Then we heard of the death of Barney Freeman at his farm, and that Payne had been killed on the Stoney reserve, and this chapter of horrors was climaxed by the arrival of the refugees from Fort Pitt bringing with them the news of more bloodshed. Then poor Frank Smart was shot down and we all began to expect a similar fate. The arrival

WINNIPEG, Man., May 14.—Commis. sioner Wrigley of the Hudson Bay com. pany has just received a despatch from McKay, their agent, to the effect that a supply train of thirty-one waggons and teamsters with supplies from Swift Current to Battleford were surprised by Pound maker's Indians and the entire outf captured. WINNIPEG, May 14.—The brilliant dash of the volunteers at Batoche is fully confirmed. It ended in the utter rout and dispersing of the rebels. Col. Straubenzie led the infantry into the attack and galantly led the Royal Grenadiers into the bayonet charge that crowned the triumph of the memorable May 11. Addressing them he said, "Come on, Grenadiers, I am proud to command you. Keep steady and we shall clean them out," and with a cheer that was echoed in camp and by every other corps the gallant red coats made an irresistible onslaught, routing the enemy. The Winnipeg Field Battery then opened upon the fleeing rebels, shelling them in their hasty retreat to the woods. The rebels fought with great pluck, but could not resist the impetuous rush of our men. The general several times praised the action of the men, and they cheered him; also Col. Straubenzie and Col. Montisambert whenever they appeared. Capt. French, in command of the scouts, was killed while firing from the houses taken in Batoche. His last words were "Boys, I did my duty. Remember that I loved you." He had entered the house after the flight of the rebels, and while standing in the door directing his men a bullet fired from the opposite side of the riverentered his heart, killing him instantly. All the white prisoners rescued from Riel were released from the cellars of houses and sent to the zareba, where they were enthusiastically received. They look weak, and are as white as ghosts. The surrender of the rebels is expected to be followed yet by the capture of Riel and Dumont, who have fied down the river toward Prince Albert. The mounted police are on the lookout for the fugitivas in that direction.

The name J. Egles of the Royal Grenadiers has to be added to the list of wounded. The white prisoners on the approach of the loyal troops burst open the trap door of the cellar which was nailed down upon them and came up to General Middleton amid much cheering.

The rebel force consisted of three hundred and fifty halfbreeds and 200

Indians.

It is reported that at least fifty breeds and Indians were killed and upwards of a hundred wounded. One scout reports having seen nine dead rebels and four wounded in one spot.

Fort Qu'Appelle, May 6 at Fort Qu'Appelle.

Fort Qu'Appelle, May 7.—Aftermy return to quarters last sight and just as I was thinking of rolling into my blankets, an occurrence took place that I think worth telling you about. I have mentioned already that a party was sent out the night before in search of Indians who had sommitted depredations on the settlers. They did not find them, but from information received, Col. O'Brien and Col. Macdoneld, the Indian agent, went into the Indian camp and obtained a promise from them to return the property stolen and return to their reservations. The fact that the Indians had left their reserves and had committed depredations, led to a suspicion that they intended to make an assault on this settlement and camp, and strict orders were given to all guards and sentries to keep a sharp lookout, and overhaul all partice passing their posts after dark. At the time mentioned above the report of a rifle was heard from the guard stationed on the right front of the camp (about half a mile distant). On the instant Capt, Thompson and myself, who were in Major Wayling's tent, rushed out quickly followed by other officers, each officer going down his lines rousing his men, most of whom were asleep; the bugle in the meantime, both our own and in the quarters of the Winnipeg cavalry, sounding the assembly. cavalry, sounding the assembly. The first shot was immediately followed by another, and then several shots in succession.

In considerably less time than it takes to write it, every man was out, crossbelt and pouch on, and rifie in hand, and fell into his place ready to move as soon as the order should be given. In about five minutes from the time of the first shot being heard, each company was marching to the place appointed them on the outskirts of the camp. The collness with which they fell in, and took up their positions, and awaited the approach of the enemy, would have done no discredit to a veteran corps. Although there was no enemy to encounter the result of the alarm was to prove to us that the confidence we have reposed in our nien is not misplaced, but that in any emergency we can rely on their promptitude, coolness and bravery. You will be pleased to hear that our company, No. 5 (composed of the Riverside and Parkdale contingent) was the sarliest out, and by direction of Col. Wyndham, was the first to take up their position in extended order, on that side of the camp facing in the direction from which the alarm came.

The cause of the alarm was the sentry on the post named heard a sound that indicated an approach to his root, he challenged four times and receiving no reply fired in the direction from which the sound came. The flash of his rife showed him some men having horses in their charge, he fired again, and several shots were exchanged. The men decamped, and no more was seen of them. It is supposed they were bucks on a horse stealing expedition. Fortunately zone of our sentries were injured, the return shots coming no nearer to them than the roof of the guard house.

What To De Next. If the back of the rebellion is broken by the capture of Batoche the next thing to do is to bring the Indians to time, tie them up on their reserves, take away their arms. After the Indians are quieted then the country must be organized. Mounted police depots must be established all over the territory and a system of quick communication fand rapid movement of the force provided. The police will have to be watch the Indians than to fight them. Men to join the police can easily be got out of the militia now in the Northwest. As soon as the country is thus organized the volunteer regiments ought to be re called. The garrisoning of the country can be and should be left to the police and regulars. A good suggestion has been made, viz., that if the fighting is over some of the regiments now up there might come home at once and new regiments sent up in their place. For instance, bring back one of the Toronto battalions and send up the XIII. of Hamilton.

But at all events get the country organ-than the the war with the South was to the United States. It has decided this question that Canada will not tolerate, as The World pointed out some weeks ago, the establishment of such a centre of disintegration as another Quebec.

Gen. Gourke's Alleged Plan of Campaign. A telegram from St. Petersburg professes to let Europe into the secret of a plan of campaign in Afghanistan devised by Gen. Gourko, and to be carried out in the event of hostilities between England and Russia in that region. Gen. Gourko proposes to "draw" the Anglo Indian army at least six hundred miles beyond Candahar, to a strongly entrenched position held by 90,000 Russian troops along the Kushk and Murghab rivers, and during the time the Anglo-Indian forces are employed in reconnoitering, and preparing to attack the Russian positions, 25,000 Cossacks will swarm through Afghanistan, play the mischief generally, and proclaim Ayoub Khan the rightful ameer. This and a good deal more the general furnishes gratuitously for the information and guidance of the Shah of Persia, should he dare attempt to show anything like practical sympathy with the English on their march.

Assuming that Gen. Gourko has lent his sanction to this strange announcement, it is sanction to this strange announcement, it is inconceivable that he should contemplate for us absolutely for nothing. "drawing" the Anglo-Indian army 600 miles beyond Candahar into the heart of So does the village doctor and the rural dear. Khiva, and 400 miles from the hitherto recognized Afghan frontier beyond Penjdeh. In the event of war it is quite unlikely that the Indian government would pursue any other policy than that of confining Russia within the Khanates she has conquered and where she has exercised on the whole a civilizing and beneficent influence. But it is quite conceivable that the Tekkes and other Turcoman tribes. who have been yearning for English assistance against these invaders, may think the outbreak of war favorable for attempts to regain their independence, and that large forces may have to be kept within the Khanates that Russia might otherwise be she is thrashed into honesty and good behavior be her objective point.

The attitude of Persia at the present time is significant. She holds Ayoub the claimant to the Afghan throne, a prisoner in the interests of This unmistakably indicates that the shah will help if need be to prevent the Russian. from entering Herat and dominating the trade of that city with Meshed. It will not be surprising if we are told within the next week or ten days that a complete stands in expectancy.

It cannot be said that the anomalies of the franchise in the different provinces were evils; not a word of complaint respecting them has been heard. To bring on a political crisis with a military crisis already in existence, merely for the sake of forcing on everybody a uniformity which nebody desires.

Of late the net earnings of railways, bot in Canada and in the States, have been going down, and down, and down. Montreal Witness: But few Canadians have any adequate idea of the direct money gain to us of our connection with the empire, and to the extent of our yearly debt pire, and to the extent of our yearly debt to Great Britain in the matter of defence alone. The British mercantile marine in 1883 comprised 7,026,062 tons of ocean shipping, to protect which and to guard their shores and colonial empire, the British nation expended during that year £10,260,000 in the support of the navy. The sea going marine of Canada for that year was, probably, at least eleven hundred thousand tons every stick of which were thousand tons, every stick of which was guarded and watched over, upon every and any sea, as if it were a British ship, and at a cost to us of not one cent. Our true share of that expenditure would not be far from seven million of dollars. If we attempted to guard our shipping for ourselves we would have to expend four times that sum yearly, and then we could not adapted to accomplish that is not adapted to the series of the

The Revised Old Testament. From the Presbyterian Review, May 14. It is expected that on May 21 the longlooked-for revised old testament will be issued simultaneously on both sides of the Atlantic. The work has been completed for some time, and it only remains for the publishers to carry into effect their arrangements for meeting in the promptest manner the large demand there will doubtless be for this edition. As has already been pointed out by our scholarly contributor, "The Elder," the necessity for a complete revised version of King James' bible has long been considered urgent for many reasons. Without ulging in any speculation as to what changes will be found in the revised verdisposed to employ in the direction of Herat, which is and probably will until she is threshed into honorty and the direction of the direction that it will do no violence to the conspic-uous strength and beauty of the English as seen in our common bible. This unmistakably indicates that the shah work will very properly be subjected to the severest criticism; and time alone can decide whether it is of such a character as Meantime the occasion is most interesting, and the christian church with one mind surely not the part of a statesman. Unfortunately the measure cannot be called purposeless: the longer the discussion lasts the more clearly it appears that there was an object, and that the object was, under color of regulating the franchise, to perpetuate the ascendency of the party now in power. The proposal to enfranchise the Indians speaks for itself: these poor pensioners of the commonwealth must needs vote with the meal bag, which is in the hands of the commonwealth must needs vote with the meal bag, which is in the hands of the agents of the government, and more than one constituency might probably be strangled by their vote. That, however, which bears most distinctly the mark of a sinister policy is the provision for the appointment of revising barristers to draw up the list of voters and decide upon the title to vote, which has called forth wide-spread and mostreasonable indignation. The revising barristers are to be appointed all at once by Sir John Macdonald, under the conventional slias of the governor general west. It will be found that the great

The Cruelty of War. To-day, beyond all question, Germany is the foremost war power of the world. It is as near perfect in its organization of means of offence and defence as is possible to human agencies. So far as the Germans are concerned, they recognize no obstacle which should be allowed to impede their march to victory. Prof. Leuder depicts a battlefield which is covered with the countless numbers of the "horribly wounded and maimed of both armies, frightfully crying for help." "What," he asks, "can do greater violence to every human emotion, what more heart-rending, what more unbearable even in thought to every feeling person, than the idea that these terribly suffering ones, instead of receiving the promptest, mostsolicitous care, must be subjected to greater torture, to mutilation, to destruction! He was reading Holy Writ at the time. They were tried by court-martial, and sentenced to death. Seven days afterward they were executed in the inner yard, near the large square of the prison. They were hewn in pieces by a halbert. I saw the execution, so it is no use your saying, 'they were shot.' I tell you, according to Turkish military law, a military traitor is always sentenced to be cut to pieces. The two were bound up against the wall by chains and rings. Two soldiers armed with sharp hatchets approached them from out of the sides of a square we had formed. The prisoners' orime was read out and their sentence. A physician joined us. He examined the samply the word "inexplicable" it would be much more exact. In the affair I am about to relate, it was above all, the percueding and assending circumstances that impressed me. I will give you the facts. I was examining magiatrate at the time at Ajiccio, a little, white city lying on the edge of a beautiful bay, which is surrounded on all sides by high mountains. The cases with which I had chiefly to do were those of vendetta. I had some fierce, heroic instances, the most superbly dramatic possible. Among those people were found the most glorious causes for revenge that men could dream of, Secular hatreds, appeased for a moment, but never extinguished, traitorous ruses, assassinations developed into massacores, and almost glorious in the interior. There were many stories about him.

One man held that he was of princely rank, and had fied his country for political reatons; another affirmed that he was lying in concealment after having committed a fearful orime, and even related particulars of an especially horrible nature.

I wished, in my capacity of examining magistrate, to obtain some definite information in regard to this man; but I could learn nothing. He gave his name as Sir John Rowell. I took satisfaction in watching him near at hand, but no one could point out to me anything really suspicious about him.

I waited long for my opportunity. It came finally in the shape of a partridge which I shot and killed in the Englishman's face. My dog brought it to me, but taking the game in my hand, I went to excuse my lack of good manners and beg Sir John Bowell to accept the bird. He was a large man, with red hair and beard, very tall and very robust, a sort of placid and polished Hercules. He had nothing of the so-called British stiffness, and he thanked me cordially, speaking with a strong English accent, for my scrupulousness. At the end of a month we had talked five or six times together.

One evening as I was passing his door I saw him in his garden, smoking his pipe, astride of a chair. I saluted him, and he invited me in to take a glass of beer with him. I did not wait to be asked twice.

He received me with all scrupulous English courtesy, culogized France and Corsica, and declared that he was warmly attached to that country and to that particular portion of the coast.

I then, with great caution and under the guise of a very lively personal interest, ventured a few questions regarding his life. He replied without embarrassment, telling me that he had traveled extensively in Africa, India and America, and that he had many adventures.

An enormous iron chain, riveted at the wrist, soldered to this unsightly member, attached it to the wall by a ring strong enough to hold an elephant in leash.

"What is that?" I asked.

"That is my worst enemy," replied the Englishman, calmly. "He came from America. It was cut off with a sabre, skinned, and dried in the sun for a week. It was a pretty good piece of work for me."

"Mo you believe in cremation?"

"Ob you believe in cremation?"

"Certainly not." "Give me your reason for not favoring it?" "Well, one reason is enough. We are constantly being reduced to hashes at our boarding house."

The reputation of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood medicine is maintained by cures made and daily making.

"The tendency to do wrong increases toward night," says a well-known clergy—that is that?" I asked.

This is my story, and I know nothing more about it.

Had I an explanation to suggest it would but overthrow your wild imaginings, and would not be likely to find acceptance with you. My belief is simply that the lawful owner of the hand was living and had come in search of it with the one that remained to him. But I have not been able to picture to my satisfaction the manner of his revenge.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is reunembered that not five per cent. of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The supplication of the remedy is simple and can be done athome, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal Star. 46

Opinions of the Press.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the patisis months, fully ninety per cent, have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is renembered that not five per cent, of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Startling with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the issues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, 2s ourse effected by him six years age, are cures still. No one siss has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messre. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh. — Montreat Siar.

OBSERVE—Our remedy is easily applied—it is used only once in twelve days, and its application does not interfere with busines for ordinary duties. We give every case our special attention. None Genuine Without Our Signature. A. M. Dixou & Low Doronto - Canada

THE GREAT BENCH SHOW

A BUNNING DESCRIPTION OF THE VARIOUS EXHIBITS.

The Ontario Jockey Club Entries-State of the Argonauts-Baseball Cames

Honor to whom honor is due. Let us, therefore, sound the praises of W. S. Jack. son, secretary, John Massey, treasurer, G. W. Griffin, John Henderson, C. H. Nelson, John Wilson and C. E. Robinson, stewards, for the success of the present dog show. It is the unfortunate custom of all manner of associations to appoint men on their committees, not for their working ability but for their supposed ornamental qualities, and it consequently invariably happens that the work devolves upon two er three, or it may be one or two. What is true of the general run of societies is to a more than ordinary extent true of the Toronto dog association, who out of their two dozen officials cannot recken upon more than five or six active workers. The system of appointing patrons and what not is all very loyal and all that kind of thing, but in a country where all are equal and where a man is a man because of his transcendent abilities it is absurd, and the sconer the practice is abolished the better. If a thing is good in Toronto and worth custom it will receive that custom. If it is not it will net, and all the patrons in the world, even though they be of royal or noble blood. all the patrons in the world, even though they be of royal or noble blood, will not permanently help it. So much by way of preface, the direct meaning of which is that ornamental committees are a farce, and that while as a general rule they get a share of the glery, they bear none of the hardships. All honor, therefore, to the men who, in the face of such handicaps, make a success of the therefore, to the men who, in the face of such handicaps, make a success of the thing they have in hand, and of such are Mr. Jackson and his immediate confreres. But of the bench show of dogs in the pavilion of the Horticultural gardens. In quality it would be hard to excel. In numbers it was beaten last year in this city, but the glory of an exhibition is the beauty of its features, not the component parts of its different classes, and it follows, as a matter of course, that the present show, the third of the Dominion of Canada Kennel club, is the finest it has held. That the people recognize and appreheld. That the people recognize and appreciate this fact is shown by the liberal attend-

The task of going through all the classes would not only be an onerous one but would be more than our space warrants. We shall, therefore, give a summary of each and point out the most prominent CLASS I.—Challenge English setters. Small but select and absolutely free from weeds. Rockingham, a magnificent specimen of his class, it is easy to understand is the champion of America. He is a winner of many prizes in England and since his advent on this side of the continent has carried all before him. Frank Windholz, New York, is his proud possessor. Cambridge and Paris, owned by Messrs. Smith of Strathroy, Ont, are the other entries, and it is their misfortune to be in such extra superior company. restries, and it is their misfortune to be in reach extra superior company.

CLASS II.—Challenge English setter bitches. In this class we have the first entry of C. H. Mason, of New York, opposite whose name stands some of the finest animals ever seen in the present or any othershow. As a section this class is extra goo! and the Canadian's Belle, owned by the Messrs. Smith, it is pleasant to see on patriotic grounds carries off the main honors from the foreigner.

CLASS II.—Open. English setter dogs. Very good. Had we been in Mr. Davison's accessed as the centels of T. G. Davey, who carries off second, finct to the Messrs. Smith's Bristol, winner of dirst.

CLASS IV.—English setter bitches.

CLASS IV.—English setter bitches. Numerlocally weak, but fairly good.

Of the English setter puppy classes little Baced be said. Prince Phoebus' son Jupiter is rightly given a first, but he is closely pushed by Mr. Totten's Rossedale, by Cambridge II., the latter evidently not being prepared for exhibition purposes. the latter evidently not being prepared for exhibition purposes.

CLASS VII.—Challenge Irish setters. Grand old Chief is alone and without a peer. Canadians would do well to cultivate his acquaintance. In head and color he is perfect.

CLASS VIII.—Irish setter dogs. A fair class, in which a son of Chief is beaten by Rob. Douglas' (Woodstock) Comet, of unknown parentage. Sam Staneland's Sam is a deserving third, but Alec. Purse's Grouse is well off with a h. c. on looks, his great recommendation being the handsomeness derived from use. In the field he can scarcely be beaten.

CLASS IX.—Max Wenzel, Hoboken, N.Y., distances competitors with Yube, she, with Chief, jr., forning a great pair.

listances competitors with 1 tabe, one, hief, jr., forming a great pair.

CLASS XI.—Mone, Lettie and Argus make Chass XV.—Mono, Lottie and Argus make a strong exhibit.

Class XI.—Mono, Lottie and Argus make a strong exhibit.

Class XIV.—Pupples, black and an setters, under 12 months. E. Tinsley's (Hemitton) Young Blossom, by Brant—Shella, plays a lone hand, but is most promising.

Class XV.—Pointers, deg and bitches. Beaufort by Champion Bon—Beula, owned by C. H. Mason, New York, is undoubtedly the best in America and probably in the world. A blind dog fancier would spot him by one passage of the hand.

Class XVI.—Pointers, dogs. Class XVII.—Chas. H. Mason's trio, Beau, Bradford and Fanchette stand out pre-eminent, although Cooper & Donnelly's Duck and W. J. Dandy's Shotwell uphold the credit of their country, the military firm's bitch deservedly getting a first and the famous Dandy's dog a second.

Class XX.—Irish water spaniels. A moderate class. Dr. Niven had his work cut out in judging them, but he was just in giving Capt. Kersteman's Rocky first, John Fitzgerald's Tory second and Thos. W. Hector's Rover third.

Class XXI.—Clumber spaniels. CLASS XXI.—Clumber spaniels. The notor-fous Judy is alone, but buy a pup. See cata-

CLASS XXII.—Championship field spaniels.
Jas. Luckwell (Woodstock) carries off solitary Jas. Luckwell (Woodstock) carries off solitary honors with Hob. Jr.

CLASS XXIII.—Field spaniels. Well filled and a good class, John Wilson comes out strong in this and class 24, with Beau II. and Strathaven, brother and sister, by Beau out of Creole, as handsome and perfect a pair of dogs as can be seen in the country, although they didn't secure first honors, the first named getting a third and the bitch a second.

CLASS XXVI.—Cocker spaniels. Shina, owned by J. P. Willey, Salmon Falls, N. H., is one of the grandest bitches we ever clapped eyes on.

L. Lawes' imp. Norah pushes Miss Nevisen remarkably close.

CLASS XLVII.—St. Bernarddogs. The New Jersey dog First Choice proves true to his name in Mr. Barlow's idea, but we much prefer either of Mr. Rothera's pair Chanpion Othe, although unfortunately they are in poor condition from their visits to New York and Cincinnati, where they received their deserts.

Class XLIX.—Newfoundlands. One of the grandest exhibits we have ever seen, and undoubtedly the best in America. Mr. Gianelli's Dom Pedro, as previously stated in The World, fell a victim the other day to the poison ward.

CLASS LVI.—Bull terriers. First class exhibit.

CLASSES LVII. AND LVIII.—Bedlington terriers. These were away the best nonsporting classes in the show. Contrary winds detained Ananias and Sentinel, two beauties now on the seas for the over-worked secretary, but with Elswick Jock he yet managed to get first class honors in dogs. Johnny Scholes Blucher coming in for second. Nearly all the dogs in this class were prize-winners in England. In bitches, Mr. Jackson sweeps the dock with Tynesider II., Elswick, Belle and Stonehouse Lass.

CLASSES LX TO LXIII.—Yorkshire, skye and black and tan terriers. Very good, Johnny Scholes' Bessie takes first over Jimmy Healey's Teaser in the open class, although the contest is most decidedly close.

The remaining classes are all small dogs, which will receive attention to morrow.

The Kingston road turnpike gate has been put exactly between the two gates into the course, a wanton and gratuitous annoyance which the club can counteract, by letting all vehicles pass through the annoyance which the club can counteract, by letting all vehicles pass through the club enclosure from Eastern avenue, and this will be done unless the authorities see fit to abandon toll during the afternoons of the races. At any rate the Kingston road is nearly impassable and the collection of toll on it for vehicles passing from one part of the city to another part is quite indefensible. Parties going to the Woodbine should travel on the lower road, in which $300 is being spent by the city, and which is in fair repair. The Welter Cup and Hunters' stakes are still open, and considering the number of horses award by the city. The Weiter Cup and Hunters' stakes are still open, and considering the number of horses ewned by the gentlemen of the hunt and other sportsmen in town, there ought to be a lively muster in these two races. It is likely that on the last day a consolation stakes for beaten horses will be added to the program.

The ladies will be at the races in great of force, several parties having been organized already, and the government house party will as usual be driven to the course in a four-in-hand break. Mr. Hendrie brings a large party from Hamilton and will also drive four-in-hand; many of the choice beauties of the ambitious city having promised to be here to inaugurate the occupation of the president's new box.

The son of Walter Brown (champion carsman of America in 1869) has engaged an attorney, and intends claiming the patent of the sliding-seat. Brown was the inventor, and patented his idea, and the right to manufacture or sell a sliding-seat was by the patent solely vested in him. Previous to his death, which was very sudden, he was preparing to collect royalties upon his invention, and to sell rights in different parts of the country. His demise put an end to these proceedings, and up to quite recently his heirs have never bothered themselves in the matter.

dis Enthusiastic Reception at the Grand Opera House Last Night. For a score of years Hon. George Boker's play, Francesca da Rimini, lay shelved in New York, and it might have been still on the shelf but that Lawrence Barrett took hold of it. He worked it into such shape, and found the part of Lanciotto so well uited to himself, that it has become one of his favorite and one of his most successful in his repertoire. He chose it for his appearance at the Grand opera house last night. The play is an adaptation of Dante's tragic story of the guilty love of Paolo of Rimini and the beautiful Francesca, whom Paolo had won as proxy for his deformed brother Lanciotto, cencealing at the same time Lanciotto imperfections from his betrothed. The part of Lanciotto (Mr. Barrett) strikes one immediately as a mixture of

"As far as I can ascertain Riel and Dumo left as soon as they saw us getting well in, but I cannot ascertain on which side of the rive he is, but think it must be the side. The extraordinary skill displayed in making rife pits at the exact proper points and the number of them is very remarkable. Had we advance rashly or heedlessiy I fear we might have been destroyed. I reconnoited to my right from with all my mounted men, with a view withdraw as many of them as possible from

"On my return to camp I forced on my left and then advanced my whole line with cheer and dash worthy of any arm; The effect was remarkable. The enem in front of our left was formed to bac from pitto pit and those in the strongest p facing us found themselves turned and ou men behind them. They next sauve qui peu and fied, leaving blankets, coats, hats, boot and trousers and even guns in their pits. The conduct of the troops was beyond praise. The Midland battalion and the 10th vieing wite each other, well supported by the 90th, an fanked by the mounted portion of the troops The artillery and the Gatling also assisted it the attack with great effect.
