CALDER DECLINES LEADERSHIP IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, Sask., Oct. 19.—The lieutenant governor has invited Hon. J. A. Calder, acting premier, to undertake the work of forming a ministry. Last evening he informed the lieutenant governor that he had decided not to accept the proffered honor. The matter of a successor to Mr. Scott is therefore still in the hands of the lieutenant governor. Speaker Goes to People.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 19.—Hon. J. A. Sheppard, speaker of the legislative assembly, has resigned his seat in the legislature as a result of the findings of the Brown-Edwood royal commission on two of the charges made against him. In resigning his seat, Mr. Sheppard calls on the government to make provision for holding a by-election in Moosejaw county, so that he may, by consulting an election, ascertain from his former constituents whether or not it is their opinion that he should retire from public life.

British and French Gain at Strategic Points; Mackensen Achieves Victory in Dobruja

BRITISH CUT DOWN BAPAUME'S DEFENCE

1,000 Yards Captured at Point Where British Lines Are But Two Miles From Town

Afternoon Attack Between Gueudecourt and Les Boeufs Most Successful—Germans, on Other Hand, Failed in Assault at Grandcourt—Loss About Even in Day's Air Fighting.

London, Oct. 23.—More than 1,000 yards of German trenches in the region of Gueudecourt and Lesboeufs were taken by the British in fighting north of the Somme river in France this afternoon, according to the official communication issued tonight. It is at this point that the British lines are nearest Bapaume, so that today's capture cuts down still further the two miles remaining. In the region of Grandcourt the British artillery stopped a German plan for an attack.

The communication says: "This afternoon, in the course of operations by the right wing of our army, south of the Ancre, we advanced our line east of Gueudecourt and Lesboeufs, and captured more than 1,000 yards of enemy trenches."

"During the day our front in the neighborhood of Lesars was heavily shelled. South of Grandcourt this afternoon the enemy massed for an attack, but was stopped by our artillery. Sixty-six further prisoners are reported as a result of the fighting at the Schwaben redbout and Lesars, in addition to the total given yesterday."

"Last night two German raids were attempted against our trenches in the neighborhood of Gomecourt. One was stopped by our fire, and the enemy suffered heavy casualties. The second penetrated our outpost lines, but was promptly driven back by our counter attack."

"Yesterday our aeroplanes bombed two railway stations behind the enemy's lines, hitting a train in motion and doing much damage to buildings and rolling stock."

"Seven enemy machines were brought down, and many others were forced to land in a damaged condition. Eight of our machines have not returned."

PREMIER ISSUES GENERAL APPEAL TO MEN OF CANADA

Call on All Manhood of Nation to Place Themselves at Service of State, Either for Military Duty or Such Service as They Are Best Fitted to Perform.

(Special to The Telegraph.)

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Sir Robert Borden this evening issued an appeal to the people of Canada to co-operate with the National Service Commission and to place themselves at the service of the country for such service as they are best fitted to perform.

The statement is as follows: "The world-wide struggle in which our empire is fighting for its rights, its liberty, and its very existence, has continued for more than two years. Every effort that could normally be made on our part to avert or mitigate the catastrophe has been made with the deepest earnestness and sincerity. There was no escape from the contest save in dishonor and ultimate disaster. The wonderful extent and thoroughness of the enemy's loss and careful preparation was imperceptibly understood. First and foremost, the magnitude of the struggle has surpassed all anticipations. Great Britain's first expeditionary force has been increased more than twenty-fold, and that of Canada more than twelve-fold. The climax of the fact is rapidly approaching. The last 100,000 men that Canada will place in the fighting line may be the deciding factor in a struggle, the issue of which will determine the destiny of this dominion, of our empire and of the whole world."

The most eloquent tribute would be to do nothing honor to the youth of Canada who have already rallied so splendidly to the colors and whose heroic valor and glorious achievements have crowned this dominion with imperishable distinction before the world. Remembering the sacrifice by which that distinction was won, we recall with solemn pride the undying memory of those who have fallen.

In the history of every province there may come such a challenge to the spirit of its citizens as must be answered in service and devotion if the nation is to have an abiding place in the future. The events of this war bring that challenge today to the manhood of Canada.

TELLS NEUTRALS PEACE LEAGUES ONLY NEEDED AFTER WAR IS WON

Viscount Grey Says Even Then Nations Interested Must Be Prepared to Stand by Ideals With Force of Arms—Forced Into War, Allies, Knowing What it Meant, Have Determined That Repetition Will Not be Necessary—Britain, With All Her Resources, Labor, Wealth and Material Into Struggle, Now Putting Best of Her Life-Blood in Common With Her Allies.

London, Oct. 23.—Another important contribution to the discussions on peace was made by Viscount Grey, secretary for foreign affairs, at a luncheon given today by the foreign press association, at which the diplomatic representatives of all the Allied countries were present. The foreign secretary made it plain that the Allies were not prepared to discuss peace terms, and gave no indication of what their terms might be, but welcomed any efforts by negotiating and recalling, and never for a moment forgetting, what was the real cause of the war.

"I would like to talk, not, indeed, about actual conditions of peace, which can only be stated and formulated by the Allies together, and not by any one of them separately, but about the general objects which the Allies must secure in this war. And to do that I would ask you to recall that we must never forget how the war came about. If we are to approach peace in a proper spirit, it can only be by recognizing and recalling, and never for a moment forgetting, what was the real cause of the war."

"You cannot go back to it too often; it affects the conditions of peace. Germany must be investigated before any independent impartial investigation. 'The whole plan of campaign of the German state was to attack through Belgium, and now it is represented that they had attacked through Belgium because other people had planned to attack through Belgium. I would like nothing better than to see these statements that Russia's mobilization was an aggressive one, and that other powers, any powers, had trafficked in the neutrality of Belgium, or planned an attack through Belgium—I would like to see these statements investigated before any independent impartial investigation."

"The foreign secretary insisted upon the necessity, after the war, of striking at some agreement with respect to the laws of war, arguing that the mere indiscriminate employment of all the resources of civilization and the existence of the race itself, characterized 'the employment of poisonous gas and other horrors by Germany' as having 'let loose on the world more terrible anarchy than any individual, anarchist, and referred to the organized attempt to exterminate the Christians in Turkey since Turkey became a vassal of Germany.'

"Such horrors, he declared, were only possible with Germany's toleration of her, he said, some day a neutral nation, which knows the full story, will publish it to the world. He contended that this matter of keeping the horrors of war within bounds was a question in which the whole human race is interested, and as all nations should recognize this responsibility for preventing outbreaks of war, so they should insure, in the event of its outbreak, that it should be conducted by rules at least as humane as those which the public almost always treated, is almost completely ignorant upon which the press cannot speak even if they know. All the greater is the responsibility of the war committee, and we can only have members of that at a moment when the whole of Germany is violently and unanimously urging the speedy destruction of England, absolutely by the way committee, and we can only have that it must continue until these things are secured."

"We have no excuse for war committee if there is not proper cooperation between home defence forces and navy—Germany may grasp her only chance to eliminate England."

Possibility of Dash by Fleet, Submarines and Merchantmen Discussed

England at least should be ready for a possible dash by the fleet, submarines and merchantmen. The possibility of such a dash was discussed at a luncheon given today by the foreign press association, at which the diplomatic representatives of all the Allied countries were present.

Viscount Grey, secretary for foreign affairs, said that the Allies were not prepared to discuss peace terms, and gave no indication of what their terms might be, but welcomed any efforts by negotiating and recalling, and never for a moment forgetting, what was the real cause of the war.

CONSTANZA FALLS IN NEW OFFENSIVE

Bucharest Admits Further Retirement But Scale is Still Turned in Roumanians' Favor in North—Berlin Reports Complete Victory in Galicia—Italians Active in Carso Theatre Again.

Berlin, Oct. 23, via London.—Troops of the Central Powers have crossed the Black Sea port of Constanza and the River Danube at a point to the east of Murfiasia, the official announcement says. The fortress of Constanza was taken by German and Bulgarian troops.

On the left wing of Field Marshal Von Mackensen's army, the statement adds, the Germans and their allies are approaching the Danube town of Tchernavoda.

The announcement follows: "Notwithstanding the torrential rain and sodden ground, the allied (Teutonic) troops in Dobruja, by untiring and quiet pursuit and by breaking down isolated resistance, have crossed far beyond the railway line to the east of Murfiasia. Constanza has been taken by German and Bulgarian troops, exactly eight weeks after the declaration of war by Roumania. On the left wing we are approaching Tchernavoda."

"Naval aeroplanes landed far behind the retreating enemy, destroyed two aeroplanes on the ground and returned undamaged."

Gains and Losses Recorded.

Bucharest, Oct. 23, via London, Oct. 23.—The newspaper announcements that the Roumanian forces in Dobruja had made a further retirement before the army of Field Marshal Von Mackensen.

The text of the statement follows: "There were violent artillery actions on the northern and northwestern fronts."

"In the Trous Valley the enemy is retiring. He has set fire to the village of Brasova (five miles inside the Roumanian frontier line)."

"In the Usul Valley all the attacks of the enemy, who attempted to debouch from the Usul in the Oltuz and Slavic valleys, were repulsed with sanguinary losses."

"On the frontier the night was relatively calm. This is the first night out of thirteen during which there has been no fighting."

"On the frontier in the neighborhood of the Brancea mountains quiet reigns. In the Buzeu Valley, at Table Butal, Bratocea and Predeal there were artillery bombardments. The situation has not changed."

"At Fredal a very violent enemy attack was repulsed. In the region of Dragoslavice we have recaptured Mount Praelal, taking a number of prisoners and three machine guns."

"On our left there were numerous attacks and counter-attacks. We retained our positions."

"We repulsed an enemy detachment which advanced from Sca through the valley of Topolova. We have taken 123 prisoners, and have captured three machine guns."

"In the Jui Valley the situation has not changed."

"In the region of Orsova we have repulsed an enemy attack directed against the village of Berza."

"Southern front: All along the Danube there was an exchange of fire."

"In Debrul fighting continues with violence. Our troops retired immediately to the south of the Tchernavoda-Constanza railway."

Paris, Oct. 23.—The official statement regarding the Macedonian front follows: "From the Struma to the Vardar there were no events of importance. Patrol engagements occurred in the region of Prosenik."

"In the bend of the Cerna, the Bulgarians on Oct. 19 delivered several violent counter-attacks with large bodies of troops against Serbian positions. Obstinately fighting which lasted all day, ended in complete success for our allies, who everywhere repulsed the enemy, inflicting very heavy losses. Our artillery energetically followed up the enemy's retreat. Serbian forces had been repulsed. Trieste Defences."

Rome, Oct. 23, via London, 5 p.m.—Italian troops on the Carso front have developed renewed activity, pushing reconnoitering parties toward the Austrian lines, where they are drawn up for the defense of Trieste. Prisoners, arms and ammunition were brought back by the Italian raiders, the war office announced.

"On both sides," says the official statement, "aircraft were engaged in reconnoitering work. As a result of an aerial engagement, which took place over Frijoles in the Vipacch Valley, an enemy Albatross aeroplane was brought down."

"On the Carso our reconnoitering parties pushed toward the enemy lines and took some prisoners; also some arms and ammunition."

NEW ARMIES RAISED OUT OF DIVISIONS ALREADY IN FIELD

London Times Writer Believes Seasoned Troops Are in Roumanian Attack

FALKENHAYN ALONE HAS 14 DIVISIONS

Von Mackensen Making His Attack With Reinforcements, Probably Mostly Turks—Look to Russia for Direction of Defence.

(Special London Times Cable to The Telegraph.)

London, Oct. 23.—The Times military expert says:

"The heroic efforts of the Allies on their principal fronts have not prevented the enemy from assembling an unusually large army for its attack on Roumania, although they have undoubtedly limited the enemy's power of harm to an expansion of the German field armies. We must, in a large measure, look to the fact that the numbers of German infantry have been increased, but to a new system of reducing the number of battalions in each division and creating new divisions."

"The balance withdrawn has apparently been placed at Von Hindenburg's disposal for the new forces needed to make good the Austrian defeats, and to create a new army for Falkenhayn. It is impossible that from twenty to thirty German divisions have been made which, at least, counter-balance the new divisions which Roumanian entry into the war brought to us. The infantry part of these new divisions were readily made. It must be assumed that guns can be found to come in part from those captured from the Allies."

"The personnel and machine gun detachments must have been obtained by fresh drafts of German reserves and young conscripts. An effort like this will mean the employment of 200,000 men."

"The appearance in the field of such additional troops will only appear improbable to those who have underrated the resources of the Allies' principal enemy. They will not be content to strike without fresh additions. He can scarcely take more from the west where Germany steadily loses ground. But now the Russian front is reverting to its customary winter aspect. We must expect Falkenhayn's army to become stronger and this before a general advance over the mountain is undertaken."

"One Will Most Preval."

"Numerically considered the Russo-Roumanian forces already in Roumania should be sufficient to arrest Falkenhayn's advance but the question of numbers remains subject to fluctuations brought about by the arrival of reinforcements. The situation generally remains the subject of anxiety. We are not clear about the command for there are Roumanians, Russians and Serbs, each with his own commander also General Berthelot's French mission. It is evident that only one will prevail. Russia is the predominating partner in this business. We must look to General Alexeeff as to Joffre in France for the general direction of the campaign. The arrival of Mackensen's advance in the Dobruja probably implies the arrival of reinforcements but whether German, Turk or Bulgar there is not much to show. Possibly the bulk of the reinforcements are Turkish but they may be German or Bulgar troops."

GARIN WARNS AS TO AIR AND NAVAL ATTACK ON LONDON

Possibility of Dash by Fleet, Submarines and Merchantmen Discussed

ENGLAND AT LEAST SHOULD BE READY

No Excuse for War Committee if There is Not Proper Cooperation between Home Defence Forces and Navy—Germany may Grasp Her Only Chance to Eliminate England.

(Special to The Telegraph.)

New York, Oct. 23.—A London cable to the Tribune says:

Liaison of a combined naval and air raid by the Germans in London is considered in an article by J. L. Garin in today's Observer.

In considering Hindenburg's plans, Mr. Garin writes: "A blow at London is the most decisive action open to Germany. The war could not continue three months were England eliminated. And unless a decisive blow can be struck, Germany is organized to exterminate the Christians in Turkey since Turkey became a vassal of Germany."

"How far, we wonder, have the committee studied present conditions in respect to a joint air and sea expedition against England by Germany? Do they know the exact situation of the German navy?"

"What fresh machinations are being planned with submarines and mines? Are there not always enough merchant ships laid up in German ports to transport a great army? What has been done at Antwerp since the Germans took it in the first year of the war? Is the cooperation of our navy and our home defence land forces assured?"

"We hope so. If it is a subject upon which the public almost always treated, is almost completely ignorant upon which the press cannot speak even if they know. All the greater is the responsibility of the war committee, and we can only have members of that at a moment when the whole of Germany is violently and unanimously urging the speedy destruction of England, absolutely by the way committee, and we can only have that it must continue until these things are secured."

MERRILL ON WAY TO OTTAWA TO SECURE NEW BATTALION

That Montreal financial interests had promised to back Lieut. John E. Merrill, now in the ranks of the 26th Battalion, is a fact which is being made known by the general offices, to the extent of $40,000 to raise a new C. E. F. unit in Canada.

When he committed the deed at Moncton, for which he is now charged with murder, he was on route to Ottawa, there to attempt to secure authorization for the new unit for which he was promised financial backing.

BRITISH LOSSES CONTINUE HEAVY; ST. JOHN MEN FALL

William Mester, for Many Years a Resident of City, Has Fallen—Of 3,547 in Wednesday's British Lists 594 Are Dead—Bright Young Officer from Baie Verte Among the Fallen.

Friday, Oct. 20. Wednesday's casualties in the British forces operating on the western front are reported in a cable from London as consisting of 149 officers, of whom thirty-three are dead, and 8,088 men, of whom 561 are dead.

Word has been received in Sackville of the death in action somewhere in France of Lieutenant Joseph H. Prescott, on Oct. 2. Lieutenant Prescott held a good position in the Bank of Nova Scotia, Toronto, which he resigned to take commission in the 68th Overseas Battalion, Toronto, early in 1915.

William Mester, for many years a resident of St. John, has given his life in the defense of the motherland which he loved so well. When war was declared he immediately gave up his work here and sailed for England where he enlisted in an artillery unit.

Further information has been received with regard to the seriousness of Lieutenant J. S. Henry's wound. His mother, Mrs. T. H. Henry, has received a cablegram from him to the effect that he was wounded in the leg and it was hoped that it would not be serious.

William Henderson of this city, who was reported in the official casualty list yesterday morning as killed in action had made an enviable reputation as a soldier. He enlisted in a local infantry battalion and had received various promotions until, at the time of his death, he was acting company sergeant-major.

Private Edmund McCarty, of 196 Sydney street, member of a New Brunswick battalion, wounded by shell in the shoulder in the big fight on Sept. 16, has been admitted to Epsom War Hospital, London, England.

On Saturday an official telegram was received in Fredericton stating that Gunner J. Murray McAdam of that place had been killed in action. He was the son of James A. McAdam of Fredericton and was killed in action on October 12.

Private James Stickle, son of J. W. Stickle, of Saint Mary's, who was wounded from wounds, was reported to have been transferred to the R. C. B. at Halifax, and had been at the front since last August.

Lance-Corporal Robert N. Anderson, whose death in action was reported Wednesday, was native of St. John, and resided here until a few years ago. After living for some time in Moncton he moved to the United States, where his wife still lives.

mistake she felt that it must be true for she had not received a letter for some time. Yesterday her sister-in-law, Miss Rosie Bonnevile of Lynn, Mass., arrived in the city with the sad news that the report was true.

Corporal Bonnevile left St. John with the 12th Battalion under Captain Sturdee, but upon his arrival in England was transferred to another infantry unit. Before the outbreak of the war he served three years with the R. C. B. in Fredericton.

Besides his wife and one son he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simond Bonnevile, six sisters and four brothers, all of Lynn. He was a native of Westmorland county and was in the forty-first year of his age.

Lieut. J. O'Regan, a son of Owen O'Regan of Jeffries Corner, is among the list of wounded. Lieut. O'Regan joined a western battalion and served with the mounted rifles at the time he was wounded. He is one of the young men from Sussex who won success in the west, but left his opportunities behind to do his duty.

Mrs. George Whitteest of Sussex is in receipt of a telegram announcing that her son, Ethelbert R. Sharp has been seriously wounded. He is at number two hospital, Chelsea, and was shot in the head and eye. His condition was considered dangerous.

ONE OF THE FAMOUS CRATER FIGHT HAS GIVEN HIS LIFE

Sergeant F.S. Williamson Fought Gallantly and Died a Hero—Adopted Son of Lieut. Col. Good is Killed.

Rest thee; there is no prouder grave, Born in our own proud clime, We tell thy doom without a sigh, For thou art Freedom's now, and Fame's. One of the few, the immortal names, That were not born to die.

With the news that Sergeant Frederick S. Williamson of the 26th Battalion has been killed in action there is heralded the passing of one of the bravest lads that has yet donned the King's khaki in the province of New Brunswick.

The Officer's Story. "It was during the crater fight on October 18," said an officer of the 26th Battalion relating the part that Williamson played, "the fight had progressed for some time and out in that shell crater our boys were killing and being killed. I was walking along the trench serving out ammunition to my company and seeing that the boys were carrying on properly."

"Suddenly a spurt of empty machine gun cartridges shot over my head like the spume of the sea from the prow of an ocean greyhound. At the same moment I heard the deadly chatter of a machine gun as it swung round on its tripod, singing its song of death to the enemy. I glanced up and there on the parapet I saw young Williamson peering as if on parade. He sat there with his finger controlling that machine of death. The bullets whistled past his head in countless numbers. Occasionally one would flash past and the hot breath of it would smite his cheek. He would wince and shift his position a few inches and, then turn the nozzle of that cat-tracker of destruction upon the section of trench from which the offending missile came.

"Damn the Huns! he would cry, as he blew his trail of death. 'Take that, will you, take that, and there's more coming, too, you miserable parasites,' he panted as he shot the last cartridges in the belt and put a new one in place."

"In that spot he remained, his comrades from the emplacement below handing him up the ammunition. I watched him with awe and wonderment. Why the man was not killed is a mystery, yet there he remained in open sight of the enemy pouring across a ceaseless stream of lead. Many perhaps, were the lives he saved in the 26th Battalion by his brave act and when the fight was over he climbed down into the friendly trench again bringing with him his gun. He had nothing to say regarding his gallant exploit, a modest hero was Williamson. He had seen his duty straight ahead and gone immediately to carry it out. There was no fear in his makeup and he was without a doubt one of the most courageous souls that has crossed the English Channel since the war began and God knows, he has had plenty of company."

Sergeant Frederick S. Williamson was a native of St. Andrews, and was about twenty-eight years of age and is survived by a wife and two children. He was a son of the late Thomas Williamson of that place. He was prominent in athletics and had many friends who will learn of his death with deepest regret. A friend who knew him well during his civilian activities said to The Telegraph: "He had one of the most sunny dispositions I have ever known. Often I have seen him playing basketball. He would get into a tight corner and be surrounded by members of the opposing team, but still the smile remained upon his face. It was not the smile of fear, but the smile of the vanquished, but that of confidence and bravery which made him an opponent worthy of the steel of the best players of the province. I suppose," added the friend, "that he carried with him into battle that smile which would certainly do much to cheer up his comrades in the hour of trial." He was a hero and a gentleman.

Mrs. Lila Williamson, of St. Andrews, received the telegram from Ottawa on Thursday morning, stating that her husband had been killed on Sept. 29. Besides his wife he leaves two small children, Helen and Hazel, residing across the street from one another, Bombardier Thomas Williamson, who has recently arrived in England with a western artillery draft. Private Quinn Killed.

Another St. Andrews boy has been called upon to make the supreme sacrifice in the person of Private Thomas Quinn, son of Henry Quinn, who received word of his death on Oct. 3. It was due to shrapnel wounds. The telegram stated that he lived only a few hours. He had been absent from St. Andrews for some years, but is still well remembered, and many letters have been received from friends relating experiences. He enlisted with the 9th French Canadian Battalion and was transferred to a battalion on the western front on arrival in England. He is survived by his sister, Miss Bessie Quinn, professional nurse, who returned from France last week ago, and having secured a splendid work in a field hospital there. Douglastown school, was again closed Friday. There are two mild cases of diphtheria in the district. There is one new case in Newcastle.

NEWCASTLE LADY WAS ON ALAUNIA

Newcastle, Oct. 21.—On board the Alaunia, which was sunk by a mine, was Miss Clare Creaghan, of Newcastle, en route overseas to nurse the wounded soldiers. It is believed she is safe.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dixon, of St. Mary's, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Watson, of the same place, who were visiting Mrs. and Mrs. Geo. Henderson, of Douglastown, have returned home. Douglastown school, was again closed Friday. There are two mild cases of diphtheria in the district. There is one new case in Newcastle.

West Northumberland patriotic fund met last night. There were present: C. J. Morrissey, president; R. C. Clarke, treasurer; R. A. N. Jarvis, secretary; W. A. Park, J. G. Lawlor, J. D. Crossin, Rev. P. W. Dixon, W. J. Bate and S. J. MacArthur, Aid. Stuart, Dr. Nicholson and A. A. Davidson. Seven new names were granted a total allowance of $85.00 per month. One name was transferred to St. John and one from Chatham to Newcastle. A special meeting will be held next Friday night to revise the long list of beneficiaries. There are about 110 names on the list.

The Fact of War. (Collier's Weekly.) These fatally consistent military experts are still droning out their analyses as sedulous thrushes drive, etc. but they are not talking about war. The forest is not visible to them because only the separate trees are seen. Shakespeare said the thing whole and put in it seven words: "Lean, faming, quattering steel, and clinking fire." That is the fact of war, then and now and forever; the only change is in our ability to meet the test.

With the Canadian Trenches

They've Captured More Than 2,000 of Enemy Since September 3; Something of Their Work

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—Lieutenant-General Sir Sam Hughes minister of militia, has the full view of the land of war is not dulled in effect by its gradual coming from beyond the bleak grey slopes east of Albert, with their chain of scars cut by the long lines of trenches.

The view suddenly sweeps into the valley. Before La Boisselle there were the German and British lines on July 14. This was the shell of the defence, stoutly resisting shell of the defence, through which the indomitable English had fought their way and so permitted those who followed, other English, Australian, South African and Canadians to come and deal their blows.

Of La Boisselle there is more upon a map than on the ground. A few shattered trunks, here and there a splintered beam, perhaps a corner stone, two or three cellars roofed with wreckage. Otherwise only the upheaval of tortured earth, mine craters, heaps of rotting white sandbags, half-choked trenches and a dreary dead air.

On the left is the twin city of desolation, Ovillers, La Boisselle, and between the two the white road running beyond and mounts to the level of Pozieres. All the way is a vista of utter ruin and desolation. This is a desert land, but the silence of the desert is not here. Night and day the silence is shattered by the never-ceasing fire of our own guns, or by the crashing explosion of the enemy's guns. Pozieres shares the fate of La Boisselle. No hand could trace the outlines of a single house or garden plot. There are no bricks or beams which could be used in restoration. As a village Pozieres has disappeared.

Just beyond Pozieres, and still below the summit, runs the line of trenches first occupied by the Canadians. These are in the midst of the ground which has most suffered. Here is the scene of destruction. No grain or surface remains undisturbed. There is no room for fresh shell holes. Nowhere now is the power of modern artillery or the thoroughness of preparation better exemplified. We have literally blasted our way forward. Ruin appears not only in the devastated earth and the crushed houses but also in the saddest waste of human life. This is all ground sacred to the memory of our dead, also in the scarcely defined trenches of the enemy the German corpses lie thickly.

Last Week's Fighting.

Already the scenes of our earlier attacks are losing the clearness of their detail. The memory of this ground is fast becoming a memory of a month rather than a week. The German advance has not been the result of infantry assault, but of hard labor, under artillery fire, and some of machine gun fire, or the black and white enemy snipers. Only upon one occasion did the enemy attempt, by counter attack, to check the advance.

At 2.30 p. m., on the afternoon of Oct. 11, the British advanced on the front line trenches. Shortly afterwards about 100 Germans attempted to leave their trenches, but our signals were immediately established, and so effective a barrage was placed upon their lines that they were driven back with considerable loss.

As they retreated northwards along the road, the German engineers and machine artillery discovered them with shrapnel and scattered the survivors. Otherwise the normal artillery duel continued without cessation. Our supply of shells was abundant, and we fired in proportion of over five shells to the enemy's one. Aeroplane photos showed the destructiveness and accuracy of our fire. Enemy batteries were engaged and several were completely destroyed.

No more beautiful act of heroic self-sacrifice can be mentioned than that of Private Camille Shoute, of a Nova Scotia battalion. During the night of Oct. 11, he was on a stretcher-bearer, and while binding the wound, after the capture of the positions, was himself severely wounded in the shoulder. His wounds were dressed, but he refused to be removed. He immediately continued his work of maintenance, for the remainder of the day and during the night. In the morning he was again wounded, this time through the leg. He still refused to leave. Finally, about noon, while he was actually dressing the wounds of another man, this gallant, gentle soldier, gave out in a fit of heart and killed. His last words were: "Greater devotion to duty I have never seen."

Montreal Officer Reinstated.

"The whole Canadian army has learned with sympathy and delight of the reinstatement of Lieut. O. B. Jones to his commissioned rank. Deprived by court-martial of his commission because of an act of intemperance while on duty, Lieut. Jones immediately enlisted as a private in a well known Montreal battalion.

He showed not only strict devotion to duty, but conspicuous gallantry upon several occasions. He became a corporal, then won his sergeant's rank. He was awarded a D. C. M. for conspicuous courage, and again a bar to his medal. He was in the thick of the fighting. It was said of him, he was perpetually killing Germans. His conduct was such as to recommend him for further reward. Later he was severely wounded that it is improbable he will be again able to serve his country as a soldier, but he is now reinstated as an officer, and he has won back his honor."

THE TOTAL NUMBER OF PRISONERS CAPTURED BY THE CANADIAN CORPS SINCE SEPTEMBER 3, 1916, IS 2,062 OTHER RANKS.

"What Might Be Expected."

(Montreal Herald.)

Two days before Sir Thomas had resigned, he gave out an official statement of his plans for giving effect to national service. Reading between the lines of that statement he was full of enthusiasm for his task. At that time the appointment of Mr. Murray as his secretary had already been made. A pressing question, and was supposed to have been "settled" by Mr. Murray's explanation. Why then this sudden resignation? That the government dispenser of patronage tries to force a political favorite on Sir Thomas, in place of the man he himself had chosen? Was he given to understand that all appointments would be to be considered as party gifts? It would look that way, for it will be remembered that Sir Thomas said that it was an incident, as "indicative of what might be expected" that made him decide to wash his hands of the whole affair.

GERMANS FIGHTING TURRET WRECKED BY BRITISH BOMBARDMENT

The Germans on the western front have used fighting turrets not unlike those on battleships. The picture shows one of these turrets after the British have captured it. Buried in the mass are huge guns.

"RUNNERS"

(London Daily Mail.)

(The following article tells of the "runners" who carry important messages in the front trenches. Private J. Miller, whose "V. C." was announced yesterday, was one of this heroic band. He was ordered to take an important message and bring back a reply at all costs. Seriously hit almost immediately, he pressed with his hand a gaping wound in his abdomen, delivered his message, staggered back with the answer, and fell dying at the feet of the officer to whom he delivered it.)

In trench warfare, where flag-waving is impossible and the telephone wires may be broken at any moment by shell fire, runners are used to maintain communication between commanders and units and the directors of operations. The position of "runner" is eagerly sought after by the keen young soldier who delights in the adventures which will, he knows, so often crop up.

Very often in a regiment has one or more runners attached to him, the number increasing with the higher ranks. The trench work of a runner is not by any means arduous as long as telephone wires are in working order. It is in an advance that he is put to the greatest test; for, in addition to taking his message in the charge which captures a trench, he is almost certain to have to carry the message across the open under heavy fire.

There are times when it is of vital importance that messages should be got through from a captured trench to the command. The runner is the man who carries out this dangerous duty devolves on the runners.

The British infantry have victoriously occupied the shell-washed trenches which they have evicted the Boche. The work of consolidating the captured position is proceeding feverishly. The air is filled with the sound of bullets from the German machine-guns, which play ceaselessly on the cover their adversaries are with difficulty erecting.

These machine-guns at present make further advances in trench work and officers are carefully locating their positions. As soon as the various emplacements they occupy have been detected information will be sent back to the gunners, enabling them to knock them out.

The efficiency of the runner is a certain section of the captured trench has completed his observations and writes a short dispatch—in triplicate, for good reasons.

"Runner," he ejaculates.

"A man immediately approaches him. 'Take this to the O. C.,' says the officer. 'You'll find him at Farm.' 'There's a tough job, I'm afraid.' 'Very often,' returns the runner briskly. 'There is nothing in his tone to denote that he is about to attempt an almost hopeless task.'

"The moment he starts for the rear he knows that the enemy engines and machine-guns will concentrate upon him. Even if he escapes these he will still have a terrific barrage to traverse.

"Within a few moments' talk there is a lull in the enemy's fire, he spins across the open. The officer turns away briskly to superintend the work of consolidation, but swings round at the cry 'He's down, sir.'

"The runner confirms the words, and the officer takes another despatch from his haversack.

"'Runner,' he exclaims in a mechanical tone. 'Yes, sir.'

"The officer repeats his previous orders. 'Need I take my rifle and bandolier, sir?' inquires the runner.

"'No, leave 'em behind, Snips,'" returns the officer. "If you're going, though, be so called by all the men, and by his officers too, on occasions such as this. Below middle height, he is young and of wiry build, with a sharp-intelligent face. On the forehead he has achieved fame, and at inside right has in the past brilliantly helped to uphold the honor of the regimental team.

"There is a cheery smile on his face as he gets over the parapet to make a run on this other field—in this grimier game. Instead of starting straight for his destination he sprouts off at a tangent, then, turning in a flash, darts in another direction. The machine guns are rattling away incessantly. The men cease their work for a moment to watch, as 'Snips' twists and turns, dashes and darts in different directions, but at the time following nearer to his goal.

"'Good ball on yousen!' he calls. 'Take the ball on yousen!'

"Such were the laughing shouts which followed him. The rattle of the machine gun seems to increase in fury at their impotence to stop that dashing runner.

"Suddenly 'Snips' pitches forward headlong. A husky groan comes from the trench he has just left.

"'But a cry off.'

"'Good lad! God old Snips!' causes him to glance quickly in that direction; and he sees his runner again dashing on. 'A dog's doggo in a shell hole to kid the Boche groans,' explains one of the men with a frown.

"A few moments later 'Snips' was out of danger of the machine guns, but an enemy voice came from a dense barrage between him and his destination. He kept on running till he reached the shrapnel-sprayed zone he must traverse. Then he deliberately slowed down to a walk. A

AUSTRIAN PREMIER SHOT BY SOCIALIST

Failure to Re-Assemble House of Deputies Led Vienna Publisher to Slay Count Stuerghk

London, Oct. 21.—The premier of Austria has been shot.

Reuters Amsterdam correspondent says the premier, Count Karl Stuerghk, was shot today by the publisher of a Vienna newspaper, Dr. Friedrich Adler, according to a telegram received at Amsterdam from Berlin.

Count Karl Stuerghk's ministry was formed November 13, 1915, and was re-organized November 30, 1915.

Vienna, Oct. 21, via Berlin and Sayville, Oct. 22.—(To The Associated Press)—The assassination of the Austrian premier, Count Karl Stuerghk, was purely political, and was induced by his refusal to convene parliament, according to the admission of Dr. Friedrich Adler, his assailant, shortly after his arrest.

Dr. Adler is an eccentric and super-radical Socialist, sometimes known as "the Libenstein of Austria." He is editor of Der Kampf. At first he declined to reveal his motives, but after being locked up he broke down and declared the premier's political policies had led him to do the deed.

Dr. Adler's arrest was not accomplished without the wounding of two men who leaped at him after he had fired on Count Stuerghk. He discharged the two remaining chambers of his revolver at officers, with drawn swords and German hilt. The wounded men, overpowered and injured slightly, are Baron Adrenthorn, brother of the late foreign minister, and the head waiter of the Hotel Meissl und Sotinen, in which the shooting occurred.

ONE YEAR OF WAR, SAY MEN AT FRONT

(Copyright, 1916, by the Associated Press.)

British front in France, October 18, via London, October 19.—The war has lasted another year, according to the consensus of opinion among the British soldiers and their leaders. It is also the opinion of the Germans, if the views of prisoners count for anything.

Before the grand offensive started, a high authority informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that the German lines would not be broken this summer and that slow operations wearing down the Germans would be inaugurated and would probably last through another summer. With the approach of winter conditions, which make military movements difficult, this officer recalled his prediction and, speaking of the situation today, he said: "We know what the German resources were and what our own were and the time required to force a decisive victory for our arms is a matter of calculation."

German prisoners taken during the summer invariably spoke of peace being desired by both sides, but they regarded the Somme thrust as a final effort of the allies for a decision and that after it peace would be made. Their tone has been entirely different of late. They recognize that it is a fight to a finish between the man power and resources of the two foes and that an ultimate decision will come from the fearful attrition on the western front which now will know no intermission until the end.

"The Germans are determined to make every village on the western front a fortress, which will yield only when surrounded by shell, fire and every gully and crater a machine gun post to secure their defensive against a critical defeat."

At a period when the weather is adverse to offensive operations elsewhere, the Germans are apparently concentrating every possible man and gun against Roumania. The view of the British officers is that the Germans hope to crush Roumania so that when they have to fight a common allied offensive in the spring they may not have to defend the immense length of the Roumanian frontier in addition to what they have to defend this summer.

Won Only By Hard Fighting

London, Oct. 19.—Lieut. General Sir William R. Robertson, chief of the imperial staff at army headquarters, discussing the progress of the war last night at the Canadian Club's farewell dinner to the Duke of Devonshire, who is to succeed the Duke of Connaught as governor-general of Canada, said: "It took us two years to begin. We have got through the beginning stage and are now in the middle stage. Don't ask when the end will be. Let us centre our thoughts and efforts on the middle stage and the end will look out for itself. The enemy can be beaten only in one way—by hard fighting."

SEAPLANE VISITS SHEERNESS AND IS BROUGHT DOWN

London, Oct. 23, 4.32 p. m.—A hostile seaplane appeared over the southeast coast today and dropped four bombs in the vicinity of Sheerness. It is announced that an enemy seaplane was later brought down.

No casualties have been reported.

The following official account of the attack was given out:

"A hostile seaplane approached Sheerness at about 1.46 p. m. today. Its speed was very high. Four bombs were dropped, three of which fell into the harbor. The fourth fell in the vicinity of a railway station, and damaged several railway cars.

"British aeroplanes went up and the seaplane was seen to be damaged. No casualties have been reported."

An official communication issued this evening says:

"A hostile seaplane was shot down and destroyed this afternoon by one of our aeroplanes. The enemy machine fell into the sea. Judging by time it was probably the seaplane which visited Sheerness today."

SEEKING AID FOR CAPTAIN, SCHOONER GROUNDED ON BAR

Woodmont, Conn., Oct. 20.—Mistaking the lights of this town for New Haven, the British schooner Priscilla, hurrying to shore for a medical officer for her captain, Robert Newcombe, of Parrsboro (N. S.), grounded on a sandbar in Long Island Sound near here tonight in a dense fog.

Captain Newcombe, who is seriously ill of pleurisy, was removed from his craft by a rescue party, sent from shore, hurried to a New Haven hospital. The remainder of the crew was also brought ashore. The vessel was hard aground late tonight, with a high sea running.

"A day's supply of coal, she was bound for St. Stephen from Elizabeth (N. J.)."

The Priscilla, which is of 101 tons register, was formerly owned by the late Captain Greenville of this city, but was sold about two years ago to its present master, Captain Newcombe.

Ship brokers who are familiar with the vessel say that she sailed from here many years, but is now pretty old.

BANGOR HAS SLANDER CANADA'S TRADE TRIAL INVOLVING SCHOOL CONDITIONS

LAST YEAR NETS $1,687,939.707

Bangor, Me., Oct. 19.—Charges of a sensational nature regarding moral conditions in Bangor High school were made in the supreme court today by John W. S. Hodgdon, former teacher in that school, during trial of a suit for slander against the superintendent of Bangor schools, D. Lyman Wormwood, plaintiff alleging $5,000 damages, paid in full.

Hodgdon testified that while in his office in the basement of the High school building, he saw girls in a semi-nude condition in the corridors after leaving the gymnasium for their dressing rooms.

Witness also testified that since the publication of the alleged statement by Superintendent Wormwood, he has been unable to secure a position as teacher, and has been forced to accept a job as common laborer in the Portsmouth Navy Yard, Kittery (Me.).

Dr. Scriver of Brewer, testified that he was called to attend Hodgdon one night last March and found that the patient was in a weak condition physically and apparently had a mental explosion. "Brain storm," he talked incessantly of his straitened circumstances, and attempted to lift everything in the room.

Teachers in Bangor High school testified that Hodgdon had told them that he was employed as a secret service man by the United States government, that he had been in consultation with representatives of the nations at war, who had tried to secure his services without success and that the Canadian government had sent him to see a man in regard to an aeroplane model that one of his students had made.

Hodgdon, while on the stand for several hours, talked coherently and rationally, and denied some of the statements made against him. The case, which is arousing intense interest among the parents of pupils and others, will be resumed tomorrow morning. A Attorney-General William B. Fadden in Bangor, represent plaintiff and Benjamin W. Blanchard the defendant.

HEALTH AND LONG LIFE To the Editor of The Telegraph, Sir,—During 1916 there was extensive published part of an address by Arthur Hunter, secretary of the New York Life Insurance Company, which in my judgment marks a distinct advance on our views on the subject of long life and health. A great deal has been written on this subject, but in relation to heredity, to occupation, to the drink habit, to habits of life, etc.; but Mr. Hunter touches a note above all these.

WARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Fanny Gigey, of Upper French Village, desires to thank her friends for kind words during the illness of her daughter, Edith, and for sympathy expressed after her death.

Borden, Lutz, and Recciding. (Toronto Star).

"The Journal believes that a united appeal signed by the representatives of the two political parties would be a stimulating influence to enlistment all over the country. At any rate it is more than worth a try."

Up to October 14 the total number of Canadian casualties in the war had been 62,026.

Up to date, October 19, the war has been in progress two years, two months, two weeks, and two days.

And yet in all that time there has been such pitiful weakness and lack of aggressive purpose on the part of the prime minister that up to the present hour the Government of Canada has made no appeal to the men of Canada to enlist for the war.

Although urged for over two years to make such a call and to throw all the national influence into the scale in favor of enlistment, the government has, ever and always, somehow escaped the actual making of any such call. The government has formally authorized others from time to time, to raise such a call, but the contrary discouraging force of the government has always prevailed. It has used no pressure in favor of enlistment. It has used no influence in favor of it. The earlier pronouncements of its authorized spokesmen were on the contrary discouraging—they said, in fact, more men were offering than were needed.

Even now, when it seems no longer possible for the government to preserve its two-year-old neutrality between the hot enthusiasm of the volunteer and the fish-like coldness of the slacker—even now the government nervously suggests that "a united appeal be made by the representatives of the two political parties," as if the making of such an appeal were some desperately dangerous political hazard which the party in office is afraid to face the responsibility of taking.

CASUALTIES OF NUMBERING RECRUITS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

But 52 Signed Roll in Province Last Week While 79 Fell on Field of Honor, Leaving Gaps in Ranks—St. John Gives More Than Half of Total—Military Authorities Showing More Interest in Recruiting Problem.

Yesterday was a red letter day at the Prince William street recruiting office. No less than ten men applied for khaki suits and seven of them were passed as medically fit, while the three remaining secured "AR" buttons.

More than half the recruits secured in the province during the week ending Saturday, Oct. 21, came from the city and county of St. John. Out of a provincial total of fifty-two men St. John gave twenty-seven. Westmorland county took second place with eleven men, which is a considerably better showing than she has made for some time and indicates an awakened interest among her young men.

The recruiting seems to be traveling at an adverse ratio to the Canadian casualties on the western front for during the week there were less than seventy-nine casualties reported to New Brunswick homes.
