TO FIGHT GREAT BRITAIN'S ENEMIES.

New Brunswick Soldiers Given a Magnificent Farewell.

Most Impressive Demonstration Ever Seen in St. John.

Thousands Line the Streets and Cheer the Boys as They Pass.

Twenty-Five Thousand People Assemble at the Union Station to Bid Our Young Men a Hearty God-Speed.

They were wet though hearts were warm and cheers were heard Wednesday afternoon when St. John bade farewell to New Brunswick's soldier boys. Ten thousand people lined the route of march from the drill shed to the station; ten thousand more overflowed the depot. Men, women and children were there with the single purpose of wishing our brave boys a hearty God-speed.

The demonstration is without equal in the city's history. Others have approached it in magnitude, but none in significance. The display of patriotism is unparalleled. The crowd Wednesday was in a serious mood. There were none of the good nature and levity which are usually seen in big gatherings. One and all realized that Company "G" is a token of loyalty from the city and province of loyalists; that it is our line of defense and empire in the demonstration against the hostile nations of Europe rather than the Boer.

THE COMPANY ASSEMBLED. Stirring Scenes at the Drill Shed. As early as 2 o'clock in the afternoon hundreds flocked toward the Barrack Square to have a glimpse at the volunteers as they were being put through a few company movements. As 4 o'clock drew near the crowd became greater, and even the line of march from South End to the depot was growing thicker and thicker with eager humanity.

other half, Mayor Sears delivering his address standing between. He said: "Men of the New Brunswick volunteer company about to embark for fighting in South Africa or rather soldiers of the Queen. You are leaving tonight the Canadian city of Loyalists, and, as mayor of that city, I esteem it my great privilege to say a few words to you on the eve of your departure. I wish to say, as far as the mere soldier is concerned, we are sending the best of material. We recognize this fact and are proud of it. You all are made of stuff that constitutes the British soldier. (Applaud.) Your parade and such throughout the year, as far as the regulations are concerned and part of the drill, but in this instance it is quite different. You are going to a strange land to face an enemy indeed worthy of your steel. If at all there is any pleasure in fighting it is in meeting with His Worship's remarks, which were delivered with a true patriotic ring. They cheered incessantly until Captain Haggard, brother of Ryder Haggard, the author, was invited to speak. Standing among the redcoats and bluecoats, Capt. Haggard told how his British heart swelled with pride and patriotism to witness and hear the present demonstration. He would return to his native Albion and tell of the outburst of loyalty and honor to the more soldier in concerned, and her cause. He himself was a volunteer officer and expected to don his uniform and depart for South Africa as soon as he returned to England. He would see the St. John boys there "Hear, hear," and "hope so, captain," from the ranks. Captain Haggard complimented the men on their appearance and candidly asserted they were superior physically to those of Old England herself (cheers).

THE FIGHTING GROUND. British soldiers, however, in spirit and allegiance were the same the great round, and his eyes had been opened and pride heightened by the witnessing of so loyal a response to the call to arms in Canada. (Cheers.) Captain Haggard spoke with the characteristic fluency and polish of an English gentleman, and his words of overwhelming patriotism literally carried the big shed by storm. (Prolonged cheering.)

sovereign to every man, as a token of esteem and appreciation of loyalty from the citizens of St. John. The shilling coins were distributed by Colonel MacLean, Captain Dunning, Captain J. City Sharp, Dr. Daniel, Sherwood Skinner, Major Sturdee and Lieut. Gay Robinson. Some of the men, in fact almost every one, signed his share away in favor of a mother, father, sister, brother or friend. Names and addresses were taken and the sovereigns will be delivered by the committee.

AT THE DEPOT. Ten Thousand People Cheer Themselves Hoarse. The crush at the station was terrible. Being the point from which the last look at the boys could be taken by those at home, the depot was the objective point for thousands before the time set for the arrival of the troops there, while many more waited on the line of route for the soldiers to come along and be joined in the march. Others again flocked right from the barracks and so it was an ever growing, surging, tide of humanity, shouting and cheering from Barrack square to depot, culminating there in such a monster aggregation as it has seldom, if ever, been given St. John people to see in their native city.

SOULDERS LEAVE THE BARRACKS. Thousands Lined the Way to the Depot. Forming into rigid lines again and headed by the Artillery and 62nd Battalion Bands, the company left the drill shed and started out on their march to the depot—a march which for a popular demonstration was never equalled in St. John. The Artillery Band struck up a lively strain, and like a body of British regulars the boys strode after. Even outside the barracks gate the crowd was too dense to pass. Marching was at once interfered with and a veritable pandemonium of enthusiasm broke loose. Crowds lined both sides of the streets into the very centre of the road, leaving barely enough room for the troops to pass.

LIUET. McLEAN OF COMPANY "G." The crowd which had been of good size was suddenly swelled on either side of the file of policemen and the crush for positions in the front rank began and continued, while the police were kept on the alert maintaining their positions and keeping the public from coming in by the side door. Near the upper of the two cars the City Cornet Band had very courteously placed itself and awaited the boys' arrival to sound a wale wale.

crash of people, and they leaned out of the windows shaking the hands of friends as the cars moved slowly away. Shortly after about 1000 from the people, hats were waved, and prayers and blessings were uttered as the train rolled away with its gallant band of volunteers going to fight for our good queen and the empire.

THE CAMPAIGN IN SOUTH AFRICA. The interest which our people feel in the war in South Africa was intensified yesterday when it was reported that General Buller's column at Glencoe was in danger of being cut off by a Boer advance under Joubert...

General Buller's column at Glencoe was in danger of being cut off by a Boer advance under Joubert, the communications between General Buller and General White at Ladysmith being cut. These alarming reports have not proved to be well founded, although they appear to have had their origin in a statement made by no less a personage than Lord Wolseley...

In reading the war news which comes from South Africa, through the Associated Press, it is well for Canadians to remember that it has been prepared mainly for American readers, many of whom do not love Great Britain. Hence the efforts that are being made to belittle the British victories and to magnify the Boer successes. These are supplemented by attempts to cast discredit on the truthfulness of the commander-in-chief of the British army, Lord Wolseley...

There have been many enquiries in regard to the number of British soldiers in Natal but very little satisfaction has been had in the way of answer, for the censor does not allow the arrival of new regiments at the front to be heralded abroad. A pretty fair estimate, however, can be had of the force now under General Buller's command by reverting back to the time when such news was freely given out. Our estimate is that General Buller has now about 17,000 fighting men in Natal, viz: 12,000 infantry, 3,000 cavalry, 2,000 artillery and 54 guns. This estimate does not include the local forces which may number 4,000 or more and which have proved themselves to be very efficient.

his superiority as a strategist over those of the enemy who are opposed to him, and he has also proved that the British Tommy Atkins is a better soldier than the Boer, much as the latter has been lauded by those who knew no better.

The action of the president of Orange Free State in proclaiming the annexation to his republic of the whole of Cape Colony north of the Vaal river, is a sublime piece of cheek, but it may have some importance in the future as a precedent. The ground of this action is the fact that the Boers have been able to occupy parts of the railway which runs north from Kimberley to Mafeking and beyond. This territory abuts on the Transvaal and the claim of Orange Free State to it, even if the Boers should be successful in the war is at best a very shadowy one.

The Boers have been attempting to get some of the natives to fight for them, another ally of their leaders, and of their own weakness. The natives in South Africa outnumber the whites by five to one and if so disposed could do a great deal of damage to either side. They detest the Boers who have treated them tyrannically for many years, and they are friendly to the British from whom they have always received justice. Several of their chiefs have expressed a wish to fight for the British, but they have received no encouragement from any British commander for our mother country does not desire to become responsible for any atrocities they may be guilty of.

In reading the war news which comes from South Africa, through the Associated Press, it is well for Canadians to remember that it has been prepared mainly for American readers, many of whom do not love Great Britain. Hence the efforts that are being made to belittle the British victories and to magnify the Boer successes.

It is now sixteen days since the Boers of the Transvaal and Orange Free State began to invade Natal. They were in overwhelming numbers, the whole available armed strength of both republics being in the field. How many of them there were it is not easy to say, for their own accounts of their own forces differ very much. A Brussels despatch states that the agency of the Transvaal government has issued a statement regarding the number of Boers in the field. It says there are now 100,000 men under arms. This force is made up of 35,000 regulars, 35,000 Orange Free State troops, 3,000 Natal Boers, 8,000 Bechuanaland Boers, 4,000 Germans, 6,000 Dutch Belgians, 2,000 Irish troops, 600 Americans and about 6,000 miscellaneous troops.

The regiment which Canada is sending to South Africa is composed of excellent material, and will worthily represent the courage and manhood of the dominion, this fair northern land which it cannot compete with countries to the south in tropical climes and under the sun in the raising of men. Every man in the regiment is now or has been recently a member of the active militia of Canada and is therefore a trained soldier, and they are one and all animated by a desire to bring credit to the Dominion by distinguishing themselves in the field.

field. Our Canadian regiment does not go to the seat of war merely to do garrison duty, but aspires to take its place in the front ranks beside those patient regiments which have been recently distinguishing themselves in battle at Glencoe and Ladysmith, regiments which have existed for more than a century and whose colors have been proudly borne in the four quarters of the world.

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY. The great interest taken in the war has caused our people to some extent to lose sight of other questions of great importance, among others the Alaska boundary question. The other day Sir Louis Davies, who is now in England, made a proposition to the United States government for the settlement of this matter. He proposed that the boundary line be arbitrated upon terms similar to those imposed by the United States and Great Britain over Venezuela, particularly in those provisions making fifty years' occupancy by either side conclusive evidence of title.

THE DROWNING SOUL

RESCUED BY CHRIST THE STRONG HELPFULNESS OF RELIGION.

Adverse Circumstances are Overcome by Those That Put Implicit Trust in the Saviour—He Pusheth Down Iniquity and Save the Souls of Men From From the Snare Which Breat Them.

Washington, Oct. 22.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage employs a very bold figure of the Bible to bring out the helpfulness of religion for those in any kind of struggle.

In the summer season multitudes of people wade into the ponds and lakes and rivers and seas to dive or float or swim. In a world the most of which is water all men and women should learn to swim.

The fisherman seeks out unfrequented nooks. You stand all day on the bank of a river in the broiling sun and fling out your line and catch nothing while an expert angler breaks through the jungle and goes by the shadow of the solitary rock.

You go into the Louvre at Paris. You confine yourself to one corridor of that opulent gallery of paintings.

This text represents God as a strong swimmer, striking out to dash down iniquity and save the souls of men.

In order to understand the full force of this figure, you need to realize that our race is in a sinking condition.

and the outrage and the harrowing, and that word is "sin." You spell it with three letters, and yet those three letters describe the circumference and pierce the diameter of everything had in the universe.

After Judge Morgan had sentenced Lady Jane Grey to death his conscience troubled him so much that he decided that he became insane, and all through his insanity he kept saying: "Take her away from me! Lady Jane Grey! Take her away from me!"

Then what do we want? A swimmer—a strong swimmer, a swift swimmer! And blessed be his name in my text we have him announced.

If you have ever watched a swimmer, you notice that his whole body is brought into play. The arms are flexed, the hands drive the water back, the knees are active, the head is thrown back to escape strangulation.

Oh, it was not half a God that trampled down bellowing Gennesaret; it was not a quarter of a God that mastered the demons of Gadara; it was not two-thirds of a God that lifted up Lazarus into the arms of his overjoyed sisters; it was not a fragment of God who saved the man who was hanged from the gibbet.

Behold, then, the spectacle of a drowning soul and Christ the swimmer! I believe it was in "when there were six English soldiers of the Fifth Fusiliers who were hanging to a capized boat—a boat that had been upset by a squall three miles from shore.

If you have been much in the water, you know very well how very quickly, or it will be very use. Immediate help me, what is just the kind of relief we want. The case is urgent, immediate, instantaneous. See that soul sinking! Sons of God, lay hold of her. Be quick, be quick!

cutting a drowning soul. In 1785 Lyons, Luini, a London coach builder, fitted up a Norway yawl as a lifeboat and called it the Insubmergibile, and that has been improved upon and from all the coasts of the round world perfect lifeboats are ready to put out for the relief of human disasters.

I want to persuade you to lay hold of this strong swimmer. "No," you say, "it is always disastrous for a drowning man to lay hold of a swimmer."

Some of the newest and costliest models of separate bodices are of white taffeta, veiled with black lace or black mousseline de soie.

may account herself to do with an insufficient amount of it, as of food. Exposure is, however, like nourishing diet, essential to beauty, and all the lotions and cosmetics in the world cannot repair the ravages caused by a lack of either.

VARIOUS NOTES.

A Novelty in Thin Bodices—Ornamental Neckwear.

Mousseline de soie of good quality is less fragile than it appears to be—in fact, the fibers of silk are very tough and will stand much wear.

FLAID COSTUME.

Jewels, are a fashionable accessory. From the lower edge falls a more or less deep fringe, which rests upon the shoulders and chest.
