Mr. Peter Birtwistle is definitely in the field for mayor.

To The Advertiser he said this morning:

"You may say positively that I am in the field. I will run this year, and if I am defeated, I will run again for 1903."

"You will run under what auspices?" he was asked.

"Under none. I will run neither as Grit nor Tory. I don't represent any class, either. I am a straight Independant, running simply in the interests of the city."

"What will your policy be?"

"I'll announce that later," Mr. Birtwistle replied. Briefly, it is economy with efficiency."

"Do you know who your opponent will be?" he was asked.

"No, I can't say that I do. You know the talk is that Ald. Winnett will be. I met him on the street the other day and asked him, but he said he didn't know."

"I told him that if he ran it would be a friendly fight. If he got in, why alright."

"The best man wins," hazarded the reporter.

"No, not always," replied Mr. Birtwistle, possibly with the remembrance of his 1903 proviso.

✦

"Well, Ald. Winnett, are you in the field?" the ambitious third warder was asked this morning.

"I won't say," was the cautious reply.

"It's simply a case of waiting until the proper time to make the announcement, is it not?"

"It's this way," he said, confidentially. "I never yet forced myself upon the public. I've served the city faithfully for seven years now, and it rests with the people to say if that service is worth anything. Many men, prominent in both parties, have asked me to run, and have said that I deserve it."

"Would you not take that to mean that the people want you to run?" he was asked.

"Well, you see, I haven't been asked publicly."

"And if you were, would it take you many minutes to decide to run?"

"I can't say as to that," he replied. Everybody knows, of course, that Ald. Winnett wants the job, and is waiting the best time to say that he will run.

Meanwhile he is patiently waiting to be asked to do what he has wanted to do for more years than one.

✦

Though waiting, he is not resting on his oars. His industry at getting together campaign material does not seem to portend doubt as to the time when he will be asked in a public way to make a try for the mayor's chair. No. 1 committee has not yet got over the effect of his confiscation of the opportunity that rested in the South street belt line petition, and all the committees are now looking over their files for fear that they have left something lying loose, that the chairman of No. 2 may annex to his own honor and influence in the day of the glad hand and friendly voice.

✦

Since last night's meeting of No. 2 committee Ald. Cooper, whose candidature, though unannounced, is among the possibilities, is not sure that he did not make a mistake when he moved to grant the McClary request for a fixed assessment and the necessary legislation. This did not include going to the people. More than one teasing remark has been made to him in consequence, and if he really does came out for mayor. Ald. Winnett will probably take advantage of the slip. No one seriously thinks that Ald. Cooper intends to pass by the people, especially the workingmen, and take from them their chance to express an opinion upon a subject so important to them as the McClary exemption.

The talk in the mayor's office at noon today turned upon the subject of mayoralty candidates.

"I think that no man should run for mayor who has not had one or two years' experience as an alderman," his worship said. Unless he is an unusually bright man he would be no use whatever the first year. A man who has had no experience in municipal life has no idea of what he should know and do."

✦

Ald. Winnett has received assurance that his claim for more street railway is justified. The only doubtful point is raised by the West London extension, even granting that the mile of track over there should be counted against the city, legal authorities say that the city may rightly ask for a large extension, and the South street proposition to make a belt line seems to be the best scheme for using it.

HAD A BEE TO FIX CEMETERY.

Catholic and Protestant Farmers Work Together.

The Fact Delighted Father Aylward, Why Says They Doubled the Graveyard's Capacity.

Barn raising bees and husking bees, bees for plowing and bees for sewing—these are neither few nor odd in the country roundabout London, but it remained for the Roman Catholics of the township to have one that is surely unique—a bee for getting ready a graveyard for its future occupants. A census of the old cemetery out Quebec street way was taken some time ago and showed that however hesitatingly the population of other places was growing, this one place was filled to the fence-rails. It was necessary, if a final resting place in holy ground was to be the portion of the departed, to make the cemetery bigger. It was after this had been done that the idea of a bee to fix it for use entered some fertile mind—whose, has not yet been disclosed. Much gravel was needed, and all the Catholic farmers decided to help provide it. So the land was blessed and the work begun.

Then came a little surprise, and it was one that pleased Father Aylward, he says, more than anything that has happened since he came to London. A large number of Protestant farmers volunteered to help. All day Thursday Catholics and Protestants worked with a right good will, preparing a pleasant graveyard for the Catholic dead. They dined together at the new home of the caretaker and then went at it again. When they had worked the day out and the tired teams rested, more than half the job was done, and they all spent the evening in a happy frolic at the chief residence in the graveyard. A new entrance on Quebec street has been built and 600 trees bought. These, when planted, will add immensely to the beauty of the place, so that, all considered, things at the cemetery seem to be looking up.

CLIMAX IS BEING REACHED

Notice of Motion to Dismiss Dr. Balfour Given.

Mr. Beck Remains Critic of Hospital Management.

Claims That Superintendent Is Incompetent and Would Appoint a New Man in His Place.

At a meeting of the hospital trust, which was held yesterday afternoon, Mr. Adam Beck gave notice that at the next meeting he would move that Dr. Balfour be dismissed and another superintendent secured.

The immediate cause of this action was a report upon the workings of the hospital, submitted by Mr. McCormick, and four letters, that he had received, in which complaints as to the management were made.

MR. McCROMICK'S REPORT.

Mr. McCormick's report was as follows: "Five weeks ago, on Friday, Oct. 4, this board requested me, in company with Dr. Balfour, to look into and find out, as far as in our power, the real state of things as to the inside working of the Victoria Hospital. I may just here say that I have not been an entire stranger as to how things are being attended to. For many years in the past, and even before I was made a trustee three years ago in January next, indeed, I did think that I knew about as much about how things were conducted as any person who did not stay day and night within the walls of that institution. Visiting (while in the city and well enough to do so) from three to four times each week, and remaining one or two hours, often at meal times, when I had opportunities enough to see for myself how patients in private and public rooms and wards were treated, as to what they had to eat, and how food and drink were served; also how rooms, wards and halls were kept. Talking with hundreds of suffering ones, I had a splendid chance to learn their views, both in hospital and after leaving, and I think I can safely say that nine out of every ten had nothing but good words for the hospital and the treatment they had received, many saying that before they came to this hospital they had a great dread of such, but now that dread had all disappeared. Letters also had been received from former patients, speaking in the highest terms of how kindly and well they had been treated.

"However, hearing, as I did, at our board meeting, the charges made against the management on the said day, and afterwards published in our city papers, I commenced to wonder if it could be possible that for so many years I had passed through our hospital with my eyes, ears and lips closed. I came to the conclusion, therefore, that I would investigate, if possible, more closely than ever before. So on Tuesday, Oct. 1, about 8:30 a.m., I took the superintendent and lady superintendent all over the hospital, investigating as thoroughly as in my power, every part, and three or four times each week since then, I have devoted my time with the same object in view.

"I have visited other institutions of the same kind in Canada, and one or two in the United States, but not being satisfied with what I had seen last week, I thought it might be well to take in a few of the hospitals in Buffalo, which I did. I spent a good part of two days trying to get pointers from four of the larger hospitals of that big city, and I am free to admit that in some respects we are behind some of them. They have marble floors in halls, or hardwood, and in all the new parts which have been added in recent years, all the floors in rooms and wards are of hardwood. You may ask, 'How is this an improvement on ours?' I will tell you. They scrub the floors in some of their institutions once a year, then wax and oil. After that, every two months, another coat of oil is applied, leaving nothing to do but sweep up the dust. Of course, if anything drops on the floors which cannot be swept up it is washed off. In this way everything looks clean. In addition to this, the saving is a big thing, when taking into consideration that the floors of our hospital are scrubbed and washed every day in the week, Sunday excepted, and then do not look as clean as they really are. And why? Because the floors are of softwood, and absorb a portion of every liquid which from time to time is dropped upon them, thus leaving stains that cannot be washed off. Again, look at the saving that might be effected in the wages for so much work on the cleaning of floors, etc.

"The food department—While in Buffalo I saw a little of how that important part of treatment was attended to. They have a better way of keeping food hot while being conveyed from kitchen to patients, but no better cooking or food is furnished than we have here, only I saw on the dishes for public patients, grapes, which are not furnished by us.

"I believe that three of the four hospitals visited are self-sustaining; the lowest charge for public wards, so far as I learned, is $4 to $7 per week for each person. True, they have some free patients. Their private rooms are from $10 to $25 for each person. In the general hospital they have 60 rooms, not one vacant. The lowest of these is $12 to $25, while our rooms are $5 to $10 for the best. They have many wealthy people; we have few. The care taken of patients is good. Their nurses appear to be attentive and kind, but cannot be much more so than ours, and I think I know whereof I speak.

"I might just say here, before closing, that all the floors in old part of hospitals, so far as I saw in Buffalo, were painted, making it much easier to keep them clean. I could say more on what I saw and know along hospital lines, but perhaps this will suffice for the present. However, if health and strength will permit, I intend to keep on in the interest of my suffering fellow-creatures, and I sincerely hope that all lovers of humanity will do the same. I do not suppose that any individual or institution is perfect, and we do not claim that Victoria Hospital is an exception, x but we are trying to work with that end in view, both inside and out.

LETTERS OF COMPLAINT.

The most important letter of the four was from Dr. W. T. Wilson, of the Asylum staff, who had been ill of fever, in the hospital. His charges were that surgical and medical cases in the private wards were treated by the same nurses, thus endangering surgical cases; that frequently all the nurses were engaged at an operation, leaving the other cases uncared for; that nurses did not come when called; that a correct history of his case had not been kept; that the food was simply abominable; that neither the linen nor the rooms were kept clean; that the nurses did not know how to treat fever patients, and that, in the absence of male nurses, male fever patients were neglected.

Thomas Tripp, who had been in the hospital from Sept. 20 to Oct. 5, said that, in response to an official's request as to whether he had any money, he had handed over $5 on the first night he was there, and when, upon leaving, he asked for it and some small change that had been in his pocket, he was told that there was no money to his credit, and as yet, he had not got it.

The complaints made by Mr. G. R. Garthorne, of 804 Maitland street, were regarding the inefficiency of the nurses, the noise of children and unclean linen.

Mrs. Hugh McKay wrote that the treatment that her boy had received was so bad that she would not have him in the institution again. She said that the linen on the bed that her son was in had not been changed after the previous occupant had left. He was without anything to drink for one whole day, and the food that he was given was abominable, and unfit for a person in good health. Mrs. McKay was astonished that Dr. Balfour should say that complaints had never been made to him.

Mr. Purdom said that the Garthorne charges were most indefinite. Dr. Balfour had said that Mrs. McKay's boy was one of the kind that did as he pleased when in the hospital. Mr. Purdom considered also that the Wilson charges were too much of a scattered nature. He knew of a doctor who once had the idea that the hospital was not run properly, and now he was satisfied with it.

Mr. McCormick had spoken to hundreds of patients, he said, and only about one out of ten was dissatisfied. He believed that the demand for private rooms should be satisfied by furnishing the upper floor of the private ward.

Mr. Beck laid all to the superintendent, and gave notice of motion to dismiss him.

OTHER BUSINESS.

A copy of a resolution, passed by the council, calling upon the trust to pay over $1,677 out of the endowment fund, as it was understood that the money would be paid to defray the additional expense incurred by some changes in the hospital building, but as the trust never agreed to turn this money over it will be kept.

The ice contractor's pay will be held back until he fulfills his contract better. For some time he has not delivered the ice at the proper time.

Tenders for double windows on the most exposed portions of the hospital will be advertised.

Mr. McCormick suggested that the means of securing funds for a nurses' home, also the best way of setting on foot a movement to establish an institution for consumptives, should be considered at some future meeting.

Applications for positions on the nursing staff were received from Misses Agnes Ferguson, Mount Forest; Louisa King, Ottawa; Jessie Lake, St. Thomas; Janet Miller, city; Maggie McBride, St. Thomas; Eva Byam, Petrolia; Annie Loft, Ilderton; Catherine McCaughrin, Bothwell, and Minnie Sharp, West London.

All the members of the trust were present.

STARTLING FIND!

Discovery of Rich Mines That Have Been Lost for Over a Century.

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 9.—A Star special from Guayamas, Mexico, says: "The lost Tayapa mines, celebrated in Spanish annals as having produced $80,000,000 in silver and gold in the seventeenth century, described on Spanish maps as being situated in Northwestern Mexico, about 50 leagues from the sea, near Dos Pilares, have been found. As far back as 1859 Robert L'Aumalie, a celebrated French expert declared the location of the Cienteguita in the Sahuria district, Sonora, to be identical with the lost Tayapa. The Spanish owners are said to have been murdered by their Indian slaves near the close of the seventeenth century, and it is stated that for 100 years thereafter no one was allowed to enter that region. Explorers who have recently returned from Cienteguita report having discovered the old stone prisons, old smelters and also stupendous work accomplished by the ancients.

KING EDWARD'S 60TH BIRTHDAY

His Majesty Passing the Day With the Royal Family at Sandringham.

Duke of Cornwall Becomes Prince of Wales---Newspapers Discussing the Possibility of a Russo-Japanese Alliance---Canadian Trade With the Old Country.

London, Nov. 9.—The King is spending his birthday at Sandringham with the Queen, the Prince and the Princess of Wales and the rest of the royal family. There has been no official observance of the day, with the exception of the customary salutes at Windsor and at the naval and military headquarters and the ringing of church bells.

BIRTHDAY HONORS.

Among the honors bestowed on the occasion of King Edward's birthday are a baronetcy upon the retiring Lord Mayor of London, Frank Green, and knighthoods for Chief Justice Little, of Newfoundland, and Gray, of Bermuda; G. A. Critchett, occulist to the King, and Geo. Hussey, mayor of Southampton. Sir Francis Plunkitt is made a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath, and Clinto Dawkins, formerly financial member of the council of the governor-general of India, and now a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., is made a Companion of the Bath.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Commenting upon the announcement that King Edward has conferred the title of Prince of Wales and Chester upon the Duke of Cornwall and York, the New York Tribune's London correspondent says: King Edward appears to have the happy knack of doing the right thing at the right moment, and his action in conferring the title on the Duke of Cornwall and York meets with a chorus of approval. The duke has richly deserved the honor. It is a reward for the skillful manner in which he accomplished his difficult mission to the British dominions beyond the seas. When the duke and duchess returned from their seven month's tour, it was stated in these dispatches that many days would not elapse before the heir apparent would be created Prince of Wales, and the only reason why the announcement was not officially published a week ago was because the King wished it to be made known on his birthday.

BRITISH CANADIAN TRADE.

The board of trade returns for the ten months ending with October show the following increases in British imports from Canada: Sheep, £27,000; wheat flour, £42,000; peas, £20,000; butter, £246,000; wood pulp, £86,000; Decreases: Cattle £242,000; wheat, £76,000; oats £54,000; maize, £417,000; bacon, £176,000; hams, £139,000; cheese, £269,000; eggs, £21,000; fish, £265,000; Newfoundland copper, £15,000; hewn wood, £91,000; sawn, £445,000; horses, £40,000. British exports to Canada show the following increases: Spirits, £7,000; silk manufacturers, £10,000; worsted tissues, £69,000; railroad iron, £168,000; galvanized sheets, £43,000; cast and wrought iron, £9,000; old iron, £24,000; lead, £9,000; apparel and slips, £15,000; eathenware, £14,000; stationery, £9,000. Decreases: Salt, £11,000; wool, £14,000; cotton, piece goods, £50,000, linen, piece goods, £10,000; lace, £11,000; cutlery, £9,000; hardware, £5,000; pig iron, £10,000; bar, angle, rod and bolt iron, £7,000; tin plates, £77,000; unwrought steel, £36,000; unwrought tin, £11,000; haberdashery and millinery, £29,000; cement, £22,000; seed oil, £8,000.

The attention of Mr. Chamberlain and of Lord Londonderry, the postmaster-general, is being directed to the great advantages to imperial unity derivable from a half-penny newspaper post throughout the empire. This reform is strongly urged in the Canadian Gazette, with a view of obtaining increased knowledge of Canadian affairs in Great Britain, and of British affairs in Canada.

Canada expects to receive an excellent advertisement in the heart of the city of London in conjunction with other British colonies. Application is being made for space in the Royal Exchange for the exhibition of Canadian products now at Glasgow Exposition.

RUSSO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE.

Leading Japanese generals have been earnestly discussing overtures in Russian newspapers looking toward a Russian alliance with Japan. The proposed basis of the arrangement is that the Tokio Government refrain from all measures impeding Russia in Manchuria. Russia, in return, would leave a free hand to Korea, except for a convenient naval station in southern Korea.

None of the Japanese journals approve the idea. They interpret the proposal as pointing to the permanent absorption of Manchuria by Russia. Japan wants Korea to remain Korean.

BANK FAILURES IN RUSSIA.

Two banks have failed at Riga. A banker named Smolian attempted to commit suicide.

The scarcity of money in Baku is so serious that most naphtha firms have been obliged to curtail operations.

GIGANTIC CANAL SYSTEM.

According to the Odessa correspondent of the London Times the Russian Government is considering construction of a gigantic waterway from Riga to Kherson, near the mouth of the Dnieper, on the Black Sea, which is eventually to be the terminus of a grand canal system joining the Baltic and the Black Sea.

GERMANS CACKLE AT BRITISH.

In some quarters there is an endeavor to promote a scare over the Franco-Turkish affair. Berlin papers consider France's action a direct challenge to England and a set-off to Fashoda; but not much serious attention is paid to the hints from Germany that the interests of England are gravely compromised.

Both Cologne Gazette and Marine Rundschau contradict depreciatory statements in regard to the British navy, which have been appearing in various German journals. The Cologne Gazette refuses the assertions that the British naval artillery is defective, and that the gunners are inefficient. The Marine Rundschau declares that any attempt to mislead German opinion in this perilous manner deserves to be repudiated.

LONDON INSTALLS LORD MAYOR.

The new lord mayor, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, was installed in Guild Hall yesterday with all the quaint formalities customary.

LORD NEVILL RELEASED.

Lord William Nevill was released from Parkhurst prison on ticket of leave yesterday. He was sentenced to five years penal servitude, Feb. 15, 1898, for fraud in connection with a promissory note. His lordship spent most of the time during his incarceration in wheeling a barrow on the prison farm.

At Bow street police court yesterday, John Dix was charged on a provisional warrant with larceny committed in the United States. It is alleged that he obtained control of three banks in the state of Washington, in 1900, and that he subsequently wrecked the Scandinavian-American Bank, at Whatcom, Wash., and disappeared with over $8,000. Dix was remanded, after formal evidence of his arrest had been presented.

PLAGUE STAMPED OUT.

The Glasgow authorities are satisfied that the bubonic plague has been stamped out. The last case of the disease reported was placed in hospital Nov. 1, and the period of incubation expires today.

DELEGATES TO AMERICA.

The trades unionists held a mass meeting Thursday, to bid farewell to the delegates chosen to attend the American Labor Congress. Ben Tillett, in a speech, said they were going to tell the American workingmen that the same forces have been at work degrading them as those in England, and concluded by saying that the fact that they were pitting themselves against their comrades in the old country would react with the effect of a boomerang upon themselves.

ENGLISH PILGRIMS IN ROME.

The pope received a number of English pilgrims on Thursday. His appearance did not indicate that he was suffering from any unusual infirmity. He walked without aid, except that he used a stick. In welcoming the pilgrims, he said he looked forward to the time when England would return to the Catholic faith. According to one report the Bishop of Liverpool, in introducing the pilgrims, presented a written address, which was not read, because it reiterated the wish of the English Catholics that the pope would recover his temporal power.

NO USE FOR LI.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The personality of Li Hung Chang had long ceased to excite any interest in Germany. The public and the official world had discovered that they had been his dupes at the time of his visit in 1896. Because of his title of Viceroy Earl Li was treated with almost royal honors in Germany, which probably astonished the wily old mandarin himself. His hosts hoped that on his return to China he would secure large orders for ambitious German manufacturers.

THE LORD MAYOR'S SHOW.

London, Nov. 9. — The first lord mayor's show of the present century, and of the reign of King Edward, took place today, and was more than usually interesting, with a number of new features. Special attention was paid to the colonies, which were represented by attractive cars. The decorations of the streets were of the customary character. Big crowds lined the whole route of the procession. After the usual reception at the Law Courts, the procession completed its tour of the city and returned to the Guild Hall.

The Six Nations Indian council has decided that, owing to the increasing number of pupils, a new school should be erected at Oshweken, at a cost of $4,000.

Among the deaths reported during the week are: Hiram Rawlings, of Bosanquet, aged 72; Archibald McAlpine, of Dutton, aged 75, and Pierce Fleming, of Paris.

An old and highly respected resident of Kent county died Wednesday, in the person of Mrs. William Houston, at the advanced age of 82 years and 5 months. The deceased came to this country from Ireland 61 years ago, and had been a resident of Kent for over 55 years. Her husband died 24 years ago. Three children—James, of Appledore; Richard, of Walkerville, and Mrs. Turner, of Chatham—survive.

The annual fall cattle fair held at Glencoe on Wednesday was well attended, and more cattle than have been offered for some years were on the ground, principally stockers. Butchers' cattle were few in number and slow of sale, at 2½ cents. Farmers who had stockers were not keen to sell at the prices offering—3½ to 3¾ cents. On the whole the transactions were very limited.

A deputation representing the county of Elgin waited on Premier Ross on Thursday, consisting of Warden W. O. Pollock, Mr. J. M. Glenn, K.C., county solicitor, and Mr. K. W. McKay, county clerk. They asked that the recent toll roads act be amended at the coming session so as to cover the particular conditions of Elgin county, as they had found it impossible under the act as it now stands to acquire the toll roads in the county. The premier promised careful consideration.

Years of Suffering

HOW RELIEF CAME TO THOMAS FINDLAY, OF PETROLIA.

He Had Suffered for Forty Years From Dyspepsia—Food Became Detestable and Stomach Cramps Made Life a Burden.

From the Topic, Petrolia, Ont.

Few men in Petrolia are better known that Mr. Thomas Findlay, who has resided here nearly 40 years. In 1862 Mr. Findlay came here, and before the railroad connected with Petrolia he drove a stage coach bringing the early oil men. When the railroad came here Mr. Findlay engaged in the oil business, but later he suffered from a gun accident that disabled his hands permanently. After recovering from this Mr. Findlay was appointed constable and night watchman of the town, which office he has held during the 30 years past. This accident was by no means Mr. Findlay's worst misfortune. From early youth he had been a martyr to dyspepsia, which finally became so bad that he looked forward to death as a merciful release. Happening to hear that Mr. Findlay had found complete relief from his lifelong foe, a Topic reporter waited on him to find if this was true. Mr. Findlay was only too glad to tell his story, hoping its publication might help some other sufferer. "I am a pretty old man now," said Mr. Findlay, "but I cannot remember the time when I was not in pain from pernicious dyspepsia and stomach trouble until lately. As a young man on the farm I suffered all sorts of pains with it; food would sour on my stomach and violent vomiting spells would follow. As I grew older my sufferings increased. I could not eat anything but the simplest kind of food, and little of that. My system became badly run down, and I grew so weak that I really looked forward to death as a release from my misery. One after another I tried doctors and medicines, but could get no relief; then in despair I concluded to quit all and await the end. Meantime my condition became worse. Violent cramps attacked my legs, prostrating me for a time. They became worse and more frequent until they one day attacked my stomach, and I thought my end had come. Unable to move and in agony I was driven home, as I thought to die, but after an injection of morphine I gradually recovered. From that time on the cramps increased in frequency and violence. Nothing gave me relief except the temporary immunity from pain afforded by morphine. I became so weak from pure starvation that death stared me in the face. Finally a friend said: "Why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?" 'What's the use?' I said. 'I've tried everything and just got worse all the time.' 'Well,' she said, 'you try a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, they cured me, and I believe they will do you good.' Well, I purchased a box and started taking them. After a little I thought they helped me, so I kept on taking them for a couple of months when I felt I was really cured after so many years of suffering. My strength came back, my stomach recovered its power, and I was able to eat anything I fancied, and once more could enjoy life. This is nearly two years ago, but I was cured to stay cured. I have never had a sick day since or known the slightest stomach trouble. I am confident I would be a dead man now if it were not for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—nothing else ever helped me.—'

The old adage, "experience is the best teacher," might well be applied in cases of dyspepsia, and if sufferers would only be guided by the experience of those who have suffered, but are now well and happy through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, there would be less distress throughout the land. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, can be had at all dealers in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box of six boxes for $2 50 by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANOTHER STARTLING OTTAWA CASE, A LETTER FROM MR. S. A. CASSIDY.

Following the Report of G. H. Kent's Cure of Bright's Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills, an Ottawa Paper Calls Attention to Another Remarkable Cure.

[From the Ottawa Citizen.]

A representative of the Citizen recently learned of a remarkable cure of a well-known resident of Ottawa who had suffered for years with a terrible affliction. The well-known resident is Mr. S. A. Cassidy, and the affliction was stone in the kidneys. The Citizen representative called upon Mr. Cassidy to verify the reports of his recovery and found them to be true. He is the proprietor of the Bijou Hotel, Metcalf street.

He is known by almost everybody, and is liked as generally as he is known. His hostelry is between the main entrance to the Parliament Buildings and the principal thoroughfare of the city, and it is not to be wondered at that he has more than a nodding acquaintance with the gentlemen who hold the destiny of this country in their hands.

When old residents of Ottawa are in a reminiscent mood and talk of the good old sporting days they always associate the name of Sam Cassidy, who took an active part in sport twenty years ago. He was a fast runner and jumper of local renown, and took an active part in all lines of sport. Today he is 40 years old and tips the scales at 250 pounds.

The intimate friends of this robust man have known that for the past ten years he has been a sufferer from a disease that baffled medical skill, and that he has lingered between life and death on many occasions since he was first attacked. At the initial stage of this disease he was taken with violent cramps in the left side of his stomach, and the best skilled physicians could afford him very little relief. The attacks were of about two weeks' duration, and when he left his bed he was reduced in flesh and was almost a physical wreck. Some years ago an eminent physician diagnosed his case as "stone in the kidney," but even after the diagnosis the physicians were unable to effect a permanent cure. Today he is a well man. He has found a remedy that has banished the disease—a remedy that has cured where medical aid was ineffectual. The remedy is Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Mr. Cassidy feels so elated over his release from his excruciating suffering that he has given the following statement over his own signature to a well-known Ottawa newspaper man:

Ottawa, Aug. 8, 1901.

Dear Sir,—I want you to publish for the benefit of others who are suffering as I have suffered for years about how I was cured of stone in the kidneys. My friends all know that I have been a martyr to this disease for years. They know that besides consulting the best physicians in the city and trying every kind of remedy I could think of, I was unable to get better. Some time ago a friend of mine told me that Dodd's Kidney Pills would cure me. As a last resort I tried them, and they have cured me. This is the first time in a great many years that I have not been confined to my bed with the disease. I could not imagine more severe suffering than one endures who is afflicted with stone in the kidneys, and I feel the greatest gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they have cured me. Anyone who has suffered need suffer no more.

FEW BRITISH LEFT ALIVE

When the Fight on the Ridge Ended.

Graphic Details of the Battle in Which Col. Benson Was Killed.

Contending Forces Only Forty Yards Apart—Enemy Finally Forced to Retreat With Heavy Loss.

Pretoria, Nov. 8—The correspondent of the Mail and Empire visited the camp of Benson's column at Brugspruit, and there learned the details of the fight at Brakenlaagte. The story gives ample proof of heroism on the part of the British mounted troops and artillery, and of most resolute bravery on the part of the Boers.

The fight began with sniping at the British rear guard, which was defended by the 3rd Mounted Infantry. About three o'clock Colonel Benson, finding that the Boers were being reinforced in great numbers, sent back a squadron of the Scottish Horse to assist his rear guard. At the same time he halted two guns with an escort of one company of the Buffs, which took up a position on a low ridge.

Major Wools-Sampson was sent forward to strike the camp, and when this had been done, he ordered the Yorkshire Mounted Infantry and the Scottish Horse to retire back on the guns.

FULL TILT ON BRITISH LINES.

The Boers immediately on seeing this movement dashed forward in a charge of extraordinary vigor. Seven hundred of them rode full tilt on the British lines, yelling defiance as they fired from their horses. The British troops galloped to meet them, and gained the ridge, 2,000 yards out from their camp, on which Col. Benson stood with his mounted men in extended formation. In his van the Scottish Horse held the right, facing the Boers, and the Yorkshire Mounted Infantry on the left. Col. Benson himself, with his staff and the artillerymen, were by the guns.

The Boers dashed recklessly on through the escort company of the Buffs, and gained the hollow within 40 yards of the guns. There they dismounted and took shelter behind the shoulder of a ridge, although some continued to fire from horseback. The others crept up and poured a deadly fire on the defenders.

Col. Benson fell, shot through the knee, but at once sent a message to Major Woolls-Sampson, telling him where to direct the British gun fire.

Major Young, with the rearmost gun in the British camp, placed his shells beautifully just over the ridge. After the defenders of the two foremost guns from the British camp prevented the Boers from advancing to take away the guns until after dark. The brunt of the defense of the ridge was borne chiefly by the artillerymen serving the two front guns, and by the Scottish Horse and Yorkshire Mounted Infantry, besides Col. Benson and his personal staff.

TERRIBLE CASUALTY LIST.

Out of 160 men on the ridge, the British had 123 casualties. The Scottish Horse alone had 73 hit out of 80, and the artillerymen 28 out of 30.

The two companies of Yorkshire Mounted Infantry also had a terrible proportion of men killed or wounded. Of five officers all were killed but one. Col. Benson, Lieut.-Col. Guinness, and Captains Murray, Lindsay and Thorold, with many of their men, all fell dead here. Lieut.-Col. Guinness fired the last shot from beside the guns, and immediately fell dead riddled with bullets.

A trooper in the Scottish Horse named Grierson, who was not wounded, remained to the last beside Col. Benson, hoping to get a message from his commander to take back to the camp. But when Col. Benson was hit mortally, and the trooper himself wounded, the British resistance weakened, there being few left alive to withstand the Boers. Just before he died Col. Benson sent for Major Woolls-Sampson, and said:

"Defend your camp for all it is worth. Louis Botha has stated that he will attack in the morning with 1,400 men unless you surrender."

The men in the British camp had been busy entrenching their lines since nightfall. They continued their defense works till morning, when the position was impregnable.

ABANDONED THE ATTACK.

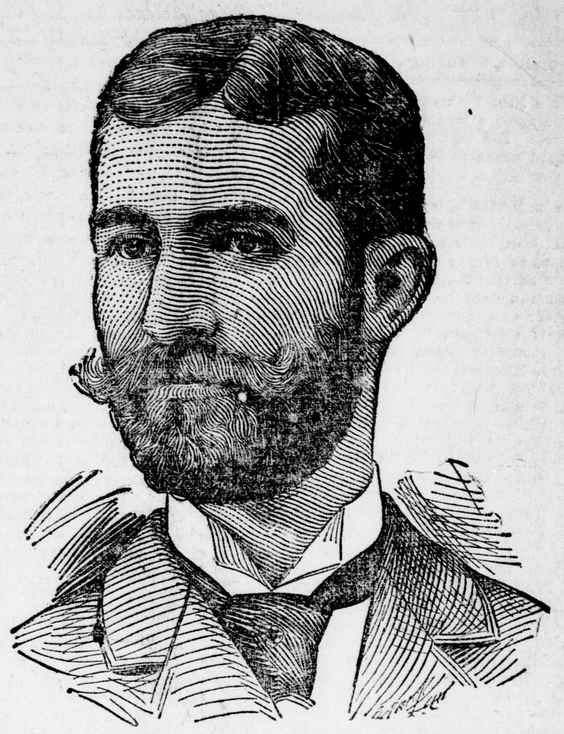

From the doctors and prisoners who had been for some time in the hands of the Boers it was learned that the latter's casualties were about 200.Christian Botha was wounded in both arms. and Field Cornet Opperman killed. Louis Botha personally admitted that he was not satisfied with the result of the fight.

The Boers, about 1,400 strong, concentrated rapidly again, but Colonel Eustace, with the 25th Mounted Infantry, had put in such good work in defending the southern end of the British position that the Boers, after reconnoitering the camp, abstained from attacking.

On the second morning other British columns arrived and the Boers dispersed.

Cured by Pe-ru-na After Fifteen Months' Suffering.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN IS THE MEDICAL EXAMINER OF THE UNITED STATES TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C. DR. JORDAN IS A GRADUATE OF COLUMBIA COLLEGE, AND SERVED THREE YEARS AT WEST POINT.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co.,Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short Month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after fifteen months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you.—Llewellyn Jordan.

Chas. D. Smyth, Angel's Camp, Cal., says: "Chronic catarrh in the head, nose and throat has been a source of trouble and great annoyance to me for more than ten years.

"I have used all such medicines as came under my notice as a catarrh cure without any help to me except at times by some, only a temporary relief but no cure. My physician, to who I applied, did not do any better.

"My troubles became worse and my sufferings increased instead of improving. Loss of appetite, sleep and flesh, besides continual coughing and pain, showed too plainly that my case was a desperate one.

"I lost almost all faith in the so-called catarrh cures, when I read of Peruna and concluded to try this as a last resort. Thanks to Dr. Hartman's invention I now enjoy as good health as ever I did, sleep soundly, have excellent appetite and have gained in weight more than I ever did in my life."—Chas. D. Smyth.

Catarrhal affections my be acute or chronic, mild or severe, ephemeral or stubborn, lasting or fleeting, painful or trivial, but they all have one origin, one nature—catarrh. They all have one cure—Peruna.

A HOST OF WITNESSES.

Peruna a Catarrh Cure That Rests on the Unsolicited Testimony of Thousands.

This is the age when theories have little or no weight on the average mind, but actual demonstration is demanded. The busy people of today have neither time nor inclination to speculate, and turn with distrust from everything that does not plainly bear the stamp of fact.

The reason that Peruna has gained such universal hold of the confidence of the people as a catarrh cure is because all statements concerning it are accompanied by facts.

A book containing specimens selected at random from a cloud of witnesses who have been cured of chronic catarrh by Peruna sent free by The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Peruna can be obtained for $1 a bottle at all first-class drug stores in Canada.

Cured of Consumption

Mrs. Julia Sheffield Was so Reduced With Hemorrhage and Disease That She Only Had 50 Lbs. of Flesh on Her Bones.

Powley's Liquified Ozone Makes Her Well.

Mrs. Julia Sheffield, of Zephyr P. O., Scott Township, Ontario Co., Ont., wife of Joseph Sheffield, was cured of consumption, pulmonary tuberculosis by Powley's Liquified Ozone, after she had been given up to die. Her case had been regarded as completely hopeless. She had had a photograph taken of herself, husband and children so that her family should have something with which to remember her when she was gone. The pall bearers had even been selected. We present herewith her solemn declaration as to her cure:

Mrs. Sheffield's Solemn Declaration.

Dominion of Canada Province of Ontario, County of Ontario, To Wit:

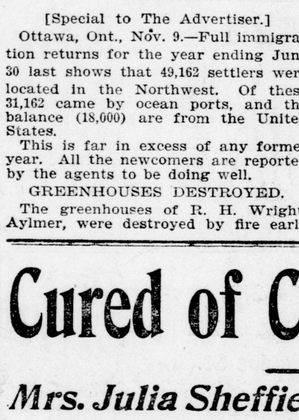

In the matter of Julia Sheffield, of the Township of Scott, in the County of Ontario, and in the matter of her restoration to health.

I, Julia Sheffield, of the Township of Scott, in the County of Ontario, married woman, do solemnly declare that

On the 15th day of February, 1900, I was taken down with pneumonia and inflammation of the lungs and was in bed seven weeks, during the course of my illness I had profuse bleedings of the lungs and was unable to work and was in bad health all the following summer, and had an extreme cough and would cough for two and three hours at a time. On the 24th of June 1900, I moved into my father's house, Wm. Woodruff, at Mt. Albert. About the 18th of August, 1900, I was forced to take my bed again and was in bed most of the time until the end of the year. About that time the attending physician told my father that there was not half a pound of flesh on my body and that it was impossible for me to recover and that it was only a matter of a short time until death would come. I was sinking rapidly every day. At this time I was taking creosote at the extent of sixty drops a day. I had four physicians attending me from the time I took sick until I commenced taking Ozone, and they each and all pronounced that I had consumption and could not recover.

I finally rallied and was able to get up and go around the house with assistance, but I was gradually sinking and my vitality was very low.

My husband had been advised to try Ozone, and one Sunday at the beginning of 1901, he purchased a 50c. bottle at Mount Albert and I commenced taking it at once. After taking the second bottle I began to improve and I have now taken 18 bottles and have gained in flesh at least 25 pounds. My health is almost completely restored and I look and feel as well as ever I did, and I fully believe that I am completely cured.

MRS. JULIA SHEFFIELD.

I am now back to my husband's home and doing my work as usual. My friends and neighbors are simply astounded to see me out and well again. I am glad to be able to recommend to suffering humanity the great Ozone that has cured me.

I have also recommended the Ozone to several of my friends, and I know of another young lady at Mount Albert who is taking it for consumption and she is getting better.

I fully believe that had it not been for Ozone I would have been in my grave to-day, and to Ozone and Ozone alone I attribute my cure and the enjoyment of health and comfort to-day, and I consider it a "God send" to suffering humanity.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893.

(Sgd.) MRS. JULIA SHEFFIELD.

Declared before me at the Township of Scott, in the County of Ontario, this 6th day of May, A. D., 1901.

J. McCULLOUGH, Notary Public for Ontario.

Other Solemn Declarations.

Attesting declarations were received from her husband, Joseph Sheffield; her mother, Elizabeth Woodruff; her father, W. H. Woodruff; her sister, Ethel May Woodruff and her husband's employer, John R. Dunn. They all declare that Mrs. Sheffield was so ill with consumption that they regarded it only the matter of a very short time before she would die. They were all greatly astonished at her complete recovery—they would have been delighted with a temporary benefit and they believe Powley's Liquified Ozone to be a most extraordinary preparation. You can write any one of these good people—you will simply confirm what we tell you because these statements are all positive facts.

What Powley's Liquified Ozone Is.

Let us tell you what Powley's Liquified Ozone is and what its uses are. You can see by the foregoing case what it does. Ozone is a preparation of oxygen in fixed liquid form manufactured only by us, by a special process requiring twelve days. It supplies oxygen to the body—is blood food—creating a healthy condition of all the tissues. Ozone is a powerful antiseptic as effective and harmless internally as applied externally. It destroys the germs of disease—in that way it is especially valuable in consumption as it stops the germ attack and gives nature a chance to rebuild the broken lung tissues. Ozone forms healthy flesh—it is a great scientific discovery.

How You Can Use It.

We want you to know how valuable a preparation Ozone is for your own use. If you have consumption of an advanced type we need not give you any detailed advice—use it as did Mrs. Sheffield. If you have, however, any tendency to lung trouble, such as shortness of breath, continued cold on chest, bronchial affection, a bad cough you should be extremely careful and take Ozone regularly. It prevents the possibility of any serious trouble by stopping the ailment and restoring all the tissues to a state of good health. If you have any tendency to system weakness, such as languid feeling, no appetite, always tired, hoarseness in the morning have a care and take the Ozone as a preventive. You have no idea what great trouble you may be saving yourself—what benefit you are conferring on your body.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

The Volunteer Organist.

"The Volunteer Organist," a dramata founded on a popular song of the same name, was the attraction at the Grand Opera House last night. The play received a fairly satisfactory presentation at the hands of an average company. The play is a rather feeble imitation of the "Shore Acres" and "Way Down East" variety, and many of the most effective features of these plays were presented in a cruder form. Miss Edith Totten was acceptable as the heroine, the tavern-keeper's daughter, who is loved by the young minister, whose role is satisfactorily filled by Joseph Manning. Good character work was done by Benj. J. Williams, James Allen and Miss May McCabe. The boy soprano was a disappointment.

At the Auditorium.

The second number of the Popular Concert Course at the Auditorium was marked by the usual large attendance last night. A delightful programme was supplied by the Johnson Swiss Bell Ringers and the Asetceam Trio, an organization of musicians who individually and collectively won highest favors from the audience. In addition to the performance of the bell ringers, a novelty was introduced in the form of the aluminum chimes, from which the trio produced melody, whose sweetness must have been heard to be appreciated. The audience showed their appreciation in the heartiness and frequency of their encores, every number being greeted with one or more recalls. The programme follows:

"MISTRESS NELL" THIS EVENING

The production of Geo. C. Hazelton's merry comedy, "Mistress Nell," at the New Grand this evening promises to be one of the most satisfactory performances of the season. The comedy is a clever bit of work, and the company presenting it comes highly recommended by the press of Pennsylvania and Ohio, where it has been playing for the past month. A Toledo paper of recent date says:

"Miss Ardeck, as Mistress Nell, was not long on the stage before winning the hearts of all the audience, and the applause throughout the performance was most liberal. The mere announcement of Miss Ardeck's name in future will no doubt be sufficient to call out a large audience at the playhouse, as she certainly is one of the most clever women that has appeared here in many years.

THE METROPOLITAN COURSE.

The second number in this popular course will be given at the New Grand next Tuesday evening, Nov. 12, by the "Fadettes" Woman's Orchestra. The Halifax Chronicle of recent date says: "The Fadettes Woman's Orchestra delighted a large audience at the Orpheus Hall last night. Such an organization is rather unique to Halifax amusement goers and created a splendid impression. The orchestra music was superb, and the audience was particularly taken with the overture to 'Mignon' and the descriptive piece, 'Imps and Goblins,' which ended the programme. Repeated encores were courteously responded to, one of the responses being the oft-heard but ever popular 'Soldiers of the Queen.'"

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT."

With an eye to the advancement and cultivation of the various callings and trades that are employed, but are seldom heard of except as a body of people, George H. Broadhurst has departed from the conventional and taken for his type of the workingman, the honest but necessary paperhanger, in his new musical comedy, "The House that Jack Built." Around this hitherto seldom-thought-of worker he has evolved three acts of pure, clean comedy, which is said to be as bright as the paper that adorns the walls in "Dr. Jack's" home, and of a type totally different from that which he has previously provided to excite the risibilities of a laughter-loving public. Clever up-to-date specialties will be introduced by each member of the cast. At the New Grand Thursday next, Nov. 14.

DIES FROM SKIPPING ROPE.

Mattoon, Ill., Nov. 9.—Miss Maud Burgner, the 15-year-old daughter of Morris Burgner, a farmer of Loxa, died last evening of displacement of the heart, due to excessive exercise with a skipping rope. She was an exceptionally healthy child and frequently outjumped her girl friends at school, one after another. After an unusually hard contest she was taken ill, death resulting therefrom.

SAVED THE LIVES OF FIVE WOMEN.

Hurley, Wis., Nov. 9.—All the injured in the Klondike theater fire, which was the cause of the death of ten persons, are alive and hopes are entertained for their recovery. "Slim" Kennedy, a waiter, was the hero of the fire. It was he who gave the alarm to nearly all the inmates of the house and saved the lives of the five women by pushing them, against their will, from the side windows.

From Near-by Places

IVAN.

Ivan, Nov. 9.—On Wednesday evening, Nov, 5, a pleasant event took place at Cedar Hurst, Ivan, the residence of D. A. P. Graham, when his only daughter, Florence, was united in marriage to Mr. Ellice Hodgins, a prosperous young farmer of London township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. I. Cornell, of Dutton, assisted by Prof. H. M. Curry, of Pleasant Plain, Illinois. The bride looked charming in a gown of white organdie wearing a bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of chrysanthemums. She was given away by her father, and was assisted by her cousin, Miss Lydia Graham, who was also dressed in white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Little Miss Effie Campbell looked sweet as a flower girl. She also wore white organdie over pink. The groom was ably assisted by his cousin, Archie Hodgins, also of London township, and Master Wessie Campbell as page, carrying a silver tray with the wedding ring. Miss Margaret Campbell, of Portland, Mich., played the wedding march. After the ceremony, which was performed on the lawn, the party repaired to the drawing-room, where they received congratulations. The wedding breakfast was served in the basement, which was decorated for the occasion, with evergreen and bunting. The menu, which consisted of seven courses, was served to 100 people, some of whom were Squire and Mrs. Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. John Haskett, Ilderton; Mr. John Hodgins and daughters, Mrs. Box and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, Dr. and Mrs. Orme, London; Mr. and Mrs. James Robson, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hodgins, Ettrick; Dr. and Mrs. Patrick, Port Huron; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Seed, Strathroy; Mr. and Mrs. Haskett, Birr; Mr. Lorne Graham, Toronto; Mr. Hugh McIvor and sister, Rodney, and many others. The presents were numerous, useful and costly, showing the high appreciation in which they were held by their friends. The party enjoyed themselves with music and dancing to a reasonable hour, when they all departed. The newly married couple departed for their own home amid a shower of rice and the good wishes of their friends.

London, Saturday, Nov. 9.

In the New York campaign, Justice Jerome made a magnificent and fearless fight. His ability to stand up under hard usage made a deep impression.

The new Australian tariff imposes approximately $1 20 per barrel on hard wheat flour. This means virtual prohibition, so far as our Canadian exporters of that article are concerned. All such measures, instead of crippling our export trade will serve only to draw us closer, by the bonds of commercial intercourse, to the mother country. The establishment of a fast steamship service between Canada and great Britain now seems nearer than ever before. But perhaps when we get a special reciprocal trade arrangement with Australia, things may be different, and better.

The London Times and the London Lancet assert that the reports that King Edward has been operated on for cancer are false. It is quite probable that the rumor concerning cancer in the King's throat is due to newspapers of a somewhat sensational character. These two journals do not positively deny that the King has some malignant throat trouble. Their denial is concerning the statement that he has received treatment for cancer. It is to be hoped, however, that whatever the malady may be, it will prove less dangerous than cancer.

The Toronto Telegram attributes the fighting qualities of the Boer to the atmosphere of freedom in which he lives and moves and has his being. To quote from the Telegram:

"The campaign against the Boers will occupy a class by itself in the annals of modern warfare. The Boers who fought by rule of thumb and never worried about text-books, will figure as the Martin Luthers of a military reformation. They have taught Britain the vanity of dependence upon the military superstitions of Europe. The Boers are the only types of fighting men outside the British Empire or the United States who can teach British generals or British soldiers any lesson whatever."

An American professor of history seems disposed to reduce King Alfred to a myth. Legends have gathered about Alfred's character and history, as they have about those of Charlemagne, whose historical reality and importance are nevertheless beyond doubt. The story of the burnt cakes is one of these legends; the stories of the foundation of trial by jury, of the division of the country into shires, and of the foundation of Oxford University and others.—Toronto Sun.

No doubt much of the story connected with the life of this early British sovereign is clouded with a sort of vagueness with which remoteness in time too frequently surrounds events. While believing that King Alfred was very human and heroic in everything he did, we maintain that legend still has its uses. Mythology to a large extent embodies the ideals of a primitive people and is for that reason significant. The ancient Greeks, a nation possessing the most elaborate and entertaining mythology or folklore that has ever existed, were in many respects the greatest race of people in the world.

The Day to Be Celebrated.

"It is difficult to realize that the King will actually complete his 60th year on the 9th of November," says the Whitehall Review. "Somehow, we look upon both the King and Queen as barely having reached middle age. This is because of the lively interest His Majesty takes in almost everything; of the enthusiastic way in which he enters into his pleasures, and especially because of the marvelously youthful appearance of the Queen, who is only a year younger than His Majesty—though we fondly regard her as a beautiful woman of 30. All this is probably brought about by the fact that, wise people of their generation, the King and Queen have determined, above and before all things, to keep young. They are chiefly surrounded by young society—a most important element in the conditions—thus their ideas are always up-to-date, and they naturally absorb much of the vitality and the optimism which are always more or less associated with healthy young minds."

Young and old can profit by the example of their majesties. "A man is no older than he feels," is a saying with more true philosophy for foundation than we are apt to acknowledge.

News From Kingston.

John Lee was nominated by the machine for East Kent, but the Liberals of the riding refuse to accept him. They declare they want a man with a will of his own.—Kingston News (Con.).

The above is pure fiction, and shows how much nonsense is being promulgated by the opponents of the Ontario Government, at the present time, in hope that some of it will be credited by the unthinking.

The facts are:

John Lee was not nominated by the machine for East Kent, but by as representative a convention as ever assembled in the grand old county.

Mr. Lee is an able, independent, exceedingly well-liked man, and he has probably more a mind of his own than the editor of the Kingston News.

And finally, he was so well thought of in the constituency and his candidature so strong that the Conservatives did not oppose him. On nomination day he was returned by acclamation.

Christian Science in the Courts

"Christian Science" has got into the courts, and we may well pity the sorrows of a poor juryman who finds himself called upon to decide questions of science and theology. In a certain sense it is a good advertisement for a new sect to be "persecuted," especially when they have a clever lawyer who can plead for medical theories in the name of religious liberty. It does not serve any particular purpose to have the court of law turned into a testimony meeting for our friends the Christian Scientists. A court of justice is not the place to air one's opinions on matters theological and metaphysical; the jury has very little to do, in most cases, with what a man believes; but, as judges in matters of fact, they are very much concerned with what he does. Further, there is no benefit in having testimony on all kinds of cases besides the case in hand. It has been proved time after time that this testimony shrinks into very small dimensions when it is patiently tested by those who are capable of judging. No one denies that individual doctors make mistakes, and that the medical profession has many problems still to solve. But there is large agreement to the fact that medical science is, like every other science, based on the study of real facts; that men have learned a few things about the care of the human body; and that progress, even if slow, is being made. Out of this come certain laws for the protection of human life, which society is bound to enforce. The duty of society in this regard may not be capable of being put into a few definite statements, but it is clearly recognized. There is no desire at the present time to interfere with freedom of opinion, but there is a duty to fight disease in every form. We hope most from patient, intelligent teaching of fundamental truths; but there may be cases in which the sanction of law must be invoked. In such cases, sober-minded citizens, judge and jury, will, we believe, try to do their duty in all fairness.

Canadian Manufactures.

Many have become so accustomed to look upon the Dominion solely as a great agricultural country, that its possibilities as a country with abounding facilities for the development of manufacturing industries are apt to be somewhat overlooked. It is only within very recent years that we have been enabled to appreciate our vast wealth of forest and mine, resources which of necessity form the basis of manufacturing. Without in the least detracting from the prestige we have gained as an agricultural nation, it is becoming evident that we must also strive to attain a high place among the manufacturing nations of the world. The more nearly we can bring together the consumer and the producer, the better; and this will result from promoting manufactures as well as our agricultural industries. But the extent of any industry is perhaps best indicated by the amount of export trade that results therefrom. It is possible to measure our exports and imports, whereas there is no convenient method of ascertaining the internal trade of a country.

President Ellis, of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in his address delivered recently in Montreal, has put the subject of Canadian manufactures in a somewhat new light. It has been stated that our exports of manufactured articles amount to about 10 per cent of the whole export trade of the Dominion. By adding asbestos, mica, salt, canned fish and lumber sawn into deals, to the number of ordinarily recognized manufactured articles, Mr. Ellis held that such articles constituted about 40 per cent of the total value of Canada's export trade. To be exact, out of a total of $177,241,115, of all classes of exports last year, the exports of manufactured goods, including the above-named articles, amounted to $67,894,928, or 38 per cent of the whole. The speaker also furnished evidence that two-fifths of the people of Canada are supported by our manufacturing industries.

Among the means suggested as a stimulus to development are mentioned, first, patronizing of home industry; secondly, bonusing industry; and thirdly, favorable tariff discrimination. Canadians have always shown a desire to patronize home industry, so long as it proved adequate to meet their wants. Other things being equal, they have for the most part given the producers of our native industries the preference. It may be charity, but it is not business, for any part of our population to voluntarily sacrifice their own interests for the good of any other section. Patronage, then, must be merited. The idea of granting bonuses is rightly falling into disfavor, and bonuses should not be granted except upon the very strongest reasons, as in the case where a new industry is not likely to insure immediate returns to its projectors for their outlay. Regarding protective tariffs, there is no doubt the greatest immediate stimulus to manufacturing industry usually comes from this source. The success of the manufacturing industries in the United States has proved this to be a fact. But a broader view must be taken than can be afforded by considering any single industry. A high tariff must necessarily discriminate unfairly against some employment, for which reason such means should not be called into requisition. President Ellis goes on to state that "We have today what may be called a moderate tariff, one to which no section of the community, with the well-being of the whole at heart, can take exception.

A revenue tariff brings incidental protection, to which no one can seriously object.

With our vast resources of forest, of mine, and of soil, we ought to be able to avoid over-high tariff walls. The vast strides that have been made during the past four or five years in the domain of Canadian manufactures, show those industries are fairly capable of looking after themselves in competition with the industries of the world.

Mark Twain in the New York Contest

Recently The Advertiser pointed out that in the late New York fight against unspeakable Tammany, almost every important cartoonist and genuine humorist was on the right side. We instanced the ablest and most famous of them all, Mark Twain. It may interest our readers to read some things Mark Twain said, after the famous victory. Presiding over a meeting of "The Acorns," to celebrate the result of the election, Mark Twain spoke as follows:

"It is victory, glorious victory, all along the line. We've swept 'em out of existence. They're gone and you've had your share. As I understand you number 20,000, and I prophesy—you see I was born a prophet—we will go to the polls two years from now numbering 100,000. But now instead of carrying New York by a great majority, it seems to me a strange thing that Tammany got a single vote. Almost the entire pulpit, almost the whole press, all the women's organizations; yes, every moral force in the city and throughout the Union was arrayed against Tammany Hall. Tammany is dead, and there is no use to blackguard a corpse. (Laughter.)

"The election makes me think of a story of a man who was dying. He had only two minutes to live, so he sent for a clergyman and asked him: 'Where is the best place to go to?' He was undecided about it. So the minister told him that each place had its advantages. Heaven for climate and hell for society."

The audience broke out in a roar of laughter, at which Mr. Clemens looked about him in a pained, puzzled way which kept the merriment going until it fairly became a shout. After a time he continued:

"But although this is a meeting for jubilation, it is one for sorrow, too. Tammany is dead and there is wailing in the land. We have met here to attend the funeral. We miss a few familiar faces now. It is a long farewell to Van Wyck (hisses), that gentle peddler selling ice to the poor at 60 cents a hundred. We must bid farewell to Unger (in the original German, you know, it had an h). Yes, Unger's gone with that appetite of his unsatisfied.

"Good-bye to Murphy, the political spectre, the shadow of a shadow, the fragment of unsolidified space. Good-bye to Bird Gardiner, with his peculiar Tammany-like motto of 'To hell with reform.' We've started his kind of reform in that direction. If he wants to follow he knows the road.

"Good-bye to Bissert, with his obscene appetite, and good-bye to Devery, the undescribable. The Egyptian darkness in the days of old at its blackest would be a white mark compared to Devery's character. Good-bye to all that machinery, that nursery of gambling hells, bleeder of corporations—it is all gone—the 'red light' cadet, with his disposition to break the hearts of mothers and all. Satan must take care of his children, considering what good care they have taken of him.

"And finally a long farewell, a pathetic farewell, an eternal farewell to Richard Croker. Let him go to the barony of Wantage, the latest addition to the aristocracy of Great Britain, with his baronial bearings of the swindled gibbet, and his motto, "My pocket all the time."

"Yes, we mourn with Tammany Hall and rejoice with Seth Low. (Tremendous cheering.) But let us not do that with feeble voices—it is better written in a book I found the other night. I call to witness William Shakespeare. Three hundred years ago he foresaw Seth Low and Tammany. He lifted up his voice and said:

Now is the winter of our discontent
Made glorious summer by the son of New York,
And all the clouds that lowered o'er our house
In the deep bosom of the ocean buried!

"Yes, the atmosphere of the city hall will be cleansed now. Even if it is a little cold, it will be clear and bracing and pure."

A Little Sunshine.

BRONCHITIS

THE BEST REMEDY

Many persons think that they have merely a stubborn cough, when they really have Bronchitis, which, if neglected, always results in Chronic Bronchitis. The most effective remedy known to medical science for Throat and Lung Troubles is

Angier's Petroleum Emulsion With Hypophosphites

It stops the cough, makes breathing easy, relieves congestion and irritation, soothes and heals the bronchial tubes, changes the character of expectoration and effects a general and rapid improvement in all the symptoms. It is pleasant to take and agrees with the weakest stomach. It is not a patent medicine, but has been prescribed by physicians everywhere since 1880.

HAD BRONCHIAL TROUBLE FOR TEN YEARS:—I have been troubled with Bronchial trouble for the last ten years, ever since I had La Grippe, and suffered very much at that time with it. I have been frequently laid up and unable to work for months at a time. I just recovered from a severe attack of Bronchitis last fall, which left me very much run down. Thought I would never be able to work again, but hearing of Angier's Emulsion, gave it a trial, not expecting much benefit from it, as I had tried so many different remedies with very poor results. I have used three bottles obtained from Burgess Drug Store, and thank God I feel like a new man. Have not been as well or felt as well for many years. I have recommended it to my friends, in fact to anyone troubled as I was. It is a Godsend. It is pleasant to take and does not effect the stomach like other emulsions do.

STERLING, UPRIGHT QUALITIES

Characterized the Late Ex-Mayor John Campbell.

Served the Corporation Faithfully and Well.

City Council Meets in Special Session and Passes a Resolution of Condolence.

A special meeting of the city council was held last night, having been called because of the death of ex-Mayor John Campbell.

"Mr. Campbell was an ex-mayor of the city," Mayor Rumball said, in explaining the object of the meeting, "a man well known to every person here. He was highly respected by all, a man of sterling, upright qualities, an example for the young men of today to follow in his footsteps. He was a man whom I always admired, one whose advice I was always pleased to receive. He was one of the few citizens who was willing to buckle on his armor and fight for the good of the city at all times, and I am sure the city will miss him very much. He had the admiration and respect of the citizens generally, and I only hope that when our time comes to be called away, it shall be said of us, as of John Campbell, that we have done our work and done it well, that we may enter into the joy of our reward."

Ald. Beattie moved, seconded by Ald. Parnell:

"That, whereas, by a visitation of Divine Providence, our city today mourns the removal by death of John Campbell, an estimable and public-spirited citizen, who for many years served the corporation faithfully and well;

"Be it therefore resolved that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of London hereby records its deep sense of the great loss the community has sustained by his decease, and at the same time expresses its high appreciation of his untiring energy, indomitable will and sterling integrity which characterized his life and enabled him to fill with so great acceptance to his fellow citizens the high office of mayor to which he had been elected in the year 1872, and again in 1881 and 1882. This council desires also most respectfully and sincerely to convey to his widow and family the expression of its sympathy and condolence with them in the supreme hour of their bereavement."

The resolution was carried by a standing vote.

The council will not attend the funeral in a body, as it is private.

Knows No Distinction

Rich and Poor Alike Suffer From Catarrh in This Climate.

All observant physicians have noticed the increase in catarrhal diseases in recent years, and the most liberal and enlightened have cheerfully given their approval to the new internal remedy, Stuart's Catarrhal Tablets, as the most successful, and by far the safest remedy for catarrh yet produced.

One well-known catarrh specialist, as soon as he had made a thorough test of this preparation discarded inhalers, washes and sprays, and now depends entirely upon Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. In treating catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach.

Dr. Risdell says: "In patients who had lost the sense of smell entirely, and even where the hearing has begun to be affected from catarrh, I have had fine results after only a few weeks use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. I can only explain their action on the theory that the cleansing and antiseptic properties of the tablets destroy the catarrhal gems wherever found, because I have found the tablets equally valuable in catarrh of the throat and stomach as in nasal catarrh."

Dr. Estabrook says Stuart's Tablets are especially useful in nasal catarrh and catarrh of the throat, clearing the membranes of mucous and speedily overcoming the hawking, coughing and expectorating.

Any sufferer from catarrh will find Stuart's Catarrh Tablets will give immediate relief, and being in tablet form and pleasant to the taste, are convenient and always ready for use, as they can be carried in the pocket and used at any time, as they contain no poisonous drugs, but only the cleansing antiseptic properties of Eucalyptus bark, Guaiacol, blood root and Hydrastin.

All druggists sell the tablets at 50c for complete treatment.

TALKED OF McCLARY REQUEST

Aldermen Considered the Assessment Question.

Though Not Opposed to It, Action Was Deferred.

Bylaw Must Be Submitted to the People—Two-Thirds Vote Considered Impossible.

The question of a fixed assessment for the McClary Manufacturing Company was considered last night at a special meeting of the finance committee, but as some of the members were not prepared to vote it was laid over until the next meeting.

Mr. McClary presented his request in different form last night. In his first letter he asked for a fixed assessment of $150,000 for ten years, the council to secure the required legislation, and that the company be safeguarded against provincial taxation. This last clause having been regarded by some aldermen at the council meeting as objectionable, was withdrawn, leaving a simple application for a fixed assessment for which legislation was to be secured by the council.

"The statute provides," said City Solicitor Meredith, in response to the mayor's request that he explain the law regarding such conditions, "that in case of an exemption being desired, a bylaw may be passed by the council and then be submitted to the people. If the required number of votes, which is two-thirds of all the propertyowners, is secured in its favor the bylaw is authorized, and it is made good. That is the only way under the statute.

"There are cases of special legislation which override that statute. Those who secure it make out a strong case."

Mayor Rumball said he thought that if the bylaw were not submitted to the people, the legislation could not be secured; but if it had been submitted, and less than a two-thirds vote secured, the necessary legislation might be secured.

Such special cases as Mr. Meredith mentioned, were, as when promises had previously been made or the matter had been threshed out in a municipal campaign.

It would be a strange thing, Mr. McClary said, if any body of sensible legislators would refuse to grant legislation of that kind. It was not difficult to see that it would result in benefit to the people and the city. What he asked was in the interests of the city, and if it were not granted it would mean that London would have the tail of the works instead of the head. If financial institutions had to pay a big percentage on the money they loaned here, and could save it by moving to Quebec, would they not be weak, he asked, if they did not take advantage of it? And many of these institutions were making more on their capital than the manufacturers were. The act relating to the assessment of personal property, as it now stood, was working very much against the cities of Ontario, and it had to be remedied. If not, Mr. McClary said, they would simply be compelled to form another company and sell the thing out. He would be foolish, he said, to try to bulldoze or threat, but it was easy to see that that was the only thing the company could do. He asked what else could be done. Were they going to carry on business here, and pay twenty times as much on personal property as our opponent in Quebec Province, where there was no such law, or the firm's other principal opponent, who had a limitation of assessment and land given him by the city of Toronto?

Ald. Cooper moved that the McClary Company's request be granted.

"What if we do pass it," said Ald. Cronyn, "and it is thrown out by next year's council?"

"Why, let them do so, if they choose," Mr. McClary replied. "We take the chances."

Though opposed to exemptions of any kind, Ald. Greenlees was inclined, in view of the serious competition the McClary Company had to meet, to vote in favor of the request, but he wanted it submitted to the people. "I don't like their proposition," he said, to Mr. McClary. "It seems to me that you are trying to get benefits in a way that the council should not countenance. You are asking the aldermen to ignore the law and get certain legislation for you. You practically ask the aldermen to cut their own heads off. If any of the aldermen are going to the people again they could do nothing surer to bring about the loss of their heads than to ignore the will of the people and disregard the law simply to get benefits for you. You are asking what is not fair."

"Do nothing that you don't approve of," Mr. McClary answered. "You would not be disregarding the law. I see that a bonus of $20,000 has recently been passed in St. Thomas. The people there are evidently more anxious for manufactories than this community. I am asking the aldermen for nothing they do not approve of. If there is anything of that kind, then shut down on it. When I saw the objectionable act passed by the legislature, I realized that it would be a bad thing for the province, and I called on Mr. Magee, and had him make amendments so that we could move the head office to Quebec, if necessary. We desire to do the best thing for the city, without prejudicing our own interests."

Mayor Rumball said that he thought it was impossible to get a two-thirds vote on any question in this city.

In regard to the matter of again running and not placing the bylaw before the people, Ald. Cronyn said that if the aldermen who voted for it went to the people, their election or defeat would be the pronouncement of the public, and as such would be considered by the legislature.

Ald. Cooper said that he was not afraid, and said that he, for one, was going to the electors again.

Ald. Beattie did not favor exemptions as a rule, but in this case he was prepared to vote for the request.

It was considered wise to defer action.

CROPS IN ONTARIO

Some Government Estimates Based on Results of Threshing.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—The final estimates of the crops in Ontario this year, based on actual threshing results, are contained in the November crop report issued by the Ontario bureau of industries tonight.

The results are as follows:

Fall wheat, 16,017,029 bushels, or 17.4 per acre.

Spring wheat, 5,498,751 bushels, or 15.4 per acre.

Barley, 16,761,076 bushels, or 26.3 per acre.

Oats, 78,334,490 bushels, or 32.5 per acre.

Rye, 2,547,218 bushels, or 16.1 per acre.

Peas, 10,089,173 bushels, or 16.7 per acre.

Buckwheat, 1,757,071 bushels, or 19.9 per acre.

Beans, 824,122 bushels, or 15.4 per acre.

Potatoes, 18,116,637 bushels, or 118 per acre.

Corn, for husking, in the ear, 24,838,105 bushels, or 76 per acre.

Corn, for silo and fodder, green, 2,359,514 tons, or 11.92 per acre.

Hay and clover, 46,632,317 tons, or 1.3 per acre.

In fall wheat the crop was a good deal below the average. There was an almost universal decrease in new fall wheat acreage, owing to the ravages of the Hessian fly. In order to secure the new crop against the pest, sowing has been deferred by farmers to a later period than usual.

Little spring wheat was grown in the western part of the province, and the crop was light.

Reports as to the barley crop are very variable. There is considerable difference in the sample. The yield will be a good deal under the average.

Oats were also below the average. The yield of rye was generally fair, though light in grain, while peas were a small yield.

The season was a favorable one for corn, and the yield was large where grown; while the quality was generally good.

Beans were a fairly good crop.

Buckwheat was an average crop.

Clover did well.

Potatoes were light in the east, but turned out better in the west.

Tobacco growing appears to be on the decline.

Favorable reports are received regarding sugar beets. In only a few locations are sugar beets produced, but if the result continues to be as favorable as those of the resent season, they are certain to be more extensively sown. The output has been good as regards both bulk and quality in almost every case.

Fruit trees are generally in good condition, but the season was a poor one for fruit, especially apples.

Pastures were in good condition during the early fall in the eastern portion of the province.

Live stock of all kinds are in unusually healthy state. The supply of fodder is said to be ample for the winter.

The season was a good one for dairying.

Threshing has been carried on actively.

Peas were marketed earlier, and the quantity of oats have been disposed of, but wheat has not been moving very lively, and much of the barley is now fed on the farm.

Farmers are taking much more interest in poultry raising.

A Case of Kidney Disease That Could Not Be Cured by Ordinary Drugs and Medicines.

THE DREAD DISEASE WAS BANISHED AFTER USE OF TWO BOTTLES OF

Paine's Celery Compound

A Statement Carrying Warning and Encouragement to Every Sufferer.

While the blood is the life of the system, carrying to every part its share of force and energy, it is also the means by which the waste matter, the result of decomposition of the tissues, is removed from the body. If disease has touched the kidneys. There is grave danger, and deadly oppression will settle upon the body and mind.

If you have any of the symptoms of Bright's disease or diabetes. Paine's Celery Compound is the only medicine on earth that can stay the ravages of the disease, and cure permanently. Mr. C. Keevil, of Dunsford, Ont., testifies as follows:

"For the past fifteen years I have been troubled with diseased kidneys. Often while working in a stooped position I would find it difficult to straighten up at once, and could only do so after repeated efforts. While under very severe attacks of my trouble I became very nervous, and continually had tired, worn-out feelings. My rest at night seemed to do me no good, as I always felt tired in the morning. I had been taking medicines and was getting worse all the time. At last I decided to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial. I procured a bottle and took it as directed, and found its effect wonderful. Before I had finished the first bottle I began to improve; after I had used the second bottle I felt as well as ever I did in my life. It banished all my aches and pains, and my nervousness disappeared. I can go bed now and sleep well, and rise in the morning rested and refreshed."

SHORTAGE $60,000

Latest Developments in the Maccabee Scandal---Surety Company Officials Confer With the Defaulter---Assurance That Canadian Tents Will Not Lose Anything.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 8.—Today the shortage of Charles D. Thompson, the self-confessed defaulter, who resigned his office as supreme finance keeper of the Maccabees yesterday, will reach $60,000, which is $3,000 more than yesterday. The manner in which Thompson covered up his shortage was smooth. It was the custom of the supreme officers to give him a check at the end of each month for a fixed amount, and he would send the amount in drafts to various banks in the country to meet death losses.

On Tuesday it was discovered that Thompson's books showed $60,000 in the Commercial Bank, of this city, which was not there, but in the Chicago bank. In other words, $120,000 was supposed to be in both banks, whereas by manipulation Thompson was making the $60,000 show for $120,000. He would balance his books up on the last day of each month, and on that day his books would show the $60,000, which was the amount of his shortage, on deposit in the Commercial Bank here, and the $60,000 would show in the Chicago bank on his book as money in transit. He would not send the money to Chicago until the first of the month. The discovery was made by finding the Commercial Bank deposit in this city shy $60,000, although it showed all right on Thompson's books.

This morning a reporter saw Mr. Thompson, who is at liberty, no steps having been taken to arrest him. He said:

"How do I feel? Why, just like a man who has a load off his mind. I have nothing more to say."

This morning W. B. Joyce and Mr. Anderson, representing the National Surety Company, of New York, arrived in the city, and had a consultation with Mr. Thompson regarding the loss. The result of the interview cannot be learned, as the surety company people are not very productive of news. Joyce was, however, frank in saying that no conclusion had been arrived at as yet. He would not say whether Thompson would be arrested or not, but the general opinion prevails that Thompson will never see the inside of the jail. A consultation will be held during the day by the representatives of the surety company, the Maccabee officials and the board of trustees.

There is some talk of the surety company dodging liability, but it cannot be confirmed. A circular letter has been sent out by Supreme Commander Markey to the various tents in the United States, stating that there is no cause for alarm, and that the order will spare no effort to secure the amount defaulted from Thompson or the surety company. The circular asks the officials of each tent to present the matter as it is to the membership to alleviate any alarm which may be felt over the loss of the money.

OTHERS INTERESTED.

C. L. Boynton, Thompson's business partner, is deeply affected by the confession made yesterday. He admits losing money in the Harlem deal, but cannot believe all that Thompson took from the Maccabee fund went into that investment. He had no idea that Thompson was using any but his own money at the time.

IN COUNCIL.

The board of trustees and the supreme officers of the Supreme Tent Knights of the Maccabees, are holding an executive session today with representatives of the National Surety Company, which was on the bond of C. B. Thompson, supreme finance keeper, who is short in his accounts. It will probably be decided during this meeting whether Thompson shall be prosecuted. It is asserted that part of the money was stolen before July 1, on which date the auditors of the order furnished the bonding company, then on Thompson's bond, with a statement that his accounts were correct. This statement, it is said, releases the bonding company.

EFFECT IN CANADA.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—W. M. McClemont, provincial commander for Ontario of the Maccabees, said today in regard to the defalcations of Supreme Finance Keeper Thompson that it would not in the slightest effect the financial standing of the Ontario members. There were, he said, sufficient funds deposited with the Ontario Government to cover the insurance held by the members, and besides this, there is placed to the credit of the supreme tent in a Toronto bank over $50,000, thus making the members' protection certain.

SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—The North American says: It is officially announced that P. J. McGuire, temporarily suspended general secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, is short in his accounts $10,074 93. A vote of 1,000 local unions of the Brotherhood has been ordered to be returned on or before Dec. 1, on the advisability of making Mr. McGuire's suspension permanent.

HAMILTON GIRL COULD USE A GUN!

Young Men Became Impertinent and She Gave One of Them a Shot.

Hamilton, Nov. 9.—The Detroit Journal has the following interesting story of a Hamilton girl:

Miss Mabel McLeod, actress and huntress, of Hamilton, Ont., who is visiting her brother, Hugh McLeod, 53 Sandwich street west, Windsor, is a heroine among her friends. She filled a Glengarry avenue railroad man with birdshot because he insulted her while she was on a hunting expedition in the woods near Belle River.

Miss McLeod says that she became separated from her fellow-huntsmen in the bush, and that when she fired two shots at a bevy of quail, three young men revealed themselves from behind a thicket. They became impertinent, she says, and she ordered them to leave her presence. Two of them obeyed, and Miss McLeod drove the third away at the point of her gun. Just as he was going over a fence, some fifty yards distant, he said:

"Old girl, you wouldn't shoot me, would you?"

The "old girl" part of his query nettled Miss McLeod, and she emptied one barrel of her gun into his body. He exclaimed that he was killed, but when he saw that Miss McLeod was again charging the gun to blaze at him, he took to his heels.

Miss McLeod has been bagging quail and other game for the past four years. She acquired her taste for powder and shot on the stage, having taken the part of the heroine in a number of plays. In 1897, when she left the stage, she was with Tony Pastor, the veteran vaudeville manager, of New York.

"I began at once to feel better, and you may judge of my gratitude for my escape thus promptly and safely. Having taken only three boxes I am happy to state I am absolutely cured, with no sign of the return of my old trouble."

The most striking incidents of his life and the prophecies ascribed to him were collected by Geoffrey of Monmouth, about 1150. ROBERT CHAMBERS tells us that King James the Sixth was puzzled over the name of a Scottish gentleman whom he proposed to knight. Asking his name, the gentleman replied, "Edward Rudry Hudrinblas Tripplin Hippias."

The king was utterly unable to remember so long and heaped-up a name, and so said:

"Prithee, rise up, and call thyself, sir, what thou wilt!" and so dismissed him.

A Woman Tinsmith.

The residents of Fordham, N. Y., enjoy the novel spectacle of a woman tinsmith working on a three-story frame house. She is assisting a workman in putting up a cornice, and she seemed to know her part as well as any tradesman. She is Mrs. Matilda Muskat, and she is the only woman tinsmith in the city and perhaps in the country.

Her husband is a tinsmith, and when his work becomes heavy she frequently pitches in and gives him a helping hand. She began many years ago, and finally she learned as much about the trade as any tinsmith. The house she is working on belongs to her and her husband. It is a neat cottage, and in it they expect to enjoy themselves in their old age.

Mrs. Muskat wears a short skirt at work, and she says she does not care for public opinion.

"We are making money," he said, "and what does it matter to me what this person or that one says about me, The main thing in this world is to make a living, and as long as you make that honestly no man or woman need be ashamed what they do."

In place of wedding cake in Holland, wedding sweets are given—"bruidzuikers." they are called. They are handed round by children and are served in flower-trimmed baskets.

When in Bed

Put some Vapo-Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp and place it near the head of the bed. Then all the time the baby sleeps it will breathe-in the healing, soothing vapor. The hard, tight cough loosens; the fever gradually goes down, the breathing becomes natural, and pneumonia is avoided. Every part of the throat and bronchial tubes are touched by the medicine. For the hard colds and coughs of children nothing equals Vapo-Cresolene. 9

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

WITH THE POETS.

LOVE SONG.

The heart that warmed my guileless breast
Some wanton hand had thence conveyed,
But Love, who saw his bard distressed,
In pity thus the thief betrayed:
"'Tis she who has the fairest mein
And sweetest eyes that e'er were seen."
And, sure, if Love be in the right,
(And was Love ever in the wrong?)
To thee, my first and sole delight,
That simple heart must now belong,
Because thou hast the fairest mein,
And sweetest eyes that e'er were seen.
—Luis de Camoens.

IN THE ORCHARD.

A pathway runs the orchard through,
Half hidden by the fragrant grasses,
That bask beneath the breathless blue
Or whisper as the west wind passes.

The orchard's mossy walls are tall,
And silence soft has here its dwelling,
There comes no sound of footsteps' fall
Nor echoes of life's tumult swelling.

Here would I dream the hours away,
Forget the fever and the fretting,
And watching where the branches sway
Be lulled into most sweet forgetting.

Fool's fancies all! when well I know
My heart is but itself deceiving,
Since ever lonelier I grow
And while she tarries I am grieving.

She comes the orchard path adown,
With dainty feet that step demurely,
In witchery of mystic gown
She lays her spell on me securely.

Within my heart impatience dies,
For her I have no word of chiding,
She reads the secret in my eyes,
That long my heart has held in hiding.

She has my secret—I have hers,
For hers, too, in her eyes is leaping;
A breeze among the branches stirs—
What matter? Secrets can't be keeping.

So, wind, beyond the orchard walls
The secret of our love be bearing,
But here, until the twilight falls,
None but ourselves shall love be sharing.
—James Strang, in Westminster Gazette.

THE REFORMERS.

"The men who have been through this South African mill will no longer accept the old outworn explanations. They know too much, and it is to them we must look, when they come back, for the real work of reform in every direction."—Extract from private letter.

Not in the camp his victory lies,
Or triumph in the market place,
Who is his nation's sacrifice
To turn the judgment from his race.

Happy is he who, bred and taught
By sleek, sufficing Circumstance—
Whose Gospel was the appareled thought,
Whose gods were Luxury and Chance.

Sees, on the threshold of his days,
The old life shrivel like a scroll,
And to unheralded dismays
Submits his body and his soul;

The fatted shows wherein he stood
Foregoing, and the idiot pride,
That he may prove with his own blood
All that his easy sire denied—

Ultimate issues, primal springs,
Demands, abasements, penalties—
The imperishable plinth of things
Seen and unseen, that touch our peace.

For, though ensnaring ritual dim
His vision through the after-years,
Yet virtue shall go out of him:
Example profiting his peers.

With great things charged he shall not hold
Aloof till great occasion rise,
But serve, full-harnessed, as of old,
The days that are the destinies.

He shall forswear and put away
The idols of his sheltered house;
And to Necessity shall pay
Unflinching tribute of his vows.

He shall not plead another's act,
Nor bind him in another's oath
To weigh the Word above the Fact,
Or make or take excuse for sloth.

The yoke he bore shall press him still,
And long ingrained effort goad
To find to fashion and fulfill
The cleaner life, the sterner code.

Not in the camp his victory lies—
The world (unheeding his return)
Shall see it in his children's eyes
And from his grandson's lips shall learn!
—Rudyard Kipling.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS.

Oh, heart of Labor, keep steady.
And stand for the right you need!
For the world was never so ready
To pray for the fall of greed.
The waves of our prayers, like billows,
Shall bear your hopes on their crest,
And carry you out of the narows of doubt
And into the harbor of rest.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

A sound body lies at the foundation of all that goes to make life a success. Exercise will help to give it.

✦

If you've helped a man in trouble, never blow:
It will pay you more than double,
Don't you know?
You have broken self's worst fetter
And have made the world your debtor,
And your chance of Heaven better,
Don't you know?

If a bit of luck has struck you, never blow:
Labor on while it is with you,
Don't you know?
You can make men's burden's lighter,
You can be of wrongs the righter,
And can make this old world brighter,
Don't you know?

Pithy Proverbs.

Soon ripe, soon rotten.

The world was not made in a minute.

He who sows his land trusts in God.

Rich enough is he who does not want.

Shine like a light, but do not flash like lightning.

Rest on the Sunday, or you will be worse than a slave.

Better ride an ass that carries us than a horse that throws us.

Trust self, and lose all; trust God and win all.

God gives every bird its food, but does not throw it into the nest.

Get thy spindle and thy distaff ready and God will send the flax.

There is one good wife in the country; let every married man think that he hath her.

If you pursue good with labor, the labor passes away, but the good remains; if you pursue evil with pleasure, the pleasure passes away, but the evil remains.

The Upward Strain of Humanity.

With few exception most people aim at appearing, socially or morally, what they are not. And it is well that they should do so, for it is precisely this straining upward after something higher which is the motive principle of civilization. Through ten thousand ages the negro never felt this, and therefore remained where he was when first planted in Africa. There are insects that assume the appearance of leaves, or twigs among which they feed; there are birds that adopt the coloring of the soil on which they cower; but with men capable of cultural advance, it is just the opposite; and it is precisely this aiming at something above and other than their surroundings that differentiates them from the beasts. There are exceptions. One has heard of a nobleman who studied to look like, and talk like, and think like one of his grooms; but this is a sport on the race, such as ought not to be in a civilized world at all. But it is precisely because the tradesman seeks to look like, live like, think like, and behave like the gentleman, that the entire middle class has risen to the same cultural level that was attained by the highest class a generation or two ago. And this mighty and magnificent upheaval in mind and manner will continue to manifest itself so long as those who stand at the apex of civilization maintain their high qualities of breeding, courtesy, refinement, and self-respect.—From Rev. S. Baring Gould's "Winifred."

AWAY WITH CATARRH!

Instant Relief and Permanent Cure Secured by the use of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

Here's strong evidence of the quickness and sureness of that wonderful remedy, Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder: "For years I was a victim of Chronic Catarrh—tried many remedies but no cure was effected until I had procured and used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. First application gave me instant relief, and in an incredibly short while I was absolutely cured."—James Headley, Dundee, N.Y. 4t

Jewish Morality.

No one will deny that the children of Israel are the most law-abiding inhabitants of East London. They keep the peace, they pay their debts, and they abide by their contracts—practices in which they are undoubtedly superior to the English and Irish casual laborers among whom they dwell. For the Jew is quick to perceive that "law and order" and the "sanctity of contract" are the sine qua non of a full and free competition in the open market. And it is by competition, and by competition alone, that the Jew seeks success. But in the case of the foreign Jews, it is a competition unrestricted by the personal dignity of a definite standard of life, and unchecked by the social feelings of class loyalty and trade integrity. The small manufacturer injures the trade through which he rises to the rank of a capitalist by bad and dishonest production. The petty dealer, or small money-lender, imbued with the economic precept of buying in the cheapest and selling in the dearest market, suits his wares and his terms to the weakness, the ignorance, and the vice of his customers; the mechanic, indifferent to the interest of the class to which he temporarily belongs, and intent only on becoming a small master, acknowledges no limit to the process of underbidding fellow-workers, except the exhaustion of his own strength. In short, the foreign Jew totally ignores all social obligations other than keeping the law of the land, the maintenance of his own family, and the charitable relief of co-religionists.—"Problems of Modern Industry," by Sidney and Beatrice Webb.

Proverbial Wisdom.

Some familiar phrases have been originally said by people not at all otherwise famous as sayers of smart things.

Madame Cornuel was the original author of the phrase, "No man is a hero to his valet!" One Harel said, "Speech was given to man to disguise his thoughts." "A nation of shopkeepers," applied to England and her people, though generally attributed to Napoleon I., really occurs in Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations." The pen is mightier than the sword," is the saying of Bulwer Lytton. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is from Keats. "The heart that has truly loved never forgets," belongs to Tom Moore; so does "The luxury of woe," and "The trail of the serpent is over them all."

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die" was the pretty saying of Campbell, and his also is "Coming events cast their shadows before." "Plain living and high thinking" was Wordsworth's ideal. "Variety's the very spice of life that gives it all its flavor" is from Cowper. It was he also who wanted "A lodge in some vast wilderness," and who declared that "God made the country, man the town." "Alliteration's artful aid" was spoken of by the little-read poet, Churchill.

"Pursues the even tenor of his way" was the phrase of a Bishop of London in the last century, Dr. Porteous. "The pink of perfection" was originated by Oliver Goldsmith; so were "Measures, not men," and "Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long." Gray, the author of the "Elegy," is responsible for many popular phrases, among them, "Full many a gem of purest ray serene," "To waste its sweetness on the desert air," "This pleasing, anxious being," "The paths of glory lead but to the grave," and "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

Dr. Johnson gave us "Hell is paved with good intentions," and "To point a moral and adorn a tale." Pope gave us "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," "Man never is but always to be blessed," "Whatever is, is right," "The proper study of mankind is man." "Grows with his growth, and strengthens with his strength," "Order is heaven's first law," "Worth makes the man, and want of it the fellow," "Honor and shame from no condition rise; act well your part, there all the honor lies," "An honest man's the noblest work of God," "Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined," "Who shall decide when doctors disagree," "A little learning is a dangerous thing," "To err is human, to forgive divine," "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

Fables in Slang.

THE RAPID CHANGES DOWN ON THE FARM.

A Farm Lad wanted to escape the Drudgery, so he went up to the City, and after he had been there for 15 Years he had a nice Position. He stood on his Feet from 8 to 6 every day cracking up Dress Goods, and after he paid his Board and Room Rent there was nothing left of his Salary except the Crust.

After many Years he went back to visit his Brother who had remained on the Farm. He found Jed in a Hammock reading a Crop Report.

"Why are you not working?" asked the Commercial Brother.

"What is there to do?" asked Jed. "The Windmill is pumping Water for the Stock, grinding up the Chopfeed and working the Churn. I finished my Fall Plowing yesterday."

"Plowing is Hard Work," said the City Salesman sympathetically.

"Oh, I don't know," said Jed. "I use a Riding Plow with a White Umbrella over me and a Cushion on the Seat. You may not know it, but the Farmer is getting too Strong to Work. You can't make him use a Walking Plow any more. He plants his Corn with a Check-Row Machine, lifts his Hay with a Patent Fork, cuts his Grain with a Self-Binder that has a Bundle Carrier attached, and then puts it through a Steam Thresher that cuts the Bands, does the Feeding, measures the Grain and dumps it into the Wagon and stacks the Straw. I suppose that about next Year they'll have some dad-kinged Attachment that will go up to the Bank and cash the Grain Tickets.

"The lowly Agriculturist now has his Telephone and daily Rural Delivery, and a rubber-tire Buggy, and when he meets an Ordinary Dry Goods Salesman, such as you he just cracks his $2 Red Whip and drives right over him. Don't you come out here pitying the Poor Farmers! We've got everything you have in the City except the Noise. I'm going to put Golf Links in the west 40 next Year. Then as soon as they give away an Automobile with 100 Tobacco Tags and somebody gets up a Corn Shucker that will do the Work, I'll be fixed."

MORAL. — The Department Store Employe is not the only one who has a Snap.—George Ade.

UMBRELLA DEDUCTIONS

Human Characteristics Shown in the Ways of Carrying Them.

[Kansas City Journal.]

The man who sat nearest the window said he didn't mind the wet weather. "It gives me a chance to see how people carry their umbrellas," he said. "I have such firm faith in my deductions that I wouldn't be afraid to choose a wife with them for a guide."

The woman on his left smiled.

"I'm glad I'm not out there in the street," she said. "You'd be picking out all the kinks in my disposition along with the rest of them."

"Oh," said the man, "I sized you up a long time ago. You carry an umbrella, when it's furled, just like that woman across the street. You grab it in the middle and go forging ahead with the ends of the handle digging into the unfortunate pedestrians who go ahead and follow after."

"And what does that signify?" asked the woman on the left.

"Alertness, activity, selfishness and inconsiderateness."

"Um-m," said the woman.

"But just look at the third woman in the procession," said the man. "I pity the men folks about her house. I'll warrant they have to get their own breakfast about six mornings out of the seven. I never saw yet a woman who dragged her umbrella along so that you could track her by the trail of the tip who wasn't dilatory and shiftless. She never sews on a button, or darns or mends, and her breakfast dishes are seldom washed before 3 o'clock.

"That other woman who is bustling along holding the top of the umbrella handle like grim death and pointing the top down and forward in a kind of south-by-southwesterly direction is altogether different. She would set the world on fire if it wasn't waterlogged. I am not sure that I'd want to be married to her, either. She'll be too energetic. She'd push everything before her, and when she took a notion to clean things up a mere man would have nowhere to lay his head. What she is good for is serving on committees.

"That woman in the gray skirt is a yea-and-nay sort of person. She wants to agree with everybody and follows wherever led. Women who carry their umbrellas with the point backward and downward are always unassertive.

"But just look at that girl who spins along, swinging her umbrella around in a circle as if it were a magic wand. I like her. She's jolly and good-natured and gets more pleasure out of life than ten ordinary people. There's a woman carrying her umbrella swung across her shoulder like a shotgun. She's a true soldier of fortune and will never known to say die. I can't think of anything that would feaze her."

The man paused.

"And what would you say," asked the woman, "about that girl who carries her umbrella horizontally across the small of her back and catches either end into the crook of her elbow?"

"Well," admitted the man, "she is a new one to me. I never met her before, but I wouldn't be afraid to wager that she is conscientious to a degree and has a heart as big as all outdoors. But here," he added, "comes the most even-tempered woman of the lot. She cuddles her umbrella protestingly under her arm as if she doesn't want even it to get hurt in the crowd. That woman is gentle and thoughtful and kind."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Babies that are well, sleep well, eat well, act well and play well.

A child that is not lively, rosy-cheeked and constantly playful needs immediate attention or the results may be serious.

Give them Nature's own vegetable remedy, Baby's Own Tablets.

For Diarrhœa,

constipation, colic, fever, indigestion, sleeplessness, and, in fact, all the disorders to which children are subject these tablets have absolutely no equal. They do not act as the so-called soothing medicines do.

They do not have a deadening and stupefying effect, but on the contrary, go right to the seat of the difficulty and by removing it cure the child and prevent a recurrence of the difficulty.

No mother should fail to have these tablets constantly in the house. There is no telling when they may be needed and the failure to have them on hand may mean much suffering, and, perhaps, the loss of a priceless life.

You can find Baby's Own Tablets at the drug store. If you do not, send the price, 25 cents per box, direct to us and we will forward them prepaid.

Gossip of the Stage and Platform.

THE STAGE VILLAIN.

Under the painted canvas tree
The wicked villain stands,
With blue-black whiskers on his face,
In coarse and shining strands,
And gleaming daggers tensely held
In both his sinewy hands.

His record's bad and black and long,
He's "wanted" everywhere;
Detectives crack are on his track,
Yet never find his lair,
Until, just as the curtain falls,
They land on him for fair.

Act in, act out, he maims and slays
And lies and robs and steals;
He sneaks along with dagger drawn
Behind the hero's heels,
And yet no crime, however foul,
His purpose dark reveals.

The children coming home from school
(A millionaire's, of course)
He gags and binds and carries off
Upon a charging horse,
And though they howl and plead and wail
He never shows remorse.

In fact, he says but little, save
When some deep plan is spoiled,
When some bold hero lands the girl
For whom the villain toiled;
He growls between his close-clinched teeth,
In awful accents, "F-f-f-foiled!"

Thanks, thanks to thee, my worthy friend,
No longer will we lack
The means to trace a villain down
And catch him in his track.
We'll straight pursue all deep-voiced men
Whose whiskers are blue-black!

"Lance," the clever and impartial critic of Toronto Saturday Night, in last Saturday's issue, has the following protest against the indiscriminate adulation with which the dramatic columns of the Toronto press had slopped over during the preceding week:

"There is nothing more disgusting to the honest admirer than fulsome, inordinate laudation of the person or thing admired. Everyone admits that Mr. E. S. Willard is a gifted, even a great actor; that 'The Cardinal,' his new play, is a noble and exalted drama. But some of the local critics seem to have so completely lost their hearts and their heads to Mr. Willard as to be incapable of using temperate language concerning either play or player. For heaven's sake, gentlemen, let us keep our senses, and not use up all the adjectives for one actor, good though he be, lest there be none left for others who may deserve some slight bespattering of praise. I sadly misconceive the function of a critic if it is to prostrate himself in a flatulent and groveling adulation at the feet of even distinguished merit. That can be safely left to the dear matinee girl and the sweet things, male and female, who flock to every latest theatrical craze with bunkers full of superlatives to burn. But let the writers of dramatic columns keep cool and speak even of excellence with becoming moderation."

The protest is a timely one, and it has a more than purely local application. It is a fault of the age that we season our speech and our scribblings with adjectives as we would pepper oysters, and think a dish insipid unless drowned in superlative sauce. It is so easy to fall into this fault in writing of dramatic affairs. The latest impressions are always the strongest, and it is not hard to say at the moment that "he is the cleverest actor in his line ever seen here," or "the play has never been surpassed in its class." This in spite of the fact that next week or the week after another actor or another play will come, and receive exactly the same meed of ill-judged and unmerited panegyric. The perfect actor and the perfect play are still in the depths of the future, with the perfect human being, the perfect street pavement, the perfect fountain pen and other perfect things that a hopeful world awaits. It therefore behooves the writer on dramatic topics to watch well that all the good words in the dictionary are not lavished upon one production or one player, for there are always others.

The following examples of the dramatic "criticism" which "Lance" condemns are taken from a Western Ontario daily, and are a good case in point, as showing what the dear public are expected to swallow:

"There was a beautiful garden with a noble mansion in the background, and on the terraces were brilliant groups of fair ladies and gallant beaus, arrayed in gorgeous apparel, and there were sparkling eyes that flashed loving glances, and music, and singing, and laughter. One could scarcely imagine anything more perfect, more beautiful—but there was something wanting — and everyone waited. And then it came. The dearest, sweetest, winsomest little armful of flesh and blood, with the daintiest feet and ankles that ever twinkled before the footlights. And before the light of your eyes, and the gleam of your smile, O, Dolly Varden, all the electric stars winked and blinked, and for very shame, blushed and died away. Like a ray of sunshine, like the sparkle of the sun on the river, like the glitter of wine; sweet as the perfume of flowers, Dolly Varden laughed and danced and brimmed over with happy childish glee until the audience was fairly intoxicated with her adorable personality. Every moment in which she was in sight, she carried them along in a miniature whirlwind of fun and frolic and gay good nature, proving beyond dispute that after all there's nothing so sweet in all the world as a loving, happy, merry nature."

"Among the galaxy of beautiful, clever girls who are in the company Miss Eva Tanguay easily ranks first. She is one of the most wonderful little bunches of laughing, dancing, frantic gaiety that ever sparkled before the footlights. Her constant flow of spirits, and untiring, unceasing activity of body are something amazing. She works harder, perhaps, than any other member of the whole company, and at the end of three and a half long hours, she is still laughing in wildest glee, and dancing yet, the maddest, gayest, most witching fairy of them all."

Here is what is said of the two productions in which these two unearthly beings appeared:

"Taken as a whole, it is surely safe to say that this city has seldom, if ever, heard anything better than 'Dolly Varden,' and that the city fully appreciates the very best in theatrical attractions, and is willing to generously patronize the best, was amply proved by the presence of the very large and fashionable audience which last night filled the Grand to its utmost capacity.

"Taken as a whole, 'The Chaperons' is perhaps the most brilliant and attractive performance which has ever come to this city. Complete in every detail, finished in acting, superior in vocal power and rich in humar, it would be hard to imagine anything better in the line of lyric comedy; and the audience at the Grand last night showed full appreciation of this most delightful evening's amusement. The management are to be congratulated, as well as thanked, for having secured this first-class attraction for their patrons."

Now all this, with all due respect to its gifted writer, is "slush," pure and simple, or, as Jerome (Jerome K. Jerome, that is, not Saint Jerome) would say, "bally rot." Both productions and both performers were no better than dozens of others which have been seen on the local boards, and no better than others which will be seen this season. If dramatic criticism is to earn the respect of the reading and play-going public, it must be something very different from the foregoing. It must be marked instead by restraint, judgment, and fair, impartial praise or blame.

Mr. William Winter, the dean of American stage criticism, in his efforts to get away from the conventional in his notices of current productions, has gone to the other extreme, and has ransacked dictionary and thesaurus for words and phrases with which to describe his impressions and opinions. Writing of Mrs. Fiske's performance in "Miranda of the Balcony," Mr. Winter says: "In these scenes her aspect is regal, her passion profound, her speech tumultuous and thrilling, her acting luminous, penetrating, authoritative and noble." Speaking of Mr. Dodson, the leading man of Mrs. Fiske's support, Mr. Winter remarks: "He denoted a depth of passion, a power of sarcasm, a breadth of artistic style, a perception of character, a volatility of imagination, a reserve of grim humor, a solidity of repose, an aptitude of celerity in picturesque, expressive action, such as appertain only to an actor of original mind and the finest capacity of eccentric impersonation." In another paragraph referring to Mrs. Fiske's portrayal of the heroine, he says: "Avoiding all effort she has disclosed in it a superb presence, a demeanour of passionate intensity, a bearing of invariable grace, and a vocalism of fluent melody. Mrs. Fiske embodies the kind of woman that haunts a man's imagination, mingles with all his thoughts, impels him to heroism, constrains him to endurance, inures him to self-sacrifice, guides his conduct, and controls his destiny, and yet who actually does nothing whatever, except to exist, and to liberate her blandishments, to manifest her passionate feelings, and occasionally to indicate her wishes." Speaking of the performance of Miss Bertha Galland and her company in a new play by Sydney Grundy, entitled "The Love Match," Mr. Winter calls it a "neat exposition of a story of matrimonial infelicity, evanescent complication, variegated with embellishments of eccentric and conventional English character and enlivened with an incidental portrayal of formal commonplace English household manners." A writer in the Toronto Globe thus satirizes Mr. Winter's style: "Dramatic critics who are not so fortunate to possess the fertility of imagination, the readiness of invention, the copiousness of diction, the poetry of simile, the cumulative power of comparison, and the lexicographical experience of Mr. Winter, may paste the extracts in their scrap books and draw upon the rich fount of inspiration they offer as occasion requires."

The Dramatic Mirror of Oct. 26 publishes a winsome portrait of Agnes Ardeck, who is playing the title role in George C. Hazleton's successful romantic comedy, "Mistress Nell," at the New Grand today. The Mirror accompanies the portrait with the following remarks: "Agnes Ardeck is filling her second season in the "Mistress Nell" Company, and continues her success as the pretty orange girl. Miss Ardeck cherishes a large cluster of newspaper notices, of which any actress might be proud. They embody the opinion of the critics in a large number of cities, and they contain only praise for Miss Ardeck's work. Her vivacity, sprightliness, skillful technique and delicacy of feeling all come in for commendation, and her beauty and personal charm are said to make her an ideal Nell. Miss Ardeck is rapidly making herself one of the most popular actresses on the road. She has been the recipient of much social attention during her tour."

It is not often that London playlovers witness one of the successes of the day so early in the flush of its popularity as they will on Nov. 26 next, when "The Bonnie Briar Bush" comes to the New Grand, with the veteran J. H. Stoddart in the leading role, supported by the cast with which the play opened in New York a few weeks ago. No play produced in New York in the past half dozen seasons has been accorded such excellent words of commendation from the greatest critics as has this dainty comedy-drama in which the favorite actor of New York's famous old stock companies has made his first appearance as a star. Mr. John Kendrick Bangs, writing in Harper's Weekly, says: "'The Bonnie Briar Bush' is the most satisfactory dramatization of a popular book that has appeared. I would observe parenthetically that our managers would do well to profit by this example of how the thing should be done. . . . Furthermore, it is exceedingly well acted. . . . Mr. Stoddart's Lachlan Campbell would have made a reputation for this actor even if he had hitherto lacked it. The role fits him with that precise nicety that has made Jefferson's 'Rip Van Winkle' a perennial attraction, and Mr. Stoddart is to be felicitated that upon his first appearance as a star, every curve of the figure of his genius is shown by the garment his playwrights have cut for him."

THEATRICAL TITTLE-TATTLE.

In playing the chief role of "D'Arcy of the Guards," Henry Miller uses an Irish accent.

May Irwin has been telling eastern reporters that she intends to retire from the stage after this season.

Ellen O'Malley, the young Irish actress, well known in London, is E. S. Willard's leading lady this season.

James O'Neil bids good-by to "Monte Cristo" next season and will appear in a new play, entitled "The Christian King."

Dave Warfield's success in "The Auctioneer" has been so great that he will probably remain in New York throughout the season.

Richard Mansfield has announced that he will play "Beaucaire" throughout the season, and that "Herod" will not be produced until next year.

Australia is to have next summer—summer here, but winter there—"Ben-Hur," "Way Down East," "Lovers' Lane," and "Sherlock Holmes."

The late Queen Victoria always gave $500 a year to the royal general theatrical fund. The new queen consort has chipped in $50 for the same charity.

The New York World prints its own opinion that the "Foxy Quiller" organization is "the best company ever mustered into comic opera service."

"San Toy" has renewed its success in London and from present indications it will run throughout the season. Ada Reeve now fills the title part.

The new Pinero play, "Iris," seems to be a success of curiosity in London thus far, and it may develop into a genuine success. It is of the problem order.

Leslie Stuart, composer of "Florodora," has notified his friends that he likes America so well that he will remain and become a citizen of the United States.

Newspaper cablegrams from London say that Clyde Fitch's "The last of the Dandies" met with a poor reception when first presented last week. Private telegrams say it was a big success.

William Gillette will probably tour the United States next season, appearing in "Sherlock Holmes" for the last time. The London theater, at which Mr. Gillette is playing "Sherlock Holmes" has not been paying dividends for over a year, and the stockholders are congratulating themselves over the clever American's success.

Mary Mannering will not appear in a new play this season, sticking to "Janice Meredith" on account of its drawing powers. The new play Miss Mannering controls will be brought out next season.

Marguerite Tucker, formerly an actress with the "Hands Across the Sea" company, was married in Boston last week to a Chinaman named Sen Yen How, and has gone to live in Boston's Chinatown.

"Jolly" John Nash, a well-known variety performer, died in London recently and a testimonial is to be given for the benefit of his family. He was author and composer of the once popular jingle, "Pop Goes the Weasel."

Frank McKee has engaged Edwin Arden to play the leading role in Ramsey Morris' new drama, "Ninety and Nine," founded on Ira D. Sankey's hymn, which will be produced at the Academy of Music in New York.

The Barnum & Bailey circus goes into Paris for the winter, and as an advertisement will run a beauty show, offering $10,000 for the most beautiful woman in France. The Frenchmen have taken the bait like hungry trout.

Walker Whiteside, seen here two weeks ago in "Heart and Sword," is to produce "Robert of Sicily" in December. His tour this season is directed by the Shipman Bros., who are fast coming forward as managers and producers.

When Julia Marlowe makes a tour of four weeks in the Southern States she plays under a guarantee of nearly $8,500. Some years back when Miss Marlowe wanted to invade that territory, it was she that had to offer the guarantee, not her managers.

Estelle Holland, one of the prettiest and most popular girls now with the Rentz-Stanley organization, was for two years a member of the "Sis Hopkins" company, playing the second feminine part to Rose Melville, that of Pansy Ferrell. She was seen here in the part.

When it came down to a point of staging "Ben Hur," in London, the managers over there were scared at the enormous expense which confronted them, and so as a result Klaw and Erlanger are reported to have deposited $25,000 to cover the cost of the play's first production.

An eminent professor of the art of making plays says that in constructing a play an author cannot be justified in trying to interest his public in the adventures of a group of persons unless he is prepared to provide that public with some information as to what becomes of that group.

Blanche Bates' illness has been so severe that she will not be fit to resume her stage work for at least two months. As a result, her company playing "Under Two Flags" closed its season in Philadelphia last Saturday night. It is more than likely that Miss Bates will act no more this season.

McKee Rankin and Nance O'Neill, after a very successful season in Australia, have gone to South Africa, and reports from Boerdom say the "standing room only" sign is in evidence every night. Miss O'Neill has developed into a finished artiste since leaving America under the guiding hand of Mr. Rankin.

Before the production of "Are You a Mason?" it was feared the members of the order might take offense because of the belief that unwarranted liberties were taken with this great organization. Instead of being angry the Masons of New York and Chicago have enjoyed the humor of the farce as much, if not more, than others. In fact, the laugh is with them, not on them.

Stories of the brilliant and witty Maurice Barrymore are still cropping out. Some years ago Barry became interested, as an investigator merely, in the phenomena of Christian Science. In an argumentative bout with a friend, the latter, who stood by the old school of medicine, said in a semi-contemptuous tone: "I suppose you would throw physic to the dogs." "Um! Not to good dogs," Barry replied.

F. C. Whitney states that he selected the name "Dolly Varden" for the reason that it is a pretty sounding name, and because it conveys the idea of a spirited, yet sweet, girlish character. "And," to quote Mr. Whitney's words, "for the further reason that the old names which have in their time stood for something good are now coming into use again as the titles of theatrical attractions—mark Clyde Fitch's play, which was produced by Charles Frohman last season, 'Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines,' and the new comedy by Augustus Thomas called "Champagne Charley.'"

Farmer's Backache.

There is scarcely a farmer in this country but knows what backache is. The hard work and heavy lifts, the constant grind of toil from early morning till late at night, frequently bring the stabbing pain in the back or the dull grinding ache that knows no let up. Then too there are often urinary troubles, swelling of the feet and ankles, puffiness under the eyes, rheumatic pains in the joints and muscles.

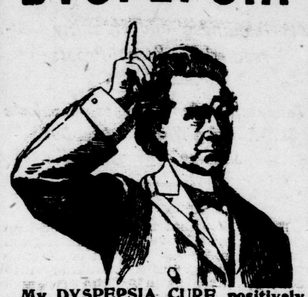

Dr. Pitcher ought to be held in high esteem by every farmer in the land on account of his Backache Kidney Tablets, which are doing such a grand and noble work in banishing backache, kidney and urinary troubles, which are such universal complaints on the farm.

HEAVY WORK.

Mr. C. E. Lane, King Street East, Ingersoll, Ont.: "I have been subject to attacks of backache and kidney trouble for some years, owing to heavy work on the farm in my early days. Every attack of cold aggravated it. I have tried other remedies in the past but with little effect, and decided to try a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. I got a bottle from A. E. Gayfer, druggist, using at first three and then two at a dose, as they proved a little too laxative. With the two tablet dose the pain and other trouble disappeared, and since then there has been no return, consequently I am sure they are a good medicine."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50c. a Box, at all druggists or by mail, THE DR. ZINA PITCHER CO., Toronto, Ont.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

SHOPPING.

I went with you the other day
A-shopping in the rain—
I love you very dearly,
But we'll never go again;
We tramped around this blessed town
Full twenty miles, I know,
And I carried all the bundles, for
You said 'twas safer so.

We went into a mammoth store
To get a spool of thread,
And in a tiny shop to buy
A wardrobe and a bed;
To save ten cents on taffeta
You made me take a cab,
And we kept it then two hours
To match a shade of drab.

We couldn't find the proper thing
In satin on Broadway,
But we found it out in Harlem
At the closing of the day;
And then, when wet and weary,
We struck the homeward track,
You held your umbrella so
It trickled down my back.

At last when home, sweet home was reached,
You found that I had lost
A yard of silk, a remnant that
Had been reduced in cost;
Oh, you said, it didn't matter,
That it really wouldn't do!—
But I went and found that remnant,
And I found pneumonia, too!

—W. W. Whitelock.

The man who has rocked the boat and turned it bottom upward was clinging desperately to its slippery keel.

Half an hour passed away.

"Then suppose you let yourself down and wade out," suggested the other man, who had been standing on the ground all the time and apparently struggling to keep his head above water. "It's only about four and a half feet deep here—I am sorry to say."—Chicago Tribune.

"It is your aim, of course," said his intimate friend, "to make people think."

"No," replied the popular lecturer, in a burst of confidence, "my business is to make people think they think—or rather, to make them think I think they think."—Chicago Tribune.

A NEEDED TRUST.

"There should be a joke trust formed for the protection of the reading public," said the talkative critic. "Some system should be adopted to regulate the output. Jokes that have been in service for twenty-five years should be put on the retired list for eighteen months at least, to give them a chance for budding minds to come into a new enjoyment of them. Then there should be a harmonious relation established between the various crops of jokes, so that there will not be too many tramp jokes, and mother-in-law jokes, and domestic infelicity jokes, in proportion to the goat, and smart children, and newly-married couples jokes. The public would approve of some such adjustment."

NATURAL PERVERSITY.

"It just seems as though things were out of joint with me and Nature herself perverse," said a saffron complexioned man as an inquiring friend met him in the corridor of a Broadway hotel. "Last year I was in a bad way, and my physician said if I would go to the mountains I would get well. I did go to the mountains, and didn't get anything but a bad cold on top of a worse liver. I carried them both through the winter.

"Then a few weeks ago the same physician said what I needed was seasickness to turn me inside out and make a new man of me. So he advised me to go and get sick. I went to Portland and boarded a small vessel for Newport News. You see, I was going to make sure of it. I got all ready for a first-class attack of seasickness, and, as usual, was disappointed. There never was a smoother sea than that which I went over. The captain said he hadn't seen such weather and such water for so long a time in a sea experience of forty years. That ship moved along as though on a greased track and hadn't pitch or roll enough to agitate a glass of water.

"It's bad enough for a man to be disappointed when he tries to get well, but it is really too much for human nature when he can't get sick after trying the hardest he knows how."

COUNSEL TO SMOKERS.

From the Royal Academy of Belgium comes the following sage advice to smokers:

"Do not use moist tobacco, since nicotine then escapes with the vapor and is not decomposed.

"Do not smoke while fasting or a short time before meals.

"When smoking cigars or cigarettes always use an amber, meerschaum, horn or cherry holder.

"Nicotine vaporizes at 250 degrees, and that portion of it which is not decomposed in the center is attracted toward the tip, and accumulates there; it is, therefore, prudent to throw away the last quarter of a cigar.

"Do not smoke a pipe which has a short stem.

THE RIVAL GORILLAS

Once upon a time a gorilla was in love, and while he delayed his proposal a rival appeared on the scene, gained the affections of the one he loved, proposed, was accepted and soon married her.

A year passed, and the disappointed lover called on his successful rival while he was swinging on a hickory limb, with a crying baby in his arms, and silently listened to his wife scolding him for some fancied breach of household regulations.

"That was a narrow escape," he said, as he turned quickly in his tracks and hurred away.

Moral: Delays are dangerous for the other fellow.

The Moon Receding.

Scientists say that the moon is receding further and further from the earth, and will continue to recede for countless ages until the terrestrial day is shorter than the lunar month. Millions of years ago, when the earth was a molten mass, it revolved around its axis once every five or six hours. The moon then was a part of the earth, but in time became broken off and became its satellite.

As the motion of the earth decreased and the day became longer, the distance of the moon became greater. Our day is now twenty-four hours long, and the moon is 240,000 miles away. As the length of the terrestrial day increased so did the distance of the moon. The two quantities are connected with inexorable equations. If one varies, so must the other. Whenever the rotation time of a planet is shorter than the period of revolution than its satellite the effect of their mutual action is to accelerate the motion of the satellite and to force it to move in a larger orbit—to increase its distance, therefore.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Depends upon the name. Scott's Emulsion is a name that has value. Maybe it doesn't mean much to you—but to the consumptive who has been strengthened and fattened, to the sickly children who have received good health, to the weak mothers and babies who have grown strong—to these Scott's Emulsion means something.

To all of them it has meant an easy and natural return to health.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

BATHE NOT TOO MUCH

Immoderate Use of Soap and Water Harmful.

[From the London Lancet.]

It is a familiar boast of English people that we are, above all others, a washing nation. Soap and water is a standing dish in Britain, but so little were we disposed to credit the habitual cleanliness of foreigners that a piece of soap in the valise was until recently the habitual companion of an Englishman on his travels. All kinds of theories have been raised to account for this national tendency to ablution, and most diverse qualities have been attributed to its possession. The familiarity of islanders with water, and the use of it occasioned by the national custom that led the ancient Britons to paint their bodies, are solemnly urged as the English proneness to washing, and the fresh complexions and smooth skins of young Englishmen are held to replace the more dusky and hirsute countenances of the Latin races because of their closer and more frequent acquaintance with the articles of the washstand.

It is quite obvious that even in England there are people who wash too little. It is not so generally recognized that some people wash too much. The skin is not well adapted to frequent applications of water accompanied by even the least irritating of soaps. A tendency arises to maceration of the superficial part of the epidermis, which is too frequently removed and occasions probably too rapid a proliferation of the cells of the Malpighian layer. There is no doubt that many cases of roughness of the skin of the face come from the frequent applications of water. It is a good thing to rub the face with a soft, clean dry towel two or three times a day. If, in addition, water is used in the morning and at night the skin will be kept in a sounder, smoother and healthier state than if, as is often the case, soap and water are used three or four times a day. Men are not often offenders in this respect, most men sparing little time for the refinements of the toilet. Women and children, whose skins are the most easily affected by superfluous ablutions, are the very persons in whom such excess is too common. They should be taught that there are dry methods of cleanliness as well as wet ones.

TREES OF LONDON

Though Many Species Thrive the Plane Is the Tree Par Excellence—A Cockney Calendar.

[London News.]

The first approach of winter is foreshadowed for the Londoner less by the calendar than by the changed condition of the parks and squares of the great city. Just now, while October is still a week from us, they are found in unusual beauty. The autumn frosts have scarcely yet touched them. The rains that have followed the long period of drought have freshened the grass, which looks as green as the Swiss meadows or the Irish pastures. Some of the London trees, indeed, show us that winter is at hand. The horse chestnuts are almost leafless, the limes are yellowing, a blight has fallen on those large-leaved elms which Dutch William planted so assiduously and with such effect in Kensington Gardens. But the tree that is, par excellence, the London tree, the plane, shows as yet scarcely a sign of the coming season. It has, indeed, commenced to shed its bark. Great flakes of its sheathing rind hang loosely down, or blown off by the wind, show a surface green, and, as it were, raw underneath. It is to this it owes its vigor and perpetual fitness for life in the heart of a great city. The branches and trunks of other trees show the accumulation of years of soot-flakes—the plane gets a fresh start each successive spring. As yet its leaves, though winter is at hand, are full of the sap of early summer. Its fitness for the London climate is causing it unfortunately to oust all other trees. The variety of foliage in Kensington Gardens—elms, beeches, hawthorns, limes, acacias—makes one of its greatest charms. These were, indeed, planted when there was less smoke to mix with a London fog, and when "the gardens" were, in fact, the gardens of a suburban palace. There would not be the same hope for the young trees now. The plane seems to defy the London climate, and even to thrive in the London soil. But something may be sacrificed to escape the charge of monotony. Spring and early summer make the London season, and in May and June the varieties of coloring give beauty to the young foliage of the different trees.

AN EXALTED COW!

Reminiscences for The Advertiser by Rev. W. W. Smith.

I have heard of a tourist remarking to a fellow-passenger on a Highland train, as they passed some rocky heights and saw cattle browsing among them, that "those cattle couldn't find much to eat up there!" "Na," said the cannie Scot, his neighbor, "there's no muckle gerss there, but then they hae a grand view!" So I am going to tell you of a cow that once had a grand view from the top of the tower of Toronto University.

Somewhat given to antiquarian researches, I had heard something about it; and being in Toronto one time (and that must be over thirty years ago now), I went up the tower and took the "grand view" myelf, and then got hold of old Mr. McMann, the janitor, to ask him "if there was any truth in the story of a cow being up the tower?" "True enough," he said; and then with the conventional "Well, sir," he seated himself, well pleased, to begin his story: "Well, sir, it's a good few years ago, now, that one Saturday night some of the students got a cow smuggled through the great hall, and on to the tower stairs; (and once they had the door shut behind them there wouldn't be so much danger of their being heard); and got her up to the top of the tower. How they managed it none of us know; but they got her to the open platform at the top and left her there, a hundred and twenty feet from the ground. And then, on the way down, they knotted up my bell-rope, so that I would have to go up after it, and discover the cow. And then, like good b'ys, they all slipped away to their beds! And when Sunday morning came they didn't get up very early; they slept well, like all other good b'ys with a good conscience!

"But as for me; well, sir, I couldn't find my bell-rope when I wanted to ring the bell for morning prayers. And so I had to go up the tower. And there I heard some thumping and stamping over my head; and, looking, I found the cow there. She was tearing round, excited, and ready to jump over—only afraid to do so."

"And was it ever found out?" I inquired.

"Well, sir, the students consider it a point of honor not to tell on one another; and none of them confessed, and nobody else knew anything about it; and so it remains to this day, with just one little exception.

"There was one student, Sam ——" [I did not think at the time it would be right to use the full name, and so did not put it down in my jottings of this conversation; and it is gone from me now.] "Och! he was a smooth fellow! You would think butter wouldn't melt in his mouth! Well, sir, you see, we have a way of rusticating students who won't behave themselves, and when he came to graduate, he was a little afraid something might come out about the cow, and be in the way of his getting clean papers; and so he went and told Dr. McCaul that he was one of the young men who put the cow up the tower. But he took good care not to give any other names. And that's all we know about it to this day!"

"And where is Sam now?"

"O, he is at the head of a great educational establishment in the Western States, and doing well."

"Surely, it must have been only a small cow that they got up that narrow, crooked stair?"

"No, indeed, sir! It was a good big cow. Professor Buckland's cow! And four of us did have such a time getting her down!"

And there the story ends! If your readers want to know any further particulars, they must ask some old grey-haired judge or doctor of divinity about it; for I doubt not but that there are a number of the primitive "cow-boys" still living, and who will be as much amused at seeing this story reproduced as I was, so long ago, at hearing it.

Men Killing Mosquitoes.

A statement concerning the vital statistics of the city of Havana for the month of September, 1901, compiled from official reports on file in the division of insular affairs of the War Department, shows that the health conditions were decidedly the best attained in any month. The least number of deaths occurring in any previous September since 1889 was 496 in 1899; the greatest number, 2,397, in 1898; average, 877. For September, 1901, there were 339 deaths. The least number of deaths occurring in any one preceding month during the last 11 years was in February, 1901, when there were 408 deaths. The lowest death rate for September in the years referred to was in 1899, when the death rate was 34.48 per thousand. For September, 1901, the death rate was 15.64 per thousand. Taking the yellow fever year as commencing April 1, the record of the past eleven years shows that for the six months up to the first of October the smallest number of deaths from this disease occurred in 1899, when there were 36 deaths; the greatest number in 1897, when there were 659 deaths—average, 296 deaths. This year, during the same period, there were only five deaths.

Since the first of March 100 men have been engaged daily in killing mosquitoes in every known way, and the result is stated to be that instead of having 52 deaths from yellow fever and 32 from malarial fever, the average in September, there were two deaths from yellow fever and eleven from malarial fever the past September. No smallpox has occurred in a year, and there were scarcely any cases of other infectious diseases.

SELF-ESTEEM AND ITS USES

Are Greatness and Humility Correlated?—Some Proofs.

Tennyson's Sensitiveness—Landon's Self-Ranking With the Iron Duke—Disraeli's Assurance.

[London Standard.]

If it is love that makes the world go round, it is self-love that keeps it from tumbling to pieces. Conceit is the glue which amalgamates mankind into society, and vanity the varnish which preserves man from being saturated by despair, as the duck's feathers throw off water. From self-esteem springs the desire to rise; many a man would not strive to excel did he not believe that he could perform his particular duty better than anybody else. Yet the greatest men are generally supposed to be diffident of their own powers, and genius to be the companion of humility. Biographers have ever delighted in recounting the simplicity and self-depreciation of their heroes.

But genius is, as a rule, not combined with such qualities; the dominance of the ego is the very spirit of genius. Genius is not the infinite capacity for taking pains, but a profound self-reliance—a sort of mere esoteric self-contaitnment. It is sublime confidence in power of self which has raised many a man to greatness. Nor have heroes been shy in declaring their pretensions, though the very vastness of them has produced bashfulness in some. Homer probably knew he was singing for all time, and Shakespeare must have realized his immortality.

NOT SEVEN—NOT THREE—BUT ONE.

Of poets' pride there is an amusing story about Wordsworth. He, Southey and Coleridge were one morning rambling around Rydal Mount, when the glorious weather prompted Coleridge to exclaim that the day might have been ordered for the three poets. "Three poets," muttered Wordsworth; "who are the other two?"

Tennyson's shyness was merely the cloak of his sensitive vanity. He raved at the impertinent curiosity of tourists, but hated public disregard even more. His cloak streaming behind him and his wide-awake hat were a kind of advertisement, but he would not part with them. "Go away, you rude boy, what are you staring at?" angrily demanded Tennyson of a small boy who persitently followed him on one of his walks about Haslemere. "Don't you want to be stared at? What for do you wear those things, then?" asked the lad in all innocence, and it is on record that the poet blushed. Once, after furiously denouncing the passion for autographs and anecdotes and records of great men as the source of every crime and vice in the world, he plaintively said that the post for two days had brought him no letters, and that he thought there was a sort of syncope in the world as to him and his fame! In all seriousness Walter Savage Landor asked Miss Martineau if she did not think that he and the Duke of Wellington were the first two men in the world.

Seventy years ago a Jewish stripling in the most affected of attire went to hear a debate in the House of Commons. To his sister he wrote: "Heard Macaulay's best speech, Shiel and Charles Grant. Macaulay admirable, but between ourselves I could floor them all." That this assurance was not mere braggadocio Disraeli's career proved; but the sublimity of it! When a lady asked him to recommend an interesting book to her, Disraeli charmingly answered, "When I want to read a good book I write one." So, too, William Cobbett, "When I am asked what book a young man or woman ought to read, I always answer, 'Let him or her read all the books that I have written.'"

THE SPLENDID AUDACITY OF MACAULAY.

Different only in kind from the blustering egotism of Dr. Johnson and the sensitive vanity of Goldsmith was the cool self-confidence of Macaulay. The spacious audacities of the opening sentence of his "History" takes away the breath. "I purpose to write the History of England from the accession of King James the Second down to a time within the memory of men still living. I shall recount"—this, that and the other, to the extent of half a page of intentions. All this before writing a word of the actual history. Scarcely a fifth of his audaciously announced task did Macaulay accomplish. His vast stores of knowledge made him a trifle more magisterial in tone than Whewell.

It was into Jowett's mouth that an undergraduate put the couplet:

"I am the Master of this College;
What I don't know is not knowledge."

To the same famous Head was attributed the dictum: "I am the Master of Balliol College; Balliol is the first College in Oxford; Oxford is the first city in England; England is the first country in the world."

Delightfully frank is Bjornstjerne Bjornson's, the Swedish poet and dramatist, opinion of himself. During his recent stay in Paris he declared, "There are two men in Europe who possess genius, myself and Ibsen—admitting that Ibsen has it." Ibsen himself has no doubt on the matter. Every afternoon he sits for a couple of hours in a cafe in Christiania to be seen and admired of the people. From time to time the famous Scandinavian buries his face in his hat. This proceeding is not due to a sudden inspiration, in the great dramatist's hat is fixed a small mirror, and it is into this he peers constantly, arranging his hair with a pocket-comb! Such, at least, is the story told by his admirers. There are other living men of letters, belonging to our own country, of whom the most childish vanity is recorded. But nobody thinks the worse of them for a failing that seems to bring them nearer to the common level of everyday humanity.

CIRCUMVENTING A DIVA'S VANITY.

Concerning the vanity of genius, a pretty story is told of a famous diva. On the eve of an engagement at Bucharest, the prima donna declared she would not go; there was snow everywhere, and it was too cold for the journey. Every seat had been booked for the concert, but the representations of the manager were useless to alter the determination of the cantatrice. Where reason failed guile succeeded. Within an hour the manager handed Madame Patti a telegram from Bucharest announcing the preparations for her reception by the Roumanian nobility, with bands and torchlight procession. Declaring it was impossible to disappoint so generous a people, the singer reversed her decision and went to Bucharest. There she was received by sixty gentlemen in evening dress in the name of the nobles of Roumania and escorted to her hotel amidst the glare of torches, waving of flags, scattering of flowers and the strains of two bands. But the whole welcome was an elaborate device, executed by the manager's orders, in order to lure the lady into keeping her engagement, in which it was successful.

But on occasion genius does not scruple to scorn any honor if it involve unwelcome trouble. Portsmouth will not readily forget its treatment at the hands of a great foreign actress. She was playing in a matinee, after which elaborate preparations had been made by the mayor to receive her at the Town Hall. But when she reached the building and saw the long flight of steps leading to its entrance, she declined to get down and mount the toilsome way, though glory awaited her at the summit. Representations of the preparations made and the disappointment consequent on her non-appearance were regally waved aside; the day was hot, and the tragedienne was too tired to climb the steps. Without more ado she drove to her hotel.

THE ALTITUDINOUS ATTITUDE OF MILLER.

The attitude of genius is aptly described in a letter from Miller, an American poet, to Walt Whitman. "You and I," he consolingly wrote, "are over the head of the rabble. We stand on an eminence of our own making, and look down on the world. In a word, we know we are great, and if other people don't know it is their own fault." Where genius fails to receive its fancied due it can console itself with the future. Thus Nietzsche, the German philosopher, who died last year, wrote with delicious frankness, "I believe my 'Zarathustra' to be the deepest work that exists in the German language, and the most perfect; but for that to be the general opinion presupposes whole races yet unborn." To posterity the verdict may be left with safety. The rarest virtue of genius is humility. Conceit is frequently a concomitant of genius; the pity is, it is so often the only attribute present.

For Throat Irritation

Hoarseness, Dry Throat, Sore Throat, Bronchial Troubles, Coughs, Colds and Asthma Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is a Cure of Proven Merit.

There are more ministers, singers and public speakers using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentime than any similar preparation, because it is exactly suited to their needs. By taking a dose of this preparation before going on the platform they feel certain of freedom from dry throat, hoarseness and throat irritation, than which there can be nothing more embarrassing to a singer or speaker.

Besides the annoyance of throat irritation public speakers seem to be especially susceptible to bronchial trouble, pneumonia and lung diseases, and for this reason it seems wise to have in your grip when leaving home a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, which is beyond all doubt the most thoroughly effective treatment for bronchial and lung troubles that is to be obtained.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

aids expectoration, clears the throat and air passages, soothes and quiets the nerves which cause coughing, and thoroughly cures all throat and bronchial troubles. There are other preparations of Linseed and Turpentine put up in imitation of Dr. Chase's. Be sure that the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase are on the bottle you buy. 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—I was for seven years a sufferer from Bronchial trouble, and would be so hoarse at times that I could scarcely speek above a whisper. I got no relief from anything till I tried your MINARD'S HONEY BALSAM. Two bottles gave relief and six bottles made a complete cure. I would heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from throat or lung trouble.

Vegetables and roots—Potatoes were in fair supply, although there was only about one-third of the amount that was offered on Thursday. Prices were a trifle firmer, most of the loads selling at 60c by the bag; 65c to 70c was paid for the single bag. Onions sell at 60c to $1 per bushel, the latter price for large Spanish onions; green onions were held at two bunches for 5c. Turnips and carrots sold at 30c to 40c per bag. Cauliflowers were 50c to $1 per bushel. Red cabbage sold at 50c to 60c per dozen.

WENT TO PIECES

Schooner Eureka Gave Out Off Kincardine—Mrs. Baker, the Cook, Died From the Cold.

Kincardine, Ont., Nov. 9.—The schooner Eureka, loaded with lumber from Tawas, Mich., for Lorain, O., went to pieces Thursday evening, about 20 miles from this place.

The fate of the old-timer was not different from that of the Jupiter and other vessels which have passed out of existence this season. In the gale of Thursday the old boat waterlogged and was knocked to pieces by the seas. The crew took to a raft they had made, and succeeded in reaching shore two miles north of here at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. They brought with them the lifeless body of Mrs. Arthur Baker, wife of the mate, who succumbed to the cold and exposure on the raft during the night.

The crew was composed of the following: Capt. Henry Hughes, Port Huron; Mate Arthur Baker, Cheboygan; Fred Carpenter and James Sharkey, Alpena.

FAST STEAMERS.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Robert Reford, the well-known steamship manager, and member of the harbor commission, in a letter printed this morning, ranks himself among those who believe a fast line of steamers between a Cape Breton port and Galway is a practicable enterprise, the operation of which would be of much profit to Canadian trade. The growth of travel, Mr. Reford says, has made "limited" trains a regular institutions in land journeying, and the suggested Atlantic line would be only the application of the "limited" idea to ocean transport.

BEACHED.

Colchester, Ont., Nov. 9.—The tow barge Ironcliff, which left Toledo last evening, bound up, was led astray by her compass refusing to work, and as a result is now beached half a mile west from here. The vessel is resting easy now, but is badly exposed, with a southwest wind.

Lawrence McCormick, who seemed to be in a semi-stupor, was taken into custody by the police. He said the woman's name was Alice Sturgis, and that he drove with her to the Savin Rock, a shore resort last night. Of subsequent occurrences he gave a confused account.

Sunderland, Ont., Nov. 8. — J. H. Glendenning, of the firm of J. H. Glendenning & Co., was drowned in Lake Scugog today. He was out duck shooting, and the concussion of his gun capsized his boat, upsetting him into shallow water, covering very deep mud, in which he stuck fast. Mr. King went in a punt, and drew Mr. Glendenning out of the mud, but he expired in about ten minutes. He leaves a widow and one child.

SHOT HIMSELF.

Fonthill, Ont., Nov. 9.—William Tice, of Ridgeville, Welland county, who had been in poor health for the past year, took his own life in a fit of despondency yesterday. Tice left his home soon after breakfast, leaving a note on the table, which was shortly after found by his sister, intimating that they would find him in Haist's bush. Search was at once made, resulting in the discovery of his body, with two bullet wounds in his head, his hand still grasping a 32-caliber revolver, three chambers of which were empty. Tice was unconscious when found, and he expired shortly after. He was a son of the late Israel Tice, 38 years of age and unmarried.

ROBBER KILLED.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 9.—One bandit was killed and one injured as the result of an attempt by three masked robbers to hold up the gambling house of Deel & Co., at Waco, Ariz., a border town. The dead bandit was Will Craven, of Dog Springs, N. M. A group of gamers and loungers were present when the desperadoes entered the saloon at a late hour, and ordered "hands up." Craven approached the roulette wheel and proceeded to fill a bag with the bank cash, amounting to several thousand dollars. Ellis drew a revolver before the movement was detected by the robbers, and Craven fell dead when he was shot. The other bandits fled in disorder. One of them was wounded by another bullet from Ellis' revolver.

STUDIOUS GIRLS.

School Days are Dangerous Periods With Our Girls.

A Chicago Girl Relates Her Experience.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham is inclined to the belief that our girls are pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality, —often it is never recovered.

The dawn of womanhood is always a danger period and it is made doubly so by over exertion in study or work.

All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

The case of Miss Anna Oeftering, whose portrait we publish herewith, is a fair example of over estimation of physical endurance. Read her experience, and how she was cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MISS ANNA OEFTERING,
President of the Young Ladies Sodality, St. Alphonse Society, of Chicago.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—To be a well woman once more seems little short of perfect happiness. For two years I suffered intensely with nervousness brought on by falling of the womb and general weakness of the female organs. I had leucorrhœa which sapped my strength, and although the doctors said an operation would be necessary I felt too weak to think of undergoing such an ordeal. One of my classmates who had suffered afflictions and been cured through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it, and I was only too glad to do so. I thought there was little hope for me, but was happily disappointed in finding that I soon began to feel better and stronger. I used 15 bottles before I was entirely well, but it was worth one hundred dollars a bottle to me, for it brought me new life and perfect health. Accept a grateful woman's thanks."—ANNA OEFTERING, 1244 Seminary Place, Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life; with it she can go through with courage and safety the work she must accomplish, and fortify her physical well being so that her future life may be insured against sickness and suffering.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I thought I would write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I suffered with pains in my stomach nearly all the time for one year; had no color in my lips or face and I felt dull all the time. I tried the doctor, but he did me no good. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I am now well. Your medicines have done me so much good that I cannot praise them enough."—MISS MABEL CLARK, Starkey, N.Y. (April 10, 1901.)

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be well.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THE great demand for a pleasant, safe and reliable antidote for all affections of the throat and lungs is fully met with in Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It is a purely Vegetable Compound, and acts promptly and magically in subduing all coughs, colds, bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, etc. It is so PALATABLE that a child will not refuse it, and is put at a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave their first formal dinner at the White House Thursday night, when a company of eighteen persons assembled.

WORMS DERANGE the whole system. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator deranges worms, and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be convinced.

Receipts for the first day at the advance sale of seats at the Garden Theater for the coming horse show in New York were $30,000. This is said to be $5,000 more than the total receipts from the sale in 1900.

THERE ARE so many cough medicines in the market that it is sometimes difficult to tell which to buy; but if we had a cough, a cold or an affliction of the throat or lungs, we would try Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. Those who have used it think it is far ahead of all other preparations recommended for such complaints. The little folks like it, as it is as pleasant as syrup.

Grover Cleveland, speaking in Pittsburg, deprecated strife between labor and capital, and blamed both sides.

FOR THE OVERWORKED.—What are the causes of despondency and melancholy? A disordered liver is one cause and a prime one. A disordered liver means a disordered stomach, and a disordered stomach means disturbance of the nervous system. This brings the whole body into subjection and the victim feels sick all over. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a recognized remedy in this state and relief will follow their use.

CRIMINAL DOCKET FOR COUNTY COURT.

Half-Dozen Cases Will Come Up for Trial, But None of Importance.

The criminal list for the county court and general sessions of the peace, which open on Tuesday, Dec. 10, does not include any of striking seriousness. The most important one is the case of Chief John Henry, of Muncey, charged with shooting and wounding Wm. Doxtater. As Doxtater recovered, instead of dying quietly, as he was reported to have done, the case will probably not excite much interest. The other cases are: Mrs. Annie Biggs, charged with stealing from Samuel Clarke, Muncey; Geo. E. Fisher, charged with assaulting a fellow-Indian, Charles Iliskokomon; George Hanson, charged with appropriating a coat belonging to R. E. Graham, of Ilderton, and Squire W. T. Nugent, of Belmont, who is charged with committing perjury by swearing falsely to property qualifications. There is a possibility that any of these cases will be tried instead at the county judge's criminal court.

APPLES SHIPPED TO NORTHWEST.

Twenty Thousand Dollars Worth of Fruit From London District.

Mr. A. C. McPherson, of 420 Oxford street, president of the McPherson Fruit Company, Winnipeg, reports that he has shipped to Winnipeg this fall over 7,000 barrels of apples from the district immediately surrounding London. The value of the total shipment is over $20,000, a large amount of money which has gone into the pockets of the fruit-growing farmers of this district. The McPherson Company are the largest importers of fruit in the Northwest.

HEARTBURN.

Many Sufferers From This Affection Fail to See Their Real Danger Till They Are Completely Laid Up With Chronic Indigestion.

Heartburn is indigestion. The food instead of being properly digested and assimilated ferments and lies a sour, rotting mass in the stomach.

The consequences are always unpleasant and a great menace to all good health.

If not corrected heartburn culminates in dyspepsia or chronic indigestion.

It is simply a warning that should be promptly heeded. Something should be done at once to correct the disordered condition of the stomach and digestive organs.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are especially designed to cure all such weaknesses. They digest the food allowing rest and recuperation to the stomach. They correct at once all derangements. They stimuate and strengthen the action of the liver and bowels. They tone up the system, and obliterate every trace of heartburn, flatulency, gas on the stomach, sour stomach or other symptoms of wrong digestive action.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets do more than relieve. They cure. Cure permanently and forever all stomach troubles.

They are 50 cents a box, and are sold by all druggists.

Sufferers from heartburn should lose no time in procuring a box of this remedy. It will cure, and by its prompt use you may yet avert the pains of chronic dyspepsia. However, if you have waited too long, and have already entered the final stages, don't despair. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure you, but of course it is easier and cheaper to prevent than cure.

Mrs. William S. Cowles, sister of President Roosevelt, was robbed of, or lost about ten days ago, a diamond brooch valued at about $5,000.

DEATH OF MRS. ARCHER.

Eliza Jane Archer, wife of Chas. Archer, of 841 Lovett street, died early this morning, at the family residence, at the age of 37 years. Deceased was the second eldest daughter of John Munse, of Delaware, and had lived in this city a number of years. Her husband and two small children survive her. The funeral takes place from the family residence on Monday, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery at 2:30 p.m. Services will be conducted at 2 o'clock.

GAVE MRS. BALDWIN FLOWERS.

Woodstock Times: Mrs. Baldwin wife of Bishop Baldwin, read a paper yesterday afternoon to a large number of ladies from both New St. Paul's and Old St. Paul's Mission Auxilaries, assembled at Old St. Paul's Church. It was the same paper Mrs. Baldwin read at the triennial meeting in Montreal, and was very much enjoyed by all the ladies present. Rev. Mr. Shaw led the devotional exercises. In return the ladies presented Mrs. Baldwin with a bouquet of beautiful chrysanthemums, hers and the bishop's favorite flowers.

A HAZY POLICY.

Globe: Mr. L. K. Cameron, Queen's printer, is suing the Imperial Registry Company for $70 for medical attendance rendered necessary by a bicycle accident in Toronto. The company, which insures against accident while the insured is away from home, disputes payment, interpreting "home" as meaning Toronto. It also claims that it is not liable for more than $70. Judge Morson complained of the haziness of the policy and reserved judgment.

A complete tour of the promising country will be made, together with an examination of its mineral resources. There is a great deal of large game in New Ontario, and the four can be promised good sport and probably some exciting adventures. The party have procured several large hunting dogs to take with them.

A meeting of the Athenaia, the literary and musical society of Harding Hall, was held last evening in the college chapel. Stevenson, secretary; Harding Hall song, the school; piano solo, Muriel Saunders; reading, Olive Weld; piano solo, Olive Peters; mandolin solo, Alice Baker; reading, Miss Walker; piano solo, Violet Moore; "The Story of Enoch Arden," J. ELSEWHERE.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Montrealers are not observing his majesty's birthday under favorable auspices, the day being dark and dreary. Although official business is closed, most of the retail stores are doing business as usual, likely on account of its being Saturday and an awkward day for the stoppage of that class of business. The newspapers are publishing as usual. Flags are flying throughout the city in honor of the event. At noon a royal salute was fired on the Champ de Mars.

What Would You Give

To be cured of catarrh? If you or your friends have this disease, you know how disagreeable it is. Its symptoms are inflamed eyes, throbbing temples, ringing noises in the ears, headaches, capricious appetite and constant discharge of mucous. Fortunately, its cure is not a question of what you will give, but what you will take. If you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great constitutional remedy, which thoroughly purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, you may expect to be completely and permanently cured. The good blood which Hood's Sarsaparilla makes, reaching the delicate passages of the mucous membrane, soothes and rebuilds the tissues and ultimately cures all symptoms of catarrh.

For cuts, wounds, rheumatism, stiff joints, burns, scalds, bites of insects, croup, coughs, colds, Hagyard's Yellow Oil will be found an excellent remedy. f

CONSCRIPTION FORESHADOWED!

Some British Cabinet Ministers Favor the Measure.

Canada's Offer of Another Contingent Has Not Been Acted Upon—Punch's Cartoons Sold to Roosevelt.

London, Nov. 9.—During the lengthy cabinet conferences this week, a representative of the Associated Press learns the question of re-enforcing the old ballot laws came up for discussion. Many of the cabinet ministers were strongly in favor of putting in practice this form of conscription, for which obsolete laws already provide. Thus new legislation would be obviated. War Secretary Broderick already has caused guarded feelers on his matter to be circulated in the press, for it appears to be almost impossible to keep the home forces up to adequate strength and supply the necessary reinforcements for South Africa on the volunteer system of enlistment alone. Such a strenuous measure, however, would doubtless cause a storm of disapproval in Great Britain, and it will not be enacted unless the war situation shall become graver. What conditions have come over the state of the country in two years can be judged from the fact that the war has examined closely the old ballot laws and has prepared an elaborate plan by which they can be sprung upon the public at a moment's notice.

OFFER OPEN.

Inquiry at the war office regarding Canada's offer of mounted infantry made last May elicited a reply that the Imperial Government had taken no steps as yet to avail themselves of the offer, which is still regarded as open. The war office would have to receive the sanction of the cabinet before accepting the offer.

BRITISH NAVAL POLICY.

The Government's naval policy is soon likely to be brought prominently and perhaps unpleasantly to public notice, as Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford will shortly be relieved of his post as second in command of the Mediterranean fleet, and is coming home to enter parliament at the earliest opportunity. Lord Beresford intends to devote his energies to a political career until it comes his turn to command the channel squadron, which has always been the height of his ambition. While on duty in the Mediterranean, Lord Beresford has won every sham battle in which he was engaged.

Paris, Nov. 9.—Admiral Caillard has telegraphed particulars of the seizure of the customs at the principal port of the Island of Mitylene. Telegraphic communication between Constantinople and Mitylene is now reported.

THE CZAR TICKLED.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 9.—Replying to a congratulatory telegram from the finance minister, M. De Witte, announcing the completion of the Siberian Railroad, the czar telegraphed as follows:

"I thank you sincerely for your joyful communication. I congratulate you on the completion within so short a time, and amid incredible difficulties, of one of the greatest railroad undertakings of the world."

M. De Witte's telegram recalls the fact that the czar turned the first sod of the railroad to Vladivostock, May 19, 1891, and that on the anniversary of his accession the line was completed. The minister adds: "With the laying of rails a distance of 2,400 versts, from Transbaikal territory to Vladivostock and Port Arthur, our enterprise in Manchuria is practically, though not entirely concluded. Temporary traffic is now possible along the whole system, and we hope that within two years it will be opened to permanent, regular traffic."

DYING OF CANCER

Doctors Had Given Up All Hope, But the New Constitutional Remedy Effected a Complete Cure.

Some people are inclined to say when they hear of cancer being cured, "Oh, it likely wasn't cancer at all."

Here is a case that should settle the matter once and for all, as far as the new remedy is concerned. A lady living in the Province of Quebec, writes that her husband was very ill; one doctor thought it bilious fever. As the man was getting worse, two doctors were called in consultation, and they pronounced it a case of tumor of the stomach of a cancerous nature and that the patient could not live. Our constitutional remedy for cancer was sent for, and the result of using it was marvelous. Pain disappeared, the patient gradually gained strength, and in a few months' time he was perfectly well and able to do farm work.

The full report of this case is given on page 31 of our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to any address on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

ELSIE.

"No, no! worse than that—much worse. You know what was whispered at the time, Miss Bracegirdle, though people were afraid to speak too plainly. Well, now the boys are crying his name about the streets. They say there are fresh discoveries, and an order is given—a warrant for his arrest—and he has escaped!"

"Poor young man! I—I hope they will not find him," said Pauline. "Oh! how ill I feel; what a shock this news has given me!"

"Were you in love with Owen, also?" asked poor Rosa, in a tone of bitterness.

"Because another young lady was, and is gone home in consequence. Mr. Owen appears fascinating."

Pauline put her hands before her eyes. She was threatened with one of her sudden attacks of faintness. At any time the sudden mention of Lord Hammond's name had the power to throw her nervous system into a wild disorder. She said slowly to Rosa:

"Arthur Hammond was dear to me, and I was dear to him. I try to forget the past, but I cannot."

And she managed to escape by a side door from the ball room.

"So she has a heart, after all," said Rosa to herself. "I can see that by the anguish of her face. She loved him, then he fell in love with that wonderful Lady Mary, whom all the world made such a fuss about, and who is now gone away to France again, instead of shining like a planet in the London season. So this Miss Bracegirdle has a heart, after all, and I always called her a pig. Now I will dance if anyone asks me, though I don't feel the least like dancing, and I will go and see this girl's home; she said she had something to tell me. I wonder if anybody is in love with me, and she knows it?"

But just at that moment poor Rosa chanced to turn her head, and she caught sight of her own reflection in a plate-glass mirror let into a panel in a corner. Her fat, plain, flushed face, the ugliness of her eyes, the ungraceful outlines of her form, all struck her like a new revelation.

"Love is not for me," she said to herself. "If I fancy so, I shall find the sweet apples turn to ashes in my mouth, as I have done already. No, I will never believe in love again; the next time a man tells me that he loves me, I will tell him that my father has speculated and lost everything, and that we are beggars.

Just at that moment Rosa caught sight of the handsome face and tall form of the curate, Eldred Barker, among the crowd; he made straight for her, but she did not give him smile for smile.

"Not dancing, Miss Stanly?"

"Not yet; I am going to, though."

"May I sit by your side a few moments?"

Rosa laughed an unpleasant laugh; the discovery about Elsie, the conversation with Miss Bracegirdle, the sudden sight of her own plainness in the mirror, had all conspired to "turn a wholesome heart to gall."

Barker could not make her out.

"May I sit here?" he repeated.

"Certainly you may; who is to prevent you, Mr. Barker?"

"You might," he said sadly. "You might consider me a bore, and wish to get rid of me."

"I have never led you to suppose that I thought you a bore," she said. I feel sad; I have heard some dreadful things since I stepped out of the carriage at this door. First of all, I heard that Owen Hammond, to whom I was once engaged——. Oh, you must have heard the story."

"Of your engagement? Yes."

"He wanted me for my money, you see," said Rosa, sharply. She watched the handsome face of the curate, and she saw him turn pale and wince at her words.

"I have thrust home," she said to herself, and she felt inclined to thrust again and yet again, to wound the selfish sensitiveness of this would-be suitor.

"He was not singular, Mr. Barker. Several people, I suppose, would like to have my money; and as they cannot very well take it away from me without, I suppose, making themselves subject to the laws against thieves, they try to reconcile matters by pretending to love me. Unless I found them out in time I might actually become the lawful wedded wife of some man or other who considered me a nuisance, but was only anxious to take possession of all I had. I think in that case, do you know, that I should take the earliest opportunity of—say, drowning myself. Do you think that would be the easiest death They say so, don't they?"

Eldred Barker could not read between the lines. He thought that Rosa was in terrible trouble about Owen Hammond; that she must love him still.

"Are you sure he only wanted your money, Miss Stanly? but if so you are well escaped from a life of misery. I can quite understand how much you must feel the terrible situation in which he finds himself. But I think it is a pity that he tries to escape if he is innocent. And surely he is innocent of this horrible crime. Of course the news must have agitated you. It is a barbarous custom they have of crying these things about the streets."

"He came to me," said Rosa, going back to her own love memories and ignoring the terrible present crisis, "and said that he did not love me; that he had only wanted my money, and that he was in love with another girl. Now, I have found out who that girl is. He was very honest; but they say that—that—that he knew Lord Hammond was dead when he told me that he must give me up, and that he knew he should not long want money, or title, or lands. I tried to think that false."

Eldred Barker did not say what he thought in his heart—that the evidence now brought against Owen looked very black.

"If he is guilty," he said, "there will, for the sake of the family name, be a strong recommendation to mercy."

"I would rather lie in a convict cell, Mr. Barker, condemned to death, than become the wife of a man whom I loved, but who only wanted my money; and I have been making up my mind this night to abandon the frivolous, empty life that I am leading. Even now—when I think of Owen, and of how much I loved him, and of what it has all ended in—I feel inclined to tear these jewels and these flowers from my throat, my hair, my arms, and to trample them under my feet. I will not enter the lists with fairer women, wearing tokens of my wealth. They," she added, bitterly, "are my only charms. I will wear a nurse's cap; all my goods I will give to feed the poor; I will put myself under your guidance; you shall instruct a plain and charmless woman how to spend her wealth!"

"Miss Stanly—dear Miss Stanly—I had no idea. You seemed so cheerful—I thought you had forgotten him!"

Rosa turned round to decline, with a bow and a smile, the invitation of a very fine elderly Colonel to join the set of quadrilles, then she turned again to the curate.

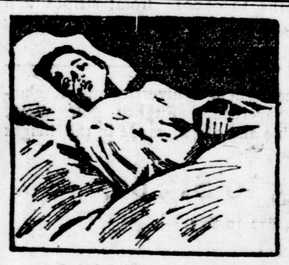

"I had forgotten," she said—"I had forgotten the lesson that Owen Hammond taught me; but tonight I hardly know how my eyes are opened."

"Owen Hammond was only one among many; but—"

He drew back.

"What does she mean!" said Barker to himself. "How spirited and earnest she looks tonight! How thoroughly womanly she is at heart! Ah, if she would give up wearing gaudy things and settle in a quiet life of domestic peace, I could give her honor and faith—yes, and love also!"

[To be Continued.]

There often comes a time in the struggle with pulmonary disease when the victim loses heart and gives up hope. The ambition to be up and around gives way before growing weakness, and the sufferer keeps to the bed.

No one who suffers from lung disease should lose heart or give up hope while there is a possibility of cure. In many cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured lung "trouble" when the cough was obstinate and deep seated, with hemorrhage, emaciation, night-sweats and general weakness. A great many men and women are living to-day in the full enjoyment of health and happiness who had been "given up" by doctors, but found a perfect and permanent cure in the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"My wife had hemorrhage of the lungs," writes W. A. Sanders, of Mera, Mason Co., W.Va. "She had ten hemorrhages, and the people all around here said she would never be well again. But she began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she soon began to gain strength and flesh. After taking ten bottles she was entirely well. Should you think this would do you any good to publish, just use it, and if any one disputes the merits of this almost omnipotent medicine they may enclose self-addressed envelope with stamp, and I will answer, the same as written in this letter."

KING OF JUMPERS.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—At the horse show last night, in the Coliseum, the high jumper, Heatherbloom, a bay gelding, six years old and sixteen hands high, owned by Howard Willets, of White Plains, N. Y., broke the world's indoor record for jumping horses. He cleared the bar at 7 feet 4½ inches. The previous record was made by Rosebery, who made a jump of 7 feet 3½ inches, in competition with Filemaker in this city several years ago. The horse was at his best. The first jump was made with the bar standing at 6 feet 3 inches. Twice the bar was raised slightly, and each time was easily cleared by Heatherbloom. Then the barrier was set for a world's record, and, intensely interested, the great audience awaited the order for a test. The wait was not long, for in a few minutes Heatherbloom sprung lightly over and the mark and the new world's record were made. Deafening applause for the owner, horse, and rider was the climax of the notable effort.

AMERICAN CITIZEN.

New York, Nov. 9.—Bob Fitzsimmons, the pugilist, finally foreswore allegiance to King Edward and became an American citizen yesterday. The papers were issued to him by Judge Aspinwall, of Brooklyn, before whom Fitzsimmons appeared in fashionable suit and baggy overcoat, with silk hat in hand. "What is your occupation?" asked the court. "I am an actor, now, sir," replied the blonde giant. Fitzsimmons has lived in the United States thirteen years, and took out his first papers eight years ago.

JEFFORDS KNOCKED OUT BY MAHER.

Baltimore, Nov. 9.—Peter Maher put a sudden stop to the championship aspirations of Jim Jeffords, of California last night in the second round of what was to be a 10-round contest, before the Eureka A. C.. Both men stripped as fit as a fiddle, and Jeffords having all the best of it in height and reach. The first round began with a light punch and a clinch, after which both landed lightly and clinched again. Then Jeffords touched Peter with a right on the ribs, and they came to a clinch. As they broke away Jeffords touched Peter on the chin, and the latter growled about a foul, which the referee declined to allow. Jeffords landed lightly again, and then another right touched Peter on the ribs, and they clinched once more. When they broke away, they sparred a while, after Peter sent his right to the head without effect. The bell rang with honors easy. In the second round Maher swung his right to the body. They mixed it, and exchanged a series of right and left swings, in which Jeffords got a hard right punch on the jaw and went to the floor. He lay there until the referee counted five. When he got up, they mixed again, both sending in hard rights and left to the ribs and face. Peter got it this time with a stiff right jab on the neck, went to the floor, and, on the advice of his seconds, stayed down until six was counted. When he got up they mixed it again, and after a mutual exchange of half a dozen terrific rights and lefts Peter sent his right to the stomach, and immediately landed on the chin with the same hand, and Jeffords was down and out. Time, 1 minute and 4 seconds.

THE PETERBORO CLUB EN ROUTE TO LONDON.

Peterboro, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Peterboro Rugby Club left at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon for London, where they will play their first game in the finals with the Forest City team today. The Peterboro team is a weak one, as at the last moment several juniors had to be taken on. Revell, Peterboro's best scrimmage man, was unable to go, and Crowley, who plays at inside wing, was badly injured at last night's practice. The remainder of the team, however, is in the pink of condition, and are prepared to make the fight of their lives.

IS IN GOOD SHAPE!

The Business Situation Throughout the Dominion Shows Activity---The Outlook Bright---State of Trade Across the Border.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Bradstreet's trade review, weekly summary:

Business at London is quite brisk. The grain deliveries are not heavy, but it is expected they will show a large increase shortly. The jobbing trade is good, and values are being well maintained for all classes of staple goods.

Trade at Ottawa has been moderately active. Some large shipments are being made to inland points, and the demand for supplies for the winter has been heavy. Payments have been more satisfactory.

Business conditions at Hamilton are encouraging. The movement in seasonable lines is large, many country orders coming forward for prompt delivery. Values of staple goods are firm.

The colder weather has improved the demand for heavy winter goods at Toronto during the week. There is a better feeling in business circles as a result, and the outlook for trade in the next two months is generally conceded to be very bright. There is a big demand for iron and steel, and a satisfactory feature is the large consumption of domestic iron. Steel prices are very firm. Country remittances are improving with the increased deliveries of grain, especially in the Northwest, and it is expected that when fall work on the farms in Ontario becomes impossible the deliveries of grain in this province will become more free and greatly stimulate trade.

Trade at Montreal this week has been active. There is a good sorting demand for drygoods and seasonable lines in other departments for the colder weather. The shipping trade is active; grains are most active, particularly oats and wheat. Remittances are fair, but should be better.

At Quebec business continues brisk, particularly in wholesale circles. Shoe manufacturers report orders coming in and the outlook is favorable. Outside of river craft there is a quietness in shipping circles.

The business situation at Winnipeg is in good shape—better than for a year or more, and in some respects the conditions are more healthy and generally more encouraging than they have ever been before. Payments are improving, and the outlook for trade is unusually bright. A large holiday trade is looked for.

Trade at the Pacific coast cities is moderately active. The fall demand for seasonable lines is very fair now. The demand from the mining centers is very fair. Payments are only fair.

IN THE UNITED STATES.

New York, Nov. 8.—Dun's review: Little relief has been afforded the leading manufacturing industry in the matter of transportation facilities. In fact, the situation, on the whole, is less satisfactory, since inability to secure cars has brought about the banking of some furnaces. This in turn tends to harden the market for pig iron, though no actual alteration in prices has occurred, except at Philadelphia, where 25 cents more a ton is readily paid. As this industry is considered the best business barometer, present conditions and future prospects are certainly most encouraging, for orders are abundant and plants enlarging capacity in order to handle the growing business. Railway needs were never more pressing, every form of equipment being sought, and it is possible more orders will be placed abroad.

Textile mills in New England are busy, and there is no longer any fear of labor controversy at Fall River. Print cloths have ceased to be inflated, standard widths resuming the former quotations of 3 cents, and meeting with a fair demand. Domestic buying of all staple cottons is seasonably quiet; and the views of exporters are still below those of sellers. Recent declines in the raw material have not weakened prices, as there was no commensurate advance in goods when the cotton market was rising. Reports from the south indicate that spindles are well occupied.

In woolens there is a free movement of women's dress goods, and orders are plentiful in heavy-weight lines for immediate delivery. Footwear is firm, at last week's advance, and eastern manufacturers are beginning work on spring orders. Leather is held at the best prices of the season, and dry hides rose further on heavy sales.

Weather conditions were the chief factors in determining price changes of staple products. Low temperature in grain-growing states brought a higher level of quotations, corn rising 25 cents above the figure ruling at the corresponding date last year, and 26 cents over 1899. These advances of more than 50 per cent are far in excess of the ratio of loss in production, and establishes a fictitious price level which curtailed Atlantic exports to 642,142 bushels for the week, against 2,520,170 bushels last year, and 3,458,104 two years ago. On the other hand, wheat is moving out freely at both coasts, shipments from the United States for the week amounting to 5,651,473 bushels, against 5,210,164 bushels in the same week of 1900 and 3,927,203 in 1899. Vigorous milling and foreign demands caused a fair advance in price to about last year's figure, despite the difference in output.

Cotton weakened still further. At the lower price, however, exports are heavy, and tend to prevent any serious reaction.

Coffee advanced, despite the record-breaking supply.

Liabilities of failures in the first week of November were only $1,121,982, against $1,360,967 last year and $1,331,647 two years ago. Manufacturing defaults were $336,945 and trading $765,925. Failures for the week numbered 243 in the United States, against 210 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 18 last year.

BRADSTREET'S.

Bradstreet's report: The trade situation possesses many points of strength and few of weakness. Colder weather throughout the country has stimulated trade in heavy clothing, shoes, groceries and rubber goods. While nearly all the industries are active, special strength and activity has been displayed in iron and steel. So urgent has been the inquiry that some German steel billets have been imported and larger takings are looked for. The shortage of cars is an additional retarding feature just at present, and the effect upon the coke trade has been so marked as to cause the shutdown of twenty blast furnaces in the Pittsburg district. Pig iron is in good demand. Railway material is very active at Chicago, and 50,000 tons of steel rails have been ordered by western roads this week. Iron bars and nails display weakness and are lower. Hardware continues active at nearly all markets. Some irregularity is noted for cotton goods, owing to the weakness in raw material, the result of the growth of larger estimates.

The Fall River wage situation has been clarified by a reduction in wages made by the manufacturer who some weeks ago advanced them. Print cloths are firm for prompt delivery, at 3½c, but some sales have been made for January delivery at 3c.

Woolen goods machinery is actively employed, and heavy quantities of raw wool are being consumed, but sales are not as large as those of last week, which were the heaviest of any week for years past. The markets, relieved of this weight of wool, have been rather firmer, with an upward tendency.

What, including flour, exports for the week aggregate 5,469,649 bushels, as against 6,672,888 bushels last week and 3,555,507 bushels in this week last year. Wheat exports, July 1 to date (19 weeks), aggregate 112,198,918 bushels, as against 66,355,797 bushels last season. Corn exports aggregate 702,284 bushels, as against 606,159 bushels last week and 3,287,627 bushels last year. July 1 to date corn exports are 17,447,844 bushels, against 56,465,214 bushels last season.

The coal trade was in good position previous to the cold weather. Coal has lost none of its strength since, and the only source of complaint is the small stock in dealers' hands and the trouble growing out of the scarcity of cars. The same complaint comes from the lumber trade, the open fall weather having stimulated demand at first and second hands.

Raw sugar is lower, in sympathy with the continued bearish feeling here and abroad, and refined is ten points lower all around.

Coffee is slightly higher on smaller crop estimates.

The leather trade is rather quieter than of late. Shoe factories are now finishing up their winter orders, preparing to turning the machinery on spring goods. No signs of weakness is to be noted in prices. Hides are firm and unchanged. Shoe shipments continue largely in excess of a year ago.

DELICIOUS AND HEALTHFUL

Malt Breakfast Food

Delicious and healthful! A happy combination found only in Malt Breakfast Food.

You may be a user of stomach-irritating oatmeal or other grain foods difficult to digest. You use them merely from force of habit. Can you truly say that they are delicious and appetizing? We think not. They certainly do not conduce to good digestion and regular health. They contain too much insoluble starch. This element taxes the powers of digestion, uses up bodily energy, and too often aids Bright's disease and diabetes.

Malt Breakfast Food is a sustaining and energizing food, a nourisher of body and brain, a builder of flesh, bone and muscle. You are not half enjoying life if you are without Malt Breakfast Food each morning. Breakfast commenced with a dish of Malt Breakfast Food means that you go to your day's work fortified with energy and strength.

HOME WORK FOR EVERYBODY--DON'T BE IDLE

We want men, women and children to work for us at their own homes, under the direction of

The PEOPLE'S KNITTING SYNDICATE, Limited

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL $180,000

HEAD OFFICE, McKINNON BLDG., TORONTO, ONT.

To fill large Contracts—Good Wages Easily Earned.

We want a few more workers in this locality, at once, and in order to secure your co-operation without the delay of correspondence, we herewith explain our full plan in this advertisement. The work is simple, and the Machine is easily operated, and with the Guide requires no teacher. If you wish to join our staff of workers let us hear from you promptly with the Contract, order form, and remittance as a guarantee, and we will send machine and outfit to begin work at once.

OUR METHOD OF DOING BUSINESS.

We wish to secure the services of families to do knitting for us in their homes. Our method is the same as adopted in England. We are the introducers of this plan and the largest knitting concern in Canada.

After long experience, we have been able to produce an Automatic Machine by which all kinds of seamless knitting is now done by our Family Machine, thereby enabling anyone of ordinary intelligence to quickly learn to do the work from the instruction Guide. All we require is that you use the machine according to directions. The machine being made expressly for this purpose, and the operation so simple, it cannot possibly make a mistake in its work.

The great demand now is for Bicycle Stockings, Woodmen's Socks and Motormen's Mittens, and as we are unable to supply the demand, have taken this method of advertising for more help.

The large export trade to the North-West Territories, British Columbia, and the British Colonies, furnishes an unlimited demand for our goods, and, with the combined co-operation of the many families we are employing, together with the large amount of knitting we are able to turn out, by which we save rents, insurance, interest on capital, etc., enables us to undersell any manufacturers of this class of goods, and we have sale for all the knitting we can have turned out.

The price we pay for finished bicycle stockings is $10.00 per hundred, or at the rate of 10c. per pair; woodmen's socks, 5c.; and motormen's mittens, 12c. a pair. All other work in proportion to size.

The machine can be operated by anyone of a family, and at our prices any energetic family should be able to sustain themselves comfortably, and in time be a source of independent comfort.

Our plan is to send out each machine to beginners with a sock or stocking partially knitted, and remaining in the machine ready to be continued, and also enough yarn to knit one pair of same size and a simple and complete Instruction Guide, showing how the work is to be done. When the samples have been finished and returned to us satisfactory, we send a quantity of yarn, which you knit and return likewise when finished. We prepay charges on all work one way, and our workers pay return charges. The work, as we have stated, is simple and rapidly done, the machine having a capacity of ten thousand stitches a minute. We have many persons now in our employ who can knit from twenty-five to thirty pairs of socks or stockings a day, and where the time of a family is devoted to the work, you can readily see that from $7 to $10 per week can be easily earned.

We furnish our workers all the materials, yarn, etc., free, and everything that is necessary for the work. We are furnishing the machines only for the exclusive use of those desiring to take employment with us, when must, in order to became a member, send us this Contract Order Form, properly signed by them, and at least one good reference, and remittance accordingly, to give us the necessary assurance that the quantities of valuable yarn, we may send from time to time will not be wasted or misappropriated. Our interests are mutual, and this confidence must be established if we are to succeed. We guarantee fair dealing and prompt payment for work, so do not ask us to deviate from our terms, as we cannot make a distinction with one and not another; besides, we are doing an extensive business, and must be governed by business principles.

The manufactured price of the machine is $15, and positively will not be sold to any others than those who will agree to do knitting for us.

There is a large demand by the trade for this class of work. Our workers can depend upon it year after year, and if you engage with us (whole or spare time) we will keep you supplied with work as long as you do it satisfactorily for us and return it promptly. We entrust our workers with large quantities of valuable yarn, and as we give references as to our honesty and integrity, we must ask you to do the same, in order that we may know with whom we are dealing.

We have, in as brief manner as possible, endeavored to show you what our work is, and we simply say as to the machine, it is just what we represent it to be, and will positively do everything we claim for it, or refund the money. Each machine, securely packed with an outfit, is set up for work, thoroughly tested, and a sock or stocking partially knitted before boxing and shipping. Should you decide to engage with us, it will be necessary to send us Cash Contract Order Form, properly signed by you, and at least one good reference, together with the remittance accordingly, upon receipt of which we will forward machine and outfit, ready to commence.

We are so frequently and unnecessarily asked if one can learn to knit without a teacher. We say, Yes: it requires no teacher; any person of ordinary intelligence who can read the Instruction Guide can learn to knit at once.

If at any time a worker becomes dissatisfied and wishes to discontinue in our employ we will take back the machine and return the money, provided the machine is in good condition as when received, and provided an amount of work equal to the amount paid for machine has been done.

Respectfully yours,

SURPRISED HER HUSBAND WITH TRIPLETS.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—The wife of Alex. Sinesac, jun., living on a farm in the township of Anderson, on Thursday presented her husband with triplets—two girls and a boy. The boy and one of the girls lived only a few hours after birth, but the remaining child shows signs of robustness and, it is believed, will live. The mother is about 30 years old, of slight build and in appearance quite frail. The doctors report her as doing very well.

—Mr. John Hyde, the well-known horse dealer, died yesterday morning at the family residence, 89 Fullarton street, from brain fever of two months' duration. WILL RESIDE IN LONDON.

A notable addition to London's coterie of professional entertainers is Mr. Bertram Stuart and Miss Dolly Harcourt (Mrs. Stuart), who reached the city this week, and who intend to take up residence here. They have hitherto resided in Manchester, England, and have there attained a more than local name by their ability to provide an evening of interesting entertainment. Mr. Stuart's special line of effort is that of dramatic recital, while Miss Harcourt is a clever elocutionist and vocalist. They will give a complimentary concert at an early date, which will doubtless serve as an excellent introduction to the public of this city.

COUNTY LIQUOR CASES.

Wm. McKee, of Denfield, was charged yesterday by License Inspector Bailey, of East Middlesex, with selling liquor during prohibited hours on Saturday, Oct. 19. The case was heard by Squire Lacey, who dismissed it.

John Garrison, of the London View Hotel, will appear before Squire Lacey today charged with selling liquor on Sunday last to minors. The charge is laid by Inspector Bailey.

DIED VERY SUDDENLY.

Miss Ann C. Frank, of the Wellington road, died very suddenly yesterday. She was driving into her yard, when she suddenly fell forward and, in spite of assistance, almost immediately expired. Deceased's health had been impaired for some time; but her illness was not thought of such a serious nature as to cause death. Miss Frank had been driving for some time before her death. Deceased was born in in 1844, and with her sister, Miss Elizabeth, had resided on the Wellington road for many years. She was a daughter of the late Richard and Elizabeth Frank, and is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Jane M. Rudd and Miss Elizabeth, and three brothers, Wm. P., Richard S. and John. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon.

ANNUAL BALL.

The annual ball of the Metal Polishers', Buffers' and Platers' Union, held last evening in the city hall, was a highly successful event. Over 100 couples were in attendance. Music was provided by Ensign's Orchestra, and Mr. S. Taylor acted as master of ceremonies. A dainty supper was served at the Walsh House during he evening. The reception committee, who were largely responsible for the success of the affair were the following: Messrs. W. Pugsley (chairman), C. Bailey (secretary), A. Leonard (treasurer), G. Hills, C. Montgomery, F. Higman, W. Lyons, J. Smith, D. Wright, A. Dengate, J. Misner and E. Bathurst.

ESCAPE WAS MIRACULOUS

Fast Train Struck Vehicle of Mr. and Mrs. McKerlie.

Their Horse Was Carried Over Fifty Feet and Killed, But They Both Escaped.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKerlie, who reside on lot 14, con. 1, Westminster township, had a miraculous escape from death last night. Mr. and Mrs. McKerlie had spent the evening at Pottersburg, and had started to drive home, when, in attempting to cross the tracks of the Grand Trunk Railway, half a mile south of Pottersburg, their vehicle was struck by the accommodation train, due from Niagara Falls at 9:30 p.m. The locomotive struck the horse and carried it over 50 feet, and finally passed over it, cutting it in two. The buggy was dragged along parallel with the engine, Mr. and Mrs. McKerlie being thrown out between it and the rails. How they escaped instant death they will never know. As it was Mrs. McKerlie was painfully bruised and suffered from shock, while Mr. McKerlie escaped with very slight injuries.

So slight was the shock caused by the accident that the engineer supposed his machine had struck a cow, and he did not slow up. He reported the matter at the Richmond street depot, and a freight train from the east was directed to stop at the crossing and ascertain what had occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. McKerlie were at once removed to their home, where their wounds were dressed by a physician.

How the accident occurred, Mr. McKerlie is at a loss to explain. He was familiar with the crossing, and had driven over it many times. Last night as he approached it he saw a light some distance down the track, but it appeared to be stationary, and as he heard no sounds of an approaching train he came to the conclusion it was a light in a farm house. The train which struck his horse was running at a high rate of speed.

COUNTY COUNCIL IN THREE WEEKS

Debentures To Be Sold and New Bridges To Be Discussed.

The next meeting of county council is set for Monday, Dec. 2, now little more than three weeks away. In addition to the routine business, there will be the sale of $20,000 debentures to transact. These debentures are to retire others. The Caradoc bridge question will also probably be gone into again, while other new bridges may also be considered.

DRASTIC PENALTY.

Toronto, Nov. 9. — Four Buffalo sportsmen last Sunday went out duck shooting on the Niagara River, and finding no luck on the American side they rode into Canadian waters. It is claimed that they had not fired a shot when they were arrested, taken to Chippewa, and arraigned before Magistrate James, of Fort Erie, who imposed on each the maximum penalty of $25 fine, confiscated their guns, valued at $200, their boat valued at $50, and added costs to the amount of $39 65. The penalties aggregated $389 65. The Buffalo men have made an appeal to Hon. F. R. Latchford, who instructed Chief Game Warden Tinsley to make an investigation.

Fire bugs are operating in Portsmouth, Ont. Early yesterday morning an unoccupied house was fired—the second in a week.

A GIRL'S TALE

With a Reason for Misleading the Father.

"We have tried for a long time to persuade papa that perhaps his diet had something to do with his ill feelings, and he used to laugh and say, 'why, girls, I've been used to eating and drinking ever since I was a boy, I was trained that way; no, I fear some change has taken place in my body and I shall never be well again.

"We often suggested that he leave off coffee and tobacco, but he urged that they did not hurt him and were a comfort; so we acquiesced until one day sister insisted on making the coffee half Postum Food Coffee, and it was made that way for about ten days until papa seem brighter and complained less of his head.

"That's it!' sister exclaimed, and from that day she served Postum alone without any coffee.

"Papa never detected the difference, for we have learned the secret of making Postum to give it a prime, crisp flavor. It is easy enough. Just allow it to continue 15 minutes, counting from the time boiling commences, not from the time it is placed on the stove.

"Well the dear old soul seemed day by day to take on new life, he began to stay at the office later and was full of fun when he came home in the evening.

"The proof is plain enough that, morning after morning, year in and year out, we had been feeding our dear old governor with coffee that is really a strong liquid drug and it was gradually but surely killing him.

"When it was partially removed he got a little better and when it was entirely removed and the pure food coffee, Postum, served, his recovery was rapid.

"We don't fool Papa on many things but we just had to this time for he was steadily and surely leaving us and we love the dear old man too much to leave anything undone that will keep him here.

"It is woman's privilege, you know, to tease, cajole and beg, then 'finesse' if the dear old hard headed things won't listen to reason."
