The Morning Freeman. SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 29, 1862.

OFFICE-West Size of Prince William Street, over the store of G. M. Steves.

One of the favourite dodges of the Government party when hard pressed is to turn away from the question really under consideration and to force the House if possible into the discussion of matters entirely extraneous, and still better if they can get up a personal squabble. On the discussion of Mr. Kerr's Railway Bill a Mi.c few days ago, Mr. Angiin charged the Government in the most distinct and emphatic language with having misled and deceived the House and the public with regard to Railway construction and expenses. He asserted that these were neither mi takes nor miscalculitions but deliberate misstatements, and for over an hour he read extracts from the various public reports and documents of 1858, '59, '60, '61 and '62, contrasting them, pointing out the contradictions that abounded therein, and the were wilful and deliberate, and rendered any statements they may now make and any assured any proofs they afforded that the misstatements rances they may give wholly unreliable: To hear the Attorney General, the Postmaster Ge neral, and some of their supporters, however, must have imagined that he made no charges to force by taunts and challenges to compel Mr. most of the others. Arglin to make charges, and sought in vain .-The Postmaster played thes same game, alleging such evidence as Mr. Anglin offered, but he, North Slip, Wharfage Sidney Marlike the others, did not attempt to show any error or weak point in the proofs or arguments. Weighing Machine. One said the charges are all the old stereotyped North Rodney Wharf, 401 00 524 00 charges; another complained that the old charges were not now all pressed, as if all could Guy's Ward,
