Trinity Church Anniversary

The second anniversary services in connection with the new Trinity church were held on Sunday last, morning and evening. The Rev. R. W. Norwood, M. A., rector of the Memorial Church, London, was the special preacher, and goodsized congregations listened with raft attention to his learned discourses at both services. The choir rendered some fine music and the collections were good, although a special offering was not asked. The Rev. Norwood is an earnest, plain-spoken and forceful preacher, and deeply impressed his hearers. In the forenoon he took for his text Psalm 26:8, and at the evening service Phil. 3: 10.

Louis Bond Cherry, of Kansas City, will apply for patents for a pro-cess by which, he says, it is possible to market gasoline at a profit for three cents a gallon. Cherry's process is an electro-enemical one, and differs from all others in that he uses nothing in the conversion of oil to gasoline but heat, pressure, natural gas and electricity.

The Lord's Bank Account

Those who say that Christianity is not advancing are uninformed. The Son of Man, who found no place wherein to lay His head when he walked the earth twenty centuries ago, now has a bank account! It was instituted by the great self-ad-vertising "evangelist," Billy Sunday, who announces that he deposits one tenth of the "free-will offerings" subscribed by his admirers, to the credit of the Lord. In Philadelphia the free-will offering is said to have amounted to $100,000 which, if true, adds $10,000 to the Lord's credit. "Billy" himself draws the cheques on the account, presumably having been provided with a power-of-attorney for the purpose. Times have changed since the money-changers were driven from the temple. We may yet live to see the Twelve Apostles rated in Bradstreet's.

Don'ts For Parents

Don't tell your child the happiest days he will ever know are his days of childhood. Don't say that with maturity comes cares, and work, and troubles, and fears that make life a burden. If your child comes to you with a trial that is great to him, but to you in the light of your years must hand down to those who come and experience, is the merest trifle, after.—Sir George Foster.

don't say, "You are very foolish to be troubled by so small a thing, but remember he has but little reason to use, and no experience to guide him, and that for the time his grief "clothes him as a garment," and it is for you with your love and sympathy, to rend it, and bring him sunlight again. It is a great wrong to believe the wild fears, grotesque fancies, and namelest doubts which Great Britain, and we are paying five haunt the minds of children are passing whims. So vivid are these, they often come to use in middle life or old age, and cause us an involuntary shudder. If a child's troubles are usually small, the understanding is smaller. The pitiful gravity with which they attempt to settle weighty questions which their elders often give up as hopeless, demands our most delicate sympathy. Every stage of life has its peculiar trials, and just as surely its own joys. Let us not then so recklessly risk our reputation for wisdom as to point to children and say, "Now, my dear child, is your hey-day. Enjoy it to the full, for the years that are passing on you are full to the brim of care and trial." Say rather, "If the future has great work and responsibilities, so has it proportionate reward." The surest, greatest, happiness of life should come with

How to Care for Your Complexion

There is no truer saying than that "beauty is only skin deep." Good features lose their charm under a sallow or blotchy skin and poor features are glorified by a beautiful complexion.

A very useful toilet booklet entitled "Your Complexion" has just been issued by Nyal's and contains many helpful health and beauty hints, including proper methods of massage. It can be had for the asking at the Nyal Agency Drug Store and you should call or telephone for it. Among other things it points out is that diet, sleep, ventilation, and a thousand other things we cannot escape are continually warring against our complexions. Get a 250 or 50c jar of Nyal's Face Cream and convince yourself of its cleansing and refreshing and beautifying qualities. It is greaseless, oxygenated and quickly absorbed by the skin, leaves no shine, and gives a pleasant, smooth, cool sensation, quickly removing the irritation produced by wind and weather.

All Nyal preparations are justly famous and none more so than Nyal's Face Cream which we unhesitatingly recommend. Call or telephone us for your copy of this book which contains most valuable information.

Church Advertising

Churches are doing less advertising from the pulpit and more in the local papers, says the Bowmanville Statesman. This is right, too. The sacred desk was never intended for an advertising medium. The Belle-ville Daily Ontario editorially says many sensible things from day to day and on this question in part says: Opinions will differ about the propriety of using display advertising for making announcements of church meeting. But it has become the practice of recent years for all churches to pay the public press for informing the people when services are to be held and what subjects will be discussed by the minister. The size of type used can make little difference in the principle involved. The newspaper is surely more dig-mified, accurate, and satisfactory, than for the pastor himself to become a living bulletin board by making all kinds of announcements prior to his sermon.

What is Your Diet?

Canadians eat too much meat. They are one of the three greatest eating peoples in the world, Australia and the United States being the other two. High prices for meat are coming. The cost of food as well as its nutritive value should be considered. Fresh vegetables are wholesome, palatable and productive of good health. Though in direct food value vegetables yield a first place to meats, it must not be supposed they are destitute of those nutricients which build up the body tissue and keep the machinery going. It would be possible, though not desirable, to live exclusively on vegetable foods.

But vegetables, and especially fresh vegetables, are not to be regarded merely from the standpoint of maintenance—though we assert that newadays they would make a very good showing on the ground of econtent of the throat. Try it and prove it. live exclusively on vegetable foods.

NO ALUM

omy. Nor need we urge their extensiye use on variety to the diet. They in addition to these excellent qualities, possess a medicinal value: they are aids to digestion and afford that bulk or volume to the food necessary for the right distension of the alimentary tract. Many vegetables contain salts which are gently laxative, relieving constipation, that scourge that is the forerunner of so many dangerous and not infrequently fatal, diseases. And, again, many vegetables, especially those used in salads, have a special value in cooling the blood, and are, therefore, most wholesome, especially in the summer season.

Fresh vegetables are yastly superior to those that are wilted from keeping a day or two, in succulence, crispness and palatability. To be enjoyed at their best, vegetables must be eaten strictly fresh.

Seasonable Hints

There has been issued by the Department of Agriculture through the branch of the Experimental Farms, a brief pamphlet containing seasonable hints for the information of stock raisers, grain growers, beekeepers, poultry raisers and gardeners. While it contains only 12 pages it is replete with suggestions and recommendations made in the hope that some of them at least will be helpful to each and every reader who secures a copy. Practically all of the suggestions made and recommendations given, tend towards the increasing of production or the lowering of the cost of the articles pro

Methods and Rates of Planting Corn

The row or drill method of planting corn is still commonly followed in Ontario and Quebec. The investigation conducted by the Seed Branch shows that 956 farmers were planting in drills at an average rate of 2.14 pecks of seed per acre and 350 planted in squares or hills at 1.17 pecks of seed per acre. The average results of thirty-two separate tests conducted throughout Ontario for a five year period shows that the hill method gave one ton of green crop per acre more than the drills, and three-eighths of this ton was in the form of freshly-husked ears. four year average at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, shows two and three-quarter tons per acre in favor of the hill method. Hills should be three feet apart each way and contain three and four plants. Rows should be three feet apart and the

The hill meth-od gives a much better opportunity for cultivating the land and control ling weeds, but the corn is rather more difficult to harvest than that which is grown in drills.

One bushel 70 lbs. on the ear or 56 lbs. of shelled corn, germinating 95 per cent., should be sufficient to plant five acres by the hill method. War Summary

April 13.—Les Eparges, occupied on April 9 by the French after a series of desperate engagements costing countless lives has again come under the hre of the German guns. It was around this point that the Germans, according to a French official report, lost 30,000 men in two months' fighting. It is here that General Joffre, the French commander, is bringing his strength to bear on the German wedge to force it out of the Allies' side, so that the allied line that stretches in front of the great German fortress of Metz may be straightened. After a lull of two days the Germans prepared for their counter-attack on Les Eparges by a severe bombardment and a heavy rifle fire; then in the early hours of the morning they advanced on the position, which the French had made even stronger than when the Germans held it, but were forced to retire. The extent of this offensive is not known, but it has been reported that the Germans look upon this position, which commands the plain of the Woevre, as one of great importance, and further attacks may be looked for.

Otherwise, the situation in the western war zone is of comparatively little inter-Otherwise, the situation in the western Rungary.

Reports persist of heavy firing in the North Sea, but no explanation, either officially or unofficially, is forthcoming. These rumors date back as far as April 7, and the latest within twenty-four hours reported firing off Scarborough, which seemed to indicate a naval engagement. But the British admiralty has vouchsafed no information one way or another.

The British steamer Wayfarer, a 6,000 ton vessel, which had been in the Liverton vessel, which had been in the Laver-pool Galveston trade for ten years, and had recently been requisitioned by the British Government, has been towed into Queenstown and beached with a great ent in her side caused by a German tor-pedo. One hundred and twenty men rom the Wayfarer have been landed at

April 14.-'Calm along the whole front,' is the way the French official communication characterizes the situation on the pattle line in France, but it adds that all the positions that have been captured by the French have been maintained and consolidated.

In the Carpathians, however, especially near the Uzsok Pass, the fighting continues with the same intensity that has prevailed for weeks and made the snowprevailed for weeks and made the snow-capped peaks and passes virtually shambles. Petrograd asserts that after desperate encounters the heights near the villages of Bukovitz, Beneff and Vyssokonizy were captured by the Muscovites and with them 53 officers and 2,700 men and one gun and twenty machine guns. The Austriaus have taken up the offensive further south in Bukowina, launching furious right attacks desired. offensive further south in Bukowina, launching furious night attacks, during a torrential rainstorm. At close quarters the bayonet was brought into play and Petrograd declares that the Russian troops held the advantage. The reports that collisions between reconnoitering detachments in Poland are becoming detachments in Poland are becoming more frequent would indicate seemingly that another great battle in this territory is not far distant. For some days it has been known that the Germans and Austrians were fighting shoulder to shoulder in the Carpathians. Advices reaching Italy from Vienna say that large additional forces of Germans have passed through Budapest on the way to this battle front, in order to attempt to hold back the threatened invasion of Humara by the Russians. Mr. T. W. Showler, one of Arkona's most respected citizens, succumbed suddenly to pneumonia on April 6th, at 2.30 a.m.

Mr. Showler immigrated to this country over sixty years ago and settled down with yery scanty funds at Arkona, then known as Eastman's Corners. Previous to this he had lived in Hogthorpe, Lincolnshire, England.

At Eastman's Corners (which consisted of a blacksmith shop and one or two of a blacksmith shop and one or two stores) he started in the tailoring business, and after several years of labor, having earned sufficient funds, he added greatly to the village by starting up a general store. The business was carried on under the name of Showler & Vahey.

This enterprise was successful from the start and later he retired, he and his start and later he retired, he and his wife taking a trip to England.
On his return he speculated to his advantage in real estate and obtained a competence. One of his proud boasts was that in making his thousands of dollars of collections he never had need to enter a case in a court of law.

Mr. Showler is survived by two sons, John, of London, Ont., and Ernest, of Collingwood, Ont. He died in his 87th year, interment taking place on April 8th at the Arkona cemetery.

Petrolea Man Killed at the Front

Pelrolea, April 13. — The death of Lance-Corp. E. Harris, a British reservist, was announced to his wife here to-day in a message from Ottawa. Corp. Harris is the first Petrolea man to meet death in the war. He was killed, accord-death in the war. He was killed, according to the announcement from the militia department, on March 10th, while on duty. He was a member of the Cameronian Rifles, a Scottish corps, that has won many laurels since it reached the thick of the fighting early in the war.

Lance-Corp. Harris was about 30 years of age and well known about town. He left early in August to join the Cameronians, leaving his whife and two small children with friends here. Letters came from him frequently, expressing the hope that he would be spared to return to his family, but telling of desperate fights in which he had taken part.

Mrs. Harris was just recovering from a severe illness and the news of her husband's death has resulted in a serious relapse. At a meeting of the Board of

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. Sidney Dalby, Audley, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tab-lets for the past twelve months and have found them an excellent medicine for my little girl." Thousands of other mothers say the same thing—once a mother has used the Tablets she would use nothing else. They are pleasant to take; the result is sure, and above all they are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from injurious drugs. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Death of Mr. Charles Joynt

On Thursday, April 8th the sorrowful news of the death of Mr. Charles Joynt, a highly-respected member of this community for 21 years, reached us and has cast a gloom over the neighborhood. Although he was critically ill for three months he bore his great suffering with fortitude and christian resignation.

Mr. Joynt was born in New Boyne, Co. Leeds, Ontario, April 3rd, 1865. When three years of age his parents moved to Camlachie, Plympton township, where he resided for 26 years. He moved to Warwick in 1894, where he lived until his death. On May 25th 1887 he was married to Miss Eleanor I. Johnston, of Adelaide To., Middlesex Co. Five children were born to this union. Two died in infancy, those who survive are John R., Edith G., and Clarence E., who with their mother mourn the loss of a loving and devoted father and husband. Mr. Joynt was one of a family of eight children, viz:—the late Mrs. Delmage, Messrs. John, Dudley and Joseph Joynt and Misses Ellen and Carrie Joynt, of Plympton, and Mr. Robert Joynt, of Detroit.

Mr. Joynt has been identified with the Detroit.

A Story of a Deserted Wife

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

Donald Brewer, a handsome young fellow with light hair, blue eyes and a pleasant smile on his lips, was walking on Main street swinging a light cane. Pretty girls were moving hither and thither, for Donald was in the shopping district, and it was the hour when the stores were much crowded. He was an admirer of beauty, and his expression indicated that he was reveling in the display. His heart was light, and when a young man is in happy mood the appeal of fair faces and trim figures is especially strong.

Who is this young woman advancing slowly with a little girl not four years old clinging to her skirt? Donald thought her prettier than any one he had yet met. Her glance met his, and with a cry she sprang to him, threw her arms about his neck and cried out in a sweet, appealing voice:

"Oh, Walter, why did you leave me? Come back! Do, Walter, dearest, come back and all will be forgiven."

Donald Brewer's admiration for the fair sex was general, and he preferred that the favors he received should be general. This was altogether too par-ticular. Besides, it was too public, and, like most men worthy of the name, he detested "scenes."

He assured the lady that she had mistaken him for some one else. This only occasioned a burst of grief and reproaches. The child began to cry, a crowd collected, and a policeman came hurrying up to discover the cause of the blocking of the sidewalk. He saw a young woman clinging to a young man who was evidently not as well pleased as he should have been. Donald explained that she had mistaken him for some one else. The lady explained that he was her husband, who had deserted her. The policeman evidently believed the latter story and viewed Donald with disfavor.

"I think," he said to the woman, "we'd better go to the police officer. You can make a charge against him if you like, and that'll bring the matter into the courts.'

"Don't, Walter; don't force me to do that. Come home, and we will again be happy." And she wept on his bosom. Walter signified to the policeman that he preferred to go with him. So the party adjourned to the police station, where Walter sent out for his mother and other friends to identify, him, and the lady sent for a sister-in-law. All of the former pronounced him Donald Brewer, and the latter declared that, though he resembled him he was not her brother. This satisfied every one except the lady, who was amazed and disappointed that they should be so obtuse. When Donald left her she took his hand and, looking at him appealingly out of a pair of liquid brown eyes, made a last appeal while the pretty little girl begged papa to come home and not make when appealed to by a pretty woman whether he is free or wedlocked. Under certain circumstances—action for alimony, for instance—the word wedlock is suggestive of bolts and bars. Donald, being exonerated from being a fugitive husband, assured the poor woman of his deep sympathy and that he was deeply touched by her faith, despite proof to the contrary, that he belonged to her. If she would give him her address he would call upon her and would be glad to serve her in any way. A beautiful hope shone in her eyes, and, giving him a parting look, she said that she would trust him once more, sure that he would not fail her. Then, to evade observation, she asked him to call a carriage, and, getting into it with her little girl, who insisted on giving papa a parting kiss, she was driven away smiling through tears.

A few days later Donald called upon the grass widow. He found her a good deal changed. Her sister-in-law had convinced her that there was a doubt as to Donald being her husband. When she came into the room to receive him she paused on the threshold, searching every line of his counte-nance. Then beautiful blushes rose to her cheeks at remembering the caresses she had given him, and she hung her head in shame at the remembrance of the caresses she had bestowed upon one who had turned out to be a stranger.

What is forced upon us we don't want. What we cannot get we crave. Donald, who up to this moment feared the lady would claim him, was now disappointed that she did not. Those who are chained wish to be free; those who are free wish to be chained. In the words of the crusty old bachelor, marriage is something one half the world is trying to get into and the other half is trying to get out of.

Donald had not experienced any pleasurable sensation in the caresses he had received the day before; he was dreading being forced into great trouble at establishing his identity. Now he longed to have those arms about his neck and those appealing eyes looking into his. An idea occurred to him. It was an idea not worthy of him, but it was irresistible. While a few days before he had been telling the truth to keep out of trouble, he now yielded to a temptation to tell a lie that would get him back into trouble and keep him there. Why is it that a man who protect himself circumspectly against ordinary entanglements will plunge into a slough of despond where woman is concerned?

Donald Brewer was young and reck-less and behaved accordingly. He smiled at the lady in a way to cause her to doubt a decision she had just made that he was not her humband. A quick glance of inquiry, followed by a step forward, then a step backward, and she sprang toward him. He caught her in his arms, and her head sank on

Donald was facing, as it happened mirror, and when he caught sight of his reflection holding in his arms a woman whom he had permitted to think was her husband a sense of the dis-honor of his act and its probable consequences rose within him to plague

"What a confounded fool and villain I am!" he mentally exclaimed.

Shocked at what he had done, he be gan at once to conjure up some method of getting out of the trap he had laid for himself. Taking her hands in his, he disengaged her embrace, and, holding her apart so that he could look her in the eyes, he set about framing a statement that would put the matter back where it was before he had made the break. But one look out of those brown eyes bereft him of the will to do so. He was like one in deep water struggling to rise. As soon as he got to the surface a heavy hand pushed him back again. He felt as though he were sinking deeper and deeper in a moral quicksand.

"Forgive me," he muttered and took her in his arms again. Now, it doesn't matter whether he asked her to forgive him for thus deceiving her or for having deserted her. for at that moment he saw reflected in the glass the sister-in-law who had freed him from the imputation of being the deserter. She was looking at the pair locked in a mutual embrace with an expression of extreme dissatisfaction.

He was appalled. The lady he was holding in his arms. fortunately for him, looked and, seeing the intruder, relieved him from the necessity of disengaging himself.

"Given!" said she who had entered reproachfully.
"Ruth," replied the other, "you were mistaken, after all. He is Walter."
Ruth gave Donald a look which he remembered to his dying day. "I grant," she said, "that you may be Walter's twin brother, for villainy seems to run in the blood."

This opened the door for at least a temporary escape.
"You are right," he said, catching at a straw. "I am Walter's twin broth-

Both women drew back and stared at Donald, who stood like Ajax defying the lightning. "Walter Schofield had no twin brother." said Ruth. "None that he would acknowledge, I was regarded as the black sheep of the family. At twelve years of age I ran away, and my name was never after mentioned in the family."

The grass widow by this time had returned to a state of wondering doubt. "We have had," said Ruth, "one black sheep of your family in ours, and we have no use for another."

She pointed to the door. Assuming a proud innocence the very opposite of what he felt, Donald said: "I am aware of my brother's injustice to his angel wife. I have been tempted to do evil that good might come. I was disposed to take advan-tage of the resemblance between us to right the wrongs he has done. I have failed. Au revoir." With a low bow he strutted out of the room and the house, Ruth looking after him with a glance of indignant contempt, while Given evidently did not know whether to let him go or detain him. A month passed, during which Don-ald Brewer dreaded every day lest he should in some way be punished for having yielded to temptation and formed innumerable plans to set him-self right in the matter. There is but one way for persons who have erred to set themselves right, and that is confession. When Denald had turned down a plan or two a day he finally arrived at the confessional state.

He wrote a long letter to the "with of his twin brother," giving a detailed account of his temptation and the cause of it and acknowledging that his final statement was false from beginning to end. His excuse was one which with a woman will always win. It was that he had found her so charming and sympathized so deeply with her and her lovely child that he simply couldn't help it. And here is the beginning to a sequel of this story of which only the bare facts can be given. Donald called by invitation on the widow and was forgiven, and his call was followed by a number of others. The lady was about to apply for a divorce in order that she might marry him when her husband conveniently died, thus sav ing trouble, expense and time, which last to Donald was the most important of the three, for he was madly in love and had been waiting long enough al-

All this happened years ago. What was at one time a serious matter is now one on which Donald Brewer ocasionally ventures to crack a joke He is an affectionate stenfather to his wife's child, and her aunt Ruth has come to a point where she considers that he had some excuse for his altogether objectionable action. There is a God-given instinct in every decept man and woman that cries out for protection for the children. The world can look with com-What is the meaning of the world- parative composure at dead men in trenches and shattered cathedrals; but maimed, naked, starving children is a sight it cannot bear without passion and amazement, and a strong desire to do things.

The mortality among children is dreadful. If a like death rate should take place with our cows, horses or pigs, the Government would at once take action, and see to it that the cause was removed. The cause this enormous mortality among children is ignorance—the ignorance of parents-compulsory education; and the one thing needed for the perpetuation and welfare of the human family is in the curriculum.

The conservation of human lifethe knowledge that will lessen the number of tiny graves in the cemeteries, and the saddened hearts of loving parents—this is the information the Better Canadian Babies Bureau is trying to diffuse.

First of all, it ought to be the child's privilege to be born right, of healthy parents, having no history of mental disease, malignant troubles, tuberculosis, or alcoholism. The child does not select its parents, and it is a tragical situation if, as the child grows up, it learns to deplore that such is the case.

Pre-natal influences and their effect upon the mental and physical condition of later life might be profitably studied by prospective parents. In fact, if the same care and common sense used in the management of the domestic animals were applied in the rearing of children it would be a great improvement on the present methods.

Mothers have it in their power to see to it that there are "better Canadian babies," and as a natural result there will be more of them.

JAPAN'S FAT WRESTLERS.

Outside of the Arena Eating Is Their Most Important Task.

The most envied men in Japan are the wrestlers, who are fat and bulky. The first requisite of a Japanese wrestler is that he be fat. Their stomachs are their proudest possessions. The fatter the man the more money they will bet on him, even though a bedslat can throw him clear out of the ring. As a fat wrestler walks down the street a crowd gathers around him, hoping that he will turn into some restaurant. If he does they gather in the doorway to watch him eat. They would rather hear a Japanese wrestler eat that go to a three ring. A wrestler never disap-points them—he plows through astounding quantities of food, turning everything under except a few radishiskins and turnip tops. It's unbelieveable how much noise they make when eating, by smacking their lips, sucking up their tea with the open exhaust and picking their teeth with the cutout on. The champion eaters of them allthe wrestlers-have long hair, but instead of letting it hang down on their shoulders, as one would naturally expect, they do it up in knots until they look like a gigantic kewpie. Whenever you see a man in Japan going around with a large sized walnut on his head, you may know that he follows the ancient and honorable profession of wrestling. Their wrestling consists of the men standing upright in the ring making a rush at each other and trying to push each other out. Every time two wrestlers come together they give a prodigious grunt. When one of them finally succeeds in pushing the other out the crowd bursts forth into mighty applause, while the victor modestly pats his stomach to show where the

If It Were Our Sun It Would Take Over Eight Hours to Rise.

Of all the twenty first magnitude stars the inherent glory of Rigel and Canopus is the greatest. Only two are farther than they, while the other six-

Estimates give the light of Rigel as equal to that of 22,000 suns and that of Canopus as 55,000.

Assuming that their general surface brilliancy is the same as that of the sun and recalling that Rigel has at least 22,000 and Canopus 55,000 times the light of the sun, the square root of these figures gives us Rigel's diameter as 150 and Canopus' 235 times that of Whereas the sun's diameter, as seen in the sky, measures one-half a degree, Canopus', at the same distance, would measure 117½ degrees of the 180 that reach from horizon to horizon, and its disk would cover 55,225 times the sky area occupied by the sun. Canopus would be nearly eight hours in rising. With such a globe brought so near. all life on the earth would instantly perish, seas would be converted into steam, and the very mountains would melt with fervent heat and flow like molten iron. Beside such facts our cor ner of the universe seems diminutive, dull and insignificant.

Toronto, April 10th.—Following its policy of carrying farm demonstrations as far as possible to the door of the farmers in each community of the province, the Department of Agriculture, through the efforts of Dr. J. B. Martyn, member in the Legislature for East Lambton, has secured a six-years' lease on the Hawkin the Legislature for East Lambton, has secured a six-years' lease on the Hawkins' farm, two miles from Thedford. Here will be carried on a demonstration orchard. This orchard has been selected out of several offered as providing the best conditions for showing what can be done by proper methods of culture. There are some two hundred apple trees, and men under the direction of Mr. P. W. Hodgetts, of the Fruit Branch, are now in charge. The trees are being scientifically praned and the work will be carried on by the department throughout the season until the apples are marketed. This is one of six demonstration orchards

Address and Presentation
On Thursday evening of last week a number of neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Anderson and family, lath con., Brooke, to bid them farewell, prior to their departure for Enniskillen, where they will make their home in future. After an hour or two spent in music, etc., Mrs. Anderson and family were asked to come forward, when the following address was read by Mr. J. A. Gilliland and the presentation made by Mrs. J. Greer and Mrs. T. Logan, of a handsome sofa. Mrs. Anderson was taken completely by surprise, but replied in very warm and appreciative terms, thanking the donors for their kind words and beautifin gitt, and expressed regret at leaving the neighborhood. After all had enjoyed a tasty lunch, prepared by the ladies, a pleasant evening was brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne."
