King Leopold's Money Put Into Newspaper Business to Aid Bonapartist Cause—Earl of Yarmouth Once More in Bankruptcy Court

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company)

Princess Clementine of Belgium, now the wife of the Bonapartist pretender, Prince Victor Napoleon, is spending the money which she inherited from her father, King Leopold, despite his testamentary dispositions and his wishes, in a manner calculated to make him turn in horror and anger in his grave. Not content with giving to the "Aurora," the financial backing which it so sadly needed—it was until a few weeks ago the only Bonapartist organ in France—she has now purchased the Paris morning "Reclair," and the evening "Patrie," paying for the former 1,000,000 francs.

The Bonapartist cause is therefore now represented in the French press by three Parisian newspapers, two of them being widely read, and comprising among their editorial staffs such writers as Judet and Millon.

The princess, indeed, is taking so active a part in promoting the Bonapartist cause, that the Paris Government are seriously considering the policy of extending to her the decree of exile in force against her husband, so as to prevent her constant visits from her home in Brussels to the French capital, sometimes as many as two a week, in order to confer with the Bonapartist leaders.

It cannot be denied that since her marriage, the Bonapartist cause in France has received an extraordinary degree, and that large numbers of the French aristocracy, especially those belonging to the set headed by Prince and Princess Murat, have abandoned the cause of the Duke of Orleans—that of Prince Victor Napoleon. Princess Clementine, who is soon to become a mother, is not only extremely enthusiastic about the Bonapartist cause but also intensely ambitious to become empress of the French, and possesses of much money as well as abundant wealth, constituting a far more serious danger to the French Republic, than her easy-going phlegmatic husband.

Her father, like her mother, hated the Bonapartists with a bitter animosity, would not hear of his daughter marrying a Bonapartist, and, knowing of his daughter's infatuation for Prince Victor, sought in vain to disinheritor her. But his efforts in this latter direction were unavailing, and now that he is dead she has not only married Prince Victor, but is likewise spending his money in furthering the Bonapartist cause in France.

Denies Sale to Morgan

Count Emeric Erededy, chief of the ancient Hungarian house of Erededy, which was ennobled in 1450 and which received the title of count in 1868, has written to J. Pierpont Morgan, his ancestral trustee of Galgoz, in Hungary, and the latter had presented to the Erededy family the title of Duke of the Kingdom of King Matthias Corvinus, which the latter had preserved as an heirloom and as a priceless relic at the time of the Revolution, and which he has never been approached personally by Mr. Morgan, but that some twelve months ago a couple of Englishmen came to the castle of Galgoz, and with regard to the throne canopy, declaring that they were authorized to act in behalf of an unnamed American millionaire. At that time he declined to consider the question of a sale of the relic or to name any price and from the time of his departure until the appearance of the paragraph in the press he had never heard anything more of them.

Count Emeric Erededy is a man of considerable wealth, a member of the Hungarian House of Lords, and his wife is one of the ladies of the palace, and one of the members of the Order of the Star of the province of Varadin and has palaces in Vienna and Pesth.

One of his cousins, Count George Erededy, is married to an American woman, Miss Julia Scott of New York. This union was preceded by a considerable amount of romance. They met years ago at Wiesbaden and became engaged with the consent of her parents. When, however, the count's father and especially his old grandfather, grand master of the horse to the King of Hungary, heard of the projected match, they put their veto upon it for various reasons, social, political, and religious, and threatened Count George with disinheritance. The engagement was accordingly broken off and a year later Miss Julia Scott, having apparently abandoned all hopes of wedding her Hungarian suitor, married Major Johnson of the English army to whom she bore three children.

Subsequent to the name marriage, Count George Erededy led to the altar a Levantine lady of the name of Balazzi, a relative of the former Turkish consul general in New York and one of that Baronesse Vetzera who perished under such terribly dramatic circumstances with Crown Prince Rudolf at Mayerling. Count Erededy lost

MINISTER EXPECTS TO SEE LIBERAL MAJORITY GREATER THAN BEFORE

Hon. Mr. Templeman Gives Interesting Detailed Forecast of Result of Elections in Various Provinces—Quebec May Send Two More Liberals

Vancouver, B. C., Aug 16—In a lengthy interview Hon. Wm. Templeman, who has returned from the east, said: "There is no doubt as to the verdict of the country. The best information comes from the view of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the next Parliament will contain a larger number of Liberals than the last one. This is not a guess nor arrived at haphazard. It is based upon a careful canvass of the situation in every constituency in the Dominion. The Maritime Provinces are confidently expected to increase their Liberal majority. They would probably have done the same without reciprocity, but with it the result is positively assured.

"The removal of some of the restrictions on trade is immensely popular to all. Prince Edward Island there is but one, but in New Brunswick but two Conservative seats to capture. In Nova Scotia, among Conservative reverses, none seem more certain at present than the defeat of R. L. Borden and of his running mate, J. B. Crosby, in Halifax. That belief is based upon the result of the provincial election in Halifax a few months ago, when the Conservative candidates were defeated by majorities in the neighborhood of thousands, and also on the ground that Mr. Borden's hostility to the Canadian navy is immensely unpopular in naval cities on the Atlantic coast.

In the West

"The west as a whole is admired by the Conservatives to be in favor of the trade agreement.

"Manitoba cannot do much better for the Conservative party, and it stands to do worse, while Saskatchewan, with nine Liberals to one Conservative, cannot much improve its Liberal standing. Mr. Sifton's defection is a positive blessing. He has not taken one western man with him, which shows that he does not represent western opinion, on the all important issue. Excepting the politicians in the Manitoba government, the great majority of the public men of the three provinces are for the trade agreement.

"Quebec is absolutely in favor of the trade agreement and on that issue alone would elect fifty Liberals or over out of a total of sixty-five.

Montreal Situation

"In Montreal city only is there any organized opposition to the trade agreement. The Nationalists, led by that clever fire-brand, Bourassa, have joined Mr. Borden's party.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"SAID the girl in love to the man she loved: 'I don't think you care so much for me as you used to. Just think! You were in town all day yesterday and you didn't call me up. You know you would never have done that six months ago.'

Said the man in love to the girl he loved: 'Why, dear, I thought I just told you that I was with Rushworth every single minute. You know I was trying to put through that big sale, and that I didn't dare let him get out of my sight for a minute.'

Retorted the girl in love: 'I think you would have managed somehow six months ago before you were so sure of me.'

Retorted the man in love: 'You didn't use to be so abominably unreasonable. Are you always going to be like this?'

Flushed the girl in love: 'Yes, when I have so much cause to be. Why? Don't you think you can stand it?'

And there they are with a perfectly good quarrel on their hands and unkind words on their lips and heartbreak in their hearts, for 'to be worth with one we love doth work like madness in the brain.'

And all for what?

All just because the man in love didn't realize that what the girl in love wanted when she said he didn't love her as much as he used to was reassurance—ignit, foolish, reiterated, convincing, reassurances. And because, instead of these, he gave her cold, logical, sensible reasoning.

Is there—wonder—was there ever a couple who did not have at least one quarrel along these lines?

I don't know.

Can't you imagine Eve saying to Adam, 'When we lived in the garden you used to be with me all the time, and now I seldom see you except at meals. I don't think you love me the way you used to.'

And of course Adam answered, 'But, my dear, you know I didn't have any work to do then, and now I have to work for my living. I think you are unreasonable.'

And poor little Eve, who just wanted to be told that he loved her quite as much, if not more, than ever, went off into the nearby glade to cry her heart out at the coldness of his tone, and Adam went back to his work, letting the unreasonableness of woman.

All of which might have been avoided if Adam had just taken Eve right up in his arms and said, 'But, dearest, you know I love you more every day. You are the one woman in the world to me.'

And now, you people who still think I'm a man masquerading—can you doubt any longer?

Would I have known this if I weren't a woman?

British Newspaper Man Speaks Of Shipbuilding Plant Here

VISITING PRESSMEN

Important Statement Made at Luncheon in Union Club, Quoting President of the Cammell Laird Company—Addresses of Interest

Although weather conditions were none too favorable yesterday for the reception of the visiting British journalists, the party of twelve were given a warm welcome on their arrival and were well entertained last evening during their brief stay in St. John. At a dinner given at the Union Club by members of the St. John press and board of trade, several of the visitors expressed themselves as much impressed with the development of the port and the attractiveness of the province.

The party were met at the wharf by a party of board of trade members and newspaper men and taken about the city in autos, being shown the harbor development on the west side, Courtenay Bay and the suburban points of interest.

The party registered at the Royal and at 9 o'clock were guests at the Union Club. Those present besides the British journalists were Mayor Frink, who presided; Hon. F. D. Hazen, premier of the province; F. H. Estabrook, president of the board of trade; W. W. Hubbard, secretary for agriculture; H. B. Schofield, and representatives of the city press as follows: R. B. Ellis, E. W. McCready, H. V. MacKinnon and J. H. G. G. G.

Major Frink then proposed the toast to the visiting newspaper men, and extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the citizens. He knew they represented the influential press of Great Britain and hoped they would be able to assist in the information which had been forced upon them hurriedly. He hoped that a summary of the information concerning St. John and the province would be placed before them before they left and that they would be able to give the people of the old country true and accurate statements of conditions in New Brunswick.

For long years the lumbering industry had been paramount in the province and more recently the object was to bring other natural resources to notice. The shipping industry a new start had been made in 1906 and since then the trade had increased by leaps and bounds. Instead of only one line of steamers at that time with the exports a mere trifle, there were now seven or eight lines running to the port carrying last winter nearly $25,000,000 worth of goods.

Turning to the question of immigration, Mayor Frink said that the number coming from the old land would be greatly increased. If the people knew that here comfortable homes could be had for the man who was not a dreamer, it is a great step towards establishing a place of his own. He was in touch with the home land, the reach of schools and churches and enjoying many of the privileges which he could not hope to secure in western Canada.

Mr. Baird replied on behalf of the visitors. They were delighted with the hospitable reception and the trip in the motor cars had given them an excellent opportunity to look over the many improvements, which proved a most interesting sight. The natural advantages which the harbor enjoyed and the prosperity were very evident, but he had good reason to believe that a large increase in the business of the port was pending. Prior to his leaving Great Britain on August 4 the announcement was made that the president of Cammell, Laird & Co. had reported at the annual meeting that arrangements had been made with the Canadian government to build ocean going steamers in Canada and for the Canadian navy and that St. John was favored as a site for the plant.

Mr. Baird predicted that the shipbuilding plant would bring to St. John many families from Belfast and the Clyde. He referred to the graphic accounts of the life of 1877 received in Great Britain and said that the buildings erected in the burned district were more beautiful than any they had yet seen in Canada, while the block in the vicinity of the port office compared very favorably with those in any manufacturing city of the same size in the world.

Mr. Baird also referred to the possibilities in the development of the Albert oil gas wells which the journalists visited while at Moncton and concluded by saying that the province offered many attractions to the immigrant.

J. Obed Smith proposed the health of Premier Hazen in an interesting speech. It was the greatest story of the age to read of the present generation taking from mother earth the wherewithal to enrich her citizens. New Brunswick lumbermen stood forward prominently in this respect

Have you ever baked with flour made exclusively of the high-grade constituents of the hard wheat berry? If you haven't, now is the time to try PURITY Flour.

Only the cream of the Manitoba hard wheat—the best wheat in the world—is used for PURITY Flour. More than that, only a portion of the flour milled from this wheat goes into the sacks and barrels branded PURITY.

But PURITY is very economical because it makes "More bread and better bread." The cost per loaf is no more than when using weaker flour, and the food value is much greater.

CASE OF TWO BOYS DEMANDS ATTENTION. Practically Homeless, Living on Charity of Neighbors, While Parents Are Not to Be Found. Some weeks ago the Times published an article in connection with a family named Keating, declared living in destitute circumstances in the vicinity of Brookville, about three miles out from the city on the line of the I. C. R. The family consisted of father, mother and two small boys. The father had been employed by a firm in the city, but just before the matter was brought to the attention of the public had left for parts unknown, leaving the family practically destitute.

The authorities intervened and the two children were put in St. Patrick's Industrial Home at Silver Falls. They stayed there until last week when they left the home and wandered back to Brookville. Since then they have been living on what the neighbors give them and have been sleeping in barns.

James Connell of Brookville called at the Times office yesterday and said that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Keating was in Brookville, nor could they be found, and that the two boys were practically homeless. He said the boys were too small to do any work and were running around getting a bite here and there and were a source of annoyance to the people. Enquiries, he said, were being made to the whereabouts of the parents but without avail.

It is declared too bad that the two youngsters must suffer and it is to be hoped that the authorities will again look after them and provide them with a home. Mr. O'Connell says that the two Keating boys have another boy with them, who has been in the home at Silver Falls for some years.

New Developments in the Rockwood Park Case Taken to Make it Certain That William Taylor Committed Suicide

Coroner Berryman has not yet decided whether or not he will hold an inquest into the death of William Taylor, who was found drowned in Lily Lake by Policeman McLeod yesterday afternoon. He is looking into the matter. It is now pretty well assumed that Taylor had contemplated drowning himself in the lake and that he was interrupted by the approach of the policeman, for on a small piece of paper which was found in his pocket were scrawled the words "Graffle at Lily Lake, William."

It is now said that when the mounted policeman came upon him in the dark, he pulled off his coat and vest and shouted "I have got to leave this world tonight, anyway, so shoot and make a good job of it, but lookout for I am going to knife you." After saying this he made a lunge at the policeman and succeeded in cutting him in the leg. The horse took fright and jumped away but the man still followed, fighting all the time. The policeman tried to get him into the light so that he could see what he was doing, but the man sprang into the woods and disappeared. McLeod tied the horse to a tree and went back to look for him but failed to find any trace of him. He then went through the woods. He was found in about four or five feet of water lying face downwards and with his arms stretched out under him. The police do not believe the story that this man was seen wandering around the park all week for he was known to have been in town a couple of days before his death. A small carpenter's rule was found in one of the pockets.

NEW BRUNSWICK COULD FIND AN OPPORTUNITY HERE

Edward Smith, Deeply Interested in Reclaiming of the Man in Hard Luck, is in St. John Today

Edward Smith, of Bewley, England, who was in St. John last year, and who is greatly interested in the Adult School movement to reclaim men, was a welcome caller at the Times office this morning. He is a similar benevolent southern and western Nova Scotia with Rev. Mr. Thackeray of Newfoundland. They went about from place to place, and Mr. Smith delivered several addresses in the Adult School movement. He will leave tonight for Quebec, en route home to England.

To the Times Mr. Smith said he had been very much impressed with the potentialities of Nova Scotia, and the splendid opportunities it offered to Englishmen, who had a little means and desired to establish a home. He was aware there were very many such people who would do well in these provinces, once they were settled here.

Mr. Smith added that he had been a bit disappointed that the overseas premiers did not take more kindly to Sir Edward Grey's suggestion about the unemployed of Britain. There were many men in the old country who were unemployed and unemployable, and they were being sifted out and divided into classes according to their capacity. Mr. Smith thinks Canada could absorb a large number who would become valuable citizens if a proper system of locating and starting them were devised.

He told of five men who once were what are termed "public house crawlers" in an English city who are now owners of homes in the United States. They got away from the old life and the old companions and made good. He thought it ought to be possible to establish in Canada, or in each province, under government auspices, a large farm where selected men could come and get a start.

Two preparatory farms in England, to which Mr. Smith referred, took men of the almost hopeless type, and a large percentage of them turned out all right. Such men would do well in New Brunswick, and it would be worth while for the governments here to make provision to receive them, get employment for them, or in some way give them a good start. There were great numbers of men who were not doing well in England who would, with a fair chance, make sturdy citizens of the British overseas.

Mr. Smith talks in a most interesting way of the splendid work of Adult Schools in reclaiming men ordinarily classed as down and out. He is personally engaged in this work, and to it devotes both time and money without stint.
