

The Grand Trunk Railway Trainmen's Strike Is Settled

TRAINMEN GAIN A YEAR IN STANDARD WAGE SETTLEMENT IN NATURE OF A COMPROMISE

Increase Tendered by Company Accepted, But Goes Back to May 1.

NO DISCUSSION AS TO PENSIONS

Will Report for Duty at Once and Strike Breakers Are To Be Respected During the Period of Their Elimination.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—The Grand Trunk strike, which has lasted two weeks and one day, which has cost the company and the striking trainmen and conductors hundreds of thousands of dollars, and has meant immense industrial loss and inconvenience to the general public, is ended. The men, other than those who have been guilty of violence or disorderly conduct, go back to work at once on the increased schedule of rates offered by President Hays on July 18, averaging, according to the latter's statement, a general increase of 18 per cent, with the promise that the rates now in force on the C. P. R. lines east of Port William, which are practically the standard rates demanded by the men, shall come into force on Jan. 1, 1912, instead of a year later, as originally offered by President Hays.

Peace Pact Signed.
The terms of the agreement, concluded and signed by the representatives of both parties to the strike, were announced this evening by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, after a conference lasting most of the morning and afternoon between Vice-President Winwright, of the Grand Trunk, and Hon. Mr. King, assisted by Sir Frederick Borden and Hon. L. P. Brodeur.

The minister of labor, who, since the beginning of the strike, has been doing his utmost on behalf of the Government to secure a settlement, came back from Montreal last night with the tentative agreement reached between President Hays and the trainmen's officials. The final draft of the compromise was agreed upon this evening, and immediately handed to the press.

The minister of labor sent a telegram announcing the result to Messrs. Murdoch and Berry, representing the men, and received in reply a telegram stating that instructions had already been sent to call the strike off, and telling all the men who went on strike to report for duty at once.

The agreement is signed by President Hays, on behalf of the company; by President Garretson and Vice-President Berry of the Order of Railway Conductors; by President Lee and Vice-President Murdoch of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and by the members of the strikers' committees representing both unions.

ETHEL LENEVE FACES THE MURDER CHARGE

Her Name Coupled With Crippen's On the Warrant for Arrest.

London, Aug. 3.—Fifteen persons, for the most part women, who will be called as witnesses at the trial of Dr. Crippen, appeared before the Bow street magistrate at a private hearing yesterday for the purpose of making depositions to facilitate the proceedings in Canada. Paul Martinelli and his wife, who dined with the Crippens at their invitation on the evening of Jan. 31, the night on which Mrs. Crippen is said to have disappeared, were among those who gave testimony. The documents which were prepared and the other papers connected with the extradition of the couple from Quebec will be carried by Sergeant Mitchell, who will sail on the steamer Lake Manitoba on Thursday.

Both Are Charged.
Scotland Yard officials said today that the warrants of arrest charge both Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve with murder. They must, therefore, be charged together, and will return to London on the same steamer. The question of altering the charge has not yet been discussed, and it is expected to recommend such a course as could only be done by applying to the presiding judge at the commencement of the trial.

THE TERMS

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Hon. Mackenzie King tonight made public the terms of the agreement ending the strike on the Grand Trunk Railway. It is signed by President Hays for the company, and by the official representatives of the striking unions, and its text follows:

"1. The company will put back, as soon as possible, the men, other than those who have been or may be found guilty of acts of violence or disorderly conduct, the understanding being that there is to be no coercion or intimidation used towards the new men.

"2. The company will put into effect from May 1, 1910, the rates named in the schedule of rates dated July 18, 1910, those rates to be embodied in the present schedules now in effect on this line, it being understood that those rates shall in no instance effect a reduction in any existing rate.

"3. The company will on Jan. 1, 1912, make effective in train and yard service on the Grand Trunk Railway the rates of pay and the rules contained in the schedule of rates dated July 18, 1910, in effect on the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway east of Port William.

"The three above propositions shall apply also to the Central Vermont Railroad Company, the said railroad to be substituted for the Grand Trunk Railway, and the Rutland Railroad to be substituted for the Canadian Pacific Railway whenever the same are used or understood in the above. (In the case of the Central Vermont by the schedule of rates dated July 18, 1910, is meant the schedule issued by the management of that company since July 1, 1910.)"

PLEASED WITH INSURANCE CUT BUT IT IS NOT NEARLY ENOUGH

Chairman Pocock Says the Reduction Will Mean About 10 Per Cent On the Business Insurance of London—Mayor Beattie Says He Is Well Pleased—Other Opinions.

The announcement that the underwriters had given a reduction of 20 cents on the hundred on the key rate for London, is received with thankfulness, although the majority of citizens declare that the reduction is much less than they had hoped for. Better things and there is a tinge of disappointment noticeable.

"We must accept the reduction thankfully," said Chairman Pocock of the water commission. "At the same time, it is not so great as it might have been, nor is it a finality. We should continue to make such improvements as would result in bringing the rate down to the best possible terms."

BOYS FOOLED WITH CARTRIDGE

Four Cartwright Street Lads Had Narrow Escape From Bad Accident Yesterday.

ALL SLIGHTLY HURT

Undertook to Explode a Lee-Enfield Cartridge With a Hammer and Nail.

A fatal accident was narrowly averted yesterday when four boys, Arnold Bennett, Harry Boskette, Frank Devaney and Ivan Fisher, all of Cartwright street, were playing with a 303 Lee-Enfield cartridge, when it discharged, severely injuring one boy and slightly injuring the other three.

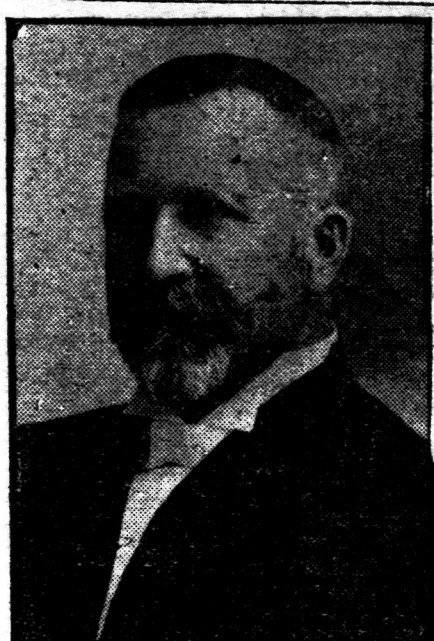

About 2:30 in the afternoon the lads met in a tent, which is situated in Mrs. Bennett's yard. Arnold Bennett produced a Lee-Enfield cartridge given him by Fred Delaney and started to play catch with it, tossing it up in the air. One of the boys thought it would be fine sport to let it off, so it was handed to Ivan Fisher, while one of the boys went home to get a hammer and nail.

They then started to hammer the cartridge into a post. When it was half way in Fisher took the nail and hammer to explode it. As he did so, a piece of the shell flew back and hit him in the chest, tearing the flesh badly and also burning his hand. The other three boys were a distance away and did not suffer the force of the explosion as did the other lad. However, head with a piece of the shell, which caused a swelling as big as an egg. Harry Boskette was struck on the side of the nose, but only received a small cut, while Frank Devaney was hit on the head with the nail, only a small swelling resulting.

Ivan Fisher was taken home and had his wounds and burns dressed, but was able to be out on the street this morning.

When the cartridge exploded it tore a hole in the post three inches in diameter and two inches deep.

NO CONFESSION BY DR. CRIPPEN

Scotland Yard Officials Dispose of That Rumor.

AID FOR MISS LENEVE

Relatives Engaged Counsel To Defend Her on the Murder Charge.

(Associated Press Cable.)
London, Aug. 3.—Several important facts bearing on the Belle Elmore murder case came to light today. In the first place Scotland Yard took occasion to dispose of the rumors that a confession had been received from either Dr. Crippen or Miss Leneve, under arrest at Quebec as fugitives from justice and will be brought here and tried on the charge of murder.

No Confession.
It was stated by the police that Inspector Dew had advised headquarters that no confession had been made. His cablegram announcing that the accused had been remanded by the Quebec court for a later hearing, concluded with the words "no confession." The police also let it be known that progress was being made in the development of evidence. William Long, a former assistant of Dr. Crippen, who, as a witness at the inquest, was inclined to shield the fugitive, talked freely with the authorities. For a time long withheld important facts now in the possession of the prosecutor. It was Long, who, on the day that Crippen and his companion disappeared, purchased the suit of boy's clothes in which Miss Leneve was attired at the time of the arrest. Long has now explained that the time he executed the order for Crippen he fully believed the doctor's story to the effect that Belle Elmore, Crippen's wife, had gone to America.

In Girl's Behalf.
The family and other friends of Miss Leneve became active in her behalf today. They engaged a provincial solicitor to look after her interests. The lawyer has shown his hand in this evidence, and with whom it is understood that the girl is perfectly innocent of knowledge of the crime.

The case of the crown so far as the matter of the extradition of the prisoners is concerned, was also completed today, and the papers from the legal department of the Government turned over to Sergeant Mitchell, who will sail for Quebec tomorrow on the steamer Lake Manitoba. With the papers, Mitchell received final instructions as to his duties and conduct on the mission.

There is much interested speculation as to the extent to which the Government has shown its hand in this evidence which will be submitted to the Canadian court when extradition is asked. It is generally believed that the authorities have not gone deeper into the facts developed than was necessary to secure the return of the fugitives. The evidence which will be laid before the Canadian judge is an elaboration of that request, but does not include the report of Prof. Pepper, the home office expert, who made the analysis of the dismembered body. This omission is significant as Pepper is depended upon to determine the sex of the victim and if possible to clinch the identification of the parts as having belonged to the body of Belle Elmore.

The evidence, however, does include the testimony of Dr. Marshall, the divisional surgeon of police, who at the inquest swore that it was human flesh that was unearthed in the Crippen cellar. Added to this are circumstantial accounts of Belle Elmore's disappearance and of Crippen's flight. In the opinion of the authorities this testimony constitutes prima facie evidence sufficient to secure extradition, and they are confident that it will be held sufficiently by the courts of the Dominion.

CONDUCTORS WIN

Defeat Yardmen in Two Games at Springbank Park.
The striking conductors and yardmen of the G. T. R., plinked at Springbank yesterday afternoon, and played two fast games of ball, the conductors winning the first 17 to 12, and the second by 16 to 1. The winning team won a box of cigars.

PENSIONS MAY BE FORFEITED; LEADERS TALK OF SETTLEMENT

Great Praise Given Cabinet Ministers King and Borden for Their Part in Bringing Big Trainmen's Strike to an End.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—"The strike was declared off at 6 o'clock this evening," said President Garretson, of the Order of Trainmen. "The settlement has been reached on the basis that all the men in the train service and the yard service shall return to work as soon as possible. The schedule of pay offered by the company on July 18, accepting the award of the board of conciliation, becomes retroactive to May 1 last."

"These are the immediate changes, but it is further provided that all the rates of pay and rules and conditions governing the pay of the service on the Canadian Pacific, according to their recent settlement, shall become effective on the Grand Trunk on December 31, 1911. Exactly the same conditions are to apply to the Central Vermont, except that instead of the Canadian Pacific, the Rutland Railroad is substituted as being a competing road under similar conditions which pays the standard rates. The contract is, therefore, effective as providing for the ultimate acceptance of the standard rate by the Grand Trunk."

As To Pensions.
"As to pensions," said Mr. Garretson, "the pension scheme has not even been mentioned in the recent negotiations between the men and the company. Therefore we take it for granted that the men going back will automatically resume their status quo under the pension arrangements."

Mr. Garretson said that President Hays, of the Grand Trunk, had offered to standardize the pay on the Grand Trunk when the Grand Trunk Pacific was finished, or by January, 1912, if the Transcontinental was not finished by that time.

What the Men Gained.
"Therefore," said Mr. Garretson, "we have gained two years in the settlement. Further, in the offer of the 18th President Hays did not give the mileage basis or the minimum day of the rules or Continued on Page Nine."

G. T. R. STRIKERS WILL BE BACK AT WORK AGAIN IN TWO DAYS

It Is Understood That Pensions Will Not Be Affected by the Big Walk Out—Men Are Jubilant and Say That the Conditions They Have Won Repays Them for All They Have Undergone.

Pending further word from headquarters there is no change in the situation here today on the Grand Trunk and all strikebreakers are still taking trains out as usual.

The 250 men who went out on July 18 have all reported for duty except those who have entered the employ of the C. P. R. and it is said that there are 15 or 20 of these, and that they will not return to the Grand Trunk. The only men who went out on strike who are at present at work are a few of the yardmen whom Yardmaster John Cloghessy put to work at once today in the yards.

Superintendent Bowker and Master of Transportation Crombie are in Toronto today, and in the meantime no orders have been issued.

It is expected that the officials will be back tonight and that something definite will be known then.

Back in Two Days.
The men say they do not expect to go to work for a couple of days yet, as there will be many things to be adjusted before the company can get rid of the men at present employed and give them back their old jobs.

They are all well pleased with the result of the strike, and numbers of them were gathered around the station today for the first time since the strike and watched the trains coming in and going out with a good deal of interest.

Everyone seems glad the strike is over, and the men who went out are particularly well pleased at the outcome.

"We have won all along the line," said one of the committee to The Advertiser. "The conditions were the Large Number Passed Part I. But Not So Many Part II.

The results of the Faculty of Education, or senior leaving examinations were announced today, and 29 students of the college were successful, 25 in Part I. and 4 in Part II. The students in the first part did remarkably well, a very large percentage taking good marks. In the second half there were not so many passed, in fact there was a heavy list of failures. This cannot be accounted for, except that Latin, the bugar of many students, added a long list of failures.

There are two medals for competition in the senior teachers examinations.

PRISONERS MADE GOOD THEIR ESCAPE

Police, as Yet, Have No Trace of Roberts and Steadman, Who Got Away Yesterday.

TURNKEY IS SUSPENDED

Sheriff Cameron Claims That William Sadler Is to Blame for the Escape of the Two Men.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Sheriff Cameron had received no clue as to the whereabouts of Roberts and Steadman, who escaped from the county jail yesterday afternoon. The men will probably remain in hiding for a few days and then attempt to get across the border. The sheriff is of the opinion that the pair will be captured as soon as they come out of hiding.

John Roberts, of this city, and Jos. Steadman, of Pittsburg, the two youths who made such a daring escape from London jail yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock, are still at large and the only trace of them that has been found was when P. C. Probyn saw Roberts wheeling south on Talbot street yesterday afternoon as he was on his way up town. He thought at the time it was peculiar, but under the impression that he had mistaken the identity of the youth, did not detain him, and it was not until after he heard, a few minutes later, that Roberts had escaped from the jail that his suspicions in regard to the prisoners were confirmed.

It is supposed that Roberts took the first wheel that he came upon standing by the roadside and used it to help him make speed away from London. Where Steadman went is not known.

Real Bad Men.
Roberts is 21 years old and Steadman 19. Roberts has a long and dark record in the police books of this city. He was under sentence of 3 years in Kingston penitentiary, where he received a few days ago from Magistrate Love for his part in breaking into McMillan & Grainger's wholesale, attacking the bookkeeper and escaping and also for a cleverly planned robbery in Green's coal and wood office.

Before that he had been in trouble many times, and on one occasion escaped from Mimico.

Roberts' Arrest.
Roberts was placed under arrest by Detective Thomas Nickle on the afternoon of July 11 at his home, 423 Pall Mall street. He was at the time getting ready for his wedding, which was to have taken place within a couple of hours, and he was planning to take the afternoon express which leaves at 4:25 for Hamilton and reside there. He was very much surprised when Detective Nickle came and arrested him, and for a time the young woman whom he was to marry was hysterical. It is said that she comes from near Mount Brydges. Yesterday afternoon she and Roberts' sister came to the jail to see Roberts for the last time, as he was to have been taken to Kingston last night. He had, however, made his escape before they arrived.

Steadman's Record.
Steadman is a youth of whom little is known. He said his home was in Pittsburg. He was arrested by P. C. Sam Probyn about 1 o'clock on Sunday morning, July 17, in the National Pool room. He and another young man had broken into the place and had a large pile of goods collected. P. C. Monteith, who was passing, heard a noise and called the other policemen. Steadman hid in a coal chute and only came down when P. C. Probyn threatened to shoot him unless he came out. It is believed that he has had a long police record, notwithstanding that he is only 19 years old. Steadman was on remand at the jail, having pleaded guilty to the charges of theft and breaking into a store that were preferred against him.

It is said that he and Roberts have been unusually fast friends at the jail, and it is believed planned their escape carefully. On Monday evening Turnkey Marsh discovered that Steadman had torn up some sheets to make a rope. Steadman was at once placed in another cell.

The Escape.
Yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock the prisoners were being let out into the courtyard for exercise. The men as they passed out into the yard were under the care of Turnkey William Sadler, while Turnkey Marsh was on the inside, with Governor Carter.

Just how Roberts and Steadman got away is not known as no one saw them, but it is believed that they hurried out of the corridor and at once ran to a corner of the jail yard, where (Continued on Page Nine.)

Amended Oath Bill Passes Lords

London, Aug. 3.—The accession declaration bill, striking out the phrases offensive to the Roman Catholic Church in the declaration made by the King after accession and substituting merely the words, "I am a faithful Protestant" was passed by the House of Lords upon third reading yesterday. No changes were made in the formula as adopted by the House of Commons.

There was little opposition to the bill and the Archbishop of Canterbury was the leader in urging its adoption. He said, "We are reaching the end of a feud which has been mischievous and vexatious in the highest degree. The proposed change, to relieve the sovereign of an unpleasant obligation, will be a credit to the Christian common service."

Lord Lansdowne, approving the new form, remarked that "standing at the beginning of the new reign under the happiest auspices, I do not wish its opening days to be disfigured by religious animosities."

The Duke of Norfolk expressed gratitude on behalf of himself and his fellow-Catholics for the change. Lord Halifax, a most intense high church peer, was equally warm in his approval of the new form of declaration.

TORONTO'S OPIUM CASE

Three White Men and Three Chinese Arraigned in Court.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Three middle-aged white men and three Chinamen were arraigned in the police court this morning as accomplices in an attempted scheme to deal in large quantities of opium. The Chinamen, Tom Lees and Sam Lees, 31 Wilton avenue, and Joe Fol, 184 York street, were charged with keeping opium for sale, while the three white men—James H. Taylor, a cigar dealer, of 148 Queen street, east, John Taylor, 131 Stanley street, and Albert Kennedy, 401 George street—were charged with having "corruptly offered a bribe" to P. C. Bradley, an officer of the Toronto police force. All of the accused men were remanded till next Tuesday for trial, $3,000 bail being required for Kennedy, $1,000 each for the two Taylors, and $200 each for the three Chinamen.

JOY-RIDER SENTENCED.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Bert Richards, the Toronto chauffeur arrested in Orillia for stealing an automobile, to go joy-riding, was sent to jail for 40 days in the police court this morning. Richards took his employer's auto away, having "corruptly offered a bribe" to P. C. Bradley, an officer of the Toronto police force. All of the accused men were remanded till next Tuesday for trial, $3,000 bail being required for Kennedy, $1,000 each for the two Taylors, and $200 each for the three Chinamen.

"BIG" BILL DEVERY ON CRIPPEN CASE

Wonderful Things He Would Have Done Had He Been in Dew's Place.

New York, Aug. 3.—There would be several changes in Scotland Yard if "Big Bill" Devery, the "best police chief New York ever had," was running things in that "joint," according to "Bill."

"Yes, I think the credit goes to Kendall," said the ex-chief in his two-by-four real estate office at Far Rockaway today. "If I had my way I'd fire Dew for the good of the service," put this here Kendall in charge of the joint, and shake a few more of these fellows responsible for Dr. Crippen's get-away."

"You didn't have wireless in your days, chief. How did you land criminals making a run for Europe?" he was asked.

"We didn't need wireless. When we suspected a man of homicide, or a man had a disappearance to explain, we put him in the coop, see? That's the place for a suspect until he's cleared, and that's where they should have put Crippen. This here gentleman business don't come into homicide cases. Dew does the polite thing with Crippen and Crippen beats it."

"Dew doesn't deserve any credit at all. Any New York cop could have gone to Father Point, and arrested Crippen after the captain of the Montrose had identified him and sent a wireless to come on and taken his man."

Before Wireless Days.

"No, we didn't need wireless, and we don't need it now. It's a wonderful thing in aiding in the capture of criminals, 'the long arm of the wireless,' you know; but if you plant your man and nail him first, you don't have to go spending thousands of dollars making up for a blunder. Scotland Yard can't hold a candle to New York's detective bureau. We use American methods, and those fellows bungle practically everything. They hold themselves up as the class of Europe in the sleuth line, but they're rotten."

"What is your opinion, chief, of the police of Antwerp, who let Crippen get aboard the Montrose together with a girl clumsily disguised as a boy?"

"For a moment 'Big Bill' was silent. Then he turned slowly in his swivel chair, surveyed the interviewer from head to toe, and broke into a broad smile. 'Rotten, absolutely rotten. They're what I'd call a lot of mugs. They know nothing of police work. If possible, they're worse than Scotland Yard.'

"Say, young man, between you and me, if I was holding down the desk chair in Scotland Yard, I'd tell Dew to get a job drivin' a truck so quick he'd, well, never mind. Kendall would be in charge, and the ladies of this here music hall thing, what led the cops on to the job, would be on the police commission."

"Anyway," concluded the "best chief," "there wouldn't be no Dew in the department, nor none of these 'sleuth detectives,' and there wouldn't be no police dogs, either. Understand I'm not knocking."

Much Money Changes Hands at the Emancipation Day Celebration.

Sandwich, Ont., Aug. 2.—Thousands of colored people crowded Lagoon Park, below here, yesterday afternoon, at the Emancipation Day celebration. It was the largest attendance of negro population since the day has been kept in this vicinity. Following speeches by several prominent citizens of Windsor, including Mayor Hanna, most of the time was spent either in launch riding or old-fashioned visiting. Shooting craps was an amusement for many. Several games were in progress down the river front, where a large amount of money changed hands in a short time.

DIES OF INJURIES.

Kingston, Aug. 2.—Henry D. Watts, the deaf mute struck by a Bay of Quinte train while walking on the railway tracks Monday afternoon, died this morning in the general hospital. His legs were badly crushed. Watts was 25 years old.

NEW STEEL DIRECTORS.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—The vacancies on the board of the Nova Scotia Steel Company, filled by the appointment of Messrs. James Reid, Wilson, and K. W. Blackwell, of Montreal, were created by the retirement of Messrs. Robert Reford, of Montreal, and R. E. Chambers, ore mine manager of the company. It is stated that the retirement of the latter is only temporary, and that he will go on again when he returns from Brazil, where he is examining an iron ore property for the company.

RUPTURE

J. Y. EGAN, Specialist, Toronto

A WORD OF CAUTION

Procrastination is the most common error of ruptured people. In most cases they do not realize the risk they are running. You may have been ruptured for some time, and not noticed any change for better or worse. But, remember, no rupture stands still. Even if not getting larger, the bowel is growing fast to the inside, and any day your ordinary truss is liable to slip while lifting or coughing, and let more of the bowel escape. In such a case strangulated hernia is likely to result in death. Many people come to me constipated, nervous, irritable, suffering from indigestion and constant colds. They seldom charge this to their rupture, but that is where their ill-health originates. A rupture strains the whole physical organism, and is a constant nerve irritant, a breeding place for the germs of typhoid, and frequently causes rheumatism, paralysis and sterility. Your rupture cured will make you feel like a new being; your nerves will recover their normal tone and your rundown condition replaced by vigorous, joyous health. Act at once and remove the daily danger of death which, like a threatening thunder-cloud, hangs over the head of every ruptured person. Don't delay, to suffer and die. Let me help you live and enjoy life. What I have done for thousands in the past fifty years I can do for you today. Awaken to the fact that a cure means to you—vital, immediate security, comfort and a perfect physical condition. This is all yours today for the asking. Out-of-town patients can consult me and return home the same day. No operation, pain or loss of time. Tear off free coupon now.

Free Consultation Coupon.

This coupon, upon presentation to J. Y. Egan, rupture specialist, 32 West King street, Toronto, who will visit LONDON (Griggs House), Saturday, fall 4, and night, one day only, Aug. 6, will entitle bearer to free consultation of his or her case. Ask at hotel office for number of my room.

Prices are now at their shortest, and if you buy now you have the longer to wear; besides there is no doubt the Wash Suit has become indispensable, and the styles we are selling at half price now will be just as good for next season as this, yet we will not carry them over. AT THE HAGUE

Counsel Robson Points Out Weakness of American Contention.

London, Aug. 3.—At The Hague fisheries dispute, Counsel Robson for England entered upon the sixth day of his speech, and continued his argument on the fifth question before the tribunal, and claimed exclusive jurisdiction for Great Britain in the North Atlantic fisheries in all bays, and three miles beyond. In support of his claim he quoted largely from official documents, some of which were of much historical interest.

He argued that in the American interpretation of the renunciation clause of the treaty of 1818, the word "bays" became superfluous, because the United States wished to trace the line of demarcation in territorial waters everywhere three miles from the shore. In point of fact, he said, the United States in 1818 had renounced precisely the same right which it received in 1783 to fish in territorial waters three miles from the coasts and in bays, which then were considered the property of the coastal states. This contention was confirmed by the Delaware Bay incident of 1793, he said. In 1783 bays only are to be considered territorial waters, when other nations consented, and the tribunal endorsed this erroneous opinion, Great Britain would withdraw her consent to territoriality in the Delaware and Chesapeake Bays.

THAT PREFERENCE.

London, Aug. 2.—Right Hon. Alexander Ure, lord advocate of Scotland, speaking at Great Missenden, said:

"Those self-made, muddle-headed people, who preached preference wanted to give Canadian farmers an artificial increased price on the produce, but the farmers themselves, the very day this policy was preached in the Commons, repudiated it, and said they only wanted fair play in their own market." It is proposed, he said, to give Canada a preference she did not want, and to shut out Australia and South Africa.

THE WOMAN'S CORNER

NEWEST OUTING VEIL

This is the new square outing veil, which is held in place by a ribbon fastened under the chin. It is made of chiffon with wide hems, and a long broad satin ribbon is sewed to it about a third of the way across the ribbon, of course, being the color of the veil. It crosses the hat, ties under the chin, and can be thrown back over the hat or left to fall gracefully over the face. Plain-meshed face veils are still worn and many new ones in heavy and light weight mesh are coming in, but the popular one is of the cob-web design.

VERBAL SALAD FOR SUPPER

What do you talk about at the supper table? Or do you just pour in the food, a gulp at a time, and let it go at that, without conversational frills? Most of us eat in silence—as fast and as hard as we can. We think we enjoy food. We are, in fact, rather finicky about what we eat, and have our favorite dishes. But we don't get half the enjoyment out of the food, nor half the mental and physical relaxation and comfort we might, because we don't take time to eat, and more time to talk between mouthfuls. America, as a nation, is a victim of the quick lunch habit, just about as much at home as downtown. There's some excuse for a hasty breakfast, perhaps. Circumstances may compel a gulped meal. But why not really enjoy your supper (or maybe you call it dinner) at home in the evening? One family I know realized what they were missing. They decided to make their supper table a real pleasure. Instead of the usual silence, or the occasional chatter about "baby's teething," or "the boss," or Dick and Mamie's love affair, they decided to indulge in a little real conversation. They began discussing the news of the day—that a bill before parliament really would do, what effect that airship accident would have on aerial navigation safeguards, how Laurier's tour will help Canada. Pretty soon they discovered that each was a whole lot brighter than previously suspected, that intelligent discussion brought out their own ideas, that such talk was much better for the children than silence or gossip—and that they enjoyed their food more and digested it better with a little verbal salad.

Dear Miss Grey: Last winter I invited a boy friend of mine to come to my place to spend part of his holidays this summer. I haven't said much about it to him since, because I regretted asking him here. I answered his letter simply with a card, and I got a card back from him saying "that he was still waiting for a letter from me, that he was to have his holidays in August (naming date), and that I could look for him Aug. 1 (date, the first week in the month)." I do not want to have him here. Can I get out of it, or will I have to have him? Please advise me. I am not 20. If possible, answer immediately, be-

A Bathing Party. "Mother, it's raining," called Toadie from his seat under the lily to his mother, who was trying to catch flies in the sweet clover blossoms. His mother, looking up, said: "Be still, Toadie. That isn't rain. It's a girl with a sprinkling can watering the flowers."

"I don't care," she can't see me under this umbrella, dear. My, it's nice!" exclaimed he. Whereupon he puffed and swelled himself all up in delight as the tiny drops trickled down, tickling his back.

"Does she water the plants often?" he asked.

"No," snapped his mother, as she caught a big fly. "Only at sundown."

"I'll have a bathing party tomorrow," chuckled Toadie to himself.

Early next morning he had invited his guests to come under the big lily by the fence at sundown. There was Pokey, the toad who was too slow to ever catch any bugs; Fatty, who lived under the barn, where he had feasts and feasts of flies; and the two big black beetles who lived under the panny bed.

The guests were all waiting when the girl and sprinkling can arrived. Happening to peep under the leaves, the girl laughed softly to herself at the sight of the bathing party.

That night there was a longer shower of water. The girl filled the sprinkler twice to help the party along, so the swelled up little toads and the big beetles wouldn't be disappointed.

Of course, if your people object to his coming, why not write him a frank note stating it will not be convenient to have him as a guest at present. This will probably offend him, but if you don't wish to continue your friendship the sooner he understands it the better. But be more cautious next time and withhold the invitation.

For the veal pot pie at dinner buy the breast, rack, shoulder, or front shank, wipe off, cut up, and place with a sliced onion in the pot or casserole dish, cover with boiling water, cook gently for two to three hours, add the potatoes the last hour, and twenty minutes before serving, season well, lift out the meat and potatoes on a platter and keep warm. Make a batter for the dumplings of two cups of flour, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted fat, one egg and water to make a stiff batter. When the gravy is boiling, drop in four tablespoonfuls at a time, keep boiling, turn and when done remove to form a border to the meat and potatoes. Cook the next lot until batter is used. If more than 4 or 5 dumplings are cooked at once, the cooking is too slow, and they are heavy.
As much as possible have no cooking at the tea meal.

IN DEATH.
How still the room is! But a while ago The throb of sobbing voices vexed my ears, And on my face there fell a rain of tears— I scarce knew why or whence, but now I know.

For this sweet speaking silence, this surcease Of the dumb, desperate struggle after death, This painless consciousness of perfect peace, Which fills the place of anguish—it is Death!

What folly to have feared it! Not the best Of all we know of life can equal this, Blending in one the sense of utter rest, The vivid certainty of boundless bliss!

O Death, the loveliness that is in thee, Could the world know, the world would cease to be.

HILMA

William Tillinghast Eldridge.

"Attract his attention?" whispered. "That's what we don't want to do." "Get him in here," Karl explained, "and tie him up as we did Zergah." I removed the lantern from my belt and put out the light. Then as the foot-steps drew near, coming down the hall, I rattled the slide on the lantern.

It failed to draw his attention, and he passed on. As he returned I dropped the lantern to the floor and kicked it lightly. The steps stopped instantly. Again I rattled the slide, and in an instant the man stepped close to the door. Another rattling of the lantern and the door knob turned over so slightly, while I moved to Karl's side to be behind the door as it opened.

Another shake of the lantern was necessary, and then the door slowly swung back and we heard the fellow step over the threshold.

The open panel in the wall caught his eye instantly, and with a muttered oath he stepped across the room. We watched him, fascinated. All his interest was like a vial, and my revolver close to his face. Karl on the other side of the room also had his covered, "or you're done for!"

"By the Blessed Virgin!" the fellow cried. "Silence!" I whispered sharply, pressing the muzzle of my pistol against his forehead. "Keep quiet and no harm will come to you."

Quickly we took his gun and small arms from him, and then he was bound and gagged. Before thrusting a gag in his mouth we asked for directions.

"Count Heinrich's rooms are across the hall," he answered, "the first door to the left opens into a sitting-room."

"How many rooms are there?" I demanded. "Two. The bedroom is beyond and there is a door from it into the hallway on the other side."

The door designated by the sentinel as opening into Heinrich's sitting-room was locked, but the bunch of keys secured from Zergah helped us out.

Slowly we entered the room, which was large and elegantly furnished. On the farther side a door hung with heavy portieres could be seen. We stepped into it and passed into Heinrich's bedroom.

Making sure the door from the bedroom to the other hall was locked, we turned back to begin our search, starting with the sitting-room.

Just as we reached the portiere-hung doorway a sound from the next room brought us to a stand. With a snap I closed the shutters of my lantern and we were again in pitchy darkness.

Before either of us knew it, we were fitted into the lock and the bolt thrown back. The next instant a cheery whistle fell on our ears, for a man in a long, flowing robe, with a sword at his side, was standing before us. There was no need for either of us to speak, for the voice was unmistakable.

A match was struck, and the next instant the sitting-room was a flood of light. Heinrich stood in the middle of the floor, a happy smile on his lips, and I marvelled at his coolness and good spirits so soon after arranging my death, as he supposed.

Nothing more clearly showed the disposition of the man than his words. "Cover him with your pistol," I whispered.

Heinrich had crossed to the table, near the fireplace and was leaning over, selecting a cigar, as I uttered a deep-sounding moan.

With a start he looked up, the cigar in his fingers. His glance flew about the room as if he were uncertain from whence the sound had come.

I knew he was not one to be fooled long, so calling him by name I thrust aside the portiere and stepped into the room.

With an oath his hands flew up before his face and he shrunk back against the table.

"In Michael's name!" he cried. "Who are you?"

I said nothing, but stood waiting, my hands behind my back. He was uncertain as to the situation, if any thing, was improved, as we could now make a thorough job of the matter.

"May I?" Heinrich asked, starting to lower his hands.

"Thanks," he said, dropping into a chair and picking up the cigar he had let fall to the floor. "I feel better." And he stretched his long legs out as he calmly struck a match on the table.

"May I ask," he began, as he blew a cloud of smoke toward the ceiling, but I cut him short.

"You may ask nothing," his indifference in some way nettled me and my anger flew up on the instant. "I've a mind to put a bullet through your head and end your cursed work—a murderer in heart."

"There's no use arguing," he said with a shrug of his shoulders. "You've got the upper hand and it's got to go your way just now."

Heinrich could be cool and calm to indifference, no matter if he were losing. "There certainly is no use in arguing," put in Karl. "Finish the cur and be done with it."

Heinrich turned his head slowly and looked once at Karl.

"Come," I said, for I saw Karl flush under the glance, and I did not care for Heinrich's death on our hands if we could help it. "You know, I suppose, what we want?"

"I?" Heinrich questioned, displaying the greatest wonder in his voice. "Not I," and he slowly shook his head.

"We've got you," I said, "just about where the hair's short. We'll stand your company for five minutes. At the end of that time you turn over that envelope."

"I haven't it," Heinrich questioned. "You lie!" Karl answered him promptly. "We'll tear this room of yours to pieces if you don't give it up."

"And if we fail to find it," I counselled, "stepping close to Heinrich's chair, and you still refuse to produce it, I'll personally put a bullet into your head. With you out of the way Zerkah will be well rid of a dangerous enemy, and the hiding place of a diabolical deed."

I took out my revolver. Heinrich persisted, and I announced the fact. As I did so Heinrich took his cigar from his mouth and eyed me curiously.

"You ought to let well enough alone," he suggested.

"For instance?" I asked, willing he should talk if he cared to.

"Why, you are," Heinrich answered, his eyes narrowing. "The princess loves you, and you can—"

"You cursed cat!" I cried, throwing myself upon him. "Damn your foul mouth! I'll stop you—"

So suddenly had I sprung upon him that he had no chance to even move, and his head flew back against the chair with a crash.

My anger was beyond control by now. I felt sure that what would have happened had I not struck him, would have been the same. I saw his hand knock on the wall door sounded at that instant.

Karl sprang across the room, while I left off choking Heinrich and grabbed up my pistol.

"Keep quiet!" I cautioned as I laid the muzzle against his head. He had hardly regained his breath from my choking him, and made no effort to move.

The sound of many voices came from the hall and again a knock echoed on the door.

"Heinrich, are you there?" came the demand, and in the voice of Zergah.

Karl shot a glance at me full of question. How could Zergah have got free?

"The boot is on"—Heinrich started to say, when I pushed my pistol against his temple again. The mark of my fingers on his neck told him I was in no mood to be trifled with.

"He made no attempt to finish his speech."

How Zergah could have got free I was at a loss to understand. But now the more important question was what we should do. It seemed we were trapped by the Duke's men.

We could hear at least a dozen men. Our chances on the instant seemed pretty slim. If we were caught it would go hard with us, for if nothing more came of Zergah's wrath we would surely rest in one of his secret dungeons until after the fith. It behooved us to get clear and give up the hope of securing the envelope, no matter how little we might care to be driven back again. Certainly the princess' cause would be as good as lost if both of us fell into Zergah's hands.

"Heinrich," again demanded the duke—"Heinrich, are you there?"

Suddenly a thought came to me that our only chance was in getting the hallway cleared, thus opening a way for us to leave as he had come.

"Answer him," I whispered.

He shot a glance at me and hesitated. "I'll give you one second to do as I tell you. One slip, and I'll not hesitate," and I touched his temple with my pistol.

"Hullo!" Heinrich called.

"Is that you?" Zergah shouted. "Open the door!"

"I've lost the key," I whispered.

Heinrich hesitated again, and I touched his temple once more with the cold steel.

"I've lost the key," he called.

"Mine are gone, too," Zergah answered, and then demanded, "Have you seen them?"

"Seen whom?" I whispered.

"Seen whom?" Heinrich repeated.

"That crazy American and Von Merider?"

"That's who I must have in my bedroom," I whispered.

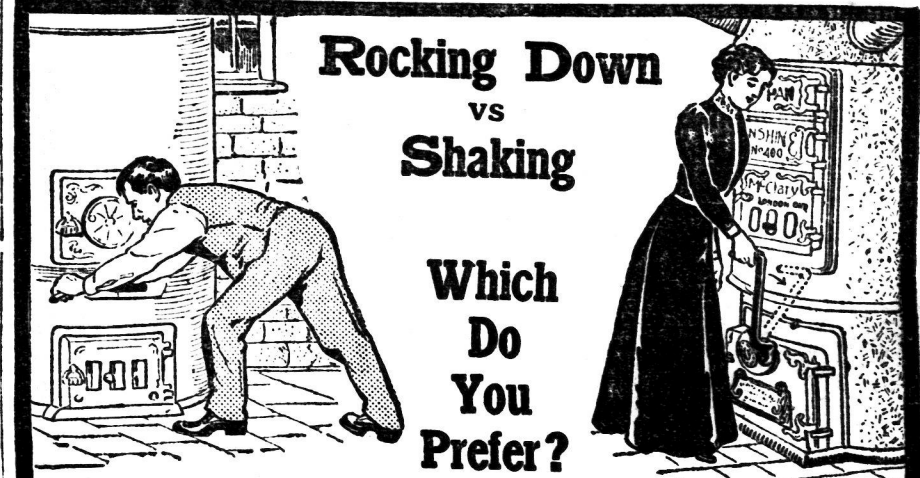

Heinrich closed his lips tight, for I think he partly saw my purpose.

"Let!" I whispered again.

"That's who I must have in my bedroom," Heinrich repeated, looking calmly into the barrel of my revolver.

"You've got them?" Zergah fairly shouted. "Let me in. Let me in."

"The key's lost. I tell you. Go around with your men to the other hall and break in the bedroom door. I can

ALFONSO IN PARIS.

Paris, Aug. 2.—King Alfonso of Spain and Queen Victoria, who are stopping here en route to England, were the guests of President Fallieres at a luncheon at Rambouillet today.

Premier Briand and Minister of Foreign Affairs Pichon were present at the luncheon.

The king and queen will spend the night in Paris, returning to Rambouillet tomorrow to take lunch with Senor Sanzen Pena, president-elect of Argentina, who is here as the official guest of President Fallieres.

Harry Lumley, formerly manager of the Brooklyn Nations, has fixed up matters with his old club and has assumed the management of the Birmingham team. Birmingham paid the bill.

SUFFRAGETTES IN CIVIL WAR THREAT

Leaders Aroused by Announcement That Government Will Not Grant Further Debate:

London, Aug. 2. — The emphatic announcement that the Government will not grant further debate on the conciliation suffrage bill has aroused the leaders of the suffragettes.

Mrs. Pankhurst has angrily warned the Government that the suffragettes will resume militant tactics when Parliament reconvenes, darkly hinting that these methods will be understood by the masses of the people as they did not understand them before.

Miss Pankhurst reiterated her mother's threat of a resumption of militant methods, adding that they would be prosecuted to the verge of civil war—all of which means that the women intend to make things so difficult for the Government in November.

Parliament will adjourn this week until November. The event of the week in the House of Commons was the passage of the King's declaration bill. The Government was apparently unable to jam the original bill through without amendment, but the deletion of the offensive phrase, "as by law established," drew the teeth of the Opposition, the Government triumphantly carrying the bill by a majority of 342. After all its threats, the Opposition proved weak in argument and numbers.

Under the amended bill the sovereign merely asserts his Protestantism, and that he is not in communion with the Church of Rome. This secures the Government's point politically and minimizes the opposition hereafter, but there are critics who insist that the Government ought to have adopted a form of oath under which the King would simply declare himself a Christian. Premier Asquith's original bill achieved this, but the amended bill provides an oath which could be taken by an agnostic. There is no suggestion that the latter form was deliberately intended by Mr. Asquith.

JUST LIKE A DREAM

Naval Expert Describes His Sensations When Aeroplaning.

London, Aug. 2.—Arnold White, the naval expert, who calls himself a sedentary sexagenarian, made his first trip in an aeroplane with Graham White at Bournemouth the other day. He thus describes it.

"The closest approach to an aeroplane in a stiff breeze is to be on the bridge of a torpedo boat in half a gale. The swiftness of motion is delightful when ascending, but the downward swoop is terrifying when near the ground, because nothing but the personality of the skipper is present to suggest that the machine will not strike the ground with fatal effects on captain and passenger.

"When the first shock of a new environment is over the sense of a new force beats in on your intelligence, a force that is like nothing on earth or in water, but which recalls the dream experience most people know of effortless gliding, especially when the wind is about the aeroplane.

"The combination of moral, intellectual and physical qualities required for the making of a good aviator are substantially those wanted in a naval officer. Personality in the air is of the same importance as personality in sea war. Of the brave men who are striving to win the battle with the air I can only speak with reverence and admiration, especially as in my humble experience the pleasantest moment was that in which the machine was induced to come safely to a standstill on the ground."

HOPE FOR RADIUM AS A CANCER CURE

At Present, However, Surgery Is Only Reliable Remedy, Declares English Physician.

London, Aug. 2. — The British Medical Association's annual congress is in session. The usual deep interest is manifested in the addresses regarding the treatment of cancer. Gilbert Darling, professor of surgery at the University of Birmingham, and Prof. Louis Wickham, one of the greatest authorities on radium, were the chief speakers.

Dr. Darling maintained that at present surgery alone could be relied on as the great remedy. He said that only one real opportunity to cure exists, viz., at the first operation, which should be pressed to the fullest extent. He believed that all the malignant growths could be excised at a certain stage of development, all could be cured. He recognized the infrequency of recurrence after three years of freedom followed an operation, but he assigned five years as a safer period. He dismissed treatment by serum and drugs as futile.

Regarding radium, he said there was much that is promising but little that is conclusive. A profound impression was often produced. Malignant tumors of large extent might disappear or diminish, but the improvement and apparent recovery were apt to be deceptive. Radium could give relief in inoperable cases, but he refused to take the responsibility of advancing its use as a substitute for excision in operable cases.

Prof. Wickham spoke more hopefully regarding radium, but he admitted that a complete cure could only be looked for in the case of small accessible cancers. He was emphatic in declaring that radium had a beneficial action, not merely caustic. The rays, apart from their caustic action, were particularly deadly to cancer cells, immediately picking them out by selective action.

Dr. Crichton Miller suggested a new cure for morphia. He maintained that any cure must be nearly painless, must temporarily destroy the craving, and must be specially designed to strengthen the will. Therefore he commenced administering bromide with diminishing quantities of morphia, so as to throw the patient into a more or less comatose condition. Then he advocated hypnosis. Suggestions should be made tending to give a distaste for morphia, and to strengthen the will power. Patients should also be taught to put themselves to sleep by auto-suggestion, "a mental trick that can be acquired by all but mental invertebrates."

ROYALTY IN PARIS

London, Aug. 2.—The latest royal guests in Paris are the King and Queen of the Belgians, who are installed, as is usual, in the palace of the Minister of Foreign Affairs (M. Pichon), on the Quai d'Orsay. Paris at once made its usual joke and referred to the building as the "Palais Royal," and not a little amusement was felt by the visitors on their arrival on finding that some economical official had stamped the words "Palais Royal" in purple ink by means of an ordinary India rubber stamp on the letter paper provided for their use.

King Albert and Queen Elizabeth were delighted to find the magnificent Sevres dinner service used at the Quai d'Orsay marked not only with the Gallic chandelier, but also with the letters "A. E." The royal guests took this for a delicate compliment to themselves, and nobody spoiled their pleasure by pointing out that the initials really stood for "Affaires Etrangères" (foreign affairs), the ministry in which they were staying.

BRAND NEW RELIGION IN GREAT BRITAIN

Members Are Sworn Non-Resisters and Declare That the Millennium Is Near.

London, Aug. 2.—A "new" religion—said to be only 24,000 years old—is rapidly gaining converts—so it is also said—in this country, says the London Chronicle. The headquarters of the cult is in prosaic Baltham. To be specific, the principal shrine is in Ramsden road, and by way of a silent protest against that cult of yesterday, Non-conformity, is next door to a chapel. The sect is reserved in its doings toward the unregenerate and theatrical in its ecclesiastical paraphernalia. The members lead, we are informed by one of the pillars of the shrine, a very simple life, but have adopted a mystical name for their faith, Emeth Achavah, which Hebrew being interpreted means the Brotherhood of the Light of Truth.

To the best of our interpretative ability, we gather that its creed is somewhat as follows:

Belief in a supreme Intelligence.
Belief in a ruling destiny that will eventually bring all parties, creeds and churches into unity.
Belief in the conscious survival of personality at the change called death.
Belief in the universality of Inspiration; in this connection, Jesus is held to be the sixth cycle teacher, the first being Zoroaster.
Belief in the ultimate redemption, by purgatorial aspiration, of all souls and their ascent to a perfect state.

All Teachers Inspired.
"The Faithists," as they are named, consider that all teachers and reformers are inspired, and, therefore, they place Jesus, Socrates, Cardinal Newman, Charles Dickens and General Booth on a common platform. The Bible is also placed in one category with Shakespeare and the Koran.

Favor Communal System.
The members are all sworn non-resisters and almost to a man and woman total abstainers and non-smokers. They are at present praying and laboring for such a change in the social conditions as will permit them to live together in a communal state.

They have a sacred canon of Scriptures designated the book of "Oahspe," a compilation of injunctions and revelations given to a recluse Yankee more than 20 years ago. In his book is outlined a theory concerning ethnic forces and vortex words that somewhat clashes with the views of Haeckel and Darwin; but revelation always precedes scientific discoveries, they say.

The community, to its credit, is soundly democratic. All affairs of management are vested in a council elected by the members. There are no masters and no servants—they are all one. They never have had any controversy. "Emeth Achavah" insures unity. Parsons are unnecessary, and therefore the cause is so far self-supporting.

Their ritual is, like their nomenclature, somewhat enigmatical. In one of the windows of the shrine is exhibited occasionally a colossal stage Eye, symbolic of the All-Light. The interior is artistically painted, and an altar, garishly furnished with curious images, bears a gilded temple, while leaves, glass frames and more Eyes are exhibited to denote certain teachings from the Book of Oahspe. Unless rightly interpreted, the readings from this book strike one as profane. In one of the chapters was the tale of one called Capliya, who presented twelve young maidens and twelve old damsels with hats, with and without ear flaps. These fair attendants built for the saintly teacher Capliya a throne, and while he sat thereon the sacred twenty-four marched round and round the throne.

Sermons Are Original.

The sermons of the cult lose nothing by originality. The latest deliverance by one of the unity denounced war and called conscience "an idolatrous fetish." There is a strong suggestion of spiritualism in the Emeth Achavah, and occasionally a member will fall into a trance. A German gave a trance sermon the other day, during which the vision of an angel host was so overpowering that he fell into what appeared to be a faint. One of the sisters, a Miss Lotie, rushed to his aid and relieved him.

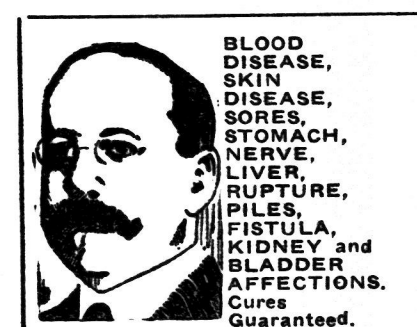

Sex has no disqualification for the sacred offices of the church, and it is predicted that the millennium is not far off—of which, however, our distorted eyes see no signs.

In conversation, one of the elders told a journalist that the religion they profess is 24,000 years old, and came originally from the ancient Egyptians. Its followers are often alluded to in old writings as Zoroastrians (often known as Zoroastrians), and the sect claims to be allied to the Essenes of the Bible. The deity worshipped is the "Light Bringer," the "Great Spirit," the culminating point of the ever-growing arcs of light formed by the angels—hence the term arc-angels, was the phrase quaintly added. The London community was first established at Brixton, but while a small branch still exists there, the headquarters are now further south. Communities are also said to be in existence in the provinces, Glasgow and Peterborough being named as having members of the sect among their inhabitants.

BARRED BY BOSTON.

Boston, Aug. 2.—Stereoscopic views of the Johnson-Jeffries fight are barred from Boston, as well as the moving pictures, according to a decision by Mayor Fitzgerald. The mayor took this step when he refused permits to a New York man to give stereoscopic views of the fight.

Only Scientific Specialists Cure

WHY SO MANY SUFFERERS FAIL TO GET CURED—Nine physicians out of ten use unscientific methods and resort to guesswork in treating their patients, which results in the many there who are not only disappointed, but lose their money. Have you made a great mistake in not getting skilled treatment; in not having a reliable specialist to treat you, only by which you will ever be cured? Our methods are scientific, therefore they produce quick, everlasting cures. We employ only scientific methods and for this reason we make more cures than other physicians and specialists. We can afford to cure for less than others, and that is why we say to the sick, diseased and discouraged, come to our office, as others who failed to get cured elsewhere have done, and get the quickest, safest, cheapest cure obtainable. Pay a Fair Price And Get the Best

The grocer who gives the greatest number of pounds of granulated sugar for a dollar, naturally won't give "the best Montreal granulated."

The only way you can be sure of getting the best, is to insist on having

St. Lawrence Sugar

Put up by the Refinery in 20 pound Cotton Bags

The analysis of Prof. Hersey, Government Analyst, shows that "St. Lawrence Granulated" contains 99-99.100 per cent. of pure cane sugar with no impurities whatever.

Names of Candidates Who Have Passed On One Or More Parts.

The following list contains the names of all candidates who have passed on one or more parts of the examination for entrance into the faculties of education. The examination passed is indicated after each name. The certificates of those who passed and the statements of marks of those who failed will be mailed to the principals and inspectors in the course of a week. As in the other examinations no appeal can be allowed to candidates whose papers are stamped as having been re-read. In other cases of failure, appeals will not be refused if made before Sept. 1, and accompanied by the fee of $2. In view of all the precautions taken, however, it is unlikely that such appeals would be successful.

UMPIRE STAFFORD IN TORONTO COURT

Let Off On Suspended Sentence For Pummeling Manager Dunn.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Umpire Stafford was in the police court this morning charged with assaulting Manager Dunn during Saturday's game. Dunn admitted having dared Stafford to hit him, while Stafford said he did so because Dunn called him vile names. Magistrate Denison, who in 1907 sentenced Tim Flood to fourteen days in jail for assaulting Umpire Conway, intimated that he thought it served giving Stafford an opportunity to lay a charge against the Baltimore manager for using vile language.

PEOPLE MUST PAY FOR ENTIRE SHOT

All Local Improvement Bylaws Were Defeated at Council Meeting Last Night.

ALD. RICHTER WON OUT

Looked for a Time as Though His Scheme Was Defeated, But He Scored at Last Moment.

There was a wordy war over the report of the special committee on local improvements at the council meeting last night, but in the end Ald. Richter prevailed, and all work on local improvements must stop until the petitions are presented in the proper way. That is, the ratepayers must understand that they have to pay the entire shot, and that the city will no longer pay half the amount. The committee will continue its work, and it is possible that amendments to the municipal act governing this matter will be presented to the council at a later date. The chairman of the finance committee was subjected to a grueling on the matter, but held his ground.

When the report was presented, Ald. Morgan moved that it be laid over until the first meeting in November.

Work is Held Up.
"If Ald. Morgan means that in the meantime work must continue as in the past I ask your ruling," said Ald. Richter. "No further work can be done on with."

"Let the opinion lie dead for a month," suggested Ald. Tancock. "Then we can continue our work. It should be held up. Mr. Meredith's opinion is not final."

"The work cannot go on," said Ald. Richter. "At least not under old conditions. The finance committee may refuse to pay any illegal accounts, and I am certain that I would not agree to pay any such accounts. The Legislature will not validate illegal acts knowingly committed as some of you fondly imagine. If you keep on you will get into such a maze that it will be difficult to see your way out."

Municipal Bankruptcy.
"What did you start this thing for any way?" asked Ald. Morgan. "We could have got along if you had not started something like this."

"I started it because the system in the past was heading the city towards municipal bankruptcy," shot back Ald. Richter.

Ald. Tancock declared that the council could go ahead, in spite of the municipal act.

"You know you cannot do that," declared Ald. Richter. "You should not be talking like that when your name is signed to the report. That is a breach of faith."

"I do not like Ald. Richter's insinuations," declared Ald. Saunders. "He insinuated that the aldermen were afraid of having their assessments known, and also that the board of works was anxious to have certain works finished. I am not afraid of the roll, and I will bet that my assessment is higher than his. We have no axes to grind on No. 2 committee. Ald. Richter is making a play for the rich man who has his work all done, while the poor man cannot have his. Why do not the city solicitor tell us long ago that we were wrong? He knew and why did he not tell us? Let us jack up the job until January, and see where we come out. We have had our acts legalized before and we can do so again. I think the whole situation silly."

A Question.
"I want to ask Ald. Richter if the poor man in the outskirts did not help pay for his walk, and now he wants to get out of paying for the poor man's walk," asked Ald. Morgan.

"I deny that absolutely," declared Ald. Richter.

"I say it is so," continued Ald. Morgan. "It is just a scheme. He will spend money for increased salaries, printing the rolls and a thousand other things out of the pockets of the poor man. He is riding a hobby, and will ride it until either he or the hobby is dead."

Stevenson also found fault with the report, declaring that there was an element of doubt in it, and consequently the council should not express a positive opinion on it. The Legislature had validated illegal acts before, and would do so again.

Mayor Speaks.
Mayor Beattie closed the debate. He pointed out that the council had in the past been acting illegally. He asked if they were prepared to go ahead now that they knew such acts were illegal. Personally he was not prepared to do so. The aldermen would then become liable for the expenditure, and a ratepayer could collect if he thought it wise. The present course would do injustice to many, but it could be helped. He proposed to rule all work out of order in future unless it fulfilled every requirement of the act. The ratepayer would have to pay the shot.

Ald. Richter Wins.
Ald. Morgan's amendment to lay the report over until November 1 carried on the following division: Yeas—Ald. Underwood, Stevenson, Fitzgerald, Morgan, Pocock, Saunders and Tancock. Nays—Ald. Richter, Eckert, Ashplant, Jeffries and Mayor Beattie.

Later, however, Ald. Richter scored. Nearly twenty local improvement by-laws were prepared, and he asked for the

Ways to Save

Be systematic if you are determined to develop the saving habit. Here are several plans which may help you to save money and get ahead financially:

Make an allowance for each class of expenses, and then plan to save something on each allowance. Make it a rule to set aside a certain per cent of your income on pay day. Consider that this per cent is insurance against the future. Look upon it as a debt which must be paid. As your income increases your savings will increase.

mayor's ruling on their legality, and they were all thrown out.

Ald. Stevenson wanted a committee of three, Mayor Beattie, Ald. Tancock and City Solicitor Meredith, to go to Toronto and have the act interpreted, but this was lost.

BURWELL ROAD BABIES FOR IRISH BABY SHOW

Mother Is Proud of the Bairns and Asks Permission to Show Them Again.

The Irish Benevolent Society baby show is popular, judging from a communication received yesterday by Ex-Mayor S. Stevely, president of the I. B. S.

For the past two years as pretty a pair of twins as one would care to look at have been shown by Mrs. Fisher, of Burwell Road postoffice. They are over two years of age now, but Mrs. Fisher would like to show them again, and wrote to Mr. Stevely asking for permission.

The letter was sent to Chairman Fowler, of the baby show committee, and in consultation with Fire Chief Aitken and other members of the committee it was decided to allow the lady to enter the children.

A special class for twins over two years old and under four will be made, for which prizes will be given. The letter to President Stevely was as follows:

Perennial Babies.
"Dear Sir,—I am dropping you this note to ask you if you will let me take my babies to your picnic again this year. They are, perhaps, a little old, as they are now past two years of age. They took the prize both years, and I would like to take them to the show again. It is not for me, however. I took the $5 given by Mr. Beidler two years ago, and added another dollar, and placed it in the bank for the babies. When they grow up they will know where it came from. Hoping for a favorable reply, I am, sincerely yours,
"MRS. GEO. FISHER."
Valuable Prizes.

A number of valuable prizes will be competed for in the baby show. Mr. W. A. Jackson, of the Connell Coal Company, has donated a ton of coal, as has also Mr. W. A. Martin. Among other valuable prizes are those given by Mayor Beattie, George Henry, Jas. Cowan & Co., Purdon Hardware Company, Ald. Tancok, Ald. Pocock, Ald. Morgan, Thomas Gillies, Fire Chief Aitken, George Norton, N. Parke Graydon, and others. Every baby will get something.

COUNCIL NOT SATISFIED

Ald. Richter Looks for a Nigger in the Fence—Matter of New Engine Was Laid Over Till Next Year.

At the council meeting last night a communication was read from Mr. J. A. Robertson, of the Underwriters' Association, notifying the city that the key rate for London had been reduced 20 cents per hundred, and that a further reduction of 20 cents would be granted provided the wells were completed within a year, and a new steam fire engine of 1,000 gallons per minute were purchased. The letter was sent to No. 3 committee, and they will discuss the necessity for a new engine.

The Statement.
The document is as follows:
"Toronto, July 30, 1910.
"J. H. A. Beattie, Esq., Mayor, London, Ont.:

"Dear Sir,—Referring to our recent correspondence and visit paid to your city by our engineer and myself, I now beg to say that the question of the key rate for the congested business centre of the city was brought before our association, and I am pleased to be able to advise that the members have recognized the improvements so far carried out and rates on the mercantile business will, in accordance with the notice which is being sent out to the agents today, be reduced by 20 per cent.

"I was instructed to advise you also that the association is prepared to make a further reduction in the key rate of 20 per cent on business in the congested mercantile district on the completion of the new artesian well system, reservoir and pumping plant, but subject to the purchase of a new steam fire engine of 1,000 gallons per minute capacity. Our members feel strongly the necessity for some method of increasing the water pressure for use at fires, and it is plain from the terms that were made on Thursday that the new artesian well system will have practically no effect on the pressure, so that a powerful steamer is, in our opinion, an absolute necessity, and I trust that this matter may be forcibly presented to your council with the view of having one acquired. I was further instructed to advise you that changing conditions and circumstances do not allow us to make promises and reductions in rate to extend over an indefinite time, and unless, therefore, the artesian well system, etc., is completed and the new steamer acquired within a period of twelve months, the offer of the further reduction of 20 per cent must be considered to be withdrawn.

The period, however, seems to be a liberal one, and I have no doubt the city will easily find itself able to meet our wishes. Yours truly,
(Sgd.) JOHN A. ROBERTSON,
"Secretary."

Over Till Next Year.

Ald. Morgan moved immediately that the communication be received as filed, and that the council of 1911 be asked to place sufficient money in the estimates to purchase it. Ald. Pocock seconded the motion.

"I have no particular objection to the motion," commented Ald. Richter. "It is perfectly harmless. However, I do object to some of the statements made in the letter. They state that the pressure will not be any greater when the wells are completed. That I do not think is true. They do not know that it is true. It would be better to wait until the well scheme is complete, and then we will have positive information on the subject."

Wants the Engine.
Ald. Saunders thought that the price of the engine would be saved the citizens in short order if it were purchased at once.

Ald. Stevenson thought the matter of great importance. The question of insurance was a vital one to the citizens. He was anxious for a further reduction, if possible. He also took the ground that the price of an engine would be saved before the snow flew if bought at once.

"I have no quarrel with Ald. Stevenson in his desire to have the key rate reduced," said Ald. Richter. "That is not the whole desideratum. The key rate is not the whole of insurance. Surcharges of one kind and another which have been added mean much more than the reduction. We have no guarantee that the underwriters will not increase the surcharges."

Ald. Stevenson then moved that the matter be referred to No. 3 committee, and that they find ways and means of purchasing an engine. Ald. Saunders seconded the motion, and it was carried.

PLEASED WITH CUT

town, and as a result there is not the pressure that there should be.

"An engine would obviate the difficulty, and mean a fine reduction. It would furnish us additional protection, and at the same time reduce our rates to a reasonable figure."
"The key rate now is $1.10 a hundred. The reduction of 20 cents brings it down to 90 cents. If we had the engine we would have a 70-cent key rate—a fair rate. I do not think the surcharges will be interfered with. These depend largely on local conditions, and as these improve the surcharges will be reduced, cut off. The average rate of insurance will be reduced a great deal."

"We need an engine. I have supported this for some time. It appeared to me as better than changing the mains, as the cost would not be so great. We should continue to agitate until we get the insurance rate where it should be."

The Awakening.
"It is funny that the underwriters have just now awakened to the fact that the city has improved conditions greatly during the past year and a half," said another prominent citizen. "We have had a million gallons of water more than the Springbank supply for more than a year. We have been agitating for an engine for over a year, but the underwriters did not hurry themselves to make a reduction. I doubt greatly that the reduction is due to the fact that we have an engine. It is due altogether to the fact that the citizens are complaining, and have been complaining bitterly of the underwriters. This body is very unpopular, as it should be because of the heavy rates on citizens. The non-tariff companies have been doing much business in the city, consequently local agents complained of the difficulty of doing business, and the underwriters decided to make a reduction. The opportunity came the other day, and they seized it. There has been no change in local conditions for over a year, and they know it."

The Pressure.
"They do not know what the wells will do yet. There is a new 18-inch main going down, that will give plenty of water throughout the business district at from 75 to 80 pounds pressure. This will practically restore the old-time pressure. The fire chiefs have told me more than once that they would fight any fire with the old-time pressure and plenty of water. We will have both in a short time."

"We have not been obtaining much benefit in the way of pressure from the million gallons being pumped at Horton street. It is being forced in to the mains already overcrowded. We will have, when finished, three millions of gallons pouring through an underwriter's 18-inch main, furnishing plenty of pressure all through the downtown district."

"In Detroit and the other cities they have their fire engines gauged for 90 pounds pressure, except where there are exceptionally high buildings. Eighty pounds ought to be sufficient for this city as we have no very tall buildings."

"The reduction may be a fair one, but it is not because we have improved conditions. When the Horton street wells are in good running order we will be better able to talk to the underwriters. In the meantime negotiations with mutual companies will have a salutary effect on the underwriters as in the present instance."

Mayor Is Satisfied.
"I am well satisfied with the reduction," declared Mayor Beattie. "Of course, I would like to have seen a greater reduction, but we have to be satisfied with what we have received. It is very evident that the underwriters will not give a further reduction until we have another fire engine, even if the wells are completed."

"The city pays the sum of $279,000 annually in insurance premiums. The major portion of that comes from the congested district. A reduction of 20 cents means quite a bit when so great a sum is considered. As I said before, we would like to have more, but we could not get it."

"I felt certain from the beginning that we would be given a reduction in view of the improvements made."

Wants New Engine.
Fire Chief Aitken is in favor of a new engine.

"We need one badly," he stated to The Advertiser today. "We have plenty of use for it, and it will be of great assistance in fighting fires. I would like to see an automobile engine. I have seen several tests of them during the past few years, and they are very efficient. When getting an engine the city should get the best and be up to date. An auto engine would prove cheaper than an engine hauled by horses."

EVANS---DOYLE

A Very Pretty Wedding in East London.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place yesterday at the home of Mrs. James Doyle, 192 Rectory street, when her youngest daughter, Miss Ethel B. McIntyre, was married to Mr. Chesley S. Evans, of Detroit, formerly of London. The ceremony was performed by Canon Dyson Hague in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bride looked very handsome in a beautiful gown of cream voile over taffeta silk, and her travelling dress was of navy blue broadcloth. Miss Pearl McIntyre, sister of the bride, attended her, and wore a dress of pale green crepe de chene. Mr. A. J. Evans was groomsmen, and the wedding march was played by Mr. H. Hilton Evans. Mr. and Mrs. Evans left last evening for Detroit, where they will reside.
