CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Truth At Last.

"Not a minute, my bird," said Charlie, and away he went.
He was gone more than a minute, and Lady Mary, with all a bride's impatience, was imprudent enough to peep through the window. The carriage was exactly opposite a large lamp, and as her pretty face was framed in the window for a moment, a man who was passing turned to look, stopped abruptly, and then slouched quickly to the carriage door and opened it.

Lady Mary started and uttered a low cry, when, in the haggard face, with its black-visaged eyes, and the seedy figure of the man, she recognized the once-resplendent count.

"Lady Mary!" he exclaimed, in a hoarse, half-fearful voice. "I was not mistaken! Are you herealone? Do you know me?"

"Yes, you are Count Hudspiel," said Lady Mary, with admirably feigned mistaken! Are you herealone? Do you know me? I expect Mr. Merivale here every moment!"

The count started with evident alarm, and appeared about to decamp; but suddenly he bent forward and glared at her hungrily.
"Lady Mary, you remember what I was—you see me now. I am starving! For the love of Heaven, give me some money!"

Lady Mary was too startled to move or speak.

"Quick, for God's sake!" said the count, feverishly; "I am starving with hunger and cold—yet, left to die like a dog by those who have deserted me—my lawful wife!—my lawful wife!" And he gesticulated threateningly.

Lady Mary put her hand in her pocket, and pulled out a dainty purse.

"Count," she said, "you once tried to do some dear friend of mine a great injury—"

"I did—did!" he said, imploringly, "but you won't let me die for that. They are happy now and I'm miserable! God! Can you send me away without the money to buy a loaf of bread?" and he held out both hands.

Lady Mary melted at the dreadful despair in the tone, and held out her purse.

He clutched it greedily.

"All of it?" he asked.

She nodded gravely.

"Some day, count, I may ask you to show your gratitude, by explaining some things which I think you understand."

"You will," he said, "and I will prove that I am not ungrateful. See," he said, taking some papers out of his tattered coat pocket, "when you wish to find me, write to this address," and he fumbled for a pencil.

At that moment Lady Mary saw Charlie's stalwart form approaching.

"Where—quick! Here comes my husband—Mr. Merivale!"

The count looked round nervously, snatched a gold pencil case which she held toward him, and scribbled, in shaky characters, some address on one of the pieces of paper, then thrusting it into her little gloved hand he darted away.

Lady Mary sank back and held the paper under the traveling lamp wrong side uppermost. Then started at it as if it had been the lost chapter of the Koran; for the count had written his address, by accident, on the back of Lillian Devigne's telegram! Now, Lady Mary, although so very pretty, did not lack brains; she had been conscious of various vague suspicions respecting the fair Lillian, and—in a flash the telegram revealed the whole plot to her.

Up came Charlie impatient and chafing.

"Where on earth can that fellow be? Never knew Beamish late before—hello! What the dickens—"

For, at the moment, up ran Beamish and clutched his arm—standing panting and excited, quite another man to his usual calm and respectful self.

"Oh! Mr. Charles!" he panted—"I thought I never should get here. Look here, sir, these two came—one for me, in case you should be out—and what am I to do?"

Charlie took the two telegrams and glanced at them; then, after a moment's pause, got into the carriage, from which Lady Mary's apprehensive face had been looking out upon him.

"Look here, darling—now don't be alarmed. I'll show them to you at once. You see Kyra's very ill—dangerously ill, and something has gone wrong at the Grange. Percy, knowing nothing of our doings, has telegraphed for me—there, read for yourself, and say whether I am to go?"

"Go!" exclaimed Mary. "Oh, go this minute, this instant! Oh, Charlie! my poor Kyra! Why do you hesitate?"

Charlie blushed.

"Just married," he murmured.

"What?" she said—blushing—reproachfully. "To think of ourselves at such a time! Oh, Charlie, dear, do let them get on the way, and—"

"I'll kiss you!"

WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER I.

Something of a Mystery.

It was in the "merry month" of May, the "beautiful harbinger of summer," as the poets call it; and one of those charming east winds which render England such a delightful place of residence for the delicate and consumptive, and are truly a boon and a blessing to the doctors and undertakers, was blowing gaily through one of the lovely villages of Devonshire, and insidiously stealing through the half opened French windows of the drawing room of Hawkwood Grange.

Three persons were seated in this drawing-room. An old gentleman, a lady—who would have had a fit on the spot if any one had called her old—and a young girl.

The old gentleman was called Sparrow—Mr. Sparrow, the solicitor of Wainford, the market town and borough three miles off. The old—the middle-aged and would-be youthful lady—was Miss Amelia Vanley, the maiden sister of the master of Hawkwood Grange; and the young lady was Olivia Vanley, his daughter, and, therefore, Miss Amelia's niece.

Miss Amelia was presiding at the five o'clock teatable; Mr. Sparrow was performing the difficult feat of balancing a teacup in one hand and a bread-and-butter plate in the other; and Olivia was seated at the piano, which she occasionally touched absently as she half listened to the other two. On a chair beside her was a seaskin jacket—there had been snow on this "merry" May morning, if you please—and she still wore her hat.

Above the piano hung one of those old-fashioned circular mirrors which reflect the face and bust of the player, and it presented a face which was beautiful, and something more than beautiful.

We have lost our climate, and our trade—so it is said—but thank heaven, there are still pretty girls left in England. When they disappear, it will be time for us to put up the shutters and vacate the island; but until that happens, it will still be worth living in.

To be consistent with her name, Olivia should have been of a dark and olive complexion; but the only thing dark in the lovely face were the hazel eyes. Her hair was an Auburn chestnut, which Joshua Reynolds loved to paint, with eyebrows to match; mouth "rather large," as Miss Amelia declared—she possessed, and was exceedingly proud of, one of the well known speaking doll patterns—but as expressive as the eyes. Face and figure were eloquent of youth and perfect health, and her voice was full of that music which youth and health and womanly refinement and delicacy combine to give.

The Grange was the principal house in Hawkwood, and the room was a very fine specimen of the drawing-rooms in a modern country mansion.

Mr. Sparrow was speaking, and his thin, piping voice chimed in not discordantly with the treble notes which Olivia's hand now and again touched.

"There is—er—something of a mystery about it, and I—er—dislike mysteries, Miss Amelia."

"Do you really?" responded Miss Amelia, with a girlish simper. "Now, I love a mystery, Mr. Sparrow; but then we poor women are so fond of romance and—all that. We have the softer, the more poetic nature, I suppose. You men are so hard!" And she stuck her head very much on one side at the tame-looking old lawyer, who straightened himself as well as he was able under the disadvantage of the tea-cup and plate, and tried to look as if he were, indeed, hard and practical. "And you do think there is a mystery! How charming! You really must tell us all about it; we are dying to hear the whole—the whole story. Aren't we, Olivia?"

The young girl gave the very faintest inclination of her head by way of response, and silently pressed down a chord.

"There's not much to tell, as a matter of fact," said Mr. Sparrow, with the little cough with which old gentlemen preface a story they are anxious to relate. "Last Friday my clerk came into my room and said that a gentleman wished to see me. He gave the name of Faradeane."

"Faradeane! Dear me, how strange, really!" murmured Miss Amelia, who would have made the same comment if the name had been Smith.

"Yes, Faradeane. It was quite unknown to me," continued Mr. Sparrow, "and the gentleman was quite as unknown. He was a young man and—and a gentleman. There can be no doubt about that. I—er—think I know a gentleman when I see him, Miss Amelia."

"Indeed, yes," murmured Miss Amelia, promptly. "Was he very young?"

"About thirty, I should say," replied Mr. Sparrow, thoughtfully. "Yes, about thirty. A London man, I should say, judging by his clothes. He was very well dressed, very well,

HEAT FLASHES, DIZZY, NERVOUS

Mrs. Wynn Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her During Change of Life.

Richmond, Va.—"After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2312 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

indeed. Plainly, but well. I gave him a chair, and he came to the point at once by asking me if I were the owner of The Dell. I said I was, with some surprise, for really I had quite forgotten the little place. It has been shut up so long—it must be just seven years since the last people left it; rather over seven years. He said he had heard that I wanted to sell it, and asked the price. I told him, and—on—the spur of the moment, taken so completely, by surprise, I stated a price which I cannot help thinking was a rather low one.

"Then he accepted it?" said the low, sweet voice of Olivia; and Mr. Sparrow started and colored slightly.

Your Boys and Girls.

Juvenile fashions were never so delightful or so varied as they are at the present time. Picturesque styles are the cry of the moment, and it is a pleasant cry to hear for no one is so suited to carry out the picturesque idea so well as the little girl. For instance, you can deny the beauty of a small face surrounded by golden curls, the whole framed by a poke bonnet of the picturesque order.

Then, too, there are the coats in Mother Hubbard style developed in tan cashmere, the skirt shirred on to a narrow yoke. Small, round buttons covered with the material from the trimming, beneath which the coat is fastened with snap fasteners.

Another coat is in pongee silk. The body of the coat is gathered to a narrow yoke and joined by a wide belt to a full gathered skirt. Torpedo-shaped buttons of white, with centres of pink fasten the yoke and belt.

Bootes and socks are an important part of the small girl's wardrobe. Just as her mamma's appearance is spoiled if she does not wear well-cut footwear so is the little girl's only in a greater degree. They must be trim and pretty if the little girl is to look well dressed. Of course the half socks have ousted the long hose and they are so attractive.

GERMANY PREPARED FOR A SU-PERE EFFORT.

LONDON, July 22. A Rotterdam despatch to the Daily News says that Germany is prepared for a supreme effort on the western front, and, according to information, has drafted to the Somme front in the last three weeks 340,000 men. One hundred thousand are from depots, but the remainder are seasoned men, who have been slightly wounded, and are now thoroughly cured. Cavalry is being sent west also. My informant declares he personally saw regiments of Prussians, Hussars, Uhlans and Mounted Jagers passing through Dusseldorf on their way west. It is certain, even at the risk of continual small retreats on the eastern fronts, the Germans are determined to throw everything into the west.

BATTLE RESUMED.

LONDON, July 23. The battle on the British front in Northern France was resumed to-day along the whole British line from Posieres to Guillemont. The War Office report says that the British carried the German outer works at Posieres. Violent fighting is in progress.

SPIRITED ARTILLERY DUEL.

LONDON, July 22. A spirited artillery duel along the British front in Northern France during which the British front line and supporting trenches were bombarded with gas shells and projectiles containing incendiary, is recorded in to-day's official statement. The War Office reported that, aside from these bombardments at several points on the front in the past twelve hours, there have been no important developments.

GERMAN ATTACK REPULSED.

PARIS, July 22. A strong German attack northwest of St. Die in the Vosges was repulsed last night by the French. The War Office report of to-day says that on the Verdun front the Germans bombarded violently French positions in the sectors of Fleury & Fumix Wood. In the region of Metz south Touvent, a strong German reconnaissance was dispersed.

WAR OFFICE SAYS AUSTRIANS WITHDRAWN.

VIENNA, July 23. Under menace of heavy Russian assaults the Austrians in the Carpathian region, Southern Bukovina, southeast of Tatarow, have withdrawn towards the main ridge of the Carpathians, the War Office officially announced to-day.

ARTILLERY BATTLE CONTINUES.

PARIS, July 23. The new French lines, south of Soyecourt, on the Somme front, have held the German counter attack, the War Office announced to-day. The German attack was made last night and broke down under the French fire. Artillery battle along the front continues.

TRIED TO BREAK RUSSIAN LINES.

PETROGRAD, July 23. Teutonic troops in Volhynia tried last night to break the Russian lines along the river. They were stopped 25 miles northeast of Kovel, and failed being compelled to retire, the War Office announced to-day. German attempts to recapture their lost positions northeast, this morning, also proved futile.

PIERCED ENGAGEMENTS.

PETROGRAD, July 23. Fierce engagements have taken place south of the Riga. Russian troops have penetrated the German first line in several places, says an official statement to-night. In the Caucasus the forces of the Grand Duke Nicholas, have occupied Adzhara, 13 miles northwest of Gumushkhan, on the Chit River.

RETIRES OWING TO ILL HEALTH.

PETROGRAD, July 23. Sergius Sazonoff, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has resigned. He is succeeded by Boris Vladimirovitch Sturmer. Sazonoff retired owing to ill-health.

PERSISTENT RUMORS.

LONDON, July 23. Rumors persist that Roumania will enter the war by the middle of August but there is no confirmation of such reports in official circles.

ARAB REVOLT.

LONDON, July 23. Authentic news, received at Cairo, Egypt, says Reuter's correspondent there, tells that serious engagements took place recently near Medina, Arabia, between the Arab revolutionists, and the Turks. The garrison made a sortie against the Arabs, who were besieging the town from the south-east side. In the fighting the Turks are said to have lost 250 men, while the losses of the Arab forces, under the command of the Grand Chief of Mecca, the leader of the rebels, numbered 500 men. The Arabs captured a large quantity of arms. The Sheriff Abdullah is now bombarding the barracks at Taif, where the Turks are still holding out. The rebels expect the garrison at Taif to capitulate soon.

TURKISH NEW ADVANCE REPORT-ED.

LONDON, July 23. A new advance by Turkish forces in the Sinai peninsula, to within 30 miles of Suez Canal, is reported by British authorities, who announced to-day that British cavalry had got in touch with the Turks. Measures are being taken by the Commander-in-Chief in Egypt to meet the Turkish movement.

WAR OFFICE COMMUNICATION.

LONDON, July 23. An official communication issued by the War Office says: The statements contained in the Turkish official communication of Wednesday last that seven vessels had been captured by the Turks in the Euphrates River, in Mesopotamia, and that the English had been defeated near Basra, are imaginary.

IDLE RUMORS.

AMSTERDAM, July 23. Posters have been posted on the walls of the barracks in Ghent, stating that negotiations have been opened between the United States and Germany for the evacuation of Belgium, according to the Echo Belge. According to the posters Germany is prepared to withdraw from Belgium on payment of an indemnity of 40,000,000,000 marks. The Echo Belge comments sarcastically on the proposal, terming the proposed indemnity as a mere flea bite.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, July 23. Lloyd's announces the sinking of the British steamship Wolf. She was 2,443 tons.

ON ALL FRONTS.

LONDON, July 22. The fourth week of the Somme battle begins well for the Allies, and it is expected that important developments will result. Before Saturday night the British began their new attack on the whole line from Posieres to Guillemont. The fact that General Haig has been able to resume the offensive so soon after unsuccessful German counter attacks last week, which were made by very strong German forces which had been brought forward, is regarded as a good augury. The fighting has been of the fiercest character, the Germans working their utmost in strength to prevent the British from advancing into their third line positions, but when the last reports let the British headquarters in France, the Australian army had established themselves in Posieres, and are reported to have placed themselves astride of the road in the direction of Bapaume. At Guillemont, and Longueval fortunes fluctuated, both places changing hands several times. Later to-night the fighting was proceeding with the utmost violence.

German counter-attacks recently delivered against the French front, have proved unsuccessful. The Allies are now fighting in a steady direction for Comblies, which is only two miles distant from Guillemont. According to reliable information the English and French together captured more than 25,000 prisoners, 140 guns and hundreds of machine guns.

From the eastern front come further reports of the continued Russian successes. General Kuropatkin has cut Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's line in several points, and according to unofficial reports he has penetrated a distance of five miles. Russian official reports of operations in this sector of the Riga are exceedingly reticent, but Von Hindenburg's line was considered the strongest on the whole eastern front, and that the Russians were able to break through it, is regarded as most significant here. At the other extremity of the long line, the Austrian officials report the withdrawal toward the main ridge of the Carpathians. The Russians are within four miles of the Hungarian frontier, and are moving in the Maramoros Szegeit. Except in the Dnieper region—heavy fighting is proceeding along the whole front. There is no further official news of General Sakharoff's operations, but according to unofficial accounts, he is on the point of entering northeast Galicia; General Bohem Ernoldi and General Bothmer being outflanked both north and south by General Sakharoff's forces, are now supposed to be working in the direction of Brody and Sokal.

Local Druggists Repair What Famous Surgeons Cannot Touch

Shattered nerves are beyond the reach of the Surgeon's knife. What will repair them? A host of people right here in your home town will bear testimony to this fact that Zoetic—the health tonic—has set them on their feet again. This famous combination of glycer-phosphates—the actual element of the human body—Cod Liver Oil and delicious wine, supply the very elements that worn out nerves require. In a quiet way the action of Zoetic is truly marvelous. Without a trace of narcotic it induces sound sleep. And following that, better and better digestion. And following that a final and complete rebuilding of the nervous system drained of vitality. Two weeks' faithful use of it will convince you. Because you have been so often misled, expecting much and receiving little, we offer outright to refund the purchase price of Zoetic if at the end of two weeks you cannot report real progress toward better health. Start trying it to-day. Sold by T. J. Edens & Co., Sole Distributing Agents for Newfoundland.

Presentation.

When leaving by the Stephano on Saturday en route to join her husband serving with our Regiment in England, Mrs. Herbert Outerbridge, who has been very actively connected with the Women's Patriotic Association since its formation, was waited upon by a number of ladies of the Association and was presented by Lady Davidson, on behalf of the members of the Association, with a magnificent bouquet of flowers. Mrs. Outerbridge, who was very much moved by the kindness of the ladies, thanked them for their kind gift. Several other beautiful bouquets were also received, testifying to the widespread popularity of Mrs. Outerbridge.

The Revolt of Islam.

Turkey, which had been allowed for some time to retire into grateful obscurity, is once more in the limelight. The Grand Duke is out in earnest for Erzincan, to which the war has been made ready by the capture of Balurt. At the same time the Arab revolt along the Red Sea appears to be gaining in strength and importance. The causes underlying it are probably of much greater moment than the mere surface indications would seem to show. The Arabs have never really recognized either the temporal or spiritual suzerainty of the Sultan, and the upheaval in Europe may in the end profoundly affect the whole Mohammedan world in Asia. Only the greater events elsewhere have largely distracted the attention of the Christian world from the significance of the Arab uprising and the importance of their capture of Mecca, the holy city and seat of Islam. If now Taif falls, Medina, the second city, may be next. What will be the effect upon the two hundred million Mussulmen of the world, of whom more than a quarter are under British rule and protection?

English comment upon the situation is cautious and guarded. Great as are the spiritual forces involved, it is recognized that it is the military factors which must tell for the present. The Arabs are a notoriously volatile race, incapable of cohesion and combined and organized efforts, and their warlike operations must not be given an exaggerated importance. But the situation is pregnant with possibilities. Continued successes and the failure of Turkish arms in the north may band together more and more effectively the forces of the Grand Chief and bring recruits flocking to his standard. The renaissance of Arab may be one of the most potent and welcome results of the war. Ever since Turkey joined her lot to Germany's, the Arabs have realized the falsity of her position. As the Telegraph says, "To be at once the head of the faithful and a puppet of Berlin is in the eyes of the Arabs a degrading position. The Mohammedans have begun to discover that Mohammed V. is so entirely in the hands of the Germans that he is deprived of all initiative, and has to carry out the commands of his Tonic taskmasters." In the gradual decay of Turkish power and influence which is based very widely upon the intense religious feeling of the Mohammedans, German ambitions are being fanned. The Kaiser's dream of Eastern Empire is fast dissolving. The activities of the Arabs may have an immediate military effect upon the campaign in Mesopotamia, but if they grow to national dimensions they will produce a political one of vast and abiding importance.

THE INVASION OF HUNGARY.

There is persistent talk in Paris and Petrograd of the possibility of Austria's surrender and her conclusion of a separate peace with the Allies. A moment's consideration of the practical details and the necessary arrangement of terms will serve to discount the idea.

A Magnificent Display of Disciplined Courage

HIGH PRAISE FROM THE GENERAL.

LONDON.

To His Excellency the Governor, St. John's:

Have returned from France, where we met our men and addressed the Battalion. Our officers and men are cheerful and anxious to secure full strength at earliest possible time. The gallantry of our Regiment in action on 1st July deserved, as it has received from General Hunter-Weston, Commanding our Army Corps, and all others, the highest possible praise. Nothing has occurred since the commencement of the war more conspicuously brilliant. The General Staff and many others assure you and all Newfoundland of their heartfelt sympathy. We desire to unite in their expression, particularly with the families of those who fell. General Hunter-Weston's official report of the engagement of which he handed us a copy begins:

"Among such grand Battalions it is difficult to allocate greater praise to one rather than to another; but, as this is the first occasion on which troops from our Oldest Colony, Newfoundland, have taken part in a big battle, it is good to be able to say that they proved themselves worthy of the highest traditions of the British race, and that no Battalion among all these hands of heroes did better than they. They attacked regardless of loss, moving forward in extended order—wave behind wave—undamaged by the heavy fire to which they were subjected. It was a magnificent exhibition of disciplined courage."

The wounded are doing well.

R. K. BISHOP, J. A. CLIFT.

His Excellency the Governor observes that General Hunter-Weston commanded our Army Corps in Gallipoli and in France. He was a Royal Engineer and won a great name in South Africa and elsewhere, for his brilliant initiative and capable leading.

Message From the Premier.

July 22, 1916.

I am just in receipt of a message, sent from London on the 21st instant by the Prime Minister, as follows:—

"I much regret the death of poor young Brown who died here yesterday. He will be buried to-day at Wandsworth. Everything possible was done for him. I am leaving immediately for the front in France to visit the Newfoundland soldiers and will report fully on my return. I regret exceedingly Mr. Jackson's sudden death. The Colony has lost a patriotic son and St. John's a citizen whose example and work were and will be of great value."

Yours faithfully,
 J. R. BENNETT,
 Colonial Secretary.

SUCCESS AT POZIERES.
LONDON, To-day.
A Reuter despatch from the British front in France, filed at 3.30 p.m. today, says, following a heavy bombardment last night the British troops and Ahzacs attacked towards Pozieres and Guilleumont. Despite desperate resistance the Ahzacs succeeded in establishing themselves in Pozieres where they are now consolidating their lines. Reported casualties are comparatively light. West of Pozieres the British successfully advanced. On the right of Pozieres the wire entanglements were insufficiently destroyed and progress was checked by heavy machine gun fire.
Nevertheless we gained a footing in Guilleumont, but owing to determined counter-attacks were unable to maintain the advance. On the whole progress continues satisfactory, especially in the neighbourhood of Pozieres and along the road through the village northward, on which we are ordered as established.

BAD WEATHER ON THE SOMME.
PARIS, To-day.
Bad weather prevails along the Somme front in the north of France and last night passed quietly with the French. In a raid north of the Aisne the German trenches were penetrated and some prisoners taken.
On the Verdun front, east of the Meuse, there were small local engagements in the course of which the French took 30 prisoners, making the total prisoners during the last ten days in this district eight hundred.

BRITISH PROGRESS.
LONDON, To-day.
British troops have captured a large part of the village of Pozieres, says an official British statement. They also gained some ground near a high wood night, the statement adds, was comparatively calm.

Viscount instead of Earl, under the style of Viscount Grey of Fallodon.
The inference is that the Govern-the risk of being confused with Earl Grey, formerly Governor General of Canada.

Flower Service at Portugal Cove

Yesterday afternoon the annual flower service in commemoration of the faithful departed, held at Portugal Cove, was a splendid success, hundreds of people from all St. John's and nearby settlements attending. At 3 o'clock the beautiful and artistic church with its quaint-fashioned windows and walls, was opened to overflowing. The service filled with a short prayer by the Rev. H. E. F. Legge, Rector at the Cove, followed by an address ably delivered by the Rev. Canon Smith, who for upwards of 30 years was in charge of the parish. The rev. Canon in brief reviewed the history of the church at Portugal Cove as far back as the beginning of the eighteenth century, making references to the ancient burial ground where the sturdy forefathers of the present generation now lie at rest. Passing reference was made to the condition of the peaceful little cemetery surrounded by tall trees just east of the sanctuary but for several years closed.
Then a very touching words he made reference to the present magnificent piece of land now set aside for the burial of the dead. In front of the altar stood two large bouquets of flowers placed there in memory of two former members of the congregation who had given their lives in the great cause of Empire—Royal Naval Reservist Albert Miller, who lost his life while in action in the North Sea, and Sergt. William Sheehan, 1st Nid. Regiment. A Gallipoli hero killed in action while fighting in France. The departed heroes were young men of exceptionally strong character marked by a constant devotion to their God and duty. Rev.
Mr. Legge, in addressing the congregation made references to the condition of certain graves, and impressed on his hearers the necessity of keeping the last resting place of the departed in a respectable condition.
In referring to the annual event inaugurated six years ago by the Rev. Canon Smith, he stated that it was his intention to continue the service each year. After the singing of the hymn
"O Paradise," the congregation preceded by the clergymen walked to the cemetery, where a short service was held and between the singing of hymns "Let Saints on Earth in Concord Sing" and "O God our Help in Ages Past," flowers were placed on the graves. In a shady little nook surrounded by trees on the southeast side of the cemetery stood a large kept grave, decorated with beautiful flowers; here rest the remains of a poor Nova Scotia sailor who died a few years ago on board his ship while visiting Portugal Cove. The women folk of the Cove promised the captain they would look after the grave, and they have kept their word.

ning. The Atlas struck the rocks on

THE INVICTUS SHOE

A shoe for well-dressed men. Costs enough to insure a perfect shoe, but is as low as a shoe of this character can be sold. Beside a cheaper shoe, the difference is unmistakable. Men who want appearance, satisfying wear, and solid comfort, should wear the "Invictus Shoe."

Two Leading LEATHERWARE Lines

In Shoes; Low Prices and Cheapness

Are as far apart as the Poles. Cheapness in Shoes does not depend upon their price, but upon the service they give. To maintain the Low Price of cheap shoes it is necessary to use even more inferior leather than usual. That can only result in one thing—less service—less wear—therefore less economy. No substitution of inferior stock has been made in either of our two Leading Lines for Men and Women.

The War

Events of great importance where have not diverted the attention of the world from the front to which all eyes are still turned. And here it is on the efforts of the British that this attention is so closely riveted. They have completed some most important preliminary steps, but they are still pressing on with unabated vigour towards the completion of others even more important, without which that which has already been achieved would be of little value or meaning. They will well on their way towards their great goal.

If we examine a small-scale map of this area, we shall see at a glance that the road runs almost as straight as the crow flies from Albert to the sea. The latter is the Allies' objective. Now the German trenches are here enormously strong, but they have already been almost hopelessly broken up at Thiepval and Pozieres. South and east, however, they have gone well forward, for they hold the trench and Longueval. This enables them to attack the important road-way transversely, besides having straightened out their line down to Hardecourt. In a word, the German trenches were designed to resist an attack running north and south. The British have changed their direction so that their lines here run east and west. This puts the Germans in an awkward position, and certainly weakens their defence materially.

The last news tells of an attack accompanied by some success, at Pozieres. This was to be expected as the next logical step in the operation of Pozieres and Thiepval and the important places for the immediate present. Their possession would make the British enormously stronger, for it would have eliminated the most important man advance salient entirely and more important, would give the British the first real command of the heights that stand between the sea and Bapaume. Once this ridge is in the advance to Bapaume will be greatly facilitated. The Germans have well the importance of this ridge here, and we may be sure it will be defended with the greatest force and tenacity at their disposal.

The British are thus steadily moving on the leeway necessary to require their progress with that of the French. Gratifying as their successes have been, the general deduction to be drawn from them are even more so. Two facts, of conditions, may be too strongly emphasized. First, such evidence has reached us from one source and another, of the fighting in Germany, that we can no longer doubt that the whole British Empire has come as a disagreeable surprise, even a shock, to the German people. In some way the Germans have become possessed of the idea that our army, though they had not a notion of the size to which it has grown, was never intended to be used to attack; that its real function was to hold back the great German offensive which was yet to break through to Paris. The German nation has been in a painful state of anxiety, and will increase as it is daily becoming upon it that this unexpected offensive is continuing with a steady and unabated fury. Secondly, the ability of the British themselves, much greatly improved by their established ability to break down and capture the second line of trenches. This they had never done before. At Loos and in the Champagne the first trenches were taken, but none was to go forward to the second line. Now, however, the impossible has been achieved. A late message Saturday spoke of enormous, unlimited resources being made available from all parts of Germany to the consisting largely of cavalry. Such cavalry has been used in the Somme. The fact speaks volumes.

The French have not been

How to Be Impressive.

RUTH CAMERON.

Not to talk about yourself, your possessions, your past experiences, your family, etc., unless directly solicited to do so, and then with discretion and modesty, is one of the surest and finest hallmarks of breeding. We were much impressed by a man we met the other night, not because of what he said about himself, but because of what he didn't say.

Think What a Chance He Missed!

We were riding in a machine and asked him if he drove and he said he did. We asked if he had a car and he said "Not now." That was all he had to say on the subject, in spite of the excellent opening we had given him. Yet later we found out, through a third person, that he was a wonderful driver, that he had even driven in amateur races and that he had just sold an expensive foreign car.

These facts coming from him would have been interesting, coming from a third party they were impressive.

What you leave to a third person to say about your possessions and your importance carries ten times the weight of what you say yourself. It is Only Crude People Who Talk Much of Themselves.

The cruder people are the more they have to say about themselves, not only about their importance but about anything which concerns them. They lack the sense of proportion to realize that these things are not as interesting to others, a sense which education in its broader form gives. Mrs. A. hasn't any children, has

Oh, Belgium! in the awful hour When the woes of war oppress, May justice always be thy tower Of strength in thy distress.

Though numerous foes surround thee, On all sides save the coast, Let "Right and Honour" ever be Thy motto and thy toast.

SAM AND JIM.

When old Sam Johnson sat in state, that man of learning, wise and great, with Burke and Goldsmith and the rest, Jim Boswell was the butt and jest. They all must have their flings at Jim, and none had much respect for him, Methinks, had some prophetic dub appeared before them at their club, and said, "This man who is your goat, at whom you laugh with scornful note, will by the multitudes be read, when all your junk is staid and dead." Old Sam would then have raised a roar: "Be gone, false prophet—there's the door!" And yet great Johnson, mighty sage, the shining marvel of his age, lives, only in the book that Jim so reverently wrote of him. Jim's immortality is sure, down to the Judgment 'twill endure, while those who jeered his little games, have left but half-forgotten names. And it may be now on earth, whose work we think has little worth, will leave a deathless fame behind when they have quit their humble, grind, while pompous prodigies lie down, and, dying, kill of their renown.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of daylight the incandescent gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp.

This quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential, where the approximation of daylight values is important. For lighting shops, display, haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc., the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favourable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard-of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft, mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—July 13, 1916.

Cossack Horses Fine Fighters

Trained to do Remarkable Work in Aiding Their Daring Riders.

(Canadian Press-Despatch.)

Berlin, July 14.—For some time the correspondents in Berlin have been hearing of the astonishing use of Russian cavalry on the front south of the Pinau swamps and getting repeated tales of charges of masses of horsemen against entrenched and unbroken infantry under conditions which would make these tactics appear the height of madness. An explanation has now been received showing that there is a certain amount of method in this madness and that the Russians have devised new tactics, which are employed not to press home an assault, but to advance a line of skirmishes rapidly before the actual charge is started.

The role of the cavalry is played when the infantry lines reach a point some 500 yards from the German trenches. A swarm of cavalry in widely-extended lines is then flung forward through the intervals of the infantry lines. The horsemen dart forward at headlong speed. Soon they fling themselves to the ground and open a rapid fire against the enemy.

The Cossack horses are trained to participate in this manoeuvre and lie down at the word of command and form a living breastwork for the riflemen. Under cover of the heavy fire from the dismounted horsemen the infantry lines advance across the intervening country.

Help in River Crossings.

Men or horses, maddened by excitement, often refuse to halt at the destined position, but tear on against the trenches and entanglements in an unmediated charge.

The Cossacks are being largely used in attempts to force lightly-guarded river crossings, though the Russian pioneers have devised a new scheme for the crossing of the infantry where more resistance is looked for. Long slender rafts are moored along the banks of the narrow rivers with which this swampy country is intersected, concealed by overhanging bushes. At the proper moment the upstream end of each raft is released and the current swings it across the river, forming a series of narrow bridges for storming parties.

meanwhile. As we have before pointed out, they must wait for the British to strengthen their line to the north before they push on with the general attack upon Peronne. Last week they made an important advance south of that village from Estrees, which helps along the enveloping movement. What is first of all aimed at is, roughly, the establishment of a straight line by the British from Thiépval to Comblies. If this is done the Germans will have a salient at Comblies which they will have to abandon; then the French will begin in earnest the siege of Peronne.

Developments on the East front are of course of the greatest importance. Quite the most important item of last week's news here was the defeat of Von Linsingen and his retirement across the Lipa. This lays bare Brody and Vladimir Volynski, and is of the utmost importance to the Russians. We have heard nothing more about their advance into Hungary, but we may rest assured that it is proceeding. General Brusiloff, undoubtedly under higher instructions, is subserving all other plans to the premier object of crushing Austria. Even the concentration upon Kovel is subsidiary to this, for Kovel is a key to Lemberg. Now we hear of definite successes for the Russians in the far northern region of Riga, where General Karopkin is in command. It tells truly the tale of the German losses, her irretrievable depletion of men. If the Russians have enough men and artillery in hand—and it seems clear that they have both—it is hard to see how the Germans can withstand both battering-rams. We need scarcely emphasize the importance of the Riga operations, where the Russians are no great distance from East Prussia. Kovo, a bare fifty miles from the German frontier, may soon assume a greater importance even than Kovel.

As if not content with their huge undertakings in Europe, the Russians are renewing in earnest their operations against Turkey. If that country sees Erzincan fall and the Russian line established thence to Trebizond, she must realise, if she has not already done so, how hopeless her cause is. These operations may, as we have said before, foreshadow something from Salonika, where the continued inactivity is still a mystery. The reports from Romania, however, more and more encouraging, and the possibility of her intervention at this critical time, when her weight thrown into the scale against Austria would hasten that country's fate, looms larger and larger and may soon become a probability and finally an accomplished fact. There can be no doubt that Russia's wonderful victories and the real entry of Great Britain into the military arena, have set all the neutral nations furiously thinking.

Big Steamer That Made History

IS ASHORE IN ST. MARY'S BAY.

The S. S. Matatua, Capt. MacGregor, grounded at Peter's Bay, St. Mary's Bay, during a dense fog, on Saturday evening last. The ship was bound to London from St. John, N.B., with a cargo of lumber.

On receipt of the above information the S. S. Susu was despatched to the scene of the wreck, taking along Mr. Tasker Cook, representing Bowring Bros., Ltd., Lloyd's Agents, and a posse of police. The Red Cross Liner Stephanos, which left here at 3 p.m., Saturday, also proceeded to the assistance of the stranded steamer. The condition of the latter was found to be such that the Stepanos continued on her way to Halifax after a very brief delay.

The Matatua was built in 1904, is 6,488 tons gross; 4,177 net; 448 feet long; 56.5 feet beam; 20.6 feet deep and is fitted with wireless telegraphy and a refrigerating plant. The ship is owned by the Shaw, Savill and Albion Company, Ltd., an old London concern, who have operated a line of steamers to New Zealand for over a half century.

According to messages received from those who are at the scene of the wreck, the steamer is well aground and the probabilities are that she will be a total loss.

CARBIDE EXPLOSION.

The Matatua has made quite a drill of history in marine circles. Only last March, as folks interested in shipping will remember, the ship was lying at anchor at St. John, N.B. Harbor, having on board a cargo of carbide and automobiles for the Old Country. The cargo caught fire and a terrific explosion followed in which the captain, who was on board to see some important documents he had left behind, was blown to pieces. When the fire was got under control, the ship sank by being flooded. Subsequently she was raised and repaired, but under the present circumstances, it looks as if she will leave her bones on Peter's Shoals.

THE GRAY MASK A GREAT PICTURE.

Perhaps the greatest detective story ever presented at the Nickie is on today and to-morrow, and all interested should be sure and see it. The picture is the work of the World Corporation Company and is easily one of that renowned Company's best photo-plays. Edwin Arden, the celebrated dramatic star is in the leading role and is ably supported by the pretty Barbara Tennant. The story is in five reels and is entitled "The Gray Mask." The acting in this appealing picture is exceptionally good. There is the seventh episode of "The Strange Case of Miss Page." The chapter is called "A Confession" and is highly interesting from beginning to end. There will be other first class pictures as well. Wednesday will see the final chapter of "The Romance of Elaine," and on Friday "The Diamond from the Sky" will begin.

James Baird LIMITED

As To Our Orphans.

All preparations are now about complete for the annual garden party at Mount Cashel on Wednesday. It was not till after many consultations and much deliberation, that the good Brothers decided to hold it this year; but as it is their principal source of revenue after much thought, and with the assurance from their many friends and admirers of all creeds and classes in the city, that the usual help and patronage would be forthcoming, their last doubts as to the advisability of holding it, were removed. It may be remembered, that as a result of the lessons of patriotism, inculcated by the Brothers, ever forty stalwart young men, intelligent, well drilled and physically fit, are now doing their bit at the front, and some of them have proved themselves worthy of the institution and a credit to Newfoundland as well as to their teachers, on many a bloody battlefield in Gallipoli and on the Western front. If half the stream of people who visit Bowring Park each week, is turned towards Mount Cashel for one evening, then the garden party this year will beat the record. As a proof of the popularity of the feast, His Excellency and lady have graciously promised their patronage; His Grace the Archbishop and clergy will be there, and many ladies in the city. The Brothers have two squads drilled now at the Home, and it would be a revelation to most people, if they could be induced to give a specimen of their drill—no brigade in the city can excel them. There is no doubt that the citizens of all classes will visit Mount Cashel on Wednesday in larger numbers than usual, because besides being a pleasant place to spend an evening, the object of the fete commends itself to all.

Vells cover the entire hat and serve as a decoration.

Lieut-Commander Howley.

Lieut-Commander Howley has kindly consented to give his postponed lecture in aid of the Red Cross Work on Thursday, at 8.30 in the College Hall. This is the first opportunity we have had of hearing of the work of our Navy in the Dardanelles, and coming from one who was not only an eye-witness, but who took part in the bombardment was a victim of the destruction of H.M.S. Irresistible, and suffering from over 120 wounds was almost miraculously saved from death by the good offices of the British Red Cross, we feel sure that all who are able will flock to hear him. Tickets may be had at Messrs. Dicks & Co., and the tickets already purchased for the original date still hold good.

WITH REFERENCE TO EVERY MAN'S LIBRARY.

The Booksellers have recently received the following communication from the Publishers of 'Everyman's Library':—

"Messrs. Cloth Edition, 1 1/2 net; Bancroft, Library Binding, 1 1/2 net; Paste Grain, 2 1/2 net; 4 Pigskin, Library Binding, 3 1/2 net; Aldine Morocco, 3 net; Bedford Morocco, 3 1/2 net."

The local price for the Cloth Edition of Everyman's will therefore be 45c. instead of its old price of 35c.

The EASTERN TRUST COMPANY
WE GO ON FOREVER.

Just two reasons why the Eastern Trust Company can administer an Estate better than a personal executor or administrator.

1.—It has nearly twenty-four years' experience, and its existence is perpetual, neither does it cost any more to employ the Company than an individual. The Company affords the Estate absolute security. It has a paid-up capital of $1,000,000.00 and a reserve of $250,000.00. The Estates held in trust to December 31st, 1915, amount to $15,926,633.85.

2.—In the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, your Estate must look around for a substitute. The new administrator is unfamiliar with the business and confusion is often the result. The death of any officer of this Company does not break the continuity of the policy of administration.

While the Company administers over Fifteen Million Dollars worth of Estates, it also does a very large business in executing Trusts of all kinds and acting as Financial Agents of all descriptions. We can give fullest satisfaction in the collection of rents, interests, mortgages, dividends, etc.
