Jesus to the Soul.

Fair soul, created in the primal hour, Once pure and grand, And for whose sake I left my thro At God's right hand; By this sad heart pierced through because I love

Let love and mercy to contrition move thee.

Cast off the sin thy holy beauty veiling, Spirit divine! Vain against thee the hosts of hell assailing, My strength is thine.

And love will lead thee back to heaven's portal. Quench in my light the flame of low desire ; Crush doubt and fear; E'en to my glory may each soul aspire, If victor here

Drink from my side the cup of life immortal,

Die now to earth with earthly vanity, And live for evermore in heaven with me

I for thy sake was pierced with many sorrows, And bore the cross. Yet heeded not the galling of the arrows, The shame or loss So faint not thou, whate'er the burden be, Bear it on bravely, even to Calvary.

My blood wash out thy errors if thou strayest;

Plead I in vain ?___ An hour is coming when the judgment loometh,

An Affecting Story.

The following affecting story was related by Mr. Dudley, an agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, at the anniversary of the Birmingham Sunday School Union :-

In the county of Kent lives or lived a clergyman and his lady, who took a very with his church. They had in the school a observation and deep experience, by one of the ignorance of the people left them open to the most successful preachers since the time be imposed upon by crafty and fanatical soon after enlisted as a sol-lier in a regiment

After the soldier had made himself known, he said, "James, your mother has sent you her last present. "Ah!" be replied in a careless manner, is she gone at last? I hope she has sent

The pious soldier told him he believed the poor widow was dead; "but," said he, "she Bible.) and, James, it was her dying request

The pious soldier asked him if he did not

He replied that he did not. The good man explained it to him; spoke to him of Jesus, and exhibited the truth and invitations of the Gospel. They walked to the house of the chaplain, where they had further conversation; the result was, that from that hour he became a changed man, and was as noted for exemplary conduct as before he had been for his wickedness.

Some time after this conversation, the regiment in which he was, engaged the enemy at the close of which the pious soldier, i walking through the field of blood, beheld, under a large spreading oak, the dead body of James, his head reclining on his Bible which was opened at the passage, "Come unto me all ye that are weary," &c. Poor James had gone to his eternal rest.

Mr. Dudley said he had frequently held the Bible in his hand; there were no less than fifty pages stained with the blood of poor James. How encouraging, said Mr. Drovincial Wesleyan Dudley, is this for Sabbath School teachers Dudley, is this for Sabbath School teachers to persevere; for should there be but one seed sown, it might, as in the case of the widow's son, produce a plentiful harvest.-The only verse he ever committed to memory was the means in the hand of the Holy Spirit, of bringing him out of darkness into marvellous light; and James is now, we trust, joining the song of the redeemed in heaven.

Mischief Makers.

Oh! could there in this world be found Some little spot of happy ground, Without the village tattling ! How doubly blest that snot would be Where all might dwell in liberty. Free from the bitter misery, Of gossips' endless prattling !

It such a spot were really known. Dame Peace might call it as her own. And in it she might fix her throne, Forever and forever : There like a queen might reign and live While every one would soon forgive The little slights they might receive, And be offended never.

'Tis mischief-makers that remove Far from our hearts the warmth of love. And lead us all to disapprove What gives another pleasure; They seem to take one's part-but when They've heard our cares, unkindly then They soon retail them o'er again, Mixed up with poisonous measure

And then they've such a cunning way Of telling ill-meant tales; they say, " Don't mention it I pray, I would not tell another." Straight to your neighbors then they go, Narrating everything they know: And break the peace of high and low, Wife, husband, friend and brother

Oh! that the mischief-making crew Were all reduced to one or two. And they were painted red or blue, That every one might know them ; Then would our villagers forget To rage and quarrel, fume and fret, And fall into an angry pet, With things so much below them.

For 'tis a sad degrading part, To make another's bosom smart, And plant a dagger in the heart, We ought to love and cherish Then let us evermore be found In quietness with all around, While friendship, joy and peace abound, And angry feelings perish.

[POR THE PROVINCIAL WESLEYAN.] A Leaf from Every-day Life.

Evening is spreading her mantle over the fair earth, shutting out from our view the snow-clad scenes around. Ever and anon the wind sweeps by in fearful gusts, causing us to shudder as we draw nearer the bright fireside, and think of the suffering poor. For them the merry sleigh-bell has no music, seeming rather a mockery of their sorrow.

It was on such a night as this, that a child of scarce twelve years might have been seen wending her way through the noisy streets . It was a late hour for her to be out alone, and unprotected, but she seemed all intent upon one object, scarce heeding the wintry blast. She stopped before a large mansion, and after hesitating for a few moments, timidly sought admission. The old town clock pealed forth the hour of ten. How many records that hour winged up to heaven!

In the abode of want, a weary woman lay upon a bed of pain. She gazed sadly around the dreary apartment. The fire had burnt out, leaving but a few ashes on the solitary bearth. She sighed as she drew the scanty covering closer, and looked wistfully towards ther, but I bring no help," (and the child's tones seemed the mournful echoes of despair.) "She would not aid me, bidding me 'Go and freeze if I was too indolent to work.' Tears glistened in the mother's eyes, and something she murmured of inhumanity, that ed to state our conviction in respect to their return to their own land, but want of time forbade us. We believe the Jews will be returned to what we have been accustomed to call the holy land. Their preservation to this day, as a people distinct from all others, though in certain circumstances mingling with them, can be accounted for only on the ground, that an overruling Providence designs them for some special purpose. and that purpose, their occupation of the land of their forefathers. They seem to have been reserved for the land, and the land for them. We do not regard the present aspect of affairs beand patron of the Greek Church, will be opposed to the transference of the holy land to the Jews; and, therefore, if Russia succeed in her ambitious projects against Turkey, that object must be indefinitely postponed. This we think to be highly probable, and more than highly probable, because, we have been taught to believe, that "all Israel shall be saved." The good time for the Jews is therefore coming, and may be near at hand; and all who feel an interest in divine prophecies may profitably be looking for the fulfilment of predicions bearing on this subject. The present portentous aspect of affairs in the East forbids hope of the realization at no very distant day, of Israel's restoration, which, as far as human sagacity can discover, must be thrown far into the future. if Russia should succeed in her mad and ambitious projects. But, if the return of the Jews o the Holy Land be within the purpose of God, that, when the fitting time shall have arrived, His designs shall be accomplished.

"We elieve that infants go to heaven," says another large Chapel at Sandy Cove is in the hands of but why not say frankly we believe that all intwo Contractors for the fivishing of the outside, fants dying in infancy go to heaven. That little word all makes a world wide difference in the meaning of certain passages which speak of the glorious atonement, and so it does in considering the question in hand. After all that the Messenger and a Baptist Minister have said, what if all their denials about that horrid statement are mere quibbles on the words "infants-in-hell-nota-span-look?" The phrase is peculiar. Suppose for illustration that the statement had been that he believed that some who die in infancy go to hell, what then? The feeblest can lift up his voice and swell the general cry; he can help to diffuse light, and to diffuse light is to foil those who march under the banner of darkness. We summon all, then, to the conflict. Whether we look to the past or the future, whether we look around us on the world, or upwards to that God who name Rome has blasphemed, and whose saints she has slain, we find powerful inducements to urge us on. Behind us are the martyrs, and before us are our children for whose liberties we fight. Around us are the nations whom this terrible power has enslaved, who supplicate us and impartial discharge of the duties of Clerk by chains. Come, then, planting our foot upon the eternal justice of our cause, and looking upwards to that Almighty One who has sworn te destroy Rome, let us join battle with this foe. We stand in the world's Thermopylæ, and with Luther at Worms we may say, "We cannot do otherwise; so help us God."

She then presents her heartfelt gratitude to Messrs. Du Barry, for the complete cure effected by Du Barry's Food. Mrs. Mary Godsmark, of Hunton, writes:— "Your excellent Food has released me from an increditable accumulation of suffering, for which, during the last eight years, all kinds of medicine had been tried in vain. My feelings and suffer ings, previous to taking your Food, were the following: indigestion, nervousness, billiousness, affection of the liver and kidneys, costiveness, palpitation of the heart, noises in the ear, pains in almost all the body, low spirits, general de-bility, loss of memory, wretchedness, thoughts of self-destruction." James Porter, Esq., of Perth, returns thanks on behalf of a lady who had been for thirteen years afflicted with indigestion, prostration of strength, &c., accompanied by cough. Mr. Thomas Walker, of King's Road, Chelsea, expresses his "gratitude and pleasure" for the good done by the Food to his wife, who, previous to taking it, "had been suffering for a long time from dyspepsia, producing alternately diarrhoa, and the opposite state of the system; and although medicine gave temporary relief, it proved of no lasting benefit." Mary Geldert, of Trevagler, near Penzance, says:—" Eighteen years' nervous debility, violent palpitation of the heart, throbbing in the temples, plent pains in the left side and back, shortness of breath, cough, numbness of the extremities, general weakness, that I was constantly fearful of falling, when on my legs; all these symptoms have been removed by Du Barry's excellent Food." CONSTANTLY on hand, and Peals or Chimes of Bells U (or any unmber) cast to order. Improved cast from Yokes, will moveable arms are attached to these Bells so that they may be adjusted to ring easily and oroperly, and springs also which prevent the clapper from resting on the Bell, thereby prolonging the sound. Hangings complete, (including Yoke, Frame and Wheel), furnished it desired. The horns by which the Bell is suspended, admits of the Yoke being changed to a new position, and thus bringing the blow of the clapper ings new place;—which is desirable after some years' usage, as it diminishes the probability of the Bell's breding, occasioned by repeated blows of the clapper in one place.

An experience of thirty years in the business has given the gubscriber an opportunity of ascertaining the best form for Bells, the various combination of metals, an the degree of heat requisite for sectiving the greatest so lidity, strength, and most includious tones, and has enabled them to secure for their Rells, thehighest awards at the N-Y, state agricultural Secrety and American Institute, at their Fairs, for several year past. Boys and girls that nimbly play, Never say it. They can jump and run away, Skip and toss and play their pranks; Even dull ones, when they're gay,

Never say it.

Never mind how hard the task. Never say it, Find some one who knows, and ask Till you have your lessons learn'd; Never mind how hard the task : Never say it.

Men who do the noblest deeds Never say it. He who lacks the strength he needs, Tries his best, and get it soon, And at last he will succeed-Never say it.

But when evil tempts to wrong, Always say it. In your virtue firm and strong, Drive the tempter from your sight; And when follies round you throng Ever say it.

When good actions call you near, Never say it. Drive away the rising fear, Get your strength where good men do. All your paths will then be clear; Would you find a happy year? Would you save a sorrowing tear? Never sav it.
