Freight to St. John. 1.20

If Pictou and Sydney coal can be shipped to Boston and New York at paying prices. it cannot fail to be highly remunerative to send a better article from Spring Hill, with an advantage of 75 cents in freight. The local traffic would yield a high rate of profit.

Taking the low average of only 80 cents per ton, inclusive of repairs of machinery, &c., and assuming only 100 000 tons as the annual production at first, we have a gain of 20 per cent. on the capital, which might be much augmented by the rent of other seams, as suggested. From the exceptionally high character of this coal, and the seams, as raising it cheaply, this quantity, it is confidently believed, might ere long facilities for raising it cheaply, this quantity, it is confidently believed and a large rate of profit secured even with considerable increase of capital.

TESTIMONIALS.

Extracts from Reports of Messrs. Woodhouse and Jeffcock, Mining Engineers, London and Derby, G. B., (January 2, 1866) The Coal Field which we have carefully examined, and which is the subject of this Report, is situate in the county of Cumberland, in the province of Nova Scotia. It is generally described as the "Springhill" Coal Field, but in reality it is a part of the great Cumberland Coal Field.

The first or upper seam we found to be a bed of remarkably good coal, presenting a very

He did not step to think or to regret.

The Rev. Mr. Morley was a madman, but that did not prevent him from carrying out that did not prevent him from carrying out the purpose which had made him mad.

He stooped forward to day hold of his little daughter Sallie. He worshipped her with the intelligence and devotion of an animal supplemented by an evanescent something, scarcely to be perceived, and yet of infinite import, as being the last trace of that pure and holy sentiment, the one which lingers longest about the ruins of mind and heart—the love of a parent to ward its child. daughter. She thought he meant to play toward its child.

to fulfil the duties of his parish.

So he was found the next morning, plungled in heavy, brainless slumber, by the side of his dead wife and little Sallie, who had oried herself to sleep, was lying with her curly head pillowed on his arm. CHAPTER IV.

The tragedy in the Rev. Mr. Morley's credible self-righteousness of the moral wrong-doer, he had been waging a simul-taneous subordinate battle against the conscience which pointed out, with grim peristence, how latal to the welfare of his onl was any conflict of the kind. The stegrity, purity, and truth of the minisnature were deeply compromised, the ption having eaten into the very one and armor with which alone he Doubtless the beclouding of Mr. Morley's intellect may have been a mercy to him. He could never know the calamities which lay in wait to crush him. It almost seemed, sometimes, as if he had a dim feeling that reason would be no true friend to

She, so far from appreciating the gravity of the situation, straightway initiated a game of peep bo, by holding up her small, bloodstained hands, and peeping coquettishly at the haggard minister between her fat little fingers, at the same time laughing with a bewitching tinkle.

The madman's gaze softened and wavered. He looken around him with a helpless, pleading, distraught air; what was he here for? what had harmen? Sallie's made the people that they had better make no arrangements which will inter the form of sound and one to should obtain a mount of sound and one to should only should contain the work of soveral times he was a greater marvel still.

Nine Thousand People in a Religious Polka?

TWENTY VIILIGES DANCING TO A SAINT'S

At Echternach, in Luxemburg, every Whit-Tuesday, a singular religious cerecould have hoped to keep corruption away. So when the crisis came it found him more than ripe to fall.

In the course of a few months, however, Mr. Morley recovered his health—thanks to the skill of his physician: that is, a creature wearing the outward appearance of the minister continued to have his being in the parsonage. This creature could eat and sleep; and at other times sit stolidly in his chair, looking before him with dull eyes, or mumbling unintelligibly to him self; or, if addressed, would pause, and ponder, and tensible, or else with exaggerated solemnity and seeming, wise, unmeaning jargon. From a scholar of high culture and trenchant intellect, he had been transformed to something far below the innocent child which played about the floor at his feet. From the position of leader and director of all that was highest and best in the minds around him, he had fallen to be at the mercy of the most ignorant laborer.

Where does the soul of the insane find a resting-place? Not, surely, within the wrock of that fair instrument upon which it has been used to play such matchless harmonies. The soul informs its house, and can endure neither lack nor superfluity. If it may not fill every chamber and gallery—no less and no more—it must seek some other than a mortal dwelling-place, It goes, an all says the match of the finest merchone, remembering the past, and musing what the future may contain.

Doubtless the hellouding of Mr. Mor. monial takes place, consisting of a processo when the crisis came it found him more sion of some thousands of invalids and their ing that reason would be no true friend to him; he always and obstinately resisted all exercises or methods calculated to im thing he might do could cancel. These debts are delicate matters, and there is very apt to be something noble and touching onnected with them. It is not well to pry too deeply into them, however, lest we light upon some sad, nameless grave, where Hope and Opportunity died in each other's arms.

Never was there more confidence of success on the part of Reform candidates and never, we are happy to say, more disposition to sacrifice personal interests in order to secure the triumph of Liberal principles On Saturday Mr. James Somerville was nominated for North Huron, and accepted the trust. For years the Reformers of the trust. For years the Reformers of Chestnut, Henry. Hope and Opportunity died in each other's arms.

The physician was likewise a widower; but he had a son. some two years or so older than Sallie, who, from being her childish playmate and slave, grew up to ba her slave and boyish adorer. It would be an interesting study to trace this acquain tance through all the varying lights and shadows which successive years cast upon it. Child love is a subject of surpassing psychological interest, and has never yet received proper attention and treatment. It is common to call it unimportant, and laugh at it as fleeting; but it contains all the elements which distinguish the love of mankind from that of animals, and probably comes as near the ideal love we may expect to meet with in a happier world as any thing can.

A Blue nose fog was falling fast, As up King street a newsboy passed: He bore a banner by a cord, On which was traced this magic word— CHALYBEATE. "I am the great cure all," he said,
"Restore the living, caim the dead—
Cure all diseases of the blocd,
And fell complaints nip in the bud"—
CHALYBEATE. "Consumption dread now dormant lies;
The prestrate man will soon arise,
And suffer pains and aches no more,
And Baxter's name live to adore'—
CHALYBEATE. Enveloped in a wrapper grand
Surmounted by a golden band,
The wondrous name of B. After rears,
And calms and soothes atlankious fears of CHALYBEATE. The Pharmacopolistic store
Has just received two buttles more
Of amber colored light dots fit.
Pronounced by all a "quantum and".—
