STEWART'S Home Made Bread, THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.

Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the peace or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

CHAPTER XXV.
IN LOVE WITH A PRINCESS.

He laughs at the thought of a pipe staining those soft, coral lips, and his laugh seems catching, for she laughs, too. As she does so the companion comes out upon the terrace.

Hal looks up, and the princess, following his glance, turns suddenly grave and rises.

"Will you come and see pa?" she says.

Hal nods, and offers to take the fishing-basket from her hand, but she pulls it behind her with the gesture of a child.

"No, I will carry this. They are mine now, you know."

Slowly they wind around the garden toward another part of the terrace, which surrounds the house, and ascending the steps, stop at a window which is closed, and has the curtains drawn.

Then the princess, with her hand on the window, looks around at him.

"Will you tell me your name again?" she says.

"Oh, I have not forgotten it," she says, quickly, with an evident desire not to wound him; "but I am not used to English names, and may have made a mistake. Oh, here is the card; but tell me."

Hal laughs.

"Bertram—Henry Bertram," he says.

"You said 'Hal'—was it not 'Hal'?" she asks.

"That's what I'm always called," he says.

"I like it best," she says, and opened the window.

To Hal's astonishment, he saw the room within was lighted by a reading lamp, close to which sat a tall and wonderfully thin old gentleman reading.

The princess went up to him, and laid her white hand on his shoulder; but it was quite a minute before he looked up, during which Hal noticed that a map of Italy was spread out upon the table, and that various plans of battlefields, he learned afterward—hung upon the wall. A dispatch-board stood beside the table, and papers were littered over the room.

Presently the Prince Verona looked up, and rose abruptly.

"Papa," said the princess, "this is Mr. Bertram, whose fishing I so clumsily spoiled yesterday; he has brought me a present of some trout."

The prince looked across at Hal, shading his eyes, and bowed; then, as if by an afterthought, held out his hand, which was long, and as white as the princess's own.

"I am very pleased to see you, sir," he said; "I am afraid my child disturbed you yesterday." (Hal glanced instinctively at the princess, and wondered if the old man really did not realize that this beautiful creature was fast growing into a woman.) "Trout? yes; I thank you! It is very kind! Are you staying at Forbach?"

"Yes," said Hal, "for a time."

"Mr. Bertram is going to the castle—to his sister, papa," said the princess. "The castle, you know."

"Yes—yes," said the old man, "Mazini once stayed there. Is it a fine day, Verona?"

"It is beautiful," said the princess. "It is very cold, I am afraid," said the prince, with a smile.

"Cold!" exclaimed Hal—"it's very hot."

The princess glanced downward, silent for a moment.

"It is very hot in here," she said. "Good-by, papa."

And she stood on tiptoe, and kissed him.

The prince held out his hand to Hal, and he saw that he was seated at the table and his book, almost before they had turned.

The princess looked at Hal with the questioning expression of a child anxious to glean his thoughts, but Hal stared straight before him.

"Papa is always very busy," she said, very softly and slowly. "He does not like this sunlight—it reminds him of Italy."

"Why doesn't he go back there?" asked Hal, in his delightfully blunt English fashion.

"He cannot," she said, quietly; "they will not let him. Papa is banished."

Hal stared.

"He has offended the people in power," went on the princess, reluctantly—"offends them still. All his friends are banished; all those letters are from the friends of liberty. You see, I tell you because you are English, and the English never betray."

"And the prince," said Hal, "does he never go out—is he always reading and writing?"

"Almost always," she replied.

"If he could have been sure of dying the moment afterward, I think he would have done it."

All innocently unconscious of his audacious aspiration, the princess stepped back to look at her handwork, and raised her eyes to his face, with a smile, and Hal was obliged to turn away that she might not see the longing in the frank eyes.

"And there," she said, "you shall take home to the hotel to your friend, the coach!"

She looked about as she spoke for something to put the camellias in, and pounced upon a small, fanciful basket, more precious in Hal's eyes than the flowers, for how often might her little fingers have clasped the handle!

"There," she said.

Hal took the basket and raised his hat, but not a word could he get out.

"I—I am afraid I must go now, your highness," he said.

"Yes," she said, with an innocent look of regret; "you are going on an excursion with your friend. Well, you have a beautiful day."

"No, I'm not," said Hal, eagerly. "I'm going—I shall go to the stream, where—where I saw you yesterday."

"And catch some more fish? Well, I will wish you good fortune. Perhaps you are dull without your friends—your sister, who is coming. She is beautiful, you say?"

"Jeanne, yes, Jeanne is good-looking enough," said Hal.

"Yes," said the princess, folding her hands behind her, and looking up at him with a strange thoughtfulness on her face. "I wonder if I shall see her?"

"Of course you will," said Hal, eagerly. "That is, I mean if you like."

"I hope so," said the princess, "and I think, yes, I am sure I shall like her."

"I am sure you will," said Hal, emphatically; "most people like Jeanne."

"Jeanne, it is a pretty name."

"And—and I am sure she will like you!" he ventures, with an effort.

"Are you she asks, naively. "What makes you think that?"

Hal is on the point of blustering out:

"Because I like you; because no one could help it; because you are an

Then Hal looked at her, with a great swell of pity gushing up in his heart. Shut up in this place with an old man who preferred lamp-light to sunlight, and never left his writing-table, and a woman who watched her like a cat—this bright, lovely flower, with the artless grace of a child. To Hal it seemed too dreadful to be thought of.

"Oh, but I am very happy," she said, as if she—as she really did—read his thoughts. "I have my flowers, and Carlo and Florida?" asked Hal, with the deepest interest.

"My horse," she replied.

"Are you fond of riding?" asked Hal.

"Yes," she said—"very! I ride every evening, and sometimes in the morning. And you?"

"Yes," said Hal.

He had got a stout cob down at Newton, a present from Vane.

"Yes, all Englishmen are," she said.

"And—and," said Hal, "where—I mean—where would you recommend as a pleasant ride?"

"There are many," said the princess, innocently. "I generally ride through the valley to the hills; one gets some air up there. It is like fresh life," and her eyes kindled. "You must go up to the hills."

"Yes," said Hal, with artfully feigned carelessness. "I think I must."

There fell a silence upon them as they paced side by side, mainly caused by Hal puzzling his brains to find some excuse for staying longer.

Presently they came to a hot house. The princess opened the door.

"Here are some of my flowers," she said, and they entered.

A gardener who was at work made a low obeisance and withdrew.

Like everything else he had seen, this place was on the grandest scale, and in the most perfect order.

"I call this my kingdom," said the princess, smiling with evident delight at Hal's admiration.

"I know every flower in it. See, these are my favorites," and she drew down a bunch of white camellias.

"George!" said Hal, "they are fine! We've nothing like this in England! They are as thick as blackberries."

"Come," said the princess. "You shall take them in a knife for your fish, and she caught up a knife and cut a handful of the flowers."

"Stop—stop!" said Hal; "you are spoiling the plant!"

"And why should I not?" she said, with a sweet smile. "See, they are beautiful, are they not? Will you have one in your coat?—ah, yes, you have a flower already!"

Hal snatched the azalea from his button-hole, and pitched it under the stand.

"No, I haven't," he said.

She laughed like a child, and selected the largest of the camellias, handed it to him.

"Thanks," he said, and tried to put it in his button-hole, where it hung clumsily out, as they always do when clumsy hands meddle with them.

"Ah, you will lose it," said the princess, and in the most natural manner in the world, she stretched up to him and fixed the flower with a pin. Hal's face went crimson, poor boy, and then pale, for he was possessed by a maddening desire to seize the two white hands fluttering at his breast and kiss them.

If he could have been sure of dying the moment afterward, I think he would have done it.

All innocently unconscious of his audacious aspiration, the princess stepped back to look at her handwork, and raised her eyes to his face, with a smile, and Hal was obliged to turn away that she might not see the longing in the frank eyes.

"And there," she said, "you shall take home to the hotel to your friend, the coach!"

angel!" but he stops himself in time and rubs his head. "I'm sure of it," he says, rather weakly.

By this time they have reached the terrace steps opposite the reception-room, and the first thing Hal sees is the companion still reading her book, and waiting for them; and Hal takes a sudden violent distaste to the thin woman with the cold face.

Excepting into the prince's room, Carlo has followed them everywhere, and he now stands by the door, thrusting his broad nose into Hal's careening hand.

"Look, senora," says the princess. "Carlo is quite amiable."

The companion answers something in Italian, and Hal fidgets with his hat.

"Good-by—that is, good-morning," he says, holding out his hand; but the princess goes with him into the hall, Carlo following.

"Good-by," she says, giving him her soft, little hand, which seems swallowed up by Hal's brown paw. "Good-by," and thank you for calling."

Hal is about to stammer something, possibly a prayer to be allowed to repeat the visit, when a step is heard on the front terrace, and with a growl, Carlo bounds forward, Hal, looking around hastily, sees a gentleman at the outer door, and the next instant the princess utters a cry, for Carlo has washed at the glass with an ominous growl and a liberal display of fangs.

Hal steps forward and seizes the dog just in time to prevent him clawing open the door, which has been left ajar, and looking up, sees that the object of his ferocious manifestation is a short, upright gentleman with wrinkled face—none other than the Count Mikoff.

Then he turns to Hal, as the princess, glancing up for a moment, says, in a quiet, constrained voice:

"Mr. Bertram, a friend, Count Mikoff, Mr. Bertram."

The count makes an elaborate bow and wrinkles into a smile.

"I have had the pleasure of meeting this gentleman before, senator, and am charmed to renew the acquaintance."

She is far above poor Hal, who stammers out something polite, and moves toward the door, with his hand still on the growling Carlo's collar, as if he really intended walking off with him.

"The dog! let me implore you not to release him, sir, until he is otherwise secured," says the count, with a smile, but keeping his eyes on the dog.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $5.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pine in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup.

Either way, you must use 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.00. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a very short time. It is or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—irritated membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Sore throat, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pine" with else. Guaranteed to give relief, or your money refunded. The Pine Co., Toronto, Ont.

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, lubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Rose Blanche Notes.

Since last writing the fishery has still improved—all our boats on Saturday, the 29th and Monday, the 31st inst., secured great catches from 89 to 90 cwt., for each dory for both days. The Atlantic Fish Co. are getting their premises blocked and are unable to handle all the fish.

Mr. Wm. Horwood has his stores nearly blocked with salt bulk fish, and it is reported he will soon be compelled to refuse to purchase any more.

One of Nicholson's vessels from Bucksport, Me., is here to purchase fresh fish and to cure it salt bulk for the American market, but the fish that is being caught the past two days are too small, and it is feared he too will discontinue purchasing and return home, as the American markets are not looking good, and the next U. S. administration is expecting to put an import duty of one cent per pound on our fish, which will make it prohibitive.

The liquidators of R. Moulton, Ltd., are arranging to put a certain stock of provisions and other necessities for their branches, to enable them to carry on a barter trade for fish and cash. This arrangement will help greatly to tide us over the anticipated distress, particularly at Burnt Islands and Grand Bruit, where the fishermen has been unable to sell any fish lately.

The fishermen at Burnt Islands, up to date, had to secure their fish (lightly salted) and bring it to Rose Blanche for sale. There are no merchants anxious to buy and some times these men have difficulty in selling.

Only two Fortune Bay schooners have arrived to date, but I hear a large fleet are on their way. The outlook for a good fishery is in sight, and if the weather permits we are going to have an unprecedented fishery.

The New York schooner Elizabeth Howard, with a cargo of salt, has discharged her cargo here and is taking payment in salt bulk fish.

There was a great shortage of salt here before this and another vessel arrived, and the salt shortage problem has, on that account, been relieved.

Would my few lines help some sufferer from skin disease? A year ago I was a fright, you could not put a pin on my whole body. I was tormented beyond words. I could not sleep. I tried several doctors. I have seen no sores or pimples for five months, thanks to your wonderful D.D.D.

I tried other treatments from time to time, but without success. Having read much about Dodd's Kidney Pills, I decided to give them a trial. Basket Ball Contests. There was some exciting contests during the past week in the fight for the championship of the basket ball series being held by the C. C. C. members. Owing to the inclement weather no games were played on Monday and Tuesday evenings, but on Wednesday night the two junior games were played, the Whites defeating the Blues and the Eagles the Reds. The first was an excellent game but in the second the Eagles won easily over their opponents.

On Thursday night the Seniors held a contest. Two games were played and some perfect basket ball was the outcome. In the first game the Caribou defeated the Invincibles after a gruelling contest by a score of 15 points to 2. In the second game the Rangers defeated the Shamrocks. This game was also very exciting and when full time was up no scoring had resulted. In the play-off, however, the Rangers managed to notch up two points after about two minutes of play.

Last night three games were played in the junior section, the Natives defeating the Greens, the Terra Novas the Shamrocks and the Stars the Rovers. Arrangements are now being made to start the field hockey games.

The Seal Fishery.

A MOST INTERESTING PUBLICATION. We thank the publishers for a copy of that most entertaining pamphlet, "The Seal Fishery, Past, Present and Future," by Capt. A. Kean. The matter contained in this publication was first delivered in the form of a lecture before the Newfoundland Historical Society by Capt. A. Kean, and its appearance in its present form will be very welcome to those who could not attend the lecture. If every author were as conversant with his subject as is Capt. Kean with his, there would be little need for adverse criticism on the part of book reviewers. The booklet contains a foreword from the able pen of Mr. I. C. Morris, in which he gives some account of the Captain's career as a sealing master. Amongst the other contents is a copy of the lecturer's certificate as a Master, R.N.R.

The book is well illustrated and contains a mass of facts set forth in a manner which holds the reader's interest from start to finish, whilst as a work of reference, it is invaluable.

Wants St. George's Society Inaugurated. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I should like to test this town, and am going to ask those who would like to see inaugurated here a St. George's Society to send me a post card, a note or letter to that effect. The idea would be to have each member pay a yearly subscription of five dollars. If we get one hundred members, it would mean that the Society would have five hundred dollars, at least each year for distribution amongst needy people as the committee thought best. If a thousand members joined it would have at least five thousand dollars. The Society would be open to both sexes. Lady members half price. The committee would consist of ladies and gentlemen. The object of the Society would be generally to help as far as its funds would permit, all those who from whatever cause are unable to help themselves; particularly it would be to help English men and women and the dependants of English men and women in Newfoundland. I do not ask anyone to send me any money. All I want to know is would such a Society meet with sufficient endorsement to warrant me in starting it. If I get a sufficient number of names, I should like to direct some of the best of the ladies and gentlemen, whose prenames are words to conjure with in this country; whose integrity is unquestioned and whose ability to successfully manage such a society has been proved by years of successful managing of similar institutions.

Yours sincerely, GEO. W. B. AYRE. Feb. 11, 1921.

"Prince of Pilsen." LAST PERFORMANCE TO-NIGHT. The "Prince of Pilsen" will never like Alexander, have to seek for new worlds to conquer, for those who have attended it once would willingly go every night to see the performance repeated, so entertaining have they found it. The audience last night took no pains to hide their appreciation of the work of the artists. All the lady performers were again presented with boxes of chocolates, whilst Misses Lydia Miller and Mary Ryan received handsome bouquets.

To-night's performance of this splendid production is the last, and if there are any who have not yet seen it, though they must be few, they had better see about getting their tickets before the few remaining are all gone.

Revolution Indicated

Lest the reader be alarmed by the intelligence conveyed in the above headline, we hasten to say that it is not in Newfoundland, unless, perhaps the coming election in Harbor Main indicates that a revolution against the present Government is in process of development, which will fructify at the polls on March 12th next.

This impairment will shorten the exports to the United States. The importation of raw sugar by the New York and other refineries will be curtailed, and they will have to seek other sources of supply.

The Bank of Montreal lost $10,000, the Royal Bank $5,000, and the Merchants Bank $2,000 by a clever ruse under which a man, so far still at large, wrote out small cheques in invisible ink on each bank, had them certified, and later in the week returned and cashed them, when the amounts he had originally written on them had been treated chemically, and developed to raised figures. The cheques were cashed without question.

Enthusiasm.

"Enthusiasm is the height of man. It is the passing from the Human to the Divine." —Emerson.

One night last week I was privileged to go behind the scenes at a city theatre where a musical comedy was being performed by gifted amateur actors. There were about 50 young people standing in groups about the wings—all dressed up for their parts. It was quite an animated scene. What struck me most was the wonderful spirit of enthusiasm with which everyone was imbued.

It could not help occurring these high spirited amateurs the people with the folk who look upon the exhibition of enthusiasm as undignified, almost vulgar. I think the repression of enthusiasm belongs to a bygone age. Enthusiasm is a splendid thing, a buoyant, inspiring, energising quality.

A Complicated Case.—A rather complicated case came up for hearing to-day in the Magistrate's Court when a man was charged with breaking the kitchen door of the plaintiff's house and threatening to beat him, also for breaking a window in the house of plaintiff's mother-in-law. It seems that plaintiff's wife slandered the defendant's wife and a young girl staying with her, so accused went on the war path and the plaintiff ran for shelter to the house of his mother-in-law where he put his back against the door to keep the defendant out. The latter tried to break in and accidentally put his hand through a window, cutting it so badly as to necessitate eight stitches being made in it. On the first charge a fine of $4 was imposed and on the second $1. The Judge said that the wife of defendant had good grounds for taking action for slander against plaintiff's wife. Mr. G. W. B. Ayre appeared for the defendant. Sent Down for Vagrancy.—An old offender was taken in for sakekeeping last night. He had no money and no home so the Judge sent him down for 10 days.

Terras Defeat Saints.

IN EXTRAORDINARY HOCKEY.

In a most extraordinary game the Terras defeated the Saints at the Prince's rink last night by a score of 7 goals to 4. In this game both the Terras and the fastest bits of play were seen in the rink this season...

Penalties—P. F. Fearn. Referee—T. V. Payn.

The following penalties were imposed during the game. 1st Period—Clouston (T.N.). 2nd Period—Munn (S.), R. Stick (T.N.), Tobin (T.N.), Clouston (T.N.).

COMMENT ON THE GAME.

It is to be hoped that very few games will be seen in future quite like last night's. During the game Hennebury was very badly knocked about and was unable to continue playing.

Jim Herder and "Dick" Johnston, who both play for the Methodist College team, did not do at all badly when their age and lack of experience are taken into consideration. Both will make very good hockeyists in time.

Very little interest will be taken in the remaining games of the season, as the championship is now settled. It is to be hoped, however, that the remaining games will be well contested, because after all, "the game of the thing" and the fact that the championship is already won should not make the slightest difference to the manner in which the rest of the fixtures are contested.

Some of the players complain of the absence of a light over the stairs leading to the dressing rooms and also of the lack of seating accommodation in the dressing rooms.

C. L. B. Cadets.

The Armoury has come through the recent bombardment from the big attack of the Blizzard Battalion's Winds and Snows in good shape. No damage from the enemy's forces have been reported to the C.O. A huge drift is at present entrenched in front of the Armoury, but did not prevent the Brigade's enthusiastic fighters of wind and weather going on duty last night.

The first period began with the Terras having things all their own way and before very long they had added another goal to their score through Clouston. The Saints then pressed for a bit and Errol Munn put the Terras back with a goal which proved too much for "Cocky" Munn in goal. Before the period ended, Robertson beating Rawlins with a stinging shot from the wing after coming up on the boards and Clouston again securing the lead for the Terras by putting the puck past Munn from a pass by Len Stick.

The second period began with the Terras having things all their own way and before very long they had added another goal to their score through Clouston. The Saints then pressed for a bit and Errol Munn put the Terras back with a goal which proved too much for "Cocky" Munn in goal.

The third period opened with a goal being scored for the Terras by Canning. The Saints now began to buck up and Robertson scored their third goal after a five minutes play seen in the rink for a long time. From one end of the arena to the other the puck was carried along at a tremendous speed and the spectators thought they were in for an exciting finish but play soon slackened down and became as slow as ever. Very near the end the Terras began to press the Saints goal. At one time they were just on the point of scoring, when, buckling up his armour like a knight of old, "Cocky" sallied into the fray, using his goal stick like a trusty battle-axe, and scattering his opponents like chaff. From this on to all appearances the game was going to develop into a rough house, but fortunately the gong rang before this could happen. Shortly before full time, Errol Munn registered the last goal for his side by the Terras winning the game by the Felidians become League champions for the second time in succession. They played consistently well throughout the series and easily deserved the success which they have attained. The Telegram congratulates Captain Parn and his team upon again gaining the laurels.

Shipwrecked Men Home.

Kyle Brings Captain and Crew of Cento. Schooner Cento, Capt. W. J. Edgecombe, 30 tons net, owned by P. Templeman, Ltd., Bonaville, left Catalina on October 6th, 1920, with a cargo of dry codfish for Malaga, Spain, the run across the Atlantic from port to port being made in 26 days. On the return trip to Newfoundland the Cento left Malaga on January 3, putting into Gibraltar five days later, finally leaving that port on January 10th. On the sixth day out from Gibraltar the vessel sprung a leak and all hands were kept at the pumps continuously for eighty-seven hours, but the water began to gain with such rapidity that the pumps could not cope with the inrush and it was at length decided to abandon ship. Before doing so, however, distress signals were hoisted on the schooner, which ere long were sighted by the steamer Massillon Bridge, which bore down on the leaking vessel and succeeded in taking off the whole ship's company. This was in latitude 39.04 N., longitude 19.72 W. The crew were landed at Gibraltar, from where they took passage to St. John, N.B., by S. S. Odra, arriving O.K. and taking passage by rail for St. John's, at which place they joined S. S. Kyle, arriving at St. John's last night.

And then there is something to be used as an after-shave—say Ideal After-Shave, or any of the large number of Vanishing Creams, such as Acme Vanishing Cream. In fact you can obtain all the ingredients of a clean shave from us at reasonable prices.

Quidi Vidi Has Wreck.

Schooner Elizabeth Fearn Meets Disaster. Campbell McKay & Co's schooner Elizabeth Fearn, 60 days out from Bahia, in sand ballast drove ashore at Quidi Vidi at 5 a.m. to-day. The crew landed safely in a dory, saving most of their belongings. The vessel was commanded by Capt. Vatcher, and a crew of 8 men. This morning the owners were notified that the vessel was ashore, and the tug Ingraham was sent to render assistance. Nothing however could be done to save any of the cargo. The wind being high, the Ingraham did not get into where the vessel was stranded, but it could be seen that she was fast breaking up. Her bowsprit was in over the sand bar, her jumbo, mizzen and foremast gone, the vessel was in a very bad way. The crew were landed at Gibraltar, from where they took passage to St. John, N.B., by S. S. Odra, arriving O.K. and taking passage by rail for St. John's, at which place they joined S. S. Kyle, arriving at St. John's last night.

The Open Fire.

Man is the only animal who has made friends with the fire, writes Dr. Henry Van Dyke. All other creatures, in their natural state, are afraid of it. They look upon it with wonder and dismay. It fascinates them, sometimes, with its glittering eyes in the night. The squirrels and the hares come pattering softly toward it through the underbrush around the new camp. The deer stand staring into the blaze of the jack while the hunter's came creeps through the lily-pads. But the charm that masters them is one of dread, not of love. When they know what it means, or even when its small comely, they recognize it as a enemy. Let but a trail of smoke drift down the wind across the forest, and all the game for miles and miles will catch the signal for flight and flight.

In the Supreme Court.

February 8th, 1921. Harvey & Co., Ltd., vs. Anglo-American Telegraph Co. (Before Kent J.) The facts and the law involved in this action are of more than ordinary importance, and the result will be waited for with interest by business men.

On the face of the old form, an indorsement advised the sender of a message to have it repeated, for greater accuracy. In Parker & Webb vs. the Anglo, the Court held that this was not a condition, but a notice only, as the form referred to "conditions on the back hereof."

On both the old and the new forms a condition appeared to the effect that the Anglo acted as agent of the sender, without liability, in forwarding telegrams beyond its own lines, and it was shown that the error in the Harvey telegram probably arose between New York and Chicago, on the operated by employees of the U. S. Government.

On the 11th of August, 1918, the Anglo, and it may prove one decisive factor in this action. Morine, K.C. for the Anglo Company, argued that Harvey & Company were subject to all the conditions "as published" in both forms, but especially to those in the later form, which they had signed in one instance at least, in August, 1918.

Can not Regulate Law of Supply and Demand. The scramble for "protection" and "government aid" and similar artificial measures to bolster up prices for the benefit of certain classes is regrettable from every viewpoint. Such tactics are likely to end only in disappointment, just as are attempts by farmers to "hold wheat for 40" and by cotton-growers to "hold seed for 30 cents." Because governments used strong-arm methods to control prices during the World War emergency, the notion has become widespread that the law of supply and demand can be thwarted by tinkering with the time by anybody that has a mind to. It can't, as those who try it will learn or their coat in the long run.—Forbes' Magazine.

A Barnardo Director.

The directorate of the Barnardo Homes in England, has received a valuable acquisition in the person of Admiral Sir H. Stilleman, whose long service has made him one of Britain's foremost sailors. One of his latest poems was that of superintendent of the naval branch of the Barnardo work at Norwich, where boys are trained for the Royal Navy and for the mercantile marine.

Almost ninety thousand children have passed through the rescue doors of the Barnardo Homes, and during the four-and-a-half years of the Great War 7,131 children were admitted to these homes. The average number of children in residence is 7,335. This fine work was established by Dr. Thomas John Barnardo, a native of Ireland, who in 1866 opened, in East London, homes for waifs and homeless children gathered from the streets of all British cities.

At Ilford, in Essex County, England, he founded in 1873 a village home for training girls; and after that came the great school at Newrick in which Admiral Sir H. Stilleman was superintendent. The children of the well-to-do were enlisted in the work through the formation in 1891 of the Young Helpers' League.

Thousands of Barnardo boys have been brought to Canada and placed in farm homes, some in asteria Canada, but more in the west. They learned farming, and many of them have acquired land, have "made good," and are now prosperous farmers. Many have also been successfully placed in other British Dominions overseas.

A Tramp Water-Hog.

Two years ago a large and intelligent water-hog from South America that came to the British menagerie which exploited him and his brethren, crept away, and took up his abode in a pond at Manning's Heath, Sussex. There he lived a hermit-like existence, swimming and diving, or scrambling along the fringe of the pool by way of exercise, and harming no man, until quite recently, a young foal disputed his claim to the pond. The water-hog had the impudence to charge the foal, and suffered death at the hands of a gamekeeper for his misdemeanor. The hogs life in the Sussex pond is regarded as all the more strange because few of his species have survived the English climate. Such creatures abound on the river banks in South America, and, while possessing the skin and bristles of an ordinary hedgehog, can swim and dive like a fish, often retaining under water for lengthy periods. They have long curious moulded teeth, which enable them to grind to a pulp the vegetable matter that forms their sustenance, and allow it to pass down the very narrow passage of their throat. They bark and growl like dogs, and are altogether unpleasant animals when roused. The Manning pond specimen was regarded by the villagers as quite harmless, however, and they deplored its untimely end.

Brother Kills Sister.

The sequel to a terrible village tragedy has just been heard in the trial for murder of two natives at Bombay. The accused, who are brothers, were charged by an in-trigue on the part of their widowed sister, who lived with them, that they killed the woman, Manawa, and her lover, Narappa, as well. Evidence showed that while Narappa was coming down of the river after bathing one of the brothers, Kashangowda, suddenly jumped upon him and bore him to the ground. While he was held fast by this brother, the other came up and cut Narappa's throat. The murder was witnessed by four boys, who ran back to the village and informed Yellara, the mother of Narappa, who went to the river, followed by her neighbors. Some distance ahead of them they saw the two brothers with their sister Manawa, whom they were dragging by the arms.

On arriving at the riverside the villagers found both Narappa and Manawa lying dead, with their throats cut. The police arrested the brothers. One pleaded an alibi, but the second stated, before the Magistrate, that he had found Narappa and Manawa together, and had killed them both. Before the Sessions Court he pleaded guilty, but on the second day of the trial he states that he has been in his right senses when he made this plea; and when examined by the Court at the close of the prosecution he denied his guilt. The Judge found the accused guilty and sentenced them to death, but they appealed to the High Court, which, having regard to the fact that they were ignorant villagers labouring under a sense of injury, considered the ends of justice would be met by transportation for life.

VISIT POSTPONED.—Owing to the state of the railway line, Major Gallaher, the Salvation Army revivalist, has postponed his intended visit to Carboneau, and will continue to conduct his revival meetings at No. 2 Hall, Adelaide Street, during the week-end.

MY COLUMN

(By The Cub-Editor.) TO ASK IS TO RECEIVE. I asked for questions. I got them. Not singly, nor by the dozen, but by the sack. And such questions! Latterly I have had to devote my whole editorial space to answering long questions. To-day I must do likewise. Before, however, getting on to the question in hand, I am publishing the following letter of thanks received from "Deuce" whose letter I "juggled" with in this column last week.

He says:—"I have to thank you most sincerely for your lengthy replies to my enquiries. The replies were most amusing (sic), but as to their accuracy or veracity! 'Oh thou dissembling Cut, what wilt thou when time hath sown a grizzle on thy case.' Yours truly, 'DEUCE'."

Now for the present question. It is from one "Sweetie" who asks: "When a tall partner is dancing with a very short partner, whose waist he or she cannot reach down to, without adopting an extremely awkward and tiresome attitude, is it correct for the lengthy one to place his or her arm around the neck of the abbreviated partner, or to clasp said partner around the waist in the usual manner and assume an upright position, thus bringing the short partners feet about a foot and a half from the ground? Perhaps you would also advise as to what portion of the tall partners anatomy the short one should clasp?" I have consulted that well known authority "Dancing and what one should and should not do," by a notorious society lady, in chapter 19 page 210, I found the following:—"When dancing with a partner much shorter than one's self, if a male, clasp him firmly round the neck with the right hand, tips of the fingers gripping the inside of his collar. Do not lift him off the floor. It is very bad form, and you may cause him to lose his collar which wouldn't do at all. If the short partner is a female she should be gripped firmly round the waist with the right hand and hold so that her face is in alignment with her partner's. There is then no danger of her being trampled under foot and lost in the crowd." Beyond the above I have not been able to glean any information which would be of use to "Sweetie."

RIMES OF THE TIMES. (S) SINCE SWEETSTAKES ARE NO MORE. (It has been predicted that there will be a lack of interest in hockey games in future owing to sweetestakes being banned.)

Sorrow reigns throughout the land For the law with heavy hand, Sweeps and lotteries has banned For evermore. I Protesters are of no avail Naught can 'gainst the law prevail Who care now what team does fall Or what the score.

When a hockey game you see No excitement will there be If the score is too or three Since sweeps are banned Watching—still you will be bored, Caring not what goals are scored And the game that you adored You cannot stand.

What funny trick it is of fate Who does not make you now feel great When down the ice your side does skate And goals does reap Why don't you watch the game with zest, The reason I don't manifest Is—no interest Is—no sweep.

GENTLE JABS. Lot's wife at least earned her salt. A cuff on the wrist bearns two on the ear. Floating debts are no sort of life preservers. Concealed knowledge is as useful as buried treasure. Blessed is the peacemaker if he keeps at a safe distance. It's almost as bad to say mean things as it is to do them. Policemen, like the hairs of a man's head, are numbered. A man doesn't have to be a detective in order to find trouble.

THE ZERO HOUR. A captain in the merchant marine who received much commendation for his wonderful courage and endurance during the war was asked to address a meeting in the West. Ex-President Taft spoke first and at considerable length, and when he had finished the audience rose, almost to a man, to leave the building. The chairman sprang to his feet, rushed to the edge of the platform, and called excitedly: "Come back and take your seats. Come back, every one of you! This man went through hell for us during the war, and it is up to us now to do the same for him."

THE POWER OF SUGGESTION. "Why are farmers dissatisfied so much of the time?" "I suspect," replied Senator Sorghum, "that one reason is that we politicians returning home from a late evening gathering noticed through the window a Chinaman in the dimly lighted rear shop. "I wonder what that Chinaman is doing up so late?" said one. "Shirts, I suppose," came the answer.

Wedding Bells. TAPPER-EDWARDS. A very pretty wedding was solemnized here on Jan. 26th, when Mr. Peter Edwards of this place, led to the altar Miss Edna Tapper of Frodo's Cove. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Thomas, P.P. of Lamaline. The bride was beautifully attired in a dress of pale blue with hat to match. After the ceremony the happy couple proceeded to the home of the groom, where a nice tea was served to the immediate friends. After tea the noted pianist, Mr. Leo Edwards, struck up "Hail to the Wedding," and a very enjoyable time was kept up till the early morning. All join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Edwards many happy returns. Lawn, Feb. 4, 1921.

DYER-DEVEREAUX. A very pretty wedding took place at Logy Bay on Feb. 6th, when Miss Mary Ellen Dyer, eldest daughter of Stephen and Kitty Dyer, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John Devereaux, eldest son of James and Johanna Devereaux of Logy Bay. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. O'Callaghan in the presence of 100 guests. The bride was beautifully gowned in champagne satin with beaded trimmings, and a hat of mole silk veils and ostrich feathers; she also wore a set of furs and looked charming. Miss Maggie May Dyer, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and wore a gown of Paris cream silk lace with fox furs and hat to match. The groom was supported by his brother, Andrew Devereaux. After the ceremony Rev. Father O'Callaghan paid a glowing tribute to the contracting parties and hoped that every blessing would attend them during their future years. The bridal party proceeded to the home of the bride's parents, where a very dainty supper was served to over seventy guests. The toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Mrs. R. Crobie and Sergeant John Robinson respectively, in language that expressed admiration and respect that was felt for the happy couple. At 8.30 p.m. the bride and groom drove to their new home, where refreshments were served and a very enjoyable dance was held. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, testified to her popularity, as she has always been keen and foremost in any work connected with the good of the parish, such as Fairs, Societies and Garden Parties. Their many friends wish them bon voyage over the sea of life.—Com.

THE CAPTURE OF YORK.

Kingston, 15 May, 1812. My Lord—I have the honor of transmitting to Your Lordship the copy of a dispatch which I have received from Major-General Sir Roger Sheaffe, containing the particulars of an attack made by the land forces and the militia of the enemy upon York in upper Canada, on the 27th April. When Your Lordship adverts, to the small proportion of regular force as yet at my disposal, and is informed that the U.S. have acquired a decided superiority on Lake Ontario, in consequence of their exertions during the last six months to increase their line, most particularly on that lake, and whilst I have been unable to obtain from Admiral Sir I. Warren a timely reinforcement of seamen, with the naval officers who were sent by him, through the forests of New Brunswick to Quebec, where they arrived on the 20th of last month, I trust Your Lordship will feel disposed favorably to represent to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, the gallant efforts made by a handful of British troops for the preservation of the post they had to defend against a numerous force brought for their conquest.

The enemy left York on the 8th inst. and proceeded to Niagara, where I understand, they landed, on the American side of the lake, 1,200 men under General Dearborn, for the purpose of strengthening their army on that line, and probably with a view to make a further attempt upon Fort George or Fort Erie. The militia afterwards returned to Sackett's Harbor.

From the information I have received from an officer of the lake marine left at York and sent over under a flag of truce, I find the enemy's force at Sackett's Harbor to be near 5,000 men and that they were making preparations for another expedition, but I am at a loss to know to what point the attack will be directed.

(Enclosure to the above letter.)

Kingston, 5th May, 1812. Sir—I did myself the honor of writing to Your Excellency on my route from York, to communicate the mortifying intelligence that the enemy had obtained possession of that place on the 27th April. I shall now give Your Excellency a full detail of the event.

In the evening of the 27th April information was received that many vessels had been seen to the Eastward, and very early the next morning they were discovered lying to, not far from the harbor. After some time had elapsed, they made sail, and to the number of 16 of various descriptions, anchored off the shore some distance to the Westward. Boats full of troops were immediately seen assembling near their commanding ship, under the cover of whose fire, and of the other vessels, and aided by the wind, they soon effected a landing in spite of a spirited opposition from Major Givens and about 40 Indians. A company of the Gleggery Light Infantry, which had been ordered to support them, was, by some mistake, led in another direction, and came late into action. The other troops, consisting of two companies of the 8th King's Regt., and about a company of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment with some militia, encountered the enemy in a thick wood. Capt. McNeale of the King's Regt. was killed while gallantly leading his company, which suffered severely. Our troops at length fell back, and rallied several times, but could not maintain the contest against the greatly superior, and increasing force of the enemy, and retreated under cover of our batteries, which were engaged with some of the enemy's vessels that had been moved near the harbor. They kept up a heavy fire, some of the guns being thirty-two pounders. To return it we had a twelve pounder, and 2 old condemned eighteen pounders without any carriages, and during a part of the time a twelve pounder of the same description, which we had stocked and mounted. With these defective means the enemy were kept at bay for some time, when by some unfortunate accident the magazine blew up, and killed and wounded a considerable number of men and crippled the battery. It became too evident our number and means, of before, were inadequate of maintaining possession of York. The troops were withdrawn towards the town, and finally ordered to retreat on the road to Kingston. The powder magazine was blown up, and the new ship, and the naval stores were destroyed. Lt.-Col. Chewitt and Major Allen of the Militia, resident in the town, were instructed to treat with the American commanders for terms. A statement of those agreed on is transmitted to Your Excellency with returns of the killed and wounded, etc. The accounts of the enemy landed vary from 1890 to 3000. We had about 600, including Militia and dockyard men. The quality of some of these troops was of no inferior a description, and their general disposition was so good that under less unfortunate circumstances I should have felt confident of success, in spite of the disparity of number, as it was.

The contest, which commenced between 6 and 7 o'clock, was maintained until nearly five hours. When we had proceeded some miles from York we met the Light Company of the King's Regt., on its route for Fort George. It retired with us, and covered the retreat, which was effected without molestation from the enemy. Your Excellency is apprized of the causes which conspired to delay my departure from Fort George. I propose to remain here until I shall receive Your Excellency's command.

was effected at the two mile creek, about half a mile below the latter place. The party of troops and Indians stationed at this point, after opposing the enemy, and annoying him as long as possible, were obliged to fall back, and the fire from the shipping so completely enfiladed and scorched the plains, that it became impossible to approach the beach, and every effort to oppose his landing having failed, I lost not a moment in concentrating my force, and taking up a position between the town of Fort George, and the enemy, there waiting his approach. This movement was admirably covered by the Gleggery Light Infantry, joined by detachments from the Royal Newfoundland Regiment and Militia, which commenced skirmishing with the enemy's riflemen, who were advancing through the brushwood. The enemy having perfect command of the beach, he quickly landed between 2000 and 4000 men with several pieces of artillery, and his force was seen instantly advancing in three solid columns along the lake bank. His right covered by a large body of riflemen, and his left and front covered by the fire of the shipping and batteries in their fort. As our light troops fell back upon the main body, which was moved forward for their support, they were gallantly sustained by the Light Company, commanded by Major Ogilvie, the whole being under the immediate direction of Colonel Myers, acting Quartermaster-General, who had charge of the right wing. In the execution of this important duty, gallantry, zeal and devotion were eminently conspicuous, and I lament to report that I was deprived of the services of Col. Myers, who having received three wounds, was obliged to quit the field.

Lt.-Col. Harvey, the Deputy Adjutant-General, whose activity and gallantry had been displayed throughout the whole morning, succeeded Col. Myers, and brought up the right division, consisting of the 49th Regt. and some Militia.

The light artillery, under Major Holcroft, were already in position waiting the enemy's advance on the plain. At this moment the very inferior force under my command had experienced a very severe loss of officers and men, yet nothing could exceed the ardour of the troops, who showed the most marked devotion to their King and country, and appeared regardless of the consequences of the unequal contest. Being on the spot and seeing that the force under my command was opposed by tenfold numbers, who were rapidly advancing under cover of their shipping and batteries, from which our positions were immediately seen, and exposed to a tremendous fire of shot and shells, I decided retiring my little force to a position, which I hoped

EVACUATION OF FORT GEORGE.

40 Mile Creek, 28th May, 1812.

To Sir George Prevost, Commander of the Forces.

Sir—I have the honor to inform Your Excellency that yesterday morning, about daybreak, the enemy again opened his batteries upon Fort George, but the fire not being immediately returned, it ceased for some time. About 4 a.m. a combination of circumstances led to a belief that an invasion was meditated. The morning being exceedingly hazy, neither his means nor

An Investment Better than Ponzi's

Even if Ponzi's get-rich-quick scheme had proved a wonderful success, it would not have been such a blessing to humanity as is Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture, the one sure remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, chronic asthma and other throat and chest troubles. Ponzi's scheme only meant wealth, bankruptcy, and perhaps life. If you have a cold or hacking cough, beware the saying: "Cough-cough—cough—Don't risk a bottle, and get it to-day. One risk will bring relief. It has helped thousands, and it can do the same for you. Buckley's Mixture is not a soothing syrup. It is a scientific preparation, twenty times more effective than other cough mixtures. Ask your druggist for it, and look for the name on the carton. Take no substitute. Price 75c a bottle.

his situation could be ascertained, until the mist clearing certainly, until the mist clearing away at intervals, the enemy's fleet, consisting of 14 or 15 vessels, was discovered under weigh standing towards the lighthouse in an extended line of more than two miles, covering from 90 to 100 large boats and scows, each containing an average of fifty or sixty men. Though at this time no doubt could be entertained of the enemy's intention, his points of attack could only be conjectured. Having again commenced a heavy fire upon his first line of batteries and shipping, it became necessary to withdraw all the guards and picquets stationed along the coast between the Fort and lighthouse, and a landing might be less available by the heavy ordnance of the enemy, and from which a retreat would be left open in the event of that measure becoming necessary. There, after waiting the approach of the enemy for nearly half an hour, I received authentic information that his force, consisting of 4-5 thousand men, had reformed columns, and was making an effort to turn my right flank. At this critical juncture not a moment was to be lost, and sensible that every effort had been made by the officers and men under my command, to maintain the post of Fort George, I could not consider myself justified, in continuing so unequal a contest, the issue of which promised no advantage to the interests of His Majesty's service. Having given orders for the Fort to be evacuated, the guns to be spiked, and the ammunition destroyed, the troops under my command were put in motion, and marched across the country in a line parallel to Niagara River, towards the position near the Beaver Dam, beyond Queenston Mountain, at which place I had the honor of making to Your Excellency a report of ammunition and provisions had been found some time since. The rear guard of the army reached that position during the night and were soon afterwards joined by Col. Bishop with all the detachments from Chippewa to Fort Erie. The Light and Battalion Company of the 8th King's Regt. joined us about the same time as did Captain Marcy with a detachment from the Royal Navy. Having assembled my whole force the next morning, which did not exceed 1600 men, I continued my march towards the head of the Lake, where it is my intention to take up a position, and shall endeavour to maintain it until I shall be honored with Your Excellency's instructions, which I shall feel most anxious to receive.

I beg leave to suggest the great importance there exists for a communication being opened with me through the medium of the fleet. The anchorage under Mrs. Brand's house is perfectly safe and very good. I believe Your Excellency need not be informed that in the event of its becoming necessary that I should fall back upon York, the assistance of shipping would be required for the transfer of my artillery. I cannot conclude this communication without expressing a well merited tribute of approbation to the gallantry of every officer of the staff, and indeed of every individual composing my little army. Everyone most gallantly discharged the duties of his respective station. The struggle on the 27th continued from three to five hours, and I shall reach the head of the Lake to-morrow evening, without the enemy has not attempted to interrupt my movements. Information reached me this morning through an authentic channel, that he has pushed on 3000 infantry and a considerable body of cavalry towards Queenston. His whole force is stated to be nearly 10,000 men, and I cannot conceal from Your Excellency my conviction that unless some disaster attends their progress that force will daily increase. My sentiments respecting the Militia are already known, and it will not be supposed that their attachment to our cause was very steady under the peculiar complications of the present time.

Missing—Ptes. N. Hall, Bryan. (Signed) RICHARD LEONARD, Dep. Asst. Adj.-Gen.

(Editor's Note—An esteemed correspondent signing himself "Canadian," writes that in a small park in the older part of the city of Toronto, there stands a monument, bearing—so closely as he can remember—the following inscription:—

"This monument is erected to the memory of the fallen members of the York Rangers, Gleggery Fencibles and Royal Newfoundland Regiment, who were 'lost, successfully repelling an American invasion of the town of York (now City of Toronto) in the month of August, 1812.'"

The monument itself, our correspondent adds, is quite pretentious, and a good photo or oil painting might easily be made.

Should any of the numerous Newfoundlanders residing in Toronto do us the favor of sending a photo of the monument, the act will be highly appreciated and the courtesy acknowledged in the columns of the Telegram.

The inscription on the monument refers doubtless to an earlier attack by U.S. forces on York, though no mention of this is made in the official dispatches. The capture of this town

Derivation of Names of Days and Months.

The English names of the days of the week are derived from the Saxons and Scandinavians, and are as follows: Sunday is named from the Sun; Monday, from the Moon; Tuesday from Tiu, the god of war; Wednesday, from Woden, the chief Scandinavian deity; Thursday, from Thor, the Saxon god of thunder; Friday, from Friga, the wife of Woden; Saturday, from Sater, the Scandinavian equivalent for Saturn. The calendar months, twelve in number, received their names from the Romans, and were arranged by Julius Caesar almost as they now appear, as follows: January is so-called from Janus, who, according to the Roman mythology, was a two-faced god and presided over the month, which began as the sun turned its face from the north to south; February takes its name from the Latin Febrico ("I purify"), because in this month the Romans had certain religious ceremonies designed for moral purification; March is named from Mars, the god of war, and supposed father of Romulus, the founder of Rome; April is derived from Aperio ("to open"), because in this month vegetation begins to open and bud; May is either from Maia, mother of Mercury, to whom sacrifices were made on the first day; June is either from Juno or from Juniores ("young men"), to whom the month was dedicated; July is from Julius, and was named in honor of Julius Caesar; August is named in honor of Augustus Caesar; September is from Septem ("seven"), this having been the seventh month when the Romans began the year with March; October, November, December, respectively, signify eighth, ninth and tenth, and were also given when March was reckoned the first month.

The Business of Banking.

Must be conducted Sincerely—Banks do Not Create Money or Credit.

In view of the recent demand by the F.P.U. Convention for a State Bank, the following article reprinted from the Dry Goods Economist on the relations between Banks and customers' general interest. The writer says: "There seems to be a widespread superstition that the banks are in some mysterious way the creators of money and credit, that they are inexhaustible reservoirs of money and credit to which the business man should have free resort whenever he needs accommodation for legitimate purposes and that their refusal to extend credit for legitimate purposes can be due to nothing but sheer callousness or selfish consideration for their own profits.

Banks' Powers Are Limited.

"It is true that banks, like other business institutions, are not entirely free from either callousness or selfish consideration for their own profits. But it is a cardinal mistake to suppose that the banks have unlimited control over credit and capital. In fact they are nothing but intermediaries between the lenders and the borrower, and the amount of credit or capital in which they can deal is conditioned upon variations of supply and demand in goods.

"The actual amount of capital with which the banks can do business is the depositors' funds. These are the savings of the country, and represent the excess of production over consumption. They are the basis on which the superstructure of credit and currency must rest, and since they represent goods it is obvious that the real basis of credit and currency is the amount of goods they represent.

"But although capital and credit have value only in so far as they are redeemable in goods the relations of supply and demand fluctuate so much so constantly that any attempt to restrict the supply of credit and capital to a certain volume of goods at the value represented by bank deposits would be impracticable. In order to meet the constantly fluctuating demand for credit and capital the banks must adapt their accommodations to the basis of the actual supply and demand of goods in existence or to be produced.

"In other words the banks do not control credit conditions, but are altogether controlled by them. They may overestimate or underestimate the value of the securities on which the accommodations they grant is based, but it must be based on their estimate of the value of such security, since all forms of capital—gold, currency and credit—must ultimately be redeemable in goods and possess value only to the extent that they are redeemable. So long as this condition is observed there is no limit to the expansion of credit and currency, but as soon as it becomes apparent that the underlying values are insecure then expansion must stop and there must be deflation to a point of reasonable security.

Destruction of Capital.

"Now normally capital employed for business purposes more or less automatically renews itself. It is either liquidated by the distribution of goods or as in the case of capital invested in machinery—it creates new capital. So that normally the contraction and expansion of capital is a more or less automatic process, determined by the fluctuations of supply and demand in commodities and services, and therefore it is comparatively easy for the banker to adapt himself safely, as he must do, to conditions as he finds them.

Expansions of Loans.

"This naturally caused money to have less value in terms of goods, since there was being created a greater and greater volume of money in proportion to the volume of goods. In other words, prices rose, and accordingly as they rose there was an increasing demand for money and credit to finance the business of the country.

"What the banks did was simply to respond freely—too freely perhaps—to this demand.

"This was all right as long as values seemed likely to hold. But it became apparent as long ago as last fall that they had reached an over level. The level was insecure because it was conditioned largely upon a real or supposed shortage of goods and a great wave of post-war extravagance on the part of the public. As the production began to catch up on demand, as the wave of post-war extravagance began to ebb and as prices rose to a point at which the buying power of the pub-

Phantom Herd Found.

The phantom herd of the North has been found. For years a tradition of a great herd of buffalo somewhere in the Mackenzie River basin, has lingered among the fur posts. Indians told of sighting it blackening the wild pastures of remote valley. No white men had seen it. But trappers had chanced upon its trampled trails and ten years ago two mighty bulls that had straggled far from their fellows were killed. An engineer who has returned from five months of explorations in the Mackenzie country, reports that he saw the herd and estimated it at 1,000 head. He received reports, he says, from Indians that another herd equally as large exists further north. Canada has the largest bison herd in the world in the National Park at Wainwright. It numbers 4,335. With the exception of ninety animals that still live in untamed freedom in the northern fastnesses of Yellowstone Park the Mackenzie River herds are the only wild buffalo left on the continent.

Geneva Once a Warlike City.

Geneva, the seat of the League of Nations, witnessed some fierce fighting in the days when the Duke of Savoy sought to destroy its independence with the aid of a contingent of Spanish troops.

These mercenaries tried to rush the defenses at dead of night, but though some of them managed to get into Geneva, not one of them managed to get out again. Those who were not killed in action, were afterwards beheaded.

They still preserve at Geneva scaling ladders captured from the Spaniards on that memorable night, together with the caldron out of which a Geneva housewife, who had risen early to prepare her husband's breakfast, poured a deluge of scalding soup on to the heads of the enemy troops.

Another relic preserved at Geneva recalls the little band of exiles who worked together there at the translation of the Scriptures, known as the Geneva Bible.

On the eve of their departure for England they went in a body to the city fathers, who gave them, as the records show, "honorable license to depart, together with a testimonial of the satisfaction we have had in them, and an exhortation to act in their turn toward foreigners as we have acted toward them.

MIDWINTER SORROW.

Alas, there's a cold here everywhere according to the daily news, and countless cupboards now are bare of pumpkin pies and oyster stews, a child children will and tear their hair because they have not any shoes. And we might preach to those who lack the pies that human critics need reminding them how, some months back, they cut a gorgeous swath, indeed, and how we urged them then to pack in brine the kopeck and the seed. But preaching is an empty graft when human innards madly ache; there always is a mighty raft of sermons when kids call for cake, when poor folks yearn to sit aback a large and luscious str loin steak. And so we'll brighten up the lives of those who walk knee deep in woe, and stake the poor gent and their wives from our abundant stack of dough; the Christmas spirit still survives in all of us, we'd have you know. We'll spring our platitudes when next prosperity around is seen, when workmen are not perplex by absence of the good green; a pie is better than a text when meals are few and far between.

The First Surgeon Peer.

A Grand Old Man of Science, who revolutionized modern surgery by his antiseptic system, was Lord Lister, who died at his London residence on February 11, 1912, aged 84. He was born at Upton, Essex, on April 5, 1827, and had an almost meteoric career up to the year 1860, when he was appointed to the Chair of Surgery in the University of Glasgow. He discovered and introduced the antiseptic method of surgery, which has made possible the almost incredible operations so successfully carried out today, and by which thousands of lives have been saved. The honors showered upon him were richly earned. He was the first member of the medical profession to be raised to the peerage, being created a baron in 1897, having previously received a baronetcy in 1882. He was appointed, while in Edinburgh University, surgeon to the Queen, and was later one of the surgeons extraordinary to King Edward. He was President of the Royal Society in 1896, and was elected in 1902. He was President of the BPHSR Association for the Advancement of Science. Lord Lister was honored with the freedom of Edinburgh in 1898, of London in 1907, and of Glasgow later. He received degrees and distinctions from almost every European country. King Edward conferred the Order of Merit upon him in 1902, when he was also made a Privy Councillor.

Eagle, Emblem of Sovereignty.

The revision of the German eagle marks another change in a long heraldic tradition. Persia was probably the earliest nation to adopt this symbol of power, but the German bird is of direct Roman descent. It began with Tarquin, to whom an eagle heralded royal power and later became the imperial standard. Frederick II's grant of the Imperial eagle to the Teutonic Knights as a special mark of honour was the origin of the shield borne by the Imperial German eagle. The shield also disappears. The double-headed eagle of the Holy Roman Empire and of Austria appeared occasionally towards the end of the 13th century, and is first definitely found in 1325 on the coins of Ludwig the Bavarian. It is his belief that a round-table conference of representatives from each nation would lead to an agreement for disarmament.

Japan Stands Ready.

Baron Hayashi, the new Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain, states his belief that a round-table conference of representatives from each nation would lead to an agreement for disarmament.

The ambassador regards an armistice between Great Britain, the United States and Japan as "foolish and tragic." He frankly says, "Japan cannot afford it."

Neither can other nations afford it. General Pershing says it will mean bankruptcy for the United States, and Great Britain's debt and vast reconstruction tasks forbid any such waste.

That the armament-building done for some years now will be largely wasted is self-evident. Experts have not yet solved the lessons taught by the recent naval warfare. The relative value of various weapons is still not known with exactness sufficient to justify new constructions. This uncertainty makes it inevitable that vast sums of money spent now on navy-building will be thrown away.

The world has entered a period of reconstruction and has neither time, finance nor moral reserve to waste upon the building of engines of destruction. Armament is the germ of war, if the world stage be set for tragedy, tragedy will follow. Disarmament would carry to the ends of the earth a message of moral encouragement of which humanity has seldom had more desperate need.—Montreal Star.

Battle Under Umbrellas.

Frederic Villiers, war artist and correspondent, in his reminiscences, "Villiers: His Five Decades of Adventure," tells of a time when a Chinese army fought a battle under umbrellas! It was during the war with Japan, and the Chinese had just received a consignment of gorgeous new uniforms. Villiers says: At Ping Yang it rained heavily when the Japanese attacked, so the Chinese commander, to save the new uniforms from being spoiled, ordered all of the umbrellas shops in the town to be packed, and every third man was employed to hold an umbrella over his comrades. The fighting was soon over and I secured a couple of the umbrellas, which, for many years, decorated the interior of my studio in London.

Peggy's Holiday Fund.

Officials of the Guarantee Trust Company at Atlantic City were given something of a surprise the other day when "Peggy" Hanson appeared to collect her New Year fund. All the year money had been collected to "Peggy's" account by Mrs. William L. Hanson, and when formal notice was sent to "Miss Peggy Hanson" to visit the bank and get her $50 Mrs. Hanson appeared. Banking officials informed her that she should have the beneficiary of the fund appear in person to sign for the $50. The next day Mrs. Hanson returned with her pet French poodle and was given the money after "Peggy" had touched a pen with a paw while her mistress made formal endorsement.

Nujol

For Constipation

CONSTIPATION not only causes the generation of poisons, which are carried through the system by the blood and attack it from within, but also by thus lowering the general stamina makes the weakened system an easier prey to harmful germs from without. Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

"Regular as Clockwork"

Nujol Booklet.—"Thirty Feet of Danger." (Constipation-auto-intoxication in adults)—will be mailed gratis on application to sole agent for Newfoundland.

Restoring Nerve Power.

Your retailer will supply you with a tin of
