A Revolution took place in Costa Rica on the 14th (August,—President Mora was made prisoner and banished from the State, and Dr. Jose Maria Montealegre was placed provisionally at the head of affairs. Gen. Mora, commander of the forces in the capital, and Gen. Canas, Minister of Finance and War, were likewise banished. President Mora issued a protest against the action of the revolutionists, and against the validity of all acts emanating from any unconstitutional government which may exist in Costa Rica during the term for which he was electedviz. for six years, from May, 1859, to May 1865. It was supposed the other States of Central America would assist in restoring President Mora to power.
