reported here that the Germans have been compelled to retreat for a short distance.

are packed," says Reuter's Ostend correspondent. "In the siege operations against Antwerp the Germans are using no less than 200 guns of 11.2 and 14-inch calibre, some of them having a range of over eight miles. The bombardment of Antwerp extends only to 9.30 at night and stopped, only to be renewed with increasing violence at midnight. The British, French and Russian Ministers were the last of the diplomatic body to leave Antwerp. They departed by boat at 11 o'clock last night, after experiencing the first part of the bombardment."

WAR ONLY COMMENCING.

ROME, via Paris, Oct. 10. War against Britain, according to German newspapers received here, will commence at the end of October, after Antwerp has fallen. Belgium will then become a base of operations against Great Britain, the newspapers say. They add that Admiral Von Tirpitz, Minister of Navy, who is now at General Headquarters with Emperor William, has announced that he will go aboard the flagship of the German fleet and direct operations of the Navy.

Spending and Saving.

Jim Jimpson's drawn a princely wage for seven years or more; he's selling sausages and sage at Dinky's 'doodad' store. As a salesman he is Number One, he has a fetching style, so Dinky pays him lots of money, and he should have his pile. On Saturday he draws his wad, so big it springs his knees; alas, he scatters it abroad, as though it grew on trees. By Tuesday noon he's always broke, his gorgeous roll he's blown; and so he hunts up Sammy Smoke, and works him for a loan. This Sammy Smoke, a sprigald meek, is junior in the store; he pulls down thirteen plunks a week, and never handled more. He keeps close tab on every buck, each week he salts down five, and while the others cuss their luck he always seems to thrive. When Jim at last is out and down, as spenders always are, Sam Smoke will junket through the town in his own touring car. It isn't what a fellow earns that makes him poor or rich; it's what the gay high roller burns that dumps him in the ditch. Old age must come to all, you bet, unless we die too soon, and then what oodles of regret fills life's late afternoon. If we in poverty are sunk, our last resource spent; how we bewail the vanished plunk that easy came and went!

BOTH SIDES LOSE HEAVILY.

LONDON, Oct. 9. The Times' Belgian correspondent in a despatch, dated Wednesday, says that the Germans are in strong form, is evident from their fierce offensive along the River Scheldt, which has resulted in their crossing of the River at three points. I watched a dense cloud of smoke arising from the Naptha works at Schoonard which were fired by Germans the previous night. The damage done by the bombardment in Schoonard was very great. To-day's fighting was bitter and determined and both sides suffered heavily. The German losses especially must be important for they held a bridge over the Scheldt close to the entrenched Belgians.

COL. BURLAND DIES SUDDENLY.

LONDON, Oct. 9. Colonel Jeffrey Hale Burland, who arrived here a few days ago in charge of Red Cross work in connection with the Canadian troops, died suddenly to-day. He was born in Montreal in 1861.

AVIATORS' GOOD WORK.

LONDON, Oct. 9. The Admiralty announced to-night that naval airmen had made a successful attack on the German airship shed at Dusseldorf. A bomb dropped through the roof of the shed destroyed Zeppelins. The flames that resulted were observed by the airmen rising to a height of five hundred feet.

KING ALBERT WOUNDED.

LONDON, Oct. 9. A wireless received from Berlin says that it is reported that King Albert of Belgium, has been slightly wounded.

PRZEMYSL DOOMED.

ROME, Oct. 9. The Russian Ambassador, while denying the report that the garrison at Przemysl, in Galicia, had surrendered to the Russians, added, however, that the whole town was on fire, and its capitulation was now inevitable.

LIVELY BATTLE AT ROZEL.

PARIS, Oct. 10. An official report says: There is no change on the battlefield, with the exception of the region of Rozel, where a lively battle has taken place. We have taken 1,500 prisoners near Rozel in the past three days.

DONATES $11,000 TO PURCHASE QUIDI VIDI PARK.

Some seven years ago that strip of land extending along the north side of Quidi Vidi Lake, was purchased privately by Sir Edward Morris, in the interests of the public, with a view to having the place converted into a park and recreation ground. The purchase of the land was effected by loan of $11,000 from the Bank of Montreal, the interest on which being paid annually by the following gentlemen: Hon. Sir William Horwood, C.J., Hon. E. R. Bowring, Hon. W. C. Job, Hon. S. Milley, Hon. Jno. Harris, Hon. John Harvey, Hon. M. G. Winter, Hon. R. K. Bishop, and Messrs. W. B. Grieve, J. Henderson and the late Hon. J. S. Pitts, C. Macpherson, and the late D. M. Browning, K.C. The purchase was intended to prevent the land from being built upon, and the above named gentlemen who were interested in the movement undertook to pay the interest, annually as before mentioned, until some benefactor would interest himself in the matter.

HON. MR. BOWRING'S GIFT.

A cheque for the sum of eleven thousand dollars was received yesterday from Hon. E. R. Bowring, who has established a reputation as a public benefactor. Bowring Park is a notable example of the generosity of himself and fellow directors of the firm of Bowring's. It is the monument of the firm's munificence in the West End. Similarly, the people of the Rest End can confidently look forward to seeing the historic Quidi Vidi Lake and its scenic surroundings beautified. The road on the north side of the Lake will receive special attention, boat-houses will be removed to other convenient places and the whole when finished will be a credit to the city and to the Hon. E. R. Bowring.

Large Funeral.

All that was mortal of the late James M. Jackson, was laid to rest yesterday afternoon. The funeral was very largely attended among the mourners being a large number of employees of Bowring Bros. stores with whom the deceased had been associated. As the cortege passed down Water Street flags were half-masted at Bowring Bros. premises out of respect for the deceased. At the Cathedral Rev. Fr. Conway officiated and interment was at Belvidere.

Mission Ship Leaves.

The Mission ship Harmony leaves for London tomorrow on route to London where the winter will be spent. From here the ship will proceed north and visit the Moravian Mission stations at Hebron.

Rally Day Service.

The George Street Adult Bible Class is holding its annual Rally Day service to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in the Class Rooms, George Street Church. Rev. D. B. Hemeon is delivering an address on "The Bible as a Text Book" Sole by Miss Russell. Visitors will receive a cordial welcome.

The Human Engine.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"What pressure is wanted to make your other engine, the Great Invention, reciprocate?"

"It works best at high pressures."

"Ah, Joe dear, that's where it is. The Human Engine works best at high pressures. Jane would reciprocate, I have no doubt, at two hundred to the inch."

From "Joseph Vance."

"The Human Engine works best at high pressures."—I wonder how many people fully believe that, and believe it, put it into practice. You hear of so many people with a real or suspected knack for doing something well, who, you are assured, would amount to something, if they would only "apply themselves."

In other words—work at high pressure.

To be the possessor of an engine and to run it at half or less capacity all the time is surely a loss in efficiency. To run it at half or less capacity when something calls for high pressure, is absolute folly.

Yet how many people do that very thing with their engine—the Human Engine?

The other day I watched a dozen little girls in an obstacle race. They were all about the same size; to look at them one could hardly have picked a winner. But there was one little girl with a freckled face and an intense manner that attracted my special attention.

The minute the race started she threw herself into it with absolute abandon. She was absolutely obli-ous of her surroundings—and that included quite a little crowd of her elders. The other contestants were self-conscious and wavering in their movements. The intense, freckled-faced little girl romped away with the race—because she was working at high pressure from the moment she started.

In college I knew a girl who was very much smaller than the rest of the class. She looked like a bit of a grammar school girl who had crept into the classrooms when no one was looking. I remember her not so much for her size, as for the intensity with which she threw herself into everything she did. She was truly a "Human engine working at the high pressures." And she was not only the prize scholar, but, in spite of her size, the prize athlete of her class.

In football, they have a phrase, "Hit the line low and hard." Not with half steam up—but with every inch of pressure available.

"The Human engine works best at highest pressure?" And in the "Human engine" the highest pressures are obtained only when you summon all the heart, the brains and the enthusiasm you have. It means going for the mark as the little girl went for the goal in the obstacle race; it means hurling yourself ahead, full steam, as the football player hurls himself at the line.

It means doing whatever you have in mind, not half heartedly, but whole heartedly. With full, not half steam up.

Whether you are planning to apply for a position, run for office, propose to the only girl in the world or cook a first class dinner, remember this: will be a Prussian slave, ruled with an iron rod by officers from Potsdam.

"The Human Engine works best at high pressures."

"There is no doubt about it and it is possible. It is possible that unless you strike a blow now, the last days of our free nation may be upon us. It is possible that the German army may defeat the allies. It is possible that the British fleet may be beaten, and that the German troops will land in England.

"If Germany should beat us you will be a colonist of Prussia. Your children will be taught German and compelled to speak it; your boys will be German conscripts. You will be taxed to keep up the German army, which will keep you down. You will lose all that England has given you—your free speech, your vote, your free newspapers, your right to organize."

"Germany is not a democratic country. In England the people own the Government, in Germany the Government owns the people. The British idea is that the will of the people must prevail; the German idea is that the will of the people must agree with the will of the Emperor.

"In England the army is the servant of the nation; in Germany the military class overrules the people. In England the King rides through the ministers; in Germany the Emperor rules without them.

"There is no secret about the German Emperor's intentions. He means to conquer England and France. He is throwing away masses of troops to stagger the Allies to defeat by force of numbers, and is terrifying the civil population by cruelties too horrible to believe.

"He could have stopped the war by a word; he could even now stop the shooting down of innocent populations and the destruction of beautiful buildings and works of art.

"But he does not because he dare not. It is his way of winning and he must win at any cost if he is to save his throne. He has staked his crown on the defeat of England. In order that he may strip us of our trade and our Empire and be master of all Europe.

"The Germans are almost at our gates. The gallant Belgians and French are keeping them back until more British troops arrive in France. Our little army is doing its best, but the dauntless spirit of our thousands cannot hold out forever against Germany's millions. Soon they must be at our doors.

"Then, if the German army should come, your freedom, your home, perhaps your life will go. Nothing will matter to you then. These streets will be filled with German troops; perhaps your house will be burned down; but those things will be nothing. What will matter is that all your life you will be under the heel of the German army; you will lose even the right to put a poster like this on your walls unless it has been passed by a German officer. That will be the end of England.

"Men—will you let England go down? She has done something for you. She has given you freedom and sheltered you while tyrants trampled on other lands. She has given you peaceful years and your children opportunities. She has made you prouder than a Roman.

"Will you help her now. England is in the gravest peril she has ever known, and 1,000,000 men can save her. Our little army is fighting against great odds while you stand here. Will you stand and see it beaten?"

"Give yourselves for Home Defence or Foreign Service. Your family will be cared for and you will be free after the war. Apply to the Post Office."

Duke of Westminster.

Distinguished Himself on the Battlefield.

London, Sept. 3.—The Duke of Westminster has distinguished himself on the battlefield. He was in a company with Captain Grenfell and Lieutenant Percy Wyndham, son of Countess Grosvenor, during a hot engagement when Grenfell was wounded. At great personal risk, amid a galling fire, the Duke rushed through the battle zone and carried Grenfell to safety.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

York Castle, England, which is being used as a place of detention for prisoners of war, is one of the finest of the British nation's old buildings. It is well situated for its present purpose, being between the rivers Foss and Ouse. Its walls enclose no fewer than four acres, with space to contain 40,000 prisoners. The castle dates back certainly from Roman times; possibly from the days of the ancient Britons.

Clifford's Tower, the chief of the existing buildings, was reduced almost to a shell by fire in 1648, but was surrounded by a strong projecting wall, erected in 1836. This tower was the scene of a massacre of Jews in the reign of Richard I, the number put to death being chronicled as 200. The Yorkshire Assizes are held in an outbuilding which dates back to 1777, and the prison, which is not yet a century old, is also within the castle square.

Has Bed in War Office.

A. Munro Grier, K.C., arrived in Toronto recently from England. He was in London when war was declared and he tells a story that Lord Kitchener sleeps in the "war office. He said that when Kitchener received his recent appointment, the first thing he asked if there was a bed in the office. On being told that there was not, he immediately sent out for one. He said the crowds in London behaved themselves in an admirable manner.

Indiscreet: Not He; Here's Proof Of It.

Paris, October 2.—The strictness of the censorship may be judged from an article in the Revue de Paris which begins:

"There is no danger of my being indiscreet. I know no more than anybody. But I believe that without saying too much I can say—"

Then follow six lines of blankness. The censor evidently had the last word.

Clears The Head, Opens The Nostrils

Stops Sneezing, Cures Catarrh.

You Get Instant Relief by Inhaling the Soothing Vapor "Catarrhogene."

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies, till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuff or spray. Such treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhogene the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapor of Catarrhogene is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic, no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America, who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of Catarrh is to use Catarrhogene."

TWO MONTHS' TREATMENT GUARANTEED TO CURE. PRICE $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

MOVING APPEAL

MADE BY BRITISH EDITOR FOR MEN.

London, September 30.—Arthur Mee, the well-known Cardiff editor and journalist, has just written the greatest appeal yet made to the men of England to take up arms for their country. He declares that England is facing possible annihilation and that unless its citizens put forth every effort they can, that they may become subjects of the Kaiser. His article follows:

"England is fighting for the right to be a free nation. She is fighting not only for France and Belgium, but for our own homes.

"This war is a hundred times more important than the Boer War. It means life and death for us. We are fighting to keep our world, but we are fighting also to keep our homes. We are fighting with France and Belgium, to keep the Germans out of England.

"But the German army presses on, and your home, your country, these quiet streets, are in peril. You must help England now, if you want to save her. If the Germans win you will be a subject of the Kaiser. You will no longer be a free citizen; you Challoner offered the suggestion, although flashed upon him that any chance be seen of Marian's room, suggestions would possibly seem unconvincing. How nothing else to do and Marian, to whom the observation had not yet leading him around to Inn on which her room "You see," she whispered a halt, "the window is think you can get in?" anxiously.

Challoner cast a side to the right, then to the left lights in any of stepped to the secret silently. He planted himself on the window-sill, dexterously, and soon

Locked Out of the Inn

"Locked out!" echoed Marian, blankly.

"Yes, I had forgotten all about the fact that they lock their doors with keys and bolts," answered Challoner, helplessly. "We're in for it now. We'll have to rout some one out of bed—I see no other way."

"We can't do that," protested Marian weakly. "As you say, we'd never hear the end of it. There must be some other way."

"My room is on the second floor. If I could find a ladder, I could climb in, and then come down and open the door for you," suggested Challoner.

"And more than likely you'd get shot for a burglar. If some excitable person should become aroused and see you doing it," smiled Marian. "But listen. My room is on the first floor. I'm sure my window is open. Let's reconnoitre. Maybe you could get in there without causing any disturbance, and then let me through the door."

Challoner offered no objections to the suggestion, although the thought flashed upon him that, should he by any chance be seen emerging from Marian's room, subsequent explanations would possibly sound appallingly unconvincing. However, he saw nothing else to do, and in a moment Marian, to whom the possibility of observation had not yet occurred, was leading him around to the side of the inn on which her room was located.

"You see," she whispered, coming to a halt, "the window is raised. Do you think you can get in?" she inquired, anxiously.

Challoner cast a swift glance first to the right, then to the left. Seeing no lights in any of the rooms, he stepped to the screen, and raised it silently. He planted his palms solidly on the window-sill, raised himself dexterously, and succeeded without noise in effecting his entrance.

"Listen," he said under his breath. "I'm a little afraid that if I try to get around to the front door to let you in, some one will be roused. I could life you up here in a jiffy. Shall I?"

Marian weighed the proposition. Her brain, by this time dizzy with excitement, her body yearning for rest, approved the suggestion.

"Do you think you could lift me in?" she asked. "I'm not as light as the proverbial feather."

"I could carry you to the top of Mount Parnassus," said Challoner, breathlessly. "Give me your hands."

In a moment his strong hands had closed over hers. With slow, careful efforts, he lifted her clear of the ground, and helped her safely in through the window. A strange force the like of which she had never felt in a man before seemed to magnetize Marian completely as she felt herself being lifted bodily and borne upward to the window of her room. Strangely commanding fires burned in the eyes which held her own eyes captive. He stood holding her forearms with steady hands, now that she stood close before him by the window.

"I'm not going to ask you to forgive me for this monumental mess I'm responsible for," he said quietly. "That would be too much to ask. But I wish you could find it possible not to think of me too harshly because of it. I think of nothing more than I can do in reparation just now. Good night. Pleasant slumbers."

As Marian murmured good night, she was dimly aware that a shadowy figure crossed silently to the door and vanished. The door closed without noise behind him, and she was alone. She crossed and locked the door, and in a few minutes she had made ready noiselessly for bed.

Deadly Fumes of French 3-Inch Guns.

London, Oct. 5.—A despatch received here this morning from Paris states:

"That the fumes of the famous 3-inch shell have a most deadly effect in an enclosed space is shown by a scene that met the eyes of the French penetrating a chateau occupied by the Germans, and which they had just bombarded.

"Entering the drawing-room they found a company of Wurtembergians petrified in action. Some were at the window taking aim, with their fingers still pressing the trigger, while others were at the tables where they had been playing games, with cards in their hands, while still others had cigars between their lips.

"An officer stood with his mouth open, as if in the act of dictating an order, and all the corpses looked absolutely life-like."

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferers and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? Germany's Swelled Head.

Some years ago the famous Hungarian professor, M. Emil Reich, wrote a little book, "Germany's Swelled Head," which is now being republished. The work clearly shows that Germany was determined to wage a ruthless war on England and France and perhaps Russia. Dr. Reich's quotations from German authors may now be brought up to date. The sequence is finished—the evidence complete.

We now know beyond dispute:

- (1) That Germany meant to fight a ruthless war.
- (2) That her object is a world-wide dominance.

This is best seen not by argument but by quotations. First as to war, and ruthless war.

"I christen thee Fort Hasseler. Thou wilt be called upon to defend the conquests of Germany upon her Western foes."

This passage occurs in a speech of the Emperor on March 1, 1900, on the occasion of the completion of a fort. Seven months later, in celebrating Molke's birthday, he expressed the desire that "the staff may lead Germany to further victories." A few years later he said at an anniversary: "Nothing must be settled in this world without the intervention of Germany and of the German Emperor."

It is not a far cry from the Kaiser to the professors. They are not less militant. In a formal history Professor Treitschke writes:

"To whom will belong the sceptre of the universe?"

"What nation will impose its wishes on the other decadent and enfeebled people? Will it not be Germany that will have the mission to ensure the peace of the world?"

The future belongs to Germany, to which Austria will attach herself if she wishes to survive."

The most popular historical work that ever appeared in Germany is "The Foundations of the Nineteenth Century." In reviewing a period of early German history the author says:

"It was high time that the deliverer appeared. We can only regret one thing—that the German did not, everywhere his conquering arm preyed, exterminate more completely."

The theologians are as bitter as the professors. Professor Lezius was cheered by students and professors for the following passage in a popular lecture:

"All Polish societies should be suppressed without the slightest apology. . . . as well as the societies of Alsace, Lorraine, and Schleswig-Holstein. The people should be allowed only three privileges: to pay taxes, serve in the Army, and shut their jaws."

If the professors and divinity teachers speak in this way, what are we to expect of the soldiers? General Von Bernhardi, whose book "The Next War" is read with admiration by the whole of Prussia, writes:

"The efforts directed towards the abolition of war must not only be termed foolish but absolutely immoral, and must be described as unworthy of the human race."

This general statement leads up to two direct and practical conclusions:

- (a) France must be so completely crushed that she can never again come across our path.
- (b) A pacific agreement with England is after all a will-o'-the-wisp which no serious German would trouble to follow.

The Standard passage for German delight in the winning of a bloody and brutal war is the Kaiser's speech on the eve of the Chinese expedition; but it is not everywhere known that the most ruthless passage in the speech was circulated on postcards throughout Germany.

"When you meet the foe you will defeat him. No quarter will be given, no prisoners will be taken. Let all who fall into your hands be at your mercy."

The rest of the passage urges the Germans to act like the Huns who ravaged Europe a thousand years ago. If the Kaiser will allow his own words to be capped, one further quotation on German belief in barbarity may be given. Field Marshal Von der Goltz, who was sent to train the Turks because, as was confessed, they were "the only people who could attack the British trade route to India," wrote a book entitled "The Nations in Arms." It leads up to this climax:

"Wars are the fate of mankind, the inevitable destiny of nations. . . . Inexorability and seemingly hideous callousness are among the qualities necessary to him who would achieve great things in war."

It was to a people fed full on such sentiments as these that the German Chancellor said, exactly a month ago:

"We are now in a state of necessity, and necessity knows no law. Our troops have occupied Luxembourg, and perhaps are already on Belgian soil. Gentlemen, that is contrary to

"Nerviline" Curse Cramps Ends Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure? Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and eases a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of cramp. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross the room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

the dictates of international law. The wrong—I speak openly—that we are committing we will endeavor to make good as soon as our military goal is achieved."

Is the Chancellor going to make good to Belgian children the murder of their mothers, to mothers the murder of their children? Can he rebuild historic Louvain and repair ravaged homes? Can he knit the severed oath and ensure peace through brutal war?

So much for war. The belief in war is founded on an amazing conceit, fed by a host of popular and professional writers, that Germans are "The Chosen People."—Condensed from London Daily Mail.

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful

It becomes thick, wavy, lustrous and all dandruff disappears—Hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Dutch Flag Protects German Contraband.

Paris, Oct. 5.—The Figaro says that France has protested to Holland that German merchant ships are using their flag to carry contraband and that Holland, after investigation, announced that the complaints were justified. It is believed, says the Figaro, that a state of siege will be proclaimed in Rotterdam to end the trade in contraband.

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company.

Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.5 per cent. of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrates of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

THE DUSSELDORF RAID.

LONDON, To-day. The Secretary to the Admiralty announces that Squadron Commander Grey reports that as authorized by the Admiralty, Lieut. R. L. G. Mark and Lieut. S. H. Sigge, a successful attack on Dusseldorf airship shed, Lieut. Mark's bombs dropped from a height of 500 feet, hit the shed, went through the roof and destroyed a Zeppelin. The flames were observed 500 feet high, the result of the lighting of the gas of an airship. All those officers are safe but their aeroplanes have been lost. Fear would appear to have been in every respect remarkable, having regard to the distance of over one hundred miles they penetrated into the country held by the enemy, and to the fact that the previous attack had put the enemy on their guard and enabled them to mount anti-aircraft guns.

HAS ANTWERP FALLEN?

LONDON, To-day. The Morning Post says it has been informed on good authority that Antwerp has fallen. The official Press Bureau says it is unable to confirm the foregoing. The Belgian Minister to Great Britain has received no confirmation of the report. Stubborn fighting is proceeding before Antwerp fortifications, says the Daily Mail's Ostend correspondent, telegraphing on Friday. Four assaults have been repulsed at No. 4 fort at Vieux Dieu.

NOVA SCOTIA OFFERS $100,000.

LONDON, To-day. The Government of Nova Scotia has cabled an offer of $100,000 to be used by the Imperial Government for the relief of National distress caused by the war. Nova Scotia has already offered a supply of coal but as its transport involved certain loss in view of resources in England, it was decided to change the form of the Province's generosity. It is understood that the money will be handed to the Local Government Board which is looking after all relief departments.

SHIPPING BLOWN UP.

LONDON, To-day. An Amsterdam despatch to the Reuters Telegram Company says thirty-two German merchant ships, including a large number of steamers, have been blown up in Port Antwerp.

CAPTURE INNER FORTS.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Amsterdam to the Reuters dated Friday night says, during yesterday's bombardment of Antwerp, some shells exploded on the roof of the prison. The warden immediately liberated the prisoners. From Miscellaneous news that some Germans are approaching Antwerp from Liege. A fugitive member of the Red Cross stated that the fighting still continues.

GERMANS HOPE TO RETAIN ANTWERP.

LONDON, To-day. The Times military correspondent commenting on the situation at Antwerp says: Permanent forts in an exposed situation stand no chance against modern artillery. If German forces hold Antwerp later and we attack it, the result will be the same as the capture of Antwerp by the Germans. It will have an effect which cannot be denied upon opinion, but the city even if converted into a German first class fortress will bring the Germans little advantage, for the Scheldt cannot be used for naval purposes. Germany doubtless hopes to retain Antwerp when peace comes, but there is no chance that this dream will be realized.

RUSSIANS REPULSED.

LONDON, To-day. An Athens despatch to the Daily News states that the German Colonel Von Geck has arrived at Damascus and has taken over the direction of the General staff of the Assyrian troops. He is also recruiting Bedouins. At the front at Wierballen, Russian Poland, "Russians finally have decided to take the offensive. The Germans, heretofore, have often complained that enemy though twice stronger refused to leave their trenches, but for the last three nights the Russians have attacked along the entire front extending 80 miles from above Wilowyski, North of Antwerp, to a point below Lyck, East Prussia. The attacks were repulsed however. The Russians losing heavily while German losses are light. The Russians had just begun an attack upon the German left wing, but it was quickly repulsed, the fighting lasting about 30 minutes. The Russian artillery which evidently has been reinforced by heavy artillery from Kovno and Lwów, has been firing their shells from the position of the German artillery. Damage has been done everywhere in the country in which fighting has been raging and several villages have been burned.

ANTWERP OCCUPIED.

LONDON, To-day. An official Berlin despatch confirms the report that Antwerp has been occupied.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to the Daily Mail from Ostend says: "The Germans have blown up all the bridges between Ghent and Ingelmunster and have destroyed the railway station at Vierset; Ingelmunster and Vierset are on the railway line between Ghent and Courtrai."

AMSTERDAM, To-day. According to a Rosendal correspondent of the Handelsblad, the Germans entered Antwerp through a suburb of Berchem. The correspondent received news from an officer who transported the wounded soldiers to their Holland homes.

LONDON, To-day. An official announcement of the fall of Antwerp was given out at the German General Headquarters last night and transmitted here via Marconi Wireless says: "This forenoon several forts of the inner line of the fortifications of Antwerp have fallen. The town since midday has been in our possession. The Commander of the garrison evacuated fortifications. Only a few forts are still occupied by army and this is without influence on our position in Antwerp."

ANTWERP EVACUATED.

EXPECTING WAR FROM PORTUGAL.

LONDON, To-day. In a despatch from Amsterdam the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the Bureau of Weisner a semi-official news agency, asserted that the declaration of war on Germany by Portugal is expected in Berlin at any moment.

SURRENDERED ON FRIDAY AT 2.30 P.M.

THE HAGUE, To-day. Antwerp surrendered to the Germans at 2.30 p.m. on Friday, October 9th. The war flag was removed from the Cathedral and the white flag raised in its place at 9 a.m. The actual surrender took place 5 and a half hours later. It is declared here that the Cathedral of Notre Dame has not been damaged. The Germans delivered one of their last furious attacks between 6 and 7 o'clock Friday morning. The Belgians resisted them valiantly in their trenches and the desperate fighting resulted in heavy losses on both sides. During all Friday night, Zeppelin airships directed the firing of the German heavy artillery.

A Thought for the Times

THE WAR—CHAPTER XXV.
I. C. MORRIS.

The roll-call at Pleasantville, on Saturday last, October 3rd, was an event not soon to be forgotten. It was an event and a date that will form one of the most important pages in our local history. Never before did such an event take place in Newfoundland, and never was such a roll-call ticked off.

It was the roll-call of five hundred of our sons, who, in answer to the call of duty, volunteered for service in the foreign field. What their feelings were, and what it really meant to them we cannot know. A thousand thoughts must have flashed upon them, and ten thousand tears must have been suppressed. But, withal they were brave, and like true British lads they answered: "Here, sir," as they stood "at attention" in the ranks of their regiment. Then when the last man had been called, and the last response given, they still stood "at attention," and at the word of command they began their march.

They had heard the command "quick march" often before, but never such a command as that one; for it was that command which really began their active service.

The sight which they presented as they marched along, full of hope and enthusiasm, was inspiring. There was that abandonment which particularly belongs to young men, and which only those in the full bloom of youth could display. Every eye was bright and put in place, then the first real barrier lay between the lads and their loved ones. Here the emotions began to find expression, but it was not until a few minutes later, when the ship began to move, and her bow turned to the offing, that we really gave way to our feelings. As never before, it seemed to us, that our lads were really gone from us, and that they had begun the long voyage across the sea. It was the hour of departure and the only thing to do was to let nature have its way, and let the lumps rise in our throats, and let the tears run down our cheeks. The wise man tells us in the Good Book that "There is a time to weep," and such a time was that of which we write.

Thus went our volunteers from us, and though the distance between us is widening every hour, we love them all same, and count them our treasures still. Their place in the home can never be filled, nor can their throne in the heart be otherwise occupied.

The roll-call of which we spoke in the opening of this chapter will have to be repeated when the regiment comes back. Five hundred of them responded to it when leaving, how many of those will answer at the final roll-call? Whose name will be marked missing? and how many of them will be called in vain? We cannot forecast these things, we would not if we could, it would be a mistake to do so; but we cannot overlook the fact that some will not return. Like the tens of thousands of their fellows they will be exposed to danger, hardship and death. Those hardships await the soldier everywhere. They are part of the price of war; and our lads will meet their share of them. They volunteered with the knowledge that all these dangers were before them, and they went forth to do their duty, and do it well. We have faith in them, and whether they fall or whether they escape, we are certain that their career as "Soldiers of the King" will be worthy of the best traditions of their fathers, and worthy of the flag for which they fight. Their sires came from the British Isles in the centuries of the past, and by their industry and zeal they colonized this western world, and now they, as the descendants of those men, are returning to the Motherland, and are doing so for the purpose of maintaining the honor of the same flag, and to protect the same Constitution, and to support the same Throne.

CITY'S HEALTH.—Three cases of diphtheria were reported during the week to the Health Authorities, and one of the patients died.

BOSTONIANS WIN.—According to a despatch from Philadelphia the initial game of the World's Baseball series has been won by Boston.

"Hearts and Crosses." Belgian National Anthem.

O. Henry's magazine story, "Hearts and Crosses" produced by the Sclair Picture Company and shown at the Crescent Picture Palace last night, is well worth seeing. The question of "Who is Boss" is decided by a new arrival.

The Bison Indian two reel feature was the subject of very favourable comment, it is a very interesting story and the photography of forest and clearing is up to the usual standard of Bison productions.

The Crystal Company provides the comedy element in "Supper for Three." A dramatic story of the underworld is told in "Self Accused." The encounter between the police detective, Wm. Shay, and the burglar is a very exciting finish to a really good drama.

Mr. Frederick Knights sang J. E. Howard's war song: "In the Days of '42," and had to respond to repeated encores.

The same programme will be on again to-night. On Monday a great three-reel war feature: "A House Divided" will be shown. The "Crescent" is certainly keeping up its motto: "Nothing but the Best."

Face and Hands Covered With Sores.

Zam-Buk Worked Complete Cure.
Mrs. P. Watson Drummond, of Theford Mines, Que., writes: "Every fall for three years, as soon as cold weather sets in, my daughter's face and hands would be covered with rough watery patches, which before long would turn into nasty sores. These would itch and smart terribly, and she would suffer in this way from fall to spring. Nothing we could get did her any good until I started using Zam-Buk. This wonderful ointment quickly relieved the irritation. We persevered with Zam-Buk, and to our great delight it worked a complete cure. I have also used Zam-Buk for cuts and burns, and think there is nothing to compare with it."

For eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, or any skin disease of injury, Zam-Buk is unequalled. As soon as applied, it commences its work of healing, quickly alleviates the pain, and builds up new healthy tissue.

At all druggists and stores, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. per box. See the name on the box and refuse all substitutes.

BIBLE CLASS SESSION OPENS.—The fall and winter session of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class will open to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock with a special service for men at the Cathedral, the Rev. J. Brinton giving an address. Every subsequent Sunday meetings will be held in the Synod Building.

Kaiser's Offer For Bomb on London.

Amsterdam, October 5.—Information has been received here from Berlin that the Kaiser has promised to confer the special decoration of the second class of the Order of the Red Eagle on the first German aviator who succeeds in dropping explosives on London; and other lesser but still unusual honors are promised to German aviators who succeed in dropping explosives either on a British warship or any English towns.

Letters Bring Big Sum.

Nelson letters which were offered for sale recently at Christie's, London, were acquired by Mr. Quoritch, started the bidding at $1,500 and fought down the opposition until the collection fell to him at $11,000, which is, roughly, about 50 for each letter. The collection included Lady Nelson's wedding ring. This is not a record price for Nelson relics, though the collection is without a rival in interest.

C. M. B. C.—The Fall and Winter Session for 1914-15 will open with a special service for men in the Cathedral on Sunday, Oct. 11th, at 3 p.m. The Class will meet as usual every Sunday in the Synod Building.—oct9,21
