There's triumph in thy hair...
W. R. WATSON.

OF CROWN OF WOMAN—WONDERFUL!
How pale their pallid splendors; nay!
Those splendors how without,
In presence of that grander maid,
Which crowneth thy womanhood.

BACHELOR-HOOD.
What a pal that old bachelor is!
With his cheating house and his ruffian phiz!

SELECT LITERATURE.
UNCLE INGOT.
If ever you or yours get five pounds out of me, madam, before I die, I promise you, you shall have five thousand; and I am a man of my word.

THE LADY OF MY DREAMS.
Her face is stern, but wondrous fair
Of feature, and her raven hair
Falls down in silken tresses,
Wrapp'd round my neck, I see her stand,
A visitor from some dim land,
This lady of my dreams.

never forgotten them. He gloried in his own profession, although government had never seen fit to enable any member of it, and perhaps all the more on that account; for he was one of those Radicals who are not "snobs" at heart, but rather aristocrats.

Only engaged to you, I think, sir," replied the charmer, slyly. "Happy carriage! I wish I was just that pretty?"
Mr. Beardmore had never heard anything half so shocking said to him in all his life, and if the truth had not been already set in motion, he would have called upon the guard for help, and left the carriage forthwith. As it was, he could only look at this shameless young person with an expression of the severest reprobation. At the same time, his heart sank within him at the reflection, that the train was not to stop till he reached his destination—Reading.

TO A WEALTH OF HAIR.
There's triumph in thy hair...
Oh! marvel of gift maidenhood,
And altogether fair!
Thy eyes are full of soul,
As they of old, enlaid thee,
As they of old, enlaid thee,
Whose hair dispread, a gorgeous mass,
Where strength and beauty reign'd.

mother and sister are now staying under this very roof."
"Yes, uncle," said the young lady, demurely.
"Here's your five pound note; please to give me that five thousand that you promised me, if you sho or here get five pounds out of you; for you are a man of your word, I know. But what would be better still, would be to let me kiss you once more in the character of your dutiful niece; and let us all love you as we want to do. It was an awkward stratagem, I admit, but I think you will forgive me
—come."

ADVISE TO YOUNG MEN ON KISSING.
This is a subject that is talked of, written about, and thought of a good deal; it is considered by a great many, especially the weaker vessels, to be a very important one. Yet what is kissing? Let us analyze a kiss in its most popular form. A youth thrusts his arms around a struggling, blushing damsel; after some valiant contortions, a sound is heard, and the happy youth, all smiles, compliments the miss, while she, all blushes and frowns, declares—
" You ought to be ashamed of yourself! I am real mad with you!" And then, perhaps, turning to a lady companion, says, "He's a real nasty fellow, isn't he?"
Does her companion think so, we wonder?
Then, there is a lady's kiss. When a lady meets a lady, generally there is a kiss, no matter whether relative or friend. Nothing will prevent them from making this ridiculous thing. We cannot break them without you give me the idea of one lady kissing another! What a waste of the rare material! Propose to me! What would you think, Miss Brown, if you were to see Mr. Smith meet Mr. Jones in the street, and salute him with a good, hearty kiss? We can hear your answer. "Why, it wouldn't be good." Of course it wouldn't; and you don't think you and your darling friend would have a hearty laugh over it?
But we did not start out to write a treatise upon this silly, uncalculated, and highly to be despised practice. When we commenced we thought we would give a little advice to the youthful young men, and will address to our original audience.

last) He was the first one who ever did such a thing. (Oh, yes; the first)

That youth no longer inexperienced, left the dance's doublets with his wife, and returned to the sex in general, for he said to himself, "Are not they all alike?"

Another incident of this kind also comes to mind, which we will relate, and then if you are not satisfied you cannot be satisfied.

There is a young lady in the Quaker city who plays superbly, but who does not sing particularly divinely. One evening this same youth called upon her, to be seated to her own books which she desired to read.

There is a young man who occasionally, and when I give his part he says he can't refrain from kissing me!" and she looked—O, she looked everything! She pursed up her lips and look'd, she confidently told us afterwards, "A great deal sicker than if she had punched up her face in that way."

But he kissed her nevertheless; who wouldn't have done so? Young men, do you now believe the young ladies do not like to be kissed? Young men, do you not think you will have courage enough to kiss Jimena next Wednesday or Sunday night? If you have, then "my mission is fulfilled" for the time being.—Jm. Ez.

Miscellaneous.

STORY OF THE SHIPWRECKED CREW OF A NOVA SCOTIA VESSEL.

The British merchant ship F. B. Cutting, 1064 tons, Captain Ryan, from Savannah, with a cargo of cotton for Liverpool, put into Cork harbor on the 16th inst. Captain Ryan reported that he had on board the captain and crew of a Nova Scotia brig, whose vessel was on the 11th inst. On the 12th December, in lat. 35 45, long. 61 30, Captain Ryan sighted a brig, with all her masts and rigging carried away, and blowing in the face of a heavy gale, and bore down upon her, but owing to a gale which was then blowing from the S. W. four hours before he could communicate with her.

At a place called Cothbridge, in England, a man named Hayes had "blotted" a girl to whom he was engaged, named Agnes McTaggart. The girl purchased half a pint of rum, sent for Hayes, and as he had entered her apartment, she threw the liquid in his face. It was fearfully burned, one eye being entirely destroyed...

In Hungary, a new sect, known as Nazarenes, has appeared. Almost the entire peasant population is attracted by it, and is as popular with them as Methodism was in Wales. They have no priests, and they refuse to have their children baptized, and will swear no oaths. They have closely connected societies, in which all matters of common interest and the private affairs of individuals are arranged. They are quiet, sober, and industrious above their neighbors.

The Irish residents in Frelowbury, England, headed by a Roman Catholic priest, have presented an address to the magistracy of that town. In that document they denounce Penitentiaries, and declare their willingness to be sworn in as special constables. We hope the example set by the Irish in Frelowbury will be followed in many other towns in both England and Scotland.—Belfast Weekly News.

The Honorable Joseph Howe left in the steamer "City of New York" on Friday, for England, as one of the delegates from this Province to the Imperial Parliament. A very large number of citizens assembled on the wharf to see him off, and as the steamer moved away, three hearty cheers were given for Mr. Howe, and three for repeal. Mr. Howe is accompanied by his lady.—H. paper.

In the town of New Paris, Ohio, the women adopted a very effective method of spooling the business of a liquor dealer. They made him a visit, carrying their knitting and sewing machines, and they were engaged to call every day until the shop was closed. The men would not go there while they were in possession.

Private letters received from Chicago state that Mrs. Lincoln is insane beyond all doubt. She recently sold all the furniture in her house, and has two old men, a blind man, and a woman, who she is selling, and a dead seal she came to want.

A good story is told of a pair of Hamilton Nixons lately returned from a deer hunt in the township of Lincoln. Having struck the track of one of the antlered monarchs, they followed it with a rifle for a half a day, when the trail brought up a hog pen.

A crazy fellow in a Missouri town declared that he was sent on earth to redeem all things, but one of his audience carried a confederate note to him and made him confess his inability to go as far as that.

The first edition of the Queen's book consisted of 10,000 copies, and was sold in London, at a price of nearly all sold, and will realize a net profit of £10,000 at the least.

On January 4, Sir Robert Napier landed at Annesley Bay. If we are to credit private letters his arrival was a day too soon. One writes, "there have been blunders here, and no mistake; a tremendous waste of Government property, which might have been saved."

A man named Patrick Coakley, who arrived here on Tuesday in the steamer from a visit to the United States, was found yesterday morning lying near the Protestant cemetery in an insensible condition. On examination a deep cut was found on the back of his head, caused probably by a fall. He was picked up and carried to his residence in Barrington street, but has not yet been able to give any account of the cause of the accident.—H. paper.

At a place called Cothbridge, in England, a man named Hayes had "blotted" a girl to whom he was engaged, named Agnes McTaggart. The girl purchased half a pint of rum, sent for Hayes, and as he had entered her apartment, she threw the liquid in his face. It was fearfully burned, one eye being entirely destroyed...

In Hungary, a new sect, known as Nazarenes, has appeared. Almost the entire peasant population is attracted by it, and is as popular with them as Methodism was in Wales. They have no priests, and they refuse to have their children baptized, and will swear no oaths. They have closely connected societies, in which all matters of common interest and the private affairs of individuals are arranged. They are quiet, sober, and industrious above their neighbors.
