

LONDONER, JUST HOME FROM FLOOD DISTRICT, DESCRIBES THRILLING SCENES OF DELUGE

Mr. and Mrs. James Corsaut Penned in Brother's Home for Days—Hundreds Clamor for Food and Shelter.

MANY SWEEPED TO DEATH WHILE OTHERS FIND REFUGE IN TREES

Running as a conductor on a Ridout street car today is a man who went through all the horrors of the Ohio flood, who saw men, women and children by the hundreds huddled on housetops and in the branches of trees, houses picked up by swirling waters and carried out of sight, and heard people calling for help as they were swept away to death in one of the worst deluges that has ever visited America. To an Advertiser reporter he gave a graphic description of the suffering and scenes of the flood.

He is Mr. James Corsaut, of 816 King street, who left London on Good Friday to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Corsaut, and two brothers, Drs. T. and H. Corsaut, who are now residents of Fremont, Ohio, a city of 10,000 population, but who formerly lived in London Township.

River Floods Main Streets;

Monday a Day of Horror

When Mr Corsaut and his wife arrived in Fremont, the weather was fine and remained so for three days. Sunday night while he was on a visit with one of his brothers it started to rain heavily, and early Monday morning the Sandusky River rose over its banks and swept down the railroad tracks through a large subway which leads to Front street, the main thoroughfare of the city and up into the business section.

From early morning Monday was a day of horror for the residents, according to Mr. Corsaut. The city depends on natural gas for a large part of its heat and light, and before night the supply was cut off. Everything was in darkness early in the afternoon and the cold was intense. Cries of the people penned in the houses and stores could be heard all over, but nothing could be seen. The water early in the day had flooded the large oil gasoline tanks in the south section of the city, and it was impossible to obtain light of any kind, the local electric light plant being put out of commission about the same time as the gas supply gave out.

Penned in Brother's House for Days; Hundred Fed by Londoner

"It was awful," said Mr. Corsaut. "That is the only way that I can describe it. We were penned in my brother's house, which was on a hill, for four days. The water was in the cellar and partly covered the ground floor, but it never rose any higher than that in the house. We could hear tin cans, tables and chairs floating around."

HOUSES CRUSHED LIKE EGG SHELLS, WRITES A FORMER LONDONER IN AKRON, OHIO

Mrs. J. A. Ford Describes Scenes and Sufferings of Flood Victims—Bridge Swept Away
By the Torrent.

Miss Mazie Parent, of this city, received a letter this morning from her sister, Mrs. J. A. Ford, who lives in Akron, Ohio, formerly of London, telling in graphic manner of the sudden flood which inundated that town, as well as many others, causing tremendous loss of life and terrible suffering.

Five lives were lost in Akron, according to the letter, and the sufferings of the people were intense. Torrents of rain fell from Sunday morning until Thursday, when it turned to snow.

Crushed Like Egg Shells.

When the flood struck the town, the letter goes on to state, "some of the largest houses were crushed like egg shells, and the people were seen carrying out what they could save in shawls and anything they could get hold of."

The firemen worked all that night endeavoring to get the people out of the houses, and many thrilling acts of heroism were performed. One fireman lost his life in an endeavor to save a drunken man who was unable to realize his danger.

Conditions in the stricken town at the present time are described as terrible. All railroad communication, either in or out, was cut off. The town was in darkness at night, and the street cars had not operated since the flood first swept through the streets.

Bridge Carried Away.

One bridge was swept away complete, and another bridge connecting North Hill, an outlying suburb with the business district, was declared unsafe, no traffic being allowed across it. Pedestrians were allowed to cross only in

in the rooms, and at one time we thought we would have to leave in boats, but on Thursday the water began to recede, and my wife and myself were able to get out.

"One of my brothers resides on Napoleon street, and hundreds of refugees were taken to his home and fed. He was about the only man in the flooded district who had any fire, and that was in a gasoline stove with some gasoline which he had in the house. It was used to cook food for the people who were taken to his house. At one time there were over a hundred huddled in the house, some meaning, others praying, and others watching their property carried away in the current.

Neighbor Sees Neighbor Go to Death in Swirling River

"I think there were eleven drowned, at least that was the estimate when we left the place on Thursday night, but there were all sorts of rumors going around. I heard one man call to another from a boat and ask where his neighbor was. Oh, he was carried down."

ADVERTISER LEARNS FORMER LONDONERS HAD CLOSE CALLS

J. R. Dewar Sends Papers Containing Account of Omaha Storm.

Marks Location of Homes of Former Residents of This City.

Mr. J. R. Dewar, of Omaha, Neb., son of the late John S. Dewar, of this city, sends to the Advertiser copies of the Omaha papers of last Monday, describing the cyclone which struck that city the previous Sunday night.

In the Omaha News is printed a map of the city, showing the course the cyclone took. Mr. Dewar has marked the location of the homes of former Londoners, indicating that while none of the former Forest City residents were injured, the homes of some were within a short distance of the cyclone, which tore everything to pieces and left a trail of death.

Near Storm's Path.

Mr. Dewar's home is only a few blocks from the devastated district, as is Mr. R. A. Smith's. Both are situated at equal distances either side of the cyclone belt. Mrs. George Victor, Mr. W. Whitaker and Mr. W. F. Church lived a few blocks further out. Mrs. Theodore Graham and Mr. T. H. Smith resided in the suburban parts of Omaha.

The death list is given at 140, the injured at 350. Whole families perished, and 500 houses were demolished. Views given in the Omaha papers are similar to those given in The Advertiser's second section today.

JACOB DALE, born in Glendale 77 years ago, and who died there on Friday.

HAD PNEUMONIA;

ALLOWED LIBERTY.
Robert Smith, a negro, was arrested by P. C. Alex. Brown, on Clarence street, south Friday night for being drunk. He was taken to the station, where he was found to be suffering from exposure. He manifested symptoms of pneumonia, and was taken to Victoria Hospital. He was reported to be much better this morning. The charge of drunkenness against him was dismissed in police court.

POWERS TO EXPEND $1,579,500 ARE ASKED BY CITY OF LONDON

The power to expend $1,579,000 under certain conditions is asked in the City of London bill.

Of this the greater half is proposed for the electrification of the Port Stanley Railroad, which is likely to be voted upon in May. The amounts are as follows:

Cost of Port Stanley road electrification, for which power is asked to issue debentures.....	$890,000
Debentures for Federal Square proposition.....	250,000
Extension of hydro light plant, for which power is asked to issue debentures.....	110,000
Debentures for original city hall proposition, for which extension of time for issuing is asked.....	75,000
Cost of West London breakwater, for which power is asked to issue debentures.....	75,000
Cost of addition to waterworks, for which power is asked to issue debentures.....	72,000
Debentures for addition to Victoria Hospital.....	28,000
Debentures for loan to Dennis Wire and Iron Works....	25,000
Debentures for loan to C. N. W. Shoe Company.....	20,000
Debentures for grant to Alexandra Sanatorium.....	15,000
Debentures for cost of new motor fire truck.....	7,500
Debentures for equipment of industrial school.....	7,000
Debentures for additional cost of Wharfedale road bridge	5,000

Total power of expenditure asked for.....$1,579,500

It is understood that the bill will be considered the latter part of the coming week, probably Thursday or Friday.

Many Londoners Hear From Friends in Flooded Region

Practically every person in London, who has relatives in the flooded sections of Indiana and Ohio has received telegrams or letters from them assuring them of their safety.

There are several who have not notified their relatives, but as regular communication has not been established, and as there are thousands of letters and telegrams which have not been delivered on account of the flood, the relatives believe that something may have occurred to delay the messages.

Word was received by wire today from Mr. Charles Currie, manager of the Northern Ohio Traction Company, which operates from Cleveland to Canton by way of Akron, stating the company's new dam and power plant are in good shape, and that 75 per cent. of the entire service is in operation. He states that the entire loss sustained through floods and interruption of the traffic will not exceed $1,000.

KING NICHOLAS REPORTED KILLED

[Canadian Press.]
New York, March 29.—A rumor originated in Europe last night that King Nicholas of Montenegro had been killed. Exhaustive investigation has failed to even disclose the source of this rumor or to indicate that there is any truth in it.

THE WEATHER.

In the West the weather has been fair and quite mild.

ALARM CAUSED BY DISAPPEARANCE

Accountant of Bank at Vancouver
May Have Met With Foul Play.

[Canadian Press.]
Vancouver, B. C., March 29.—Pohn McLennan, accountant in the Molsons Bank here, has disappeared and foul play is feared. His accounts are perfect. McLennan's home is in Cornwall, Ont., where his father, D. B. McLennan, is a prominent barrister. Last year he rowed in the eights for Winnipeg.

WILL TRY TO STOP ALBERTA ELECTIONS

[Canadian Press.]
Calgary, March 29.—A report comes from MacLeod that the action of Premier Sifton in calling the provincial elections for April 17 will be contested as illegal. Colin MacLeod, legal adviser to Robert Patterson, Conservative candidate for MacLeod, is preparing to make application before the supreme court in Edmonton on Monday next for an injunction restraining the Sifton Government from holding the elections that day.

PREMIER SIFTON OPENS THE CAMPAIGN

Albertan Government Going to the Country on Its Record.

[Canadian Press.]
Calgary, March 29.—O. G. Devonish, capitalist, and Clifford T. Jones, barrister, were nominated for the Legislature in two Liberal conventions held in Calgary. Premier Sifton opened the campaign with an address, the keynote of which was that he was going to the country on the record of his Government. The Liberals of Olds nominated Duncan Marshall, the sitting member, and minister of agriculture.

DAYTON'S WATERWORKS ARE WORKING AGAIN

BULGARS PIERCE LINES AND PUSH FOR CONSTANTINOPLE

Ottoman Last Defense Breaks Before the Christians, Who Move Victoriously on Towards Sultan's Capital—Bulgarian Loss
at the Storming of Adrianople Was Appalling.

[Canadian Press.]
London, March 29.—The Bulgarian troops pierced the Tchatalja lines in the neighborhood of Lake Derkos, on the Black Sea, today, and are pushing forward victoriously on Constantinople, according to a Central News dispatch from Sofia.

The Bulgarian casualties in the last few days' fighting at the taking of Adrianople are estimated at 14,000 killed and wounded. The first regiments which advanced to the attack lost 50 per cent of their officers and men in killed and wounded, according to a Central News dispatch from Sofia.

SHUKRI AT SOFIA.

Sofia, March 29.—Shukri Pasha, the captured Turkish commander-in-chief of Adrianople, with his staff and seven other Turkish generals, arrived here today. They were received with fitting honors. They will reside here during their captivity.

Servians Captured Shukri.
Belgrade, Servia March 29.—The honor of capturing Shukri Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief of Adrianople, with his headquarters staff, belongs to the Twentieth Servian Regiment of Infantry.

An official statement issued here today said that Shukri Pasha, two other Turkish generals, 22 field officers and 150 junior officers, were in the fort to the northwest of the city, when the Servians stormed and captured it. On the following day Shukri Pasha was handed over by the Servians to the Bulgarians.

DAYTON'S DEATHS GREATLY REDUCED

Loss of Life by the Flood Not Likely to be Above 150.

NEW PERIL LOOMS UP

Thousands of Dead Animals Lie on Streets and May Spread Disease.

[Canadian Press.]

Dayton, Ohio, March 29.—Dayton awoke this morning wondering if the latest estimate of the number of its dead as a result of the flood was accurate. With 82 bodies recovered, and with nearly every section explored by life-saving crews and newspapermen, early estimates of tremendous loss of life had been cut to 150 to 100.

After a meeting of seven-eighths of the undertakers of Dayton last night it was announced that a consensus of opinion at the meeting was that 800 were dead. These men said they based their estimates merely on general conditions, and Dayton citizens today renewed efforts to explore every recess of the city to ascertain if their reckoning was correct.

As most of the hemmed in sufferers had been provided with food yesterday no effort was made to work in the flooded areas last night but with the coming of dawn large rescue parties were out to succor the sufferers and recover the dead.

A New Peril.

Not knowing yet how great is her loss in number of lives Dayton already faces a serious situation. The sewage, water, gas and electric lines, and other systems have been destroyed. Thousands of dead animals are lying about the streets. Two fertilizer firms began today to gather these animals. Water is being served from private pits of the Soldiers' Home and the National Cash Register Company, being served from sprinkling wagons. The relief committee has sent out an urgent appeal to people not to refuse in the street, but to dig cess pools wherever possible. The sewage system cannot be used for weeks, and it will be necessary to do without gas for some time.

Little Sickness.

Considering the number of persons affected by the flood there has been comparatively little sickness, the cold weather being responsible for this to a great extent. The cold weather has caused great suffering among those marooned without food, water or heat, but in the end it has proved a blessing. Efforts were made today to clear away debris in sections where a flood water had run off and it was feared bodies might be found in these masses of wreckage. With well organized crews doing this work, others took food to persons still marooned in Riverdale and North Dayton.

It was believed, however, that by the mischief most of these people could get out, so rapidly was the water receding. Trainloads of foods came from several sections today. Train communication being established with the north, several relief trains came in bearing varied assortments of needed materials.

Hotel Collapsed.

Zanesville, Ohio, March 29.—(Via long distance telephone to Pittsburgh.) Four bodies had been recovered up to 6 o'clock this morning, and the flood in the Muskingum River had receded to Second street. The Rogho Hotel collapsed early today, and the Schultz Theatre is in danger of falling in.

Appalling Destruction.

Hamilton, Ohio, March 29.—Less than a hundred is the estimate today of the dead in the flood here. As the water recedes the evidence of the property destruction is more appalling, but the death toll, it is believed, will not exceed one hundred. Filed high upon the east side of the court house are caskets awaiting the flood victims, whose bodies are being gathered as rapidly as possible. Militiamen are guarding the city everywhere, and though there have been reports of looting, there is no evidence that any ghoul has operated successfully.

MINISTERS SERENE UNDER A HOT FIRE AT MARCONI PROBE

and Lloyd George, Says O'Connor.

Unionists Gloomy at Failure to Wreck Careers of Asquith's Colleagues.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser by
T. P. O'Connor, M.P.]

London, March 28.—In England, as elsewhere, nasty, personal political scandals swallow up all other interests. Although this week was not without its momentous public events, public interest was entirely absorbed in the attacks on Postmaster-General Rufus Isaacs and Chancellor Lloyd George in regard to the Marconi wireless case. The committee room in which the inquiry was held was filled every day with an army of reporters, and a large and heterogeneous crowd of spectators. Even members of Parliament were ready to stand for hours in the crowded room to gaze at the extraordinary spectacle of the most renowned men in English public life, seated like criminals in the dock, and subjected to every form of searching cross-examination.

Cool Under Fire.

Mr. Isaacs and Mr. Lloyd George went through the terrible ordeal with marvellous coolness, courage, and success. Though Mr. Isaacs looked pale and drawn, he answered every question with transparent honesty, and even a superfluous abundance of detail.

The men who did the cross-examination did not even dare to suggest any imputation of corruption and confined themselves mainly to the suggestion that Isaacs, through his brother being secretary of the Marconi Company, had the advantage over the general public in hiding for them.

Isaacs kept his temper in wonderful control through the prolonged cross-examination, except once or twice, when a Unionist member vaguely suggested some timid defence of the attack on the officials. Isaacs then let himself go, and with flashing eyes, loud voice and blows on the table, made an eloquent and fierce protest against the continuance of more insinuations, and demanded to know whether their corruption was imputed or not.

The Unionists immediately began to retreat. In the meantime there was a striking indication even in the committee room of that inevitable reaction of opinion which always comes in England when the generous and racial instinct of the Englishmen for fair play feels itself offended.

Crowd Cheers Isaacs.

It was significant of this feeling that the audience in the room violated all the rules of order by bursting into enthusiastic applause when Mr. Isaacs uttered his words of vehement self-defence.

The final outcome of his evidence is that while the mud will still be thrown and Isaacs and Lloyd George may be accused of a lack of worldly wisdom, all the charges of corruption will be abandoned. The sensation rose to its highest point when Lloyd George said: "I am not a crook."

WATERS INVADE CINCINNATI CITY

Entire Lower Section Has Been Inundated by the Ohio.

REFUGEES CROWDING IN

City Is Cut Off, But Has Enough Food
To Last For a Few Days.

[Canadian Press.]

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 29.—With the Ohio River covering the entire lower section of this city, and with refugees from the stricken up-state towns coming in by hundreds, Cincinnati this morning faces a situation that will require the combined efforts of all of its relief and civic organs to cope with. Every hotel in this city is crowded to its capacity, while every moving van, automobile truck and freight street car has been pressed into service removing families from the flood area. The river reached the stage of 65.5 feet at day-break, and was rising at a rate of 1 1/2 tenths of a foot an hour, with more than 40 city blocks under water, whose depths range from half a foot to ten feet. Suffering, however, has been at a minimum, owing to warning sent out early that a stage of 70 feet probably would be reached before the waters began to recede.

The city was practically cut off from traffic communication with Covington, Ky., early last evening, when the approach to the suspension bridge became covered with water at a depth that prevented car or foot service. It was today estimated by experts that Cincinnati had enough food supplies to last at least ten days, without the intervention of anyone. Sixty city blocks in Newport and Covington are under water, and as almost all the manufacturing plants on that side of the Ohio are located in the lowlands, thousands have been thrown out of employment.

ARE THERE OTHERS?

Calgary, March 29.—"Am I the only one?" was the startling remark of Harry Minchen, former assistant city treasurer, former alderman, and recent candidate for city commissioner, when arrested on a charge of embezzling $85,000 from the city treasury. In the preliminary hearing at the police court, Chief Curry testified to the above remark.

THEY DON'T HESITATE TO TELL OF MOST WONDERFUL CURES

Letters in almost every mail bring true testimony of cures by "Fruit-a-tives," the great fruit medicine.

Reasons why the writers are anxious for all to hear their messages,—these stories are a matter of public interest and benefit.

It is astonishing the number of letters the proprietors of "Fruit-a-tives" receive every day, each praising this wonderful fruit medicine, and telling in simple language what it has done in cases of Chronic Constipation and Kidney Trouble.

Frequent mails bring testimonials from people—good, reliable and honest people amongst whom are not a few in prominent positions. It might be thought that such persons would not care for the publicity of having their testimonials reproduced. But no, they want their glad testimony to circle the globe if possible.

They have been great sufferers, but they have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives." The writers give their names and addresses, and frequently forward photographs to be published with the testimonials. "Fruit-a-tives" testimonials are not written for worldly reward. The recompense is in the good these testimonials will bring to others, who may be suffering from Bladder Troubles, Severe Headaches or Impure Blood.

Whether you have read "Fruit-a-tives" testimonials or not, don't miss one of them from this day forward.

You will gladly add your testimony no doubt when you have been cured by taking "Fruit-a-tives." Sold at 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial size 25 cents. If you don't get them right at hand they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

KAISERS ARMY BILL ADDS 135,000 MEN

Berlin, March 28.—A bill, increasing the German army by 4,000 officers, 15,000 non-commissioned officers, and 116,965 privates, was adopted by the Federal Council today. The peace strength of the active army is thus raised to approximately 370,000 men with the colors.

The Government's financial measures include a non-recurrent tax of from $247,750,000 to $250,000,000, spread over two years, and a permanent yearly increase in taxation of from $15,000,000 to $47,500,000. The non-recurrent tax will be obtained by a levy of $1.25 per 1,000 on fortunes, beginning at $2,500, and a supplementary income tax of 2 per cent on incomes ranging above $12,500 annually.

The yearly expenditure will be covered by the transfer of stamp dues, on insurance policies and articles of incorporation of companies from the states to the nation, and by assessing the states about 61 cents per capita of their population, and making the nation heir to intestate estates.

CAN'T SUE THE T. & N. O. ROAD UNLESS GOVERNMENT PERMITS

Liberal Attempt to Have Unfair Clause Removed Squelched by Whitney.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, March 28.—The Ontario Government absolutely refused this afternoon to repeal section 24, of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway act, which compels the people of Northern Ontario and others to secure the consent of the Attorney-General, Hon. J. J. Foy, before they can claim damages from the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission. The bill introduced by Mr. W. E. N. Sinclair to amend the act and place the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway on the same basis as other railways on the ground to claims for damages made by patrons of the road, was defeated by a straight party division.

A Ridiculous Situation. The South Ontario Liberal made an eloquent plea for the repeal of a section of the act in question, which, he pointed out, was placed in the act by the present Government in 1907. To think that no claim could be brought against the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway without the consent of the Ontario Government, which owned the road, was ridiculous, Mr. Sinclair said.

Hon. Mr. Foy, in a brief reply, pointed out that the railway was a Government enterprise, and "action against the crown must have the consent of the Attorney-General." He proceeded to make the statement that Mr. Sinclair had failed to give any instances of hardships, when the young Liberal rose and announced that he had the information, but the firms which had been complaining to him of hardships, for obvious reasons, did not wish to have their names made public.

"Not one word has been said about the competence of the T. & N. O. Railway commissioners," observed Mr. Proudfoot (Centre Huron), referring to a suggestion made by the Attorney-General.

"The Liberals concede that the commissioners are very able men, but why should an individual be compelled to submit to their judgment as to whether he should bring an action against them or not?"

Government Silent. No attempt at reply was made by the Government, and the argument was pursued by Mr. Rowell, who urged that the matter under discussion would become increasingly important to the people of Northern Ontario, as the country was developed. Many cases had been brought to his attention when he visited New Ontario last year and in a great many instances the claims were small, so that the expense of litigation became such a

CHURCHILL UNFAIR SAYS KEIR HARDIE

Socialist Leader Attacks British First Lord of the Admiralty.

TAKES SIDE OF GERMANY

Beresford Feared the Labor Leader's Remarks Would Be Mischievous in Canada.

London, March 28.—During today's debate on the navy estimates in the Commons, Mr. Keir Hardie, deploring the increased expenditure on armaments, discredited what he described as "alleged" offer of ships by Canada. He accused Winston Churchill of unfairness toward the laboring classes.

The Government claimed last year, he said, a sixty per cent. superiority over the German navy, but, now that Admiral Von Tirpitz had accepted, he was told sixty per cent. did not mean that figure, but sixty per cent. plus as many ships as we could coerce the Dominions and colonies to add to that estimate. That was not playing the straight game.

Canadian ships were not gifts, but loans made under certain conditions, and they tended to artificially inflate the navy and disturb the equilibrium which Mr. Churchill advocated a year ago. Acceptance of these offers without full assurance that they were free gifts from the peoples of the Dominions might have very serious effects upon the Empire itself.

The New Zealand Government which offered a "Dreadnought" was overthrown at the next election, partly through spending money without consulting the people, and the working classes in Canada were strongly against proposals now being considered in that Dominion. The fact that Churchill had intentionally or unintentionally taken steps with one political party in Canada was not calculated to bind the Dominion more closely to the mother country.

Lord Charles Beresford feared Mr. Keir Hardie's remarks were likely to cause mischief in Canada. He held no brief for the first lord, but he liked to see fair play. The Canadian Government asked the opinion of the admiralty. The first lord in reply sent the opinion of experts, not his own opinion.

Mr. Keir Hardie replied that if the noble lord turned to the correspondence between the first lord and the Prime Minister of Canada, he would find a communication, dated Jan. 24, 1913, addressed to "My dear Mr. Borden," and signed "Yours very sincerely, Winston S. Churchill." That was the communication upon which he had based his statement.

If an officer who was asked to prepare this opinion went out of his way to take part with one of two parties in Canada, the business of the first lord was to prevent it from going further.

"I took the political responsibility," said Mr. Churchill.

MASONS MARCHED AT PT. ELGIN FUNERAL

Cortege of John Duff One of Largest Ever Held There.

Port Elgin, March 28.—The funeral of John Duff took place yesterday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Mann for the masons, and then by the Masonic Lodge, of which deceased was a member. It was perhaps the largest public funeral held here in some years. Besides the Masons there was a big turnout of Oddfellows, who marched to the grave in a body. As a tribute of respect, all the business places were closed for two hours. The late Mr. Duff was a member of the town council, and was especially active and useful in his capacity as a councillor. Besides his wife he leaves his mother and two brothers.

The funeral of Mrs. Bald, mother of W. P. Bald, public school inspector for West Bruce, took place from the residence of her son yesterday. She was in her 60th year, having by telegram communication being interrupted, and as her daughters and sons are in distant parts, it was only possible to get word to one daughter in New York, who was able to get here in time.

DIED AT PAISLEY

Miss Mabel Conn Had Been Ill For Several Months.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Paisley, March 28.—Miss Mabel Conn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conn, died at the residence of her parents, Queen street south, on Wednesday afternoon. She was a bright girl of 23 years, and had been a telegraph operator until about eight months ago, when she contracted a cold, which settled on her lungs. She is survived by her parents, two sisters, Mrs. Loudon, of Toronto, and Mrs. P. B. More, Paisley, and one brother, James, of Windsor. The funeral was held yesterday from the Anglican Church to Paisley Cemetery.

There were only seven standing.

Gilmore laughed.

"My lord, man, you've got to keep your nerve! Look here, Mount Hope ain't going to talk of anything but the McBride murder; you're going to hear it from morning to night, and that's one of the reasons you've got to keep sober. You've done your best so far to keep yourself, and unless you listen to reason you may do it yet."

"I don't know what you mean," said Langham.

"Don't you, Marsh? Well, I've got just one more surprise in store for you, but I'll keep it to myself while longer before I spring it on you."

He was thinking of Joe Montgomery's story. If Langham did not prove quite tractable, that should be the final weapon with which he would beat him into submission. Presently he said:

"I've all along had my own theory about old man McBride's murder, and now I'm going to see what you think of it, Marsh."

An icy hand seemed to be clutching at Langham's heart. Gilmore's cruel smiling eyes moved his suffering. He laughed.

"Of course, I don't think North killed McBride—not for one minute I don't; in fact, it's a dead moral certainty he didn't. He leaned forward in his chair and looked into his companion's eyes. Without flinching, and then his eyes shifted and sought the floor. "I'll bet, said Gilmore, "that you've got a theory of your own like I could put my hand on the man who did the murder," and as he spoke he reached out and put his hand on Langham's shoulder. "You wouldn't like to risk any money on my theory, would you, Marsh?"

He sank back in his chair and applied himself to his cigar in silence, but his eyes never left the man who spoke.

Presently he took the cigar from between his strong, even teeth. "Now, I'm going to give you my theory," he said. "I want to see what you think of it—but remember always, I believe in letting well enough alone. They've got North down at the jail, and that suits me all right. My theory is that the man who killed McBride was needing money mighty badly, and he went to McBride as a sort of a last chance. He found the old fellow alone in the office—understand, he didn't go there with any fixed purpose of killing him—his idea was to borrow the money if the old man would lend it to him. He probably needed quite a sum, say two or three thousand dollars, and the need was urgent, you must keep that in mind, and then you see perfectly how it all happened. Possibly my man was of the sort who don't fancy disagreeable interviews, and the old fellow, going to the store until the last moment, but once he had settled that point with himself he was determined he would come away without the money. The old fellow, however, took a different view of the situation; he couldn't see why he should lend any money, especially when the borrower was vague on the matter of security."

"Well, I guess they talked quite a while there at the back of the store, McBride standing in the doorway at the office all the time. At last it got to the man who wasn't to have the money. But there was trouble ahead of him if he didn't get making promises—urging his need—and his willingness and ability to meet his obligations. He was like a starving man in the presence of food, for he knew McBride had the money in his safe, and it came to him that since McBride would not lend him the money he wanted, why not take it from him anyhow? He couldn't see consequences, he could only realize that he must have two or three thousand dollars. Perhaps he got a glimmer of reason just here, and if he did he was pretty badly frightened to think that he should even consider violence; he turned away and leave McBride, and the old man following him a ways down the street, explaining why they couldn't do business."

Gilmore paused. His cigar had gone out, now he struck a match, but he did not take his eyes from Langham's face.

"That's the whole story of the McBride murder. Now, what do you think of it, Marsh? How does it strike you?"

But Langham did not answer him. He was living the agony of that first conscious moment when he realized the horror of the crime, and his hurried search for the money, and his flight through the side door, he remembered that he had seized him as he dropped into the alley beyond, under the safe as he supposed. A debilitating reaction, such as follows some tremendous physical effort, had quickly succeeded. He had wandered through the deserted streets, seeking control of himself in vain. Finally he had gone home. Evelyn was at his father's, and he had let himself in with his latchkey and had gone at once to the library. There he fell to packing to send him, ten minutes had passed, when the sudden noisy clamor of the town bell had taken him, covering, to the window; but the world beyond was a vaguely curtained white.

He raised his heavy bloodshot eyes and looked into the gambler's smiling face. He realized the futility of his act, since it had placed him irrevocably in Gilmore's power. He had endured unspeakable anguish all to no purpose, since Gilmore knew—knew with the certainty of an eye-witness. And there the gambler sat, smiling and at ease, torturing him with his cunning speech.

To Be Continued.

CONSERVATIVE CAUCUS NOT ON TEMPERANCE

Workmen's Compensation Act Under Discussion at Yesterday's Conference.

Toronto, March 22.—The Toronto World (Conservative) says:

The caucus of the Conservative members of the Legislature yesterday afternoon, contrary to general expectation, did not deal with the temperance problem. Although the impression had gone abroad among the Government supporters that this conference would be in the nature of a discussion which would finally settle the matter of the liquor license amendment, the hour of assembly fell so late in the day, and the members were so tardy in appearance that it was necessarily postponed for consideration in the early part of next week.

The few members that were at the disposal of the meeting were devoted in part, it is understood, to a skirmishing discussion of the workmen's compensation bill, which will be laid before the House in the near future, and which is now experiencing considerable revision and amendment under the direction of the Hon. I. B. Lucas. Nothing of a definite nature, however, was decided upon at the meeting.

The attitude of the Government toward the bill of Mr. W. E. N. Sinclair (Liberal), of South Ontario, which sought the elimination of the claims of the railway and Northern Ontario Railway, also engaged the attention of the members for a few moments, as well as several other House matters.

Although the temperance policy was not settled, the amendments which the Government will place on the statute book are pretty well known to include the shortening of the sale in the bottle trade in hotels near the border line of wet and dry districts, either by the removal of the license or the way from the boundary, and the vigorous enforcement of the Canada temperance act. This latter system, which has aroused considerable concern among the counties of late, has been subject to revision and operates on a majority basis. The Government has promised to enforce it as thoroughly as the local option law in any county which accepts it.

CAUGHT RED-HANDED

Youthful Burglar Went Through Window Into Policeman's Hands.

[Special To The Advertiser.]

Windsor, March 22.—Leo Smith, 18, was caught squirming through an eight-inch cellar window in the rear of Cronk's clothing store, Sandwich street, at midnight last night by Constable Merritt and is held on a charge of burglarizing two other stores which were entered recently.

Smith, though effeminate in appearance, fought desperately when handcuffs were affixed. Two revolvers, one of which was loaded, were taken from him. Smith was arraigned in police court today, and his trial was set for April 6.

He says his father is in Mexico and his mother is dead.

OPPOSE RAILWAY

Brantford Council Is Against Lake Erie and Northern Line.

[Special To The Advertiser.]

Brantford, March 22.—The Dominion Railway Board will hold a session in Brantford April 7, when the route of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway between Brantford and Galt will be vigorously opposed as applied for. This city is offering strong objections to a railway along the Grand River on the ground that it will increase the likelihood of floods by narrowing the river channel.

MONTREAL HARD HIT

Damage Done by Sleet Estimated at Half-Million.

Montreal, Que., March 22.—Montreal, which was cut off from the outside world for twenty-four hours by a sleetstorm, is beginning to get in touch with the world again, and also to count the cost of the storm. It is estimated that the damage caused on the Island of Montreal will exceed half a million dollars. One man was killed, and several horses fell victims of live wires, which dropped in all directions. Telephone, telegraph and light poles, as well as trees, fell like ninetails under the weight of sleet.

The Bell Telephone Company had 137 out of its 150 long-distance lines out of order, while both C. P. R. and G. N. W. Telegraph Companies were out of business. Over 1,200 telephones in the city were out of order all day yesterday and last night. The car service was demoralized, and nearly two-thirds of the city was in darkness last night. Trees in parks, orchards, and gardens suffered most, the heavy ice breaking them down by hundreds.

Today thousands of men are repairing wires, carting away fallen trees, and in other ways removing the traces of the storm. It was one of the most severe storms ever witnessed here.

WOULD MAKE BOARD OF TRADE SECRETARY PUBLICITY OFFICER

Board Appoints Committee to Make Proposition to City Council.

Request For Rooms in New City Hall Also Will Be Made.

Mr. A. W. White at a meeting of the board of trade Friday evening, read a notice of motion to the effect that a committee of members be appointed to interview the city council, pointed to interview the city council, to see if some arrangements cannot be made for the board of trade to have its offices in the new city hall, and that a joint officer be appointed to act as publicity commissioner and secretary of the board of trade. The motion will be dealt with at the next meeting.

Among the communications read at the meeting was one from the secretary of the Hamilton board of trade asking that the London board discuss the inspection of bituminous coal coming into this country from the United States. He claimed that under the present arrangements it is held up at bonding points until it is inspected to determine whether it is slack or lump coal, thus causing congestion and delay at terminals. He advocated the appointment by the Dominion Government, of inspectors at the various points of entry, thus facilitating the handling of the coal. The matter was referred to the council.

Communications were also read from a number of the shippers of this city containing information as to delays in transporting their products by the railways. Information of this kind is being collected by the Associated Boards of Trade, by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and others to be presented to the board of railway commissioners in an effort to secure reciprocal demurrage. The matter was laid over until the next meeting to allow of other letters being sent in.

Mr. U. A. Buchner brought up the question of securing greater uniformity in the bankruptcy laws of the different provinces. At present, he stated, there is a great diversity between them, and the chaos of procedure under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government. He had been impressed, he said, by the success of the insurance men in securing uniform legislation in practically every province, but he had been subject to revision and operates on a majority basis. The Government has promised to enforce it as thoroughly as the local option law in any county which accepts it.

The Purpose Behind Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is made for the purpose of supplying an absolutely pure stimulant of uniform quality and strength, for the use of the physician in the treatment of disease and for hospital and household purposes.

It is made to meet the demand for a high-grade tonic stimulant free from the injurious by-products contained in beverage whiskeys and suitable for the use of the delicate, those who are not entirely well, and the aged who require a tonic stimulant to help maintain good health and strong faculties during advancing years. Carrying out this purpose requires methods of manufacture which considerably increase the cost of making over ordinary beverage whiskeys. But in doing this we secure a true medicinal whiskey—in fact, the one true medicinal whiskey made.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Is distilled from a fermented mash made absolutely from malted grain, and as musty or diseased grain cannot be malted, it will be seen that in this alone Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has an asset of incalculable value. The distillations and refinings to which Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is subjected remove the fusel oil and other dangerous substances and prepare it for the finished product, which comes from aging in wood.

The result is a tonic and stimulant unequalled for renewing the natural, healthy activities of the stomach and digestive organs, preventing waste of tissues in the aged, strengthening the whole body and brightening the faculties. There are many imitations claimed to be just as good. Duffy's is the only medicinal whiskey. Look for the "Old Chemist" seal. Write to our doctors for free medical advice and a free illustrated medical booklet.

Sold in sealed bottles only by druggists, dealers and hotels, at $1.25 a large bottle.

MINISTERS PROTEST AGAINST RAFFLES

Chatham Mayor Had Given His Sanction to Those Held at Kirmess.

[Special To The Advertiser.]

Chatham, March 22.—During the Kirmess, which was held this week in the armories in aid of the Kent Children's Shelter, raffles have been held in an effort to raise money for the charity. The Chatham Ministerial Association, through its president, Rev. J. R. VanWick, protested to the chief of police and asked him to stop it. He, however, found out that the mayor had given his consent, and the raffle was therefore legalized for the Kirmess.

The protest met this afternoon and unanimously passed the following resolution:

"That this association rejoices in the fact that the ladies of Chatham have shown such a deep interest in the welfare of the Children's Shelter, but regrets that some methods have been used that do not meet the approval of many people of this city, who hope that in future efforts for charitable purposes the introduction of the purchase of a chance and like methods may be eliminated."

The Kirmess is very successful, and nearly every prominent woman in the city is interested in it. The action of the Ministerial Association is therefore the common topic of conversation.

HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS, TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Removes the Scum From the Tongue, Sweetens a Sour, Gassy, Bilious Stomach; Cleanses Your Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels Without Gripe or Nausea.

If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you belch undigested food and feel sick and miserable, it means that your liver is choked with scum and bile and your feet of bowels are clogged with effete waste matter not properly carried off. Constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids, and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after-effects—so they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do a liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel wash-day.

That is all wrong. If you will take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight you will never realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the poisonous matter, scum, bile and clogged-up waste will be moved on and out of your system, thoroughly but gently—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. Taking Syrup of Figs is a real pleasure. Don't think you are dragging yourself; it is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, and constant use cannot cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company, on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other Fig Syrup offered as good should be refused with contempt. Don't be imposed upon.

Frost Fence

Looks as Neat When Stretched on the Posts as It Does in the Picture

Get Good Fence for Your Money

FROST WOVEN FENCES are the best value because:

They are made from full-size, No. 9, heavily-galvanized wire, which has that springiness that is lacking in many makes of Woven Fence.

They are carefully woven, having laterals and stays properly placed, and fastened by a lock, absolutely secure, but which does not kink the lateral wire, and weaken it to such an extent that there is no "come back."

Laterals are waved in such a way that they have practically the same elasticity as coiled wire.

Remember that cost for posts and labor is the same, no matter what kind of a fence you buy. Why not then, get a fence that you know is strong and durable, instead of one which has no reputation for long service?

IN OUR ADVERTISING WE HAVE FREQUENTLY TOLD YOU WHAT HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA IS MADE OF AND THE AILMENTS IT HAS BEEN CURING FOR MORE THAN A THIRD OF A CENTURY. BELOW WE GIVE A LETTER TELLING PARTICULARS OF ONE OF THE MANY CURES IT HAS EFFECTED, AND WE LEAVE IT FOR YOU TO SAY HOW MANY AND HOW STRONG ADJECTIVES WE MIGHT TRUTHFULLY USE IN INTRODUCING A LETTER OF THIS CHARACTER.

C. I. HOOD CO., LOWELL, MASS.

"208 Upper Front St., 'Exeter,' N. H., May 27, 1912.

"Gentlemen:—It is with the sincere purpose of benefiting others I write what Hood's Sarsaparilla did for me.

"On getting up one morning I found what seemed to be a mosquito bite on the calf of my right leg. Soon the eruption grew larger and continued day after day, becoming more and more troublesome. The physician advised poulticing, and I soon found I had a running sore. It ate steadily into the flesh, discharged freely, and grew worse. Another physician told me to use a rubber bandage, but the sore grew worse until

There Was Not a Spot of Healthy Skin as Large as a 10ct. Piece Between My Knee and Ankle.

My leg was now a dreadful sight. There were places large and deep enough to hold an egg. I was told the leg must be amputated. The specialist said he had seen many bad sores, but none equal to mine.

"One day a neighbor, Mrs. Buckley, spoke of the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla for scrofula, and I said 'I don't think such a simple thing as Hood's Sarsaparilla would do me any good.' But my husband joined in urging me to try Hood's, and as he brought a bottle, I thought I might as well take it. Before I finished that first bottle, I suffered less pain and could see the edges of the sore beginning to heal. As I kept on with the medicine, new flesh formed, the raw surface diminished, and after using ten bottles the Sore Was Completely Healed and My General Health Perfect.

I am able to work every day, weigh 175 pounds, my leg never gives me any trouble, and I use it the same as the other. I believe it my duty to tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla did for me, and I praise it to all my friends." Mrs. Josephine Sargent.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Having cured such a tenacious case of scrofulous-impurity as that described above,—and it has cured many other cases,—is certainly to be relied upon for all troubles caused or promoted by impure or low state of the blood.

BUILDING WARSHIPS IN CANADA.

When our local contemporary was showing its loudest that building
dreadnoughts was beyond the capacity of this backward colony, and that to suggest such a thing was high treason,
we ventured to quote from its issue
of Oct. 15, 1909, as follows:

"Patriotism will gather closer about battleships built in Canada than battleships built in England. In this country, where the ships are not yet complete, but it will probably prove to be money well spent."

The Free Press replied that it was not sure what kind of ships it had in mind when the paragraph was penned,
and that it may have been misled by the Laurier Government into believing that the facilities for building battleships in Canada were different from what now appeared to be the fact!

It pointed to the assertion by Mr.
Churchill that a plant to build a dreadnought complete in Canada would cost $75,000,000, and asked whether The Advertiser advocated this estimation, characterized by Liberal members of the House of Commons as absurdly exaggerated, included plans
for making guns and armor plate,
which could be imported if necessary
from Great Britain, or made at the great steel plants in this country.

It reminded the Free Press of what it was probably unaware, that the great British firm of Cammell, Laird & Co.
offered to establish a shipbuilding plant at St. John, N.B., free of cost to Canada, if they were given the contract for building in this country
the four cruisers and six destroyers for the proposed Canadian navy, their tender for these ships being $11,000,000.

This plant could have been expanded for the building of Dreadnoughts later on, without charge to the Canadian taxpayers, and today a plant capable of producing Dreadnoughts in three or four years could be obtained for Canada under similar conditions. The Free Press replies:

"The London Advertiser is simple enough to believe that private firms could build for Canada a $75,000,000 dreadnought plant in return for the contract for Laurier's two units that are to cost not more than $35,000,000!"

When the Free Press is driven into a corner it drops through a trap-door of misrepresentation. Why a $75,000,000 plant, when there are plants in Canada today capable of producing most of the body and equipment of warships of every class? The Dominion Iron and Steel Company have the plant to roll plates for the construction of ships which could be put into use at once if there were a market.
A Dreadnought plant, where all the materials could be assembled, if not actually constructed under the same roof, could be established in this country if the Government returned to the Canadian navy policy, and such a plant would cost the Canadian taxpayers nothing. It would not depend merely upon the contracts to build Canadian warships; it would be the beginning and nucleus of a great and permanent steel shipbuilding industry, which Mr. Borden had in mind when he said at Halifax in October, 1909:

"Providence has endowed this country with the material, with the men, and with the maritime situation, which are essential, not only for developing a scheme of naval defence, but also for the resuscitation of the shipbuilding industry, which once made Nova Scotia famous throughout the world."

The vessels of war would be succeeded by the vessels of peace. That was Mr. Borden's fine vision four years ago.

"Whither is fled the visionary gleam?
Where is it now, the glory, and the dream?"

THE GERMAN ARMY BILL.

The bill for increasing the German standing army by over 15 per cent, has passed the Upper House of the Berlin Federal Parliament, but has yet to pass the lower, elected House.
There it will be opposed by the Socialists, at least.

It is interesting that amidst the delirium of war alarms which has come over the greater states of Europe, the Socialist party of the workers seems alone to keep its head.
Simultaneously, "Forward" and "Humanity," the organs of Socialism in Germany and France, have come out with official manifestoes against the increase of armaments contemplated by both these States. Bernstein, the leader of the Revisionist or Moderate Socialists in Germany, and a member of the Reichstag, addresses a letter to the British public denouncing the "international mania," as he calls it.
He shows that the German army increase will cost initially in equipment

and fortifications a quarter of a billion of dollars, which the proposed tax on the rich may not fully meet. Already, he says, the annual expenditure of Germany on army and navy is over four hundred million dollars, to which the new increase would add fifty millions more. New taxation must raise this annual increase, and thus the cost of living, already complained of, will be further advanced. Bernstein says this much, however, for the German Government, that its plan is not actuated by a desire to menace or injure France. It is at any rate a genuinely defensive move, however unjustified. It comes out of the mania which impels the nations all together towards bankruptcy, Armageddon, or both. To what Bernstein says it must be added that the bogey which now frightens Germany is the "Slav Peril."
The gun men make believe that Bulgaria's success means danger to Germany's eastern frontier.

Is it not a strange thing that the advocacy of peace should be left to the Socialists, who are often described as anti-Christian? What are the European churches doing to stop the strife of armaments?

Bernstein notes that the cry goes up in France that "la patrie" is in danger. But does mere defence call for an army equal in numbers to that of Germany, especially when the German increase is projected against Russia?

The same question arises in connection with the conscriptionist campaign in Great Britain. What does Great Britain want a larger army for unless for offence on the continent?
Germany may fear not only Russia,
but a British army operating against her in Europe. That is the only reasonable meaning of the cry in England for a conscript army. But Great Britain's business is not to join in continental battles. Her business as a great industrial and commercial power is to keep peace, to come to an understanding with Germany as with France, and to bring those nations themselves to an agreement. Great Britain should in no way encourage France to attack or provoke Germany,
and so to foment the cursed war
mania. Fortunately she has as yet no engagements to interfere in continental wars. Lord Crewe stated last May that "Great Britain has no alliance with any great power on the continent of Europe. . . . No engagements of any kind involving military operations on our part. . . . No entangling military alliances." This should continue to be Great Britain's attitude, in her own interest and in the interest of continental peace.

THE NEW HAVEN'S TROUBLES.

The legal and financial troubles of the New Haven Railway Company are a centre of interest in speculative circles just now. On March 17 the stock dropped to 113 1/2. It has steadily fallen from 255 in 1902. It was in 1903 that the company began buying trolley lines and other subsidiary roads.
Since then the bonded indebtedness
has grown from $14,364,000 to $242,055,000
and the capital stock from $70,897,000
to $179,986,600. The New York Evening Post, most reliable of American newspapers, makes this significant comment in its financial page on March 22:

"Only a few years ago New Haven
found it difficult to hide its surplus earnings over the 8 per cent. dividend. That the company should be immediately began to buy up steam and electric roads and steamship lines. . . . It is the result of the electrical and other new activities of the New Haven, a road which has been paraded in this city as an example to be followed.

The management, in discussing the purchase of trolley lines, admits that "no independent company could afford to build these lines," but defends its policy on the ground that they are like some features of a department store, which directly show little or no profit, but attract business to the store! In other words, the New Haven's trolley lines would not be a good investment unless they leaned upon the parent system, which is the steam road. To interpret this as an argument for the electrification of the L. and P. S. R. is ridiculous and dishonest.

The Borden naval policy puts Canada on a level with Malaya, where nine-tenths of the people wear breech-cloths.

There is a comic opera aspect to the stationing of an imperial squadron at Gibraltar to protect the shores of British Columbia. Even the London Times says it will not do.

If party henchmen are to run the rural mail delivery, what need for inspectors at all?

Are you a Canadian or a Malay?

"Canada has declared she will speedily undertake the building of a navy. We are moving toward nationhood." — London Free Press, March 31, 1909."

Yes; and today we are moving away from nationhood.

The Socialists of Germany and France have issued a joint appeal against the army increases in both countries. This is work the churches should be doing.

Mrs. Pankhurst is right when she says her arrest on a charge of inciting to violence is unjust if Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Walter Long and Mr. F.
E. Smith are not also arrested on similar charges. These men openly counselled bloodshed in Ulster; Mrs.
Pankhurst incited only to destruction of property. This drawing of the sex line in the administration of justice gives the militant suffragettes a weapon.

UP TO DATE.

[Chicago News.]
"I've got a new idea for your performance of Hamlet," said the farce-comedy manager, who has ventured into the legit.

"What is it?" asked Mr. Stormington Barnes.

"Every time anybody drops dead in the last act let the man in the orchestra hit the bass drum."

POOR OLD WISE ONES.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]
This is worth passing around.
Someone has dug up the following from the Chicago Inter-Ocean of Dec.
31, 1882:

George M. Pullman, of the firm of Pullman & Moore, house raisers, is experimenting with what he calls a "palace sleeping car." The "wise ones" predict it will be a failure.

STUPID.

[Cape Cod Item.]
"Who is the belle tonight?" asked
she.

As they stood on the ballroom floor,
He looked around the room to see,
And she speaks to him no more.

THE LIBERAL REVIVAL.

The Liberal party in Ontario got a hard blow on Sept. 21, 1911, but it was defeated honorably upon a great issue, and since that time its history has been one of steady improvement. There has never been a time since the Liberal party was in power
when it was so united and enthusiastic as it is today. In Dominion and in provincial politics it is lined up on clear and important issues, and upon fundamental Liberal principles. The existence of this was clear in the spirit shown at the meeting for the organization of an Ontario Liberal federation.

There is good and evil in the party system. It is good in its best when the parties are divided by real issues.

TO AVOID PNEUMONIA.

[Kansas City Star.]
Pneumonia, says a medical journal,
may best be guarded against by avoiding hunger and fatigue—which is a case where science and inclination
meet.

JUST LIKE SOME MEN.

[Ottawa Free Press.]
There's many a small stream in Ontario these days that gets its name
into the papers by going on a rampage, though nothing is heard of it all the rest of the year.

A STRONG TRIO.

[Toronto Mail and Empire.]
G. K. Chesterton has resigned from the London Daily News and will contribute to the Herald, a daily Socialist paper. If the Socialists can number Shaw, Wells, and Chesterton in their ranks they can boast a trio of writers that all other clubs combined can hardly match.

A SHORT STORY.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean.]
Chapter I.
"I'll 'em up again, McGinnis!"
Chapter II.
"Fill'em up again, McGinnis!"
Chapter III.
"Fill'em up!"
Chapter IV.
"Fill'em up!"
Chapter V.
"Finis!"
(The End.)

AND THEN—AH!

[Boston Transcript.]
"Jack told me that night that I looked sweet enough to kiss."
And what did you say?
"I told him that was the way I intended to look."

A HANDICAP ON THE WEST.

[Canadian Collier's.]
Apparently the western provinces
have to have almost double the population required to have a vote in the Dominion Parliament as compared to Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. Or, in other words, a vote in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, or Manitoba is worth only one-half as much as a vote in Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, or Prince Edward Island. This fact, that there is every 58,000 people in British Columbia, for every 33,000 in Alberta, for every 49,000
in Saskatchewan, and for every 45,000
in Manitoba, but Ontario needs only 29,340 votes to get an M. P.; Quebec, 30,180; New Brunswick, 27,000;
Nova Scotia, 27,250; and Prince Edward Island, 24,432. Yet British Columbia and the other western provinces pay more taxes per head into the federal treasury—by way of customs receipts—
than most of the other provinces. British Columbia contributes something between $25 and $30 per head, and has to have twice the population to entitle her to parliamentary representation, while tribute something less than $5 per head to the federal treasury. Obviously it is wrong. The British North America act, which provided for representation on the basis of population, was therefore inserted providing that a redistribution of seats must be made after the regular decennial census had been taken. The last census was in 1911.
The representation is maintained on the old 1901 basis. It is time for the redistribution of seats in the Government of Ottawa—or is the Government afraid
for what Alberta and Saskatchewan might say about the naval policy?

QUITE ANOTHER THING.

[Boston Transcript.]
Hobbs—So you've struck it rich and are now able to keep several servants.
Dobbs—Alas, no—only to hire them.

A WOMAN'S QUESTION.

[Boston Transcript.]
Paying Teller—I cannot cash this check, madam.
She—Why not?
Paying Teller—There isn't enough money here to meet it.
She—Then can't you meet it halfway?

AN IMPOSSIBILITY.

[Chicago Tribune.]
Physician—You are too intense; you must take life easier.
Fair Patient—But doctor, I have the artistic temperament, and one can't have that in moderation.

The Oratory of Hamilton

[By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

The other day I pointed out the wide contrast between the oratorical style of President Wilson and that of Patrick Henry. Not Patrick Henry, but Alexander Hamilton, is Woodrow Wilson's oratorical forerunner. There are at least two or three points in common between these distinguished Americans. Both Hamilton and Wilson, early in their college career, began to write essays on economic and political subjects. Both showed remarkable powers of scholarship in their undergraduate days. Wilson was a skilled debater; so was Hamilton. Hamilton was but seventeen years of age
when he gave his first political speech
before a popular assembly in the fields in the suburbs of New York. The story goes that he was not satisfied with the discussion of the subject at issue, and, notwithstanding the astonishment of the crowd, made his way to the platform. Nervous at first, he soon forgot himself in his theme, and we are told by one who was present that
"He had the eloquence of sound reason, backed by a strong and passionate nature. As he poured out with all his young fervor thoughts
long pent up in his breast, the crowd
were deeply stirred by the oratory of one who spoke so well, although he was a stranger and a mere boy."

Again, both Hamilton and Wilson were not only mature thinkers at an early age, but they took their chief delight in constitutional history.
Consequently both developed a frank, debating style rather than an ornate, sentimental type of oratory. It is not necessary for me to say anything of President Wilson's style, with which all my readers are familiar, but it is interesting to go back to the records and find that Alexander Hamilton was noted for the clearness, directness and force that characterized his utterances.
Arguing his Senate colleagues to his essays in "The Federalist," according to Senator Lodge, "exhibit a wide range of information; their sounding is strong, their style is simple and clear; they were admirably adapted to their purpose, and, above all, they have endured, for they were fresh and original contributions to human knowledge, and to the best thought of the time."

A political philosopher of the first rank, Hamilton had a large share in proposing and upholding the policy of the United States. The United States, Woodrow Wilson also seems destined to elaborate a new political philosophy which may complete the edifice which Hamilton so solidly began.

I quote a sample passage from a speech delivered by Hamilton in the New York convention of 1788. He urges, as a check upon the passions
of a popular assembly:

"There are few positions more demonstrable than that the should in every republic some permanent body to correct the prejudices, check
the intemperate passions, and regulate the fluctuations of a popular assembly. It is evident that the institutions for these purposes must be so formed as to exclude as much as possible from its own character those infirmities and that mutability which it is designed to remove. It should therefore be necessary that it should be small, that it should hold its authority
during a considerable period, and that it should have such an independence in the exercise of its power
as will divert it, as much as possible, of local prejudices. It should be so formed as to be the centre of political knowledge, to pursue always a steady line of conduct, and to exercise an irregular propensity to system. Without this establishment we may make experiments without end, but shall never have an efficient Government."

I wonder whether President Wilson uphold this old-fashioned doctrine of his father in oratory?

Too Many People Thrust on Charity

Magistrate Judd Gives Judgment
in London Township Case.

Magistrate Judd gave judgment this morning in the case of a London Township farmer, charged with having sent away from his house an aged man who had been working for him,
and who was sick and unable to care for himself. The court did not uphold the defence offered by the defendant,
but decided that the evidence produced was not sufficient to send him before the grand jury, and the charge was dismissed.

The aged man was placed on the Granton stage on one of the coldest days of the winter, and sent into London, where he was left to shift for himself. He was later found by the police in a King street hotel.

There are too many cases of persons who are placed in railroad coaches or other vehicles, to be cared for by any charitable institution into whose hands they may happen to fall, commented the court.

GOZZO ARRANGED.

Rome, March 29.—Admiral Gozzo, recently back the ears of Admiral Pasquale Cattolico, minister of marine, because he had shared him from the navy, was arraigned in court yesterday for the street fight. Admiral Gozzo was sentenced to serve three months in prison and to pay a fine of $50 for being a cabaret officer. He was released, however, under the "conditional law,"
and was bound over to appear again if called for.

GOOD ADVICE.

[Toronto Star.]
The Government should let its naval bill stand until next year, and then bring in a permanent policy. There is no emergency.

We have just sent for R. Caton Woodville, of the Illustrated News, to prepare a picture of how Hiderow,
1:17, would look rescuing the Free Press pagoda in the case the Dayton flood struck Richmond street.

One shuddered when he saw the awful picture that was conjured up in the wild imagination of the local Melton Prior, showing how Dundas street would look if it were filled with pea soup. On one side floated an egg sandwich, crying for help, while nearby the mayor of the town, in a hot box goes to the rescue, having practiced at Port Stanley last summer. Grant Henderson at last proves his worth to the community by walking down the middle of the street, and looking into third-story windows for marooned meter-readers. He denies that as well as having put London on the map, he has put London in the sea. Suddenly a cabbage boils out of the grocery and stands. The wide expanse of soup a pold becomes a raging torrent of vegetable, potato. Because of his French sauce, the "cabbage" can never go down, down, going down.
The little, old, last year's car, which is one-half canoe, and the other half fanningmill, comes plowing through the flood, and jetsam. Neither of the same seems to mind a bit, but the staff of the F. P.
mistakes it for a superdreadnought, with lots of soup to sue in. The twelve-inch gun is disabled by a bevy of sponge cake. Each of the reporters lashes himself to his leadpencil. The crisis is beginning to rise.
Through the spillover comes the rescuer, creeping the billows like a steed of Neptune, he floats to the roof. "Is Hiderow! The emergency is relieved.
Hiderow has wedded feet, and he snorts his debauched feet, and he snorts with the accent on the "sn." Oh,
the horror of it all! Woe and desolation, also chaos! The dam has burst!
The private power plant is drowned,
the maligned, the joked-at, the private interests who caused the deluge would have triumphed.

Even as the Golden Dog is a symbol above doors, so shall the Hiderow be a mark above the door of The Evening Insinuator. His form shall be cut in solid ivory.

When you think how fine it is to have spring again, don't forget the chap in New Ontario, who has been living in a log house for a stretch of months.

We notice all the headline writers
are now proceeding "to bring order out of chaos" in Ohio.

Most people seem only to say "I see,"
when they go to the telephone. Strange

A Correspondence Course on Life Insurance

Conducted by the Secretary of The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States for the instruction of agents.

THE COURSE WILL BE DIVIDED INTO TWO PARTS.

1. A Preliminary Course, consisting of three lessons, designed especially for those who are thinking of going into the life insurance business, and for businessmen in general who wish information about life insurance.

2. A Regular Course of 30 Lessons, for representatives of the Equitable Society exclusively.

MINISTERS SERENE

George confronted the most drastic, momentous and perilous hour of his whole life. Then he was cool and frank and even his political opponents were moved to sympathy when he showed that instead of having the ri-gantic fortune which was attributed to him, his sole income from his savings was today only two thousand dollars a year.

The whole scene rose higher and higher at every moment in interest,
and ended in crashing vindications
of George's integrity. The Unionists grew more and more downcast while the Liberals exulted and some even silently wept for joy.

We are all low, on the home rule
side, entirely relieved from all apprehensions, but the Unionists probably still, with the accent on the "sn." Oh,
the horror of it all! Woe and desolation, also

AGED MAN TELLS COURT OF LIFE SINCE '72

Punctuated His Career With But Three Drunks Since Coming Here.

An aged, unkempt, but very talkative old man, who came with being drunk this morning in police court. He proceeded to give the court a rambling account of all his doings since the days of '72, when he first came to the city.

"No, I don't know I was drunk until your fellows picked me up," he assured the magistrate. "I've been in London since '72 and this is only the third time I've been drunk."

The magistrate ordered his release, and uttering profuse thanks he made his way across the court room and into the clerk's office.

Sergeant Birrell took him in hand, and during the whole time he was conducting him to the street and when he was released, he was regaled with a glowing account of the doings in '72, to the great amusement of the spectators in court.

He elected summary trial in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to both charges. He was remanded until Tuesday, April 1, for sentence, the court making an order for the return of the stolen property to the respective owners.

Corrin was in trouble once before. In September, 1910, he was convicted of having stolen a number of grips from the C. P. R. depot. When his room was searched at that time a number of the stolen valises were found, and thirteen charges of theft were laid against him. He was fined $200.

The police are at a loss to account for a motive in his crimes. In no case has he ever made an attempt to dispose of the stolen articles, and has always been in good circumstances. Since his trouble in 1910, he has been happily married, his wife and infant child being in court this morning.

When the case was called this morning the prisoner stood in the dock with bowed head, and admitted his guilt in a voice scarcely above a whisper. His wife with their infant clasped close to her breast, sobbed silently in her place at the other side of the court room. He had nothing to say when the court asked him if he understood the probable consequences of his admission.

The court remanded him this morning in order to go more fully into the circumstances surrounding the thefts, before pronouncing sentence.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS MOTIVE OF THEFTS

Man Takes Tools and Goods, But Apparently Has No Reason.

John Corrin, an employee of the Globe Casket Works, was arrested at his home, 511 Bathurst street, Friday evening by Detective Down, on two charges of theft, one of having stolen a tube-making machine, mold-making tools, boards, and other articles from the Globe Casket Company, and the other of stealing tools from a fellow-employee.

He elected summary trial in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to both charges. He was remanded until Tuesday, April 1, for sentence, the court making an order for the return of the stolen property to the respective owners.

LONDON IS PLACED ON LACROSSE CIRCUIT AS RESULT OF BIG MEETING

Over Fifty Local Enthusiasts Gathered Last Evening to Form Tecumseh Lacrosse Club and Set Machinery in Motion to Give London a Winning Team—J. J. Kelly, of Brantford, Gives Enthusiastic Address.

Ald. Johnston.

That London is ripe for lacrosse was plainly demonstrated last evening at the City Hotel, when about fifty local enthusiasts gathered to form the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club.

The meeting was held in the City Hotel, when about fifty local enthusiasts gathered to form the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club. The meeting was held in the City Hotel, when about fifty local enthusiasts gathered to form the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club.

The officers elected were as follows: President—Messrs. Hon. C. S. Hyman, Hon. Adam Beck, Major Beattie, Bishop Fallon, Ald. Spittal, Senator Coffey, Mayor C. M. R. Graham, Col. Abbott, S. Stevely, Chris J. Fitzgerald, W. P. D. Jarvis, G. G. Steele, C. K. Somerville, W. Hadden, P. Pocock, J. Hamilton, Col. Garsshore, H. T. Reason, and J. Menhinick.

Honorary President—Rev. Samuel R. Hooper.

Honorary First Vice-President—Sidd Little.

Honorary Second Vice-President—Archie McMahen.

President—Ald. E. H. Johnston.

Vice-President—C. A. Butterworth.

Secretary—W. H. Rhodes.

Treasurer—Alfred A. Alexander.

Executive Committee—Messrs. Brown, Jackson, Harry Marshall, Geo. Patrick, Collins, Fred Fitzgerald.

President Kelly's Address.

Ald. Johnston presided at the meeting, and Mr. J. J. Kelly, of Brantford, past president of the C. L. A., who was present for the express purpose of boosting the movement, was called upon to speak. Mr. Kelly made a brief but to-the-point address. He expressed pleasure at being invited to the meeting. It was his firm belief that lacrosse had taken a new lease of life, and the recent uniting of the C. L. A. and O. L. A. into the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association—a representative body of the C. L. A. U.—would do much to put the game on a good basis. He explained the break between the C. L. A. and O. L. A., and showed how it had tended to hurt the game all over the Province. Then last fall committees from both organizations met with a view to bringing about a reunion, and the result was that today the game has been placed on a firm footing again, and the prospect of its regaining its old-time popularity was exceedingly bright.

A. A. U. Determines Status.

The present organization is affiliated with the A. A. U. of Canada, and the status of all its players is determined by this body. The C. L. A. U. governs amateur lacrosse all over the Dominion. The Ontario Association is just a representative of the supreme body, which includes Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia. Thus, if London won the intermediate championship of the O. L. A. U., it would be a representative championship of the Dominion, just as the winning of the district would be a representative championship of the Ontario Association.

West Has Lacrosse Craze.

"At the present time," said Mr. Kelly, "lacrosse is the prevailing game in the western provinces. What used to be in Western Canada the baseball craze is now the lacrosse craze, and the game is gaining in popularity every year."

With regard to the local situation, Mr. Kelly stated that he had played lacrosse here ten or eleven years ago and at that time London had some team. There was no reason why a good team could not be put in the field this year. Judging from the enthusiasm displayed at the meeting, the efforts of the club should be crowned with success.

In concluding, Mr. Kelly said that any assistance he could render the London Club he would gladly give if called upon, and he believed the club would also find a willing helper in President Johnston, of the O. L. A. The residence rule of the O. L. A. had been extended until May 1, so that the club had plenty of time yet to get in any players from nearby towns, who would play for London if given a position here.

The Club Formed.

Following Mr. Kelly's address it was moved by Mr. Brown Jackson and seconded by Mr. A. A. Alexander, that the meeting organize a lacrosse club in London. The meeting then proceeded with the election of officers.

Short speeches were given by some of the players present, including George Fetterley, Mr. Alexander, Sid Rankin, D. E. Atchison, Mr. Deacon and Mr. Jackson. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Kelly was moved by Mr. Jackson, seconded by Mr. Butterworth. Mr. Kelly replied briefly.

Executive Meets.

A meeting of the executive committee was held after the organization meeting, and committees were appointed to make ground arrangements and get funds for the club. It is likely a canvas will be made for the funds next week. The club is practically certain of obtaining Tecumseh Park on the Saturdays that the London Baseball Club is away from home, so this will be a big help to the game.

A Clean Lot of Players.

There seems to be no end of material in the city, the large number of players at last night's meeting emphasizing this. As Vice-President Butterworth expressed it, "You have a good clean lot of young fellows here, who I am sure will develop into good players. If they can play half as good as they look, London will have a championship team."

The name of the club will be the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club of London.

FRANKIE FLEMING PUT AWAY O'DONNELL

Toronto Boxer Turned the Trick in Three Rounds at New York Last Evening.

New York, March 28.—Frankie Fleming, of Toronto, defeated Jack O'Donnell in three rounds at the featherweight tournament held at the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club last night. O'Donnell substituted for Tommy Buck, of Philadelphia, and was never in the hunt. Fleming walked in after his man from going to go, and soon had him in a state where the referee was forced to call a halt. The "haymaker" was a combination right and left to the jaw. Fleming weighed 123½ pounds, and O'Donnell 128.

BARACAS BEAT BABY CITY BADLY

Won Junior O. B. A. Semi-Final Game by Score of 41 to 4.

Woodstock, March 28.—The Baracas of Toronto won the Junior O. B. A. semi-final game of the local Y. M. C. A. quarter-finals by a score of 41 to 4, taking the series by 76 points. In the first half the locals held down the visitors to 11 points, while the home team scored one basket.

Baracas ran away from their checks after the rest. The game, especially in the first half, was very strenuous. Johnson and Chubb starred for the winners.

The Team.

Woodstock—Coles and Sedge, forwards; Jones, centre; Hossack, Karn and Arthur, defence.

Baracas—Johnson and Burkhardt, forwards; Chubb, centre; Bickle and McLean, defence.

Entertained at Banquet Last Evening and Presented With Gold Watches and Other Gifts.

Woodstock, March 28.—The Woodstock hockey team, runners-up in the Junior series of the O. H. A., were entertained at a banquet given by the club tonight. The members of the team were presented with gold watches and other gifts. Manager Gunn and Secretary Donald were presented with club bags. The club had a successful year, and will be in good financial condition to begin the next season.

SENATORS WON ON WASHINGTON GROUNDS

Defeated Phillies By the Score of 6 to 2.

Washington, March 28.—The Washington American League team today defeated the Philadelphia Nationals by a score of 6 to 2 in the first exhibition game of the season here. Engle and Gallia held Philadelphia safe all the way through, allowing only five hits between them. A stop by Dolan, shortstop for Philadelphia, was a feature of the game. The score: R. H. E. Washington 1 2 0 0 1 0 0 2 x—6 9 0 Phillies 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0—2 5 3 Batteries—Engle and Gallia and Ainsmith, Williams; Chalmers, Brennan and Seaton; Howley, Kilfliter.

PRESIDENT WILSON GETS PASS NO 1

Ben Johnson of American League Presents Him With It.

Washington, March 28.—President Wilson will throw the first ball at the opening game here April 10, and will have in his pocket at the time pass No. 1, beautifully engraved, from Ben Johnson, enlisting him to free admission to any game between American League clubs.

This is the first pass or present of any character accepted by President Wilson. It was presented today by Ben Johnson, president of the Washington Club.

PORT ARTHUR BEAT KENORA.

Port Arthur, March 28.—In the second game for the amateur championship of Northern Ontario, Port Arthur defeated Kenora by 9 to 6, and won the round by 17 to 4. The teams: Port Arthur—Nicholson, Nicklin, L'Heureux, Ryan, Wellington, Ritchie, Adams.

EDDIE LINNEBORN TELLS WHY HE HAS NOT SIGNED CONTRACT

London's Great Little Second Baseman Writes to Advertiser Sporting Editor Explaining Trouble Between Him and London Club—His Terms Seem Very Reasonable.

[BY JINX.]

It is likely that Eddie Linneborn will be back in London again this season playing ball even better than he played last season. The writer received a letter from the Buffalo lad yesterday, in which he states the reasons why he has not signed up with the local club.

Asks For Increase.

The whole trouble between the local management and Linneborn is that he was not offered an increase over last season in this season's contract. He believes that he is worth a little more than he got last year, and he has stated this emphatically to the local club.

What He Says About It.

"The season is too short to leave my position for the salary offered," he writes, "and besides there is two weeks of spring training for which no money is received at all. I am working for the Pullman company, and am going to play with them if the London Club will not agree to give me an increase."

"I was intending to quit baseball this summer and buy out my friend's furnishing store, but decided not to do so, as I would have to give up playing basketball also. As you know, I am a member of the world's basketball champions, the Buffalo Germans, and we go out on a two weeks' trip every year."

Suspension Cuts No Figure.

"I see that I have been suspended by the London club. But that does not cut any figure with me. I have several offers from independent clubs here; three of them want me to act as manager."

These Terms Look Reasonable.

"The only settlement I will make with the London club without a raise in salary is that they pay me from the time training starts or else let me report the day before the season's opening. I am in great shape and know it is going to be my best season."

"The London club will have to be awful strong this season, as you know the other clubs have all their same men, with added strength."

Linneborn Too Good to Lose.

That there is justice in Linneborn's demands every local fan will admit. He was one of the best players and most promising youngsters in the Canadian League last season, and any of the other clubs in the league would jump at a chance to land him. He was second in stolen bases during the season, and would have been first had he not been sick for a couple of weeks, during which time he played. He was one of the most popular players on the London team and local fans have made numerous inquiries at this office as to whether he is coming back or not.

Fans Want Him Back.

The local fans want to see him back and the London directors are too shrewd to let such a promising player get away from them. Another year in the Canadian League and Linneborn will be ripe for faster company. Then the London club can command a price for him. Yes, it is altogether likely that Eddie Linneborn will be back on the London team this year.

JOE DRISCOLL BEAT
TAIT OF TORONTO

Buffalo Record-Breaker Forced To Go Limit To Beat Canadian.

Buffalo, March 28.—Before one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed the races at the Sixty-fifth Regiment Armory here tonight Joe Driscoll, the champion amateur runner of Buffalo, proved that the recent breaking of the world's record of the 1,000-yard dash was no fluke, when he defeated the crack runner, Jack Tait, from Toronto, in the 1,000-yard dash. Tait, who represented Toronto, pressed the local champion hard, and forced Driscoll to reduce the Sixty-fifth Armory record of 4:23 1-5, held by himself, to 4:20 3-5. Jack Tait proved himself an able runner and outlasted the rest of the field by a very large margin, finishing second only a few yards behind Driscoll.

BATTLING NELSON WINS.

Pueblo, Col., March 28.—Batting Nelson toyed with Mike Malone, of Denver, here last night for seven rounds, then, after Malone had claimed a foul, he waded in and tried to win the battle. The final round found Nelson slashing right and left with Malone all but out. Under the state law no decision was given.

BOSTON 4, TORONTO 2.

In yesterday's game with Boston the Leafs were defeated by the score of 4 to 2. Owing to bad wire service a detailed account of the game was unobtainable.

WINNIEPEG LOST AT BOSTON.

Boston, Mass., March 28.—Leading throughout the entire game, the Pilgrims, of this city, defeated the Winnipeg Club, holders of the Allan cup, by 6 to 4.

PLAYER DENEAU WAS AFTER PURCHASED BY CLASS B. CLUB

The Detroit News-Tribune this morning contains some information which will be particularly disappointing to Manager Robe Deneau, of the London baseball club. For the past two weeks Manager Deneau has been on the trail of Catcher Hank La Croix, of the Muskegon club, of the Michigan State League. La Croix was one of the best backstops in the Michigan League last summer, and had been casting eyes at him for some time. Several other clubs were also after the big catcher, and it looked for a time like an even race, with a strong probability that La Croix would come to London.

Goes to St. Joseph.

However, the news in the Detroit paper this morning is that La Croix has been sold to the St. Joseph team of the Western League for $300 on a 30-day optional agreement. The Western League is a class B league, so that an idea of La Croix's ability can be gained by the fact that the St. Joseph club would be willing to pay out $300 for his release. The Michigan State League is a class D league, and La Croix has been catching for the Muskegon team for the past three seasons.

CANADIAN LEAGUE GOSSIP

Ottawa Free Press: The opening day here on May 15 will be a lavish affair, with the permission of baseball's only enemy—the weather man. A big and parade, brass band parade at the grounds, with the Brantford and Ottawa players in line, and the opening ceremonies, in which Government and city officials will take part, are all carded. It looks like Mayor Ellis to curve the first ball over, though Hon. Robert Rogers and Premier Borden have been mentioned for the task.

Ottawa Free Press: Ottawa fans are greatly pleased with the word that came from Georgia of the way Fred Herbert and Frank Kubat are performing in the Leafs' training camp. Herb is shaping up nicely, and well. Both Shagginess and Red Rowe say he is big league timber without a doubt, and will catch on this year in the International sure.

Canadian League magnates are strengthening their hitting and pitching departments more than ever this season. The cry is for 300 clouters, and they are pretty hard to land.

St. Thomas Times: Work was to have commenced on the improvements at Pinafore Park today, but owing to the snow it will be delayed until the fore-part of next week. Tiling is to be placed under the playing field, and with the natural slope of the field to aid it the park diamond this year should be one of the best-drained on the circuit, instead of one of the worst.

Who's Who in Baseball

Daily Bulletin of Major League Players.

Rucker picks Pittsburg to win out in the National League this year. Nap says their pitching staff should bring them out ahead without such a strong team behind them. For where else can you find such a string of twirlers as Cummins, Adams, Hendrix, Robinson and O'Toole? Many fans reckon Nap Rucker as the king of southpaws, though he has never been fortunate enough to be allied with a winner, so he could prove it. His home is in Georgia, the same state that produced Ty Cobb, the undisputed star of baseball. They not only hail from the same state, but were team-mates at Augusta, in the minors. Cobb's home is in Royston, while Rucker resides in Augusta.

Farmers of North Dorchester Are "Stay In Ontario" Folk

Few Have Responded to Call of the West and the Township Is In Flourishing Condition—Hired Men Are the Great Need.

Fine Strains of Dairying Cattle Are Being Developed, Holsteins Being Favored For Milk Production—A Day in the District.

[By W. J. Bartlett.]

Belmont, March 28.—The farming interests in North Dorchester have not yet suffered to the extent most sections of Middlesex have through emigration to the West.
True, the distant land has had a magnetic attraction for a number of farmers, but fortunately their places have been filled by others, and thus one is spared the painful experience of gazing upon thousands of idle acres.
North Dorchester is essentially a dairying section, though the soil is suitable for general farming and fruit growing.
The land runs from a sandy to a clay
loam, and is artificially or naturally well-drained.

Little Wheat Raised.
This part of the township is exceedingly favorable for corn. It is extensively cultivated, and is one of the main crops for successful dairying.
The feed is cared for in silos, and this method has given the greatest satisfaction. Oats are also grown on a large scale, and with every success.
Comparatively little wheat, however,
is raised.

Cheese factories are in evidence all over, and thus the farmers have no difficulty in disposing of the valuable white liquid at favorable prices.
The new powder milk factory at Belmont has given a great impetus to dairymen.

Will Improve Strains.
The company's system of paying a percentage according to the amount of butter fat will be the means of encouraging scientific dairying.
Too many farmers have cull cows among their herds at present, but a better milking strain will likely be seen in the near future. The Holstein is largely in favor here for milk production, and many farmers claim that a good grade cow of this class will beat anything—even for butterfat.

The Shorthorn is also popular as a milk and feeder.
A number of the farms are well stocked with this breed. The fine two-year-old steers being fattened reflected great credit to their owners.
This is a great shipping point for fat stock, and the demand has been brisk for years at good prices.

Orchards Neglected.
Orchards are in a frightful condition
for this.

In North Dorchester. The acreage is large, but no attention is given the trees.

They are left to grow in a wild state, with the result they resemble brush heaps with skyscraping tendencies.

The farmers claim they have no time to prune or spray.

Another great drawback is that no apple buyers have come around for years.

Therefore thousands of barrels of apples are left to rot each fall, the farmer securing just enough for his own use.

Something should certainly be done
to alter these conditions.
While the people in the great West are craving for this fruit, here it is wasted.

Need an Association.
A good fruitgrowers' association with a capable manager would bring about a different state of things.

Prosperous, however, as is this part of the township, it requires a great amount of hired help to work the land more thoroughly.

The farmers are very anxious at this time of the year to secure men, but the prospects are gloomy.

Pamphlets Sent Too Late.
A few are optimistic that the Greater Middlesex Association will be able to bring in a small number of laborers this spring.

The majority of the farmers claim the pamphlets dealing with the advantages of Middlesex will be sent to the old land too late to be effective
this year.

The villagers throughout the township are in a healthy and thriving condition, and the fact of there being no abandoned farms readily accounts
for this.

NEW MILK FACTORY TAKES 70,000 POUNDS EACH WEEK

Machinery For Industry at Belmont Alone Cost $45,000—
Many Houses in Course of Construction.

[By W. J. Bartlett.]

Belmont, March 28.—The Canadian Milk Products' Limited, milk powder and butter factory at Belmont has created a great stir in agricultural circles.

Farmers for miles around are taking advantage of the opportunity of supplying milk to the company at prices
never realized before.

The factory is favorably situated in Belmont, and is a huge structure covering 178 feet by 171 feet. It is in the heart of one of the finest dairying sections of Western Ontario.

Machinery Cost $45,000.
In going over the concern I was greatly impressed with the modern plant installed. The machinery and equipment alone cost over $45,000.

Cleanliness was the order everywhere, and those in charge intend keeping up its reputation in this respect.

The materials used in the construction of this fine factory were all brought in Canada as far as possible.
The fifteen men employed are also local hands.

One of the results of the factory settling here has been the advance in real estate. The company at first failed to find houses for a number of their employees.

Houses, however, are being rapidly put up, and fifteen will be added to the village this year.

70,000 Pounds a Week.
Mr. Jacques, the bookkeeper, was very enthusiastic of the success of the new undertaking.

"We have two powder milk factories," he stated, "one at Brownsville and this one. At the former factory over 15,000,000 pounds of milk were used last year. At present at Belmont
we are taking in about 70,000 pounds of milk per week. In a few months we expect to treble this amount. We are looking forward to running things
at a lively pace.

"The staff will be increased to 25 at an early date.
"There are just now about 90 farmers drawing milk to our factory.
"We test all the milk that is brought in, and pay according to the percentage of butter fat.

Keep Good Cows.
"This is the fairest way we know of doing business, and it encourages the farmer to keep only the best milking strain of cows.

"Our factory is situated in a great dairying township, and there is a great boom in milk production.
"What we need the worst way at Belmont is direct rail connection with London. The present roundabout way is a great drawback, and I trust something will be done in the matter as soon as possible."

Good Markets Needed.
"Well, I hope something will be
done to get in touch with good markets," was the eager reply. "It is a great shame to see thousands of barrels of fine apple rot on the ground
each year.

The conversation suddenly ceased.
A storekeeper came along inquiring
the price per barrel of apples.
The Komoka farmer had the best display and a deal was closed for two barrels at $1.25 each.

The farmers immediately resumed
the discussion on the apple question.
"Apples will be scarce next fall," predicted the Lambeth man, "but we will be just as far ahead. I'm going to get the best fruit possible next fall and will spray the trees as soon as possible. With a better sample of apples I hope to get ahead of the other fellows. It is useless to grow fruit without selling."

The County's Campaign.
The conversation then turned to another subject.
"What do you think of the Greater Middlesex Association campaign?" inquired the Lambeth enthusiast.

"An excellent thing," was the reply.
"It came none too soon. The association should send a practical man to lecture in the old land. If the laborer over there were given to understand thoroughly of the advantages of Middlesex—such as wages, work, and so on—I feel sure we could get many men
here."

The Lambeth farmer then attacked
the issue.
"You are right," he said, "a man should be selected as soon as possible to go over there."

A Vital Question.
"It's a vital question to get help
for the farmers, and I hope something will be done in the matter as soon as possible. Hundreds of farmers don't know which way to turn for want of help."

"Scotland and Ireland," suggested the Komoka man, "would be good places to secure men. They have a knowledge of farming there, and could adapt themselves to the conditions of Canada—Middlesex, I mean—in a short time."

Just then a city woman came along and turned over the apples on top of the barrel owned by the Lambeth farmer.

Finally she tasted an apple, made several facial gymnastics, and then went on her way, exclaiming, "They are no good for cooking."

"There you are again," said the farmer who possessed the fruit. "They come along, sample the apples and pass on. Then someone complains the barrel isn't filled."

The Farmer's Side of It.
"I tell you we have a lot to contend with. You read complaints in the paper about the farmer doing dishonest things, fixing the best stuff on top, and so on, but never a word of how the farmer is taken in.

"Just the other day a lady told me to deliver a few bags of potatoes to a certain address in the city. I went to the number given, and found that there was no such person living there. I lost an hour on that fake deal, and had to take the potatoes home in the bag-gain."

"The farmer needs fair play—he earns his money."
The interesting conversation then ended, the Lambeth farmer going to a hotel stable to attend to his horse.

MEN AND MARKETS, THE NEEDS, AGREE FARMERS ON LONDON MARKET

Advertiser Commissioner Records an Interesting Conversation Between Residents of Lambeth and Komoka Districts—Help Problem Discussed Everywhere.

It was a recent Saturday morn. A stinging, cold wind made people rub their ears. Big, feathery snowflakes fell in profusion on the London Market Square, as your correspondent went thither in search of copy to interest readers of The Advertiser.

The square was filled with democrats, wagons and buggies, containing all sorts and conditions of farm products, with the farmers, and some
with their wives in attendance.

Buyers were none too plentiful, but it was early and as yet it was impossible to say what kind of a business day it would be. The weather was the chief topic of conversation, owing to a cold spell having set in after a few days of springlike weather.

Market Clerk Maker was, as usual,
kept busy making the farmers obey his stentorian order: "Get closer to that next rig, there."

The Man From Komoka.
Presently in came a farmer from Komoka, with his democrat containing apples and potatoes. He chose a vacant space next to a Lambeth farmer, who had been patiently awaiting buyers for his apples, potatoes and poultry.

"Well, what kind of a market is it?"
inquired the farmer who had just arrived.

"Slow, very slow," replied the Lambeth son of toil giving his moustache a deliberate German Emperor twist.

"It seems strange," he went on, "we can't sell our apples here, while at Toronto they are getting $3 per barrel, and $2 in the west. Something wrong somewhere."

"We are not organized. We need a fruit growers' association to handle our stuff. The farmer has no time to hunt up distant markets."

"There is an association," said the farmer from Komoka. "The Middlesex organization was started last fall."

Good Markets Needed.
"Well, I hope something will be
done to get in touch with good mar-

Seasonable Suggestions For The Care of the Orchard

[Written for The Advertiser by F. W. O.
Renwick, Assistant District Representative.]

The time is now at hand when the fruit-grower should be planning and preparing for the care of the orchard for the coming season. There are many neglected orchards throughout the county which could by proper care be made to pay, and pay well.

Owing to the fact that the San Jose Scale, which is one of our worst orchard enemies, is already established at several points in the county, a careful inspection of the orchard should now be made, and steps taken for its control. Very few people realize the seriousness of this insect, and with what rapidly fruit trees are destroyed by its ravages. It is a well-known fact that many orchards in Kent, Essex and Lambton Counties have by this scale been wiped out of existence,
which could have been saved had care
been taken in the early stages of infection. Thus we see it is up to us as fruit-growers in the County of Middlesex to be on the alert and do everything possible to prevent the spread of this pest.

Do Your Pruning Early.
The first step in the care of the orchard is the pruning. The pruning should be done towards the end of the dormant season, as cuts heal most readily at the beginning of the growing period. It is also essential to remove the rough bark from the trunk and large limbs. This may be done most easily after a rain by the use of a dull hoe or like instrument, being careful not to injure the new bark.

There are, roughly speaking, three classes of insects which affect the fruit trees, viz: Those which affect the bark. Those which affect the foliage, and those which affect the fruit. There are also fungus diseases which affect the foliage and fruit, but fortunately,
practically all the insects and fungus
diseases which attack the apple orchard can be controlled by three applications of spray, if thoroughly applied at the opportune time.

A Home-Made Wash.
The spray material recommended is the lime sulphur, which may be bought at home or bought from the dealer. The farm houses and commodious barns, bespeaking great prosperity.

One of those farmers who have added to the fame of the township for fat stock and general farming is Mr.
Charles Beattie. Born in the township 54 years ago, he has devoted his activities to the farm since boyhood.

A Modern Structure.
His large barn, 112 feet by 44, stands out prominently on his broad acres, and in every respect is fitted up in the most modern way.

The structure is built upon a slop well in the corner, and was one of the first of this kind to be built in the district.

In going through Mr. Beattie's stables, one could not help admiring
the long rows of fat stock.

He has shipped cattle extensively to

MINISTER WANTS TRADE BOARD

Believes Organization Would Greatly Assist in Development of Belmont.

[By W. J. Bartlett.]

Belmont, March 28.—It was quite refreshing to meet the Rev. E. Jones, Methodist minister, Belmont.

He has not only added to the religious welfare of the village, but has played a significant part in things material.

Mr. Jones has received a unanimous call to Strathroy, which if the conference approves, he will accept.

Will Be Missed.
The reverend gentleman will be greatly missed in the village, and will leave with many regrets.

He has taken an active interest in the new library here, and through his untiring efforts and those of Messrs.
Curry, Ward, Shivers, Proulx, Yeas, Strachan, McClean and Pain, it has been brought to a high standard of excellence.

"North Dorchester is certainly a fine
stretch of country," Mr. Jones asserted,
"and you will find prosperity everywhere. As regards Belmont, it will grow rapidly—is bound to. The storekeepers here will tell you business is good. A large number of houses will be erected here this year."

A Hustling Village.
"It is one of the most hustling villages to be found anywhere. With a good board of trade, however, things would go ahead even faster."

The Query Editor

Magazines picture a newspaperman as reckless, rakish, and riotous—all of which has led many young men to embark on the sea of journalism. By way of reparation I offer the case of Markley.

Markley hit the Times office, looking for a job, just after Hardy, the "Question Box" editor, had resigned in disgust. He had never worked in a newspaper office.

They led him into the room where Hardy had slaved, and showed him the racks of bound volumes.

"Reference books?" asked Markley. "They nodded, and Markley peeled off his coat.

"Are they properly indexed?" "Another nod." "Fire away," cried Markley. "I'll dig out anything you want. I've worked in a railroad information office. I'm the human digger."

So they hired Markley on the spot—
Had a Dry, Tickling Sensation In Her Throat.

COUGHED ALMOST ALL NIGHT.

A bad cough, accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat, is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the healing virtues of the Norway Pine tree, and for this reason it will quickly stop that tickling in the throat which causes the dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Miss Margaret MacDonald, Port Hood, N.S., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. I took a severe cold, coughed almost all night, with that dry, tickling sensation in my throat. The first bottle did me so much good, I thought I would try a second one, which I am pleased to say resulted in a complete cure. I can strongly recommend it to any one suffering from a cough or any throat irritation."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper, 3 pine trees the trade mark; price, 25 and 50 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TONIGHT

No Headache, Sour Stomach, Biliousness or Constipation By Morning.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now—and then never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that insidious-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

which is rather a vague place in a newspaper office. Markley started work next day. His job seemed quite important when he came to realize that while the best reporters had desks, only he and the managing editor had rooms to themselves. The managing editor paid him a visit.

"Markley," he announced, "we pride ourselves on your department. We've never failed to answer a question. Remember that."

"Yours truly," said Markley, and reached for the top letter on the pile. He read it slowly.

My little girl is delicate, is 4 years old, has blue eyes, and wears pink dresses. Kindly give me a diet for her.

"Blue eyes," murmured Markley. "Pink dresses. Four years old. Delicate."

He roamed to the reference racks and pulled down books marked "Optometry," "Medicine," and "Colors and Painting." Two hours later he put the books back on the shelves.

"We have never failed," he said to himself, and wrote at last:

Pork, midnight suppers and pies should be avoided. Under no circumstances should alcoholic liquors or tobacco be used.—Ed.

A day or so later Markley got this: I have $10,000. Tell me how to double my money.

The question box editor spent the afternoon with his reference books. Finally he took down the volume marked "Banking." As a result he wrote:

Bank your money at compound interest. It will double itself in about 20 years.—Ed.

"We never fail," said Markley, and before he went home he informed a woman how to take ink stains from the right wing of her pet canary.

For a day or so the questions were all along the simple line. Then came this:

An accident in a sawmill has left me with only two thumbs. Kindly tell me how to play the piano. I would like to teach music.

Markley lost two nights' sleep. His mind was in a ferment. Finally, in desperation, he wrote this answer:

There are so few persons with only two thumbs that it would be impossible to earn a living teaching music. Why not study elocution?—Ed.

Back came this: I can't speak elocution. I'm dumb.

"It isn't a question," raved Markley. "I don't have to answer it."

By this time poor Markley's eyes were taking on a haunted look. He came to dread the morning mail, for that was the mail that brought him the trouble that men and women wrote in their nights of worry. It was from the morning mail this came:

I have one leg. It is knock-kneed. I use a crutch. I have relatives out West. How long will it take me to walk out West? When the last belated reporter went home Markley was still deep in maps, geographical surveys, and a history of the three-legged racing.

About midnight he rose wearily and counted his money. After that he wrote:

The Times will buy you a railroad ticket. Call at once.—Ed.

Two days later the managing editor came in and shook that reply under Markley's nose.

"You, the human digger," he roared. "I want no more of this. We've got three thousand letters from crutch-and-leg fellows who want to go to China, the North Pole, or New Jersey. There's twenty of 'em down in the office now. After this give 'em answers."

Markley nodded grimly and grabbed the next envelope of agony. It read: How can I become a poet?

The answer came with a burst of speed: By writing poetry.—Ed.

"Give them answers," said Markley. "I'll tell them who Cain married when he left his father's habitation. Wonder what this one wants to know. Let's see.—A—H!"

Markley read it with bulging eyes. I am a member of the S. P. C. A. Kindly tell me how to kill flies without causing them undue suffering.

"I must fake it," groaned the answerer.

swer editor. He wrote:

Hypnotism is excellent, but very slow. Chloroform, used while they sleep is practically painless.—Ed.

Markley drank a lot that night. Next morning he came down to the office with a big head. First crack out of a mail that had no sympathy with throbbing brains he got this:

I am engaged to two men. One plays poker and stays out all night, and the other drinks whiskey and comes home drunk. Which shall I marry?

As between the man who strolled home drunk, and the man who came home not at all, the encyclopedia, even under the heading of morals, gave Markley nothing on which to hinge his judgment. He figured it would be a crime to take a chance and hand the girl the wrong man. So at last he wrote:

Marry both. Be a sport.—Ed.

"Advising crime," wailed the managing editor when he read it. But Markley was obdurate.

"Best way out," he insisted. "If she married one she'd pick the wrong one. Always the way. Now she can marry both and chase the one that doesn't suit. Simple."

"You're crazy, Markley."

"I'm not." The question editor brought down a medical volume and ran his finger down the index. "C—ca, co, crazy; here it is. It says when a man's crazy—"

But the managing editor had fled. For a few days Markley had no further trouble. Then:

Is Mabel a sweet name to give a baby?

Not having had any babies himself, the question editor was unable to say, for these things must be answered from experience. He played the game safe and wrote:

Certainly, provided it is a girl.—Ed.

"He's getting worse," wept the managing editor. "Would they want to call it Mabel, if it was a boy?"

The man that got out the funny sheet, though, took it as a great example of humor, and wanted Markley to shift to his department. The question editor did not seem to comprehend the offer.

"Letters, letters," he said. "All kinds of letters," and he broke the seals on three. The cold sweat stood out on his forehead as he read:

Kindly advise as to a good profession for a child that squints.

Would you advise a young girl from the country to take a job on the Bowers?

Can McGraw's Giants come back?

Somewhat Markley answered the list. By this time, though, he was wild-eyed and wild-voiced.

Every time the office boys carried in his mail he groaned aloud and retreated to a corner of his room.

There came the day, though, when the boy brought in only one letter.

Markley seized it eagerly. Only one! Dancing in front of his desk he broke the seal and read:

My late husband had one blue and one gray eye, turned-in toes, and a lisp. Kindly let me know where I can get another just like him.

Markley put on his hat and quietly passed through the long local room. In the street he walked watchfully until he saw a policeman. He caught the officer from behind, threw him, and then started banging his head against the sidewalk.

"Where can I find one?" he roared.

Monday, April 7, "Robin Hood."

The Comic Opera, "The Rose Maid." "The Rose Maid" managers went as far as China to secure special "properties" for this pleasing opera which is at the Grand twice today. In the first act is shown the grand salon of the Duke of Borechester's London house with its palatial settings. Among the bric-a-brac are two nodding mandarins, being miniature copies of two historic statues found in the emperor's palace in Peking. These quaint Chinese figures, when questioned by the Duke, in the opera, nod their shaven heads, "yes" and "no," exactly as the originals do. There is a Chinese legend to the effect that many centuries ago China has an emperor who in old age lost his power of speech and invented two nodding mandarins to answer for him during state councils. They stood one on either side of the throne chair. By pressing an invisible spring one statue nodded "Yes" and the other nodded "No." The composer of "The Rose Maid" has utilized the idea in connection with a pretty duet in the opera.

THE WORK OF GRADE II.—BY MISS LENA STAPLETON

We, like the primary grade, spend a great deal of time in reading and the teaching of language.

The children love to read and talk about the little girls and boys of other lands. In our readers we have such lessons as "Oogly, The Little Eskimo," "Ahmet, The Syrian Boy," "In Banana Land," etc., that give the children a fair picture of how these children live, their homes, food and clothing. We encourage the children to compare these little girls and boys with the girls and boys of our land.

Then, too, we have such lessons as "Who Stole the Bird's Nest," "Two Little Kittens," and "The Fox and the Cat," in which the children can represent the characters. These stories enable them to read with more expression, as they feel they are in reality the characters they represent. Nor do we stop with the lessons in our readers. The children, like grown-ups, want variety. In order to meet this demand we give them sight-reading from the blackboard, also cut up stories about birds, animals and flowers. Besides these, we have our supplementary readers, our history readers and our geography readers.

Learn By Sound. But I hear some person ask, "How do they read words that are not familiar to them, for there must be some in these stories?" True, there are, but this difficulty is overcome by dividing these new words into their sounds. Then the children, with very little help, are able to read any new word they meet.

The children grow tired of reading and expressing themselves orally. They like to see their pencil or the crayon make the stories they read or the numbers they have learned. They like nothing better than to work at the blackboard. Here they are able to give the full-arm movement with nothing to interfere.

In this grade, the children start to use ordinary pencils, and are taught the correct position for writing. The greatest readers, stories told them, and games played.

When the children become restless and tired of sitting, they are given easy exercises that will rest them and at the same time correct any faulty position of shoulders, chest, head, etc.

Following our drill, we have a five or ten minute talk about the care of the body, the need of fresh air, correct breathing and proper clothing. In addition to learning rote songs, the children are given a great deal of practice in exercises, first from the charts and later from the Harmonic Primer. These help them to read from sight any simple exercise or song they meet.

Our nature study and geography lessons take the form of little talks about things familiar to the children. We observe the length of the days, the position of the sun, the signs of spring, the return of the birds, etc. We take imaginary trips to the market to see what the farmer has for sale at the different seasons of the year.

Thus it will be seen that in every subject we endeavor to relate the matter taught to the knowledge already possessed by the child, and to have the child wish for and discover for himself the facts we wish him to learn. Parents can aid greatly by encouraging their children to make the work of the school a matter of family interest, answering questions or aiding the child in its struggles with new or unfamiliar facts. We can always pick out the pupils whose parents show such interest, and usually such pupils make rapid and pleasant progress.

BESSIE ABBOTT, who will again appear in "Robin Hood" at the Grand, Monday, April 7.

one must be taken to see that whenever they are using their pencils they are in a position that will enable them to give the free movement of the arm instead of the cramped finger movement.

Use of Devices.

In number work we have addition, subtraction and multiplication. In order to make this work interesting a great many devices are used. One or two are here cited: When the children commence adding they find it very slow work. We compare them to the slow carrier going up a ladder. He goes slowly as he carries a heavy load. A ladder is drawn on the blackboard. On the rungs are placed the addends. The children watch as one child starts up the ladder, if he falls his neighbor picks him up and continues to climb until the top is reached. Next they are painters, and can climb more quickly. Then, as the work advances, they become firemen going hand over hand to the top. This is very interesting to the children. It keeps their attention and makes them alert.

When we have covered our addition, and commence our subtraction and multiplication, we are storekeepers. People come to buy, we give them their goods, make out their bill, and give them the correct change. By this device the children learn the price of the different articles in the store, also the practical use of addition, subtraction and multiplication.

Use Their Minds.

The children in Grade II. are also given plenty of handwork. We continue the work of Grade I, using the same materials. They cut out animals, leaves, flowers and fruits, make mats, hats and boxes of raffa.

In art, they illustrate in ink, charcoal and colored crayon the lessons in their

£46,309,300 IS ASKED FOR THE BRITISH NAVY FOR CURRENT YEAR

Increase of £1,233,900 Over Previous Year—Five Battleships To Be Begun, Eight Cruisers and Sixteen Destroyers—Increased Personnel.

The British naval estimates just issued are:

1913-14	£46,309,300
1912-13	£45,075,400

Increase £1,233,900
In the coming year work will be begun on the following ships:

Battleships	5
Light cruisers	8
Destroyers	16

together with submarines and subsidiary craft. On these new ships a sum of £2,052,400 will be spent in the first year.

The total cost of the new program is as follows:

1913-14	£15,958,525
1912-13	£13,014,999

Increase £2,943,526

Pressure in the Shipyards. Mr. Churchill reports "under-spending" in the shipyards, which he attributes to "extraordinary pressure of work" and "scarcity of labor." Of £12,067,727 voted for 1912-13 only £11,224,000 is being spent, the margin being £843,727—a sum which in the ordinary course will be handed back to the treasury for the extinction of debt.

In the year 1912-13 the following vessels have been completed:

Battleships.
King George V., Thunderer, Centurion, Conqueror.

Battle Cruisers.
Lion, Princess Royal, New Zealand.

Light Cruisers.
Chatham, Dublin, Southampton, Amphion, Melbourne (for Australia).

In addition there were the following smaller craft:

Destroyers	15
Submarines	3
Miscellaneous	3

Ships Under Construction.

On April 1 there will be under construction:

Battleships	11
Battle cruisers	3
(Including Malaya)	13
Light cruisers	35
Submarines	21

Two of the submarines are for the Australian navy.

A number of vessels for oil fuel and other fleet services will also be under construction on the same date.

Increase in Personnel.

There are to be increased personnel, which will reach 146,000 officers and men by March 31, 1914. This represents an increase of 8,000 or, on the average for the year, of 5,000. The increase in pay is £712,200. The memorandum refers to the Canadian contribution, but in colorless terms.

The estimates have come as a blow to the scaremongers. While an increase is recorded, it must be considered in relation to the underspending, or more strictly postponed commitments. It need scarcely be added that the estimates are strictly in accord with the undertakings given by Mr. Churchill to Germany.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

latter is known as the commercial lime sulphur. For those using large quantities, the home-made wash is much cheaper and is equally as effective.

The first spraying should be applied while the tree is still dormant, preferably just before the buds burst. This will control the San Jose Scale, the Oyster Shell Scale, and the Leaf Blister Mite. Spray at this time with lime sulphur, commercial strength, one to ten. If San Jose Scale be present, use the mixture one to eight.

For the second spraying, which is applied just before the blossoms open, use lime sulphur, commercial strength, one with thirty-five of water, to which is added two or three pounds of arsenate of lead, to poison the leaf-eating insects. This will control the bud moth, the canker worm, the leaf rollers, the caterpillars, and is the first application for the control of the apple scab.

The Codling Moth.

The third spraying is applied after most but not all the blossoms have fallen. (The bees will have ceased to work in the blossoms at this time, and will therefore receive no injury.) This is the spraying for the control of the codling moth, and should be very thorough, as about 90 per cent of the larvae of the codling moth enter at the calyx end. It is very essential to direct the spray so that the calyx in each apple will receive a portion of the poison. Spray at this time with commercial lime sulphur, one gallon to 50 of water, to which is added two pounds of arsenate of lead to every 40 gallons of the mixture.

dairying (with its profitable adjunct, hog raising), is due to the enterprise of men like Mr. Lane, the late Robert Facey, of Harrietsville, and James A. James, of Nilestown.

"The township is fortunate in possessing still a fair area of bush, and those who preserve their wood lots by keeping out live stock and do some tree planting every spring are wise. Timber for fuel and building becomes more valuable yearly, and the worth of trees for shelter, shade and beauty is beyond computation."

"How about poultry?"

A Profitable Side-line. "A most profitable sideline on nearly every farm. It would startle people if they knew the aggregate return from poultry."

"Fruit and garden crops of the finest quality are raised," he added. "Luxuriant corn crops increase every year in area. Sheep are not appreciated in their real worth. The dog and the dairy cow have almost put them out of business. Cattle fattening is largely a thing of the past, but what you have seen in the stables of Messrs. Beattie and G. R. Thompson shows its possibilities."

Heavy Horses in Demand.

"Heavy draft horses are in demand here, and I think the farmers are wise in rearing them of a uniform type. They require less attention and in nearly every other way are a safer class to breed."

"And how are the shipping facilities?" I inquired, "for farm products?" "Good," he asserted. "The township is crossed by the G. T. R. and C. P. R. Cream and milk are shipped from here to many points east and west. We have never yet been stuck for a market for anything."

Mr. Thompson is naturally sanguine and enthusiastic over the claims of Middlesex as a farm, garden and orchard district.

Increases Confidence.

"Middlesex is certainly a grand country," he said, "and I am glad its resources are being brought to the notice of the people. It will increase their confidence and do good in every way."

"We have no need to exaggerate the facts."

Creating a Stir. "The Advertiser's publicity campaign is certainly creating a stir, which is in every way commendable. We need hired help in the worst way in the township. The output of the farms could be doubled if we had a larger population."

the old land and the States, and has always secured top prices. This hustling farmer works 150 acres. The soil is a sandy loam and well drained.

A Record Crop.

Last season his oats were exceedingly good, threshing 70 bushels to the acre, perhaps creating a record for Western Ontario.

"Do you find any difficulty in getting hired help?" your correspondent inquired.

"Can't get any," he emphatically replied. "The majority of the farmers here need help. I trust the efforts being made at the present time by the Greater Middlesex Association will prove successful."

"If a lecturer is sent to the old land in the fall, he should only go into the agricultural districts."

"It is useless to bring men here from the streets of old London."

"They are more aggravating than the work they do."

"There are plenty of good men over there willing to come here if we got in touch with them."

"When I was in the old land I was surprised to learn the conditions on farm hand work under."

Treated Like Slaves.

"They are treated more like slaves than men."

"Let us make known to them the splendid opportunity of adding them in Middlesex, the good wages paid, and they will come this way."

HOW BUSY BEES EARN COMPETENCE IN MIDDLESEX

Mr. D. Anguish Relates How He Came to This County Thirteen Years Ago.

Now Possesses Fine Home and Has Had Great Success With Honey.

[By Mr. D. Anguish, Lambeth.]

I see by the Farm and Dairy, Feb. 27 number, that the past winter has been a remarkably easy one on bees, wintered out of doors. That may be right in some instances, but it must be borne in mind that conditions alter cases. The beekeepers who take care of their bees are never alarmed, whether it is a cold or mild winter, only they are all very anxious about the dovers. Mostly all of the large beekeepers would rather have a severe winter, with lots of snow, than one like that which we have just passed through. The beekeepers who did not feed their bees well last fall will have to watch very closely towards spring, for the bees are likely to consume more stores this winter than usual on account of the mild winter.

A Brant Man's Success.

I see by the C. B. J. that Mr. J. W. Clark, of Brantford, gives a statement of what he produced from 25 acres devoted to fruit, poultry and bees. After deducting expenses, he claims he had $3,781—nearly as good as lots of farmers are doing on 200 to 400 acres—and what has been done by Mr. Clark in Brant County can be duplicated in any other county. There are several beekeepers in Middlesex County who are doing as well as Mr. Clark. The only difference is that they are only occupying from one-quarter to one acre, and devoting all of their time to bees, or, I may say, only half of their time, for the beekeeper only has to work in the summer. If he has taken good care of his or her bees in the fall, they will take care of themselves through the winter, and the beekeeper may take trips to any part of the world he sees fit, as long as he is back by the first of May; that is, if the bees are packed on summer stands, as they should be.

Mr. Anguish's Experience.

I will give you a little hint as to what we have done since we came to the banner bee county (Middlesex). We landed in this county thirteen years ago, with eighty colonies of bees and a small debt. Now we have a home as nice as any in the thriving village of Lambeth. We have all the conveniences of the city homes, as we have an elevated tank, which holds 55 barrels of water, that is piped all through our house. We have hot and cold water in the basement, kitchen and bathroom, also in the barn and bee-yard, and spraying fountains on the lawn. We also have 800 colonies of bees, and all appliances to produce honey, comb and extracted honey by the ton, as we have been doing for a number of years. If there happened to come a few years of reverse we would not suffer very badly, neither would we have to place a plaster on our home.

We have started another industry on our one-acre plot. We have just completed a double-decked henhouse, capable of housing 200 hens. One of our sons went to Guelph and took a short course on poultry. Now he intends to try to eclipse Mr. Clark's hen house in the Barred Rocks, and Rose and Single-Comb Rhode Island Reds. I will let readers of your valuable paper know later how he succeeds.

Absorbs Skin, Chases Wrinkles—Young Again

"The shock at beholding myself in the glass after nine long weeks' abed, nearly caused a relapse," writes Emily Culson in Home Queen. "The faded face, with its lines of illness and worry, seemed rusty no discomfort. Upon the wedding morn the pallid complexion had entirely given way to one of youthful color and loveliness."

"She herself came to my rescue. She procured an ounce of macerated, for which she had no spread on like cold cream, washing it off next morning. Applied nightly, this apparently absorbed the withered skin, and I was no longer a faded old woman."

"And there wasn't a wrinkle. This due to a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of salolite in a half pint of witch hazel. The daily face bath had dispersed every line."

LACROSSE CLUB ASSURED OF GETTING TECUMSEH PARK

Committee Talked Matter Over With Director Gilleen of the London Club.

A committee of the London Tecumseh Lacrosse Club interviewed Director Gilleen, of the London Baseball Club, this morning in an effort to secure Tecumseh Park for the lacrosse club on the days the baseball team is away.

The committee was composed of President Johnston, Vice-President Butterworth and Secretary Rhodes, and these gentlemen laid the matter before Mr. Gilleen in such a way that that gentleman assured them they would have no trouble in obtaining the grounds. The matter will have to be dealt with at a meeting of the London

Baseball Club, however, before it is finally settled. As chairman of the grounds committee, Mr. Gilleen told the committee, however, that if the lacrosse club assured the baseball club that the stands and baseball diamond would not be damaged in any way, there would be no objection to the lacrosse team using the park.

Much Damage Done.

Last summer the London club rented the grounds to a local amateur baseball league, with the result that considerable damage was done to the stands and diamond by youngsters who attended the games.

Many of the grandstand cushions were destroyed, and much of the wire netting in front of the stand was torn. Also, the players of the teams that were to play in the evening, following the Canadian League game, would arrive at the grounds about the second inning of the big game and demand admittance.

LONDONERS JUST HOME

away in the flood, was the answer, "I got out safely in a boat, but he was not in time."

"I saw people huddled on the tops of houses by the hundreds and others clinging to branches of trees and trees on Monday night. After that the flood grew worse, and we could not see very much. We could hear people calling for help, and pitiful moans, and although every effort was made to rescue people from their perilous positions, it was next to impossible to guide a boat down the stream so fast was the current."

On Front street I watched the water creep up inch by inch until it entered the front doors of the houses and ran out through the windows, and I saw one two-story frame house swept away in the current as if it had been a stick of wood. Horses and automobiles were continually carried down the street by the water, and you could hear them striking against the house as they swept past.

Doctor Caught by Water Gives Horse Chance to Get Away

"One doctor received a call to attend a woman early Monday morning. At that time the water was not very high. He went into the house and I don't suppose that he was there half an hour before he was ready to leave. When he got outside the water was lapping at the front doorsteps, and realizing that he would not be able to escape in his rig, he walked to the side of the road, untied his horse, and gave it a stroke with the lines, intending to give it a chance to get home if possible. A moment later a deluge of water came up the street, and the horse was carried away. The doctor clung to a telegraph pole until he was rescued by two men in a boat."

Two Days in a Tree.

"The first drowning to be reported was that of a young man, who accompanied by his chum took a boat out of a boathouse and attempted to navigate the main street. After proceeding a short distance the boat struck a house and was overturned. One of the men was rescued, but the other was swept away. A report was then circulated that the man was drowned, but he was found two days later in the branches of a tree, where he had been clinging. He was nearly exhausted, but was rescued and carried back to safety in a boat."

A little girl stood in one of the windows of her home looking out at the waters. Suddenly the house received a heavy jar, and as she was leaning a little too far out, she lost her balance and fell into the water. That was on Tuesday, and I don't think they found her. At least they had not when I left there."

Mr. Corsaut then explained that the

DEATH LIST PLACED AT FIVE HUNDRED

Columbus Has 200 Dead and Dayton Not More Than 150.

TALE OF A SURVIVOR

Made His Way Over the Torrent for Six Squares by Walking Along Wires.

Columbus, O., March 28.—Flood waters receded sufficiently tonight to show that the number of persons drowned in all the affected cities in Ohio and Indiana may not exceed 500. While many persons are still missing to friends and relatives, investigations made to date indicated that many were safe who had been thought lost.

In Dayton careful estimates placed the number of deaths at 200 or fewer. Relief work went on rapidly in Dayton and all parts of the city were reached.

Columbus will have the next to the largest loss of life, sixty bodies having already been found in the inundated portions of West Columbus.

Death Figures Fall.

Unverified figures from Miamisburg, Ohio, gave fifty dead, but in all other flooded districts the figures fell off rapidly as relief expeditions covered the ground.

Hamilton, Ohio, which had reported as many as 250 dead, did not put forth any figures today.

Mount Vernon did not confirm its previous report of 50 dead, and no confirmation was had for 32 reported drowned at Venice, Ohio.

Chillicothe and Tiffin, Ohio, where there had been reports of 50 or more dead, each found 18 corpses up to midnight.

The best figures from Plaquia give a death toll of 50 persons.

Fremont and Middletown, Ohio, each has 14 dead, Massillon 5, Zanesville 4 and Troy 5.

Fewer Than 50 in Indiana.

The Indiana total drowned receded to fewer than 50, distributed as follows: Peru 20, Brookville 16, Fort Wayne 6, and Terre Haute 4. No bodies have been found in West Indianapolis, where as many as 200 deaths were at one time reported.

With the situation somewhat alleviated in the flood-swept districts of Ohio and Indiana, a new menace threatened in the rise of rivers in the southern valleys of both states. At Cincinnati the Ohio, swelled by its tributaries north and south, caused alarm, and although the situation had not yet reached an acute stage, reports from neighboring Kentucky towns indicated that warning had been issued to the inhabitants to seek points of safety from the rising water.

In Indiana alarm was felt in the valleys of the Ohio, Wabash and White Rivers, but ample warning served in a measure to reduce the panic.

A SURVIVOR'S STORY

Graphic Experience of One of the Dayton Marooned.

Dayton, Ohio, March 28.—Between subs and in a semi-hysterical condition George W. Timmerman related the terrible experience he underwent in making his escape from the grasp of the flood and flames which enveloped the city of Dayton on Tuesday and Wednesday. He is employed in Dayton.

"I did not go to work Tuesday morning, as the water was running past the house where I was boarding, and it was ankle-deep all over the street, and the people of that vicinity said that it was nothing unusual, as it had happened after unusual rains."

"Along about 9 o'clock the great wall of water tore down upon us without the least warning, and we had all we could do to climb to the second floor of the dwelling before being engulfed. We were quickly forced to merged, and were safe there for several hours. Finally, after repeated calls for help, a boat came to our assistance and managed, after serious difficulty, to get myself, a woman and three children away."

"The boat became unmanageable, and after drifting into the current, and whirling around and around, with the bodies of horses, bargies, wagons, human forms, drift, etc., we managed to grasp the top of a porch on one of the houses after repeated efforts to anchor."

"We climbed on top of the porch and into the attic of the house, where we luckily found something to eat. We stayed there possibly two or three hours, when we heard a terrific explosion across the street. The explosion did not save the walls of a grocery store collapse. Fire started and spread to a stable nearby and set fire to a row full of hay. We realized the danger we were in, and the situation called for help. The call was in vain, as the bravest dared not buffet the torrent that poured down the streets."

As the last resort, we attempted to escape by the roofs of the adjoining houses. I assisted the woman and children who were crying and suffering, over the roofs of possibly a dozen houses, spurred on by the awful thought of being cremated in the flames that approached us in the rear. At last we came to the end of this string of dwellings and were forced to seek some other way of escape."

Walked Telephone Wires.

"The only thing in reach was driftwood, a possible body of a horse or a cow, and the telephone wires. I suggested the possibility of walking these wires to safety, but, of course, it was impossible for the woman and children to do this. I finally decided to try it myself, and bring aid to the quartette in distress. There were possibly six squares to cover in this manner over the raging torrent, and long before I came to dry land, my friends had sighted me and were shouting words of encouragement. Time after time I thought I would have to give up."

"Once I dropped my cap, and the spectators gasped, as they thought my time had come. After repeatedly resting as best I could on the swaying wires, I finally came to the pole that grounded on dry land. I was carried into the plant of the National Cash Register Company until partially revived, after which I was taken to the home of relatives in the more fortunate part of the city."

BENCH AND BAR ARE DISSATISFIED

Ontario Govt. Ask Dominion House to Correct Reconstruction Error.

DOHERTY'S STATEMENT

Effect Will Be Retroactive, As Amendment Is Voted Down.

Ottawa, March 28.—That the action of the Ontario Government in reconstructing the high courts of the province had given rise to much criticism for the bench, the bar, the press and the public generally, was emphasized in Parliament today when Hon. C. J. Doherty, minister of justice, moved the House into committee to consider the Government bill respecting the superior court of Ontario. The legislation, said the minister, was made necessary by the action of the Ontario Legislature in creating a new appellate division of the superior court to replace the court of appeal, which goes out of existence.

Untimely Legislation.

The bill, and particularly the clause making the effect of the bill retroactive, met vigorous opposition from Ontario members of the bar in the House. Mr. Hugh Guthrie pointed out that criticism was general throughout the province, and moved, seconded by Mr. Pardee, that the retroactive clause be struck out, and that the bill should not affect pending legislation. Mr. Pardee thought that the Legislature had fallen into some error, and had appealed to the Dominion Government to pass legislation correcting the mistake. He asked the Minister of Justice if such was not the case.

Hon. Mr. Doherty said it was true that the Ontario Government had asked for the legislation, and Premier Borden added, when pressed for the reason given by the provincial authorities, that the legislation of Ontario was within the rights of that province, and it was consequently necessary for the Federal Government to make its statute conform to Ontario's.

Mr. George Graham argued that the Ontario legislation had created dissatisfaction on the bench and was designed to create two vacancies for friends and another kind of justice. Mr. Guthrie's amendment was defeated in committee on a straight party division, and the bill was reported for third reading.

SWEET SERENADE FOR SUFFRAGETTE

Miss Emerson, of Detroit, Imprisoned at Holloway, Has Exile Cheered.

ANTIS ARE DISCREET

Husky Dockmen Allied With Militant Sisters Overawed Would-Be Disturbers.

London, March 28.—Protected by a bodyguard of husky dock-workers, Miss Scott-Troy, of San Francisco, heading a delegation of American and English suffragettes, tonight serenaded Miss Zelle Emerson, of Detroit, the militant suffragette who is on a hunger strike in Holloway jail, serving out a two months' sentence for breaking windows.

The anti-suffragists had hired a band of roughs who were armed with bad eggs, stale vegetables and other objectionable things for use as missiles. They were on the ground with the intention of breaking up the demonstration of sympathy with Miss Emerson, but the presence of the strong-armed dockmen deterred them from making the slightest manifestation of hostility.

The suffragettes had anticipated trouble and hired a deaf cornetist who could not be disconcerted by the hoots or jeers of the antis. Not only was there no hooting or jeering, but the cornetist had no other kind of interruption to contend with.

Baron Von Holst, of San Francisco, acted as master of ceremonies. Standing close to the wall of the jail, and accompanied by the cornetist, the suffragettes sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," "Dixie," "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and other patriotic American songs.

Dockmen Show Gratitude.

After the serenades Miss Troy was presented with an illuminated honorary membership in the Dock-Workers' Union as a testimonial of the gratitude of the men for her support during the dock-workers strike two years ago, when she fed thousands of their children.

In striking contrast to the demonstration at Holloway jail was a suffragette meeting held across the street without the protection of a bodyguard. The speakers at this meeting were howled down by the mob. At the conclusion of the serenade of Miss Emerson, the deaf cornetist was invited to soothe the savage breasts of the rowdy element. The cornetist accepted the invitation, but had only begun the air of "The Star-Spangled Banner," when hoodlums pounced upon him, and the police station and postoffice are flooded. The losses of logs in the Gauge at Albany Shows a Fall of Several Feet Overnight.

[Canadian Press.]

Albany, March 29.—The greatest flood in the history of the Mohawk and Hudson valleys is passing. The river gauge at Albany at 9 o'clock today registered 19.6 feet, a fall of more than 2 feet since yesterday afternoon, when the flood reached its height.

The floods in the western end of the state are practically over. West of the Genesee Valley and in the western counties along the Pennsylvania line the water has receded steadily since night.

Troy suffered five disastrous fires yesterday, and in Water-vliet, the water in many places measured ten feet deep, and the police station and postoffice are flooded. The losses of logs in the

Bulgars May Agree to Powers' Plan

[Canadian Press.]

London, March 29.—The Times says there is reason to believe that with slight modifications of the frontier suggested by the powers, made necessary by railway and strategic considerations the Bulgarians will accept the terms of peace recommended by the powers. Though the allies desire an indemnity, and the powers refuse to agree to indemnity being paid by Turkey, this difference is likely to be bridged by a concession regarding the proportion of the Ottoman debt the allies are to assume.

The correspondent at Constantinople of the Times says the minimum estimate of the Turkish loss at Tebataldia from Monday to Wednesday is five thousand men.

This Townsite---The Big Investment Opportunity

The West can offer no better investment than the GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC townsite of DELACOUR, just placed on the market.

DELACOUR is situated in one of the most thickly populated sections of Alberta, on the Tofield-to-Calgary branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and is only twenty miles from the latter city.

Where can you find a better or safer investment? The railway will reach DELACOUR shortly, and will be completed into Calgary this spring. This means a big increase in the value of every lot in town.

Look at Swallow—the last townsite we sold—a farm a year ago and now a hustling western town with a railway and over 30 places of business.

Get in now before the railroad. Lots can be had now as low as $1.00 per foot, but a big increase in price is expected as soon as the railroad is completed into the town. A small cash payment secures your lots, and easy terms can be arranged on the balance. Send for pamphlet and full information.

DEATH TAKES JACOB DALE OF GLENDALE

Was Born in Westminster 77 Years Ago—Lived There All His Life.

Jacob Dale, one of the oldest residents of Westminster Township, died at his home in Glendale on Friday. He was in his 77th year. He was born in Glendale and had resided there all his life.

Last Tuesday he was taken ill with paralysis, and two hours afterwards became unconscious, remaining in that condition until his death.

Few residents of Westminster were better known than Jacob Dale. Ever since the first paper was published he had been a subscriber to The Advertiser. In politics he was a staunch Liberal.

Besides his wife, Mary Jane Dale, five sons and one daughter survive him. The sons are: George, Frank, Oscar and Arthur, all of Glendale, and the daughter is Mrs. Charles Caldwell, of Glendale.

The funeral will take place on Sunday from his late residence at Glendale, Traction station No. 11, at 4 o'clock. Burial will be made at Woodland Cemetery.

The services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Barnby at 1:30 p.m.

FIRST PUBLIC OFFERING

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY to Secure Lots

in the Best Survey in

EAST LONDON

This is the first public offering of lots in the Dr. Mugan Survey.

This is right in the midst of the rapidly-developing East End. The factories located there now and the ones definitely assured, will employ enough people to fill every available lot in this district.

Now is the time to buy at first prices and get in on the ground floor and get advantage of the increase in value that is steadily taking place in this district.

These lots have frontage on Burbrooke Place 285 feet from Dundas street. Also frontage on Charlotte street, Dorinda street, Burbrooke Place and Princess avenue.

Don't put this off but come in today or phone us, or see our salesman on the property. This opportunity will not remain open long as these lots are being rapidly taken up.

DON'T LET THIS OPPORTUNITY PASS. ACT AT ONCE.

Prices Will Positively Be Advanced Monday, April 7. Present Prices Good Until April 6

A Big Boost For Fort Fraser*Location Growth

G. T. P. Buys 300 Lots and Provides for its Terminals

FORT FRASER and FORT FRASER DISTRICT are known as being the centre of the rich Nechaco Valley, the largest tract of arable land in British Columbia. The town of FORT FRASER has the most ideal location along the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific between Edmonton and Prince Rupert.

The soil in this land district of 100 square miles is a rich silt, with a clay subsoil. Irrigation is unnecessary, and owing to long days of sunshine, vegetation develops rapidly and is particularly strong in growth.

The town of FORT FRASER has an inexhaustible supply of fresh water, tremendous hydro-electric power and navigable waterways for more than 1,000 miles.

BUSINESS SITES FOR SALE.

Western Canada Realty Co.

169½ DUNDAS STREET, LONDON.

Following the organization of the big development company to supply hydro-electric power and start factories in Fort Fraser, the decision of the G. T. P. is a most important announcement to investors. While you watch FORT FRASER grow, also watch your real estate grow in value. Property bought at once will prove

A BIG BOOST FOR YOU.

Tomorrow's Weather—Fair and Mild.

LONDON, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1913. Sun Rises Tomorrow, 6:03; Sets, 6:42.

RESIDENTS OF FRONT STREET WANT PERMANENT BREAKWATER

Think the City Should Protect Their Property Which Is Flooded Every Spring—Considerable Damage Was Done This Year, and All the Houses Are Owned by Workingmen—Petition to be Circulated Asking for Sea Wall at Same Time That West London's Is Built.

Residents of Front street want a breakwater erected along the south side of the river to protect their property from the river every spring. This year, although the water did not rise as high in the north branch of the river as it usually does, the houses of the people on Front street were flooded, and some of the residents had to be carried out.

Water ran into the cellars and filled them, then covered the ground floor to a depth of 12 inches, and the damage to property and furniture was considerable.

Occurs Every Year. Practically every year the same thing occurs and people are beginning to wonder if the city is going to do anything to protect their homes and property over there. There is about 200 yards that would have to be protected by a high sea wall, and this could be done at a small cost to the city.

"It is nearly time the city did something for us over here," said a resident, "but we get very few improvements."

TO CALL FOR TENDERS FOR NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL

Centennial Committee Has $5,000 Everything Ready To Start Work.

Tenders for the erection of the new Centennial Methodist Church Sunday school will be called for within a few days, as everything is in readiness to start work on the building as soon as the weather permits.

Residents of New Annexed Districts Pleased With Delivery Service of Enterprising Firm

Some weeks ago, when indignation meetings were quietly held to devise ways and means of securing their rights as citizens, re extension of city limits was warmly discussed, and strong resolutions were passed.

after the bylaw carried for a Greater London the enterprising firm of Smallman & Ingram had made their plans to serve these new districts with a delivery, the same as within the old boundary lines.

This was found not to be practical with their regular delivery service, the area being too great to cover on the morning and afternoon trips, and a motor delivery was decided on.

Workingmen's Homes

Hundreds of cottages similar to those shown above are being erected all over East London and Ealing, and are a credit to the thrift and industry of the workingmen and their wives of this city.

WANT A STREET OPENED THROUGH CHELSEA GREEN

Residents Will Ask Council to Assist in Getting Street to South London.

Residents of Chelsea Green are bound to have a street through from the Green to South London and to that end they are circulating a petition amongst the residents asking that a street across that section from Adelaide street and through the Franks property be opened as soon as possible.

There is only one entrance into the Green at present, and that is over Adelaide street. As a great many of the employees of McClary's and other factories live in South London in the vicinity of Chelsea Green a street through from South London is almost a necessity.

The question has been discussed on numerous occasions and a petition was circulated amongst some of the residents last fall.

The cost of opening the street would not amount to much and would enhance the value of property considerably.

"We need the street badly," said Mr. W. Mitchell and Mr. P. St. Clair Aldridge, "and the sooner something is done the better it will be for Chelsea Green. The cost would not be very large, and the city will assist us when the time comes."

HUSBAND ORDERED TO PAY $5 A WEEK

Magistrate Regrets That He Is Unable to Deport Englishman.

Edward Saker, who came to this city from England two years ago, was charged by his wife, Marion Saker, in the police court this morning with a breach of the wife maintenance act.

Some time ago they separated, Saker making an agreement to pay her $5 a week. She failed to do so, and she and her four children have had difficulty in making ends meet. She applied to the court made an order that he pay her $5 a week.

Saker obstinately refused to support his wife until he had been given the custody of his four children. The court pointed out to him that he was not in a position to properly care for them, and that the mother was the person to whom they should be intrusted.

"Why don't you go back to England?" the magistrate asked the woman.

"It seems a pity to go back to England," she replied. "There's nothing there for the children, and they're all strong and healthy."

The court told Saker that were it not for the fact that he had been too long in the country he would deport him.

COLT KICKS MAN AND GASHES HIS FOREHEAD

Richard Spinks Receives a Wound Which Requires Six Stitches to Close.

Richard Spinks, an employee of Mr. E. W. Whitting, florist, of East London, received a gash in his forehead which required six stitches to close, when he was kicked by a young colt which he was leading around the backyard.

He had taken the colt out for exercise, and was leading with a rope, when suddenly it ran forward a few feet, and then threw both its hind feet into his face. One of the hoofs narrowly missed his head, and the other struck him a glancing blow on the forehead.

He was knocked over and partially stunned for a few minutes. Dr. Spence dressed the wound.

WHEEL DROPS OFF

Accident to Ridout Car Delays Traffic for Some Time.

One of the wheels on a Ridout street car dropped off suddenly at the corner of Ridout and Craig streets on Friday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock and was the cause of delaying traffic for some time.

EVERYTHING READY FOR BUILDING BOOM IN NEW DISTRICTS

Hundreds of Lots Sold—Fine Houses Will Be Built.

VALUES ARE INCREASING

Woman Refused Nearly $4,000 For House and Land Which Cost Her $800.

Everything is in readiness to start building in East London and Ealing as soon as the frost gets out of the ground, a builder informed The Advertiser this morning.

During the past few weeks there have been more than 100 lots sold to people who intend erecting residences on them, and it is expected that by the time the McCormick Company starts work on the erection of its new factory East London will present the appearance of a city in the course of erection.

All over the district loads of bricks have been distributed and lumber is being delivered every day from the lumber yards of the city. The price of property in that section has increased wonderfully in a few years.

Refused Large Sums. One woman, who resides on Dundas street, bought a small house and lot, which runs between Dundas and Laura streets, with a frontage on both streets, for about $800. Several days ago she was offered nearly $4,000 for it, and she is undecided as to selling it.

Another man bought a house and a piece of land with about a 300-foot frontage on Dundas street for $2,100 about two years ago. Two weeks ago he was offered $4,500 for it, but is holding out for $5,000.

Tracts of Land Sold. Tracts of land far out into the outlying districts of Pottersburg have been sold to syndicates, and they will be cut up and sold in lots.

Requests for lots in the surveys have been made, and it is expected that they will be put on the market in a short time.

The employees of the hydro department have not reached Pottersburg yet in stringing wires for lighting the streets, but it is expected that they will be there in a short time, and that as soon as the lights are strung it will enhance the value of property.

Some of the sections need streets badly, but it is hardly likely that anything will be done out there this year.

Chesley Ave. School Plans Accepted by Board Committee

The plans prepared by Mr. A. E. Nutter, providing for a four-room addition to Chesley avenue school, were considered by No. 2 committee of the board of education on Friday afternoon, and accepted by that body.

The new addition, which will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000, will provide accommodation for manual training and domestic science classes, and one room will be set aside for kindergarten purposes.

APPOINTED SECOND NURSE FOR SCHOOLS

Applications for Increase in Salary by Male Assistants
Filed.

Playgrounds Matter Discussed
by No. 2 Committee Board of Education.

At Friday's meeting of No. 1 committee of the board of education, Miss H. L. Dufton was recommended to the board for appointment as second school nurse on the motion of Trustee E. R.
Dennis. There were five other applicants: Misses Barter, Burdick, Reid and Grieve.

The application of the male assistants for an increase of salary was filed.

On the motion of Dr. Teasdale, the Saturday morning art classes in Alexandra school will be discontinued for this school year at the end of March.

On Behalf of Playgrounds.
Sheriff Cameron addressed the committee on behalf of the Playgrounds Association. Trustee Dennis suggested that the association equip the school grounds with their apparatus and allow the grounds to be supervised by the male assistants of the public schools under the control of the school board.

Sheriff Cameron said that this would be agreeable to him personally, and he thought the other members of the Playgrounds Association would also be satisfied with such an arrangement.

to take both the new and the old courses. This new course placed on the slips, which will be distributed to pupils and parents, showing the courses available at the Collegiate. He moved that this course be taken off and an existing regulation added, which states that a pupil may only take one course except with the consent of the principal.

Principal McCutcheon contended that this was not really an extra or a new course, and that it did not include any subject not required by pupils who intended to continue in school to obtain senior teachers' certificates. Dr. Mu-gan voted against Dr. Shaw's motion, the vote standing one to one. Dr.
Teasdale, who was in the chair, declined to give the casting vote, because the other members of the committee did not vote. On a second vote, Trustee Greenlee also voted against
Dr. Shaw's motion, which was consequently lost.

"GIRL FROM TOKIO" SEEN AT THE GRAND
Fair-Sized Audience Appears to be Agreeably Influenced by Production.

"The Girl From Tokio," a farce comedy from the German of Robert Pohl,
was presented at the Grand Opera House Friday night, and appeared to please a fair-sized audience.
The show in itself might be considerably better if handled by a capable cast. The majority of the players seemed to be acting, but high tension, thus spoiling some of the humor. It has some laughable situations in it,
and at times some of the members of the company did justice to their parts.
John Raymond, as Professor Christian Manners, a private tutor, caused rounds of laughter by his ridiculous expressions. He was the star of the company, and on his shoulder of the audience, Miss Lee Hobbs Martin, the old-maid aunt and troublemaker, fell
a good deal of the work, while Allan Brander, as Count Maurice Boni de Brissac, a French diplomat, greatly exaggerated the role, but decided "to stay away with it" with the audience.
Miss Julia Morton, as Nancy Noyes, widow of Esmond Miller; Miss Adelaide Matthews, as Blanche Swift, wife of Barry Swift, and daughter of Es-mond Miller, and Edmund Ford, as Barley Swift, the husband, who was always in trouble, were fair, while the rest of the cast, with the exception of Sney Travers, Swift's friend, were not seen on the stage long enough to display much of their talent.

Maccabees Hold Informal Dance

The first of a series of four informal dances given under the auspices of London Tent, No. 17 Knights of the Maccabees, was held in the Dominion Savings Building last evening. While the attendance was not as large as sired, the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and the music furnished by the Albion Club Orchestra was of the best. The committee in charge was composed of Messrs. J. C.
Spence, L. H. James, C. P. Mills and W.
L. Sankey.

One Hundred and Fifty Sit Down to Men's Club Banquet

No. 8 Club and the Men's League of the Dundas Street Methodist Church admitted and held one of their successful banquets in the Sunday school building on Friday night. Nearly one hundred and fifty men accepted the invitation to be guests of the men's club, and it was safe to say that an enjoyable evening was spent by all.
A repeat of no mean order was provided by the ladies of the congregation. Chicken-plate headed the menu, and it was amount consumed it is a certainty that it was a popular dish.
Each following itemized event on the bill-of-fare contained an appetizing reference to the consumption of the chicken-plate. The evening was recorded on the menu evinced the greatest attention from the guests.

The toast list, which followed, and presented by Mr. C. E. German, was celebrated in the informal manner.
The male sex in the church, in politics,
at play and at work, were toasted, and kind and encouraging words in his behalf were spoken by each of the responding speakers.

"The King" was celebrated by the singing of the National Anthem, coupled with an ovation of cheers and a "tiger."

Rev. Dr. Manning proposed "The Man in the Church," which was replied to by Mr. J. A. Jones, who paid a high tribute to Dr. Manning, and the work that he has carried on at Dundas Centre. The speaker responded to the toast, and he moved that the young men of the church and accept positions of trust. He desired cultivation of the friendly and brotherly spirit, and declared that it was not more common in the church today.

Mr. H. B. Ashplant proposed "The Man in Politics." This toast was replied to by Mr. F. W. Daly, B. A., who desired the politician to have principles of the law, backing his work and live up to these principles.
Mr. George F. Copeland, in responding to the toast, "The Man at Play," proposed by Mr. F. Barnett, stated that play was a prominent factor in the life of the child, and pitied
the man who could not play. The latter, Mr. Copeland said, must be abnormally developed if he could not respond to the play impulse.
"The Man at Work," proposed by Mr. I. Kingswood and replied to by Mr. A. E. Cowley. Mr. Cowley stressed the importance of efficiency
in work, and said that this was a sure road to success in any line of work.
The speaker of the evening was Mr.
George K. Quarrington, assistant superintendent of the Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto.

In his address, entitled, "The Profitable Life," the speaker stated that a general feeling of unrest was manifested among men of trades and professions. This feeling of unrest led them to enter into the political,
business and amusement world Peace
and satisfaction could not be found in material things, and indulgence in unreal things that paradise was the pointed out that that paradise was the Christian life, surely aroused to action could be sufficiently aroused to take the life of the Christian.

During the evening Messrs. Andrews and Walker favored with well-rendered duet numbers, and these were warmly enjoyed. Mr. Bert Hannah received twice and his selections were received in a most favorable manner.

MASONIC DANCE
MOST BRILLIANT
SCENE OF SEASON

Beauty, Music and Joy of Life Presented in Exquisite Blendings.

SOME SPLENDID ELECTRIC EFFECTS

Three Hundred Couples Swing
About Spacious Floor During Evening.

Sheer intoxication of beauty, music
and joy of life, produced by the harmonious and exquisite blendings and combinations of light, color and sound,
and the presence of representative beauty and nobility of London and Western Ontario, animated with the thrill and glow of the beautiful scenes of festivity at the "At Home"
of Mocha Temple, Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Oasis of London, Desert of Western Ontario, held in the new Masonic Temple Friday night, where more than three hundred couples attended what proved to be the social event of this season, and one of the most successful affairs held in London for years.

A Brilliant Scene.
Brilliant in the softly scintillating
glow of a myriad of colored lights, red and green, amber and blue, and yellow, reflected from the beautiful floors of the fast dancers and the soft-toned light that gleamed from several hundred Chinese lanterns, banked on all sides with flowers and palms and greenery, and facing a garden of lilacs and red and pink blossoms, where the Tonic Cortese Orchestra of twenty pieces rendered one of the finest programs of dance music
ever enjoyed in this city, the ballroom presented a picture of beauty and appearance and glamor, and one could easily fancy one's self whisked out of the humdrum existence and prosaic life of the earth and ushered by magic
into the paradisaic of the prophet Isaiah, to see a faithful choir of the desert dressed to picture in hours of ecstatic fancy.

The Sword and Crescent.
In lights of red, green and gold, the sword and the crescent shone resplendent and supreme over the joyous circling crowd. In front of a rustic arbor in the orchard garden, Joe Cortese led an aggregation of muscians of which London may well be proud. On all sides were gardens of bay-trees and palms, and from under green leaves tiny lights twinkled con-tuitly. Garlands of blooms, masses of cedar and cypress, and the smell of the flowers, the gallery railings,
the elevation of the orchestra stage, and the walls of the ballroom on every side.

Wonderful Electrical Effects.
Superb electrical effects and revolving searchlights threw beams of pale moonlight, crimson sunset, golden sunrise, roseate morning, the mystic twilight of the desert, the green of the ocean, and complex and fantastic rays of innumerable hue and color over and among the joyous couples.

The big dining tent in the basement of the Temple was walked with interest and greenery of cedar and vines, and roofed overhead with wide-striped bunting of red and yellow, suggesting in its Orientalesque effects the royal dining tent of the Saladin that the crusaders were against.

Arab Guards.
Arab guards quickly costumed stood at ease in the waiting-rooms and in the dining tent, the waiter wore dressed in picturesque white eastern costumes.
Strange and beautiful as it all seemed,
no one was long in feeling at ease,
for everywhere the Chinese lanterns blinked at one the quaint Yankee admission, "assurance of welcome."

For those who did not dance there were whist tables, and an excellent musical program given in the ballroom deserve special tribute of praise.
The happy waltz played by Joe Cortese and the four solos by Chris. Pink, which he sang with a world of expression, in a firm tenor voice of rich, mellow qualities. His rendering of "Why Did You Make Me Care?"
and "That's How I Need You," with superb orchestral accompaniment,
called for repeated encores.

The Grand Opening. led by illustrative Potentate Thomas Rowe
and Mrs. Rowe, and the Arab Patrol, with places of honor for the distinguished guests from other cities, opened the ball at 8:30 o'clock. Among the happy numbers on the program,
which proved to be special favorites,
were "Naughty Marietta," "When I Waltz With You," "Marie the Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabama," "The Eternal Waltz," "Oh, Oh, Delphine," and "My Samurain Girl." Joe Cortese's harp waltz, "Barcolina," also delighted the dancers.

The concert program included "Bells
of Seville," "Good-bye," Sweetheart,
"Good-bye," and other vocal quartette selections by the London Masonic Quartette, composed of F. L. Will-goose, H. R. J. Sawyer, J. H. Woodward, and George White, a humorous
sketch, "The Little Red Schoolhouse," the quartette, "The Bedouin Love Song," a solo by H. R. J. Sawyer, solos by Miss E. McBride, F. L. Will-goose, Miss F. Cullis, George White, and vocal duets by Messrs. White and Sawyer, and Messrs. McBride and Cullis. A uniform excellence characterized the program throughout.

At the request of the ladies in charge of the Charity Ball to be held next Friday night by the Daughters of the Empire, the Shriners will leave their decorations intact until after that evening. The programs, favors and souvenirs were unusually unique and attractive.

THE TRAGEDY OF FRANCE THE LOST PROVINCES

[Harold Spender in the London Daily News and Leader.]

Those who wish to realize the inner mind of France at this moment should go to see the remarkable play of "Alsace" at Reliance Theatre. It is one of those "poignant dramas" which make history. There in that searching and poignant drama, acted with a skill which plays on all the chords of pity and fear, you have a picture of the tragedy which is eating into the heart of Europe. There is a moment at which the Alsatian mother raises her glass to drink to Alsace. "To France, too!" cries another. "It is the same thing!" cries the Alsatian mother, and the whole of that great Parisian audience breaks into frantic applause.

Those who wish to see into the mind of France will always go to her theatres rather than to her assemblies; and I will say that I learned far more from attending this play of Reliance's—this searching, perilous piece of patriotic sentiment—than in the whole length of a weary afternoon in the gallery and lobby of her assembly.

Alsace—there is the heart of the disease that is gnawing at the life of Europe. It is there that all students must seek for both the mischief and the remedy. It is in the settlement of this question alone—if it can be settled—that peace will come to Europe.

Alsace—and in that word I include Lorraine. For never since Bismarck decided to take the two provinces from France has there been any pause in many—so he spoke—"friendly relations—but friendship never."

Yesterday I had many conversations with Frenchmen of all parties. All except the Socialists—who are frankly internationalist—repeated almost precisely the same words. It is the sentiment of France. The sentiment, do I say? Nay, the obsession—the fixed idea—the cloud that hangs over all her feelings and thoughts.

Those who have watched French literature and journalism during the last few years will know that there has been a remarkable revival of this feeling since 1910—the fortieth anniversary of the loss of Alsace, Gambetta, that spirit, wielded of fire and passion, said in one of his flashing, Dantonian phrases: "Think of Alsace always, speak of her never!" That advice has been forgotten. During the last few years both books and papers in France have spoken of "Alsace incessantly, and with a perilous appeal. All these writings, whatever the writers may desire, work surely towards the inevitable end.

Why this change? It is true that a generation has now grown up that knows nothing of the horrors of 1870-

SAVE GRANDMA'S LIFE—MAKE A BASEBALL SCORE BOARD.

Want to save the lives of the grandmothers, aunts and other relatives of your office boys and other employees or associates in the office or store?

And incidentally would you like to increase your business?

The baseball score board is coming on apace, and there'll be all kinds of nice things said about the man who makes it possible to have an electric score-board in the office or store that will not only keep the employees in, but will also draw a crowd from the outside—with the business a crowd would bring.

Don't waste your money on expensive appliances. Make a score-board. It's easy.

Take a couple of cracker boxes and fasten them together end to end, first knocking out the ends where the fastening is done, so that it will be one long, continuous box, capable of holding the score of a twelve-inning game. The inside of the box should be lined with asbestos and connections made for at least three electric light bulbs in the back.

The front of the box is a set of frames, to contain the names of the teams, and following them fifteen square frames into which are fitted slides for each inning and for the runs, hits and errors after the game. If there is room enough at the bottom, slides for the batteries might be made to slide in from the sides.

The frames for the innings and team names should be open at the top so that the slide with the proper figure can be put into it after each inning and for each change of teams. The home team slide can be permanent, if it is desired. The figures and names can be cut in either cardboard or tin.

There should be enough slides with the figures 1, 2 and 3 and 0 to provide for each frame. It will probably not be necessary to have more than one or two slides for each of the other figures. When the board is completed the figures and names should show out in white light.

the growth of European armaments, now really a crisis of catastrophe, or a break in the cloud of mutual jealousy and hatred which has hung low over Western Europe.

Why, also, should not France and Germany be friends? Here are two great modern nations, both with great qualities of heart and brain, near neighbors, who divide some of the richest territory of the greatest of continents, inheritors of old civilizations, supplementing one another's qualities, feeding one another's markets, destined by God and nature to bear up, as on twin pillars, this great burden of modern European civilization. And yet—in awful reality—eyeing one another with looks of hostility, arming against one another with fierce, perilous haste, and to that horrible task sacrificing all the bright hopes of European civilization.

The Cloud.

Why? I put that question some time ago, with full respect, to one of the ablest living Frenchmen, M. Cambon, the French ambassador at the court of St. James. Why enemies? Why not friends? Why more certainly enemies than England and France, now friends, but once the foes of many hundred years of bloody wars? Why? He answered me in a flash. "On account of two provinces." "Not as long as Germany retains the two provinces can we ever have friendship with Ger-

How Happy Gin Pills Have Made This Couple

After Years of Kidney Suffering Both Have Found Relief.

In the Province of Quebec, a little place called Lashute Mills is extolling the great curative powers of GIN PILLS. From there Mr. Thomas Stephenson writes:

"I was troubled for many years with Kidney Disease, and a friend told me to take GIN PILLS. After taking a few boxes I was greatly relieved, and after finishing the twelfth box the pain completely left me.

My wife is now using GIN PILLS and finds that she has been greatly relieved of the pain over her kidneys. 66c a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

I have observed in Lowell and extreme criticalness in the matter of what the world accepts as good sayings. The other night a story having been told of some one having said of Dizzy that "his wheat was worthless, but his chaff the best in the world," and everybody else having enjoyed the wit of the remark, Lowell objected to it as "too good."

This extreme fastidiousness of taste in Lowell rather damps the general geniality of the company. He seems hardly to be amused by what provokes hilarity in the rest of us.

That's how they steer you, trying to cheer you

When you're an amateur—amateur night.

Sharp calls and flat calls, whistles and cat-calls!

Stamping and tramping and pounding of feet!

Sure it's a peril to go out and carol

When there's a crowd such as that is to greet!

Loud their derision if their decision

Isn't in praise of the quavering wight;

Yet if they favor the act and its flavor,

People will show it on amateur night!

Scared little girlie scampers on early,

Nobody jeers her, she's "only a kid";

Next comes a fat guy—they hand it to THAT guy,

Out comes the hook and it's him for the skid!

Some are in clover at "putting it over,"

Most of them "beat it" in hastiest flight;

When the thin high-brow puts kinks in your eye-brow

You can find surcease in amateur night!

HON. STEPHEN COLERIDGE'S VICTORIAN MEMORIES

[London Daily News and Leader.]

"Memories." By the Hon. Stephen Coleridge. Lane. 7s 6d net.

Mr. Coleridge, born into one of the most distinguished of English families and living the busy life of a man with a mission, is one of those people whom fate had predestined to write a book of reminiscences. His book is not an ambitious autobiography. It is not a record even of the indefatigable labors which he has devoted to the cause of humanitarianism. It is simply a collection of portraits and anecdotes—portraits and anecdotes of some of the great Victorians with whom he and his father have been friends.

One of his chapters is, naturally enough, devoted to Lord Coleridge himself, and gives some striking examples of the latter's wit and fastidiousness. Concerning him, Mr. Coleridge relates an incident which seems to suggest that a man who took his daily bath was regarded as an eccentric person in the days of our grandfathers:

He felt no sympathy for Bohemia, however brilliant. He had an inveterate antipathy for "down-at-heel" life, for beards, and for tobacco smoke. My grandfather, from his habit of taking a white morning bath at Oxford, earned the nickname of "tub-Coleridge"; and my father was not less scrupulous in his person and habits.

Of the great men of whom we have stories in the book, the most interesting are, perhaps, Gladstone, Tennyson, Browning, Irving, Jowett, and Whistler. To our mind, the account of Browning's conversation with women is more interesting than convincing.

He almost always talked down to ladies, and discoursed to them about bonnets and clothes; this not seldom filled her women with annoyance. It is legitimate to suspect exaggeration there.

Whistler's Way.

The story of Whistler's method of getting a certain atmosphere into some of his pictures, too, may lead the unsophisticated into an exaggerated idea of the eccentricities of that most conscientious painter.

Many of Whistler's pictures were somewhat indebted to the climate of London as well as to the brush of the artist for their ultimate effect. Painted originally on rough, unprepared canvas, they were placed round the back garden at the White House on a slope, face upwards, on days when London fog and smoke were combined with a drizzling rain. By this device the steady fall of smuts was affixed by the drizzle uniformly over the picture, imparting to it that familiar dark and obscure finish so precious to the admirers of the master's work.

Whistler's great friend, Labouchere, is the subject of one of the nearest anecdotes in the book.

He was a nephew of Lord Taunton, and some bore who imagined that he was Lord Taunton's son, came up to him in the lobby of the House of Commons, and said, "I have just been listening to an interesting speech by your father in the House of Lords."

"Dear me," said Labouchere, "I lost my father many years ago, and I never knew what had become of him."

Another great cynic, Disraeli, appears in the following characteristic story:

Lord Rosslyn, who is a man of strong words and strange oaths, had discussed a matter with Dizzy, differing from him with a warmth that showed signs of increasing, whereupon Dizzy taking him by the arm said, "My dear friend, if you go on like this I shall have to think you are in earnest—like Gladstone."

Of Tennyson we get a rather droll picture:

When Tennyson came to be made a peer, he asked my father to lend him his robes in which to take his seat in the House of Lords; as my father was six feet two, the robes proved rather long for the bard, but it was better than if they had been too short.

Mr. Coleridge is by no means a blind idolater of the great men he has met.

The Chill of Lowell.

His complicity in the rather frigid and calculated manner of men otherwise so unlike as Lowell and Goldwin Smith. Lowell would occasionally chill the spirits of a party by his critical coldness, as in the following instance:

I have observed in Lowell and extreme criticalness in the matter of what the world accepts as good sayings. The other night a story having been told of some one having said of Dizzy that "his wheat was worthless, but his chaff the best in the world," and everybody else having enjoyed the wit of the remark, Lowell objected to it as "too good."

This extreme fastidiousness of taste in Lowell rather damps the general geniality of the company.

He seems hardly to be amused by what provokes hilarity in the rest of us.

Of Jowett the author seems to have had no very high opinion, but, to compensate for this, he has a very entertaining anecdote concerning him:

My father told the following diverting tale about him, that an undergraduate at Balliol fell ill not long ago and his sister came up and nursed him. The master was very kind, and was constant in his visits to the young man's rooms.

The youth recovered, and the sister was preparing to depart when Jowett came to bid her good-bye. She thanked him warmly for his constant kindness to her brother, and concluded by saying that she had a great favor to ask of him. "Would he mind marrying her?" Jowett, with great agitation, seized his cap and rushed from the room, exclaiming, "My dear young lady, it would be utter misery to both of us!" Needless to say the young lady had referred only to the performance of the ceremony, she having very naturally formed an attachment to one of her brother's young friends.

But one need not go on quoting in detail the letters from Meredith, Watts, and others in regard to his crusade against vivisection adds greatly to the interest of the book.

One or two of the stories in it are quite new, but the book, as a whole, is fresh. The author's criticism of Gladstone on the ground that he was not sufficiently susceptible to the wrongs of women and children raises an interesting problem in psychology. His quotations of letters from Meredith, Watts, and others in regard to his crusade against vivisection adds greatly to the interest of the book.

TAKE THE BUMPS OUT OF YOUR SUITCASE

The suitcase case in a crowd is always a problem—that is, it becomes a problem if a little attachment is not made for handling it that eliminates the difficulty. The trouble is caused by the size of the case and the way it projects in front of and behind the person carrying it.

Just attach a handle to the end, like that on a trunk, and when in a crowd carry the case by this end handle. There are no projections then.

Had Pains Around The Heart AND SMOTHERING FEELINGS.

The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and sinking turns, that come to those whose heart and nerves are deranged or disordered call for prompt relief.

There is nothing that brings with it such a fear of death as to wake up in the night with that awful feeling of smothering.

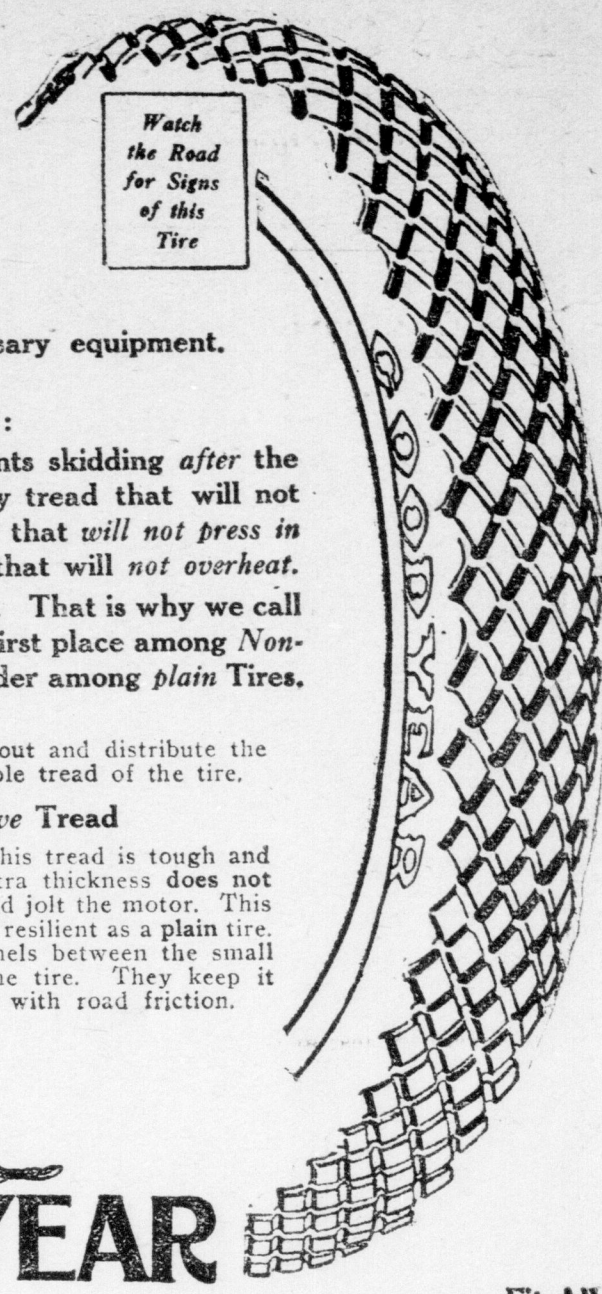

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

Mrs. Wm. Lee, Uthoff, Ont., writes: "I have taken three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and am now well. Such smothering feelings that I thought I would surely die. My head used to be propped up with pillows to keep me from smothering. One day I read in a paper about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and three boxes cured me."

Price, 50 cents per box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Tire Safety

—double mileage

Non-Skids have come to be recognized as necessary equipment. It is now simply a matter of selection.

These are the features motorists are looking for:

A sure grip on the road. A tread that prevents skidding after the centre blocks are worn down. A live, springy tread that will not jolt the motor and running parts. Projections that will not press in and bruise the fabric of the tire. A tread that will not overheat.

The Goodyear Non-Skid has all these essentials. That is why we call it the perfect Non-Skid. That is why it is taking first place among Non-Skids, just as the No-Rim-Cut tire became a leader among plain Tires.

A Perfect Non-Skid.

You can see the grip in this tread. These Diamond-shaped Blocks of tough rubber keep a perfect grip for thousands of miles. When the centre blocks finally begin to wear, the side blocks grip the road.

And the blocks cannot bruise the fabric of the tire. They come close together and are broad at the base. Under pressure they spread out and distribute the load over the whole tread of the tire.

A Live Tread

The rubber in this tread is tough and springy. The extra thickness does not deaden the tire and jolt the motor. This perfect tread is as resilient as a plain tire. The deep channels between the small blocks air-cool the tire. They keep it from overheating with road friction.

Do you get these features in other Non-Skids? Look them over and see.

THE McLAUGHLIN "25"

FIVE PASSENGER TOURING TYPE PRICE $1,450 F.O.B. OSHAWA

MODEL 25 (pictured here) is a splendid car in every respect. It has all the smartness of a well-appointed limousine, the unfailing service that is assured by a Buick engine, and the freedom from repairs and other annoyances which is characteristic of all McLaughlin cars.

A noticeable feature is its extreme roominess. The rear seat on top of cushions between adjoining seats measures 45 inches. Every detail of the construction is worked out in harmony. The appointments and finish have been chosen with an eye to comfort and beauty and we believe that it would be extremely difficult to find any similar priced car with such a complete and up-to-date equipment.

Rev. R. J. Campbell's Impressions of Continental Europe Gathered In His Recent Trip Abroad
[From the Christian Commonwealth.]

Within an hour of his return from his continental holiday Mr. Campbell paid it gracefully and with characteristic fullness. The record of his experiences and of the impressions he derived from them lost nothing in the telling, since he returns fresh and vigorous, and obviously greatly benefited by his holiday. If the last stages of his journey had wearied him no trace of it appeared while he talked together, and something of the actual scenes and vivid impressions was conveyed by his tones and gestures. Some things he had seen appealed to him very deeply. Mr. Campbell explained to me that he had touched a side of life both in France and Spain hitherto unfamiliar to him. Through the courtesy of some of his Catholic friends in England he had introductions to religious circles not usually open to travellers, circles which gave him opportunities of measuring the depths of religious feeling that the ordinary visitor to the Latin country would not have. He expressed himself as especially under obligations to his Eminence Cardinal Bourne for the facilities afforded him at Lourdes.

Mr. Campbell saw very little of the Liberal movement, and did not come much into contact with modern leaders on the continent. But he met a great many of the orthodox clergy, and talked freely with the men and women at work in the fields which ever he had an opportunity of visiting. French and sufficient Spanish he was able to talk to them without much difficulty, and gained an insight into their minds and an understanding of their attitude towards religion, which he spoke very sympathetically. Few of the clergy he met, apparently, knew much of his work for Liberal Christianity, but I gathered from Mr. Campbell's narrative that he had everywhere been treated very kindly. One wonders what thoughts the priests—and, more especially, the people—had when they encountered this gentle-voiced stranger with silver hair and refined, delicately featured face. A somewhat amusing incident was that on one occasion a parish priest, thinking that his guest was also a Catholic priest, requested him to say mass in the church. The visitor had to explain that his "colite host" was under a misapprehension. From England Mr. Campbell proceeded straight to San Sebastian, and thence to Madrid. "The habit of mind of the ordinary Spanish people," Mr. Campbell said, "is something the Englishman finds it very difficult to understand. Religion is a very real thing to these people. They have the habit of worship, a sort of habitual religious temper, which makes them extraordinarily inoffensive to the facts of everyday life. What we call 'progress' does not seem to concern them; they work hard, although very leisurely, and they seem to be poor enough, but I do not think they are miserable. One gets the impression that they have a laissez faire store of happiness which gives them contentment with their lot. They seem to be looking always at the unseen; it is at least very real to them, more real, I am afraid, than it is to many of us, and they do not apparently feel the need for the material comforts and conveniences of a more advanced civilization—or what we call 'advanced'."

"Do you think that is due to their religious training, Mr. Campbell? Perhaps if a propaganda was started among them—say, for shorter hours of work, higher wages, and so forth—a demand for 'progress' might be awakened."

"I certainly think their present attitude is due to their religion," said Mr. Campbell, "but I do not know whether the things you mention would have much meaning for them. There is a fairly strong Socialist party in Madrid and Barcelona, but I do not see how they can make any appeal to the mind of the Spanish people. The propaganda would not touch his life in the same way as it does the English workers. I am wondering though, how the Liberalism which has now asserted itself in the public life of Spain will affect the people. It may have unexpected reactions and perhaps turn their thoughts in the direction of material improvements. In many respects that would be a good thing. One cannot help feeling that there is an atmosphere of decay about everything in Spain, including even the church buildings. The churches, however, have a tremendous influence, especially in the Basque Provinces. In San Sebastian, on a Monday evening, in one of the churches there was a very large congregation drawn to hear the first of a series of Lenten discourses. The people actually extended out into the street. This on a Monday evening," said Mr. Campbell, significantly. "We would not often see that in England."

"You mentioned the Liberalism of the present Government. Do you think that will have any effect?"

"One feels that there is already a stirring among the dry bones. In Madrid I was told they were going for the next twenty years to spend £74,000 a year on improving their streets in a radius of one kilometre from the central square. The streets now are disgraceful. I am told that is due largely to municipal corruption. I heard of a contractor who reset one street with stones that he had taken from another, and there is a saying that every stone in the streets costs five pesetas. In Burgos Cathedral one Sunday morning, I heard a very bitter sermon against Socialism, whose propaganda is evidently exciting a considerable amount of uneasiness among the clericalists."

"I suppose you don't go to a Bull Fight?"

"Yes, I did. But I shall never go to see another. It is quite disgusting, the agility and skill of the matadors are remarkable, but the sheer cruelty of the spectacle was shocking. It is the cruelty to the horses which distresses one most. They are just brought there to be killed, and they never have the ghost of a chance. There was an immense gathering of people—about 30,000; it reminded me very much of our football matches in that respect. But I shall never want to see another one."

"What were your impressions of France, Mr. Campbell?"

"The most remarkable event I witnessed in France was an assembly of 2,000 men in Rouen Cathedral at a religious conference. It was a conference about the person and teaching of our Lord Jesus Christ. From what I saw and from the inquiries I made I drew the conclusion that there is a sort of reaction going on against the religion of a generation ago. There is something like a real revival of religion taking place. I do not mean, of course, a revival in the ordinary evangelical sense of the word, but a genuine Quickening of Interest in Religion, an increased passion and vitality and power in religion; and there is also more attention to the observation of worship. This change is due mainly to the denunciation of the Concordat with the church by the French Government some years ago. What looked like a crushing blow at the power of the church is having the opposite effect. This is an argument in favor of disestablishment, one would think. The separation between church and state has resulted in a great re-awakening of apostolic fervour among the clergy, and an increased respect for Christianity among the people at large. It is frequently said that men do not attend the churches in the Latin countries. That was not my experience during my tour. The reaction, too, seems to be general—it is not confined to one class. A large percentage of men attend the churches, and I noticed at the Rouen conference that many of them were of the professional educated classes."

"I understand you paid a visit to Lourdes?"

"I did not realize before I went to Lourdes that the Lourdes miracles and pilgrimages and the Lourdes influence generally have had a most important effect upon the Catholic Church as a whole during the last fifty years. It is rather more than fifty years since Bernadette, the little peasant girl, saw her vision of the Virgin Mary at the Grotto. You know the story of the appearances? Bernadette was a little peasant girl of about 14 years of age, who went to the grotto with other children to pluck up dry branches for firewood. She was separated from the other children, and was preparing to remove her shoes and stockings to cross the river when she heard what seemed to her the sound of a storm. From the interior of the grotto, according to her story, at the same time came a golden-colored cloud, and soon afterwards a young exceedingly beautiful lady, who smiled upon her. Bernadette was not at all frightened by the appearance, and her story spread through the town and caused a great deal of excitement among the people. There were several appearances before

The Miraculous Spring. was discovered. On the ninth appearance—it is dated Feb. 25, 1858—the child went to a corner of the grotto and hollowed out a cavity in the sand, which immediately filled with water. At the fifteenth appearance, on March 4, 20,000 people had gathered at the grotto. Upon the sixteenth appearance the Lady, as Bernadette called her, told the child, "I am the Immaculate Conception." The eighteenth and last appearance was made on July 16, and by this time a rustic altar had been erected in the grotto, and it had

NEW STRENGTH
IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making
New, Health-Giving Blood.

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disgusting pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong.

Mr. John Walfield, of Lake Islands, N. S., writes: "I take great pleasure in telling what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I am a fisherman and fifteen years ago through hard work my system became run down and I could scarcely work at all. I lost in weight; my blood became poor, and I was very weak. I consulted several doctors, but their treatment did not help me, so I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in a short time I was entirely well again. My wife and daughter also used them with benefit. We think so much of the Pills as a family medicine that we always keep them in the house."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

"What conclusion did you form, Mr. Campbell?"

"As I say, I did not realize what an important effect these events had had upon the Catholic Church. Apart altogether from the phenomena of the cures, the Lourdes cult, the interest it has excited, and the remarkable facts connected with it have had a revivifying effect upon religious life. At that time—I am repeating what the priests told me—in that quarter of the world a man was almost ashamed to confess that he went to church. That has changed. There is quite a different tone and temper. It is not Lourdes itself only that has benefited in this way. Fifteen million people have visited that shrine since it was opened, and it is claimed that the spiritual results are more marvellous than the physical cures."

"Did you form any theory of the phenomena?"

"Yes, I did. I think it is clear that the appearances were subjective. Only Bernadette saw the vision. Many people saw her in her ecstasies kneeling in the grotto, but nothing was visible to them."

"But the cures?"

"Of course, it is not claimed that more than a small percentage of the sick people who go thither are cured. But I think the evidence shows that some

Cures Take Place which are so astonishing and so unaccountable that they must be pronounced miraculous. I am only repeating now what I was told by the educated gentleman who showed me the scene. Dr. Cox, the head of the Bureau des Constata-tions Medicales told me his own story. It is rather remarkable. He went to Lourdes to investigate the cases, and after four months was so impressed by what he saw that he remained there and took charge of the Bureau, giving up his practice in London in order to do so. He told me of cure after cure that cannot be accounted for by medical science at all. The utmost that a medical man, who is not inclined to admit the supernatural hypothesis, is able to say is that some cause not yet known to medical science is at work. That is my own view. The phenomena are very remarkable, however, and would repay investigation by experts. If the Society for Psychical Research had been in existence when Bernadette saw her visions some explanation might have been formulated other than that ultimately given by the Bishop's Commission of Inquiry, and the matter is still important enough to merit their attention."

The dinner group interrupted us at this point, and I released Mr. Campbell reluctantly. We talked for a little while of the suggestion that has been made recently that his thought is undergoing

An Important Change. One or two sermons at the City Temple have led people to believe that he is breaking away from the spiritualism which has influenced his pulpit teaching. Mr. Campbell told me that he was still a monist, and whatever changes are taking place in his thought, they do not indicate a return upon the path he has travelled. His mind is moving on, unquestionably, but it is in the direction of an increasing emphasis upon phases of divine transcendence which were not so explicit in his early formulation of the New Theology. In a hurried talk such as ours necessarily was, he could not discuss the issue fully, but readers of his sermons have already got the clue to the direction in which he is travelling. Later sermons will probably make it still clearer.

Zam-Buk Does Cure Piles

Mrs. C. Hanson, wife of the proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Poplar, B. C., suffered from piles for years. Went to doctor after doctor in vain. Finally went to Spokane and had an operation. Twelve months afterwards she was as bad again. She says, "One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better, and I saw that Zam-Buk was going to cure me. Well, I went on using it, and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured."

CHARACTER STUDY OF PROF. PATRICK GEDDES A PIONEER OF THE NEW LEARNING IN BRITAIN

[By A. G. Gardiner, Editor London Daily News and Leader.]

You remember the man at the Breakfast Table whom Holmes called the Scarabee. He sat absorbed and silent over his meals. Nothing that was said reached the remote fastnesses of his being until one day someone mentioned beetles. Then to the amazement of everybody he awoke to the world around him. The key had been found that unlocked his prison and he came out into the daylight—only to return to his solitude and abstraction when the subject that was his one contact with life ceased to hold the table.

In that quaint figure, Holmes, satirized the specialist—the man who in pursuit of one microscopic phase of being becomes divorced from the splendid pageant of life. In some degree most of us are victims of this myopia of the mind. It is one of the diseases of civilization. It is the price we pay for that wonderful subdivision of labor, that intricate relationship, which removes each of us farther and farther from the centre of the wheeling universe of things. As the artificial structure we create becomes more vast, more complex, a more cunning contrivance of machinery, the individual man diminishes in stature and authority. The primitive shepherd, shearing his sheep, spinning his wool, weaving his cloth, making his rude coat, was nearer the heart of things than the multitude of clever mechanics, salesmen, laborers, and clerks who each carry out some detail of the modern industry. We are like Frankenstein in his laboratory. Out of our necessities and our insatiables we have constructed a monster who makes us his slaves; a monster so enormous, so amorphous, that we can neither measure nor control him. All that we know is that we are caught in his intangible coils.

The remedy for this tragedy of civilization, which exalts the machine and belittles the man, is in education. Since we cannot have the joy of creation which the old craftsman had we must learn to let the mind expand outside the scope of our daily work. And, alas, when we come to education we find the Scarabee. The same principle of specialization which reduces the artisan and the clerk to a tiny function in a structure he does not see or understand reduces scholarship to watertight compartments, mechanics divorced from art, economics from ethics, medicine from education. Yet all are only phases of one theme that is universal—the art and practice of life. It is the full light of the sun we want, not the broken fragments of the spectroscope. We should use pigeon-holes—not live in them.

The Man.

And it is to bring the world out of its dusty pigeon-holes that Patrick Geddes comes like a Crusader with his Masque of Learning, his astonishing enthusiasm, his eloquence and what the specialist—the man who in pursuit of one microscopic phase of being becomes divorced from the splendid pageant of life. In some degree most of us are victims of this myopia of the mind. It is one of the diseases of civilization. It is the price we pay for that wonderful subdivision of labor, that intricate relationship, which removes each of us farther and farther from the centre of the wheeling universe of things. If this self-applied home treatment will enable you to successfully treat your own illness and weakness, then I have shown you the secret of perpetual strength and how you can again be just as powerful in your capacity as the biggest, huskiest, most successful and sought-after of your acquaintances.

For this reason I believe it is my duty to tell every young or elderly person about this health strength restoring recipe and send a copy of the recipe to you for it, so they can minority, or on personal ambition, for the highly gifted few. At best we form small groups and coteries—in one age grinding at grammar, in another at psychology, and always convinced of the rightness of our intellectualist methods and the inherent wrongness of popular demands.

Dead Bones.

And meanwhile it is not the people, but our education that is wrong—our education that gives them stones for bread, dry bones for wholesome meat, dead stalk and thorns for fruit flowers. "I was a student of bones myself once," he says, laughingly, recalling the days when he was assistant to Huxley, and the debt he owed that great man. "But with all his commanding grasp of the skeleton through Nature, Huxley never came to life. Indeed, as he once said 'Two—CHARACTER STUDY OF SC' to me, 'I should have been an engineer.' He made us, his pupils, comparative anatomists—ay, and good ones—but not naturalists, as Darwin mourned." The dead bones of knowledge would not satisfy Patrick Geddes. He must escape from the letter that killeth to the spirit that giveth life. And so, side by side with his achievement in many branches of science, biology, mathematics, botany, he became a pioneer in the great task of applying learning to life—making it the instrument of the culture, not of coteries, but of peoples. As a young man, he wandered through Europe like a mediaeval scholar, passing from one university to another and enjoying contact with the greatest minds of his time. Haeckel and Virchow declared him to be one of the most brilliant young naturalists in Europe, and his subsequent works on the "Evolution of Sex" and various biological subjects established his reputation finally as a scholar.

The Pioneer.

But a mere scholar he was not content to be. And so, concurrently with his professional duties, he plunges into great social experiments with the splendid heroism of a man who is careless of all save the pursuit of his ideal. He gathers together the students of Edinburgh to a common life and founds University Hall, which becomes the model of all the universities that are springing up in the country on the modern secular plan as opposed to the cloistral plan of Oxford and Cambridge. The Outlook Tower, which he has seen from all lands. It symbolizes the unity of the arts and sciences and their application to the immediate life around. He organizes the university summer meetings, the great university meetings movement everywhere. It was he who twenty years ago began to talk about town planning, of which all the world is talking today. And he not only talked about it but did it, carrying out that transformation of the Clooses which has done so much to redeem old Edinburgh. It was he, who, with Mr. Victor Brandford, who was at the birth of the Eugenics movement, though now out of sympathy with some of its developments, he who saved Grosvenor Hall from the despoiler and brought it down to Chelsea, where he has founded another University Hall.

His mind is a seed plot of ideas. They spring up, bewildering, fertile, which would be disquieting if one did not remember that they are all connected at the root. It was said of Coleridge that his talk seemed nothing but detached gems and irrelevances, unless one was able to follow the vast arc of his theme. Then it was discovered that the sequence was perfect. And so with Professor Geddes. His talk flits through history and science, art, life and art, but the thought is always connected and illuminating. "He thinks in such various quantities," said one of his old fellow-students of ation that he is working through scores of channels today. "You may trace Geddes in many places where he has never been," said a distinguished educationist to me. "I sometimes say to a student, 'Ah, you have been under Geddes, I see.' 'No,' is the reply, 'I have been with So-and-so at Oxford.' 'Ah, the same thing,' I say, 'I was with So-and-so at University Hall under Geddes 25 years ago.' There are dozens of reputations today which owe their inspiration to Geddes, just as there are many movements and ideas, unassociated with his name that truly belong to him. Take the subject of regional geography which has been transformed by him, or the classification of statistics, or the wonderful development in the teaching of crafts in our technical schools—all Geddes. Whenever I am barren of ideas I go to that surprising book of his 'City Development' which he wrote about the public gardens he laid out for Dunfermline under the Carnegie Trust. It is the very text book of citizenship and education, and I never turn to it without fresh inspiration."

It is natural that a man of such original and wayward genius should have had little material reward for services which the future will appraise as among the most considerable done in this generation. It is natural because we are distrustful of genius and also because Professor Geddes has never made concessions to a dull world. He has obeyed his own imperious impulses, he has followed his own splendid vision without counting the cost or the consequences. Posterity will thank him for it, for the dreamer of today will be the prophet of tomorrow. A. G. G.
