These changes offer Roumania proof that the object she pursued in joining the triple alliance no longer could be attained and that she must direct her efforts in new paths, especially as the work undertaken by Austria-Hungary threatened the interests of Roumania and her national aspirations.

ON THE SOMME FRONT.

LONDON, Aug. 29.

British forces on the Somme front are forging ahead slowly, the War Office announced to-day, although weather conditions are still unfavorable. The announcement is as follows:

Weather conditions have been unfavorable, and operations during the past 24 hours have been confined to minor engagements and bombing attacks: By these means we gradually established our hold on the ground between the western outskirts of Guillemont and Ginchy. Further north between Delville Wood and the high road our troops captured a hostile barricade. Southeast of Thiepval some further progress was made. A hostile machine gun was captured to the side of the Entente Allies, King Ferdinand has ordered a general mobilization of his forces and is reported to have proceeded to the front personally to take command of his army. Unofficial advices from the Roumanians are making furious efforts to capture the passes in the Eastern Carpathians leading into Hungary. Already they are declared to be fighting shoulder to shoulder with the Russian troops coming from Bukqwina, while Berlin says Roumania's attempts to pierce the pass leading through Hermannstadt and Toerzberger and the Toemoes Passential that owing to the far-reaching encircling movement by strong forces the Austrian advance detachments been forced to withdraw.

A hostile machine gun was captured during these minor operations, and more prisoners taken, but the number is not yet accounted. An attempted raid by the enemy to the south of Arras falled. Our artillery carried out bombardments on selected parts of the enemy's line between Neuve Chapelle and Boise Grinier, south of Armenary rench warfare prevails.

What Greece's attitude will be as result of the Roumanians joining the Entente Allies is still problematical, but unofficial advices to London express the belief that the Hellenic Kingdom will shortly throw in its lot with the Entente Allies. A pro-Entente demonstration at Athens passed a resolution saying "that if people were not heard in their demonstration by the Greece join the Entente Powers, we must take counsel as to what is to be done to minimize the ruin which awaits us." The occupation by the Bulgarians of Kavala is declared to have intensified the feelings of the Greeks who are said to be willing to follow the former President Venizelos is strongly pro-Entente.

Again official communications from the various belligerent powers fall to record any great battles. An attempt by the Germans to approach the British trenches near Pozieres which was put down by British fire was the only move made by infantry. There is still considerable artillery activity in this region, however, along the facchments and a cold, and all the dope the druggists sold afforded no relief. I had the springhalt and the heaves- none of my ills were make-believes,- l had ingrowing nails; I had bog spavins on my knees, but I've forgot-ten all direase, among these hills and vales. Afar from all the roar of towns, I walk, in khaki handmedewns, my staff a pine-tree's branch; I blithely scale these western Alps, and ply upon their snowy scalps, and ride the avalanche. The mountain air a tonic is, it makes the vital current whiz along an old gent's veins; i nakes his lagging step grow bold, and makes him think he's ten years old, and banishes his pains.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly, the feature of incandescen Possibly, the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers is the great ease with which tasks, ordinarily arduous under artificial light may be performed under the Welsbach gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly "soft" quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incan-descent gas lighting is decidedly favorable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, tending to expel the air vitiated by respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a gas lamp close to a ceiling without any provision for interfering with the up-rushing air currents. The charred particles which collect immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were ladburning of gas lamps in rooms previ-ously containing bacteria, resulted in absolute sterilization of the air.

It was not a liquid flame, but something that did not openly flame. THE PIG WAS STOLEN.—A number of sports from the city drove out to a country house, west of the city. Saturday night to enjoy a quiet game of forty-fives, the prize being a fine six months old pig. As is customary, the animal was produced and then taken back to its pound. After several closely contested games, in which the kitchen able received some hard knocks, the final game stood forty to twenty, when the low man ran off a jink. The usual congratulations were exchanged, but on proceeding to the barn to take over his new prize, he discovered that piggy had been spirited away.
