Essay writing cultivates the faculty of imagination and the power of clear and logical expression of thought, both of much importance. It is of great value in our education for commercial work and at the same time creates higher literary tastes. It has been too much neglected in our educational work in, the past, and I am pleased to find that The Planet has put new life and interest in this branch locally, both in teachers and scholars.

In this matter you d serve the praise of the public in general. You have mine in particular.

It was a particularly pleasing and noteworthy feature that the four points were scored by representatives of the county teams of the Eastern division. Vienna, Nov. 28.—The Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung has a telegram from Berlin which attracts general attention, and arouses anxiety regarding Emperor William. The journal in question is often in receipt of semi-official information. The telegram mentioned says: "Though there can be no doubt that the recent operation on Emperor William concerned a benignant formation, the process of healing has not taken the favorable course hoped for. It is by no means certain that the Emperor in the near future will undertake a journey to the south, for it is doubtful if his physicians will assume the responsibility of exposing the Monarch, in his present condition, to the fatigue of a long journey. There is absolutely no question of any immediate danger, but, from the whole course of the process of healing hitherto, it seems as though unexpected complications had arisen, which rarely follow a simple operation for so-called singer's "polypus." In Court circles there is a certain uneasiness, which during the last few days has found expression in talk of the possibility, or even the probability, of a new operation. It is impossible to verify the latter rumor. The Emperor, whose mood remains good, has been ordered by his physicians to take the greatest possible amount of rest, and to spare his vocal-

ORIGIN OF THE ANGELUS. Some Data About the Custom That Makes Millet's Great Painting of Much Greater Interest.

Some interesting facts relating to the origin of the Angelus were related at Rome recently by Mgr. Esser, secretary of the congregation of the index.

The first clear documentary proof of the custom comes from Hungary (diocess of Grau), and dates from the year 1307. In 1317 the practice was common in Montpellier, in France, and the following year Popo John XXII, granted an indulgence to all who took part in the devotion in the Church of Saints. In a lew years the practice was generally ob-to all who took part in the devotion in the Church of Saints. In a lew years the practice was generally observed in Spain, England and Germany, and in the year 1327 the same Pope ordained that a bell should ring the Angelus in one church of every rione or district in the Eternal City at nightfall, granting an indulgence of ten days to all good Romans who recited the angelical saluation.

The ringing of the Angelus in the morning became common in less than a century after the practice of ringing it in the evening had taken root. As far back as 1380 a bell used to be rung at noon at Prague to remind the people to pray in honor of the five wounds, but the first notice we have of the midday Angelus comes from Imola in 1506.

A New Experiment.

The hull of the old battleship Belleislawhich has rested for five weeks on the vesterday, says The Graphic of October, and taken into dock. Experiments were conducted on Sentember 4 with the object of testing the resisting qualities of a new celluloid preservation against torpedo attack. A toripedo was attached to the hull and fired by electricity, inflicting such extensive injury that the yessel had to be run ashore on the mud immediately.

Since then efforts have continuously been made to raise the Belleisle and bring her made to raise the Belleisle and bring he: in for examination. If was, however, found to be almost impossible to deal with the mud that oozed through the rent in the vessel's side. Yesterday morning towed into the dockyard being placed in the south dock. Yesterday afternoon the water was run out of the dock, and I, was seen that the terpedo explosion had done very considerable damage, many done very considerable damage ma plates having been bodily torn away,

BY AIR AND ELECTRICITY.

ew Method of Signalling Adopted Parts of England-Pewer Supplied Direct to Points Required. system of electro-pneumatic sigalling has been installed by the tancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company at the new Bolton station, now approaching completion.

The system employed depends for its action upon a combination of air and electricity. The points and sig-nals, instead of being operated by means of rods and wires, necessitat-ing considerable manual power, are is connected to each pair of points and each signal.

The motors are driven by compressed air at a pressure of about 70 pounds per square inch, and are placed in all cases as close as possible to the points or signals which they operate.

Each cylinder is provided with valves to control the inlets from the air main, and these valves are opened and closed by means of electroed and closed by means of electromagnets actuated by electric currents from the signal-box. Thus the power is applied directly at the point at which its services are required, and is subject to the central control of the signalman. This control is exercised by means of a frame of miniature levers.

Ample measures are provided by means of auxiliary electrical circuits to guard against, a signal being lowered unless the points which it controls are actually in their correct position, and in the case of facing

NEW PAVEMENT

Residents of Victoria Ave. Meet and Decide Definitely upon one-a Unanimous

The ratepayers on Victoria Avenue met last evening at the Police Station to consult in reference to the pavement on that street. The Counc'l took the initiative for an asphalt block pavement 27 feet wide on this thoroughfare. A petition was prepared against it and was sufficiently signed to knock out the initiative. The meeting was held last night to guard against this if possible. Today a petition is being circulated with a view to counteracting the one against the initiative. Those who desired the pavement met last night to a view to counteracting the one against the initiative. Those who descred the pavement met last night to discuss ways and means of securing one. There were about twenty present and all were unanimously in favor of a pavement. The only differences were as to kind and width.

The first discussion was as to the width of the pavement. S. T. Martin presided at the meeting and Chas. Domoyan acted as secretary.

A motion was made for a 22 ft. pavement. There were two amendments, one for a 24 ft. pavement, the other for a 27 ft. pavement. The vote on the last amendment was a tie. Those who supported the 22 ft. pavement them withdrew their motion and the motion for a 24 ft. pavement arried unanimously. It was then agreed to petition the Council for a pavement 24 ft. over all on Victoria Ave. from Thames St. to Gladstome Avenue, the pavement to be either vitrified brick of asphalt block, the kind to be decided by a majority of the ratepayers. All present signed the petition and it is thought that a sulficient number of signatures can be secured to insure the laying of a pavement. be secured to insure the faying of Johnson-McCrae concert at St. Joseph's Hall, Cross street, last evening in aid of St. Joseph's church, proved a fine success. Miss Johnson and Mr. McCrea kept the audience in good humor the whole evening. Miss Johnson's sketch, 'Canadian women when their husbands first become Parliamentarians,' was splendid. Mr. McCrea's efforts in different sketches of the French habitant were fully appreciated, as was evidenced by his several encores. The lunatic scene, a one act comedy put on by both artists, was well performed. The ladies of the church deserve a great evening in aid of St. Joseph's deal of credit for selling tickets and making the affair a success with making the affair a success so many counter attractions.

towered unless the points which it controls are actually in their correct position, and in the case of facing points to ensure that they are also securely bolted in that position.

An ingenious feature is what is known as the "check-locking" arrangement. This ensures that until the movement of a point or signal has been fully completed the lever in the signal-box which is concerned is checked when about three-quarters of its stroke is accomplished.

As soon as the signal or point movement, as the case may be, is properly completed, the "check-lock" is electrically removed and the signal malman is enabled to pull the lever fully over. Until he has done so the mechanical locking in the frame prevents the movement of any contingent point or signal levers, which are thus held locked, until the movement of any necessary points has actually heen comoleted.

The intellectual treat at the meet ing of St. Andrew's Literary Society last evening proved highly instructive and entertaining. The doctor gave a pretty little word sketch of his visit to the tomb of Romeo and Juliet: He also pointed out that Veroma is the only city, in Europe where nearly all the features of the time of the Romans are still preserved. He told of the beauties of Venice, referring specially to St. Mark's church, and interspersed his lecture with little terspersed his lecture with little historical sketches that showed the historical sketches that showed the doctor was not, only a good observer of what he saw but that he was also well acquainted with the historical associations of the cities and places he mentioned.

Canadian sealers against Russia for seizure of their vessels. The Russia Government will also appoint a dele gate, and the meetings of the two rep resentatives will take place in London thus arbitrated have long been the sub ject of diplomatic, correspondence. There were in all eight vessels seized six being taken in 1892. In that year as the result of a special agreement between the United States and Great Britain, Bering Sea was closed to the Canadian sealing fleet, and they there-Canadian sealing fleet, and they therefore sought the Asiatic side of the Pacific, where they carried on operations outside the territorial limits of the Rdssian seal islands, Commander Islands. On the ground that they were in Russian territorial waters the following ships were seized:—Marie Rosie Olsen, Carmolite, Vancouver Belle, Willie McGown, Ariel, Walter P. Hall, and C. H. Tupper. Upon Capt. Daley of the Shelburne, N.S., schooner Willie McGown protesting, the commanding officer of the Russian cruiser Zabiaka, Capt. Then DeLevron informed them that unless they did as requested they would be sent to Vladivostock to be court-martialled, and from then to Siberia, presumably to the mines. The Governor of Bering Island used the same argument to the master of the Rosier Olsen. The ships and their equipment were confiscated, and the crews, after suffering as they claimed considerable hardships, were sent back to Canada. Subsequently the Russian Government held an inquiry of their own, and then admitted that the seizure of the Willie McGowan and the Ariel was unjustified. Berlin, One, Nov. 28.—A serious explosion occurred Thursday at I. E. Shantz & Co.'s foundry, waich might have resulted in the loss of many lives. John Mahn, foreman, about 34 years old, was engaged in testing a steambox, 7 feet by 3 feet, weighing a ton and a half, having 90 pounds pressure on, when the side opposite where he was sitting blew off with a terrible force, scattering the fragments all over the shop. The force threw the box over on Hahn, but, fortunately, there over on Hahn, but, fortunately, there were blocks under it which prevented his being crushed to death. As it was, he had one leg broken in three places, besides being otherwise bruised. It was simply miraculous that no others in the shop were injured by the flying missles. Hahn was taken to the hospital, where he rested fairly after being attended to. on Hahn, but, fortunately, ther

ROBIN HOOD.

Chatham, Nov. 25th, 1903. Editor Planet:

Down through the centuries has ome torus an old ballad, recoun the famous battle between bold Robin Hood, the outlawed Earl of Huntingdon, and the valorous Monk of Fountain Abbey.

In the eleventh century a party of monks left St. Mary's Abbey, York, and selected a site for an abbey in Fountains Dale, After years of boil they erected a building covering eleven acres of ground and the abbey became very wealthy. Oliver Comwell, the man who never deviated from a set purpose, but the famous abbey in ruins, and to-day it stands tumer, about 30 years old living sen miles from here, was detwined in Hay Bay yesterday while taking out fish nets. The tay had frozen over, but as a monument to the builders-four acres of the most magnificent rules and scenery to be found in the Old Country, It adjoins Study Royal the seat of the Most Henorable the Marquis of Ripon. The ballad on which Mr. Augustin Dawtrey's play was first founded is from a black letter copy, corrected by one of much earlier date, in the Pepysian Library, and was printed in 1610. There has been some dispute as to whether the friar, whose fame has thus long survived, was of the Franciscan or Cistercusa order. However, Robin Hood ceased to cultivate his own fireside in Sherwood Forest in order to make a raid into the territory of the monks of Fountains. He had heard that the Curtal Friar of Fountains was carrying things with a high hand which gave numbrage to Robin, who was a firm believer in the democratic ticket.

When Robin Hood and his merry men landed at Fountains it was getting on towards evening. He dispatched his merry men to secure some game for the evening meal, while Robin took stock of the surroundings, About two hundred yards from the abbey, near a stream, he met the curtal frier. His wish to entrap the frier into an altercation having been realized, Robin forces the friar to carry him ever the brook, but the frier gets even with Robin by throwing him in a pool of water.

When everything was in readiness the floor manager piloted the dancers downstairs. From the office Alan saw them filing into the big room and taking seats in the chairs arranged against the walls on all sides. He saw Frank Hillhouse and Dolly Barday sit down near the band; the salesman had disappeared. Alan threw his cigar away appeared. Alan threw his cigar away and went straight to her.

"Oh, here you are!" laughed Frank Hillhouse as Alan shook hands with her. "I told Miss Dolly coming on that the west wind would blow you this way, and when I saw Ray Miller just now I knew you'd struck the town." "It wasn't exactly the wind," replied Alan. "I'm afraid you will forget me if I stay on the farm all the time." We certainly are glad to have you," smiled Miss Barclay.

smiled Miss Barchy.
"I knew she'd say that—I knew it,
I knew it," said Hillhouse. "A girl' can always think of nicer things to say to a feller than his rival can. Old Squire Trabue was teasing me the other day about how hard you was to beat, Bishop, but I told him the bigger the war the more victory for some-body, and, as the feller said, I tote fair and am aboveboard."

Alan greeted this with an all but visible shudder. There was much in his dignified bearing and good appearance to commend him to the preference of any thinking woman, especially when contrasted to Hillhouse, who was only a fittle taller than Dolly and was showing himself even at a greater disadrantage in his unrefined allusions to his and Alan's attentions to her. Indeed Alan was sorry for the spectacle the fellow was making of himself and

"That's true," said Dolly, with one of her rare smiles.

"Yes"—Hillhouse took another header into forbidden waters—"he's about olded your church, they tell me."

Alan treated shis welth an indulgent smile. He did not dislike Hillhouse. but he did not admire him, and he had but he did not admire him, and he had-never quite liked his constant atten-tions to Miss Barclay. But it was an acknowledged fact among the society, girls of Darley that if a girl refused to go put with any young man in good standing it was not long before she was left at home oftener than was pleasant. Dolly was easily, the dest looking girl in the room—not perhaps looking girl in the room—net perhaps the most daintily pretty; but she possessed is beauty which strength of character and intellect alone could give to a face already well featured. Even her physical beauty alone was of that texture which gives the beholder an agreeable sense of solidity. She was well formed, above medium height, had a beautiful neck and shoulders, dark gray eyes and abundant gelden brown hair.

"May I see your card?" asked Alan.

"Peame early to secure at least one."

At this Frank Hillhouse burst out laughing, and she smiled up at Alan.

"He's been teasing me all evening about the predicament I'm in," she explained! "The truth is, I'm not going to dance at all. The presiding elder happened in town today on his way through and is at our house. You know how bitter he is against church members dancing. At first mamma said I shouldn't come a step, but Mr Hillhouse and I succeeded in getting up a compromise. I can only look on. But my friends are having pity on me and filling my card for what they call stationary dances.

He wondered at her silence at just such a moment. The tightness of her lips gave way, and they fell to trembling when she started to speak. "I hardly know, what to say," she began. "Perhaps I ought to take my name off your card," he said, drawing himself up slightly. "If he were to hear that I talked to you tonight, he might make it unpleasant for you."

"If you do, I shall never—never forgive you," she answered in a voice that shook. There was, too, a glistening in her eyes as if tears were springing. "Wouldn't that show that you harbored ill will against me, when I am so helpless and troubled?"

"Yes, it would, and I shall come back," he made answer. He rose, for Hillhouse, calling loudly over his shoulder to some one, was thrusting his bowed arm down toward her."

Rayburn Miller's hat and light overcost were on the bed. Alan sat down in one of the stiff backed, split bottom chairs and stared straight in front of him. Never in his life had he suffered as he was now suffering. He could see no hope ahead; the girl he loved was lost to him. Her father had heard of the foolhardiness, of old man Bishop and, like many another well meaning parent, had determined to save his daughter from the folly of marrying a daughter from the folly of marrying a penniless man who had doubtless in-herited his father's lack of judgment and caution.

MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

She tells of her experience in the following letter: "I was troubled with a pain in my heart and weakness for six years. Most of the time I could not lie on my left side. I consulted a doctor but got no relief and was completely discouraged. I did not think I would live long and expected my friends would find me dead. A friend brought me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I took them to please her, not thinking they would do me any good. I had not used half the box when I commenced to feel myself getting better and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and can recommend them to all sufferers from heart trouble."

CRIMPING IN QUEBEC.

Michael Huck, better known as Michael "Huck, better known as Mick, was a prominent member of the rimiping profession, well-known to the police of old Quebcc fifty years ago. Not a vicious man, for a crimp, he carried or a large business, and his ready tongue never failed him., Like his confreres, he got joul of the law occasionally, but not to any great extent. In the few records, left by the late Chiof Trude, of the water police, his name graces the entries, as a suspect, but in the wind, up, he almost invariably comes out, abead. "Found no saalors," is the usual conclusion of the raid. Just how, he squared himself, is hard to say, for his erpno ium was generally well-filled during the shipping season, especially by foreign seamen, of whom he had the monopoly, but he isanged, to get clear, in a surprising namer.

Hyck had a sense of humor, too, eep and fine, as one of his transacons abundantly proves. A ship new-y arrived contained a crew, ready to espend to his solicitations to derespond to his solicitations to desert, but only upon the promise that they would be sent to Chicago, where wages for lake mariners were, at the time, high, and alluring. He readily made the required promise, and carried it out, by shipping them while dazed by liquor, upon a ship bound for Liverpool, so salving his conscience and gratifying his friends by ience and gratifying his friends by a display of wit, at the same time by inserting in the shipping papers as to destination, Chicago, via Liverpool.

If the apologists of this illicit trade could have at any time discovered one redeeming feature, they certainly failed to, and were silent on the subject, as the feverish days of the subject, as the leverish days of stilpping from 1850 and onward pro-duced a system of terrorism, such as shocked society. The knife was buse ily at work, and above the yells of combat, which issued constantly from the alenas in which the seamen fought, the cry of murder was too of-ten plainly heard. Many were torn from the decks of ships by hired from the decks of ships by hired gangs of rufflans and driven, like sheep into these haunts of infamy. Even mates were shanghaied, and shipped as common sailors, in spite of their appeals and protests. To supply a waiting ship and secure an advance note, kidnapping in open day was not uncommon. Here is a note from a lournal at the time. was not uncommon. Here is a note from a journal of the time.

The master of the Juno reports that, having sent his carpenfer on shore to obtain certain holts needed for the windlass, he was overpowered on the wharf by a crimp, thought to the Patrick Dyer, and carried on board an American ship, which sailed im-mediately after for Rio.

The open raids upon anchored ships-ended by a murder, brutal and cov-arilly, and brought the authorities to understand that matters of this kind had gone already too far, and that steps must be taken to crush out the A ship lying in the stream was A ship tying in the stream was boarded at about ten o'clock one night by a man named Doherty, a runner for Michael Hayden, a well-known crimp of the port. The night watchman gallantly resisted the efforts of the ruffian to remove the crew, whereupon Doherty drew a revolver and shot him dead. Making his way to shore, he was hidden by the fraternity so cleverly, that the police never discovered his place of ually made his escape dressed as a concealment, and the murderer eventconcealment, and the murderer eventually made his excare dressed as woman.

In fact the crimp himself has disappeared from his old haunts beneath the grity cliffs of Quebec, and he has no successors. One alone of those who carried on that terrible trade is still alive, doing a quiet sailor boarding house business in a small way, a survival of a past in which he bore a part himself, but of better repute than his associates. Of the rest, some fell in conflict, some were reptus than his associates. Of the rest, some fell in conflict, some were drowned while engaged in their illeg-al calling, some lived to a green old age, but all have passed away, re-pentant let us hope, of their dark pentant let us hope, of their deeds.

The system became impossible netter from prosecution by an offended law, but because the rapid decline in shipping, which rendered the once busy wharves and coves of Quebec lonely and silent, robbed the crimps of their victims, and closed them up forever. They stayed for a time to gaze with saddened eyes at the steamships passing upward to Mentreal, and fooked in vain for the lofty sails which in the old conditions came thickly from in vain for the lofty sails which in the old conditions came thickly from the east, to provide them with what they had come to consider as their natural prey. Then such as could moved away—to Pensecola or Savannah—and such as could not sought a living as stevedores or timber tow-vers.

A great quiet fell upon that once riotous scene, and respectability threw its cloak over the district where they had so long abounded wio-lence, license and murder.

Will the old dead and busied herrors return to life even again with

This from a publicist who has fought upon a hundred platforms side by side with the men whom he now pronounces to be all wrong! Surely Phillips Thompson knows that only a week ago it was announced that the listrict Labor Council represents well-nigh twelve thousand Toroutonians. How can he expect to fight this phalanx? But it is easy to foresee Mr. Thompson's course. He will go on his way undismayed. His withers are unwrung and his courage is sempiternal. He has fought many a battle, all uncaring whether or not victory could be his, The principle of the thing has been what has always actuated the kindly Jinuel Briggs. In public life as denunciatory as a Robespierre; in private as mild as a Vicar of Wakefield, is Phillips Thompson. The things he says about capitalists and the things he says he would have done to capitalweek ago it was announced that th about capitalists and the things he says he would have done to capitalists are enough to make one's hair stand on end. Fire flashes from those mild eyes, and seething words come from behind these conciliating whiskers. This, though, is when it is time to discuss the iniquities of the social system. On other and social occasions the ferocity is replaced by a mildness and suavity that would sit well on a physician taking up practice in a new town.

His Socialists, he hastens to acquaint the public by way of the press, are the only genuine blown-in-the bottle, see registered-trade-mark Socialists. Canadian Gevernment should take cognizance of the persistent habit into which London Magistrates and Police Court officials seem to have fallen of regarding Canada as a suitable dumping ground for criminals? The latest case of the kind came before the Westminster Police Magistrate on Monday last. A young man was charged with disorderly conduct and it appeared from the evidence that the prisoner had been charged sixteen times at, this one court with assault, begging, drunkeness and disorderliness. Yet arrangements had actually been made by the Police Court missionary through a philanthropic society to Lots of It, Says a Man Who Mas Rec by the Police Court missionary, through a philanthropic society, to send this young scamp to Canada. Indeed, the prisoner's passage was booked, and every preparation completed, but happily, when Liverpool was reached, he refused to go on board ship, and was soon back in his old haups. No thanks are due to the old haunts. No thanks are due to the Westminister Magistrate or to the Police Court, missionary if Canada, has been spared the attentions of this confirmed criminal. A band of Canadien Mormons, who recently attended the Sait Lake Conference, had a curious experience at the border line on returning. The Raymond, Alberta Chrontelet thus describes it. "At Coutts, when an inspection of the baggage was being made by the Canadian customs officials and the train was south of the line, a row was started between some cowboys on the station platform and guns were drawn and used. The fracas took place within a few feet of the passinger coach, and one of the flying bullets came through a window and out the opposite side, passing within a few inches of Mr. and Mrs. L. King, and Mayor and Mrs. McCarty, showering them with chips of wood and broken glass. Within a few feet of the shooters were some Mounted Polite, but the red line on the platform was between them, preventing an arrest. On the red the on the platform was between them, preventing an arrest. On the American side no peace officers were around. It is a matter of record that all these little incidents at Coutts take place south of the line, the prudence of belligerents never al-lowing them to get within reach of the Canadian law."

MERCHANT OF VENICE.

MERCHANT OF VENICE.

In securing the support to surround Mr, Elmer Buffham in his production of Shakespear's beautiful comedy, "The Merchant of Venice," Mesers. Fletcher and Stronach have looked the theatrical world over for the right artist in the right place. One of the leading members of "The Merchant of Venice" sompany will be Mr. Charles Pierson, the veteran actor who will be remembered by old time aftendants of the theatre. Mr. Pierson is one of the few surviving members of the old school of legitimate actors, having been a prominent member of the companies of such artists as Edwin Forrest, Rossi, Edwin Booth, Laura Keene, etc. Time has dealt most kindly with this veteran of the stage, and he retains all the sprit and life of the golden age of the drama. His unctuous comedy and pleasing personality will be one of the leatures when "The Merchant of Venice" is presented in our city on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 3.

Chicago Man Tells Story of Murder and Robbery that Recalls Jesse James' Days.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Chained wrist to wrist, their hair matted with dried blood, their clothing covered with dust and dirt, two beardless boys, Peter Niedermeier and Harvey Van Dine, sas to-night in the presence of Mayor Harrison and Chief of Police O'Neil calmrison and Chief of Police O'Neil calmly confessing to their share in a three-months career of crime which had included nine murders, the wounding of five other men and a long series of robberies. The two young bandits, neither of whom is over twenty-one years of age, together with their companion, Emil Roeski, who is no older, were captured near Liverpool, Ind., today after a fight in which they battled against policemen, railroad detectives, railroad laborers and farmers. One man was killed, another fatally wounded, and all three of the young bandits were wounded, but not seriously Neidermeier was wounded in the hand by bird shot; Van Dine was similarly injured and sustained in addition a flesh wound in the left thigh. Roeski was shot in the right hip. His wound is the most serious of any inflicted upon the three men, but was not sufficiently serious to prevent him from trayelling a long distance after receiving it.

Mr. Fred. Yeates, of Chicago, is paying his Wallaceburg friends a visit.

The three men were wanted by the police for complicity in the murders at the car barns of the Chicago City Railroad Company on August 30, when two men were killed, a third badly wounded and $2,250 stolen from the company. Gustav Marx, who last Saturflay night murdered Officer John Quinn when the policeman endeavored to place him under a rest, confessed after his capture that he, in company with the three men, had committed the crimes at the car barns. The hunt for Van Dine, Niedermeier and Roeski had been hot ever since. Although the entire police force was booking for them, the three men remained in the city until Wednesday morning. Word was brought to the police last night by T. S. Reichers, a school teacher near Clark Station, Ind., that three men answering the description of those wanted for the car barn murders were living in a dug-out.

Clark Station, Ind., that three men answering the description of those wanted for the car barn murders were living in a dug-out.

The men were at once handcuffed, placed upon a train and harried to Chicago, and taken into the office of Chied of Police O'Neill, and there, in the presence of Mayor Harrison and a throng of officers, they discussed the events of the day as calinly as thought that been nothing unusual for them. None of the prisoners showed any bravado, and did no boasting. They showed not the slightest hesitation in confessing to their crimes. Van Dine sat upright, and talked freely, showing in word and bearing the courage that he has revealed throughout. Niedermeier sat, with his head on his hands. When twan Dine said, "Pete, here, show Driscol," Niedermeier looked up, smiled slightly, and remarked. Yes, I show Driscol and the brakeman' and then sank back to listen to Van Dine. and her crew of seven is all but gone. The schooner is long over-due, and inquiry at every port along the lake has failed to elicit any news of her.

It was on November 3 that the Emeraid, a three-masted schooner, of 700 tons rating, eleared from this port light for Fairhaven, where Captain McMaster took on coal for the Toronto Electric Light Company. When he started back to this city he had on board with him Thomas Slight, Port Hope, mate; Walter McMaster, his twenty-two-year-old son, a sallor; John Seldrick and J. Bowerman, sailors, of South Bay, near Picton; A. Wright of St. Catharines, and a sallor from Ogdensburg, whose name is unknown. When the schooner was within twenty-five miles of this harbor she encountered heavy head winds, and was forced to put back to Charlotte. Captain Van Vlack of the steambarge Van Allan saw Captain McMaster leave there to again alternpt to make Toronto. Later his barge overtook the Emeraid under full sail off Broderick's Point, ten miles west of Charlotte. This was a week ago Sunday, and after the vessels parted a strong gale, accompanied by snow, came up. Captain. Van Vlack expected the Emeraid to follow him into port. The Van Allan arrived a week last Sunday, but there has been no further word of the Emeraid. On Thursday a telegram was received here to the effect that the schooner was windhound off McDonalds Cove, on the nod further but this has been found to be incorrect. PROFIT IN SUGAR BEEN session of the sugar beet convention was held yesterday at the Grand River Pavilion, in Bridgeport, It was the most largely attended of the three sessions, and was also the most interesting and profitable from a beet-growesting and profitable from a beet-growers' standpoint.

Dr. James Mills, President of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was in attendance, and conducted the session. An informal discussion took place as to whether the growing of sugar beets had proved profitable during the past season. Dr. Mills, in his opening remarks, said he regarded the Germans of Waterloo county as the best settlers in Canada, and that Bertin was the most suitable place for a lin was the most suitable place for a sugar refinery, on account of being in the midst of a German settlement. The success of a terman settlement, the success of a the sugar industry depended on the regular supply of sugar beets, by the farmers, the management of the refinery and the price of sugar. He regarded the pulp of the sugar beet as one of the best fattening foods in existence. Dr. Mills then questioned the farmers regarding the results of the season.

Season.

One farmer, living three miles from Berlin, had 25 acres, and his expenses amounted to $33.51. He will receive in the neighborhood of $1,500 for his in the neighborhood of $1,500 for his beets, at the rate of about $5.25 per ton. Another farmer raised ten acres, and hauled to the factory 130 tons, which netted him about $650. His expenses were $147. The general opinion of the farmers present was that the raising of sugar beets was profitable. It is not likely that the farmers who asked for $4.50 per ton for beets will cease growing beets, in the face of the facts gatheaed from the farmers at the convention.

Takes Too Much For Granted

Rev. Charles Eaton Says That Is the Church's Weakness—An Interesting Interview With The To-the popular pastor of Bloor street Baptist church and now the officiating minister at "Rockefeller's church," Cleveland, who has been in the city for a few days, was interviewed by a News representative on Saturday. The subjects suggested to him were varied in character, but on each Mr. Eation spoke most interestingly and with remarkable rea diness

"How do you find Cleveland and the United States as a field for religious activity?" was the reporter's first query.

"The problem of the church in the United States is the problem of the city," Mr. Eaton promptly replied. First, on account of the enormous growth of the cities, both in numbers and in population; secondly, on account of the mixed nature of the population, and thirdly, on account of the great social contrasts resulting from the enormous aggregation of wealth in the cities. These make the American city at once a very difficult and a very fascinating field for religious work. MUST DEAL WITH INDIVIDUALS.

"The weakness of the Protestant churches in the American cities rests upon the fact that they have taken too much for granted. For instance, Rev. Dr. Rainsford of New York states that in the twenty years of his pastorate down town forty Protestant churches moved out from his district and 300,000 people moved in. The cause of that movement in all American cities, largely, is this, that the church takes it for granted that it must deal with the family rather with the individual, whereas the fact it must deal with the family rather with the individual, whereas the fact is that a very large proportion of our city population is composed of individuals, not of families at all. Personally, I find Cleveland to be the easiest place to do religious work in which I have ever been looked. I think it is because I take nothing for granted. I believe we nothing for granted. I believe we are reaching the foreigners with the result that when we organized a boys' club at the church we had fourteen nationalities represented. We find all classes of foreign population—Jew and Gentille—accessible to wise and sympathetic approach. I feel that the problem for the church in America gathers about the children, and I am an ardent advocate of church work for children, such as day nurseries, free kindergartens, boys' and girls' clubs, and sewing classes, social settlement work, and, above all, Sunday school work, backed and supported by the church." nothing for granted. Rev. Charles A. Eaton, formerly | ADVANTAGE TO BE CANADIAN.

"There are thousands of Canadians "There are thousands of Canadians in Cleveland, as in every other American city, Mr. Eaton responded, and almost invariably they occupy positions of trust. It is a distinct advantage to a man to hail from Canada. I find a great lack of prejudice towards Canadians such as one frequently meets here towards Americans. Over there people don't care where a man comes from care where a man comes from, or who is his father. They simply want to know if he can "do the business." If he can, they receive him with open arms. For instance, three deacons of my church are Canadians. My secretary and one or visitors are also Canadians. My secretary and one of my church visitors are also Canadians. That is "There is an awakening interest in Canadians throughout the country, largely due to the agitation for reciprocity, and also to the increase of American capital in Canada. I of American capital in Canada. I have been very deeply impressed with the growth of Canada in the last two years. I believe we are entering upon a period of great industrial and commercial expansion which will probably extend over the next fifty years. There will be many great fortunes made in Canada in that time. It seems to me that the interests of this continent are largely identical, but the hour has come for Canada to claim her are largely identical, but the hour has come for Canada to claim her rights from the United States in the way of reciprocal trade adjustments. "Heads I win, tails you lose" is all very well from the largerican point of view, but it strikes me that a revised version of that commercial principle ought to be issued by Canada pretty soon. I think we have in Canada a great deal to hope for from the leadership of men like Charles McIntyre, a leading Canadian lawyer of Boston; and Eugene Foss, also of that city, who are taking a prominent part in the agutation for reciprocity."

NEEDLESS ALARM

At last evening's meeting, Rev. C. Telmie, who is moderating in the call to a minister for the First Pres-byterian church, animadverted on the "demaging report published in a local paper" as to the meeting of last week. It is needless to say that said "damaging' report did not appear in the News.—Banner.

Quite needless, sonny. We fancy no one would consider a Banner report so seriously, one way or the other and the idea of supposing one really "damaging' does appear very hum orous.

For instance, Rev. Mr. Tolmie ever said anything of the kind, nor alluded specifically to any "local paper," but neither the speaker and the congregation whom he addressed mor this great home journal has time to bother with what the little Banmer manikin says he said, or what the Banner says he said he said. Why otherwise a whole series of community-racking chicken slander comedies might result.

ROSEBERY A STRONG LEADER

Lord Rosebery may not be laboring any harder now than he did when plowing his lonely furrow and doing his solitary spade work, but he is certainly bulking more largely in the public eye. If there has been any doubt as to who is the real protagonist of Joseph Chamberlain it should be dispelled after the great demon stration he elicited in South London on Wednesday. There is no other man on the Liberal side at the pres ent moment who holds so much the public eye and is so great and universal a popular favorite. And this sympathetic ovation may have much greater significance than any mere temporary effect it has in connection with the present fiscal controversy. For all this enthusiasm on the part of so many thousands of the people is not exclusively inspired by the is sue between protection and free trade It is largely a personal tribute proffered by the rank and file of the Liberal party to the man who, they instinctively feel, holds the immediate future of the party in his hand. That this is so is practically shown by the attitude of the pro-Boer section. Ever since Lord Rosebery's patriotic attitude over the South African war and his determined opposition to the identification of the Liberal party with the views of the Little Englanders they have schemed and striven to extrude him and his supporters from the ranks. But his hold on the country has proven too strong, or they too weak, and they are now industriously engaged in covering their defeat with a cloud of verbal dust and ashes

The reinstatement of Lord Rosebery as leader of the Liberal party in the United Kingdom would be frought with issues of much moment to the empire. For not withstanding his decided stand against Mr. Chamberlain's proposals he is an out and out Imperialist -was, indeed, ardently so long before Mr. Chamberlain turned his attention thitherwards. Nor is he altogether averse to special protective duties for special purposes, and in this he approx mates somewhat to the wiew put forward by the Duke of Devcashire and many of the Free Food Leaguers. But the real weakness of the position taken up by Mr. Chamberlain's numerous and varied opponents lies in the fact that they are critics only. They are all great at inventing nicknames and discovering odious resemblances. They are expert in turning the edge of an embarrassing argument or covering a homethrust with a more or less labored ridicule. All of them cannot do this with the light touch and airy grace of Lord Rosebery. But even he cannot wholly conceal the lack of substantiality in the panaceas he offers for the ills under which Britain is groaning. No doubt improved, practical, technical and commercial education is a good and highly desirable thing. So is the reduction of the na tional expenditure if it can be done without impairing the efficiency of the great services of the country. It would be very gratifying to all social reformers if the drink bill of the nation were reduced, the growth of cotton within the empire encouraged and British bagmen's general knowledge increased. These, however, are, like Premier Balfour's retaliation policy, just palliatives, not remedies. They are all in the way of good "training for race competition," but the great and primary essential is that the race competition shall be in the first place fair. This primary desideration Mr. Chamberlain pledges himself to secure by promoting the inter-trade of the empire and providing an equal basis for negotiating with foreign rivals and competitors. And one remedy is better than an infinity of palliatives.

When a government takes for granted that its safety is the chief end of a party's existence, and offers no explanation casting a better light on the aspect of things, it practically puts a premium on independent thought and utterances. AN ACHING BACK

The Trouble Usually Due to Impure Blood and Clogged Kidneys

That weary, dragging backache is anse deagerous than you think. It points straight to deadly kidney crouble. Your kidneys ache because your blood is bad, and filtering through has clogged them with filtry inflammatory coisans. inflammatory poisons, Common, purging, backache pills can never cure you. They only excite the kidneys, they can't possibly touch the cause of the trouble in the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the only positive cure for aching kidneys. They make new, rich, red blood. They conquer the inflammation and drive out the poison. They cleanse the kidneys and stimulate them to healthy action. Then your backaches vanish. Here is positive proof given by Mr. Geo. Johnson, of Ohio. N. S., who says:—"My son, now eighteen years old, suffered with kidney trouwho says:—My son, now signeen years old, suffered with kidney trouble, from severe pains in the back, and passed sleepless nights. We tried several medicines, but they did not help him. In fact he was growing weaker; his appetite failed, and he could hardly do the usual work that falls to the lot of every boy on a farm. Finally a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Fills, and this was the first medicine that reached the cause of the trouble. He continued to use the pills for a couple of months and I am now happy to say that every symptom of the trouble has disappeared and he is now as strong and healthy as any boy of his age. International Rible Lesson for To-Morrow-David's Charge to Solomon-I. Chron. 28, 1-10.

Golden Text-"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart.'

To-day's lesson gives us a grand and impressive scene to close the reign of David, the king chosen, "a man after God's own heart;" he desires to settle Solomon on the throne before he dies, so calls together all the leading men of the nation, and before them the aged king, poet, warrior and mtatesman rises to the occasion and gives evidence to all that his heart, faith and purpose are as strong as ever. David reviews the sovereign goodness of God toward him and his house, mentions his own ardent desire to build a house for the honor sire to build a house for the honor and worship of the God of Israel, but God denied him this supreme wish, but if he could not build he could gather the materials, those who cannot do one kind of work for God and H's people can do another; all have some kind of service for the kingdom. "At it, all at it, and always at it," was Wesley's wise motto for Christian work. 'Age and youth stand here was Wesley's wise motto for Christian work, Age and youth stand here side by side, the one laying aside the cares and responsibilities of a throne, the other just about to take them up, one wise with long experience, the other having all to learn.

Verse 9-"And thou, Solomon, my son, know thou the God of thy father, and serve Him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind, for the Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the eth all the imaginations of the thoughts; if thou seek Him He will be found of thee; but if thou forsake Him He will cast thee off for ever." Verse 10-"Take heed now; for the Lord hath chosen thee to build a house for the sanctuary; be strong and do it."

"Teach me to do Thy will, O God," should be the prayer of every child of the King of Kings, and strength to do it will be given to the willing mind.

Men often say things which sound bright but have little in the way of meaning.

There are some women who seem to be percunially youthful. The grown daughters are companions as well as children, and the color in the mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the roundness of her form, all speak of abounding health. What is her secret? She is at the middle age of life of abounding health. What is her secreft? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has only ripened her charms. The secret of this matronly health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase. Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of woman is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate womanly organs, that where these are diseased, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" dries the debilitating imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Women who have lost their health and their ntered according to Act of Parliament of Cas-ada, in the year 1903, by William Baily, of Te-rente, at the Dep't of Agriculture. Ottawa.

Chicago, Nov. 22.-In this sermon appropriate to the season, the preacher points out the manifold reasons we have for a joyfu. acknowledgment of God's goodness to us on every hand. The text is Proverbs xer, 15, "He that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast."

Thanksgiving day! What does this queen of festivals mean to the average hungry boy—for the average boy is always hungry! A feast, a great big dinner! A feast which is famous for two characteristics—first, quantity—that is the great essential; second, quality—this second characteristic must tread closely upon the heels of the former. Not only should were be plenty of food and not only should the soups and the fish, the turkeys and the ducks and the vegetables and the salads and the pies and the puddings and the ice cream and the puddings and the jice cream. and the puddings and the ice cream be marshaled in courses, but these courses must all be of good quality. Then the gardens should contribute their finest pumpkins, the vineyards their most luscious fruits and the orchards their richest juices. Then the cooks must try to outdo themselves by testing the secred recipes for the mixed property of the cooks and the secred recipes for the mixed property of the secred recipes for the secred recipes selves by testing the secred recipes for the mince pies—these recipes for the mince pies—these recipes which the cooks guard as jealously as the patent medicine men do the formulas of their "cure alls."

We have never fully outgrown our early respect for the culinary master-pieces of the Thanksgiving kitchen. We hope that we never shall. But to-day we would interpret our text from a higher standpoint than the hungry boy's stomach. We would apply it, in the figurative sense, to the banquet of gratitude, the banquet of love, the banquet of divine mercy—the banquet which King Solomon described when he wrote these words: "He that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast." It is in order to recount some of the many mercies, both netional fixed. recount some of the many mercies, both national and domestic, that I preach this sermon. May our hearts, one and all, be joyful on the coming inksgiving day! My purpose extends beyond the day itself. Next Thursday, we call to mind our mercies and render thanks to him who has crowned the year with his goodness, but his blessings to us as individuals are so many and so great that they demand what Solomon in my text calls a continual feast. Not alone on the coming Thanksgiving Day, but every day from year to year as we receive daily bounties from his hand, should our hearts beat with love and graefude to him whose goodness and market. to him whose goodness and mercy follow us all our days. Thanking follow us all our days. Thanking him for past mercles, trusting him for future blessings, let us rejoice that we have a God so good and kind, and thus let eur thanksgiving kind, and thus let eur thanksgiving become perpetual and eur gladness a continual feast.

Let us rejoice over our national possessions geographical. Nature has given us as altars at which to worship the storm riven rocks of Mount Washington, Shasta and Pike's peak, which are old enough to have heard God thunder from Mount Sinai and whose hearts may have been shatterd at the tragedy of Calvary. Ferle and beautiful our land! Yes. Truly it is with us as with the people who inherited the promised land: ple who inherited the promised land:
"The Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land; a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of values. t spring out of valleys and hills. a land of wheat and barley and tines; and fig trees and pomegranates; a land of oil, olives and honey; a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness—thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass. When thou hast eaten and art full then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee."

Another dust for thanksgiving is Another cuts for thanksgiving is our industrial prosperity. It is one thing to possess a fortune; it is quite another thing to be able to make that fortune interest bearing; one fact to be "land rich," another fact to be "land poor." Many and many a man has been hurled against a financial wall and his business life squeezed out in the bankruptcey court not because he did not own a fortune, but because he could not make marketable at the time the securities he possessed. Many years make marketable at the time the securities he possessed. Many years ago a prominent railroad man was taking Thanksgiving dinner at our home in Brooklyn. During a walk that afternoon our guest made a statement which will never leave my memory. "De Witt," said he to my father, for they were old school friends, "if I live one year more I shall be worth a million dollars; if three years, three millions. But if I die within six months my estate and three years, three millions. But if I die within six months my estate and investments are in such an involved condition that I shall be worth practically nothing." He died within six months, and his fears in reference to his estate were verified. Now, our country has to be thankful for its blessings geographical during the past year. It has also to be thankful because it has been blessed industrially. Never since our Government was founded have there been greater harvests or a vaster tide ment was founded have there been greater harvests or a vaster tide of transportation west to east and east to west; never a time when our factories have been so overworked; never a time when there has been so much money to east discipline. much money to spend and in circula-tion; never a time when labor has been receiving so much for its ser-vices. So overcrowded are some of the factories with orders that, though the factories with orders that, though they may work night and day, they cannot supply the deamnd for shoes, gloves, hats, linen, hosiery and over-coats and umbrellas, wagons and automobiles and all the necessities and luxuries of life. The only scar-city to day in the business world is the and luxuries of life. The only scar-city to-day in the business world is the scarcity of men. Work? There is plenty of work for every honest man cap-able of doing any mechanical work who is not a shirk, a loader or an incapable. To-day ought we not to be thankful that every man is able to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow-that work, blessed work, is within the grasp of all?

brow—that work, blessed work, is within the grasp of all?

The opportunities industrial with which this Thanksgiving Day of 1903 has been blessed are the more to be appreciated because they have for a dark background the financial panics of 1895 and 1896 and 1897. In business so extensive and diversified as ours there have been losses and perils and ominous disturbances, but we have survived them, and the general trend has been prosper-ous. They tell us that our laborers ous. They tell us that our laborers receive two and one-half times as much as those in England, three times as much as in France, four times as much as in Germany, five times as much as in Russia and six times as much as in Italy. But, times as much as in Italy. But, though foreign labor may receive but a mere pittance for its services, some of us can remember, during the panic days of 1896, when hundreds and thousands of men here could not get work at any price. We remember when at night the floors of the Chicstation houses were crowded with half starved, unkempt mass of humanity, striving in every way get work and yet unable to find If you have not fathomed any the deep miseries of those dark years then read a tragedy as intense and vivid as William Shakespeare ever wrote. Read the pathetic autobio-graphy of Walter Augustus Wyckoff, the Princeton professor who wrote the two books called "Workers East" and "Workers West." In ord-er to learn by personal experience the condition of the unskilled worker, he left his professorial chair dur-ing those dark years and tried to support himself as a day laborer. He plodded through the streets of our great cities day in and day out. He pleaded for work. He pleaded with starving eyes and parched tongue. He lived among human brutes who were once men, but who had become were once men, but who had become embruted by hunger and were wild because they were starving and could not find work. O my brother, on this coming Thanksgiving Day be grateful. Deep down in your heard be grateful that there is now work, plenty of work, for all honest, capable men who are willing to work. It's been hard times for the country.

Another cause for rejoicing: We are a great collection of happy homes. As a people, we love our own firesides. The name that is most honored in our ears is not that of general or prince or king or cardinal, but that of father and mothers bushend wife bother eight dinal, but that of father and mous-er, husband, wife, brother, sister, son, daughter, grandchild. So honor-ed are the domestic terminologies among us that one of the greatest encomiums ever given to the martyr-ed President. William McKinley, was that he was a tender, loving hus-band. The best speech he ever made, the one that touched most deeply the hearts of his countrymen, was not a political speech, but the gentle words he uttered to his sick wife. To her he was never impatient, never unkind, always the tender and pro-tecting lover and friend. Those little lover-like attentions to his invalid spouse thrilled American hearts beause the American nation is essentially a collection of loving, happy Of course in making such a statement as this we do not affirm the American people are entirely free from domestic scandal and divorce courts, but we do affirm that, in comparison with the millions upon millions of happy American homes, millions of happy American nonnear, unhappy homes are the rare exception. And we do affirm that the longer we live the dearer those homes become to us day by day. I know that this fact is true in reference to myself and my many friends. When I was a boy I was sent away to a military boarding school. People said that I would get homesick when I left my mother and sisters. Well, that I would get homesick when I left my mother and sisters. Well, that was true. I did get homesick. But as a small boy I never got so awfully homesick in leaving my mother and sisters as I do now when I have to leave my wife and children. Why, home is becoming so precious to me that people say I am getting foolish. to me that people say I am getting foolish and unreasonable about it. I, myself, not only never want to leave home, but I never want any of the members of my family to leave it. If one of my children is gone even for a night there is left a great, big aching void. Is not my history that of almost every one of us? Are we not one and all members of heart we not, one and all, members of han py homes? Shall we not then thank God for the love that glows around our firesides, for our many blessings domestic?

Another cause for national grati-tude: Our national solidity and po-litical perpetuity. This was not al-ways self-evident. When the United States Government was formed there were thousands of foreign statesmen who derisively shook their heads. These wiseacres said: "That nation These wiseacres said: "That nation will never be run successfully. No people were ever competent to govere 'temselves." But, strange to say. Just as the scientific wiseacres argued against the practicability of Robert Stephenson's locomotive, and it ran after all, so, after the Revolutionary war, the United States Government ran smoothly and successfully. It ran in spite of the evil prophecies that kings and princes and European statesmen uttered against it.

Then came the dark clouds of the Civil war. Oh, how dark and how threatening were those clouds! The cannonadings of the most awful atmospheric thunders were not louder than the roarings of the guns at Vicksburg and Gettystarg and Atlanta and Petersburg. The worst flashes ta and Petersburg. The worst flashes of atmospheric lightning never blind-ed the eyes as badly as did the flames of burning homes in the southland or the sheets of fire leaping out sharpshooters' rifles. "Aha!" again tried the political wiseacres of Europe. "The Government for the people and by the people has at last heard its funeral knell!" But the dark clouds rolled away, the sword was turned into the plowshare the spear into the pruning was turned into the plowshare and the spear into the pruning hook, and, thank God, the Government "for the people and by the people" still lived.

Now, my friends, there have been foreign depreciators of our form of Government, and there have been domestic depreciators also. There have been political agitators, decade after decade, who have tried to conver the Government, and there have been domestic depreciators also. There have been political agitators, decade after decade, who have tried to convey the idea that this Government of ours was built upon the quicksands, that the corner stone of our national capitol would be toppled over unless this or that man was elected President of the United States. These domestic political agitators had their heyday in the first half of the past century. Clear down to the time of the election of a Grant over a Greeley and a Garfield over a Hancock and a Cleveland over a Blaine we have heard the old story that the prosperity or failure of our Government depended upon the election of this or that man. Now, thank God as a nation we have lived long enough to know that the strength of this country is not dependent upon any one man, any one hundred men or any one thousand men. The strength of our country to-day is vested in the masses of the people, the common people, remain true to God so long will the Government gloriously live. The responsibility of the chief executive grows greater as the influence of the country increases. But let us never be unduly alarmed. The destinies of this great nation are in the hands of the King of kings. To him on this coming Thanksgiving day we bend the knee and commit to him the future of our beloved country.

The time, also, has passed away hen any one great nation can live a hermit's life. The laws of trade and conducted have made all nations matthew C. Perry in 1854 earned fame by opening the doors of Japan to the United States' merchant ships. Now all national doors are away on double hinges. They was wing out. Even ships. Now all national doors are swing upon double hinges. They swing in. They swing out. Even China's commercial doors are unlocked to the commerce of the world. English capitalists hold American securities, and American capitalists are investing in China and Japan and Italy and in English and German securities. The purse strings of the world are more and more becoming international. Thus more and more the interests, moral and temporal, of the different nations are being bound together by fetters of gold. More and more the different Governments are having to treat each other kindly and helpfully, because when a nation strikes at another nation it is beating the life out each other kindly and helpfully, because when a nation strikes at another nation it is beating the life out of its own heart. The blessings of peace are becoming more and more universal—peace, which will make our fields golden with grain, our homes happy with love, our hearts aglow with a desire for the best welfare of our neighbors, both national and international, and which will keep our altars sacred to the God, the great Father above, from whom all blessings flow.

On this glorious Thanksgiving day On this glorious Thanksgiving day let us give God the praise for what he has done for us as a nation during the past twelve months. We rejoice that the fear of ruining international commerce is putting a restraint on kings ambitious for war. The real potentates of the world are the kings of the harvest field, the mines and the foundries, on whem the crewned heads of the nations must depend for their resources. must depend for their resources.

These are in the control of the King These are in the control of the child of kings, whose is the kingdom, the power and the glory forever. To him we offer our adoration, and in him we trust. To him may sincere we trust. To him may sincere thanksgiving be upon every lip and song in every heart. May we praise him! Praise the Father, the Son, the Holy Spirit! Praise the triune God. Praise him! Praise him! Praise him! While the everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Halleluiah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth!" Halleluiah, amen and amen!

When the Kent was burned in the year 1825, it is related that when it was seen that the fire was gaining fast, and while hundreds of people were rushing wildly about in search of husbands, children or parents several old sailors and solders, giving up all hope, but without making any fuss, went and seated themselves directly over the magazine, and there waited with folded arms for the powder to catch, preferring to be blown up to suffering a lingering death! In the case of the loss of an East India Co.'s ship, all the boats but one were lost, and into that eight of the crew jumped and rowed away leaving the rest on the sinking vessel. Those who were left shouted to the others to returnate, they said, to carry them off, but simply to rescue two little children, who would add no weight to the boat. The seamen returned, took the infants and rowed away, and ten minutes latter the ship went down and all on board perished. When the Montreal board perished. THE CONTEST FOR NOVEMBER

We are very much pleased with the result of our October essay contest. The boys and girls have evidenced a great interest in the contest and we hope to see even greater interest in the one of this month About fifty compositions were received for last month's contest and we expect to double that number for the present month, November. The subjects this month for the essays must be based on the advertisements to be seen at any time in The Planet columns.

The compositions or cessys as in the last contest, must be the work of a pupil of either the public or separate schools of the city or county, certified by the teacher.

The subject, if possible, is to be made up into a story, or the best possible description. Story form is the best way to do it. The grade of the pupil will be taken in consideration so all will have an equal chance.

All compositions are to be in by Monday, November 30, and comjudges as in the past instance, will be chosen to select the

A POPULAR HEALTH RESORT.
A Grand Trunk official stated today that the mineral waters of St.
Catharines, Ontario, are becoming renowned throughout the country, as is demonstrated by the large influx of people to that city during the past year. The water is like that of the and is claimed, if anything, to be even more effective in cases in which it is used. The business at the report at St. Catharines has increased about 100 per cent. over last year.
