THE GIRL WHO GOT RATTLED

This is one of the stories of Alfred. There are many of them still floating around the west, for Alfred was in his time very well known. He was a little man, and he was bushy. That is the most that can be said against him; but he was very little and very bushy. When on horseback his legs hardly reached his lower body-line of his mount, and only his extreme agility enabled him to get on successfully.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

There has been rather a notable week for St. John theatre goers and the advent here of the Pollard Lilliputian Opera Company in the York Theatre has made it so. Much was expected of the Pollards for they had been cleverly advertised by one of the most energetic of press agents and it is safe to say that if they had not "made good" on Monday night they would have been severely "bumped" by the "critic" the next day.

One set of Monday evening's performance was sufficient to convince the most exacting critic that he was being entertained by the finest company of children ever seen here.

MANUAL TRAINING

It is understood that the joint committee of the board of trade and the school board will meet next week to consider the introduction of manual training into the schools of St. John. The Times as informed that there will be no serious difficulty in providing rooms for the equipment, and that a revision of the school timetable can be made which will give plenty of time for proper instruction in manual training without neglecting any other important subject. The question appears to be largely one of inclination and a slight additional expense. It appears to be clear that if the board of school trustees and the principals of the schools enter heartily into the experiment it can be made under very favorable conditions and with the assistance of the same satisfactory results that have been attained elsewhere.

TEMPERANCE REFORM

The most effective work that could be done by temperance people in this city would be the organization of non-drinking clubs, which would not be hedged about with secrecy and formality, but would be made more attractive to the average young man than the divisions and lodges are at the present time. Open nights, with practical addresses and good programmes, a considerable degree of membership, a simple pledge of membership and an effort to advance the interests of the club—these would produce results. By no possible means can universal reform be brought about at once, nor can all who make a pledge be prevailed on to keep it. Recognizing these facts, and not discouraged by them, but getting in close touch with those who are in danger of drifting into ruinous habits, and working with the enthusiasm worthy of a cause which seeks to influence men to make the most of their lives and to do the best with their talents and their earnings, such clubs would have a marked effect upon the habits and lives of young men and boys. The appeal would be to all men of all creeds, and the motto might be the simple sentence: "Do your best."

SOMEWHAT STARTLING

The somewhat startling announcement that a member of the Senate had started out to ascertain some facts for himself is rendered even more impressive when it is stated that the Intercolonial Railway was the subject of enquiry and the senator an Ontario man. Senator McMullen, before coming east, had learned from the Toronto Globe and other papers that the railway needed a Hays or a Shakespeare, and after going over the line and its branches he heartily applauds its teaching. There are too many stations, the repair shops are over-manned, the offices are over-crowded, and the rates are too low. Therefore the rougher part has to be done, as expected by the Toronto Globe, and care and economy introduced. Senator McMullen is not deterred from arriving at this conclusion by anything Mr. Emmerson may have said, nor would he wait to hear the promised statement of the minister—the next session of parliament. It is upon that Mr. Emmerson and his deputy have been over the road, and are preparing a statement, and the minister says he believes his proposition will be satisfactory to parliament. But Senator McMullen said: "The stations and the men and the rates must go." Without commenting further on the subject at present, the Times begs to suggest that Senator Ellis make a tour of the canal, to ascertain for himself the facts regarding their operation. He and Senator McMullen might together be able to create quite a stir in the red chamber next winter.

WHO ARE CHRISTIANS?

Religious controversy has lost much of its old-time acrimony, and the man who is accused of heresy is no longer committed first to the stake and then to eternal torment. Men are beginning to realize more fully the meaning of the word Christian. This fact is emphasized in two significant sermons preached by Baptist ministers in Boston last Sunday, in which they dealt with the recent action of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches in excluding Unitarians, Universalists, and Roman Catholics. Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, in the Warren Avenue Baptist church, said of the venerable and beloved Unitarian, Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale—"I am not nearly so sure of my own Christianity as I am of Dr. Edward Everett Hale's." Continuing he said: "May God teach all of every type of religious opinion how futile for the fighting of heresy are fire and the banishment of those who are not of our denomination or creedal restrictions and how potent is love! Are all Unitarians Christians? By no means. Who are Christians? All Unitarians who are living in the spirit of Christ; also all Baptists and Universalists and Roman Catholics who can pass the same test." Still more significant, and a still more generous, eloquent and powerful plea for tolerance was that made in the First Baptist church by Rev. Francis H. Rowley, D.D., who, after quoting briefly from Channing, James Freeman Clarke, Edmund Sears, and Martineau, said:—"To no man who calls Christ as the world's supreme revelation of God, and acknowledges Him as the master he would follow in the realm of his moral and spiritual life, can any of us refuse to ac-

THE SUIT CASE MYSTERY It is a Mystery No Longer—Prominent Boston Physician Arrested in Connection With the Dismemberment of Susan Geary's Body.

Boston, Nov. 3.—A brief conversation by long distance telephone and the scene of developments in the famous suit case mystery shifted from New York back to Boston. As a result of the brief talk between Chief Inspector William B. Watts, of the Boston Bureau of Criminal Investigation, who is now in New York, and Detective Captain Joseph Duggan at police headquarters here, Dr. Percy D. McLeod, a reputable physician of the Back Bay district, was arrested on the charge of performing an illegal operation on Susan Geary, the Cambridge girl whose dismembered body was found in two suit cases in the waters of Boston harbor. Tonight, while the authorities admit that other arrests may be expected soon, they say that the case is practically completed, and that it no longer remains a mystery. Through the confession of Crawford and Howard, the two men arrested in New York yesterday, the authorities received evidence which, in their opinion, warranted the arrest of Dr. McLeod this afternoon. It is alleged that Dr. McLeod was called into the case after the first operation was performed in a Tremont street office, and that he performed a second operation of a desperate nature in a vain attempt to save the life of the young woman. Miss Geary falling ill, she was taken to the hospital, where it was alleged that Dr. McLeod, in an effort to conceal the crime, dismembered the body. These dismembered parts were placed in two suit cases and a small bag, and, according to the confessions of Crawford and Howard, dropped by them into the harbor. So far the head, which was placed in a small bag, weighed with shot, has not been found, but inasmuch as the police have been told approximately where it was dropped, it is expected that it will soon be recovered, thereby establishing beyond question the identity of the victim. Dr. McLeod will be arraigned in court tomorrow morning. No man had been seen tonight on the street of the city, but District Attorney Sargent stated that, owing to the gravity of the charge, a large bond would be necessary. Morris Nathan, the lover of the dead girl, who was arrested in Pittsburgh last Sunday night and brought to this city in a state of collapse, is gradually recovering at the city hospital, but is not yet in a condition to be brought into court. Nathan will probably be arraigned on Monday. While at first the police were of the opinion that Nathan was not directly connected with the case, they now say that Nathan conducted the negotiations with the proprietors of the Tremont street establishment, the place with which Crawford was connected, and that he was fully aware of the result of the operation upon the Geary girl. Tonight the police directed their energies toward locating another member of the band of alleged malpractitioners. While no statement was forthcoming that an arrest would be made immediately, it was said that there would be another arrest in connection with the case. Shortly after the conference between the defendant and officials was opened Dr. McLeod sent a message to his lawyer, Charles H. Janney. Lawyer Janney at once went to police headquarters and joined in the conference. The conference lasted until 5 o'clock. At its conclusion Dr. McLeod was removed to the Tombs and locked up. Captain Duggan refused to discuss the arrest, except to say that Dr. McLeod had made no confession, as had been intimated. Dr. McLeod is about 35 years of age and is married. The arrest was made by order of Chief Watts who is in New York in connection with the case. Chief Watts informed the officials here that the confession of Crawford in New York included the specific accusation that Dr. McLeod was the person who dismembered the body of the chorus girl. Immediately upon receipt of this message an inspector called up the doctor's office on the telephone and made an appointment. The inspector did not disclose that he was a police official. The physician kept the appointment and was at once arrested and removed to police headquarters. Captain Duggan questioned this arrested doctor but the latter declined to discuss the case in any way.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty. Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize the value of the charcoal in the human system for the same general purpose. Charcoal is a remedy that the more you use of it the better it is. It acts as a cathartic, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onion and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic. It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of the cold, influenza, diphtheria, etc. All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most reliable is that of the St. John's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other natural ingredients in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey. The daily use of these lozenges will keep you in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the result of it is, that no possible harm can result from their constant use, but on the contrary, great benefit. A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise St. John's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clean the complexion, to sweeten the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they are safe, but in some cases a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in St. John's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

METHODIST W. F. M. S. The annual meeting of the local branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church was held last night in the study of the house of the Queen square church. Mrs. J. Shenton occupied the chair. The year's report was read by Mrs. J. H. Carnall. It dealt with the work done during the year, showing the results as very satisfactory; $200 represented the receipts for the year. The report of the meeting of the New Brunswick and P. E. Island branches in St. Stephen, Oct. 1, was read by Mrs. Stephen B. Justice. Work had been carried on to a very successful conclusion; the receipts amounted to $8,000. Mrs. G. M. Campbell read the report of the general board for Canada, which met at Peterboro the last two weeks in October. The board had met during the year 1905, which was apportioned among Western Canada, Japan and China. During the evening an ably musical programme was carried out.

When a man does an M. R. A. overcoat he feels that he has secured as much for his money as it is reasonable to wish for. This means that it will wear well, will keep its shape, is as stylish as he cares to have it, is honestly tailored inside as well as outside and the color and pattern are lasting. These are distinctly M. R. A. features.

NINE NICE WAYS TO SERVE OYSTERS

A Novel Oyster Pie and a Combination of Oysters and Tripe That Makes a Palatable Sunday Morning Breakfast Dish.

Of the many different ways for serving the oyster none will find more favor than the male members of the family than an oyster pie. Pare and cut into dice one quart of potatoes. Boil until tender, but not mushy, in boiling salted water. Put a layer of these in the bottom of a porcelain dish, then a layer of oysters, a sprinkling of salt and pepper and half a teaspoonful of butter cut into bits. Continue these layers until the dish is filled, having the potatoes last, dotted with bits of butter. Pour over this half a cup of oyster juice. Cover with light paste and bake in a quick oven for twenty minutes. Serve in the dish in which it is cooked.

Cylinders. Dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in very hot fat. A palatable Sunday morning breakfast dish during cold weather is a combination of oysters and tripe. Boil until perfectly tender one pound of home-made tripe and cut into narrow strips. Place in a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter and one small onion, chopped fine. Cook under a cover until soft but not brown. Add one tablespoonful of flour gradually, one-half cup of milk and when they begin to boil put in the tripe and twenty-five oysters. As soon as the gills of the oysters curl season with one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, and serve.

TORTURING NEURALGIA.

Suffered for Ten Years, Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Neuralgia is the king of torturers. A tingling of the tender skin, a sharp sudden stab from some angry nerve, then piercing paroxysms of pain—that's neuralgia. The cause of the trouble is disordered nerves due to thin watery blood. The cure is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which make new, rich red blood, and thus soothe and strengthen the disordered nerves and cure neuralgia. Among the thousands who have proven that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure neuralgia is Mrs. R. K. Johnson, of Simpson's Corner, N. S. Mrs. Johnson says: "For upwards of ten years I was a sufferer from the awful pains of neuralgia. Over-exertion or the least exposure to a cold wave would set me nearly wild with torture. I doctored with two physicians, but they did not cure me. I then tried several advertised medicines, but found no benefit. The trouble continued at intervals that made life miserable, until six or eight months ago when a relation of mine brought me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. I used this box and then got a half dozen more, and by the time I had used them all the neuralgia had disappeared, and as I have not since had the slightest attack I feel safe in saying that the cure is permanent." Mrs. Johnson is one of the most known ladies in the section in which she resides, and is a prominent worker in the Congregational church. Naturally her family and friends are rejoicing over her cure, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made many warm friends in that section as a result of their good work.

WONDERS IN THE WORLD OF FURS

In looking upon the new fur wondrous are struck at once with their enormous desirability. Except for elderly wearers there are no plain fur garments, that is, none with any modish distinction, for jackets, coats, capes, etc., take to all sorts of trimming and ornamentation. There is a great change, too, in the neckpieces of the sets, which, from the simple cravat of last season, has grown to be a thing of size and quaint fitness. In form the newest of the fur neckpieces, especially those which accompany the large flat muffs, follow many of the cuts of twenty or more years ago. A narrow cape ending with flat stoles, of varying lengths, is the prevailing fur "tipple," cape or pelera.

Such skins as admit of the treatment also show these ends elaborately trimmed, little animal heads and tails used with or without gimp decking them at the best line and at the bottom. At the back of the neck, where a fall of the same sort is always becoming, heads and tails and little paws interlace in graceful knots and ends. With this style of tippet, which is shown more in mink than in any other skin, the muff is flat and big, or else in cylindrical form some of which are of exaggerated length and narrowness. All furs are made up with a lightness which brings out the quality of the skin superbly, and the very folding and writhing which this lightness involves is in itself a charm. The elegant fur garment which the fair coquette flings aside as like a part of herself, the shell which she sheds and little paws interlace in graceful knots and ends made by heads and little dangling paws. Lynx, both white and black, is the next skin admired, and the big heads and tails are used on both the stoles and the muffs. Some of the treatments of these heads, in fact, are very fancy. One medium length white lynx scarf with the head and paws at one end and the tail and feet at the other wears about its neck a heavily attached dog collar of white leather and cut steel. The long-drawn out effect, with the whole animal look retained, more than suggested that ridiculously stretched creature, the dachshund. But, of course, the dog collar is only a fantasy.

In point of striking and new effect the black lynx sets are much admired for plain tailor street gowns. A flat muff in a very beautiful quality may be had from $25 up, but a handsome round stole with tails will cost more than twice that sum. The flat tippets, silk lined, are far cheaper, very good models to be found here and there at $35.

To attempt to give the names of all the odd furs which will be worn this season would only bewilder the mind with ex-

SMART EFFECTS IN NEW FURS.

WONDERS IN THE WORLD OF FURS

Elaborateness is a feature of All of the Season's Furs—Cravats and Other Smart Neck Scarfs, With Accompanying Muffs, Are Trimmed With Paws and Heads Interlaced in Graceful Knots, While the Skins Themselves Are Made Up to Appear Almost as Supple as Cloth.

of matter. The costumes to be worn with the furs and the amount which may be spent upon them are the points to be considered, and then there is nothing left but to look for models that will be neither too large nor too small for the wearer. For medium figures the large muffs and the very elaborate stoles are out of place, for only a big woman can carry them off successfully. In fact, the neck handling is so trying to make that frequently "fimsy" combed out of a muff, and since this custom is according to the average usage, a handsome muff may be said to be the most important thing under consideration.

Among the cheaper furs which contribute to smart effects are the dyed squirrel, beaver, muskrat (squirrel) and Persian-paw. This last is made entirely from the paws of the Persian lamb, and though the sets are much cheaper than those in hand proper, they are stylish and important models for the light purse. The worst of Persian-paw is like that of bright-crown (squirrel) lamb. The genuine thing in this precious and tender skin in coats, capes, etc., is often combined with ermine, which trims all furs of a precious nature. But for genuine novelty in the fur world the fancy coats are without parallel for charm and audacity of conception. The most extraordinary effects seen are those achieved with Persian lamb, which pelt by itself is almost grandmotherly old. A few examples may give some idea of the elaborate qualities of some of the Persian jackets, the smartest of which go no further than the hips. A coat fitted at the back and semi-loose in front had a vest of Russian orobeth in front and the coat's ermine lined the chest and belt line of this already wonderful vest were the daring features of the garment—strange ornamental pieces made of East Indian beading in the tropical Indian colors. The back made by these heavy lace showed only at the inside of the sleeves—at once mounted the quiet skin to the top notch of dressiness.

Another Persian coat showed wonderfully subtle trimming of velvet, gimps and embroidery in faint olives and rich whites. Such trimmings and all others used upon these coats of course confine themselves to the vest, sleeves, collar, etc. The mounting Algon collar appeared on more than one Persian coat, upon which, no matter how splendid the other decking, a loose black silk braid tulle, though obviously, upon close examination, for binding purposes. With certain military effects which are made by combining white, red and gold with Persian, the Algon collar is very handsome. The red need is called dragon red, and the gilt employed with it is definitely brown. Brass buttons in fact, and some of them studded big, deck a number of the fur coats, whose first calling is ostensibly to be smart.

In the showcase of exclusive magnificence, Russian sable reigns supreme, and very wisely the manufacturers leave this royal skin to its own decoration. A set of muff and tippet, of the new bigness—without exaggerations—called for the trifling sum of $2,500! A ruffling hat was shown with this, the form of a clumsy Russian-looking boar, with beads and drooping tails at the back, and underneath against the hair blue and pink should be chosen, for severely requires experienced fingers in handling furs. Charming fur hats are made in the form of fan-shaped, hung over little bodies of soft-fur-lined silk or lace, finished with wide belts, showing fur tails below. Jeweled belt buckles in elaborate designs are a dazzling feature of these dainty coats, which also exploit gemmed and enameled buttons of great beauty. The most unexpected combinations of color also appear upon them. For example, a little fancy coat of bright schwan (unborn lamb) hung over an embroidered bodice of pale apple-green silk. Yvelis and green laces shrouded the bodice, violet silk forming the belt and sleeves and vest trimmings, and with all this was a chemise of tacked net and a stock and cravat of Russian lace.

This blending together of entirely dissimilar materials is one of the kindest of the new season's features, for it gives opportunity to use up bits of rich stuffs. The best results are indescribably lovely, for everything is so cunningly joined and overlaid that you think only of the loom of the fabrics.

A certain lady of rank in London to London. The lady had just advertised for a footman, mistaking the hour. Gen. Breckinridge reached the house before the appointed time, and by some accident was ushered into Lady Blank's presence without being announced. The day was in June. Owing to the heat the blinds were drawn, leaving in a subdued light Lady Blank, gazing at the advanced figure to the astonishment of the visitor. "Have you a reference from your last place?" "The General took to the situation instantly, and with a twinkle in his eye, unobserved by the ladies, assured, respectfully, "Yes, my lady." "Was your duties?" was the next query. "My lady, in the last three places I held I was Vice-President of the United States, Major-General in the Confederate Army, and Secretary of War of the Confederate States of America."

THE MAKING OF A SUCCESSFUL HUSBAND

VII--DOLLARS OR DEBTS--Money Don't Spell Bliss, But a Little Lucre Helps Mightily in Providing It.

BY CASPAR S. YOST.

Copyrighted by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate--Published exclusively in this territory by the St. John Evening Times.

My Dear John--I send the enclosed check with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret; please that I am in a position to spare the money, regret that you should find it necessary to ask for it.

You know, my boy, that I have never been much of a hand to harp on money matters. I have always held that there are objects in life more important than the accumulation of a fortune for my heirs to quarrel over.

And this brings me round to the main point that I want to push into your contemplation, which is that if a man saves his cigar money rigidly he will in the course of a lifetime acquire enough to pay for a beautiful and most desirably situated lot in a fashionable cemetery, never interested me in the lot.

To get back to the forks of the road, I never figured on making a millionaire out of myself, nor have I had any over-weening desire to see your name in the rating books with seven figures after it.

But the business of piling up dollars just for the pleasure of looking at the pile, and the task of securing enough of the same dollars to provide the necessities and some of the luxuries for one's self and one's family, with a margin for emergencies, are two entirely different propositions.

when you come to hitching 'em up to practical everyday life they won't work out so well. A fry sals squeaks for oil, and poverty, instead of singing gladsome roundelays, hollers for help.

THE LACK OF MINISTERS

Young Men of All Denominations Hesitate to Assume the Duties.

Never before, so it is reported in many Protestant bodies, says an American exchange, has there been such a lack in the United States of good men for ministerial positions. Bishops in the Protestant Episcopal church are especially loud in their declarations to the effect that parishes have to remain vacant because they are unable to find men to fill them. In the Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches, as well as Presbyterians and others, a scarcity of men of good grade is reported. Salaries that are, all things considered, fair in amount and in honor which they carry, await taken.

ARE THE UNITARIANS CHRISTIANS OR NOT?

Boston Transcript Reviews Monograph by the Rev. Charles G. Ames—Caustic Remarks by the Rev. Dr. Savage.

(Boston Transcript.) An interesting monograph lies before us, written some seven years ago by Rev. Charles G. Ames of the Church of the Disciples, that has a peculiar timeliness in view of the revival of an old controversy through the recent action of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches. Its title asks the question: "Are Unitarians Christians?" It is a question which is constantly becoming less necessary to ask, and yet there seem to be still many who refuse to give an affirmative response to it. The average citizen, whether a religious or otherwise, takes it as a matter of course that Unitarians are Christians, or if they are not it is for other reasons than their Unitarianism. Names do not make Christians. Church membership does not make Christians. These things merely show millions. They are never conclusive. In cases not a few they have been grossly deceptive. Men instinctively apply a moral test to the Unitarians which is more crucial than either of those offered and under their verdicts accordingly.

TO UNITE LUTHERANS

European Churches of This Faith Asked to Be Represented at the International Council in 1907.

The Lutheran General Council of the United States takes the lead in a movement to induce the General Conference of Lutheran churches of all Europe, save only Russia, to send delegates to an International Council to be held in the United States, probably in Philadelphia, in 1907. The Council will also endeavor to get the General Synod, the Synodical Conference, and other independent, but friendly Lutheran bodies in America to unite in this movement.

WONDERFUL POWER OF EVAN ROBERTS

The Welsh Revivalist Can See the Secret Things of the Heart—Astonishing Evidences of This Almost Uncanny Gift.

The distinctive note of Evan Roberts that distinguishes him from all other revivalists of the day is that he has the seeing eye. He is a seer. He sees not only invisible things, such as have always delighted or alarmed the saints; he sees the secret things of the heart. Before his penetrating gaze the secrets of the heart are unveiled, and the awe of him falls upon all those who come into his presence.

YOU WILL NOT BE SORRY For being courteous to all. For doing good to all. For speaking evil of no one. For holding an angry tongue. For thinking before speaking. For being kind to the distressed. For asking pardon for all wrongs. For being patient toward everybody.

right our own battles, we had better keep our own ammunition in our own hands, let do our own work with. So, at any rate, it seems to me.

After this new revelation he repeatedly stopped the people in full view of their singing. "Stop!" he cried, and the uplifted hand commanded silence. "There is a man in distress of soul prepared this moment to give his decision to Christ. And scarcely are the words uttered when a new convert makes public confession. Then the singing is resumed, only to be again stopped and preceded the same scene enacted, the missionary's prediction being each time literally fulfilled. The meeting became so awesome that, as the minister expressed it, "it is too terrible to sing here."

The Italian papers are making much of the fact that Professor Cantoni, who had charge of the Turin gymnastic societies at the athletic contests recently held at the Vatican in the presence of the pope, was allowed to enter the papal palace wearing decorations and medals of the wars for Italian independence. As a matter of fact, this was not the first time that a person wearing such decorations has been allowed in the presence of the pope. Since the election of Pius X, difficulties of this kind have practically ceased, and it is well known that even Senators and members of Parliament have been admitted to papal audiences without difficulty.

It is understood here that the English pilgrims which was brought here a few days ago by Mr. Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, is but the first section of a large pilgrimage to come to Rome some time in December. It is expected that at that time the Duke of Norfolk will pay a visit to the pope and present the dukedom. The pronouncement of the duke as the most important Catholic peer in England will insure him a hearty reception at the hands of the pope.
