THE WORLD WINS AGAIN

There is every prospect of an immediate reduction in the price of sleeping-car tickets, both in the United States and in Canada. Some years ago, The World, and Mr. Maclean, in parliament, started an agitation in this direction. There never was such a lobby put up as the Pullman and the Canadian Pacific put up at Ottawa to beat any

Some years ago, when Mr. Maclean proposed to the railway con mittee that sleeping car companies be compelled to close their upper berths when not in use, he did not get a single vote in the railway ommittee, and there were not less than fifteen lawyers there all talking against any interference with this, one of the greatest monopolies in the world. The Pullman Company has cut melon after melon, sometimes as much as has given its shareholders almost dollar for dollar on their investment in one dividend, or in one melon. One dividend was sixty-five per cent!

Whatever reduction is made in the United States will have to be fellowed in Canada, and the reduction is coming into effect in the States almost immediately.

Fights for tallway reform are often slow, but they come at last. The day of two cents a mile from one end of Canada to the other for passenger fares is the next thing that will come to the people. When it comes it will come as the result of persistent work on the part of two or three men and two or three hewspapers in this country. In the United States they have more railway reformers than we have in Canada. But, even so, we do move a little.

headers returned without opposition.

The present election is being bitterly contested. Broadly spaking, the predominating issue is: Shall the lords be deprived of their traditional prerogative of veto, permitting the house of commons a free hand in the matr of general legislation? or, shall the house of lords be allowed to reform itself and, making certain concessions as to its composition, remain in a position to check such activities of the lower chamber as the peers may consider inconsistent with the welfare of the empire?

The Unionists of Conservatives stand for the latter proposition, while the Libera's or government party seeks to reform the upper chamber on its own lines.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—A country-wide reduction of upper Pullman betth rates of 20 per cent. where the lower berth rate exceeds $1.50, and various reductions in lower berths were announced before the United States Interstate Commerce Commission by G. S. Fernald, assistant general solicitor of the Pullman Company.

S. Fernald, assistant general solicitor of the Pullman Company.

Notice of the reduction had been expected, and Commissioners Franklin K. Lane and E. E. Clark did not find it necessary to hear testimony on excessive berth rates.

The hearing, technically, was a rehearing of the suit brought by George S. Loftus against the Pullman Company for a reduction of upper berth rates between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

Churchill Refused Hearing.

Mr. Churchill was refused a hearing at Linco'n this afterno'n. Cus om forbids speech making on polying days and the opposition was so persistent that the home secretary was obliged to desist and to give pledge that he would not attempt again to speak. During the rumpus there were several free fights in the audience.

OFFERS TO RESIGN.

(Cansdian Associated Press Cable).

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A. A. Haworth, the Liberal elected in South Manchester, because the Conservative came too late to put in his nomination, has offered to resign his seat at the earliest opportunity if Mr. Glazebrook desires it. Hon. Mr. Birrell, at Bristol, said the talk about fighting and bloodshed was mind the cases were field by the States the Pull-man Company decided that altho upper berths cost more to build in a carthan the lower, and cost more to maintain and furnish, in the estimation of the public it was believed that the upper berths were not worth as much as the lower berths.

Minimum Rate $1.25.

'The minumum rate for upper berths is to be $1.25. There will be no lower reduction, even where lower berths are $1.25. Where the lower is $1.50 the upper will be $1.25 and in all other rates the upper berth will cost 80 per cent. of that for the lower."

or the $1.15 berth. Not a single rate in the Pullman tariff will be increased. This is not a general reduction, but equalization has been attempted to being the berth rate to an average of equalization has been attempted to bring the berth rate to an average of six mills per mile. There are many reductions in the lower berth rates."

Mr. Fernald then went thru the tables he had and showed reductions of dered. The rate from New York to Chicago on lower berths is unchanged. There are reductions to intermediate points. From Poughkeepsie to Eikhart

Commander Sims, at Guildhall Luncheon, Declares America Would Spend "Every Man, Every Ship, and Every Dollar."

LONDON, Dec. 3 .- Sir Thomas Nesey

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Sir Thomas Vesey Strong, the lord mayor, and corporation of the City of London to-day, gave a luncheon at Guildhall to 750 American sailors from the visiting fleet at Gravesend and Weymouth.

The bine jackets arrived by train at Charing Cross, headed by Commander Sims of the Minnesota and the officers of file staff, and accompanied by the band of the Coldstream Guards, which the war office had ordered out for the occasion, marched thru the streets in the west end of the city to the ancient hall, where so many famous guests have been honored.

The was followed first by formal toasts to King George and the sailors.

Replying, Commander Sims spoke with enthusiasm of the friendly manner in which the men of the fleet had been received in London. This, he said could not happen in any other country, but was made possible by the strong ties of bloed between the two countries. Speaking for himself, he believed that if the time ever came when the British Empire was menaced by an external enemy they might count upon every man, every drop of blood, very ship and every dollar of their kindred across the sea.

Chief Boatswain's Mate E. L. Benson of the battleship Minnesota replied on behalf of the men, expressing thanks for the entertainment in a neat speech, which was frequently interrupted by the guests with spontaneous speech, which was frequently inter-rupted by the guests with spontaneous cheers for the lord mayor and the City of London.

Afraudeville performance followed,
England's foremos artists taking part.

(From a Staff Correspondent). LONDON, Dec. 3,-It is natural that when members of the Dominion cabinet are in Britain they should endeavor-to confine both their statements in the press and in social and business circles to generalities regarding the resources of the Dominion as well as on which they are questioned. Trailers Dangerous. "Personally, I am oppressed with the danger of a trailer, the front door of which is absolutely secured. Apart altogether from the discomfort of the passengers having to fight their way in, and fight their way out, under ordinary circumstances, the position of passengers at the front end of a crowded car in case a stove is overcrowded car in case a stove is overturned, or in case one of the rear wires

nas Time is Home

Once more we are on the threshold of Christmas, and along with this great home-gathering time comes a train of expenses that have to be met as surely as the sun rises. When the family gathers round the festive board the home should look its best. It is the Adams Store's chief mission in business to provide all that is needed to make the home a place of beauty and cheerfulness, and where there are so many things to buy, as at this season, and where cash is not always available, our popular "Charge Account" plan enables everyone to have all these extra comforts and luxuries without entailing any financial worry.

Adams' Charge Account Plan Makes It Easy to Buy Expensive Holiday Gifts, Too By opening an account with us you will find it easy to buy much more handsome gifts than might otherwise be selected, for we arrange the payment to suit your convenience, so if you wish to buy a Parlor Suite, a China Cabinet, a Bookcase, a fine Rug, a pair of Portieres, or any of the more costly furnishings which so many choose nowadays for gift-giving within the family, you can—by opening an account here—pay for them in a manner that will relieve you of all the usual strain on your pocketbook. You'll be sure to like the arrangements we make for buying this way. Try us this Christmas.

There's Every Reason for Buying Your Player - Piano Right Away

Surely you realize that the perfection of the Player-Piano, so generally recognized as having been attained in the Mason & Risch, means the gradual decline in value of all "silent" pianos. As the sale of Player-Pianos increases the market for "silent" pianos grows more limited and their value grows

Pretty soon you will want to exchange that piano you have at home now, which is so seldom played, for a Mason & Risch Player-Piano, which all can play. Its exchange value right now is greater than it will ever be in the future. For purely monetary reasons, therefore, you should not delay investi-

Lectures for Non-Catholics

We are pleased to announce to all our non-Catholic friends that a course of doctrinal lectures will be given in ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, QUEEN AND POWER STREETS by the Paulist Fathers, the Rev. Bertrand L. Conway and Rev. James M. Gillis, SUNDAY, DEC. 4, TO SUNDAY, DEC. 11, 1810.

THE QUESTION BOX.

PREMONITION CAME TRUE

Feared He Would Not Live to Seventeen, Fell Down Elevator Shaft.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—For the reason that both his brother and his sister had died just as each was approaching the age of 17, John Smyth, a young resident of the upper east side, had frequently expressed a fear that he would never live to celebrate his own 17th birthday. He was nearing what he considered this crucial age, when to-day he fell eight, storeys thru the elevator shaft of a new building at Broadway and 92nd-street, and died as the rites of the Catholic Church were being administered to him.

WELLAND GIVES PROMISE

Ontario Town Makes Rapid Evolution Because of Many Special Advantages.

Less than a decade ago the Town of Welland was included in that large class of Ontario smaller municipalities served by an agricultural community, and stagnant save for the gradual growth evolved from the accumulation growth evolved from the accumulation of wealth from the surrounding country. Welland emerged, however, tollowing the example of all commercial life that business ability and opportunities winen property seized were bound to make for growth and development ahead of its fellows.

The evolution of Welland was the result of a number of combined circumstances, the main one of which was the great advantage which the town has in the matter of power supply. In fact it is one of the demonstrating centres of Ontario of the wonderful advantages that accrue to a municipality by means of being able to supply energy to manufactories at a cheap rate.

There are other circumstances which were concurrent with the development of the town and among these follows.

usands of workers are daily en-

The general opinion is that there will be a growth of at least 3000 in the population within the next year, thus bringing the total of Welland and its suburbs up to 10,000. Provision for this increase in population is expected to be made by opening up adjacent farm lands which are in proximity to the large factories.

Welland should become a Mesce for imity to the large factories.

Welland should become a Mecca for builders and building and loan companies. A conservative estimate is that one thousand houses will be needed next year to take charge of the growth in population. The workers in the town are all steadily engaged, make good wages and are a class who would appreciate the privilege of procuring a home on small payments. It cannot be long before capital will seize upon this point as a great investment centre, and there are indications that the matter is already under consideration by far-sighted directors of building and loan companies.

The land around Welland is aspeci-

The land around Welland is especially favored, having excellent drainage facilities, while at the same time an abundance of pure water is available at the minimum of cost. Welland, with its xceptional advantages, should become the ideal factory centre of Ontario.

St. Alban's Cathedral Women's League
A meeting of the Women's League of St. Alban's Cathedral was held in the chapter house on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 29. Nothwithstanding the inclement weather there was a large attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Sweatman, Canon MacNab occupied the chair. A most eloquent address was given by His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto, in which he expressed his surprise and gratification at the large amount raised by the league towards the building fund since its organization in 1905, which showed the quiet zeal and perseverance of its members thru many difficulties. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were received with great enthusiasm, and gave a fresh impetus to the league to renew its endeavors Here are the two principal reasons why the Gat'in Treatment for A; coholism is the world's greatest medical discovery: First, its field of usefulness is larger than that of any other remedy—two of each three male adults should take it. Second, it is an absolute specific, there being no possibility of failure to cure. A plainly worded, legal contract is drawn up in each case treated that a cure is to be effected in three days which shall be entirely satisfactory to the patient and his family in every particular, or treatment shall cost nothing. The financial reference of the Gatlin Institute, upon investigation, will be found of the highest. The ten thousand men and women whom the Gatlin treatment has cured indorse the Gatlin Institute. enthusiasm, and gave a fresh impetus to the league to renew its endeavors to procure at least four hundred members, so that a certain sum might be reached before April next, when the work of extending the cathedral will be begun. It is hoped that the lades of Toronto will kindly respond to the league's appeal by becoming members. take—there can positively be no bad after effects. A child could take it without the least danger. The Lion Sermon.

Every October sixteenth whether that date falls on Sunday or a weekday the "Lion Sermon" is delivered at the church of St. Katherine Cree in the old City of London. In the will of Sir John Gayer, dated 1648, money was left for a sermion to be preached each year to commemorate Sir John's excape from a lion in the Arabian desert. Some sceptics believe that he left this peculiar bequest in order to make the story of his escape seem plausible. Sir John, a member of the Levant Company, was enroute for India when while crossing the Arabian desert he was approached by a lion. Sir John promptly descended from his camel and engaged in prayer. The lion was so dimbfounded that he withdrew from Sir John's presence to a solitary meditation. His life being spared. Sir John vowed that he would give the gains of his journey to God and the poor.

On his return to England he providance of the carry of the same years officiated the service of the same years officiated the service of the same and sweet herbs; a second ablution was performed by the sub-almoner; and attended by thirty-nine gentlewomen, gave them a final wash, making a cross on each foot and kissing the control of the same and attended by thirty-nine gentlewomen, gave them a final wash, making a cross on each foot and kissing the control of the same and sweet herbs; a second ablution was performed by the sub-almoner; and attended by thirty-nine gentlewomen, gave them a final wash, making a cross on each foot and kissing the control of the same and sweet herbs; a second ablution was performed by the sub-almoner; and attended by thirty-nine gentlewomen, gave them a final wash, making a cross on each foot and kissing the control of the control of the control of the feet was an annual event unit after Stuart days. and the poor.

On his return to England he provided not only for the annual lion sermon but he left money for a sermon to be preached monthly in his native Town of Plymouth. Later he became sheriff of London, and as lord mayor in 1647 he was committed to the Tower where he underwent eight months imprisonment for refusing the supplies demanded by parliament from the city for the army: In 1648, altho parliament had deposed him from the office of lord mayor and alderman, the governors of Christ Hospital chose him to be president of that foundahim to be president of that founda-

Recently the money providing for this gift sermon was diverted from St. Katherine Cree Church to a more needy parish. The sermon itself, how-ever, is still preached in order to keep up the tradition.

Presumably you know, ladies, that the proper caper nowadays is lines. Curves are passe. You have got to take off your fat. This must be done in one of three ways. By dieting, by exercises, or by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. The two former will keep you busy for months and punish you pretty severely, the latter will cost you 75 cents at the druggist's. The tablets will not make any alteration in your diet necessary, and yet in all probability, before you have used up one case you will be losing from 12 to 16 ounces of fat a day. Which method you like the best?

If you fancy this pleasant method of getting off the fat, see your druggist instantly, or else write the Marmola Company, $37 Farmer Building, Detroit Mich., to send you a case by mail. These cases contain so generous a quantity of tablets that the treatment is very economical. It is, also, quite harmless, for the tablets are made stactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription.

The number of poor who receive the king's aims grows larger each year, the addition being the increment of one poor old woman and one poor old man for each succeeding year of the king's age. They are ranged in a row on either side of the choir. Above them are the dean and chapter, in their stalls, the choir, in their white surplices, behind the twinkling candles; beyond, and within the communion rails are the lord high almoner, the sub-almoner and "clergymen in academical robes representing the recipients of the royal alms." The Stage Negro
In Song and Play
By Charles & Bregge in the state of t

the many scribes who have pursued this subject in the written annals of our stage, tells an interesting story of Rice and the origin of the Jim Crow

Birth of Jim Crow.

Mr. Conner was a member of the company at the Columbia-street theatre, Cincinnati, in 1828-29, when he first met Hice "doing little negro bits" between the acts at that house, notably a sketch he had studded from life in Louisville the preceding summer. Back of the Louisville theatre was a livery stable-kept by a man named Crow. The actors could look into the stable yard from the windows of their dressing-rooms, and were fond of watching the movements of an old and decrepit slave who was employed by the proprietor to do all sorts of odd jobs. As was the custom among the negroes, he had assumed his master's name, and called himself Jim Crow. He was very much deformed, the right shoulder was drawn up high, and the left leg was stiff and crooked at the knee, which gave him a painful but at the same time ludicrous limp. He was in the habit of crooning a queer old tune, to which he had applied words of his own. At the end of each verse he gave a peculiar step, "rocking de heel," in the same manner since so general among the many generations of his imitators, and these were the words of his refrain:

"Wheel about, turn shout

"Wheel about, turn about,
Do jis so,
An' ebery time I wheel about
I jump Jim Crow."

Rice closely watched this unconscious performer, and recognized in him a character entirely new to the stage. He wrote a number of versen, quickened and slightly changed the air, made up exactly like the original, and appeared before a Louisville audience which as Mr. Conner says, "went mad with delight," recalling him on the first night at least twenty times. And so Jim Crow jumped into fame and something that looks almost like immortality.

Rice was born in the seventh ward of New York in 1808. He was a supernumerary at the Park Theatre, where Sam Cowell remembered him in "Bombastes Furioso," attracting so much

The Negro Portraying Himself.

There can hardly be any objection to racial caricature among the negroes who attend the theatre, for the reason that some of the most searching and humorous caricatures of the race are among the negro players themselves. Here, too, we have come across in recent years the most accurate stag representation of true negro types that we have ever had. Some critics of acting contend that the white man can portray the negro character far more accurately than can the negro himself, and perhaps the contention is true when mere surface antics and humorous touches requiring intelligent minetic skill are required. But the real truth of the contention lies more in the fact that we have had few negro actors. Most of them are buffoons. There was some years ago a very skillful legitimate player of the colored race who gave what was said to be an admirable portrayal of some of Shakspere's characters, notably Othello. But such instances are rare. Of the comic negro, drawn from life and maintained with distinguished humor and accuracy, those theatregoers who went to the Nixon last week saw the best specimen on our stage of a really intellectual negro doing far better and more artistically what Jim Crow Rice did over 100 years ago, in the very dawn of negro impersonation on the American stage. It was caricature, but it was drawn with fine reference to life, the life of a type of negro almost extinct, except on the plantations of the rural south. The Negro Portraying Himself. Los Angeles.

PROBE ELECTRIC TRUST MOST GIGANTIC OF ALL

Suit Under Sherman Anti-Trus Law Will Be Begun in United States Courts.

Manchester, N. H., Union:-Now that the machinery of the department of justice has actually been set to turning in the investigation of the nature of the so-called sugar trust, the long-awaited action against the great electrical interests is looming up strongly on the legal horizon. Experts in the employ of the attorney-general have just finished an investigation extending over two years, and it is expected that a suit under the Sherman anti-trust law will be filed in ten days or two weeks.

in ten days or two weeks.

In the opinion of persons who should be in a position to know, the forthcoming probe is likely to be the most stupendous revelation of the methods of combination that has ever been placed before the American public, and will transcend even the action against the sugar trust, now on.

What, precisely, is the electrical trust, and in what way does it offend?

It has been a matter of general

It has been a matter of general knowledge that the great General Electric Company has had not a little to do with the electrical industry in this country, and second to importance to this has been the Westinghouse Electric Company. In the year 1896, an agreement is understood to have been made between these two concerns, the professed object of which was the protection of their mutual interests. In 1997, the last-named company had the time of its life in the squabble with the Morgan-Rockefeller interests, and while not much general information in regard to the effects of this mix-up is available, engineers througt the country concede that it rendered the supreme position of the General Electric Company (semesimes 1997). country concede that it rendered the supreme position of the General Electric Company (sometimes called a Standard Oil interest) impregnable so far as American competition was concerned. It will be rememberd that, at the conclusion of the affair mentioned, George Westinghouse, the inventor, and the man whose patents formed the basic of his company's business, retired from the presidency. Suspicion appears to have persisted in regard to these companies, and especially the General Electric Company, for it is said that its ramifications in the electrical business of the world are surprisingly extensive. The government experts are expected to prove that, outside of pure fakes, there is absolutely nothing electrical which does not pay a tribute to this great concern. With a capitalization of nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars, it is probably the second largest concern in the world. It is said that the complaint to be filed will also charge a connection with the telephone trust, which is alleged to control the Western Union telegraph and owns books covering the early 70's show a business in shawls of approximately $600,000 annually and that this same jobber's books to-day indicate a business of about $10,000 annually is probably the most luminous commer that could be offered on the evolution. or more properly, the retrogression of the shawl business in this country,

In fact, so great has been the falling off in the shawl market that many make the mistake of supposing that the shawl business has been practically wiped out. But according to The Textile Manufacturers' Journal, there is a neat, clean, smooth business transacted in shawls year after year.

There are probably not more than eight mills in the country that make woolen shawls to-day, and it is due to this fact of reduced production that the milis remaining find the business both comfortable and lucrative.

Shawls began to lose the prominent place they occupied about 40 years ago. At that time there was scarcely a commission house in the drygoods market that did not carry a shawl department, and in many instances it was the most lucrative department in the house.

In their heyday shawls reached an extraordinary height and it wasn't unheard of for fine Indian or broche shawls to bring anywhere from $1000 to $2000 apiece retail. In fact, one of the most treasured possessions of a woman of means was a camel's hair or a cashmere shawl, which was purchased at a fabulous price and worn only on very special occasions.

Originally most of them came from India. They were made of camel's hair and consisted of many small pieces sewed together in different patterns about a white or black centre. At a later date these oriental shawls were copied in France, where, under the style of broche shawls, some very clever imitations of the original productions were made.

England took them up and in a very short time Paisley in Scotland became famous as a shawl centre, and the Pais. ley shawl assumed a prominent part in the shawl business. In this country the finer types of shawls were depart-ed from and a large number of medium and low priced shawls were offered, of which great quantities were sold.

The fine Indian, broche and Paisley shawls are absolutely a thing of the past, and there is no market for them whatever. Here and there they may he picked up at what would seem a ridiculous price compared with the price they brought originally, and they are cut up as trimmings for suits and dresses and little trinkets, such as bags and belts. In fact, the shawl business in this country has narrowed itself in shade to brown, black and grey, with occa-sional Scotch plaids and high colors and flaming tartans for the Indian trade. The government purchases about 70,000 shawls a year for the Indian department. In addition to this, it is said the Indians buy a good many shawls themselves from independent dealers Almost without any modification the statement can be made that the shawl business has gone west and that Chicago is the shawl centre of this country to-day. In certain sections of the west and among certain classes of people the shawl is still used to a con-siderable extent. In the east Pennsylvania is regarded as a fair shawl state due to the mining colonies but with

"Watch WELLAND Grow"

Under this Slogan--the most remarkable offering in the most remarkable Town of Canada -- is now made.

Watch Welland Grow

In the past five years, without making any noise whatever, Welland has made itself the greatest manufacturing,

In another five years it is predicted that Welland will be the largest manufacturing town in all Canada—bar none. Welland's population four years ago was 1700. To-day it is between 6000 and 7000, and, as The Toronto World of Aug. 28, 1910, predicts, in five years more it will be 20,000.

Welland four years ago had one fac-tory. To-day it has twenty-five built or being built, and many more preparing to Welland is TO-DAY the Birmingham of Canada.

Welland has all the advantages necessary to attract manufacturers, and already has the industries which other towns have been striving for years unsuccessfully to secure.

Note Welland's Remarkable Record

Welland has doubled in population in Welland has secured in four years more Canadian branches of American manufacturing plants than any other city in Canada. Welland has the cheapest power in

Welland has more railroads—seven in number—and better transportation facilities than any other city in Can-

Welland has cheaper light and heat than any other city or town in Canada. Welland is the only town having all these advantages which also has water transportation, being located on the great Welland Canal—the gateway between the west and the east.

What Welland Offers Manufacturers

Welland presents to the manufacturer more advantages than any other city or town in Canada.

TRANSPORTATION — Seven railroad lines and the Welland Canal connecting with the Great Lakes.

POWER — Welland has the cheapest power in Canada. Think of this: In large quantities Niagara power is being sold in Welland to-day for $12.00 per horsepower. HEAT AND LIGHT — Abundance of natural gas at 30c per M., for either CONCESSIONS AND SITES - Cheap sites on railroad or canal, and liberal concessions from municipality.

Welland's Only Need

The only thing Welland needs at present is men. The factories now being built will need at least 5000. Welland needs workers for these immense plants, and needs them quick, for the industries are coming faster than the workers to

What Welland Offers Workers

Workers

Welland wants Workers, and offers them a residence in a growing city—where wages are good—where they can have a home and a large lot and a garden plot of their own—and where they can live in a district known everywhere as the "Garden of Canada."

If You want work—buy a lot, and put in your application with the Industrial Commissioner of Welland, stating fully your experience, the kind of a position you can fill, and your full qualifications. As soon as he can place you in the right position, he will notify you. Then when you are ready, and have paid for your lot, notify us and we hope to have made arrangements whereby we can build your house for a small amount down and the balance paid as rent.

As these lots should double in price in a year, buy two or more lots and sell one-half of them next summer, thus getting your holdings free.

What Is Offered Investors

Arrangements have been made for a permanent resident agent in Welland to look after the interests of our clients—to see that their property is improved properly or to arrange the sale of same if this is desired when values increase. If you do not care to live in Welland, buy lots for investment, as it is confidently believed that your money will double in twelve months, or, at the outside, in two years. In fact, in the face of the town's rapid growth, these lots should double in value each year for the next four years at least.

If you own lots in a dead or stagnant town, sell them and re-invest in Welland, where values should increase from 100 to 400 per cent. in a very short time.

You can make money faster in no other way.

For a speculative investment in property offering absolute security and immediate prospects of immense profits, there has probably never been a sale of lots in Canada offering greater oppor-

Strong Reasons for Confidence

Some of the greatest fortunes in the world have been made in Real Estate, and a good start for you on the road to independence and wealth is the purchase of one of these 25x120 lots in Welland—a city which you can watch grow over night.

Every statement we have made regarding Welland or our property is a FACT, which, if you wish to verify, we have the permission of referring you to the Industrial Commissioner of Welland.

Regarding Welland, the Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, says: "I regard Welland as being situated more favorably with its Power Facilities, Raliways and Canal, than any other town or city in Ontario, and this situation invites the establishment of the very largest industries. I believe with the utmost confidence that within a few years Welland's population should double and treble."

And in the face of this broad state-

And in the face of this broad statement there should be no hesitancy in our affirming that Welland is bound to be the greatest manufacturing city in the Dominion of Canada.

Some Special Inducements.

Immense Wealth of Imperial Family of China—Available for Defence.

While the Chinese government is poor and in financial straits, there remains the great wealth of the imperial family to be reckoned with. Over-looked by the allied troops, who ran-sacked the palace from end to end, the accumulated treasure of years lies untouched in the secret vaults over which the foreign soldiers lit their camp fires, unconscious of the wealth underneath.

THE ORE BODY.

The properties of the Company have been examined by a number of engineers from time to time and the consensus of opinion is that in size the ore body may be considered unique. Although not yet a producing mine, The Golden Rose is believed to be a Bonanza and the best prospect that Ontario has ever seen, and this belief is borne out by the figures obtained from careful, thorough sampling by mining engineers, and also from a large number of assays some of which only have been inserted here:

Gold per ton.

The above assays were made by Handley & Parker, Mining Engineers of Sudbury. An assay by Ladoux & Co., of New York, showed $26.45 per ton in gold, and one by Caldwell Cressey of Copper Cliff, Ontario, went Careful sampling by our engineers over a width of over 300 feet at the water's edge gives for pits Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, which are at the water's edge, an average of $31.20 per ton. The ore rises to a height of 80 feet above water level and indications point to the ore body extending down-above water level and indications point to the ore body extending downwards to a great depth.

The engineers of the Company consider that a value of $14.75 per ton may be safely taken as a general average for the amount of ore now in sight. According to the same authority this ore may be tested for $6.00 per ton, thus the net profit remaining is seen to be $8.75.

Taking the above figures as correct it will be seen that a plant designed to treat fifty tons of ore daily can be kept running for twenty years at an average daily profit of $400. This would aggregate a grand total of $125,200.00 per annum; equivalent to a return of 25 per cent. per annum on the Company's Capital of $500,000.00.

It is not considered that these figures are in any way exaggerated, as the margin of profit is ample to allow for increased treatment charges due to unforeseen causes, to allow of the establishment of a sinking fund

It is not considered that these figures are in any way exaggerated, as the margin of profit is ample to allow for increased treatment charges due to unforeseen causes, to allow of the establishment of a sinking fund to cover depreciation, and to place the Company on a thoroughly sound financial basis. Only a small area of the ore body has been stripped and the estimate of the engineers upon which the above figures are founded takes no account whatever of the covered portions of the property.

The maximum width of the ore body is three hundred feet and it has been traced clear across W.D. 154 to its eastern boundary, a distance of 1200 feet, and under the waters of Emerald Lake on the west side.

The dimensions of the ore body are immense and the average figure of $14.75 per ton ensures to the stockholder an enormous return on his capital investment. Furthermore, attention is directed to the fact that the largest original owners of the properties, notwithstanding the receipt by them from time to time of tempting cash offers for their lands, have nevertheless preferred to sell for stock in the Company without receiving one dollar in money.

As will be seen from the foregoing, after deducting the shares paid out for purchasing the properties, 200,000 shares of the capital stock remain to provide funds for development and otherwise carrying on the business of the Company, but the intention of the Directorate is to sell business of the Company, but the intention of the Directorate is to sell a small amount only of stock, confidently expecting that a producing mine will soon be developed, when not further sales will be required.

The Directors have accordingly decided to place but 50,000 shares of stock on the market to provide for the completion of the purchase under the terms of the option from William Crawford and for the development of the properties, including the placing of a small mill on the claims, as it is considered advisable at first to erect a small stamp mill and amalgamation plant which will be increased or modified at a later date by the addition of cyanide works or otherwise as experience may dictate. These 50,000 shares of Treasury stock, fully paid up and non-assessable, are offered for sale in blocks of not less than 25 shares at their par value of $1.00 per share, payable in cash at the time of subscription. The Directors may proceed to allotment of shares as soon as subscriptions have been received for one hundred shares of this stock. STATUTORY INFORMATION.

The Company was incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act by letters patent dated the 16th day of April, A.D. 1909, and is empowered to carry on in all its branches the operations of a mining, milling, reduction and development company, including the purchase and sale of mining properties.

The Company was organized more particularly with a view to acquiring and developing certain mining claims situated on Emerald Lake, locally known as the Edward Townsend and John Annes properties, and with this object in view an agreement, dated the 27th day of August, A.D. 1909, was entered into for the purchase of the interests in the properties hereinafter specified as having been purchased from Edward Townsend and John Annes. The parties to this agreement (a copy of which may be seen during business hours at the Head Office of the Company) were the said Edward Townsend and John Annes, and James K. MacLennan, acting as trustee for the company and after organization the agreement was adopted by the Company and after organization the agreement was adopted by the Company and the several purchases completed. The option from William Crawford hereinafter referred to, is dated the 2pd day of September, A.D. 1909, the parties to the same being the said William Crawford, John Haig Clark and Alexander H. Beath, of the Town of Sudbury, who have by agreement dated the 8th day of March. A.D. 1910, transferred all their interests in the said option to the Company. The said option, together with all other contracts, papers, and documents relating to the Company, as required by the Ontario Companies Act, will be open for inspection at any time during business hours at the Head Office of the Company at Sudbury, Ontario.

GOOD RETURNS ARE AVAILABLE. T. O. Anderson and Company say in their annual weekly letter: The To-ronto market refused to be governed by Wall Street for several days, but during the past week weakness has set in owing to the d esire among some of the speculative holders to realize. The buying power in the market has been scarcely sufficient to take care of this selling, and in consequence of the more speculative issues, such as Twin City. Rio, and Mackays. The distincted political situation disturbed political situation almost through the whole world is for the time being the prime reason for want of confidence in the securities marsets and the effect of this may be carried thru into the first part of the year. Cotton Gossip.

Analysis of the Giles report suggested an over-estimate, and there was less disposition to part with holdings at a concession. As a result prices firmed up, with business comparatively quiet. Unusually favorable conditions for the picking and marketing or cotton have convinced many that the percentage ginned to Dec. let will be close to that of the past two years, and that it will take a ginning of 10,100,000 or over to make a 12, 40,000 bale crop possible. We are now entering the period of anti-bureau liquidation, and irregularity is to be expected, but we do not look for extreme fluctuations. Would suggest sales on sharp bulges for moderate turns.

AUBURN, N.Y., Dec. 2.—Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University, speaking on "Progressive Policies" at the annual banquet of the Business Men's Association of this city, to-night, dreclaed that we need more light than we have to-day for the solution of our tariff problem. Mr. Schurman said:

"President Taft's tariff board will turn on the light. And we have never before in all the history of the country had such a provision for shedding the pure light of truth on the tariff question. This subject has been obscured by prejudice, by passion, by lanorance, and by conflicting interests.

"Our best economists, even those who are not free traders, believe that our present tariff duties are needlessly high, even on the principle of equalization of costs at home and abroad. The tariff board will be able to furnish us an impartial determination of this question.

"The general public certainty believe and this belief is one of the most vital and potent factors in modern politics, that the tariff confers a monopoly on certain trusts and enables them to control prices and to appress the consuming public. The tariff board should be able to tell us how far this accusation is justifiable and to recommend tariff amendments for the correction of such an intolerable evil.

"It is widely assumed that any reduction in a duty would entail a corresponding reduction in the price of the article. This may be said to be the view of the general public. Yet economic experts, who are not protectionists, have demonstrated over and over again that such a reduction of duties would not make possible a lowering of the prices." MONEY MARKETS,

"The Canadian Government takes an important part in handling the grain at this transhipping port. An act of parliament provides for the grading of the grain, and government inspectors pass on every carload in the assembling yard before it goes to the elevator for unloading. The grain has already passed one government inspection at the starting point, and the second inspection at the elevator terminal is performed to confirm the western grading. The inspectors are on hand again when the grain is shipped out. They watch the weighing and see that the grade is what is called for. It is quite possible that banking interest lent support around bottom, just as they did yesterday. If so, they probably favor a moderate rebound—it is reassuring to realize, as many people do not that fifty-eight Canadian stocks have advanced during the past year an average of 5.40 points, if thee Asbestos shares are left out of the calculation, says The Financial Post. Including these, the gain is 5.28 points. Of nineteen bank stocks, ten are up an average of 9 points each, four and unchanged, and five have declined an average of 4.6 points each, making the net average advance of the nineteen 3.9 points. It will be noticed on looking over a list that the banks which make up the decline of 23 points are among the most stable investment stocks. These have suffered in common with municipal bonds. The chief advances have been caused by dividend increases.

Talking Cure

Why are people who are much alone apt to get depressed and sad? Simply because they don't talk enough. "The more you talk-in reason, of course-the fitter, and, therefore, the more cheerful, you will be," said a doctor who has studied the subject. "You can see this in everyday life. The cheerful, hail-fellow-well-met man is the man who talks and goes on talking. Don't be misled by the idea that people talk because they are cheerful. They are cheerful because they talk.

"The reason is simple enough. The talking apparatus is, of course, connected with the brain. When you talk you stir up, by means of the connect-

Broadviews Score First.

First Half.—Thistles won the tose and chose to play down field. They started off with a nice combination of the first of the strong and played nicely on the defence. Five minutes after the game commenced Stroadviews began to assume the aggressive, and kept the ball almost continuously in Thistle territory, and Dunbar, the blue and white goalkeeper, saved some dangerous shote. The attack, however, became too streinuous for Thistles, at this stage, and Chanler stoceeded in scoring, after Dunbar had made several attempts to get the ball out of goal. The play now assumed a somewhat different aspect, and Thistle bad the better of the Dine making some determined rushes on the spendid long disance shots on goal made by the Broadview Mil Out.

DIAMONDS

for Xmas. Our last shipment for this year has just arrived, 100 carats, of snappy, pure, sparkling, first-quality diamonds, each stone being warranted to be absolutely free from any flaw or imperfection of any nature whatever, and remember not to confound these beautiful, perfect stones with those being offered as just as good elsewhere.

Diamonds Enter Canada Duty Free

and being consolidated with Antwerp diamond cutters, and selling the diamonds direct to the public, we can offer you strictly flawless stones at prices others charge for imperfect stones. Carefully study this list of weights and prices, and try to duplicate these elsewhere. Don't be skeptical or prejudiced; it will cost you money if you are.

These diamonds are guaranteed to be of the finest select quality. Written guarantee with each diamond to refund money any time, found different from represented.

We guarantee to allow you full purchase price at any time in exchange for larger diamond.

We are the only dealers in the city who advertise exact weights and prices of perfect stones. Why don't others do so? There must be a reason. Come in and examine these gems before buying: it will pay you well, why pay for a name? Our system of retailing diamonds should convince fair-minded people that we can do all we claim.

Chicago's annual fat stock show and international stock exposition, the biggest event of its kind ever given, was opened on Saturday in the International Amphitheatre and twenty adjoining buildings at the Union Stock Yards. A total of 4355 animals have been registered for the event, and are on display. They include, exclusive of car load lot divisions, 1194 cattle. 1191 horses, 1163 sheep, and 307 hogs.

Pully 250,000 visitors go to Chicago for the event.

The students' judging contest, in which colleges, in twelve states, and with two in Canada, were represented, was the initial event. The work was done between 9 a.m. and noon in the ring, which in the afternoon and evening was given over to the horse show program.

"Apart from the international horse show record of Cavadian representation," said Superintendent Heide, "the live stock show probably affords patrons one of the best displays of draft animals Canada ever has made outside the Dominion confines. Some of the Canadian breeders who nominated big displays of hunters for the horse show have shipped almost as many cardidates for the blue ribbons in the equine section of this live stock show. The international scope of the exposition is one of the big stimulants to this Canadian rivalry. In no other city in all the world are the conditions so favorable for a record-breaking display, not only of prize draft horses, but for blue ribbon cattle, sheep and hogs."

similar to the Harrison Baths be 'ni't in different parts of the city, but with-out a swimming tank in connection, out a swimming tank in connection, being equipped for washing purposes

This is surely a mistake. To encourage personal cleanliness among those without facilities at home is very laudable and necessary, but some consideration should also be given to the far greater majority able to keep clean without the necessity of patronizing a public bathhouse, but who would greatly relish a swim, and for eight months in the year, the indoor swinding bath is the only place in which the swimmer can indulge in his favorite paratime. As evidence of the popularity of swimming in Total ronto the surprising number of 50,547 paid for admission to the tank at the ingrison Baths during the past year, thus according to The New York Heraid.

Beyond doubt, the majority of the bathers who habitually use the Harrison Baths are those who live in the district centred by Queen and McCauistreets, and the gratifying success of the bath is a sufficient guarantee that bath's opened in other parts of the city would be equally well patronized.

There is no form of sport so necession one's sef-preservation as o one's sef-preservation as swimming; then apart from its usa-fulness, it is generally conceded that fulness, it is generally concern that there is no exercise more healthful or enjoyable, and every encouragement and facility should be given to those who wish to learn or enjoy its practice. For educational value one of the finest object lessons that can be had is to see experts perform in the water, and the need of a larger bath with better and commodation for both spectators and swimmers was very apparent at the en-Royal Life Saving Society, when it was found impossible to accommodate all those who sought admission, and in consequence, some hundreds were turn-

The proper course would therefore appear to be to make the swimming bath the main feature of the proposed new bathhouses, including swimming accommodations for ladies, for which Canadians appear to have done exceptionally well at the International Live Stock Show, Chicago, held durins the past two weeks. In the cattle, sheep and swine sections they did fairly well, but in the heavy horee classes wherever there was competition the Canadians came out first best. Take, for instance, the Clydes entered by Graham Bros., Claremont. Whereas in former years they have always had a measure of success, this year they were not only winners in every class, but captured all the championships going, and a number of specials. Friday, December 8:—At the Brock.

Friday, December 9:-At the Repos itory, Simcoe-street, 125 horses of all classes. This is announced as bargain day at The Repository.

The Crown Attorney's Bargain. Mr. W. Seymour Corley, County

Crown Attorney, is to be congratulated on securing a bargain and to be comon securing a bargain and to be compilmented on his perspicacity in setzing the opportunity. The "bargain" in duestion is one of the best road horses. Mr. Pat Maher, of Maher's Horse Exchange, Bloor-street east, has ever passed thru his hands. Mr. Corley's purchase is standard bred, a bright bay with black points, 5 years old, 15.3 in height and can travel the road at a 2.40 clip. He is perfectly broken and of a type that is exceptionally hard to get, for unhappily such animals are not being bred in any marked quantity. HAS CUT ITS MELON.

TISDALL'S FACTORY-TO-POCKET JEWELRY STORE IS TORONTO'S FAVORITE STORE FOR HOLIDAY SHOPPING

WE keep abreast of modern methods by manufacturing our own jewelry, and selling it direct to you, thereby enabling you to save all middlemen's profits.

Months of preparation in our modern Jewelry Factory have enabled us to present jewelry of our own manufacture, in great variety. Our exquisite designs, and the massive rich and dignified treatment of our jewelry, would justify prices considerably higher than we quote, but our Factory to Pocket method enables us to offer special inducements, and you will find here a display that will appeal to all who are planning for the most suitable and acceptable Xmas gifts. Discriminating people have learned that Tisdall's is the "store of satisfaction." They know also that nowhere else will be found such splendid stock of Watches, Diamonds, Jewelry and kindred lines, at such low prices. Herewith is a partial list of beautiful and inexpensive Jewelry, the kind that is always in great demand.

this house, which was built for Mrs. M. E. Webb on Lynnwood-avenue, makes a handsome residence and possesses some novel features. It has been designed with good proportions, and while it can hardly be said that it is an example of any style in particular yet it bears the influence of English work in its detail. It is decidedly "original" and a splendid example of the architect's inventive genius.

The coloring is a pretty blending of browns, and is made attractive with a frieze of stucco and brown timbered work. The low-h: ,ing roof, which reminds one of a bungalow, is largely responsible for the interest in this house. You may notice, em hasized by the hips, how the roof lines round off to the eaves. This is done to imitate the outline of a thatched roof. In some of the southern countries the natives roofed their huts and cottages with a thatching made up of rush reeds and sheaves of straw, interwoven to a thickness of twelve to eighteen inches, and the tops naturally rounded off to the edges. This may have presented quite a rude and primitive appearance, but unmistakaly conveyed the true impression of a shelter or resting-place.

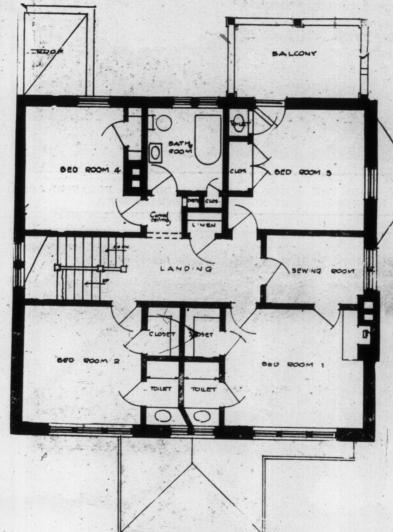

The plan presents an interesting arrangement of rooms. The general fitting in of the kitchen, pantry and closet spaces is especially worthy of mention, and the washrooms, with of red brick, with white joints, and running water, adjoining the bed- a very neat plaster cornice. rooms are a convenience. Women live with thin, scrawny, undersized, insignificant, bald husbands. They praise those husbands constantly. If he can't grow a beard, then the wife hates a beard. If he has a beard like the mane of a roar lion, then the wife thinks the beard is "somanly." If the husband is bald, the wife thinks that is a sign of brains and refinement, or she says she thinks so. She even points out the fact that woman!

She even points out the fact that burglars are never bald!

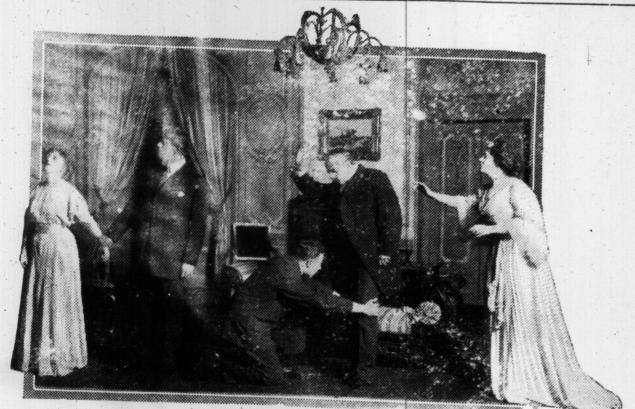

If the husband is a thin-legged, narrow-shouldered little person, the wife hates "mere brute strength." If the husband is as strong as a prize-fighter, then the wife studies up the histories of strong men like Hercules, and is always asking the husband in public to double up his arm and let public to double up his arm and let

The Boys Take a Run in the Woods, but Foxy Grandpa and Little Brother Get Busy and Welcome Them on Their Return,

1. BOYS—Gran'pa, we are tired sitting on this old lumber pile. We are going into the woods to see if we can't find something more exciting.

2. BOYS—The very thing! We will build a wigwam out of this old brush-wood and surprise Gran'pa and Little Brother.

3. GRANDPA—It's lucky I followed the boys, baby. They are going to try and surprise us, so we must get busy and be ready for them.

4. BOYS-Won't Gran'pa and baby think we are wonders when they see this!

6. GRANDPA—Dear me! Why, here you are, boys! What a long time you have been away!

You may have heard of a prurient prude, but how about the World advocating that appliances used termined to go to any lengths to acas poisons and their sale prohibited except by special order from a physician. These ladies would tacitly encourage secret practices, yes, secret vice, for it is as certain as day follows the night if it were not for the ease with which these things are procured there would not be half the looseness of character there is. There is the best of reasons for believing that even physicians are too complacent in such matters but it isn't every man and every woman that can get the ear of a doctor and, therefore, with his certificate a necessity before the sale of such articles there would assuredly be less recklessness on the part of the vicious-minded. The prudential prude may not see the thing this way, or perhaps her prudentiallyty is more apparent on occasions than her prudeness.

A lady correspondent of the good Globe urges: Canadians to spend the winter in the West Indies. I would their end. And why not? The solverest part of creation are the women. The ordinary, every-day woman does not drink nor leisure to the same extent as the man, but she toils to a far greater exitent. Her work, her solictude are never done. Why then should she be deprived of the franchise. Is it that she may be too radical in her methods? Is it that she may be too radical in her methods? Is it that she may be too radical in her methods? Is it that she may be too radical in her first question is that her methods will be for the common good as she sees it. Her life, proves that. The second question if answered in the way it is put simply suggests that she will act as the presumed superior being desires. In either case there can be no objection to her having the franchise. These, it must be understood, are my own private opinions and not those of the paper in which they appear. I believe in female franchise and believe that being granted it will be used for the common good as the sees it.

It is announced that England will be unable to send a representative poloteam to America in 1911. This is the opinion of Revy Grenfell, captain of the Ranelash teamy that met some of the strongest Yankee players lant summer. Mr. Grenfell sald for England recently, and in speaking of the polo team of which Harry Fayne Whitney is the captain, and which brought the international cup to America: "We cannot beat the Medow Brook team, but we will sive them a good game." Granfell was enthusiastic over the treatment whith the American delighted to learn that the American below the same time he doubted if anything really tangible would eventuate from the proposition.

Do the ears stand out from the ead, as small sails driven by a strong head, as small sails driven by a strong wind? There is the device of the small tight cap made of perforated cloth, and strengthened by transverse stitched bands. These perfectly ven-tilated caps hold the ears well back against the head, but permit a perfect passage of air through the hair. These ear-training caps are admirable aids for the baby with bat-like ears.

Acting Upon An Inspiration

When you rise from reading a great book that has inspired you to better and greater things, then is the time to set down in writing your new-made resolutions and to put at least some part of them into immediate practice. Perhaps you have decided to seek a higher place among your fellowmen? Then go out among them, prepared to render service. Be interested in their welfare, and give to them freely of your sympathy and cheerfulness. Cultivate a true-hearted and intelligent optimism toward every one. Carry in your voice and manner a message of hope and good-will, and give what you can without thought of receiving.

Possibly you have determined to employ your time to better advantage. Begin, then, to do so to-day. Have a definite program. Be economical of the little spare moments that are so easily frittered away. When a thing is to be done, do not merely survey it, or worry about it, but begin at once and keep at it until it is done. If you are interrupted, excuse yourself as soon as possible, and apply your time and energies with increased diligence. Work daily toward larger and more important things. Think of nothing as being too high or too great for your ambition. Resolve to waste no time. Outside of your regular calling, devote yourself earnestly to studies and recreations that upbuild, strengthen and fit you for larger pursuits.

Perhaps you have resolved to develop more courage and independence. Stand up at once, lift your chest high and full into the attitude of the man you would be. Look the next person you meet straight in the eyes, and, as you talk to him, put earnestness and conviction into every word you utter. Think of yourself as a strong, energetic, cheerful, positive character, while all the time endeavoring to express these qualities in your face, voice, words, manner, walk and daily life.—From "How to Develop Self-Confidence," by Grenville Kleiser.

Remarkable Success of Plan of Mrs. Humphry Ward, the English Novelist.

By Walter Rellins.

There is no English novelist so pervergely unapprecised in England as Mrs. Humphry Ward. Not long ago I heard Hilairs Belice, who with the assistance of Father Andrew Lang Post, remark to himself. "Oh, yes, they read Mrs. Ward in America, I am to prove the perceability of our literary taste, conclude their argument with: "But what can you expect of a nation that reads Mrs. Ward!" She seems to be regarded here as a Marie Corelli trying to be George Eliot.

This lofty, literary condemnation is nothing, however, to the slanders which the suffragettes have circulated; "the things they say" can be described best as "real mean." Mrs. Ward, like everyone eise in the world, did not foresee in its beginning that the suffrage movement would attain the foothold it has in England. In spite of the fact that her sympathies are and always have been anti-suffrage, she is now accused of regretting her affiliation with the anti-suffragettes. Petty accusations of this kind are unanswvrable. Nevertheless the spiendid work Mrs. Ward has done for the poor children of London makes ninety-nine per cent of the suffragettes have close unanswvrable. bcoks, might not turn out to be related to the Lechinvar family. At any rate, the story, in spite of a technical lameness, is worth reading, and the author has that in him which will bear watching. Taken at its surface meaning the novel is the story of an qegotistical ne'er-do-well's return to his rich father's Chicago home; his sardonic play with the conflicting interests and personalities of its inmates; and his contemptuous showing up of their real selves to their unwilling eyes. Read between the lines it is at once a parable and a prophecy. In fact, there is a certain resemblance between "My Brother's Keeper" and Mr. Jerome's "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" and Mr. Kennedy's "The Servant in the House." Only while both of these plays were intended to recall to a forgetful generation the supernatural origin, divine nature and pliant strength of the Christ spirit among men, Mr. Jackson's story is meant to outline and foretell the despised sources, the grim human nature and the resistless march of that Spirit of Service that is somehow (by growth rather than by revelation) beginning to enter into the consciousness of mankind.—J. W. O. Forsyth Receives Cordial Letter From Noted Pianist-Conductor-Recommended to Concert Players.

An Acquisition

Toronto is becoming more and more a musical centre and many noted musicians are making their homes here. Among the most recent of these is Mr. Oscar Goldschmidt, late conductor of the Royal Opera, Cassel, Germany.

Mr. Goldschmidt has been with Henry Savage as conductor. He is a nephew of Jenny Lind the famous singer. He specializes in planoforte and theory, coaching for grand and light opera, song interpretation and lectures with musical illustrations.

Mr. Goldschmidt has decided to settle in Toronto and will introduce himself to the musical people of the city by a lecture on Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," on December 8, under the auspices of the Women's Musical Ciub of Toronto.

The Women's Musical Ciub of Toronto provided a treat for the music lovers of the city when they brought the famous Flonzaley Quartet here for a concert which took place on Monday evening, November 28.

This quartet is perhaps the most tamous chamber music organization in existence and their work has received great praise from the most critical of American and continental audiences.

Innes - Taylor Recital Good House Certain

One of the most interesting vocal recitals that have taken place this season was that of Madame Kathryn Innes-Taylor at the Conservatory Music Hall on Saturday, November 26.

Madam Nordica's recent Wagnerian performances at the Paris Opera, have been such an overwhelming success and occasioned such a sensation that the great prima donna was obliged to postpone her home-sailing date, as she acceded to the urgent demand of the opera directors for two additional performances of "Tristan and Isolde," the first of which was given November 7. The great interest which has been aroused in Germany as a result of the diva's Parisian triumph is evidenced by the special invitation of His Majesty, Emperor William, for Nordica to sing "Isolde" at the Berlin Royal Opera. The invitation was conveyed to Madam Nordica thru Baron Hulsen.

Player Piano Recital

An interesting Player Plano recital, the first of a series to be given during the winter, was held in Povember 22 at the Recital Ham of the R. S. Williams Company, Yonge Street. Mr. Birdsall officiated at the Player Plano and the wonderfully beautiful effects which he obtained should be sufficient argument against those who maintain that the Player Plano is a mechanical device.

In an instrument of this kind the tempo and expression is absolutely under the control of the player and he is able to render the music in any way which he feels inclined. Mr. Rhynd Jamieson, the well-known baritone, sang several songs to a Player Plano accompaniment in a most artistic way.

For National Chorus

Miss Margaret Keyes and Mile.

Innes-Taylor at the Conservatory Music Hall on Saturday, November 26.

Madame Innes-Taylor's voice is a beautiful, clear soprano, thoroly trained and always under perfect control. The program consisted of old French. English and Irish songs. Her excellent interpretation of the sentiment expressed in her different numbers was particularly noticeable. In Pierne's "Le Moulin" she scored her greatest triumph. Among the English numbers "Nymphs and Shepherds" was noticeable.

Madame Innes-Taylor has an excellent stage presence and a great deal of magnetism and charm of manner. The assisting artist, Miss Grace Smith, once again proved her mastery of the plano. She also selected her program from among the more ancient composers.

The audience was very large and the reception they accorded to both Madame Innes-Taylor and her assisting artist was most cordial.

Cadogan determined no more than that Cedar Island seemed to enjoy an extremely exposed position and to have no immediate neighbors.

The schooner bore down upon the line of breakers at express speed. As it drew nearer and yet more near without being permitted by the girl at the wheel to deviate a handbreadth from its course Cadogan became alarmed. He glanced once or twice, apprehensively, toward her, but she

"Hard-a-lee! Mind your head, Mr. Cadogan!"

Stuperfied with astonishment, he needed the warning. He ducked barely in time as the girl put the wheel down hard and the great boom came swinging athwartships. When, immediately he lifted his head, the Colleen, her mad momentum checked by the sudden turn about, was gliding slowly to a standment, was gliding slowly to a standwartship waters so calm that by contrast they seemed like a shallow pond.

He was unpleasantly aware of the stiffness of his speech, but she glossed it with sympathy and understanding, prettily relieving his embarrassment.

On the other hand, there was no particular excuse for the sather respiendent get-up which he had assumed, finally and after some deliberation, when he stepped into the Colleen's dory to be rowed ashore by Creagh. the two evils. The other thinks life imprisonment worse than many deaths.

This interests us all, for although the thoughtful judges did not mention the fact, they, and all other human beings, are life prisoners, fastened to this earth, condemned to hard labor and anxiety.

And the fact that we are here, the fact that the two wise judges are here in spite of accumulated years and presumable disappointments, is proof that human beings, with few morbid exceptions, infinitely prefer life imprisonment to death.

We all have our choice, to stay on, struggle, worry and wait for the inevitable, or after the fashion of some of the old Greeks and Romans, to say, "I have had enough of life," and then get out of it.

The life prisoner whom the judge sends to the penitentiary is, of course, infinitely more unhappy than the life prisoner roaming around the earth as he will. The prisoner in jail has some advantages over the free prisoner outside.

There is no rent day in jail, no butcher's bill, no lack of employment, no worry about providing for the future or the high cost of living. All that is settled by the iron rule of

But there is also no opportunity in jail to exercise the instinctive ambitions, desires and

And the thwarting of the instincts that eternal wisdom has planted in man for his direction and improvement is that which makes life imprisonment in the penitentiary

On the other hand, man, a prisoner here on earth, nearly always unhappy, and always dissatisfied, still struggles on, hoping to find happiness. This is due to his power to exercise and satisfy, partially at least, the passions and attractions within him. And to do that work FOR WHICH HE WAS PUT

Every little baby that arrives on this planet, from mysterious "somewhere," is a human creature condemned at birth to life imprisonment on this planet.

It arrives here struggling, red in the face, and usually begins screaming and protesting -most wisely.

Once here, its sorrows promptly begin in this round prison house. It has stomach aches. its highly intelligent grunts and cries are not understood. Pins stick into it. Foolish giants tease it, play with it, and tire it. Then it becomes a child, and other sorrows come, and next, when almost grown, new sorrows, sentimental, romantic, visionary, afflict it.

Then it is full grown, and all the curses and iribulations of life imprisonment on earth accumulate rapidly.

Yet, this life prisoner hangs on to his prison and to his life. He is not only under sentence lso under sentence here on this earth—BECAUSE HE MUST and the better he does his work the more patiently and intelligently he strives, the more rapidly he will bring about that progress which ultimately will make of this prison house a real paradise, in which men will live far beyond the century mark, and in which they will find true happiness and freedom from to-day's worries.

In the prison that man builds the guardians are men and forces OUTSIDE OF THE

There is the high stone wall, which says, You must not go out!"—and he doesn't even ry. There are the jailers, and the warden, and the rules of the prison that say, "You must eat, whether you will or not. If you try to starve yourself, we will force down the food." There is the law which says "You shall not kill yourself here, you shall have no tool with which you could end your life, for your sentence is to STAY here until you die naturally, and you shall not dodge your sentence." It is different outside in the great earth prison in which the human race lives, paying the penalty of its sins, mistakes and savagery, always struggling and slowly improving. We are sent here to do a real work-apart from the gratification of our own selfish desires. Can anybody doubt that? Suppose that you were the ruler of this universe, sitting somewhere in space, endless billions of miles off. Suppose that you ruled millions and millions of suns, with the planets circling around them. This earth is one of the very smallest among those planets; there are suns one million times as great as our sun.

Infinite power and wisdom would, of course, enable you to see the tiny little human insects glued to the little planet. You would pity them, you would give them what they needed and especially the faculty to develop, BY CARING FOR THEMSELVES. But if you owned both this beautiful earth and the human race on it, wouldn't you be at least as much interested in the BARTH as in the human beings

If you have a garden and a gardener at work, you have sympathetic and kind feeling for your gardener. YOU ARE ALSO IN. TERESTED IN YOUR GARDEN.

This earth is one of endless billions of gardens floating in space. It must be cultivated, taken care of, beautified, made perfect. And for that men are here. That is why they are suffering life imprisonment here. They do not do this without a reward. For doing their work properly here they in the end will find absolute happiness, absolute gratification of all their desires here on the earth. Perfection for themselves and their planet HERE, greater and different joys hereafter.

And notice how well the work of controlling free to go. The ocean, the lake, the river are there, and we can all jump in if we choose. There are no walls that hold us, no armed guards-yet we stay.

Within our own consciousness, our own souls, we have the guards, the rules, the stone walls-far more efficient than any invented by prison authorities.

The chief warden that keeps us here is 'THE WILL TO LIVE," which is the strongest instinct in men, especially strong in primitive men that suffer most from nature's rough-

We are ruled, not by outside visible forces, but by forces put within us, put in every child long before its birth, hanging on desperately into extreme old age, sickness and suffering. There are three things that man must do here to carry out his destiny and to obey the will of the eternal laws that rule the universe. First, he must live and STAY here. He stays, because the instinct of self-preservation, with its unreasoning horror of death, keeps him here, no matter how much he may suffer. You will find a leper, half eaten with his disease, clinging to life in his hut more desperately perhaps than the rich man in his mansion with servants to wait upon him and every conceivable facility for weakening his desires by over-indulgence.

You will find the idiot, unable to talk, reason apparently gone, still fighting against death and clinging to life as ardently as the most active man. Wonderfully efficient is that guardian which keeps us life prisoners, clinging to our task and to our prison here.

That will to live is the first great instinct put in men to keep them here while the earth imperfect, ancomfortable.

Next in importance, after men consent to live here and do their work, is that they should leave others to carry on the work when they are gone And therefore the instinct of PA-TERNITY, of the family, is the second strong instinct in primitive man-which means the man of past ages and the man of to-day-FOR MAN IN THE MASS IS STILL PRIMITIVE.

And the third instinct, that which is weakest in man thus far, and that which will ultimately be the strongest and the ruling instinct in all human beings, is the instinct of AMBI-TION. This is the instinct which can scarcely be defined, which pushes man on to all of his achievements, beyond the mere activities of eating and drinking, keeping himself alive and finding a wife.

It was ambition that made the first men decorate their heads with sheep's fat, and put pieces of bone or wood through their ears and noses. The same ambition that made Napoleon take the crown from the Pope and put it on his own head, decorating himself at the same time with a long velvet cloak lined with ermine, was not different essentially from the ambition that makes the cannibal king wear the stovepipe hat of the missionary that he has eaten.

Ambition is the desire for change the desire for achievement, THE DESIRE TO DO SOMETHING

These three instincts, expressions of human will, or primary passions, whatever you may choose to call them, are our guardians, educators, protectors and developers here in our prison, which is destined to become an earth-The instinct of self-preservation KEEPS us here. It kept men struggling, hanging on to life, when they lived in swamps, in caves, cold, miserable, scattered, living the life of wild beasts. It keeps the intelligent educated man here, hanging on to life, even when he knows that his work is done, when disease has claimed him, and there is nothing but suffering ahead for him, and trouble for his

The instinct of the family has kept the race constantly growing. The other tribes of animals are falling off on this earth. The most powerful are going first, the lions and the tigers and the elephants and the bisons-they all disappear—but man multiplies always, growing in millions and tens of millions. The instinct of the family attends to that.

The instinct of ambition, the noblest instinct in man, has kept him constantly going ahead. It has moved him from a miserable hole in the ground to an enormous forty-story steel skyscraper. It has changed him from the savage, watching for fish in the canoe burned out of a log, to a very much higher savage, in a steamship eight hundred feet long, crossing the ocean to other lands, borrowing hundreds of millions there and coming back to stretch railroads across this

The instinct of ambition has changed man from a savage, cruel, brutal, superstitious, into the average man of to-day, almost human, willing to help others when he is SURE that he has more than he needs for himself.

This ambition in the end will make of the human race really civilized beings-many centuries from now probably. But it will conse—when the LOWEST man living on this earth shall be as high in education, in kind-ness and in unselfishness as the BEST man that has ever lived here thus far. That will be the beginning of real civilization

This has taken us a long distance from the question discussed by the learned judges, "Is death more to be dreaded than life imprison-

Humanity's "life imprisonment" on this earth is reary enough thus far for the majority.

The man who can be indifferent to the sufferings f the millions around him is not really human, and what he calls happiness is really the happiness of the brute with its feet in the trough. The man or woman who knows what other human beings auffor.

Do Men Fear Death More Than Life Imprisonment? Of Course They Do. For We Are All "Life Prisoners" on This Earth, and We All Fight Against Death to the Last Moment.

who realizes the poverty, hopelessness and anxiety that crush a majority of humanity, cannot be happy

But that will change. It will change when the

But that will change. It will change when the three instincts that control men are REVERSED in their power—when that which is now the weakest shall have become the strongest.

With the exception of a few millions of human beings possibly out of the earth's total population of fifteen hundred millions, men will sacrifice anything to save their own lives. Once his own life is safe, a savage man will sacrifice anything, else to the welfare of his wife and family and his clan. Last of all comes his ambition.

Last of all comes his ambition.

Under real civilization this will be reversed. Man will sacrifice everything to his ambition—that is to say, to his sense of duty to the human race as a

Next will come his family, which means simply the perpetuation of his own individuality, and last of all his own life.

Religion properly understood in the future, and based upon the great religious truths of to-day, will bring about this change. Already we see it coming. The slightest knowledge of history shows that man has hitherto interpreted religion to mean that he must first of all TAKE CARE OF HIS OWN INDIVIDUAL, UNIMPORTANT SOUL. He must do everything that he can to keep HIS soul safe and everything that he can to keep HIS soul safe and happy, to land it in the happy hunting ground of the Indians or in the Nirvana of those that follow Gautama or in the idealized celestial dive imagined by

"First," says selfish man, "MY soul must be looked after, and then we'll think about the others." That will change under the influence of true religion. Men will realize that the race is all one, and that the individual is nothing compared with that entire

As for the question of the learned judge, "Is life mprisonment worse than death?" our answer is:

Men are wound up, constructed, inwardly impelled Men are wound up, constructed, inwardly impelled in a certain way before they reach this earth. And they are wound up in a way that makes them want to STAY here. And that desire TO STAY lasts in prison and out of prison.

Therefore man prefers life imprisonment to death because he can't help himself.

Even among those that used to be tortured n the old days, undergoing excruciating suffering, only a minority used to beg that their lives be ended—and probably a majority of that minority didn't mean it. We cling to life in our prison, big or little, because the wisdom above us wills that we shall live, and MAKES US will to live.

Goldwin Smith's Quarrel With Disraeli.

McClure's Magazine for this month contains the third instalment of Go'dwin Smith's Reminiscences. It is of exceptional interest, both peronal and historical, since it gives some of his recollections of great Engshmen in that inimitable style which was peculiarly his own. Goldin Smith, by natural bent and acquired conviction, was a philosophical iberal in politics, and this, together with his connection with journalm and his Eton and social connections led to intimacy with some put en, with the Peelite circle at first and afterwards with Bright, Cobden nd the Manchester school. "Peel himself," he adds, "was always the object of my political allegiance. I saw in him a statesman, in his later days at all events, above party, who sought and studied with singleness of heart the good of the whole nation; and, tho I had less respect for some venerable institutions than he had, I recognized his wisdom in preferring lministrative reform, which he steadfastly pursued, to organic change.

Goldwin Smith's admiration for Sir Robert Peel and his sympathy with the later phases of that distinguished statesman's policy, particularly that which included the repeal of the Corn Laws, and the ultimate adoption of free trade for the United Kingdom, led directly to the affair with Distaeli which always rankled in his memory. Interest in Distaeli has been revived by the recent publication of the first volume of his biography, which, however, only brings his astonishing career down to his entrance into the House of Commons. To Goldwin Smith's mind, Disraeli had, in reality, no great difficulties to overcome. In this estimate, he is probably correct, the it is certain that for many years the man who had early determined to become prime minister, and achieved his ambition, was heavily in debt and lived for years in imminent peril of being committed to the Fleet. Starting as a Radical, he entered parliament as a Conservative, and seized the opportunity offered by Peel's adoption of the free corn policy to become the spokesman and later the leader of Disraeli came into political prominence by his envenomed personal attacks on Peel, who, however, as Goldwin Smith notes, showed such indifference that he once only stooped to take cursory notice of them. In connection with the current story that Peel wanted to send Disraeli a challenge for something said by the latter during one of the Corn Law debates, Goldwin Smith explains that Peel's quarrel was really with Lord George Bentinck. Bentinck, whose biography Disraeli wrote, was leader of the protectionist party, and the story of the challenge was given by the Duke of Newcastle to Goldwin Smith, and prompted the enquiry why Peel fe't so much a blow from Bentinck's bludgeon while so indifferent to Disraeli's poinard. "The duke's answer was that, calling at Peel's house on his way to the House of Commons, he had been shown by Peel, who took it from his bag, a letter from Disraeli asking place. That he had ever asked Peel for place Disraeli in the House of Commons de-nied. The letter which proves that he lied is now published by Mr. Charles Parker-and most abject it is."

Goldwin Smith had full liberty from the Duke of Newcastle to use the fact which he also became cognizant of thru the proposal that he should undertake to write a projected life of Peel. His inspection of Peel's correspondence was confidential, and he refrained from embarrassing the literary executors. "Thus the fact remained unknown till after a long delay, caused by various accidents. Peel's correspondence saw the light. To me." writes Goldwin Smith, "however it was well known what the man was who was making his gambling table of my country. I do not fee! that I did right in keeping the secret. Divulged, it might have averted mischief; but Peel had kept it." It says much for the high sense of honor characteristic of the highest stamp of British public men that an incident of which such advantage could have been taken only became known long after those immediately concerned had passed away. Equally creditable to Goldwin Smith is his silence, even after Disraeli's gross slander upon him in "Lothair," published in 1870, after he had crossed the

That remarkable novel, by the way, met with one of the severest criticisms ever penned in the columns of that staunch Conservative periodical Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine. The reviewer described "Lothair" as the kind of novel that would be written by "a madman in plush breeches," and otherwise tore it to pieces in the most aproved style of the redoubtable Maga. But to return to the attack on Goldwin Smith. who figured in the book in the guise of an Oxford professor on the point of going to the United States. He was branded as "a social sycophant." but Goldwin Smith promptly gave Disraeli the lie, "and neither he nor any of his organs ever ventured to repeat the calumny. Surely nothing," Goldwin Smith, after the lapse of years, indignantly protests, "can be more dastard'y than an attack on character under cover of a pseudonym. However false and malicious the slander may be the person attacked cannot repel it without seeming to recognize its aptitude."

Some years ago a flaring advertisement appeared in another Toronto newspaper of a new edition of Disraeli's novels, with "official key" to the allusions. Knowing that one of the allusions was to himself. Goldwin Smith thought it right to send a letter to The World, placing a contradiction on record. "It is possible," he wrote, "that the matter may pass without notice here. But, in case it should be noticed. I put my contradiction in your hands." The Wor'd has kept the letter and has now pleasure in placing it on record. But no one who knew Goldwin Smith needs his contradiction to avouch his entire freedom from the stigma he repulsed. It was indeed far more attributable to the man who forced his way into politics as he did into society. Goldwin Smith says that Disraeli's "cleverness nobody denies. It was shown by leading the gentlemen of England out of the path of honor. But his whole course was one of manoeuvring with a selfish aim. Long as was his career, not one good measure of importance bears his name. Nor in his speeches is there anything high or noble, anything that can be quoted for its sentiment, anything that shows genius, unless it be the genius of the literary stabber." So, when all have departed, comes the end of an o'd quarrel whose beginning few living remember. Goldwin Smith being dead yet speaketh and his is the last word.

Debate on the Navy

Since the opening of parliament two weeks ago, the house of commons Poetrythat Lives has been making much ado about the creation of the Canadian navy, and the debate on the a dress in reply to the speech from the throne has selgone beyond that topic. It would appear to most independent men that the position of the government on that question is a reasonable one. Nearly two years ago, when the German war scare was at its height, Mr. Foster was one of the first to come forward I have been laughing, I have been carwith a policy, which he announced in a resolution that "Canada should no Drinking late, sitting late, with my be longer delay in assuming her proper share of the responsibility and financial burden incident to the suitable protection of her exposed coast line and great seaports."

That apeared to be good doctrine and a resolution framed by the prime minister along those lines, and concurred in by the leader of the opposition with some slight verbal changes, was unanimously endorsed by the house. Out of that resolution sprung the government's naval policy and the purchase of ships to form the nucleus of the Canadian navy.

To-day, however, the opposition in parliament has shifted its ground and demands that before a step of this kind is taken there should be a reference to the people. There was nothing in Mr. Foster's resolution, or in the resolution concurred in by the whole house about referendum. There was no time to be lost two years ago, but to-day we must have delay and Friend of my bosom, thou more than the people must be consulted.

If ever there was a policy for which the government of the day must take full responsibility it is this one. In all the other 219 ridings there was a fight, tho in a great many of them it was a foregone conclusion how they would go. But the Conservatives or one side and the Liberals on the other could not afford to allow the other side to have the better of it, and many dummy candidates were put up in consequence. The Isolation Hospital.

Altho the main charges against the management of the Isolation Hospital were found by Judge Winchester not to be substantiated by the evidence, nevertheless his honor has made several important recommendations to the city council with reference to the future conduct of the physicians, nurses and attendants of that institution.

After reading the report, it is difficult to see how the investigator arrived at the conclusion that the charges have failed. One has only to per-use the document itself to know that there was ample justification for the complaints made against the management.

Let us see just what his honor does say: Engineers were grossly careless.

Outside doctors do not wear cap and gown. Maids mingle without precaution against contagion

What more is wanted to prove that there was something wrong, and a great deal wrong with the institution? It will not do to say that Dr. Sheard did "noble work" and that hospital doctors did their work well. and that there was a great deal that was to be commended.

The gravamen of the charge was that little children were taken from their homes with a contagious disease, and while in the Isolation Hospital contracted other diseases that often caused death. This double infection was due to conditions that the judge himself found to exist, namely mingling of nurses from various wards; the passing of doctors from one ward to another without taking the precaution to properly disinfect, and the gross carelessness of the engineers who, in their work, were required to pass from one apartment to another—these were the very things the judge found to exist, and which The Sunday World condemned.

Yet it is held that the charges are not substantiated.

The Sunday World was the first to take up this matter and to call for an enquiry. It feels that good will come out of that investigation, and that the recommendations of the judge will, if carried out, go far to remove cause for future complaint,

Refined Graft

An enterprising woman of New York has demonstrated that it doesn't take very much of a start to make a living, and, judging from her case, a very good living. Self-made million-aires delight to tell of the days when they started out with 30 cents to make a fortune and succeeded.

better company with her than is usual in such a travelling organization. In the presentation of L'Algion' the artistic value of the performance was greatly enhanced by the excellent belance preserved in the presentation of the several characters. Especially striking was the acting of M. Decoder as the eld grenadler, loyal to the death, and consumed with a futile ambition for his old emperor's son. Metternich, the cold-blooded, longheaded diplomat was finely done by M. Maxudian, who excelled in the powerful hallucination scene, when he apostrophises Napoleon's old hat. The Emperor Francis was presented with faithful characterization of the alternate senile affection and wrath of the old man, played upon by the sublic Metternich. M. Strain.

Every Ten Years.

It has been remarked as strange that monetary panics should occur, on an average, about every ten years. The most important occurred in the years, 1825, 1837, 1847, 1857, 1866 and 1875. That of 1866 was caused by the break up of the Joint Stock Discount Company, which was followed by the stoppage of Barned's Bank of Liverpool, with liabilities of three and a haif millions. Also, in 1855, the interests of private banking were greatly injured owing to the failure of Strahan, Paul and Bates, thru the unlawful use of securities.

But perhaps the greatest failure which marks the whole of the nineteenth century was that of Overend Gurney & Co., Limited, on May 10, 1866, for fifty million dollars. It was at the height of the commercial panic of that year, and the following day, a Friday, has since been known as "Black Friday." Messrs. John, Henry and Edmund Gurney and their partners were committed for trial for conspiracy to defraud, but eventually acquitted. The scenes in the city on "Black Friday" were such as have not been witnessed before or since, Lombard-street being rendered impassable thru the seething crowd of creditors which besteged the offices.

TOKIO, Dec. 2.—Twenty-six Japanese who were charged with being concerned in the plot to assassinate the emperor while vieking the military school outside Tokio, have been found rullty by the special secret court which was constituted to try the case. The court recommended the infliction of the severest penalty under the law—namely, capital punishment.

Mention of "Black Friday" recalls another disaster which occurred on Friday, November 21, 1890, when temporary panic was caused by the embarrassment of Messrs. Baring Bros. & Co., with a capital of $5,000,000.

The greatest smash of recent years was probably that of Dumbell's Bank in the Isle of Man in 1900. The director, the manager were also found guilty of misappropriating the moneys of the bank. The widespread distress caused by this failure is still fresh in the minde of many.

The average automobile owner or dealer has a very faint idea as to the method pursued in producing that beautiful mirror-like effect on the finished body of an automobile, and a much smaller percentage of them have any idea as to the method to be pursued in preserving that finish which is of so much interest to the man that prides himself on the appearance of his car, or the dealer who realizes the importance of the beauty of the car in making the sale. The following is the process used by the large manufacturing concerns in finishing a car:

The body is first sand-papered, after which it is given a coat of oil which is allowed to dry for 24 hours. Then the priming coat of lead and oil, then another drying spell of 24 hours, after which it is gone over with hard putty.

Unfortunate, it is inevitable-inescapable—that the flame which lights the tobacce will also ignite a mixture of gasoline vapor and air. This is a certainty. It happens every time. When it doesn't happen it is because no such mixture is present in the immediate vicinity of the flame.

Another Danger.

Another source of danger which is sometimes unauspected arises from the car. If this is placed across the body under the front or rear seat, with the filling vent at or mear either end, the tank should neve be filled quite full; or if it is, the driver should not allow the car to stand inclined at an angle toward the side on which the vent is placed or on a steep down-grade until after the car has been driven long enough to consume sufficient fuel to lower the level in the tank, otherwise the gasoline may easily overflow and under favorable conditions become ignited.

In view of the fact that water will not extinguish burning gasoline or other burning oils, but will, it thrown upon them, merely spread them, thus giving them greater power to cause damage, it is obvious that water should not be used on a gasoline fire. But it of a building. The Automobile.

The Motor Car Not a Luxury

So much has been said lately about the extravagance in the purchase of motor cars -so much that is without foundation in fact-that it seems proper to enlighten those who are still of the opinion that a motor car is

I do not deny that any passenger car is a luxury in the sense that it is always a luxury to get where one wants to go swiftly, surely and with the utmost comfort. But a motor car is not an extravagance.

I often wonder how many of the critics who have made the loudest tirades against the motor car have taken time to realize the many benefits nich a car brings to the average family.

Perhaps the greatest benefit which a motor car brings to any user is the open-air recreation. We all know that we ought to go into the fresh air and sunshine, but most of us do not do it until we are ordered away by a physician. A motor car probably takes every member of the family into the open air more than any other agency one could name.

Think of the benefit to the head of the family in going to and from siness in a car. Think how he gets to the office each morning with the sparkle of the sunshine and fresh air in his blood and brain; how much mer he is for the problems which confront him. Then, too, a motor car is a great saver of time to the business man. He can make his business calls in about one-third the time that is required by a street car or a horse and buggy. With a motor car he has always at his disposal a ready means of entertainment for customers and business associates. The car gives him more time away from his business, enables him to get out into the country, and gives him the mental and physical exercise of driving Among his business associates he gains prestige, and the result of all of this air exercise is a good appetite, better digestion, better humor and bet-

For the sons, a motor car educative value of understanding and caring for a wo piece of machinery. It means clean, open air recreation and decent enent in the company of other members of the family.

A man with a motor car lives a fuller life than if he did not have one And he gives fuller life to every member of his family. A motor car means same length of time as the man who has not a car. Long life is not a question of years so much as it is of experiences and accomplishments. And yet motor cars are great factors in increasing the average span of any man's years because they promote health thru outdoor life.—Hugh Chalmers, president Chalmers Motor Co.

Queen Street East.

Hundreds of citizens who live at the Beach or on the other side of where the new trunk sewer crosses Queen-street east, are complaining bitterly about the terrible condition in which that street now is.

The numerous motorists who live in that neighborhood are especially incensed at the conduct of the city in leaving the highway in such a state. Where Queen-street crosses the trunk sewer the city's workmen have just begun the paving and motorists are not allowed to cross this, being turned off into a stretch of mud in which the cars sink to their hubs.

The aldermen who represent that part of the city should see that immediate action is taken in regard to this road and that a large gang of men is at once put to work on it. It is an outrage to ask citizens owning decent au-tomobiles and carriages to at-tempt to get thru such a sea of

PACKARD SERVICE. Fine New Building on Long Island For Famous Car.

People having occasion to travel on the Long Island Railroad have become much interested in the rapid rise of an unusually imposing building of concrete and glass, standing monument-

This building is now completed and occupied. It was built by the Packard Motor Car Co., of N. Y., with headquarters at Broadway and 6iststreet, as a service department and is the first large structure to be erected on this vast extent of available building land for which real estate men prodict a great commercial future.

The new building has eight stories and basement, 150 x 96 feet, providing floor space of 128,000 square feet. It is built thruout of steel and concrete.
With an extensive sprinkler system it is as near fireproof as can be made.
The steel frames are of special design imported from England. The front, rear and sides are entirely of glass

all, when little sirens seem to arise at every street corner, and point the way to the electrically ornamented theatre entrances, the stern-faced businessman from Victoria or Toronto-streets looks out from his office and decides to phone for tickets. There is nothing but an upper box, so he hies himself home, and tells his wife that they are going to the show. As the taxi swerves home, and tells his wife that they are going to the show. As the taxi swerves around the corner he remembers that they passed a flower store, not far up the street. The lure of the White Way along King-street has fastened itself upon him, and he needs must spend. There is a charm about the city at night, which invariably makes the man think of cafes and flowers, the woman and girl of soft music and beautiful gowns. The newsies all around, call the latest bit of gossip or scandal of the big world outside, the hurdy-gurdys all along the street bring forth sounds of jolity and mirth, from an asthmatic chest, the street cars even seem as music, and the whole medley of city airs peals out gladsomeness. The man returns to the taxi with a huge bunch of violets and a box of candy.

Taken altogether, it was one of the most remarkable groups of men ever got together in the country—these wise, aggressive Scotchmen and their few later associates. They would have been remarkable if for authing else than that they had hung together for all these years, and they are about ready to take it up. It is group of old men now; it was twenty-five years since they undertook their venture with the St. Paul & Pacific. It occurred to them that they were about to die.

Lord Strathcona was eighty-one, Mountstephen seventy-two, Kennedy seventy-one, and even Hill was sixty-three in 1801. It came to Kennedy—always the cautious one—as far back as 1831, that they would better the up their property, it be Great Northern, so that nobody else should get hold of it. They did not now, to be sure, own the whole property, nor actually half of the stock; but they certainly controlled it; and they considered it as much their property as their houses. Why shouldn't they? They had managed it always. A man's property is his.

Monckton Hoffe is a new-comer among successful playwrights. Until "The Little Damozel" was produced he was practically unheard of. Now there is no contemporary dramatist of there is no contemporary dramatist of anything like his youth whose work is so greatly sought. The delicacy with which he has handled the varying situations of his unusual story stamps him as a skilled and finished work-

Some of the people of "The Little Damozel" are those of Bohemian tendencies who frequent the Cafe Angelique in London, and others are members of the orchestra employed there. Julie Alardy, the little harpist of the orchestra, is the pet of the band men and the toast of the clientele of the Angelique. Her originality and charm appeal to one Captain Neit Partington, who makes love by mail, and later, having become engaged to a woman of his social rank, attempts to buy back his love letters. Finding the effort useless and to escape the threatening embarrassment, he devises the novel scheme of paying a man whom he knows Julie really loves, to marry her.

The purchased husband, a young man named Recklaw Poole, is a man of good family and decent impulses, but whose gambling has landed him upon financial rocks. He accepts Partington's proposition because it seems to him an unusually pleasant way of earning a lot of money. It is not long before he is deeply in love with Julie, whose devotion to him is sincere.

The Musical Stewarts, comedy and melody; Rosalle, imitations of famous actresses: The Lockwood Sisters, singers and dancers, and Frank Murphy and Company in a one-act play cailed "His Color Saved Him." In organizing the Star Show Girls this season particular attention was paid to the chorus, which includes twenty-two young ladies who sing and dance delightfully. The opening and the closing skits are replete with catchy and original musical numbers and the young ladies interpret these in a way that would do credit to a Broadway production. The Star Show Girls offer a real burlesque performance in svery sense of the word. There is wholesome comedy without the legst bit of suggestiveness and gaily gowned sirls who are good to look upon. Maude Adams being an actress is really a wonderful woman. According to the old standards one must marved at her success. A program of high class vaudsville attractions, brimful of breezy and varied entertainment, is promised for this week at the Majestic Theatre, which keeps up to the top-notch of capacity audiences at every performance. The bill will be headed by Baby Helen, the phenomenal five-year-old entertainer, whose clever and deligntful singing at the Majestic last week, in connection with a sketch offered by the Simpson Trio, struck a responsive chord with local playgoers. The little tot who is an entertainer of no mean merit, was so fascinating in her singing of "I Wand Someoe to Flirt With Me," which brought immense applause at each performance, that the management secured her services for another week. This wee miss, surely is the cunningest, cutest little bunch of humanity imaginable, the most remarkable feature of her singing being her perfect register. For an encore at each performance she introduced a parody, which showed her clever versatility. The extra added attraction on the bill is Harry A. Princess Theatre the week of Dec. 12, in Augustus Pitou's superb production of Rida Johnson Young's new Irish play, "Barry of Ballymore," which is winning new honors and incidentally, some golden rewards, for its owners. It is a tale of a young artist, Tem Barry, who has studied in France until he has become one of the great painters of his time. After gathering laureis galore and becoming rich by painting the features on canvas, of course, of the royal family and some others who wanted to be in the fashion, he returns to his native place as the lessee of one as an estated gentleman, they promptly turned up their aristocratic organs of smell and vowed they would have none smell and vowed they would have none of him. Tom, however, had no idea of posing as a social equal. Chance had thrown in his way a young girl, whose mother, had been deserted shortly after her marriage by her wild young husband. The daughter arrived in due time and was given by her dying mother into the care of the artist with whom Tom studied. He in turn bequeathed her to Tom and the latter, ascertaining that Lord Bannon was the recreant husband, determines to win back the rights and social position of Nanette for her, With this idea in view he leases Bannon Castle, forces Lord Bannon to recognize his daughter, wins the love of Lady Marr. view he leases Bannon Castle, forces Lord Bannon to recognize his daughter, wins the love of Lady Mary, a daughter of Lord Bannon by a second marriage, and incidentally fights a duel with one of her suitors. There are many cleverly worked out situations in the piece and well drawn character work. The atmosphere of the piece is fascinating as the story is laid among the mad-cap Irish gentry of the eighteenth century and there is a dash and life in it that one would rarely

The incidental music of the piece is a most attractive feature and comprises some charming songs written for it by Mr. Olcott and some excellent incidental music by Frederick Knight Logan.

Owing to the great success scored by "Madame Troubadour" at the Lyric Theatre, London, the Messrs. Shubert have closed negotiations with Felix Albini for an American production of his most recent work, "The Barefoot Dancer," which they will produce during the current season. The "Madame Troubadour" is the first of "Madame Troubadour" is the first of A:bini's operettas ever to be offered in this country, this composer has within the last two or three years achieved a sensational popularity abroad. The audience was supprisingly brilliant and the excitement in the streets was well night indescribable, as the people drove to the theatre, and when Eanci arrived it took the efforts of five stalwart police officers to clear the way. Cries of "Vivi Bonci," began even before he had entored the house and after the first act already it seemed as if the frenctic enthusiasm would rend the very tafters. And this was an inspiration to Bonci, who came buck to sing. There is a good deal of sentiment attached to this reception and to the superb mansion which stands on the high bill overlooking all the cities in the neighborhood, because it was in the great church, the Santa Casa of Loretto that Bonci first came to the notice of the musical world.
