Amsterdam, Nov. 18.—Captain Persius, German naval critic, says that the German government has published a "White Book" containing copies of the correspondence between Berlin and Washington on the question of submarine warfare. He describes the controversy as "a hard fight for the right" and expresses the hope that a similar correspondence will not occur again.

HOW MONCTON SOLDIER DIED

Comrade of Ivan Carson Sends Word to Gallant Lad's Mother
Moncton, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Heber A. Carson of Moncton has received particulars of the death of her son, Ivan, who had just been killed, lay alongside covered with my tunic in a smoke-filled pit with screaming shells going and coming.
"I was corporal in charge of the gun crew at the time of the fatality," he writes. "A shrapnel shell burst amongst four of us, and we all had very close calls. Poor Ivan was struck just behind the ear, and through the nape of the neck, which clearly proves that he never suffered an instant's pain. He died nobly, gallantly and with all the splendor of self-sacrifice—the supreme sacrifice which is a soldier's honor. For forty minutes longer my partner and I worked the gun whilst our comrade, who had just been killed, lay alongside covered with my tunic in a smoke-filled pit with screaming shells going and coming."
Pte. Emile Bourgeois, who was wounded at the battle of Ypres in June last, and returned home here on Friday, left for the afternoon for St. John. He was badly injured in the shoulder by shrapnel.

VATICAN ACTS ALONE IN PROTEST RE BELGIANS

Rome, Nov. 18.—There is semi-official denial that the Vatican has taken any joint action with the United States regarding a protest to Germany over the deportation of Belgians. The Vatican is trying to prevent these deportations in the same manner as it did when French workers were deported from Lille, but its action is entirely independent of other countries.

WIDE POWERS TO BRITISH BOARD OF TRADE IN FOOD REGULATIONS

London, Nov. 18.—The official Gazette publishes an order-in-council providing new food regulations which follow those which Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, announced in the House of Commons several days ago, would probably be put into effect.
An important provision is one empowering the board of trade to requisition stocks of food on such terms as the board may direct, the amount for compensation payable in default of an agreement as to price, to be determined by a single arbitrator, who must take into consideration cost of production and a reasonable profit, but without necessarily considering the market price.
The provisions of the regulations give the board of trade very wide powers, even authorizing the board to delegate to any other government department its power with respect to any particular article of commerce.

VESSEL STRANGELY HAS DISAPPEARED IN NEWFOUNDLAND WATERS

New York, Nov. 18.—A ship that mysteriously disappeared from Belle Isle, Conception Bay, Nfld., on Thursday night, and believed to have drifted out to sea disabled as the result of striking a pierhead, was not the Red Cross liner Florizel, which arrived here today from St. John's, Nfld., and Halifax.
From St. John's it was reported yesterday that a ship said to be the Florizel had put in there for a cargo of iron, and her mysterious disappearance from an anchorage during Thursday night gave rise to fears that the ship was in distress at sea.

Canadian Victory A Complete One

Capture of Remnant of Regina Trench After What Would Have at One Time Ranked as Great Battle

London, Nov. 18.—The following official communique is issued by the Canadian war records office:
After the admirable achievement on October 23 by the Canadian battalions which fought and won what would have formerly ranked as a great battle, there still remained in the enemy's hands the extreme right sector of the bitterly contested Regina Trench. This position was valuable to the enemy and a thorn in the side to us. About midnight, November 10-11, by a well planned and smartly executed operation, we gained the coveted line and established ourselves there securely before daybreak.
The ground captured is about 500 yards in depth with a semi-circle front of about 1,000 yards trench around where the Regina ends in Farmers' road and thence on down that ditch of wire to its termination in the Dyck road, so unfavourably known among the Tommies as "Death Valley." The victory was a very smart and complete one, well rounded off with no ragged edges to give trouble afterwards, and securing to us a desired post of vantage. Moreover, it was gained and held at relatively small cost. The number of unwounded prisoners was small, something more than fifty, but included three officers. They all belonged to the Saxons or the Prussian Guards.

CAVERHILL HALL GOES TO EASTERN TRUST CO. FOR $5,000

Caverhill Hall, the fine residence at the corner of Sydney and Mecklenburg street, erected by Simeon Jones and sold several years ago to a western investor, was offered for sale under foreclosure proceedings at Chubb's corner at noon today by T. T. Lantlum. After the last sale the place lay idle until it was taken over last year by a committee of local people for use as a Soldiers' club. There was little bidding and the property was knocked down to the Eastern Trust Company for $5,000.

FROM 30,000 TO 40,000 BELGIANS SO FAR HAVE BEEN DEPOSITED

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THEATRES OF ST. JOHN

MUSICAL COMEDY AT OPERA HOUSE MONDAY

With Eddie Flavell, the king of fun makers, Clara Elgin, Doris Dean, Arthur Partridge, Maxie Finley, Bert York, William O'Connell, Amy Anderson, and a snappy chorus of pretty girls who can sing and dance, the Human Musical Comedy Company comes to the Opera House on Monday for an indefinite engagement, presenting new, up-to-the-minute musical comedies that are designed particularly to amuse and entertain and drive dull care away. Two distinct changes of programme will be made each week, with song numbers, scenery, costumes, everything new with each change. One complete performance every afternoon, starting Monday, two complete shows every evening. The opening programme for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be "The Tree Top Inn," a fantastic musical comedy that has been a big success on tour and is packed full of hearty laughs and bright, snappy musical selections. The Human Musical Comedy Company is a tried and proven organization of merit that plays season after season in the large cities and makes a specialty of clean, refined entertainment in the musical line that appeals strongly to the ladies and children as well as the men folks. It is not a burlesque organization nor a combination of vaudeville acts, but each comedy presented has a slight thread of plot and story, with popular and classical songs and clever dancing numbers, together with the many bits of nonsense interpolated by Eddie Flavell and his co-workers, all welded into a delightful entertainment. With each change of show there will be a reel or two of good motion pictures to lend plenty of variety to the programme. Popular prices will prevail—no reserved seats except for boxes—come early and stay as long as you please.

THEY'RE CERTAINLY WELL WORTH SEEING

There will be two performances to-night, at the Opera House, of the wonderful Williamson Expedition Submarine pictures. If you have not seen them, better take this opportunity as they will probably never come here again. Also the last chance to see the thrilling serial drama, 8th chapter of Liberty.

REMEMBER GEM VAUDEVILLE TONIGHT

There will be two performances of vaudeville and motion pictures at the Gem tonight at 7.15 and 8.30 under the Gem's new policy. See advt. for particulars as to the new act and then come and enjoy the good things provided.

Ancient Rock Carvings. Visitors to Arran have had an opportunity of studying a well-preserved and extensive carved rock surface at Brodick. The sculptures, cut many centuries before the Christian era, occur on a natural flat sandstone rock some 400 square feet in area. Discovered some years ago, this ancient work of art, involving patterns of loops, rings, gutters, and cups, can be more advantageously inspected now than previously, as the turf has been cleared off to a greater extent than before and the surface has been brushed clean. Moreover, lines have been chalked in so as to bring out clearly the conventional geometrical and astronomical diagram which guided the prehistoric sculptor.

The existence of a stereotyped diagram, disposed on a mathematical basis, was discovered some years ago by Mr. Ludovic MacLellan Mann, and is found enshrined, in most if not all, of the known prehistoric carvings and structural works. The Brodick sculptures exhibit perfect adherence to the conventional guide lines and prove the accuracy of Mr. Mann's hypothesis. With extraordinary precision the chalked lines are to be seen passing through the salient points in the carvings and coinciding exactly with the conventional astronomical sightings. The chalked lines will probably remain intact so long as the fine weather continues.

DOCTORS RECOMMEND PASTEURIZED MILK

That one of the greatest safeguards to milk supply is found in pasteurization, has been stated by medical men who, as a result of long and careful study of this important subject, have become recognized authorities on the production and care of this important commodity. Experience has shown that pasteurization destroys any disease germs that milk may contain, thus ensuring its absolute safety for drinking and other food purposes.

With "Safety First" and "Highest Quality" as ruling standards, the management of Primrose Farms have been using for some time the best type of pasteurizing plant known to modern science and still further ensure cleanliness and safety of their milk, every drop of it is first clarified to remove sediment, then pasteurized in sterilized glass jars either from Primrose Farms, Primrose, N. Norwegian Brings Tale And Samples

Eskimos Have Lots

Tribes Know Where Gold is But Do Not Know Its Value—Oil Plentiful Also

New York, Nov. 18.—Bringing a tale of a land where gold is more plentiful than it is in Alaska, Christian Leden, a young Swedish explorer, has returned to this city after three years spent in the Arctic. As evidence of the truth of his story he has a harpoon, head, hammered out of gold by the natives of a camp since wiped out by disease. He has also several specimens of gold-bearing quartz, brought to him by Eskimos, who dared many dangers in order to get them. Leden said he had visited a land where the ground was so full of oil that in the warm months the smell of it filled the air.

Mr. Leden's explorations carried him over thousands of miles in the country northwest of Hudson Bay. He went alone, and went and traveled with the natives and as one of them. He killed the igloolik, near Fury and Hecla Straits; the Kinipetus, between the Great Fish River, and Chesterfield In-

Will You Send Your Boy to College?

Of course you will—if you live.

—But supposing you die, what's to become of the lad? Will he, at fourteen or earlier, be forced out into the world to earn his living?

Or will you give him the chance of his lifetime, anyway?

You can do it, whether you live or die, by means of an Imperial Endowment Policy. Let us tell you more about it.

Our booklet about Imperial Endowments. It's interesting, and may be had for the asking.

RID YOURSELF OF BODILY WEAKNESS

A DISTRACTING CONDITION THAT IS PERMANENTLY CURED BY FERROZONE...

All fagged out ideas come as slow as molasses in January. You think of things just a minute or so too late.

The doctor would say that you are run down, and you don't eat or digest enough. Your stomach requires some aid, and probably your digestion needs a brace.

Now Ferrozone is a wonderful food maker and nerve stimulant. It is really a food for the blood, nerves and vital energies.

Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing a heavy day's work without fatigue.

"After my baby was born I was left in a weak, sticky condition, totally unfit for a mother's household duties.

You can't spend 50c, to a better advantage than on a box of Ferrozone, and the sooner you get Ferrozone, the sooner you will get well.

TO CURE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and hearing noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated by internal remedy that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness.

The prescription is made of the following: Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parment (Double Strength), about 70c. worth. Take this home, and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 1 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be restored by this simple home treatment. Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Important Note: In ordering Parment always specify that you want double strength. Your druggist has it or he can easily get it for you. If not send 75c. postal note or money order to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, Que., Can. and they will supply you.

ELECTION FEARS

The Standard once more expresses alarm lest the wicked Liberals may plunge this country into an election. The symptoms of uneasiness displayed by the government organ are becoming daily more acute.

Happy the man, this week, who was wise enough to have his coal-bin stocked. Like the thief in the night winter came upon us.

Buyers will find the Times' advertising columns more than ever, as the Christmas season draws near, the city directory of where best to purchase.

Daily the importance of the aeroplane in the war increases. Today's despatches report a successful British raid on enemy works at Ostend and Zebrugge.

On our new front north of the Ancre, is the way a British official war announcement begins. The phrase is indicative of the steady driving on by Sir Douglas Haig's army.

Apparently the Kaiser wants his champagne whether war goes on or not. Before the war he bought in Rheims. His merchant has just been sentenced to five years in prison and a fine of 20,000 francs for trading with the enemy in sending 360 cases to the German Emperor.

St. John bids a hearty welcome home to more St. John officers and men, home from the war after months of strenuous service. They left for the front in high spirit to do their share for King and Country against the aggressor.

The cost of living continues to increase. Why will not the government at Ottawa take up the matter seriously? There are insistent calls upon all to assist our men at the front and their dependents.

Conservative organs throughout the country are daily asserting that there is a Liberal plot to force the government into an election. It is for the government to say, primarily, whether there shall be an election or not, and when the organs shudder at the thought of a contest the reasons for that shuddering are to be found in the provincial elections of the last year or two, and the very visible trend of public sentiment today, rather than in any machine Conservative regard for the welfare of the country or the Empire.

German's Plan New Naval Tricks Add To Advantage Of "Low Visibility" SMOKE BANKS NEW SCHEME Specially Constructed Vessels to Spread Smoke as Veil for German Fleet While Zeppelins Direct Their Fire Although we have Sir John Jellicoe's statement for it that the Germans sprang no surprise on the British in the course of the Jutland battle, there is reason to believe that they discovered something that they got a hint which they are trying to turn to account. It will be recalled that in the report of this engagement the famous phrase "low visibility" was employed, the words being the technical description of the fact that the German ships made a poor target. They were hard to see. Controversy may rage as to whether the Germans calculated upon the low visibility and arranged their squadron in order that the greatest advantage might be taken of it, but that the mist it was possible to see only age partly because of the position of the sun with relation to the warring battleships, partly on account of a mist, and

WOMEN'S AILMENTS Come From The Heart and Nerves Young girls budding into womanhood who suffer with pains and headaches, and whose face is pale and blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up. Women, between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flashes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tied over this trying time of their life by the use of this remedy. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheek and sparkle to the eye. The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living. Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl, and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them." Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

number of vessels upon lines similar to the Karlsruhe, but with more smokestacks and greater speed. The chief function of these vessels is to lay down the smoke pall. What fuel is used is not known, but it is suspected to be an oil into which some ingredient has been introduced that will make a very dense, heavy smoke, that will rest upon the surface of the water even with a moderate breeze blowing. A barrier of this kind a mile long might be laid down in a couple of minutes. Behind this the torpedo boats could be brought into play, and could start out singly, deliver their blow, and return before the guns of the threatened warships could be trained upon them. "That is the German hope. Its fruition, of course, would depend upon more than the ability of the fast light cruisers to produce the smoke barrage. One side of a bank of smoke being as black as another, the Germans could no more see the British than the British could see the Germans.

Difficult to Work Out. Here is where the Zeppelins and aeroplanes are expected to get their work. From far aloft they would spy the enemy ships, would calculate their distances and positions, and signal down by wireless to the hidden German fleet. The Zeppelins are counted upon to be particularly useful because they can remain almost stationary, and can make much more exact observations than the aeroplanes. But there is no reason to suppose that the Germans will be able to establish a greater mastery of the air on sea than on land. The Zeppelins and taubes will have no easy task in beating off the attacks of the British aeroplanes. Apart from this fact what is to force the British navy to accept an engagement upon a specially prepared and smoke-decorated part of the sea? Moreover, these smoke-laying vessels will not be permitted to carry on their well-meant efforts while the British guns remain silent. The smoke screen as a means of escape has its advantages; as a means of winning a naval battle its value remains to be determined.

TREMENDOUS TASK TO CLOTHE ARMY

An Industrial Romance of The War

Buying as a Science

British Policy, While Securing Equipment and Supplies for Army of Millions, Prevented Inflation of Prices

In a general way everyone has realized that the mere recruitment of men and the supplying them with arms and ammunition was only a part of the work required of the War Office to put the new British army in the field, but not one person in a thousand realized the enormous task and the multitude of incidents which go into the equipment of a force capable of taking its place in the field under modern war conditions. The War Office has been faced with the necessity of providing everything from socks to uniform buttons, from mess spoons to gratatoars, for an army grown in 24 months from less than 200,000 to more than 4,000,000. And the success with which this situation has been met is one of the industrial romances of the war, says the New York Herald.

Keeping Down Prices

Figures, as a rule, tell little, but the government has compiled some statistics behind which can be seen the feverish industry, the unceasing toil, which has permitted the men at the front to take their places as an effective fighting machine beside the French and the Russians and the Italians; the labor which made possible the development of the little contingent which crossed to France in August, 1914, to the greatest victory of the war in the history of the world. These statistics are based on reports up to April 1. To avoid unduly enhanced prices for necessities, not only to the war office, but to the population at large, the government carefully guarded all information which might indicate in the earlier days of the war the real extent of the army's needs. Some prices have advanced, but considering the huge additions to the output of clothing, equipment, tools, drugs and all other stores needed by the armed forces, there has been virtually no increase in prices. The buying by the government has been done on a definite principle that has kept the widest resources and requirements of the empire always in view.

Woolen, Flannel and Cotton

During the first twenty months of the war the amount of woolen cloth required for the army has been 50,000,000 yards, which would suffice to put a giraffe twice around the earth. Shirt flannel has been bought to the total of 84,000,000 yards. These figures, it must be remembered, represent solely the army's needs. Here in a table is a comparison of the war office's needs in textiles in peace years and in war-time in yards:

	Average	August
	1914,	1916
Woolen and worsted cloth	1,149,000	117,000,000
Flannel	1,284,000	84,000,000
Cotton cloth	632,000	194,000,000

A TALK ON RHEUMATISM

Telling How to Actually Cure This Common and Painful Malady

This article is for the man or woman who suffers from rheumatism who wants to be cured, not merely relieved—but actually cured. The most rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the tender, aching joint, is a little relief. No lotion or ointment ever did or can insure a cure. The rheumatic poison is rooted in the blood. Therefore rheumatism can only be cured when this poisonous acid is driven out of the blood. Any doctor will tell you this is true. If you want something that will go right to the root of the trouble in the blood, take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood which drives out the poisonous acid and cures rheumatism to stay cured. The truth of these statements has been proved in thousands of cases throughout Canada, and the following cure is a striking instance. Mr. Henry Smith, St. Jerome, Que., says: "For upwards of a year, I was a victim of rheumatism in a most painful form. The trouble was located in my legs and for a long time I was so bad that I could not walk. The suffering which I endured can only be imagined by those who have been similarly afflicted. Doctors' treatment did not help me and then I began trying other remedies, but with no better results. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had begun to lose faith in medicine, I finally decided to give the pills a trial. I am very grateful now that I did so, for after taking eight boxes of the pills the trouble completely disappeared. I was free from pain and could walk as well as ever I did in my life. I have since taken the pills occasionally as a precautionary measure, and I cannot speak too highly in their favor."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all the troubles which result from a poor or broken down nervous system. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or $2.00 a dozen, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

implies to the country's industry, however, it would be necessary to take twelve-twentieths of the amount shown in the second column to compare with the average demand in peace years. It will be found that the demand for flannel has been increased 41 times, for woollens 61 times and for cottons 173 times. It is estimated that about 25 per cent. of the woollens and worsteds in the country were for use of Britain's allies.

Making Uniforms and Shirts

After the fabrics were turned from the looms there was the question of making them into uniforms and shirts. The latter more than twenty-six million have been required for field and training wear, apart from the further huge total needed for the hospitals. The soldier, whether in training camp or on active service, wears out his clothes rapidly, and the supply department at the war office has found that the replacement demands of such clothing now in a week as did the entire army in a year in the days before the war. It is not the large items that constitute all the difficulties. Buttons might seem to be of small consequence, but more than eight hundred and forty million of them, in all shapes and grades, have been used since the war began; not an unimportant commercial factor in itself. In the actual work of making up uniforms and their accessories, the army clothing factory was soon swamped and the great contingents took the field. The great clothing contractors of London, Leeds and other cities were called on, and with the adjustment of the new difficulties the work of keeping the new army clothed was thoroughly systematized. This table will show some startling figures:

Some Staggering Figures

Articles	Annual Average in 20 Mths	Total for Peace Yrs. of War
Shirts	227,000	21,750,000
Service jackets	78,000	11,460,000
Service trousers	92,000	11,004,000
Khaki drill frocks	58,000	1,184,000
Khaki drill trousers	78,000	1,187,000
Fur coats	18,000	2,907,000
Greatcoats	34,000	4,836,000
Service dress caps	222,000	11,088,000
Socks, pairs	980,000	54,684,000
Undershirts	77,000	7,555,000
Drawers	194,000	23,144,000
Jerseys	8,555,000	8,555,000

The new situation in regard to boots is especially interesting. In the vast total noted in the table ordinary marching boots alone are considered, and the millions of pairs of canvas shoes and hospitals are not included. About one-sixth were supplied by the army, but the figures are exclusive of 7,000,000 pairs of boots made for Russia. Summarizing the clothing statistics, the government finds that the army's needs in twenty months increased between seventy and eighty times the normal requirement. And to the clothing figures may be added properly between nine and ten million pairs of woollen gloves and 13,000,000 "cap comforts."

Telephone Clerk to Get 'Change Seat

Brokers Will Reward John Ahearn, in Their Service for Fifteen Years (New York Times.)

A second uniformed employe of the Stock Exchange is to be advanced to full membership on the board as soon as John H. Jacquelin & Co., 82 Broadway, have completed arrangements for the purchase of a seat for John Ahearn.

Ahearn has been chief telephone clerk on the exchange for the Jacquelin firm for fifteen years. Last week Underhill & Gilmor bought a seat for Philip Miller, sergeant of the messenger boys on the floor.

The promotions of employes to membership on the exchange caused considerable comment in the street yesterday. In the past the Stock Exchange, with its membership limited to 1,100 men, has been considered as a rather exclusive club, but the signs point toward a distinct change in this respect. The break from precedent came first last spring, when S. S. Schuyler of Schuyler, Chadwick & Burnham bought a seat for one of the firm's office force as a reward for long and skillful service.

One reason ascribed for the promotion of Stock Exchange employes is the heavy business done in securities these days. Messengers and telephone clerks of long experience are qualified to step right into the crowds on the floor and hold up their end. They become distinct assets to their firms without a period of "breaking in."

John H. Jacquelin & Co. are one of the five big odd-lot houses, the details of whose business on the exchange have expanded largely since the period of million-share deals began. The firm already has six floor members, and like other odd-lot firms, has been forced to unusual negotiations to execute its orders.

"Been traveling all that time, have you?" "Well, no, sir," said the witness, making a hasty calculation, "not exactly traveling. I have put in about four years of that time waiting at railway stations and junctions for trains."--Case and Comment.

Anthology of Fighting Facts

Collecting Works of Soldiers and Sailors

FOR PUBLICATION AFTER WAR

Material May Fill Several Volumes--Many of Writers Have Given Their Lives

E. B. Osborn, the English author, has been collecting material for a war anthology which will contain only the works of soldier and sailor poets who have served in the present conflict. That announcement was made recently by the Official Press Bureau in London, which added that Mr. Osborn had received from all the many fronts on which British troops are fighting a great many poems which have never been published. The statement reads in part: "Mr. Osborn says it has been a happy task--with many a moment of sadness, though, when the news came that some fighting poet was 'missing' or had fallen in action. In one respect only has the quest been at all disappointing--from the collector's point of view. Very little original sea verse has come in so far; the naval verse writer thinks he has done his trick of poetical work when he has produced a comical parody of Kipling or Gilbert, a stave or two of a cheery sea doggerel which runs to a popular tune. It is easy to understand why this should be. When a war is on, 'sea-time' takes up every spark of a sailor's energy (and in the case of the poet, his imagination) and there is for him no periodical retirement into 'billets,' where contemplation is possible and there is time to beat one's music out."

Write as They Fight. The muse, however, wears her khaki as a spiritual canticle whenever British soldiers are fighting on land, and her votaries are found in every rank. In their verse, both grave and gay, there is something within that lowers the write of war as they know it, of vanished comrades, even of a brutish enemy, without rancor or repining, without ever a note of the note. Variations on the Song of Hate, such as the German soldiers write, would seem a waste of time and tissue. They write, as they fight, like the soldiers in the trenches, with a ballad-maker, piecing together these rough, but pitiful or picturesque fragments, may not have the value of a poet's work, but they are the real poetry of the war.

There is a reality far beyond the "realism" of any literary convention, in the crudest ditties hastily wrought to please their companions. Time will bring out the inner nobility of these fragments and they will be valued as proofs of the joyous and lofty morale of Britain's new army, in which the spirit of the "old army" is marching on.

Griffin's Gem. "In their serious verse the British soldier poets do not fall below the high standard of Rupert Brooke's immortal sonnet and Julian Grenfell's ecstatic 'Into Battle,' and Charles Sorley's bleak but never less than a masterpiece of ornament as Greek poetry, and the tender tribute to a fallen friend, which is the one poem left us by 'Billy' Grenfell, scholar, athlete and soldier."

Oh, heart-and-soul and careless played Our little hand of brothers, And never recked the time would come To change our games for others. It's joy for those who played with you To pick up now what grace was left In your mind and single heart, And in your valiant face, Your right-foot strength by flood and field.

For England keener glowed; To whatsoever things are fair We know, through you, the road; No is our grief the less thereby, O swift and strong and dear, good-bye!

"All these four have fallen. But they have left many successors who, like them, prefer to sing the splendors rather than the squalor of this cosmic warfare. Even private who writes of the Red Cross can speed along a white road in France:

A moving Calvary painted gray-- keeps instinctively to the Greek rule of showing nothing horrible. Passionate Love of Country. "A passionate love of country, white and glowing, and not to be anatomized in 'isms' and 'isms,' is a dominant note in all the true war poetry. It often, of course, expresses itself in grateful remembrance of the old school--all the famous public schools have had their tribute, a hard catch in a match behind the trenches on one occasion conjuring up a vision of spacious playing fields by the seashore. And all these soldier-poets are mother-lovers (seeing in a mother an incarnation of maternal England), a most beautiful proof being a long poem by an officer of engineers, in which all the busy hours of a long day are dedicated to his mother, being enhanced and irradiated by the love which prompts Colwyn Phillips to cry:

Every day and every hour I have battered on your power. You, my loved one, and no other, You, my only lovely Mother, You, the pilot of my soul!

"And yet the other, the later beloved, is also a symbol of the lovely land, seven or eight worlds away, to the soldier in the trenches. He sees her 'across seas of eyes and dawn,' he knows her as immortal as England, as in these most beautiful lines:

Your eyes are bright forever. Your dark hair Holds an eternal shade. Like a bright sword Shall flame the vision of your strange, sweet ways, Clearing the years; and even your smallest word, Dying forgotten with the things that were,

If you "fall" for cheap stuff, you'll not get a run for your money.

For that price we can still give you an honest suit--better ones at $15, $20 and $25. Overcoats $15 to $30.

They are too proud to hate him. The Turk is liked, being a gentleman, though deficient. Above all hangs the brazen and vicious visage of war. Mr. Osborn has a number of poems about the thunder of great guns, by sea and by land, the most moving being lines by an officer imprisoned near the German front, who listens to the artillery on the west front, and hears their large voices drawing slowly but surely nearer.

"Last of all, there are the valiant-rites to comrades who have received the Cross of Wood," which is the noblest of all the orders. One of these, which has greatly impressed the poet Laureate, Sir Robert Bridges, is a meditation over the body ('a false pretence, a solid shade') of a comrade suddenly slain:

Shadows more solid, but less real Than love and laughter whence it fell Across my path with mute appeal, And served your spirit's purpose well-- So well that even I could see It indistinguishably there, Till you had left it like a sheath With laughter in the hands of death, And left me gay, not miserable.

Mr. Osborn's anthology, it is stated, will probably not be published until after the end of the war. It is probable that the anthology will be in several volumes.

Vol. 1, Saturday, Nov. 13, 1916--No. 3 OUR TREMENDOUS BUYING POWER IS YOUR PROTECTION AGAINST HIGH PRICES

If you have shopped around at any of the various stores this season, you must know what a great increase in Shoe Prices has been made over those of last season. This is due to the big advance in costs of all materials, and the average Shoe Dealer is absolutely helpless to prevent it.

Fortunately for our customers, however, we are rated as one of the best users in the Maritime Provinces, and months ago we anticipated the present high leather market and placed orders in advance for thousands of dollars worth of shoes with the best manufacturers at the lowest prices. This makes it possible to give our customers practically the same shoe values as we did last year.

It is no trouble to match our prices, other stores sell shoes at the same price. The difference is in the shoes. When you are offered a shoe elsewhere at what you consider a low price, just compare that article with the shoe we can show at the same price, and we venture to say that you will be convinced of the truth of our claim. "The best Shoe at any stated price."

FROM WM. CUMMINGS

Mrs. David Cummings of 32 Forest street, recently received two letters and a postal card from her son, William, who is with a Canadian unit in France. In the first letter he said he was in a convalescent camp, but expected to be soon going down to the base. In the hospital he said the nurse who attended him was from St. John, and in other words there were two other St. John nursing sisters. The treatment accorded him, he said, was good.

In the card he told of seeing an old friend, Clement Donovan. In his last letter, which was written on October 27, he said his wound was healing and he expected to be sent to the base. He said he was endeavoring to get transferred into a machine gun company, but was not sure whether or not he would be successful.

The Man In The Street

The question "Will this weather last?" is getting almost as hackneyed as the query regarding the duration of the war.

Even the weather experts are shy about saying how long this preliminary winter will continue, but Frederick Palmer takes a chance on predicting the length of the war.

If all the "big fellows" are going to be allowed to continue boosting their prices for three more years "on account of the war," the situation is going to be interesting.

WORD OF OFFICERS OF 69TH BATTALION

Capt. Strubbe, New in England, Sends News of Our Friends of Last Winter

The following are some interesting exhibits from a letter written by an officer of the 69th Battalion, which wintered here last year. It is evident from the letter that casualties in the battalion have been heavy.

The letter is from Captain G. A. Strubbe, the only one of the officers now in England. It follows:
Upper Digate, October 30
"As you know by now, most of the officers of the 69th are at the front except me. Lieutenants Billy Morgan, Reginald Des Tremblais, Moreau, and Captain Dansereau have been at the front. Of these, Captain Dansereau is at present in Canada on sick leave. Lt. Moreau has been wounded and reported missing and we have not heard of him since. It is most likely that he is in the front. Lt. Des Tremblais is a lieutenant; (he was reduced in rank so that he could get to the front.) He was also reported missing, but we have since heard that he is still with his unit fighting. Lt. Robidoux has been wounded, but slightly, I understand. He is now in one of the hospitals in London.

As for me, they have not allowed me to go across as yet, as I have been held here for training purposes. I am very busy just now as I have a large number of men to drill and train. I will let my captlaincy to get to the front, as I want to see some real fighting.

We have with us now a new battalion, the 189th, and among the officers is one from St. John, Lieutenant Soucie. (Lieutenant Soucie was a traveler for Brock & Peterson, Ltd., in this city, previous to enlisting.)

JAIL TERMS AND FINES IN CASTLE STREET BARN CASE

In the police court this morning some severe penalties were imposed by Magistrate Ritchie.

Blanche Wheelpley, arrested some time ago for lying and lurking in a barn off Castle street, was given five months in jail with an additional fine of $50 or three months. Annie Wright, also in the barn, was given five months in jail and another three months or $50. The two youths in the case were allowed to go on suspended sentences.

Frank O'Neil, charged with selling liquor without a license, was fined $100 or three months in jail.

Russell Kierstead and Clayton Cunningham, both charged with theft, were each sentenced to three months in jail.

George Henderson was sentenced to three months in the Municipal Home for vagrancy.

ORGANIZE FOR WINTER

Meeting and Plans of Older Boys of Ludlow Street Sunday School

The older boys of the Ludlow Street Baptist Sunday School, who were organized for winter on Friday evening, following a bounteous repast, which had been arranged by the social committee, met at the school on Saturday afternoon in a very satisfactory manner. The pastor, Rev. W. R. Robinson; the superintendent, R. H. Parsons, and I. R. Carlin. The Canadian Standard efficiency programme will be carried out during the season under the leadership of the class master, R. H. Parsons. The boys have chosen for a name "The Victors." Debating teams with Hester Fairweather as Tom Robinson as the respective captains were chosen. The subject for debate is to be: Resolved, That the cow is of greater service to man than the horse.

The following were elected officers of the class for the season: President, Oscar Reade; vice-president, Tom Robinson; secretary, Harry Best; treasurer, Ralph Rupert. Membership committee, Clyde Parsons, Walter Allan; social committee, Fred Mahoney, George W. Walton, Willie McLoon; athletics, Tom Robinson, Lyman Thomson.

After words of greeting by the newly elected president, a half hour song, which the boys greatly enjoyed, brought the evening to a close.

NEARLY $4,000 HERE FOR BELGIAN CHILDREN

The latest advice received from the School Trustees office is that a total of $2,911.75 has already been reported by two schools in this city for the destitute children of Belgium. There is just one school to be heard from— the Victoria school, and it is understood that it will be Tuesday morning before their total amount is known. In Victoria school is expected that upwards of $900 will be the result. Giving Victoria $900 to its credit, this would bring the total receipts very near the $4,000 mark, which is beyond all expectations.

COULD NOT GET THROUGH ICE TO THE HAMPSTEAD

Word from the captain of the steamer Viking is he has been unsuccessful in his attempt reaching the steamer Hampstead, which is caught in the ice at Upper Gagetown. He reported having reached Lower Gagetown or within eight miles of the Hampstead, but the ice was too much for him and he was unable to continue and so decided to return to Indian town.

The steamer Champlain returned to Indian town yesterday afternoon. She succeeded in getting as far as Earle's Wharf on her trip up river on Thursday. This morning she left Indian town with a capacity cargo.

The steamers D. J. Purdy and Majestic, owned by the Crystal, Steam Steamship Company, also sailed this morning with capacity cargoes. The former will go as far as Gagetown and this morning the Narrows. The steamer Oronce went up river this morning with a large general cargo.

The Majestic will make another trip to the Narrows on Monday morning, but it will depend upon weather conditions whether or not the D. J. Purdy will make another trip.

WAR DICTAPHONE BRINGS DECORATION

French Soldier "Eavesdrops" on the Germans and Wins Croix de Guerre

Foils Their Gas Attacks—"Edison of Trenches" Gets News for the First Line by a Scrap Heap Wireless Outfit

A young French soldier has been decorated with the Croix de Guerre because he rigged dictaphones on the edge of a German trench near Fort Tavanines in the Verdun theatre of war, by which he was able to warn his fellows of a number of gas attacks in time for preparation against them.

Out of odds and ends of the debris of war he fashioned the first dictaphone, the case of which was an empty "75" shell. Under cover of night he placed this in the barbed wire entanglements of a first-line German trench, running a wire back to his first-line trench, a ground connection carrying the "return" current. It worked, and then he made other dictaphones until he had an effective system of electrical espionage on a considerable length of German trench.

This same Frenchman, suffering with his fellow-soldiers from the strain of not knowing until forty-eight or seventy-two hours later how things were going on the rest of the long battle line, rigged up a crude wireless station by means of which he caught the daily communique from the Eiffel Tower, and distributed it to the other soldiers about him.

George Kenneth End, in the November Issue of The Popular Science Monthly, paints a graphic word picture of the effectiveness of the apparatus which he saw working.

"This young Edison of the trenches," he writes, "is the leader of a group of expert electricians assigned to one of the most difficult and most dangerous jobs on the front. The laying of wires from the 'listening stations' to the switchboards further back of the lines, the wiring of underground mines so as to afford illumination for the soldier toilers under the earth, and the constant vigilance over the wires, which at any moment might be cut by exploding shells, is his job.

Difficulties of Operators

"It is useless to lay wires underground along the Verdun front, so three wires are strung for every line connection. These wires are strung from small posts about seven feet above ground, the several units of the same line being as widely separated as possible. Thus the chance of having a circuit broken are comparatively small.

"At this particular switchboard, which was about fifteen feet underground, there was telephonic communication with about eight different points along the front lines. Every 20 minutes each of the lines was tested by the operator at the switchboard. When a line was found to be cut, a squad of four men was sent out at once to locate the fracture and repair it. They might be called upon at any hour of the day or night, for very often when the enemy is concentrating a curtain of shell fire over a section, information as to shell activities in the first lines would be absolutely cut off if it were not for the telephonic communication. It is just as if fire alone which brings down the telephone lines along the front. The closer to the lines the cruder becomes the method of hanging the wires, so that a small windstorm or even rain (which inevitably follows a bombardment) may put the wires out of commission.

"The electrician in question, who had been in this particular section of the Verdun front during four months of the great battle, constructed during his spare moments a device for electrically eavesdropping in the enemy's trenches. He had very little equipment at his disposal, so he utilized for the most part pieces from the artillery scrapheap. Through the use of his trench dictaphone several gas attacks of the enemy were apprehended in time to make preparations against them.

"During the night the electrician arranged in the enemy's barbed wire a series of discharged 75 shell cases containing microphones, to which he connected wires terminating in the French trench, where batteries furnished current for reproduction of the sound waves on telephone receivers. The ground connection is made to carry the return current.

Got News by Wireless

"It is true that the closer one gets to the front the less general becomes his perspective of the war. The men in the first-line trenches see the war sifted down to the few feet of trench where their guns are resting. News from other parts of the front is generally forty-eight hours late in reaching these men. If a soldier who has been holding down his few feet of trench at Verdun is assured that his countrymen on the rest of the front are doing the same he is much encouraged. This electrician has made it possible for them to receive the daily communique an hour after it is transmitted from the great wireless station of the Eiffel Tower in Paris. He did some more rummaging around the artillery scrap heap, detached a few parts from an old musket, cut some strips from a brass '75 shell case, bought a small piece of detector crystal, and in a short time was sending a messenger out soon after midnight every night to take to the men in the first line the day's news.

"At midnight of the date of the interview the communique was a long one, being the first news of the French offensive in Picardy, which had just begun. A messenger took the glad tidings to his brothers in the trenches. Then the electrician adjusted his instrument so that it intercepted messages sent out by some German portable field wireless apparatus. The German spark is pitched very high and musical, while the French is dull and staccato. A message sent out by an aeroplane was intercepted also by the crude but practical receiving instrument.

"For military purposes the wireless is not as much used by the French as by the Germans. The French, wherever possible, use the telephone instead, and along some parts of the front they have established underground lines unbreakable to shell fire. The French have closed automobiles equipped with complete telephone switchboards, so that temporary exchanges may be established at short notice wherever they may be needed."

The Sort of Bar He Needed

A grimy-looking stranger wandered into a certain seaside cafe. He looked about him in an inquiring way for a second or two, and then, turning to the waitress, said rather sharply: "I say, Miss, where's the bar?" "What kind of a bar?" queried the waitress in return, and as icily as she could. "Why a liquor bar, of course," he drawled. "What sort of a bar did you suppose I meant?" "Well," she said, with her eyebrows arched slightly, "I didn't know, but I thought perhaps you might mean a bar of soap."

Hunger Stalks Through Belgium NOW!

While we in Canada are bringing in the harvest, filling our store-rooms and stocking our pantries with an abundance of good food—our Allies in overrum Belgium are facing another winter of near-starvation.

Women and children there by millions have gone for two years on short rations, for the Belgian Relief Fund has never been sufficient to provide full fare. Consequently they are in no condition to stand the still greater privations threatened on account of the growing number dependent on the Fund. Anything less than the present meagre allowance of bread and soup would, in thousands of cases, fail to hold bodies and souls together.

Shall we—can we—go on eating our three square meals a day—living well if not luxuriously—while Belgian children, pinched and cold, sobbingly beg their mothers for bread enough to stop the gnawing hunger?

$2.50 a month in the hands of the Belgian Relief Commission, will feed a Belgian family. A cigar less a day—a night missed from the theatre—simpler refreshments after an evening's cards—the price of any one of a dozen such habitual luxuries would provide the food that means life for a Belgian mother and her children till the end of the war.

Won't your own meals taste better when you know some little Belgians also are enjoying the food which you provide? Whatever you feel that you can spare, send your subscription weekly, monthly or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or send Cheques payable to Treasurer.

STANFIELD'S

Unshrinkable UNDERWEAR

Owes its Popularity to the Very Best of Wool

Of the kinds of wool needed for the favorite lines of Stanfield's Underwear, we are the largest purchasers in Canada. This gives us command of the market, so that we are able to secure just what we want in weight and length of fibre—in fact, we get the pick of the kind of wool best suited to the many different weights and classes of Stanfield's Underwear.

Our practice is to buy our wool supply months ahead of requirements. This gives plenty of time to grade it accurately and clean it thoroughly. During the cleaning, and before it goes to the machines to be spun and knitted, a secret Stanfield's process takes the "shrink" out of the wool.

Made up into garments, this wool has a softness that is delightful to the skin—strength that will stand the most strenuous wear—durability that makes it, in the long run, the most economical underwear you can buy—and such freedom from shrinking that even after several seasons' wear a Stanfield's garment is as ample and comfortable as the day it was bought.

POPULAR STANFIELD'S STYLES

Stanfield's Original Pure Wool; honest as old-fashioned homespun. The best underwear made for men who work hard outdoors. Wonderful warm and absorbent. Red, Blue and Black Labels—regular, medium and heavy weights.

No. 77—One of our old reliables—two-ply, medium weight, in natural color, for men and women. Very soft, warm and comfortable. No. 73 is the same weight, in white, for women. No. 68 is the same quality, in heavy weight, natural color, for men.

All made in Combination and Trivertine Suits—in full length, knee and above length and slenderness.

FREDERICK PALMER EXPECTS TWO OR THREE YEARS MORE OF WAR

New York, Nov. 17.—Frederick Palmer, the war correspondent designated by the British war office to represent the entire press of the United States, returned today on the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, for a rest before going back to the front.

It is Mr. Palmer's opinion that the Allied offensive against the Germans in the battle of the Somme will end only when the war itself ends; that it will be continued for two, perhaps three years.

He was told by the staff of the Allies that they had no expectation of breaking the German line this year.

He said that aeromantic activity in England is such that he had seen as many as fifty aeroplanes flying across the channel in one day to replace the great losses of air machines at the front.

Every day, he added, at least thirty-five machines cross. He made the journey himself in an official aeroplane, known as the "channel bus," which flies back and forth daily.

Of the work of the "tanks," at the front Mr. Palmer spoke in highest praise, saying that their charges upon the trenches have saved thousands of lives.

"There is only one historical comparison for the Somme battle—Verdun," said Mr. Palmer.

"It has long since passed Verdun in the intensity of the fighting, in numbers engaged, in losses, in killed and wounded and in volume of artillery fire.

"In the Somme sector 6,000 British, French and German guns have been in action on the same day. Within one period of twenty-four hours there have been at least 150,000 casualties, counting those of both sides. So far in this engagement at least 1,600,000 men have been hit. Next summer the British are prepared to lose 1,000,000 men, if necessary, and they will have twice their present gun power.

"When will the war be over? I only know that next year will be bloodier than this. The week before I left France I talked with General Hoffre and Sir Douglas Haig, and with such army and corps leaders as Sir Henry Rawlinson, on the Somme, and Generals Neville and Ianigrin, who planned and executed the brilliant attacks which recovered for them Douaumont and Vaux at Verdun. Their idea was the same that I have found everywhere—a fight to a finish."

Isolation Now is Impossible

As Greatest of Neutrals United States Must Join in League of Nations for Permanent Peace

London, Nov. 18.—Viscount Bryce, the former British ambassador to the United States, and Professor Woodrow Wilson of Oxford, were the principal speakers at a meeting of the Mayflower Club, which is composed of British and American statesmen and has as its object the perpetuation of the memory of the Pilgrims. The meeting was held in the reception room of the House of Commons, and among those present was the American Ambassador, Walter H. Page.

In his address, Lord Bryce said:—"Questions as to the exercise of belligerent rights have always arisen and must always be expected to arise between belligerents and neutrals in naval war. Those that have arisen between the Allies and the United States are happily such as can be disposed of by pacific negotiations and need not affect the permanent friendship of peoples attached to one another by so many ties. At this moment the friendship of our two nations is of more importance than ever to both of us, but to the world, than perhaps ever before.

"For what is the state of the world? It is a state of chaos. The world is a mass of warring peoples, and we are asking ourselves whether we must expect such calamities to go on recurring in the future. Is this suffering to have been in vain? After the war, will international feuds, hatreds and suspicions return. The simplest way of dealing with this heavier burden to already impoverished peoples—have again to be maintained?

Try Arbitration First.

The only method suggested for preventing these things is a combination of peace loving nations to be formed after the war, and after the treaty of settlement for the purpose of establishing a permanent peace. The simplest way of doing this is to require that every international dispute shall be submitted to arbitration or conciliation before any resort to arms. Such a plan would not be carried out without the co-operation of neutral nations, and especially of the greatest of the neutral nations. The United States has hitherto stood apart from isolation, but isolation is not longer possible. Every country is now affected and its safety threatened by the spirit of undemocratic aggression. The United States has avoided entangling alliances. But a league of peace would be no entangling alliance. It would be a plan of action and straightening out of difficulties that threaten to embroil the world.

"Already many leading statesmen have proposed such a scheme as a permanent outline. Both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes have given it their hearty approval; public opinion in both parties alike is daily growing in its favor. We cannot take practical steps till this war has been—as it certainly will be—fought through to a decisive victory.

But meantime, we may begin to consider those practical steps should be and we can assure our friends in America of our sympathy with their scheme and our willingness to co-operate in a work to which our common ideals turn. We are both peace loving peoples; we both desire to respect the rights of every nation, small or great. Neither of us seeks to dominate the world either by war or in commerce. We both love freedom and wish to see it everywhere prevail.

"Let us try to realize these common ideals and let us consecrate our friendship in an effort to secure for mankind the blessing of an enduring peace."

Professor Gilbert Murray gave an interesting review of the American attitude toward the war as he learned it during a recent visit to the United States. He declared that the war would not result in the perpetuation of hatred between peoples, but that it would also approved of a league for maintaining peace between nations.

HOTEL MEN POSTPONE NEW YEAR REVEL A DAY

Dilemma of Sunday Restrictions Solved by Decree That 1917 Shall Begin on Tuesday

New York, Nov. 18.—New Year's Eve falling on Sunday this year, the managers of the city's big hotels have solved the problem of keeping open for celebrants by deciding to postpone the frolic till Monday evening, January 1. The managers realized that Mayor Mitchell was powerless to extend their liquor selling privileges beyond the regular mid-night closing hour, so they decided to make the joyful public wait a day. The executive committee of the Hotel Association of New York took the action at their headquarters, 334 Fifth avenue. Every large hotel in the city is included in the membership of the association.

The cabaret and restaurant proprietors will probably take similar action. It is expected that the mayor will grant a larger number of all-night licenses under the new arrangement than he did last year.

The convention of the New York diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, in session here, unanimously adopted without debate a motion that it petition the mayor not to allow any special licenses for the sale of liquor on Sunday evening, Dec. 31. The mover of the motion, the Rev. James S. Holland of Yonkers, said that he had heard the mayor was waiting for some expression of sentiment on the subject.

The Record of Alleged Spy

Karl Graves Made Many Interesting Claims

Now is Under Arrest

German Charged in New York With Black-mailing, Says He Was Kaiser's Confidential Secret Service Man

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Karl Armand Graves, or Armand Karl Graves, as he sometimes calls himself, neither name being his own, has once more stepped into the limelight. This time he has been arrested on a charge of attempting to blackmail Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German Ambassador to the United States. He denies the crime, but admits that he was trying to dispose of a number of letters to the German Embassy. He intimates that he gives instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no ointments, no liniments.

The letters appear to have been brought from Germany to the United States by someone about the Oscar II, but how Graves got hold of them is unknown. One report is that he paid $2,400 for them. The price he asked of the German Embassy was $8,000, and in a few minutes before the waiting detectives nabbed the "international spy," Graves asserts that in buying and selling these letters he was merely using the same method as the German spy chief, Count Bernstorff ever since the beginning of the war, and he hints that when the matter is thoroughly investigated the police do not know what their purpose is. It is very probable that it is the cipher communications that Graves was trying to dispose of.

Charges German Embassy.

The letters appear to have been brought from Germany to the United States by someone about the Oscar II, but how Graves got hold of them is unknown. One report is that he paid $2,400 for them. The price he asked of the German Embassy was $8,000, and in a few minutes before the waiting detectives nabbed the "international spy," Graves asserts that in buying and selling these letters he was merely using the same method as the German spy chief, Count Bernstorff ever since the beginning of the war, and he hints that when the matter is thoroughly investigated the police do not know what their purpose is. It is very probable that it is the cipher communications that Graves was trying to dispose of.

Revelations of a Spy.

Graves came into prominence in 1913, when he was employed by a newspaper and magazine offices and offered to sell the secrets of European governments about the war. He claimed to be a graduate of a German university, and to have entered the German spy service some years ago. According to him he was to have transacted the most delicate and important business for him. Graves intimated that he knew the inside of every European diplomatic secret for years, and he prepared a series of articles or stories in which these were "exposed." He wrote with some liveliness and smartness about the truthfulness of his supposed revelations, he made entertaining yarns. When the war broke out his stories became in greater demand, and by a series of predictions and claims as to the correctness of other predictions he became quite a figure.

Graves' Predictions.

He predicted the fall of Antwerp, "called the turn" on Italy's action while she was a neutral, and said that the Zeppelins would invade England. It is permitted to other people to predict or guess these events. Graves also predicted other things which did not come to pass. He professed to give the British government hints as to German plots in England, and on one occasion spoke cryptically but emphatically of some German menace near the bridge spanning the Firth of Forth. If men or any other person had taken his advice, it was this hint that caused the British government to announce that it had never had any relations with Graves, and that his supposed revelations and warnings were fakes. At another time he was similarly repudiated by the German government, but Graves was not put out of countenance by these official statements. He merely said that it was part of the game, and continued cheerfully to predict and reveal.

A Man of Mystery

It will be gratifying if the trial of Graves brings out some real facts concerning him. His own stories are not to be trusted. He may never have been in Germany. When he appeared first in the United States he told of having been arrested in England as a German spy and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. Somebody checked up his story and found that the date of his imprisonment was only eleven months past. How had he served a year and a half in less than a year? Nothing daunted, Graves said that he had been let out in a few months through the influence of Sir Edward Grey, on the understanding that he should do some spying for the British government. He became tired of the life, however, and fled to the United States. Some time ago he was arrested for passing a ring belonging to a friend, but insisted that the charge was the work of the German Embassy. This price convinced the court, and he escaped.

TO SEE IN DARKNESS BY INVISIBLE RAYS

Italian Inventor—Announces Important Discovery—Can See Without Being Seen

Rome, Nov. 18.—Signor Giulio Ulivi, the inventor of "E" rays, was today in a laboratory experiment some time ago, and recovered only after many months in a military hospital at Milan. Signor Ulivi announces now that he has succeeded in applying the invisible infra red waves beyond the red band of the spectrum to detect objects in darkness by determining their length.

The new invention is known as "Scotoscopia," meaning vision in darkness, and consists of a searchlight emitting invisible rays which illuminate distant objects and render them visible only to the observer. Thus by means of Scotoscopic searchlights warships are able to see without being seen.

Photographs or rather Septographs of objects in a darkness can be taken and enlarged so that enemy coasts can be mapped. The invention can be used on land and sea as well as in the air, so that it will be found most useful in waging warfare against submarines and in defence against aerial raids. Signals are exchanged invisibly between ships equipped with Scotoscopic apparatus, and other practical applications of this wonderful invention can easily be obtained.

CLOSENESS OF VOTE A REMINDER OF 1876

Hayes-Tilden Contest Recalled by Uncertainty Over Election

A Four-Month Quarrel Then—The Cleveland-Blaine Race, Also Historic, Was Won by a Narrow Margin in New York

Close national elections, says the New York Times, always recall the historic contest of 1876, when Rutherford B. Hayes, Republican, was declared elected president by a margin of one electoral vote over Samuel J. Tilden, Democrat.

The other memorable instance of close national elections was in 1854, when it was not known until Friday after election day whether Grover Cleveland or James G. Blaine had been chosen president, and then the contest was decided in New York state by a margin of 1,100 votes.

HAD BRONCHITIS For Years

By sun-up the next morning both Republicans and Democrats started after those twenty votes. If the Republicans got them all it meant that Hayes would be elected by a margin of one electoral vote.

Times heard of the contest was in the south and particularly in Louisiana. In that state the Democratic electoral candidates received a majority of the votes cast, on the face of the returns, but Republican returning boards alleged that the Democrats had used shotguns to terrify negroes, wives would have voted the Republican ticket, had practised other irregularities, and accordingly, to even matters up, they threw out enough Democratic votes to make it appear that the Republican electors were chosen.

In South Carolina, the Republicans had the electors on the face of the returns, but the Democrats charged fraud and started a contest, the ballot boxes being guarded by troops.

For a month conflicting claims and accusations flew through the contested Southern states. Delegations of Republicans from the north went down to see fair play and received a welcome from the Democrats that was not cordial.

Tilden was accused of having been responsible for the shipment of arms and ammunition to the democratic politicians in Louisiana.

Congress met on Dec. 1. The constitution said that in case of a tie, the president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and the house of representatives, open all certificates, and the votes shall then be counted.

The senate was republican and many influential Republicans declared that the constitution gave the Republican president of the senate the right to count the votes.

The Democrats asserted just as positively that no count would go into the house, which was Democratic, participated.

Finally a joint committee decided upon a bill providing that on election day it should be submitted to an electoral commission of fifteen, composed of five representatives, five senators and five members of the supreme court.

There was an important clause in the bill which said that the finding of the commission was to stand unless rejected by separate vote of both houses.

The Electoral Commission The senate, being republican, named three Republicans—Edmunds, Morton and Frelinghuysen—and two Democrats—Thurman and Bayard; the house named three Democrats—Payne, Hunt and Abbott—and two Republicans—Garfield and Hoar.

Two Democratic justices—Clifford and Fuller—and two Republicans—Strong and Miller—were named, and to them was intrusted the selection of a fifth and final member of the commission.

These Justice David Davis, but he refused to serve, and Justice J. P. Bradley was then named, he being supposedly an independent.

When the disputed votes of the four men were submitted to the commission, it voted every time, right to seven, in favor of the Republicans, the vote being on straight party lines, with Bradley lined up with the Republicans.

The Democratic house rejected the commission's findings, and the Republicans returned to the contest after election day.

The contest of 1876 which brought wholesale charges of fraud, gun-play, intimidation and murder, some of which were almost proved, started on election night when it became apparent on the returns not to be doubted that Tilden

HAD BRONCHITIS For Years

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied by rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy you require as it loosens the phlegm, and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Mr. Chas. Bresn, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best medicine for bronchitis I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

litan senate confirmed them. Therefore, all the twenty disputed electoral votes were given to Hayes and on March 2, 1877, nearly four months after election day, Hayes was declared to have been chosen as president by the people of the United States.

The commission was bitterly criticized, but did not change the election and Hayes was inaugurated on March 4, 1877.

There will never, in all probability, be a repetition of the 1876 contest, for in 1887 congress passed a law providing that each state should designate a tribunal to settle any contest over electoral votes, and unless such tribunal or both houses of the state legislature should reach a decision, the vote is to be submitted to the electors.

The dispute of 1884 on election night simmered down to New York. The newspapers of the next morning gave Cleveland a plurality of 10,000 in the state. Each morning it was reduced by more complete returns until on Friday it seemed pretty well established that Cleveland had carried the state by slightly more than 1,000 votes.

The Republican leaders refused to concede the state until eleven days after election day, when the final canvass of the New York count vote showed that Cleveland had carried the state by 1,100 votes.

An Opportunity. Glace Bay Gazette.—Sir Robert missed one good opportunity to put military matters on a proper national basis when he selected a partisan national service board. He has now another opportunity, by choosing the right man for minister of militia and insisting upon him adopting proper methods. It is very doubtful however, if Sir Robert is big enough for the opportunity. The resignation surrounding it justifies the Liberal verdict that Sir Sam is a man who has become a joke as minister of militia.

Sir Robert and Sir Sam Halifax Recorder.—This morning's Herald has an editorial. The first one for several years. It is about Sir Sam's dismissal. The following are the principal points: "It is regrettable that circumstances obliged Sir Robert to ask for the resignation of Sir Sam Hughes."

"We should say so." "We would not desire to say an unkind word in regard to Sir Sam Hughes."

"Whether he remains in public life, or retires to private life, or seeks further national duty on active service at the front, his great achievements as the head of a department that created Canada's magnificent overseas army will be an enduring monument to his indefatigable patriotic and successful labors."

Sir Robert's dismissal of Sir Sam is probably another "enduring movement."

Sir Sam's Resignation. Sydney Recorder.—The retirement of Sir Sam Hughes from the ministry of militia at the request of the premier, may appeal to the wayfarer as one of the great political sensations of the day, but to those who have been observing the trend of events in government affairs at Ottawa, it is regarded as a natural sequence.

That the ex-minister of militia should not be popular with his political opponents is not surprising, but he was at least as popular with men on his own side of the house as with men on the Liberal benches. It was rather unfortunate for the country that in the war crisis the department over which the ex-minister was supposed to preside was neglected for other affairs.

It is strange that this phase of the situation did not appeal to the premier earlier. Premier Borden cannot plead that he has no knowledge of the idiosyncrasies of the official who conducted the most important branch of the public service for the last two years and more.

Why not our own Body Machine?

We study and admire the machinery invented by man, and too often overlook and neglect that most marvellous machine—the human body.

To understand and take care of the heart, lungs and liver; the arteries and veins, the skin, the teeth, the eyes and all the intricate machinery of the body, is no small task.

But, unlike any other machine, the body replaces its own wear and waste, and, consequently, the most attention required is that which has to do with the organs of digestion and excretion.

So long as proper food is supplied for nourishment and the liver, kidneys and bowels are regular in their work of eliminating poisonous waste matter from the system, the great majority of human ills are avoided.

In this connection Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are appreciated on account of their promptness and efficiency in arousing the action of these filtering and excretory organs, and thereby removing such disorders as liver complaint, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, kidney disease and backache. With these organs in healthful action there is no such thing as Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and rheumatism.

City Physicians Explain Why They Prescribe Nuxated Iron to Make Beautiful, Healthy Women and Strong, Vigorous Men

NOW BEING USED BY OVER FIVE MILLION PEOPLE DAILY

Quickly transforms the flabby flesh, toneless tissues, and pallid cheeks of weak, anemic men and women into a perfect glow of health and beauty—Often increases the strength of delicate, nervous, run-down folks 200 per cent in two weeks' time.

New York, N. Y.—It is conservatively estimated that over five million people daily in this country alone are taking Nuxated Iron. Such astonishing results have been reported from its use both by men and women, that the number of well-known physicians in various parts of the country have been asked to explain why they prescribe it so extensively, and why it apparently produces so much better results than were obtained from the old forms of iron.

Extracts from some of the letters received are given below. Dr. King, a New York physician and author, says: "There can be no vigorous iron men without iron."

"Falter means anemia. Anemia means deficiency. The skin of anemic men and women is pale. The flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails and the often become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks."

In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degenerated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the wastepipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked is responsible for another grave iron loss.

Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful vim and vigor to a ripe age, you must supply the iron deficiency of your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt.

Dr. Sauer, a Boston physician, who has studied both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions says: "As I have said a hundred times people, in my opinion, need iron. O late, there has been brought to my attention, Nuxated Iron. In practice, I have found this an ideal restorative and upbuilding agent in these cases above mentioned."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians every where. Unlike the other inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Watsons Drug Store, and all other druggists.

Huns' Belated Bid For Poland

Have Abandoned Hope of Separate Peace

Aimed at Russia

But President Will React on Germany if Entente Powers Free German Poles

Germany and Austria have united in an announcement that Poland is to be free, that is to say, that part of Poland which is under Russian sovereignty and has been overrun by the Teutonic armies. They propose that the ancient kingdom shall be in part restored, but they fail to promise that the Poles who are under the German heel and the Poles who acknowledge the Austrian yoke shall be joined to their Russian kin. The purpose of this announcement is obvious. The Germans hope that millions of Russian Poles now temporarily under German authority will spring to arms to win the independence which they have so long struggled for; but the significance of the announcement, in the opinion of the New York Tribune, is that Germany and Austria have abandoned all hope of making a separate peace with Russia. Ever since the beginning of the war the Teuton statesmen have had the idea that diplomacy might rupture the Allies' league, and that one or the other might be detached. In the hope that Russia might be disaffected, no announcement concerning the future of Russian Poland was made for more than a year after it had been conquered. Germany hoped to use this great territory, one-quarter as large almost as the German empire, as a bait to Russia. Now she has concluded that it is useless to attempt to deal with Russia, and so she burns her bridges behind her.

The Czar's Promise

The German offer is also a belated effort to equal the bid of the Czar for Polish support. Early in the war he announced that the restrictive and even oppressive laws that affected Russian Poland would be abolished, and expressed the conviction that after the struggle all Poles—Russian, German and Austrian—might be reunited in one kingdom, under Russian protection. This offer went further than the latest bid, for it was a renunciation on the part of Russia of Russian Poland, with a population of 12,000,000. In Austria and Germany there are probably 9,000,000 Poles. If one can imagine Germany victorious, and keeping her word by restoring to nationhood twelve million Poles, it is conceivable that this new kingdom would not draw to itself or attempt to draw to itself the other nine million brothers living under the German and Austrian flags.

A Mad Offer

In the certain event of a defeat for the Central Powers, Russia and the other Allies would have the German precedent for making Poland independent. Germany having offered independence to Russian Poles, Russia can with perfect propriety offer independence to the German Poles. If Russia lost her Polish population it would amount to no more than the lopping off of a finger-joint. If Germany is to lose her Polish population the operation will more closely resemble the excision of a part of her neck. The Poles are extraneous to Russia. They are a loose end. In Germany Poles and Germans are inextricably mixed in East Prussia, West Prussia and Posen. If these districts are to be incorporated in the kingdom of Poland a wall will be erected anew between East Prussia and the rest of Germany which Frederick the Great broke down. Bismarck said he would rather lose Westphalia than the Polish provinces.

Rather Russia Than Germany

The German bid for Polish support does not specify, though it implies, that the German emperor would expect some sort of overlordship of the new kingdom. The inference is that the Poles would prefer the Germans to the Russians as overlords. The Poles have had their experience of both Russia and Germany, and there is little doubt that they would prefer the Russian knot to the Prussian scorpion. Russia has been harsh German Poland. In addition to copying every repressive act that Russia ever thought of, she has tried to dilute Polish sentiment by settling among the Poles 100,000 Prussians, and by rewarding apostate Poles with high office and emolument. The Poles could only retort with passive resistance. They used the boycott effectively, and by means of countless secret societies have been able to meet every German attack upon their ideal of independence and nationality. Nobody who knows the history of Poland will attempt to represent the Poles as a nation composed of such heroes as Thaddeus of Warsaw. When they had their day of power they were less tolerant than the Russians or even the Germans. No country owes them anything; whatever is granted them will be granted with the sole view of advantage to the benefactor.

WAR REVIVES OLD TRADES

Sussex, in England, Once More Turns to Flint Knapping.

A story which tells how old industries, which had died out before the war have been revived was recently given out by the British Official Press Bureau. The story, under the title "Rural England Renews Its Youth," in part is as follows: "Many a half-obsolete, old-fashioned trade in England has suddenly become prosperous. The charcoal burners of the Sussex woodlands and the New Forest have been called upon to provide fuel to keep British soldiers warm in their trenches. In the most unexpected of places one comes across Canadian logging camps in miniature, where the woodman's axe, wielded by stalwart sons of Canada, is heard all day, and in other places the English woodman is busy. Many sawmills, the splash of whose wheels was seldom heard, are now hard at work roughly shaping joists and posts for the trenches, and the shriek of the saw and the purr of the traveling engine surprise many a pheasant by the covert side. "Little country towns and villages are 'doing their bit' in many unexpected ways. In the woodland districts villagers are busy turning out tent pegs, which, though a very small war industry, gives an opportunity to many who would otherwise sigh for work in vain. Clog-making has also received a fillip, though the south of England, at least, prefers to pay higher prices for its boots than to adopt the clog. "Oster gathering is bringing money, and the basket makers have found a new outlet for their wares. At Fingringhoe the war office has long encouraged the gathering of osters for the making of fascines for trench supports, and the demand for these has increased tremendously during the last two years. Then, big shells are not easily handled, but they must be carried somehow, so the basket makers have turned their attention to making a carrier for the shells that are smashing a road to victory. "Flint knapping at Brandon, Suffolk, perhaps the oldest industry in the kingdom, has ever been a warlike trade. In far-off days it doubtless supplied the rough stone lance heads to the warriors of the time, while more recently it provided flints for our early firearms. Now its flints are used for obtaining a light in the trenches."

with her Polish population. But Germany has been calculatingly brutal. She has carried on her cruel program with Prussian thoroughness. Both Russia and Germany have tried to blot out from the mind of the Poles the memory of former independence, and so a Pole might reasonably hate them both. But in Russia the Poles were prospering before the war, and were developing a middle class, something that Poland needed if its struggle for independence was to succeed. Germany has made most systematic efforts to crush the national spirit out of Jimmy an office boy, approached his boss one morning.

"If you please, sir."

"Well, Jimmy?"

"My grandmother, sir—"

"Aha, your grandmother; go on Jimmy."

"My grandmother and my mother—"

"What? And your mother too. Both very ill, eh?"

"No sir. My grandmother and my mother are going to the baseball game this afternoon and they want me to stay at home and mind my little kid brother."

Jimmy got the afternoon off.

It is recorded that when Lord Halsbury was a barrister he was arguing a case on behalf of a Welshman, and showed a great knowledge of the principles of his people's law.

"Come, come," said the judge at length, "you know you cannot make yourself out to be a Welshman."

"Perhaps not," replied the barrister, "but I have made a great deal of money out of a Welshman in my time."

"Well, then," replied the judge, "suppose we call you a Welshman by extraction!"

Loyalty in Films

(Ottawa Citizen.)
 Various correspondents of The Citizen have written interesting communications to this journal, dealing with the alleged non-British character of most of the films produced by our local moving picture houses and also of the apparent lack of sympathy on the part of the audiences with representations of events which naturally would be supposed to arouse their enthusiasm.

But there is really nothing to indicate that the moving picture theatre managers prefer American to British films except on their merits. It cannot be denied that the American films are superior in almost every way, and this is not to be wondered at when the moving picture business is compared in the matter of development and money invested, in the respective countries.

In the United States the production of moving picture films has reached its highest development, from a commercial viewpoint. Millions of dollars are invested by the American producers as compared to thousands in other countries, in France and Britain. It is a usual thing for American concerns to spend $80,000 on an ordinary production. One comedian is paid $650,000 a year or $2,000 a day. Many other actors are paid at the rate of $100,000 yearly. The production of The Birth of a Nation called for the services of over 8,000 people who were transported to the various localities suitable for the purpose of the picture in special trains, and fed, camped and trained for three months before any attempt to take a single picture was made. The production cost at least half a million dollars. These are but instances. When Forbes Robertson was in Ottawa on the occasion of his last visit an American delegate waited on him in the Russell theatre and offered him $100,000 in cash, transportation for the actor and all his company to whatever part of the United States the company preferred, all hotel expenses for an indefinite time and salaries for the company fifty per cent higher than they were receiving from the British actor—for three weeks of Robertson's acting before a screen. The actor refused—and the delegate confided to a local friend that the refusal meant the loss of a bonus to him of $10,000, which his company had promised him if he secured the signature of the famous actor.

No European films can compare with American pictures in fittings, staging or clearness of production—at least none have been produced in this city in any way to compare with the American pictures. Is it fair, under the circumstances, to criticise the local picture theatre managers? Are they not giving the public the best pictures obtainable, regardless of the origin of production? So it seems to The Citizen.

Another complaint is that the audiences cheer incidents in which American flag or American troops are represented as playing a heroic part, while pictures of British troops or of British scenes in connection with the war are received in silence. But this is merely a superficial fault. There are two kinds of pictures, "action" pictures and "still" pictures. The former are part of a connected story and lead gradually to a climax or a series of climaxes, as does a similar production on the stage. The latter holds the spectator and plays upon his feelings until at some thrilling moment—when as, for instance, the troops gallop to the defence of the sorry pressed fort, where the hero or the heroine, or both, are making a last desperate stand—the tension finds relief in applause. But the fact that the troops carry an American flag is not related to the applause; that would be just as vigorous if the rescuers carried a Japanese flag. The play's the thing.

The "still" picture is different in its effect upon the spectator. The film may represent a column of British troops going to the front. It does not evoke a cheer, but neither would a troop of American soldiers going to Mexico. The connected story is lacking—it is an unrelated picture; it evokes no applause because the spectator has not been put in the mood for applause. It is a fact that no such picture, no matter how beautiful or interesting, earns applause. And—this is the point—we get no other kind of British pictures but this variety. We have no British studio pictures and the reason we have not is because they are inferior to American studio pictures because of the enormous development of the moving picture industry in the United States.

Until matters are remedied in the only obvious way there can be no other course. We shall have to put up with American plays until the British brand factory presentation. In the meantime it is no reflection on either our loyalty or our common sense if we continue to witness and applaud the films that appeal to us, no matter where made.

 "Before the looming danger of invasion the pacifist and the preparedness chap are respectively like Willie and Johnny."
 "Willie and Johnny had been very naughty and were sent to bed by their mother. As they lay side by side footsteps were heard—it was now evening—and the two culprits realized that their father was mounting the stairs. They turned pale."

 "I learned a lot of things," replied Tommy proudly. "And one of them was that this world is round and turns on a swivel thing like the great big globe in the schoolroom."
 "Did you, sonny?" exclaimed uncle, in pretended surprise. "And what do you think of that, now?"
 "I think," answered Tommy, in slow and thoughtful tones, "that the teacher is asking me to believe a good lot for a small boy."

Punishment. Bones is a schoolmaster whose precept and practice of the blessings of punctuality are, as a rule, faultless. Should a lad be five minutes late in the morning he is "kept in" ten minutes. Recently Mr. Bones himself was thirty minutes late. Jones, one of his pupils, was not slow to remind him of the offence. "Yes, boys," said Bones, when he had listened to the smart boy, "Jones is quite right, and, as I punish you, it is only fair that you should punish me. So you shall all stay and keep me in for an hour after school this afternoon."

one of the speakers, the students rose in a body and gave the university cheer with nine "Shevelin's" at the end. A year ago the Shevelin came to New Haven from the west and developed what seemed to be a hopelessly beaten team into one that won over Princeton. Head Coach "Tad" Jones, principal speaker at the meeting, said the two greatest Yale captains, in his opinion, were Shevelin and Black, present leader of the eleven. Jones spoke optimistically of Yale's chances in the Princeton game next Saturday. SKATING. No Championships This Year. There will be no Canadian speed skating championships held this winter as a result of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, held in Montreal this week. The meeting decided that owing to the greatly diminished number of skaters because of the war they would not hold any championship events until after the termination of the war. Local meets will, of course, be sanctioned with events for certain distances. The officers elect are: President, J. A. Taylor; first vice-president, F. C. Berlow; honorary secretary-treasurer, Louis Rubenstein; executive committee, Sir Montague Aldrich, E. Findlay, M. J. O. H. Dodds, C. Creighton, and J. C. C. Almon.

BIG CONTRIBUTIONS FROM LITTLE FOLK The school children of the city were successful in raising more than $3,000 to aid the two and a half million Belgian children, who through the ravages of war are left destitute. Not only do the school children deserve credit, but also the teachers, who worked with untiring effort to get the campaign a success that it was. The following is a list of contributions so far received at the office of the school trustees: St. Patrick's, $88.49; Albertien, $15.75; Britain street orphanage, $1c.; High school, $311.41; Newman street, $66.80; St. Malachi's, $28.21; St. Peter's boys', $84.86; St. Peter's girls', $143.59; St. Thomas', $78; St. Vincent's, $65.40; Winter street, $150.89; St. Joseph's, $502.40; King Edward, $181.02. Total, $1,764.12. The school at Randolph, by selling Belgian badges, by nite boxes and a bazaar on children's day, realized $40.76 for the Belgian fund. The sum of $26 was the net result of an effort on the part of the children of the Musquash school to raise funds for the Belgian children. The pupils on Wednesday evening last held a bazaar and dance in the school house, which was largely attended. They were much pleased with the result of their efforts. St. Rose's. On Monday, November 13, the sum of $120 for the relief of the Belgian children was realized from an entertainment given in New Glasgow. The pupils of St. Rose's school, Milford, assisted by donations towards pantry sale by pupils of the Milford Superior school. The prize winners in lottery connected with the entertainment were: Louis King, St. John, umbrella; Miss Mary Delaney, Milford, framed picture; guessing weight of cake, William Shannon, Milford.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Adding to his enviable reputation as a fighter, Joe Burns, a local featherweight, easily disposed of Bobby Collins, a New York fighter, brought here to take his measure. Burns from the first round to the tenth never left any doubt as to his ability to win and outpointed his opponent in all stages. This bout was the feature of a mixed double-header offered by the Canadian Hockey Club at Sohier Park, and was the attraction for a good attendance. In winning last night, Burns made it four in a row, while he also boxed four rounds with his trainer, Neil Feany, at the Shamrock smoker on Saturday night after fighting three times during the week. When the pair entered the ring Burns went at his man in a careful manner until he felt him out and then cut loose. Burns is the more finished boxer and through this was enabled to avoid the wild swings of the New Yorker, who took severe punishment, while awaiting an opportunity to put one over, which never came to him. He changed his tactics on several occasions without result, Burns meeting him and fighting in his own style throughout the greater part of the ten rounds. Through the continued use of his left hand jab, Burns held his opponent off so that he was frequently enabled to send over a right cross that staggered Collins. The New Yorker kept trying in to get a chance at in-fighting, but on each occasion that he locked with the local boy his punches were so smothered that he had no force back of them. This is the second New York star that Burns has beaten within a week. The first fall of the programme was devoted to the patrons of wrestling. In this Eugene Tremblay, the lightweight champion of America, met and defeated Beel, of Cleveland. Tremblay had a great advantage in weight, being at least eight pounds heavier than his opponent. Tremblay merely played with Beel in the first bout, securing the first fall in thirty-one minutes through a scissor and bar arm hold. The second fall did not take as long. Tremblay looked to be able to dispose of Beel at any time. He secured the second fall through a cross body hold in twenty-one minutes. The management announced that a match between Eddie Wallace and Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion of the world, had been made for next week. The bout will be held on Friday night, November 24, at Sohier Park.

Three Chief Factors in Reaching His Decision

As after-the-war trade prospects constitute a very vexed problem in the minds of Canadians as well as Americans and Europeans, every phase of expert opinion must be at present most useful and most instructive. The following discussion of prospective trade conditions after the war is taken from an editorial in the Money Market Review and Investors' Chronicle of London. It carries a note of optimism which will meet the views of many of our readers. It shows, between the lines, that Canada will have a great opportunity in industrial work, if she has the courage and wisdom to grasp it. The article follows:
"As certain authorities are laying it down very explicitly that we shall experience a lengthy period of trade depression after the war, it may not be inappropriate to present reasons for the opposite opinion. First, it is necessary to keep clearly in mind the fact that Britain is more of a manufacturing and shipping, and less of an agricultural, nation than any other; secondly, that the world has come to rely mainly upon three countries—America, Britain and clothing, furniture, etc., and as the demand of one class stimulates the trade and demands of others, a great revival in our manufacturing industries may be looked for.

Railway and Shipbuilding

"Again, we may expect quite a boom in railway building and extensions in the world's chief food-producing countries as a direct outcome of agricultural prosperity. We can also take it for granted that our shipyards will be kept busy for at least a few years making good the war wastage, and the arrears, of ordinary building that are accumulating while the demand for war ships and repairs is abnormal. The world's demand for iron, steel, and engineering products, textile goods and general manufactures, will be at least something above the average after the war, partly as a result of the depletion of stocks during the war period, and partly through the unusual prosperity of agricultural countries.

Only Two Manufacturing Countries

"It is not improbable that the world will only have two really great manufacturing countries to draw upon for some years after the war. In any case, Germany will not for some considerable time be able to take that great share of the world's business in manufactures that she did before the war. In other words, we shall not experience anything like the pre-war severity of German competition for such trade as is available. Germany's colossal losses in men, killed and incapacitated, will mean a serious weakening of her industrial powers. Our comparatively small losses will be more than balanced, measured in terms of industrial production, by the speeding up of machinery, extension of work, and women labor.

The German Subsidies

"Again, it must be observed that the very mainpring of German competition before the war was the subsidization of exports. The government not only paid direct subsidies to German ships carrying German goods abroad, but it carried for export on its railways at half the ordinary rates. The German banks gave lavish assistance to German exporters, and the syndicates paid extravagant bounties on exports. It was not really cheap production, so much as subsidization, that resulted in German dumping. After the war German finances will be too depleted to permit of anything like the old subsidization and bounty feeding of foreign trade, even if the Allied Powers take no measures to prevent that form of competition. Moreover, Germany has hit and seriously offended nearly all her best customers. To the nations with which she is now at war Germany was selling $400,000,000 worth of goods a year before the war. A big proportion of that business will stand to be shared between Britain and America. The probabilities point to British and American manufactures benefitting as a result of this German-made war."

AN ASTER IS AN ASTER

But Florists Pronounce Them Earth Stars of Autumn.

No one, it seems, has ever called an aster anything but an aster. Spectacled scientist and tumbled peasant for once use the same language. An aster is an aster.

Away back when botanists were not thought of, some one admired the purple and white delights of autumn and called them stars. Aster is the Greek word for star. No one ever improved on this designation. They are the earth stars of autumn. They are the year's last floral fulfillment. They are the complement of the cycle; solid, substantial, self-reliant, yet wondrously beautiful. Only the frosty witch-hazel waits to bloom after the asters.

So common are the earth stars that they fail to command adequate attention. Every wild roadside is alive with them. Every pasture displays them, every woodland, every brook vale. At home in the most entrancing dell of the remote ravine lands and equally at home where the tin cans fester and rust in shameful heaps they mark the year's last effort to beautify the world.

Of asters there is an abounding variety. Commonly they are classed as purple or white, but this is absurdly superficial. Purple is no proper classification of the many shades of tinged blue which the frost-nipped fields and woods display. And even the less attractive white kinds are of many varieties.

It is well to go star-gazing in autumn and to gaze downward for earth stars. All the stars are not in the vaulted firmament. We are ourselves earth creatures, and the earth stars are more comprehensible than the stars of the sky, with their sense-dulling distance and magnitude. But their message is the same, the message of life and wonder. Without wonder life would be little.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NEW ARTIFICIAL ARM

In an article recently authorized by the British Official Press Bureau in which the subject of the narrative is the supplying of artificial limbs to maimed soldiers a reference is made to an artificial arm invented by an American which is called a marvel, but which, unfortunately for men of limited means, retails at the high price of $250. The article after referring to this American invention tells of the plans now under way which will make possible the extension of government aid to those who would otherwise be unable to supply themselves with artificial arms and legs.

"British government officials" the statement, "are devoting much consideration to the problem of the continuous provision of artificial limbs for men broken in battle who need such aids to make the best of their careers. A plan is being drawn up by which the state will contrive to supply the most scientific appliances in this direction, thereby helping

Rubber Actually Drops In Price While Everything Else Goes Up

How British Government's Foresight Saves Canadians Millions of Dollars. It pays to Protect Expensive Shoes by Wearing Rubbers and Overshoes Which Cost So Little.

It is almost as great a surprise as it is a relief to find that rubbers and overshoes, almost alone among necessities, cost no more than before the war. The relief grows when we think of the way shoe prices are soaring, and realize that by wearing these inexpensive rubbers we can lengthen—probably double—the life of a pair of shoes that cost five or six times as much.

Rubbers have not gone up in price because, though labor costs more and the cotton and chemicals used in their manufacture have increased 50% to 100%, the rubber itself actually costs less. This remarkable condition is by no means accidental, nor is it the normal result of supply and demand. Had these factors been left to themselves—had the British Government not stepped in years ago with its far-sighted plantation policy—rubber would, by this time, be selling at a figure that would make other high prices look tame. For, last year, the World—outside these British plantations—produced less than 50,000 tons of rubber—and used 200,000 tons.

Up till about 1908, the rubber forests of South America and Africa, producing about 60,000 tons a year, easily supplied the demand, and raw rubber sold at $1.00 to $1.30 a pound. But when motor cars began to multiply, and the use of rubber belting, hose, footwear and a hundred other things kept on increasing, the consumption of rubber grew phenomenally, quickly exceeding the supply. By 1910 raw rubber had gone up to $3.00 a pound and rubber goods of all kinds kept pace. Probably you remember paying excessive prices for rubbers for a year or two.

In this alarming situation relief came—not as the World expected, from synthetic rubber invented by German chemists—but from plantation rubber grown in Ceylon, Sumatra and the Malay States, with the encouragement and aid of an Empire-building British Government.

These plantations, begun several years earlier, came into the market in 1910 with 8,200 tons—11% of the World's supply. By 1914, when the war broke out, they were producing 60% of the total—and controlled the situation.

Then, with a practical monopoly of raw rubber and absolute control of the seas, Great Britain was in a position to supply the enormous war requirements of the Allies and to cut the Teutons off completely. This, of course, she has done, but instead of charging the rest of the world high prices, as she could have done, the British Government actually lowered the price to less than 70 cents a pound—a figure below that asked before the war.

This means a substantial saving to every man, woman and family in Canada—a saving doubly important on account of the 80% advance in the cost of shoe leather. It means that a pair of rubbers, costing from 75 cents to $1.25, will practically double the life of a pair of shoes costing five to ten times as much.

Under these conditions it certainly pays to have a pair of rubbers to fit every pair of shoes, heavy as well as light, worn by every member of the family—for nothing rots and destroys even the most expensive shoes like wearing them in bad weather without rubbers. Besides, a rubber that fits the particular shoe on which it is worn looks far neater, feels better and wears longer than if it has to serve on shoes of varying shapes and weights.

Besides the saving of money and the invaluable protection to health, wearing rubbers helps to win the war. The soldiers MUST have leather in vast quantities for shoes and equipment—and it is getting scarcer all the time. So every pair of boots we save releases leather for military use and is but a fair return to the British Government, whose foresight and fairness have made our rubbers so cheap.

suffering warriors not only to get some further enjoyment out of life but to be useful from an industrial point of view. But an artificial arm, for instance, is a costly limb. An American has invented one which is admittedly a marvel—but it costs $250. This price is, of course, beyond the means of an ordinary Tommy. Hence the idea of state co-operation.

"A Liverpool officer who is recently possessed of one of these wonderful inventions can pick up a pin, or a penny, draw a cigarette out of a case, put it in his mouth and light it, to say nothing of guiding a horse with the reins, lifting a fifty-pound weight, signing his name, steering a bicycle or a motor car, and generally imitating the work of the natural arm in such a manner that at first sight one cannot see that his arm is artificial. He lay in hospital side by side with soldiers who had lost right or left arms. He has visited them since he left the hospital, and has been struck with the inferior quality of the artificial limbs supplied to the soldier in comparison with his own.
