New Business First Six Months 1816;
$1,500,000!

World-wide is the reputation of West's Cough Syrup, the truly marvellous remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, asthma and consumption. All druggists.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. Sold by John M. Wiley.

Nine times out of ten a fire in a theatre in which a play is going on begins on or under the stage. The audience will have at least twenty minutes to clear the house before there is any danger, and there is plenty of time to go out in a quiet and orderly manner. So says an old stage carpenter, and it is something to be remembered.

West's Liver Pills, the standard remedy for liver complaint, dyspepsia, indigestion and sick headache. 30 sugar pills 25c. All druggists.

It cures consumption.

Steam power through pipes is furnished by the New York Steam Company to 435 engines from a big steam station in Greenwich street. The conductors or pipes used for conveying the steam are of very large dimensions. The steam when delivered to the engine is wet steam, and the pressure is about 80 or possibly 90 pounds.

The increasing demand for West's Cough Syrup is evidence of its great value in all throat and lung diseases. Three sizes. All druggists.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough, and Bronchitis. Sold by John M. Wiley.

Mr. F. J. Furnival writes to The Academy that the acceptance of the year 1825 as that of Chaucer's birth, according to old tradition makes a complete mess of all the known facts of the poet's life which are only harmonized by the date 1340, and moreover carries an unnecessary implication upon his parents.

Mr. Furnival, therefore, appeals to Chaucerians and to all lovers of the noble poet, to stop any more vile aspersions on the memory of Chaucer and his father and mother.

NOTHING TAKES NOTICE—West's Cough Syrup contains no opiates, opium or any mineral, and can be given to the youngest and most delicate child with perfect safety. It is an infallible cure for croup and whooping cough. A bottle should always be kept in the house as a certain cure for coughs, colds, consumption in its early stages, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles. 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. All druggists.

It is not unlikely that an attempt will be made this year to bless the world with another Emperor. The Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant calls the attention of its readers to the fact that "the illustrious head of the great historical House of Orange is fast approaching his seventieth year." It thinks that the loyal people of the Netherlands can find no more graceful method of acknowledging their affection for their king than by subscribing for the purchase of a splendid imperial crown, and begging the King of Holland, not only to accept it, but also to "bestow the title and dignity of Emperor of Insulinde, or Caesar of the Indian Islands."

CHOCOLATE—The most humorous man is not always the happiest; the man who has a scrofulous humor or any obstinate humor of the blood does not feel very lively, at least not until he is cured, which, by the way, the Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant says, is not a laughing matter.

AGRICULTURE.

Life on the Farm.

Life on the farm may be made the most comfortable, contented, happy and independent of any calling. And as the sustenance of all classes is derived from the products of the soil through the farming class, it becomes a very important matter that the farmer's life shall be rightly and properly employed in his calling.

The first thing to be considered is the farmer's house—the place where the family spend their lives. This should be made, not only for health, but also for beauty, elegance and attractiveness to the beholder. The place where the life is spent, should be made more than all places, pleasant, as well as comfortable.

The house in its exterior appearance and appointments should be such as to impress the beholder with pleasurable emotions. Since we are created to admire the beautiful, and to derive the most agreeable sensations from sympathy, grandeur and beauty, certainly it is becoming that the dwelling places of all should possess these important characteristics.

This does not necessarily involve great outlay. A small house may possess all these requirements if rightly planned before building. The form and general plan should be made with thought, care, and a due regard to all the principles related to, including comfort, convenience, health, beauty and pleasantness.

The cellar should be as nearly disconnected from the other parts of the house as possible. This may be done by finding the joints in the cellar with one inch boards, and filling in with sawdust between these boards or linings and the house floor. This will prevent the rising of the cellar and fruit stored in this cellar, from reaching the dwelling part of the house, and will also prevent the heat of the cellar and fire of the house from affecting the cellar. Fruit stored in the cellar will keep better in this way, and the health of the inmates of the house will be safer, while the house floor will be warmer.

Every country dwelling should have a large lot fenced, in which should be grown a grove of shade and ornamental trees. The lot should also include sufficient grounds for a vegetable garden and small fruit lot, in which should be given in abundance, for family use throughout the year, all the leading vegetables and small fruits, such as early potatoes, beans, lettuce, radishes, and all the common vegetables, as well as asparagus, celery, tomatoes, sweet corn, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants, gooseberries and grapes. All these grow in abundance.

The orchard should be located on the most northern slope of ground, and should consist of all the fruits suited to the locality—apples, pears, peaches, cherries, mulberries, plums, and any other fruit which may be grown.

The ground should be made perfectly dry by the drainage; a little six inches in diameter sunk three to five feet deep, over which the trees should be planted, and a tile of the same size between the roots of the trees.

The trees should be obtained from a nursery where they are grown three or four feet apart, to insure hardiness and vigor to the tree.

The practice of nursery men is to grow the plants close together, and cut off limbs to economize room. This destroys the beauty, symmetry and vitality of the tree. To grow from the seed, plant out in the orchard and wait for fruit, may seem a long time, but it is the surest way to obtain a reliable and lasting orchard. When the fruit appears, a test can be made of the quality and all that is not good may be grafted and made to produce good fruit on a healthy tree. This applies to all fruits capable of being grown in this way.

The farm should be kept to correspond in all respects. Fences should be kept in good condition; no weeds or brush should be allowed to grow on either side of the fence, but grass instead; the plow land should be kept free from weeds and in a good state of cultivation; the ground land, of which there should be an abundance, should be liberally "fertilized" with grass. No vacant spots should be allowed in getting the land into grass. It is well to mix several kinds of seed together, as several kinds, requiring different kinds of plant food, will grow together without interfering one with the other so that a complete stand of grass may as well be not.

My brother farmers, let us forsake this slavish, degenerate life, devoted to money making. Let us endeavor to live more exalted, more civilized, more in keeping with the requirements of our being.

How to Improve Stock.—To improve your herd, begin, not by buying a fancy bull, but by giving better care to what you have. Feed higher and more judiciously, stable better to protect against the changes of temperature and in every way improve the conditions of life of the stock you have. Then buy better blood than you have. It is folly to expect stock, however, well-bred, to do well when under-fed and exposed to the weather. The conditions of life must be favorable to the development of the qualities you desire in her herd, and they must be kept so. The finer strains of milk and butter cows are necessarily sensitive to abuse and exposure than are their "poor relations."
