The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER XIV.
"Do not talk of my goodness," she answered, lightly. "What are my little efforts, compared with all the kindness you have shown me?"

"You cannot guess, Margery, how different my life has been since you came to me. Now, don't shake your head! I can never say it often enough. Do you know, I had a presentiment that we should become friends the very instant Mrs. Fothergill mentioned your name? Margery Daw! There is a sweetness about it, a touch of romance. I was quite eager you should come and I was so happy when the letter arrived saying that you would. I am afraid, dear, Lady Enid added, with a sigh, "that sometimes it is very lonely and dull for you here, with only a poor sick girl for company."

Margery slipped to her knees beside the slight form in its cardinal-colored silk wrapper.
"Never say that again—never," she said, "for I will not listen."
Lady Enid smiled, and Margery bent her lips to the thin, white hand.
"Are you comfortable?" she asked, gently.

"Quite. Now stay here, Margery, and let us chat together. When the lamps come, I will hear you sing; but this is what I enjoy. I have been thinking to myself, as I lay on my couch, what a delight it would be to find out the truth about your poor young mother. How glad I should be if we could discover a clew!"
"I have given up all hope," Margery responded dreamily.
"Then it is wrong of you," Lady Enid said, reprovingly, while she stroked Margery's soft curls caressingly. "I do not mean to do so if you do. I have thought of all sorts of plans; but the best of them all is to put the whole affair into Nugent's hands."

"But, my dear Lady Enid, your brother, Lord Court, will have other and more important things to employ him."
"Nugent always does anything that gives me pleasure, and this would be pleasure, indeed. You know, Margery, I have written so much about you; and only in his last letter he said he was so delighted to hear that I had at last secured a real friend and companion."

"He is very fond of you, I know," Margery responded, softly. She knew that on the theme of this beloved brother Lady Enid would talk for hours, and she welcomed any subject that interested the poor young patient, being content to herself to listen, for it banished more painful thoughts.

"Nugent has loved me as a father, mother, brother, all in one; we were left orphans so young; and oh, Margery, you could never fathom how dear he is to me! When I was well and could run about I can remember that my greatest treat was to have a holiday with Nugent. Then, when my illness came, and I was crippled for life, it was Nugent who brought all the happiness, all the light into my existence. We were alone in the world, and he treasured me as the greatest jewel till—" Lady Enid paused. "Margery," she went on, after a brief silence, "I dare say you have often wondered why Nugent does not come home, why he has left me here so long alone?"

"I have, sometimes," confessed Margery.
"And you have thought him unkind. Ah, I will not have him judged, wrongly! I will tell you why he wanders abroad, leaves his old home and me, his little sister. Yes, I will tell you."

"If it pains you, do not speak of it," broke in Margery, seeing the pale face contract a little.
"It is dead and gone, and I need grieve no more. Nugent and I never speak of the past, but it will do me good to open my heart to you. When, as I have told you before, the doctors said I should be a cripple for life, I thought my brother's heart would break. He grew almost ill with trouble, and it was not until he saw that I was resigned and content that he recovered. He was so good to me then; no one was allowed to touch me; but he; he lifted me and carried me from my couch to the chair or to the bed; he regulated his whole life and career by me. But for my illness he would have found a prominent place in the government, and doubtless have become a great man in the political world; but he renounced all his ambitions—everything for me. We were living then in our dear old home, Court Manor, of all Nugent's possessions the one we most cherished. I should like to take you there, Margery, to show you its quaint rooms and corridors, let you loose yourself in the pleasure and gardens. I was quite happy. Nugent never left me; together we read, studied, sung; we wanted nothing more than our two selves. Well, a day came that ended it all."

"Court Manor is in Westshire, in one of the most picturesque parts, and the village of Court consists of about half-a-dozen cottages and a tiny church. There are several country houses about, and the one nearest to us is a large, rambling old place called the Gill. This has been unoccupied although richly furnished, for many years, the owner living abroad; but suddenly one morning we heard that the Gill was to have an occupant, and a few days later that occupant arrived. We neither saw nor heard anything of the new neighbor, till one afternoon, as Nugent was reading to me, the lower gate clanged, sounds were heard on the gravel path, and a moment later a woman on horseback passed the window. She asked to be admitted to me; but I begged Nugent to excuse me, and he received her alone. I questioned him closely when the visitor was gone; but he gave me little information about her appearance, and only said, in rather a constrained way, that she was a widow—a Mrs. Yelverton—who had taken the Gill for the hunting season.

"I dismissed her from my mind, and life went on as usual for a few days; then it seemed to me that Nugent was out a great deal more than formerly. He was worried, almost ill at ease, during our readings; and, when I asked him the reason, he at last confessed that Mrs. Yelverton had organized regular hunting parties at her house, and had begged him to join them. I submitted gladly, for I had long thought the life was dull for him; and so the days passed on slowly, and we drifted gradually apart. I saw Mrs. Yelverton only once, and then I was almost dazzled by the brilliancy of her beauty. Her coloring was so rich, so vivid, that others paled beside her, and her eyes, of a most unexpressed tawny shade, filled me with vague alarm. Apparently, she did not care for me, for she never repeated her visit; and I was left in peace till the end came."

"I will not linger over the rest, Margery; you can guess it. Nugent had grown to love her—he was bewitched by her beauty; and he whispered to me one evening that she had promised to become his wife. I tried to murmur words of happiness; but my heart failed me, and I could do nothing but look into his dear face with eyes that would speak my distress. Nugent left me that night, hurt at my coldness; but all thought of me was banished in the golden glory of his brief love-drama. Brief! It was but three months after his betrothal that his dream was shattered."

Lady Enid moved restlessly in her chair, and Margery, noticing her agitation, pressed tenderly the hot hands that were clasped together.
"Do not get on," she whispered; "it pains you."
"No, no! I like to tell you, dear," replied Lady Enid hurriedly. "Nugent was starting one morning to ride to the Gill; he had come into my room to kiss and greet me, and was eager to be gone, when the footman entered with a note. Nugent broke the seal and read it hurriedly, then, with a face like death, staggered to a chair. I begged in piteous tones that he would speak to me, tell me what had happened—for, alas! I could not move!—and after a while he thrust the note into my hands. It was from a man signing himself 'Roe,' stating that he had heard his wife was about to commit bigamy with the Earl of Court, under the assumed name of Mrs. Yelverton, and he warned Nugent against her in words that were more than forcible. I tried to speak to my brother; but his looks checked the words on my lips, and he strode out of the room, mounted his horse, and tore like a madman to the Gill."

"You can picture the misery of that day, Margery, I tossed and moaned alone—longing for, yet dreading Nugent's return. At last he came, and I heard the end—the agony in his face and voice would have wounded you to the quick, Margery. The woman was indeed Roe's wife, and, when Nugent reached the Gill, he found everything in the wildest confusion. The man and wife had had an interview, in which he informed her that Lord Court knew the truth; and this so incensed her that she drew out a revolver and fired at him. Fortunately, the bullet missed him, and the woman, finding herself baffled, fled. Roe told Nugent the story of his miserable life. His wife had deserted him, destroyed his whole career. He described her as a desperate character, and thoroughly abandoned."

"Eczema All Over Arms Suffered for 12 Years"

Mrs. Murray Hough, Warton, Ont., writes:

"I had eczema for twelve years. Every once in a while it would break out and spread all over my arms. I tried all kinds of treatments to relieve it, but without success. One Spring it broke out and nothing gave me relief, even the salve I got from the doctor did no good. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment and it healed the eczema in a short time. That is over a year ago, and I have had no return of the trouble."

ON TIME.

"I'm always prompt," our tailor brags, while yet he piles his coasts: "My patrons come to me for rags, and do not want excuses. I say to Jim: 'On Friday noon, and not one hour abating, you call here for your pantaloons, and you will find it waiting.' I say to Jones: 'At half past one today, so help me Thomas, you'll find your smock and doublet done, according to my promise.' A broken promise is a crime, faith is the thing that matters; so patrons come, time after time, to buy their rags and tatters." Our tailor is a thrifty man, his house has gaudy porches, he rides around in his sedan, and smokes imported torches. Some merchants see their business fade, and to the poorhouses, trundle; our tailor has a booming trade, and always has his bundle. There is no quicker way to lose the trade than the keeping than begging patrons to excuse your breaks, with sighs and weeping. There is no surer way to rouse the wrath of patrons busy than by a string of broken vows, flanked by excuses dizzy. So when we promise to produce a hat, a hen, a hammer, let's bring the goods, for no excuse will still the patrons' clamor.

THE VITAL POWER

OF THE HUMAN BODY. IT CAN BE RESTORED.

The force that runs the human machine is stored in the nerves. This nervous energy, as it is called, is only another name for electricity. If any organ of your body is weak and inactive, it means that the nerves which control it lack power. This must be restored before the affected part can perform its proper functions. It does no good to take drugs for such a condition as this. You can only effect a cure by replacing the energy that has been lost. Drugs are poisons—electricity is life.

Saturate your nerves with a glowing current from the "Ajax" Body Battery for an hour each day. The weak organs will respond to its influence in the same way that an electric motor starts whirling as soon as the power is turned on. The "Ajax" is a self-charged body battery which generates a steady, unbroken stream of galvanic electricity and infuses it into the nerves in just the right volume. It builds up vitality and strength, and cures all ailments resulting from a debilitated state of the nerves and vital organs.

Men who suffer from falling vitality, debility, or any of the usual weaknesses, will find that the "Ajax" Body Battery, together with electric suspensory attachment, will quickly put them into good condition. It is a natural remedy, and those who have used it will tell you that it does all we claim for it.

THIS IS FREE.

We'll send you our free Book, closely sealed, which tells you all about the Battery—how it cures and what it does—together with full information concerning the treatment. This Book is illustrated, and explains many things you should know about the cause and cure of human ailments. If you want to be the man Nature intended you to be, write for the book at once. There are special booklets for Ladies and Gentlemen. Please specify which is required when writing.

In order to save time correspondents should, when writing for the Free Booklet, state their age, sex and full details of their case, for then precise advice can be sent by return mail. All letters are treated in strictest confidence.

Winfield Commission Finds Lack of Confidence the Basis of Sydney Dispute

Miners Reject Proposals Made by Besco—Bill to Enfranchise Women of 21 Before House of Commons—Wrangel Survivors Arrive in Vancouver.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 13. A statement given out to-day, in correspondence which has been received from John W. McLeod, Dispute President of the United Mine Workers of America, and himself, with reference to the wage dispute between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its miners, J. E. Moore, Vice-President of the Corporation, explains the Company's reasons for the rejection of the proposal made by the U.M.W., that a four months' contract at the 1924 scale should be entered into pending full investigation of the Company and the U.M.W. by a commission representing both parties to the dispute, who will agree before the dispute is settled, to abide by the findings reached by the Commission. The U.M.W. Vice-President stated it was not the best interests of the miners, in general public or the Company, to enter into a contract for four months in the midst of the shipping season, and make it impossible for the Sales Department to negotiate contracts for the tonnage of coal.

MINERS REJECT BESCO PROPOSALS.

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 13. The miners have decided to reject the counter proposal made by the British Empire Steel Corporation for settlement of the present wage dispute. It was announced here this morning.

WINFIELD REPORT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13. The report of the Winfield Commission, which considered the dispute between the miners and Besco, says that permanent improvement in the industrial relations can be expected unless complete confidence is established between the operators and the employees.

BILL TO GIVE WOMEN OF 21 THE VOTE.

LONDON, Feb. 13. A Bill to enfranchise women at the age of 21 on an equal basis with men, introduced by W. Whitely, Labor, member, was among those introduced in the Commons to-day.

GENEVA PESSIMISTIC OVER PROTOCOL.

GENEVA, Feb. 13. A somewhat pessimistic atmosphere prevails in process of formation here regarding the prospects of the Geneva Peace Protocol, framed at the last assembly of the League of Nations. The apparent disinclination of the British Government to accept the protocol, which forms the subject of the dispute, reaching Geneva at 11 o'clock to-day, is serving to confirm the impression here that the protocol will be seriously remodelled if it is not to save it.

NERVES AND FAINTING SPELLS

Best Woman to Bed. Great Change After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Sarnia, Ontario. "After my girlhood I was a wreck. My nerves were so terrible for words and I simply could not stand or walk without fainting. I suffered with fainting spells until I was no longer any good for my husband's duties and had to take to my bed. The doctor said I should have an operation, but I was not in a condition at that time. My neighbor said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' I was told it would do you good and will be paid by her bills." So I was induced by him about it. I am very thankful to say that I was soon able to resume my work as a nurse and I have been in 17 months old now and I have not had an operation, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have recommended it to a few friends and have told them the good it has done me. I know I feel and look like a different woman. I have lost weight and I certainly would not be the same. You can use this letter as proof for those suffering as I have to do. ROBERT C. MACGREGOR, R. R. 2, Sarnia, Ontario.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.
If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness of throat, tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.
You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Woman's Appeal

FOR COMMON DECENCY IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—I read with interest all the editorials, letters and articles on Woman Suffrage that appear in your paper from time to time. The Evening Telegram has always been a staunch supporter of every righteous cause, and the women of Newfoundland have reason to be sincerely grateful for the courage and vision it has always shown in giving the Franchise movement its support.
Women feel confident that at last, after years of lies and trickery, their demands for justice will be granted. The Premier, Mr. Monroe, the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Hickman, and many of the members on both sides have promised their support when the Woman's Franchise Bill is brought up at the coming session. And we have faith in them.

Women do not want to elect women as representatives. Look at America! Look at England! The majority of women are much too busy, and it is only an exceptional woman, with means and leisure who will stand; but women do want honest representatives who will uphold the rights of women and children, and not see people living in ignorance and squalor whilst their taxes are squandered.

Women have been asleep too long, but they are waking up. The disgraceful state of affairs during the Squires regime convinced the women that it was time they took a stand against such wrong doing, and the only way was to demand the vote, and it was mainly through their opinion that that Government received its downfall.

Women do not think alike on all subjects. Some women are in favour of total Prohibition, but the majority are in favour of giving the new regulations a try-out, and believe that with strict control the Controller's Department will do more good, than the lax way the Prohibition problem was mismanaged under Squires.

Women pay taxes on everything and think bitterly of the $20,000 which disappeared from the Post Office, the $80,000 from the Agriculture and Mines Department, and the hundreds of thousands of dollars from the Controller's Department disappeared without the country or city benefitting in the slightest. Five hundred thousand dollars is squandered on the Normal School. When the Methodist College children were placed there after the burning of their school, we read that thirty-eight teachers were turned out. Thirty-eight hardly seem enough to justify this colossal extravagance. Women think that a hundred thousand dollars would have been ample to erect a satisfactory teachers' training school, whilst all the other hundreds of thousands of dollars could be spent upon improving conditions of schools here and throughout the Island; and the hundreds of thousands of dollars taken from the Post Office, the Controller's Department, Agriculture and Mines, etc. could have been spent on cleaning and improving the city, putting the street cars up Freshwater Road and Hamilton Street for instance.

Why, women argue, if all this money has been misappropriated is there only one man punished?
Wake up women! It is in your hands to help on progress! Show by your interest that women do need the vote.

Not a Fad

The use of Richard Hudnut's Marvellous Cold Cream is not at all a fad but an absolute necessity in this cold climate. Every night this skin cream should be used freely otherwise the face will become rough and red and the complexion ruined. It only takes a minute to massage the face with MARVELLOUS COLD CREAM and it is well worth every woman's while to take this necessary precaution especially during winter.—Feb. 14, 21

THE STORY:

IN THE FISHING VILLAGE of Kedarville lives Jonathan Swift, wealthy fish packer, his daughter Emily and son Noah, a wealthy young fellow, and Becky, a winsome girl of eighteen, is still friendly with the elder Swift. Becky is secretly in love with young Noah Swift despite her father's objections.

THE FISHING FLEET puts into harbor and Swift cuts the price to such an extent that Captain Joe Cradlebow, young leader of the fleet, goes to him and flatly tells him that the catch will be dumped overboard unless satisfactory terms are made. During the call he renews acquaintances with Emily, a childhood playmate, who attempts to ignore him. This rather amuses Joe.

THEN WORD is brought home that young Ezra Keeler has been lost at sea and Joe goes to board with them to help keep the wolf from the door. Joe, meanwhile, has interested Emily Swift but her father orders him from the house.

IT IS ABOUT at this time that Jonathan Swift learns of Noah's secret love affair with Becky. He has his son shanghaied when he hears that Becky is about to become a mother and that his son has promised to marry her. Unable to stand the loss of her lover, Becky leaves her home and hides aboard Joe's boat.

EMILY SEES JOE sail away with tears in her eyes for she has come to love him deeply. Joe does not know that Becky is aboard his ship.

SEVERAL DAYS LATER the fleet returns. Emily is at the dock to meet Joe and is stunned to see him leave the ship with Becky. Before Joe can explain the situation to Emily he is called to rescue Noah Swift who has been shipwrecked. After a long struggle he finally brings Noah ashore. The elder Swift then agrees to take Joe in as a partner, Noah recovers and marries Becky, and Emily and Joe come to an understanding with an early marriage in prospect.

MARKET LETTER.

Our Boston Correspondent, Feb. 6.)
 Speculators and investors are more attached to a great deal of significance to former price levels in formulating their investment or speculative programs. It is a practice which is not apt to greatly increase profits. It is contrary to what has been found to fit in with the wisest methods of predetermining speculative commitments.
 As a question if the average trader would not be better off if there were records of past selling there available for consideration before making commitment.
 A certain security is selling to yield 8%, its financial condition is sound, its earnings are substantially in excess of the dividend payment and prospect for future earnings, as good as can be seen, is good, the views of an expert statistician are necessary in order to perceive that it is cheap. Yet, if the stock has had a rise of twenty points, the first tendency of most traders in giving it consideration is to avoid it on account of its rise. In most cases it would be better if he had no knowledge of its price movement because, contrary to general opinion, the fact that security has had a rise of twenty points, if an impartial analysis reveals it to be conservatively valued, is a bullish rather than a bearish factor. It means that certain interests have perceived its value and have been buying it, and in normal course of events buying orders should exceed selling orders. It is no longer cheap. Probably one of the chief causes of loss in speculative speculation is the buying of securities which have had a substantial rise on the theory that they will be cheap. The same reasoning applies to the general market as well as individual securities.
 There is still, in our opinion, no reason for believing that the bull market has approximated completion. On every rally, however, it is noticeable that the market is required to absorb much more selling than was the case in the last two months of 1924 when the trend of prices was clearly upward. We recently stated that the market was entitled to substantial reaction, in view of the interrupted advance which had occurred since the first of November, but that the best reason for doubting its development at that time was the fact that it had been widely anticipated. We thought that before it occurred a rally would develop which would restore the bullish enthusiasm of the general public. Such a rally is in progress at the present writing and we believe that little will be lost in accepting a more or less neutral position in anticipation of an opportunity to replace the general run of stocks at a lower figure.

Harbor Grace Notes

The marriage of Miss Annie, daughter of Mrs. and the late Edward O'Ryan, of this town, and Mr. Joseph R. Manning, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Manning, of Olerin, P.R., was solemnized at the R. C. Cathedral on Tuesday, February 11th, the Rev. M. F. Dinan officiating. The bride was prettily attired in pearl grey silk velour, with hat to match and was attended by Miss Frances Garland, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. Richard O'Ryan, brother of the bride. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the bride proceeded to the home of the bride's mother, Garland Hill, where a reception was held, and the usual toasts were gone through and an enjoyable time spent. The groom's present to the bride was a set of lynx furs; to the bridesmaid, a French ivory dressing set and to the best man a silver shaving set. Many and costly were the presents received, among the number being a piece of gold from Messrs. J. & W. Madigan, where the bride had been an employee for the past seven years. After spending a short time here, the groom will proceed to Corner Brook, where he holds a responsible position and will be later joined by Mrs. Manning, where they intend to make their home in the future. We join with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Manning, in wishing them many years of happy wedded life.

Rev. W. R. J. Higgett has severed another link with the past, having tendered his resignation, as President of the St. Paul's Men's Bible Class at a meeting held recently. This class was formed in 1914 by the Rev. Mr. Higgett and it is deeply regretted by the members of the organization that ill health has compelled their worthy President to sever connections. It would be difficult to estimate the good work this class has accomplished since its formation.

The members of the Dalton Ladies' Association and Dalton Council, K. of C., are holding a card party and dance in the Academy Hall to-night, Thursday. At the card party held on Thursday last, prizes were won by Misses Lizzie Griffin, and Minnie O'Brien, Messrs. W. O'B. Kennedy and R. Ryan.

Mr. E. L. Oke has been visiting the city during the week, and was present at the wedding of his cousin, Mr. Gordon Jeans Oke, who was united in hymen's bonds to Miss Sadie Beams Hampton on Tuesday, 10th, inst.

A lecture will be delivered by Rev. Charles Lench on Tuesday night next, February 17th, in Coughlan Hall. The subject will be—"My Trip to the Holy Land." Rev. W. R. J. Higgett, Rector of St. Paul's, will act as chairman for the evening. A large audience is anticipated to hear the Rev. lecturer speak on this most interesting subject.

Owing to the change in weather conditions, the ice that had formed in the harbour is once more broken up and has drifted out, with the exception of that of the extreme west, which still remains frozen to some depth.

Miss Elsie Sheppard, an employee of the L.N. & P. Association of Fashionists, St. John's, has been here recently on a week's visit to her mother, Mrs. Robt. Tetford.

Mrs. Lorenza Noseworthy, of Spaniards Bay, was in town during the week on a visit to friends.

Miss Gladys M. Russel, of Bay Roberts, spent the week-end here with friends, and returned again by Tuesday's train.

Dr. W. S. Goodwin and his assistant, Mr. W. Stevenson, were at Bay Roberts during last week on a professional visit, and returned again on Thursday last.—OOR.

Thrilled by Child Ski Jump Wonder

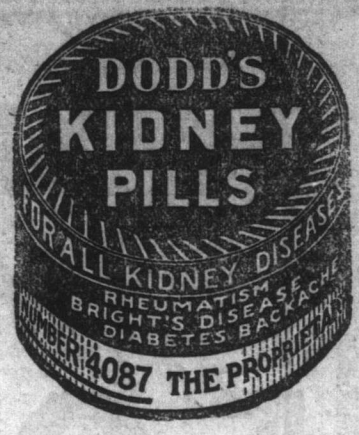

Thousands Sport Devotees Gather for Revelstoke Winter Carnival.

Revelstoke, B.C., Feb. 5.—Lined in front of the world's highest ski hill here Wednesday afternoon, a thousand winter sport devotees from all points in Western America saw little Arthur Johnson, "baby wonder" of the ski world, whirl 105 feet through space and make a perfect landing on the side of Mount Revelstoke. This feat of the nine-year-old wonder was the big thriller of the opening day of the world's ski jumping championships which are being held here this week.

Seventy boys, aged from 9 to 16, went over the take-off without a mishap, though several sensational spills were witnessed. Some of the youngsters were mere tots, but they displayed that brand of youthful nerve which does not survive into middle age.

Miss Isabel Courcier, who holds the world's ladies' record of 171 feet, made a trial jump of 100 feet preparatory to her contest to hold her crown.

E. Endren, of Trail, B.C., won the seven-mile ski run during the morning's events in 32 minutes and 41 seconds, winning out by 15 seconds over the veteran champion, J. Cunningham, who has won this event during the last ten years. The ladies' open ski race of one mile was won by Mrs. J. Cunningham in seven minutes and 32 seconds, which was exceptionally good time, since the cross-country events include the climbing of the lower reaches of Mount Revelstoke. The boys' three-mile cross-country race on skis was won by R. Hume in 24 minutes and 45 seconds.

The Revelstoke carnival opened on the deepest snowfall in British Columbia since 1910. Thirteen feet of snow has fallen this winter, seven feet of which fell last month, making the present depth of the surrounding country eight feet on the level. Owing to the excellent depth and condition of the snow this year some world's records are expected to be broken here when the famous Nels Nelson, holder of the present world's record of 295 feet, and several Norwegian champions will fight for a new record.

An Inseparable Companion

In the handbag, on the dressing table, shopping, visiting, the Three Flowers Compact has become the inseparable companion of discriminating women. It is so charming in appearance, so useful whenever the complexion requires a deft touch of refreshment—so artistic, unique, smart in every "littlest" detail. How Armour Treated an Erring Engine Driver

A snow storm was raging. The engine driver on a night express train between Milwaukee and Chicago suddenly jammed on the emergency brakes so hard that the passengers were badly shaken. An elderly passenger, armed with a lantern, picked his way to the front of the train, saw that a rear-end disaster had been avoided by a hair's breadth, summoned the engine driver, and said to him: "I'm P. D. Armour, a director of this road. You come to my office at nine o'clock to-morrow morning." The badly-frightened engineer entered Armour's private office next morning, certain that he would be summarily dismissed in disgrace. He frankly admitted that the danger signal had been set against him, that he should have seen it, but that possibly he may have been dozing at the moment he ran past it. He added that driving an express had come to be an automatic operation.

"Yes, yes, that's the trouble," said Mr. Armour, "driving an engine has become automatic with you. You are getting old. But it was pretty dark and the storm was bad, so it might not have been easy for you to see the danger signal. Where were you horn and raised? Fine. Here's a cheque for $1,500. Go back to Connecticut, among our old friends, open a little store, and settle down to enjoy a comfortable old age."

This incident recently came to light when an Armour representative happened to be passing the store the ex-engineer opened and noticed that there were no Armour products displayed in the window. He went in—and was immediately given an order.—Forbes Magazine, (New York).

Aid to Stability

British Banker and the return to Gold. Advocating a return to the gold standard, Mr. F. C. Goodenough, the chairman of Barclays Bank Ltd., said many people imagined that it would suit our manufacturers better for this country to maintain the internal purchasing power of the pound sterling at a higher level than its external value in order to encourage exports. Such, however, was not the case. We had to pay our debts abroad and had to purchase raw materials from abroad, and if we were to provide markets for our manufacturers and promote the production of raw materials for them to deal with, we had also to invest capital abroad. The uncertainty involved in dealing with those matters would be less if our currency were at parity than if it were at a fluctuating discount in foreign markets, and those considerations outweighed any temporary advantage which might accrue to us through a depreciated currency of varying value, in which wages, even though they might be adjusted from time to time, would be paid as though the currency were of full value, whilst the wage-earner's cost of living would be regulated on the basis

Line a dish with sliced green pepper, fill with cherry gelatin, slice when firm, and serve on shredded lettuce with mayonnaise.
 Often, at this time of year, apples are lacking in flavor. When using them in pies or puddings, season with a little lemon juice.
 When using grated cheese in a sandwich filling, season it with a little tomato catsup, Worcestershire sauce, onion juice, salt and cayenne.

A Unique Family Record

An interesting and unique family record is furnished by the family of Mr. Richard Sheppard, who is now living in Everett, Mass.
 Mr. Sheppard was born in Harbor Grace over 70 years ago, where he grew up, married and lived with his wife up to two years ago.
 He and his wife became the proud parents of nine stalwart sons, who at different intervals left Harbor Grace and, coming to this country settled in and around Boston, where they have all prospered and made comfortable homes for themselves.
 Two years ago the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheppard, came to join their children, and the interesting feature lies in the fact that the family of nine sons and the father and mother, after all these years, is still intact, and the different members, together with their own families, live close to one another in Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard live with James of 225 Vine St., Everett; whilst Henry resides at 198 Cross St., Malden; Arch at 50 Vernal St., Everett; Robert at 108 Mill St., Revere; Norman at 2 Taft St., Medford; Richard at 225 Vine St., Everett; Alan at 30 Sheridan Ave., Medford; Selby at 51 Wilton Ave., Quincy; whilst Freeman is at present in H. Graves on a visit and will return to Everett in the spring.

The sons are for the most part engaged in building and construction work as well as garage owners, and have all made good in their vocations in their different localities. This is a record worthy of note, and Mr. R. Sheppard, Sr., who are still hale and hearty, can look with just pride upon their accomplishments. A few years ago Judge Oke, of the District Court of Harbor Grace sent for a photograph of the family to be hung in his office there.—Nfld. Weekly, Boston.

Urge Restoration of Penny Postage

INFLUENTIAL DEPUTATION APPEAL TO POSTMASTER-GENERAL FOR OLD RATE.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(Can. Press.)—That penny postage be restored in the United Kingdom was the request made yesterday by a deputation representative of the printing and paper-making industries of Great Britain.

The deputation contended that restoration of the penny rate would stimulate trade, reduce unemployment and help the British home and export trade. It was pointed out to the Postmaster-General, Sir William L. M. Thomson, that the sales of picture post-cards in New Zealand had increased 25 per cent. since the New Zealand Government had reduced the postal rates, and the fact that South Africa was about to restore the penny postal rate made the time opportune for a re-introduction of the rate into Great Britain.

It was mentioned that the income from advertisements exhibited in post-offices was now £22,000 yearly, therefore the Postmaster-General would be interested to learn that the British printing industry had embarked on a campaign of collective advertising, and would, this month, send out about a thousand booklets advocating more extensive use of direct mail advertising. This would enable postal officials to base their estimates along more optimistic lines, the deputation urged.

SOLUTION OF FRIDAY'S PUZZLE

"THE DARK SWAN" CONTAINS SOMETHING UNUSUAL

The management of the Nickel Theatre announces to its patrons "The Dark Swan" as the current attraction for the coming week, beginning Monday.

This is the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, adapted from the Ernest Pascal novel, which lost no time in swinging into the forefront of "best sellers" the moment it was released for publication.

This unusually powerful novel by a young American writer differs from the story of the ugly duckling in an important respect. The dark swan never grows to be beautiful.

Mr. Pascal is credited with having worked out interestingly the character of his heroine, who is lovely in spirit but more than plain in feature. Her sister, a girl of rare beauty, is selfish, spiteful and, although possessed of a certain petty shrewdness, rather stupid. Yet, in the end, the beauty gains largely of the world's goods and, after her fashion, of happiness; while the dark swan is hard put to maintain the serenity of her soul.

The major roles in this interesting production are entrusted into the hands of Marie Prevost, Monte Blue and Helene Chadwick. Others in the cast are Lilyan Tashman, Mary McLaren, Carl Miller, Vera Lewis, John Patrick, and Arthur Rankin.

Beer Regulations in B. C. Stringent

"Foreign" Bartenders Need Not Apply—British Help Only.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 6. (C.P.)—British Columbia's new beer halls will operate from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. There will be no bars or barmaids; dancing will be prohibited, and the rules are designed to prevent any return to the "beer cabaret" so prevalent in British Columbia some years ago, according to regulations announced by Attorney-General Manson.

"We have applied ourselves to the simple instruction of the Legislature. It is a straight case of relief to a parching thirst in the simplest manner possible," said Hugh Davidson, Liquor Commissioner.

The room will contain chairs, tables and waiters. Only men who are British subjects and otherwise eligible to get on the voters' list can be employed. The commissioner thus hopes to head off an invasion of foreign ex-bartenders. The proprietor, likewise, must be British and eligible to vote.

The outstanding bar and brass rail will be conspicuous by their absence, and this is expected to eliminate the system of wholesale treating in vogue in the old days.

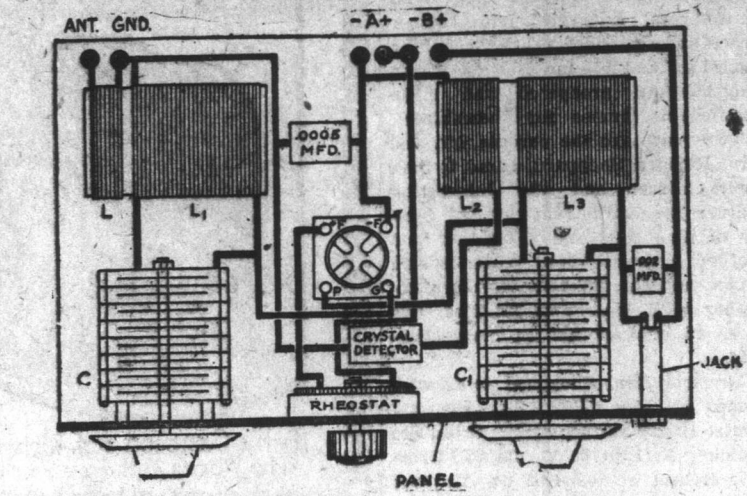

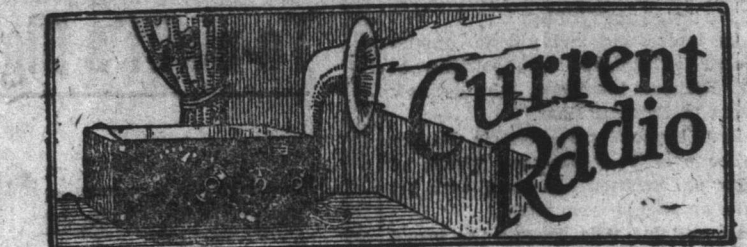

Draught and bottled beer only will be on sale, with as high as four and one-half per cent. alcoholic content and not lower than three per cent. will be sold.

Provision is being made for sale of beer in "wet spots" only of those electoral districts which voted for beer in the June plebiscite. Thus, whatever licenses are issued in Vancouver will be in downtown polling divisions, which voted "wet."

Twenty-three electoral districts in the province voted wet, and seventeen dry. There are no provisions in the regulations for the issue of licenses in any of the serpentine districts, though there were some definitely "wet" sections in these dry areas.

Vancouver hotelmen must pay $1,000 each for beer licenses. It is unknown how many will be issued, estimates running from thirty to seventy.

Victoria, New Westminster, and Kamloops voted against beer, so that the next class of city to obtain the glass system will include Nanaimo and Fernie. They will pay $500 for license privileges. The $500 license class, will include industrial towns up to 2,500 people. Then comes hamlets, whose fees will be as low as $150 a year.

A Simple Reflexed Radio Frequency Set—1

For the person who is interested in getting the most out of a radio receiver for the minimum investment of time, money and trouble, we believe that the following description will be of interest.

We assume that the reader of this article is a beginner in radio, that home construction of a set will appeal to him, but that he has heretofore consistently given up the idea because he believed it required vast technical knowledge to understand the circuit diagrams usually supplied. In order to simplify the construction of this receiver, and to go into great detail in regard to all constructional points we have decided to run the story in two sections. Section '1' will show the diagram in "picture" form while the conventional diagram will be carried in the second article.

From the above diagram there is no reason why anyone should hesitate to tackle the construction of this set. With the diagram and the subject-matter given in this, we don't see how anyone can go wrong on the construction. Get the parts and try it. It really is quite simple.

This set is a one-stage tuned radio frequently outfit using a crystal detector.

CONGRATULATES WINNING TEAM
Yesterday Mr. H. C. Hayward, Secretary-Treasurer of the Feildian Hockey team received a message from Corner Brook congratulating the team on its success in winning the championship and inviting them to go to Corner Brook to play a series of games, with the team out there. As yet it has not been decided if this invitation will be accepted but if this should occur, an interesting series of games should follow as at Corner Brook there are several who are well known in the hockey arena.

FIGHT FAN STARRED TO DEATH FOLLOWING ARGUMENT AND RIOT OVER BOUT—STUDENT BOXER KILLED.
Saratoga, N.Y., Feb. 6. (Associated Press)—Official investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Stanton R. Stever, 19, of Waterford, N.Y., who was fatally stabbed because he maintained that Martin was fouled. A blow to the lower body dropped Martin to his knees for the count in the eleventh round of a scheduled twelve-round bout. He claimed a foul, but the referee would not allow it and declared Ballerino the winner by a knockout.

As an ambulance arrived to take the injured boxer to a hospital, members of the two factions surged into the street. Knives, automatic pistols and blackjacks appeared like magic, and turmoil followed. Extra police who reached the scene a few minutes later, restored order only after a series of sharp encounters.

Martin's condition is not serious.

COLLAPSE OF MOTOR SYSTEM.
New York, Feb. 6. (Associated Press)—Vincent "Pepper" Martin, Brooklyn junior lightweight, who was knocked out in the eleventh round of a scheduled twelve round bout last night by Mike Ballerino, is in Cumberland Street Hospital here, suffering from the effects of a body blow, he received in the fight. Martin is unable to talk, and is suffering, according to physicians, from a complete collapse of the motor system.

In order to find whether he has been injured internally X-ray pictures will be taken to-day. The boxer, doctors said, had been badly but not seriously injured.

Saratoga County, Syracuse University sophomore, following a knockout blow in a bout with Carl Hansen, in the university gymnasium, will be conducted to-day.

Hansen, one of the leading athletes at the university, will be questioned by the district attorney and the coroner. The bout which resulted in the collapse of Stever was an elimination contest in the welterweight class to decide which would represent Syracuse University in a dual glove meet with United States Naval Academy at Annapolis Saturday afternoon.

Steve, when he went down, did not crash to the floor as is the case in knockouts, but went down slowly. A statement issued by a physician who attended the autopsy late last night, stated that an abscess at the base of the brain undoubtedly contributed largely toward Stever's death.

ADIEU TO ALL BLACKS.
New Slogan of the Prince of Wales—"Defeat not yet an English Habit."

Proposing the toast of the "All Blacks" at a farewell banquet at the Piccadilly Hotel, the Prince of Wales, who was in a very happy vein, sounded a note of optimism in regard to the future of British sport. "We ask the members of the team," remarked the Prince, "to tell the people down our order when they get back that although the Mother Country has temporarily lost the knack of winning, at all events she knows how to lose, and tell them also that we will do our best not to make a habit of it."

Lord Desborough presided, over a company which numbered more than 300. The New Zealand flag was prominent in the decorative scheme, and the Silver Fern, the emblem of the team, ornamented the menu card. The hosts included the Duke of Sutherland, the Marquis of Londonderry, the Earl of Pembroke, the Earl of Londsdale, Lord Desborough, the Earl of Denbigh, the Earl of Portarlington, Viscount Burslem, Viscount Campden, and Viscount Curzon, Lord Ashfield, Lord Riddell, and Lord Woolvington, Sir Lionel Halsey, Colonel Olive Wigram, Commander Greig, Sir James Allen (High Commissioner for New Zealand), the Bishop of Buckingham, General Sir Ian Hamilton, General Sir William Birdwood, General Sir Alexander Godley (all of whom were associated with the Annex), famous athletes, footballers, and cricketers, and representatives of every branch of sport were among the company. All the available members of the England Rugby team were there. The Prince, in the course of his speech, recalled the previous visit of an All Blacks team to this country in 1905, remarking, "It takes something big, like a visit of a famous football team, to impress a boy, and that is one of the things I can just remember." He added, "In my opinion the All Blacks of the present team are well up to the vintage of 1905. The All Blacks of 1925 are certainly of the old brand, and my experience of all New Zealand brands is that they are good, whether they be those of commerce, football, or industry, New Zealand.

Sent a Splendid Brand of Men to the war, and I am glad to know that 11 members of the All Blacks team are ex-Service men. When the All Blacks visited us 20 years ago they sustained only a single defeat, and I dare say there are many present who can remember that famous game with Wales. This season the New Zealand team with disposed of every single team with which they have played, and they have just returned from a successful trip across the Channel. It is a wonderful record. We congratulate all concerned. Naturally, the captain first of all, and all those who have played under him, but also those who came over with them and have been responsible for their organization and training. Combination, we know, is the secret of efficiency in every game, and there is no doubt that combination and careful training have had much to do with the success of the All Blacks team in this country. We know that with sportsmen there is always a next time, and I hope it will not be long before we have an opportunity of welcoming another All Blacks team and witnessing football such as we have been seeing them play recently. Whether they beat us or we beat them the New Zealand footballers will be always welcome."

At the close of the speech the Prince presented Mr. C. G. Porter, the captain of the team, a loving cup as a memento of their achievements from English sportsmen. The cup bore the words "The Prince of Wales Cup for the 1925-26 season."

To the shining feet on the jersey that to the journey without delay. To the mighty heart of the jersey pack. And the runners with flying feet. This loving cup. Drink! Drink! Drink! While memory stirs each breast. And lift it high to the silver feet. And the record that beat the best. W.P.S.

Each member of the team received a silver miniature of the cup. The captain and the manager, Mr. S. Dean, acknowledged the cordial reception of the Prince's toast. Mr. Porter declaring that the British Empire possessed in the Prince of Wales its greatest asset. Both expressed the opinion that New Zealand and English footballers had learned much from each other which promised well for their future relations.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE FOLDED UP MOUTH.

There is a waitress in a restaurant where I sometimes lunch when I am in town that I always avoid. She is quick, she is competent, she is neat and her eyes are a remarkably good looking. When I avoid myself avoiding her I had to analyze the reason before I saw what it was. And I found it was she has a folded up mouth.

She Looks As If She'd Like To Scold Us.

I don't know whether she really likes her work and dislikes the people she waits on, and would like to get out when we hesitate over the order, or drop our napkins, or ask for extra pat of butter, or want to know what Delmonico Snow Pudding some other camouflaged item on the menu of fare really is—but there is a look about that folded up mouth that suggests that idea. And I don't like to eat in that atmosphere. I get along with less efficient service if I can also have a less tense, pressed, uncordial atmosphere. It is the same way in a store. If there are two clerks to choose from I will take the one with a folded up mouth I always gravitate toward the other.

I do not know how employers feel about it but it seems as if they must consciously or unconsciously be affected by the folded up mouth. I think they would do well to be if the person whom they are going to employ is to have any human contacts, for I think that even when they do not analyze it, people are repelled by the folded up mouth expression. A folded up mouth is a sign of repression, and people are unconsciously afraid of repression. They don't know what's behind it and so they don't like it.

Two Aunts.

I once had an aunt who was never cross to me but who, when she didn't like anything I did, would fold up her mouth and look at me. I decidedly preferred any other aunt who spoke out frankly when she didn't approve; and then spoke as frankly when she did approve.

Of course there have to be some repressions and inhibitions in civilized life, but too much repression is just as bad as too much expression. The folded up mouth is both a mental and a facial habit. I think we need to work against both. To work against the mental by cultivating a more relaxed state of mind. And to work against the physical by deliberately relaxing the lines of the mouth if we feel we have a tendency to hold it too tensely.

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

"Bow, wow, waw! I smell a fox. He's hiding somewhere beneath those rocks. I'll dig him out, for I know how. Indeed I do. Bow, wow, waw!"

barked Old Sic'em, the Farmer's Dog, as he scratched away the snow in front of Danny Fox's front door on the rocky hillside.

"Come, let's finish our dinner," grumbled Danny Fox. "That old dog can't do any harm. Our front door is too well-made. Let him scratch away till he grows tired."

But, dear me! It's not very pleasant while eating one's dinner, to have some one try to break into your house, and every now and then Bushytail would look timidly at Slyboots, and Mrs. Fox glance fearfully toward the front door. Now and then even Danny Fox would turn his head as Old Sic'em hit the wooden panels an extra hard knock.

At last, as the fox family finished, Danny Fox walked over to the stove and, picking up the poker, pushed it into the hot coals.

"What are you going to do?" asked Mrs. Fox, looking up as she dried the dishes.

"Push the poker under the door and singe the old dog's nose," answered Danny Fox with a grin. "Maybe I can and maybe I can't, but it's worth trying."

go back to my kennel again," and off he trotted to the Farmyard.

"There he goes," whispered Slyboots, peeping from the little window in the rocky roof.

"Yes, he's gone home," added Bushytail, and down from the attic they ran to tell Daddy Fox.

"Well, my little trick worked all right," laughed the sly old fox, setting the poker down by the hearth. "I didn't really want to burk his nose, nor singe the whiskers on his toes," and picking up the Bunybridge Bugle, he put on his spectacles and began to read.

After a little while Mrs. Fox took out her knitting needles and began to make a woolen cap for Bushytail, who had that very morning lost his white playing hide-and-go-seek" in the underbrush.

"Here's the funny sheet," said Daddy, handing it over to his two little cubs, who kept so still that Mrs. Fox almost forgot to send them to bed when the clock struck eight. And in the next story you shall hear what happened in Rabbitville.

But Old Sic'em knew a thing or two, and maybe three or four. And when he heard the poker Sizzle underneath the door, he jumped back with a growl. And then, with a bark, he drew still further away as the red-hot poker turned the snow into a steam cloud.

"Gracious me," thought the old dog, "this is no place for me. Something is burning inside the den. I guess I'll

Insurance Against Hysteria of Movies

Quite recently a policy was written for the Metropolitan Theatre in Los Angeles when Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water" was shown there. The policy was to reimburse any member of the audience for injury owing to him or her becoming hysterical while witnessing the show. Some of the audience laughed so long and so hard that they were reported to have been taken to a hospital to recover from the effects. Immediately the management thought of buying an insurance policy to protect patrons. Of course the idea made a hit and it is obvious that policies of this nature are written to advertise a show as well as to give protection.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

MODERATION.

If I should frown at trifling cares,
 At every burden whine,
 What should I do to show my grief
 When danger hurts are mine?
 If I let disappointment steal
 My courage for the day,
 What shall I have to bear the blow
 When hope seems far away?

Household Notes.

Of it, of some small joy, I make
 An arrogant display
 How shall I greet the loveliness
 Of some still brighter day?
 If trifles make me over-vain
 And small cares over-glum,
 What shall I do if greater joys
 And greater trials come?
 So not too quick to frown I'd be,
 And not too quick to boast,
 Something I'd save of faith and cheer
 For days I'll need it most.

 To prevent a soggy pie crust, try chilling the crust and cooking the filling before putting the two together.
 Fill the center of a ring of strawberry gelatin with sweetened whipped cream, to which has been added finely chopped apples, marshmallows and walnut meats.
 When preparing orange shortcake add a little lemon juice to the oranges to bring out the full flavor of the fruit.

Orphan Club's Activities in the Orphan's Behalf

The advertising columns of this paper will earnestly on the job of the Orphan Club for applying the needs of the orphanages of England in this city. For the last few months the members of this self-devoted organization have been working quietly at their own and self-imposed task of getting nearer and nearer to their goal for themselves—the improvement of their conditions and of their facilities for a livelihood after they are released from the sheltering walls of the orphanage.

Not only a couple of years ago but the Orphan Club has capitalized entirely on the enthusiasm and energy of the members, the Orphan Club is in a position to undertake the construction of a building on the grounds which will relieve the congestion at the girls' orphanage, provide room for additional and form part of a complete institution which is the big goal of the members always keep in mind as the construction is advanced at the urgent request of the Board of Managers of the Orphan Club recently surveyed the girls' quarters and decided on emergency building measures.

The accounts of the Club are in the hands of the best friends and well-wishers that there are sufficient funds to justify building up as soon as the season is over. The building is now under construction in connection with the orphanage will accommodate thirty inmates. It will be of concrete and will embody the best of modern architecture, a large school, a comfortable and roomy dormitory and kitchen and other facilities for the little ones. Responsibility for the work is undertaken by the Orphan Club. It is hoped that the building ready for occupation in the fall of next year.

Due to the sudden demand for immediate expenditures the members of the Orphan Club are starting a short drive to amplify finances. They are now advertising performances of "An Arizona Cowboy" at Canon Wood Hall, next Monday. This comedy drama is under the patronage of His Majesty the Governor and Lady Mayo and of His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland, all of whom are expected to be present at Monday night's performance. Citizens who desire to lend a helping hand to the orphans can achieve their objective and get a good evening's entertainment at the same time by attending one of the performances of this play so ably presented by the St. Mary's Amateur Dramatic Troupe.

On Tuesday evening of next week, Mr. E. G. C. Cousens, is throwing open his beautiful home, Clayton Terrace, Waterford Bridge Road, for a card tournament, which he is giving on behalf of the Orphan Club funds. Last year Mr. Cousens staged a similar event on behalf of Springdale Street School. It was an immense success. This year's tournament will be even more noteworthy. It occurs on one of the nights of the presentation of "An Arizona Cowboy," but the club had to take advantage of the only nights on which Canon Wood Hall was available, and time before Lent is exceedingly limited, overlapping could not be avoided in this connection.

The Club has also secured the S.V.F. Hall for the night of Monday, Feb. 23, when another card tournament for men will be run off. An unique feature of the evening's programme will be a radio concert of popular old-time melodies which will be broadcasted to the Hall during the tournament. Mr. J. J. Collins, of the Marconi Company, has kindly placed his broadcasting apparatus and a receiving set at the disposal of the Club for the evening, and a number of talented city artists will supply the vocal and instrumental music of the evening. It is an event that no lover of an evening's sport with the "pasteboards" should miss.

The season opened well for the Orphan Club. At one of its first meetings there was staged the presentation of the Club treasury of a $250 Newfoundland Government Bond, by Hon. J. R. Bennett, Colonial Secretary, and one of the members of the organization. A few days later a similar presentation of a Bond of an equal amount was made by Mr. T. Hallett. The enthusiasm of Club members has never waned; these displays of practical interest in their activities strengthened their hearts and hands for a renewal of the fight on behalf of the interests of the helpless little inmates of the orphanages.

Included amongst the membership of the Club is Mr. Randall W. Jeans, who has had much experience in the staging of local amateur theatricals. Mr. Jeans is now working hard preparing play, which will be staged after the Lenten season and by means of which it is hoped to increase the Orphan Club funds very materially.

The full membership of the Orphan Club at present is: Hon. Dr. Moulden, President; Hon. S. D. Blandford, Vice-President; Councillor Reg. Downer, Secretary; B.B. Stafford, Treasurer; Hon. J. R. Bennett, Messrs. E. Lawrence, Ken Ruby, C. B. Parsons, G. H. W. Press, E. Snow, N. Snow, C. E. A. Jeffery, E. G. C. Cousens, R. A. Parsons, B.L. Randall W. Jeans, F. Davy.

"Women Who Give" at the Majestic Theatre

FAMOUS PHOTOPLAY AND THRILLING NOVEL.

"Women Who Give," Reginald Barker's latest Metro production, which comes to the Majestic Theatre on Monday is heralded as the season's most thrilling story that deals with seafaring men and their wives and sweethearts who patiently await the return of their loved ones who go down to the sea in ships. It is an adaptation of that famous classic, "Cape Cod Folks," by Sarah P. McLean Greene and has been directed with all the noted skill of Mr. Barker, who created a most impressive cast to enact the leading roles.

The two prominent feminine characters in the photodrama are played by Barbara Bedford and Renee Adoree two particular favorites of the motion picture fans of this city. Robert Frazer enacts the leading male role, that of a young captain of the fishing fleet, and this popular young actor has never been seen to better advantage. Then there is Frank Keenan, who needs no introduction to the theatre-going public, and Joseph Dowling, who made such a distinctive hit in the title role of "The Miracle Man." Others who round out the superb cast include Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing, Victor Potes, Eddie Phillips and William Eugene.

"Women Who Give" has numberless exciting and thrilling scenes among which might be mentioned a desperate battle with a huge swordfish in which the players nearly lost their lives, the most realistic shipwreck scene ever filmed and the firing of a salute by the lighthouse. This last episode pictures the desperation of the keeper when the big light falls and he realizes that a ship with his son aboard will go on the rocks if not properly guided by the light. He sets fire to his own home as a substitute for the broken down beacon that for years has guided the fishing fleet safely into port.

Jacobson and Evans the popular Keith performers announce their debut act and a special feast of music and songs, is promised Majestic patrons. See advertisement elsewhere.

Our Dumb Animals

Report Of The Chief Agent For Week Ending Feb. 13th, 1925.

Called, on Sunday morning at 3.30 to humanely put to death a horse for Mr. Alan Williams. This horse was suddenly taken ill on Saturday morning on Water Street, and was taken to Ayre & Sons stable, where three veterinaries were attending the animal. The disease had gone too far and, despite their combined efforts, it had to be humanely destroyed on Sunday morning. The loss to Mr. Williams is a very serious one, the horse being valued at two hundred and seventy dollars ($270). We thank Messrs. Ayre & Sons, Ltd., for their kindness in giving the use of their stable for the sick horse. There is a great need of a hospital for sick and injured animals of this kind. I believe if this horse had been brought to such a place, with a veterinary on the spot, the animal would have had a better chance for recovery. I hope that the day is not far distant when the financial position of the Society will allow them to have such a hospital for emergency use. I humanely put to death a dog on Cuddihy Street. Also a small dog which was taken in by a lady on Cochrane Street and for which I could find no owner; another which the street car had run over and injured. Mr. Miller, of Campbell's Farm, reported to me that he had taken in a dog which was wandering around that neighbourhood, seemingly without an owner. He kept it a few days and then, with my consent, he gave it to a friend who will look after it. Received word from the police of a setter dog in front of the English Cathedral. It had been there over night in a perishing condition. Upon making enquiries I found that the owner, Mrs. Davis, on Gover Street, did not want it destroyed, so I returned it to them for proper care. I spoke to some teamsters who were furiously driving their horses over the gulchy streets with loads on. Some took advice and walked their horses, while others did not. One of the latter, I have summoned for Saturday morning. I am very thankful to Miss Stiles, of Bishop Spencer's College, for buying a picture of "The Horse's Prayer," issued by the Nfd. Society. I was asked to examine a horse belonging to Mr. P. Joy, which he was intending to enter in the races. The horse had sustained a cut on the fore leg and in my opinion he was not fit for racing. Mr. Joy very willingly put it off the course. Attended the race course but saw no cruelty to report on, and the Horsemen's Association are to be congratulated in the way their annual event was managed. The animals were well cared for. The annual meeting of the Society takes place next Friday night in the Grenfell Hall, at 8 o'clock. As the annual reports will be read every lover of animals is respectfully asked to show their interest by attending. Please all complaints to me promptly. Outports friends are asked to mail me reports of cruelty. A complaint is received from White Bay, that horses during the fall, were left out in the open in the snow. The matter is being investigated.
