LITERARY NOTE.

The International Monthly, published at Burlington, Vermont, at $3.00 a year, is under the direction of eminent scholars in this country and abroad, and the essays published are contributed by the most competent writers of America, Great Britain and the continent of Europe.

The December issue of this monthly completes another volume of this able Magazine. In the two volumes published this year appear most valuable contributions to popular knowledge of a wide and varied range of topics, and written especially for the American reader. A glance over the contents of the volume in hand reveals authoritative essays upon International and Domestic Politics, Commerce, Literature, Art, The Drama, History, Economics, Trade Unionism, Agriculture, Geology, Psychology, Sociology, Religion, Schools.

Probably the most noteworthy essay published during the year was by Alfred Rambaud, the great historian of Russia and a Senator of France, who wrote on "The Expansion of Russia," and whose account is practically a brief history of that empire by the one the best qualified to write on the subject.

The December issue contains: "The International Position of Spain," by Arthur E. Houghton, Madrid; "The Evolutionary Trend of German Literary Criticism," by Prof. Kuno Francke, of Harvard; "The School and the Home," by Prof. Paul H. Hanus, of Harvard; "The American Negro and His Economic Value," by Booker T. Washington; "Archaeological Progress and the Schools at Rome and Athens," by Prof. Frothingham, of Princeton.

Strong statements are all right when the truth is behind them. In fact, a truthful advertiser's duty to the public is to make his statements as strong as possible. It's to our advantage to know the advantages we offer. It's to your advantage for you to know them. R. T. Craig & Co.

THE LOYAL IRISHMAN VS. THE YANKEE IRISHMAN.

We know of old, that when Greek meets Greek, great things ensue, but the South African War has taught us that when Irishman meets Irishman, under certain conditions, events of no less magnitude develop. Here is the latest instance. In the course of a stiff battle with the Boers, a Private of the Royal Irish Regiment bore down, bayonet fixed, at an unsmooth looking opponent. The latter trembling, and stretching out his hand imploringly, cried, "Spare me, for I am an Irishman." "Is that so," yelled the other. "Then, begorra, you're just the man I've been looking for, for a ——— of a time." And, punctuating his observation, the "Royal Irishman" on the instant, passed his bayonet through the body of his fellow countryman—Liverpool, Eng., Paper.

NEW L. C. R. OFFICIAL.

It is announced that a new position is to be created on the Intercolonial Railway system, namely, that of General Inspectorship, and this new position has been offered to Mr. Adolphe Davis, at one time Superintendent of the Montreal Waterworks. One condition upon which he will insist, it is understood, is that he will have an entire free hand.

It is also stated that there is a plan on foot to divide the Department of Railways and Canals in two, and that Mr. Davis' position would be in reality equal to that of Deputy Minister of Railways.

KIND HEARTED CITIZEN.

Mr. A. F. Randolph yesterday asked Mr. Thomas, the keeper of the Alms house, to call upon him at Frogmore. Mr. Thomas did so, and was very much pleased to find Mr. Randolph very much better in health than he has been for some months past and very cheerful and hopeful regarding his recovery. He stated to Mr. Thomas that he wanted the inmates of the Alms House to have a good Christmas dinner, and he requested the keeper to purchase all the necessities for a real good dinner and not to forget the luxuries, either, and to have the bills for the same sent to him; and he would supplement what Mr. Thomas might provide with a box of raisins and a box of tobacco for the inmates. Mr. Thomas intimated Mr. Randolph that he would gladly comply with his wishes, and that the inmates of the institution would have such a dinner on Christmas Day as it had seldom, if ever before, been their good fortune to enjoy.—Fredericton Gleaner, Dec. 8rd.

THE "HOME" GAUGES THE MAN.

The true measure of a man is not the street, nor the amen corner in the church, nor the forum or lodge-room, but at his own fireside. There he lays aside his mask and you may learn whether he is an imp or angel, king or cur, hero or humbug. I care not what the world says of him, whether it crowns him with a jewel or pelts him with stale eggs. I care not a copper what his reputation may be. If his children dread his home coming, and his wife swallows her heart every time she asks him for anything, he is a fraud of the first water, even though he prays till he is black in the face and howls hallelujah until he shakes the hills.—Class Struggle.

BEAUTY'S EYES.

A LOVER'S FASCINATION.

Delightful, Dashing, Daring.

you bid me go away and forget you, I could not do it. I cannot live without you; so say 'Yes,' dear."

Pretty little Florabel looked up at him, so bewildered between sorrow and joy, so dazzled by the happiness that fate had sent her, yet so piteously uncertain, that handsome Max was more charmed with her than ever.

The glamor of love was upon him; he could see no faults in artless little Florabel.

True, she knew little of learning or books. She was like an untamed roe—beautiful as a wild flower is beautiful—a child of nature, not art; and Max, used as he was to city belles and their caprices, declared to himself he liked Florabel all the better for being simple, sweet and true.

Other men had cared little enough for the world's opinion, and had married just such girls, and had had a happy life of it. Why shouldn't he?

He stood beside her, watching the confidant going on in the girl's heart.

"I lay my life, my love and my happiness in the two little white hands I am clasping," he murmured.

"Remember, the fate of two hearts depends upon the answer you give me."

He was so handsome, so eager, so thoroughly the impassioned lover. His hands were clinging to her own; his pleading, bonny blue eyes regarding her so intently.

He forgot the terrible stern anger of the stern father, who never forgot or forgave, which would be so sure to follow. Handsome Max forgot everything save his love for the fair young girl standing beside him.

As for Florabel, she was young and impressible. It was sweet to be wooed in such a fashion—to have such promise of love and devotion made to her, and hear such a loving voice pleading with her—and then it would be so nice to have a husband to care for and protect her.

With the girl's natural craving for love and protection, it could end but one way.

"Is it to be 'yes,' or 'no,' Florabel?" he asked, eagerly.

The peachy bloom on her face deepened.

"Yes," she murmured, shyly, and in the prettiest girlish confusion.

He caught her to his heart in a rapture of delight.

"We will be married at once," he declared; "delays are dangerous sometimes. From this hour we belong to each other. We will be made one in name as well as in heart within the hour. Are you willing?"

And again she answered, "Yes."

The wind that stirred the lily-bells and the roses near her seemed to die over the river in a long, low wail, as though it knew and realized that a human soul was in danger—aye, in most piteous peril. The birds flew from their nests in the apple tree above their heads with startled cries, as though they were warning her to beware. But if Florabel heard, she did not heed them.

She married handsome Max—and that was the beginning of one of the most pitiful stories that ever was written. And yet young girls will sigh for love, even though they weep tears of pity over beautiful, hapless Florabel's sad fate.

CHAPTER III.

The ceremony was over, and the news of the marriage was soon blazoned over the village.

The strange romance connected with the affair delighted everybody, and before nightfall every one in Deepdale knew the romantic story of how the great New York millionaire's handsome, reckless son had fallen in love at first sight with the pretty, dimpled face of shy little Florabel Dean; and how he had passed himself off as a common gardener, that he might be thrown into her society; of the cruelty of the Pemberton girls in asking her to leave the Hall after the old squire's death; and how handsome Max Forrester had thrown off his disguise and married her.

Maud and Evelyn Pemberton heard the whole story with the greatest amazement and dismay, and their intense anger and rage toward Florabel knew no bounds.

Now they understood why they had waited in vain for the coming of Max Forrester. Florabel's pretty face had been the magnet that had attracted him from them.

"Just think of all the scoldings he has heard us give that girl when we supposed he was only the new gardener," groaned Evelyn.

"It cannot be helped now," returned Maud. "He's married now, and there's no use wasting your thoughts and regrets on a married man."

"True," cried Evelyn, bitterly; "but I shall always hate Florabel for this. But for her, either you or I might have been Max Forrester's bride."

"The love marriage he has made will be a bitter blow to his relatives, and to that New York heiress who felt so sure of winning him," returned Maud, maliciously. "I shall write and tell them she need not claim relationship with us; none of our blood flows in her veins. Revenge is sweet, you know. I shall give her a good setting out." And, true to her word, the letter was sent.

Max took his little bride to Washington. He knew that everything there would be a novelty to her—hotel life, perhaps, the greatest of all—and Florabel was quite as delighted as he had expected she would be.

A week passed away like a happy dream to both of them.

Max was too much in love with pretty little Florabel to notice any imperfections in her. As yet there was not the faintest cloud to mar their happiness.

A thousand times each day handsome Max thanked Heaven that he had wedded this fair young girl-wife.

It was so blissful to be loved for himself with such passionate devotion, and Florabel loved him so dearly.

Her education had been rather neglected, it was true; but what did it care for that? A few little eccentricities were less than nothing compared with her wonderful beauty. Besides, he could teach her.

"I suppose we may as well think about going home soon," he said one morning to Florabel.

She looked up at him with startled eyes.

"We are so happy here, Max," she answered, piteously. "Must we really go?"

And her heart grew heavy at the thought.

"Yes," he declared. "We cannot stay here forever. Besides, father will be needing me."

"Are we to live with your relatives, Max?" she asked, wistfully.

"For the present," he answered. "You know you have married a rich man's son; but I haven't much in my own right yet," he continued. "Eventually I shall inherit my father's wealth—though Heaven grant the time be distant—as I am his only son and heir. I may as well tell you something else, too. My father and mother have always had grand views for me. They expected me to marry well. By that I mean some one in their own social rank."

Tears began to gather in the lovely, childish, hazel eyes, shaded by the long curling lashes.

"I am so sorry, Max," she said, faintly. "I am afraid they will be angry with you for marrying me, and—and—want to take you from me. Then I shall surely die."

He laughed merrily.

"By telling you this I merely wished to explain to you a few matters, Florabel," he said. "Be reasonable and listen."

She came to his side obediently, knelt down on the velvet hassock by his chair, and looked up wistfully in his face.

"There is a young girl visiting the house, whose parents are dear friends of mother's. They—my father and mother—have always been badgering my life out about marrying this girl. I have never met her, having seen only her portrait. But when it comes to marriage I believe every man should choose for himself."

"Is this young girl pretty, Max?" asked Florabel, in a low voice.

"Rather, judging from the portrait," he answered, lightly. "You see, their hopes have been set upon my marrying Miss Clavering, and their surprise will be great when I bring home a wife. They will soon learn to love you for your own sake as well as mine, dear," he added quickly. Then he talked to her of the glowing future they should spend together, and how happy life was to be for them; but through it all, Florabel's heart was strangely heavy. But, then, it does take a great deal of nerve for a shy young bride to meet her husband's critical relatives, especially when she knows they had set their hearts on her young husband's marriage to another.

That same morning Max telegraphed his father that he would be home the following day, and that they might get up an appropriate reception, if they liked, for he was bringing home a bride.

But Maud Pemberton's letter had already been received, falling like a bombshell into the peace and quiet of the old merchant prince's household.

It must certainly have been a very malicious, cruel letter, for Mrs. Forrester went into hysterics long before she had read the half of it.

"To think that my son, of all the young men in the world, should contract a low marriage!" she groaned; "and I have always had such a bitter horror of anything of the kind!" and the proud old lady wrung her jeweled hands, crying out the greatest sorrow of her life had fallen upon her, and she did not know how to meet it. If she had heard that her only son—her handsome, idolized Max—had committed a forgery or a murder, Mrs. Forrester could not have been more affected.

Did you read the last line of Miss Pemberton's letter?" she cried, turning to the old merchant prince, who still held the letter in his hand. "She says the girl is uneducated, a regular little barbarian, who has nothing to recommend her but a pretty, gypsyish face; and this is the girl my son is bringing home to us. Of course he has fallen desperately in love with her, after the fashion of young men nowadays; and, being in love, is blind to her faults," she added, with another groan. "I was so sure he would take a fancy to Inez Clavering when he came to see her, and that it would end in a marriage."

"One can never make much dependence upon the future of one's children," replied Mrs. Forrester, pacing up and down the luxurious room, white to the lips.

"The boy will soon tire of her pretty face, if she is all that this letter indicates; but the price of his folly must rest upon his own rash head. Many a young man has wrecked his life upon just such a rock, and lived to rue it while his life lasted. With such a marriage, regret and disappointment are sure to follow. If she has married Max for his money, money will release him. I would give her half my fortune to give him back his freedom," Mrs. Forrester answered, bitterly.

Inez Clavering, their lovely guest, heard of Max Forrester's marriage with a stifled cry of dismay, and that same evening she wrote a hurried letter to her parents in Virginia, breaking at once into the subject uppermost in her mind.

"I might as well come home at once, mamma," she wrote. "My visit here is useless—worse than useless. Mrs. Forrester has just received a telegram from her son that he is married, and is bringing home a bride. That means ruin for us; yet nobody shall know how we are trembling on the verge of bankruptcy, and had hoped that I might win handsome Max Forrester to retrieve our crumbling fortunes. Taking the money to come here, and the strain to keep up appearances, have cost us dear. I may as well stay here until the end of the season, though, despite the torture and bitterness I shall experience in being brought into daily contact with the girl who has won the heir from me. I feel sure I could have won him if he had seen me first, for my beauty is fatal, you have always declared."

"Yours in great haste, Inez Clavering."

Despite Mrs. Forrester's repugnance to the bride Max was bringing home, it was decided that a reception must be given in their honor, or society would gossip.

It might as well be gotten over first as last. But, oh, how Mrs. Forrester trembled at the thought, of introducing the uncultured creature, Maud Pemberton's letter had pictured as her son's wife, to her aristocratic guests. As she thought of it, she almost hated her son; and she hated with a double bitterness the girl he had married.

"I do not know how I shall meet them," murmured Mrs. Forrester, nervously, when the propitious hour drew nigh, and she had stolen away from her guests to her own room to regain something like composure. "I have never felt that it was impossible to be civil before," she said plaintively, to her husband. "What shall I do? My sense and tact fail me. Hark! There is the sound of carriage wheels now."

"May I come in?" asked a voice from the door. And Inez Clavering stood on the threshold.

Mrs. Forrester was glad of her presence. She felt that some one must be near her in this dreadful ordeal.

A closed carriage dashed quickly up the drive that led to the side porch. A white, frightened face peered out from the lace-draped, rose-embowered windows.

"Oh, Max!" cried Florabel, tremulously, as she clung to her young husband's arm. "How I dread the ordeal of meeting your relatives. Do you think they will like me? Oh! there is a party or something going on; let us

Every Mother A Doctor

It is an anxious time for mothers when the little ones get their feet cold and wet, and come home hoarse and coughing, or awaken in the night victims of deadly croup. Then it is that mothers turn gratefully to Dr. Chase, who, through his great Recipe Book and famous family remedies, has time and again saved the little ones and older ones, too, from suffering and death.

It is truly surprising how promptly Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brings relief when the throat is sore and irritated, when the cold is tight in the chest, and the cough painful and distressing. It allays the inflammation, heals the sore and torn membranes, soothes the nerves and clears the air passages.

People who know of the singular virtues of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine do not think of accepting the cheap substitutes which many druggists offer in its place; 25 cents.

CANADIANS IN LIVERPOOL.

Great Scene on 'Change—A Pathetic Incident.

(Liverpool Paper.)

To-day a representative party of Canadians, invalided and returning from the seat of war in South Africa, were received and entertained at the Town Hall by the Lord Mayor (Mr.
Crosby). The men were received in the splendid crypt abutting on the Council chamber, where they were introduced to his lordship and the Lady Mayoress. Captain Strachan, chief embarkation officer of Liverpool, was present, as also Captain Findlay, of the "Buffs," who had come from Shortcliffe in charge. Among the Canadians was one who had been shot through the temple, and who had been rendered blind in consequence. When he was led into the Town Hall, and afterwards on 'Change to view the two kind companions, much sympathy was shown for the great misfortune which had overtaken him, and rousing cheers were given.

When the men had all assembled they were regaled with champagne and light refreshments.

The Lord Mayor, who was accompanied by the Lady Mayoress and other ladies, addressed them as follows:

"Captain Strachan, Lieutenant Findlay, Canadian Volunteers, and other countrymen.—It is with very great pleasure I welcome you to Liverpool and this Town Hall. I understand it is the first visit you have paid, most, if not all, of you, and I am sorry that you have not much longer time to see through our city, but I hope you will take back some pleasing remembrances of the second city of the Empire. I believe some of you took part in that noble battle of Paar-delberg, and that others reached so far north as Pretoria. You will take back with you remembrances of this eventful journey, and I assure you that Liverpool does not lightly value the services which you have rendered to our country, and I feel sure you will receive a most hearty welcome when you return back to your own country. If the Queen or the ruling Sovereign of this great country should ever require help other than she is able to provide, I am sure that none will be readier to respond to the call than the men in Canada."

The Lord Mayor then toasted the health of the Queen, which was received most heartily and with deafening cheers. On the call of Captain Strachan, he complimented the Canadians on their great ability and usefulness in the war. The Lord Mayor's health and that of the Lady Mayoress were cordially drunk, and the men then proceeded to the Exchange newsroom.

Speech From a Blind Soldier.
After leaving the Town Hall, the Canadians marched across the Exchange Flage, which was crowded with people cheering vociferously, to the Exchange New room. Here a great ovation awaited them from the commercial and their clerks, who had flocked from all the four corners of the Exchange.

The soldiers were then taken upstairs to the balcony, and some speechmaking followed.

Mr. G. R. Sandbach, chairman of the Exchange Newsroom, bespoke a heartily welcome for their Canadian soldiers, who had gone from one end of the empire to the other to fight for their Queen (hear, hear). He asked the men of Liverpool to shower upon them the heartiest of welcomes, so that they might know when they returned to their own country how much the people of Liverpool appreciated their services (hear, hear, and applause).

Mr. William Adam on here announced that they would have a few words in reply from one of the soldiers, who had entirely lost his sight while fighting for the Queen and empire (great applause).

Private Molloy, Royal Canadian Mounted Infantry, a young fellow—an ex-student of one of the Canadian Universities—whose face was a wonderfully intelligent one, but whose terrible affliction was made evident by pair of dark blue glasses (which he wore, was guided gently to the front of the balcony, and from here he addressed the sea of up-turned faces.
The scene was at this time a wonderfully striking and pathetic one.

The blind soldier spoke, in the clearest of accents, as follows:

Gentlemen,—I am glad that I have had the privilege of speaking to a portion of the people of our British Empire. I am not a Regular soldier.
A year ago I was a student, studying, and ought now to have been in the University there. When Canada was called upon to send out men, she did not send her corner-boys, but she sent the best men she had, I believe (hear, hear), and I don't know how it came about, but I happened to be among the crowd (laughter and applause). I suppose I came because I couldn't stay away (hear, hear). I allow no regrets for the past (hear, hear).
First, if we decide that a course is a right one, and we pursue that right course, we have no business to regret the further consequences (hear, hear, and applause). Of course, it looks rather unfortunate to find one's hopes, ambitions and aspirations all come down with a smash, sudden and irreparable, but there are conditions which alter circumstances to a certain extent, and I believe that the truly brave man, the truly brave soldier, will accept with manly fortitude the vicissitudes of fortune, and not be overwhelmed by any circumstances, but will still, with a calm heart and a serene mind, go bravely onward (hear, hear, and loud applause). I thank you very much on behalf of the Canadian soldiers for the reception you have given us. I won't take up your time any longer, except for our beloved Queen, whom we love as well as you do (hear, hear).

The rafters of the newsroom rang again as the cheers for her Gracious Majesty were given.

The vast audience then commenced singing "For he's a jolly Good Fellow," and afterwards cried "Three, cheers for the Canadians!"

This terminated the proceedings, and the Canadians marched back across the Exchange and down Water street towards the steamer, crowds of people following them the whole distance.
Private Molloy led the procession with an alert, soldier-like step, guided by one of his companions. His appearance created general attention.

assortments--will get all sorts of at-

The Truss Stock Company in the Opera House tomorrow night, is universally spoken of as a first class dramatic company. The actors have given universal satisfaction wherever they have appeared. The press, without any exception, is loud in their praise.

The Morning Chronicle has two plump roosters this morning: one crowing over Keefe's election in Halifax by about 500 majority; and the other in fitful paroxysms of joy, over the return of Messrs. McKenzie and Gillis in Cape Breton, by some 700 majority.

Mr. W. J. Kent, the well-known and extensive lumber merchant of this town, has taken the store lately occupied by Mr. C. B. Lindsay. Mr. Kent is this season operating very extensively in the forests around Belmont, and this store will be a decided convenience both for the owner and his men.

Mr. W. A. Davis, of Moncton, has been in town for the last few days, superintending workmen who are engaged digging a large well near the Lepper Brook, from which the I. C. R. engines will be provided with water, until better arrangements for a supply can be secured.

Mr. I. Blair Fulton, after a faithful service of 23 years and six months with the well known dry goods men, Blanchard, Bentley & Co., has resigned his position as bookkeeper in that firm, and has joined the staff of the wholesale house of Messrs. Wm. Cummings & Sons. Mr. Fulton and his late employers part with mutual regret, and all Mr. Fulton's friends wish him continued success in his new position.

The Upper Onslow School intend holding their Annual School Concert in the school house tomorrow night at 7.30 o'clock. The very efficient teacher, Miss Nettie Archibald, has had prepared an interesting programme, and a very enjoyable evening will be spent by all who will patronize this affair. The sleighing is perfect from Truro, so any who go over tomorrow night, will not only enjoy the drive, but will have a good musical and literary entertainment provided for them.

Many of the young lads in Truro will remember John Burke, who was one time a faithful boy in the employ of Dr. Yorston. He is a son of Mr. A. Burke, of this town. He left Truro seven months ago, arrived in Dublin, his patronymic shows he should vegetate well on Irish soil, and there attended a military school. He grew tired of being an Irish soldier, so left Dublin and went to Scotland, and in Glasgow has joined the Highland Light Infantry, to which corps he still belongs, and likes his soldier life among the sons of the Gael amid the heather of Scotland.

General Buller, in a great speech in London, pays a high tribute to his men who were under him in South Africa. Every man was a true soldier. "The so-called 'luck of the British Army,'" was, he said, "that this army was the luckiest in the world."

A lot of Americans from war vessels dined with the Sultan in Constantinople on the 11th. It was a very "swell" affair. The Sultan sat between the Grand Vizier and the United States Ambassador. Where the many "Mrs. Sultans" sat, the cables do not state; perhaps they were not allowed to be present, but were playing with the lots of "little Sultans" in the adjoining harem.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.

Milford, Mass.,

Dec. 5th, 1900.

Editor Truro 'News.'

Why is it we do not hear from Chatterbox, Simple Jim, True Blue and all the rest of our friends in Hants?

I like to read the Truro 'News,' for I hear of friends I used to know when quite a small lad. All I see wrong with friends down east is that they do not elect the right men.

There are a great many of the down-east people up here.

Miss Minnie Bond is living in Hope-dale.

Mr. A. Abbott spent Sunday last with friends in Newton, Lower Falls.

Mrs. Mahoney is recovering from a severe illness.

Mr. Cook and daughter have returned home.

Mr. E. Brown is leaving this neighborhood, but he is not going out of town.

Miss H. Robison spent last Thursday with friends in Hope-dale.

I wish the readers and editor of the home paper A Very Merry Xmas and Happy New Year.

Miss Burnetta Robinson spent Saturday afternoon with her equine in Hope-dale.

Acadia Mines.

Dec. 7th, 1900.

Editor 'Truro News,'—

There is some indication of a revival of mining in this section. The visit of some experts in the matter of cutting down the blast furnaces, and converting them into coke furnaces, for the making of steel, gives the people, who are left here, a little hope as to the future.

Rev. Bro. Nelsh has been quite ill, and I regret to say that Rev. Mr. Ackman, who has left Grippe as well, and has been suffering from congestion of the bronchial tubes for some time, has been ordered down by Dr. Hills, who considers it necessary that Mr. Ackman takes a rest for the winter months, if he wants to do active work in the future. Both are doing well under Dr. Hills' treatment, especially the latter, whose trouble has been met as never before, which speaks well for the medico.

A WINNING BOY.

For His Medals by the Use of Good Food.

Vicksburg, Miss., boy, J. B. Smith, near Grove and Third streets, says:
 "I have been studying very hard to try to beat my room in examination.
 I have been eating oatmeal and am for breakfast all my life. Late-when the hard study began I did feel well enough to go to school, there was an examination ahead of me and an exhibition, too.
 I was determined to go through examination, but felt so sick all time that I didn't know how to accomplish it. Well, mother saw the oatmeal, food advertised, so she got some and gave it to me for breakfast every morning, and you just see what this food did for me."

I began to get well at once and hearty and fat in spite of my work. Above all that I did my room at examination, making a general average that was the best mark in the room. I am able to take part at the military to-morrow night at the exhibition and will try for the gold medal general exhibition. If you think there is any question about this, you write to Bro. Garbrial, our principal, and he will tell you that it is true."

One of the greatest importance is no question on this score re-tissue. Any parent can prove this element by feeding the children on Grape-Nuts. Obtained from any

LOCAL AND GENERAL.
 The Germans are complaining of the enormous war vote the Government is asking for.

The Metropolitan Rink will be opened tomorrow night, with a fine sheet of ice.

The Waragraph will be in the Opera House on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Dec. 17th and 18th.

Mr. Arthur W. Campbell, of the Department of the Postmaster General, Ottawa, arrived in town last evening, from the Capital, to spend his Christmas Holidays at "Roseland."

St. John will give Col. Otter and his 250 soldiers, one of the greatest receptions ever accorded to any body of men in the Maritime Provinces.

Miss Rhind, a returned missionary from China, is a guest with Postmaster McCully and family, Queen St.
 Miss Rhind was for a time working in the same field in Corea, in which our Truro missionary, Miss Louise McCully, has engaged.

Miss Murray, of Cowan Avenue, Parkdale, Toronto, who will be so favorably remembered as a guest here a year ago with Mrs. (Dr.) Randall, will soon leave for New Zealand, accompanying her father there, who goes on a business trip.

Mr. Charles Law, the pushing District Manager of the Edison Waragraph, was in town yesterday. He made arrangements to exhibit these wonderful British-Boer War pictures in the Opera House next week. Mr.
 Law was a guest at the Learmont, while in town.

Prominent merchants of Advocate, N. S., are working for the establishment of a good steamship line between St. John and Basin of Minas ports. The scheme looks to the purchase, or building of a large boat. St. John capital has been invited to assist in the project.

A Truro lady, who lately returned from Toronto, says Mr. Goggie is almost idolized by his congregation at Parkdale, and that he takes a high place among the clergy of the Queen City of the West. A Bible class that numbered 40 when the reverend gentleman took hold of it, now has a regular attendance of 200. This lady does not belong to the Presbyterian communion.

WANTED—A case of Headache that Kumfort Headache Powders will not cure in 10 minutes. Price 10 cents.

There was launched at Barrow-in-Furness, England, a few days ago, a new battleship for the Japanese Navy. She was named the Mikasa, and is the largest battleship in the world. The Japanese minister, speaking at the luncheon after the ceremony, referred to the "interest which Japan has in common with Britain in maintaining peace in the far East," and said that there might be occasion for the Mikasa to act in cooperation with the ships of the country that gave her birth, whilst the same interest would prevent them ever being employed one against the other. The Mikasa is the fifth Japanese battleship built in England.

MONSTER POTATOES.

Mr. Woodie Marshall, of Beaver Brook, Clinton, on his way home from Port Berkeley, Washington, was some time in Lacombe, Alberta, N. W.
 T. He visited at Mr. George Boomer's.
 Mr. Boomer is from Brookfield, and has been out West for some eight or 10 years. Here Mr. Marshall got some monster potatoes, grown on Mr. Boomer's farm, that he brought East with him, and that are indeed surprises to all who have seen them.
 One potato that we have seen from Mr. Boomer's farm, a Prince Albert, weighs now, a long time after it has been out of the ground 4-14 lbs; and another, a Calico, turns the scales at 4-34 lbs. These are fine tubers, and Mr. Marshall says they are good both for table and stock purposes. These were about the ordinary size of the potatoes that are the products of our rich Western farms.

 HEAD OFFICE

THE LITTLE SICKNESSES Which Grow Into Big Ones.

A little cold in the head is a trifle, but if neglected and it hangs on from week to week and gets into the throat and lungs it is no longer a trifle. It is then no longer a slight cold, but the beginning of chronic catarrh.

Do not make the mistake of thinking you have no catarrh because the head and nose appear to be clear. If there is cough, tickling in the throat, hoarseness or a sense of oppression in the chest you have throat and bronchial catarrh. If the appetite is poor, nausea, gagging and disgust for food, especially in the morning, you have catarrh of the stomach.

The surest and safest treatment for every form of catarrh is an internal remedy which acts especially on the blood and mucous membranes.

Such a remedy is the new catarrh cure, sold everywhere by druggists under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, a medicine in pleasant, convenient tablet form, and containing all the best and latest specifics for catarrh, whether located in nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are composed of Sanguinaria, guaiacol, Red gum and similar antiseptics, which destroy the germs of catarrh in the blood, and no one who suffers from any form of catarrh and has seen the uselessness of sprays, douches and powders, will ever go back to them after once trying so convenient, pleasant and harmless a remedy as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and one which gives relief in so short a time.

Even in cases where catarrh has affected the senses of smell and hearing, these tablets accomplish a cure, because the blood being cleansed of catarrhal germs, the mucous surfaces of the nose and throat no longer clog up the respiratory passages with catarrhal secretions.

All druggists sell full sized treatments of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets for the nominal price of 50 cents, and the regular daily use of them will effectually cure this troublesome and dangerous disease.

NEW ANNAN, COL. CO.

Dec. 5.—Again I take up my pen, which has been idle so long, and attempt to give you a brief account of some of the happenings in this place.

Two very sudden deaths took place here last week; that of Gordon Byers, a promising lad of 17 years, eldest son of Mr. David Byers, having fallen a victim to that dread disease, diphtheria.

About the same time Miss Sara Bell, a young girl 18 years of age, was stricken with paralysis of the brain, and died in a few hours.

A terrible northeast storm is raging here to-day; roads are drifted four and five feet deep and are impassable.

Mrs. Peter Hynds gave an American Thanksgiving dinner to a number of friends on the 29th ult. Messrs.
 Borden and William Drysdale, of Portland, Me., were guests.

Miss Anna Swan, who has been engaged in the millinery business in Tatamagouche, has returned home for the winter.

Mr. Alexander Sutherland, Falls, visited friends in Oliver last week. As Mr. Oliver is soon to leave for the lumber woods, where he is engaged to saw for T. G. McMillan, M. P., we presume his errand here was to secure a cook, and possibly a "cookee."
 "Wanderer," who are you? Are you my friend of the days of "pothooks"?
 If so, I would not think you would look worth while to inquire for me, since I was so mean in not asking you to my wedding. Well, I have found "marriage a failure"; perhaps it is a judgment on me. You will think that these items are a failure, too, but what can a fellow do with a half a dozen kids running around asking questions? I see that my scribbling days are over, but my efforts may be rewarded by seeing another good batch of items from "Wanderer" in the near future.

RE-ECHO.

CATARRH PHILANTHROPY.

Which means do good as well as

 Pearl Lake Mill, Que., August 1900:
 "Enclosed find $6.00, send six outfits to friends," as follows:—"A short time ago I wrote you for an outfit for Mr. Liberge; he would not now part with it for twice its value. I secured one in Montreal, having been informed of your remedy by my father; it has acted wonderfully in Nasal Catarrh of long standing.

Signed, Thos. Sissons.
 Mr. Sissons says a great deal more but when a man sends for six outfits of Catarrhzone that means more than a bushel of words. Such action stands for conviction, that he has discovered a remedy for superlative value. Druggists all sell Catarrhzone, ask them to show it to you, ask them to let you try it.
 We will send it to you for $1.00, or a

USEFUL CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

The approach of the holiday son always brings to mind Christmas presents. KENT'S SHOE STOre has many articles of footwear calculated to please the sensible person who believes in useful presents, rather than in ornamental trash. C-there be any ordinary present acceptable than a comfortable pair of slippers for the father, a nice pair of house or street shoes for the mother or wife, a handsome pair of slippers for the sister or daughter, a pair of shoes for the boy or girl, perhaps a pair of those cute shoes the baby. No need to ask the sir-vant to keep the name of the present a secret, as we will exchange each pair of shoes for a perfect ting pair after Christmas.
