MAPLE CITY IN THE LEAD

Toronto Paper Tells of the Enterprise of Piping Steam Heat

Good Words for Enterprise of Railroad Company and Citizens

The Toronto Star, in a special aricle, says :-

Other cities may have led the way n the introducing of public conveniences such as gas, electric light, and ences such as gas, electric light, and waterworks plants, but Chatham has the honor of being the first place in Canada to instal a public heating plant. The Wallaceburg, Chatham, and Lake Er: Electric Railway Company is behind the project, which it is expected will be completed according to present plans before the really cold weather sets in. Nearly every business block and public building in the city has agreed to make the experiment for this winter, and if it proves as successful as the railway people say it with then it is intended to extend the system throughout the whole place.

USING EXHAUST STEAM. USING EXHAUST SIZEM.

The exhaust steam from the power house is to be used for this purpose, and it is claimed that there will be enough of this without the manufacture of live steam to supply all the heating at present contracted for. To the outsider this may sound like a heating at present contracted for. To the outsider this may sound like a fairy tale, but the people of Chatham do not look upon it as such, and are almost wishing for winter to set in that they may have the luxury of having their buildings heated without the trouble of shoveling coal into the furnace and carting the ashes away afterwards. And then there will be no more coal bills to pay. Steam bills will take their place, of course, but that will be overlooked in the joy of having at last discovered a way of escaping those terrible little billets doux from the coal man.

PIPES THROUGH THE TOWN. PIPES THROUGH THE TOWN.

The method by which the steam will be conveyed about the town is reminiscent of the story told by Hangs in the "Houseboat on the Styx" of the way in which the associated shades in Hedes werr provided with their tobacco smoke. The tobacco was burned in one of the many fungaces of the lower regions. tobacco was burned in one of the many furnaces of the lower regions, and the smoke conducted off by pipes into a huge reservoir. From this rubber tubes, to which were attached mubber tubes, to which were attached meters, registering the amount of smoke consumed, ran out to the smokers who used what smoke they required, paying for it by measure. In this way all waste was avoided, and there were no cigar butts to throw away. There will similarly be no waste in the Chatham heating system. The steam will run from the big engines of the Street Railway Company into the pipes which are now being laid through the main streets of the town, and from these it will be tapped off into the buildings along the way.

COLD-PROOF TUPES.

COLD-PROOF TUPES. The pipe through which the steam an iron one. It is wrapped passes is an iron one. It is wrapped in asbestos, and this again is enclosed in a tin tube. Outside the tin tube there is an air cushion, and outside of that again a wooden covering, which is bound with wire, and the whole treated with creosote and other materials. In this way a durable and cold-proof tube is secured. At short cold-proof tube is secured. At short intervals there are very expensive condensing valves, which make up in themselves the bulk of the cost of laying the pipes, which amounts to 18 per foot. The pipes are laid in a rather posuliar manner, the depth varying from four to six feet, in order to allow a sufficient slant for drainage, for there is sure to be a little water condense in the tubes. This runs off into the sewers.

There are altogether at present some 3,600 feet being laid, which, at the price mentioned above, brings the amount of the investment up to $28,—

OUR PRESENT NEED.

This has been a particularly busy season in the Maple City; events of more than ordinary importance have transpired, and the public mind has been kept somewhat agitated by certain charges and rumors and allegations regarding these events.

We have but to call to mind the building of the Chatham, Wallaceburg & Lake Erie Electric Railway the discussion regarding its cost to the city, the relation of certain aldermen to that enterprise, the application for a franchise, for a second road from Windsor and the West, the granting of a franchise to the Steam Heating Company, the formation of a Board of Education, the undesirable features in connection with the Raleigh street sewer; these and many other matters of primary importance, forcibly impress upon thoughtful minds the fact that careful, intelligent, self-sacrificing honest and capable business men are needed to conduct and safe-guard the business interests of this growing

We are rapidly becoming a manufacturing centre of some importance, we are without doubt in the centre of the finest farming country in Ontario, our educational institutions have received very flattering recognition, and upon every hand there are unmistakable evidences of a bright and prosperous future.

Chatham has been in the past exceedingly fortunate in many of her aldermen and school trustees, while no taint of suspicion has ever attached itself to any of her paid officials. And yet must we not admit that local jealousies, personal friendships or personal enmities, selfish ambitions, grasping desires, or family ties have seemed to dictate the policy of some of those elected to serve men will be willing to make even and conserve the interests of the great sacrifices, if necessary, for the public ?

Election time is almost at hand. The Planet has no fault to find with the gentlemen who at present look after the city's interests; but we do most earnestly suggest that the duties of citizenship should should appeal to the very best in our midst, and we cannot but feel that good, conscientious and capable citizens should consider it a sacred duty to serve, fo ra time, in whatever capa-kmakers' Chances.

Layers of odds at the race track are prone to circulate tales of their enormous losses upon certain races, but it | Oct. 30. seldom that a loss on a run may be shown, for it has been figured by experts that a skillful layer makes a book showing a percentage of 25 in his favor, by which he is bound to retain at least one-fourth of his takings. Large losses happen occasionally when an unexpected victory pays 40 or 50 to 1, but, as, a general thing, unless the bookmaker deliber-ately gambles with chance he "makes books" so that he will show a profit on each race. A skillful bookle can so manipulate the odds that at no point does he stand to lose on a race, and, like his brother of the gambling house, his profit lies in this percentage in his favor. Even where gambling games are run without recourse to fraud the odds in favor of the dealer are never less than 20 per cent.

A loafer on the street, whose wife was probably at home getting out a neighbor's washing to make money to buy the children's shoes, asked a busy man the other day if he ever saw a baldheaded woman.

"No, I never did," replied the busy man. "And I never saw a woman waltzing around town in her shirt sleeves with a cigar in her teeth and running into every saloon she saw. Neither did I ever see a woman sitting Neither did I ever see a woman sitting all day at a street corner on a dry goods box telling people how the secretary of the treasury should run the national finances. I have never seen a woman go fishing with a bottle in her pocket, sit on the bank all day and go home drunk at night. Nor have I ever seen a woman yank off her coat and say she could lick any man in town. God bless 'em, the women are not built that way."

KERRY GOW" TO-NIGHT.

Joseph Murphy, who for thirty years has acted the role of an Irish-years has acted the role of an Irishman, with cheeks aglow with the fire of youth, points to himself as a living demonstration of the old proverb that a man is as young as he feels. To interpret such a part he must appear young and blithe, and happy; and to appear young he must feel young; therefore, he avers, that in fact he is thirty years the junior of the average man of 62.

"It is unfortunately true, also," says Mr. Murphy, "that a woman is as old as she looks. But I maintain that even with the gentle sex a as old as she looks. But I maintain that even with the gentle sex schange in the point of view will ameliorate the ravages of age. She can look almost as young as she wants to if she does not persist in regarding herself as aged into a faded flower.

regarding herself as aged into a faded flower.

"This thing of feeling young is reduced to quite a soience with me, since I am completely identified with a particular kind of characterization, and on the stage must always seem a young man. If I could not look my part I could not delude my audience and my acting days would be over. Consequently, I set my whole will and force to feel young, relying upon the belief that a young spirit will look out of a young face, Often a Boy Again.

"If I walk along the street and see boys playing marbles I am just as much interested as if I were a boy again. I may even get into the game myself."

This is Mr. Murphy's explanation of the fact that in his hair is no thread of gray; that the older he grows the better is his health. But other things contribute to this result doubtless when his entire result doubtless when his entire result.

other things contribute to this result, doubtless, when his entire regime of life is taken into account.

Few actors are content to do what they are sure that they can do and no more—to aim at perfecting one character, to work twenty weeks of the year and take a vacation during the remainder. This is Mr. Murphy's plan and he has stuck to it with little deviation for many years. Meantime he has accumulated a fortune time he has accumulated a fortune estimated as large as that of any other actor; has gained his reputation and a solid following.

To hear Joseph Murphy laugh or sing, to see him smile, or watch him play, is a treat that can be stored in the playgoer's memory and be drawn upon when the evenings are dull and the heart is heavy. Long ago he won all hearts with his beautiful art, but, unlike the old stars, he can still hold those same hearts, and new ones, too. When he plays "Kerry Gow," some laugh and think that "Kerry Gow" is highly buoyant, and paints the lighter side of true Irish souls; others cry and believe that "Kerry Gow" is the sweetest bit of pathos from Irish land, and between the lagster are of pathos from Irish land, and between the laughter and tears come the conviction that Joseph Murphy is a great actor. "Kerry Gow" and Joseph Murphy cannot be distinctly separated. Critics differ on the point as to the art of the play or the art of the man. Some argue that Joseph Murphy made the play, while others testify that the play made Joseph Murphy. Which of the arguments is correct is hard to say, but it is easy for any playgoer to say that both "Kerry Gow" and Joseph Murphy are delights in the theatrical world.

Mr. Murphy will appear at the Grand to-night in "Kerry Gow."

The Game of Whiat.

Whist is thought to be of English origin and a development of the game trump, or triumph, which was played in England in the time of Henry VIII. Whist was not mentioned by Shakespeare or the writers of his day. Its speare or the writers of his day. Its speare or the writers of his day. Its earliest record is in the poems of Tay-lor, the water poet (1621). It is spoken of in the second edition (1680) of Cot-ton's "Compleat Gamester" as "the game of whist, so called from the si-lence that is to be observed in the play," but as whisk seems to have been its original name, according to some authorities, this derivation is not assured. The game was at first nine up. This was changed to ten up early in the eighteenth century, and in 1864 the experiment of dividing the game into half, which was fest tried as early as 1785, was generally adopted by the clubs.

THEIR MAY FLITTING

"The au-dac-i-ty!" Elizabeth Brown's eyes flashed, and she threw the note from her angrily. then picked it up at the inquiring look

"Read that!" she commanded hotly. Mrs. Brown took the letter and read

My Dear Miss Betty—I have just left the house. It is down in the country and near the seashore and has piazzas and an apple orchard—in short, is an ideal home for a young married couple. Will call to-morrow and go into details more fully Faithfully yours, JAMES GRAHAM.

Mrs. Brown looked up with a pleased

"I didn't know it had-had gone so far, Elizabeth," she said eagerly, "that you were engaged. When"- "We are not engaged," sharply, "and never will be. I have thought Mr. Graham a very pleasant man and have liked him, and he has called on us quite often lately, but there has never been a word of-of love spoken, and now this note! It is positively insulting! Mother, we must commence pack ing at once and move this very after

"Why, child, we can't," in startled dismay. "It will take a week at least.

"I know we shall be out of this house before night!" vehemently. "I shall go and engage a moving van at once to carry our goods to the station, and I will have them taken to the little station just beyond the limits of the town. It will cost a few dollars more, but it Mr. Graham will be here tomorrow to go into details—the presumptuous wretch! I'm sorry I ever spoke to him about our plans to hire a quiet place for the summer. Now, mother, you go and be packing your clothes and valuables. I shall tell the van man to be here in an hour, and we must be ready.'

"Yes, dear," meekly, "but where shall we go?"

"Why, to-to- Oh, anywhere! It doesn't really matter. Suppose we try that little place where we had two weeks' outing last summer-Orchard-ville, you know. It's real country there, with solitary walks and gardens in every yard and country people coming in with things to sell. Rept must be cheap there, and by offering enough we can get some sort of house, or, if we can't, we'll hire part of one or rooms. Anyway we haven't time to

"Orchardville is where we first met Mr. Graham, isn't it?"

"Is it? Why, yes. I believe you are right, mother, but, you know, he told us he was just down there for a few days' fishing and that he didn't get a bite, so, of course, we wouldn't meet him again. Men never go fishing twice to the same place when they have bad luck. Now, please hurry, mother."

The next afternoon they were standing on the front porch of a pretty vine covered cottage, superintending the removal of their goods from the local delivery wagon. The indignation still burned in Elizabeth's eyes. Mrs.

Brown looked tired and plaintive. "I do hope we can stay here, Elizabeth," she sighed, "but the postmaster seemed slow in giving up the key and wouldn't promise us the house sure."

"We'll stay all right, mother; don't you worry. The house was to rent and the key left with the postmaster for prospective tenants. What if the owner did write to him about an old maid who was looking after a place for some young friends and that he would have her come down and see this. She hasn't put in an appearance yet, nor her young friends, and were the first real applicants. Besides, we are in actual possession, and I was shrewd enough to force an advance rent into the postmaster's hands. Now help me swing this hammock on the piazza here and then you lie down in it for an hour's rest."

Two days later they were settled and the furniture was all arranged. Mrs. Brown was lying in the hammock behind the screen of vines, gazing pensively at Elizabeth, who had stopped reading and was now contemplating the closed book in her lap with unseeing eyes. There were solitary walks about this village, many of them, and the young girl was facing the fact that the walks represented the social condition of the place. The previous summer's outing had been pleasant, but there had been companionship to make

The gate latch clicked, and Mrs. Brown was aroused by a stifled ex-clamation from Elizabeth. Coming up the walk was James Graham, and be side him was an angular, middle aged woman who was apparently refusing to be convinced. " Tain't the kind of house I want, Mr Graham," she was saying shrilly, "not in any way. There must be a bay winder in the ind for Delia's plants an' willers in front for her an' Tommy to set under. She said I needn't even look at a place without the willers."

"But let me show you through the house, Miss Brown," urged Graham. "I am sure you will like the arrange-ment, and there is a fine willow in the back yard which the young people can sit under. There wasn't time to go to my agent after the key, but I can get in one of the windows and open the back door from the inside. I'm sure"— But the woman stopped short, turned and started back toward the gate. "Willers in front," she repeated ag-cressively. "Them's the last words

"Might as well run through it while I'm here," they heard him say, then: "Why, hello! Looks as if somebody lived in the house—curtains at the windows, and," as he came a few steps dows, and," as he came a few steps nearer, "hammocks swung on the plazza, and— Great Scott! Elizabeth --Miss Brown. You here! Well, well! This is luck."

Elizabeth was at the head of the steps now, an odd light in her face.
"Who was that woman, Mr. Graham?" she demanded. "Belle Brown, a queer stick, who is looking after a house. A friend recommended her to me as a joke and I de termined to retaliate by actually rent-ing her the house. You have noticed how I failed. But is it really possible that you have rented my house from the postmaster?"

"We really have," Elizabeth answered smilingly, "though we did not dream it was yours." "An uncle gave it to me several months ago, and you are my first tenants. It's jolly that you are to be here all summer. I like the place and have planned to come down after a few days for a long stay, but I did feel a little apprehensive about the social eness. It's odd, though, that you didn't give me some hint of your coming. I"- He paused abruptly at omething he saw in her face, adding suspiciously: "Did you get that letter I meant for Betty Brown, which she told me never reached her? Yes!" as the color rose swiftly to her face. see you did. He hesitated a moment. then leaned toward her boldly. pose we let the letter stand. Elizabeth, just as it was written," he whispered. "It is what I really would have sent to you had I dared." Elizabeth tried to frown, but the frown softened before it reached her eyes, and he was looking into her eyes. He was satisfied.

The individual addressed consented and, moving toward the rays of a convenient gas lamp, read the following words:

"If you utter a cry or speak a single word I shall shoot you. Give me your watch and chain and your purse at once and then pass on."

Completely taken off his guard, the gentleman handed over the articles asked for and walked off. A few steps brought him to a policeman, and, relating his story, the pair proceeded in pursuit of the stranger, who was not yet out of sight.

The gentleman read it quietly to himself, and then, without saying a word, handed me his watch, chain and purse and walked off without giving me time to recover from my surprise or to ask him what he meant. It seemed to me that the paper possessed a certain value, and that he had given me the valuables as a reward for finding it." But the magistrate gave him six months just the same.—London Tit-

Autograph Fans. It was in China that the first autograph fans were seen, and they became very fashionable there long years ago. Some carefully preserved speci-mens have belonged to the emperors and their wives, while others have been given as diplomatic presents. A fan of this description, for instance, was presented by the Chinese ambassador to Mme. de Clauzel at the coronation of Japoleon I. In India the very first fans were supplied by nature in the spreading leaves of the lotus and palm, but screen fans soon became emblems of power there also, for they are not only mentioned in the great Hindoo poems "Mahabharata" and "Ramayana," but Brahma and India are represented in the ancient sculptures at Elephanta followed by slaves bearing the fly fan and parasol, which latter was also considered as an emblem of su-

Three weeks ago she left, saying she was going to Collingwood to meet a man and get married. Since then nothing has been heard of her. Hamilton, Oct. 21.—Detective Green and the local officers are more than ever impressed with the belief that the victim of the Barton murder was a woman who went under the title of Mrs. O'Connor, or Connors. They have discovered that at least two women went under that name, and that one of them, resembling the victim very closely, was in the city and on the mountain the day previous to the discovery of the crime.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—The chief develop-ment in the first day's proceedings of the investigation into the charge that the investigation into the charge that Ald. Lynd accepted money for his vote upon the Puddy abattoir permit may be said to have been the establishing of the fact, on the evidence of George Elliott, that money was placed in his hands, for his services as a lobbyist. That the money was used improperly in influencing the vote of council, or that anyone else, so far as he knew, received any remittance from the firm, the witness denied.

The accused alderman sat unmoved by the testimony just inside the railing the railing.

Elliott a Poor Witness.

The chief witness, Elliott, who was subjected to the questionings of Mr. Drayton during practically the entire day, can hardly be said to have come out with flying colors so far as telling a clear and convincing story is conclear and convincing story is conerned. He seemed unwilling to himself down to any precise facts. His reluctance, shiftness and constant habit of avoiding the taking of any positive stand, brought upon him on a number of occasions the criticism of the presiding judge.

George B. Elliott in his testimony said he got from Puddy Bros., a sum of money, five, six or seven hundred dollars, for his lobbying work. His services were sought by Henry and George Puddy about the beginning of March He was not asked to use money improperly.

The money was paid in four or five

At St. Catharines. St. Catharines, Oct. 23.—The centen-arly of Trafalgar was fittingly celebrated yesterday when, at the invitation of Victory Lodge, Sons of England, the 7th Field Battery, 18th Regiment, the Niagara district Veteran Volunteers' Association, Victory Lodge, S. O. E., of this city, and Union Jack Lodge, S. O.

E., of Merritton, assembled at the Armories at 2.30 p. m. and marched in the order mentioned to St. Paul street Methodist Church, where Rev. John Pickering, ex-president of the Hamil-ton conference, delivered an address on "England and her hero." The choir rendered special music, and J. A. Abbs sang "The Death of Nelson." The auditorium was decorated, the signal flags of the navy which conveyed the admiral's last message to his fleet, being included, while instead of the regular desk in the pulpit a relic of the "Victory" was used, in the shape of a mizzen bitt, weighing two hundred pounds, from Nelson's flagship. This relic is owned by William Legg, Sr., of this city, a naval veteran. The flags, which flew in all parts of the city yesterday in commemoration of city yesterday in commemoration of Prafatear Day, were lowered at half mast at 4.30, the hour at which Lord Nelson died, and were kept there until 5 o'clock.

Judge Bell Says Position of Trustees re Attendance is Incomprehensible

Trustee Morley Refused to Tender for Policemen's Uniform-Other Matters

"I understand that children who make their appearance at school bare footed are refused admission," said his honor Judge Bell, discussing the truancy question at this afternoon's meeting of the Police Commissioners. "It is an absolute outrage and I don't know what the Senool Board means by it. Their position is incomprehensible and outrageous. If any titizen issues a mandamus in the matter they'll soon find out to their cost the position they're in. the matter they'll soon find out to their cost the position they're in.
"Many children of our most respectable farmers go barefooted," his honor continued, "I've gone that way many a time myself and believe its healthier and better."

Judge Houston and Mayor Cowan both concurred. Such a regulation, they said, could not be permitted to stand.

An interesting revelation took place in the consideration of the tenders for policemen's uniforms, Mayor Cowan commenting on the absence of a tender from Mr. W. N. Morley, in whose work the Board of Commissioners had much confi-

The Chairman said he understood Mr. Morley refrained from tender ing by reason of being a Public School Trustee for the city. The Mayor—That's surely a very extreme view to take. The contract was awarded to the T. H. Taylor Co. for overcoats at $24 and trousers at $7 per pair.

CHEER FAMOUS SIGNAL

Empire Celebrates Centenary of Battle of Trafalgar.

> London Leads In Rejoicing—Famous Trafalgar Square Elaborately Decorated and Plans for Permanent Improvements Made - The Day In Canada-A Notable Celebration In Montreal by French and English.

> London, Oct. 23.-In every part of the British Empire Saturday, and wherever a British man-of-war floats, the one hundredth anniversary of Nelson's victory over the combined fleets of France and Spain off Cape Trafalgar was celebrated. On all the ships of was celebrated. On all the ships of the navy at a given hour flags were dipped, while the bands played the "Dead March." Nelson's old flagship, the Victory, still lying in Portsmouth harbor, was decorated from stem to stern. All round at the base of the monument are heaped innumerable floral tributes from individuals and societies all over the Empire. The wreaths came from New Zealand, Queensland, Hong Kong, Jamaica, Canada.

> In London the day's celebration be gan with the hoisting of national flags on the Nelson column. Immense crowds assembled, and when Nelson's famous signal, "England expects this day that every man shall do his duty;" was unfurled, a mighty cheer went up.

Thousands of Wreaths.

The day was cold and threatening, but this did not deter the people from coming out to participate in the na-tion's holiday. Trafalgar square which was elaborately decorated, was, na-turally, the centre to which all con-versed, and much interest was mani-fested in the thousands of wreaths de-cosited there.

Among the floral tributes occupying the most prominent positions was a wreath inscribed: "To the memory of the gallant dead of France and Spain, who lost their lives in the great con-flict." The column itself was covered with laurel streamers, stretching from the top of the statue to the base. The boys of the Naval Brigade arrived at the scene from Portsmouth during the morning, and, after saluting the col by presenting arms, placed on it a wreath from Admiral Togo. Services, which were all largely attended, were held simultaneously in St. Paul's Cathedral, where Nelson is buried, and in other churches.

Navy League In Charge. Navy League in Charge.
The Navy League took charge of the celebration in the afternoon, and besides the services at Trafaigar square, similar ceremonies were held simultaneously under the league's auspices taneously under the leagues auspices throughout the country, consisting of special prayers and the singing of Kipling's "Recessional" and the National Anthem. In Trafalgar square the National Anthem was played by massed bands, while the crowds, which

Montreal, Oct. 23.—Wreathed in flowers and decorated with flags and banners displaying the motto: "Intent Cordial," Nelson's fine monument on Jacques Cartier Square was on Saturday the scene of a fitting celebration, partaken in by both French and English-speaking citizens, in honor of England's great naval hero. Though the weather was decidedly chilly, the speeches by Acting Mayor Cleorihue and Col. Jekyl were closely listened to and cheered. The presence of fifty naval reserves in uniform, made up from the ship crews now in port, from the Allan, Canadian Pacific and Donaldson Lines, under command of J. T. Walsh, R. N. R., gave a touch of the sea to the whole proceeding. At the conclusion of the speeches, the procession, consisting of the Army and Navy banners displaying the motto: "Intent sion, consisting of the Army and Navy Veterans, South African Veterans and Sons of England, under command of Major Hay and Capt. THE BLOOD OF HIS SIRES

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1906, by R. B. McClure

There was hunger in the house of the

When night bad come down there had come with it from the crest of the mountains, from the black mouths of the passes, from the depths of the dismal canyons, a wind that cut like a knife and shriveled like fire, and now and then a gust had brought hail to sting like bird shot. The wolf had gone back to his lair and given up the hunt for the night. There would be no game afoot for him in such weather.

When morning came the weather had softened a bit, and there were snowflakes flying about in wild confusion The wolf sat up at the mouth of his lair and whined and complained. As he felt the pangs of hunger he howled dismally. No beast of prey can find his game blindfolded. Back in the cave was a mother wolf, with her two young, softly growling to herself as she heard the howls of the father.

By and by the wind ceased for a mo ment, as if smothered by the falling flakes, and then it came with noisy complaint up the narrow valley and around the rocky cliffs and big bowl-ders. The wolf ceased howling. The wind brought him a taint-a scent. He stood on his hind legs and pawed the air and sniffed and showed his fangs. A moment later he signaled for the mother wolf to join him. She also reared up and sniffed at the air.

It surely was the scent of game. It was feeble and came from afar, but it was worth investigation. With a half angry growl at each other, born of hunger and greed, the wolves bounded away down the wind. The falling curtain of snow limited their vision to yards, but a wolf's nose guides him after he becomes blind of old age. "We will go out this morning," said the leader of the park patrol to his men. "We will go north, east, south and west. The buffaloes will be lying up in the thickets in such a storm as this, and the wolves will be hungry to find them."

They went in pairs, the strong and hardy men who brave the seasons to protect life in the great park set aside for the nation away up where the waters of the muddy Missouri are as cold as the Arctic ocean and as clear as

The buffaloes would have only one enemy on such a day—the big timber wolf. The bear would wait for better weather to search for his food. The men turned their backs on each other leaned forward on their snowshoes and in thirty seconds were hidden from each other's sight. They knew the groves, the thickets, the spots which the buffalo would seek for shelter, and they skirted or passed through such places with the stealthy tread of ghosts.

"Hark! It is the snarl of a wolf!" The two men who had gone to the north halted in their tracks with hand to ear and listened. As the wind had brought the scent to the wolf at the door of his lair so it also brought the menacing snarls of a beast of priy to the expectant patrollers.

"Wolves, for sure!" "And after buffalo! Straight ahad!" The wolves had followed the scent to its source. A buffalo bull and three or four cows, scattered some distance from the main herd, were sheltered up in a small grove on the bank of a creek. The bull had come to his prime in the wild and rugged park. He was not a stranger to the grunt of the bear and the snarl of the wolf. They had menaced him many times, and many times he had defied them, though it had never come to open attack. Both wolf and bear appeared to have an intuition that the buffalo was under man's protection and that it would not do to go too far.

With the scent coming stronger at every jump, the wolves at length broke gh the dead vines and stunted cedars to find themselves upon their prey. In front of the thicket was an open glade. They paused here for a moment to plan the attack, and as they planned they whined and snarled and growled. They did not want to have anything to do with the bull. The cows were not fighters, and their flesh was n ore tender. If they became fright-et ed at the growling they would make a bolt for it and separate. The bull had caught sight of his enemies as they broke cover. He never had seen a timber wolf at such close quarters. Something told him that they were hungry and desperate and that they would attack. He gave a shiver of apprehension and almost started to flee. Then the blood of his sires came surging through him. They had fought the wolves of the prairie, the wolves of the timber, the lions of the foothills. Many had been pulled down after a long, hard battle, but not one had ever turned tail and run away. With a call to stand their ground and with head and tail up and eyes beginning to burn, he dashed out of his covert to begin the battle. He had bulk, and he must have freedom of movement. The wolves, surprised by his sudden attack, wolves, surprised by his sudden attack, gave way, but they did not go far.

"Now we shall see a fight worth talking of," said one of the patrollers as both took positions of vantage. "The wolves are big and hungry and cumning, but if the bull is not the son of his father we will kill him for a coward. Now the battle begins!"

The wolves separated to make the attack. They were done with snarls and tack. They were done with snarls and growls. They needed all their breath for sterner work. While one dashed at the muzzle of the bull the other sought to gain his reer and hamstring him.

A long leap and a savage bite would do the trick. The bull bore no sears of former conflicts, but instinct told him what to do. His wheelings were so swift that every spring of the wolf was disappointed, and twice within ten min-utes a pair of cloven hoofs caught the shaggy beast in the ribs and rolled him over and over in the snow. Then the pair gathered in front to make an attack on the throat. It was only a feint intended to force the bull back into the thicket, where his movements would be bampered. He had scarcely given ground when he saw through the game and blocked it.

"Did you see? Did you see?" glee-fully exclaimed the elder patroller as he softly clapped his mittened hands together. "I was not mistaken in the bull. He is the son of his father."
"But the timber wolf is cunning and tireless," replied the other with a tireless," replied the other, with doubt in his tones.

"Wait and you will see."

The wolves sought to attack on both fanks at once. The bull needed agility here and he put it forth. There was a foot of snow on the open, but that was in his favor. For a quarter of an hour the wolves pursued their plan and two or three times the plan and two or three times the teeth of one or the other inflicted scratches on the clean loins, but they were not serious, and they circled and leaped in vain. Then they lay panting in the snow, their red tongues seeming half the length of their bodies. It was another faint the length of the lay to the length of their bodies. another feint. It was to lead the bull to believe that he had gained the victory and send him moving off. He would not have taken ten steps before they would have been upon him. He stood his ground and uttered a low bellow. It was a command to the cows to stand their ground also. "But the bull has not made an attack up to this time. Will he stand on the defensive and let them wear him out?" "You wait. You see how his tail is beginning to twitch? See the new fire in his eyes? Watch his neck stiffen! I tell you there's a thunderbolt in that bull. He had sires that were game."

Of a sudden there was a bellow of anger and defiance, a rush on the part of the bull, and through the whirling, blowing snow the patrollers saw the body of one of the wolves tossed high in air. They moved nearer, but the rushes of the bull scattered the snow as a whirlwind would and only at in tervals could they catch sight of assailed and assailants moving about. "Have they downed him?" wa asked as the noises finally died away.

"Let the snow settle. There-do you see? That wolf lying there has a broken back; the other is limping away on three legs. See the bull draw him-self up and shake his head and lash his tail. Why, man, if there had been six of them instead of two he'd have fought and won. He has the blood of his sires, and blood will always tell."

The Last English Duel.

The last duel—the last fatal one, at least—was fought in a field in Maider lane in a solitary part of Holloway in 1843. The district acquired considers ble notoriety from the event. It was the duel fought between Colonel Faw cett and Lieutenant Munro. The for-mer was killed. The duelists were not only brother officers; they were also brothers-in-law, having married two sisters.

The coroner's jury on the inquest returned a verdict of willful murder not only against Lieutenant Munro, but against the seconds also. The latter, however, were acquitted. Munro evaded the hands of justice by seeking ref-uge abroad. Four years later he surrendered to take his trial at the Old Bailey. He was found guilty and sen-tenced to death. He was, however, strongly recommended to mercy, and the sentence was eventually commuted to twelve months' imprisonment.

The neighborhood in which this duel was fought is no longer solitary. A wide thoroughfare, known as the Brecknock road, runs through it, and a rifle ground beside the Brecknock Arms appropriately indicates the place where the final shot was fired.-Cham-

Wanted-A Servant,

Good servants are much in demand in Washington as well as in other cities. Mrs. R. had searched long and vainly for a fairly good general servant, a colored one, and at last in despair she stopped an elderly colored woman who looked as if she might have been one of the antebellum house servants, and therefore a reliable one, and made known her wants. "I want a girl who is trusty and a good cook. I am willing to put out most of our laundry work and to give fair wages, but so far I haven't be able to engage one," said Mrs. R. "Don't you know of some one whom I "'Deed, no, lady, I don't," was the

How to Detect Arsenic.
One of the familiar tests by which a chemist recognizes the presence of arsenic is the odor of garlic given off when one of its compounds is heated in the blowpipe flame. The same smell of garlic is produced when certain fungi grow on substances containing arsenic. And it is interesting to note that one species of fungus is found to accomspecies of fungus is found to accomplish this feat of chemical analysis more effectively when it is grown in connection with yellow algal cells—in other words, when it forms the plant association known as lichen. Clever Women. The women who have their own sweet way in all things are generally of the seemingly yielding class. The real strength of their nature is masked by an unfailing good nature that disarms others. They usually disclaim all inclination to do aught but please others and find their world ready to do their bidding. Clever women they are, and would there were more of them.

One suggestion is given by the Ladies' World as easy for the housewife to carry out, or perhaps the grown boys and girls can make something of this sort for their mother, as the materials are easily procurable and manipulated with the tools that are to be found in most every home. The wood from shoe nch boards planed on both sides can e had from a carpenter or at a lumer yard for 5 or 6 cents a square foot. An idea which may be adapted to any room in the house is shown in the lustration of a window box with upper decks. It is made eight inches wide, six inches deep and the length of the sill it will rest on. Two decks or shelves are supported twelve inches above the box on legs that are made fast to the outside of the box. The ornament is composed of wire and nail heads painted black, and the ribbons and bows at the ends of the garland are cut from thin sheet lead and applied with small steel wire nails. This novel form of ornament is very easily carried out, as the only tools needed are a tack hammer and scisors. The box is made fast to the sill with screws, and it is supported with two sticks that rest on the upper edge of the surbase. Stain or paint the box any desired color before applying the design. Baked Eggplant. Eggplant can be used to advantage in several savory dishes. One very easily prepared, described by Table Talk, requires that the eggplant after washing should be dropped into a kettle of salted water and boiled until tender when tested with a fork. This will take from thirty-five to forty-five minutes, according to size. Drain and cut it into quarters, then scrape out all the interior. Mash this thoroughly, adding one or more large spoonfuls of butter, a beaten egg and salt and pepper to taste. ONLY A SUGUESTION

But It Has Proven of Interest and Value to Thousands.

Common sense would suggest that if one wishes to become fleshy and plump it can only result from the food we eat and digest and that food should be albuminous or flesh-forming food, like eggs, beefsteak, and cereals; in other words the kinds of food that make flesh are the foods which form the greater part of our daily bills of fare.

But the trouble is that while we eat enough and generally too much, the stomach, from abuse and over-work, does not properly digest and assimilate it, which is the reason so many people remain thin and under weight; the digestive organs do not completely digest the flesh-forming beefsteak, eggs and similar whole-

If such persons would lay their prejudices aside and make a regular practice of taking, after each meal one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the food would be quickly and thoroughly digested, because these tablets contain the natural peptones and diastase which every weak stomach lacks, and by supplying this want the stomach is soon enabled to reach its natural tone and vigor.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are exactly akin to the churning of butter. Is it not apparent, then, that if this stomach churn is "sour" it sours all which is put into it? The evil of a foul stomach is not the had taste in the mouth and into it? The evil of a foul stomach is not the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of the blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely remuses every fainting -absolutely remeas every tainting or corrupting element. "Golden Med-ical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant and no parcotic.

There is a way of giving a confidence which creates a feeling of repulsion.

THE RATES CHARGED. THE RATES CHARGED.

The manager of the company when seen by the Star at Chatham one day this week said that the rates which would be charged would not lower the heating expenses of the users to any appreciable extent. They would, however, be saved the trouble of paying men to look after their furnaces or of doing it themselves. It is expected, however, that there will also be a considerable reduction in insurance rates, because of the will also be a considerable reduction in insurance rates, because of the absence of fire in the buildings. The rates will be made up in two ways. There will be a charge based on the number of cubic feet in the building to be heated, which will vary from $3 to $5 per hundred feet, according as there are one or more sides exposed to the weather. On the meter system the charge will be made at the rate of 50 cents per thousand pounds of water condensation. He claims that there will be no loss in heat at all, and that the steam will be just as hot a mile away from the boilers as where it enters the pipes.

TRIED IN THE STATES.

TRIED IN THE STATES.

It is not a new experiment, but has been successfully carried out in Tonawanda, Lockport, and other American cities. The manager of the concern here expects to see the idea taken up by several other Canadian cities as soon as Chatham has successfully demonstrated that it is practical. He is of the opinion that it could be carried out in Toronto. The railway, when completed, will be one of the best suburban roads in Ontario. There will be altogether from sixteen to twenty cars in operation, which will run over forty miles It is not a new experiment, but

Cut Some Off All Canadian Records But Behind His Own.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—Dan Patch was ceted as a real hero Saturday at Exbition Park. There were 6,000 lovers of the harness horse present, including Sam McBride and some other aldermen. The day was fine for this time of year, and many fur overcoats were not out of place. Several ladies were present, regardless of the cold. While Dan only came within 10.3-4 seconds of his own mark, he cut some off all Canadian records. Harold H. has had it for a long time—2.071-2—and this was the recognized figure until Saturday at the city track in the Exhibition Grounds. The trotting record for Canada is held by C. A. Burns' Geneva, 2.11 1-4, made in '97. Time by quarters:

First (alone)—.37, 1.15, 1.52, 2.26 1-2. Second (beside runner) -. 36, 1.10 3-4, 1.44, 2.17.

Third (paced by runner)—.311-2,
1.031-2, 1.35, 2.06. The world's record for a half-mile track is 2.01, and Patch's performance on Saturday on a lumpy track and in the wind was truly great.

BORING MACHINE KILLS MAN.

Twists Clothing and Breaks Neck Night Watchman. Yarker, Oct. 23.—Yesterday morning about 7 o'clock William Carl, night-watchman for the Benjamin Wheel Factory, was found dead, tangled in Factory, was found dead, tangled in the boring machine that bores the wheels for the boxes.

It is quite evident that, in passing the auger between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday night, his clothes came in contact with it, which twisted them, choking him and breaking his neck. He was about 28 years of age, and leaves a young widow. He formerly lived at Westport, Ont.

Strange Stabbing Affray.
Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—A stabbing affray took place Saturday near Snow-flake, Man. Two men called at Jas. Carrier's farm house to be driven to Hannah, N.D., and William Carrier undertook the job. About three miles from the boundary people noticed something wrong with the vehicle and on examining it found Carrier in the buggy covered with blood, and severely stabled in several places, particulary about the head. One man was captured near the scene with blood on his clothes and the other was arrested at Hannah.

This Boy Hanged Himself. London, Oct. 23.—The 16-year-old son of Thomas McMiffan of concession B lot 23. Dorchester committed sufof the second of nis rash act is not known, as ne was in the best of health, was not in debt, had good prospects, and, it is said, was not mixed up in any love affair. Dr. Creighton, coroner, stated it was a straight case of suicide, and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Leaves Paris For Pole.
Paris, Oct. 22.—The Duke of Orleans again turning his attention to the North Pole. He has bought the Bel-gica, a ship in which he made his recent Arctic expedition, and he is pre-paring for another visit to those re-gions for the spring of next year.

Injuries Fatal.

Quebec, Oct. 23.—H. Henderson, who was the victim of a street car accident at Levis on Thursday, succumbed at the hospital Saturday evening. Mrs. Henderson arrived Saturday from Nature of the street of the str panee, Ont., and will return there with the remains.

WE MAKE THE CLOTHES WE SELL

What's the most precious attribute of dress? Individuality, to be sure.

If you're tired of being a "me-too" an echo, a trailer in dress, let us draw the curtain and show you styles totally foreign to characterless "ready-made."

We make the clothes we sell and they have an individuality, a snap and fitness to them, that become impossible to the manufacturer who makes clothes to sell to the dealer, not the wearer.

NEW YORK TEAMSTERS' STRIKE.

Novelty of Mounted Police Escort For Every Truck Awes Strikers. New York, Oct. 23.—Refusal of the Truck Owners' Association to accede to the demands of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters resulted Saturday in a strike which may involve the entire trucking business in this city. In many respects the controversy is similar to that which paralyzed the industries of Chicago for weeks.

Fearing just such trouble, Police Commissioner McAdoo detailed a squad of a dozen mounted men from the traf-fic squad to reinforce the districts affected.

These precautions prevented serious disorders, and although crowds of strikers gathered in the wholesale dry goods district just west of Broadway, the novelty of a mounted police escort for every truck having a non-union driver awed many trouble-makers. Several strike-breakers Saturday were hit by missiles.

Some people are so cautious that they even look before they creep.
