"Why," asked Mrs. Justgotrich of the courteous waiter of the summer re-sort, "why do you fold the napkin in such a queer shape?" "To demonstrate, madam," replied waiter who was a sophomore from the Yell College, "that in an isosceles tri-angle, the sum of the squares of the base and perpendicular is equal to the square of the hypothenuse." Here Mrs. Justgotrich called all her, new found dignity to her aid. "Young man," she snapped, "just because I have been kind to you, you need not be so persumptuous. I have told you twice already that I want-ed you to give me the English names you to give me the English n the dishes, and not call them off in, French.'
