Vol. 24 Rev. de Jur. to Vol. 25.

Vol. 24 Rev. Leg. to Vol. 25.

Vol. 4 S. L. R. from p. 325 to Vol. 12 to p. 456.

Vol. 16 W. L. R. to Vol. 34.

Vol. 1 W. W. R. to [1919] 3 W. W. R.

The classified system used is that adopted by us, and is the standard law classification system, a full explanation of which is given at the end of the preface.

A complete system of cross references makes it an easy matter to at once find the similar cases without inconvenience or loss of time.

At the beginning of each subject a list of valuable annotations will be found.

This Digest will be continued from year to year by yearly Digests known as the "Canadian Annual Digest," in which the present system of classification will be adhered to, making it an easy matter for the practitioner to at once locate and trace all similar cases upon the point of law involved.

Section 91 of the British North America Act gives the Parliament of Canada power over the following subjects:—

1. The Public Debt and Property.
2. The Regulation of Trade and Commerce.
3. The Raising of Money by Any Mode or System of Taxation.
4. The Borrowing of Money on the Public Credit.
5. Postal Service.
6. The Census and Statistics.
7. Militia, Military and Naval Service, and Defence.
8. The Fixing of and Providing for the Salaries and Allowances of Civil and Other Officers of the Government of Canada.
9. Beacons, Buoys, Lighthouses, and Sable Island.
10. Navigation and Shipping.
11. Quarantine and the Establishment and Maintenance of Marine Hospitals.
12. Sea Coasts and Inland Fisheries.
13. Ferries between a Province and Any British or Foreign Country or between Two Provinces.
14. Currency and Coinage.
15. Banking, Incorporation of Banks, and the Issue of Paper Money.
16. Savings Banks.
17. Weights and Measures.
18. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes.
19. Interest.
20. Legal Tender.
21. Bankruptcy and Insolvency.
22. Patents of Invention and Discovery.
23. Copyrights.
24. Indians, and Lands Reserved for the Indians.
25. Naturalization and Aliens.
27. The Criminal Law, Except the Constitution of Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction, but Including the Procedure in Criminal Matters.
28. The Establishment, Maintenance, and Management of Penitentiaries.
29. Such Classes of Subjects as Are Expressly Excepted in the Enumeration of the Classes of Subjects by This Act Assigned Exclusively to the Legislatures of the Provinces.

It will be seen from the above list the great number of subjects which have a uniform law over the whole of the Dominion of Canada, and are of interest to all the members of the profession regardless of the particular province in which they reside.

STANDARD LAW CLASSIFICATION

INSURES EXPEDITIOUS FINDING OF SIMILAR CASES WITHOUT INCONVENIENCE OR LOSS OF TIME.

This system of law classification was inaugurated by us in 1912. Its purpose is to enable you to find quickly and easily all parallel cases, by reference to the permanent classification number at the commencement of the headnote enunciating the principal decided.

Take, for example, the case of Smith v. Spencer, 42 D. L. R. 269, which deals with the point of "sufficiency of writing in contract." This case is classified under the general title "Contracts" and bears the classification number (1 E-95). By looking in this, and subsequent Canadian Annual Digests under this title and classification number, all cases dealing with this particular point may be found.

Each case, where necessary, is cross-referenced, as a beneficial guide to finding analogous principles treated under different branches of the law.

Cases reversed, affirmed, followed or distinguished, are indicated and indexed.

Annotations contained in the Dominion Law Reports from vols. 1 to 52 inclusive, are classified under the respective titles to which they relate. Almost every subject contains references to a number of annotations, thereby adding to the Digest an index to the first Encyclopædia of Canadian Law.

III. REVIVOR.

I. By death.

DEATH OF PARTY.

The filing of an intervention, while a suit was suspended by the death of a party, is not prejudicial within the meaning of art. 174, C.P., and is not open to an objection to the form on that ground, but it may be proceeded upon when the suspension ceases. An intervention, filed after the expiration of the delay allowed by art. 272 C.P. for contesting a petition for the continuance of the suit after the death of the plaintiff, is not open to an exception to the form on the ground that there were not two parties to the action at the time the intervention was filed, the filing of the petition itself being an act of continuance which the adverse party may or may not contest.

Can. Dig.—1.

Breakey v. Bernard, 6 D.L.R. 312, 18 Rev. de Jur. 318, 22 Que. K.B. 30.

DEATH OF PARTY PENDING ACTION — NECESSITY FOR DIRECTION OF COURT—RULES 304, 512—APPEAL FROM MASTER'S REPORT—REFUSAL TO HEAR UNTIL REPRESENTATIVE OF DECEASED APPOINTED AND ORDER OF REVIVOR MADE.

Roos v. Swarts, 10 O.W.N. 446, 11 O.W.N. 166.

DEALINGS WITH PROPERTIES TRANSFERRED AS SECURITY FOR AN ENDORSEMENT—DEATH OF DEFENDANT—MOTION BY EXECUTOR OF DECEASED FOR ORDER STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Hull v. Allen, 2 O.W.N. 897, 18 O.W.R. 609.

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS—ACTION TO SET ASIDE WILL—SURVIVAL OF CAUSE OF ACTION WITHOUT AID OF TRUSTEE ACT.
Blatchford v. Willis, 15 O.W.N. 355.

II. Pendency of prior action.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS — TWO ACTIONS BROUGHT FOR SAME CAUSE—STAY OF EARLIER ACTION.

III. Revivor.

ACTION LAUNCHED BY ATTORNEY-IN-FACT AFTER PLAINTIFF'S DEATH—SUBSEQUENT KNOWLEDGE OF HIS DECEASE—SUBSTITUTION OF EXECUTOR AS PLAINTIFF.

Rakha Ram v. Tinn, 16 B.C.R. 317, 1 W.W.R. 35.

EXECUTION—JUDGMENT FOR COSTS RECOVERED BY PLAINTIFF AGAINST DEFENDANTS—DEATH OF PLAINTIFF AFTER JUDGMENT—PRECEDENT ORDER CONTINUING ACTION IN NAME OF EXECUTRIX AS PLAINTIFF—ISSUE, BY PLAINTIFF BY REVIVOR, OF EXECUTION FOR COSTS—PROBATE OF WILL NOT YET GRANTED TO EXECUTRIX—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS IN ACTION UNTIL CONSENT IN SURROGATE COURT AT AN END—RULES 301, 566—DEFENDANTS DISCHARGED FROM LIABILITY UPON PAYMENT OF TAXED COSTS INTO COURT.

Smith v. Ontario and Minnesota Power Co., 16 O.W.N. 187.

ABDUCTION.

See Criminal Law.

See also Seduction.

INDUCEMENT OR PERSUASION.

To constitute the crime of abduction of a girl under sixteen years (Cr. Code s. 315), it is necessary to prove that the accused had taken an active part, through persuasion or otherwise, to induce the girl to leave. [R. v. Jarvis, 20 Cox C.C. 249, R. v. Olliver, 10 Cox C.C. 402, applied. See also R. v. Blythe, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 263; Re Johnson, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 243; R. v. Holmes, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 7; R. v. Yorkema, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 189.]

R. v. Weinstein, 28 D.L.R. 327, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 50.

ELOPEMENT WITH GIRL UNDER SIXTEEN AT GIRL'S SUGGESTION.

It is an offence under Cr. Code s. 315 to take an unmarried girl under sixteen years of age out of the constructive possession of her father by meeting her by prearrangement and marrying her without the father's consent, and it is no defence that the girl was infatuated with him and asked him to marry her, nor that he might reasonably have thought her to be over sixteen; the effect of the clause declaring it to be immaterial whether the girl is taken "at her own suggestion" or not (s. 315 (2)), is that a persuasive inducement from the accused is no longer a material ingredient of the offence. [R. v. Jarvis, 20 Cox C.C. 249, distinguished.]

R. v. Meyers, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 120.

UNLAWFUL TAKING OR ENTICEMENT OF CHILD—OFFENCE COMMITTED BY FATHER—DECREE OF FOREIGN COURT AWARDED CUSTODY TO MOTHER.

R. v. Hamilton, 22 O.L.R. 484, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 410, 17 O.W.R. 809.

ABORTION.

Annotation.

Abortion by physician's operation; justification; rebuttal; other offences: 42 D.L.R. 439.

SUPPLYING DRUGS—ATTEMPT.

If there is sufficient evidence to justify a reasonable inference that an accused attempted to obtain noxious substances for the purpose of causing a miscarriage; that he believed he had obtained them, and that he tried to administer them, he may be properly convicted of an "attempt" under s. 72 of the Criminal Code. It is immaterial whether the substances obtained in fact contained noxious ingredients or not.

R. v. Pettibone, 41 D.L.R. 411, 13 A.L.R. 463, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 164.

SUPPLYING DRUG OR NOXIOUS THING.

The requirements of s. 305 of the Criminal Code, prohibiting the unlawful supplying or procuring of any drug or other noxious thing with knowledge that it is intended to be unlawfully used or employed with intent to procure a miscarriage, are satisfied if the substance supplied be a drug, even though the quantity supplied be so small as to be incapable of doing harm; if not a drug, the substance must be proved to be a noxious thing, and noxious in the quantity supplied. Yellow jasmine or gelsemium is a drug or noxious thing the supplying of which for illegal purposes may constitute an offence under Cr. Code, s. 305.

R. v. Scott, 4 D.L.R. 850, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 370, 3 O.W.N. 1167, 22 O.W.R. 9.

ABSTRACTS.

Of title, see Registry Laws; Land Titles (Torrens system); Vendor and Purchaser.

ABUSE OF PROCESS.

See False Imprisonment; Malicious Prosecution.

ACTION FOR—EVIDENCE—TERMINATION OF PROCEEDINGS—NECESSITY OF SHEWING.

In an action for abuse of criminal process by causing an arrest in order to coerce payment of a debt, it is necessary to show that the proceeding terminated in the plaintiff's favour.

Cockburn v. Kettle, 12 D.L.R. 512.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESS—ATTEMPTED DISCOVERY OF EVIDENCE.

It is an abuse of the process of the courts for a plaintiff by means of the examination of a witness on a pending interlocutory motion to seek to obtain discovery of the defendant's witnesses and the evidence upon which he intends to rely at the trial, but which is not relevant to the motion itself.

D. v. W., 3 D.L.R. 293, 21 O.W.R. 853.

DEMAND FOR JUDICIAL ABANDONMENT OF PROPERTY—INSOLVENCY—PRÊTE-NOM—GOOD FAITH.

When a debtor is notoriously insolvent, a demand for judicial abandonment of property made to him by a bookkeeper as prête-nom of a person who considers himself the real creditor but who is not, which demand is rejected by the court, gives no right to an action for damages against them if they have acted in good faith, the demand for abandonment not affecting his credit nor causing him any damages.

Freidenberg v. Frisching, 47 Que. S.C. 389.

ABUTTING OWNER.

See Easements; Highways; Waters.

For compensation in expropriation proceedings, see Expropriation, III C; Damages, III L.

Of offer, see Contracts, I D.

Of goods, see Sale.

ACCESSION AND CONFUSION.

As to land, see Accretion and Alluvion.

Mixture of goods transferred by debtor, see Fraudulent Conveyances, II—8.

FURS SKINS MADE INTO COAT—REPLEVIN.

Where beaver skins belonging to a wife have been wrongfully taken from among her effects by her husband, who has them made up into a fur coat which he makes a gift of to a third person, the property in the coat is in the wife under the principle of "accession," and the coat may be recovered by her in an action of replevin.

CONFUSION AND INTERMIXING OF GOODS IN BULK—SALVAGE SALE—CONVERSION.

Where a part of a quantity of grain stored in a grain elevator was sold to the plaintiff without severance or actual delivery of the part so sold, and where, after the sale and before severance or delivery, the greater part of the entire bulk was destroyed by fire, but a portion equal to the quantity so sold was merely damaged if injured at all, it appearing that an adjustment of the resulting insurance claims under a "blanket policy," between the seller and his insurers was made with a proviso for a salvage sale, the plaintiff is entitled to select his quantity out of the salvage, and if, at such salvage sale, his original seller buys in the whole of such grain, both damaged and undamaged, he is liable in damages for conversion in a case where the subject-matter involved had been excluded from the protection of the "blanket policy."

LANDSLIP FROM HIGHER TO LOWER LAND—

RIGHTS OF THE RESPECTIVE OWNERS.

In the case of a subsidence or landslip through natural causes, from a high level land to a contiguous lower one, the proprietor of the part carried away, who, though notified to remove it, fails to do so, and when aware of its removal by the owner of the land on which it has fallen, stands by without objection or protest, is estopped, after the expiration of nearly two years, from suing to recover the value of it.

Bells' Asbestos Mines v. The King's Asbestos Mines, 21 Que. K.B. 234.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

TORREN'S TITLE AS MERGER OF ORIGINAL AGREEMENT—ENCUMBRANCES.

A certificate of title issued under the Torrens system (Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1913, ch. 171), does not operate as a merger nor as accord and satisfaction of the liability under the original agreement to give title free of all encumbrances.

Freeman v. Calverley, 27 D.L.R. 394, 26 Man. L.R. 330, 34 W.L.R. 514, 10 W.W.R. 567.

WHAT CONSTITUTES—TAKING NOTE OF THIRD PERSON.

A promissory note signed by a third party as a joint maker and which is taken by the seller of a car as payment of the balance of purchase price due thereon operates as an accord and satisfaction.

CHEQUE MARKED IN FULL—ENDORSEMENT AND CASHING—EXTINGUISHMENT OF OBLIGATION—ESTOPPEL—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE—MERCANTILE LAW AMENDMENT ACT, R.S.O. 1914, ch. 133, s. 16.

Shearer v. Reeder, 9 O.W.N. 155.

RELEASE—COMPROMISE AND SETTLEMENT OF ACTION—PROCEEDINGS TO WIND UP.

McPhee v. Bell, 33 D.L.R. 773.

ACCEPTANCE, BEFORE ACTION, OF SUM OF MONEY IN SETTLEMENT OF CLAIM FOR INJURIES—ABSENCE OF FRAUD.

Gissing v. T. Eaton Co., 25 O.L.R. 50.

PROMISE ALONE AS SATISFACTION—ABSENCE OF CONSIDERATION.

An accord and satisfaction is a contract and requires consideration to support it.

PROMISE ALONE AS SATISFACTION.

To constitute a bar to an action on an original claim or demand the accord must be fully executed, unless the agreement or promise, instead of the performance thereof, is accepted in satisfaction. [See also 7 Halsbury's Laws of England, p. 443; Stewart v. Hawson, 7 U.C.C.P. 168, and Macfarlane v. Ryan, 24 U.C.Q.B. 474, specially referred to.] A document, made after the execution of an executory agreement for the sale of engine, stating that it was mutually agreed between the seller and the purchaser that whereas the purchaser complained that the engine was defective in certain specified parts and whereas the seller, while not admitting the alleged defects, desired to adjust all differences, therefore in consideration of the seller supplying the purchaser with certain specified new parts of the engine and crediting him with a specified sum on his account, the purchaser admitted full satisfaction of his complaint as to defects and the complete fulfilment of all warranties made by the seller and thereby released and waived all liability on the part of the seller, arising out of the original transaction, such document, however, not containing any promise on the part of the seller to supply the parts or to give the credit mentioned, will not operate as a satisfaction of the purchaser's right of action under the original contract in default of the actual delivery and acceptance of the engine parts but merely as an "accord" that if the seller did supply the parts and give the credit then the document should operate as a release to the seller of the claims of the purchaser arising from any defects in the engine.

ACCOUNTING.

Of executor or administrator, see Executors and Administrators, IV C.

Between partners, see Partnership.

(I-1) — COMPANY — ASSETS — NEW COMPANY ACQUIRING — TRUSTEE — CESTUI QUE TRUST — VALUE OF PROPERTY — REFERENCE TO LOCAL REGISTRAR.

BY OFFICER OF MUNICIPAL CORPORATION — ITEMS.

In an action en reddition de compte against a secretary treasurer of a municipality, the plaintiff cannot demand that the defendant be obliged to include in the list of his receipts a certain amount the proceeds of a loan received by the secretary treasurer, such demand being pertinent only in an action to correct or reform the account, and this allegation can be defeated en inscription en droit.

Pérodeau v. Richard, 26 Que. K.B. 206.

DIVISION OF INTERESTS IN SYNDICATE PROPERTY — ADVANCES BY ONE MEMBER OF SYNDICATE.

Vogel v. McLeod, 22 D.L.R. 902.

MORTGAGOR AND MORTGAGEE — SALE BY MORTGAGEE'S AGENT — RATIFICATION.

Ratification by the mortgagor of an agreement of sale made by the mortgagee's agent with a stipulation that, failing execution of formal agreement, money should be repaid, may be shown from the accounting by the mortgagee to the mortgagor whereby the money received by the mortgagee's agent was credited on the mortgage debt, and by the subsequent transfer of the mortgagee's right and title to the mortgagor's nominee expressly subject to the rights of the purchaser. [Edgar v. Caskey, 7 D.L.R. 45, referred to.]

McDonald v. Leadlay, 20 D.L.R. 157.

The court in which an action is brought by the assignee of rights of succession against the curator of the property of his auteurs who, as such curator and mandatory ought to account to the said auteurs or their representatives, can before proceeding to trial on the merits of the litigation order that an account be rendered by the defendant of his administration in the aforesaid capacity.

Durocher v. Girouard, 22 Que. K.B. 225.

ACTION BY SIMPLE DEBT CREDITOR.

Action for an account can only be brought by the person whose affairs or whose property have been managed by a third party, and consequently he alone is bound to render an account who has managed the property or affairs of the owner. A simple debt creditor cannot bring an action for an account against his debtor for the sole purpose of removing any difficulties which would present themselves in the liquidation of his debts by an ordinary action.

Boivin v. Rock Shoe Manufacturing Co., 49 Que. S.C. 24.

REDDITION DE COMPTE — PLEA.

A plea to an action en reddition de compte that the defendant had rendered an account after being placed en demence, which was not accepted (and which was filed with his defence) concluding for dismissal of the action with costs is bad and will be rejected on inscription en droit.

PLEDGE OF RENTALS AND REVENUES — OBLIGATION TO ACCOUNT — INSURANCE MONIES. Whitney v. Kerr, 20 Que. K.B. 289.

The defendant ordered to render an account is not obliged to serve the plaintiff with a copy of his reddition de compte nor give him any notice of it, he being merely obliged to verify it under oath within the time fixed by the judgment which ordered it and to file it, with the documentary evidence supporting it, with the prothonotary when the plaintiff must take cognizance of it.

(§ 1—3)—BETWEEN DIRECTORS AND CORPORATION.

A director of a company cannot file a bill for an accounting against the company and his codirectors unless special circumstances are shewn. The report of a Royal Commission whose duties were inquisitorial and not judicial, finding that a sum of money received by the directors was unaccounted for and the fact that the complaining director was the Attorney-General of the Province at the time the money was received and as such an ex-officio director of the company by the act of incorporation, are not such special circumstances as would support a bill for such an accounting.

Pugsley v. Bruce, 40 N.B.R. 515; Pugsley v. The New Brunswick Coal & R. Co., 4 N.B. Eq. 327.

DISSOLUTION OF COMPANY—SALE OF DREDGING STOCK—PROFITS.

By an agreement entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant, the defendant agreed to sell the plaintiff the profits of twenty shares of dredging stock for $2,000. This agreement further provided that on the winding up or the selling out of the company, the plaintiff was to share in its profits or losses on the basis of twenty shares. After carrying on the business for a season, the company sold its plant. At the time of the sale the plaintiff had paid $1,500 on account of the purchase price. After the sale was concluded the defendant paid the plaintiff $1,500 which he claimed was all the latter was entitled to, as he had failed to pay the full amount of the purchase price although frequently asked to do so. On an action for an accounting:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to an account of the profits of twenty shares of the stock of the company and also for an account of the money received by the defendant for the twenty shares on the sale of the plant.

(§ 1—6)—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

A defendant who fails to file the account ordered by a judgment, and upon whose failure the plaintiff files an account under the provisions of article 568 C.P., cannot compel plaintiff to furnish the very details he had in his possession and which plaintiff had been endeavouring to obtain, but he may contest the account and supplement it with such details as he deems should go before the court, and if he fails to do so, he is precluded from later attacking the account as irregular, after it has been approved by a judgment of the court.

Frank v. Forman, 2 D.L.R. 8, 41 Que. S. C. 511.

In an action for accounting, a motion by plaintiff that all the items of the accounts which are unsupported by written orders, contrary to a judgment to that effect, be rejected, will not be granted, if defendant declares the nonexistence of written orders and vouchers for such items.

Gagnon v. St. Maurice Lumber Co., 15 Que. P.R. 17.

If the report of an accountant is liable to be incomplete because said accountant did not take cognizance of all the documents filed, it will not be rejected on a motion to that effect, but it will be referred back to the accountant for a supplementary report.

The word "nominately" in art. 567 Que. C.P. is not absolute, and it is sufficient for the account to be rendered by the party bound to do so to the party asking for it. The party rendering the account is not bound to have a copy of it served, but the party to whom the account is rendered is bound to take communication of it at the prothonotary's office, together with the vouchers in support of it.

REFUND OF PAYMENT UNDER SETTLEMENT NOT CONDITION PRECEDENT TO FRESH ACCOUNTING.

In an action by the plaintiff against his agent and partner for an accounting, where a settlement between the parties is set aside because of the fraudulent concealment by the defendant of material items of his indebtedness, the accounting may be ordered without requiring the plaintiff as a condition precedent to pay back a certain sum paid to him by the defendant as due under the settlement on the grounds (a) that the defendant's payment prima facie carried with it an admission that it was owing to the plaintiff, and (b) that the defendant's fraud disentitles him to such consideration. A principal is not estopped from demanding an accounting of his agent by reason of a prior settlement of their account, though a release was given by the principal to the agent, where it appears that the principal was over-reached and over-borne by the improper conduct of the agent who did not faithfully account at the time of the settlement.

OPENING UP—FRAUD—PARTIES—CORPORATE OFFICERS.

In an equitable action by an executrix to open up, on the grounds of fraud and misrepresentation, a settled account of dealings by the testator with the credit of a company of which he was manager, paid by her, judgment should not be given for the amount claimed, but proper accounts should be ordered taken upon a reference as between the company and the estate of the testator. The pleadings were ordered to be amended by adding the treasurer of the company as defendant where he appeared to be involved with the testator in manipulations of the company's credit for their personal advantage. PARTNERSHIP—PRACTICE—REGISTRAR'S OFFICE.

Order LV. has no application to a reference to a District Registrar to take partnership accounts. The office of the Registrar or a District Registrar is not "Chambers" within the meaning of the B.C. Rules of Court. The proper practice on an appeal from a District Registrar's report upon a reference for the taking of partnership accounts is set out in Order XXXVI. (rules 54 and 55). The practice of applying under M.R. 794 for an order to proceed with the taking of accounts upon a judgment nisi in foreclosure proceedings disapproved.

OPENING—CORRECTING—REVIEW OF.

A defendant who fails to file the account ordered by a judgment and upon whose failure the plaintiff files an account under the provisions of art. 568 C.P. cannot compel plaintiff to furnish the very details he had in his possession and which plaintiff has been endeavouring to obtain for years. The defendant's only course is to contest the account and supplement it with such details as he deems should go before the court. Failing to do so, he is foreclosed from later attacking the account as irregular, after it has been confirmed by a judgment of the court. (2) Semble—An account rendered should be broadly and liberally interpreted and objections

(§ I—5)—BETWEEN INSURANCE COMPANY AND ITS AGENTS.

An account between an insurance company and one of its agents, wherein the agent is charged with each premium due by him on policies he has obtained and where credits are given him for specific premiums paid, is not a running account within the meaning of the law, even though extensions of time may have been afforded the agent to make his remittances.

(§ I A—1)—DEFINITION—STATUTORY PROCEEDINGS UNDER LAND TITLES ACT.

An objection filed in the land titles office against an application to bring land within the Land Titles Act, 1 Geo. V. A letter giving notice of action required by s. 104 of c. 165 (C.S.N.B., 1903) is sufficient, although only the signature of the solicitor, without any addition, appears at the end of the notice. If such solicitor's name appears on the letterheading as attorney and counsellor-at-law, and the notice states that he will bring action "at the suit of" the plaintiff, naming her, the fact that the plaintiff threatened an action "for trespass" and in fact brought an action for trover is immaterial if the notice gave the defendant a clear idea of the grounds upon which the action would be brought and the reason therefor.

PRELIMINARY ARBITRATION.

Under the Arbitration Act, Man. 1911, c. 1, a stay of proceedings should be ordered before defence in an action against a municipality for the price of the supply and installation of pumping machinery where no arbitration had taken place in pursuance of a stipulation in the contract to the effect that any dispute arising by reason of the contract having been entered into, should be referred to and determined by the award of the city engineer, if such application to stay proceedings has not been answered by evidence indicating bias or other ground of disqualification of the arbitrator so named or leading to an inference that the arbitration clause of the contract no longer applied.

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT.

Where an extra-provincial corporation contracts outside of British Columbia for the sale of plant and machinery to be delivered in that province and there erected and installed by the vendor corporation, after which it is to test the plant and demonstrate its capacity to the purchaser, such extra-provincial corporation is thereby "carrying on business" in British Columbia so as to require an extra-provincial company's license under the Companies Act,

PREMATURITY — CONDITIONS PRECEDENT — ARBITRATION BEFORE ACTION — EFFECT ON RIGHT OF ACTION.

Where a statute provides for indemnity to be fixed by arbitration, such recourse does not deprive the injured party of his common-law recourse, if he has any, and thus he may sue in damages without any reference to arbitration. An action by a vendor of realty for the purchase price is premature if launched before the vendor himself had title or the right to title enabling him to convey, although during pendency of suit his title was perfected, and the action will be dismissed accordingly. CONDITIONS PRECEDENT — ENGINEER'S DECISION "TO PREVENT ALL DISPUTES AND LITIGATION" — EFFECT.

Where the contractor undertakes construction work for a municipality under terms by which the municipality is to supply the material necessary to carry on that work continuously thus forming together the entire undertaking, and the contract contains a clause whereby "to prevent all disputes and litigation," both parties agree that the engineer shall in all cases determine all questions in relation to the work and construction thereof and that his decision shall be a condition precedent to the commencement of any action by the contractor to recover any moneys under the contract or "any damages on account of any illegal breach thereof," an action by the contractor for damages for alleged delay of the municipality in supplying materials is premature and cannot be maintained where there has been no decision of the engineer and the latter's capacity as an arbitrator is not impugned.

BUILDING CONTRACT—PREMATURITY.

When an action brought by a contractor for payment of his work has been dismissed as premature, the work not being finished, and the contractor proceeds with the work and afterwards the owner himself changes, increases and repairs the work done, a second action brought by the contractor for the amount of his account cannot be declared premature but the court may itself proceed to finally adjust the mutual account of the parties.

VEXATIOUS PROCEEDINGS—APPEAL—COSTS.

A creditor, who refuses offers made to him by his debtor and hastens to take vexatious proceedings against the latter, cannot avail himself of irregularities in the form of the offers in order to have them declared insufficient. In such case a Court of Appeal is justified in reversing a judgment which leaves to each party the burden of paying his own costs and in condemning the plaintiff to pay all the costs of the litigation.

CONDITION PRECEDENT—NOTICE OF ACTION —INJUNCTION TO RESTRAIN ALLEGED ULTRA VIRES CONTRACT OF MUNICIPALITY.

Section 125 of the Calgary municipal charter making it a condition precedent that one month's notice in writing shall be given before action against the city is not limited to damage claims, but applies to actions from any cause; and accordingly a preliminary notice is essential in an action for a restraining order against the municipality to prevent its carrying out a land purchase claimed to be ultra vires.

NOTICE OF ACTION—PUBLIC OFFICERS.

The provisions of art. 88 C.P. (Que.) as to the giving of a preliminary notice of action to a public officer sued for damages by reason of an act done in the exercise of a public function or duty do not apply to an action brought against a notary public in Quebec simply for the return of money entrusted to him for investment on real estate security, and which it is alleged was lost by his investing the same upon new terms not authorized by his instructions.

NOTICE.

While a notice of action, under s. 84 of 49 Viet. (N.B.) 1886, c. 25, in a false imprisonment case brought jointly against the officers who issued the warrant and the constable who executed it may be objectionable on the ground that the notice does not set forth the grounds of each officer's liability, yet, if it clearly states the part which each took in the commission of the wrong, the joint notice is sufficient, because the arrest and imprisonment of the plaintiff were in law the joint act of both officers, [McGilvery v. Gault, 17 N.B.R. 641, 19 N.B.R. 217, referred to.] The notice of action required under s. 84 of 49 Viet. (1886) c. 25 (N.B.), in respect of a claim for damages for false imprisonment is to be construed liberally, and it is sufficient if the notice substantially informs the defendant of the ground of complaint. [Jones v. Bird, 5 B. & Ald. 837; Howard v. Remer, 2 El. & Bl. 915, 23 L.J.Q.B. 60, referred to.] Under s. 84 of 49 Viet. (1886) c. 25 (N.B.), prescribing that the name and place of abode of the attorney shall be endorsed on the notice of action, it is sufficient if they appear anywhere in the notice.

Markey v. Sloat, 6 D.L.R. 827, 41 N.B.R. 234.

NOTICE OF ACTION—NOTARY.

A notary, sued for an act committed in the exercise of his professional duties, is entitled to a written notice of action at least a month before the issue of the writ according to the provisions of art. 88 C.P.Q.

Lefebvre v. Chartrand, 52 Que. S.C. 160.

AGAINST STREET RAILWAY—INSUFFICIENT NOTICE OF.

A failure to give a sufficient notice of action, under the provisions of the street railway charter, does not entail a loss of the right of action; it only gives to the company the right to stay the action by dilatory exception.

Kazaransky v. Montreal Tramways Co., 48 Que. S.C. 76.

POSSESSORY ACTION—PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

A possessory action should be brought directly against all those who by their personal acts interfere with the possession of another even when in doing so they claim to act in the capacity of officials or agents of a joint stock company.

Duchaine v. Mercier, 26 Que. K.B. 570.

A constable who arrests a person without a warrant, but on the order of his superior the chief of police, although the arrest may be illegal, acts in the exercise of his functions as a peace officer and is a person performing a public duty within the meaning of art. 88, C.P.Q., and as such is entitled to a month's notice of action under that article. The objection of want of notice should be taken by exception to the form and if taken only in the pleas the action will be dismissed, but with the costs of a preliminary exception only. A justice of the peace who signs a warrant in blank is not liable in damages for so doing if he had nothing to do with the use made of the document; he is not entitled to notice of action, but the action against him will be dismissed without costs. A chief of police who causes the arrest of a person by a subordinate without a warrant, and such person's imprisonment in the common gaol and detention there under a commitment previously signed in blank by a justice of the peace, but executed by the chief without the justice's knowledge, does not act in the bona fide exercise of his functions and is not entitled to the notice of action required by art. 88, C.P.Q.

Asselin v. Davidson, 13 Que. P.R. 423.

NOTICE—PARTICULARS—DILATORY EXCEPTION.

In an action against the Montreal Tramways Co., preceded by a notice of action which appears sufficient, a dilatory exception for the purpose of obtaining particulars of fault alleged in the notice and pleaded in the declaration, will be refused.

Manrizio v. Montreal Tramways Co., 19 Que. P.R. 254.

If a notice of action does not contain sufficient details, a delay of a month will be granted to the defendant to obtain information and to come to a conclusion upon the plaintiff's claim.

Alexander v. Montreal Tramways Co., 19 Que. P.R. 262.

II. Union, choice, or form of remedies.

A. KIND; NAME.

(§ II A—35)—FORM OF REMEDY—INGRESS AND EGRESS UPON ABUTTING STREET.

The right of an owner of land to have access to his property from the street is a private right and any wrongful interference with such right gives rise to a cause of action against the wrongdoer.

EXCEPTION TO FORM—CONTESTATION OF RIGHT OF ACTION—QUE. C. P. 174.

A defendant who does not object to the form of action, but who wishes to contest the very right of the plaintiff to take an action under the common law, and who thus pleads to the merits, cannot succeed by an exception to the form.

Trottier v. Marotte, 16 Que. P.R. 117.

An action based on notes the loss of which is alleged, is nevertheless properly taken as a summary matter. (2) If, in an action founded upon notes, a foreign judgment on such notes is alleged, action is nevertheless a summary matter. [Riordan v. McLeod, 13 Que. P.R. 64, 67.] (3) The fact that a nonresident defendant has been called by other newspapers than those mentioned in the order is no ground for exception to the form.

Traders Bank of Canada v. James Bell Klock, 13 Que. P.R. 177.

INTERVENTION—WITHDRAWAL OF PRINCIPAL ACTION.

An intervention cannot subsist independently of the principal action of which it is an incident. Consequently it cannot be based upon an action which the plaintiff has withdrawn. The various incidents of a litigation should be susceptible of the same procedure.

Boutin v. Doyle, 48 Que. S.C. 432.

PRACTICE—STAYING PROCEEDINGS IN ONE ACTION UNTIL ANOTHER ACTION TRIED—PARTIES AUTHORIZED TO DEFEND ON BEHALF OF CODEFENDANT.

Where issues between the parties interested were, or might be, fully and fairly defined by the pleadings in one action that had been brought and a judgment in it would effectually dispose of matters raised in a subsequent action, the latter was stayed. Executors of F. estate claiming as against certain purchasers from F. the right of subrogation as to a mortgage which had been paid off, brought action against the mortgagee and said purchasers to determine their rights. Said purchasers subsequently brought action against the mortgagee for a discharge. The second action was stayed, reversing the decision of the Master in Chambers who had refused a stay and given judgment to the purchasers on the pleadings; otherwise said executors would have been forced into the position of applying for an injunction to restrain the purchasers from registering a discharge of the mortgage which was unnecessary under the circumstances. R. 20 applied in authorizing parties to defend on behalf of codefendant having a common interest and who could not be found and had not been served with the statement of claim.

The Standard Trusts Co. v. Canada Life

Ass'ce Co.; Balfour v. Canada Life Ass'ce Co., [1919] 2 W.W.R. 364.

(§ II A—40)—CHOICE OF FORM OF REMEDIES—SET-OFF OR COUNTERCLAIM—CONVERTING CLAIM—RES JUDICATA.

A plaintiff cannot convert a claim of the defendant, recoverable in the plaintiff's action only by way of set-off or counterclaim, into a payment on account, and thereby compel defendant either to put in a defence or lose the unallowed balance of his account as res judicata.

Gamblin v. Myers, 42 N.B.R. 280.

POSSESSORY AND PETITORY ACTIONS—TERM OF POSSESSION—CUTTING TIMBER.

Where the sale of lands composed of two distinct parts has been made en bloc, the possession of one part thereof is possession sufficient to enable the possessor to exercise a petitory action in respect of the whole of the land. As the remedy asked for in a petitory action includes what would be demanded in a possessory action, the defendant, in the latter action, whereby the plaintiff asks to be reintegrated instead of being restored into possession, cannot oppose the action by demurrer. In virtue of the Code of Civil Procedure (Que.), as well as under the law as it formerly existed, it is only the person who has had possession of lands for a year and a day who can exercise the possessory or petitory action. Where a person cuts the wood on lands in which he has no title, doing so in good faith and as the result of error, such an act does not give rise to a possessory action.

Veilleux v. Murray-Gregory Co., 50 Que. S.C. 154.

WARRANTY—BORNAJE—REVENDEICATION.

There may be warranty against the action en bornage when it contains petitory conclusions. Per Lemieux, C.J., and Dorion, J.—An action en bornage by which the plaintiff complains of encroachments on the part of the defendant upon a strip of land of which each claims to be owner, is not an action en bornage pure and simple, but an action en bornage and in revendication in which there may be a recourse in warranty. Per Dorion and Desy, J.J.—The recourse in warranty under danger of eviction should be exercised by means of an incidental or accessory demand by which the warrantee brings the warrantor into the cause in an action for eviction and not by a distinct and independent action. Before a judgment of eviction the direct action in warranty cannot be taken.

Julien v. Perron, 52 Que. S.C. 299.

An action praying that the defendant be ordered to deliver shares of the capital stock of a mining company, and for the payment of an additional sum on a promissory note, is governed by the rules concerning summary matters.

Simpson v. Reeves, 13 Que. P.R. 192.

When by error the words "summary procedure" appear on the copy of the writ while they have been struck in the original, an exception to the form will not lie on account of this informality, especially if plaintiff before service of said exception, notified defendant that it was not his intention to proceed summarily. (2) The absence of details is matter for a motion for particulars, not for an exception to the form.

Ménard v. Leduc, 13 Que. P.R. 199.

HYPOTHECARY AND PERSONAL ACTION.

An hypothecary action, when exercised, against a personal debtor, is an accessory of the personal action and cannot be taken when the court has no jurisdiction over the personal debt.

School Com. of St. Joseph de Bordenaux v. Gagnon, 51 Que. S.C. 175.

EFFECT OF DEATH—CONTINUATION OF PROCEEDINGS.

The nullity declared by art. 269, C.C.P., with regard to proceedings had subsequently to notice given of the death of one of the parties, is not absolute. When there are several parties, and the purpose of the action is divisible, the death of one of the parties not followed by a continuance of the proceedings by the heirs, does not prevent the proceedings being carried on against the other parties, but reserving the rights of the heirs of the deceased party. It does not apply to the representatives of a deceased co-defendant.

La Ville de Beaconsfield v. Martin, 20 Que. P.R. 125.

POSSESSORY ACTION—REALTY—DEFENCE.

A defendant sued in a possessory action, who claims to have rights of property in the real estate subject of the litigation, ought to enforce them by a petitory action, and not by a defence to the action.

La Village de Ste. Geneviève v. O'Leary, 54 Que. S.C. 158.

CONFESSORY ACTION—SERVITUDE—PASSAGE—LANE—OBSTRUCTIONS—LESSEES—COSTS.

When a defendant admits in his defence and has admitted before action, the right of the plaintiff to the servitude which he claims, a confessory action is useless and aimless. A confessory action based upon the acts of a lessee should be brought against the latter and not against the owner of the servient land. Even if some lessees should have sometimes hung linen in a lane over which one-third had a right-of-way, this fact would not constitute an obstruction sufficiently serious to justify the latter in bringing a confessory action against the proprietor of the servient land.

Sénécal v. Charest, 27 Que. K.B. 133.

ACTION FOR CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT—NOTE—SUMMARY PROCEDURE.

An action for cancellation of a contract for services is not summary in its nature, even if in the conclusion, there is claimed the amount of a note given at the time the contract was made. An objection to an action taken by mistake as "summary" can be raised, by exception to form.

Pellerin v. Blanchard, 19 Que. P.R. 149.

POSSESSORY ACTION—ALLEGATIONS—CHARACTER OF POSSESSION—OTHER REMEDIES.

On the return of a possessory action directed against him, a defendant may produce, in support of his conclusions, allegations to establish his ownership, and he may also allege that he is not only holder but owner. A defendant may also plead his rights of ownership in order to determine the nature of his possession, and whether art. 2200, C.C. (Que.), relating to joinder of possession, applies. There can be no possessory action when the possession of the parties has ceased to be exclusive and certain, and has become mixed. The plaintiff must show clearly an exclusive and certain possession during the year and a day which preceded the action. In such case, the plaintiff must proceed by action for setting of landmarks, or other legal remedy, but not by way of possessory action.

Bourbonnais v. Denis, 24 Rev. de Jur. 104.

WARRANTY—MATTERS OF OFFENCE AND CONVENTION.

There is an action in warranty in matters of offence or quasi offence, as well as in matters of convention, but it is only on condition that the facts on which rests the demand in warranty, be the same as those on which the principal action is based.

Darragh v. Coté, 48 Que. S.C. 478.

(§ II A—43)—PENAL OR REMEDIAL.

An action under art. 1834 C.C., as amended, against one who has failed to declare his matrimonial status, is well brought by a plaintiff suing alone in his own name exclusively. [Comp. Cardinal v. Geoffroy, 13 Q.P.R. 44, 413; Lamontagne v. Galbraith, 13 Q.P.R. 397.]

Morse v. Langston, 14 Que. P.R. 70.

(§ II A—44)—UNDER FACTORIES ACT OR UNDER EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT.

It was the intent of the legislature that a violation of the statutory duty imposed by the Nova Scotia Factories Act, which requires that all dangerous parts of mill-gearing, machinery, etc., shall be, so far as practicable, securely guarded, should create a liability, independent of the Employers' Liability Act, for the benefit of a servant who sustained injuries as a result of such violation of the Factories Act. [Wallace v. Falle, 13 Q.B.D. 109; Groves v. Lord Wimborne, [1898] 2 Q.B. 402, and Sault Ste. Marie Pulp & Paper Co. v. Myers, 33 Can. S.C.R. 23, specially referred to.]

SQUATTER—POSSESSION—PUBLIC DOMAIN—DEFESIBILITY—POSSESSORY ACTION—QUE. C.P. 1064, 1066.

Although possession cannot be invoked concerning things in their nature indefeasible, yet even a precarious possessor of things defeasible in themselves, although not defeasible according to law, may prescribe against any one except against the owner or the one from whom he holds his title, and he may take an action in disturbance, if he is, later, disturbed by a third party. The party invoking precariousness or indefeasibility against the owner of a domain, excepting the Crown itself, rejects any one else's right. The possession of a squatter gives him a right against the Crown if he has fulfilled the formalities and conditions required by law; he may claim his concession, and if he has not yet fulfilled such formalities but wishes to fulfill them, he should be granted the preference. As Que. C.P. 1066 prohibits the mixing of petitory and possessory actions, the defendant cannot, as a plea to an action in disturbance, file a title to establish his ownership. A party who acquires a lot from the Crown has no greater privilege than if he had acquired it from an individual; and should he find such lot in possession of a third party, he has no right to take it back by force, but he must take a petitory action.

Aubut v. April, 46 Que. S.C. 476.

B. CONSOLIDATION.

(§ II B-45)—CONSOLIDATION.

In Con. Rule (Ont.) 1897, 435, providing that actions may be consolidated by order of the court or a judge in the manner in use in the superior courts of common law prior to the Judicature Act 1881, the true meaning of the expression "in the manner in use," etc., is not to continue the practice enforced before the Act, but is to require that, if an order is made, it should be treated in the same manner as before. [Martin v. Martin & Co., [1897] 1 Q.B. 429, followed.] The consolidation of four actions, each by a different plaintiff against the same defendants, cannot, upon the motion of the common defendants, be granted either in the strict sense of the word "consolidation," to stay absolutely the proceedings in three actions and to require the plaintiffs to unite all their claims in one action, or, in the looser and less accurate sense, to select one action as the test action and stay the trial of the others pending the determination of the test action, as the particular issues in each case would be distinct from the issue in the others, though each action was based upon an alleged injury to the premises of the plaintiff, caused by the spread of the same fire negligently set out by the defendants on their land and negligently allowed to spread to the plaintiff's land. [Amos v. Chadwick, 4 Ch.D. 869, affirmed, 9 Ch.D. 459; Westbrooke v. Australian Royal Mail Steam Navigation Co., 23 L.J.N.S. C.P. 42; Lee v. Arthur, 100 L.T.R. 61; Williams v.

CONSOLIDATION OF—ORDER 49, R. 1, BRITISH COLUMBIA—RULE ABSOLUTE.

Order 49, r. 1, of the British Columbia rules, by which "causes, matters or appeals may be consolidated by order of the court or judge, in such manner as to the court or judge may seem meet," is absolute and leaves the matter so far as ultra vires is concerned entirely in the hands of the judge.

CONSOLIDATION—JUDGMENT ENTERED IN ONE CASE—OTHER CASE JUST COMMENCING—PRACTICE.

There is no practice which justifies a judge in ordering the consolidation of an action in which judgment has been entered with one which has just been commenced, where such order makes it necessary to try the substantial question over again along with other questions, and in effect sets aside a judgment of the same court. COMMON DEFENDANT—DISTINCT CAUSES OF ACTION—DIRECTION AS TO TRIAL.

Lyon v. Gilchrist, 2 D.L.R. 902, 3 O.W.N. 1086.

CONSOLIDATION AT INSTANCE OF PLAINTIFF—SEVERAL ACTIONS BROUGHT AGAINST SAME DEFENDANT.

Where several actions are brought by different plaintiffs against the same defendant, alleging that the plaintiffs were induced to purchase shares by fraudulent misrepresentations, consisting of oral statements made at different interviews, the case is not one for consolidation. The court will not order, at the instance of the plaintiffs, consolidation of actions brought by different plaintiffs against the same defendant upon claims that they were fraudulently induced to subscribe for shares in a company, where the alleged fraudulent statements were not covered by any common prospectus or other representation made generally to all of such plaintiffs as distinguished from the separate representations made to each of them.

Carter v. Foley-O'Brien Co., 5 D.L.R. 28, 3 O.W.N. 888.

CONSOLIDATION OF ACTIONS FOR SAME DEMAND—PREMATURE ACTION BY SAME PLAINTIFFS.

An order may be made consolidating two actions brought by the same plaintiffs to recover the loss under a fire insurance policy, where the second action was brought within the statutory period of limitation to prevent the lapse of the claim in case it should be held that the first action was premature. Olson & Johnson Co. v. McLeod, 13 D.L.R. 945, 25 W.L.R. 472.

CONSOLIDATION.

CONSOLIDATION—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

If, in the course of an action on a promissory note on which the defendant had presented une demande reconventionnelle in order to be discharged from liability, the plaintiff brings action on another note, the defendant is not entitled to have the inscription of the first struck out pending an application to have them consolidated to enable him to set up the compensation in his demande to the second, connection between the two and between the second and his demande being absent. The above conditions do not warrant the court to permit the defendant's counsel to withdraw under rule 43 of the Rules of Practice.

Rousseau v. Cliche, 44 Que. S.C. 179.

HYPOTHECARY ACTION—ANNULMENT—LISPENSIS.

There is no identity between an action to enforce an hypothecary obligation and an action to annul the said obligation and to avoid opposing judgments; the remedy is consolidation of the actions under art. 291 C.P.Q. and not the exception of lis pendens. Reaycraft v. Little, 17 Que. P.R. 436.

ACTIONS FOR LIBEL.

Three actions in damages for libel between the same parties may conveniently be consolidated.

Villeneuve v. Martin, 18 Que. P.R. 475.

QUEBEC PRACTICE.

Two or more actions may be consolidated for the purposes of enquête hearing and judgment if they are between the same parties and the questions to be decided are in substance the same. The consolidation of two or more causes in which the parties are not the same can only be ordered when these causes can be heard and decided at the same time and when the same evidence can be used in them all.

(§ II D—60)—JOINDER.

In an action for an instalment of $300, past due on a mortgage, and for the repayment of $105 of insurance on the mortgaged premises as agreed, $200 for goods sold and delivered and $37.50 for insurance thereon, where the evidence shews that, by an agreement between the defendant and the plaintiff, the defendant assumed the liability of $542.97 due by the plaintiff to a third party, of which $200 was to be applied in satisfaction of the goods sold and the balance on the mortgage, and the defendant set out a statement of account between the parties shewing a balance due the plaintiff $175, which the defendant paid into court, the claim for insurance paid on the goods fails and, the defendant's statement of account being correct, judgment will be rendered for the balance due the plaintiff for $175.

JUDGMENT FOR DEBT AND SETTING ASIDE FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE—JOINDER.

A simple contract creditor suing on behalf of himself and all other creditors of his debtor to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by the latter may join the debtor as a defendant and recover judgment against him for the amount of his claim.

JOINDER—CAUSE OF ACTION NOT AFFECTING A CODEFENDANT.

Two separate causes of action, in one of which one of the defendants has no concern, cannot be joined.

Ney v. Ney (No. 2), 1 D.L.R. 641, 3 O.W.N. 927, 21 O.W.R. 524.

JOINDER—CLAIM AGAINST PURCHASER OF LAND AND AGENT EFFECTING SALE—ALLEGATIONS OF FRAUD.

Where a vendor seeking rescission of an agreement for the sale of lands is unable to ascertain the exact legal relations existing between the two defendants against whom he makes his claim alternatively and pleads that he was induced to sign the agreement, of which he asked the rescission by the fraud of both defendants, one of the defendants being a company dealing as real estate agents, which had acted as agents for the vendor, and the other defendant being the person in whose name the land was purchased, who was also vice-president of the defendant company; the cause of action is a single one, viz., the breach of trust arising out of the alleged fraud, and the statement of claim is not irregular as for misjoinder of two causes of action. Grip Ltd. v. Drake, 10 D.L.R. 803, 4 O.W.N. 1000, 24 O.W.R. 333.

JOINDER—TORT AND CONTRACT—"SMALL DEBT PROCEDURE"—SEVERANCE.

A small debt summons under the "small debt procedure" should not be entirely set aside, under the Saskatchewan practice, because some of the claims therein are in tort and hence not within the purview of rule 4 of the District Court rules (Sask.) allowing small claims and demands for debt to be brought in one action, but those claims in tort should be struck out and the other issues which do come within rule 4 should be allowed to stand. MacKay v. Mason, 4 O.W.N. 354.

CONVENTIONAL DEMAND—INCIDENTAL DEMAND.

The incidental demand by the plaintiff unlike the conventional demand by the defendant, forms a whole with the principal demand, although a contestation independent of the contestation upon the principal action may be joined with the incidental demand; the proceedings taken and the documents filed in the one are common to the other, and one party can with impunity abandon his pleas.

St. Jerome Power & Electric Light Co. v. Town of St. Jerome, 18 Que. P.R. 377.

OF ACTIONS OF DIFFERENT PARTIES.

The joinder of actions between different parties can only be allowed if they were heard and decided in the same time and on the same evidence or when the evidence in one case can be used in the other.

Brodeur Co. v. Merrill, 18 Que. P.R. 386.

ACTION IN WARRANTY.

The principal action in the action in warranty cannot be joined for the purpose of hearing and judgment, when the principal plaintiff has no interest in the issue raised by the action in warranty, and the principal action has no connection with the defendants in warranty.

McDonald v. Montreal Tramways Co., 18 Que. P.R. 136.

POSSESSORY AND PETITORY ACTIONS—WARRANTY—DEFENCE.

The general principle that there cannot be a demand in warranty in an action for recovery of possession of lands is subject to exception in the case of a purchaser against whom an action is brought in regard to disturbance of which the vendor has been the cause. In a possessory action, the plaintiff who has the right to take recourse in warranty against a third person, after the filing of a defence in which it is contended that the possessory action has been joined with a petitory action, is not bound to file an answer to such defence before exercising his recourse in warranty; it is left to the warrantor to raise this question. Beyond the actions of formal warranty and of simple or personal warranty in regard to which provision is made in arts. 183, etc., C.C.P. (Que.), which entitle the plaintiff in warranty to have a stay of proceedings in the principal action, there is also the direct and independent action which is given under art. 1508 of the Civil Code.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. Town of St. Laurent, 50 Que. S. C. 57.

DIFFERENT CAUSES OF ACTION—AMENDMENT.

When a plaintiff has prayed that the defendant be ordered to render him an account of the sale of goods from which the defendant has derived the proceeds, without paying the plaintiff the commission to which he was entitled, the plaintiff cannot ask, by way of amendment, that the defendant be ordered to pay a sum of $200 for commission due on the sale of a certain quantity of copper for the defendant. These two causes of action lead to different judgments, and should be heard at different trials.

RIGHTS TO LATERAL AND SUBJACENT SUPPORT—LIABILITY FOR REMOVING SAND FROM ADJOINING LOT.

The rights of adjoining landowners to the free use and enjoyment of the land in its natural condition, not only as regards lateral but also subjacent support, are rights incident to the land itself and not a mere easement; hence, the act of such owner in removing sand from a sandy beach of an adjoining lot, thereby facilitating the action of the wind and water in washing away a portion of the land, will render him liable for damages occasioned thereby. IMPROPER USE OF FENCE—POSSESSORY ACTION.

The possessory action en complainte lies to repress the improper use of a boundary fence by the neighbouring owner. To use such fence for drying clothes and hanging linen and other clothing constitutes an abusive use of the fence and a hindrance to the possession of the neighbour.

Bouchar d v. Tremblay, 51 Que. S.C. 68.

DAMAGE FROM FALLING TREE—NEIGHBOURING PROPERTY—LAND IN ITS NATURAL STATE.

An owner of land which has been left in its natural state and on which a decaying forest tree remains is under no obligation, apart from negligence or nuisance being shown, to cut down the tree to prevent its being blown over upon the house of an adjoining owner, although notified by the latter of the danger, particularly where on receiving notice he offered to allow the house owner to enter and cut it down. I. Jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction of Prize Court, see Prize Court.

(§ I—1) — NECESSARIES AND REPAIRS — TOWAGE—MARITIME LIEN.

By virtue of ss. 4 and 5 of the Admiralty

Court Act, 1861, where a ship is not under arrest and its owner is domiciled in Canada, the Exchequer Court of Canada has no jurisdiction over an action for repairs or necessities supplied to the ship.

2. Towage performed in connection with the repairs, not at the owner's special request, is not within the purview of "claims and demands for services in the nature of towage," within the meaning of s. 6 of the Admiralty Court Act, 1840, as would give the court jurisdiction over the claim; neither claim for towage nor for necessities is the subject of a maritime lien.

3. An objection to the jurisdiction will hold good even if made after the trial.

THEFT FROM ADMIRALTY NAVAL STATION.

An objection to a conviction by a Criminal Court of a person for receiving property stolen from the navy, on the ground that such an offence should be dealt with by a Naval Court, is bad.

R. v. Day, 16 B.C.R. 323.

PRACTICE.

It is no objection to the jurisdiction conferred by s. 34 of the Admiralty Act, 1861, because that section relates to practice only, particularly where r. 228 provides the practice in respect of Admiralty proceedings, in cases not specially provided for by the rules, to be that of the High Court of Justice in England.

COLLISION—CLAIMS FOR LIFE AND PROPERTY.

The proceeds of the sale of a ship sold under an order of the court to satisfy claims for loss of life and property arising from a collision on the high seas, should be distributed in accordance with the provisions of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act (1898, s. 503), under which the claimants for loss of life or personal injury are entitled to seven-fifteenths of the fund paid into court and must rank pari passu with the claimants for loss of property for the balance of their claims.

APPEAL—JURISDICTION—LEAVE OF COURT.

The Exchequer Court, sitting in appeal, cannot entertain an appeal from an interlocutory decree without leave having previously been obtained from either the local Judge in Admiralty or from the Judge of the Exchequer Court, as required by s. 70 of the Admiralty Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 141).

(§ 1—2)—JURISDICTION OVER SUBJECT-MATTER GENERALLY.

The master of a ship is only entitled to a Can. Dig.—2.

reasonable notice terminating his contract for employment; what is reasonable notice is a question of fact for the trial judge, who in an action in rem for wages in lieu of notice of dismissal may condemn the ship or its bail for such wages in the nature of damages for wrongful dismissal. Kane v. The Ship "John Irwin," 1 D.L.R. 447, 13 Can. Ex. 502.

JURISDICTION OF SUBJECT-MATTER—ARREST OF SHIP FOR SEAMAN'S WAGES—EFFECT OF UNCERTAINTY OF OUTCOME ON ACTION FOR EQUIPPING SHIP.

Where a ship is under arrest for a seaman's wages, an action for equipping the vessel may be maintained under s. 4 of the Admiralty Court Act, 24 Vict. c. 10, irrespective of whether the seaman claiming for less than fifty pounds will be able to succeed under s. 165 of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1894, 57 & 58 Vict. (Imp.) c. 60, in his action; since it is the present fact of the arrest and not the probable future result of the seaman's action that is to determine the question of jurisdiction under the former Act.

JURISDICTION—WAGES CLAIMS—JOINER.

Burke v. "The Vipond," 14 D.L.R. 396, 14 Can. Ex. 326.

Water supplied to a ship for the use of her engines and crew is not "equipping a ship" within the meaning of s. 4 of the Admiralty Courts Act, 1861, which gives the Admiralty jurisdiction over any claim for the building, equipping or repair of any ship if at the time of the institution of the cause the ship or the proceeds thereof are under the arrest of the court. The scope of the Act is to protect material men who build, equip or repair a ship as a ship, and to extend a limited lien to men who furnish necessities in foreign ports, the latter term meaning anything necessarily supplied to the ship in the prosecution of her work.

JURISDICTION OF SUBJECT-MATTER—ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT TO VESSEL—WHEN CONSIDERED "NECESSARIES."

Making alterations and additions to the structure and equipment of a fishing vessel in order to change her from a trawler so as to permit fishing from small boats, is to be regarded as "necessaries" for the cost of which a judgment may be rendered against a vessel in admiralty proceedings. SEAMEN'S WAGES—JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT—RIGHT AGAINST SHIP.

Since under s. 194 of the Canada Shipping Act, c. 113, R.S.C., a master of a ship is put upon the same basis as a seaman in respect of recovery and remedy as well as of substantive rights, a claim of a master for wages less than the jurisdictional amount is within the restriction of s. 191, which the Admiralty Court has no jurisdiction to enforce against the ship of the defendant.

Beck v. The "Kobe," 24 D.L.R. 573.

JURISDICTION OVER PERSON—APPEARANCE TO CONTEST LIABILITY.

Where owners appear and contest the liability of ships they become parties to the action and subject to have personal judgment pronounced against them for the amount of damages properly recoverable for the negligence of their servants. [Ont. Gravel Freighting Co. v. The "A. L.

Smith," 22 D.L.R. 488, 15 Can. Ex. 111, affirmed.]

JURISDICTION OVER PERSONS AND VESSELS.

Where the master of a ship, which is in its home port, acting under instructions from the owners' manager, purchased certain supplies for repairing the ship prior to her sailing, which, following the customary practice of the firms furnishing the goods, were charged to the ship or to its owners, the credit will be presumed to have been given to the owners and not to the master, and the master having incurred no personal liability, is not entitled to enforce a maritime lien for such supplies. (§ II-5)—SALVAGE—LIABILITY OF SHIP AND CARGO.

The rule upon a claim in admiralty proceedings for salvage is, that unless there is a specific agreement for a sum certain, the interests in the ship and cargo are only severally liable each for its proportionate share of the salvage remuneration. COLLISION ACTION—FOREIGN PROCEEDINGS—RULE AS TO.

The rule as to restraining a collision action in the domestic forum because of an action relating to the same matter in a foreign court is one of convenience and fair dealing, but can only be invoked by the defendant where the plaintiff is in some way responsible for or a party to the foreign proceedings; so, if the defendant has given a bond to pay the damages awarded, if any, and has thereupon obtained the release of the ship arrested in Canada, it is not open to the defendant to object to the jurisdiction on the ground of a pending action taken by one of the defendant ships in a United States Court to limit her liability, although the collision occurred in American waters and the defendant ships are both of American register. [St. Clair v. Whitney, 38 Can. S.C.R. 303, distinguished.]

(§ II-6)—INJURIES TO SHIP—PARTIES—ASSIGNEE—MORTGAGEE—TRUE OWNER.

The assignee of a ship, to whom a ship is assigned for the purpose of enabling him to execute a valid mortgage thereon on behalf of a foreign subject, cannot maintain an action for injuries to the ship, where his certificate of British registry, to establish his ownership, had not been obtained until after the occurrence of the accident; and such mortgagee cannot by virtue of s. 45 of the Canada Shipping Act, be deemed the owner, nor may the foreign assignor be added as a party to such action without his written consent.

PARTIES.

In an action in Admiralty by ship owners to recover salvage remuneration for rescuing a disabled ship in response to her call for aid, the court may, upon consent of the master and crew of the salvaging vessel entitled to participate with the owners in the distribution of the salvage remuneration, join as parties at the hearing, and determine the amount of salvage remuneration and its apportionment.

Pickford & Black v. Steamship "Luis," 8 D.L.R. 924, 14 Can. Ex. 108.

(§ II-7)—COLLISION WITH CROWN SHIP—CROSS-CAUSE—SECURITY BY CROWN.

An action in personam against the master of a government tug, for his negligence in a collision with the plaintiff's ship, is neither an action in rem or in personam against the Crown; nor can it be considered a cross-cause to a proceedings in rem by the Crown against the plaintiff's ship, so as to permit a stay of the Crown's proceedings, under s. 34 of the Admiralty Act, 1861, until it furnishes security to answer the judgment which may be obtained in the cross-cause. (§ II-8)—PRACTICE—SEIZURE OF REARREST OF VESSEL RELEASED ON BAIL—NONSATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT.

A warrant may issue for the rearrest of a vessel to answer an unsatisfied judgment for the claim on which it was originally arrested, where the vessel had been released on bail and execution against the defending owner and sureties had been returned nullā bona. ["The Freedom" (1871), L.R. 3 A. & E. 495, followed.]

EFFECT OF ARREST ON REPAIRS SUBSEQUENT THEREON—BENEFICIAL REPAIRS—POSSESSORY LIEN—PRIORITY.

A shipwright has a possessory lien for repairs done to a ship, and should be paid, in priority, not alone for such as were done to a ship, previous to her arrest, but also for such as were done after, and which are beneficial and necessary to and upon the ship. A reference should be made to the registrar to ascertain the extent to which the repairs after arrest are beneficial.

Halifax Shipyards & Montreal Dry-docks Co. v. The "Westerian," 50 D.L.R. 543, 19 Can. Ex. 259.

SHIP—SEIZURE TO ENFORCE LIEN FOR NECESSARIES.

The fact that the statutory lien for necessities supplied to a ship away from her home port and in a country where her owner is not domiciled, may have to be postponed to a prior charge, is not a ground for setting aside the warrant of arrest in an admiralty action and does not prevent the enforcement of the lien for necessities in so far as may be lawful upon the facts which may develop afterwards upon the trial or further disposition of the case. FISHING TACKLE ON VESSEL—"NECESSARIES"—WHAT CONSTITUTES.

Fishing stores such as hooks, gaffs, nippers, and knives used by a boat in the halibut fishing trade are as much "necessaries" in admiralty law as are sailing stores to a vessel engaged only in transportation. SEIZURE AND CUSTODY OF THE RES.

A warrant for the arrest of a ship for supplies furnished, may be issued by the deputy registrar, notwithstanding the affidavit therefor omitted the material allegations of the national character of the ship and that the aid of the court was necessary, as, under Rule 39 (Admiralty Rules, Canada, 1892), the registrar has power to dispense with some of the prescribed particulars for the issuance of a warrant, without disclosing his reason for so doing, and without laying his discretion open to review.

Re 251 Bars of Silver and Canadian Salvage Assn. (No. 2), 15 Can. Ex. 370.

§ II—11)—GARNISHEE ORDER FROM PROVINCIAL COURT — EFFECT — UNNECESSARY PROCEEDINGS—COSTS—BAIL—DEPOSIT.

The Admiralty Court, in Canada, is bound to recognize garnishee proceedings in other courts of the province. The court should not encourage or countenance unnecessary proceedings and costs; its duty being to administer the law between the parties and not be influenced by mere technicalities occasioned by a welter of proceedings and costs which may in the circumstances of any particular case operate as a denial of justice. The plaintiff in an action by accepting bail, where a vessel is released upon bail, must not be taken to be in a worse position than if the vessel, the res itself, had remained under or within the control of the court. Semble the provisions of art. 1486 and 1487 R.S.Q. 1909, whereby one may deposit with the Provincial Treasurer any sum of money demanded of him by contending claimants, do not apply to cases where the contestation between the parties has been decided by the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Beaudette v. "Ethel Q.," 16 Can. Ex. 281, varying 30 D.L.R. 529, 22 Rev. de Jur. 450.

§ II—12)—CRIMES ON HIGH SEAS.

The restrictions of Code, s. 591 as to obtaining the leave of the Governor-General before taking proceedings for the trial of offences within the admiralty jurisdiction are specially applicable to offences committed upon foreign ships within British and Colonial territorial waters; they do not apply to prosecutions for offences committed on British ships on the high seas. Cases as to which s. 686 of the Merchant Shipping Act confers trial jurisdiction on Canadian courts in like manner as if the offence on the high seas had been committed within Canadian territory are not subject to Code, s. 591. § II—18)—AMENDMENT—OF PROOFS TO LEAD WARRANT.

The court may allow the respondent to an application to vacate warrants to arrest a ship in an action for necessities, to file supplementary affidavits so as to shew jurisdiction in conformity with the Exchequer Court Rules in Admiralty, rules 35 and 36, and to establish that the case was one in which the registrar could properly exercise his discretion in granting the warrants. ADULTERY.

AS CRIME—JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE.

Adultery, although a misdemeanour under an old unrepealed New Brunswick statute (R.S.N.B. 1854, c. 145), is not a crime under the Criminal Code, and a New Brunswick magistrate has no jurisdiction under Part XVI. of the Code to try such offence.

PROCEDURE APPLICABLE.

The repeal in 1886 by the Dominion Parliament of parts of certain preconfederation statutes of New Brunswick, which regulated procedure in prosecutions for adultery under R.S.N.B., 1854, c. 145, leaves that offence punishable in New Brunswick under the procedure applicable to indictable offences generally under the Criminal Code of Canada. [R. v. Buchanan, 8 Q.B. 883, referred to.] Adultery is an indictable offence in the Province of New Brunswick under the preconfederation statute of that province, R.S.N.B. 1854, c. 145, s. 3, which has not yet (1915) been repealed by the Dominion Parliament.

OFFENCE IN NEW BRUNSWICK—R.S.N.B. 1854, c. 145, s. 3—EVIDENCE OF ACCOMPLICE—INSTRUCTION TO JURY.

On a charge of adultery in New Brunswick, where it is an indictable offence under a preconfederation law, it is the duty of the judge where there is no corroboration of the evidence of the person with whom the adultery was committed to point out that fact to the jury and to warn them of the danger of finding a verdict of guilty on the testimony of an accomplice. The failure to so warn the jury is a ground for a new trial. [As to offence of adultery, indictable in New Brunswick, see R. v. Strong, 26 D.L.R. 122, 43 Can. Cr. Cas. 430, 43 N.B.R. 190.]

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ I A—1)—PRESCRIPTION—DISTINCTION BETWEEN.

The distinction in English law between prescription and adverse possession is that prescription relates to an incorporeal hereditament, while adverse possession is in respect of a thing corporeal.

The King v. Tweedie, 22 D.L.R. 498, 15 Can. Ex. 177. [Reversed in 27 D.L.R. 53, 52 Can. S.C.R. 197 on another point.]

WHAT CONSTITUTES—LAND—ELEMENTS OF ABSOLUTE, ACTUAL, NOTORIOUS POSSESSION.

Where an adverse claimant by possession has held beyond the period prescribed by the Nova Scotia Statute of Limitations and such possession has been (a) open, visible and continuous; (b) not equivocal or occasional; such elements of absolute, actual, notorious possession clearly establish the class of possession imposed by the statute.

The discretion which exists in the court under sec. 16(b) of the Judicature Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, to grant or withhold a mere declaration of right, is not to be exercised to confirm a title to land claimed by possession under the Statute of Limitations (R.S.O. 1914, c. 75). ACTS OF POSSESSION—EVIDENCE—FINDING OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Godson Contracting Co. v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 13 O.W.N. 241.

TITLE BY POSSESSION—CONVEYANCE BY OWNER WHEN DISSEISED—QUESTIONS TO JURY—FAILURE TO SUBMIT QUESTION—NEW TRIAL.

In an action of trespass to land, brought to try title, both parties claimed title by possession. The jury found the plaintiff had twenty years' adverse, exclusive, continuous and uninterrupted possession, but were not asked to find as to defendants' title. On motion by defendants to set aside the verdict—Held, per Landry and Barry, J.J. There was evidence sufficient to support the verdict. Per McLeod and White, J.J. The evidence was not sufficient to support the verdict, and as there was no finding on defendants' title there should be a new trial. Per White, J. It was the defendants' duty to submit a question as to their title, and not having done so, they should pay the costs of the trial and of the motion to set aside the verdict. Per Barry, J. It was the defendants' duty to submit a question as to their title, and not having done so when the opportunity was given, they are not entitled to a new trial in order to submit such question. A deed of land by a grantor who is disseised will convey his right of entry, under s. 17 of the Property Act, C.S. 1903, c. 152.

Miller v. Rundle, 41 N.S.R. 591.

WHAT CONSTITUTES.

The defendant has no title by possession where his possession is not open, notorious and exclusive; and where the plaintiff company and its predecessors in title exercised their rights and occupancy during the whole of the defendant's alleged possession.

Turnbull Real Estate Co. v. Segee et al., 4 N.B. Eq. 372.

ENCROACHMENT—INTENTION.

One who encroaches on land to the prejudice of the possession of another cannot meet the possessory conclusions of the party prejudiced, by declaring that he never had the intention to dispute his possession when in spite of the protestations of the latter he persists in the same acts.

Lortie v. Wright, 26 Que. K.B. 18.

(§ 1 A—2)—WHAT CONSTITUTES—"POSSESSIO PEDIS"—SQUATTER TRESPASSING ON LAND—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

A "squatter" trespassing upon land and holding same cannot invoke the Statute of Limitations to bar the right of the true owner except as to the land of which there has been "pedal possession" as by fencing or cultivating for the statutory period. [Harris v. Mudie, 7 A.R. (Ont.) 414, followed; Coffin v. N.A. Land Co., 21 O.R.

80; Piper v. Stevenson, 12 D.L.R. 820, 28 O.L.R. 379, referred to; and see McConaghy v. Denmark, 4 Can. S.C.R. 609.] An acknowledgment of title by the squatter in possession for the statutory period must be in writing under the Limitations Act, but his oral agreement to act as caretaker of the rightful owner will nevertheless be effective as to portions of the land in question upon which there was no pedal possession sufficient to bar the rightful owner's claim. [Ryan v. Ryan, 5 Can. S.C.R. 387; Green-shields v. Bradford, 28 Gr. 299, referred to.]

POSSESSIO PEDIS.

Entry upon and cultivation of a plot of land claimed under a grant from the Crown is not sufficient to give title by constructive possession of the whole as against a prior grantee also in possession and exercising acts of ownership over a portion of the land described in his grant. Where the land claimed under both grants is woodland, occasional acts of cutting and cultivation by one of the parties will not suffice to give a statutory title as against the other, such acts amounting to no more than a mere possessio pedis.

(§ 1 B—5)—FENCING IN LOT AROUND BLACKSMITH SHOP—DEED—DESCRIPTION OF LAND.

Sulis v. Armstrong, 36 D.L.R. 778, 51 N.S.R. 315.

ON BOUNDARY.

A blazed line running around the whole of the land in question, run by a private surveyor at the instance of the occupant, will not establish in his favour a title by possession, although no disturbance thereof was made for the statutory period as such act lacks publicity and conveys no sufficient intimation that the occupant is claiming title to the whole of the area included within the blazed lines. In an action en bornage merely without a demand for revendication of land or establishment of a specified boundary line, each party is at the same time plaintiff and defendant. The one who is named as defendant may, at an ex parte hearing, establish his right to a line indicated by a fence up to which he has had possession for thirty years, but he cannot set it up when the action is contested and he has asked that it be dismissed with costs.

Barrette v. Ampleman, 42 Que. S.C. 218.

(§ I B-6) — POSSESSORY ACTION — LAND SURVEYOR — BOUNDARY STAKES — DIVISION LINE.

One who, after having requested a land surveyor to delimit his land, planted stakes upon land in the possession, up to that time, of his neighbour, to indicate the division line, and who, instead of then bringing an action to settle the landmarks, on the refusal of the neighbour to draw a line and to sign a proces-verbal, forbids the neighbour to take up the stakes, and even has him arrested for taking them out, commits an act of violent dispossession, and gives grounds for possessory action.

The continued and uninterrupted possession of land for the statutory period, but entered on under an agreement to pay the taxes thereon as rent, and no other rent having been stipulated for, the payments of such taxes operate as an acknowledgement of title which will prevent the Limitation Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, s. 6 (7), from accruing. (§ I E-22) — MORTGAGE.

The title of a registered owner of land registered under the Torrens system or new system of registration in Manitoba is not extinguished by adverse possession of the land held by his mortgagee and persons claiming under him for the statutory period which by R.S.M. 1902, c. 100, s. 29, is applicable to lands not so registered. LIMITATIONS AGAINST MORTGAGEE—EFFECT OF PAYMENTS.

The Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, s. 23, is inoperative against a mortgagee or any person claiming under him, to whom the land was conveyed by a deed absolute in form but intended only as security for a loan and on which payments were being made.

One who acquires in good faith, and by title transferring the ownership, an immovable burdened with hypothecs, and who has the useful possession of it under this title for ten years, is discharged of liability for these hypothecs by prescription.

Samson v. Larochelle, 48 Que. S.C. 261.

F. AS TO TENANTS IN COMMON AND BY ENTIRETY.

(§ I F-25) — POSSESSION BY ONE—GUARDIAN OF CO-TENANTS.

The relationship of a widow as bailiff of her husband's property for her husband's children may be dissolved by circumstances where the widow pays all taxes, improves the property and clears it of encumbrances at her own expense, and the children put in no adverse claim for several years after they come of age. Such facts are sufficient to warrant a finding that the relationship of bailiff had ceased, and the widow was justified in treating the property as her own. [Snider v. Carlton, 25 D.L.R. 410, [1916] 1 A.C. 266, referred to.]

POSSESSION AGAINST—RIGHTS OF PURCHASER.

No title as against the cotenants is acquired by a purchase of lands from a tenant in common who has not the possession of the lands against the cotenants as required by s. 14 of the Statute of Limitations (N.S.).

G. AS TO REMAINDERMEN OR REVERSIONERS.
(§ I G—31)—LIFE TENANTS—HEIRS OF REVERSIONER.

The continued occupation of land by the successors in title, in which their predecessors had a life estate as tenants in common, for a period more than 35 years between the death of the life tenant and the commencement of action for its recovery by the heirs of the reversioner, is within the purview of s. 7 (3) of the Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, barring recovery where lands are held adversely for a period of 10 years.

LIFE TENANT AGAINST REMAINDERMAN.

Where a devise of land may be rendered inoperative by the subsequent execution of a deed to the same property, still, where the grantee elects to take under the will instead of making entry under the deed, a person holding a life estate to the land cannot set up the Statute of Limitations as against the remainderman for his failure to make entry under the deed within the statutory period. (§ I H—41)—CONTINUOUS USER OF TIDE LANDS—FORESHORE—LOST GRANT.

Continuous user of a foreshore adjoining one's land for booming purposes, for upwards of forty years, affords as strong an instance of adverse possession as can be had of tide lands, from which a prior like user may be inferred or a lost grant presumed.

quire title to the overlapping land, since the rule is that the first grantee in point of time and possession takes all of the land called for in his allotment. [Bochner v. Hirtle, 9 E.L.R. 258, reversed on appeal.]

A person in possession under a deed of lands described by metes and bounds has a colourable title and is deemed to be in possession of all the lands within the boundaries of the deed although not enclosed. A trespasser to acquire a statutory title against him must not only take possession so as to disseise the owner, but such possession must be continuous, exclusive, open, visible, and notorious for the statutory period, of all the land to which adverse title is claimed.

(§ I K—55)—EXTENT AND KIND OF POSSESSION.

The "actual, constant, and visible occupation," necessary to possessory title to land is not shewn by the fact that the land has been fenced for thirty years and by a statement by the claimant of the land that for twenty years off and on he had stored lumber and other stuff there, even when supplemented by a further statement that some material remained there continuously. [Campeau v. May, 2 O.W.N. 1420, specially referred to.]

EXERCISE OF STATUTORY RIGHTS.

A user of a riparian right as authorized by statute does not give title by adverse possession.

PUBLIC USER — MUNICIPAL CORPORATION — BOUNDARIES.

The user permitted to the public, by simple tolerance of the owner, of a platform adjacent to a municipal sidewalk, and constructed by an individual in connection with the convenient use of his lands, does not constitute possession which can avail for the purposes of prescription, nor can such user be invoked by a municipal corporation as giving rise to a possessory action. Where there has been promiscuous possession of a strip of land between adjacent proprietors there ought to be a reference for the establishment of boundaries before either one or the other can have recourse to either petitory or possessory actions.

ACQUISITIVE PRESCRIPTION—QUALITIES OF POSSESSION — DEFECT ARISING FROM EQUIVOCAL POSSESSION — ACTS DONE SINE ANIMO DOMINI.

A defendant, in an action denying a right-of-way, who sets up, as a ground of defence, that he has acquired, through prescription, the land which he passes over, and that he uses it as owner of it, must establish his acquisition by a thirty years unequivocal possession as owner. The fact that he alone, during the required period of time has passed over land which was used for no other purpose, and was separated from the plaintiff's land by a fence, the care of which fence was left to both plaintiff and defendant; the fact also that he felled a tree on the land and cut the grass, and kept both as his property, and that he paved the way, are acts which he may have done sine animo domini, and therefore are not sufficient to set aside the defect resulting from equivocal possession. Such a defect affects the intention of a party to possess exclusively for himself, and the existence of that defect is a pure question of fact to be decided by the courts.

TITLE TO LAND—ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Turnbull Real Estate Co. v. Segee, 10 E.L.R. 234.

EXTENT OF POSSESSION.

To an action negatoire of servitude the defendant may plead that he is owner, by a prescriptive title, of the lands subjected to the servitude, but the fact that he was in the habit of passing over it for thirty years, that he had cut the grass on the road through it, that he had kept up the road, had cut down a tree and used the lumber, and that he had contributed to the maintenance of a fence dividing the land (during all of which time the plaintiff paid the taxes and maintained the front road which bounded it) are not unequivocal acts of possession, under title of owner, which will produce acquisition by prescription.

Blondeau v. Paquet, 44 Que. S.C. 83.

(§ I K—56)—OF SURFACE.

The harvesting of natural fruit establishes the possession of land in him who does it and gives him a right of action en complainte against those who interfere with such possession.

Conillard v. Bolduc, 42 Que. S.C. 282.

Surface rights in land, being proprietary rights, cannot be lost by nonuser as in the case of a servitude; therefore a third party may acquire it by prescription as his possession has all the necessary elements and they exist in respect to the possession of surface rights. The party in adverse possession can then obtain title by prescription against the owner of the subsoil without obtaining it against the owner of the surface and vice versa as the two titles are distinct and divisible.

Where a grantee of wild land in British Columbia under a conveyance intended only as security has for more than 20 years performed the only act of possession of which it is capable, namely, paid all the taxes upon it, while the grantor although aware of this and under an obligation to make periodical payments of interest, has done and paid nothing, the grantee has had such possession as to give him the benefit of the Statute of Limitations, R.S.B.C. 1897, c. 123 [see now R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 145], and an action for redemption by the grantor is barred by that statute.

Kirby v. Cowderoy, 5 D.L.R. 675, [1912] A.C. 599, 2 W.W.R. 723.

TITLE BY UNREGISTERED DEED—NOT TO TAKE EFFECT AS PRESENT CONVEYANCE—ACTS OF GRANTEE NOT ASSERTIONS OF OWNERSHIP—INEQUITABLE TO GIVE EFFECT TO DEED.

The evidence shewed that certain deeds of property were executed without consideration, and were not intended to take effect as present conveyances but were only to become operative as effective conveyances to the grantee upon the death of the grantor, if at all and such deeds were held by the grantee for many years without being registered.

Ritchie E.J., and Mellish, J., held that the acts of the grantee in reference to the property could not be regarded as assertions of ownership over it, and it being clearly inequitable to give effect to such deeds under the circumstances, the title by adverse possession should be upheld and the appeal dismissed.

Harris, C.J., and Drysdale, J., following East v. Clark, 23 D.L.R. 74, held that there being possession by the grantee in common with the adverse claimant the possession followed the title. The payment of taxes could be regarded as payment of rent and amounted unequivocally to an acknowledgment of the grantee's title.

Matheson v. Murray, 46 D.L.R. 264.

ADVERSE OCCUPANCY.

II. Effect; time required.

(§ II-60)—NULLUM TEMPUS ACT—INTERRUPTION—JUDGMENT—ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

A default judgment obtained in an ejectment action by the Crown, which was never enforced, or an acknowledgment of title in writing, will not interrupt the adverse possession of Crown lands or prevent it from ripening into a title under the Nullum Tempus Act. A statute (Ontario Limitations Act, 1902) making an acknowledgment an interruption of possession of Crown lands is not retroactive.

Hamilton v. The King, 35 D.L.R. 226, 54 Can. S.C.R. 331, reversing 16 Can. Ex. 67.

EFFECT—TIME REQUIRED—COMMENCEMENT OF RUNNING OF LIMITATIONS.

On sale of land by a mortgagee under power of sale, his interest being a life estate only, the Statute of Limitations did not commence to run in favour of those claiming under such sale, until the death of the mortgagee.

Mathieu v. Lalonde, 13 O.W.N. 186, reversing 12 O.W.N. 373.

PRESCRIPTION—REGISTERED TITLE.

A party in possession of property may gain title by possession in ten years against a registered title without his own title being registered.

Hoy v. Malette, 52 Que. S.C. 258.

(§ II—61)—TIME REQUIRED—INTERRUPTION OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS—ABSENCE FROM LAND DURING WINTER.

The fact that, for a portion of the time, one claiming land by adverse possession, did not reside thereon during the winter months does not amount to an interruption of the running of the Limitations Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 34, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, where, for more than ten years, he plowed and cropped the land and kept it enclosed with fences since his possession was open, obvious, exclusive and continuous. The fact that one claiming land by adverse possession did not reside on it continuously does not shew an intention to abandon it, where, during all of the time, he kept the land completely enclosed with fences, and plowed and cropped it from year to year. [Worssam v. Vanderbrande (1868), 17 W.R. 53, referred to.]

EFFECT—CONTINUITY AND INTERRUPTIONS—TRESPASS.

A prescriptive title to land can be acquired as against the owner of the paper title, only by an actual, continuous and visible occupation or possession for the statutory period; and where the person having the paper title took actual possession of the disputed strip of land before the statutory period had elapsed without such a shew of force as would constitute "forcible entry," the former occupant is ousted and cannot maintain an action of trespass.

Greaves v. Carruthers, 13 D.L.R. 199, 18 B.C.R. 264.

TENANT AT WILL—PRIOR MORTGAGEE—STATUTORY EFFECT.

A person admitted into possession as tenant at will and remaining in possession without acknowledgment for ten years after the lapse of one year from being placed in possession will not acquire a title by adverse possession against the mortgagee of the lands claiming under a mortgage made prior to the tenancy at will unless a ten year period has elapsed under the statute, 10

Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 34, s. 23, from the last payment of any part of the principal money or interest secured by the mortgage. Where a mortgage registered under the Ontario Registry Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 60, is paid off by the mortgagor, and a discharge thereof is registered in the statutory form, the effect is to discharge the mortgage as against a person claiming title by adverse possession against the mortgagor since the making of the mortgage, and the effect is not to convey or reconvey to the mortgagor his original title in fee with the right to possession as from the date of the repayment. Noble v. Noble (No. 2), 9 D.L.R. 735, 27 O.L.R. 342, affirming in part, 1 D.L.R. 516.

CONTINUITY AND INTERRUPTION.

If a person enters upon the land of another and holds possession for a time, and then, without having acquired title under the statute, abandons possession, the rightful owner, on the abandonment, is in the same position in all respects as he was before the intrusion took place. (§ II—62)—TACKING.

In making up the period of sixty years' adverse possession, the possessions of two or more parties who have been in possession continuously and without any break may be tacked. [See Robinson v. Osborne, 8 D.L.R. 1014, and Annotation to same, 8 D.L.R. 1021, on the subject of Successive Trespassers.]

TACKING.

A buyer cannot add the possession of his predecessors in title to arrive at a thirty years' prescription unless he be their ayant-cause by universal or particular title. [Butler v. Legare, 8 Que. L.R. 307, and Stoddart v. Lefevre, 11 L.C.R. 481, followed.] Where certain cadastral lots are acquired by deed of sale the owner cannot acquire territory beyond such lots by alleging that his deed gives him a larger area, by a ten years' acquisitive prescription, as this would constitute acquiring beyond his title. In such case he could only acquire the ownership of territory beyond such lots by a possession as owner for thirty years.

Hamel v. Ross, 3 D.L.R. 860.

EXCLUSIVE POSSESSION—PRESCRIPTIVE TITLE—ORAL EVIDENCE.

Oral evidence, given without objection, to establish that a possession of land is as tenant at will and not as owner, is effective. One who invokes title to an immovable by possession jointly with a former owner, must prove that he is the legal representative of the latter.

Lemoine v. Dorval, 44 Que. S.C. 382.

(§ II—63)—BETWEEN CLAIMANTS BY RIGHT OF POSSESSION.

Where two parties claim to be entitled to land as possessing it, and the possession of land has been uninterrupted, unequivocal and exclusive, the proper remedy consists in a petitory action, or an action to determine boundaries (en bornage) and not a possessory action (en réintégration).

(§ II—64)—GRANTEE FROM CROWN—EJECTMENT.

A person claiming under the title of persons who have been in the possession of land between twenty and sixty years cannot be put out of possession by the grantee of a grant from the Crown. [Emmerson v. Maddison, [1906] A.C. 569, distinguished.] The Statute of Limitations will run against the grantee of the Crown, not from the date of the grant, but from the commencement of adverse occupation as against the Crown.

Walsh v. Smith, 43 D.L.R. 648, 52 N.S.R. 375.

TIME REQUIRED AGAINST CROWN.

Adverse possession extending over a period of sixty years is sufficient to give the holder title as against the Crown or any one claiming under the Crown.

DECLARATION ON LAND, PROOF OF—UNDER WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES ADMISSIBLE—PROOF OF WHAT FACTS—POSSESSION AGAINST THE CROWN—WHAT MUST BE PROVED—CONVEYANCE BY CROWN—HOW MADE.

A declaration of one in adverse possession, made upon the land by its then occupant, is evidence in support of a claim of title by adverse possession; provided, such declaration is apparently made in good faith and goes to shew, (a) the character, or (b) the extent, of the declarant's occupancy; but:—Semble, such a declaration is not admissible to prove simply the date when the declarant first acquired possession, or for how long a time he held it. [Rundle v. McNeil, 38 N.B.R. 406, considered.] The period of sixty years' possession is essential to establish a claimant's right against the Crown, and the evidence must shew exclusive, continuous, open, visible adverse possession for the sixty-year period, and when the land claimed is neither bounded by a fence or other visible boundary, nor its limits defined by deed, the doctrine of constructive possession does not apply; and the claimant can establish title by possession to so much only of the land as he had held in actual adverse possession for the requisite statutory period. There is no mode by which the Crown, apart from statutory authority, can convey land, otherwise than by its grant under the Great Seal, and it would not therefore be barred by acquiescence or adoption or recognition of a line to which one claims to hold adversely.

Mersereau v. Swim, 42 N.B.R. 497.

III. Who may hold adversely.

(§ III—65)—REALTY—WHO MAY HOLD ADVERSELY—PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE OF SEISIN IN FEE.

The fact of possession by the plaintiff and his predecessors in title is prima facie evidence of seisin in fee, and the defendant can only oust the plaintiff by shewing a better title. [Perry v. Chissold, [1897] A.C. 73, and Asher v. Whitlock, L.R. 1 Q.B. 1, referred to.]

On Motions, see Motions and Orders.

(§ I—1)—WHAT CONSTITUTES—DECLARATION WITH JURAT ADDED.

A document in the form of a statutory declaration under the Canada Evidence Act except that the justice had certified that it was "sworn" before him, is not a valid affidavit; the word "oath" or some equivalent in the body of the document is essential to make it an affidavit. [Phillips v. Prentice, 2 Hare 542; Re Newton, 2 DeG. F. & J. 3; Allen v. Taylor, L.R. 10 Eq. 52, 39 L.J. Ch. 627, referred to.]

SUFFICIENCY OF.

The description of the Commissioner subscribing the jurat to an affidavit being incomplete, or even incorrect as to the territory over which his commission extends, does not vitiate the document, his commissionership being actually in esse and the court having power to satisfy itself on this point. The authority for taking an affidavit of debt out of New Brunswick for use in N.B. is found in c. 62, C.S.N.B., 1903, s. 3, which provides that when any person shall take any oath under said section his act shall be certified or authenticated in the same manner and with the same formality in all respects as though such act were the taking by him of the proof or acknowledgment of a conveyance. A jurat, as follows: "Sworn to at the City of Toronto in the County of York in the Province of Ontario this _____ day _____, a Notary Public in and for the Province of Ontario," does not comply with the requirements of this statute.

A number of persons purported to organ-

No special act of incorporation was sought or obtained;—Held, that the Legislature did not intend to confer corporate powers upon agricultural societies by the provisions of the enactment in question, and, furthermore, that c. 127 of such revised statutes only defines the powers and privileges of incorporated companies and does not provide for their creation.

VII, c. 27, 1910, as amended by 1 and 2 Geo. V, c. 12, 1911, is guilty of a violation of s. 33 (8) thereof, which declares any person guilty of an offence who shall knowingly and wilfully land or assist to land or attempt to land in Canada any immigrant or person whose entry is forbidden by such Act. S. 33 (8) of the Immigration Act, 9 and 10 Edw. VII, c. 27 (D), which declares it an offence for any person or transportation company to knowingly and wilfully land or to assist to land or to attempt to land in Canada any prohibited immigrant or person whose entry is forbidden by the Act, is not restricted to the prohibited classes mentioned in s. 3 of the Act, but applies also to persons who are assisted to enter by misrepresentation.

Applicant, a Hindu, came to British Columbia in January, 1910, not by continuous voyage from his own country, and was admitted as a tourist, in which capacity he traveled in Canada, reaching British Columbia again in October following. The law governing immigration had been changed in the meantime, and he was held under the new law for deportation, but without any inquiry being held as to his status as provided by the amended law:—Held, that the act was not retrospective in this regard and did not apply; and as the old act contained no provision for the deportation of such a person he could not be deported thereunder.

II. Naturalization.

(§ II-5)—NATURALIZATION—STATE OF WAR—ENEMY SUBJECTS—CIVIL RIGHTS—R.S.C. c. 77.

In this country, the commissioner who receives the applications for naturalization, takes oaths of allegiance and makes inquiries, the judge who directs the reading of the certificates given by the commissioner and their filing in the proper office, and the court which puts its seal on the certificate of naturalization, all exercise administrative and not judicial functions. According to the principles of public international law recognized in England in time of war, the subjects are enemies as are the states, "justi standi in judicio," but if the subjects of a belligerent state are allowed to remain in this country, they are relieved of their disability. The proclamation of the Governor-General, dated the 15th August, 1914, which confirmed to Germans and Austro-Hungarians residing in Canada the enjoyment of all rights which the law had accorded them in the past, upon condition of their good conduct, is in conformity with art. 23 b of the Hague Conference of 1907, and consequently Germans and Austro-Hungarians who live in this country during the present European war preserve their civil rights and particularly that of applying for naturalization.

The Naturalization Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 77, s. 24, bestows upon persons naturalized under it the status of British subjects, and not merely the rights incidental to British subjects. This status continues to exist not only while such person is physically within Canada, but so long as he does not reside in his original country.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

In reference to civil rights an "enemy" is a person of any nationality residing and carrying on business in an enemy country; an Austro-Hungarian residing in a neutral country is entitled to specific performance of an agreement for sale of land, but the court will impound the purchase money to prevent it being used to assist the enemy.

ALIEN ENEMY—RIGHT TO MAINTAIN ACTION.

An alien resident in Ontario is, although his country is at war with ours, so long as he conducts himself peaceably, and is with- in the proclamation of the 15th August, 1914, entitled to enjoy the protection of the law; and this includes the right to bring and maintain an action in any court in Ontario. ALIEN ENEMY RESIDING IN PROVINCE—SUITS BY.

An alien residing in the Province of Quebec is not necessarily an enemy because he was born in a state which is at war with the British Empire, and does not lose his right of recourse in the courts. A fortiori, the suspension of an action of an alien in Christian cannot be demanded, as the latter were specially exempted by Order in Council of November 20, 1914, from registering themselves as enemy aliens.

ACTION BY—WAR—RESIDENCE IN HOSTILE COUNTRY—SECURITY FOR COSTS—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS—DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

The plaintiffs, residing in Austria and subjects of the Emperor of Austria, began this action before a state of war existed between the Emperor and his Britannic Majesty, and were ordered to give security for costs. Their solicitor, not being able to communicate with them after the war began, and no further proceedings having been taken, applied for an extension of time and for a stay of proceedings, in order to avoid the dismissal of the action which followed upon failure to give security. This was refused; and it was held (upon an application in Chambers by the defendants), that the plaintiffs, having become alien enemies, ought to be barred from further prosecution of the action, which was dismissed; but, semble, the dismissal of the action at this stage would not be a bar to a subsequent action after the termination of the war. The provision contained in the Rural Municipality Act for the assessment of owners and occupants of property and proceedings thereunder were intended for times of peace. A state of war was not contemplated by the Act. The provisions as to notice are based upon the presumption that notices will be likely to reach the person to whom they are sent and that such person will be able either to appear at the court or to instruct some one to appear for him and will be able to send money, if he possesses the necessary financial means, to pay up the arrears and costs. The situation, so far as it concerned alien enemies resident in one of the enemy countries (with whom communication was forbidden by law) was completely altered by the outbreak of the recent war, which destroyed all those presumptions upon which the statute was based. An order of confirmation and the consequent forfeiture against such nonresident alien enemy was held therefore to have lost the very foundation upon which they were based and such person was held entitled to pay all taxes in arrears, interest, penalties and costs and receive back her property.

Reventlow-Criminil v. Rural Municipality of Streamstown, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 478.

RIGHT TO SUE—EFFECT OF NATURALIZATION.

The plaintiffs (brothers), who were Germans by birth, emigrated to the United States, where the older became naturalized. Some time later they came to British Columbia, where they lived a number of years, acquired property, and became naturalized citizens of Canada. In 1913, they sold their property under an agreement of sale, and returned and made their home in the United States, the younger brother later declaring his intention of becoming an American citizen. In an action for the moneys due under the aforesaid agreement of sale.—Held, on appeal that the fact of their living permanently in the United States, and the younger brother declaring his intention of becoming an American citizen, does not affect their status as British subjects, and they are entitled to bring this action.

The assets of an Ontario estate which belong to or are held or managed for an alien enemy, may, on application to a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario, be vested in "the Custodian" appointed under the Consolidated Orders respecting trading with enemy 1916. A document brought into existence by agreement of persons interested as devisees or legatees under the will and made subsequent to the death of the testator, even though in pursuance of a power conferred in the will, cannot be admitted to probate in Ontario, and even though a foreign court ratified such a document, this decision cannot be treated as effective and binding. A beneficial interest had passed from the testator to his daughter on his death, and that interest has not passed from the daughter by reason of the document already referred to, and so still remained liable to forfeiture under the Consolidated Orders. The theory of the comity of nations should be modified or restricted when it conflicts with matters of public policy, which was essentially the case. The order was made by a judge as "persona designata" and an appeal, if any, would lie with special leave under the Judges' Orders Enforcement Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 79, ss. 2 and 4.

Where an alien enemy starts for the boundary line with the intention of leaving Canada he is to be considered as in the act of leaving Canada on every part of the journey, and any person knowing such intention on his part and doing any act in furtherance of that intention thereby assists such alien enemy within the meaning of Cr. Code, s. 75A, whether the latter got across the boundary line or not. [Compare R. v. Nerlich, 25 D.L.R. 138, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 236.] A jury trying a charge under Cr. Code, s. 75A, for assisting an enemy alien to leave Canada may properly infer that the person assisted is an alien enemy on his testimony that his earliest recollections are of residence in the enemy country and proof that he had registered in Canada as an alien enemy. ALTERATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

- I. IN GENERAL.
- II. BILLS AND NOTES.
 - A. In general.
 - B. What alterations are material.

I. In general.

(§ I—2)—CONTRACTS—MATERIALITY.

The alteration which will avoid a written contract when made without the privity of the obligee, must be as to a material point thereof, and the insertion in a broker's "bought note" of the name of the plaintiff claiming thereon as the principal for whom the other broker named had contracted with notice to the issuing broker of the name of such principal would not be held to be a material alteration even if there was not evidence of assent thereto by the obligee, where the insertion of the name made no attempted change in the plaintiff's rights. [Cooke v. Eshelby, 12 App. Cas. 271; Suffell v. Bank of England, 51 L.J.Q.B. 401; Pattinson v. Lackley, L.R. 10 Ex. 339, referred to.]

(§ I—4)—HIRE OF CHATTEL—PERSONAL LIABILITY OF DEFENDANT—LIABILITY OF INCORPORATED COMPANY—MATERIAL ALTERATION IN WRITTEN CONTRACT.

Flexlume Sign. Co. v. Vise, 11 O.W.N. 44.

II. Bills and notes.

B. WHAT ALTERATIONS ARE MATERIAL.

(II B—10)—SIGNATURE.

Altering a promissory note by adding the words "Cohen Frères, per" before the signature M. Cohen is not a material alteration rendering the note void, inasmuch as the liability of the maker remains unchanged.

Rabinovitch v. Cohen, Marks v. Cohen, British Canadian Fur Trading Co. v. Cohen, 39 D.L.R. 320, 53 Que. S.C. 174.

PROMISSORY NOTE — MATERIAL ALTERATION

—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—EFFECT.

When the words "this note to follow agreement," written in the left hand corner of a promissory note, are altered so as to read "this note to fall due for payment, May 9th 1913" such alteration is material and voids the note. If the alteration is apparent, no person who subsequently takes the note can be a holder in due course.

Gourie v. Voskoboynik, 45 Que. S.C. 101.

VOIDING NOTE BY MATERIAL ALTERATION—RIGHT TO SUE ON ORIGINAL CONSIDERATION.

A material alteration in a note renders the same void, and a holder, who has fraudulently altered the note, cannot succeed in an action based on the consideration for the note.

O'Brien v. Brennan, 9 W.W.R. 277.

(§ II B-11)—MATURITY OF NOTE.

Changing a note, to make it become payable in two months instead of one month, is a material alteration which will void the note as against an obligor who has not assented thereto.

Union Bank of Canada v. West Shore & Northern Land Co., 35 D.L.R. 575, 23 B.C.R. 64.

LIEN NOTE—AGREEMENT TO EXTEND—NO CONSIDERATION FOR—ALTERATION OF DATE—FORGERY.

Altering the word "Nov." to "Sept." in an unsigned memorandum made on the back of an overdue lien note, agreeing to extend the time for payment of the note, such agreement being made without consideration and there being no evidence of fraudulent intent is not forgery.

(§ II B-12)—BILLS AND NOTES—STRIKING OUT INTEREST CLAUSE—EFFECT.

Striking the interest clause from a promissory note is such a material alteration as will vitiate the instrument, irrespective of whether the change is beneficial or prejudicial to the maker. [Suffell v. Bank of England, 9 Q.B.D. 568; and Gardner v. Walsh, 5 E.L. and Bl. 83, followed.]

Langley v. Lavers, 13 D.L.R. 697, 13 E.L.R. 141.

BILLS AND NOTES—CHANGING ILLEGAL RATE OF INTEREST TO LEGAL—MATERIALITY OF ALTERATION.

Changing the rate of interest in a promissory note taken by a money lender for less than $500, by the holder after delivery, from 2 per cent per month to 12 per cent per annum is a material alteration which vitiates the note.

CHANGING RATE OF INTEREST—RIGHT TO SUE UPON ORIGINAL CONSIDERATION.

Where a promissory note is taken in satisfaction of payment of a car, the amount of the purchase price represented by it cannot be sued upon after an avoidance of the note by a fraudulent alteration by the holder of the rate of interest therein.

FILLING IN RATE OF INTEREST.

Filling in a rate of interest in a lien note without the maker's authority after it has been signed is a material alteration, and voids the instrument.

(§ II B-14)—CHANGING NAME AFTER ACCEPTANCE.

Changing the name of the payee, after acceptance of a draft, without the acceptor's assent, is a material alteration under ss. 145, 146 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, and voids the bill.

(§ II B-16)—PROMISSORY NOTE—ADDING NEW MAKER.

An alteration of a promissory note, after its issue, by the addition of the name of another maker, a member of a syndicate, who signed the note in accordance with the evident intention of all the signatories, does not invalidate the note; signature of an additional maker is not a "material alteration."

(§ II B-17)—ABSENCE OF PRESUMPTION AS TO DATE—RELATION TO EXECUTION—PAYEE'S NAME.

In the event of an apparent alteration in a negotiable instrument or the like, there is no presumption one way or the other as to the time when the apparent alteration was made, that is, whether prior or subsequent to its execution.

Langley v. Joudrey (No. 2), 15 D.L.R. 10, 47 N.S.R. 451.

ASSIGNMENT OF NOTE FOR COLLECTION—SUBSTITUTION OF HOLDER'S NAME AS PAYEE—NOT MATERIAL ALTERATION.

Altering a promissory note after it has become due and in virtue of an assignment for the purpose of collecting the amount thereof by the holder substituting his own name as payee in place of that of the bank in whose hands it was first placed for collection, is not a material alteration and the last payee is a holder for collection, subject to any defences the maker may have against the original payee.

Henderson v. Maher, 46 D.L.R. 143, 55 Que. S.C. 175.

(§ II B-19)—CHANGING PLACE OF PAYMENT—MATERIALITY.

An acceptance of an offer to sell, which varies the amount of the cash payment, and increases the amounts of the deferred payments, is merely a counter offer to purchase and no contract is made by it although the total price is not thereby changed.

(§ 1 B—13)—DOGS RUNNING AT LARGE.

Where a by-law passed under the authority of subs. 1 and 2 of s. 540 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903 justifies the killing of any dog found running at large more than half a mile from the premises of its owner, a dog is to be deemed "found" within the meaning of the by-law where it is first seen by its pursuers and it cannot lawfully be killed if, having been first seen less than half a mile from its owner's premises, it subsequently goes beyond that distance.

INJURY CAUSED BY DOG—COLLISION.

Caton v. Kleinberg, 39 Que. S.C. 121.

(§ 1 B—14)—CRIMINAL LIABILITY — DEFENCES.

On a charge under Code s. 537 for wilfully killing a dog, reference may be had to the rules of the common law under Code s. 16 for ascertaining whether the dog was killed under circumstances amounting to a legal justification or excuse, and by Code s. 541 a conviction is not to be made unless the killing of the dog was done not only without legal justification or excuse but without colour of right.

O'Leary v. Therrien, 27 D.L.R. 701, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 110.

C. LIABILITY FOR INJURIES BY.

(§ 1 C—20)—KNOWLEDGE OF VICIOUS DISPOSITION.

One who owns a dog that was in the habit of running out and barking at passers-by on the highway, is liable for injuries sustained by a skilled horsewoman, who, while exercising care, was thrown from her horse by reason of its becoming frightened and unmanageable at the barking of the dog, which ran into the highway as she was passing.

VICIOUS ANIMAL—LIABILITY OF OWNER—PRESUMPTION AS TO.

The owner of an animal is liable for injury caused by it, just as every person is responsible for things in his care, only when he cannot prove that he was unable to prevent the act which caused the injury; in other terms, he is allowed to rebut the presumption of fault established against him by art. 1955 C.C.

(§ 1 C—25)—STRAY ANIMALS ACT—DISTRAINT—INJURIES BY.

An estray distrained within a municipality may, under part 3 of the Stray Animals Act (Sask.), be impounded in the nearest accessible or available pound either within or without such municipality. No action will lie for damage caused by estrays to stacks not enclosed by a lawful fence as defined by part 6 of the Stray Animals Act (Sask.).

INJURIES BY—STRAY ANIMALS ACT—DISTRAINT.

Smith v. Parsenau (Sask.), 37 D.L.R. 806.

BLACKSMITH'S SHOP—INJURY BY HORSE KICKING—SCIENTER.

A blacksmith is liable for injuries to a horse inflicted by a stallion, and occasioned by leading into his shop the horse within reach of the stallion's hind feet without taking precaution to avoid the danger of his kicking. This is by reason of the common knowledge of persons accustomed to horses, that stallions, though in a sense domestic animals, are dangerous, and not from any application of the doctrine of scienter.

Smith v. Blake, 10 O.W.N. 26.

(§ 1 C—26)—WHILE TRESPASSING OR RUNNING AT LARGE GENERALLY.

A husband is responsible for the damages caused by the trespass of a cow which is kept in his custody and control and of the use of which he gets the benefit although his wife may have the title or ownership of same.

Broderick v. Forbes, 5 D.L.R. 508.

INJURY BY TRESPASSING—LIABILITY OF OWNER.

The owner of an animal in which by law the right of property can exist, is bound to take care that it does not stray onto the land of his neighbour, and is liable for any trespass it may commit, and for the ordinary consequences of that trespass.

OPEN WELLS ACT—OPEN WELL ON PREMISES—DUTY TO FENCE—WANT OF KNOWLEDGE.

The duty imposed by the Open Wells Act (Sask.), to fence an open well, is an absolute one, and want of knowledge of the well is no defence to an action for damages to an animal which while lawfully at large falls into the well. An agent's knowledge of an open well on premises occupied by him will be imputed to the principal. [Baldrey v. Fenton, 20 D.L.R. 677; Watson v. Guillaume, 42 D.L.R. 380, followed.]

Silzer v. Hudson, 49 D.L.R. 125, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 575.

DIFFERENT OWNERS—ONE HERD BOY—TRESPASS—DAMAGE—LIABILITY—JOINT TORT FEASORS.

Where several owners put their animals in charge of one herd boy, and such animals stray onto land and destroy grain, the owners are liable as joint tortfeasors. The damage sustained should be based upon the value of the grain at the time of the injury.

TRESPASSING—ENTIRE ANIMALS ORDINANCE (ALTA.)—DAMAGE—LIABILITY OF OWNER—LAWFUL FENCE.

The owner of an animal which is prohibited from being at large by the Entire Animals Ordinance (Alta.), is liable for any damage such animal may do while trespassing. The absence of a lawful fence within the meaning of the Fence Ordinance, enclosing the premises where the trespass is committed, is no defence to an action for damages.

OPEN WELLS ACT—NONCOMPLIANCE WITH—ANIMALS AT LARGE—DAMAGES.

One who has not complied with the provisions of s. 3 of the Open Wells Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 124), providing that "no person shall have or store on his premises or on any premises occupied by him any kind of threshed grain accessible to stock of any other person which may come or stray upon such premises," must make good the damage to the owner of animals which are lawfully at large under the Stray Animals Act, and stray onto his premises and are killed by eating grain improperly left accessible to them.

IMPOUNDING—DAMAGES—BY-LAW—VALIDITY—RIGHT OF OWNER AGAINST DISTRAINER.

The defendant seized the plaintiff's horses damage feasant in his oat field and impounded them, claiming $1,000 damages, which amount the plaintiff paid under protest. Held, that the damages claimed were excessive and that $50 would cover all the damage done on the occasion of the impounding, but that such claim of excessive damage did not render the seizure and impounding illegal. [Buist v. McCombe, 8 A.R. (Ont.) 598, and Graham v. Spettigue, 12 A.R. (Ont.) 261, distinguished.] That the fact that the municipal by-law restraining animals from running at large had been passed by a prior council did not render the by-law ultra vires or invalid. That [following Fogle v. Parsonau, 10 S.L.R. 423] an action lay by the owner of the animals against the distrainer for the excess damages paid to the pound keeper.

OPEN WELLS ACT (SASK.)—"ANY PREMISES OCCUPIED BY HIM"—MEANING OF.

The Open Wells Act, which prohibits any person from having "on his premises" as well as "any premises occupied by him" any open well, applies to the owner as well as the occupant, and the owner is liable in damages for injuries to an animal lawfully running at large caused by its falling into an open well on his premises, although the premises are at the time in actual occupation of a tenant.

(§ 1 C—30)—VICIOUS DOG—LIABILITY OF OWNER—KNOWLEDGE—USE OF HIGHWAY.

The owner of a dog which, to the owner's knowledge, had a propensity for running after and barking at horses and carriages traveling upon highways, is liable for an accident from a runaway of horses frightened by the dog; a kennel for the dog built on a highway is not a lawful use of the highway, though by an owner lawfully employed thereon.

DANGEROUS DOG—LIABILITY OF OWNER.

The owner cannot escape liability for damages caused by the bite of his dog, on the ground that at the time of the accident he had entrusted his animal to the care of a child. Similarly, he is responsible if he leaves his dog unmuzzled to run about a public street, when it is the nature of such dog to bite strangers who approach him or seek to caress him.

Laurenceville v. Coomber, 54 Que. S.C. 370.

DOG BARKING AT HORSES—HORSES RUNNING AWAY—LIABILITY OF DOG'S OWNER.

While plaintiffs were driving in a democrat past defendant's automobile defendant's dog jumped from the fender and ran at plaintiffs' horses and barked causing the horses to jump sideways, the pole strap to break, and the team to run away causing loss and bodily injuries. The court found that the dog had, to defendant's knowledge, the mischievous propensity of doing such acts and defendant was held liable in damages.

Spat v. Hogson, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 210.

(§ I C—34)—LIABILITY FOR INJURIES BY—ANIMALS FERAE NATURAE.

Where wild animals are kept for some purpose recognized as not censurable, all that can be demanded of the keeper is that he shall take that superior precaution to prevent their doing mischief which their propensities in that direction justly demand of him. [Cooley on Torts, 3rd ed., vol. 2, par. 411, approved; Harper v. Mareks, [1894] 2 Q.B. 319; May v. Burdett, 9 Q.B. 101; Baker v. Snell, [1908] 2 K.B. 352, and in appeal, [1908] 2 K.B. 825, referred to.] Not only the owner of animals ferae naturae, but also anyone who keeps or harbours them upon his premises is liable for injuries done through their breaking loose. [Jackson v. Smithson, 15 M. & W. 563; Shaw v. Cratty, 19 O.R. 39, and Wood v. Vaughan, 28 N.B.R. 472, considered.]

D. RUNNING AT LARGE.

(§ I D—35)—RAILWAY ACT—NEGLIGENCE—LEAVING GRAIN UNGUARDED—INJURY TO HORSES.

Every person must be taken to know that horses are likely to consume grain to excess, if the opportunity to do so is afforded them; therefore if it be left in such an unguarded condition as to permit of horses being attracted by it and eating it to their injury, the owner of the grain will be liable for the resulting damage, even though the horses are trespassers. [Cooke v. Midland G.W.R. Co., [1909] A.C. 229, applied.] S. 294 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, is available only to a railway company.

Fulton v. Randall, Gee & Mitchell (Alta.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 331.

BARBED WIRE FENCE—INJURY TO CATTLE—LIABILITY.

Where there is a by-law permitting cattle to run at large and such cattle are injured by the barbed wire of a fence which has fallen down through the rottenness of its posts, the owner of the fence is liable for the injury to cattle lawfully on the highway and injured thereon; quere on the land of the owner of the fence. [McLean v. Rudd, 9 W.L.R. 283, distinguished.]

Chase v. Coleridge (Sask.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 736.

E. ANIMALS WITH INFECTIOUS DISEASES.

(§ I E—40)—ANIMAL CONTAGIOUS DISEASES ACT—RIGHT OF ACTION.

In Ward v. Hobbs, 4 App. Cas. 13, the House of Lords expressly refused to extend to contagious or infectious diseases the principle imposing on persons having in their custody or charge dangerous substances a special duty commensurate with the danger.

(§ I E—42)—LIABILITY OF SELLER.

In the matter of sales of horses, a sickness known under the name of "waving," or "weaver," or motion of the head, neck and body of the animal, from one side to the other, which cannot be easily noticeable and where the observation is necessary, and where in this case the animal had to be placed under a constant inspection to discover the sickness such sickness will constitute a hidden defect which will give rise, in favour of the purchaser, to an action to rescind the sale.

(§ I—1)—LIFE RENT—GUARANTEE BY HYPOTHEC—JUDICIAL SALE—LOSS—RIGHT OF RENTE.

The debtor of a life rent, who, after having secured its payment by hypothec, allows one of the hypothecated properties to be judicially sold, diminishes, by his own act, the securities he had given by the contract, and accordingly he loses the benefit of the delay. Under such circumstances, the person entitled to the rent is not bound to protect himself by means of an opposition to secure charges; but he may claim from the debtor the capital of the rent.

Massicotte v. Bourassa, 54 Que. S.C. 37.

(§ I—3)—APPORTIONMENT.

Where a settlement terminated with the death of the settlor, and by the terms of his will the income from the principal thereof was payable to annuitants therein named, such income cannot be diverted to the payment of annuities which the testator charged generally upon the income of his estate.

Re Irwin, 4 D.L.R. 803, 3 O.W.N. 936.

APPORTIONMENT—WILLS.

Where a will provides that certain annuities shall be paid "about the first half of January in each year," and certain other of the annuities in two equal instalments "in each year about the first half of January and the first half of July," the annuities are to be computed from the date of the testator's death.

Chisholm v. Journeay, 15 D.L.R. 495.

(§ I—4)—PAYING PREVIOUS DEFICIENCIES FROM SURPLUS.

The surplus income from an estate for any one year, after the payment of all annuities for that year chargeable thereon is available for the payment of arrearages of annuities for previous years.

Re Irwin, 4 D.L.R. 803, 3 O.W.N. 936.

PAYMENT OF DEFICIENCY—FROM GENERAL ESTATE—WHAT AVAILABLE FOR.

On a deficiency of income from a fund from which an annuity is payable, if recourse cannot be had to the corpus thereof, the deficit is payable only from the portion of the testator's general estate which is not specifically devised. [Gee v. Mahood, 11 Ch.D. 891, sub. nom. Carmichael v. Gee, 5 App. Cas. 588, and Re Plaetzer Estate, 2 O.W.N. 1143, referred to.]

(§ 1—7)—CHARGE ON INCOME.

Where by will an annuity is payable primarily from a designated fund the securities belonging thereto will be marshalled and the annuity paid from the income thereof before resort will be permitted to the income of the testator's general estate. Where arrearages in the payment of annuities are due to the income upon which they are expressly charged not being sufficient to pay them in the order of priority established by will, they do not remain a charge upon the income of the estate after the time fixed for distribution until they can be paid in full. A gift of an annuity as an express charge upon the income of an estate is not enlarged so as to create a charge upon the corpus thereof by loose expressions in a will to the effect that it shall be a charge upon the estate or its investments.

What would otherwise be an absolute gift of an annuity is not necessarily cut down to the lesser income obtainable from certain securities out of which by a subsequent clause the annuity is directed to be paid; the intention of the testator as evidenced by the entire will must control. COMPANY—REVOCAION OF CHARTER—EFFECT.

At the time leave to appeal to the Supreme Court was granted, the letters patent of the company appellant had been canceled under s. 77 of the Manitoba Companies Act; but subsequently its charter was revived under s. 130 of the same act. Per Fitzpatrick, C.J., Davies, Anglin and Brodeur, J.J.—The revocation of the charter operated as a mere suspension of the powers and functions of the company and the order-in-council reviving the letters patent of incorporation restored the company to its legal position at the time of the revocation as to the proceedings instituted between such revocation and the reinstatement of the company for an order allowing the present appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Per Duff, J.—Without deciding whether acts of the officers of the company during the interregnum are in all respects to be deemed acts of the company, it is clear that the company, by virtue of the statute, is to be deemed to have been in possession of its powers during that period, and the act of its officers in applying for the order allowing the appeal, done in the name of the company, could be and has been ratified. So long as there is no Dominion legislation inconsistent therewith, the capacity of a provincial corporation, as a legal persona to initiate and carry on an appeal in this court, is determined by the provincial law.

RIGHT OF APPEAL—MARRIED WOMEN'S PROTECTION ACT (MAN.).

The right of appeal given under the Married Women's Protection Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 107, to a single Judge of the Court of King's Bench from any order made thereunder in like manner as on an appeal from a County Court, has not been taken away by reason of s. 337 County Courts Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 38, being amended and an appeal to the Court of Appeal substituted on appeals from County Courts by the Man. Statutes, 1906, c. 16; the provisions of s. 15 of the Interpretation Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 89, provide that a repealed Act or any part thereof remains in force where there is no provision in the substituted Act relating to the same subject matter, and in consequence the appeal is governed by the law as it stood when the Married Women's Protection Act of 1902 was passed. [Attorney-General v. Sillem, 10 H.L.C. 704, referred to.]

FROM JUDGMENT OF SURROGATE COURT.

Under the terms of s. 37 (d) of the Supreme Court Act an appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario in a case originating in a Surrogate Court of that province. On the merits the judgment of the Appellate Division, 32 O.L.R. 312, was affirmed.

APPEAL FROM ASSESSMENT—JURISDICTION OF SUPREME COURT.

Under s. 41 of the Supreme Court Act,

R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, the Supreme Court of Canada has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a judgment of the local government board of Saskatchewan fixing an assessment; the duty of the court, if the evidence satisfies it that the assessment appealed against exceeds the "fair actual value," or the "true value," of the property to a "substantial" extent is to allow the appeal and reduce the assessment to such "fair actual value" as is disclosed by the evidence. MORTGAGE—ORDER OF LOCAL JUDGE AUTHORIZING COMMENCEMENT OF ACTION FOR FORECLOSURE AND ON COVENANT—MORTGAGORS AND PURCHASERS RELIEF ACT, 1915, ss. 2 (2), 5 (2)—NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR ORDER NOT GIVEN TO MORTGAGOR LIABLE ON COVENANT—SERVICE OF NOTICE DISPENSED WITH—ORDER IMPROPERLY MADE EX PARTE—POWER OF JUDGE IN CHAMBERS TO RESCIND—R.R. 217, 505 (1)—ACTION COMMENCED PURSUANT TO ORDER—WRIT OF SUMMONS SET ASIDE.

A mortgage made to the plaintiff by the defendant M., dated Nov. 1, 1913, being in arrear, the plaintiff on Dec. 24, 1918, obtained leave from a local judge to make a motion before him, returnable on Dec. 27, for an order for leave to commence an action for foreclosure. A notice of the motion was sent by registered post to a solicitor who had on behalf of M. been corresponding with the plaintiff's solicitor; the solicitor received the notice on Dec. 26, but he was not authorized to accept nor did he accept service for M. On Dec. 27, the local judge made an order permitting the plaintiff to commence an action for foreclosure and for judgment against M. on his covenant and for possession. The order provided that service of notice of the application on M. be dispensed with. Under the Mortgagees and Purchasers Relief Act, 1915, 5 (Geo. V. c. 22, an order authorizing the commencement of an action on the mortgage was necessary:—Held, that the order was an ex parte one, and improperly made without notice to M.; ss. 2 (2) and 5 (2) of the Act; also, that a Judge in Chambers had power, under r. 505 (1) or r. 217, to rescind the order. [Re George and Lang, 36 O.L.R. 382, distinguished.] The order was rescinded and the writ of summons issued pursuant thereto set aside.

JUDGMENT — ACTION ON CONTRACT — ACCOUNTS AGREED TO ON BASIS OF JUDGMENT — CONSENT JUDGMENT — JURISDICTION.

The judgment in an action on a contract for work done and material supplied allowed two certain items as extras, the amount to be determined by a reference. The parties then agreed as to the amount of the items. The formal judgment, on being drawn, was assented to by the defendant, and recited: "The parties hereto having settled the entire accounts between them on the basis of this judgment, and after making all proper deduction and allowances on both sides and it appearing from said accounts that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of," etc. The defendant appealed from the judgment and the plaintiff took the preliminary objection that the judgment as drawn was a consent judgment and there was no appeal. Held, that as the judgment states that the parties have settled the entire accounts after making proper deductions and allowances, the result of which a certain amount is owing, the judgment must be construed as a consent judgment, and there is no appeal.

FROM TAXATION OF COSTS.

Under rule 681 of The King's Bench Act, an appeal will lie from the taxation of costs between party and party as to items which have been objected to before the taxing officer, although such objections have not been put in writing and carried in before the officer as provided for in Rules 972 and 973. [Cooney v. Jickling (1912), 22 Man. L.R. 468, followed in preference to Caron v. Bannerman, 22 Man. L.R. 24, and Re Philipps & Whittia (No. 1), 22 Man. ten objections do not apply when the general principle of the taxation is objected to.

UNDER SUMMARY CONVICTIONS ACT.

The Court of Appeal Act being subsequent in date of passage to the Summary Convictions Act, the provisions of s. 6 of the late Act prevail over s. 92 of the earlier one. The Court of Appeal has therefore jurisdiction to hear an appeal from the decision of a Supreme Court Judge on a stated case from a conviction by a magistrate, under the Summary Convictions Act. The provisions of subs. 4 of s. 7 of the Summary Convictions Act Amendment Act, 1914, that the appellant shall, within 3 days after receiving the case stated, transmit it to the court, is a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the court to hear the appeal, and it cannot be waived. The provisions of the subsection not having been complied with, the court, notwithstanding strong circumstances shewing waiver, struck out the appeal.

IN GENERAL—QUEBEC.

No appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench (Que.) from a judgment of the Superior Court granting an application to set aside the collection roll of a town under the Cities and Towns Act. It makes no difference that, in the interval between the making of the application and the judgment the town whose roll is attacked has become annexed to and incorporated with the city of Montreal.

City of Montreal v. St. Denis Land Co., 22 Que. K.B. 238.

IN GENERAL—QUEBEC.

Art. 4614 of R.S.Q. 1909, does not apply to judgments rendered in cases brought under the Cities and Towns Act (arts. 5256 et seq.) and art. 5551 does not apply to judgments given by the Superior Court in proceedings under art. 50 C.P.Q. to quash a by-law of a city or town. There is, therefore, a right of appeal to the Court of King's Bench from final judgments of the Superior Court in such actions.

MUNICIPAL ASSESSMENTS.

There is no appeal to the Court of King's Bench from a judgment of the Circuit Court of the District of Montreal, which has dismissed an action for the reduction of a municipal valuation of immovables made by a municipal council.

ACQUESCENCE IN JUDGMENT.

A letter of the secretary of a company, in answer to a demand made by the attorneys of a judgment creditor for the payment of their law costs, to the effect that he will take this up at once with the managing director and arrange for a settlement of the account, is not an acquiescence in the judgment which takes away the right of appeal.

TO COURT OF REVIEW — LIQUOR LICENSE CASES—MUNICIPAL BUSINESS.

There is no right of appeal to the Court of Review from the judgment of the Superior Court granting a motion for a declaration that the evocation to the Superior Court in a case in which the petitioner demands the annulment of a resolution granting a license for sale of intoxicating beverages is illegal and void. The inscription in such case should be dismissed on motion. When the Code of Procedure, by arts. 43 and 1006, declares that there will be no right of appeal in municipal matters that should be understood to apply to cases instituted pursuant to the provisions of the Code. This does not mean that there can be no appeal when a municipal question is in litigation and raised in an action brought under the common law.

CONFIRMATION OF LICENSE BY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

There is no appeal either to the Court of Review or the Court of King's Bench from a judgment dismissing a petition to quash a resolution of a municipal council confirming a certificate for a license presented according to the provisions of arts. 100 and 698 to 708 of the Municipal Code.

EXPROPRIATION AWARD.

There is no appeal to the Court of Review from an award made by a Judge of the Superior Court under the provisions of the act for expropriation of the lands required for operation of hydraulic power. BAIL—HABEAS CORPUS.

The defendants were convicted by the Police Magistrate for a city, under s. 773 (f) of the Criminal Code, for keeping a disorderly house, and were sentenced to 30 day's imprisonment. On their behalf an appeal was lodged to the Court of General Sessions, under s. 749 of the Code; and an order was made by a Judge at Sessions that, upon the defendants entering into recognizances (of which he approved), they should be released from gaol. A Justice of the Peace went with the bondsmen to the gaol to have the recognizances properly entered into; but did not proceed, being informed by the gaoler that the defendants were not to be released.—Held, that, although the bondsmen had signed the bail-bonds, and although the defendants were ready and willing to enter into the recognizances, they had not in fact done so—assuming that s. 750 (e) of the Code was applicable; and were not entitled to be discharged upon habeas corpus. An appeal from the conviction to the sessions did not lie: The change in the Criminal Code, R.S.C. 1906, c. 146, s. 797, by 3 & 4 Geo. V. c. 13, s. 28, takes away the right of appeal which was given by s. 797, and limits it to the special case of two Justices of the Peace. [R. v. Dubuc, 16 D.L.R. 318, 22 Can. Cr. INTERPLEADER — EXTENSION OF TIME — GROUNDS.

The decision of a judge on an interpleader issue is not a final judgment and an appeal must be taken within 15 days. Upon an application to extend the time for appealing from a judgment on the grounds that the solicitor's agent was lax in giving information as to the entry of judgment and that judgment had not been given on a supplementary application by the respondent to include in the judgment a special clause as to costs. Held, that no distinction can be drawn between the laxity of an agent and that of the solicitor and as the supplementary motion could be disposed of by a separate order and did not in any way affect the completeness of the judgment appealed from, the extension should not be granted.

FINALITY OF DECISION.

When, to a complaint to the Public Utilities Commission, relating to excessive charges by a public utility, an objection is taken by the latter that the complaint does not set forth the pendency of a contestation, nor an interest in the complainant, a decision by the Commission that overrules the objection, is not a "final" decision as to its jurisdiction or upon a "question of law" (art. 763, R.S.Q. 1909), from which an appeal will lie to this court. Per Carroll, J.:—The Commission has the power to entertain and dispose of such a complaint, made by a person between whom

The rule as to the right to the Supreme Court of Canada in cases pending when the 1913 amendment to the Supreme Court Act was passed is that except in equitable proceedings and other cases specially provided for, an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada will not lie from any order or judgment pronounced in the course of an action brought in the courts of a province, where the procedure is modelled on the English system, although it may have the effect of disposing of substantial rights, unless it finally determines and concludes the action itself of some distinct claim or ground of action. [Hesseltine v. Nelles, 47 Can. S.C.R. 230, and Doran v. Jewell, 49 Can. S.C.R. 88, followed.] The amendment to the Supreme Court Act of 1913 was assented to on June 6, 1913, and provides that save as regards appeals from the Province of Quebec, "final judgment" means any judgment, rule, order or decision which determines in whole or in part any substantive right of any of the parties in controversy in any action, suit, cause, matter or other judicial proceeding, and, as regards appeals from the Province of Quebec, "final judgment" means as heretofore, any judgment, rule, order or decision whereby the action, suit, cause, matter or other judicial proceeding is finally determined and concluded. Cross-appeals under r. 100 of the Supreme Court Rules, upon the failure of the main appeal for want of jurisdiction, fall with such main appeal.

in Chambers in review of the Master's Order in reference thereto.

COSTS.

The Court of Appeal will not reverse a judgment upon a question of costs only, when no principle has been violated.

Roy v. Denis, 20 D.L.R. 982, 23 Que. K.B. 517.

COSTS—TAXATION—RIGHT OF REVIEW BY LOCAL MASTER.

Application by defendant to review the plaintiff's bill of costs as taxed by the local registrar, is in the nature of an appeal and the local Master has no authority to entertain it. [Rule 620, s. (c) Saskatchewan Rules of Court, 1911, referred to.]

AS TO COSTS.

It is not necessary that the "special reasons," for which the court refuses to award costs to a successful defendant against the plaintiff, should rest upon grounds of legal responsibility. If the reasons for such refusal do not disclose an error in principle, the decision should not be reversed on appeal.

Van-Felson v. Bourdreau, 18 Rev. de Jur. 216.

(§ I B—12)—RIGHT OF APPEAL—RESTRAINING ORDER—FINALITY—CONTINUITY.

An order obtained by an intervening assignee for the benefit of creditors enjoining the receiver appointed at the instance of a judgment creditor by way of equitable execution in respect of the debtor's property generally from collecting rents in respect of which the assignee had the superior claim, is interlocutory and not final as regards the right of appeal, although it may have a continuous effect for an indefinite time. [Blakey v. Latham (1889), 43 Ch.D. 23, and Norton v. Norton (1900), 99 L.F. 709, referred to.]

Bleasdel v. Spencer, 11 D.L.R. 75.

INJUNCTION.

When a Judge of the Superior Court, on the production of a detailed petition supported by an uncontested affidavit, orders the issuance of a writ of interlocutory injunction, the Court of Appeal will not allow an appeal from that interlocutory judgment.

Corporation de la Ville de Joliette v. Pellant, 27 Que. K.B. 78.

A judgment dismissing a petition for interlocutory injunction is a final judgment which may be appealed, de plano.

Cowansville Hotel Co. v. Beatty, 19 Que. P.R. 144.

(§ I B—15)—INTERLOCUTORY ORDER—MOTION FOR DISMISSAL.

An order overruling a motion for the striking out of a statement of claim and the dismissal of an action based thereon against a principal after judgment had been recovered against the agent is "final in its Can. Dig.—4.

nature," and not "merely interlocutory" within the meaning of s. 40 (2) of the County Courts Act, R.S.O. c. 59, from which an appeal properly lies.

M. Brennen & Sons v. Thompson, 22 D.L.R. 375, 33 O.L.R. 465. [Followed in Davis Acetylene Gas Co. v. Morrison, 23 D.L.R. 871.]

DISMISSAL OF MOTION TO SET ASIDE SERVICE.

As the right to serve a summons out of the jurisdiction is not a substantive right, an order dismissing a motion to set aside the service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction is not a final judgment within the Supreme Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, s. 2 (e), as amended by 1913, c. 51, s. 1) and, therefore, no appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment refusing to set aside such a service.

St. John Lumber Co. v. Roy, 29 D.L.R. 12, 53 Can. S.C.R. 310, quashing appeal from 44 N.B.R. 88.

FINAL DECISION.

The refusal of a District Court Judge to confirm a referee's report under an order of reference is not a "final decision" within the purview of s. 48 of the Alberta District Courts Act, 1907, c. 4, where the decision from which the appeal is taken does not in fact determine the rights of the parties. [Baby v. Ross (1892), 14 P.R. (Ont.) 440; and Ward v. Serrell, 3 A.L.R. 138, applied.]

FINALITY OF DECISION—CONTROVERTED ELECTION—REGULARITY OF PETITION.

An appeal to the Manitoba Court of Appeal lies from an order in a controverted election proceeding under the Controverted Elections Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 34, from an order setting aside, as having been made without jurisdiction, prior orders extending the time for service of the petition and for substitutional service where the setting aside of those orders if allowed to stand would end the entire proceedings as the statutory period for service apart from the extension order had expired when the order appealed from was made. [Re Shoal Lake Election, 5 Man. L.R. 57, discussed.]

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT.

A judgment in an action for boundary which dismisses a plea of prescription, sets aside the report of a surveyor, previously appointed, based on a prescriptive title, and appoints a new surveyor to make a fresh report, is an interlocutory and not a final judgment, and an appeal therefrom to the Court of Review can only be taken in accordance with the provisions of arts. 1202a and following (C.P. Que. 8 Edw. VII. c. 74, s. 6). [Merier v. Barrette, 25 Can. S.C.R. 94, specially referred to.]

Bohl v. Caron, 4 D.L.R. 772, 41 Que. S.C. 236.

ORDER OF JUDGE IN CHAMBERS—FINAL OR INTERLOCUTORY—NECESSITY FOR LEAVE—RULE 507.

Morrison v. Morrison, 11 O.W.N. 359.

An order of the County Court Judge setting aside a judgment and allowing the defendant to come in and defend on terms is not a decision upon a point of law and there is no appeal from such an order under s. 80 of the County Courts Act, C.S. 1903, c. 116. [Ex parte McCulley, 20 N.B.R. 87, followed.]

Joiens v. Lockhart, 40 N.B.R. 455.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT.

There is no appeal from an interlocutory order requiring a witness to file in court a document which he has in his possession.

Dubee v. Vipond, 14 Que. P.R. 386.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER—NOTICE OF APPEAL.

Judgment having been entered by default and damages ordered to be assessed, the plaintiff gave notice of the date upon which the damages were to be assessed. On the hearing the defendant moved to set aside the judgment and that he be allowed in to defend. This motion was dismissed, and the damages were then assessed and final judgment entered. Thirty-five days later the defendant gave notice of appeal, both from the final judgment and from the order refusing to reopen the case. On the hearing of the appeal respondent raised the preliminary objection that the order refusing to reopen was interlocutory; that the notice of appeal was, therefore, out of time and the appeal should be dismissed. Held, that the order refusing to reopen the case being an interlocutory order, the notice of appeal was out of time, and the appeal should be dismissed.

Chilliwaek Evaporating & Packing Co. v. Chung, 25 B.C.R. 90, [1918] D. 1 W.W.R. 870.

A judgment dismissing an exception to form, which raises a question of delay, is not an interlocutory judgment from which an appeal should be allowed.

Caressa v. David, 20 Que. P.R. 225.

MOTION FOR INTERROGATORIES.

A judgment dismissing a motion to have certain interrogatories on articulated facts held pro confesso, is not an interlocutory judgment on which appeal will be allowed.

Bergeron v. O'Brien, 20 Que. P.R. 233.

FROM CONVICTION FOR INDICTABLE OFFENCE.

An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench, appeal side, from a judgment of a court or judge upon a charge of an offence triable on indictment, and not shewn to have been treated by way of summary conviction.

Rex v. Morisset, 26 Que. K.B. 481.

SEPARATION DE CORPS—INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT FOR TEMPORARY MAINTENANCE.

There is no appeal to the Court of Review from an interlocutory judgment delivered by the Superior Court in an action en séparation de corps granting a temporary elementary maintenance and a provision for costs.

Dansereau v. Beausoleil, 47 Que. S.C. 393.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT—ADJOURNMENT.

There is no appeal to the Court of King's Bench from an interlocutory judgment refusing to adjourn the hearing of a case on account of the absence of an indispensable witness.

Choquette v. Rousseau, 25 Que. K.B. 185.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT—MOTION TO STRIKE OUT ALLEGATION IN REPLY.

An interlocutory judgment, dismissing a motion asking that the allegations of fact in a reply to a defence may be struck out as illegal and tending to reform the action, is not susceptible of appeal within the terms of art. 46 of the Code of Procedure.

Beauchemin v. Versailles, 24 Que. K.B. 549.

PROCEDURE—APPEAL TO THE COURT OF APPEAL—INTERLOCUTORY DECREE—DECISION ON THE EXAMINATION AS TO THE ADMISSIBILITY OF THE EVIDENCE—REQUEST FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL—C.C.P. ART. 53A.

There is no appeal to the Court of Appeal from decisions rendered by the Superior Court in the course of an examination of a case, admitting or rejecting the evidence offered by one of the parties.

Frawley v. Roux, 56 Que. S.C. 254.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT.

A judgment ordering preuve avant faire droit is not an interlocutory judgment subject of appeal.

Boutassa v. Boutassa, 26 Que. K.B. 521.

(§ I B—16)—ORDERING ARREST OF BAILIFF FOR FAILURE TO MAKE RETURN—INSCRIPTION IN REVIEW.

A judgment, authorizing the curator to a judicial abandonment of property to continue certain proceedings and granting a rule nisi for arrest of a bailiff who has not made his return into court of the money, is not a final judgment and cannot be plano be inscribed in the Court of Review.

Laurentides Brique et Sable Co. v. Chattron, 48 Que. S.C. 4.

AS TO ATTACHMENT OR ORDER FOR SEQUESTRATION.

When the carrying out of a judgment of sequestration will effect a disposal of the rights of either party such as cannot be recalled or rectified by the final judgment on the merits, such judgment of sequestration is a final judgment from which an appeal lies de plano and without leave.

The Chicoutimi Pulp Co. v. The Jonquieres Pulp Co., 18 Rev. de Jur. 83.

INSCRIPTION IN REVIEW—JUDGMENT DECLARING SEIZURE BINDING—GARNISHMENT.

A judgment of the Superior Court declaring a seizure by garnishment binding is not a final judgment; and an inscription in review made of such judgment without leave of the court may be dismissed on motion.

Kaine v. Morgan, 48 Que. S.C. 424.

(§ I B—18)—EMINENT DOMAIN.

An appeal lies, under s. 58 of the King's Bench Act, to the Court of Appeal from an order setting aside an award of damages made by an arbitrator in a proceeding to open a public street over private property, notwithstanding that the provisions of the city charter, under which the proceedings were instituted, did not provide for an appeal from the order of the Court of King's Bench. The power of the Court of King's Bench, under s. 823 of the charter of the city of Winnipeg, pertaining to the award by arbitrators of compensation for land taken for a public street, is not exhausted upon that court setting aside an award, and an appeal lies from such order to the Court of Appeal, which, thereupon, has all the powers set forth in that section upon the Court of King's Bench.

RIGHT OF APPEAL FROM AWARD BY ARBITRATION UNDER ONTARIO RY. ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 185—JUDGE OF HIGH COURT DIVISION—FURTHER APPEAL TO DIVISIONAL COURT.

Compensation for land compulsorily taken by a railway under the Ontario Railway Act is fixed by arbitration as provided for in this statute. An appeal from the arbitration award lies, first of all to a judge of the High Court Division in the Supreme Court of Ontario, and a further appeal from his order to a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division. [Bireley v. T. H. & B. R. Co. (1908), 25 A.R. (Ont.), 88, distinguished.]

Re Russell and Toronto Suburban R. W. Co., 50 D.L.R. 726.

HOMOLOGATION OF ARBITRATORS' REPORT.

A judgment of the Superior Court homologating an arbitrators' report of the amount of damages caused to property by a municipality is interlocutory from which no appeal "de plano" lies to the Supreme Court of King's Bench without leave.

Riopelle v. City of Montreal, 24 D.L.R. 511, 24 Que. K.B. 148.

MOTION FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL FROM DECISION OF COUNTY COURT JUDGE UPON APPEAL FROM AWARD UNDER SCHOOL SITES ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 277, s. 20—REFUSAL OF LEAVE.

Re McBeath and Public School Board of Section 16 Scarborough, 16 O.W.N. 180.

EXPROPRIATION AWARD—INSCRIPTION IN REVIEW—R.S.C. c. 37, art. 209.

Although there is an appeal from the award of arbitrators, under the Railway Act of Canada (R.S.C. c. 37, art. 209), to the Superior Court, the judgment of this last court cannot be inscribed in review, whether the Superior Court maintained or set aside the award.

Lachline, Jacques Cartier and Maisonneuve Railway Co. v. Dame Theberge and L. A. Bedard, mis en cause, 46 Que. S.C. 521.

(§ I B—19)—RULE NISI—CONTEMPT.

A judgment ordering a rule nisi against a defendant for contempt of court is an interlocutory judgment from which there is no appeal de plano.

Martin v. Tourangeau, 25 Que. K.B. 161.

(§ I B—21)—PROBATE DECREES—SURROGATE DISCRETION UNDER WILL.

Where a Surrogate Court Judge has exercised reasonable discretion in fixing a sum for support and maintenance of a legatee under the provisions of a will, where the question of amount was referred to him by an order of the High Court, his decision will not be interfered with on an appeal therefrom. An appeal lies to the Ontario Supreme Court from an order of a Surrogate Court Judge adjusting an allowance for maintenance under a will, which adjustment was referred to the Surrogate Judge by the court on disposing of an application made by the executors under Con. Rule 938 (Ont.), for the construction of the will. [Re Corkett (No. 1), 4 D.L.R. 561, 3 O.W.N. 1134, referred to.]

Re Corkett (No. 2), 9 D.L.R. 135, 4 O.W.N. 632, 23 O.W.R. 732.

SURROGATE ORDER—PASSING EXECUTOR'S ACCOUNTS—EXECUTOR'S COMPENSATION.

An appeal lies to the King's Bench in Manitoba from that part of an order made in the Surrogate Court fixing and allowing the executor's compensation on the passing of his accounts. [Re Alexander, 31 O.R. 167, referred to.]

C. CRIMINAL CASES.

(§ I C—25)—REFUSAL OF CERTIORARI IN SUMMARY CONVICTION.

No appeal lies in British Columbia from the refusal of a certiorari in respect of a summary conviction under the Criminal Code.

R. v. Kwong Yick Tai, 22 D.L.R. 323, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 28, 21 B.C.R. 127.

QUESTION OF LAW—CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE.

Where corroborative evidence is not required by statute and there is nothing to shew that the judge trying a criminal charge without a jury had misdirected himself upon a matter of law, it is irregular to reserve for the Court of Appeal the question whether the evidence disclosed sufficient corroboration of an accomplice's evidence, such not being in such circumstances a "question of law" within Cr. Code, s. 1014. [R. v. Bechtel, 5 D.L.R. 497 and 9 D.L.R. 552, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 423 and 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 40, referred to.]

R. v. McClain, 23 D.L.R. 312, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 488, 8 A.L.R. 73, 30 W.L.R. 388.

POLICE MAGISTRATE—ORDER MADE UNDER MASTERS AND SERVANTS ORDINANCE—RIGHT OF APPEAL—SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

Foster v. Hope, 22 D.L.R. 906, 8 W.W.R. 997.

RESERVED CASE—PERJURY—EXAMINATION FOR DISCOVERY.

R. v. Howley, 8 D.L.R. 1025, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 108.

CRIMINAL LAW—ORDER REFUSING MOTION TO QUASH SUMMARY CONVICTION.

Where a motion to quash a summary conviction has been dismissed and the conviction ordered to be amended under Code, s. 1124 as to a defect in form, leave to appeal from the dismissal should be refused, if the evidence warranted all the amendments necessary to make a good conviction.

RIGHT OF APPEAL—SEC. 15 OF THE CR. CODE, 1906, MADE APPLICABLE BY PROVINCIAL STATUTE—JURISDICTION OF COURT OF KING'S BENCH, QUEBEC.

Since sec. 3982 (j) of c. 35, of 1 Geo. V. of Quebec, regulating the sale of cocaine, morphine and their compounds, expressly provides that s. 15 of the Criminal Code regulating appeals should apply to prosecutions thereunder, the Court of King's Bench has, by virtue of such act, as well as under judicial authority, jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a conviction under such act. [The King v. Bigelow, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 132; The King v. McLeod, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 73; Scottstown Corporation v. Beauchesne, 5 Que. K.B. 554; Superior v. City of Montreal, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 379; subs. 27 of s. 91 of British North America Act, 1867; subs. 14 of s. 92 of the same Act, and s. 749 of the Criminal Code, specially referred to.]

RIGHT TO APPEAL IN CRIMINAL CASES—ACCEPTANCE OF CASH BAIL WITHOUT AUTHORITY—EFFECT ON THE APPEAL.

Even though a County Court does not possess jurisdiction to permit the giving of cash bail on an appeal from a conviction by a police magistrate under Cr. Code (1906), s. 797, upon a summary trial, an appeal is not lost where the attorney for the prosecution assents to the acceptance by the court of such bail, receives payment of the money, and permits the prisoner to go at large.

Robinson v. District of Saanich and Aikman, 7 D.L.R. 499, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 241.

CRIMINAL CASES—APPEAL—OTHER REMEDY—STATED CASE.

The Ontario Court of Appeal, on a criminal appeal, has no jurisdiction to intervene in a case of error or misunderstanding, its jurisdiction being limited by s. 1014 of the Criminal Code in a stated case to questions of law; the application for relief in a case of error or misunderstanding being to the Minister of Justice, under s. 1022 of the Criminal Code (1906).

CRIMINAL CASES.

A Court of Criminal Appeal has the right to order a new trial when new evidence discovered before the rendering of the verdict is not allowed to be placed before the jury. After verdict rendered, however, only the Minister of Justice could order a new trial.

R. v. Manconi, 3 D.L.R. 112, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 81.

JURISDICTION—SUMMARY TRIAL BY MAGISTRATE—SECRET COMMISSIONS ACT, 8-9 EDW. VII. (CAN.) c. 33.

Where a prosecution before a police magistrate for an offence under the Secret Commissions Act, 8-9 Edw. VII. (Can.) c. 33, is brought as for an indictable offence and is tried on the defendant's election under the Summary Trials clauses of the Cr. Code, 1906 (Part 16), and the charge, while triable in either method, is not brought under the Summary Convictions clauses of the Code (Part 15), there is no right of appeal by the prosecutor from the dismissal of the charge.

QUALIFICATION OF JUROR—CRIMINAL LAW—OBJECTION NOT TAKEN TILL AFTER VERDICT.

The question of qualification of a juror in a criminal case is a question of fact which cannot be raised after verdict rendered and the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to entertain a reserved case thereon.

R. v. Battista, 9 D.L.R. 138, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 1.

RIGHT OF APPEAL—CRIMINAL CASES—ESTREAT ORDERS.

Whether or not the process in execution thereof is civil and not criminal process, the order of estreat made by a County Judge presiding in a criminal court on the forfeiture of bail given for the appearance of the accused before a magistrate in proceedings under the Fugitive Offenders Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 154, is in itself a proceeding in a criminal matter, and no appeal lies therefrom to the Court of Appeal (B.C.). [Re Talbot's Bail, 23 O.R. 65; R. v. Creelman, 25 N.S.R. 404, and R. v. Starkey, 7 Man. L.R. 489, distinguished.]

R. v. Harvie, 9 D.L.R. 432, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 369, 18 B.C.R. 5, 23 W.L.R. 26.

REHEARING IN DISORDERLY HOUSE CASE.

The intention of Cr. Code, 797, as amended 1913, c. 13, is to limit the right of appeal by way of rehearing in respect of summary trial convictions for keeping a disorderly house so that there should be no such appeal where a police magistrate or other functionary having the powers of two justices had made the conviction; and the right of appeal given by s. 797 is limited to cases where two persons who are justices of the peace are

R. v. Dubuc, 16 D.L.R. 318, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 426.

CRIMINAL CASES — INDICTMENT — STATUS OF PRIVATE PROSECUTOR.

The right of the "prosecutor" to appeal on a question of law by case reserved under Cr. Code, s. 1014 (3) or by leave under Cr. Code, s. 1015, on an acquittal of the accused, is limited to the Crown when the proceedings on the indictment are conducted by the Crown counsel; and where the Crown counsel was refused a reserved case at the trial, whereupon the informant, who had been bound over to prefer the indictment and had done so, also applied and was refused, the latter has no locus standi to make a subsequent application under Code, s. 1015 for leave to appeal where the Crown makes no application. [R. v. Gilmore, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 219, 6 O.L.R. 286, and R. v. Patteson, 36 U.C.Q.B. 129, referred to.]

R. v. Fraser, 19 D.L.R. 470, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 140, 30 O.L.R. 598.

RIGHT OF APPEAL—DISCHARGE ON HABEAS CORPUS UNDER EXTRADITION COMMITMENT.

In the absence of Federal legislation permitting it, an appeal does not lie from an order discharging on habeas corpus a person from custody under a commitment for extradition. [Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. 506, and R. v. Carroll, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 338, 14 B.C.R. 116, followed; Barnardo v. Ford, [1892] A. C. 326, and Re Hall, 8 A.R. (Ont.) 135, distinguished.]

ERROR IN INSTRUCTION AS TO CORROBORATION OF ACCOMPLICE.

A new trial will be ordered on the ground of a mistrial where the trial judge erroneously states to the jury that there was corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice and also fails to direct the jury as to the danger of convicting on an accomplice's evidence unless corroborated. [R. v. Baskerville, [1916] 2 K.B. 658, applied.]

R. v. Morrison, 38 D.L.R. 568, 51 N.S.R. 253, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 6.

KEEPING DISORDERLY HOUSE—TWO JUSTICES.

There is no appeal under Code, s. 797, as amended by Can. Stat. 1913, c. 13, from a conviction on summary trial for keeping a disorderly house when made by a city police magistrate trying the case without the consent of the accused under Code, ss. 773 (f) and 774. [R. v. Brown (1916), 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 97, 30 D.L.R. 645, 9 A.L.R. 494, referred to. See R. v. Merker and Daniels, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 113, 37 O.L.R. 582.]

R. v. Berenstein, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 435, 24 B.C.R. 361.

AGGRIEVED PARTY IN SUMMARY CONVICTION.

The effect of the words "the prosecutor or complainant as well as the defendant" which are used in Cr. Code, s. 749, in reference to the appeal given to "any person who thinks himself aggrieved" is to limit the right of appeal from the dismissal of an information in a summary conviction proceeding to the prosecutor or complainant.

Gates v. Renner, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 122, 9 W.W.R. 190.

QUESTION OF LAW RESERVED.

A question depending upon the weight or insufficiency of the evidence where there is legal evidence on the point cannot properly be made the subject of a reserved case, although where the evidence merely points to a suspicion of guilt and lacks the material ingredients necessary to constitute proof of the offence the question becomes one of the lack of legal evidence to support it (which is a question of law) rather than one as to the weight of evidence. [R. v. McIntyre, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 413, 31 N.S.R. 422; R. v. Winslow, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 215, 12 Man. L.R. 649, referred to.]

R. v. Howe, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 215, 42 N.B.R. 378.

STATED CASE IN REVIEW OF SUMMARY CONVICTION—NO FURTHER APPEAL.

Where an appeal by stated case from a summary conviction and forfeiture of a recognizance to keep the peace, has been taken on a point of law under Cr. Code, s. 761, there is no further appeal from the decision affirming such conviction and forfeiture; Cr. Code, ss. 1013 et seq., do not give jurisdiction to the Court of Criminal Appeal to grant leave to appeal and to receive a case stated by the Superior Court of Criminal Jurisdiction hearing the appeal from the magistrate's decision.

Waller v. The King, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 393, 24 Que. K.B. 127.

SUMMARY CONVICTION—DISTRICT COURTS.

The court has not to take judicial notice of the distance from one place to another, and the appellant has therefore to prove on an appeal in Saskatchewan under Cr. Code, s. 749, subs. (f), from a summary conviction, that the District Court sittings for which he gives notice are the nearest to the place, where the cause of the information or complaint arose.

WITHHOLDING RIGHT OF APPEAL.

R. v. McMurrer; McMurrer v. Jenkins, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 385 (P.E.I.).

KEEPING DISORDERLY HOUSE—LIMITED RIGHT OF APPEAL.

An appeal under Code, s. 797, as amended in 1913, does not lie from a summary trial for keeping a disorderly house except in the special case of two Justices of the Peace sitting together; the amended s. 797 does not permit an appeal from a Police Magistrate or other functionary having the powers of two justices. SUMMARY CONVICTION—VIOLATION OF PROVINCIAL LORD'S DAY ACT.

An appeal from a summary conviction under the N.S. Lord's Day Act, a preconfederation measure, lies only under the provisions of the Criminal Code and not under the N.S. Summary Convictions Act, R.S. N.S. 1900, c. 161.

R. v. Bela Singh, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 40, 22 B.C.R. 321.

CRIMINAL CASE—QUESTION OF LAW OR FACT—INDICTABLE OFFENCE.

Whether or not there was evidence upon which the trial tribunal might make a conviction is a question of law, but where there is an acquittal on the facts in respect of a charge of an indictable offence, whether by a jury or by a judge trying the case without a jury, the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to prove the charge is a question of fact and not of law, and cannot be raised by the prosecution as a "question of law," on an appeal under Cr. Code, ss. 1014 and 1015.

R. v. White, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 74.

FROM SUMMARY TRIAL.

The words "two justices of the peace sitting together" as used in s. 797 of the Criminal Code (amendment of 1913) do not include a police magistrate exercising the power of two justices on a summary trial of an indictable offence; consequently, no appeal lies from a conviction made by a police magistrate where the accused was charged under Code, s. 228, with being the keeper of a disorderly house.

Appeal for amendment of the sentence, since that would amount to forcing an appeal upon the accused for the benefit of the Crown.

Hoolahan v. Malepart, 5 D.L.R. 479, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 405.

RIGHT OF CROWN TO APPEAL.

The question whether an indictment was properly quashed on a motion made before pleading thereto and before trial, may be reserved at the instance of the Crown for the opinion of the Court of Appeal under s. 1014 of the Criminal Code, which will be liberally construed so as to prevent a miscarriage of justice. SUMMARY CONVICTION—PROVINCIAL LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY OVER OFFENCE.

The right of appeal in a summary conviction matter conferred by ss. 749 et seq. of the Cr. Code is limited by the effect of Cr. Code, s. 706, to matters over which the Parliament of Canada has legislative authority; this refers to the Dominion Parliament and, in the absence of provincial legislation adopting the code provisions as to appeal or making other provision therefor, an appeal will not lie from the dismissal of a charge under a statute of the former Province of Canada in force in the present Province of Quebec which relates wholly to matters over which the Quebec Legislature now has exclusive jurisdiction. [Reg. v. Joseph, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 144, 11 Que. Q.B. 211; R. v. Superior; Superior v. Montreal, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 379, 9 Que. Q.B. 138; R. v. Racine, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 446, 9 Que. Burroughs v. Paradis, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 343, 24 Que. K.B. 318.

The License Commissioners of the City of Montreal who appeal to the Court of King's Bench from a judgment of the Superior Court maintaining a writ of prohibition against them are not obliged to place stamps on their proceedings nor to give security for costs since they act for and in the name of the Crown. An appeal even by the Crown or the state, in actions under c. 40 of the Code of Procedure, that is quo warranto, mandamus or prohibition, should be brought within thirty days, if not the appeal will be dismissed on motion.

Choquet v. Demers, 13 Que. P.R. 223

(§ 1 C—27)—WHERE THERE IS SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE TO CONVICT.

Where there was evidence before a magistrate trying a prosecution for an offence forbidden by law on which he might have convicted the accused, this conviction will not be disturbed, as the magistrate is the judge of the weight to be attached to the evidence. [R. v. St. Clair, 3 Can. Crim. Cas. 551, 27 A.R. (Ont.), 308, at p. 310 followed.]

CRIMINAL LAW—CASE RESERVED—THEFT—PROOF—C.C. ARTS. 69, 690, 746, 752, 999.

When on a motion of an accused found guilty before a court of special sessions of the peace, demanding that four questions be reserved for the decision of the Court of King's Bench, the presiding judge of the trial can only reserve one of them and allow the accused to present another motion before the Court of Appeal to have the other questions also reserved. This tribunal may in summarizing these three questions only reserve one for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there was any proof whatever for finding the accused guilty of theft. Ménard v. The King, 25 Rev. Leg. 73.

(§ 1 C—28)—RESERVED CASE—RULING PRIOR TO DISPOSAL OF CRIMINAL CASE.

A reserved case is prematurely granted before a decision for or against the guilt of the accused; and a case reserved for a Court of Criminal Appeal on the application of the Crown at a "speedy trial" in respect of a ruling that the prior commitment for trial was irregular must be quashed where it appears that the case was not disposed of by the County Judge upon the ruling but was adjourned in order to have the reserved case determined, bail being taken for the appearance of the accused.

APPLICATION TO JUSTICE FOR STATED CASE

Under the Alberta Crown Rules (Alberta Rules of Court 816-823) as to cases stated by justices on questions of law in summary conviction matters, the written application to the justice for a stated case must state whether the appeal is to be heard by the Appellate Division or by a judge in Chambers, in pursuance of the option which the rules give to the appellant. Failure to do so within the time limited is fatal to that mode of appeal, notwithstanding the Alberta rule 823 curing slight deviations, as the justice is required, r. 822, to forward the recognition in the one case to the registrar and in the other to the clerk of the court at the place where the appeal is to be heard. [Foss v. Best (1906), 2 K.B. 105, applied.]

R. v. Dean (Alta.), 37 D.L.R. 511, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 212, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 943.

RESERVED CASE—QUESTION OF LAW.

The trial judge should not grant a reserved case under Cr. Code, s. 1014, unless he has some doubt upon the point sought to be raised. [R. v. Létang, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 505; R. v. Brindamour, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 315, followed.]

R. v. Batterman, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 351, 34 O.L.R. 225.

BY CROWN ON QUESTION OF LAW—EVIDENCE.

The notes of the decision of a judge holding a speedy trial without a jury may be filed at a later date than that of the delivery of the oral judgment and must be given credence on a motion to the Appellate Court for leave to appeal to the grounds on which the decision rested; the court will not take into consideration in contradiction of such notes the affidavits of counsel for the appellant, even of the Crown counsel where the Crown asks leave to appeal, nor can the Crown be given leave to appeal as on a question of law when the case was dismissed for insufficiency of the evidence adduced to prove an essential ingredient of the offence.

R. v. Jacobs, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 80, 26 Que. K.B. 382.

RIGHT OF APPEAL—RESTRICTION BY STATUTE WHILE PROSECUTION PENDING.

A liquor law amendment passed during the currency of a prosecution under the principal act and providing that no appeal shall lie, is a statute relating to procedure and will apply to the pending prosecution.

R. v. Glassey, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 73.

D. MODES OF REVIEW.

(§ I D—30)—MODES OF REVIEW—DECISION OF IMMIGRATION BOARD—REVIEW BY MINISTER OF INTERIOR.

A decision of a properly constituted Board of Inquiry, acting within its jurisdiction and in accordance with the provisions of the Immigration Act, which decision is not impeached on the ground of fraud, is not open to review except by the Minister of the Interior.

In re Immigration Act and Munshi Singh, 20 B.C.R. 243.

EX PARTE ORDER FOR INJUNCTION—NOTICE.

An appeal from an ex parte order made at Chambers granting a mandatory injunction on the ground that the judge acted without jurisdiction was refused, because the appellant had not, before taking his appeal, applied to the judge to vary or rescind his order, and it was held that the necessity for such an application was not obviated by O. 58, r. 3, of the Judicature Act, 1909, giving an appeal on notice from any judgment final or interlocutory, and providing that "every judgment or decision made by a judge in court or in Chambers, except orders made in the exercise of such discretion as by law belongs to him, may be set aside or discharged upon notice by the court." ORDERS OF LOCAL MASTER IN INTERPLEADER—NOTICE.

A claimant who is served with notice of appeal from an order made by a local Master in connection with an interpleader action in which he is interested, but who has given no notice of appeal from the order, may be heard in appeal. Such appeal is a rehearing and the whole case can be gone into. [Chitty's Archbold's Pleading, p. 1417, and Shearer v. Trimble, an unreported decision of Newlands, J., April 1, 1910, followed.]

The old French Law has fixed the principle and rules for a civil application considering it always as an extreme remedy on an extraordinary recourse, in special cases determined and absolutely limited, contrary to the "supplicatio in preces" and the "institutio in integrum" of the Roman Law, recourse to which was unlimited. The modern French Law has likewise rejected, on this point, the principle of Roman Law.

II. Jurisdiction of particular courts.

A. OF SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

(§ II A—35)—JURISDICTION OF SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

Where an action is brought for specific performance of an agreement to deliver certain securities, or, in the alternative, for damages, and it appears that the defendant has rendered himself temporarily unable to deliver the securities, and the Court of Appeal by its judgment gives to the plaintiff his choice between specific performance as soon as the securities are available for delivery, and an immediate reference as to damages, an appeal lies as of right to the Supreme Court from the judgment of the Court of Appeal under subs. (c) of s. 38 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. c. 139, inasmuch as the action is in the nature of a suit or proceeding in equity.

Nelles v. Hesselting; Windsor, Essex and L.S. Rapid R. Co. v. Nelles (No. 4), 6 D.L.R. 541, 27 O.L.R. 97.

TITLE TO LAND—FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

An action to set aside a conveyance of land as a fraud on creditors involves no question of title to real estate within the meaning of s. 48 (a) of the Supreme Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 139), so as to give the Supreme Court of Canada jurisdiction to entertain an appeal.

Bateman v. Scott, 29 D.L.R. 369, 53 Can. S.C.R. 145.

ASSESSMENT MATTERS.

Appeals from the Court of Revision under s. 80 of the Assessment Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 195), taken by consent of the parties direct to the Railway and Municipal Board and later heard and decided by the Appellate Division (Ont.), in the ordinary way, may be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada under s. 41 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139. CONCURRENT JURISDICTION OF INTERIOR COURTS.

An appeal under s. 37 (b) of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, lies from a provincial court of first instance only where the inferior court is given concurrent jurisdiction with the Superior Court in matters which, without some express provision, would alone be cognizable by the Superior Court. EXCHEQUER COURT—PATENT—AMOUNT IN CONTROVERSY.

A judgment of the Exchequer Court overruling an objection to its jurisdiction in a patent controversy is appealable to the Supreme Court of Canada; the "amount in controversy" to entertain the appeal under s. 82 of the Exchequer Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 140) may be established from the value of the patent right.

Burnett v. Hutchins Car Roofing Co., 36 D.L.R. 45, 54 Can. S.C.R. 610, overruling a motion to quash appeal from 16 Can. Ex. 391.

JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — CONSOLIDATED ACTION.

Where there has been one action against three defendants, upon independent claims arising out of three separate contracts, and subsequently upon appeal judgment has been given in favour of the plaintiff, the judgment against each defendant being for less than $1,000, although the aggregate of judgments amounted to more than that amount, the defendants are in the same position as if separate actions had been brought against each, and the amount in each case being less than $1,000, there is no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. [Bennett v. Havelock Electric Light Co., 8 D.L.R. 954, 46 Can. S.C.R. 640, followed.] Glen Falls Insurance Co. v. Adams, 32 D.L.R. 399, 54 Can. S.C.R. 88.

COUNTY COURT ACTION.

An appeal does not lie to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the B.C. Court of Appeal, on an appeal from a County Court in an action for damages within its jurisdiction. [Champion v. The World Building Co., 22 D.L.R. 463, referred to.]

TITLE TO LAND—AGREEMENT OF SALE.

The Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to hear an appeal under s. 46 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, where the only dispute is as to the fulfilment of a vendor's obligation to deliver a property free from certain mortgages. TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—AMOUNT IN DISPUTE—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION CASES.

An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the King's Bench (Que.) is not shown to be within the jurisdiction as involving a matter in controversy to the sum or value of two thousand dollars [R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, s. 46], and will be quashed for want of jurisdiction, where the defendant employer is the appellant from a provisional judgment under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) for $450, loss of the workman's earnings for six months, and for an annuity to the workman of $337 payable only so long as his physical condition as affected by the injury justifies the continuance of the compensation, and subject to change within a four-year period, if the appellant advances no proof of its actuarial or commercial value in view of the contingencies of the payments and the inalienability of the compensation itself; no capitalization of the "rent" payable to the workmen under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 9 Edw. VII (Que.), c. 66, can be considered on the question of jurisdiction until the exercise of the option as to payment to an insurance company of a sum not exceeding $2,000 on the measure of permanent incapacity being ascertained. [Lapointe v. Montreal Police Benevolent Society, 35 Can. S.C.R. 5, and Aqueduct Co. v. Verrett, 42 Can. S.C.R. 156, referred to; McDonald v. C.P.R., 7 D.L.R. 138, 22 Que. TO SUPREME COURT (CAN.)—CRIMINAL CASE WHERE DISSENT IN COURT BELOW.

While the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada on a criminal appeal may be limited to the points on which there was a dissent in the court appealed from, a reasonable latitude should be permitted to counsel on the argument of the appeal to go fully into the whole conduct of the trial for the purpose of elucidating the appealable ground and the limitations imposed by Cr. Code, s. 1019 on the appellate jurisdiction to interfere unless there has been a substantial wrong or miscarriage at the trial or an improper disallowance of a challenge. [Eberts v. The King, 29 Can. SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—APPEALABILITY OF JUDGMENT INVOLVING MERELY COSTS.

The Supreme Court of Canada will not entertain an appeal from any judgment for the mere purpose of deciding a question of costs. (Dictum per Idington, J.) [Schloman v. Dowker, 30 Can. S.C.R. 323; Moir v. Huntington, 19 Can. S.C.R. 363, referred to.]

An order made by an election court constituted under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, R.S.C. 1906, ch. 7, refusing an enlargement of the time for commencement of the trial, which would expire on the next day, or to fix a day for hearing of preliminary objections remaining undisposed of, is not an order of a final and conclusive nature within s. 64 of that statute, so as to permit of an appeal being taken therefrom to the Supreme Court of Canada. JURISDICTION OF CANADA SUPREME COURT—EQUITY AND COMMON-LAW PLEADING—COMMON-LAW TRIAL—REFERENCE—ABSENCE OF FINAL JUDGMENT OF ORDER.

Although the plaintiff sued for equitable relief, by way of rescission of agreements, repayment of moneys paid on account, a receiver, and an injunction, and in the alternative common-law relief by way of damages for deceit, if it appears that the cause of action which was really tried and for which relief was given was that of deceit as to common-law action, in which the trial judge, although determining generally on the question of fraudulent misrepresentation as between the parties, did not attempt to assess the damages, but referred these and other matters to a referee, and reserved to the court the final judgment which should be given after the referee had made his report, an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. JURISDICTION OF SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—ELECTION CONTESTS—ALBERTA.

The judgment of the Alberta Supreme Court, on appeal from the decision of a judge on preliminary objections filed under the Alberta Controverted Elections Act, is not a "final judgment" from which an appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada. The inherent power of the Legislature of Alberta to determine questions relating to the election of its members has been, in part, delegated by that legislature to the judges of the Alberta Supreme Court; and such delegation of power under the Alberta Controverted Elections Act to the Alberta Supreme Court was intended by the Alberta Legislature to be final, so far as courts of law are concerned, and the decision of the Alberta Supreme Court is not subject to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—FINAL JUDGMENT.

Where the highest provincial appellate court had dismissed the plaintiff's claim for breach of contract with a company to employ him for a fixed term with an exclusive territory as sales agent because of nondisclosure of material facts to the shareholders by the plaintiff in his fiduciary position as a director up to the time of making the contract, on his failure to shew that the contract was a fair and reasonable one for the company, such judgment is a final disposal of a distinct and separate ground of action entitling the plaintiff to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, although the court appealed from had, at the same time, allowed to the plaintiff remuneration by way of quantum meruit for services rendered by the plaintiff in faith of such contract, and had directed a reference to fix the amount, which had not been fixed prior to the last appeal. [Hesseltine v. Nelles, 10 D.L.R. 832, 4 Can. S.C.R. 239, referred to; McDonald v. Belcher, [1994] A.C. 429, and St. Jean v. Mollieur, 40 Can. S.C.R. 139, applied.]

JURISDICTION—ORIGINATING PETITION—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

A judicial proceeding originating on petition to a Judge in Chambers, under the Quebec Code of Civil Procedure, articles 875 and 876, is appealable to the Supreme Court of Canada where the subject of the controversy amounts to the sum or value of two thousand dollars.

FURTHER DIRECTIONS—FINAL JUDGMENT.

Where, prior to the amendment, in 1913, to s. 2 (e) of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, judgments were rendered maintaining an action on a bond by which two of the defendants were ordered to pay to the plaintiffs an amount not exceeding that secured by the bond to be ascertained upon a reference to the master and further directions were reserved, and as to another defendant, recovery of the same amount, to be ascertained in the same manner, was ordered, but there was no reserve of further directions, the last-mentioned defendant has no right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada as such judgment did not finally conclude the action, and was not a final judgment within the meaning of s. 2 (e) of the Supreme Court Act, prior to the amendment by the Stats. 3 and 4 Geo. V. c. 51. [Rural Municipality of Morris v. London and Canadian Loan and Agency Co., 19 Can. S.C.R. 434, followed; Ex parte Moore, 14 Q.B.D. 627, distinguished; Clarke v. Goodall, 44 Can. SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—ALLOWING SECURITY—QUESTION OF COMPETENCY OF APPEAL.

Until the question is settled as to the right of appeal in Ontario to the Supreme Court of Canada from a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario, varying an award on the compulsory taking of lands under the Railway Act of Canada, the proper practice is for the Ontario Court to approve the security on the proposed appeal, leaving the parties to contest in the Supreme Court of Canada the jurisdiction of the latter court, in view of s. 36 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, and of s. 209 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37. No appeal as of right to the Supreme Court of Canada lies from the refusal by a Provincial Supreme Court, en banc, of a writ of prohibition to restrain proceedings under a provincial liquor law for an alleged offence of illegal sale; such a prosecution being a "criminal charge" within the meaning of s. 39 (c) of the Supreme Court Act, Can., R.S.C. 1906, c. 139. JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT FIRST DETERMINED.

Where a sum of $125 only is in dispute, the amount is insufficient to support the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada under s. 37 (b) of the Supreme Court Act. The fact that in the statement of claim $500 damages were asked for and that a new trial might possibly be ordered would not justify the entertaining of the appeal. [Monette v. Lefebvre, 16 Can. S.C.R. 387, referred to.] Where the amount in dispute in the County Court far exceeds $250, the court cannot mero motu do more than assume that the original claim is what must determine the point of jurisdiction.

SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—JURISDICTION—APPEAL FROM REFUSAL OF WRIT OF PROHIBITION—AMOUNT INVOLVED.

An appeal as of right to the Supreme Court of Canada from the refusal of a writ of prohibition, if not barred by s. 39 (c) of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. c. 139, 1906, Can., as brought in respect of a criminal charge, is subject to the limitation provided by s. 48 of that act as amended, 8-9 Ges. V., 1918, Can. c. 7, s. 2, requiring that more than $1000 shall be involved in the appeal. Ss. 37, 38 and 39 of that Act are subject to s. 48. The Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to grant special leave to appeal under s. 48 (e) after the expiration of 60 days from the pronouncing of the judgment quo. No appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia upon an application for a writ of prohibition against a prosecution under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, as the prohibition application arises "out of a criminal charge" (R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, s. 39 (c)). OF PROVINCIAL COURTS.

S. 1047 of the Crim. Code, 1906, providing that any costs ordered to be paid by a court pursuant to the foregoing provisions of the Code shall in case there is no tariff of fees provided with respect to criminal proceedings be taxed by the proper officer of the court according to the lowest scale of fees allowed in such court in a civil suit, does not, by the mere introduction of the civil tariff, give the right of appeal which is found in civil cases, and therefore, no appeal in that regard being anywhere provided for by the Criminal Code, the Ontario High Court has no appellate jurisdiction to interfere with the discretion of the officer whose duty it is to tax such costs.

MAGISTRATES—QUESTION OF LAW—APPEAL UNDER ALBERTA LIQUOR ACT—DUTY OF MAGISTRATE TO SIGN AFFIDAVIT.

It is not within a magistrate's jurisdiction to decide the question of law, whether or not a defendant, having moved by way of certiorari, can yet proceed by way of appeal in an action under the Liquor Act (1916, Alta., c. 4). It is his duty to take the affidavit required by s. 4 (10) of the Act when requested to do so.

LOCALITY OF OFFENCE—MAGISTRATE ACTING FOR TWO COUNTIES—JURISDICTION OF COUNTY COURT ON APPEAL.

An appeal under the Summary Convictions Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 218, from a magistrate's conviction under a provincial law cannot be taken to the County Court of a county other than that in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, although the magistrate may have had jurisdiction in both counties. [R. v. Lynn (No. 1), 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 354, 3 Sask. L.R. 339, referred to.]

COURT OF KING'S BENCH—JURISDICTION—MOTION TO QUASH—APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION DISMISSING AN OBJECTION TO ITS JURISDICTION—JURISDICTION OF THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION OVER TOLLS—ROADS TRUSTEES—R.S., [1909] ARTS. 758, 763.

An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from a decision of the Public Utilities Commission dismissing an exception to its jurisdiction. Toll roads trustees, though not owners of the roads, are subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission.

Les Syndics des Chemins, à Barrières de la Riv. Sud v. Levis County R., 28 Que. K. B. 103.

JURISDICTION OF COURT OF KING'S BENCH—PROHIBITION—QUASHING MUNICIPAL BY-LAW—RECORDER'S COURT.

There is an appeal to the Court of King's Bench from a judgment refusing to grant a writ of prohibition to prevent a Recorder's Court from executing judgments based upon a municipal by-law, whose quashing is likewise asked for.

Drapeau v. La Cour de Recorder de la cité de Québec, 27 Que. K.B. 182.

ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS—APPOINTMENT OF CURATOR.

There is no appeal to the Court of King's Bench from an order of a Judge of the Superior Court appointing a curator in a judicial abandonment of property even if such appointment has been contested between the creditors.

Gauthier and Laviolette v. Lamatte, 27 Que. K.B. 320.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH—WINDING-UP MATTER—MOTION TO REJECT.

The fact that a court of first instance had discretionary power in pronouncing judgment may be a reason for not granting leave to appeal or for confirming it but is not a reason for rejecting the appeal on motion, when the permission to appeal was granted by a judge. A judgment directing a sale of the real property of an insolvent company, and refusing an application to stay the sale cannot be appealed to the Court of King's Bench because the object of the appeal is not a sum of money.

La Compagnie de Sainte-Foye and Parent v. Matte, 27 Que. K.B. 306.

(§ II C—60)—QUESTIONS OF TITLE—MINERS' LIENS.

A claim for a miner's lien does not involve "title to real estate" nor any "interest therein" within the meaning of s. 2 of the Act to amend the Yukon Amendment Act, 2 Geo. V. (Can.) c. 56, so as to permit an appeal from the Yukon Territorial Court to the British Columbia Court of Appeal, notwithstanding that the amount in controversy was less than $500.

appealable amount. [Gabriel v. Jackson Mines Limited, 15 B.C.R. 373; and Gillis Supply Company v. Allen, 15 B.C.R. 375, followed.]

Morin v. Beck's Weekly, 15 Que. P.R. 403. JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — COURT OF REVIEW.

The Court of Review has no jurisdiction to review an interlocutory judgment in cases above $500, but when the appeal from such judgment includes also the merits of the case, the Court of Review has jurisdiction.

Poirier v. Trudeau, 52 Que. S.C. 405.

AMOUNT NECESSARY FOR JURISDICTION.

A judgment for a sum of $100 was, before 8 Edw. VII. c. 74, appealable to the Court of King's Bench.

Burns v. Cousineau, 14 Que. P.R. 389.

Where the only issue on an appeal was in respect of damages assessed at an amount below that limited for appeals from the Province of Quebec, the appeal should be quashed, but without costs, as the objection to the jurisdiction of the court had not been taken by motion as provided by the Rules of Practice. JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — AFFIDAVIT — LIQUIDATOR—WINDING-UP ACT.

Proof of the amount involved in an appeal can be made by affidavit and it is the duty of the court hearing the application to determine the amount from the affidavits filed. [Falkner's Gold Mining Co. v. Mc-

Kinnery, [1901] A.C. 581.] On a liquidator's application under s. 101 (e) of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, as amended by 5 Geo. V. c. 21, s. 1, for leave to appeal from an order directing the payment of a solicitor's costs, the court should, in the absence of any contradiction, accept the sworn statement of the liquidator that the amount involved in the appeal exceeds the amount required to give jurisdiction.

Re Prudential Life Insurance Co. (Man.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 508.

(§ II C—66)—JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT—TITLE TO LAND.

The Court of King's Bench has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a judgment of the Superior Court, which has assessed damages at the sum of $250, when the effect of such judgment is to determine a title to immovable property and causes prejudice as to the conditions of the exigibility of a capital sum amounting to $1,100.

(§ II C—68)—TO PRIVY COUNCIL FROM ONTARIO COURT—AMOUNT IN CONTROVERSY.

In an action by an assignee for benefit of creditors brought against a bank to set aside securities given by the debtor to the bank, where the issue is whether the bank is entitled to the whole of the proceeds of certain property or only to a pro rata share with other creditors, the difference between such sums is the amount of the matter in controversy by which the statutory right of appeal to the Privy Council from the Ontario Supreme Court is governed under the Ontario statute, 10 Edw. VII. c. 24, if the total amount of the bank's claim against the debtor, which was in excess of the statutory minimum of $4,000, was not in dispute.

JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — SOLICITOR'S COSTS.

When a solicitor appeals from a judgment rejecting his application to sue for his costs, on account of the parties having collusively settled the case among themselves, he is to furnish evidence that his costs, or his interest in the cause, amount to at least $500; if he does not furnish such evidence his appeal will be quashed for want of jurisdiction. (§ III B—75)—EFFECT OF APPEAL WHERE A REHEARING.

The word "law" in Cr. Code, s. 752, where it is declared that the court appealed to should try and shall be the absolute judge "as well of the facts as of the law," in respect to the conviction or order appealed from refers to the law applicable to the facts adduced in support of or against the proof of the charge; the appeal being a rehearing, is a submission to the jurisdiction of the District Court to which an appeal is taken under Cr. Code, s. 797, from a summary trial for the indictable offence of keeping a disorderly house (Cr. Code, ss. 228 and 773 (f) and 774), and the District Court may rehear on the merits notwithstanding the want of jurisdiction of the magistrate below, by reason of the illegality of the arrest, nor does Code, s. 753, as to objections taken below, apply other than to the cases it specifically mentions. conviction appeals from, made before the disposal of the appeal.

A defendant appealing from a decision against him at the trial, has, under the Alberta practice rule 510, a prima facie right to a stay of proceedings pending the hearing of such appeal, on terms within the discretion of the court.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS—APPEAL PENDING—FORECLOSURE—REDEMPTION.

Where the mortgagor would be barred from reopening a foreclosure, as is probably the effect of subs. 8, of s. 93, of the Land Titles Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 41, and, unless the application to stay proceedings upon an appeal from an order affecting the right to redeem were granted, the mortgagee might obtain a certificate of title to the lands, a stay of proceedings should be granted pending the appeal, on payment of the costs of the application and on giving security for the costs of the appeal. [See also Williams v. Box, 44 Can. S.C.R. 1; Reeves v. Konechur, 2 S.L.R. 125; Richards v. Thompson, 18 W.L.R. 1, 9.]

STAY OF EXECUTION PENDING APPEAL—PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS FROM ONTARIO.

Subject to the power to otherwise order in any particular case, execution is stayed on an appeal from the Court of Appeal for Ontario to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, notwithstanding Ont. Con. Rule (1897) 832, when the security required by the Privy Council Appeals Act, 10 Edw. VII, (Ont.) c. 24, has been perfected. [This practice has since been varied by statute of 1912, 2 Geo. V. (Ont.).]

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS—SUPERSEDEAS.

Where a defendant by its plea and cross-demand gives to plaintiffs the option of resuming work within fifteen days after judgment to be rendered and the judgment does order plaintiffs thereupon to resume work within a stipulated delay, failing which a deposit made by plaintiffs will be forfeited and defendant appeals from such judgment on another point, this fact does not prevent plaintiffs from tendering their services within such delay and if they fail to do so and await the decision of the Appellate Court they will be too late to avail themselves of this offer and the deposit will be forfeited.

FROM SUPREME COURT OF CANADA TO PRIVY COUNCIL—MOTION BELOW TO STAY PROCEEDINGS.

A stay of proceedings to admit of an appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada to the Privy Council will not be granted by a Judge of the Supreme Court in a case where the decision of the court en banc proceeded on the ground that it had no jurisdiction under the particular circumstances to entertain the appeal taken to it from a provincial court.

TO DIVISIONAL COURT—FROM COUNTY COURT—ORDER STAYING ALL PROCEEDINGS IN A COUNTY COURT ACTION PENDING A TRIAL IN HIGH COURT.

Gibson v. Hawes, 3 O.W.N. 91, 20 O.W.R. 109.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

An application to the Privy Council for leave to appeal from the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada does not have the effect of staying proceedings, and no stay of proceedings will be granted upon the application. [Adams v. Bank of Montreal, 31 Can. S.C.R. 223.] Where, therefore, the judgment of the trial judge dismissing the action under a mechanics' lien and ordering that the lien be vacated, was reversed by the court en banc but restored by the Supreme Court of Canada, an order was granted on the application of the defendant directing the cancellation of the lien, notwithstanding the fact that an application for leave to appeal to Privy Council was pending.

Breckenridge-Lund Lumber & Coal Co. v. Short & Travis, 3 A.L.R. 236.

In an action against two defendants to have a Crown grant revoked, judgment was given in the Supreme Court annulling the grant, but also maintaining a claim of one of the defendants for betterments to the property. The defendants appealed to the King's Bench from the judgment of revocation and the plaintiff interposed in review from that part of the judgment which maintained the claim for betterments. It was held that an application by the defendants to stay proceedings upon the appeal to the King's Bench, until after decision of the appeal to the Court of Review should be rejected.

SUMMARY CONVICTIONS ACT (B.C.) — FINALITY OF FINDING OF SUPREME COURT — COURT OF APPEAL ACT — DUTY OF JUDGES TO FOLLOW JUDGMENTS OF HIGHEST COURTS.

Where a magistrate on a conviction under the Summary Convictions Act, B.C. stats. 1915, c. 59, has stated a case for the Supreme Court, under s. 92, the finding of the Supreme Court is final. There is no further appeal under the Court of Appeal Act of 1911. The decisions of the Privy Council and English Court of Appeal are binding on the British Columbia Court of Appeal and on the Judges of the Supreme Court, and it is the duty of the Supreme Court Judges to follow and apply the decisions of those highest Courts of Judicature in preference to those of the British Columbia Court of Appeal where they are in conflict.

DEATH OF PARTY BELOW.

It was held that, costs having been adjudged against the appellant by the Court of Review, his universal legatee had an interest to continue proceedings in appeal, but that, at the present stage of the cause, the court would not express an opinion whether or not the universal legatee, as such, had an interest to pray for removal of the defendant from office.

D. MODE; CONDITIONS; REGULATIONS.

(§ III D—85)—The signature of an attorney to a document of procedure (e.g. an inscription in review) which is affixed by means of a stamp instead of being written by hand, is valid, where no prejudice is caused by the adoption of this method. FROM AWARD OF ARBITRATORS UNDER RAILWAY ACT—PROCEDURE.

In Quebec, the proper procedure for appealing from an award of arbitrators, made under c. 47, of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, is by means of an inscription in appeal as in ordinary cases, and not by a writ and petition. [Re Vallières and Ontario and Quebec R. Co., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 128, referred to.]

FROM AWARD OF ARBITRATORS UNDER RAILWAY ACT.

The party dissatisfied with the award in an expropriation of land under the Dominion Railway Act may take an appeal by means of a notice or by inscription. He cannot have the recourse at the same time to a writ and an inscription. On motion therefore he will be condemned to elect as to which of the two he will proceed.

Lachine, Jacques Cartier & Maisonneuve R. Co. v. Charlebois, 14 Que. P.R. 419.

FROM AWARD OF ARBITRATORS UNDER RAILWAY ACT.

An appeal to the Superior Court from the award of arbitrators in a case of expropriation under the Dominion Railway Act should be taken by means of an inscription simply and not by way of a writ and a declaration annexed thereto; [Ross v. The Lachine, Jacques Cartier and Maisonneuve R. Co., 14 Que. P.R. 289, followed] but an appeal by way of action will not be dismissed on exception to the form.

(III D—86) — RECOGNIZANCE — SUMMARY CONVICTION AND FINE — CR. CODE, S. 750.

Where a summary conviction directs payment of a fine and, in default of distress, imprisonment, the defendant's recognizance on an appeal therefrom under Cr. Code, s. 750, need not cover the fine and costs, the imprisonment fixed in default of payment being sufficient security for that; the basis on which the amount of the recognizance should be fixed in such case is what the probable costs of the appeal would be.

R. v. McDermott, 19 D.L.R. 321, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 252.

SUMMARY REQUIREMENTS — AFFIDAVIT OF MERITS—GAME ACT.

An appeal under the B.C. Game Act, 1914, c. 33, is not competent unless the statutory conditions of s. 56 as to making an affidavit of merits as well as the conditions imposed by the Summary Convictions Act, B.C., have been strictly complied with; and the defendant's affidavit of merits, stating that he did not commit the offence charged, must also negative the charge in the terms used in the conviction to comply with s. 56 of the Game Act.

R. v. Marshall, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 180.

RESERVED CASE IN CRIMINAL MATTER—SPECIAL FINDINGS ON TRIAL WITHOUT JURY.

Where the magistrate holding a summary trial finds in favor of the accused on any question of fact that finding should appear upon the face of the reserved case taken under Cr. Code, s. 1014. The submission merely of a question to the Appellate Court whether or no there was evidence on which the magistrate could find the accused guilty is not the proper mode if the magistrate intends to find any of the questions of fact in favour of the accused, for it presupposes an adverse determination of all questions of fact in issue as well as an adverse determination by the magistrate of the question of law submitted.

R. v. Hoffman, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 126, 45 O.L.R. 234.

E CITATION: NOTICE; APPEARANCE.(III E—90)—NOTICE OF APPEAL.

An appeal from the judgment of the provincial Court of last resort affirming the judgment given at the trial of the action disposing of the rights of the parties and directing a reference to determine the amount of damages, is not an appeal from "a judgment upon a motion to enter a verdict or nonsuit upon a point reserved at the trial" within the terms of s. 70 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. (1906), c. 139, so as to require a notice of appeal within twenty days after the decision of the Court of Appeal of the province.

Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore Rapid R. Co. v. Nelles, 1 D.L.R. 156, and 309.

NOTICE OF—CRIMINAL CASE—TIME FOR GIVING—EXPIRATION ON SUNDAY.

If the last day of the ten days in which notice of appeal from a conviction may be given, as required by s. 750 (b) of the Criminal Code, falls on Sunday, s. 31 (h) of the Interpretation Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 1, applies to make the notice regular if given on the following day.

R. v. Trotter, 14 D.L.R. 355, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 192, 6 A.L.R. 451, 25 W.L.R. 663.

NOTICE OF APPEAL—INSUFFICIENCY.

A notice of appeal is insufficient where the grounds stated therein are (1) that the judgment appealed from is against the law, evidence, and the weight of evidence; (2) that the trial judge erroneously admitted and excluded evidence, and (3) that the judgment was erroneous "upon such other grounds as may appear in the pleadings and proceedings," such alleged grounds being too indefinite.

Alfred & Wickham v. G.T.P.R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 154, 20 W.L.R. 111.

SUMMARY CONVICTION — FILING NOTICE OF APPEAL.

The notice of appeal under Cr. Code, s. 750 (amendment of 1909), which is to be filed with the court appealed to within ten days after a summary conviction, is too late where mailed to the clerk of the court in time for him to receive it on the tenth day at his post office, if by reason of his own office being officially closed on that day, he did not in fact receive it until the day following.

The King v. Green, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 155.

NOTICE TO BOTH JUSTICES WHERE TWO JUSTICES REQUIRED TO FORM THE COURT—SELLING INTOXICANT TO TREATY INDIAN—QUASHING APPEAL WHERE ONLY ONE JUSTICE SERVED.

The King v. Edleston, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 155 (Sask.).

The notice of appeal being given the court en banc is seized of it, and the filing of the appeal book is merely a provision for bringing the material relating to the appeal before the court and does not in any way affect the time within which notice must be given or determine the sittings to which such notice must be given.

Patterson v. Palmer, 4 S.L.R. 455.

NOTICE OF APPEAL FROM DISMISSAL ORDER.

The notice of appeal by the informant, under Cr. Code, s. 750, from the dismissal of the complaint laid by him on behalf of an association of which he was an officer, for infringement of a law the enforcement of which would specially benefit such association, need not specifically state that such informant is a "person aggrieved" by the dismissal order. (Cr. Code, s. 749.)

R. v. Austin, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 446.

COUNTY COURT APPEAL—NOTICE OF EXTENDING TIME FOR SERVICE — WHAT JUDGE MAY MAKE ORDER.

The time for serving the notice of an appeal from the County Court may be extended by either a Judge of the Supreme Court or the Judge of the County Court appealed from: Order 59, r. 12.

Ying v. Foo, 42 N.B.R. 315.

INSCRIPTION IN APPEAL—SERVICE OF NOTICE—MOTION TO REJECT—MOTION TO GIVE NEW NOTICE—COSTS—C.P., ARTS. 518, 1213, 1220, 1236, 1248.

The service of the inscription in appeal before it is stamped and deposited in the office of the Prothonotary, is irregular and may be, on motion, set aside together with the security bond and all proceedings had and taken since the filing of the inscription. But the court, on motion, may permit the appellant to give a new notice, a new security and to proceed thereon. To that end, the record may be transmitted to the Superior Court, unless the parties agree otherwise. The costs of the two motions against the appellant, other costs reserved.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION — PROOF OF SERVICE.

It is sufficient that a notice of appeal from a summary conviction to which the procedure of the Criminal Code is applicable should be proved by affidavit and not by calling a witness on the return of the appeal to prove the service. [R. v. Gray, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 24; and Pakkala v. Hanuksela, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, 8 D.L.R. 34, considered.]

R. v. Curran, 19 D.L.R. 120, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 388.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION — SERVICE OF NOTICE OF APPEAL—CR. CODE, s. 750.

The period of ten days limited by Code s. 750 (as amended 1909 and 1913) for filing a notice of appeal from a summary conviction, does not apply to the service of notice on the respondent and the justices; it is sufficient that the service was made in sufficient time to perfect the appeal.

R. v. McDermott, 19 D.L.R. 321, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 252.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION — "NEXT SITTINGS" UNDER CR. CODE, s. 749.

Where, as in Saskatchewan, the regular sittings of the District Court to which an appeal may be taken from a summary conviction are fixed by provincial order-in-council and others known as special sittings are fixed by the judge by virtue of a provincial statute, a notice of appeal is valid if served for the special sittings being the first sittings following the expiration of fourteen days from the conviction; and scemle, it would be competent for an appellant to give notice of appeal either to the next special sittings or the next regular sittings, either being the "next sittings" within a liberal interpretation of Cr. Code, s. 749.

R. v. Georget, 19 D.L.R. 404, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 341.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION — NEAREST PLACE OF SITTINGS — DISTRICT COURT (SASK.).

The sittings of a District Court which shall be held "nearest" to the place where the cause of the information or complaint arose and to which in Saskatchewan an appeal from a summary conviction is to be taken, means, prima facie the nearest, measured in a straight line on a horizontal plane, but if it be shewn that another place for which a session of the court is fixed is more convenient of access, having regard to the recognized means of travel, the appellant will be deemed to have complied with Cr. Code, s. 749, if he brings his appeal either there or at the place which is nearest when measured in a straight line. [R. v. Surrey, 6 Q.B.D. 100; R. v. Norfolk, 99 L.T. 936, applied.]

R. v. Georget, 19 D.L.R. 404, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 341.

SERVICE OF NOTICE—SUMMARY CONVICTION.

The service of a copy of notice of intention to appeal under s. 750 (b) of the Crim. Code, need not be effected within ten days of the conviction or order appealed against. Notwithstanding the absence of any such provision in the District Courts Act, the court for hearing appeals from summary convictions is the District Court.

SERVICE OF NOTICE—AFFIDAVIT—ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN'S ACT.

The filing of the appellant's affidavit with the magistrate under the Illegitimate Children's Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 92, on appealing from his dismissal of an information thereunder, is intended to take the place of the service on the magistrate of any other formal notice of appeal, such affidavit in itself declaring both the intention to appeal and that the appeal was not being prosecuted for delay; consequently where the appellant has personally served the respondent with a notice of appeal, has given the prescribed bond and has within ten days from the decision complained of filed the statutory affidavit, a preliminary objection for failure to serve the like notice of appeal upon the magistrate will be

NOTICE OF APPEAL FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION.

A notice of appeal given under Cr. Code, s. 750, by the person convicted and which shows on its face that he appeals as such from the summary conviction made against him, need not specifically state that he is the "person aggrieved" (Cr. Code, s. 749).

R. v. Hatt, 27 D.L.R. 640, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 263.

NOTICE OF APPEAL IN CRIMINAL CASE—SERVICE OF COUNSEL—ATTENDANCE OF ACCUSED.

The Court of Appeal hearing an appeal by the Crown by way of reserved case from a ruling in favour of the accused on a criminal trial will hesitate to hear the appeal of which notice has been served on his counsel but not on the accused personally, although counsel for the accused is present to argue the appeal and admits that he had shown the accused the notice of appeal; but an adjournment for personal service will not be necessary if the accused attends in person at the argument of the appeal.

R. v. Kerr, 3 D.L.R. 720, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 79, 22 Man. L.R. 353.

SERVICE OF NOTICE OF APPEAL.

Upon an appeal from a summary conviction the notice of appeal may be served either upon the justice or upon the respondent under Cr. Code, s. 750 (amendment of 1909), but where the respondent is not served, more must be shown than service upon a person to whom the witness, called in proof of service, had been directed on enquiry for a man bearing the same surname and initials as the justice; the appellant should prove that the person served was the justice who tried the case.

Pahkala v. Hammuksela (No. 1), 8 D.L.R. 31, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, 2 W.W.R. 911.

NOTICE—SERVICE—CRIM. CODE.

Service of notice of appeal from a conviction under s. 750 (b) of the Criminal Code, need not be made upon the respondent and convicting justices within the ten days within which the notice must be filed in the Appeal Court; the limit applies only to the filing of the notice.

Gallagher v. Vennesland, 32 D.L.R. 435, 11 A.L.R. 228, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 360.

NOTICE OF APPEAL—CRIMINAL CASE—SERVICE OF—APPOINTMENT OF OFFICER TO ACCEPT—SERVICE ON PERSON IN CHARGE OF OFFICE.

In the absence of an officer of the N.W. Mounted Police, on whom an Indian agent consents to service of notice of an appeal from a conviction by him, the notice may properly be served on the person in charge in such officer's place.

R. v. Trottier, 14 D.L.R. 355, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 102, 6 A.L.R. 451, 25 W.L.R. 603.

SUMMARY CONVICTION MATTER—NOTICE.

A notice of appeal taken in a summary conviction matter under Cr. Code, s. 749, by a person entitled to appeal thereunder, need not state on its face that the appellant is a "person aggrieved" nor recite such facts as would show legal grounds for his being aggrieved. [R. v. McKay, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 212, 10 D.L.R. 820, 23 W.L.R. 369, followed.]

Gates v. Renner, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 122, 9 W.W.R. 190.

SUMMARY CONVICTION—PLACE OF SITTINGS—DISTRICT COURTS.

An appeal from a summary conviction in Saskatchewan is by Cr. Code, s. 749, to be taken to the sittings of the District Court held nearest to the place where the cause of the information or complaint arose, and the distance is to be measured in a straight line without regard to the circumstance that the sittings held at a place which was not the nearest in a straight line would be more convenient of access having regard to the recognized means of travel; the jurisdiction of the District Court is limited by Code, s. 749, to the sittings which are in fact the nearest.

Fauchaux v. Georgett; R. v. Georgett (No. 2), 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 76, 8 S.L.R. 325, 32 W.L.R. 863, reversing 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 341 on this point.

Any interested party, who has been served with a petition to a judge in Chambers under s. 114 of the Land Registry Act, is on appeal from the decision given on the hearing, entitled to notice of, and to appear upon the settlement of the appeal book before the registrar. All material before the judge below should be included in the appeal book.

NOTICE OF APPEAL.

In ordinary cases of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada notice of appeal is not required before or after approving of the security.

Albion Motor Express Co. v. City of New Westminster (B.C.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 23.

FILING—NOTICE—SERVICE—SECURITY.

An inscription in appeal to the Court of King's Bench must be deposited and stamped at the prothonotary's office before it is served upon the opposite party and before a valid notice of security may be given. The court will order the retransmission of the record to the Superior Court for the giving of a new security, unless respondent declares himself satisfied with the security already given.

Protestant Board of School Commissioners v. Quinlan, 20 Que. P.R. 255.

NOTICE—INTERLOCUTORY APPEAL—NEW EVIDENCE.

A party intending to offer new evidence on an interlocutory appeal must give notice thereof in his notice of appeal and file the material intended to be used.

Royal Bank v. Pacific Bottling Works, 23 B.C.R. 463, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 227.

(§ III E—94)—CRIM. CODE—SUFFICIENCY OF NOTICE—DEPOSIT—LEGAL TENDER.

A notice of appeal from the magistrate's order under the Masters and Servants Ordinance (Alta.) is sufficient, if it sets forth with reasonable certainty the order or conviction appealed from, as required by s. 759 of the Criminal Code; it need not signify whether the appeal is from the adjudication of the issue or the sentence and penalty. If served on the magistrate and respondents it is immaterial to whom it is addressed. Signature to the notice is not important, nor is an omission of the judge's name a fatal irregularity. Unless objected to as legal tender, a cheque which is paid when presented is a sufficient deposit of the adjudged sum required by the section.

NOTICE OF APPEAL—SITTINGS.

Where notice of appeal was given for the Vancouver sittings and the date of hearing the appeal was omitted from the notice, but the following Vancouver sittings of the court were out of time, and no steps were taken to set the case down for hearing at the previous sittings of the court in Victoria, at which sittings the hearing of the appeal would have been in time, the notice of appeal will on motion be discharged.

Harris v. Mission Land Co., 22 B.C.R. 11.

NOTICE OF APPEAL.

A notice of appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of British Columbia to the Court of Appeal of that province is properly intitled in the Supreme Court.

[The reversal upon appeal, Grand Trunk Pacific v. White, 43 Can. S.C.R. 627, was upon other grounds.]

F. TIME; EXTENSION.

(§ III F—95)—SPECIAL LEAVE.

The Supreme Court of Saskatchewan cannot, by virtue of s. 71 of the Supreme Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 139), extend the time for hearing an appeal of the class to which, s. 69 applies. [John Goodison Thresher Co. v. Tp. of McNab, 42 Can. S.C.R. 694, followed.]

Hillman v. Imperial Elevator & Lumber Co., 29 D.L.R. 372, 53 Can. S.C.R. 15, 10 W.W.R. 507. [See also 23 D.L.R. 420, 8 S.L.R. 91, 30 W.L.R. 951.]

TIME FOR—EXTENSION—WHEN REFUSED.

TIME—SIGNING OR ENTRY OR PRONOUNCING OF JUDGMENT.

Where a statutory period for appeal from a judgment is designated as so many days "from the signing or entry or pronouncing of the judgment appealed from," the period begins to run, as to a judgment which was "pronounced" on a day previous to that on which it was "formally entered" upon the date of "pronouncing" the judgment, if nothing remained to be settled before the judgment could be entered. [Elgin (County) v. Roberts, 36 Can. S.C.R. 27; Walmsley v. Griffith, 13 Can. S.C.R. 434, applied.]

NOTICE OF—EXTENSION OF TIME FOR GIVING—MISTAKE OF SOLICITOR NOT GROUND FOR.

The mistake of a party's solicitor in giving notice of appeal from the District Court one day too late is not a sufficient ground under the Saskatchewan practice for granting an extension of time for serving such notice. [Re Coles and Ravenshear, [1907] 1 K.B. 1, followed.]

EXTENSION OF TIME—NOTICE TO B.C. COURT OF APPEAL.

The British Columbia Court of Appeal has no power to extend the time within which notice of appeal should be given on an appeal to that court.

Laursen v. McKinnon (No. 2), 9 D.L.R. 758, 18 B.C.R. 10, 23 W.L.R. 1, 3 W.W.R. 717.

TIME FOR COMPLETING APPEAL—PETITION UNDER LAND ACT—CROWN LANDS.

The time for taking an appeal from the decision of the Minister of Lands (B.C.), refusing an application to purchase Crown lands is to be computed from the date of the official rejection of the claim and not from a prior date when the district commissioner gave notice to the applicant that the Lands Department had instructed him not to accept applications for the land until further advised. The right of appeal by way of petition against the decision of the Minister of Lands (B.C.), refusing an application for purchase of Crown lands is not preserved by the filing of a petition in a district registry within the statutory period of thirty days when no service of that petition is made on the Minister of Lands, but a fresh petition is filed too late in the principal registry and the latter petition is served

TIME FOR TAKING APPEAL.

The meaning of O. LVII, r. 3 (Nova Scotia), which stipulates that "the notice of appeal shall be served within ten days from the day that the appellant or his solicitor first had notice that the order upon the decision appealed from had been made," is not ten days from the service of the order nor ten days from the filing of the order, but ten days from "notice" of it, and for this purpose notice by telegram is effective.

R. v. Felton, 8 D.L.R. 77, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 239, 46 N.S.R. 462, 11 E.L.R. 585.

EXTENSION OF TIME—NOTICE OF APPEAL.

The Supreme Court of British Columbia has jurisdiction to enlarge the time for giving notice of appeal from that court to the Court of Appeal, although the application is not made until the time for giving such notice has elapsed, its jurisdiction in that respect differing from that of the Court of Appeal itself under ss. 23 and 25 of the Court of Appeal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 51, (formerly B.C. Statutes, 1907, c. 10, ss. 23 and 25.) [Laursen v. McKinnon (No. 2), 9 D.L.R. 758, considered.]

Laursen v. McKinnon (No. 3), 9 D.L.R. 827, 18 B.C.R. 677, 23 W.L.R. 407, 4 W.W.R. 84, affirmed 15 D.L.R. 384.

EXTENDING TIME TO APPEAL—SOLICITOR NOT GIVING NOTICE.

On an application under s. 4 of the Court of Appeal Act, 1913, to extend the time for giving notice of appeal owing to a slip of the solicitor in not giving notice until after the expiration of the time allowed under marginal rule 879:—Held, that there was not sufficient ground for granting special leave under said section. In all cases of application for extension of time to appeal under this rule very exceptional circumstances must be shown. It is not the ordinary case when relief from slips of solicitors can be compensated with costs, because, in this particular class of case, there is a limit placed upon the time within which the judgment that the successful party has obtained can be taken from him and that is the principle which distinguishes it from ordinary cases of extension of time. Where a slip of a solicitor may result in loss of property to a client, relief should be granted.

APPEAL NOT SET DOWN—EXTENSION OF TIME.

Where notice of appeal has been given for a certain sittings of the court for which the case has not been set down, the court may postpone the hearing until the following sittings. The proper practice is to apply to the court for an extension of time, and then serve notice for the following sittings.

to interlocutory judgments. A judgment of the Superior Court refusing to extend the delay granted by art. 442, C.C.P. (Que.) for proceeding to a trial by jury is not appealable, as it falls within the application of art. 446, C.C.P. (Que.); moreover, it is a question left entirely to the discretion of the court of first instance, with no appeal, except in the case of abuse of such discretion.

Dougan v. Montreal Tramways Co., 26 Que. K.B. 217.

JUDGMENT IN DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE—FINAL OR INTERLOCUTORY—DISMISSAL—TIME FOR APPEAL.

An order of a County Court Judge dismissing a motion to set aside an interlocutory judgment, entered in default of appearance, is an interlocutory order and therefore, under s. 15 (b) of the Court of Appeal Act, c. 51, R.S.B.C. 1911, an appeal therefrom must be brought within 15 days. [Gladwin v. Cummings, Cassels' S.C. Dig. 427, followed; Voight v. Orth, 5 O.L.R. 443, distinguished.]

Chilliwack Evaporating & Packing Co. v. Chung (B. C.), [1918] 1 W.W.R. 870. [See 25 B.C.L.R. 90.]

DATE OF JUDGMENT—REVIEW.

The date of the judgment of the Court of Review is that of the day upon which it was received to be registered by the prothonotary of the district where the judgment was originally rendered. Therefore an appeal was well taken on July 14, where the judgment was rendered in review on June 25, registered in the Court of Review on the 28th, and received by the prothonotary of Montreal on the 29th of the same month.

Okopy v. Atlas Construction Co., 27 Que. K.B. 274.

The inscription in appeal must be filed in the prothonotary's office before service of the notice of appeal and security on the other side. But if respondent's attorney is present when security is furnished and does not object to its being given, respondent acquiesces in the appeal and cannot complain of the aforesaid irregularity.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENTS.

Art. 1209, C.C.P. (Que.), providing that an appeal should be taken within two months from a judgment on a jury trial, does not apply to interlocutory judgments.

EXPIRING ON SATURDAY.

When the delays for filing an inscription in review expire on a Saturday the inscription can be properly served and filed on the Monday following.

Montreal v. Garneau, 18 Que. P.R. 93.

INSCRIPTION IN REVIEW.

An inscription in the Court of Review for the revision of a judgment of the Superior Court must be filed in the office of the clerk of that court within 15 days from the date of the judgment to be reviewed, on pain of nullity.

Massé v. Bertrand, 50 Que. S. C. 355.

UNDER SMALL DEBTS RECOVERY ACT.

The provisions as to appeal contained in the Small Debts Recovery Act are complete without reference to the Criminal Code. An appeal under that act must be filed within 10 days after the judgment is given.

Dowes v. Gruver (Sask.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 62.

APPLICATION TO REINSTATE AFTER DEATH OF APPELLANT—CONSENT TO EXTENSION OF TIME BY RESPONDENT PREVENTING LATTER FROM OBJECTION TO DEFAULT PRIOR TO SUCH CONSENT—DELAY OF APPEAL PENDING GRANT OF ADMINISTRATION.

After service of notice of appeal an appellant died and subsequently the solicitors for the appellants and respondent consented to an order for the appeal to stand over for a certain sittings. Administration was not granted to appellant's estate until some time after said sittings. On application to reinstate the action in the same plight and condition in which it was on the appellant's death and to extend the time for perfecting the appeal; held that the consent entered into between the solicitors for the parties prevents the solicitor for the respondent from taking the position that the appellants were in default prior to the giving of such consent; and as since the giving of the consent the appeal on behalf of the estate could not proceed until administration had been granted, and it does not appear that there was any negligence or default in procuring administration, the application should be granted.

SUPREME COURT EN BANC—NOTICE OF APPEAL—TIME.

Patterson v. Palmer, 18 W.L.R. 684. (Sask.)

(§ III F-96)—TIME FOR CROSS-APPEAL—MODIFICATION OF JUDGMENT—NECESSITY FOR CROSS NOTICE.

Where on defendant's appeal from a judgment against him, it appears that the trial judge erroneously denied recovery on a note for 805 and that on another note for 8150 a credit of 850 was disregarded, the judgment may be varied, though there was no notice of cross-appeal, so as to remedy the error, by virtue of order 57 of the Nova Scotia practice.

(§ III F-97)—TIME—FROM TAKING UP OF AWARD—NOTICE.

Even if notice of the taking up of an award is to be taken as impliedly required under the Municipal Arbitrations Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 227, an appeal by the municipality is too late of which notice is given more than one month after the receipt of a letter by the municipality from the claimant's solicitor demanding payment of the amount of the award and costs; such demand is in effect a notice of the taking up of the award.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION—TEN DAYS' LIMITATION—SHEWING CORRECT DATE OF CONVICTION.

Where there is any question as to the correct date of a summary conviction it is open for the appellant to shew that date by extrinsic evidence and support his appeal taken within 10 days therefrom as in time, although the conviction itself bears a prior date which would make it appear that the notice of appeal was late.

R. v. Prokopate, 18 D.L.R. 696, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 189, 7 S.L.R. 95, 29 W.L.R. 88, 6 W.W.R. 405.

R. v. Matt, 10 E.L.R. 13 (N.S.).
COMPUTATION OF TIME.

The time for taking an appeal from a judgment of the County Court to the Court of Appeal must be computed from the delivery of the judgment and not from the taking out of the formal order. [Kirkland v. Brown, 13 B.C.R. 350, followed.]

Shipway v. Logan, 21 B.C.R. 395.

DELAY—GOOD CAUSE.

Through the failure of a party to bring his appeal before the Supreme Court within sixty days, the other party acquires vested rights and ought not to be deprived thereof, unless good cause be shown. The reasons are not sufficient. That the judgment appealed from has not been recorded on the date it was rendered, the court being positive that it was done a few days only after it has been rendered; that the petitioner's attorney has been continuously engaged before the Exchequer Court of Canada.

Great Northern Construction Co. v. Ross, 25 Que. K.B. 404. [See also 25 Que. K.B. 385.]

(§ III F—98)—EXTENSION OF TIME—WHEN GRANTED.

Failure to give notice of appeal during the time for appealing from the trial judgment may be relieved against by granting an extension of time where it was omitted solely because of the unavoidable and unanticipated absence of the solicitor's clerk entrusted with the duty, and not from any mere inadvertence. [Re Coles and Ravenshear, [1907] 1 K.B. 1, distinguished.]

EXTENSION OF TIME—DISCRETION.

Under the Alberta Rules a judge has the discretion to extend the time of appeal in any case it may seem just.

TIME—EXTENSION ON “SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.”

Upon an application under s. 71 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, for an extension of the prescribed time for appeal from a judgment already signed, entered or pronounced on the ground of “special circumstances,” the time is not to be enlarged except on a strict shewing of “special circumstances” such as misleading conduct by the respondent or by an officer of the court or some sudden accident which could not have been foreseen, and the applicant's miscalculation as to the statutory period is insufficient. [International Financial Society v. Moscow Gas Co., 7 Ch.D. 241; Northern Commercial Co. v. Powell, 18 W.L.R. 89; Nelles v. Hesselstine, 6 D.L.R. 541, 27 O.L.R. 97, referred to.]

EXTENSION OF TIME—OBJECTION THAT APPEAL NOT COMPETENT—CRIMINAL APPEAL—CR. CODE (1906), s. 1024.

On a motion to extend the time for appealing under Cr. Code, s. 1024 from the affirmance of a conviction for an indictable offence from a provincial Appellate Court to the Supreme Court of Canada, the latter court will enter upon the question of the competency of the appeal and if of opinion that the question is not appealable will refuse the extension. [R. v. Mulvihill, 18 D.L.R. 189, affirmed.]

Mulvihill v. The King, 18 D.L.R. 217, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 194, 49 Can. S.C.R. 587, 6 W.W.R. 462.

FOR APPEAL UNDER WINDING-UP ACT (CAN.)

—EXTENSION AFTER FOURTEEN DAYS.

The time for appeal from a winding-up order made under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, which, by s. 104 of that Act is to be taken, and security given therefor within fourteen days “or within such further time as the court or judge appealed from allows,” may be extended by the court, although the fourteen days has already expired.

Calumet Metals v. Eldridge, 15 D.L.R. 461, 20 Rev. de Jur. 21.

EXTENSION OF TIME—REVIEW OF TAXATION.

A motion under r. 732 (Sask. Judicature Rules, 1911) for a review of a taxation between party and party, being in the nature of an appeal, the court will, in like manner as upon appeals, require very special circumstances to be shewn before exercising its judicial discretion to enlarge the time for giving the notice by which the review proceedings are commenced. posed to be appealed from, or any judge thereof, may under special circumstances, allow an appeal although the same is not brought within the time prescribed by the Act, applies only to judgments otherwise appealable, and does not confer power to grant leave to appeal from a judgment which is interlocutory only or which is not a "final judgment" within the definition of that statute. EXTENSION OF TIME—APPEALS TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

The limitation of sixty days for appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada under s. 69 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. c. 139, may under s. 71 of that Act be extended by the court appealed from, but not by the Supreme Court of Canada.

EXTENSION OF TIME—REVIEW OF AN APPEAL OF MAIN ACTION.

Where notice was not given in proper time of an appeal from an order of a judge in Chambers extending the time to appeal from the judgment at the trial, and no appeal was specially taken from such order, the court hearing the principal appeal will not review the propriety of the extension order upon an objection that the principal appeal, apart from such order, is made too late. [Belden v. Freeman, 21 N.S.R. 106, specially referred to.]

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR APPEALING—SUBSTANTIAL QUESTION OF LAW—OVERSIGHT IN SOLICITOR'S OFFICE.

Where the judgment of a Divisional Court is for such an amount that an appeal therefrom to the Court of Appeal lies as of right, and a substantial question of law of general interest is involved in the action, and there is an intention, communicated to the respondent's solicitors, to appeal within the proper time, but, owing to an oversight in the office of the appellant's solicitors, notice of appeal has not been served in time, the time for appealing may be extended. [Ross v. Robertson, 7 O.L.R. 494, referred to.]
McClellom v. Kilgour Manufacturing Co. (No. 2), 4 D.L.R. 351, 3 O.W.N. 1351, 22 O.W.R. 403.

EXTENSION OF TIME—APPEAL FROM CONVICTION UNDER INSPECTION AND SALE ACT R.S.C. 1906, c. 85—JUDICIAL DISCRETION.

Where, under s. 335 of the Inspection and Sale Act, R.S.C. c. 85, the court or judge hearing an appeal from a conviction under that Act has once extended the time for hearing and decision beyond the 30 days thereby limited, the time for such hearing and decision is then wholly at large and in the discretion of the court or judge.

R. v. Hamlink, 5 D.L.R. 733, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 493, 26 O.L.R. 381, 22 O.W.R. 107.

NOTICE OF APPEAL—EXTENSION.

Where the appellant has allowed the time for giving notice of appeal to lapse, an application made to the court after a long delay for an extension of time for serving the formal notice should not be granted unless within the limited period the appellant has taken some step from which his intention to appeal might be inferred. [Ross v. Robertson, 7 O.L.R. 494; McClellom v. Kilgour Manufacturing Co., 4 D.L.R. 351, 3 O.W.N. 1351, referred to.]

Cain v. Pearce Co. (No. 2), 6 D.L.R. 325, 4 O.W.N. 70, 23 O.W.R. 43.

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR APPEALING—DISCHARGE OF PRISONER ON HABEAS CORPUS—ACADEMIC QUESTION.

Where the prisoner had since been discharged upon habeas corpus by a judge of the Supreme Court having undoubted jurisdiction and any question as to whether a Master of the court had power to discharge would be merely academic, there is no merit that would call for indulgence by extending the time for appealing from a prohibition order in respect of the Master's previous decision upon a similar application made on the prisoner's behalf.

R. v. Pelton, 8 D.L.R. 77, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 239, 46 N.S.R. 462, 11 E.L.R. 585.

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR APPEALING.

Where a judgment of the Court of Appeal has given to the plaintiff in an action for specific performance of an agreement to deliver stock and bonds his choice between specific performance and a reference as to damages, and the defendant has not appealed from such judgment to the Supreme Court of Canada, being under the impression that no appeal would lie, and the plaintiff has elected to take a reference, and appeals have been taken from the referee's report, the Court of Appeal should not, at the instance of the defendant, extend the time for appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada from its original judgment.

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR APPEALING—JURISDICTION OF COURT—TITLE TO LAND—REMOVAL OF CAUSE.

EXTENDING TIME FOR APPEAL—BONA FIDE INTENTION—OFFICER OF COMPANY—SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES—TERMS.

Where the applicant for an order extending the time for appealing from a judgment of Appellate Division is an incorporated company, the rule that the applicant must shew a bona fide intention to appeal entertained while the right to appeal existed is not to be categorically and literally applied; it is sufficient if the officer of the incorporated company whose duty it is to deal with the matter, entertains, within the time allowed for appeal, the bona fide intention of submitting the question of appealing to the board of directors of the company, and is prevented by special circumstances from so doing. [Smith v. Hunt, 5 O.L.R. 97, distinguished.] An order was made in November, 1916, under r. 176, extending (upon terms) the time for an appeal by the plaintiff company from a judgment pronounced on the 14th July, 1916. According to r. 491, the appeal should have been set down for hearing on or before the 15th September, 1916.

EXTENSION OF TIME—DELAY—“JUSTICE OF THE CASE.”

An extension of time to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, under s. 82 of the Exchequer Court Act, will not be granted after a delay of 14 months, particularly when “the justice of the case” does not warrant the granting of such an extension.

The King v. Quebec North Shore Road Trustees & Burroughs, 17 Can. Ex. 488.

EXTENSION OF TIME—WINDING-UP ACT.

Upon an application under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, for an extension of the time within which to appeal, such time having expired, it is necessary to shew that the intention to appeal was formed within the time limited or that there was difficulty in communicating with clients and obtaining instructions.

B.C. Securities v. Mutual Life Assn. Co. (B.C.), [1918] 1 W.W.R. 733.

FAILURE TO ENTER IN TIME.

Notice of appeal having been given, the appellant on the fourth day before the sittings submitted an appeal book to the respondent's solicitors for approval. In the absence of the member of the firm who had the conduct of the case, his partner refused to approve, intimating that he knew nothing of the case and it would be necessary to wait for the return of his partner, but that he would, however, take no advantage of failure to get the case down in time owing to the delay occasioned by the absence of his partner. On the day before the sittings of the court, appellant's solicitor, finding the book had not as yet been approved, gave notice of motion to extend the time for entering appeal. This was opposed by respondent, the solicitor denying that he had given any undertaking not to take advantage of failure to enter the appeal in time. The application was refused by the court, and appellant then made a further application on new material, which was also refused. Respondent then moved for a declaration of abandonment of the appeal, which was opposed by the appellant who again applied for an extension of time for entering the appeal. Held, that in the circumstances the application for a declaration of abandonment of the appeal be refused and that an extension of time be granted for entering the appeal.

B.C. Independent Undertakers v. Maritime Motor Car Co., 24 B.C.R. 309.

EXTENSION OF TIME—DISCRETION—SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.

A judge, in extending the time for appealing to the Court of Appeal under r. 704, has an unfettered discretion, and it is not necessary to shew special circumstances.

EXTENSION OF TIME—POWER OF COURT.

Notwithstanding the apparent implication of the decision in Great Northern R. Co. v. Furness, Withy & Co., 40 Can. S.C.R. 455, the decision in the later case of Goodison Thresher Co. v. Tp. of McNab, 42 Can. S.C.R. 694, is an express authority for the conclusion that the term of sixty days, which under s. 69 of the Supreme Court Act, c. 139, R.S.C. 1906, is the period within which an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada must be brought, cannot be extended by the court appealed from or by a judge thereof. The appellant who has delayed beyond the sixty days in bringing his appeal is not deprived of his right of appeal, but, as a consequence of his delay, he must shew some reasonable cause therefor or other special circumstances and must submit to such terms as the judge or court deems reasonable. Where the application for the allowance of the appeal is made within the sixty days, although no notice of the application has been given, and the judge, instead of approving of the bond ex parte with a reservation of leave to respondent to move to set it aside, allows time for the giving of notice, the application should be looked upon as adjourned and it should be held that the appellant has brought himself within the provisions of s. 69 and is entitled to have his application disposed of under that section, even though the sixty days have expired at the hearing of the adjourned application, without being required to shew special circumstances to bring himself within s. 71.

Rohoel v. Darwish, 13 A.L.R. 312, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 525.

EXTENSION OF TIME—MOTION TO QUASH.

A justice of the Court of Appeal for British Columbia has power to, and will in a proper case, extend the time for giving notice of appeal under s. 70 of the Supreme Court Act, notwithstanding that notice has been given by the respondent of intention to move the Supreme Court to quash the appeal. S.C. r. 5 is not a bar to such an application.

By the order of a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario, the judgment of the trial judge, dismissing the action, was set aside, and judgment was directed to be entered for the plaintiffs for damages and an injunction restraining certain of the defendants from entering upon the lane in question in the action. These defendants had appealed from the order of the Divisional Court to the Supreme Court of Canada, and security for the costs of the appeal had been given. Held, that while by s. 76 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, the execution of the judgment was stayed, the injunction remained in force. [McLaren v. Caldwell, 29 Gr. 438, followed; Bland v. Brown, 37 O.L.R. 534, distinguished.] Held, also, that, although the injunction was contained in a judgment which the Divisional Court directed to be entered, the judgment was the judgment of the High Court Division; and a judge of that Division, exercising the power of the court pursuant to s. 43 of the Judicature Act, had power to stay the operation of it. [Mitchell v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, 38 O.L.R. 543, 34 D.L.R. 22, referred to.] And held, having regard to the circumstances, that the power should in this case be exercised.

SECURITY—COMPANY—GENERAL AUTHORITY—ADDED PARTIES—INTEREST.

Fiduciary legatees and testamentary executors of one of the parties in the Superior Court may join other parties to make an appeal. Security in appeal should conform strictly to the law and cover an obligation to effectually prosecute the appeal; and to satisfy the condemnation and to pay the costs and damages adjudged in case the judgment appealed from is confirmed. But if the security furnished is insufficient, the Court of Appeal will allow the appellant to complete it instead of causing him to lose his right of appeal. A company which is authorized by law to furnish security in the Court of Appeal, may give one of its officers general authority to sign security bonds which it may agree to; there is no need of a special authorization for each particular case. The defendant cannot ask that certain appellants be struck out of the suit because they have no interest in the litigation, being rather advantaged than injured by the judgment of which they complain, when such appellants have been condemned to pay costs in the court of first instance, and that it is the respondent himself who has added them as defendants.

PROCEDURE—SECURITY IN APPEAL—SECURITY BY PLEDGE OF DEBTORS IMMOVABLE. Couture v. Guerin, 24 Rev. de Jur. 224. (§ III G-101)—NECESSITY.

Art. 1214 C.P. (Que.) is imperative in declaring that unless an appellant declare in writing in the office of the court whose judgment is appealed from, that he does not object to the judgment rendered against him being executed, or unless he file a copy of any judgment ordering provisional execution of the judgment appealed from, in which cases he is only bound for the payment of the costs, he “must give good and sufficient security that he will effectually prosecute the appeal, that he will satisfy the condemnation and pay all costs and damages adjudged if the judgment appealed from is confirmed,” and, therefore, the court has no discretion in the matter and the security must be furnished absolutely according to the statute. Security for costs only, is not sufficient on an appeal from an order condemning one to render an account within thirty days, or on default, to pay a sum of money received on account of the plaintiff, since the security must, under art. 1214 C.P., be for an amount sufficient to pay all costs, interest, and damages that can be taxed on confirmation of the judgment. [The Montreal, Rutland & Boston R. Co. v. Hattam, M.L.R. 1 Q.B. 72; Moore v. Lamoureux, Que. 5 Q.B. 532; Brunet v. The United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada, 12 Que. P.R. 207, followed; O’Leary v. Francis, 12 Que. S.C. 243; Rochette v. Onellet, 9 Q.L.R. 361; Rochette v. Onellet, 6 L.N. 412, distinguished.]

A deposit of $2,000 cash under art. 1963 C.C. (Que.), providing that “when a person cannot find surety, he may in lieu thereof deposit some sufficient pledge as security” is insufficient on an appeal from an order condemning the defendant to render an account within thirty days, or on default to pay $42,913.20, and the appeal will be dismissed, unless the defendant shall, within ninety days, either give new security to satisfy all costs and damages if the judgment is affirmed, or make a further deposit of $5,000. On an appeal from an order condemning one to render an account within thirty days, or on default to pay $42,913.20, security need not be given for the payment of such sum, but only for the payment of such costs, interest, and damages as may be taxed upon a confirmation of the judgment.

Miller v. Diamond Light and Heating Co., 5 D.L.R. 99, 21 Que. K.B. 551.

BAIL ON CRIMINAL APPEAL.

While the Court of King’s Bench (Que.)

has jurisdiction to admit a prisoner to bail after sentence pending his appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, it will leave him to his recourse to an application to the latter court when the appeal has already been lodged.

R. v. Brunet, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 9, 27 Que. K.B. 224. [See 42 D.L.R. 405, 57 Can. S.C.R. 83, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 16.]

(§ III G-102)—SUMMARY CONVICTION—RECOGNIZANCE.

In order to perfect his appeal from a summary conviction, which ordered imprisonment in default of paying a fine, the appellant, who has given a recognizance under Cr. Code, s. 750, before a justice is under a duty to see that the justice promptly transmits the recognizance to the court which is to hear the appeal, and if he has taken no steps to see that the recognizance is transmitted in time by the magistrate, the observance of which duty might be enforced by a mandamus against the latter, there is no jurisdiction to hear an appeal on a recognizance filed on the day of the opening of the court when the appeal was to come on for hearing. [R. v. McKay, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, 10 D.L.R. 820, not followed; Wills v. McSherry, [1913] 1 K.B. 29, distinguished.]

R. v. Hewa, 28 D.L.R. 147, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 386, 9 W.W.R. 689.

SUMMARY CONVICTION — RECOGNIZANCE — CASH BAIL.

Where the summary conviction appealed from by the defendant under Cr. Code, s. 750, as amended 1909 and 1913, adjudges payment of a fine and imprisonment in default, it is insufficient to give jurisdiction to hear the appeal that the defendant, when placed under arrest to answer the charge, had deposited with the chief of police who was the complainant in the proceedings, a sum as cash bail, the equivalent of which was afterwards imposed as the fine, and had, before the hearing of the appeal but not within 10 days after the conviction, deposited with the magistrate, the sum fixed by the latter as security for costs of the appeal; the appellant should have filed a recognizance to perfect his appeal. [R. v. McKay, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, dissented from; Re McNeill and Saskatchewan Hotel Co., 17 W.L.R. 7, followed.]

R. v. Mack Sing, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 158.

On an appeal from a summary conviction imposing a fine and, in default of payment, imprisonment, the Appellate Court is not deprived of jurisdiction to hear the appeal by a clerical error in the recognizance whereby the amount of appellant's personal obligation was omitted although filled in as to the sureties.

The King v. Koogo, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 36, 19 W.L.R. 246.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION—SECURITY—DEDUCTION FROM DEPOSIT BY CLERK FOR FEE.

Where the defendant appealing from a summary conviction deposited with the justice the full amount fixed by the latter as security for the appeal and the latter transmitted it to the clerk of the Appellate Court, who deducted therefrom his fee of 50 cents for receiving, and issued a receipt to the justice for the balance only, the appeal is not thereby rendered incompetent; the making of the deposit with the justice and his handing the money to the clerk, of the Appellate Court completed the requirements of law as the regularity of the appeal, and the appellant was not concerned with the retention of the fee by the officer of the Appellate Court.

R. v. Walsh & Crane, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 144, 26 W.L.R. 394.

SECURITY ON APPEAL—REGULARITY OF SECURITY—QUE. C.P. 179, 1216, 1220.

If security for costs of appeal to the Court of King's Bench has been received reserving the respondent's attorney's objections (based, in the present case, on a default already entered, the insufficiency of the notice, and the expiration of the time to appeal), it is the Court of King's Bench, and not the Superior Court, which must pronounce upon the regularity of the security. Hope v. Leroux, 16 Que. P.R. 223.

SECURITY—SUFFICIENCY OF—APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT—SUPREME COURT ACT, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, ss. 73, 75—AGREEMENT OF PARTIES NOT TO APPEAL.

An application to a judge of the Court of Appeal under ss. 73 and 75 of the Supreme Court Act to settle the case for an appeal to the Supreme Court, and to approve of the security for the respondents' costs of the appeal, should not be refused on account of an alleged agreement between the parties, made before the trial, that they would not carry the case beyond the Court of Appeal. It should be left to the Supreme Court itself to say whether the appellant has debarred himself from so appealing. Although there are two defendants, respondents in the appeal to the Supreme Court by the plaintiff, and they have defended separately and both have been given costs in the Court of Appeal, the plaintiff appealing need furnish security only in the one sum of five hundred dollars for the costs of both defendants in the Supreme Court. [Archer v. Severn, 12 P.R. 472, followed.]

(§ III G-104)—AMOUNT.

Where an order is made consequent upon the judgment disposing of the action, and it is so connected with the judgment as properly to form the subject of one and the same appeal, and its inclusion will lead to no additional inquiry or expense, an appeal from it may be entertained so that both it and the judgment may be dealt with together. In that case the security to be given on the appeal should be such as is appropriate to one appeal. [Concha v. Concha, [1892] A.C. 670, followed.]

APPEAL TO COURT OF KING'S BENCH—SECURITY—DEFAULT IN FURNISHING—PRESUMPTION OF ABANDONMENT OF APPEAL.

A certificate of default by the appellant to furnish security on appeal delivered by the prothonotary on the fifth day after the filing of the inscription is not a presumption of the abandonment of the appeal under art. 1213 Que. C.P. A demand for taxation of costs made immediately afterwards by the defendant is, consequently, premature, and should be refused. On the other hand, the security not having been given within the prescribed time, the appellant cannot obtain a court order to the prothonotary to transmit the record to the Court of King's Bench.

Quebec et Lac Saint Jean R. Co. v. Valières, 45 Que. S.C. 1.

TIME FOR GIVING SECURITY.

The department of the provincial treasurer, prosecuting an appeal from a judgment whereby the appellants, license commissioners in the city of Montreal, were prohibited from giving effect to a decision of cancellation of an innkeeper's license which had issued in favour of the respondent, is not required to affix stamps to the inscription in appeal or to give security thereon, but an appeal from a judgment rendered upon the special proceedings provided for in c. 40 C.P., cannot be made after thirty days from the rendering of the judgment, even if such appeal be at the instance of the Crown. The appeal was from a judgment maintaining a demand for prohibition against the license commissioners of the city of Montreal, in favour of the respondent. The respondent moved to quash the appeal on the grounds that the inscription had not been stamped, that security in appeal had not been given, and that the appeal had not been taken within the thirty days mentioned in art. 1006 C.P.

(§ III G—107)—CASH DEPOSIT.

A cash deposit under Cr. Code, s. 750 to answer the costs of an appeal from a summary conviction is a security payable to the Crown. Where an appeal from a summary conviction awarding a money penalty was taken under Cr. Code, s. 749 to the Court of King's Bench (Crown side) in the Province of Quebec, and that court dismissed the appeal without making any order in respect of the cash deposit made by the appellant under Cr. Code, s. 750, the Superior Court of Quebec on evocation from the Circuit Court has jurisdiction to decide a contestation respecting the ownership of the money deposited.

CONTRADICTIONS IN RECORD ON APPEAL CASE—JUDGE'S CERTIFICATE OF EVIDENCE NOT SHOWN ON STENOGRAPHER'S NOTES.

In a conflict between what the trial judge certifies in a case stated under Cr. Code 1906, s. 1016, to have been specifically sworn to by a witness in answer to his own question, and what is shown on the stenographer's notes of evidence sent up with the stated case under Cr. Code, s. 1017, a Court of Criminal Appeal is bound to accept the statement of the trial judge, particularly where he certifies that the stenographer's notes are defective by reason of the omission of such question and answer.

D. AMENDING; PERFECTING.

(§ IV D—125)—MOTION TO AMEND GROUNDS OF APPEAL.

A motion to amend the grounds of appeal may be denied where the appellant's case is without merit; the court not being bound to assist an appellant to enforce what may be his strict legal right by granting him an indulgence such as an amendment if his case is against equity.

APPEAL CASE OR RECORD—AMENDING OR PERFECTING.

Upon an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, where either party desires to include in the record the written reasons of one of the judges below which were not available until after the appeal case had been formally settled, an application may be made to the Supreme Court for an order giving leave for that purpose, on affidavits showing the special circumstances upon which the application is based. AMENDMENTS—ACTION IN NAME OF MUNICIPALITY—SUBSTITUTION OF COUNCIL.

Where an action to recover taxes is improperly begun in the name of the municipality instead of its council an amendment will be allowed on appeal substituting the name of the municipal council as plaintiff.

GROUND ON WHICH COURT WILL ALLOW AMENDMENT OF NOTICE OF APPEAL.

Where no mistake has been made, but the grounds of appeal set out in a notice of motion by way of appeal are untenable, and an amendment of such grounds is sought for the purpose of enabling new points to be argued, the court will have regard to the nature of the litigation and to the possibility of ending it by a decision upon the new points sought to be raised, in determining whether the amendment should be granted. An amendment of the grounds of appeal in a notice of motion by way of appeal is not allowed in every case, and, while it is as of course in an ordinary case, it will not be allowed simply because a mistake has been made.

Foxwell v. Kennedy, 3 D.L.R. 703, 3 O.W.N. 1225, 22 O.W.R. 21.

AMENDMENTS ON APPEAL.

A question not going to the merits of a case and not raised by the notice of appeal, cannot be brought to the attention of the court by a supplementary or "explanatory" notice of appeal.

AMENDING OR PERFECTING—CRIMINAL APPEAL—STATED CASE—PROOF OF PROCEEDINGS AT TRIAL.

The power of a Court of Criminal Appeal on hearing a case stated by the trial judge under Cr. Code (1906), s. 1015, to refer to such other evidence of what took place at the trial as it thinks fit is limited by Cr. Code, s. 1017 to cases in which "only the judge's notes are sent and it considered such notes defective;" there is no such power where, in addition to the judge's notes, the notes of the official stenographer accompany the stated case.

R. v. Angelo, 16 D.L.R. 126, 19 B.C.R. 261, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 304, 27 W.L.R. 108, 5 W.W.R. 1303.

SETTLEMENT OF APPEAL BOOK.

Any party to an action dissatisfied with the settlement of an appeal book by the registrar, may go to the County Court Judge who can make any amendment to his notes that he sees fit, but his action is not in the nature of an order or decree from which there is a right of appeal under s. 116 of the County Courts Act. Per Macdonald, C.J.A.: The hearing of an appeal may proceed in the absence of the note of the County Court Judge and it is for the court in each case to say what satisfies it when it cannot get the best evidence of what took place.

Code, s. 1016, following the refusal of a reserved case, the Court of Appeal may proceed with the hearing of the questions which it has directed to be stated without sending them to be formally signed by the judge below if the Crown waives technical objections; the Court of Appeal may in such case direct that the record and evidence may be referred to by the Crown in contradiction of any fact incorrectly set forth in the stated case submitted by the accused.

G. STENOGRAPHER'S NOTES.

(§ IV G—140)—LOSS OF NOTES IN CRIMINAL CASE—EFFECT.

Upon an appeal on questions reserved from a conviction for theft, where the questions involve consideration of the evidence given at the trial, and the stenographer's notes containing the only official record of such evidence have been lost, or are not available, through omission of the Crown officers, it is compulsory upon the Crown to furnish such stenographer's notes or an authenticated transcript thereof, and in default of their so doing within a time limited by the court, the conviction will be quashed.

LOSS OF NOTES—NOTES OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Where the stenographic report of the evidence taken at a trial cannot be obtained, and the only report of the evidence available to the Appeal Court are the notes of the Trial Judge, his findings of fact should be taken as practically conclusive, unless his notes themselves shew that he was in error.

(§ IV H—145)—CRIMINAL CASE—JUDGE'S CHARGE TO THE JURY.

The statutory power conferred by s. 1017 of the Cr. Code, whereby the Court of Appeal may, on any appeal or application for a new trial, refer to such other evidence of what took place at the trial as it thinks fit in addition to what is included in the judge's notes applies only to the notes taken by the judge presiding at the trial, and not to the address made by the judge to the jury, the stenographic report of which he had certified. [Compare R. v. Angelo, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 304, 16 D.L.R. 126, 19 B.C.R. 261, as to judge's certificate of evidence not shewn on stenographer's notes.]

Di Lena v. The King, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 301, 24 Que. K.B. 262.

I. FINDINGS.

(§ IV I—153)—SUFFICIENCY.

A judgment for the defendant in an action on a promissory note given by him to the plaintiff will not be disturbed where the trial judge found on the facts that it had been paid by the defendant conveying to the plaintiff land the former had agreed to sell to a third person, who had sold his equity therein to the plaintiff, the latter assuming payment of the former's indebtedness on the land to the defendant, under an agreement between the three that the amount due the plaintiff from the defendant on such note should be credited by the latter on the indebtedness the plaintiff had assumed.

Lindsay v. La Plante, 3 D.L.R. 449, 21 W.L.R. 477.

J. OPINIONS.

(§ IV J—155) — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION CLAIMS — AWARD VARYING FROM THE DELIVERED REASONS FOR JUDGMENT — DISPOSAL AS TO COSTS.

It is not an objection available on an appeal that the disposition made by the district judge of the costs in a proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.), is different in his formal award from that in his written reasons for judgment; the award as finally signed is the only disposition to be dealt with on an appeal.

RESERVED CASE—JUDGE'S NOTES.

In a demand for leave to appeal from the judgment rendered by the Judge of the Sessions of the Peace, upon a motion for a reserved case, the court must take cognizance of the notes of judgment of the first judge forming part of the record, notwithstanding the fact that the Crown filed affidavits to the effect that the judge discharged the respondent only on questions of law. The filing of the judge's notes in the record after the judgment has been rendered is not illegal.

The King v. Jacobs, 26 Que. K.B. 382.

L. CERTIFICATES.

(§ IV L—165)—ON APPEAL.

An appeal from the certificate of a taxing officer on a taxation between a solicitor and his client is to be treated as an appeal from a Master's report, and is to be taken in conformity with Manitoba King's Bench Rule 682 rather than in pursuance of rules 684 and 685.

Re Phillipps & Whittle, 1 D.L.R. 291, 22 Man. L.R. 150, 20 W.L.R. 229, 1 W.W.R. 840.

V. Objections and exceptions; raising question in lower court.

(§ V A—230) — OBJECTIONS AND EXCEPTIONS — RAISING QUESTION IN LOWER COURT.

An objection to an interlocutory order that it was made on an affidavit of information and belief which did not disclose the source of such information (N.S. Ju-dicature rules, order 36, r. 3), is too late if first raised in appeal.

Buckley v. Fillmore, 8 D.L.R. 526, 46 N.S.R. 510, 12 E.L.R. 235.

A. DEFINITENESS; SUFFICIENCY.

(§ V A—235)—NEW CAUSE OF ACTION—AMENDMENT.

Davis v. Burt, 3 S.L.R. 446.

WAR RELIEF ACT — LEAVE TO PROCEED — WAIVER.

On an appeal from an order for a reference as to the damages sustained by a defendant by reason of an injunction, it is not open to the defendant to raise for the first time the preliminary objection that no leave to proceed had been obtained by the plaintiff under the provisions of the War Relief Act. S. 10 of the War Relief Act, c. 74, 1916 (B.C.), as amended by s. 8, c. 74, 1917, does not apply to proceedings in the Court of Appeal. A County Court Judge has not the power to refer a question of law and fact to a registrar, the question of law should first be disposed of by him.

John Hing Co. v. Sit Way, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 978, 25 B.C.R. 153.

(§ V A—238) — TO FINDINGS OR CONCLUSIONS OF COURT.

An objection that the cause of action set up in a statement of claim was not supported by the evidence will not be considered on an appeal of a cause that was not defended on the trial, as such objection, had it been made on the trial, might have been met by an amendment of the statement of claim so as to conform to the evidence.

(§ V A—251)—WHAT QUESTIONS RAISED.

Where in an action on calls on shares of capital stock, there is no proof of a by-law that shares should be sold at a discount, and no objection was made before to such want of proof, the court hearing the case in appeal may permit proof of the by-law to be put in. (Gowganda Queen Mines v. Boeckh, 24 O.L.R. 293, affirmed; Cook v. McMullen, 5 O.W.R. 597; Hargreaves v. Hilliam, 58 J.P. 655, cited in court below.)

Boeckh v. Gowganda Queen Mines, 8 D.L.R. 782, 46 Can. S.C.R. 645, 23 O.W.N. 313.

B. NECESSITY FOR EXCEPTIONS.

(§ V B—269)—AS TO COSTS—MASTER.

The rules requiring the carrying in of written objections before the Taxing Master only apply when the appeal is as to the allowance of any "item or part of an item" and not when the general principle of the taxation is objected to. The carrying in of objections under r. 972 is not a prerequisite to an appeal under r. 681.

D. RAISING QUESTIONS BY MOTION OR OTHER MODE.

(§ V D—275)—PROCEDURE—JURISDICTION OF LOWER COURT UNTIL FILING OF SECURITY—MERITS OF APPEAL—FINAL OR INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT.

VI. Preliminary motions; dismissal; abatement; abandonment.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ VI A—280)—NOTICE—FAILURE TO ENTER APPEAL—MOTION FOR DISMISSAL—COSTS.

M-Intosh v. Poirier, 33 D.L.R. 170, 44 N.B.R. 355.

BEFORE WHOM MADE—COURT—CHAMBERS.

An application affecting the list of appeals should be made to the court when the court is sitting, but when not sitting, to a Judge in Chambers.

Eddy v. C.P.R. Co., 22 B.C.R. 294.

APPEAL BOOK—APPLICATION TO STRIKE OUT.

This was an application to strike out certain pages of the appeal book, the appeal book having been settled by the registrar of the trial court pursuant to s. 24 of the Court of Appeal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 51, there having been no objection taken before the registrar of the trial court to the appeal book as settled, nor any appeal from the ruling of the registrar to a judge of the trial court. Counsel for appellant took the preliminary objection that the court had no jurisdiction, citing s. 24 of the Court of Appeal Act which directed that the appeal book should be settled by the registrar of the trial court:—Held, that the court had no jurisdiction; that the proper course for the applicant to have pursued was to object to the registrar's settlement of the appeal book, and to appeal from the registrar's settlement to a judge of the trial court, and to appeal from the order of the judge of the trial court to this court.

Patterson v. Hodges & Rowe, 8 W.W.R. 1080.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

When a preliminary objection is taken that an appeal is out of time, the respondent will be held strictly to the grounds taken in his notice of motion.

Wardroper v. Stewart-Moore, 25 B.C.R. 69.

STAY PENDING APPEAL — ATTORNEY-GENERAL AS PARTY.

When some question arises while an action is pending which may affect the course of the trial and which is the subject of appeal to the Court of Appeal, the trial ought, in general and in the absence of very special reasons otherwise, to be stayed until the Court of Appeal has dealt with the question. Accordingly a stay was upheld until after the determination of an appeal from an interlocutory order adding the Attorney-General as a party defendant, there being no reason shown why the plaintiff should go to trial immediately or any suggestion that, should he fail to do so, he would be prejudiced.

NEW EVIDENCE—ADJOURNMENT.

An application to the Court of Appeal to allow in evidence a document that was in the pocket of a witness when examined in the court below but inadvertently overlooked by counsel, will be refused. An application to adjourn the hearing of an appeal on the ground that counsel, through pressure of work, was unable to prepare his case, will be refused if objected to by opposing counsel.

Mellwee v. Foley, 24 B.C.R. 532, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 222. [Referred back by Privy Council for further enquiry, 44 D.L.R. 5.]

(§ VI A—281)—MOTION TO AFFIRM JURISDICTION.

A preliminary motion to affirm jurisdiction on an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada will be dismissed and the parties left to their rights on the hearing, if the facts shown on the preliminary motion are insufficient to enable the court to finally determine whether the judgment or order appealed from was final and so subject to appeal or was interlocutory only and, therefore, not subject to appeal. [Clark v. Goodall, 44 Can. S.C.R. 284; Crown Life v. Skinner, 44 Can. S.C.R. 616, and McDonald v. Belcher, [1904] A.C. 429, specially referred to.]

(§ VI A—283)—ABANDONMENT.

When an abandonment of an inscription in review, signed by the attorney of the inscribing party, is filed in the prothonotary's office and served on the adverse party, it cannot afterwards be withdrawn or declared to be a nullity on the ground that the service was made through error. The application of the opposite party that act of it should be given him ought to be granted.

Simard v. Poulin, 43 Que. S.C. 193.

B. GROUNDS FOR DISMISSAL.

(§ VI B—286) — LACK OF CONTROVERSY, CHANGE IN CIRCUMSTANCES PENDING APPEAL.

Where a verdict for an amount less than the claim is given with the consent of the defendant and is so entered on the record, the plaintiff, who took the benefit of it and took no objection although represented by counsel, must be taken to have also consented; the judgment so entered is a consent judgment and as such is not appealable under the Manitoba County Courts Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 38.

RELEASE—EXECUTOR'S DISCHARGE.

An appeal from an order ratifying an executor's account will not be quashed upon the production of a release to the executor, which has been previously considered in connection with the application for leave to appeal and the matter adjudged by granting leave, particularly where from the nature of the transaction it does not clearly appear that the instrument was obtained with the independent advice and with full information of the maker's rights.

Cookson v. Driscoll; Re Estate of Leahy, 27 D.L.R. 488, 50 N.S.R. 1.

(§ VI B—287)—IRREGULARITIES IN PAPERS OR PROCEEDINGS.

Although art. 1213 C.P. (Que.) provides that, after the inscription of appeal to the King's Bench, notice thereof must be served on the attorney for the opposite party, an objection to an appeal duly inscribed on the ground of want of notice is waived if the same objection might have been taken at the filing and allowance of security on the appeal and the party now objecting was there represented and did not object. [Gross v. Racicot, 11 Que. P.R. 124, distinguished.]

Valade v. Leroux, 2 D.L.R. 108.

QUASHING APPEAL FROM DISMISSAL OF SUMMARY CONVICTION—STATUS OF APPELLANT.

It is ground for quashing an appeal under Cr. Code, s. 749, from the dismissal of a summary conviction proceeding that the appellant has not shewn upon the appeal that he is the complainant and so within the limitation of Code, s. 749 as a party aggrieved by the order of dismissal; the court to which the appeal is taken under a notice of appeal which does not state the appellant to be the complainant in the proceedings below is not bound to look at the information transmitted under Cr. Code, s. 757, to ascertain whether the appellant was such complainant if the information was not put in evidence on the appeal.

Gates v. Renner, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 122, 9 W.W.R. 190.

(§ VI B—288)—GROUNDS FOR DISMISSAL—CRIMINAL CASE—DELAY IN MOVING FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL.

A delay of two years after the conviction in applying for leave to appeal therefrom under s. 1019 of the Criminal Code, 1906, would not be a ground for refusing to entertain an appeal based upon the wrongful admission of the prisoner's wife as a witness against him, even if the Crown had not by consenting to an order granting leave to appeal waived such objection.

R. v. Allen, 14 D.L.R. 825, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 124, 41 N.B.R. 516, 14 E.L.R. 40.

MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION—NOTICE—NECESSITY FOR DEMAND.

MOTION FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL IN CRIMINAL CASE.

Where the accused files a motion before the Court of Appeal for leave to appeal under Cr. Code, s. 1015, following his conviction for an indictable offence, but makes default in proceeding with such motion, the Crown and make such disposition of the motion in the absence of the accused as it sees fit.

Abeles v. The King, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 308, 24 Que. K.B. 260.

VII. Hearing and determination.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ VII A—290)—BY CONSENT OF PARTIES.

Where an appeal would lie from the decision of an intermediate tribunal, the Appeal Court, with the consent of the parties to an action, may hear and determine an appeal from the court of first instance, and subsequent proceedings will not be affected by the departure from the practice of the Appeal Court.

Tp. of Cornwall v. Ottawa & New York R. Co., 30 D.L.R. 664, 52 Can. S.C.R. 466, affirming 23 D.L.R. 619, 34 O.L.R. 55, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 91.

QUESTIONS OF FACT—CREDIBILITY OF WITNESSES—FINDING OF TRIAL JUDGE—REVERSAL.

When a question of fact depends upon the credibility of witnesses, an Appellate Court will not reverse the finding of the trial judge who has had the advantage of seeing and hearing such witnesses.

CREDIBILITY OF WITNESSES.

When a question of fact depends upon the credibility of witnesses, the Court of Appeal will not reverse the finding of the trial judge. [Wood v. Haines, 33 D.L.R. 166, referred to.]

IN GENERAL, RULES OF DECISION.

On an appeal from a summary conviction a preliminary motion may be made to quash the conviction appealed from upon grounds appearing on the face of the proceedings, ex. gr. the lack of any evidence as to an essential part of the offence.

The King v. Koggo, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 56, 19 W.L.R. 240.

FORUM — REFERENCE TO COUNTY COURT JUDGE FOR TRIAL OF ACTION — JUDGE TREATING REFERENCE AS MADE TO HIM AS LOCAL MASTER — APPEAL FROM REPORT — JURISDICTION OF HIGH COURT DIVISION — MORTGAGE — RATIFICATION — PROMISSORY NOTE — ESTOPPEL — REPORT VARIED IN ONE RESPECT — COSTS.

Knowlton v. Union Bank of Canada, 7 O.W.N. 817, 8 O.W.N. 219.

EXTENSION OF TIME—SECURITY.

The hearing of an appeal will not be refused on the ground that security for costs has not been given. It is the duty of a party entitled to take proceedings to enforce it. A County Court Judge has no power to extend the time for hearing an appeal under marginal rule 967 of the Supreme Court Rules. The exercise by a judge of his jurisdiction under said rule is a judicial act and not a question of practice and procedure as contemplated by s. 121 of the County Courts Act. Where a dual jurisdiction is conferred on two separate tribunals to do a particular act, to either of which a litigant may resort, upon his selecting one of them the other is excluded and the matter must be solely adjudicated upon by the forum to which he has decided to resort.

Shipway v. Logan, 22 B.C.R. 410.

ORAL AGREEMENT—FINDING OF TRIAL JUDGE — APPEAL.

Vipond v. Watts, 19 W.L.R. 309 (B.C.).
(§ VII A—291)—CHANCE OF LAW PENDING APPEAL.

Appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada are not of the nature of rehearings; and a provincial statute (s. 25 of Alta. St. 1915, c. 2, amending s. 124 of the Land Titles Act, St. 1906, c. 24), which changes the law affecting cases while appeals therefrom are pending in the Supreme Court of Canada, has no binding effect upon the latter court in the disposition of such appeals. [Quilter v. Mapleson, 9 Q.B.D. 672, distinguished.]

B. WHO MAY COMPLAIN.

(§ VII B—295) — WHO MAY COMPLAIN—LEAVE TO THIRD PARTIES TO APPEAL IN NAME OF DEFENDANTS AGAINST JUDGMENT IN FAVOUR OF PLAINTIFF—TERMS.
Swale v. C.P.R. Co., 4 O.W.N. 1110, 24 O.W.R. 479.

C. EVIDENCE; AMENDMENTS; TRIAL DE NOVO.

(§ VII C—300)—HEARING AND DETERMINATION — EVIDENCE — AMENDMENTS — TRIAL DE NOVO — UNAVOIDABLE MISTAKE.

(§ VII C—301) — ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT — CONVICTION BY MAGISTRATE — APPEAL TO COUNTY JUDGE—HEARING—EVIDENCE—PREJUDICE.

A County Judge sitting in appeal under s. 92 of the Ontario Temperance Act is not justified in reversing the magistrate's finding because such judge has discredited the evidence of witnesses on whose evidence the magistrate's decision was based, in a previous case before such judge. He must not import prejudice from the other case, but should hear the witnesses and give them an opportunity of rehabilitating themselves in his good opinion. A whiskey detective or spy is not an accomplice and his evidence does not need to be corroborated.

R. v. McCranor, 47 D.L.R. 237, 44 O.L.R. 482.

EVIDENCE.

In dealing with the reception of further evidence bearing upon matters which have occurred before the decision upon the merits at the trial, an Appellate Court should exercise great caution, owing to the danger of throwing open the whole matter after it has been investigated at a trial, and the opinion of the trial judge and his reasons for it have become known. [Trimble v. Hortin, 212 A.R. (Ont.) 51, referred to.]

The power of Appellate Courts to direct the reception of further evidence is purely statutory, and exercisable only to the extent conferred either expressly or by fair implication.

Re Fraser v. Robertson McCormick v. Fraser, 8 D.L.R. 955, 3 O.W.N. 1420, 26 O.L.R. 508, 22 O.W.R. 353.

MOTION TO ADDUCE FRESH EVIDENCE ON APPEAL.

Woodford v. Henderson, 15 B.C.R. 495.

(§ VII C — 302) — AMENDMENTS — SETTING UP NEW CAUSE OF ACTION—PROPER REMEDY, IF ANY.

The unsuccessful plaintiff, at the trial appealing from the dismissal of his action will be refused leave to amend where the proposed amendment sets up an entirely new cause of action and would necessitate a new trial; but leave may be reserved to him to bring another action. [Morrison v. Earls, 5 O.R. 477, referred to.]

AMENDMENTS.

Where the Court of King's Bench, had objection been made to its jurisdiction because a submission to arbitration of the question of compensation for land taken for a public street was not made a rule of court, could have granted an adjournment for the purpose of having the submission made a rule of court, the Court of Appeal has the like power on an appeal from the order of the Court of King's Bench quashing the award made.

(§ VII C-303)—ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN'S ACT.

S. 32 of the Illegitimate Children's Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 92, has the effect of making s. 749 to 760 of the Criminal Code applicable to appeals under that Act, except in so far as the proceedings on such appeals are regulated by that Act; and the powers which the Act expressly confers by s. 30 upon the judge hearing the appeal, are to be considered as supplemented by the powers given by s. 754 of the Code, which include the power to make the order which the magistrate appealed from should have made and to impose costs and to commit for non-compliance.

Re Sigurdson (No. 2), 28 D.L.R. 376, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 313, 26 Man. L.R. 209, 34 W.L.R. 53, 10 W.W.R. 159.

D. PRESUMPTIONS.

(§ VII D-305)—PRESUMPTIONS—STATED CASE BASED ON PLEADING.

Where an appeal is taken to the British Columbia Court of Appeal by a submission of a stated case based upon certain paragraphs of plaintiff's statement of claim, the court may assume for the purposes of submission that the facts are as stated in those paragraphs.

Arbuthnot v. City of Victoria, 9 D.L.R. 564, 18 B.C.R. 35, 23 W.L.R. 563, 4 W.W.R. 145.

E. WHAT REVIEWABLE, GENERALLY.

(§ VII E-320)—WHAT REVIEWABLE—QUESTION OF COSTS.

Roy v. Denis, 20 D.L.R. 982, 23 Que. K. B. 517.

CRIMINAL APPEAL—QUESTIONS OF LAW—REFUSAL TO POSTPONE TRIAL.

Where the court on an application under Cr. Code, s. 901 has, in the exercise of judicial discretion, refused to allow a postponement of a criminal trial, there can be no review of the decision by an Appellate Court and the question presented does not constitute a question of law upon which there may be a reserved case under the provisions of s. 1014 of the Criminal Code. [R. v. Charlesworth, 1 B. & S. 460; Winsor v. The Queen, L.R. 1 Q.B. 390; R. v. Lewis, 78 L.J.K.B. 722; R. v. Blythe, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 177, 19 O.L.R. 386; Reg. v. Johnson, 2 C. & K. 354; and Reg. v. Slavin, 17 U.C. C.P. 205, referred to; R. v. Mulvihill, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 354, affirmed.]

QUESTIONS OF LAW—CRIMINAL APPEAL—REFUSAL TO POSTPONE TRIAL.

The discretion of the trial judge at a criminal trial in refusing to grant a postponement to enable the defence to make inquiries as to the antecedents of two Crown witnesses who had not been examined at the preliminary inquiry, is not a question of law which can be reserved under Cr. Code, 1906, s. 1014. [R. v. Johnson, 2 C. & K. 354, referred to; R. v. Blythe, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 224, 19 O.L.R. 389, considered.]

(§ VII E-321)—FINDING OF NOT GUILTY ON UNDISPUTED FACTS REVERSED BY COURT OF APPEAL—QUESTION OF LAW. The King v. Baxter, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 349, 16 B.C.R. 6.

(§ VII E-323)—QUESTION OF FACT—WEIGHT ATTACHED TO FINDING OF TRIAL TRIBUNAL—INFERENCES TO BE DRAWN FROM TRUTHFUL EVIDENCE—POSITION OF APPELLATE COURT.

Where a question of fact has been decided by a tribunal which has seen and heard the witnesses the greatest weight ought to be attached to the finding of such a tribunal. It has had the opportunity of observing the demeanour of the witnesses and judging of their veracity and accuracy in a way that no appellate tribunal can have. But where no question arises as to truthfulness, and where the question is as to the proper inferences to be drawn from truthful evidence, then the original tribunal is in no better position to decide than the judges of an Appellate Court.

Re Arnold Estate, Dominion Trust Co. v. New York Life Ins. Co.; Dominion Trust Co. v. Mutual Life Ass'ee Co. of Canada; Dominion Trust Co. v. Sovereign Life Ass'ee Co. of Canada, 44 D.L.R. 12, [1919] A.C. 254, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 850, affirming in part 32 D.L.R. 33, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 672, 35 W.L.R. 672.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE—CREDIBILITY OF WITNESS.

A finding of fact made by a trial judge, depending on the credibility of the witnesses examined before him will not be disturbed by a Court of Appeal. When, however, there are other circumstances in the case, for example, documentary evidence, which show that the story of any particular witness is unworthy of belief a court may be justified in reversing the finding of the trial judge.

Newton v. Botsford (Man.), 43 D.L.R. 330, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 722.

CREDIBILITY OF DEPOSITION EVIDENCE.

Though an Appellate Court will not ordinarily interfere with the credence given by the trial judge to the testimony of witnesses whose demeanour he could observe, that does not apply to evidence taken on commission which the Appellate Court has the same opportunity of judging as the Trial Judge.

TRIAL—JUDGE RELYING ON CERTAIN EVIDENCE—OPPORTUNITY OF OBSERVING DEMEANOUR OF WITNESSES—DUTY OF APPELLATE COURT.

Where a trial judge who has had the opportunity of observing the demeanour of witnesses has expressly relied on certain evidence which if accepted undoubtedly is sufficient to support his finding, an Appellate Court will not reverse such finding. [Dominion Trust Co. v. New York Life Ins. Co., 44 D.L.R. 12, followed; see also Granger v. Brydon-Jack, 46 D.L.R. 371.]

FINDING OF JURY—EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT—APPELLATE COURT WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Where there was evidence upon which the jury might, if they thought proper, reach the conclusion which they did reach their Lordships will not interfere with the decision arrived at by the jury.

FINDING OF TRIAL COURT—REVERSAL—DUTY OF MORTGAGEES—ALLEGED INADEQUACY OF PRICE.

Hadlington Island Quarry Company v. Huson, [1911] A.C. 722, reversing 16 B.C.R. 98.

CONCURRENT FINDINGS OF FACT—REVIEW ON APPEAL.

Dominion Fish Co. v. Isbester, 43 Can. S.L.R. 637.

EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTION.

The Court of King's Bench (appeal side), has jurisdiction to decide whether or not, in a prosecution in the Court of Sessions of the Peace for theft, there has been proof made, or whether suspicions or doubts may avail as evidence, but it cannot interfere in regard to the appreciation of the evidence.

Giroux v. The King, 34 D.L.R. 642, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 366, 25 Que. K.B. 505.

PROOF OF SIGNATURE—COMPARISON OF HANDWRITINGS BY JUDGE—ABSENCE OF EXPERT EVIDENCE.

Kalmet v. Keiser, 3 A.L.R. 26.

DAMAGES—AMOUNT—JUDGE'S MOTIVES—APPEAL.

According to well-established law, upheld by the Supreme Court, a court of appeal should not interfere with an award of exemplary damages, except when the amount granted is so excessive that there is reason to believe that the judge who rendered the judgment was misled, and was actuated by improper motives. In such a case the same rule applies as for jury trials.

Duggan v. Martin, 23 Que. K.B. 402.

F. DECISIONS IN FAVOUR OF PARTY, OR NOT AFFECTING HIM.

(§ VII F—328)—ACADEMIC QUESTION.

The reserving of purely academic questions for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, while within the powers of the court below, the Court of Appeal may refuse to hear them.

The King v. Lynn (No. 2), 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 129, 4 S.L.R. 324.

G. OBJECTIONS AS TO WHICH PARTY IS ESTOPPED.

(§ VII G—330)—HEARING OF OBJECTIONS.

A Divisional Court will not on appeal hear an objection to an order which it has itself given at an earlier stage in the same proceedings.

(§ VII G—335)—WAIVER OF OBJECTION—SUBMISSION TO JURISDICTION.

Where an appeal is permitted under Code, s. 797, from a conviction on summary trial for keeping a common bawdy house and the accused takes the appeal instead of proceeding by certiorari, the District Court acquires jurisdiction over the person of the appellant and may proceed to a rehearing "upon the merits," notwithstanding defendant's objection taken before the magistrate, that the latter had no jurisdiction because the arrest was illegally made without a warrant.

R. v. Miller, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 151, 25 W.L.R. 296.

H. INTERLOCUTORY MATTERS—ORDERS, ETC., NOT APPEALED FROM.

(§ VII H—340)—INTERLOCUTORY ORDER FOR A FOREIGN COMMISSION—IRREGULAR APPLICATION.

Where a motion for a foreign commission is first made to a judge instead of to the registrar of the court under N.B. Rules, order 30, r. 5, and the commission has been issued, an appeal from the order will not be entertained merely on the ground that the applicant should have been ordered to pay the costs of the irregular application.

An appeal from the trial judgment does not reopen interlocutory orders based on material that could not be before the trial judge. [Compare Windsor, Essex and L.S.R. Co. v. Nelles (No. 1), 1 D.L.R. 156, 159; Windsor, Essex, and L.S.R. Co. v. Nelles (No. 2), 1 D.L.R. 309, and Nelles v. Hesselstine; Windsor, Essex and L.S.R. Co. v. Nelles (No. 3), 2 D.L.R. 732.]

INTERLOCUTORY MATTERS—INTERIM INJUNCTION—INTERLOCUTORY ORDER.

Rhéaume v. Stuart, 47 Can. S.C.R. 394, quashing appeal from 20 Que. K.B. 411.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER—AMOUNT INVOLVED.
Forbes v. Forbes, 23 O.L.R. 518, 19 O.W.R. 47.

INTERLOCUTORY MATTERS.

An interlocutory judgment dismissing an exception to the form to pleadings as being vague and indefinite is not appealable to the Court of Review.

Lagaacé v. Boyer, 14 Que. P.R. 13.

FROM INTERLOCUTORY RULING—DECISION RENDERED AT ENQUÊTE.

Friedman v. Podvol, 12 Que. P.R. 419.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT—INSCRIPTION ON THE MERITS—APPEAL TO COURT OF REVISION—QUE. C.P. 532.

An inscription on the merits ex parte, by the plaintiff, subsequently to permission given by the judge to the defendant to appeal to the Court of Revision from an interlocutory judgment (exception dilatoire) is illegal, and will be struck out of the record on motion.

Morgan v. Provost, 15 Que. P.R. 380.

SEPARATION ACTION.

The Court of Review cannot take knowledge of interlocutory judgments given in an action for separation from bed and board.

Hetu v. Coutlee, 19 Que. P.R. 243.

INTERLOCUTORY MATTERS—ORDER NOT APPEALED FROM.

Art. 551 of the Revised Statutes of Quebec, 1909, which gives the right to review the judgment rendered on a petition to set aside a municipal election does not authorize the review of interlocutory judgments pronounced on such petition.

Labadie v. Ringuet, 14 Que. P.R. 268. (§ VII H—342)—INUNCTION.

The order for an injunction, which has the effect of preventing the execution of a contract or of resolutions attacked as being nullities, before the decision on the main action is not an interlocutory judgment susceptible of appeal but merely a judgment preparatory to the trial to avoid making useless a judgment maintaining the action by reason of execution of said resolutions and contract pending the action.

Bachaud v. Town of Saint Jean, 15 Que. P.R. 1.

I. DISCRETIONARY MATTERS.

(§ VII I—345)—DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—INTERFERENCE WITH.

The Supreme Court of Nova Scotia will not interfere on appeal with the exercise of discretion of a County Judge, acting as a Master of the Supreme Court, on a discretionary question of practice, except when an error in principle appears. No abuse of discretion by a County Judge, acting as a Master of the Supreme Court, sufficient to justify interference by the Supreme Court, is shown by the disallowance of interrogatories propounded by the defendant to the plaintiff relating wholly to matters necessary for the plaintiff to prove in order to succeed in the action, which were essentially matters for cross-examination, and the nature of which could have been obtained by a demand for particulars. [Peek v. Ray, [1894] 3 Ch. 282; Marriott v. Chamberlain, 17 Q.B.D. 154; Kennedy v. Dodson, [1895] 1 Ch. 334, and Attorney-General v. Gaskill, 20 Ch.D. 519, referred to.]

REVIEW OF DISCRETION OF TRIAL JUDGE.

The Appellate Court will not review the discretion of the trial judge unless there has been a disregard of principle or misapprehension of facts, even where leave to appeal has been granted. [Young v. Thomas, [1892] 2 Ch. 134, followed.]

HEARING AND DETERMINATION—WHAT REVIEWABLE—DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—REFUSAL TO GRANT WRIT OF SEQUESTRATION.

Whether a writ of sequestration shall issue under r. 710 of the King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 40, lies in the discretion of the court, and, when soundly exercised, its decision is final, a denial of an application for the writ not being open to review on appeal. [Hulbert v. Cathcart, [1896] A.C. 470, followed.]

DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—REFUSAL TO DISMISS ACTION AS TO ONE DEFENDANT.

On disposing of the costs of the action where a settlement of the other questions has been arrived at between the parties, the discretion of the trial judge in refusing to award costs of defence to one defendant urged on the ground that no specific relief as to him was asked in the statement of claim will not be interfered with, where the omission might have been remedied by an amendment and there was claim for general relief which would apply to such defendant.

WHEN ALLOWED—DISCRETIONARY MATTER.

An appeal will not be entertained against the dismissal by a County Court of an application, in the nature of a demurrer, to strike out an entire pleading by which dismissal the validity of the plea was left over until the trial; as even if there be jurisdiction under the County Court rules (B.C.) to strike out a pleading as distinguished from directing an amendment of same, the jurisdiction is one of wide discretion.

Bailey v. Granite Quarries, 12 D.L.R. 288, 18 B.C.R. 149, 24 W.L.R. 772.

DISCRETIONARY MATTERS.

A judge has large discretionary powers in fixing the place of trial, upon a summons for directions. Here, the court refused to change the judge's order.

Windsoor Lumber Co. v. Rundle, 40 N.B.R. 522.

GRANTING COMMISSION.

The Court of Appeal is loath to interfere with the discretion exercised by the court below in granting a commission. Each case must depend upon its own circumstances and no general rule as to the exercise of that discretion can be laid down.

Gilbertson & Brown v. Atkins, 24 B.C.R. 19.

ORDER OF PROTHONOTARY—"CASE OF EVIDENT NECESSITY."

An appeal lies to the Court of Review from a judgment of the Superior Court reviewing an order of the prothonotary under the authority of art. 33 C.P.Q. and refusing to allow an opposition to judgment to be filed. A judge presiding in the Superior Court has an absolute discretion in determining what in fact constitutes "a case of evident necessity." Unless there is a manifest error an Appeal Court should not interfere with the exercise of this discretion. Lemieux v. Crepeau, 52 Que. S.C. 481.

APPOINTMENT OF SEQUESTRATOR.

A Court of Appeal will not interfere in a matter of discretion like the one of the nomination of a judicial sequestrator, unless it is convinced there has been an abuse of discretion.

Cohen v. Edelstone, 24 Que. K.B. 145.

§ VII I—346—DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—COSTS—RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Matheson v. Kelly, 18 D.L.R. 228, 24 Man. L.R. 695, affirming 15 D.L.R. 508, 29 W.L.R. 530, 7 W.W.R. 322.

COSTS ONLY INVOLVED—REFUSAL TO ENTERTAIN—STATUTORY RIGHT TO COSTS—WRONG ORDER OF COURT BELOW—DUTY OF COURT TO REVERSE.

While the Supreme Court of Canada ordinarily refuses to entertain an appeal which merely involves costs, where a party entitled by statute to receive his costs of certain proceedings from his opponent has been ordered to pay that opponent's costs it is the duty of the court to reverse such order.

Gavin v. Kettle Valley R. Co., 47 D.L.R. 65, 58 Can. S.C.R. 501, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 611, varying as to costs, 43 D.L.R. 47.

COSTS.

The court will not review a taxation of costs by a judge of the County Court even where the amount allowed appeared to be excessive unless the judge has first been applied to, to review his taxation and has refused to do so.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Colwell, 5 D.L.R. 831, 46 N.S.R. 18, 12 E.L.R. 117.

An Appellate Court will not set aside on appeal a discretionary order as to costs made by the court below unless it appears that there has been a violation of principle or a misapprehension of facts in making the order appealed from. [Lock v. Snyder, 2 D.L.R. 414, 20 W.L.R. 466, approved.]

DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—COSTS.

On an appeal from a Local Master's disposition of costs on refusing an application for security for costs under Rule 622 of Saskatchewan Rules of Court, 1911, though no leave to appeal is necessary, the order should be dealt with on the same principle as a discretionary order where leave to appeal is necessary and has been obtained, and on such appeal the Appellate Court will not interfere with the discretion exercised by the court below unless there has been a violation of principle or a misapprehension of facts. [In re Gilbert, 28 Ch. D. 549; Young v. Thomas, [1892] 2 Ch. 134, specially referred to.] Leave to appeal from a Local Master's disposition of costs on the dismissal of an application for security for costs is not necessary under rule 622 of the Saskatchewan Rules of Court, 1911. [Foster v. Edwards, 48 L.J.Q.B. 767, followed.]

COSTS.

The Court of Review will not interfere with the judgment of the court of first instance in the exercise of its discretion in the matter of costs, when there is no other reasonable ground for its doing so.

Fréchette v. Demers, 47 Que. S.C. 7.

§ VII I—350—REFUSAL OF ADJOURNMENT—ENQUÊTE.

If a judge, to whom one of the parties makes an application to adjourn an enquête, in a civil case, because this same party is under arrest, and his trial is pending before a Criminal Court, refuses the demand, he is exercising a discretionary power in which the Court of Appeal will not interfere, unless it appears that he had used this power in an unjust and arbitrary manner.

Krauss v. Michaud, 26 Que. K.B. 504, [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada quashed, 59 Can. S.C.R. 654.]

§ VII I—351—DISMISSAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

The dismissal of an action for want of prosecution is discretionary, and the order of the Master in Chambers in such a case will not be interfered with, unless the judge in appeal can say that the Master exercised his discretion wrongly, or that his order was not the right order. [Siever v. Spearman, 74 L.T.R. 132, followed.]

McNaughton v. Mulloy (No. 2), 3 D.L.R. 317; 3 O.W.N. 1061.

§ VII I—352—MATTERS OF PROCEDURE. The discretion used by the Court of Original Jurisdiction as to incidents of procedure and informalities therein should not be interfered with by Appellate Courts unless substantial injustice has been done.

(§ VII 1-353)—LEAVE TO DEFEND.

The Court of Appeal will not interfere with the exercise of a trial judge's discretion in granting leave to defend an action after judgment by default, unless it appears that there was an abuse thereof. An order granting leave to defend an action, after entry of judgment, upon payment of the costs of the action up to judgment, and payment into court of the amount of the judgment, to abide the result of the trial, does not amount to such an abuse of the wide discretion vested in the trial judge as will justify interference by the Appellate Court.

Royal Bank of Canada v. Fullerton Lumber & Shingle Co., 2 D.L.R. 343, 17 B.C.R. 11.

(§ VII 1-355)—LEAVE TO FILE DEFENCE OR CONTESTATION AFTER DEFAULT.

The right to permit a defendant, who is in default of pleading in contesting a proceeding, to file a defense or a contestation, is left to the discretion of the judge who should grant or refuse it according to the circumstances. A Court of Appeal will intervene in such a matter only on very strong grounds.

Ménard v. Choinière, 24 Que. K.B. 528.

(§ VII 1-356)—AMENDMENT.

Where it appears that the evidence was taken at the trial of an action for damages for slander as if the circumstances shewing how the words alleged, which were not in themselves actionable, could have been understood in the defamatory sense charged in the innuendo, the court hearing an appeal from a verdict for the plaintiff may direct an amendment of the pleadings to supply the omission under the powers of the Judicature Act of New Brunswick, 1909, Marginal Rule 486.

DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—AS TO PLEADINGS—AMENDMENTS—ADDING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

The discretion of a trial judge in permitting an amendment at the trial, by setting up the Statute of Limitations, will not ordinarily be disturbed on appeal. [Patterson v. Central Canada, etc., Co., 17 P.R. (Ont.), 470, referred to.]

(§ VII 1-361)—ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE.

Where the Court of Appeal has ordered a new trial of a criminal case tried before a County Court Judge's Criminal Court because of the improper admission of evidence, the case is remitted to the same court for trial upon his original election for speedy trial therein and waiver of his right to a jury.

(§ VII 1-372)—DISCHARGE OF RECEIVER—EX PARTE ORDER.

An ex parte order releasing and discharging a receiver and his sureties will not be interfered with on appeal before an opportunity is given to the judge to amend the order after hearing both sides. [Day v. Vinson, 9 L.T. 654, 723, followed.]

(§ VII 1-375)—CONDUCT OF TRIAL, JURY.

Although an order upon an interlocutory application to strike out the jury notice may have been improperly made under the general rules of court in force at the time it was made, the Divisional Court, hearing an appeal therefrom may make the substantive order which by the new rules of court passed, pending the appeal, the court appealed from is authorized to make. [Bank of Toronto v. Keystone Fire Ins. Co., 18 P.R. (Ont.), 113, followed.]

Ferguson v. Eyle, 1 D.L.R. 69, 3 O.W.N. 505, 20 O.W.R. 873.

TRIAL JUDGE'S DISCRETION—REFUSING TRIAL JURY.

The Appellate Court will not interfere with the trial judge's exercise of discretion, under Marginal Rules 426-432 of the B.C. Rules, 1906, in refusing the plaintiff a jury in an action for damages for the breach of an agreement to supply water for domestic and irrigation purposes, and for a mandatory injunction to compel performance thereof.

McArthur v. Rogests, 2 D.L.R. 347, 17 B.C.R. 48.

REVIEW OF DISCRETIONARY MATTERS—DISPOSITION OF ACTION—COUNTERCLAIM.

GRANTING TRIAL BY JURY.

Where the pleadings and facts disclosed by the affidavits before the trial judge vest in him jurisdiction to consider and decide whether the action can be most conveniently tried with or without a jury under O. 36, r. 4 (N.B.), and he exercises his discretion and determines the question, the Supreme Court on appeal will not interfere with that discretion except in case of gross error.

Clark v. St. Croix Paper Co., 24 D.L.R. 513, 43 N.B.R. 225.

ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE—DISCRETION AS TO DISPENSING WITH NOTICE.

When a statute confers on a court the right to exercise a discretion, a Court of Appeal will only intervene if there is evident error as to the facts or if the principle of law propounded is wrong. If the law gives to the judge a discretion to dispense with the notice of action in case of a claim for damages on account of bodily injuries resulting from an accident, the difficulties that the plaintiff meets in assembling his proof and in furnishing the details of his claim, as well as the fact that he is not aware of the nature and extent of his injuries, are sufficient reasons for the exercise of the discretion of the court, and this discretion thus properly exercised will not be interfered with on appeal when otherwise the other party is not thereby prevented from proving his case.

Town of Coaticook v. Larocque, 24 Que. K.R. 339.

(§ VII I—385)—AWARD—SUMMARY ENFORCEMENT.

An improper exercise of discretion by a judge to summarily enforce an award is reviewable on appeal. [Annotation in 3 D.L.R. 778, referred to.]

(§ VII I—386)—FROM DISCRETIONARY ORDERS—JUDICIAL DISCRETION NOT EXERCISED.

The judge's discretion referred to in the exception of s. 56 of the District Courts Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 53, as to appeals in cases for over $50 excepting as to orders made "in the exercise of such discretion as by law belongs to a judge," must be judicially exercised and where it cannot be said that there has been an exercise of judicial discretion because of a supervening error as to a point of law, s. 56 does not prevent an appeal from a judge's order setting aside a judgment.

(§ VII I—387)—STAY OF EXECUTION.

Where a trial judge, in the exercise of his discretion, refused a stay of execution, a second application to the Court of Appeal having concurrent jurisdiction to grant a stay, will be dismissed unless some special circumstances are shown. [The Annot. Lyle 11 P.D. 114; Barker v. Lavery, 14 Q.B.D. 769, followed; B.C. order 58, rule 16, specially referred to.]

Williamson v. Grigor, 6 D.L.R. 53, 17 B.C.R. 334, 22 W.L.R. 29, 2 W.W.R. 898.

EXTENDING TIME FOR MOTION TO SET ASIDE EXECUTION.

The Appellate Court cannot interfere with the discretion exercised by the judge below in extending the time for moving to set aside an order for leave to issue execution.

Joss v. Fairgrieve, 32 O.L.R. 117, 7 O.W.N. 184.

J. QUESTIONS NOT RAISED BELOW.

(§ VII J—390)—RAISING QUESTIONS IN COURT BELOW—DISPOSING OF ALL POINTS IN THE OPINIONS.

QUESTION NOT RAISED BELOW.

Where an appeal is brought from the refusal of a motion for a new trial a ground of such motion which had been stated in the notice of motion but which was not argued or mentioned on the hearing of the motion upon oral argument and upon which the judge was not asked to pass and concerning which, therefore, he expressed no opinion, will not be considered on an appeal from the denial of such motion.

MISDIRECTION OF JUDGE.

Where a party has not used the opportunity at the trial nor in the first Court of Appeal, it is too late, in the absence of special circumstances, to urge misdirection of the judge upon a subsequent appeal to a higher court. [Creveling v. Can. Bridge Co., 20 D.L.R. 528, 20 B.C.R. 137, reversed.]

Creveling v. Can. Bridge Co., 21 D.L.R. 662, 51 Can. S.C.R. 216, 8 W.W.R. 619.

QUESTIONS NOT RAISED BELOW—BY-LAW OF MUNICIPALITY—ULTRA VIRES—CRIMINAL CODE, s. 753—EFFECT OF.

S. 753 of the Criminal Code, 1906, does not prevent one who pleads guilty before a justice of the peace on a summary proceeding for the violation of a municipal by-law, from attacking its validity on appeal, notwithstanding such objection was not raised before the justice of the peace. [R. v. Brook, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 216, followed; R. v. Bowman, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 89, distinguished.]

Upton v. Brown, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 190, 2 W.W.R. 626.

(§ VII J—395)—QUESTIONS NOT RAISED BELOW—JURISDICTION.

When an action exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court is brought in the Superior Court and the defendant takes no exception to it by declinatory plea, if it be of the class of cases that may be evoked to the Superior Court, the question of jurisdiction cannot be raised for the first time in the court sitting in review.

Moquin v. Dingman, 44 Que. S.C. 341.

COUNTY COURT—EQUITABLE JURISDICTION—PARTITION—INJUNCTION—RECEIVER—YACHT—COSTS.

The county court has no equitable jurisdiction except what is given by statute. In an action in the county court to recover the purchase price of an undivided four-fifths' interest in a yacht in which the plaintiff already held a one-fifth interest, the plaintiff included an application for a receiver, for the granting of an injunction, that there be a partition of the yacht, and that it be sold and the proceeds divided according to the interest of the parties. An order was made appointing a receiver and granting an injunction. Held, on appeal, reversing the decision of Grant, J., that as the court below had no jurisdiction to make the order, it should be set aside.

Granger v. Brydon-Jack (No. 2), 25 B.C.R. 531.

(§ VII J—400)—QUESTIONS NOT RAISED BELOW—NEW THEORIES.

An Appellate Court may refuse to consider an objection of noncompliance with a regulating statute as to fire insurance policies where it had not been pleaded nor was it referred to at the trial or in the notice of appeal.

Pratt v. Connecticut Fire Ins. Co., 16 D.L.R. 798, 19 B.C.R. 449, 27 W.L.R. 547, 6 W.W.R. 579.

QUESTIONS NOT RAISED BELOW — RECORD SHOWING CAUSES NOT RELIED UPON — SCOPE—JUDGMENT.

Where a party holds a judgment in his favour and the record discloses grounds upon which such judgment can justly be supported, an Appellate Court may give effect to those grounds although they were not relied upon at any stage of the proceedings in the courts below, and will therefore refuse to reverse a judgment thus solidly based on the record merely because counsel for the party who has succeeded did not in the courts below put his case in the strongest way.

NEW THEORIES.

A plaintiff whose claim is wholly for equitable relief to which he is found disentitled may be refused leave on an appeal from such finding to change the form of his action so as to raise a new cause of action regarding the same subject-matter in lieu of the claim already made.

Bullen v. Wilkinson, 2 D.L.R. 190, 3 O.W.N. 859, 21 O.W.R. 427.

QUESTION NOT RAISED BELOW—CAUSE OF ACTION.

A question not raised in the court appealed from will not be considered by the Supreme Court of Canada when not mentioned in the factum, and when all evidence pertaining to such question had, by consent of the parties, been omitted from the appeal book.

OBJECTION NOT TAKEN BELOW—VALIDITY OF DOMINION LEASE.

[Appeal by special leave from the Court of Appeal for British Columbia, Vancouver Lumber Co. v. Vancouver City, 15 B.C.R. 432, dismissed.]

Vancouver City v. Vancouver Lumber Co., [1911] A.C. 711.

FRAUD—BUILDING CONTRACT.

In an action for breach of contract where-in fraud is neither alleged in the pleadings nor raised as an issue at the trial or by the notice of appeal and no amendment is sought at the trial to cover the alleged evidence thereof, an Appeal Court should not proprio motu declare the entire contract void on the ground of fraud. Semble, where a contractor undertakes to make as the basis of a contract an estimate of the probable cost to him of erecting a building there is no fraud in making such estimate cover the possibilities of accidental disappointment that confront every builder and thereby making sure that the work will not cost him more than the estimated sum.

James & Lyttle v. Mackie (Can.), [1918] 2 W.W.R. 82, reversing [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1021.

(§ VII J—408)—NEGLIGENCE.

The question whether a Master has, by delegating the conduct of his business to a competent manager and foreman, absolved himself from liability for injuries sustained by a minor servant who was directed to temporarily work at a dangerous machine without first being warned as to the dangerous nature thereof, cannot be raised for the first time in the Court of Appeal, [Young v. Hoffman, [1907] 2 K.B. 646, and Cribb v. Kynoch, Ltd., [1907] 2 K.B. 548, distinguished.]

Stokes v. Griffin Curled Hair Co., 4 D.L.R. 844, 3 O.W.N. 1414, 22 O.W.R. 474.

GROUND NOT RAISED BELOW—NEGLIGENCE—RESPONDEAT SUPERIOR.

A Court of Appeal ought only to decide in favour of an appellant on a ground first raised on the appeal, if satisfied beyond doubt, first, that the Court of Appeal has before it all the facts bearing upon the new contention as completely as would have been the case if the controversy had arisen at the trial, and secondly that no satisfactory explanation could have been offered by those whose conduct is impugned, if an opportunity for explanation had been afforded them when in the witness box. ["The Tasmania", 15 App. Cas. 223; Neville v. Fine Arts, [1897] A.C. 68; McKelvey v. LeRoi Mining Co., 32 Can. S.C.R. 664, referred to.]

(§ VII J—413)—CRIMINAL CASE — NON-DIRECTION.

Non-direction may in some cases amount to misdirection of the jury although no objection was taken to the charge, and such non-direction constitutes a ground for a new trial if it appears that it operated to the prejudice of the accused and may have affected the verdict against him. [R. v. Blythe, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 224, 19 O.L.R. 386, and Allen v. The King, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 44 Can. S.C.R. 331, applied; Eberts v. The King, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 273, 7 D.L.R. 538, 47 Can. (§ VII J—415)—QUESTIONS NOT RAISED BELOW—REFUSAL OF LEAVE ON APPEAL TO AMEND PLEADINGS—TEST.

On an appeal from the judgment against defendant at trial, he will be refused leave to amend his pleadings to raise a question not in issue before the trial judge which would necessitate the plaintiff being given leave to adduce further evidence.

SUBSTITUTION OF NEW CLAIM.

A plaintiff who has failed to support the case made in his statement of claim, cannot, after the action has been tried, be permitted to abandon that claim and substitute an entirely new and inconsistent one.

(§ VII J—417)—AS TO PLEADING, DEFENCES.

Where there are both a statute and a municipal by-law upon which a defendant might rest his defence, and, at the trial, he concedes that he cannot rely upon the statute and stands upon the by-law, it is not open to him, upon appeal, to fall back upon the statute.

HEARING—POINT NOT PLEADED BELOW.

On appeal the appellant will not ordinarily be allowed to raise a defense which he has not pleaded in the court below.

(§ VII J—419)—INDICTMENT, INFORMATION AND COMPLAINT.

An objection to an information based on a municipal by-law prohibiting the use of abusive, insulting, and provoking language toward another while on a public street, because of the omission of the word "abusive" therefrom, is too late where made for the first time upon an appeal from the decision of a County Judge upon the review of a magistrate's conviction, where the statute authorizing the by-law is sufficient to warrant a by-law in the terms of the conviction without the word "abusive."

The King v. Elderman, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 445.

FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION — CRIMINAL LAW—DEFECT IN THE CONVICTION.

The duty of the appellate judge on an appeal from a summary conviction is to hear and determine the charge notwithstanding any defect in the conviction, and he has no power to entertain a motion to quash the conviction as defective; on such defect appearing, reference must still be had to the information to ascertain the charge which is to be heard and determined on the appeal.

(§ VII J—428)—WITNESS NOT SWORN.

Where a witness upon a material fact has been permitted without legal sanction to testify on an affirmation instead of upon oath, the result is a mistrial and a new trial should be ordered under Cr. Code, s. 1018.

(§ VII J—430)—RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL.

After parties, in virtue of art. 422 C.C.P. (Que.), have elected trial by jury, objections to the right thereto cannot be urged for the first time on appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. Séguin, 28 D.L.R. 494, 52 Can. S.C.R. 644.

(§ VII J—435)—AS TO INSTRUCTIONS TO JURY.

On a criminal trial an instruction is not erroneous by which the jury were told, in substance, that the accused would be guilty of the offense of procuring under Cr. Code (1906), s. 216 (f), only if they found that, at the time the accused induced a woman to enter a brothel she was not already an inmate of such a place.

R. v. Mah Hung, 2 D.L.R. 568, 17 B.C.R. 56, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 40.

INSTRUCTION TO JURY ON CRIMINAL TRIAL—OBJECTION NOT TAKEN AT TRIAL.

While the lack of objection on the prisoner's behalf at a criminal trial to an erroneous instruction in the judge's charge is not necessarily fatal to an appeal, it is a matter which the Appellate Court will consider as a circumstance tending to uphold the trial proceedings notwithstanding the irregularity, when determining whether or not any substantial wrong or miscarriage had been thereby occasioned without which the conviction must be affirmed under s. 1019 of the Cr. Code (Can.) 1906.

INSTRUCTIONS—QUESTION OF LAW.

If the trial judge should wrongly tell the jury that there was competent evidence of the offense, his direction in that respect would raise a "question of law," which could be reserved under Cr. Code, s. 1014, for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, although the appreciation of the facts where there is competent evidence of the offense pertains exclusively to the jury.

Rivet v. The King, 27 D.L.R. 695, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 235, 24 Que. K.B. 559.

(§ VII J—437)—JURY—VERDICT—OMISSION TO CONSIDER ELEMENTS OF CASE—INSTRUCTIONS—PRESUMPTION.

The court will not interfere with the verdict of a jury on the ground of inadequacy of damages awarded, unless the court is satisfied that the jury has omitted to consider some elements of the plaintiff's case. The fact that the court might have awarded a greater sum is not of itself sufficient reason for disturbing their finding, but if the damages are unreasonably small the court is entitled to conclude that the jury has failed to consider all the material elements bearing on the issue. The court must presume that the jury understood the plain obvious meaning of their verdict. [Phillips

K. ERRORS WAIVED OR CURED BELOW.

(§ VII K—445)—ERRORS WAIVED OR CURED BELOW.

An objection that a submission to arbitration had not been made a rule of court, will be considered waived and not open to consideration on appeal where the parties appeared before the Court of King's Bench and submitted a motion to set aside the award of an arbitrator without raising such question.

(§ VII K—446)—ARRAIGNMENT AND PLEA.

An objection that the preliminary enquiry in a criminal case was not conducted according to law will not avail where the accused, who had been committed for trial, pleaded not guilty and stood trial without questioning the regularity of the preliminary proceedings.

The King v. Sequin, 3 D.L.R. 257, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 69.

(§ VII K—451)—COMPLAINT, DECLARATION OR PETITION.

Where on an exception to the form raising want of production of notice of action the plaintiff is allowed to amend his declaration to allege the giving of the notice, and a copy of the notice is produced, and the exception subsequently dismissed as being without further object, and the case goes to trial by jury and judgment is rendered therein, such judgment will not be interfered with by an Appellate Court on the ground that the amended declaration was never served.

City of Westmount v. Hicks, 8 D.L.R. 488.

(§ VII K—457)—HEARING AND DETERMINATION—ERRORS WAIVED OR CURED BELOW — AS TO EVIDENCE—EXCLUSION.

A defendant in a mechanics' lien proceeding under the Mechanics' Lien Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 147, who files the dispute notice which imposes on the court the duty of determining, as a distinct preliminary proceeding, the question raised by the notice, is not estopped by waiver from reviewing on appeal the error of the court in assuming to determine such question without duly taking the evidence therein, even though the defendant may not have urged the necessity of due proof nor otherwise interposed any objection to the omission at the trial.

Boucher v. Belle-Isle, 14 D.L.R. 146, 41 N.B.R. 509.

DAMAGES TOO REMOTE—INSCRIPTION IN LAW

—PLEA TO THE MERITS—QUE. C.C. 1074

—QUE. C.P. 191.

The objection resulting from the fact that the damages claimed are too remote cannot be pleaded, for the first time, in the Court of Review. The defendant must take advantage of such an argument in the Superior Court by way of an inscription in law, or at least of opposition in the plea to the merits, denying the liability.

Poulin v. Martel, 46 Que. S.C. 541.

L. REVIEW OF FACTS.

(§ VII L—470)—REVIEW OF FACTS ON NON-SUIT.

On an appeal from a judgment of a County Court (Man.), ordering a nonsuit, the Manitoba Court of Appeal may draw its own conclusions from plaintiff's evidence brought out at the trial, where there are no conflicting statements nor any contradictory evidence.

QUESTION OF FACT—JUDGMENT APPEALED FROM MUST BE ERRONEOUS—BURDEN OF PROOF.

Before an Appellate Court will set aside a judgment on a pure question of fact, the appellant must demonstrate that such judgment is erroneous. Where the proof leaves it in a state of about equal probability that goods sold conformed in quality to sample as that they were inferior, the appeal will be dismissed.

De Felice v. O'Brien, 45 D.L.R. 295, affirming 27 Que. K.B. 192.

REVIEW OF FACTS ON APPEAL.

Under the British Columbia Railway Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 194, s. 68, upon an appeal from the award of arbitrators fixing damages under eminent domain proceedings, the court will not supersede the arbitrators but will review the award as it would review the judgment of a subordinate court in a case of original jurisdiction, considering the award on its merits, both as to the facts and the law. Where conflicting views as to the quantum of damages are apparent but the estimate made in the award cannot be said to be unreasonable or manifestly incorrect, the findings of the arbitrators will not in that respect be disturbed, the arbitrators having seen and heard the witnesses and viewed the land in question.

Canadian Northern Pacific R. Co. v. Dominion Glazed Cement Pipe Co., 7 D.L.R. 174, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 265, 22 W.L.R. 335, 3 W.W.R. 73.

REVIEW OF FACTS—FINDING BY TRIAL JUDGE WITHOUT JURY—INADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE Raising FINDING—EFFECT ON APPEAL.

The rule by which ordinarily an Appellate Court will not reverse a finding of fact by the trial judge hearing a case without a jury where such finding is based on the credit to be given to the witnesses, is displaced if the trial judge wrongly admitted testimony on matters not material to the issue in contradiction of the answers given on cross-examination of one of the witnesses whose testimony he discredits because of the wrongly admitted evidence.

CRIMINAL CASE RESERVED—EVIDENCE OF IDENTITY OF ACCUSED.

On a question of identity of the accused, the court on a case reserved will affirm the conviction by a "speedy trial" court if the evidence were such that the question of identity could not have been withdrawn from the jury had the case been tried in a jury court.

R. v. Harvey, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 160, 42 O.L.R. 187.

QUESTION OF FACT—EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT TRIAL JUDGE'S FINDING.

Clarkson v. Antipitsky, 2 O.W.N. 950, 18 O.A.R. 900.

CONFLICTING EVIDENCE.

The rule that upon questions of fact an Appeal Court will not interfere with the decision of the judge who has seen the witnesses and has been able, with the impression thus formed fresh in his mind, to decide between their contending evidence, unless there is some good and special reason to throw doubt upon the soundness of his conclusions (Ruddy v. Toronto Eastern Ry., 33 D.L.R. 193, 38 O.L.R. 556) is applicable to a conflict between the testimony of living witnesses and the evidence of accounts.

McHugh v. McHugh, 11 A.L.R. 545, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1044.

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.

Upon questions of fact the Court of Appeal can only decide whether or not there has been any proof of the facts before the court of first instance, or whether or not there is a complete absence of proof.

R. v. Giroux, 26 Que. K.B. 323. [Affirmed by Supreme Court of Canada, 39 D.L.R. 190. See also 34 D.L.R. 642, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 366, 25 Que. K.B. 505.]

A Court of Appeal should only reverse a judgment appealed from on the facts if there has been manifest error in the appreciation of the evidence.

Ruthman v. City of Quebec, 22 Que. K.B. 147.

By an inscription in law, defendant cannot raise questions of facts, nor deny the facts alleged, but the same must be presumed to be true. In the present case the evidence alone of the divers circumstances and facts alleged in plaintiff's declaration will show whether the responsibility and compensation for the accident in question in this cause, are to be determined by the Workmen's Act, 9 Edw. VII, c. 66, or by the common law, and under such circumstances the court will order "prevue avant faire droit" on defendant's inscription in law.

Biggs et ux. v. G.T.R. Co., 18 Rev. de Jur. 383.

Whether or not a workman, killed by accident in the course of his employment, was the sole support of the ascendant who claims indemnity for his death, being only a question of fact the decision of the court of first instance thereon should not be reformed in review where there is palpable error therein. The provision of art. 1312 C.C. that the decree for separation as to property is without effect so long as it remains unexecuted does not apply to the case of a decree for separation de corps which involves separation as to property as a secondary consequence.

Bernard v. Davis, 42 Que. S.C. 170.

DUTY OF APPEAL COURT TO REVIEW FINDINGS OF FACT.

Thompson v. Greenwood, 34 W.L.R. 1194. (§ VII L—472)—REFERRED OR RESERVED WITHOUT FINDING.

Upon the trial of a mechanics' lien action under the statutory provisions of the Nova Scotia Mechanics' Lien Act, the trial judge should not refer any of the questions involved to the Court of Appeal without himself deciding the same, but if it appears that the question which he did decide was sufficient to dispose of the action the case need not be referred back to deal with questions which could not affect the result.

Dixon v. Ross, 1 D.L.R. 17, 46 N.S.R. 143. (§ VII L—473)—FROM AWARD—REVIEW OF FACTS.

The Appellate Court, on an appeal from an award in eminent domain proceedings should come to its own conclusions upon all the evidence, paying due regard to its award and findings and reviewing them as it would those of a subordinate court. [James Bay R. Co. v. Armstrong, [1909] A.C. 624, referred to.]

Re Ketcheson and Canadian Northern Ontario R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 854, 29 O.L.R. 339, 25 O.W.R. 20, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 286.

APPEAL FROM AWARD—JURISDICTION TO SET ASIDE OR REMIT.

The court hearing an appeal from an award under s. 114 of the Railway Act, Alta., 1907, c. 8, has jurisdiction on setting aside the award and remitting the case to the arbitrators to dispose of the costs of the abortive arbitration proceedings. Where the arbitrators admitted, as evidence of value, matters which the court on appeal decided were inadmissible and which may have materially affected the arbitrators' finding, the court hearing an appeal from the award is not bound under s. 114 of the Railway Act, Alta. 1907, c. 8, 7, decide the question of fact raised by the appeal as in a case of original jurisdiction; it is only where there is nothing but a question of fact involved that the court is bound under s. 114 to decide the same upon the evidence taken before the arbitrators instead of setting aside the award or remitting the case. [Atlantic and N.W.R. Co. v. Wood, [1895] A.C. 257; Cedars Rapids Mfg. Co. v. Lacoste, 16 D.L.R. 168, 83 L.J.P.C. 162, considered.]

(§ VII L-475)—OF VERDICT.

The Supreme Court of New Brunswick will not, on an appeal from an order of a County Court refusing a new trial on the ground that the verdict of the jury was against the evidence, interfere with the finding of the court below. Hale v. Tompkins, 6 D.L.R. 502, 41 N.B.R. 209, 11 E.L.R. 91.

REVIEW OF JURY'S FINDINGS ON FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION.

The issue of misrepresentation or fraud in procuring an agreement and promissory notes, raised in the defense to an action thereon, is one for the consideration of a jury, whose findings for the defendant, where the evidence is conflicting, are final and cannot, in the absence of misdirection, be disturbed on appeal by granting a new trial merely because the result of their findings may seem unsatisfactory to the Appellate Court. [Toronto R. Co. v. King, [1908] A.C. 260, followed; Canada Carriage Co. v. Lea, 37 Can. S.C.R. 672, distinguished. See Cowie v. Robins, 27 D.L.R. 52; Fraser v. Picton El. Co., 28 D.L.R. 251.]

REVIEW OF VERDICT—PERVERSE—NO EVIDENCE ON WHICH TO REASONABLY FIND—DISMISSAL RATHER THAN NEW TRIAL, WHEN.

If there was not evidence sufficient to go to the jury upon which they could reasonably find a verdict against the defendant, the case should not have been left to them, but if it was left to the jury and they bring in a perverse verdict in favour of the plaintiff without the insufficiency of the plaintiff's evidence being remedied during the progress of the case, an Appellate Court may properly dismiss the action instead of directing a new trial. [MacKenzie v. B.C. Electric Ry. Co., 15 D.L.R. 530, 19 B.C.R. 1; Skeate v. Slaters, 30 Times L.R. 290; Metropolitan v. Wright, 11 App. Cas. 152; Cox v. Astley v. Garnett, 20 D.L.R. 457, 20 B.C.R. 528, 7 W.W.R. 538, 29 W.L.R. 796.

VERDICT OF JURY—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

If the answers by a jury to questions submitted can be supported by any reasonable construction, an Appellate Court should support them, and not set aside the findings as contrary to the weight of evidence unless they are such as in the opinion of the Appellate Court could not have been arrived at by reasonable men. [McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., 32 Can. S.C.R. 664; Jamieson v. Harris, 35 Can. S.C.R. 625, referred to.]

SETTING ASIDE VERDICT—EXCESSIVE DAMAGES.

To justify the setting aside of a verdict on the ground of excessive damages, the Appellate Court must find that the damages are so excessive that twelve reasonable men could not have given them, or that the jury have disregarded some direction of the judge or have considered topics which they ought not to have considered, or have applied a wrong measure of damages. [Praed v. Graham, 24 Q.B.D. 55, and Johnston v. Great Western Ry., [1904] 2 K.B. 250, 73 L.J.K.B. 568, 20 Times L.R. 455, applied.]

REVIEW OF VERDICT OF JURY—REVIEW OF FINDINGS OF TRIAL JUDGE WITHOUT A JURY—DAMAGES.

The findings of fact made by a judge in an action tried by him without a jury do not stand upon the same footing before an Appellate Court as the findings of a jury, but the Appellate Court, if it considers them erroneous, may come to a different conclusion and act upon it, and a finding as to damages is in precisely the same position in this respect as any other finding of fact. [Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. Div. 155, followed; Phillips v. South Western R. Co., 4 Q.B.D. 406, 5 Q.B.D. 78, discussed and applied; Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24; North British and Mercantile Insurance Co. v. Tourville, 25 Can. S.C.R. 177, and Prentice v. Consolidated Bank, 13 A.R. (Ont.) 69, referred to.]

RIGHT OF APPELLATE COURT TO REVIEW VERDICT OF JURY—ABSENCE OF ERROR OR OTHER SUBSTANTIAL GROUND.

Although an Appellate Court may think that the preponderance of testimony is in favour of the unsuccessful party in an action tried with a jury, it cannot substitute its opinion for that of the jury, or interfere with the jury's conclusions except upon some error or other substantial ground.

Zufelt v. C.P.R., 7 D.L.R. 81, 4 O.W.N. 29, 23 O.W.R. 801.

(3 VII L—476)—REVIEW OF FACTS—VERDICT, NOT DISTURBED, WHEN.

On appeal to the Appellate Division of the Ontario Supreme Court from the judgment of a trial court, based upon the findings of a jury in favour of the plaintiff, who was the sole witness for himself, though the Appellate Court may doubt the plaintiff's story or disbelieve him, they have no right to substitute their own opinion of the facts for that of the jury, but if there is some evidence to support the finding of the jury, it cannot be disturbed. A verdict of a jury for the plaintiff, in an action to recover damages for injury resulting from the alleged negligence of a railroad company in leaving an unnecessarily wide space between the planking and the inside of one of the rails of their track at a highway crossing, whereby the plaintiff while walking along the highway at night got his foot caught in the space, and being unable to extricate it in time, it was cut off by a locomotive, should not be disturbed on appeal, where the jury find that the railroad company was negligent in not having the crossing in proper order, and that the plaintiff could not by the exercise of reasonable care have avoided the accident.

Stevens v. C.P.R., 10 D.L.R. 88, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 28, 4 O.W.N. 697, 23 O.W.R. 939.

FINDINGS OF JURY—NEGLIGENCE—PLEADINGS—SUFFICIENCY OF FINDINGS.

In an appeal on the grounds of contributory negligence, the findings of the jury, which were read in conjunction with the pleadings, the evidence, and the charge of the judge, were found to be justified, and sufficient to support the judgment entered.

REVIEW OF FACTS—NEGLIGENCE CAUSING DEATH—CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

Where, in an action for negligently causing death there is a prima facie case to go to the jury, their function in weighing the probabilities of the case upon circumstantial evidence is not to be interfered with on an appeal from the verdict unless the court can say that the jury could not reasonably have come to the conclusion which the verdict involves. Jones v. C.P.R., 13 D.L.R. 900, and Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Griffith, 45 Can. S.C.R. 380, referred to.]

R. 650, affirming 12 D.L.R. 568, 18 B.C.R. 184.

REVIEW OF VERDICT ON APPEAL—FINDING AS TO CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

When the verdict of a jury was not only against the weight of the evidence, but also was one which a jury, reasonably viewing the whole of the evidence, could not properly find, it should be set aside. [Metropolitan v. Wright, 11 App. Cas. 152, applied. See also Solomon v. Bitton, 8 Q.B.D. 176.]

REVIEW OF VERDICT—PRINCIPLE APPLICABLE IN APPELLATE COURT.

Simpfchehen v. Montreal Tramways Co., 22 D.L.R. 902, 46 Que. S.C. 350.

OF VERDICT, NEGLIGENCE.

A verdict for the plaintiff for injuries sustained by the starting of a car with a jerk as he was about to alight therefrom will not be disturbed where there was sufficient evidence, although conflicting, to go to the jury that the plaintiff had not time to alight in safety before the car started.

Jacob v. Toronto R. Co., 3 D.L.R. 818, 22 O.W.R. 180, 3 O.W.N. 1255.

REVIEW OF FACT—VERDICT AGAINST RAILWAY FOR NEGLIGENTLY CAUSING DEATH—ABSENCE OF EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT JURY'S FINDING.

A verdict of a jury in favour of the plaintiff in an action against a railway company for negligently causing the death of the fireman of a locomotive that was propelling a snow plough, cannot be sustained where there was no evidence tending to support the jury's finding that his death was due to the negligence of the railway company in operating the plough under a defective system by placing it in charge of a servant who had not passed the necessary eye and ear test, or to show that the accident was due to a defect in the hearing or vision of such person.

VERDICT OF JURY—PERSONAL INJURIES SUSTAINED BY BEING STRUCK BY STREET CAR.

A verdict against a street railway company in favour of the plaintiff for injuries sustained by being struck by a street car will not be disturbed where, from the evidence, the jury was justified in finding that the car was negligently operated at excessive speed in crossing a public street at a dangerous point where the view was obstructed, and that the plaintiff, who was driving a long waggon, exercised reasonable care in approaching and endeavouring to cross the track and took reasonable care to save himself from injury, and that the motorman in charge of the car had time to avoid the accident after he became aware that the plaintiff intended to cross the track.

Goedehild v. Sandwich, Windsor, and Amherstburg R. Co., 4 D.L.R. 159, 22 O.W.R. 152, 3 O.W.N. 1252.

REVIEW OF FINDING AS TO NEGLIGENCE—CONFLICTING EVIDENCE.

Upon a question of fact, as to whether the rear vestibule and trap doors of a day car of a railway train on which car the plaintiff was riding were closed while the train was standing at a certain station; where the jury balances the probabilities (a) on the testimony of the defendant company's conductor and brakeman for the negative and (b) on that of the plaintiff and a disinterested witness for the affirmative, and finds on that point for the plaintiff, such finding is within the jury's province and will not be disturbed.

McDougall v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 271, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 316, 27 O.L.R. 369, 23 O.W.R. 364.

REVIEW OF FINDINGS—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

A conflict in favour of an injured servant will not be disturbed where the evidence as to his contributory negligence is conflicting and not so conclusive and undisputed as to warrant the withdrawal of that question from the jury.

McClement v. Kilgour Mfg. Co., 3 D.L.R. 462, 3 O.W.N. 999, 21 O.W.R. 856.

REVIEW OF VERDICT—LIABILITY OF RAILWAY FOR CAUSING DEATH.

Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Parent, 7 D.L.R. 819.

FINDINGS OF JURY—VOLENS.

Where the issue of volens has been fought out at the trial and clearly presented to the jury in the form of a specific question which they have not answered, the Appellate Court has no power to substitute itself for the jury to make such finding.

(VII L.—477)—REVIEW OF VERDICT—MURDER—CULPABLE HOMICIDE REDUCED TO MANSLAUGHTER.

Where the Appellate Court is of opinion that, upon the evidence no jury could properly find that the prisoner shot the deceased while in the heat of passion caused by sudden provocation, no substantial wrong or miscarriage at the trial is shewn to warrant the Appellate Court in setting aside a conviction for murder or directing a new trial under the Cr. Code, 1906, s. 1019, by reason of the Trial Judge's instruction to the jury that they were bound, upon the evidence, either to acquit the prisoner altogether or to find him guilty of murder.

R. v. Eberts, 7 D.L.R. 538, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 273, 47 Can. S.C.R. 1, 22 W.L.R. 991, 3 W.W.R. 37, affirming 7 D.L.R. 539, 4 A.L.J. 319, 2 W.W.R. 542.

CRIMINAL LAW—REVIEW OF CONVICTION ON QUESTION OF LAW—SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.

Although the evidence of theft is contradictory and unsatisfactory in the opinion of the court determining merely the question of law on a case reserved as to the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain a conviction, the court will uphold the finding of guilt if supported by sufficient legal evidence.

R. v. Edmunds, 18 D.L.R. 770, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 77, 28 W.L.R. 965.

CRIMINAL CASE—EXCESS—INFERENCES BY COURT TRYING CASE WITHOUT JURY—SPEEDY TRIAL.

On a speedy trial, without a jury under Part XVIII of the Criminal Code, the Trial Judge is entitled to make the same inferences from the facts as a jury might make had the accused elected for a jury trial, and his finding will not be disturbed if the evidence shewed a prima facie case which on a jury trial could not have been withdrawn from the jury.

R. v. Ward, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 75, 48 N.S.R. 204.

REVIEW OF VERDICT, CRIMINAL CASES.

When it appears upon a reserved case that there was evidence upon which the jury could reasonably find as they did, the Appellate Court should not grant a new trial merely because a different conclusion may appear to it to have been preferable on a consideration of the whole evidence.

The King v. Faulkner, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 47, 16 B.C.R. 229.

(§ VII L.—480)—REVIEW OF FACTS—AS TO DAMAGES AND VALUES—APPELLATE JURISDICTION TO INCREASE—AWARD.

On an appeal from an award made in expropriation proceedings under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, the court may reject the method of ascertaining the damages adopted by the arbitrators and act upon another method shewn by the evidence if of opinion that the latter is preferable, and may increase or diminish the damages accordingly, although the quantum is the only question on the appeal. [James Bay v. Armstrong, [1909] A.C. 624; Re Ketcheson and C.N.R., 13 D.L.R. 854, 29 O.L.R. 339, and Re Cavanagh and Can. Atlantic, 14 O.L.R. 523, followed.]

DAMAGES—REVIEW BY APPELLATE COURT.

Unless the conclusions at which the judge or jury arrives in assessing damages are clearly erroneous, the quantum should not be interfered with on appeal. [McHugh v. Union Bank, [1913] A.C. 299, 10 D.L.R. 562, applied.]

AS TO DAMAGES.

Where the damages awarded by the jury at the first trial were held to be excessive and the Court of Appeal had ordered a new trial and the result of the new trial was a verdict for a still larger sum, the Court of Appeal, upon an appeal from the second verdict, may itself fix the amount of damages instead of sending the case back for a third trial before a jury by virtue of its statutory powers.

REDUCTION OF DAMAGES.

An award of damages greater than the amount claimed in the pleadings will be reduced on appeal.

EXPROPRIATION AWARDS—VALUES.

Upon an appeal from an award under s. 209 of the Railway Act it is competent for the court to decide any question of fact upon the evidence taken before the arbitrators, as in a case of original jurisdiction, subject to the following rules: (1) An appeal upon a question which is merely one of value should be discouraged. [Musson v. Canada Atlantic R. Co., 17 L.N. 179, followed.] (2) There must be such a plain and decided preponderance of evidence against the findings of the arbitrators as to border strongly on the conclusive. (3) The latter rule should be more strictly followed where the arbitrators are experienced in such matters, have local knowledge and the great advantage of a personal view of the premises, and of seeing and hearing the witnesses. [Lemoine v. City of Montreal, 23 Can. S.C.R. 390; Kearney v. The Queen, Can. Cas. 344, followed.]

REVIEW OF DAMAGES FORGED BY JURY.

Whatever may be the amount of damages granted by a jury in their verdict, the Court of Appeal will not interfere with the judgment rendered on that verdict by granting a new trial or reducing the amount of damages, if it is not evident that the jurymen have been moved by improper motives or have erred and if it does not appear that the verdict could not be reasonably rendered if acting according to the evidence given.

C.P.R. Co. v. Walsh, 24 Que. K.B. 185.

DAMAGES—AWARD OF REFEE.

In an action for damages for personal injuries the Appellate Court will not, unless under very exceptional circumstances, disturb the verdict of a jury or of a referee for assessment of damages where consideration has been given to all the different elements of damage in respect to which the plaintiff is entitled to compensation and an award made which was deemed to be fair and reasonable, under all the circumstances.

Edwards v. City of Sydney, 40 D.L.R. 79, 52 N.S.R. 116.

ARBITRATION — VARIATION OF AWARD — "GOOD AND SPECIAL" REASONS—VALUATION.

An award of arbitrators under the Railway Act will not be varied by an Appellate Court upon a mere question of valuation except for "good and special" reasons, even when the Appellate Court is of opinion that the amount awarded is very excessive or very inadequate. [Ruddy v. Toronto Eastern R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 377, applied.]

Noble v. Campbellford Lake Ontario & Western R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 380.

ADMIRALTY—COLLISION—DAMAGES.

The Exchequer Court, sitting in appeal in Admiralty matters, will not interfere with the judgment of the lower court as regards pure questions of fact or the quantum of damages, unless it appears clearly erroneous.

The "Ethel Q" v. Beaudette, 17 Can. Ex. 505.

AS TO DAMAGES AND VALUE.

Richards v. Lambert, 4 O.W.N. 646, 23 O.W.R. 780.

(§ VII L—485)—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE AS TO PREJUDICE FROM LACK OF NOTICE—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION CLAIM.

While the question whether there was any evidence that the employed was not prejudiced by want of notice of the employer's injury under the Workmen's Compensation Act, Alta. Stat. 1908, c. 12, is a question of law upon which an appeal may be taken, no appeal lies as to the weight of such evidence where there was sufficient to base the judge's finding that there was no prejudice, and that the notice might therefore be dispensed with under the statute. [Bruno v. International C. & C. Co., 12 D.L.R. 745, referred to.]

REVIEW OF FINDINGS OF COURT—HEARINGS OF INTERIM INJUNCTION.

In reviewing upon appeal an interim injunction order, whereby the injunction was continued until the trial unless the defendant gave security for an accounting, the Appellate Court may direct that the findings on any question of law or fact or upon the construction of the documents by the judge who made the injunction order shall not be binding on the parties at the trial of the action.

REVIEW OF FINDINGS OF COURT—ACCEPTANCE OF OFFER FOR DRIVING LOGS—STORM BOOMS.

The findings of a trial judge that an offer to drive logs from a certain point, and to deliver them from that point in storm booms at a smaller price, was only accepted as to the driving and not as to the storm booms, based on sufficient and relevant evidence to support his conclusion, will not be reviewed on appeal.

Holt Timber v. McCallum, 25 D.L.R. 445.

CONCLUSIVENESS OF JUDGE'S FINDINGS UPON QUESTIONS OF FACT — CREDIBILITY OF TESTIMONY.

Johnson Investments v. Grunwald, 34 D.L.R. 733, 11 A.L.R. 565, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 142.

OF FINDINGS OF COURT.

Where it is evident upon an appeal, in a case tried without a jury, that the trial judge based one of his conclusions entirely upon the inferences which he drew from certain facts to which he referred in his opinion or written reasons for judgment, and the Appellate Court is of opinion that he erred in such conclusions, it may draw from the same facts the inferences which it considers to be the proper ones, and dispose of the case upon its own finding of the effect of the transaction in question.

FROM FINDINGS OF FACT WITHOUT A JURY — RECONSIDERATION OF INFERENCES — INDIRECT EVIDENCE.

An Appellate Court, hearing an appeal from the findings made by the court below, trying a personal injury action without a jury, should reconsider the whole evidence, and particularly where the case depends upon the inferences or conclusions to be drawn from facts not substantially in dispute. [Boggs v. Scott, 34 N.B.R. 110; Papageorgiou v. Turner, 37 N.B.R. 449, and Coghlan v. Cumberland, [1898] 1 Ch. 704, referred to.]

Turnbull v. Corbett; O'Brien v. Corbett, 8 D.L.R. 343, 41 N.B.R. 284, 11 E.L.R. 67.

FINDINGS OF COURT—REVIEW—REVERSAL BY APPELLATE COURT—CREDIT OF WITNESSES.

Where the judge at the trial has seen and heard the witnesses for the plaintiff, but the evidence of those for the defendant has been taken de bene esse and read at the trial, and it appears to an Appellate Court that the evidence for the defendant was given with clearness and candour, while that for the plaintiff is discredited by the plaintiff's own letters, and the agreement sued upon by the plaintiff is, under the undisputed circumstances, a very improbable transaction, the Appellate Court may reverse findings of fact in favour of the plaintiff, and may hold that he has not made out his case, in spite of the fact that the trial judge has expressly given credit to the witnesses on his behalf.

REVIEW OF FACTS—FINDINGS OF COURT.

The Appellate Court should not reverse the finding of fact of the trial court where the same is based upon preponderating evidence unless the court hearing the appeal is of opinion that the evidence relied upon to support the finding of the court below is absolutely inconsistent with a reasonable view of the circumstances, and not merely that there are phases in the transaction pointing strongly against the finding appealed from.

FINDINGS OF COURT—REVIEW ON APPEAL.

In an action for the recovery of wages for the services of the plaintiff and his wife, where the defendant appeals from the trial judge's finding as to a certain alleged payment to the wife purporting to be in accord and satisfaction of the debt, the Appellate Court will properly consider among suspicious circumstances: (a) That the wife has separated from her husband and is working for the defendant under a new arrangement; (b) that the wife, after her husband's action was brought, took at the defendant's suggestion a long-date promissory note without interest (ante-dated) as in settlement of the action; (c) that the wife apparently lent herself to help the defendant in the action; (d) that the evidence for the defense was conflicting and unsatisfactory.

CONCLUSIVENESS OF JUDGE'S FINDINGS UPON QUESTIONS OF FACT.

Fish v. Fish, 37 D.L.R. 197, 44 N.B.R. 617.

FINDINGS OF COURT—SALE.

The Appellate Court will not interfere with the findings of the trial judge that the burden of proof to establish a sale has not been satisfied. [Greene Swift & Co. v. Lawrence, 7 D.L.R. 589; Western Motors, Ltd. v. Gilfoy, 25 D.L.R. 378, distinguished; see also Holt Timber v. McCallum, 25 D.L.R. 445; Morgan v. McDonald, 27 D.L.R. 125; McBride v. Ireson, 26 D.L.R. 516.]

FINDINGS OF TRIAL JUDGE.

The court was equally divided in the first action on the question whether the evidence sustained the findings of the Trial Judge as to whether the defendants had improperly obtained and used the plaintiffs' list of subscribers and wrongfully endeavoured to entice away plaintiffs' employees. The trial judgment granting an injunction was therefore affirmed, with some modifications as to the operation of the injunction.

Canada Bonded Att'y v. Leonard-Parmiter; Canada Bonded Att'y v. G. F. Leonard, 42 D.L.R. 342, 42 O.L.R. 141.

NEGLECT—VERDICT OF JURY.

A verdict of a jury that an accident was caused by the neglect and lack of proper supervision of a ship's officer in not having the gang plank sufficiently manned, will be set aside where the evidence is equally consistent with it being attributable to the impetuosity of one or more fellow servants.

Cleugh v. C.P.R. Co., 40 D.L.R. 512, 25 B.C.R. 335, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 416.

A verdict of a jury will not be set aside if they were justified in coming to the conclusion that the direct cause of the accident was in the arrangement and equipment of the train, and if there was evidence upon which they might properly find that the negligence of the company was in the system employed for the operation of the particular train.

Cheseman v. Canadian Pacific R. Co., 40 D.L.R. 437, 45 N.B.R. 452, 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 253. [Reversed in 45 D.L.R. 257, 57 Can. S.C.R. 439.]

FINDING OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE—CREDIBILITY OF WITNESSES—DUTY OF APPELLATE COURT—ACTION ON CHEQUE—ALLEGED DELIVERY IN ESCROW—TRANSFER BY PAYEE TO THIRD PERSON—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—ABSENCE OF KNOWLEDGE IN TRANSFEREE OF EQUITIES EXISTING BETWEEN DRAWER AND PAYEE.

Sutherland v. Harris and McCuaig, 15 O.W.N. 251.

FINDINGS OF COURT—IN GENERAL.

Keiser v. Kalmet, 47 Can. S.C.R. 402, 23 W.L.R. 589.

EVIDENCE—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE—MOTION TO REOPEN HEARING OF APPEAL.

Davidovich v. Swartz, 8 O.W.N. 222.

OPPOSITION TO SEIZURE OF WIFE'S PROPERTY—REVIEW OF COURT'S FINDINGS.

In the case of opposition taken by the wife for withdrawal from seizure of household furniture, even when the Court of Review should find it appearing that a piece of furniture of trifling value belongs to the husband, it will not reverse for that reason the judgment of the Superior Court; de minimis non curat lex.

Goulet v. Gratton, 47 Que. S.C. 465.

UNSEASONABLE FINDINGS.

An appellate tribunal, before it will undertake to overrule a finding of fact by the court below, must be satisfied that the court below has clearly come to an unreasonable decision about the facts.

Chong v. Gin Wing Sig (B.C.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 183.

CONCLUSIVENESS OF JUDGE'S FINDINGS—DAMAGES.

The order of a trial judge directing an enquiry as to damages arising from the postponement of a sale will not be interfered with, as being a matter within his discretion, unless the Court of Appeal is convinced that the judge was clearly wrong.

Royal Bank v. Whieldon (B.C.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 58.

(§ VII L—489)—FINDINGS OF COURT—TESTAMENTARY CAPACITY.

A finding of the Surrogate Court that a testator was mentally competent to make a testamentary disposition of his property will not be disturbed on appeal unless so manifestly and clearly wrong as to amount to a miscarriage of justice.

Thamer v. Junft, 4 D.L.R. 753, 3 O.W.N. 1307, 22 O.W.R. 296.

TESTAMENTARY CAPACITY—INSANE DELUSIONS.

Where no error in law is shown, an Appellate Court will not interfere with the findings of a trial judge upon a question of fact, that the dispositions made by a testator were not affected by insane delusions. [See Lloyd v. Robertson, 27 D.L.R. 745, 28 D.L.R. 192.]

(§ VII L—491)—FINDINGS OF COURT, FRAUD.

Where the purchaser and the real estate agent by whom the sale transaction was put through were joined as defendants in an action by the vendor to set aside the sale and a judgment was given setting aside the sale with costs against both defendants, and the defendant purchaser reconveyed in pursuance of the judgment and paid the costs, an appeal on the part of the agent will not be sustained where the real subject of the litigation is at an end by the compliance of the codefendant with the decree and no substantial variance is asked, except as to the considerations of the written opinion as to fraud which were not embodied in the formal decree.

(§ VII L—492)—AGENCY.

An Appellate Court has power to review a finding of fact as to the existence of an agency, based on a misapprehension of the evidence. [Western Motors v. Gilfoy (Alta.), 25 D.L.R. 378, applied.]

Rohoel v. Phillipson, 31 D.L.R. 289.

FINDINGS OF COURT, AGENCY.

Where there was ample evidence to warrant the trial judge in his finding that the plaintiff's services as a real estate broker in listing for sale at the instance of a person other than the owner, property which was afterwards sold through another broker, were rendered gratuitously, an Appellate Court should not reverse the trial judgment based upon such finding whereby the broker's action for commission was dismissed.

FINDINGS OF COURT—AGENCY.

An Appellate Court has the legal power to review a finding of fact made by the trial judge upon contradictory testimony, as to whether a son in business with his father acted as agent for the firm.

(§ VII L—495)—VALUATION OF PROPERTY BY COURT.

Where a person, wrongfully in possession of property, has wrongfully refused to render to the joint owners an accounting of the property in question, upon proper proceedings for that purpose, the value of the property may be estimated and fixed by the court, and the amount so fixed may be made binding as against the persons wrongfully refusing to account, unless he shall, within a fixed period after judgment, duly render a detailed and verified accounting, upon which a different valuation may fairly and reasonably be adjudicated.

Houde v. Marchand, 8 D.L.R. 431.

(§ VII L—497)—ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE AGAINST RAILER — DEATH OF HIBED HORSE CAUSED BY NEGLIGENT DRIVING.—REVIEW OF FINDINGS OF COURT—INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE TO SUSTAIN VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.

Foindel v. Gubb, 25 D.L.R. 738, 49 N.S.R. 383.

(§ VII L—498)—AMOUNT OF DAMAGES.

An assessment of damages by a trial judge for the flooding of lands will not be disturbed on appeal, notwithstanding the Appellate Court might, on the evidence, have reached a different conclusion.

Cain v. Peaire Co., 5 D.L.R. 23, 3 O.W.R. 1321, 22 O.W.R. 174.

AMOUNT OF DAMAGES—LIBEL ACTION TRIED WITHOUT JURY.

Where a libel action is tried with a jury the quantum of damages is peculiarly within their province and will not ordinarily be disturbed on appeal; and the same principle will apply on an appeal by plaintiff to increase the damages awarded by a judge trying a libel case without a jury.

OF FINDINGS OF COURT—DAMAGES.

A finding of the trial judge assessing damages for the negligence of a chattel mortgagee's agent in exercising the power of sale in the mortgage in such a manner that the mortgaged property became deteriorated and realized less than it ought to have realized upon the sale, should not be set aside on review, unless it appears that the Trial Judge's conclusions from the evidence before it are clearly erroneous. [McHugh v. Union Bank, 2 A.L.R. 319, affirmed; McHugh v. Union Bank, 3 A.L.R. 166, reversed in part; Union Bank v. McHugh, 44 Can. S.C.R. 473, reversed in part.]

McHugh v. Union Bank, 10 D.L.R. 562, 23 W.L.R. 409, 3 W.W.R. 1652, 108 L.T. 273, [1913] A.C. 299.

ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES BY TRIAL JUDGE—APPEAL.

Bateman v. County of Middlesex, 25 O.L.R. 137, 20 O.W.R. 567.

(§ VII L—509)—TRIAL WITHOUT JURY.

It is the duty of an Appellate Court to reverse the decision of a trial judge on a question of fact upon a trial without a jury, "if the evidence coerces the judgment" of the Appellate Court to do so.

Green, Swift & Co. v. Lawrence, 7 D.L.R. 589, 2 W.W.R. 932.

INCREASE OF DAMAGES BY APPELLATE COURT —TRIAL BELOW WITHOUT A JURY.

Where an action for personal injuries sustained through the defendant's negligence is tried by a judge without a jury and the damages awarded by him are so small as to shew that he must have omitted to take into consideration some of the elements of damage, the Appellate Court may, on appeal by the plaintiff, increase the amount on a consideration of the trial depositions without remitting the case for a new trial. [Rowley v. London and N.W.R. Co., L.R. 8 Ex. 221, and Phillips v. South Western R. Co., 5 Q.B.D. 78, applied.]

Vanborn v. Verral, 4 D.L.R. 624, 3 O.W.N. 1567, 22 O.W.R. 860.

FINDINGS OF FACT—TRIAL WITHOUT A JURY.

Upon the question as to whether the owner of farm lands, contiguous to a river, in protecting his lands against the inroads of the river by the construction of wind-dams, has exceeded his right of defense, and so constructed and maintained the wind-dams as to injure the lands of proprietors on the opposite bank of the river, or so as to alter the channel of the river to the detriment of the lands of his opposite neighbours; if the trial judge, trying the case without a jury, finds against the defendant, the Appellate Court will consider whether the evidence for the defendant is of such a strong and overwhelming character as to justify the overturning of the finding of the trial judge, and when unable, upon the whole case presented by the defense, to discover any such preponderating testimony, the finding will not be disturbed.

Lorraine v. Norrie, 6 D.L.R. 122, 46 N.S.R. 177.

REVIEW OF FACTS — PRIMA FACIE CASE — TRIAL WITHOUT JURY.

Where no reasons for judgment were given by the trial judge appealed from and it did not appear on the record in appeal therefrom that the trial judge had discredited the plaintiff's testimony, the judgment dismissing the action at the close of the plaintiff's case will be set aside and a new trial ordered if it appears to the Appellate Court that the plaintiff had made out a prima facie case which, on such ruling, the defendants desired to answer by calling witnesses.

McBride v. Rusk, 7 D.L.R. 656, 3 W.W.R. 223.

REVIEW OF FACTS—TRIAL WITHOUT JURY—APPELLATE COURT ITSELF REASSESSSES DAMAGES, WHEN.

The Court of Appeal will not necessarily send a case back to reassess the damages which, at the trial, had been allowed on a wrong basis against a wrongdoer, although there is no definite basis upon which to make the proper assessment; and if the Appellate Court, having all the evidence of damage before it is of opinion that $3000 is a proper sum to allow it will direct judgment for that amount, although the precise damage is problematical, rather than put the parties to further expense by remitting the case to another jury. [Chaplin v.

TRIAL WITHOUT JURY—FINDINGS OF COURT—REVIEW—EVIDENCE MISAPPREHENDED OR OVERLOOKED, EFFECT.

While an Appellate Court should be loth to interfere with a finding of fact by a Trial Judge who has tried a case without a jury, the court will nevertheless scrutinize the evidence with great care where it appears that the Trial Judge has misapprehended the effect of the evidence or failed to consider a material part of it, and in this respect will not support his finding. [Beal v. Michigan Central Railway, 19 O.L.R. 592, followed; Nassar v. Equity, 8 D.L.R. 645, 4 O.W.N. 340; Kinsman v. Kinsman, 7 D.L.R. 31; *Bateman v. Currie v. Hoskin, 9 D.L.R. 514, 4 O.W.N. 492, 23 O.W.R. 676.

FINDINGS OF COURT—TRIAL WITHOUT JURY—DEMEANOUR—REVIEW.

A Court of Appeal will not interfere in the finding of fact of a Trial Judge without a jury where the judge after hearing contradictory evidence has come to his decision upon the credibility of the witnesses as evidenced by their demeanour on the witness stand; but the rule is otherwise where the finding of fact depends upon the drawing of inferences from the facts in evidence. [Phoenix Ins. Co. v. McElhee, 18 Can. S.C.R. 61; North British Mer. Ins. Co. v. Tourville, 25 Can. S.C.R. 177; Jack v. Kearney (No. 2), 10 D.L.R. 48, distinguished; *Shaw v. TRIAL WITHOUT JURY—BASIS OF ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGE.

Although a jury is bound to assess damages for conversion of standing trees on timber land upon proper principles under judicial instructions, an assessment of such damages by the judge himself (without a jury) cannot be disturbed on appeal merely because such judicial assessment is made without indicating whether or not he himself is being governed by such principles.

(§ VII L.—310)—OF FINDINGS BY REFEREE.

Where there is evidence to support a finding of an arbitrator under the provisions of the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Act, who upon conflicting testimony found that the workman was not justified in leaving his place in the factory, and for purposes of his own, going behind a certain machine, where he was injured and that, in so doing, he was not acting in the course of his employment, such findings are findings of fact and not of law, and will not be disturbed by the Supreme Court of British Columbia upon a stated case on questions of law. [Low v. General Steam Fishing Co., [1909] A.C. 523, at p. 534, specially referred to.]

ARBITRATOR'S AWARD — HOW REVIEWED — REASONS NOT APPARENT OF RECORD.

The reasons or principles which guided arbitrators in making an award not contained in the award or supplemented therewith will not be reviewed on appeal.

MASTER'S REPORT—FINDINGS OF FACT.

Empire Limestone Co. v. Carroll, 16 D.L.R. 461, 5 O.W.N. 708, affirming 12 D.L.R. 841.

FINDINGS BY REFEREE—RECONSIDERATION ON APPEAL AS TO INFERENCE FROM SURROUNDING FACTS.

While a referee hearing the witnesses has the better opportunity for forming a right judgment upon the credibility of witnesses as affected by their demeanour in giving evidence and his finding where based upon credibility will not ordinarily be disturbed by an Appellate Court, the rule does not apply to the consideration of the weight to be given the evidence as affected by the surrounding circumstances and attendant facts; an Appellate Court should draw its own conclusions in regard to the probabilities and inferences to be drawn from such facts and circumstances.

McKenzie v. Elliott, 10 D.L.R. 466, 4 O.W.N. 1151, 24 O.W.R. 443.

FINDINGS BY REFEREE—MASTER IN ORDINARY—WEIGHT OF REFEREE'S FINDINGS RELATIVELY — TESTS — COMPARED WITH SCOPE OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Where in a claim for a fire loss the plaintiff sets up a $3,000 valuation and the defendant pays into court as sufficient to pay the plaintiff's entire claim $1,250, and where the Trial Judge determines in the plaintiff's favour the question of fraud in the plaintiff's proofs of loss, but refers the quantum of damages to a Master, and where the Master assesses the loss at only $400, upon an application by the plaintiff to set aside the findings of the Master upon the ground that he thereby, in effect at least, reversed the findings of the Trial Judge and thereby in substance though not in form found fraud in the proofs of loss, the objection basing such an application cannot be given effect, the decision of the Trial Judge merely having negatived at the time of the trial a fraudulent overvaluation, not an actual overvaluation, and not limiting the right to weigh the evidence to be thereafter given on the reference. [Nassar v. Equity Fire Insurance Co., 1 D.L.R. 222, referred to.]

Upon a reference to the Master in Ordinary from the trial court as to the quantum of damages in a claim for a fire loss, the findings of the Master (within the scope of such reference) are in certain respects on the same footing as the findings of the Trial Judge himself; and while upon appeal from such findings the Appellate Court does not and cannot abdicate its right and its duty to consider the evidence; yet where the Court of Appeal is asked to set aside the Master's findings it will give special weight to the following tests of their probable correctness: (a) Careful statement of reasons by the Master, (b) his personal inspection of the property involved, (c) his opportunity of seeing the witnesses on the stand. [Nassar v. Equity Fire Insurance Co., 1 D.L.R. 222; Beal v. Michigan Central R. Co. (1909), 19 O.L.R. 502; Booth v. Ratté, 21 Can. REVIEW OF MASTER'S REPORT—REOPENING—SOLICITOR'S NEGLECT—SUBSTANTIAL GRIEVANCE.

A motion by the defendants entitled to the equity of redemption to reopen a Master's report in a mortgage action upon the ground of mistake will not be refused where a substantial grievance to the defendants is suggested by the material produced and the mortgagee's security is ample, although the omission to bring all the facts before the Master may have been due to the default of the defendant's solicitor. (§ VII L—515)—ON APPEAL FROM APPELLATE COURT—CONCURRENT JUDGMENTS BELOW, EFFECT—ONUS ON APPELLANT.

Where the question is whether concurrent judgments in the courts below shall be reversed on the ground that the judges have taken an erroneous view of the facts, it is incumbent on the appellant to adduce the clearest proof that there is error in the judgment appealed from. [Whitney v. Joyce, 95 L.T.R.(N.S.) 74, applied.]

HEARING—REVIEW OF FACTS—SECOND APPEAL WHERE FIRST IS A TRIAL DE NOVO.

The findings of a County Court Judge upon an appeal from a summary conviction, where such appeal is in effect a re-hearing of the witnesses, and a trial de novo will not be disturbed on a further appeal, unless it appears that the County Court Judge was clearly wrong on the merits; and this doctrine applies where the County Court Judge preferred to follow the line of testimony discredited by the magistrate and consequently has reversed the latter's findings of fact.

R. v. Barker, 12 D.L.R. 346, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 267, 47 N.S.R. 248, 12 E.L.R. 535.

REVIEW OF FACTS—FINDINGS OF COURT—CONFLICTING TESTIMONY.

Where a finding of a referee or master on conflicting facts was affirmed by a judge on appeal, an Appellate Court will not ordinarily disturb the finding on a second appeal.

ON APPEAL FROM APPELLATE COURT.

The Supreme Court of Canada will not disturb a judgment of the Court of Appeal of British Columbia on a mere question of quantum of damages, where that court, by virtue of the power given to it by rule 869 (a) of the rules of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, has reduced a verdict of the trial court in an action for personal injuries arising out of an accident. [Taylor v. British Columbia Electric R. Co., 1 D.L.R. 384, 16 B.C.R. 429, affirmed.] The rule that the Supreme Court of Canada will not interfere with the judgment of a Provincial Court of Appeal reducing the quantum of damages assessed by the trial court does not prevent interference in cases where some element of damages for which no compensation is allowed by law may have been given a place in the total of damages reached. [Fraed v. Graham, 24 Q.B.D. 53, considered. See also Johnston v. Great Western R. Co., [1904] 2 K.B. 250, and Dunn v. Prescott Elevator Co., 26 A.R. (Ont.) 389, 30 Can. S.C.R. 620.]

Taylor v. B.C. Electric R. Co. (No. 2), 8 D.L.R. 724, 2 W.W.R. 923.

REVIEW OF FACTS—POWER TO HEAR WITNESSES AND TRY DE NOVO—DISPOSAL OF APPEAL ON TESTIMONY BELOW.

A county judge hearing an appeal from a conviction under the Ontario Temperance Act may himself hear evidence and deny the case, and, if neither party calls witnesses, the appeal may be disposed of on the depositions taken by the magistrate whose decision is appealed from; but, in the latter event, there should not be a reversal of the magistrate's finding of fact based upon competent evidence. Any reversal made by discrediting, without a rehearing, the testimony which the magistrate credited will be corrected on the further appeal given to the prosecution on terms of obtaining the Attorney-General's certificate (6 Geo. V. Ont. c. 50, s. 94). [Compare R. v. Barker, 12 D.L.R. 346, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 267, 47 N.S.R. 248.]

M. WHAT ERRORS WARRANT REVERSAL.

(§ VII M—520) — FINDINGS OF TRIAL JUDGE—WHAT ERRORS WARRANT REVERSAL—PROBABILITIES—WEIGHT.

An Appellate Court reviewing the weight of evidence adduced at a trial without a jury where it appears that the probabilities of the case are strongly against the trial judge's findings of fact and that the weight of the testimony is in accord with those probabilities, will set aside such findings.

CRIMINAL APPEALS—SUBSTANTIAL WRONG.

It is for the appellant under s. 1019 of the Cr. Code to establish that there has been a substantial wrong or miscarriage so as to entitle him to relief because of something done at the trial which was not in strict accordance with the law. [Allen v. The King, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 44 Can. S.C.R. 331, referred to; Criminal Appeal Act (Imp.) 1898, distinguished.]

The King v. Romano, 21 D.L.R. 195, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 39, 24 Que. K.B. 40.

(§ VII M—524) — CONSOLIDATION OF ACTIONS.

Where the plaintiff, while actions on policies of insurance were pending, to which defences had been interposed, brought two new actions, which, notwithstanding they had not proceeded to the length of pleading, were ordered consolidated with the older actions, after which the trial court found in favour of the plaintiff in all the actions, such order of consolidation, as well as the judgments so rendered, will be vacated, but without prejudice to an application to the trial court, under s. 158 of the Ont. Insurance Act of 1912 (2 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 33), to make a further order of consolidation upon the completion of the pleadings in the new actions, whereupon the cases shall be heard upon the evidence already taken, together with such further testimony as either party may desire to give in relation to such new actions.

(§ VII M—525)—WHAT ERRORS WARRANT REVERSAL—AS TO PLEADINGS—REAL ISSUE COVERED.

Where the statement of claim in an action as originally brought shews on its face nonjoinder of parties, the defect in pleading is not ground for reversal of judgment by the final Appellate Court, if it appears that the courts below had the right to treat the defective pleading as amended so as regularly to cover the real issue, in a form which afforded the relief to which the plaintiffs were held entitled, and that no substantial injustice ensued by reason of the courts below proceeding on such footing.

(§ VII M—535)—AS TO EVIDENCE.

Where evidence was, against defendant's objection, received by the court tending to prove a custom of which the court could take judicial notice without formal proof, its admission is not a ground for setting aside the verdict. [McKenzie v. Scovil, 12 N.B.R. 6, referred to.]

REJECTION OF EVIDENCE — SUBSTANTIAL WRONG NEGATED.

The rejection in an action for a breach of warranty of soundness on the sale of a horse, of testimony tending to shew that the horse was sound prior to and at the time of sale, does not occasion any substantial wrong or work a miscarriage of justice sufficient, under the N.B. Judicature Act, 1909, to justify the reversal of a judgment in favour of the plaintiff, where the defendant admitted that at the time he sold and warranted the horse, he had noticed that the intermittent attacks to which the horse was subject were of a serious nature, although he then declined to believe that the trouble was of more than a trifling character.

AS TO EVIDENCE — REVERSAL REFUSED, WHEN.

A finding at the trial in the plaintiff's favour, on his claim of title to lands by possession, will not be disturbed on appeal, where, although the evidence is conflicting as to continuous possession, there was some evidence upon which to base the finding.

Duncanson v. Atwell, 17 D.L.R. 135, 48 N.S.R. 113.

AS TO EVIDENCE.

It is the plain duty of an Appellate Court to reverse the findings of the trial judge, if it appears that he has misapprehended the effect of the evidence, or failed to consider a material part thereof, leading him to erroneous conclusions. [Beal v. Michigan Central R. Co., 19 O.L.R. 502, applied. See also Western Motors Ltd. v. Gilfoyle, 25 D.L.R. 378; Holt Timber Co. v.

CONFESSION IMPROPERLY ADMITTED.

Where the whole circumstances negative any reasonable inference that the accused freely and voluntarily made the confession or admission put in evidence against him, the uncontradicted evidence being all one way to shew that the accused was terrorized into making it, a conviction made in reliance upon such confession will be set aside on an appeal by case reserved; no order will be made remitting the case for a new trial if in the opinion of the Court of Appeal the interests of justice do not require it. [R. v. Lai Ping, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 467, 11 B.C.R. 102; R. v. Mulvihill, 18 D.L.R. 189, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 354, referred to.]

ERRORS WARRANTING REVERSAL—EVIDENCE—JUDGE'S FINDINGS.

CORRECTNESS OF COURT'S FINDINGS—CONFLICTING EVIDENCE.

Where the evidence at a trial is conflicting, the Appellate Court will not set aside the finding of the trial judge, who has had the advantage of seeing and hearing the witnesses, and forming a correct estimate of the value of their evidence, unless it is obvious that he has come to a wrong conclusion on the facts of the case.

CONFLICTING—ISSUE OF PURE FACT—FINDING OF TRIAL JUDGE—APPELLATE COURT NOT JUSTIFIED IN REVERSING.

An Appellate Court is not justified in reversing on an issue of pure fact the finding of a Trial Judge, necessarily and expressly made to depend upon the credit to be given to the conflicting evidence of the parties to the transaction whom he saw and heard testify.

Granger v. Brydon-Jack, 46 D.L.R. 571, 58 Can. S.C.R. 491, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 621, reversing 25 B.C.R. 531.

NEGLIGENCE—DAMAGES—SETTLEMENT—SUBSEQUENT CLAIM FOR FURTHER DAMAGES—ACCORD AND SATISFACTION

—EVIDENCE TAKEN ON COMMISSION—READING IN FULL DISPENSED WITH AT TRIAL—APPEAL ON QUESTIONS OF FACT.

At the conclusion of the plaintiff's case on the trial, counsel for the defence intimated that he desired to put in the whole of the evidence of a witness taken on commission and that that was his whole case. The Trial Judge then asked that he give the gist of what the evidence was. Counsel then gave a resume of the evidence, but asked that the court read the evidence before delivering judgment. The court refused to read the evidence and gave judgment for the plaintiff. Held, on appeal, that, after reading the evidence taken on commission, the court was of opinion that it would be impossible for a judge to form a true estimate of the weight of the evidence for the defence without reading it. That the court was not, therefore, subject to the ordinary rules as to deciding an appeal on questions of fact, and, after reading all the evidence, are of opinion the appeal should be allowed.

Coupland v. Foley Bros., Welch & Stewart, 25 B.C.R. 173.

CONFLICTING EVIDENCE—MATTER FOR JURY.

An appeal will not be allowed in a case where the issue between the parties is clear, and there is evidence both ways which is peculiarly for the jury, and the charge of the trial judge is impartial and fair.

Balsor v. Wood, 40 N.S.R. 560.

REVERSAL OF FINDINGS OF FACT—ACTION ON BUILDING CONTRACT.

The general rule that a Court of Appeal should not reverse the findings of fact of a Trial Judge when the testimony of the witnesses is contradictory is not an absolute one. When the question arises which of two witnesses is to be believed, and the question turns on manner and demeanour, the Court of Appeal always must be guided by the impression made on the judge who saw the witnesses; but there may be obviously other circumstances, quite apart from manner and demeanour, which may shew whether a statement is credible or not, and such circumstances may warrant the court in differing from the Trial Judge, even on a question of fact turning on the credibility of witnesses, whom the court has not seen. [Coghlan v. Cumberland, [1898] 1 Ch. 704; Khoo Sit Hoh v. Lim Thean Tong, [1912] A.C. 323, followed.] On an appeal by the plaintiff from a judgment in an action, tried without a jury, arising out of an oral contract for the construction of a building, held that the Trial Judge's findings could not be supported by the evidence and that the judgment entered for the defendant should be set aside and judgment entered for the plaintiff. Howell, C.J.M., dissenting, thought the judgment of the trial should not be disturbed.

MURDER—JUDGE'S CHARGE—ERROR IN REVERSING THE ORDER OF WITNESS' STATEMENTS.

(§ VII M—536)—FACTS NOT IN DISPUTE—INFERENCES — RIGHT OF APPELLATE COURT TO DRAW.

Where the facts of a case are not in dispute and the action depends on inferences to be drawn from those facts an Appellate Court should draw its own inferences. Magill v. Tp. of Moore, 46 D.L.R. 562, 59 Can. S.C.R. 9, affirming 44 D.L.R. 489, 43 O.L.R. 372.

MISAPPREHENSION OF EVIDENCE BY TRIAL
JUDGE — REVERSAL OF JUDGMENT BY APPELLATE COURT.

Where it is evident that a trial judge has misapprehended the evidence, an Appellate Court will reverse his finding and give judgment in accordance with the weight and reliability of the evidence.

(§ VII M—541)—ERRONEOUS REASON.

A judgment of a trial judge will be reversed on a question of fact only when it is evident that he made a mistake, and where the evidence, as a whole, does not sustain his decision.

Baillargeon v. St. George's, 4 D.L.R. 894, 22 Que. K.B. 6.

(§ VII M—542)—CRIMINAL CASE—STAT-UTORY CORROBORATION—ERROR IN REC-LING AT CLOSE OF PROSECUTOR'S CASE.

If the presiding judge on the trial of a criminal case erroneously rules at the close of the Crown's case that the prosecution has made out the corroboration required by statute for the particular offence and refuses the defendant's motion to take the case from the jury for lack of corroboration, the defense may either rest its case or adduce evidence in defence, but if it elects the latter course and sufficient corroboration is made out from the defendant's witnesses the defendant cannot, upon an appeal by case reserved, take advantage of the absence of corroborative evidence at the close of the Crown's case. [R. v. Girvin, 45 Can. S.C.R. 167; and R. v. Fraser, 7 Cr. App. R. 99, followed.]

R. v. Wakelyn, 10 D.L.R. 455, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 111, 5 A.L.R. 464, 23 W.L.R. 807, 4 W.W.R. 170.

CRIMINAL TRIAL — INADMISSIBLE TESTI-MONY.

In a criminal case not of the class in which a wife may testify by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act or of the common law against her husband, the wrongful taking of the wife's testimony against her husband is a ground for a new trial under s. 1019 as a "substantial wrong." If the evidence of the wife is material and of such a character that it may have had an influence with the jury in leading them to find a verdict of guilty. [Makin v. Attorney-General of N.S.W., [1894] A.C. 57; and Allen v. The King, 44 Can. S.C.R. 331, applied.]

R. v. Allen, 14 D.L.R. 825, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 124, 41 N.B.R. 510.

MISJOINDER OF COUNTS—ABORTION—MAN-SLAUGHTER.

Where a count under Code s. 303 for unlawfully administering noxious drugs to procure a miscarriage are joined with a count for manslaughter for the death alleged to have been occasioned thereby, such added count should be withdrawn if the prosecution uses the woman's dying declaration as evidence in the manslaughter charge, and a new trial will be ordered where this was refused and the jury found the accused guilty of unlawfully administering but disbelieving on the manslaughter count.

(§ VII M—545)—UNCONTESTED FACTS.

In a case on appeal, where the Appellate Court (Alberta) is, upon the hearing of an appeal, restricted in the receiving of evidence "on questions of fact as to matters which have occurred after the date of the decision from which the appeal is brought," yet it has the power to grant a new trial for the purpose of enabling additional evidence to be given, and, since the Supreme Court of Canada (under Supreme Court Act, s. 98), in the event of an appeal to it, would have power itself to receive further evidence, a case on appeal in the Alberta Court may properly be treated as though a statutory law of another province (specially referred to by both parties in the pleadings as in force), had been duly proved at the trial.

Dodge v. Western Canada Fire Ins. Co. (No. 2), 6 D.L.R. 355, 5 A.L.R. 294, 2 W.W.R. 972.

(§ VII M—550) — FACTS OTHERWISE PROVED.

Where the defendant, in a criminal conversation case was examined for discovery before the trial without objecting to testify on the ground of privilege, and where he testified in his own defence at the trial and upon cross-examination repeated substantially everything included in the discovery depositions an objection taken on appeal against the verdict on the ground that the depositions on discovery were put in evidence at the trial by the plaintiff against the defendant's objection founded on the statute 32-33 Vict. (Imp.) c. 68, s. 3, will not be allowed. [Fleury v. Campbell, 18 P.R. (Ont.) 110, referred to.]

WHAT ERRORS WARRANT REVERSAL — FACTS
OTHERWISE PROVED — NO SUBSTANTIAL WRONG.

Upon a criminal appeal by way of appeal upon a case reserved setting up misdirection and improper reception of evidence, the provision of s. 1019 of the Code is applied and the conviction stands where (a) the clearly competent evidence of the case strongly supported the finding of guilt, and (b) the Appellate Court is unable to say that "something not according to law was done at the trial or some misdirection given" whereby "some substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned on the trial."

R. v. Minchin, 18 D.L.R. 340, 6 W.W.R. 800, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 414, affirming 15 D.L.R. 792.

REVERSAL AS TO FACTS—REVERSAL INVOLVING FINDING OF FRAUD.

The Court of Appeal ought not to reverse the finding of a trial judge who heard the evidence and observed the demeanour of witnesses and gave credit to their story, especially in the case where the reversal involves a finding of gross fraud, where there are no collateral facts or circumstances or fundamental facts regarding matters in dispute upon which the Appellate Court so reversing can with absolute confidence and assurance rely and feel they are not mistaken.

(§ VII M—575) — IN CASES TRIED WITHOUT A JURY.

In an action for malicious prosecution and false arrest tried without a jury, an Appellate Court has the right to revise the judgment of the trial judge as to the appreciation of evidence offered for or against the character of one of the parties to the suit, and to increase the amount of damages awarded when the allowance is unjust and unfair.

AS TO EVIDENCE—FINDINGS ON TRIAL WITHOUT A JURY.

(§ VII M—580) — REVERSIBLE ERROR — INSTRUCTION—OBJECTION NOT SUSTAINED BY RECORD.

A verdict will not be disturbed where the record on appeal does not sustain an objection that the jury was erroneously instructed on a certain point.

(§ VII M—588) — MISDIRECTION.

Upon a motion for a new trial on the ground of misdirection, the expressions objected to are to be interpreted by the meaning conveyed as they are associated with the context, and the question of misdirection is to be determined upon a fair and reasonable construction of the entire charge given to the jury.

CONVICTION FOR ATTEMPT ONLY—NO EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT IF PRINCIPAL CHARGE NEGATIVE—MISDIRECTION.

The King v. Menary, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 237, 23 O.L.R. 323.

(§ VII M—594) — AS TO INSTRUCTIONS — NEGLIGENCE OF MASTER — MISDIRECTION, WHEN IMMATERIAL.

On an appeal in a negligence action, an erroneous direction to the jury on the facts is not ground for reversal, where the misdirection appears not to have influenced the jury's finding.

(§ VII M—614) — JOINT TRIAL FOR MURDER — CAUTIONING JURY THAT ADMISSION OF ONE DEFENDANT IS INADMISSIBLE AGAINST THE OTHER — SUBSTANTIAL WRONG—CR. CODE (1906), s. 1019.

The failure of the trial judge to caution the jury on the trial together of two persons charged with murder, that any admission or confession made by one of the accused not in the presence of the other is only evidence against the one making such confession or admission, will not be a ground for a new trial where the statement was brought out on the Crown's cross-examination of the latter as a witness on his own behalf, and the codefendant, now objecting, had, by his counsel, dealt with it in cross-examination of such witness, if it be manifest to the Appellate Court from the evidence (including the objecting defendant's own testimony) that there had been no substantial wrong or miscarriage on the trial by reason of such warning not being given. [See as to admissions of one defendant on trial of joint indictment, R. v. Martin, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 371; R. v. Connors, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 70, 3 Que. Q.B. 100; R. v. Blais, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 354, 358.]

R. v. Davis, 16 D.L.R. 149, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 431, 19 B.C.R. 50, 26 W.L.R. 912, 5 W.W.R. 1340, 6 W.W.R. 12.

REVERSIBLE ERRORS—RESERVING RULING AS TO CROWN EVIDENCE — DEFENCE ENTERED UPON IN MEANTIME.

On a criminal trial it is not reversible error for the trial judge to reserve until after the hearing of the witnesses in the case an objection to the placing in evidence of the prior deposition of an absent witness taken on the preliminary enquiry and compelling the accused to proceed with his defence without a ruling on the objection, where the accused had available all that he was required to answer in his defence including the questioned deposition which was finally admitted.

R. v. Frank, 14 D.L.R. 382, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 100.

CRIMINAL TRIAL—PREJUDICE.

A conviction will not be set aside, or leave to appeal granted, because the judge presiding at the trial had in his charge to the jury erroneously commented on secondary matters unless in the opinion of the Appeal Court the accused has suffered prejudice therefrom.

R. v. Shayanez, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 438, 25 Que. K.B. 316.

AS TO EVIDENCE—HOMICIDE.

A conviction based upon nondirection or misdirection as to the applicability of evidence is not saved on the ground that there has been no substantial wrong or miscarriage (Cr. Code, s. 1019), merely because there is ample evidence to support a conviction without the incompetent testimony; the Court of Appeal should not allow the conviction to stand unless it comes to the conclusion that the jury would certainly have convicted even if the error had not intervened.

R. v. Duckworth, 31 D.L.R. 571, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 314, 37 O.L.R. 197, 10 O.W.N. 267.

SUMMARY CONVICTION — REHEARING ON MERITS.

On an appeal from a summary conviction, the complaint is to be reheard on the merits notwithstanding such an irregularity as the omission from the conviction of costs which the magistrate had ordered in the adjudication below. [R. v. Dunlop, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 245, referred to.]

R. v. Murphy (No. 1) (N.S.), 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 445.

CRIMINAL TRIAL—VERDICT.

The Court of Appeal is not to set aside a verdict in a criminal case on the ground that it does not accord with its views of what the verdict should be. To do so it must be satisfied that the evidence does not constitute such legal evidence as could satisfy honest men.

R. v. Green; R. v. Bosomworth (Alta.), 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 425.

CRIMINAL TRIAL—INSTRUCTION TO JURY—MISDIRECTION AS TO ONUS OF PROOF OF ALIBI.

A new trial will be ordered if the effect of the judge's charge to the jury, taken as a whole, was to cause the jury to believe that they would be justified in acquitting on the ground of an alibi raised, only in the event of the accused proving there was no possibility of his being at the place of the alleged offence at the time it is sworn to have taken place.

R. v. Akerley, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 343, 46 N.B.R. 195.

(§ VII M—615)—INSTRUCTIONS TO JURY—PREJUDICIAL ERROR ON REFUSAL OF APPLICATION TO MODIFY—CRIMINAL CASE.

Where due warning has been given in the judge's charge against crediting the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, the fact that further references to the subject in the charge and the refusal of the Crown's request for a specific direction that they might convict if they saw fit upon such evidence may have led the jury to understand that it was not competent for them to find a verdict on such evidence, should not be made a ground for placing the accused twice in jeopardy by ordering a new trial on an appeal by the Crown after his acquittal; such circumstances are insufficient to constitute a "substantial wrong or miscarriage" in the terms of Cr. Code, s. 1019, limiting the right of an Appellate Court to grant a new trial. [R. v. Bechtel (No. 1), 5 D.L.R. 497, 4 A.L.R. 402, discussed and doubted.]

R. v. Bechtel (No. 2), 9 D.L.R. 552, 24 W.L.R. 470.

INACCURACY IN SUMMING UP—CONDUCTING TO WRONG VERDICT.

An inaccurate statement as to the facts made by a judge in summing up, will not necessarily be a ground for a new trial; the party claiming to have been adversely affected by the error must show that the misstatement was of a character which must have conducted to a wrong verdict. [Clark v. Molyneux, 3 Q.B.D. 237, referred to.]

Caswell v. Toronto R. Co., 24 O.L.R. 339, 19 O.W.R. 785.

(§ VII M—628)—ADVOCATE'S AUTHORITY—FORMS OF JUDICIAL ADMISSION—REVOCATION OF ADMISSION—QUE. C.C. 1027, 1065, 1472, 1476, 1477, 1478—QUE. C.P. 3, 251, 286-290, 316, 359-372.

An advocate's admission, as also the respondent's admission at the hearing in appeal, to the effect that the mis-en-cause appellant has, since the trial began, obtained from the principal appellant a simple deed of sale of the property in question, cannot make up for the absence of peremptory exception necessary to establish that ground, such an admission, however, cannot be of any value when made by the advocate, as he has no authority to that effect. An advocate, without special authority, has no power to make any admission on behalf of his client; he may always, even before disavowal, obtain permission to retract an imprudent admission he may have made without any right. The forms of a judicial admission are limited to the following cases; interrogatory before inquest; interrogatory on articulated facts; interrogatory during inquest, serment en plaid, admission-judgment. The form of revocation of an admission is not described in our procedure; by analogy, a simple petition may, therefore, meet the purpose, during the trial, or a petition in revocation of judgment, after judgment has been rendered.

Cousineau v. Gagnon, 23 Que. K.B. 309.

(§ VII M—630)—OPINION EXPRESSED BY JUDGE.

It is not a ground for appeal that the Trial Judge told the jury what verdict he would give if he were a juror.

(§ VII M—635)—JURY—QUESTIONS SUBMITTED—INSTRUCTIONS—NEW TRIAL.

If the jury does not answer questions submitted to them, which are of great importance to the right determination of the issues involved, on the ground that they do not understand one of the questions, and if they are not further instructed by the judge, a new trial will be ordered.

Scott & Co. v. McCain Produce Co., 40 D.L.R. 342, 45 N.B.R. 379.

(§ VII M—636)—EVIDENCE WARRANTING NONSUIT—FAILURE OF DEFENDANT TO ASK—VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF—POWER OF APPELLATE COURT ON APPEAL.

If a Court of Appeal is of opinion that they have all the facts before them, and that there is no reason to think that further evidence of importance could be produced at another trial, and is also of opinion that the evidence given at the trial was such that the presiding judge should, if asked by the defendant's counsel, have either nonsuited the plaintiff or directed a verdict for the defendant, the court has power under order LVIII, r. 4 (Eng.) not only to set aside a verdict for the plaintiff, but to enter judgment for the defendant. A requisition to a judge at the trial to enter a nonsuit or direct a verdict for a defendant is not a condition precedent which must be fulfilled in order to entitle him to do either.

(§ VII M—640)—SUMMONING AND SELECTION OF JURY.

The omission of the sheriff, in striking from the grand jury panel, on his own motion, the names of two jurors known to him to be exempt from jury duty, and the substituting of duly qualified jurors therefor, to have before him the affidavit of exemption required by s. 43 of c. 162 of R.S.N.S., cannot, under the provisions of s. 1011 of the Criminal Code (1906), be questioned on appeal from a judgment in a criminal case.

The King v. Brown and Diggs, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 237, 45 N.S.R. 473.

SUBSTANTIAL WRONG OR MISCARriage—CONSTITUTION OF GRAND JURY.

In determining whether or not any "substantial wrong or miscarriage" has been occasioned on the trial within the meaning of Cr. Code, s. 1019, as to criminal appeals, the Appellate Court hearing a case reserved upon an objection to the constitution of the Grand Jury which the trial judge refused to allow on motion to quash the indictment (Cr. Code, s. 899) must have regard also to the curative provisions of Cr. Code, s. 1011, as to the preparation of jury lists and jury panels and to the limitation made by s. 899 (2) whereby an objection to the constitution of the grand jury is not to be allowed on a motion to quash unless the accused has suffered or may suffer prejudice by the subject-matter of such objection. [R. v. Hayes, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 101, 11 B.C.R. 4; R. v. Brown, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 237, 45 N.S.R. 473, referred to.]

R. v. Morrow, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 310.

(§ VII M—650)—MISDIRECTION—NEW TRIAL.

Where the evidence on a material issue is contradictory, and the effect of the charge is to preclude the jury from finding the issue in favour of one of the parties without disregarding the charge, a new trial will be granted for misdirection.

Re Toronto and Hamilton Highway Commission and Crabb, 32 D.L.R. 706, 37 O.L.R. 656.

FINDING OF JURY AGAINST UNCONVERTED EVIDENCE—NEW TRIAL.

If the Appellate Court is of opinion that the jury were not justified in refusing to believe the uncontradicted evidence of witnesses in support of a claim for damages in respect of defects in and inferior quality of goods supplied, it may order a new trial in respect of the disallowance of such claim.

Victor Mfg. Co. v. Regina Trading Co., 14 D.L.R. 801, 6 S.L.R. 302, 26 W.L.R. 157, 5 W.A.R. 624.

MURDER—COGENCY OF EVIDENCE—QUESTION FOR MURDER.

The King v. Bennett, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 322 (Ont.).

CONTRACT—COMMISSION—PLEADINGS—AMENDMENT OF—VERDICT OF JURY—ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS—UNCERTAINTY OF MEANING—NEW TRIAL.

An application for amendment of the pleadings during the course of the trial should be either granted or refused at once, and when granted, the applicant should be required to put in his amendment in writing forthwith. When the jury's answers to questions are so insufficient and vague that it is apparent they were confused when answering them, and their meaning is not sufficiently plain for judgment to be entered upon them, a new trial will be ordered.

Sawyer v. Millett, 25 B.C.R. 193.

(§ VII M—657)—JURY FINDING—INSUFFICIENCY—SPECIFIC QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY GENERAL FINDING.

The answers of a jury to questions put to them by a judge, must be such that, having regard to the evidence adduced the court can say that there is evidence to support their finding, and that that evidence discloses a ground of legal liability, and where several questions respecting definite and specific possible acts of negligence of a certain kind are put by the judge, and the jury find negligence of that kind generally, a new trial will be ordered.

INSUFFICIENCY OF FINDINGS—DIRECTING NEW TRIAL—EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY ACTION.

Although an Appellate Court may have statutory power to draw inferences of fact and to give any judgment and make any order which ought to have been made in the trial court, and to make such further or other order as the case in appeal may require, nevertheless, it should not undertake the functions of a jury where it may be reasonably open to them to come to more than one conclusion on the evidence. [Paquin v. Beaulerck, [1906] A.C. 148, and Skeate v. Slaters, 30 Times L.R. 290, referred to.]

McPhee v. Esquimalt and Nanaimo R. Co., 16 D.L.R. 756, 49 Can. S.C.R. 43, 5 W.W.R. 926, 27 W.L.R. 444. [Referred to in Radowitch v. Parsons, 19 D.L.R. 8.]

SUFFICIENCY OF FINDINGS—VERDICT NOT DISTURBED, WHEN—EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY ACTION.

A verdict denying the plaintiff's right of action against his employer founded on negligence, will not be set aside as perverse unless the evidence is such that only one conclusion can be drawn from the evidence and that no jury could properly find a verdict on it other than one for the plaintiff. [Paquin v. Beaulerck, [1906] A.C. 148; McPhee v. Esquimalt & N.R. Co., 16 D.L.R. 756, 49 Can. S.C.R. 43; Toulmin v. Millar, 12 App. Cas. 746; Skeate v. Slaters, [1914] 2 K.B. 429; Alcock v. Radowitch v. Parsons, 19 D.L.R. 8, 8 A.L.R. 323, 30 W.L.R. 213, 7 W.W.R. 885.

INSUFFICIENCY OF VERDICT.

It is the duty of an Appellate Court to sustain a judgment upon a verdict if there is reasonable evidence to support the findings and if the findings themselves are reasonably sufficient to determine the issues between the parties.

VERDICT AGAINST EVIDENCE.

A jury's findings against the right of a partner to compel another partner to repurchase his interest less his share of any loss upon his withdrawal from the business, in face of evidence establishing an agreement to that effect, will be set aside on appeal.

Where an application is made by a landlord to a county judge against an over-holding tenant under the Landlord and Tenant Act (Ont.), and where the judge makes no findings of fact, but simply dismisses the application, it is in substance an application for a writ of possession, and the judge's refusal to make any finding as to whether the tenant "wrongfully holds against the right of the landlord," although dismissing the application, is, in effect, a refusal of a writ of possession from which there is a right of appeal to the Divisional Court under s. 78 of the Act. [Landlord and Tenant Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 37, ss. 75 and 78, referred to.]

JUDGMENT OF TRIAL JUDGE BASED ON ORAL EVIDENCE—FAILURE TO GIVE REASONS—JUDGMENT NOT SUSTAINED BY EVIDENCE—REVERSAL.

A judgment of a trial judge based on oral evidence will be reversed on appeal where no reasons for his conclusions are given, and the Appellate Court is satisfied that the judgment is not sustained by the evidence.

(§ VII M—659)—AMOUNT—MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

The sum of ten thousand dollars is not excessive damages for personal injuries to a servant twenty-six years old due to a collision between trains causing him to be knocked down by the coal heater of the car he was in and to be so severely burned by the coals that his face was badly disfigured and his head was left so tender that he would not be able to stand extreme heat or cold and his right hand was so severely burned as to render it permanently useless, leaving him unable to follow his trade of blacksmith. EXCESSIVE VERDICT—MEASURE OF DAMAGE—PERSONAL INJURIES ACTION.

Twelve thousand dollars is not an excessive verdict for damages for personal injuries to one left a permanent cripple and unable to follow his usual occupation as conductor of a construction train earning two hundred and fifty dollars a month in summer and as conductor of a freight train in winter earning, at least, one hundred and twenty dollars a month, whose future earning power would be problematical and such verdict cannot be said to have been founded upon a wrong measure of damage where the income which it would bring in, at current investment rates, would be less than one half of his previous earnings. [Johnston v. G. W. R. Co., [1904] 2 K.B. 250; Bateman v. Middlesex, 25 O.L.R. 137, and

MEASURE OF DAMAGES—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—INCREASING THE AMOUNT ON APPEAL.

The appellate court may modify the judgment below by increasing the damages on the plaintiff's appeal, if the court below has underestimated the percentage of loss of earning power which the evidence shews to have resulted to the workman in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

A. IN GENERAL.

See Judgments.

(§ VIII A—665)—INTERPRETATION OF JUDGMENT—DIRECTIONS TO REFEREE.

If it is desired to ascertain what has been decided by a court the course is not to go to remarks made by members of the court during the argument but to go to the considered decision and the decree or order taken out thereon. In allowing the appeal and remitting the case to the referee the Privy Council gave explicit directions to the referee upon one branch of the case, and refrained from giving directions upon another branch as to which directions were asked for:—Held, that an intention not to give such directions was to be inferred and that the referee having complied with the directions given was functus. Where the judgment of the court deals with several points and the appeal is asserted only as to certain points and not as to others, the judgment as to points not appealed from is not open to further consideration.

UNSIGNING OPINION OF JUDGE AS JUDGMENT.

Where judgment is reserved after argument, and the decision of one of the judges, in his own handwriting but not signed, is later handed to the presiding judge of the court, who subsequently, in delivering judgment, announces the decision of the absent judge:—Held, that if the court is satisfied that the opinion which reaches them is the opinion of the judge, though not signed, it must be accepted as an effective judgment from the day it is pronounced, and the subsequent filing thereof with the registrar of the court is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the Court of Appeal Act.

Ferrera v. National Surety Co. (No. 2), 23 B.C.R. 122.

INTERLOCUTORY OR FINAL JUDGMENT.

Every interlocutory judgment can be reviewed by the final judgment, or by that rendered by the Appellate Court, and the latter has jurisdiction to set aside a final judgment and to render in its place an interlocutory judgment, as in the case where it reverses a judgment dismissing an action, upon an inscription en droit, and remits the cause to the court of first instance for hearing upon the merits.

PROVISIONAL EXECUTION—ALIMENTARY PENSION—ARREARS AND COSTS.

In an appeal from a judgment ordering a mother-in-law to pay an alimentary pension to her daughter-in-law for herself and her son, two judges of the Court of Appeal (in Chambers) granted the respondent, upon proof by affidavit, provisional execution of the judgment without security, but only for future pensions on maturity, and not for arrears or for costs.

B. RENDERING MODIFIED JUDGMENT.

(§ VIII B—670)—ASSESSMENT OF COMPENSATION BY APPELLATE COURT—B.C. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

The Court of Appeal, upon reversing, because of negligence on the part of the defendant was shewn, a judgment in favour of the plaintiff for negligently causing the death of her son, based on Lord Campbell's Act and the Employers' Liability Act as well, cannot assess compensation under s. 6, of subs. 4, of the Workmen's Compensation Act (B.C.); the trial court is the only tribunal with jurisdiction to do so. plying McCormick v. Kelliher, 4 D.L.R. 657, affirmed.]

RENDERING MODIFIED JUDGMENT—SUPPLEMENTING THE FINDINGS OF JURY—TO AVOID COSTS OF NEW TRIAL.

The power conferred by subs. 2 of s. 27 of the Judicature Act (1913 Ont. c. 19) upon the Appellate Court to supplement the findings of the jury as to negligence where the answers of the jury do not dispose of the case, may be exercised where only a small amount is in question, and the costs of a new trial would make the costs of the litigation out of proportion to the amount involved, and where the proposed supplementary finding of the Appellate Court is such that the jury probably intended so to find and is consistent with the jury's answers.

JUDGMENT—RESERVING JUDGMENT INSTEAD OF GRANTING NEW TRIAL—PERVERSE VERDICT—NECESSARY MATERIAL BEFORE APPELLATE COURT.

CRIMINAL CASE—RENDERING MODIFIED JUDGMENT—SENTENCE OF WHIPPING.

Where a sentence of whipping imposed on a summary trial was successfully attacked as having improperly included a direction as to the times when the whipping should take place, which by statute was under the control of the prison surgeon and not of the magistrate, and pending such determination in a habeas corpus application the court had stayed proceedings in respect thereof, the court has a discretion to strike out the sentence of whipping and confirm the sentence of imprisonment if the latter is so near expiry that it would be impossible to carry out the evident intention of the convicting magistrate that the first half of the whipping should be given at a considerable interval from the second half.

R. v. Boardman, 18 D.L.R. 698, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 191, 9 A.L.R. 83, 29 W.L.R. 176, 6 W.W.R. 1304.

JURISDICTION TO ENTER JUDGMENT UPON EVIDENCE.

The Court of Appeal is entitled to give judgment for a defendant although a verdict has already been given by a jury for the plaintiff, there being some evidence to support that verdict, if the Court of Appeal is satisfied that there is all the evidence before it that could be obtained and no reasonable view of that evidence could justify the verdict for the plaintiff.

Mackenzie v. B.C. Electric R. Co., 21 B.C.R. 375, 8 W.W.R. 956.

(§ VIII B—672)—WHERE PROPER DECISION CANNOT BE GIVEN—DUTY OF APPELLATE COURT—NEW TRIAL.

Where an Appellate Court is not satisfied upon the argument of the appeal that the case has been so fully developed as to enable a proper decision to be given, it should direct a new trial.

Re Fraser; Fraser v. Robertson; McCormick v. Fraser, 8 D.L.R. 955, 26 O.L.R. 508, 22 O.W.R. 353.

REDUCTION OF DAMAGES. REMITTITUR.

In an action for personal injuries in a negligence action against a street railway, where it appeared that the plaintiff, a man aged thirty-one, was permanently incapacitated by the injury from following any continuous occupation, although he might be able to earn something towards his own support, a verdict for $11,500 is not unreasonable and will not, under ordinary circumstances, form a ground for ordering a new trial or reducing the verdict on appeal.

Carty v. B. C. Electric Co., 2 D.L.R. 276, 19 W.L.R. 905, 1 W.W.R. 523.

REDUCTION OF DAMAGES—PLAINTIFF'S ABANDONMENT OF EXCESS.

An Appellate Court has the power without remitting the case to another jury for assessment to award damages at a reduced sum thought to be reasonable, on the abandonment of the excess by the plaintiff, although the original verdict was excessive.

INCREASING AMOUNT OF ARBITRATORS' AWARD.

Upon an appeal from the award of arbitrators made under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, the Appellate Court may increase the amount of the award, upon consideration of the evidence given before the arbitrators.

Lake Erie & Northern R. Co. v. Brantford Golf & Country Club, 32 D.L.R. 219, varying 32 O.L.R. 141.

(§ VIII B—673)—INCONSISTENT COUNTS—DIRECTIONS AS TO SENTENCE.

Where the majority of the Court of Appeal in deciding a reserved case on counts for three separate crimes charged on the same facts, holds that the accused at least was properly found guilty of one of such crimes, and that the penalty should be imposed as for one crime only, a direction may be given under Cr. Code, s. 1020 that the trial judge, in passing sentence which had been postponed until after the appeal, shall impose one penalty in respect of the three counts and regulate the extent of same by the maximum which would apply to the lesser offence. The Supreme Court of Canada, on a further appeal under Cr. Code, s. 1024, will decline to deal with the question of the validity of the conviction on the other counts as raising mere academic questions under such circumstances, if it finds the verdict for such lesser offence unsatisfactory.

PUNISHMENT APPROPRIATE TO COUNTS.

Cr. Code, s. 1020 would enable the Court of Appeal on a case reserved upon a general verdict to affirm a sentence appropriate to counts properly framed and which were supported by the evidence without regard to other counts framed upon the wrong enactment and therefore not supported by the evidence.

R. v. McDonald, 28 D.L.R. 377, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 106, 49 N.S.R. 245.

REVERSING AN ACQUITTAL ORDERED ON QUESTION OF LAW.—Cr. Code, s. 1018.

Upon a reserved case by a judge of sessions trying without a jury a charge for an indictable offence upon which he entered an acquittal based solely on specific points of law found by the Appellate Court not to be well founded, the Appellate Court may itself find the accused guilty and remand him to the lower court for sentence.

R. v. Gross & Miller, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 35.

C. REMANDING; GRANTING NEW TRIAL.

See New Trial.

(§ VIII C.—675)—REMANDING, REMITTITUR.

Where, at the close of the evidence in the trial of a breach of contract case, upon the motion of plaintiff for the appointment of viewers and experts the trial judge irregularly appoints a single expert under ss. 392 et seq. of the Code of Civil Procedure (Que.), and such appointment is on appeal declared irregular, the cause will be remitted to the trial court to be reinscribed for hearing on the roll at the stage it had reached when the motion for expertise was made. Where the Trial Judge submits to a single expert, appointed by the judge sua sponte at the trial, questions not relevant under the pleadings, the cause will be remitted for rehearing from the point reached in the trial when the motion for the appointment of the expert was entered.

NEGLIGENCE—COMMON LAW—EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY—NEW TRIAL WHEN.

Where in a negligence action both at common law and under the Employers' Liability Act, B.C., the verdict is in excess of that allowed under the Act, a new trial will be ordered so as to dispose of the claim under the Act if the verdict cannot be supported at common law. [Shearer v. Canadian Collieries, 16 D.L.R. 541, followed.]

Creveling v. Canadian Bridge Co., 20

DAMAGES—POINT RAISED ON APPEAL NOT CONSIDERED BY TRIAL JUDGE—REMITTING CASE BACK TO HAVE POINT DETERMINED.

Where from the evidence it is impossible for an Appellate Court to say that the point raised and urged by the appellants was in fact considered by the judge by whom damages were assessed, and if it was omitted from his consideration, there is a flaw in his judgment which requires to be remedied. The only order that should be made is an order to remit the case back so that the point may be determined.

Foley Bros v. McIlwae, 44 D.L.R. 5, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 403. [See 24 B.C.R. 532.]

REMITTING CASE TO ADD NEW GROUND OF APPEAL FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION—CASE STATED BY A JUSTICE ON POINT OF LAW.

On an appeal by way of case stated by a justice on points of law affecting a summary conviction, the court hearing the appeal may remit the case for amendment so as to add a new ground which had been raised below and which appeared from the depositions to be decisive of the appeal on the merits of the controversy.

R. v. McFarland, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 649.

CRIMINAL CASE—ALIBI—MISDIRECTION—NEW TRIAL.

If the omission of the judge in his charge to the jury to refer to confirmatory circumstances brought out in evidence upon an alibi claim was such as to seriously prejudice the accused and to make the judge's statement of the evidence misleading to the jury, it is proper to grant a new trial on a case reserved.

R. v. Hyder (Sask.), 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 172.

REMANDING FOR AMENDMENT—ANNULMENT—DURESS.

If in an intervention, on the ground of duress, the assignor does not ask for the nullifying of the deed of cession, the Court of Review, in the interest of justice, and under the principle that "it is the subject-matter which prevails over the form," will order the case sent back to the Superior Court, so as to permit the intervening party to make the necessary conclusions to have such transfer annulled.

Gagnon v. Seguin, 49 Que. S.C. 355.

TRIAL—JURY—DAMAGES—WRONGFUL ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE.

In an action for damages for injury to an infant plaintiff tried before a jury the wrongful admission of evidence as to his father's health on the question of damages was held not to justify a new trial, as there was little evidence given on the point, it was not objected to at the trial, the same subject-matter was touched upon the cross-examination of the father, the father was not mentioned in the judge's address to the jury, and the Court of Appeal considered the evidence under the circumstances innocuous.

Ward v. Mainland Transfer Co., [1919] 3 W.W.R. 193.

(§ VIII C-676)—DIRECTION TO TRIAL COURT.

Upon an appeal from a decision of a District Court Judge under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.), limited by statute to questions of law, the Appellate Court on reversing the trial judge as to the law will remit the cause to the trial judge if a further finding of fact becomes necessary because of such reversal, so that the District Court Judge may pronounce a new judgment in view of the decision in appeal and of his own further findings of fact.

(§ VIII C-677)—ENFORCEMENT OF AFFIRMED JUDGMENTS.

S. 150 subs. (e) of the Liquor License Act, R.S.N.S. 1909, c. 190, which provides that, upon the affirmation on appeal of a conviction thereunder, if it is adjudged by the conviction that the person convicted "shall be imprisoned," the County Court Judge hearing the appeal may issue his warrant of commitment, applies only where the commitment imposed imprisonment in the first instance without the alternative of a fine, and the County Court Judge has no authority to issue a warrant of commitment because of the default of the unsuccessful appellant in paying the fine which the conviction imposed, although the conviction provided that in default of payment the defendant should be imprisoned unless the fine were sooner paid. [Ex parte Abell, 33 C.L.J. 626, followed.]

R. v. Ackerson, 7 D.L.R. 95, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 245.

D. COSTS; INTEREST; DAMAGES FOR DELAY.
See Costs.

(§ VIII D-680)—DEFAULT JUDGMENT—CONDITIONAL ORDER—PAYMENT OF COSTS—WAIVER—NEW TRIAL.

The payment of costs under a conditional order setting aside a default judgment for the plaintiff on terms of paying costs within fifteen days and of going to trial at the next sittings which commenced five days after the making of the order, is not waived by the plaintiff appearing at such sittings within the fifteen days and requesting an early trial; and a dismissal of the action on the trial being called in plaintiff's absence within the fifteen days and without payment of such costs will be set aside and fresh terms imposed for proceeding to a new trial.

JUDGMENT—COSTS—WRONG PRINCIPLE—CORRECTED BY APPELLATE COURT, WHEN.

Where the trial court has dealt with the question of costs upon a wrong principle, the Appellate Court will correct the judgment in that respect although it would not disturb a discretionary order as to costs. [Metropolitan v. Hill, 5 App. Cas. 582, applied.]

Lloyd v. Lloyd, 19 D.L.R. 502, 7 A.L.R. 307, 28 W.L.R. 806, 6 W.W.R. 1387.

COSTS—BOND FILED AS SECURITY ON APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—SECURITY FOR COSTS OF APPEAL—NEW TRIAL DIRECTED BY SUPREME COURT—COSTS OF APPEAL TO ABIDE RESULT—RETENTION OF BOND TO ANSWER POSSIBLE AWARD OF COSTS AGAINST APPELLANT—PRACTICE.

Dicarlo v. McLean, 6 O.W.N. 290.

(§ VIII D-681)—COST OF TRANSCRIPT, BRIEF, ETC.

When a judgment of the Court of Review, although partially changing the first judgment, does not alter it as to costs, the losing party will have to pay the transcription of the depositions which are costs in the case.

Crowley v. Silverstone, 13 Que. P.R. 332.

(§ VIII D-684)—COSTS—DISCRETION OF JUDGE—PROCEEDING ON WRONG PRINCIPLE.

Notwithstanding s. 47 of King's Bench Act, Man., which declares that no order as to costs only which by law are left to the discretion of the court judge shall be subject to appeal except by leave, the Appellate Court may review a judge's decision on a question of costs which were left to his discretion where he had proceeded on an erroneous principle or had not exercised a judicial discretion. [Young v. Thomas, [1892] 2 Ch. 134; Civil Service C. v. General Steam Nav. Co., [1903] 2 K.B. 756, applied.]

Gibson v. Snaith, 21 D.L.R. 716, 25 Man. L.R. 278, 8 W.W.R. 247.

E. EFFECT OF DECISION; SUBSEQUENT PROCEEDINGS.

(§ VIII E-686)—EFFECT OF DECISION, CONCLUSIVENESS.

Where an action on a promissory note is dismissed on grounds which do not effectually dispose of the question of the liability of the maker of the note, leave may be reserved to the plaintiff to bring another action thereon.

EFFECT OF DECISION—DECISION "ON THE MERITS"—SUMMARY CONVICTION—INSUFFICIENCY OF INFORMATION.

A judgment given by a Division Court in Ontario, upon an appeal taken from a summary conviction, whereby the conviction was quashed on the ground of the insufficiency of the information, is a decision "on the merits."

F. CORRECTION.

(§ VIII F—690)—POWER TO RECALL JUDGMENT FOR CORRECTION.

An Appellate Court has jurisdiction, after its formal order has been issued, to recall it for the purpose of amending errors or omissions due to oversight or mistake. [Penrose v. Knight, Cout. Dig. 1122; Rattray v. Young, Cout. Dig. 1123; McCaughey v. Stringer [1914], 1 Ir. R. 73; E. v. E., [1903] P. 88, applied.

SUPPLEMENTING ENTIRE JUDGMENT.

On an appeal to the County Court from a summary conviction, the judge of the County Court is functus officio on the entry of his judgment allowing the appeal with costs and the adjournment of the court sine die; and subsequent orders of the judge purporting to adjourn the appeal to a fixed date and on the later date purporting to allow counsel fees or other costs not covered by the former order, will be set aside on certiorari as having been made without jurisdiction.

IX. Rehearing (on appeal).

See Trial; New Trial; Judgment.

(§ IX—695)—REHEARING ON APPEAL.

Where an interlocutory order adding a party defendant was made on default of the appearance of the added party at the hearing of an appeal from an order refusing to add him as a defendant, but the order in appeal contained terms for the protection of the added party as to pleading the Statute of Limitations up to the date of his being added, the Court may properly decline to reopen the appeal where the added party is at liberty by a substantive application to move against the order adding him.

On an appeal from a summary conviction under the Liquor License Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 130, all the facts necessary to show that the offence has been committed must be proved before the district judge hearing the appeal; and where the appeal is from a conviction as for a second offence with increased penalties the alleged former conviction must be proved and it is not sufficient that the magistrate in the conviction appealed from had included a statement that the accused had been previously convicted giving the alleged particulars thereof, where neither the prior conviction nor formal proof thereof was produced on the appeal. [Re Ryer and Plows, 46 U.S.Q.B. 206, referred to.]

An appeal from a summary conviction can ordinarily only be disposed of by (a) quashing, (b) formal abandonment, or (c) a hearing; and the appeal being a rehearing (Cr. Code 1906, ss. 751-754), the respondent, who is the prosecutor, must prove his case although the appellant does not appear.

R. v. Gregg, 13 D.L.R. 770, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 51, 6 A.L.R. 234, 25 W.L.R. 183, 4 W.W.R. 1345.

X. Liability on appeal bond.

(§ X—702)—LIABILITY ON APPEAL BOND—WHAT WILL RELEASE SURETIES.

If by a bond for costs in appeal, defendant is bound towards plaintiff in case only the judgment appealed from should be confirmed and the appellant should not then satisfy the condemnation, these conditions are not fulfilled and the judgment is not confirmed, if the appeal is quashed for want of jurisdiction.

Foster v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 14 Que. P.R. 425.

STIPULATION AS TO LIABILITY UPON AFFIRMANCE OF JUDGMENT—APPEAL QUASHED—DISCHARGE OF SURETY.

A surety who signs an appeal bond where by "he obliged himself that in case the appellant did not effectually prosecute the appeal and does not satisfy the condemnation and pay all the costs and damages adjudged, in case the judgment appealed from is confirmed by the said Court of King's Bench sitting in appeal, then the said surety will satisfy the said condemnation in capital interest and costs up to the sum of $1,200 on behalf of and as surety for the said defendant" is not responsible under such bond, if the judgment appealed from is not confirmed by the Court of Appeal, but the appeal quashed on motion for want of jurisdiction "ratione materiae." In such case the bond is absolutely null. A bond of suretyship must be constructed strictissimi juris, and its provisions cannot be extended beyond its limits.

Foster v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 24 Que. K.B. 163.

XI. Leave to appeal.

(§ XI—720)—APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—SPECIAL LEAVE—EXCEPTIONAL GROUNDS.

The mere fact of a difference of opinion on a question of fact, among the members of the Court of Appeal for a province is not a sufficient reason for granting special leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. [Milligan v. Toronto R. Co., 18 O.L.R. 169, followed.]

TO PRIVY COUNCIL—STAY OF EXECUTION.

S. 10, Privy Council Appeals Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 54), does not apply to appeals by special leave of the Judicial Committee, but the Supreme Court of Ontario has inherent power to stay proceedings in it, when such special leave has been given. Mitchell v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, 34 D.L.R. 22, 38 O.L.R. 543. [See 37 O.L.R. 355.]

FROM ORDER OF JUDGE IN CHAMBERS—CONFLICTING DECISIONS—MATTER OF IMPORTANCE.

The decision of a Judge in Chambers in an interlocutory matter is prima facie final; but, under Rule 507, leave to appeal may be granted: (1) where there are conflicting decisions by judges, and it is desirable that an appeal shall be allowed; (2) where there appears, to the judge applied to, to be good reason to doubt the correctness of the order, and the appeal involves matters of such importance that leave to appeal should be given. Under the first head, only the decisions of judges of the Supreme Court of Ontario, whether of the High Court Division or of the Appellate Division, are to be considered. [Re Rowland and McCallum, 22 O.L.R. 418, applied notwithstanding that the wording of Rule 507 is not quite the same as that of the former Rule—Con. Rule 1278.] In this case, where leave was sought to appeal from an order of a Judge in Chambers, setting aside an order of the Master in Chambers changing the place of trial, there were no conflicting decisions by judges of the Supreme Court of Ontario; and there was no good reason to doubt the correctness of the order of the judge; under the second head, the two prerequisites—reason to doubt the correctness of the order and the appeal involving matters of importance—must coexist.

RELIEF TO CONTRIBUTORIES.

Leave to appeal should be granted at the instance of a person who is sought to be made liable as a contributory, where there is reasonable ground to suppose that he would be appellant may obtain further relief, and a prolongation of the litigation cannot be regarded as vexatious. [See s. 101 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144.]

FROM ORDERS IN EXAMINATION FOR DISCOVERY.

Leave should not be granted to appeal to the Appellate Division from an order by a judge in Chambers requiring a witness to answer certain questions in an examination for discovery.

PRIVY COUNCIL—FINALITY OF JUDGMENT—DAMAGES NOT ASSESSED.

When a plaintiff claims damages for more than the £500 necessary to allow an appeal under s. 2 of the Imperial order in council of July, 1911, and has been awarded such damages to be assessed by the County Court Judge, which judgment has been sustained by the Supreme Court of the Province, such judgment is final, although the damages have not actually been assessed and leave to appeal to the Privy Council will be granted the defendant upon application. [Re A Debtor, [1912] 3 K.B. 242, applied; Dunn v. Eaton, 9 D.L.R. 303, 47 Can. S.C.R. 205; Union Bank of Halifax v. Dickie, 41 Can. S.C.R. 13; *Allan v. CRIMINAL CASE—QUESTION OF LAW.

On motion under Cr. Code, s. 1015, for leave to appeal from a conviction at a County Judge's Criminal Court the Court of Appeal is restricted in the determination of the legal question of jurisdiction to such facts as appear on the face of the proceedings in the lower court, as there is no appeal on questions of fact except under Crim. Code, ss. 1012 and 1021. [R. v. Carter (No. 2), 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 507; R. v. Spintlum, 15 D.L.R. 778, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 483, 18 B.C.R. 606, and Mulvihill v. The King, 18 D.L.R. 217, 23 Can. Cr. LEAVE TO APPEAL—WINDING UP OF COMPANY—SETTLING CONTRIBUTORIES.

The policy of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C., c. 144, as to appeals from orders settling the list of contributories of an insolvent company, is that after the first appeal to a judge in court from the decision of the referee, leave to appeal from the order of the judge to the Court of Appeal should not be granted unless the question to be raised upon the appeal involves future rights or is likely to affect other cases of a similar nature in the winding-up proceedings. [Re McGill Chair Co., 5 D.L.R. 73, 26 O.L.R. 254, 3 O.W.N. 1074, and Re Matthew Guy C. and A. Co., 4 D.L.R. 764, 26 O.L.R. 377, 3 O.W.N. 1233, specially referred to.]

LEAVE TO APPEAL—SUMMARY OR NON-SUMMARY PROCEEDING.

An appeal does not lie under art. 46 C.P. from an order denying a motion to have a summary proceeding declared to be a nonsummary one.

Nesbit v. Investment Trust Co., 5 D.L.R. 144.

GRANTING LEAVE TO APPEAL—DIVISIONAL COURT ORDER GRANTING NEW TRIAL—TERMS.

Where a party appeals to a Divisional Court from a judgment after trial with a jury, and contends that he is entitled to judgment upon the findings of the jury, but does not ask for a new trial, and the Divisional Court nevertheless grants a new trial without disposing of the motion for judgment, it is a proper case for granting leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal, but such leave should be upon the terms that the party appealing shall abandon his right to a new trial.

Dart v. Toronto R. Co., 3 D.L.R. 776, 3 O.W.N. 1202, 22 O.W.R. 102.

LEAVE TO APPEAL—JUDICIAL DISCRETION IN COURT BELOW.

Where the amount in question is less than the amount in respect of which an appeal can be taken without leave, an application for leave to appeal will not be granted merely to review the question of the proper exercise of a judicial discretion by the court below. Leave to appeal is properly refused where the amount in question is below the statutory sum and the decision sought to be appealed from introduces no new rule of decision.

GRANTING LEAVE—CERTIORARI AND PROHIBITION CASES—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

Leave to appeal to the Privy Council will not be granted by the Quebec Court of King's Bench from a decision of that court, in matters of certiorari or of prohibition unless it be shown that future rights are involved. [O'Farrell v. Brassard, Ramsay's Appeal Cases (Que.), 55, followed.]

Gosselin v. Bar of Montreal (No. 2), 2 D.L.R. 37, 13 Que. P.R. 508.

GRANTING LEAVE TO APPEAL.

Leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal will not be granted the liquidator of a company under ss. 101 (c) and 104 of the Winding-up Act, from the decision of the trial court that the liquidator was not a creditor and as such entitled to the benefits of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, where, if the judgment should be reversed, he could not prevail in the action unless he could successfully contend, as he must, in order to succeed that the bills of sale under which the opposing party claimed, did not satisfy the requirements of such act, and no case for leave to appeal on that branch of the case was made out. Leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal on the ground that the question raised by the judgment of the trial court is of great public importance, will not be granted the liquidator of a company under ss. 101 (c) and 104 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, where the question involved is not of a common-law or equitable right, but simply of the interpretation of a statute, and where such question is not one of frequent recurrence.

LEAVE TO APPEAL—ACTION ARISING IN DISTRICT COURT—APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—EXTENSION OF TIME—SUPREME COURT ACT, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, ss. 37, 71.

Leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada in an action which does not originate in a Superior Court can only be granted by the Supreme Court of Canada or a judge thereof; and no extension of the time for bringing on such appeal can be granted by the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, ss. 37, 71. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—NEW EVIDENCE.

An application for leave to appeal from the award of an arbitrator under the Workmen's Compensation Act (1908, c. 12, Alta.) will not be granted, where the affidavits filed show that it is in reality an application for a new trial, so that further evidence may be adduced and not an appeal on a matter of law.

SPECIAL ACT—JURISDICTION TO GRANT LEAVE.

S. 48 (1) of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 186), which provides that an appeal shall lie from the Board to a Divisional Court upon a question of jurisdiction or upon any question of law, applies to the jurisdiction given to the Board by the Ontario Act, 1917, 7 Geo. V. c. 92, s. 4, by which power is given to the City of Toronto to expropriate part of the Toronto and York Radial Railway, and although under the later Act no right of appeal is expressly given to the county of York, the Appellate Court has jurisdiction to grant leave.

TO PRIVY COUNCIL—AMOUNT IN DISPUTE—INDEMNITY—ACTION.

Under art. 1056, C.C. (Que.) only one action can be brought on behalf of those who are entitled to an indemnity. Permission will be granted to appeal to the Privy Council, if the total amount of the inden-nity granted is sufficient to allow the appeal.

Brown Corp. v. Bouchard, 20 Que. P.R. 209.

PRIVY COUNCIL—LEAVE—PERSONAL INJURY ACTION.

Leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council from the dismissal by the Court of Appeal of an appeal from the dismissal of an action for 81,700 damages for personal injuries, refused.

CRIMINAL LAW—NEW TRIAL—EVIDENCE—TREASON—SALE OF TICKETS—ENEMY.

The Court of King's Bench (in appeal) cannot give leave to appeal upon an application for a new trial because the verdict of guilty given against the appellant was contrary to the weight of evidence in a criminal action for treason, the accused having undergone his trial before a jury under an accusation of having sold transportation tickets to some Austrian subjects to disembark in a neutral port, but with the intention that they should go from there to Austria, which was then at war with England.

INVALID CONVICTION—PUNISHMENT.

Although a conviction has improperly been made against the same defendant for both stealing and receiving, and had a case been reserved the Court of Appeal would have quashed the conviction on the count for receiving and supported the conviction on the count for theft, yet it need not grant leave to appeal and direct a case to be stated, if no additional punishment was imposed by reason of the conviction for receiving.

GRANTING LEAVE TO APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—B.C. COURT OF APPEAL—VACATION SITTING, WHEN REFUSABLE.

Although the courts of Canada are not bound to hold special sittings for the hearing of motions for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, they may do so merely as a matter of judicial comity, and their power to hold such sittings, in the Province of British Columbia, whenever they deem it expedient, is, therefore, not affected by s. 14 of the Court of Appeal Act since that only applies to the hearing of appeals. A special sittings for the hearing of a motion for leave to appeal to the Privy Council will not be granted in vacation in the absence of urgency or special circumstances; the rule that the court must grant leave "as of right" where the amount in dispute is £500 or upwards only applies when the court is sitting in term.

Bank of St. Jean v. Bienvenu, 17 Que. P.R. 443.

It is not a valid ground of challenge to the array that the venire issued in the name of "George, by the grace of God, King," etc., instead of "George the Fifth, by the grace of God, King," etc. (2) That it is not a valid ground of challenge to the array, to allege as such misconduct that the sheriff had summoned as a petit juror a person whose name appeared as a juror both upon the list of grand jurors and the list of petit jurors for the same assizes, that two other names on the list of petit jurors were names of nonexistent persons, and that instead of the required number of jurors—forty—the sheriff had thus summoned only thirty-seven. (3) That leave to appeal by stated case, upon a ground of wrongful communication with two of the sworn jurors by third persons, would not be granted where it appeared from the affidavits that all that was said in the case of one of the jurors were the words, "Je sais que je ne peux pas te parler, mais je peux bien te donner la main," uttered by the third person while shaking hands with the juror, that the communication to the other juror was by a person who said to the juror that he had come to the town to pay him a small debt, but would have to pay it later, that both statements were made while the sitting of the court was being adjourned in the course of the examination of the witnesses, and that in neither instance did the third person speak of the cause on trial or have any concern with it. (4) That leave to appeal by stated case upon the ground of misconduct of jurors would not be granted, when it merely appeared from the affidavits that a sworn guardian had found a bottle partly filled with gin on a couch on which a sworn juror had slept and an empty bottle under the couch of another juror in the room in which the jurors had been kept overnight and that a juror afterwards asked the guardian for the partly filled bottle saying that he was ill. (5) That leave to appeal by stated case on the ground that an important witness for the defence could not be examined at the trial would not be granted, where it appeared from the entries and affidavits that the witness had given testimony at the preliminary inquiry, that before the trial an order had been made, on the prisoner's application, that subpoenas should issue "in forma pauperis" to the witnesses for the defence, that a constable had attempted to summon the absent witness at his former place of abode, but could not find him, that there was credible information that the witness was absent in the United States, that the trial having been proceeded with, the absent witness was called for the defence, but made default, that a postponement was not applied for and that upon application of counsel for the prisoner the deposition of the absent witness, taken at the preliminary inquiry, was read to the court and the jury. The King v. Plourde, 18 Rev. de Jur. 372.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION—APPEAL THEREFROM—LEAVE REFUSED—DECISION NOT "FINAL"—PURPOSE TO TEST CONSTITUTIONAL VALIDITY OF ACT—APPEAL NOT PROPER PROCEEDING.

Application for leave to appeal against an order made by the public utilities commissioner was refused because the order desired to be appealed from was not final; and because the main purpose of the appeal was to test the constitutional validity of the Public Utilities Act or the part of it relating to the appointment of the commissioner, and leave for this purpose should not be given in view of the great number of decisions by the commission and as the proper proceeding for such purpose is by quo warranto information [Re Toronto R. Co. & City of Toronto, 46 D.L.R. 547, referred to]; also the power of the commissioner to make the order complained of could be more properly dealt with in an action now pending.

SPECIAL LEAVE—APPEAL FROM SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—WHEN GRANTED.

A question of the exercise of the Royal prerogative was discussed in this petition for special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada in litigation respecting the construction of a contract for the purchase of land. An action was brought by the petitioner in the Supreme Court of Alberta for specific performance, and the judge decided in his favour (2 W.W.R. 677). The respondents appealed from that decision to the Supreme Court en banc, which dismissed the appeal (4 W.W.R. 354). An appeal was then preferred by the respondents to the Supreme Court of Canada, and that tribunal reversed the judgment of the Alberta courts and dismissed the petitioner's action (6 W.W.R. 27, Davies and Anglin, J.J., dissenting). The Lord Chancellor delivering the judgment of the Privy Council, said that the question in the case was one of the construction of a contract. The Dominion of Canada had made the Supreme Court of Canada the final Court of Appeal. The Act constituting that court could not be read without seeing that those who framed it intended that in this class of case there should be no going beyond that court—in fact, that there should be going beyond that court in any case. The prerogative, however, was not taken away, and it was only on the footing of the continued existence of the prerogative that there was power to question the Supreme Court. With reference to a case cited, in which a petition for special leave to appeal from the Supreme Court had been granted by the Board, the Lord Chancellor thought that such leave was granted when the practice of the Board was more lax than it should have been. In respect of the divergence of judicial opinion in the courts below, the Lord Chancellor said that that was only an element which was to be taken into account, and intimated that the Board was of opinion that this was not the class of case in which the prerogative ought to be exercised. The petition was accordingly dismissed.

Carey v. Roots, 6 W.W.R. 1060.

(§ XI-721)—GROUNDS FOR REFUSING RESERVED CASE.

Where a judge refuses to reserve a case it would be expedient that he give his reasons for refusal, and in doing so certify the facts sufficiently to shew the court whether the question of law has a foundation in fact. In default of the trial judge doing this, a proper course for the Court of Appeal to take on a motion for leave to appeal would be to request him to do so for the purpose of informing the Court of Appeal sufficiently to enable it to decide whether or not the trial judge should be directed to reserve the question.

R. v. Murray & Mahoney, 33 D.L.R. 702, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, 10 A.L.R. 275, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 404. [See also R. v. Murray (No. 1), 28 D.L.R. 372, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 9 A.L.R. 319. For later decision, see 11 A.L.R. 502, 38 D.L.R. 395, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 805.]

LEAVE TO APPEAL—CRIMINAL CASE—STATED CASE NOT TO BE DISPENSED WITH.

On giving leave to appeal under Cr. Code (1906), s. 1015, following the refusal of the trial judge to reserve a case, the Court of Criminal Appeal should not, even by consent, hear and deal with the matter as though a case had been stated on the question on which the leave is given. S. 1016 of the Criminal Code is mandatory in directing that a case "shall be stated." [R. v. Armstrong, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 544, 15 O.L.R. 47, dissented from.]

R. v. Angelo, 16 D.L.R. 126, 19 B.C.R. 261, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 304, 27 W.L.R. 108, 5 W.W.R. 1303.

GRANTING LEAVE TO APPEAL—INSTRUCTING JURY ON MALICE—CRIMINAL CASE.

Leave to appeal will be granted the accused where the general effect of the instruction to the jury in a murder charge is, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, to deal with the question of malice as if it were sufficiently proved by shewing ill-feeling on the part of the accused towards the deceased, where the circumstances were such as to make such definition prejudicial to the accused by reason of the meagreness of any evidence of unlawful intent in respect of the crime charged as distinguished from mere ill-will. Leave to appeal should be granted the accused on a conviction for murder if the Appellate Court thinks that the instruction given to the jury as to the possible mitigation of the offence by provocation was, in effect, limited so as to include acts done by the accused in carrying out a grudge. Leave to appeal will be granted the accused in a homicide trial involving the responsibility for the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of the deceased if the Appellate Court considers that the jury has not been properly instructed on the question of the causal connection between the acts of the accused and the discharge of the gun. [The conviction was subsequently affirmed on an equal division of the court differently constituted. R. v. Graves (No. 3), 9 D.L.R. 175.]

SUMMARY TRIAL—RESERVED CASE.

A city police magistrate summarily trying a charge of keeping a disorderly house without the consent of the accused (Code, ss. 774, 776) cannot grant a reserved case under ss. 1013 and 1014 in respect of the conviction nor can the Court of Appeal grant leave to appeal and direct a case to be stated under s. 1015.

R. v. Davidson (No. 2), 35 D.L.R. 94, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 56, 11 A.L.R. 491, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 718. [See also 35 D.L.R. 82, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 44, 11 A.L.R. 9.]

RESERVED CASE.

Where a reserved case is applied for on several questions of law and granted only as to some of them by the Trial Judge, the Court of Appeal, on granting leave to appeal on one of the questions which the trial judge refused to reserve, will ordinarily direct that the reserved case shall stand over to be considered at the same time so that the entire appeal may be disposed of in one judgment. [Compare R. v. Bela Singh, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 40, 22 B.C.R. 321.]

APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—SUMMARY CONVICTION UNDER TEMPERANCE ACT.

The court which has affirmed a summary conviction under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act in certiorari proceedings will decline leave to appeal to the Privy Council from that decision to raise the question whether the Act was not more extensive in its scope than the Legislature had power to enact, if the circumstances in the case in question indicated no probability that the liquor found to have been illegally kept for sale was brought in from another province to be sold outside of Nova Scotia so as to make the question of ultra vires applicable to the facts. [R. v. Hoare, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 279, considered.]

CRIMINAL CASE—RESERVED CASE.

On a motion to the Appellate Court for leave to appeal from a conviction where the trial judge refused to reserve a case, the Appellate Court will not consider possible objections not included in the points on which the accused moved below for a reserved case.

APPEARANCE.

Judgment for default of appearance, see Judgment. *

§ 1—1)—BY ATTORNEY.

Though in law a mandatory has the right to renounce his mandate, the court has nevertheless the right to dismiss a motion by the attorney of record praying "act" of his declaration of withdrawal from the cause at a time when the action is about to be tried by a jury.

Van-Felson v. Bourdeau, 18 Rev. de Jur. 216.

§ 1—2)—APPLICATION BY DEFENDANT IN CAUSE BEFORE ENTRY OF APPEARANCE.

Until a defendant has entered his appearance, he is not entitled to take any step in the action other than to move to set aside for irregularity the process with which he was served or the service thereof.

Sanitary Water Still Co. v. Tripure Water Co., 13 D.L.R. 354, 24 W.L.R. 866, 4 W.W.R. 1122.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE—APPLICATION FOR RELIEF.

An appearance to the writ of summons is not a prerequisite to the defendant's right to apply for relief against the confirmation of a mortgage sale.

Quebec Bank v. Milding, 33 D.L.R. 694, 30 N.L.R. 227, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 390.

SPECIALY ENDORSED WRIT FOR LIQUIDATED DEMAND—AFFIDAVIT.

A defendant on entering his appearance to a specially endorsed writ for a liquidated demand must do more than make affidavit that he has a good defence on the merits;

he must shew facts and circumstances on which he relies as a defence so that the court may judge whether they afford an answer; so where the defendant, suing for the price of goods sets up a deficiency in quality and quantity, his affidavit should state what reduction he claims on that account.

DECLARATIONS ACCOMPANYING—QUE. C.P. 161.

The attorney for a party may add to his appearance any declaration he chooses to make, provided he does not pray for anything.

Lachance v. Leboeuf, 15 Que. P.R. 423.

§ 1—3)—SPECIALLY ENDORSED WRIT—AFFIDAVIT—DEFENCE "UPON MERITS."

The affidavit necessary with defendant's appearance to a specially endorsed writ under Ont. C.R. 1913, r. 56, must state that he has a good defence "upon the merits;" it is not sufficient that defendant swears he has a good defence to the action. [Robinson v. Morris, 15 O.L.R. 649, followed.]

WAIVER OF DEFECTS IN PROCESS.

Defects in a summons in a summary conviction matter are cured by a personal appearance by the defendant and going to trial on the merits. [See also R. v. Doherty, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 505, 32 N.S.R. 235; Ex parte Giberson, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 537, 34 N.B.R. 538; McGuinness v. Dafoe, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 139.]

§ 1—5)—CONDITIONAL APPEARANCE.

Where, in an action on an insurance policy, the defendant moves to set aside an order allowing service out of the jurisdiction, and it appears doubtful whether the contract was made within or without the territorial jurisdiction of the court or whether the alleged breach took place within the jurisdiction, the proper course is to let the order stand, and to give leave to the defendant to enter a conditional appearance. [Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 10 O.L.R. 238, 3 O.W.R. 230, 372; Canadian Radiator Co. v. Cuthbertson, 9 O.L.R. 126; Blackley v. Elite Costume Co., 9 O.L.R. 382, and Kemerer v. Watterson, 20 O.L.R. 451, followed.]

CONDITIONAL APPEARANCE—VARIANCE IN FORM.

While the proper practice under Order XII., r. 30, of the English practice rules, applicable in Alberta, providing for an entry by defendant of a conditional appearance is to apply ex parte for leave to do so, and for the clerk upon filing the conditional appearance to stamp on the memorandum words to the effect that it is to stand as unconditional unless the defendant obtains an order to set aside the writ, an appearance entered in the ordinary form, but adding that it is without prejudice to defendant's right to apply to discharge or set aside the order authorizing the service of the writ upon her and to set aside the service of the said writ and to set aside the said writ, is sufficient as a conditional appearance, since it is sufficient notice to plaintiff that the appearance is conditional and such an appearance entitled the defendant to apply to set aside an order allowing service of a writ to be made substitutionally. [Mayer v. Claretie, 7 T.L.R. 40, applied.]

FAILURE TO ENTER A CONDITIONAL APPEARANCE — SOLICITORS LIEN FOR COSTS — CON. RULE (ONT.) 173.

Where a party to an action failed to take advantage of Con. Rule (Ont.) 173, providing that a conditional appearance might be entered by leave of the court or a judge; and entered an unconditional appearance, he cannot after recovery of judgment against him object to the jurisdiction of the court to entertain a petition by solicitors representing the prevailing party in the action for an order declaring them entitled to a lien for their costs upon the judgment recovered by their client and for payment of these costs by the losing party. *Grocers' Wholesale Co. v. (§ 1—1)—SUBMISSION TO—WHAT AMOUNTS TO—AGREEMENT FOR ASSESSMENT OR VALUATION.

Where it is necessary for those to whom a question is submitted to hear evidence or argument, in order to determine the damages to which a person is entitled, the submission is not merely for an assessment or valuation but for an arbitration, and is therefore revocable, if by parol only.

WHAT CONSTITUTES—DIVIDING LINE—"VALUATION" DISTINCT FROM "ARBITRATION"—TEST.

It is indicative that a valuation and not an arbitration was intended by the written submission to three persons that they are therein termed "valuers," and that the submitting parties offered no evidence.

AGREEMENT FOR SUBMISSION — WHAT AMOUNTS TO—PROVISION IN CONTRACT FOR—EFFECT ON SUBCONTRACTOR.

A stipulation in a contract between a construction company and a municipality that disputes arising from any cause during the continuance of the contract should be referred to the city engineer whose award should be final, cannot be read into a subcontract so as to compel a subcontractor to submit to such official a claim against the original contractor for the balance due on the contract price, and for losses occasioned by the latter's default, where the original contract was not made a part of the subcontract and the subcontractor did not covenant or agree to comply with the terms thereof, notwithstanding that the subcontract as well as the princial contract provided for the submission to the city engineer for final determination of any question respecting the meaning of the specifications. [Northern Electric v. Winnipeg, 13 D.L.R. 251; Hamilton v. Mackie, 5 Times L.R. 677; Thomas v. Portson, [1912] A.C. 1, and Temperly v. Smyth, [1905] 2 K.B. 791, referred to.]

JURISDICTION OF ARBITRATOR — CONSTRUCTION OF WORDS OF SUBMISSION—PARTNERSHIP DISSOLUTION.

A submission by partners to arbitration recited that certain misunderstandings had happened necessitating the dissolution of the partnership and the points to decide were "(1) on which partner rests the responsibility of the present difficulty, (2) on which condition shall the partnership be dissolved." Held, this did not give jurisdiction to the arbitrator to award payment by one partner to the other of damages because of premature dissolution of the partnership.

In re The Arbitration Act; In re Guyot and Vigouret, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 937.

(§ 1-2)—CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT—SUBMISSION OF DISPUTES TO ENGINEER.

The alleged completion of the work contracted for under a construction contract does not withdraw the contract from the operation of clauses therein which provide that an arbitration shall decide questions arising as to the true meaning of the specifications or from any cause whatsoever during the continuance of the contract, and that such arbitrator shall be sole judge of the sufficiency, quality and quantity of the work done, and of every matter or thing incident to, bearing upon, or arising out of the specifications and the contract.

AGREEMENT FOR—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

The court has power, under s. 5 of the Arbitration Act (Alta., 1909, c. 6), to stay an action for breach of a contract which provides for a submission to arbitration of any dispute arising "during the prosecution of the work or after the completion thereof."

LEASE—REMEDIES—ORIGINATING NOTICE—STATED CASE.

Rule 604 creates no new jurisdiction; it merely provides a mode by which the jurisdiction, conferred by s. 16 (b) of the Ontario Dig.—9.

tario Judicature Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, may be exercised. The right to bring an action for a declaratory judgment is supplemented by the simple procedure of an originating notice, when the rights of the parties depend upon the construction of a deed, will, or other instrument. The court will not, upon an originating notice under Rule 604, interpret the provisions of a lease containing a submission to arbitration, under which arbitrators have been appointed, but will leave the parties to work out their remedies under the Arbitration Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 65. A case may be stated by the arbitrators under s. 29, [Ottawa Y.M.C.A. v. Ottawa, 29 O.L.R. 574, applied.]

CAUSES OUTSIDE AGREEMENT—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

When some of the causes of action set forth in the plaintiffs' statement of claim are not, and others are, within the terms of an agreement between the parties for submission to arbitration, and the former are of a substantial character and put forward in good faith, or where some of such causes of action are of such a complex legal nature that they could not be properly or adequately dealt with by an arbitrator, a motion, under s. 6 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 9, to stay the proceedings in the action should be refused. Neither should the action be split up by referring to arbitration certain matters in dispute which are within the submission agreement and leaving the action to proceed as to the others which are not within it. AGREEMENT FOR—COMPLIANCE WITH.

Where a contract contains a clause stipulating that all matters in dispute should be referred to arbitration, one of the party cannot contest the right of the other to sue before the tribunal, if he has not put him in default, mis en demeure, to appoint arbitrators.

Great Northern Construction Co. v. Ross, 25 Que. K.B. 385, 404.

CONTRACTOR AND SUBCONTRACTOR—ARBITRATION CLAUSE—AGREEMENT TO SUBMIT—PENALTY — SET-OFF — QUE. C.C. 1131, 1188—QUE. C.P. 1434.

The clause by which contracting parties agree to submit their differences to a board of three arbitrators, each party naming one and the third to be chosen by the other two, does not constitute a real agreement to submit to arbitration, but is only a promise to so submit, which, however, can be carried out at the request of the parties. When the court orders a subcontractor to pay the penalty agreed upon, as liquidated damages, for delay in the execution of his works, it ought not to admit this penalty as a set-off and deduct it from the amount that the principal contractor owes for the execution of the works under the contract, but such sum ought to be claimed in a cross action.

(§ 1—3)—EXTENSION OF TIME—AGREEMENT TO EXTEND.

A formal extension in writing during the limitation period, of the time for the arbitrators to make their award upon an arbitration in expropriation proceedings under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, is not a sine qua non to their jurisdiction; there may be circumstances which debar either party from setting up the lack of a formal extension, such as an arrangement made for the postponement of the proceedings for the convenience of counsel, which was equivalent to a consent to the making of a formal extension by the arbitrators either before or after the time fixed at the first meeting pursuant to s. 204 of the Railway Act, R.S.O. 1906, c. 37. REVOCAION OF SUBMISSION—SUBSEQUENT AWARD—VALIDITY.

An award rendered after the revocation by one party of the authority of the arbitrators under a parol submission is void in the absence of a reauthorization of the arbitrators.

EXTENDING TIME FOR AWARD—LAPSE OF AGREED PERIOD.

An agreement of reference to arbitrators does not lapse because on the return of the first appointment the hearing was adjourned to a date beyond the time limit for making the award; and an extension of the latter may still be made by the court under the statutory powers conferred by s. 11 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 9, on proper grounds being shown. HOW LOST—DEATH OF ARBITRATOR.

Where in order to ascertain the value of hotel property parties agree to submit the matter to two arbitrators, the death of one such arbitrator after the right of appointment has been exercised by the parties, and there being no provision either in the agreement for submission or by statute enabling the appointment of a successor, brings the whole matter to a standstill, to which s. 7 and 8 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 9, have no application, and the right to arbitration is thereby lost. (§ 1—5)—CROWN—CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

A reference to the Crown in a provincial statute is to the Crown in right of the province only, unless the statute makes it clear that the reference is to the Crown in some other sense. S. 5 of the Ontario Arbitration Act does not apply to a submission by the Crown in right of the Dominion.

POWERS AS TO EXECUTION—COURTS.

The arbitrators under the statute of 6 Geo. V., 1916, c. 88, s. 7, have jurisdiction exclusive of every Court of Justice at every stage of the proceedings. Their jurisdiction extends even to the execution of judgments obtained prior to its creation. On a motion for the setting aside of an opposition afin d'annuler to a seizure of immovable property, the Superior Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the matter ratione materiae.

II. Arbitrators.

(§ II—10)—RESIDENCE OF — APPOINTMENT BY LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR—DISQUALIFICATION.

S. 699 of the Municipal Act (Man.) empowering the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council in expropriation proceedings to nominate an arbitrator resident without the limits of any municipality interested, to act for the party failing to appoint, is imperative and not directory, and the appointment of one resident within the municipality is a contravention of the statute and will affect the validity of the award. [Re Smith & Corp. of Plympton, 12 O.R. 29, applied.] Bare relationship to one of the parties disqualifies an arbitrator, on the ground of nonindifference. APPOINTMENT OF ARBITRATORS.

By virtue of s. 8 (a) of the Arbitration Act a party to an arbitration has power to appoint another arbitrator in place of a first who has rendered himself incapable of acting.

Re Weiler Bros. & City of Victoria, 24 B.C.R. 148.

EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDINGS — RIGHT OF JUDGE TO APPOINT—NOTICE TO OWNER.

A judge of the County Court alone has jurisdiction to appoint a sole arbitrator to determine the value of lands taken or required under the provisions of the New Brunswick Railway Act, except when he is personally interested in the lands, in which case a judge of the Supreme Court has such jurisdiction. Where an owner of land omits to name an arbitrator in expropriation proceedings after notice is served on him as required by the New Brunswick Railway Act, a sole arbitrator cannot be appointed by any judge until notice of the intended application for such appointment has first been given to the landowner.

ARBITRATORS—UMPIRE—IN GENERAL.

A ratepayer of the city of Moncton is disqualified on the ground of pecuniary interest from acting as an arbitrator to determine the value of lands taken by the city for the purposes of the Water Department, under 56 Vict. c. 45. Where objection to the qualification of an arbitrator was taken at the commencement of the arbitration proceedings, subsequent appearance under protest and taking part in the proceedings, will not operate as a waiver of the objection.

SUFFICIENCY OF OATH—AUTHORITY TO ADMINISTER.

Although R.S.Q. 1909, art. 1569, requires the arbitrators in a railway expropriation to be sworn before a Justice of the Peace, the fact that they have taken the oath before a judge, the prothonotary or a commissioner of the Superior Court, does not avoid their award, these latter functionaries having the right to swear according to the spirit of the act as well as Justices of the Peace.

Re Kirk & Fidelity Ins. Co., 10 E.L.R. 72 (N.S.).

ARBITRATORS — ELIGIBILITY — RECUSATION — GROUNDS.

The grounds upon which arbitrators can be recused are the same as those for recusation of judges, as art. 1439 of C.C.P. (Que.) is silent upon this subject. The enumeration of the grounds of recusation of judges contained in art. 237, C.C.P., is not limited; others may be admitted. Art. 12 of Title XXIV., of the Ordinance of 1667, surrendering to the discretion of judges the grounds on which they can be recused, has never, in effect, been repealed and is still in full force. Par. 2 of art. 237, C.C.P., decreeing that a judge can be recused if he has an action involving a question similar to the one in dispute, ought not to be too liberally interpreted. So, there is ground for recusation although the question may not be exactly similar, if it can be determined by the same rules. The existence of a civil action between an arbitrator and a party to the arbitration agreement is ground for recusation. It is indispensable, however, that the action be between a party to the arbitration agreement and the arbitrator personally. An arbitrator cannot be recused because he acted as such for owners, strangers to the agreement, in a large number of expropriations. Chosen from among the members of the bar, according to the constitution, judges cannot be recused on the ground of incompetence. The clerk of the Court of Appeal may be an arbitrator. The law only deprives him of the exercise of the profession of advocate. The functions of arbitrators, in an extra-judicial arbitration matter, are essentially discretionary. The arbitrator can, therefore, refuse to fulfil them without any need to give any reason for the ground of his refusal. Such explanation is only contested in a forced arbitration matter. The rules for the recusation of experts in a judicial arbitration are the same as in an extra-judicial arbitration. An agreement declaring that the difference of the parties will be finally determined by "three arbitrators or experts qualified in the matter," which confuses the terms arbitrators and experts, should be interpreted in the sense that the parties intended to submit to arbitrators and not to experts. The nullity of the arbitration agreement, resulting from the obligation of all parties to sign, is covered by an express renunciation, as in the case of a municipal corporation which orders the completion of the arbitration deed without regard to the refusal of the interested parties to sign it. A judge having power to appoint arbitrators is not compelled to choose them in a limited circle of some particular professions.

POWER TO AMEND AWARD—EXPROPRIATION—COMPENSATION—INTEREST—RENTS—EXPIRY OF TIME FOR APPEAL—ENFORCEMENT OF AMENDED AWARD.

The corporation of the City of Toronto having expropriated land under a by-law, an award fixing the amount of compensation was made by the Official Arbitrator. After the time for appealing from the award, under s. 7 of the Municipal Arbitrations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 199, had expired, the arbitrator amended the award by adding thereto a clause directing that interest on the amount awarded from the day of the date of the expropriating by-law should be paid by the corporation, and that the landowner should pay to the corporation the rents received from the same day. It appeared by the arbitrator's written reasons that he had intended to include in his original award the clause so added:—Held, upon an application by the landowner, under s. 14 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 65, for leave to enforce the award as a judgment, that if the arbitrator had not power under s. 2 (2) (e) of the Municipal Arbitrations Act to amend the award, he had power to do so under s. 10 (c) of the Arbitration Act, which, by s. 4, was applicable to this award. Also, that whether the power to amend could be exercised after the time limited for an appeal had expired should not be determined upon this application; the only award which could be enforced was the amended award; and, unless the landowner was content with an order for its enforcement, the application must be dismissed. Semble, that the arbitrator was right in determining that the city corporation was deemed to be in possession from the date of the expropriating by-law, and entitled to the rents from and after that date, and the claimant to interest from that date.

ARBITRATION AWARD—CONTENT BY DIRECT ACTION—ENTRY IN LAW—GENERAL ALLEGATION—C.C.P. ART. 1444

An arbitration award rendered after a compromise, can be attached by direct action in certain cases, for example, when the arbitrators have manifestly exceeded their powers, when their proceedings are filled with grave irregularities or illegalities, and when their award is unjust and unfair. The recourse opened by art. 1444 C.C.P. does not exclude direct action for nullity; this section is neither limited nor exclusive; it concerns the mode of execution of the arbitration award. An allegation which is too wide in a written pleading, should be attached by exception to the form or by a motion for particulars; it cannot be attached for this reason by an entry in law; moreover it is relevant although informal. In an entry in law, a general allegation is supposed to be proven like other allegations. It should be admitted in its widest sense. In such a case one cannot refer to a piece of evidence produced to limit its extent, except to contradict it. Allegations attaching an arbitration award as unjust, arbitrary and ultra vires, cannot be taken away by an entry in law.

A notice of claim for damages to lands commenced under the Municipal Drainage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 198, against a municipality for its negligent upkeep and non-repair of drains, and also for the original malconstruction thereof, entitles the owner under s. 80 of the Act to recover all damages accruing to him before the service of the notice, and an arbitrator's award which merely allows the damages sustained after the service of the notice is erroneous on its face and will be set aside. It is the duty of the court to set aside an award where an error in law appears on the face thereof; and, where an arbitrator gives his reasons in a memorandum accompanying the award, error in law may be shown by reference to those reasons. IMPROPER VALUATION AS TO DATES—EXPROPRIATION BY RAILWAY.

An award in expropriation proceedings under the Railway Act, Alta., 1907, c. 8, is not invalidated because the arbitrators proceeded to fix the value as of the date of the arbitration instead of the date a few months earlier in the same year, when the appointment of the third arbitrator was made by a judge's order, if the case developed no distinction as to value between those dates and both parties at the opening of the arbitration had acquiesced in the arbitrators' suggestion that the present value should be the basis of compensation.

IMPROPER VALUATION.

An award by valuers, defective because based on a valuation of several lots as an entirety instead of ascertaining the value on each lot separately, does not warrant a dismissal of the action, but that the same or other valuers should be appointed to ascertain the value in a proper manner. JURISDICTION TO SET ASIDE AWARD—VALIDITY—MISCONDUCT—JURISDICTION OF UMPIRE.

Upon a motion to set aside, vary or amend a report filed by an umpire acting in pursuance of a consent judgment regarding certain building lots. Held, that the Court of King's Bench (Man.) had jurisdiction to deal with charges of misconduct against an appraiser and the umpire, and also to deal with objections based on excess of jurisdiction by the umpire in making allowance for items not covered by the judgment. The court further held that over-zealousness in supporting the claim of one of the parties and assuming the role of advocate on the part of the appraiser in disputed matters which had to be determined by the umpire, did not amount to misconduct on the part of such appraiser. Held, also, that the umpire had not been guilty of misconduct in withholding certain evidence from the appraisers. If an umpire has made no mistake as to the extent of the jurisdiction conferred upon him the court cannot set aside the award unless it is shown that there was misconduct or some other equitable ground for interference but if the umpire has exceeded his jurisdiction, all of which is apparent on the face of the award, the court can and ought to interfere.

STATUS OF OWNER ATTACKING AWARD.

A vendor of an immovable with the right of redemption, who allows the delay for redemption to expire without exercising his right, is no longer owner of this immovable; and if the latter is expropriated, he cannot after this delay bring an action to have the award set aside, although the proceedings in expropriation were commenced before the expiration of this delay when the vendor had some eventual rights in the land. It is not a ground for setting aside an award of arbitrators if one of them did not visit the expropriated premises at the same time as the others since the majority of the arbitrators have a right to make the award, especially when the persons at the view did not raise any objection.

VALIDITY OF AWARD—PLANS OF RAILWAY BOARD—COMPLIANCE.

The arbitrators are bound to take the plans and specifications, approved by the Railway Commission, as exact, and can neither change them, nor modify them, nor admit any proof tending to establish a different area than is indicated in such plans and specifications. Though the courts have the power, in the case of fraud, illegality, or irregularity, duly alleged and proved, to annul the award of the arbitrators, they have not the right to revise the exercise of the discretion and of the judgment of the arbitrators, and the amount of compensation awarded cannot be a cause for avoiding the award unless it does violence to a sense of justice.

Baril v. G.T.R. Co., 46 Que. S.C. 295.

(§ III—17)—AWARD—REVIEW—REFERRING BACK FOR SUPPLEMENTARY CERTIFICATE.

An award under the Railway Act (Can.) will not be set aside by reason of the fact that after a view of the lands in question the arbitrators have not put in writing a statement sufficiently full to enable a judgment to be formed of the weight which should be attached to their finding (Arbitration Act 9 Edw. VII, (Ont.) c. 35, s. 17 (3)), but will be referred back for a supplementary certificate.

AWARD—REVIEW—AFFIRMANCE FOR REASONS DIFFERENT FROM THOSE ADVANCED BY ARBITRATORS.

On an appeal from an award, the latter will not be set aside merely because the Appellate Court disagrees with the reasoning of the arbitrators, but will stand if it can be supported on any ground sufficient in law.

AWARD—CONCLUSIVENESS—MUNICIPAL ACT (B.C.).

S. 296 of the Municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, is a restrictive and not an enabling statute as regards the enactment that applications to set aside awards on the class of arbitrations for which the Act provides, are to be made (1) on the ground of misconduct from the arbitrators, and (2) for awarding compensation on a wrong principle. Rulings on points of law arising in the arbitration in expropriation proceedings under the Municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, are to be reviewed upon a case stated by the arbitrators prior to the award being made, and not by an application after the award is made to set the same aside on the ground that the arbitrators had made a mistake of law.

AWARD—CONCLUSIVENESS—SETTING ASIDE—FOR FAILURE TO CARRY OUT UNDERTAKING—R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 198.

An award made by arbitrators appointed under s. 196 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, to ascertain the compensation that should be paid for injuries to land not actually taken or used by the railway, the owners claiming that the land was injuriously affected because the railway was built between the land and the sea, thereby cutting off their rights of access to the sea, will be set aside because of the failure of the arbitrators to keep a promise made by them to the owners of the land when the suggestion was offered on the arbitration proceedings that the question of the applicability of s. 198 of the Railway Act R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, to such a case should be referred to the court, which promise was that they (the arbitrators) should have it appear on the face of the award whether or not such section applied. [Judgment rendered at the trial affirmed by divided court.]

ERROR IN AWARD—POWER OF COURT TO ALTER OR AMEND—EMINENT DOMAIN.

Where arbitrators appointed under s. 396, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 176, to ascertain damages for land taken for a public street, award interest at 7 per cent instead of 5 per cent as allowed by statute, the court cannot, upon the award coming before it on a motion to set the same aside, alter or amend the same to cure such error by accepting the respondent's abandonment of the excess, but must order the award set aside. [Skipworth v. Skipworth, 9 Beav. 135, followed.]

CONCLUSIVENESS—MEMORANDUM OF ADJUDICATION—FORMAL AWARDS—PREPARATION OF—ADJOURNING MEETING—CHANGING ADJUDICATION—SETTING ASIDE.

On a majority of the arbitrators signing a memorandum of their adjudication under the Railway Act R.S.C. c. 37, and adjourning the arbitrators' meeting pending the preparation of a formal award as an authentic notarial document, it is too late for one of the majority to have the adjudication varied at the adjourned meeting if notice of such adjudication has been given to the parties; a notarial document passed on the later date with a lesser sum awarded than that first decided upon and notified to the parties, will be set aside.

AWARD—CONCLUSIVENESS—ARBITRATORS—MODIFICATION—SETTING ASIDE.

An award under the Railway Act, Can., on the expropriation of land for railway purposes is not conclusive merely on the signing of an award by a majority of the arbitrators; it must be promulgated within the period provided for making the award in order to be binding, as although signed within the period it is subject to modification until published; the arbitrators are functi officio and the award must be set aside if not notified to the parties until after the expiry of the time. AWARD—CONCLUSIVENESS—APPEAL—RAILWAY ACT (B.C.).

An award in arbitration proceedings under the Railway Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, is final and conclusive except for the statutory right of appeal (s. 68); it cannot be altered except by the court on the hearing of the appeal, and the power of remitting and setting aside an award upon motion is excluded. AWARD—CONCLUSIVENESS—REVIEW—MISTAKE.

To justify the setting aside of an award by a single arbitrator on the ground of mistake not appearing on the face of the award or in papers incorporated therewith, the arbitrator's admission of the mistake is necessary; so where there were three arbitrators, two of whom published an award, both must concur in certifying the mistake not apparent upon the award which the court is to rectify and no relief can be granted where one of them denies that there is any mistake although the other asserts there was and desires the assistance of the court. [McLae v. Lemay, 18 Can. S.C.R. 280; Dinn v. Blake, L.R. 10 C.P. 388; Flynn v. Robertson, L.R. 4 C.P. 324, referred to.]

ADVANTAGES ATTACHING TO LAND—FORESHORE—RIGHT OF ACCESS TO SEA—SETTING ASIDE AWARD.

An arbitrator is not entitled to allow in his award in expropriation proceedings, for rights or interests which do not attach to the lands and which cannot be acquired as being advantages that attach to the lands; consequently if the expropriating municipality had obtained grants from the Crown to the foreshore so that a strip of foreshore under such grant intervened between the sea and the claimants' properties, compensation as for a right of access to the sea cannot be allowed such proprietors as if they had direct littoral or foreshore rights, nor can the arbitrator properly consider as a potential value attached to the property, the intention manifested by the municipality before conceding to a railway company rights along its foreshore, to make foreshore grants or leases to adjoining owners so as to enable them to enjoy the right of access to the sea. [Re False Creek Arbitration, 8 D.L.R. 422, 17 B.C.R. 282; R. v. Bradburn, 14 Can. Ex. 419; Cedars Rapids v. Lacoste, 16 D.L.R. 168, referred to.] The question as to whether an award should be set aside or remitted for reconsideration is one of discretion, and unless that discretion has been obviously misused it will not be interfered with on appeal.

SETTING ASIDE AWARD—DISREGARD OF STATUTE AS TO OPINION EVIDENCE.

A disregard of the limitations of s. 10 of the Evidence Act, Alta., limiting the number of witnesses to be called to give opinion evidence upon an arbitration subject to its provisions is a ground for setting aside the award and remitting the case to the arbitrators. [Rice v. Sockett, 8 D.L.R. 84, followed.]

REVIEW OF AWARD—CONCLUSIVENESS.

An Appellate Court treats an award as a judgment of an inferior court, and in the absence of error or misconduct on the part of the arbitrators will not interfere with it.

RAILWAY ACT—REVIEW OF AWARD—APPEAL.

The award of arbitrators under s. 209 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. (1906), is similar to the judgment of a trial judge. An appeal, upon law and fact, is always open. But an Appeal Court will not interfere with the decision, unless there is good and special reason for doubting the soundness of the award.

REVIEW OF AWARD—BIAS.

On a review of an award made as the result of an arbitration, upon which two arbitrators and an umpire sat, it should be kept in mind that the arbitrators appointed by the parties are likely to be biased in favour of the side appointing them, and there is some authority to justify such bias, under such circumstances. Enoch & Zaretsky, [1910] 1 K.B. 327, at 334.

CONCLUSIVENESS OF AWARD—PARTICULARS — WHEN SET ASIDE.

In an award, the arbitrators are not obliged to give particulars. To justify the setting aside of an award, the proof that the arbitrators went upon a wrong basis as to time with reference to which compensation should have been ascertained, must be clear.

Forget v. Lachine, J.-C. & M.R. Co., 24 Que. N.B. 174.

EXPROPRIATION — REFERENCE BACK — DISQUALIFICATIONS OF ARBITRATORS.

In the case of expropriation of three immovables when the award of the majority of the arbitrators is maintained for one of them and as to the others it is ordered by the Privy Council that the case be returned to the arbitrators to be proceeded upon by hearing of witnesses and by giving a new award upon bases defined and indicated, the same arbitrators are not disqualified from acting, and the case should be sent back to them rather than to new arbitrators. Nevertheless, if since the making of the award the wife of one of the arbitrators has become a shareholder in usufruct and her children in ownership, in the expropriating company, and if this arbitrator is himself the attorney of his wife, and, moreover, the executor and trustee of the succession of his father-in-law, who was also a shareholder in the company, the arbitrator cannot continue to act as such in order to give the new award, and should be replaced.

Cedars Rapids Mfg. & Power Co. v. La-coste, 24 Que. K.B. 207.

REMEDIES AGAINST—CHANGE OF AWARD.

The Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 209, gives two remedies against an arbitrators' award in a matter of expro-arbitration: an appeal to the Superior Court; an action at common law. But the right of action to set aside the award is no longer open, if the appeal has been taken, and if the appellant did invoke or could have invoked, in his petition, the same reasons of fact and of law as those alleged in his action. When a majority of arbitrators in an expropriation under the Railway Act, decided to grant indemnity and chose a notary to draft the arbitrators' award, the third arbitrator, one of the majority, cannot later declare that he made a mistake in his figures and change the amount against the protests of the owner's arbitrator.

ART. 1444 of the Code of Procedure was suggested by the Code Makers of 1867 in order to render definite and without appeal an arbitration award given under compromise. An arbitration award under compromise in this system, is not subject, as formerly, to approval, as even to-day the reports of arbitrators named by virtue of art. 411, are upon a simple motion; nor is it executed like judgments, by a writ in the name of the sovereign. The award only gives the right to an action in the ordinary form, that is to say, a principal action, to oblige the party to carry it out. The court in this action enter into the examination of the nullities of form which would justify it in refusing to approve of the award, but it cannot get down to the bottom of the dispute except in the case where the party who is contesting the action, pays the penalty agreed upon by the compromise, or offers the amount to the other party, or brings it into court. The annulment of the arbitration award does not give rise to an action for the amount of the penalty. The previous payment of the penalty is only imposed to prevent by this means the reopening of a new dispute as to the grounds for the contestation between the parties, when the act has declared it to be adjudged finally by the arbitration award. The party condemned by the arbitration award cannot then ask for a nullity by a principal action. A similar recourse of an annulment, elsewhere authorized by the code, would have the effect of giving indirectly to the party condemned by the arbitration award the right to a new trial or to an appeal which the Act has refused him.

ON ORDER FOR ENFORCEMENT.

Re Wells & Gray and Windsor Board of Education, 17 O.W.N. 229.

(§ IV—41)—EXCESS OF POWERS OF.

Under an agreement nominating a referee or sole arbitrator, and calling upon him to decide what was necessary for the contracting builder to do in order to complete a house which he had contracted to build for the other party, the referee cannot authorize the purchaser or mortgagee to complete on the builder's default, nor can he, in his award, reserve the right so to authorize, nor has he authority to provide in the award that the builder shall not be freed from his obligation to do the work thereby directed to be done by way of completion of the contract until after the referee has approved of the manner of doing such work. Under an agreement stipulating that a builder will complete a house for occupancy "fully in keeping with the kind and quality of house as now standing" and specifying a referee to decide between the parties in case of any dispute between them as to the manner in which the house was completed, such referee has no authority to decide the matters in dispute on his personal inspection of the premises, but should provide for a hearing and the taking of evidence if either party wished to adduce evidence.

Wilkerson v. McGugan & Gaston, 2 D. L.R. 11, 5 S.L.R. 166, 20 W.L.R. 651, 2 W.W.R. 121.

INTEREST—STATUTORY RIGHT TO.

The right to interest upon the compensation awarded for the compulsory taking of lands under the Railway Act, Can., is a statutory right, and the arbitrators have no power to include such interest in their award. [Re Ketcheson & C.N.O.R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 854, 29 O.L.R. 339, followed.]

Green v. C.N.R. Co., 22 D.L.R. 15, 8 S.L.R. 53, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 139, 30 W.L.R. 572, 7 W.W.R. 1072.

SUBMISSION TO—EFFECT—AGREEMENT, OR PROMISE, TO COMPROMISE.

A covenant by which it is provided that "in the event of any dispute arising out of the construction or meaning of any part of this agreement, the subject of the dispute shall be referred to the award and determination of three arbitrators," is not an agreement to compromise, but simply a promise to compromise. The court is without jurisdiction to appoint the third arbitrator and the party aggrieved can only sue in damages.

Shedden Forwarding Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 15 Que. P.R. 229.

(§ IV—42) — COMPULSORY REFERENCE BY COURT.

When the parties to a construction contract are before the trial referee under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Ont.), for the purpose of tendering evidence at the trial of the contractor's claim in a mechanics' lien proceeding, an order cannot be made for the compulsory reference of the matters in dispute to arbitration or to compel the contractor to proceed to arbitration before going on with his action, although the contract provides that any dispute as to extras or reductions after the architect's certificate should be referred to arbitration, if an arbitration and award is not made a condition precedent to the action.

Contractors' Supply Co. v. Hyde, 2 D.L.R. 161, 3 O.W.N. 723, 21 O.W.R. 530.

WHAT IS SUFFICIENT SUBMISSION — ORDER OF THE COURT — JURISDICTION OF (MAX.) COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

Where, without objection by the parties to the proceeding, the Court of King's Bench made an order remitting to a single arbitrator, as provided by the charter of a city, an award of damages made by three arbitrators in a proceeding to open a public street, upon the award of such single arbitrator being set aside by the court on motion, such proceedings before the court constituted a sufficient submission by order of court. Where a city charter under which proceedings were instituted to open a public street did not provide for a formal submission to arbitration of the question of compensation for the land taken, but clearly showed that the Court of King's Bench was to have summary jurisdiction over the proceedings, the practice provided by the Land Clauses Act is to be followed, and the appointment by such court, under the provisions of such charter, of a single arbitrator to consider the award made by three arbitrators, will be considered a sufficient submission of the question to arbitration by order of court.

APPOINTMENT OF ARBITRATOR BY COURT ON PARTY'S DEFAULT.

While under s. 8 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 11, the court, on an application to appoint an arbitrator in default of appointment by either party, may consider a nomination by the party in default, and if it sees fit to select his nominee, it has no jurisdiction to make an order, in the nature of a mandamus, directing the defaulting party to nominate and appoint its arbitrator within a time limited. [See also North Vancouver v. Jackson, 16 D.L.R. 400.]

APPOINTMENT OF ARBITRATOR BY COURT — PENDING ACTION.

The defendant insurance company, on an action on a fire insurance policy, is not entitled to ask for the compulsory appointment of an arbitrator for the assured, under ss. 6 and 8 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 11, to fix the loss in terms of a statutory condition on the policy after the defendant has delivered its statement of defence in such action, as the court thereby obtains seisin of the entire matter. COMPULSORY APPOINTMENT OF ARBITRATOR BY COURT—B.C. ARBITRATION ACT.

Failure by a municipality to appoint its arbitrator under s. 394 of the Municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, falls within s. 8 of the Arbitration Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 11, read with s. 25 thereof, under which an order may be made by the court appointing an arbitrator to represent the party who has failed to appoint his own arbitrator. (§ IV—44) — SUBMISSION TO — COURT'S FUNCTION THEREUNDER.

Where shares in a lumber company, based upon a specified list of company assets, are sold at a certain price, with a stipulation for a deduction in the purchase price of the shares to the extent of any future-ascertained deficiency in such assets, and where such deficiency is stipulated to be ascertained by arbitration, the court will give effect to the award under such arbitration, or, if the arbitration should for any sufficient cause prove abortive, it is the duty of the court (in the place and stead of the arbitration board) to hear and determine the question of deficiency and thus effectuate justice. ORAL SUBMISSION—ENFORCING AWARD.

An award made upon an oral submission to submit a dispute to arbitration cannot be entered as a judgment for enforcement under the Arbitration Act, 1911 (Man.); the empowering section (s. 14) which declares that "an award on a submission" may be so entered, being controlled by s. 2 defining a submission, unless the contrary appears, as a written agreement to submit.

ENFORCEMENT.

A stipulation for an arbitration to determine the amount due under a building contract is subject to the provisions of the Arbitration Act, 9 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 35, s. 8, and the party invoking the same must apply to stay the action before his defence is pleaded or other step taken in the cause after entering his appearance.

Contractors' Supply Co. v. Hyde, 2 D.L.R. 161, 3 O.W.N. 723, 21 O.W.R. 530.

ENFORCING AWARD—STATUTORY RELIEF FOR FAILURE TO CARRY OUT AWARD—REMEDIES OF LANDOWNERS.

The provisions of clause (u), s. 6, of Victoria Waterworks Act, 1873, 36 Vict. (B.C.), c. 29, 55 Vict., c. 64, s. 3, that upon default in payment of the amount awarded for land expropriated for waterworks purposes the proprietor may resume possession thereof, in which case all his rights shall revive, is intended only as an additional safeguard to secure payment of such award, and is not the exclusive remedy available to him, and he may obtain judgment on the award.

Davie v. City of Victoria, 2 D.L.R. 287, 29 W.L.R. 344, 1 W.W.R. 1021.

Differences having arisen as to the interest of the parties in certain lands and goods, such differences were referred to arbitration. The arbitrators found in part as follows: "That the south-east quarter of s. 16-14-15, W. 2nd, be transferred from the name of H. Mitchell to R. Mitchell, subject to the proportion amount of the mortgage now registered against the property, said proportion being ($1,600). R. Mitchell to assume said mortgage and to pay interest owing thereon from and after the 1st day of January, 1909; also principal as it becomes due." On application an order was made to enforce the award, from which order the unsuccessful party appealed, and urged certain objections against the procedure and conduct of the arbitrators:—Held, that if a party desires to set up misconduct of the arbitrators or that the award was improperly procured, he should move to set aside the award, and such objections should not be entertained on a motion to enforce the award. (2) That the award as set out above was so uncertain as to be incapable of enforcement.

Mitchell v. Mitchell, 4 S.L.R. 406.

JUDGE DIRECTING EXECUTION — AWARD AS JUDGMENT.

S. 13 of the Arbitration Act (c. 6, 1909, Alta.) does not authorize a judge to direct execution, on an award, where the evident intention of the arbitrators was not to determine how much was due but the basis upon which the amount could be determined. All that the section authorizes is the granting of leave by a judge for the award to be treated as a judgment for the purpose of enforcement.

($ IV—46)—AWARD—COSTS TAXED MORE THAN AWARD — EFFECT OF RAILWAY ACT, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 199.

Under R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 199, the taxable costs, incurred on an arbitration, are a debt recoverable by action, and the expropriated party is liable for such costs even though they may exceed the compensation awarded. The judge who taxes these costs acts as persona designata, and no appeal lies from his decision.

COSTS—WINNIPEG CHARTER, s. 812 — "COSTS OF THE ARBITRATION"—"FULL COSTS OF AND INCIDENTAL TO THE ARBITRATION"—PARTY AND PARTY COSTS ONLY—NO COSTS PRIOR TO COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS — APPLICATION OF TARIFF—COSTS OF WITNESS AS TO REAL ESTATE VALUES.

The "costs of the arbitration" which under s. 812 of the Winnipeg Charter arbitrators are empowered to award ordinary costs between party and party; a direction by the court that the "full costs of and incidental to the arbitration are to be taxed" does not go beyond that. Where arbitration proceedings are inaugurated by a notice claiming damages, the first item of costs of and incidental to the arbitration is instructions for this notice, and no costs should be allowed prior thereto. Where a scale of costs is fixed the parties are bound by it (Re C.N.R. & Robinson, 17 Man. L.R. 579, distinguished). Under the Manitoba tariff a witness called to express an opinion as to real estate value can only demand the ordinary fee allowed to a non-professional witness. Any extra payment to him for examining the property or otherwise qualifying himself cannot be taxed against the other side. Certain particular items of costs considered with reference to the tariff.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES—BUILDING CONTRACT—SUBSTITUTING CONCRETE FOR RUBBLE WALL—ABSENCE OF RESULTING DAMAGE.

The substitution by the architect's direction of a concrete for a rubble wall called for in the specifications of a building contract will not be allowed as a ground of diminution to or set-off against the architect's remuneration where no resulting damage to the building owner is shown, and the evidence proves that the building was not of less value on that account nor was the owner put to any increased cost by the change.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES—PLANS FOR CONSTRUCTING BUILDING—NEGLIGENCE.

An architect is bound to exercise reasonable care, skill, and diligence in the preparation of plans ordered from him, and his failure to do so will not only disentitle him to recover the price, but make him liable for the expense which the owner must incur to remedy the defect in a wall improperly built in reliance upon the plans.

Cauchon v. MacCosham, 19 D.L.R. 708, 28 W.L.R. 500.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES—FAILURE TO SECURE DEPOSIT WITH TENDERS—COMPENSATION.

In the absence of an express instruction from his employer to obtain deposits with tenders for the construction of a building, an architect is not answerable for a failure to do so, where the lowest bidder refused to enter into a formal contract in pursuance of his tender. An architect who submits preliminary plans accompanied by estimates from reliable contractors as to the probable cost of a structure to be erected with a certain capacity, and on the faith thereof obtains an order for the preparation of detailed plans and specifications and the obtaining of tenders, is not precluded from recovering for his services when the lowest tender is greatly in excess of the preliminary estimates; the architect is not a guarantor of the estimated cost and is not chargeable with negligence if he took reasonable care to obtain reliable estimates.

ARCHITECTS' ASSOCIATION — MEMBERS — OFFENCES.

The word "architect" cannot be used by a person to designate his profession unless he has been registered as a member of the Architects' Association of the Province of Quebec. One who advertises himself in various ways as an architect and who practises as such without this registration can be prosecuted only for a first offence although it may be continued.

Assoc. of Architects v. Paradis, 48 Que. S.C. 220.

ARCHITECTS' ASSOCIATION—USE OF NAME.

The statute incorporating "The Province of Quebec Association of Architects," as contained in the R.S. of 1909, Arts. 5236 to 5255, does not constitute the said association a closed corporation, or prevent others duly qualified and not members of the said association from practising their profession and using the name of architect, within the Province of Quebec, provided they do not use that name to be understood that they are architects under the law incorporating the above association. The words "first offence," in s. 5247, must be considered to mean first offence established by a judgment of the court.

CRIMINAL CASE—REGULARITY—CHARGE FOR ATTEMPT AFTER ACQUITTAL FOR PRINCIPAL OFFENCE—MATTER OF DEFENCE.

An arrest upon a warrant for an attempt to commit an indictable offence is not illegal merely because a plea of autrefois acquit was available to the accused in respect of a prior acquittal for the principal offence, upon the charge of which the attempt might have been inquired into and punished, if the evidence warranted it, by virtue of Cr. (§ I A-2)—WITNESSES ON APPLICATION FOR WARRANT.

S. 655 of the Cr. If a policeman, making a sudden arrest, makes up his mind that it is necessary to handcuff a prisoner in order to prevent his escape, an Appellate Court will not interfere with such judgment, unless the circumstances, under which the handcuffing was done, give them reason to believe that there was a particular desire to administer harshness.

(§ I A-4)—MALICE—WHEN INFERRED—TECHNICAL OBJECTION—WRONG OFFENCE CHARGED—RESISTING OFFICER.

Malice is not to be inferred merely from a technical objection such as that the party suing for false arrest had been charged with crossing a certain street at an immoderate speed whereas he was not on that street but had been forcibly stopped on a connecting street on disobeying the signal of the traffic officer to stop, and on disputing the latter's authority had been arrested by the officer in good faith and uninfluenced by any desire to injure the plaintiff in making the arrest in question; the plaintiff was merely charged with the wrong offence and might properly have been charged with resisting a police officer in the execution of his duty.

Where the defendant was illegally arrested without a warrant on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, and is brought before a magistrate having power of summary trial without the consent of the accused (Code, s. 774, as amended, 1909), there is a lack of jurisdiction over the person, which may be effectively raised by an objection, but which it is competent for the accused to waive. If the accused was illegally arrested and brought before the police magistrate without a warrant and objection taken at the summary trial for keeping a disorderly house (Code, ss. 773 (f), 774 and 228), the magistrate acted without jurisdiction and the accused will be discharged on habeas corpus following the conviction made by the magistrate. (R. v. Miller, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 131; R. v. Wilson, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 370; R. v. Davis, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 293, followed; R. v. Hurst, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 389, 29 D.L.R. 129, not followed.)

R. v. Young Kee (No. 1), (Alta.), 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 161.

OFFENCE SUMMARIY PUNISHABLE — VAGRANCY.

Vagrancy under Cr. Code, ss. 238 and 239, being the subject of summary conviction proceedings and not of indictment, Code, s. 652 does not apply to justify an arrest on suspicion by a peace officer without warrant where the peace officer did not find the accused committing the particular act relied upon as constituting statutory vagrancy (Cr. Code, s. 648).

R. v. Lachance, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 421.

ILLEGAL ARREST — DAMAGES — PROBABLE CAUSE — MALICE — ASSIGNMENT — JUDGE AND JURY—QUE. C.C. 16, 502—QUE. C.P. 4, 500, 85.

In order that a person illegally arrested can have a right to damages, it is necessary that the proceedings must have been ended by his release, and that the arrest could not be justified by probable cause, in this case malice being inferred from the absence of probable cause. "Probable cause," with respect to illegal arrest, is a question of law which ought to be left entirely and absolutely to the discretion of the judge, who should decide this question independently of the jury and without its help.

Perron v. Drouin, 46 Que. S.C. 336, 16 Que. P.R. 121.

LIABILITY — ILLEGAL ARREST — PROBABLE CAUSE—EVIDENCE—QUE. C.C. 1053.

One who has, even in good faith, bought a stolen article, and who, summoned before a magistrate to give explanations, instead of answering sincerely and frankly, runs away, and, being called back, becomes nervous, hesitates, contradicts himself and tries to dissimulate the truth, inspires enough suspicion of his being guilty or receiving stolen goods to justify his arrest. And, under such circumstances, if he is subsequently acquitted there is no remedy in damages against the complainant. It is now settled by law that in a case of damages for illegal arrest, the plaintiff must prove that the defendant, his accuser, has acted not only rashly but also maliciously. The accuser is also not responsible if he has acted conscientiously according to his counsel's advice, and especially under the advice of the magistrate charged to examine the plaintiff. If, however, the accuser had the plaintiff arrested not in the public interest but for his own private interest, the action in damages, if dismissed, will be dismissed without costs.

(§ I B—8)—WHEN JUSTIFIABLE—PROBABLE CAUSE.

A peace officer is justified under Cr. Code, s. 30, in arresting without warrant a person who, on reasonable and probable grounds, he believes has committed an indictable offence for which the law provides that the offender may be arrested without warrant, but in acting under s. 30, it is essential that the officer should stand indifferent so that he may act without bias or partiality in deciding whether or not there are reasonable and probable grounds for the arrest; consequently s. 30 cannot apply where the officer is himself the person specially aggrieved by the offence.

R. v. Belyea, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 395, 43 N.B.R. 375.

(§ I B—9)—WITHOUT WARRANT ON CRIMINAL CHARGE — ARREST OF WRONG MAN ON DESCRIPTION AND PHOTOGRAPH SUPPLIED TO THE POLICE—CR. CODE, S. 30.

Cr. Code, s. 30, which justifies an arrest without warrant on suspicion of a crime for which, if the accused were guilty, he would be liable to arrest by a peace officer without warrant, justifies also the detention of the person arrested for such time as may be necessary to identify him or to permit the process of law to be enforced. The circumstances may justify the taking of a photograph of the person arrested and forwarding it for identification to the police of another city who had forwarded a photograph of the person against whom they held a warrant of arrest, where the resemblance to this photograph and the accompanying description was the cause of the arrest, but the police officer effecting the arrest and detention of the wrong man will be liable in damages for unnecessary delay in releasing him, due to amateur efforts in taking the photograph of the arrested person and in holding him in custody after the expiration of the time requisite for receiving information by wire that he was not the person wanted.

ILLEGAL ARREST ON FIRST CHARGE—CONVICTION MADE ON SECOND CHARGE ONLY—DISMISSAL OF FIRST CHARGE.

The fact that the accused had been illegally arrested without a warrant on a charge which was dismissed, and that pending the hearing another charge was laid for a different offence, will not deprive the magistrate having jurisdiction in respect of time and place over the latter offence from proceeding to trial and conviction where objection was raised only in that case and not in the case upon the prior charge which was dismissed. [R. v. Hughes, 4 Q.B.D. 614; R. v. Paul, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 159, 7 D.L.R. 24, followed; Pearks v. Richardson, [1902] 1 K.B. 91, distinguished.]

ACCUSED ON BAIL—REARREST ON ORIGINAL WARRANT.

The release under bail pending an appeal under Criminal Code, s. 797, from a conviction on summary trial for keeping a disorderly house does not prevent the rearrest and detention of the defendant under the original warrant of commitment on the conviction being affirmed.

LIQUOR LAW.

Neither Cr. Code, s. 35, nor Cr. Code, s. 648, applies to authorize a peace officer to arrest without warrant a person whom he finds committing an offence against a provincial statute which itself provides a penalty and is therefore not within Cr. Code, s. 164, as to wilful disobedience of provincial statutes. [R. v. McMurrer, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 385, approved.]

R. v. Pollard, 39 D.L.R. 111, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 35, 13 A.L.R. 157, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 754.

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT—DIFFERENCE OF BID—JUDICIAL SALE.

The provisions of the law respecting imprisonment in a civil matter should be strictly interpreted and applied only in cases clearly established. An arrest is not permissible, of a purchaser of movables judicially sold, for the payment of the difference between his bid, and the amount that the sale might have produced by a resale for false bidding (folle enchère), when such sale was made by a curator in insolvency under a judge's order which authorization is not equivalent to a judgment of the court under art. 833, C.P.Q.

SAISIE-ARRÊT—LIMITATIONS.

Nisbet & Auld v. White, 12 Que. P.R. 272.

(§ II—15)—AFFIDAVIT FOR WRIT OF CAPIAS.

An affidavit for capias must on its face shew every element to justify the condemnation of the defendant to imprisonment, and failure to mention in the affidavit the place of origin of the alleged indebtedness is a fatal irregularity. Where costs due upon a judgment obtained in Quebec are alleged in an affidavit to be due, but the place of the original indebtedness is not mentioned therein, such allegation regarding costs cannot justify the issue of a capias inasmuch as the judgment obtained did not operate as a novation of the debt and the costs incurred on such judgment are but an accessory of the debt. Patsons v. Hancock, 38 O.L.R. 590.

CAPIAS—AFFIDAVIT—SUFFICIENCY.

An affidavit for a capias, which merely sets out a note declared valid by a judgment of the Superior Court confirmed in review, is illegal as not sufficiently indicating that the debt was created or made payable within the limits of the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario.

Grimard v. Desaulniers, 18 Que. P.R. 260.

CAPIAS—FRAUDULENT WITHDRAWAL OF PROPERTY—CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT.

There is no fraudulent withdrawal of property for which a writ of capias may issue, in the act of a debtor who on the advice of his attorney confesses judgment in favour of his son who, in executing such judgment by the regular decree of the court, sells the only property belonging to his father, the returns from which are scarcely sufficient to pay the costs of the action and of the seizure.

Desjardins v. Rivard, 18 Que. P.R. 285.

NATURE OF CLAIM—DAMAGES—JUDGMENT.

The contrainte par corps can only be granted in an action for damages in the case where the damages awarded have a personal character; it cannot be obtained when the judgment does not indicate the nature of the damages nor the amounts which relate to exemplary damages and real damages respectively.

CAPIAS—AFFIDAVIT—FORMS.

The affidavit of the plaintiff to obtain a capias is sufficient if it follows the form in Schedule R. of the appendix to the Code of Civil Procedure (Que.), or any other form of the same tenor.

Lapointe v. Champlain, 18 Que. P.R. 70. In an affidavit for a capias it is not sufficient to name the place where the debt is payable; the place where it was contracted should also be stated.

Abrahamovitch v. Wiselberg, 13 Que. P.R. 260.

(§ II—20)—REPAIRING BUILDING BELONGING TO WIFE ON CREDIT OF HUSBAND—SALE OF PROPERTY BY WIFE—QUASHING CAPIAS.

Where a builder or contractor does work on or repairs to a building standing registered in the name of the wife, but giving credit to the husband and charging him therewith, such builder or contractor cannot afterwards charge the husband with secretion of property by the fact of the sale of the house by the wife at a low figure and a capias issued under such circumstances will be quashed. Where merchants give credit recklessly on mere promises to pay to persons with no possible means of making good such promises, they are not entitled to relief by writ of capias if their debtors are unable to meet their payments as they fall due, although the debtors make payments to other creditors in preference or priority to them, particularly where the goods supplied are for personal use.

Shiarp v. de Pedro, 9 D.L.R. 129.

CAPIAS (QUEBEC)—PROCEDURE—SUFFICIENCY OF AFFIDAVIT—AMENDMENT OF—ERROR IN NAME—JUSTIFICATION—INTENTION TO ABSCOND.

An error in the name of the plaintiff or of the defendant in proceedings by way of capias in Quebec is a ground of exception to the form, and cannot be objected to by a petition to quash. Where goods have been sold to a purchaser in Quebec, and, while the price is still unpaid, he announces his intention of going to the United States, but does not notify the seller of such intention, and about a week before his intended departure he begins to dispose of his property, including the goods unpaid for, and pays none of the money so realized to the seller, but pays some of his other creditors, the facts are sufficient to justify the allegation in an affidavit for a capias on behalf of the seller that the purchaser is about to abscond from the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec with the intention of defrauding his creditors in general and the plaintiff in particular. An order that a capias may be maintained in Quebec, it is necessary to shew the intention of the defendant to leave the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario with the intention of defrauding his creditors. An error in the name of the plaintiff in an affidavit for a capias in Quebec, which has not misled or prejudiced the defendant, may be amended. An absolute rule cannot be laid down in regard to amendments of affidavits leading to the issuing a capias; each case must be considered on its own merits. An allegation in an affidavit for a capias in Quebec that "cette dette a été créée de la manière suivante: par un envoi d'un char de fleur vendu et délivré au défendeur, en la ville de Shawinigan Falls, dans le cours de l'automne dernier, 1911," shews sufficiently for the purpose of such an affidavit where the cause of action arose and when the debt was incurred. [Dominion Flour Mills Co. v. Pelletier, 13 Que. P.R. 389.]

Pelletier v. Dominion Flour Mills, 5 D. L.R. 379.

PROCEDURE ON ARREST BY CAPIAS.

Upon a motion by the defendant under s. 7 of the Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 12, for the discharge of bail put in to a writ of capias, the judge in Chambers may go into the whole matter at large. Objections to an order for a capias on the ground of defects in the affidavits upon which it was made cannot be taken after special bail has been put in. [Robertson v. Beers, 7 B.C.R. 76, referred to.] It is beyond the jurisdiction of a judge in Chambers in British Columbia to set aside an order for a capias after it has been passed and entered, on the ground of defects in the affidavits on which it was made. [Damer v. Busby, 5 P.R. (Ont.) 356, referred to.]

CAPIAS—IMPRISONMENT—LIBERATION—JUDICIAL GIVING UP OF GOODS—BAIL—C.C.P. ART. 886, 887, 889, 910, 913.

The capias ad respondendum should not be considered as a penalty, but as a mode of provisional execution on the part of the creditor, to prevent fraud on the part of the debtor by the arrest of his person and by forcing him to pay his debt or make an assignment of his goods. The special security authorized by art. 824 of the old Code of Procedure, by which the debtor could give bail even after the judgment maintaining the capias, according to jurisprudence of former judgment, has been supplanted by the present code, for the very purpose of obliging the debtor to pay his debt at once or to make a judicial surrender of his goods. The surrender of his goods liberates in plain law, a debtor arrested on a capias; he has only to demand his discharge by application in order to obtain it. The theory that the debtor who surrenders his goods, cannot be discharged before the expiration of four months given to his creditors to contest his bankruptcy, is absolutely contrary to the old French law reproduced by art. 846 of the Code of Procedure. It results from the pure literal sense of art. 889, but this should be set aside, when one considers it, as one should, with the other provisions which apply to this matter, because it has the result of preventing the Act from attaining the object for which it was passed. Although the debtor can only give, under the present code, the provisional and ordinary security of arts. 910, 913, C.C.P., nevertheless, if he makes a surrender of his goods after judgment maintaining the capias, and demands his release, offering good and sufficient security that he will give himself up to the sheriff when required such application will not be rejected.

CAPIAS AD RESPONDENDUM—RESERVING—SUM OF MONEY—(CONFESSION—C.C. ART. 1245—C.C.P. ART. 895.

A debtor who admits under oath that he has at his home a sum of $1,200, and who, when the sheriff comes to seize it, declares that he has hidden this money and that he will not pay his creditor, is removing his goods with the intention of defrauding his creditors, and can be arrested on a capias ad respondendum. (§ II—21) — CAPIAS—ARREST OF DEBTOR'S ACT—AFFIDAVIT.

A defendant arrested under a writ of capias for a money claim who makes a deposit in lieu of bail and obtains his release under the Arrest of Debtors Act (Con. stats. N.B. 1903, c. 130, s. 5) is entitled to a return of the deposit upon an order setting aside the arrest because of the invalidity of the affidavit to hold to bail. [*MacAuley v. Peters v. Charlot, 39 D.L.R. 407, 45 N.B.R. 314.

CAPIAS—ACTION FOR LIQUIDATED DEMAND—ENDORSEMENT OF WRIT.

An application to set aside an arrest under a writ of capias and to have the bail bond discharged is not "a step in the cause" within the meaning of order 70, r. 2, of the Judicature Act, to the effect that no application to set aside any proceedings for an irregularity shall be allowed, if the party applying has taken any fresh step after knowing of the irregularity. In an action for a debt or liquidated demand commenced by a writ of capias under N.B. order 96, r. 1, against the defendant, the writ should be endorsed under order 3, r. 7, of the N.B. Judicature Act, 9 Edw. VII, c. 5, in like manner to a writ of summons, with a statement of the amount of debt and costs respectively upon payment of which within six days further proceedings will be stayed; but the court has power to allow an amendment where the endorsement does not comply with that rule.

The creditor's contestation of the statement of a debtor arrested on a capias must be taken under advisement within four months after the production of that statement.

The society of the Sisters of Charity of the House of Providence at Kingston was incorporated under the authority of the act respecting benevolent societies (37 Vict., c. 34). The society is a self-governing one, and with certain minor exceptions the Bishop of Kingston has no legal right to interfere in the management of its affairs; the constitution makes no provision for the disciplining of a member or her expulsion from the society. The rights which the members possess are conferred upon them by provincial legislation, and those rights cannot be taken away by the application of the canon law or by any ecclesiastical authority of the Church of Rome. The law will not imply against the society that it gave to its officers authority to do that which it itself had no right to do. A resolution of the society authorizing an act to be done must be construed as authorizing it to be done by lawful means.

A quit claim deed from an official assignee under the Insolvent Act of 1869 (Can.), does not have the effect in Nova Scotia of dispensing with proof that there was a valid statutory sale and that the requisite advertising for a period of two months under s. 47 of that Act had taken place, where such deed is not in the statutory form "I" to the Insolvent Act and does not recite a due compliance with the statute; and this objection is available against a claim for trespass brought by a person not in possession whose paper title is dependent upon such quitclaim deed.

A deposit note given by a member to a mutual fire insurance company is not a promise to pay the sum for which it is made, but affords only a basis on which assessments may be declared and levied, as provided in arts. 7016 and 7017, R.S.Q. 1909. It is therefore doubtful whether such a note can be assigned or sold to a third party.

(§ I—2)—INSURANCE CLAIM.

The claim of the person whose premises are damaged by fire against another for negligence in causing the fire is assignable to a fire insurance company which, in consequence, is called upon to pay a loss under its policy to the owner of the premises. [King v. Victoria Ins. Co., [1896] A.C. 250, followed; Dell v. Saunders, 17 D.L.R. 279, 19 B.C.R. 500, referred to.]

FUTURE FARM CROP—EXECUTIONS.

An assignment may be validly made to third persons of an interest in a farm crop to be grown thereafter, notwithstanding the existence of executions against the assignor at the time of the assignment.

CHOSE IN ACTION—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE TO SUE—REVERTING TRUST AS TO PROCEEDS.

An assignment of a debt or legal chose in action may be absolute within the Judicature Act so as to enable the assignee to sue therefor, although a trust is created in respect of the proceeds in favour of the assignor. [Comfort v. Betts, [1891] 1 Q.B. 737, applied; Mercantile Bank of London v. Evans, [1899] 2 Q.B. 613; Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co., [1902] 2 K.B. 190, referred to.]

WHAT ASSIGNABLE GENERALLY.

In an action for the recovery of a physician's bill for services, where the bill had been assigned by attaching to an ordinary statement of the account a written assignment with an attesting witness of "this claim of $1,500," the assignment, however, not shewing any consideration, such an assignment is sufficient in form, no technical form being required by the laws of Quebec. [Walker v. Bradford Old Bank, 12 Q.B.D. 511, referred to.]

Reader v. Calumet Metals Co., 6 D.L.R. 496, 19 Rev. de Jur. 346.

CHOSE IN ACTION—"ABSOLUTE" ASSIGNMENT—ACTION—PARTIS—ADDING ASSIGNEE.

An assignment of a chose in action which, followed by notice, would entitle the assignee to sue in his own name and (ordinarily) disentitle the assignor to sue in his name, may on its face purport to be given by way of security of or on certain trusts; if the assignment purports to pass the assignor's entire title to the chose in action, though expressly by way of mortgage (passing the legal title), it is nevertheless absolute; if the assignment, whatever its form, purports to coarge the assignor's interest, while leaving the title to that interest in the assignor, it is an assignment by way of charge only. [Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co., [1902] 2 K.B. 190, and Wilton v. Rochester German Underwriters Agency Co., 11 A.L.R. 574, followed.] In an action upon a chose in action by the assignor thereof, if both the assignor and assignee are bound by the result, any difficulty on the score of parties is fully met. [Wilton v. Rochester German Underwriters Agency Co., supra, distinguished.] An alleged compromise as to the amount of a claim for insurance moneys held not to have been concluded.

Taylor v. Equitable Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 13 A.L.R. 58, reversing [1918] 1 W.W.R. 277.

RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE TO SUE IN HIS OWN NAME—CONTRACT FOR PERSONAL SERVICES—CLAIM FOR UNLIQUIDATED DAMAGES FOR BREACH.

CAUSE OF ACTION FOR ASSAULT—NON-ASSIGNABILITY.

Webber v. Gaffin, 9 E.L.R. 277 (N.S.).

CHOSE IN ACTION—GUARANTEE—ASSIGNMENT OF RIGHTS UNDER INDENTURE GUARANTEEING PAYMENT OF DEBT OF ANOTHER—GUARANTEED DEBT OVERDUE AT TIME OF ASSIGNMENT—NOTICE TO GUARANTOR—NOT ESSENTIAL TO NOTIFY PRIMARY DEBTOR OF ASSIGNMENT—LAWS DECLARATORY ACT, R.S.B.C., 1911, c. 133, s. 2 (25).

An assignment of rights under an indenture containing a covenant to pay another's debt in the event of that other not paying it by a specified time, if such assignment is made after the debt is overdue, need not be notified to the primary debtor to enable the assignee to sue the guarantor thereon. The guarantor has become a "debtor" under subs. 25 of s. 2 of the Laws Declaratory Act, R.S.B.C., 1911, c. 133.

Donald v. Jukes, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 169.

(§ 1-6)—AUDITOR AND CLERK DEFINED—COLLOCATION—PRIVILEGE—ART. 70, c. 144, R.S.C. (1906).

Art. 70, c. 144, R.S.C. (1906), being a law of privilege and exception, must be restrictively interpreted and be made to apply only to clerks or other persons similarly employed. In interpreting the expressions "other persons in the employment of the company" in said article, the rule "noscitur a sociis" should be the guiding rule. An auditor of the books of a company is not a clerk nor a person fulfilling the duties of a clerk nor a person fulfilling the duties of a clerk or employed in a similar capacity, nor a person in the employment of the company in or about its business, within the meaning of said article, and is not, therefore, entitled to be collocated by privilege over its other creditors.

Miquelon v. Vilandre Co., 15 Que. P.R. 206.

(§ 1-7)—FUTURE WAGES—CREDITOR'S RIGHT TO IMPOUND.

Unless a man has assigned or charged his future earnings or has made a sum payable out of them, they cannot be prospectively impounded by any of his creditors by any ordinary process of execution whether legal or equitable. [Holmes v. Millage, [1893] 1 Q.B. 551, applied.]

(§ 1-8)—WHAT ASSIGNABLE—VALIDITY—UNEARNED PRICE FOR CONSTRUCTION WORK—CONSIDERATION CONTINGENT.

There can under Quebec law be validly made by a contractor a transfer of the whole or a part of the contract price as and when it becomes due although at the time of such transfer there is nothing actually due because the work has not been done, and although the amount to be paid to the transferee is not yet determined, but is thereafter to be fixed by arbitration between the contractor and the transferee, ex. gr. where the transfer is made to the extent of the damages which the latter incurs by the demolition of his party wall and exacts such transfer as security on consenting to the demolition.

Roschivessen v. Thackeray, 19 D.L.R. 715, 46 Que. S.C. 50.

(§ 1-12)—TRANSFER OF LAND AGREEMENT.

An agreement for sale is transferable in its nature providing there is no express stipulation making it exclusively in favour of the person to whom it is addressed. The transfer of such an agreement is valid if made within the delays fixed for its acceptance.

Langlois v. Charpentier, 47 Que. S.C. 97.

(§ 1-14)—OF CONTRACT.

Neither party to a contract of sale of lands can assign over the burden thereof, and when one party to the contract has assigned his interest therein, he remains liable to perform his part of the contract; the other party cannot sue the assignee, either for the specific performance or for damages for breach of contract, unless he has accepted the assignee as occupying the assignor's place in respect to the fulfilment of the contract.

CLAIM FOR COMMISSION ON SALE OF REAL ESTATE — TRANSFER BY HUSBAND TO WIFE.

The claim of a real estate agent for commission due him on the disposal of property is assignable and where the claim is assigned to the wife of the agent she may sue in her own name.

CONTRACT TO PURCHASE LAND — STIPULATION AGAINST TRANSFER WITHOUT CONSENT — PRIORITY BETWEEN SUBPURCHASERS.

A stipulation in an agreement for sale of land that no assignment thereof by the purchaser shall be valid unless formally approved of by the vendor is effective only for the protection of the vendor, and cannot be set up by a second subpurchaser to defeat the claim of a prior subpurchaser whose claim had legal priority under the registry laws as between themselves, although the second subpurchaser had obtained the original vendor's approval and the first subpurchaser had not.

(§ 1—17)—OF CHOSE IN ACTION — CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

A claim for unliquidated damages arising out of breach of contract is assignable, and is enforceable by the assignee; whether a particular assignment is champertous is a question of fact.

Baird & Botterill v. Taylor, 33 D.L.R. 99, 19 A.L.R. 319, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1172.

OF CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

A claim for damages for personal injuries from a collision on the highway due to the defendant's driving on the wrong side of the road is not assignable. [McGregor v. Campbell, 19 Man. L.R. 38, and McCormack v. Toronto R. Co., 13 O.L.R. 656, followed.]

CHOSE IN ACTION — POLICY — LIABILITY OF ASSIGNEE.

The right of recovery under a policy of insurance against liability for injuries to employees is a chose in action which is assignable under s. 26 (e) of the King's Bench Act. On the assignment of a right or benefit which is subject to the performance of a condition, the right to perform the condition, where there is the power, also passes where there is nothing in the nature of personal service or consideration attaching to such performance.

Newton v. North American Accident Ins. Co. (Man.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1129. [Affirmed 45 D.L.R. 247, 57 Can. S.C.R. 577.]

II. Equitable assignment; orders.

(§ 11—20) — GARNISHEE AND ASSIGNEE — PRIORITY.

To establish an equitable assignment of a chose in action in priority to garnishment proceedings, it must appear that the alleged equitable assignee had an interest in the fund and not merely some right of action against the creditor whose debt is attached.

Brodeur v. Elliott, 22 D.L.R. 122.

EQUITABLE OF LEGAL CHARGE — DISTINCTION.

Where the holder of the fund intervenes and assumes a responsibility in respect of an order drawn on him not amounting to an equitable assignment, the question against him is one of a charge either equitable or legal and not one of assignment; the question of an equitable assignment must depend solely upon what took place between the assignee and the assignor. An assignment of a chose in action may be verbal where a writing is not required by law; no particular form of words is necessary so long as they clearly shew an intention that the assignee is to have the benefit of the chose in action. An equitable assignment may be inferred from conduct or a course of dealing, and this although a bill of exchange has been drawn or a mere order has been given which alone would not constitute an assignment; and where the written order does not specify the debt owing by the addressee or the fund intended to be assigned, the fact of an equitable assignment may be shewn as supplementary to the writing. [Galt v. Smith, 1 Terr. L.R. 129; Percival v. Dunn, 29 Ch. D. 128, referred to.]

Ritchie v. Jeffrey, 21 D.L.R. 851, 8 A.L.R. 215, 31 W.L.R. 221, 8 W.W.R. 729. [Affirmed 26 D.L.R. 703, 52 Can. S.C.R. 243.]

EQUITABLE—APPROPRIATION OF FUND.

The appropriation of a claim against a company in liquidation, by a shareholder, in reduction of his liability: as such, operates as an equitable assignment of the claim. [Fraser v. Imperial Bank, 10 D.L.R. 232, 47 Can. S.C.R. 313, specially considered.]

Morrison v. McPherson (Man.), 36 D.L.R. 559, 28 Man. L.R. 113.

EQUITABLE—CHOSE IN ACTION—RIGHT TO SUE.

An assignment of a legal chose in action, arising out of tort, made while litigation is proceeding, and not under the Laws Declaratory Act (B.C.), operates as an equitable assignment, and the action thereon can only be continued in the name of the assignor.

TRANSFER WITHOUT INDORSEMENT—BY SEPARATE INSTRUMENT—ORDER FOR PAYMENT—VALIDITY.

A written order from the payee directing the maker of a promissory note to pay the amount due thereon to a third person operates as an assignment, and not merely as an order which is revoked by the death of the signer. [Harding v. Harding, 17 Q.B.D. 442, Farquhar v. Toronto, 12 Gr. 187, and Bank of B.N.A. v. Gibson, 21 O.R. 613, referred to.]

EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT—TRANSFER OF HALF INTEREST IN DEBT.

When an action is brought for the whole of a debt in the name of the original creditor, although the defendant debtor has been given notice of an assignment of a half interest therein by the original creditor to a third party, the defendant may properly plead such assignment and notice in reduction of the plaintiff's claim, and to protect himself from the claim of such assignee, whether or not the latter's claim to a half interest could be sued in the name of the assignee or the transfer operated only by way of equitable assignment.

Kennerley v. Hestall (No. 2), 10 D.L.R. 291.

EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.

An arrangement between a boarding house keeper and a company that he should charge for meals served to the company's employees, and that the company should deduct the amount owing in respect of such meals from the employees' pay checks and pay it to the boarding house keeper, is not dependent on the law of assignment, as the amount so to be deducted from wages yet to be earned would from time to time be payable to the boarding house keeper as the direct creditor of the company and would never have been legally payable to the employee, although for convenience of accounting the gross wages were placed to his credit and the boarding accounts charged against the same. [Lee v. Friedman, 20 O.L.R. 49, distinguished.]

Olsen v. Machin, 8 D.L.R. 188, 4 O.W.N. 287, 23 O.W.R. 531.

PRIOR EQUITABLE CLAIM.

NECESSITY OF NOTICE—GARNISHEE ORDER—PRIORITIES.

Notice of an equitable assignment is not necessary as against third persons who stand in the same position as the assignor, such as a creditor who has attained a garnishee order. An equitable charge takes priority over a garnishee order even when no notice of the charge has been given. [Bailey v. Consolidated Bank, 38 Ch. D. 238, referred to.]

BUILDING CONTRACT—STIPULATION NOT TO ASSIGN.

(§ 11—21)—EQUITABLE—ORDERS.

An order directing the payment of a sum from the proceeds of a loan does not create an equitable assignment of the particular amount from a fund other than the one specially designated.

Partridge v. Winnipeg Investment Co. (Man.), 55 D.L.R. 420, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 832.

FUND PAYABLE UNDER BUILDING CONTRACT.

A written order for the payment out of a fund payable under a building contract is not enforceable as an equitable assignment in the absence of the owner's promise to pay it out of the fund, and where, owing to the contractor's failure, the owner is compelled to complete the work at an outlay which leaves no balance sufficient to meet the amount of the order.

(§ 11—23)—SUBCONTRACTOR FOR WORK ON IDENTICAL TERMS—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.

An agreement whereby a contractor for work subcontracts with another to do the same work at the same price as he is to receive and agrees to pay the second contractor in the same instalments as are stipulated for in the original contract with the property owner, constitutes an assignment to the person who performs the work of the moneys to accrue under the original contract made by the property owner, and such transaction is an equitable assignment of a chose in action.

III. Rights and liabilities of parties.

(§ 111—25)—DEBTS—COLLECTION—LIQUIDATION.

Under a general assignment of present and future debts, etc., as security, when the assignor is permitted to collect and apply the proceeds, in the ordinary course of business, the money actually collected becomes the property of the assignor, and any balance of such collected money, existing at the time of the assignor's insolvency, even in a fund capable of identification, would belong to the liquidator, and the fund itself is not within the scope of such an assignment. An assignee of debts as security by permitting the assignor to collect them, and to use the proceeds, does not thereby release or abandon the security, and may withdraw its permission at any time, and the assignor is trustee for the assignee of any portion of such debts collected, and not used by the assignor, but existing in a fund, which can be identified, at the insolvency of the assignor.

CHOSE IN ACTION—PRIOR EQUITIES.

The assignee of a chose in action takes subject to the equities existing between the assignor and the debtor or fundholders, whether the assignment is under the King's Bench Act (Man.) or is an equitable assignment, and the assignee cannot, by giving notice, create for himself higher rights than the assignor possessed. [Mangles v. Dixon, 3 H.L. Cas. 702, referred to.]

Chalmers v. Macbray, 26 D.L.R. 529, 26 Man. L.R. 105, 9 W.W.R. 1435, 33 W.L.R. 656, reversing 21 D.L.R. 635, 30 W.L.R. 836, 8 W.W.R. 27.

RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE—CROWN LAND PATENT —ATTACKING GRANT OF SAME LAND OBTAINED BY TRUST.

An assignee of an original land grant from the Crown may attack another grant by the Crown of the same land on the ground that the other Crown grant was fraudulently obtained. [Prosser v. Edmunds, 1 Y. & C. Ex. 481, distinguished.] Zeck v. Clayton, 13 D.L.R. 502, 28 O.L.R. 447, reversing 6 D.L.R. 205, 3 O.W.N. 1611.

ASSIGNMENT OF BUILDING CONTRACT TO BONDING COMPANY—LIABILITY OF ASSIGNEE TO SUBCONTRACTOR.

A guaranty company, which gave a bond of indemnity to the owner of a building about to be constructed, for the due completion of said building by a construction company under contract, and to whom the construction company assigned the contract to take effect only on the default of the construction company, agreed, when the default had taken place, to allow the owner to complete the building. The construction company had subcontracted to the plaintiff for certain work on the building, part of which was done before and part after the construction company's default. In an action for the value of the work against the guaranty company as assignee of the contract:—Held, on appeal, that no liability could be attached to the guaranty company for the subcontractor's debt. Decision of Grant, Co. J., reversed.

CHOSE IN ACTION—ASSIGNMENT OF—MONEY RECEIVED BY DEFENDANT FOR THE USE OF PLAINTIFF.

Waterloo Manufacturing Co. v. Kirk, 21 Man. L.R. 457.

ASSIGNMENT OF DEBT—SERVICE—COSTS.

In the sale of a debt legal proceedings founded upon the transfer and duly served are equivalent to the service of the writ of summons. If the deed is only filed at the enquete the action of the plaintiff will be maintained but with costs against him, each party paying his own costs of enquete.

Viewmount Land Co. v. Smythe, 51 Que. S.C. 394.

ASSIGNMENT OF DEBT—SERVICE—JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.

An action based upon a sale of debts not served on the debtor is equivalent to an acceptance of the assignment and leave to the court only discretion as to costs. When several successive holders agree to pay to the vendor the same interest on the purchase price each may be condemned to pay the whole, and the vendor may proceed against them all in one action.

Chopin v. Levinoff, 52 Que. S.C. 268.

(§ III—26)—PRIORITY BETWEEN ASSIGNEES —BANK'S PRIOR ASSIGNMENT FOR FUTURE ADVANCES — PERMITTING OUTLAY BY JUNIOR ASSIGNEE.

Where, under an equitable assignment of a railway contract for the construction of a number of railway stations the plaintiff, with the knowledge and permission and encouragement of the defendant bank (whose customer he is) goes on supplying materials for and constructing the railway stations, the defendant bank is estopped from subsequently setting up a prior assignment in its own favour for future advances as against the plaintiff's claim for the materials and work so contributed by him in good faith and without notice; especially where to defeat the plaintiff's claim would be an injustice tantamount to a reproach upon the law, and where the bank failed to notify the plaintiff of its prior assignment. [Russell v. Watts, 10 App. Cas. 590; Stronge v. Hawkes, 4 D.G. M. & G. 186, applied.]

PRIORITIES BETWEEN ASSIGNEES — ASSIGNMENT OF INTEREST OF VENDEE IN CONTRACT FOR SALE OF LAND—KNOWLEDGE OF VENDOR—SUBSEQUENT ASSIGNMENT.

Where the plaintiff to the knowledge of the vendor, in consideration of an assignment to him of the vendee's interest in a contract for the sale of land, furnished the latter with money to make his first payment, and the plaintiff covenanted in consideration of the acceptance of the assignment by the vendor without a formal execution of it, to make future payments as they became due, the rights of the plaintiff in the land are entitled to priority over those of a third person who, without the knowledge of the plaintiff, advanced the vendee money for a subsequent payment and received as security an assignment of his interest under the contract, in which the vendor joined without disclosing the prior assignment; although the plaintiff's rights will be on condition that he make the payments as he had covenanted to do.

(§ III—27)—ASSIGNEE OF WAGES.

A claim for work done by the owner of a threshing outfit is assignable, and where the work was ordered without an agreement as to the price to be charged, the party for whom the work was done is liable to the assignee of the account for whatever sum the work is worth estimated at a fair price.

(§ III—28)—EQUITIES AND SET-OFFS—DIMINUTION OF PRICE BY PARTIAL FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

As against the assignee of a mortgage taking with notice and subject to all equities, an allowance may be ordered by way of diminution of the purchase price which the mortgage secures, for the mortgagee's failure to supply the use of certain farm equipment which the mortgagee as vendor to the mortgagor had undertaken to do as one of the considerations for the agreement of exchange mentioned in the mortgage, or, in the alternative, for damages for breach of contract.

EQUITIES AND SET-OFFS AGAINST ASSIGNEE—EXCLUSION OF COUNTERCLAIM.

The King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 49, s. 39 (f), confers no right to counterclaim but only a right to set-off as against the assignee of a chose in action arising out of a contract in addition to the right to plead any defence arising out of the contract prior to notice of the assignment.

SET-OFF.

The intent of s. 26 of the Assignments Act (Alberta, 1907, c. 6) is to secure to debtors the right to set-off debts due to them before the assignment, and therefore a debt acquired afterwards cannot be set-off by a defendant in an action by an assignee.

EQUITIES AND SET-OFF.

Where one acquires property by gift or purchase from another with knowledge of a previous contract lawfully and for valuable consideration made by him with a third person to use and employ the property for a particular purpose in a specified manner, the acquirer shall not, to the material damage of the third person in opposition to the contract and inconsistently with it, use and employ the property in a manner not allowable to the giver or seller. ASSIGNMENT OF LAND CONTRACT—EQUITIES —RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES.

Where a contract for the sale of land has been cancelled by the vendor because of the nonpayment by the vendee of all of the initial payment, which, however, the contract recited had been paid in full, an assignee thereof takes subject to all equities between the vendor and vendee, and can not, in the absence of allegation and proof of equitable rights as an innocent purchaser without notice, upon tender of the balance due upon the contract, obtain specific performance thereof. Bank of Montreal v. Tudhope, 17 W.L.R. 83. [Affirmed, 19 W.L.R. 141.]

(§ III—29)—ASSIGNEE OF LEASE—RIGHT TO SUE IN OWN NAME—"ENTIRE BENEFICIAL INTEREST"—PROOF OF.

Where the assignee of a lease proves an assignment absolute in form it is sufficient evidence of his entire beneficial interest to enable him to sue in his own name under c. 146, R.S.S. 1909, unless it is proved that notwithstanding the assignment he did not have the entire beneficial interest in the claim sought to be recovered. [John Deere Plow Co. v. Tweedy, 15 D.L.R. 518, distinguished.]

RIGHTS OF LESSEE ON ASSIGNMENT OF LEASE—IMPLIED AGENCY.

The lessor in making an agreement with the assigns under which the rights and obligations entered into by the lessor are to be respected, acts both personally and in the quality of agent of the lessee whom he had bound himself to protect, and the lessee is therefore a party to such transfer, even though he does not personally intervene in the deed of transfer.

Aulhier v. Driscoll, 3 D.L.R. 797.

(§ III—39)—NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT—JUDICATURE ACT.

An assignment of an agreement to supply a corporation with electric power and light for a term of years is unenforceable until notice of the assignment is given in accordance with s. 19 (6) of the New Brunswick Judicature Act, 1909.

SALE—CONTRACT—CHOSE IN ACTION—GIVING NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT—REQUIREMENT.

Notice in writing of the assignment of a chose in action is a prerequisite to action thereon in the sole name of the assignee under the Judicature Ordinance, Alta., Stat. 1907, c. 5, s. 7; but leave may be given to add the assignor either as plaintiff if consenting or as defendant if not consenting. [Dell v. Saunders, 17 D.L.R. 279, affd.]
Armstrong v. Marshall, 19 D.L.R. 183.

GIVING NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT.

Although an assignee of the purchaser's interest in a land contract, of which a prior undisclosed assignment had been made as to part of the land without notice to him is the first to procure the original vendor in whom the legal estate is vested to become a party to the assignment by consenting thereto, his right to call for the conveyance of the legal estate over that of the person whose equitable interest while prior in point of time had not been notified to the holder of the legal estate, is controlled by the registry laws and a caveat filed by the first purchaser under the Saskatchewan Land Titles Act before the second purchaser had obtained such consent, will preserve the first purchaser's priority. [Hopkins v. Hensworth, [1898] 2 Ch. 347, and Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., [1901] 2 Ch. 231, specially referred to.]

TRANSFER OF LIEN NOTE—CHOSE IN ACTION—NOTICE.

The transfer of a "lien note" is subject to the provincial law dealing with assignments of choses in action and with the method of giving notice to the debtor that the transfer has been made. The notice of the transfer of a chose in action required to be given to the debtor in order to vest in the transferee a right of action in his own name under Saskatchewan laws (Con. Ord. 1898, c. 41) is sufficient if the transfer is produced and shewn to the debtor, and the debtor is not protected by payments thereafter made to the transferor. Bank of Toronto v. Graham, 1 D.L.R. 36, 5 S.L.R. 69, 19 W.L.R. 879, 1 W.W.R. 492.

ACCOUNT—NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT OF—SERVICE OF WRIT OR PROCESS COMMENCING THE ACTION, SUFFICIENT.

Where a physician assigned to another his bill against a patient for services, and no notice of the assignment was given to the debtor, before action brought by the assignee, the service of the writ or process commencing the action, in the name of the assignee, is a sufficient notification of the transfer. [Bank of Toronto v. St. Lawrence Fire Ins. Co., [1903] A.C. 59, 2 Com. L.R. (Can.) 42, followed.]

Reader v. Calumet Metals Co., 6 D.L.R. 496, 18 Rev. de Jur. 346.

GIVING NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT—ASSIGNMENT OF LEASE—LEASE AND ASSIGNMENT IN EFFECT ONE DOCUMENT EXECUTED IN PRESENCE OF DEBTORS.

A debtor, being financially embarrassed, made an arrangement with the plaintiff, who acted on behalf of the creditors, as a result of which the debtor leased his business premises to the defendants and assigned the rent payable therefor to the plaintiff, as trustee for the creditors. The lease and assignment were executed at a meeting, at which the debtor, the plaintiff, and the defendants were all present. The plaintiff sued the lessees for rent due under the lease, and it was contended that the plaintiff had not proven notice of the assignment to the debtors, the defendants:—Held, that the lease and assignment, although two separate documents, formed, in fact and in law, parts of one entire agreement, having for its special object the payment of the rent by the defendants to the plaintiff, to which the defendants were parties, and, therefore, the statute requiring notice of assignment of choses in action was not applicable.

Lavell v. McDonald, 3 A.L.R. 441.

NOTICE.

In a suit founded on a transfer of debts neither accepted nor acknowledged, the summons is a sufficient allegation of the assignment; before the action it is sufficiently brought to the knowledge of the debtor by a letter from the creditor's attorney claiming payment of the debt, and entitles the creditor to his costs of the action.

Orsali v. Hebert, 49 Que. S.C. 200.

SALE OF DEBT—NOTICE.

The transferee who sues to recover the debt transferred without having given notice of the sale to the debtor can only obtain judgment for the debt without costs.

St. Maurice Sand Co. v. Brault, 48 Que. S.C. 286.

(§ III—31)—ASSIGNMENT TO TRUSTEE WITH NOTICE.

A trustee under a marriage settlement who in pursuance thereof takes a transfer from the settlor of shares of stock in a company incorporated under the Dominion Companies Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 79, having at the time full notice of the terms of a prior option agreement made concerning such shares by the settlor, will hold the shares subject to the terms of such agreement and subject to the enforcement against him by the holders of the option of the rights which they had acquired from the settlor.

Re Polson Iron Works, 4 D.L.R. 193, 3 O.W.N. 1269, 22 O.W.R. 84.

(§ III—32)—AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—RIGHT TO SUE.

An assignment by mortgage of all moneys due under agreements for the sale of land which does not pass all the legal rights and remedies of the assignor, and all his legal and other remedies, is not an absolute assignment within the meaning of subs. 3, s. 7, c. 5 of the Statutes of Alberta, 1907; the assignee cannot sue in his own name by virtue of such an assignment and action on the agreement may be properly brought by the assignor alone.

Magrath v. Collins, 32 D.L.R. 29, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 487. [See also 37 D.L.R. 611, 12 A.L.R. 240.]

CONTRACT FOR SALE OF LAND—RECITAL IN VENDOR'S SUBSEQUENT DEED.

The recital of an agreement to purchase by instalments, contained in a conveyance of land, and to which agreement the conveyance was subject, does not, without notice in writing to the purchaser, constitute an assignment in writing, in conformity with s. 2 of the Laws Declaratory Act, c. 133, R.S. BC, 1911, so as to enable the assignee to bring an action in his own name for the recovery from the purchaser of overdue instalments payable under the agreement to the original vendor.

Dell v. Saunders, 17 D.L.R. 279, 19 B.C.R. 509, 27 W.L.R. 844, 6 W.W.R. 657.

RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE TO SUE IN OWN NAME—ENTIRE BENEFICIAL INTEREST—SAS-KATCHEWAN STATUTE—OPEN ACCOUNT.

Under R.S.S. 1909, c. 146, an assignee of a chose in action, suing in his own name, must plead and prove that he is entitled to the entire beneficial interest. [John Deere Plow Co. v. Tweedy, 15 D.L.R. 518, applied.]

McArthur & Co. v. Dubreuil, 20 D.L.R. 321, 7 S.L.R. 319, 29 W.L.R. 549, 7 W.W.R. 249.

RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE TO SUE IN OWN NAME—ENTIRE BENEFICIAL INTEREST—SAS-KATCHEWAN STATUTE.

An assignee of a chose in action under

R.S.S. 1909, c. 146, s. 2, is entitled to sue in his own name under that Act only if possessing "the whole and entire beneficial interest" in the claim assigned; it is therefore obligatory on the assignee suing under an assignment which purports to be a mere collateral security for a debt, to plead and prove that he is entitled to the entire beneficial interest to support an action in which the assignor is not a party. [Wood v. McAlpine, 1 A.R. (Ont.), 234, followed; Mussen v. Great North-West Central R. Co., 12 Man. L.R. 574; Burlinson v. Hall, 12 Q.B.D. 347; Tancred v. Delagoa Bay & E. Africa R. Co., 23 Q.B.D. 239; Durham (Bishop) v. Robertson, [1898] 1 Q.B. 765, considered.]

ASSIGNEE OF AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—EQUITIES BETWEEN VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

The assignee of an agreement for sale, even in the event of the payments under the agreement not having matured at the time of the assignment, is only entitled to recover the moneys due and enforce the agreement subject to any equities existing between the purchaser and vendor.

British Pac. Trust Co. v. Baillie, 29 B.C.R. 199.

(§ III—33)—VENDOR AND PURCHASER—ASSIGNMENT—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE.

A purchaser under an agreement of sale of land, who defaults under circumstances which justify the vendor in believing that the contract has been abandoned, cannot by making a merely speculative assignment of his interest place his assignee in any better position.

ASSIGNMENT BY PURCHASER OF LAND-PURCHASE CONTRACT.

Upon the forfeiture of a contract for the sale of land, and the vacation of all instruments depending thereon, on account of the default of the vendee to pay the amount due within the time decreed by the court therefor, the assignee of the vendee's interest in the contract will be given judgment against the latter for the amount the assignee had paid under the contract to the vendee or his agent, which had not been applied in satisfaction thereof.

(§ III—34)—ASSIGNMENT OF LIEN NOTE—EFFECT.

The defendant on the 25th March, 1912, sold an engine to B. for $400., and took from B. a lien-note for that amount, payable on the 1st November, 1912, with interest. The title, ownership, and right to possession of the engine were to remain in the defendant until payment. The defendant was indebted to the plaintiffs, and on the 2nd April, 1912, assigned and handed over the lien note to them. The assignment was by a separate document; it stated that the lien note was assigned as collateral security for payment of present and future indebtedness. No notice of the assignment was given to B. before the maturity of the lien note, but after the assignment, B., finding the engine too small for his work, returned it to the defendant, telling him to sell it and apply the proceeds on the lien note. This was in good faith and without collusion. The engine then remained in the defendant's possession until it was replevied by the plaintiffs in January, 1913.—Held, that the assignment did not give the plaintiffs the right to take the machine from the defendant. The property never passed to B., but remained in the defendant; and s. 11 of the Bills of Sale Act, R.S., Sask. c. 144, operated against it passing to the plaintiffs. Quere, as to the effect of want of notice of the assignment to B., having regard to s. 4 of the Act respecting Choses in Action, R. S. Sask. c. 146. [Re Davis & Co., Ex p. Rawlings, 22 Q.B.D. 193, followed.]

(§ 111—35)—CONTRACTS — SECURITIES — SPECIAL WORDS—WHAT PASSES—RIGHT TO DISTRAIN FOR RENT.

An assignment was in the following words: "The undersigned hereby assign and transfer . . . as security for all existing or future indebtedness and liability of the undersigned, all the debts, accounts and moneys, due or accruing due, or that may at any time hereafter be due . . . and also all contracts, securities, bills, notes, and other documents now held, or which may hereafter be taken or held by the undersigned, or anyone on behalf of the undersigned in respect of the said debts, accounts, moneys or any part thereof." Held, that the right of distress was not included in the assignment, and that rent reserved in a lease is not a debt secured by the lease, and an assignment sufficient to bring the rents within the Stat. 4 Geo. II. must be an assignment of rents "qua rents."

Rights and powers of assignee: 14 D.L.R. 503.

I. What constitutes an assignment.

(§ 1—1)—DEED OF TRUST TO BUILD AND PAY DEBTS—MORTGAGE BY TRUSTEE.

A conveyance of several parcels of land for the purpose of completing houses in the course of erection and then selling them, with incidental powers of borrowing money thereon and to collect all debts and thereout to pay all creditors of the grantor, is not an assignment for the general benefit of creditors within the meaning of s. 9 of the Assignments and Preferences Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 134, as will render ineffectual a mortgage by the trustee because executed without the consent of the creditors or inspectors appointed by them.

INCOMPLETE DIVESTING OF TITLE—EQUITY OF REDEMPTION—PREFERENCE.

Where there is reserved to a debtor the right to redeem or reclaim property, a trust extension agreement and a chattel mortgage conveying such property to a trustee, for the benefit of such creditors only as shall sign the agreement, are void, as against creditors who do not sign, as constituting a preference to the former; there being no complete divesting of the property by the debtor, there is no assignment for the general benefit of creditors.

Lumber Manuf. Yards v. Western Jobbers Clearing House, 28 D.L.R. 6, 9 S.L.R. 165, 34 W.L.R. 234, 10 W.W.R. 42.

WHO MAY MAKE—CORPORATION.

An incorporated company has power to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and is therefore subject to the provisions of the Assignment Act. [Hovey v. Whiting, 14 Can. S.C.R. 515, followed.]

DEMAND OF ASSIGNMENT—REGISTERED JUDGMENT CREDITOR.

A creditor who has caused his judgment to be registered against immovables, possessed by his debtor under an agreement of sale, cannot within 30 days after registration, and without abandoning it, make a demand for an assignment from his debtor on account of the same debt. If the debtor has given good grounds, the demand for as signment, in the circumstances, will be dismissed without costs.

Re Bonnier & Roy, 17 Que. P.R. 347.

LITIGIOUS CLAIM.

Litigation between a creditor and his debtor should be submitted to the court by the ordinary procedure, and the creditor is not justified to force the debtor to make a judicial abandonment of his property when this latter sets up a serious defence against his claim.

Rumlos v. Sherwin, 54 Que. S.C. 366.

TRADER—CLERK OR AGENT TRANSACTING BUSINESS—LIABILITY.

Although a son, employed as clerk and agent by his father, and in his own name collects debts, makes claims, and purchases and does all the commercial business of his father, he is not for that reason a trader; and a creditor cannot make an application for an abandonment by him of his property. But such agent is subject to art. 1716, C.C. (Que.), and personally liable to third parties.

Major v. Scarborough, 24 Rev. Leg. 461.

REVOCABILITY.

Where an assignment for the benefit of creditors has been duly made by the assignors and accepted by the assignee, such assignment is irrevocable and cannot be disclaimed. [Nelles v. Maltby, 5 O.R. 263; Gardner v. Kloepper, 7 O.R. 603; Brown v. Grove, 18 O.R. 311; Rennie v. Block, 26 Can. S.C.R. 356, referred to.]

Aldberg v. Blair, 8 W.W.R. 59.

II. Construction and effect of assignment.

(3 11—5)—PRIORITIES—INTERPLEADER.

In determining the rights of an assignee under an assignment for the benefit of creditors made pending an interpleader between certain creditors and a chattel mortgagee, s. 8 of the Assignments Act, 1907 (Alta.), c. 6, must be construed as controlled by the later enactment, subs. 4 of s. 5 of the Creditors' Relief Act, 1910 (Alta.), c. 4, by virtue whereof those creditors only who come in as parties to the interpleader and contribute to the expense of the contest are entitled to share in the benefits. [Dominion Bank v. Markham (No. 1), 14 D.L.R. 508; Martin v. Fowler, 6 D.L.R. 243, 46 Can. S.C.R. 119, and Sykes v. Soper, 14 D.L.R. 497, 29 O.L.R. 193, referred to.]

Dominion Bank v. Markham (No. 2), 15 D.L.R. 549, 26 W.L.R. 687, 5 W.W.R. 1224.

EFFECT OF ASSIGNMENT—INTERPLEADER PROCEEDINGS—PREFERENCE.

Soper v. Pulos, 10 D.L.R. 848, 4 O.W.N. 1258, 24 O.W.R. 526. [Overruled in Sykes v. Soper, 14 D.L.R. 497.]

FILING STATEMENT—EFFECT ON SEIZURE.

An abandonment of property is not completed until the statement (bilan) has been deposited. The mere filing of the consent to abandon does not constitute an abandonment such as to suspend a seizure.

Légaré Co. v. Monast, 49 Que. S.C. 19.

Can. Dig.—11.

JUDICIAL ABANDONMENT—ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT—RIGHT OF DEFENDANT TO CONTEST.

The defendant, in an abandonment of property, has a sufficient interest to contest an attachment before judgment taken against him in order to clear himself of the accusation brought against him, and a motion to that effect will be granted.

Cockburn & Rea v. Lizotte, 15 Que. P.R. 70.

CONSTRUCTION AND EFFECT—ABANDONMENT OF PROPERTY.

The fact that a plaintiff has made an abandonment of his property does not deprive him of all rights of action to enforce a claim, especially if the curator and inspectors decline to do so. [Lemay v. Martel, 1 Que. K.B. 169, followed.] If the plaintiff had made an abandonment of property before the institution of his action, a petition by the defendant that the proceedings be suspended until the curator has taken up the instance, will not be granted, without shewing that the curator and inspectors have been put in default to do so and that it is obligatory on their part.

Gauthier v. Rousseau, 15 Que. P.R. 36.

EFFECT ON CONDITIONAL SALE.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors, made in accordance with s. 6 of the Assignments Act (Alta.), cannot operate to divest a vendor under a conditional sale agreement of the ownership of the goods comprised in such agreement prior to the fulfillment of the condition.

Re Hodges; John Deere Plow Co. v. Truist & Guarantee Co., [1917] 1 W.W.R. 317, 11 A.L.R. 198.

III. Assignee or trustee.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—10)—APPOINTMENT OBTAINED BY FRAUD.

Where the appointment of a curator to an insolvent estate has been secured through fraud, by producing false, fictitious, and exaggerated claims, the nomination may be annulled and set aside on a petition of a creditor.

Curran v. Richards, 51 Que. S.C. 204.

LIQUIDATION—PREFERENDUS IN LIQUIDATOR'S REMUNERATION—SETTLING.

An application to reduce the monthly remuneration of a liquidator, on the ground that the liquidation is at a stage where his entire services are no longer required, will be refused upon opposition by creditors whose claims form a substantial portion of the aggregate. On an application without notice or filing of material, the following resolution, passed at a meeting of the creditors, was submitted to the court:

"that in the opinion of this meeting the expenses for legal and accountancy work of this liquidation are excessive and this meeting asks Mr. Justice Murphy to appoint a solicitor for the liquidation on a monthly salary basis and to bring all possible pressure to bear to secure an early termination of the liquidation and to this end the creditors ask that the liquidator continue to give his whole time to the work of the liquidation." Held, that the resolution as submitted cannot be dealt with by the court, but that if any party interested desires to bring any of the matters therein referred to before the court, he may do so by application in proper form, accompanied by proper evidence, in accordance with the established practice of the court.

In re Dominion Trust Co., 25 B.C.R. 537.

APPOINTMENT OF CURATOR—(CREDITOR.

There is nothing to prevent the appointment as curator of a creditor whose debtor has made a judicial abandonment of his property for the benefit of his creditors. A curator in an abandonment of property is the agent both of the bankrupt and of the creditors.

Gauthier v. Patenaude, 54 Que. S.C. 101. [See 19 Que. P.R. 470.]

RIGHT OF ENDORSER OF NOTE.

The endorser of a note, which he has not paid, cannot file a claim for the note nor vote for the appointment of a curator, when the holder of the note himself has filed a claim for the note. One who once voted for a curator cannot later cancel his vote and give it to another candidate. A creditor has the right of becoming its curator.

Gauthier v. Lavolette, 19 Que. P.R. 470. [See 54 Que. S.C. 101.]

EXAMINATION OF CURATOR.

The examination of the curator to an insolvent estate will not be ordered if the petition does not shew that this examination is asked for in the interest of the creditors generally or of the petitioner especially.

Clark v. McAdam, 18 Que. P.R. 167.

APPOINTMENT OF CURATOR—FRAUD—REVOCA-TION.

If the appointment of a curator to an insolvent estate has been obtained by the production of claims fabricated from a number of documents or increased in amount, this appointment will be revoked and a new meeting of creditors called to appoint another curator.

Curral v. Richards, 18 Que. P.R. 176.

(§ III A—11)—WHO MAY BE ASSIGNEE—COMPANY AS SUCH.

A company cannot act as an assignee under the Creditors' Trust Deed Act, R.S. B.C. 1911, c. 13.

Colonial Development Co. v. Beech, 16 D.L.R. 630, 19 B.C.R. 250, 6 W.W.R. 336, 27 W.L.R. 489, affirming 12 D.L.R. 738, 19 B.C.R. 247.

B. RIGHTS AND POWER.

(§ III E—15)—POWERS AND STATUS OF ASSIGNEE.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors is in the position of a mere volunteer as against whom proceeds of materials pledged to a bank under the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, may be followed.

RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE—LEASE—SURRENDERING POSSESSION—REBATE OF RENT.

SALE OF ASSETS OF INSOLVENT ESTATE

BY ASSIGNEE TO CREDITOR — INSPECTOR OF ESTATE — CONSTRUCTIVE TRUSTEE — RE-SALE AT PROFIT — JUDGMENT DIRECTING ACCOUNT OF PROFITS—PROOF OF SALE AND DELIVERY OF GOODS AND SOLVENCY OF PURCHASERS—RIGHT TO RECOVER PURCHASE PRICE — INABILITY OF PURCHASERS TO SET UP DEFECT IN VENDOR'S TITLE—EFFECT OF CONSENT JUDGMENT DISMISSING ACTION UPON PROMISSORY NOTES MADE BY PURCHASERS.

Insolvent traders made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. J., a creditor of the insolvents, was an inspector of the estate; he bought from the assignee the assets of the estate for $3,587, and (contemporaneously) sold them to the wives of the insolvents for $5,500—$1,500 cash and $4,000 secured by the promissory notes of the purchasers. J. and his partners, the defendants, were adjudged, in an action brought by the assignee, to account for the profits, if any, made by them out of the purchase of the assets:—Held, that when J. received the assets he became a constructive trustee, but that did not prevent him from selling the goods; and the purchasers could not successfully defend an action for the recovery of the price they agreed to pay. When the plaintiff proved that the goods were sold and delivered, and that the purchasers were solvent, he established a prima facie case; and the defendants were not entitled to say that they could make no profit because no recovery of the purchase price was possible; the purchasers could not set up a defect in the title of their vendor. The defendants had brought an action against the purchasers upon their promissory notes, and that action had been dismissed, but the dismissal was by the consent of the defendants, the plaintiffs in that action; the dismissal established nothing in favour of the defendants unless they shewed, which they did not, that some secret arrangement for payment had not been made when they consented to the dismissal. And, therefore, the Master had rightly found that the defendants had made a profit of $1,739.25.

PLEDGE OF IMMOVABLES—SALE BY CURATOR.

If real estate is given in pledge by traders who later become insolvent, their curator cannot obtain permission to sell the said properties without first indemnifying the creditor who holds the pledge.

Leger v. Turcotte, 19 Que. P.R. 214.

CONTRACT—SALE OF DEBTS—WARRANTY.

A sale en bloc, by a curator of the debts of a bankrupt, with a stipulation that there was no warranty as to the value or existence of such debts, and relinquishment by the purchaser of all recourse, constitutes an aleatory contract, and is not subject to the provisions of art. 1576, C.C. (Que.). In such case there is no recourse in warranty or for reduction of price if some of the debts included in the estate are found to have no actual existence, or are extinguished by prescription or compensation.

La Compagnie Beauloin v. Larue, 53 Que. S.C. 298.

CURATOR—COSTS—INSURANCE POLICY.

The curator in a judicial abandonment of property who receives a fee equivalent to 3% of the value of the insolvent's goods has no right to charge additional fees for notices to creditors for the preparation of the dividend sheet, for each claim, or any other special fee for his various acts of administration. Neither can he reimburse himself for the insurance premium paid by him upon the guarantee policy which he furnished to the creditors instead of security.

Baoust v. Houde, 53 Que. S.C. 64.

CURATOR—COSTS. *

There is a custom generally followed, by which all the services of a curator in a judicial abandonment of property are not paid according to the time that the curator has spent on it, but are paid by a commission of 5% upon the moneys realized by the sale of the movable of the bankrupt, and of 2½% upon moneys arising from the sale of the immovables; nevertheless, where there was an extraordinary amount of work, or when the commission would be very trifling or overstated and clearly unjust, the court may grant an additional fee. The costs of the curator incurred in the sole interest of the hypothecary creditors with respect to the sale of real property hypothecated in their favour, ought to be borne by the latter and not by all the creditors or by the ordinary creditors. A curator cannot claim a fee for services rendered before his nomination as substitute for the judicial guardian, which, according to custom, is never paid.

Moscovitch and Middleton-Hope v. Forget, 53 Que. S.C. 99.

PROPERTY UNDER CONDITIONAL SALE.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors, even though in the terms of s. 6 of the Assignments Act, c. 6, 1907, does not vest in the assignee the seller's interest in property in the possession of the assignor under a conditional sale agreement, whether such agreement be registered or not, as the assignee is not a creditor who has a judgment, execution or attachment against the assignor and it is only such creditors who are protected by the Conditional Sales Ordinance, c. 44, C.O.

Re Hodges; John Deere Plow Co. v. Trusts & Guarantee Co., 11 A.L.R. 198, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 317.

CURATOR'S FEES—ATTORNEY'S FEE—AMENDMENT.

The curator of an insolvent estate is not entitled to fees for the preparation of notices of assignment. He has no right to charge the estate with the premium that he was obliged to pay to the guarantee company which became surety for him, nor is he entitled to a fee for the preparation of the dividend sheet for examination of claims filed. The court will allow the curator a little more than 5% upon the receipts of the insolvent estate, the fee covering the continuation of the business of the bankrupt by the curator. [See Re Waldron, Drouin & Co., 17 Que. P.R. 358, and authorities cited at 368.] If the costation of the dividend sheet is amended, and the hearing not delayed, there will be granted to the attorney of the curator in addition to the costs of motion a fee of $10. [See Chené v. Chené Heirs, 15 Que. P.R. 372.]

Re Daoust, 17 Que. P.R. 421.

CURATOR'S FEES.

Curators and liquidators in addition to their costs and disbursements will be well and equably remunerated for their services by granting them 5% upon the first $5,000, 2½% on amounts from $5,000 to $12,000 and 1½% on the excess over $12,000.

(§ III B—20)—ASSIGNEE—POWERS—PROPERTY OR TITLE TAKEN—IMPLIED AUTHORITY TO SELL REALTY, WHEN.

A trustee to whom an assignment has been made for the benefit of creditors of "all the assets and effects" of the assignor has implied authority to sell any real property of the assignor covered by the assignment if it appears that his duties cannot be carried out without such power. [Flux v. Best, 31 L.T.N.S. 645, referred to.]

Doctor v. People's Trust Co., 14 D.L.R. 451, 18 B.C.R. 111, 3 W.W.R. 929.

SALE OF ASSETS TO INTERESTED PARTY—VALIDITY.

A sale by a company's assignee for the benefit of its creditors was not vitiated on the ground that an inspector of the estate was interested in the purchase, though he had not formerly resigned his position, where he did not participate in the negotiations leading up to the sale, and his act in signing a memorandum on the margin of the conveyance was purely formal and at the suggestion of the purchaser. Under an assignment by a company of its assets upon trust to apply the proceeds in payment of its debts and to pay any balance to the company, any right to sue to set aside a sale of the assets made by the assignee, upon the ground that one of the inspectors of the estate was interested in the purchase, is vested in the liquidator and not in a creditor or shareholder.

PRIORITIES—CREDITORS' INTERPLEADER WITH CHATTEL MORTGAGEE PENDING WHEN ASSIGNMENT MADE.

Contesting execution creditors who have taken an issue in interpleader proceedings as against a chattel mortgagee whose mortgage is attacked are subject to have their executions and rights in the interpleader subordinated to those of the general body of creditors as represented by the assignee upon an assignment under the Ontario Assignments Act, 10 Edw. VII, c. 64, R.S.O. 1914, c. 124, made between the preliminary interpleader order and the trial of the issue thereunder, and this although the preliminary order, pursuant to the interpleader clauses of the Creditors' Relief Act, 9 Edw. VII, (Ont.) c. 48, R.S.O. 1914, c. 81, made provision whereby other creditors might come in and share in the benefits of the issue on contributing pro rata to the expense. [Re Henderson Roller Bearings, 22 O.L.R. 306, 24 O.L.R. 356, in appeal sub nom. Martin v. Fowler, 6 D.L.R. 243, 46 Can. S.C.R. 119, distinguished; Soper v. Pulos, 10 D.L.R. 848, overruled. If the debtor's assignee for the benefit of creditors can, in any lawful way, obtain possession of personal property of the debtor fraudulently transferred or mortgaged, he is entitled to deal with it as part of the estate without bringing action and obtaining a judgment declaring his right thereto.

BURDENSOME PROPERTY—LEASE.

An official assignee under the Assignments Act, 1907, Alta., c. 6, is not bound to accept a term of years to which the assignor was entitled under a lease at the date of the assignment for benefit of creditors, if it may be a charge instead of a benefit to the estate; the operation of the assignment in vesting the term in the assignee is suspended until the lease until he does some act signifying acceptance.

ACTION—AUTHORIZATION—NOTICE.

A curator has the right, when authorized by the inspector and by judgment of a judge of the Superior Court, to take action against a debtor of the estate for which the curator is acting, and likewise to contest the insolvent's statement, without being bound to give notice of his petition to act against such insolvent or debtor.

Re Cohen and Turgeon, 24 Rev. de Jur. 31.

TERMINATION OF LEASE—LANDLORD'S LIEN.

The curator to the property of a debtor who has made a judicial abandonment can terminate a verbal lease made by the insolvent, at an annual rent payable in monthly instalments by giving to the lessor a month's notice; the latter has the right in such case to be collocated by privilege for the arrears of rent and the rent for the month in which the notice was given.

Pelletier v. Lamarre, 50 Que. S.C. 441.

PROPERTY OR TITLE TAKEN.

The sale of book debts of an insolvent, made under authority given to the curator by the court and under surveillance of the inspectors, deprives it of all character of the sale of litigious rights. Neither a resolution of the creditors nor even an order of court authorizing it is a condition precedent to a right of action for the proceeds of a sale so authorized. To obtain the authority of the court and consent of the inspectors or creditors, the creditors generally, as well as the one who institutes the proceedings, must have an interest therein. In this case the judge suspended proceedings for fifteen days to enable the curator to obtain from the inspectors or creditors authority to take action.

Gervais v. Douglass, 13 Que. P.R. 421.

ASSIGNEE—DELIVERY OF PROPERTY TO—PAYMENT OF SHERIFF'S FEES.

A sheriff is not bound to deliver over goods seized by him to the assignee of the execution debtor until his "fees and charges" (including poundage) have been paid by the assignee. [Lee v. Dangar, [1892] 2 Q.B. 337, applied.]

Campbell, Wilson & Strathdee v. Gimple, 7 W.W.R. 337.

(§ III B-25)—ACTIONS BY—PRIVITY OF CONTRACT.

In an action by the approved assignee for creditors under the Assignments Act, Sask., to recover on the debtor's contract with a third party where there has been no assignment to raise a privity of contract with the third party in favour of the plaintiff, leave may be given to add the debtor as a party to obviate the objection of want of privity. An official assignee under the Bulk Sales Act, Sask., is not entitled to sue for money or property until it has actually been transferred or assigned to him.

ACTIONS BY—REPLEVIN—MODE OF PROCEEDING.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors need not rely upon the special statutory remedies given him under ss. 48 and 50 of the Creditors Trust Deeds Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 13, to enable him to proceed in replevin to recover the possession of goods assigned to him.

ACCOUNTING—ASSIGNEE DEFENDING ACTION—COSTS.

Where a claim filed against the partnership estate is for money alleged to have been received by one of the partners in the course of the partnership business, but, in respect of which he had defaulted in accounting, the assignee for creditors of the partnership will, if justified in defending the action, be entitled to be paid out of the assets both the claimant's costs of a successful action to establish the claim and his own costs of defence as between solicitor and client.

ASSIGNEE—ACTIONS BY—PURELY PERSONAL RIGHTS OF DEBTOR.

A cause of action for damages for alleged injuries done to the plaintiff's credit, character and business by reason of illegal acts by the defendants, which forced the plaintiff to assign for the benefit of his creditors, is a purely personal right and does not pass to the assignee. PLACE OF ENTRY OF SUIT.

A creditor who has acquired a claim in a district, must sue the insolvent company in the district in which the winding-up takes place.

Plante v. Dalmas Pulp Co., 16 Que. P.R. 1.

ACTIONS BY ASSIGNEE.

It is the duty of the curator, representing the general body of creditors of an insolvent, to recover from the latter by direct action, property which he had secreted or withdrawn. The contestation of the debtor's schedule is in its nature purely penal; it has no other object and can have no other result than imprisonment of the debtor for a term not exceeding one year. It is not necessary to require the insolvent to make a new assignment in order to take possession of a sum of money belonging to him which was only determined to be his property long after his assignment.

Lafreniere v. Moudou, 14 Que. P.R. 156.

C. LIABILITIES.

(§ III C—30)—BREACH OF TRUST—FAILURE TO MAKE PAYMENTS ON SPECULATIVE CLAIMS—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNOR.

Where a debtor, not in fact insolvent and having a large surplus of assets, makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors, no breach of trust arises on the part of the assignee for his failure to make payments, in order to preserve the interests of creditors, upon speculative coal claims upon which large arrears were due the government, though such appears to be detrimental to the interests of the assignor.

LEASE.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors under the Assignments Act (Alta. Statutes 1907, c. 6, as amended by s. 14 of Statutes 1909, c. 4 and s. 12 of Statutes 1913, 2nd Sess., c. 2), becomes invested with "all the estate and effects of the (assignor) which might be seized or taken in execution," including possession of premises held by the assignor under a lease, and there being no statutory provision for disclaimer, he remains liable to the landlord, because of privity of estate with him, for the rent which accrues after the assignment, while such privity of estate continues. If this defendant had pleaded his quality as official assignee, I am disposed to think his liability might have been limited to the extent of the assets coming to his hands. The equitable distribution of the estate of the insolvent amongst his creditors is the scope and purpose of the act, and an assignee does not necessarily remain liable to a landlord because a lease is included in the assets assigned. The assignee took possession under the lease. After occupation for three months it was not open to him to say, "I have not accepted the lease." It is, therefore, unnecessary to consider the general rule governing the position of the assignee with reference to the lease when the assignment took place. The act vests in the assignee whatever estate the insolvent has, for the benefit of creditors generally. The assignee agreed to pay the rent only so long as he would be in possession. When that ceased, liability ceased.

DISTRIBUTION—CONTRACT—SELLING PRICE.

An agreement not to sell certain goods except at retail and at a fixed price, is not broken by a distribution of the goods at the said price amongst the creditors of the purchaser, by his assignee for the benefit of creditors.

Waterman Co. v. Canadian Credit Men's Trust Assoc. (Sask.), 32 D.L.R. 504.

SALE BY CURATOR—WARRANTY.

A curator named in a judicial abandonment of property who, duly authorized, sells anything forming part of the assets of the bankrupt, with warranty, is not personally responsible if the purchaser is disturbed in his possession of the thing.

(§ V—40)—AUTHORIZATION TO CURATOR—PETITION IN REVOCATION.

In a doubtful case, and in view of art. 890, C.C.P. (Que.), an insolvent may file a petition in revocation of the judgment authorizing the curator to contest his statement.

Cohen v. Turgeon, 19 Que. P.R. 368.

(§ V—41)—PARTNERSHIP—INDIVIDUAL ASSETS—WHAT PASSES TO ASSIGNEE.

Where an assignment is made by two partners and each of the partners transfers individual property "in accordance with rights of the joint or separate creditors as the case might be," the separate creditors of each partner individually are entitled to payment out of the separate property which that partner contributed to the estate, the remainder going into the estate and forming part of the partnership property to be wound up.

(§ V—42)—TAKING POSSESSION OF GOODS—EFFECT ON LEASE.

The fact that the official assignee for benefit of creditors put a man in possession of the stock in trade on premises leased to the assignor is not necessarily an acceptance of the lease by the assignee, and will prima facie be held to be an entry for the purpose of taking possession of the goods rather than of the land.

(§ V—43)—SALE OF ESTATE OF INSOLVENT—PURCHASE BY AGENTS AND TRUSTEES FOR ASSIGNEE—FRAUD—PROFITS ON RESALE.

Atkinson v. Casserley, 22 O.L.R. 527, 17 O.W.R. 926.

FRAUD—ACCOUNTS—CONCEALMENT OF ASSETS.

An insolvent who makes a judicial abandonment of his property is obliged to render an account of his operations for the year. His default to do so in a satisfactory manner establishes against him a presumption of fraud which renders him liable to imprisonment. An insolvent who sells goods two weeks before his judicial abandonment of his property and omits fraudulently to enter this sale in his books, instructs his shipper not to mention it, receives the prices and applies it to his own use, and who is unable to explain why his statement or bilan shows a large deficit while, according to his books, he should have a surplus, is creating against him a presumption equivalent to proof of sequestration which render him liable to imprisonment. An insolvent, who appears on the contestation of his statement or bilan, asks for particulars and produces a defence to the merits, cannot afterwards complain that the permission from a judge to contest the statement or bilan was obtained ex parte and without notice to him, and that the prolongation of the delay to adduce proof of the contestation, was obtained before the contestation itself was filed. Although a judge had no power to prolong the delay to contest the statement (bilan) of the insolvent, there is nothing in the law prohibiting the extension of the delay to prove the allegations of the contestation, even before the contestation is filed, provided it is filed within the delay fixed by law.

Krauss v. Michaud, 26 Que. K.B. 504. [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada quashed, 52 D.L.R. —, 59 Can. S.C.R. 654.]

(§ V—44)—SCHEDULE—EXTENSION OF TIME—PETITION IN REVOCATION.

An insolvent cannot, by way of a petition in revocation, complain of a final judgment maintaining a contestation of his statement by alleging that the curator's petitions to be allowed to contest the statement and to extend the delay of contestation have not been served on the insolvent. A fortiori, a petition to revoke the judgment cannot be received when the grounds on which it is based have already been submitted to the courts seized of the case. The delay for attacking, by way of petition in revocation, preliminary and interlocutory judgments begin to run from the date of the delivery of the judgments and not from the date of the final judgment.

Krauss v. Michaud, 20 Que. P.R. 1. [Affirmed in 25 Rev. Leg. 139.]

CONTESTATION OF SCHEDULE—DELAY.

In the contestation of a schedule, if the contesting curators allege in their answer to the insolvents, that the delay for contesting the schedule was enlarged, a motion on the part of the insolvents for the dismissal of the allegation on the ground that it should have been made in the contestation of the schedule itself is not well founded.

Krauss v. Michaud, 18 Que. P.R. 62.

(§ V—46)—SEIZURE OF GOODS UNDER EXECUTION—VALIDITY OF ASSIGNMENT.

VI. Property included.(§ VI-50) — GOVERNMENT COAL LANDS — SPECULATIVE CLAIMS.

Where the creditors, the assignee and the debtor had acted as if certain speculative dealings of the debtor through himself and his nominees to acquire government coal lands were not within the debtor's assignment for creditors, made specially because of a separate mercantile business, although the assignment in form included all the debtor's real estate, the acquiescence of the debtor will bar his subsequent claim that the estate through the assignee should have protected the coal lands by making payments out of the general estate necessary to prevent the forfeiture of his interests.

HOTEL LICENSE—GOVERNMENT INDEMNITY.

The indemnity payable by the government by virtue of the Act 4 Geo. V., c. 6, art. 8, to the holder of a certificate for a tavern or restaurant license in the case of insolvency of such holder, belongs to his assets and becomes the security of his creditors according to their rank and privilege.

Gervais v. Bilodeau, 52 Que. S.C. 66.

The indemnity payable by the provincial government to indemnify a restaurant keeper or hotel keeper for the cancellation of his license, as provided by 4 Geo. V., c. 6, art. 8, is an ordinary debt and part of the assets of the owner. In case of judicial abandonment of the property the curators may be authorized to recover such sum from the provincial government for distribution among the creditors.

DRUGGIST—EFFECTS—TOOLS OF TRADE.

A druggist who assigns for benefit of creditors may retain and withhold from the assignment only the tools, instruments or other ordinary articles usually used in the exercise of his business as a druggist and chemist, and not those used in the exercise of his general business.

Re Weinfield, 17 Que. P.R. 398.

PROPERTY INCLUDED.

The Act 2 Geo. V., c. 50 (Que.), which provides that if an insolvent debtor works without remuneration the court will fix the value of his services in order that the portion liable to seizure may be distributed among his creditors, applies to one who has made an assignment under a judicial order and not to the case of a voluntary assignment only. It does not apply in the case of a man who works gratuitously for his wife.

JUDICIAL ABANDONMENT OF PROPERTY — SCHEDULE—CONTESTATION.

In a judicial abandonment of property where the insolvent declares in his statement that he has no property movable or immovable, and that he is not aware of any creditors, if it is established that the bankrupt, registered as doing business under a firm name, is only a prête-nom in good faith, the contestation of this statement and demand for his imprisonment will be dismissed.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE—FORFEITURE OF TERM—BONUS OF ADVANCE RENT UNDER LEASE.

A clause in a lease at a monthly rental in advance, stipulating for immediate termination of the lease and a further payment of three months' rent in advance on the lessee transferring his interest in the goods and chattels upon the demise of premises, is not effective as against an assignee for the benefit of creditors under the Alberta Assignments Act, c. 6 of 1907, as to the forfeiture of three months' advance rent because such clause contravenes the general policy of the Act for the distribution of the assets pari passu among all the creditors; and this although the transfer of the goods relied upon as terminating the lease was a chattel mortgage and the seizure was made thereunder prior to the assignment. The plaintiff was the assignee of the insolvent estate of K. Brothers for the benefit of their creditors; J., one of the defendants, who were creditors of the estate, was an inspector of the estate; he purchased from the plaintiff, for $3,587, the assets of the estate, and turned them over to the wives of the insolvents, getting from them $1,500 in cash and four promissory notes, each for $1,000. The $5,500 appeared to have been made up of the $3,587 and the amount of the indebtedness of the insolvents to the defendants, less the amount which the defendants expected to receive in dividends. The purchase and resale were made in pursuance of an arrangement between the wives of the insolvents and J. By the judgment in this action, the Master was directed to take an account "of the profits, if any, made or to be made by the defendants out of the purchase of the insolvent estate." The whole of the amount of the promissory notes had not been paid; the Master found that there was still due upon them upwards of $1,739.25, and that for that sum and interest, as such "profits," the defendants were liable:—Held, that the real transaction was a fraud upon the estate, to which the wives of the insolvents were parties; the defendants could not, by reason of the illegality of the transaction, recover the balance remaining due upon the promissory notes; and, therefore, that balance was not "profits made or to be made," within the meaning of the judgment. Although the general rule is, that a person cannot set up the illegality of a transaction to which he was a party, he may, on grounds of public policy, do so in such a case as this. The order of Masten, J., 43 O.L.R. 614, dismissing the defendants' appeal from the Master's report, was reversed, and the report of the Master varied by deducting from the amount found due by the defendants the sum of $1,739.25 and interest.

Clarkson v. Bonner-Worth Co., 14 O.W.N. 272. [Affirmed, in 15 O.W.N. 390.]

ASSIGNMENT—PARTNERSHIP.

Defendant endorsed a firm's note at three months for $500 which fell due August 10, 1915. On July 21, 1915, defendant obtained goods from firm's store to the amount of $511.75, computed at retail price. Defendant gave his cheque for $500 bearing date July 21, 1915, to one of the partners, with which cheque the partner paid at the bank the note on which defendant was endorser. One of the partners executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of his creditors to the plaintiff of all his individual and partnership property on August 4, 1915. The other partner executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of his creditors to the plaintiff of all his individual and partnership property on August 14, 1915. Held, in an action brought by the assignee to set aside the transfer or conveyance of the goods to the defendant, that the plaintiff by virtue of the assignments to him by each partner of his individual and partnership property, had sufficient interest and status to maintain this suit. Query, whether individual assignments can be deemed to be an assignment of the debtor firm within the meaning of subs. 4 of s. 2 of the Assignments and Preferences Act, C.S. 1903, c. 141. Held, also, that transfer to the defendant was made when defendant was in insolvent circumstances or on the eve of insolvency, and was made with intent to give the defendant an unjust preference over the other creditors, and is void under the Act respecting Assignments and Preferences by Insolvent Persons, C.S. 1903, c. 141; that the amount of the claims, proved according to the statute C.S. 1903, c. 141, and filed with the assignee, was relevant and admissible testimony as to the solvency or insolvency of the firm.

INADEQUATE CONSIDERATION—ONUS AS TO GOOD FAITH.

In an action by an official assignee to recover goods assigned to defendant it appeared that there was a general assignment of all the goods in the store of the assignor for a consideration that was grossly inadequate. The defense related chiefly to a part of the goods which it was claimed was the subject of a bona fide sale some months previous to the date of the general transfer. The trial judge found against this contention on the ground that the goods in question were not separated in any way from the remainder of the goods in the assignor's store, that the defendant had failed to sustain the burden resting upon him as to the transaction alleged, and that the transaction was fraudulent and entered into with the same purpose and intent as the transfer of the remainder of the goods. Held, that, in the face of the general fraudulent scheme proved, it would require the most clear and satisfactory proof of the alleged earlier transaction, and that as the proof offered was not of that character defendant's appeal should be dismissed with costs.

Morton v. Thomas, 49 N.S.R. 252.

PREFERENCE BY INSOLVENT.

An agreement by which a bank makes an advance to an insolvent customer, of the amount of a composition with his creditors, in consideration of an absolute transfer to it of securities, already held as collateral, and of his note for the surplus of his secured indebtedness to it, after payment of the composition, does not amount to an undue preference and is valid and binding.

Phillie & Gual v. Coté, 21 Que. K.R. 128.

DEED OF TRUST—RIGHTS OF CREDITORS—SETTING ASIDE.

A trust agreement providing that the estate of the grantor should be held in trust for such of his creditors as should execute the same, must be held to be made with intent to give such creditors a preference. [Lumber Manufacturers' Yards v. Western Joiners, 28 D.L.R. 6, 9 S.L.R. 165, followed.] The fact that the creditors actually executing the deed exerted pressure to obtain its execution by the grantor does not prevent such trust agreement from being a voluntary or fraudulent preference and void. A creditor, whose claim was not at the date of the deed admitted by the grantor, but who subsequently obtains judgment against him, may have such trust agreement set aside.

Kimball Lumber Co. v. Canadian Credit Men's Trust Ass'n, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 561, 10 S.L.R. 251.

SET-OFF.

The transferee of a debt, due from a person who makes an assignment for the general benefit of his creditors, is not entitled to set-off the debt, where such transfer is a colourable contrivance to enable the transferor to obtain a preference. The allowance of a set-off of such debt, after the assignment for the benefit of creditors, would be contrary to the spirit and intention of the Assignments Act.

(§ VII A-56)—PREFERENCES BY INSOLVENT — EXEMPTIONS — FAILURE TO CLAIM—REGISTRATION OF TITLE.

If a debtor who has assigned his property for the benefit of his creditors does not file his claim of exemptions within thirty days of the registration of the assignment as required by Land Titles Act, s. 117 (R.S.S. 1909, c. 41), the registrar of title has the right to recognize the assignee as the absolute owner, both legal and equitable, of the land assigned, but the title of the debtor is not affected by such failure where the assignee has not applied for registration as owner and admits the debtor's right to the exemptions claimed, and in such a case and on the registrar's refusal to register a transfer of the debtor's homestead, an order will be entered, directing registration of the transfer; it being only against the transferee of the assignee that the debtor cannot claim his exemptions if he fails to claim them within the thirty days' period.

(§ VII A-57)—PREFERENCES—EFFECT OF PRESSURE—CHATTEL MORTGAGE — SALE BY MORTGAGEE—FOLLOWING PROCEEDS.

Mere formal pressure by the creditor for security will not support a preference which would otherwise be void; and a chattel mortgage given to the bank for an unmatured debt already incurred will not stand merely because the bank asked for the security if the purpose of same was to give it an advantage over unsecured creditors and to leave the debtor without the means of satisfying other creditors. The proceeds of sales of mortgaged goods may be followed in the hands of the chattel mortgagee at the instance of the debtor's assignee for creditors, by virtue of s. 13 of the Assignments and Preferences Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 64, R.S.O. 1914, c. 194,

BY MORTGAGE OR BILL OF SALE.

Under s. 44 of the Act, a chattel mortgage security given to a creditor for an existing debt and also to cover fresh advances, although void as to the existing debt as being a fraudulent preference, should be held good as regards any fresh advances made to the debtor on the strength of it. There is no difference as to the degree of corroboration required between a claim attacked under s. 5 of the Statute of Elizabeth, c. 13, and a claim where one seeks to rank as a creditor; and where any such claim is disputed the items thereof must be established by sufficient corroborative evidence. CONFLICTING CLAIMS—DIFFERENT STATUTES.

When special provisions are enacted for dealing with particular cases, these provisions are to govern, even though there may be some general provisions of another enactment wide enough to cover some of them; hence, an assignee for the benefit of creditors, under an assignment within the provisions of the Assignments and Preferences Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 134, is not entitled, upon a summary application to the Court, under s. 66 of the Trustee Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 121, or under T. 600, to have conflicting claims of right to rank upon the estate determined.

UNLIQUIDATED DAMAGES—FUTURE RENT.

A provision in a trust agreement whereby the trustee was authorized to sell the property of the lessee and divide the proceeds among "creditors" does not entitle the lessor to rank for future rent, as he was not a creditor for such rent within the meaning of the agreement at its execution. SECURED CLAIM—MORTGAGE—STATEMENT OF VALUE—ASSIGNMENTS AND PREFERENCES ACT.

Under the Assignments and Preferences Act (R.S.O. 1897, c. 147, s. 20 (4)) the creditor is not required to put a specified value on the security in the claim which he files with the assignee; this may be done by a separate document; the delivery to the assignee of a simple statement that he puts a stated value on his security is sufficient compliance with the section. If a secured creditor and the assignee meet and arrive at an agreement as to the value of the security held by the creditor, and the assignee does not desire to be given an opportunity of taking over the security in the formal manner for which s. 20 (4) provides, he may waive his right to have a specified value put on the security by the creditor and consent to the retention of it at the value which he and the creditor have agreed that it was at all events when the assignee does this under the authority of the creditors. It being known to the assignee and to the creditors that a mortgage is a secured creditor, they must be taken in appointing him; an inspector to have intended that he should act as inspector only in respect of matters outside of those in which he has duties to perform under s. 29 (4).

PRIOR SEIZURE BY SHERIFF—SALE OF GOODS BY ASSIGNEE—POSSESSION—TITLE OF PURCHASER—ASSIGNMENTS ACT—NOTICE.

Under s. 16 of the Assignments Act, failure to publish the notice of an assignment for the benefit of creditors directed by s. 12 of the Act does not invalidate the assignment. Failure to furnish the sheriff, pursuant to s. 12 of the Assignments Act, with a copy of an assignment for the benefit of creditors does not invalidate the assignment or a sale by the assignee of the goods assigned, where, at any rate, the assignee does not know the sheriff has made seizure and neither the sheriff nor any one on his behalf is in actual possession. The purchaser of goods from an assignee for the benefit of creditors, neither the assignee nor the purchaser knowing of a seizure thereof prior to the assignment, held to have obtained a good title to the goods notwithstanding the absence of publication of notice of the assignment and the failure to furnish the sheriff with a copy of the assignment.

PREFERRED CLAIMS—"JUDGMENT"—ALIMONY DECREE.

On an assignment under the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, R.S.B.C. c. 13, a decree for alimony does not give the assignor's wife a preference over his other unsecured creditors. A decree for alimony is a "judgment" of the Supreme Court and is, therefore, covered by the word "judgments" in s. 14 of the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act.

Francis v. Wilkerson, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 956, affirming 25 B.C.R. 132, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 920.

DISTRIBUTION—DIVIDEND SHEET—COSTS OF CURATOR—PRIVILEGED CREDITOR—DEFICIT.

The dividend sheet prepared by a curator of an insolvent estate, for the distribution of the assets among the creditors, must establish the amount due each one of them according to the order, privilege and amount of each one's respective claim; and should that memorandum show a deficit, it must name the creditors on whom it should be assessed. In such a memorandum the curator cannot collocate himself by preference to a privileged creditor for his own traveling and boarding expenses, for his inventory costs, his fees of inspection and delivery of the business and for his commission on the collection of rents and sale price of goods.

Saheki v. Duhamel, 53 Que. S.C. 61.

COSTS—PRIVILEGED CREDITOR—APPORTIONMENT.

If a curator in a judicial abandonment of property has been condemned to pay the costs of contestation of his dividend sheet, and that, in consequence of the payment of these costs, a privileged creditor, who would have been paid his debt in full, is not so paid, the court may order the curator to deduct proportionately from each creditor who produces a claim, an amount sufficient to pay the privileged creditor in full.

Lester v. Turcotte, 53 Que. S.C. 541.

CLAIMS—SIMPLE CONTRACT CREDITOR—CURATOR'S FEES—CONTINUATION OF BUSINESS.

In a judicial abandonment of property, the costs of a seizure, made the same day but later than another, and under a judgment which was not given the same day, are not privileged. (2) A simple contract creditor has a right to contest a dividend sheet prepared by the curator in a judicial abandonment of property. (3) The curator in a judicial abandonment of property has not the right, under a simple resolution of the inspectors and without the authorization of a judge, to continue the trade of the bankrupt; nevertheless, if such business has turned out to be for the benefit of the creditors in general, the court, recognizing the accomplished fact, will not void the transaction. (4) A curator who continues the business of the bankrupt has no right to pay an account for merchandise sold and delivered before the judicial abandonment of property. (5) A curator has no right to ask a fee for his steps and proceedings towards making a compromise between the debtor and his creditors, if such compromise is not authorized by the judge and especially if he has brought no benefit to the creditors.

Chagnon v. Rameau, 53 Que. S.C. 279.

CLAIMS—SECURED DEBT—DIVIDEND SHEET.

A creditor, in producing his claim in a judicial abandonment of property under the authority of C.C.P., is not bound, as under the old bankruptcy law and Dominion Winding-up Act, to state his securities and specify them in his claim. A court, in a contestation of a dividend sheet, cannot admit a fact which has not been pleaded. A final dividend sheet cannot be annulled and set aside because the curator ought to have prepared a first dividend sheet.

Morency v. Gagnon, 24 Rev. Leg. 92.

RIGHTS, DUTIES, AND LIABILITIES OF CREDITORS.

Where the same two partners carry on two business concerns, hotel and hardware, and fail in both; and where some of the judgment creditors realize under their executions out of the hardware assets, and others are looking to the hotel assets, and still others to both; and where one of the partners (alleging nonliability on the hotel debts through dissolution) assigns for the benefit of creditors under the Assignments Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 142; and where there is confusion as to the liability of the insolvent for the hotel and hardware claims and as to the ranking of creditors in respect thereto, an application in the insolvent estate matter on behalf of an execution creditor to have his exact rank and rights fixed may be heard in Chambers under the Assignments Act (Sask.), and a reference to the local registrar may be ordered, to examine and inquire into the exact rights and obligations of the insolvent, and the creditors, in relation to each of the partnerships, and to report thereon.

TRANSFER OF DEBTS BEFORE INSOLVENCY—NOTICE.

In a judicial assignment of property for the benefit of creditors, the body of creditors constitute a third party as against the transferee of the debts of the insolvent, if there has been no notice of the transfer before the assignment. Hence, the transferee not having the useful possession as required by art. 1571 C.C., he cannot compel the curator to furnish him with a list of the accounts due the insolvent and pay over to him what he has received on these accounts.

Dominion Bank v. Ayling, 26 Que. K.B. 75.

SECURED DEBT—JUDGMENT—REGISTRATION.

A creditor having a judgment, which forms a judicial hypothec upon the immovable of his debtor, has a secured debt which prevents him from making a demand for a judicial abandonment of property, even where the title of the debtor was only registered after the demand, or where the deed contains a resolutive clause, notwithstanding art. 2023, C.C.; but in such case the demand will be dismissed without costs. The words "of which the debt is not secured" contained in art. 853, C.P.Q., respecting the creditor who cannot make a demand for judicial abandonment of property, should be interpreted as applying to the existence of the security without regard to its value or legality.

Bonnier v. Roy, 51 Que. S.C. 1.

COSTS—ATTORNEY'S FEES—RENT.

The costs of an attorney who has obtained leave to sell the movables of an insolvent has priority over the privileged claim of the landlord and over that of the curator. Semble, the costs of the inventory of the sale and delivery of the stock are the only costs of the curator which take precedence of the landlord's claim.

Courchesne v. Courchesne, 18 Que. P.R. 189.

PETITION FOR—ASSIGNMENT FROM ONE CREDITOR TO ANOTHER.

Though the assignment of debts from creditor to creditor, in order to make up a large enough sum to petition for a judicial assignment of goods, is not to be recommended, nevertheless it is permitted, above all when the debtor accepts the assignment.

Perron v. Drouin, 46 Que. S.C. 336, 16 Que. P.R. 121.

PRIORITIES.

When the owner of horses seized and placed under judicial control has been appointed voluntary guardian and afterwards assigns his property for benefit of creditors the trader who sells him fodder in the interval between the seizure and the assignment cannot claim that such sale was made in the common interest of the creditors and had served to preserve their common security in order to claim the privilege provided by art. 1994 C.C., especially if he was not aware of the seizure and gave credit to the owner as such and not as guardian.

Lester v. Turcotte, 43 Que. S.C. 385.

It was held, reluctantly following Brown v. Marshall, 10 E.L.R. 146, that, under s. 28 of the Nova Scotia Collection Act, the creditor is absolutely entitled to an assignment of the judgment debtor's property in trust for the payment of the judgment.

PROCEDURE TO DETERMINE VALIDITY OF DISPUTED CLAIM—IRREGULARITY—WAIVER.

Where an assignment has been made for the general benefit of creditors under the Assignments Act (Saskatchewan), any action to determine the validity of a claim disputed by the assignee must be commenced and carried on according to the procedure laid down in s. 31 of that Act and no other. The commencement of an action by writ of summons to determine the validity of a claim disputed by an assignee for the benefit of creditors is improper and the procedure is wholly void and not merely irregular, and the defendant, by appearing to the writ of summons, does not waive his rights to object to such procedure.

(§ VIII A-69)—PRIORITIES—BUSINESS CARRIED ON BY CREDITORS—DEBITS INCURRED MEANWHILE.

The business of an insolvent carried on by the creditors in pursuance of an agreement with the debtor for the purpose of liquidating their claims does not necessarily constitute the creditors a partnership of the business, so as to render them personally liable for goods furnished the estate during the continuance of the business by the creditors; nor will the claims of those who become creditors subsequently to such arrangement be accorded a priority over the claims of the old creditors. (§ VIII A-71)—PRIORITIES—RIGHTS UNDER UNREGISTERED MORTGAGE.

Whether an assignment is general or special, the assignee for the benefit of creditors takes no greater title to land included in the assignment than the assignor can give, and a mortgagee claiming under an unregistered mortgage made in good faith prior to the assignment will be accorded a priority over the assignee for creditors. (§ VIII A-72)—RIGHTS ON INTERPLEADER.

The provision of the Creditors' Relief Act, 9 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 48, s. 6, which enacts that where proceedings are taken by a sheriff for relief under any provisions relating to interpleader, those creditors only who are parties thereto and who agree to contribute pro rata in proportion to the amount of their executions to the expense of contesting any adverse claim shall be entitled to share in any benefit which may be derived from the contestation of such claim so far as may be necessary to satisfy their executions, confers a preferential lien upon the contributing creditors of which, in case of the debtor making an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, such contributing creditors are not deprived by the general direction of s. 14 of the Assignments and Preferences Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 64, as to the precedence to be given to such assignment.

INTERPLEADER—RIGHT OF INDIVIDUAL CREDITOR TO ATTACK PREFERENTIAL AGREEMENT—THE ASSIGNMENTS ACT, s. 48, SUBS. (3).

S. 48, subs. 3 of the Assignments Act giving the creditors the right to take proceedings where there is no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors, is permissive only and does not exclude the right of an individual creditor to attack a preferential agreement or transaction upon sheriff's interpleader in the case of chattels exigible under execution, which are the subject of such preferential transaction. [Brown v. Peace, 11 Man. L.R. 409, referred to.]

Canadian Bank of Commerce v. McAuley, 6 W.W.R. 1169.

(3 VIII A—74)—PRIORITIES.

A shareholder in a company incorporated under the B.C. Companies Act, R.S. B.C. 1911, c. 39, who leaves a portion of his dividend at his credit in the company's books is not debarred from proving his claim thereto, in competition with other creditors upon the company long afterwards making an assignment for the benefit of creditors under the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 13, where no winding-up proceedings have been taken.

Savage v. Shaw, 8 D.L.R. 910, 17 B.C.R. 343.

PRIORITY OF CLAIMS—WAGES—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE OF CLAIM FOR.

A preferential claim for wages earned within three months of debtor's assignment for the benefit of his creditors, carries with it its priority on a transfer being made thereof, and the transferee, although he acquired the claim before the debtor made the assignment for creditors, is entitled under the Wages Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 72, R.S.O. 1914, c. 143, to priority over the debtor's ordinary creditors. [The Wasp, 7 L.R. 1 Ad. & Ecc. 367, applied.]

WAGES.

Where an assignment is made for the general benefit of creditors, the wages "not exceeding three months' wages" for which (under the Wages Act (Ont.) 10 Edw. VII. c. 72, s. 3, a person in the employment of the assignor within a month of the assignment has a preferential claim, means, not necessarily the wages for the three months immediately preceding the assignment, but the balance of wages due him not exceeding any three months' wages.

McLarty v. Todd, 7 D.L.R. 344, 4 O.W.N. 172, 23 O.W.R. 166.

PREFERRED CLAIMS FOR WAGES—SALARY OF MANAGING DIRECTOR.

The manager of a company, who was also a director therein, is entitled to rank as a preferred creditor for salary due him, by virtue of s. 27 of the Assignment Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 142, which provides a priority for 3 months "wages or salary of all persons in the employ." [Re Newspaper Syndicate, [1909] 2 Ch. 349; Re Kitchener-Hearn Co., 6 O.W.R. 474, distinguished; The Companies Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 72, s. 54, considered. INSOLVENT COMPANY—NOTE TAKEN FOR AMOUNT OF WAGES DUE—PRIORITY OF CLAIM.

The taking of a promissory note or other negotiable instrument for the amount of a debt does not constitute payment of the debt in the absence of proof that there was an agreement to that effect, and therefore employees of an insolvent company who have taken notes for wages due them do not lose their right to priority for such wages under the Assignments Act (1901, Alta., c. 7, s. 28).

CLAIM FOR WAGES—SUIT—JUDGMENT—SUBSEQUENT ASSIGNMENT OF DEBTOR—QUESTION OF MERGER—WAGES ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 143, s. 3.

A wage earner's claim to priority for his wages under s. 3 of the Wages Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 143, is enforceable where his employer has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors; even though the wage earner has sued, and recovered a judgment against his employer before the assignment. The right of preference is given because the claim is for wages, and the claim remains one for wages even after the judgment is obtained; the remedy, not the right is merged. [King v. plied to such an assemblage the provisions of art. 1851, C.C., which declares that in the absence of special provisions as to the mode in which the affairs of the association are to be administered, each of the members is considered to have the power of administration for the others and each may make the others responsible. The members of such an association cannot be held responsible for debts contracted by one of them without the knowledge and authorization, express or implied, of the others, unless there exist reasonable grounds for believing that such authorization has been given according to the rules governing a mandate. The fact that a person is president of such an association does not empower him to contract in the name of the body and make the members liable.

B. RIGHT TO MEMBERSHIP; EXPULSION.

(§ II B-10)—BY-LAWS—CANCELLATION OF CERTIFICATE—RETAIL LIQUOR BUSINESS—LOSS OF BENEFITS—ACQUIESCENCE.

A by-law of a benefit association which states that if any member enters into a retail business for the sale of intoxicating liquors he shall be expelled from the order, his certificate of membership shall be cancelled and he shall lose his benefits, does not apply to a member who was engaged in such business before the by-law was passed, who, having after that transferred his place of business to his son, continued the actual control of it, and 5 years afterwards took back complete control with another license in his own name, the by-law in question only having been enacted for future cases. When a benefit certificate of a benefit association becomes void according to the by-laws the fact of the association receiving contributions from a member holding such certificate does not constitute an acquiescence.

(§ I D—20)—SUFFICIENCY OF ALLEGATIONS—DEFENSE.

In the case of a seizure before judgment, a declaration which sets out certain reprehensible acts of the defendant without alleging that the latter then acted with the intention of defrauding his creditors and especially the plaintiff, will be dismissed on inscription en droit. The defence that the defendant can set up, as to the sufficiency and falsity of the allegations in the affidavit, is independent of that which he has a right to make on the main demand.

Carmel v. Maison Paquin, 13 Que. P.R. 68.

The filing of his attachment by a defendant in an interpleader issue, by the sheriff, to determine the ownership of goods seized under the writ is prima facie proof of his status as a creditor in an action attacking the sale of certain of the goods. The consideration in the bill of sale may properly be made up of a promissory note past due, wages owing and cash paid, and expressed as moneys paid at or before the sealing of the bill of sale. On an interpleader issue to determine whether or not the goods are the property of the debtor the question of fraud may properly be tried. [West v. Ames Holden Co., 3 Terr. L.R. 17, followed.]

(§ II B—33)—PRIORITIES BETWEEN ATTACHMENT LIENS—SUBSEQUENT EXECUTIONS.

Where there are no other executions in the sheriff's hands at the time, the service of a summons for the attachment of a debt, under s. 31 of the Creditors Relief Act (B. C.), while not a transfer of the debt itself, creates a charge thereon in favour of the attaching creditor entitling him to be paid out of the funds the amount of his claim, and is not taken away by the subsequent receipts of other writs of execution by the sheriff. [Re Combined Weighing, etc., 43 Ch. D. 99; Norton v. Yates, [1906] 1 K.B. 112; Cairney v. Back, [1906] 2 K.P. 746, applied; Ward v. Wilson, 13 B.C.R. 273, disapproved.]

(§ II B—36)—PRIORITY BETWEEN ATTACHMENT AND OTHER LIENS.

Where the provisions of s. 1 of the Act respecting lien notes had not been complied with, in that the lien notes did not contain such a description of the goods that the same might be readily and easily known and distinguished—the only description being "a motor cycle." [Aricinski v. Arnold, 4 W.L.R. 556, followed.] Also, that, as no description at all was given, the claimant should not be allowed to shew by affidavit or parol evidence that the article signed was his property. Also, that the affidavit of bona fides on the lien notes being identical with the affidavit referred to in Aricinski v. Arnold, did not comply with the statute. Therefore, that the right of the plaintiff as an attaching creditor must prevail.

JUDICIAL GUARDIAN—DISCHARGE—SECOND SEIZURE—POSSESSION OF GOODS.

Art. 20 of Title 19 of e. 23, Ordinance of 1667, discharging, without a judicial order the guardian of property under seizure two months after the oppositions have been disposed of and a year after his appointment if the matters in dispute are not settled, has been repealed by art. 623 C.P.Q.

A second seizing creditor should not appoint the same guardian as the first unless he has been dispossessed of the property seized. When two guardians are appointed under different seizures, and leave the debtor in possession of the property seized, if one of the guardians desire possession, the court will grant it, in the absence of reasons to the contrary, to the one performing his functions in the action under which the bulk of the property will be sold.

Chevrette v. Cournoyer, 14 Que. P.R. 142. PROCEDURE.

The minutes of seizure describing the things seized as follows:—"13 bottles of champagne, 7 tables and 24 chairs, etc.," are sufficient to enable the bailiff to identify the objects when he is called upon to sell them. The absence of details is matter for a motion for particulars and not for an exception to the form.

Smith v. Shapiro 14 Que. P.R. 160.

(§ III A—45)—CONSERVATORY ATTACHMENT—PROCEDURE.

Sufficient ground for the issuance of a conservatory attachment is shown where the facts shown in the affidavit for the writ were that the plaintiff, as curator of a person non compos mentis, had instituted an action to have a transfer of a note by the latter to the defendant, annulled for want of consideration, and that the garnishee had become liable to pay the amount of the note to the defendant, and that such payment rightfully belonged to the plaintiff and not to the defendant.

S. 4 of the Absconding Debtors Act, 9 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 49, requiring that an application for an attaching order shall be supported by corroborative affidavits of two persons other than the applicant, is an imperative provision, and an order made in the absence of such affidavits will be set aside.

Volles v. Coley, 9 D.L.R. 452, 4 O.W.N. 819, 24 O.W.R. 66.

NONPAYMENT OF COSTS—SERVICE OF RULE—ENDORSEMENTS.

In an application for an attachment for nonpayment of costs, it is unnecessary that the rule served should be endorsed as required by O. 41, r. 5. [In re Deakin, Ex parte Cathcart, [1900] 2 Q.B. 478, applied.] On an application for an attachment for nonpayment of costs, an affidavit may be read if it is entitled in the Court and cause, although it is not entitled the same as the rule under which it is made.

The King v. Borden, Ex parte Kinnie, 24 D.L.R. 197, 43 N.B.R. 299.

IRREGULAR AFFIDAVIT LEADING TO ISSUE OF WRIT—STRICT COMPLIANCE WITH RULES OF COURT—SASK. RULES (1911), 545. Fitzgald v. Warner, 7 D.L.R. 859, 2 W.W.R. 299.

AFFIDAVIT FOR CAPIAS—PROMISSORY NOTES—PARTICULARS OF CAUSE OF ACTION.

In an affidavit for capias issued for an indebtedness on promissory notes, it is sufficient to enumerate the details appearing on the face of the notes, without alleging more specially the cause of action; the consideration of the notes, the place where the debt was contracted, and that it was contracted within the limits of the Province of Quebec and Ontario.

Schavoï v. Silverman, 47 Que. S.C. 204. CONSERVATORY ATTACHMENT—AFFIDAVIT—INDISPENSABLE ALLEGATIONS—QUE. C.P. 939, 956.

The affidavit necessary to obtain a conservatory attachment must, as in the case of garnishment and capias, in order to establish a right to the remedy claimed, specify the nature and amount of the debt and the place where it originated.

Millen v. Lebesch, 16 Que. P.R. 181.

IN GENERAL—AFFIDAVITS—PETITIONS.

The affidavit required for the issue of the ordinary writ of attachment, or of the writ en mains tierces, based on belief or acknowledgment, which states neither the reason for such belief nor the source of the acknowledgments is insufficient, and any writ issued on such an affidavit will be quashed and set aside. It is not necessary that an application to quash the writ on such ground should be accompanied by the deposition required by art. 47 of the Rules of Practice of the Superior Court.

Sherman v. McAuley, 14 Que. P.R. 164. DEFECTIVE AFFIDAVIT—FAILURE TO DISCLOSE CAUSE OF DEBT.

An application for a writ of attachment is an interlocutory proceeding. [Nohren v. Auten, 15 W.L.R. 417, not followed; Gibson v. Drennan, 1 W.L.R. 577, applied.] In attachment proceedings, strict compliance with the Rules of Court is necessary. [Fitzgerald v. Powell, 2 W.W.R. 299, referred to.] Where in attachment proceedings the affidavit of the plaintiff fails to disclose from what cause the debt sought to be attached arose, the omission is an irregularity which is fatal to the issue of the writ. [Newton v. Bergman, 13 Man. L.R. 563, referred to.]

Hole v. Simpson, 6 W.W.R. 742, 27 W.L.R. 689.

PRactice—KING'S BENCH ACT.

If the affidavits filed on an application for an order for attachment against goods and chattels fully comply with rr. 814 and 815 of the King's Bench Act, the question of the liability of the defendant for the debt sued for will not be inquired into on motion in Chambers to set the order aside, notwithstanding that the defendant's denial of the liability is supported by statements made by officers of the plaintiff company on their cross-examination upon their affidavits filed. Such question must be left to be decided by the judge at the trial of the action. An order for attachment will not be set aside because the affidavits upon which it was made do not disclose matters afterwards appearing in statements made by officers of the plaintiff company under cross-examination on the affidavits, although it is contended that, if such matters had been disclosed, the judge would probably have refused the order. [Newton v. Bergman, 13 Man. L.R. 563, distinguished.]

Paulin v. Freinstein, 28 Man. L.R. 436.

OWNERSHIP—PAYMENT IN COURT.

When an attachment is issued by a plaintiff who is not the owner of the thing attached, the court, in maintaining the action, may order the defendant to deposit in court, instead of paying it to the plaintiff, the sum which he is condemned to pay, on default of returning the thing claimed.

Chartron v. Walker, 54 Que. S.C. 439.

CONSERVATORY SEIZURE — AFFIDAVIT — PARTIES—DESCRIPTION.

An affidavit annexed to a fiat for a conservatory seizure or seizure before judgment need not contain the particular description of the parties if such description is found in the fiat. It is not necessary to describe in such affidavits the property that each of the tiers-saisis has in his possession which in certain cases would be quite impossible. Such affidavit is complete without the documents to which it refers.

Metro-Pictures, Ltd. v. Sawyer, 18 Que. P.R. 299.

The failure to file, before the issue of a writ for a conservatory seizure, the affidavit required by art. 955, C.P.Q., is fatal and makes void ab initio the writ of seizure itself and the defect cannot be remedied by filing the affidavit after the seizure.

Schechter v. Bazar, 18 Que. P.R. 151.

In the case of a conservatory seizure the defendant can by petition dispute only the truth or sufficiency of the allegations in the affidavit and not of those in the declaration. If the application to set aside the seizure brings in question the right of ownership of the plaintiff in the subject-matter of the litigation, the order will be to proceed with the hearing of the said petition only at the same time as that upon the merits.

Smith v. Dwyer, 18 Que. P.R. 404.

(§ III A—48)—INTERVENTION.

The court will permit a document entitled "Opposition afin de distraire" filed by a third party who wishes to withdraw certain of his goods from a saisie-gagerie to be treated as an intervention though judgment on the merits of the action has not yet been given.

Dorlia v. Filiatrault, 14 Que. P.R. 266.

GARNISHMENT — ALIMENTARY CREDITORS — EVENING GOWN—C.C. ART. 1980—C.C.P. ART. 599.

A testamentary executor has the duty to execute the wishes of the testator; and when a legacy, declared to be inexigible by the will, is attached, and the legatee does not dispute the attachment, the testamentary executor has the right to intervene, in order to maintain if he can, the exemption from seizure of the legacy. An annuity of $2000 a year given to a wife by virtue of a will which declares this legacy inexigible, cannot be attached for the payment of an evening gown costing $85 and for the purchase of flowers, this wife being alone without any other revenue, and not occupying any official function. The intervenant who denies to the plaintiff the right which he is exercising and who only succeeds partially, is in the position of a defendant whose defense is only partly admitted, and he should be ordered to pay the costs.

Fields v. Laviolette and Décarie, 55 Que. S.C. 405.

C. DISSOLUTION; DISMISSAL; SETTING ASIDE.

(§ III C—55)—DISSOLUTION—DISMISSAL—SETTING ASIDE.

Proceedings in execution are not instances. If the plaintiff proceeds by saisie-arrest before judgment and seizes the same property after judgment proceedings on one may be suspended or they may be consolidated, but the last will not be set aside on the plea of lis pendens.

Laing Packing & Provision Co. v. Duval, 13 Que. P.R. 349.

DISCONTINUANCE OF ACTION—DISCHARGE—RIGHT TO ASSIGN.

When an action is discontinued after money has been paid into court under an attaching order, the money ceases to be subject to any court process, and the defendant may assign the fund to a third party who may successfully resist an application that the fund be kept in court to abide the result of further action between the same parties.

Schmid & Kruck v. Giffin; Robin-Hood Mills, Claimant, 23 B.C.R. 459.

(§ III C—56)—INSUFFICIENT AFFIDAVIT.

A judgment quashing a conservatory attachment, because of insufficiency of the affidavit, cannot dismiss the action itself, the latter being distinct from the conservatory attachment to which it is joined.

Girard v. Gariépy, 49 Que. S.C. 284, 17 Que. P.R. 396.

ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT—PETITION TO QUASH—GROUNDS—DELAY IN FILING —C.P. 693 ET SEQ., 919 ET SEQ., 161 PAR. 2.

When a petition to quash an attachment before judgment is made altogether and unreasonably too late, and it would cause serious injury to the plaintiff if defendant were allowed to make the same (after plaintiff has contested the garnishee's declarations), and defendant has offered no excuse for the delay which he has allowed to take place in making same, a judge is justified in rejecting such petition from the record. [Compare Hogan v. Gordon, 2 L.C.J. 162; Barry v. Eccles, 2 U.C.Q.B. 383; Porreault v. Tite, 8 Que. S.C. 339.]

ATTAINER.

Under s. 103 Criminal Code 1906, providing that no conviction or judgment for any treason or indictable offence shall cause any attainer or corruption of blood or any forfeiture or escheat, a renewal of a prior lease of hotel premises will not be set aside merely because it was made by a convict while serving his term in a penitentiary.

PROTECTION OF PUBLIC RIGHTS—RIGHT TO BRING ACTION—BREACH OF CITY BY-LAWS—GASWORKS AND HOLDERS.

The only party who can sue for the protection of the public right is the Attorney-General of the province in an action to restrain the breach of three city by-laws one of which forbade the erection of any gas works or gas holders within the city without first obtaining the permission of the city Council, another prohibiting the erection of buildings within the city without a permit from the building inspector, and the third prescribing an area within the city within which no gas works should be erected or continued. [Devonport v. Tozer, [1903] 1 Ch. 739; Attorney-General v. Wimbledon, [1904] 2 Ch. 34, and Attorney-General v. Pontypriid, [1908] 1 Ch. 388, referred to.] The right of the Attorney-General to take action on behalf of the public for the violation by an electric railway company of a by-law forbidding the erection of gas holders within the city without first obtaining the permission of the city Council, cannot be taken away by the city consenting to the erection of a gas holder by a company in breach of the city's own by-law. LIABILITY — AUTOMOBILE — DAMAGES — SUFFERINGS—STATEMENT OF CLAIM—PROOF—SPEED—MUNICIPAL RULING—C.C. ART. 1053—S. REF. [1909], ART. 1416, 1420.

A statement of claim in an action for damages for a collision making the following allegation "for suffering $25" will be rejected. It devolves upon the owner of an automobile when an accident is caused by a collision to prove that he is not at fault. The speed of an automobile at intersections of streets or public roads, ought to be reduced to 4 miles an hour. The chauffeur ought to submit to the municipal ruling under pain of himself and the owner of the automobile responsible for accidents which they cause.

II. Public regulation and control; license.

(§ II-50)—PUBLIC REGULATIONS.

A summary conviction under s. 18 of the Ontario Motor Vehicles Act, 2 Geo. V., c. 48, providing that if an accident occurs to any vehicle in charge of any person owing to the presence of a motor vehicle on the highway, the person in charge of such motor vehicle shall return to the scene of the accident and give in writing to anyone sustaining loss or injury, the name and address of himself and of the owner of the motor vehicle and the number of the permit, will be quashed, though the motor vehicle driven by the convicted person grazed the wheel of a passing buggy with sufficient force to loosen two spokes in its wheel, if it appeared at the trial that the person in charge of the motor vehicle did not know or have reason to know that such an injury had resulted to the buggy. (§ III A—160)—LIABILITY FOR INJURY TO PEDESTRIAN—STEPPING BACK TO AVOID AUTOMOBILE—COLLISION WITH ANOTHER VEHICLE.

That loss or damage was incurred or sustained "by reason of" a motor vehicle on a highway may be found where, in order to avoid an automobile, a pedestrian was compelled to step backward and in doing so came into contact with a horse and was injured.

NEGLECTENCE—VIOLATION OF MUNICIPAL BY-LAW AS TO RULES OF ROAD—COMMON FAULT.

The owner of an automobile who does not remain at rest behind a stationary car at a distance of not less than 10 feet in conformity with the by-law No. 450 of the city of Montreal, and who injures a passenger descending from a car, is liable for the consequences of this accident. On the other hand, a passenger who descends from a car without considering whether or not the road is clear and he can cross the street without danger is guilty of a serious fault. In the above case the accident is due to common fault, namely, that of the owner of the automobile for one-third and that of the passenger for two-thirds.

Evans v. Lalonde, 47 Que. S.C. 374.

B. DUTY OF OPERATOR; NEGLIGENCE.

(§ III B—180)—DUTY AND NEGLIGENCE OF OPERATOR—RULE AS TO "TURNING TO RIGHT."

Though there is no rule of law requiring the driver of an automobile to keep on the right side of the road, nevertheless he is negligent in being on the left side of the road without any excuse therefor, where he knows that he is very likely to collide with other drivers coming from the opposite direction. Notwithstanding the negligence of plaintiff in driving an automobile down a hill at an excessive rate of speed, recovery for injuries incurred through a collision with defendant's automobile will not be barred where the real cause of the accident was the negligence of the defendant in being on the wrong side of the road without excuse and not turning out as soon as he should have done and not allowing the plaintiff ample room to pass him. The statutory rule of the road in Alberta requiring drivers of vehicles when they meet to "turn to the right," does not imply that a driver of an automobile should always be on the right side of the road, but simply requires the driver to turn to the right in a reasonable and seasonable time to avoid collision. [See also Campbell v. Pugsley, 7 D.L.R. 177.]

RULE OF ROAD—KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

In the absence of statutory provision and of proof of any regulation of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council under subs. 3 of s. 20 of the Motor Vehicles Act (Alta.), or of any municipal by-law, the act of a defendant in driving to the left of the centre line of a street is not negligence per se, even though the rule of the road in this country is, as the court is entitled to recognize without proof, to keep to the right. Aschick v. Hale, 3 O.W.N. 372, 20 O.W.R. 696.

DRIVER FOLLOWING VEHICLE—RULE OF ROAD—SIGNALS.

Where the driver of an automobile following a vehicle acts contrary to the provisions of R.S.Q., art. 1415, by passing to the right instead of the left of the vehicle, when there was room to the left more than sufficient to pass without accident, an accident occurring thereby is attributable solely to the fault of the driver, particularly where the automobile had no horn, as required by art. 1417, R.S.Q., to warn the driver of the carriage that he wished to pass, and after the accident he continued on his way contrary to art. 1321.

Taillon v. Cote, 24 Rev. de Jur. 80.

BORROWER—NEGLECTANCE—DAMAGES.

A borrower is not responsible for ordinary wear and tear, but is for negligence; receiving property in good condition and returning it in a damaged condition is prima facie evidence of negligence.

Bijou Motor Parlors v. Keel (Alta.), 39 D.L.R. 410, [1918] 1 W.V.R. 706.

LIABILITY OF INVITEE—ACCOMPLICE.

One knowing that a chauffeur has taken without permission his employer's automobile, who gets in it with him on his invitation to take a drive around, becomes his accomplice and is responsible for damages sustained as the result of an accident.

Galibert v. Vaillancourt, 53 Que. S.C. 521.

BURDEN OF PROOF.

In an action for damages for personal injuries caused by the defendant's automobile, held, that the defendant had failed to satisfy the onus cast upon him by the Motor Vehicle Act, c. 131, R.S.M. 1913, of proving that the damage suffered by the plaintiff did not result from the defendant's negligence.

Leschié v. Sewrey (Man.), [1918] 2 W.V.R. 386.

COLLISION—PRESUMPTION.

Where in an action for damages caused by a collision between an automobile and a carriage it is impossible for the court to establish which of the parties was to blame, the responsibility falls on the owner of the automobile, by reason of the presumption created by 3 Geo. V., c. 19, s. 2.

Guilbeault v. Loomis, 24 Rev. Leg. 510.

LAW OF ROAD—CROSSINGS.

The proprietor and chauffeur of a motor vehicle are guilty of negligence and responsible in damages when violating the law respecting motor vehicles, to wit: (a) R.S.Q. 1909, art. 1420, enacting that "when approaching a sharp angle, turn or curve, or a steep descent in the highway, or intersecting highways and crossings, the speed of the motor vehicle shall be reduced to four miles per hour, and signal shall be given upon approaching angle, turn or curve in a highway or the intersections of two streets;" (b) art. 1420b of the same statutes amended, enacting that "when a motor vehicle meets or overtakes a street car which is stationary, for the purpose of taking on or discharging passengers, the motor vehicle shall not pass the car, on the side on which passengers get on or off, until the car has started and any passengers who have alighted shall have reached the side of the street;" (c) the by-law of the city of Montreal No. 450, art. 14a, ordering that, "every driver of vehicle going in the same direction as a street car shall, when such car stops, also stop his vehicle at a distance of at least ten feet from said car, and shall keep such vehicle at a standstill, until the said car has been again set in motion."

Carson v. Raifman, 27 Que. K.B. 337.

PERSONAL INJURIES — NEGLIGENCE — AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT — MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, 5 GEO. V. 1915 (N.B.), c. 43 — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF PEDESTRIAN.

The owner of an automobile, who is driving his car, is liable for damages in respect to personal injuries caused a pedestrian when, even though the negligence of the latter may have contributed to the accident, he could have avoided such accident ly the exercise of ordinary reasonable care and diligence.

Lyman v. Emery, 50 D.L.R. 317.

NEGLIGENCE—COLLISION OF MOTOR VEHICLES ON HIGHWAY—EVIDENCE—FAULT ATTRIBUTED TO DEFENDANT—EXCESSIVE SPEED—DRIVING ON WRONG SIDE OF ROAD—FAILURE TO TAKE PRECAUTIONS TO AVOID COLLISION—ABSENCE OF CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE—FINDINGS OF TRIAL JUDGE—DAMAGES.

Katzman v. Hall, 15 O.W.N. 337.

DEFECTIVE HIGHWAY—PRIMARY NEGLIGENCE—REGISTRATION—NUMBER PLATES.

Operating a motor car in violation of the statutory requirements as to registration and number plates will bar recovery of any damages sustained by reason of defects in the highway; under such circumstances, a municipal corporation owes no duty to the driver or owner of the car except to refrain from willful or malicious injury.

Eter v. City of Saskatoon, 39 D.L.R. 1, 10 S.L.R. 415, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1110.

DRIVING WITH CLOSED HOOD UP—STREET CAR.

It is an active act of negligence on the part of a driver of a motor car to drive with a closed hood up, only being able to look out through isinglass. Surely, it is the duty of the driver of a motor car not to pass upon the steel rails of a street railway car, save when the way is clear. This is on the grounds that a street car cannot pass any other way than over the steel rails, whereas a motor can be operated in any direction. (Per McPhillips, J.A., dissenting.)

Boys v. Christowsky, 27 D.L.R. 792, 9 S.L.R. 181, 34 W.L.R. 346, 10 W.W.R. 291.

IN GENERAL.

While the automobile is not dangerous per se, its freedom of motion, speed, control, power and capacity for moving without noise give it a unique status and impose upon the motorist the strict duty to use care commensurate with its qualities, and the conditions of its use, especially since the dangers incident to the use of the motor vehicle are commonly the result of the negligent or reckless conduct of those in charge and do not inhere in the construction and use of the vehicle so as to prevent its use on the streets and highways. (Fisher v. Murphy, 3 O.W.N. 150; Bacon on Negligence, 3rd ed. 439, 440; Le Lievre v. Gould, [1893] 1 Q.B. 491, referred to. See also Stewart v. Steele, 6 D.L.R. 1.)

Campbell v. Pugsley, 7 D.L.R. 177, 11 E.L.R. 561.

DEFENSE—NEGLIGENCE OF OPERATOR.

The driver of a motor car who attempts to pass a vehicle ahead, does so at his own risk and peril, and is responsible for any collision that may occur.

Ménard v. Lussier, 32 D.L.R. 539, 50 Que. S.C. 416.

DRIVING ON WRONG SIDE OF STREET—COLLISION—PROXIMATE CAUSE—ACT IN EXTREMIS.

Defendant's motor car, not being properly under control or in a position to be stopped instantly, was being driven on the wrong side of the street, and, under such conditions, was swung into the traffic of a busy street still on the wrong side of the street. The driver of plaintiff's car, in order to avoid a collision which seemed to be certain, turned his car to the right, and, defendant's car being turned to the left at the same moment, a collision occurred. Held, that the proximate cause of the accident was the violation of the rules of the road on the part of the defendant, and that the act of plaintiff's in extremis, and in the agony of trouble brought about by defendant's negligence, was justified under the circumstances.

(§ III B-205)—STATUTORY DUTY.

The nonobservance by the driver of an automobile of a duty imposed upon him by statute is in itself evidence of negligence. [See Halsbury's Laws of England, vol. 9, p. 571.] The Saskatchewan Act to regulate the Speed and Operation of Motor Cars, R.S.S. 1909, c. 132, is passed to insure the safety and protection of persons riding or driving upon the highway, and gives a right of action to any such person who is injured by reason of the nonobservance of the requirements of the statute. Under s. 21 of the Motor Vehicles Act (Alta.), 7 Geo. V. c. 3, the liability for violation of the act is penal, not civil.

(§ III B—210)—LIABILITY OF OWNER FOR INJURIES TO HORSE FRIGHTENED BY STEAM SHOVEL—B.C. MOTOR VEHICLES ACT, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 169, s. 29.

One who was carefully driving an automobile at slow speed on a highway is not liable, under s. 29 of the Motor Vehicles Act, B.C. 1911, for injuries sustained by a horse, where it appeared that it became frightened and unmanageable, not at the automobile, but by a steam shovel that was in operation near the road, and ran into the automobile.

Queer v. Greig, 5 D.L.R. 308.

NEGLIGENCE IN THE USE OF—CONTINUING TO DRIVE CAR WHEN APPROACHING HORSE SHOWS SIGNS OF FRIGHT—LIABILITY OF DRIVER.

A driver of an automobile who continues to advance towards horses which, by their actions, indicate that they are frightened by his car, is guilty of negligence, and is liable to the owner of the horses for injuries sustained by him while trying to hold them.

PUBLIC REGULATION—STATUTE AND COMMON LAW CUMULATIVE.

The statutory requirements of the Motor Vehicles Act (N.B.), 1 Geo. V, c. 19, for the public regulation and control of the use on highways of automobiles, do not limit or interfere with the common-law remedy for negligence, but they give other remedies directed to other ends. PUBLIC REGULATION AND CONTROL—RESTRICTION—COMMON-LAW LIABILITY—2-3 GEO. V. (ALTA.) C. 6, s. 35.

At common law the owner of a motor vehicle is not answerable for the negligence of the driver thereof, except where the relation of master and servant exists, and where, at the time of the negligent act, the latter was acting within the scope of his employment; and such liability can be changed by statute only by the use of distinct and unequivocal words. Section 35 of the Motor Vehicle Act, 2-3 Geo. V. (ALTA.) c. 6, providing that the owner of a registered motor vehicle shall be liable for any violation of the provisions of the Act while operating such vehicle, is restricted to the penal liability thereby imposed, and does not alter the common-law liability of the owner of a motor vehicle for the violation of the Act, either by himself or by any other person in charge of or operating such vehicle. DRIVING CAR INTO SCHOOL YARD—FRIGHTENING HORSES WORKING IN YARD—MOTOR VEHICLES ACT (MAN.)—NEGLIGENCE—ONUS OF PROOF—TRESPASS—DAMAGES.

The defendant drove a motor car into a school yard and around the school building to where the plaintiff was working with a team and scraper, neither party being aware of the presence of the other. The motor car frightened the plaintiff's horses and caused them to run away one of them being injured. The court held that the Motor Vehicles Act only referred to loss or damage arising out of the use of a motor vehicle on a public highway, but if this included a school yard, the evidence put in by the defendant displaced the onus of proof created by s. 63 of the Act, and replaced upon the plaintiff the onus of proving his case. Held, also, that even if the defendant was guilty of a trespass in driving his motor car into the school yard, the damage which occurred did not naturally flow from the trespass and was not an ordinary consequence of the trespass and the defendant was not liable. (§ III B—215)—LIABILITY FOR INJURIES TO PEDESTRIANS—FAILURE TO LOOK.

S. 33 of the Motor Vehicles Act (ALTA. STAT., 1911-12, c. 6) throws upon the driver of the vehicle, in all cases of accident, the burden of proof that the injury did not arise through his negligence. Even where the plaintiff admits his own negligence in crossing a highway without looking, the driver of the vehicle must prove that he could not by the use of ordinary and reasonable care have avoided the accident which resulted. COLLISION WITH CYCLIST — CYCLE AND AUTOMOBILE — INCREASE OF SPEED OF CYCLE — NEGLECT TO APPLY BRAKE — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

Where a cyclist after becoming aware of the approach of an automobile in a direction at right angles to his own and the apparent danger of a collision, increases his speed in a rash attempt to pass ahead of the approaching automobile, his contributory negligence in this respect is the proximate cause of the ensuing collision, notwithstanding the negligence of the defendant in approaching an intersection of streets without taking proper care. (Per Simmons and McCarthy, J.J.) Where a cyclist finds himself confronted with an emergency as above described and, owing to a mere mistake of judgment, swerves to the left to gain space and increased his speed in the hope of getting safely past, the automobilist is the proximate cause of the accident. Wales v. Harper, 17 W.L.R. 623 (Man.).

MOTOR TRUCK — INJURY TO CYCLIST.
The plaintiff was riding a bicycle westerly, on the southerly side of Hastings Street in Vancouver, and about to cross Cambie Street, when the defendant's motor truck, coming easterly on the north side of Hastings Street, was about to turn and go southerly up Cambie Street. The plaintiff had ample time to cross Cambie Street in front of the motor truck but, while crossing, his wheel skidded and he fell. The driver of the motor truck saw him fall, but was not able to stop until it rested on the plaintiff's leg and fractured it. The driver did not sound his horn when turning the corner. In an action for damages judgment was given for the plaintiff. Held, on appeal, affirming the decision of McInnes, Co. J. (Macdonald, C.J.A., dissenting), that there was evidence upon which the learned judge below might reasonably find that the driver of the motor truck was negligent and the appeal should be dismissed.

(§ III B-221) — RULES OF ROAD — ATTEMPTING TO PASS ON ROAD — NEITHER MACHINE EXCEEDING SPEED LIMIT — RACING WITHIN s. 25 OF MOTOR VEHICLE ACT, N.S.

If two motor cars are on a public highway and one endeavours to pass the other, the first one has a perfect right to put on more speed and prevent it from doing so. If neither machine exceeds the speed limit, this cannot be considered racing within the meaning of s. 25 of the Nova Scotia Motor Vehicle Act.

Notwithstanding the negligence of the injured parties in not complying with s. 38 of the Motor Vehicles Act when the accident is caused solely by the carelessness and negligence of another party, that party is liable in damages to the parties injured.

Bogaert v. Keeney, 50 D.L.R. 795.

COLLISION — ULTIMATE NEGLIGENCE.

An action for damages for injuries caused by a collision between motor vehicles is properly dismissed, where the answers of the jury indicate that each party was to blame and there is nothing to suggest that the respondent was guilty of ultimate negligence.

Judson v. Haines, 43 D.L.R. 227, 42 O.L.R. 629. [New trial ordered 16 O.W.N. 73.]

HIGHWAYS — COLLISION AT STREET INTERSECTION — RIGHT-OF-WAY — PARTY ON WRONG SIDE OF ROAD.

Defendants were held liable in damages because of a collision of their fire motor truck (in driving to a fire) with plaintiff's automobile, the truck having swung over from its proper side of the road and met the automobile as the latter turned the corner of a street intersection.

A by-law passed under s. 37 of the Motor-traffic Regulation Act, said by-law providing that the driver of a vehicle shall in approaching any street intersection give the clear right-of-way to a person driving a vehicle and approaching such intersection from the left does not entitle a person so approaching from the left to the right-of-way if he is not complying with the requirement of s. 36 of said act that he drive on the left-hand side of the road. In turning a street corner the driver of a vehicle has a right to expect that a person driving a vehicle on the intersecting street will comply with the statutory requirements and otherwise exercise a proper degree of care.

(§ III B-225)—DUTY WHEN HORSES ENCOUNTERED ON HIGHWAY—STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—NEGLIGENCE.

Where an automobile on the highway is meeting a horse and buggy and the car is frightening the horse and the motorist sees or ought to see this, it is the legal duty of the motorist to stop his car and take all other precautions as prudence suggests and this irrespective of any statute regulating and controlling the use of motor vehicles and whether or not the driver of the horse holds up his hand to indicate the trouble with his horse. Under the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act (N.B.I., 1911, 1 Geo. V. c. 19, s. 4, subs. 4, the motorist, violating its provision in not stopping his car, incurs a fixed penalty by way of fine for the violation, this penalty being additional to, not in lieu of, civil damages to the person injured by the motorist's negligence and his violation constitutes evidence of negligence.

FRIGHT TO HORSE BY WRECKED CAR—UNLICENSED DRIVER.

The leaving of a wrecked motor car on the side of the road is not necessarily negligence, nor does it amount to an unreasonable user of the highway, entitling the owner of a runaway horse, frightened by the wreck, to damages. Neither is the owner liable by reason that at the time the motor was wrecked it was being driven by an unlicensed driver. [Contant v. Pigott, 15 D.L.R. 358, referred to.]

Pedestrians have the same rights in the use of public streets as have drivers of automobiles, and the latter must exercise the necessary care and prudence to avoid any accident, and not violate the rights which pedestrians have under the common law.

Legault v. Kander, 24 Rev. de Jur. 143
PASSENGER ALIGHTING FROM STREET CAR— NEGLIGENCE — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

S. 7 of the Vehicles Act, c. 38, 1912, which provides that "every motor vehicle shall be equipped . . . with a suitable horn or other device which shall be sounded only whenever it shall be reasonably necessary to notify pedestrians or others of the approach of such vehicle," imposes on the driver of a motor car the duty of sounding his horn when he sees a passenger alighting from a street car in front of him and where, because of his failure to so sound his horn, the passenger is injured and the accident would not have happened had the horn been sounded, the passenger is entitled to damages even though he did not look in the direction of the motor car before attempting to cross from the street car to the sidewalk. INJURY TO PEDESTRIANS WHILE WAITING FOR CAR—FAILURE TO LOOK—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

A pedestrian crossing a wide street, who stops in the roadway at a safe place beside the street car track for a street car to pass and then walks back in the direction from which he came without looking for approaching vehicles, is himself guilty of negligence disentitling him to recover where, in retreating his steps, he walked in front of an automobile proceeding at a moderate rate of speed and was knocked down and injured before the motorist could avoid him.

(§ III B-260)—DUTY WHEN APPROACHING STREET CROSSING.

To drive an automobile towards an intersecting street at a speed of ten miles per hour, although that speed may be within the maximum permitted by law, is negligence sufficient to prevent the plaintiff recovering for a collision between his own and the defendant's automobile, which approached on the intersecting street at a greater rate of speed than was permitted by law, since the speed of the plaintiff's automobile at such place was unreasonable, as he must have known the possibility of meeting other automobiles moving on the intersecting street at a rate of speed equal to his own.

The B. & R. Co. v. McLeod, 7 D.L.R. 579, 5 A.L.R. 176, 22 W.L.R. 274, 2 W.W.R. 1093.

DUTY WHEN APPROACHING STREET CROSSING—COMING INTO A MAIN TRAFFIC ARTERY.

It is the special duty of a person driving a motor vehicle to keep a good lookout while approaching a railway crossing, and it is the duty of such person coming out from a crossroad into a main artery of traffic to wait and give way to that traffic, and not to throw himself headlong into the advancing traffic along the main traveled road. R. v. Archibald, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 146.

COLLISION AT STREET CROSSING—RULES OF ROAD.

When the primary cause of an automobile collision was the defendant's violation of the rules of the road (Nova Scotia Stats. 1914), by running on the wrong side of the road when approaching an intersection and cutting the corner at that intersection, he cannot evade the consequences of his negligence by setting up that the plaintiff (who was originally on the proper side of the cross street) had swerved, in the emergency, to the wrong side of the cross street in an attempt to avoid the collision.

(§ III B-262)—DUTY TO SLOW UP—TAXI-CAR COMPANIES—INJURY TO PASSENGER—PRIMA FACIE NEGLIGENCE.

A taxicab driver's act in turning into an upright post plainly visible, resulting in injury to a passenger, was prima facie negligent, where while running at considerable speed he turned quickly to correct a mistake in turning into a wrong street.

DUTY NEAR STREET CARS.

Where the circumstances and the situation are such as to require the chauffeur to exercise a more than ordinary degree of care for the safety of pedestrians and to anticipate the possibility of being confronted at any time in such a situation by pedestrians who for the moment lose control of their mental faculties, and are overcome by a sudden panic, although at other times of healthy and rational intellect, and that under the circumstances the chauffeur was guilty of such negligence that the defendants were liable for the damages suffered by the plaintiff, the Trial Judge, being satisfied that the plaintiff's solicitor honestly believed that the plaintiff would recover an amount beyond County Court jurisdiction, while giving him no costs, gave the statutory certificate, under r. 933 of the King's Bench Act, to prevent the defendant setting off any costs.

The driver of an automobile is not relieved from liability for running into the plaintiff by reason of the fact that, in order to avoid striking children who suddenly ran into the street, he was compelled to change the course of his automobile, and in doing so struck the plaintiff who was about to board a street car, and the defendant's own negligence had placed him in a situation where the swerving of the automobile became a necessity.

SALESMAN—DISPLAYING CAR—"MECHANIC"—"CHAUFFEUR."

An automobile salesman who displays his car by operating it, and having effected a sale, assists the purchaser in locating some trouble, by going out with him and operating the car for a time, is not a "mechanic" within the meaning of the word as used in the definition of "chauffeur" in s. 2 (3) of the Motor Vehicle Act (Alta. stats. 1911-12, c. 6).

Hutchinson v. Shearer, 41 D.L.R. 418, 13 A.L.R. 309, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 480.

CAR USED BY SERVANT—NEGLIGENCE—BURDEN OF PROOF.

Where a grocer, owner of an automobile, employs a young man to deliver his goods with such machine, he is responsible for damages caused by the fault of his driver. It is negligence for the owner of an automobile not to provide it with a siren, which the driver could make use of when necessary. When an automobile causes an injury to any one in a public road, the burden of proof that the injury is not due to negligence of the owner or of the driver is upon the latter.

Dussault v. Chartrand, 54 Que. S.C. 488. In an accident caused by an automobile truck, the burden of proof that the loss and damages sustained did not arise through the negligence or improper conduct of the driver of the truck, is upon the owner of the machine.

Babinsky v. Wilson, 24 Rev. Leg. 433.

RESPONSIBILITY — AUTOMOBILE OWNER — CHAUFFEUR — INTRUSTING TO ANOTHER — C. C. ART. 1053, 1054.

The owner of an automobile is not responsible for accidents caused by the fault of his chauffeur when the latter is not at the moment of the accident in the exercise of the functions entrusted to him by the owner. Thus he is not responsible in the case where his chauffeur, in spite of being forbidden to do so, and without the owner's knowledge, takes his auto from the garage, and in the course of a pleasure trip with his friends, strikes a passerby and causes his death, through criminal negligence.

RESPONSIBILITY OF OWNER WHEN CAR USED BY ANOTHER.

Under s. 35 of Motor Vehicles Act (c. 6, Alta. statutes 1911-12), the owner of an automobile is liable in damages as well as the driver who is using the car with the owner's sanction or permission, for injuries sustained by a third party in consequence of the driver's negligence. COLLISION—CAR OPERATED BY ANOTHER—LIABILITY OF OWNER—STOLEN CAR.

The Motor Vehicles Act, 2 Geo. V. c. 48, did not make the owner of a stolen automobile responsible for damages sustained when it collided with another vehicle through the negligence and furious driving of the person who had stolen it a short time previously, if the owner was himself guilty of no negligence in the manner in which he left the automobile and had taken away the spark plug so that the thief could not have operated the car without supplying a similar spark plug. LARCENOUS TAKING—WHAT IS.

The taking by a servant of a garage keeper without the owner's consent of a car stored in the garage for repairs, the servant mistaking it for a demonstration car, raises no such animus furandi as to render such taking an act of larceny which will relieve the owner from the liability imposed by s. 19 of the Motor Vehicles Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 207.

LICENSED CAR ON HIGHWAY — OPERATION BY REPAIRMAN WITHOUT OWNER'S CONSENT—OWNER'S STATUTORY LIABILITY.

(The King v. Labbe, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 417 (1906).)

OPERATING AS "JITNEY" BY JOINT OWNER.

E. and J. were joint owners of an automobile licensed as a jitney and, at the time of the accident, operated by E. as a "jitney." J. had a chauffeur's license, but there was no evidence of agency or partnership. Held, that the facts fell far short of establishing that J. had entrusted E. with the automobile within the meaning of the Motor Vehicles Act (M.V.A.), and that the onus was on the plaintiff in an action for damages sustained while riding in the automobile, to show that J. came within the provisions of s. 33 of the Act.

"OWNER"—CONDITIONAL VENDOR.

The registered owner of an automobile, who disposes of it and delivers it to the purchaser without removing the plate intended to identify the owner, incurs the penalty under the Act 5 Geo. V. c. 16; but he is not liable for damages subsequently caused by the car in an accident to which he was a complete stranger. The vendor of an automobile, reserving the ownership thereof until the price has been fully paid, will be considered as the owner within the meaning of the Motor Vehicles Act; but would still be allowed to disclaim liability for damages caused by a collision, if at the time of the accident he was neither personally nor by an agent in control or care of the car.

Cole v. Pennock, 51 Que. S.C. 537.

AUTOMOBILE WITH REPAIR COMPANY—COLLISION—LIABILITY OF THE OWNER.

McCabe v. Allan, 39 Que. S.C. 29.

(§ III C—365)—BURDEN OF PROVING "VIOLATION OF THE ACT"—MOTOR VEHICLES ACT (ONT.).

S. 19 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1912, c. 48, R.S.O. 1914, c. 207, which provides that the owner of a motor vehicle shall be responsible for "any violation of the Act," does not relieve the plaintiff, in a negligence action for personal injury against such owner, from the obligation of obtaining a finding that the accident was caused by a violation of the Act for which the defendant was responsible.

Lowry v. Thompson, 15 D.L.R. 463, 29 O.L.R. 478.

LIABILITY OF OWNER — NEGLIGENCE OF BROTHER OF OWNER USING SAME FOR HIS OWN PURPOSE—ABSENCE OF AGENCY.

The fact that the owner of an automobile in Alberta has given permission to his brother to use the automobile on his own business without payment raises no presumption of agency between him and his brother, and the owner is not liable to one injured by the gross negligence of his brother while exercising such permission, even though at the time of the accident he be driving home the owner's wife at the owner's request. [Yewens v. Noakes, 6 Q.B.D. 530, referred to. See also Pollock on Torts, 7th ed., pp. 77 and 78, and Bigelow on Torts, 8th ed., p. 54.]

The Alberta Motor Vehicle Act (2-3 Geo. V. c. 6) does not render the owner of a motor vehicle liable for a violation of the provisions of the Act resulting in injury to the plaintiff where the vehicle was at the time of the injury being used by another person without the owner's knowledge or consent.

The B. & R. Co. v. Hugh S. McLeod, 7 D.L.R. 579, 5 A.L.R. 176, 22 W.L.R. 274, 2 W.W.R. 1093.

RESPONSIBILITY OF OWNER WHEN CAR OPERATED BY ANOTHER—WHO IS "OWNER"—SELLER RESERVING TITLE.

The seller of an automobile under a conditional sale contract whereby he retains the title until fully paid for, with the right, on feeling insecure or on the purchaser's default, to resume possession of the car, is not the "owner" of the automobile within the meaning of s. 19 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 2 Geo. V., c. 48, R.S.O. 1914, c. 207, so as to incur a statutory liability for personal injuries sustained by the mismanagement of the car while under the control of the conditional vendee or of his servant, by the infringement of motor car regulations, passed under statutory authority. [Wyne v. Dalby, 13 D.L.R. 569, 29 O.L.R. 62, 4 O.W.N. 1330, affirmed.]

CAR OPERATED BY OTHER THAN OWNER—OWNER'S LIABILITY BY STATUTE.

Woo Chong Kee v. Fortier, 20 D.L.R. 985, 45 Que. S.C. 365.

(§ III C—310)—RESPONSIBILITY OF OWNER WHEN CAR USED BY SERVANT FOR HIS OWN BUSINESS OR PLEASURE.

The owner of an automobile is answerable at common law for its negligent operation by his chauffeur, where, instead of returning the car to the garage where it was kept, as it was his duty to do after having used the vehicle in the business of his employer, the chauffeur while using the car for purposes of his own and driving it in a reckless manner, caused the plaintiff to be knocked off a bicycle and injured as a result of the chauffeur's negligent conduct. Under s. 19 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 2 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 48, R.S.O. 1914, c. 207, the owner of an automobile is liable for any violation of the provisions of the act by his chauffeur while using the car for purposes of his own without the knowledge or consent of his employer. [Campbell v. Pugsley, 7 D.L.R. 177, specially referred to; Mattei v. Gillies, 16 O.L.R. 558; Verral v. Dominion Automobile Co., 24 O.L.R. 551, followed.]

Bernstein v. Lynch, 13 D.L.R. 134, 28 O. L.R. 435.

NEGLIGENCE OF CHAUFFEUR—SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT—SERVANT'S OWN BUSINESS—CAR FURNISHED BY MASTER—DAMAGES—LIABILITY.

The master is not liable at common law for the negligence of his servant while the latter is engaged in some act beyond the scope of his employment for his own purpose though he may be using the instrumentalities furnished by the master to perform his duties as servant; and a chauffeur who takes his master's automobile out of a garage in contravention of his master's orders and proceeds with it to make a call of his own before the time appointed for taking the car out for his master's use is not to be considered as acting within the course of his employment so as to make the master liable at common law for injuries resulting to another whom he negligently runs down. [Halparin v. Bulling, 17 D.L.R. 150, 24 Man. L.R. 235, affirmed; Storey v. Ashton, L.R. 4 Q.B. 476, followed.]

Halparin v. Bulling, 20 D.L.R. 598, 50 Can. S.C.R. 471, 8 W.W.R. 95.

CAR OPERATED BY REPAIRMAN—"STOLEN IT."

An employee in a repair shop who takes a motor vehicle from the shop to test it by driving upon the highway, and after so testing it continues to drive it for his own pleasure, has not "stolen it from the owner" within the meaning of s. 19 of the Motor Vehicles Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 207, as amended by 4 Geo. V. c. 36, s. 3; nor is the employee guilty of "theft of a motor car" under s. 285 (B) of the Criminal Code, as enacted in 9 & 10 Edw. VII. c. 11.

NEGLIGENCE OR WILFUL ACT OF DRIVER.

The owner of a motor car driven by his daughter is not liable under the Manitoba Statute, 5 Geo. V. c. 41, s. 63a, for injury thereby, unless the injury was caused by the negligent or wilful act of the driver.

CAR USED WITHOUT OWNER'S KNOWLEDGE.

The liability of the owner of an automobile, in virtue of art. 1406, R.S.Q. 1909, as amended by 3 Geo. V. c. 19, merely creates a presumption of fault on the part of the owner or the driver of the vehicle. The owner is not responsible in damages for injuries occasioned in an accident by his automobile, where the driver thereof is not his servant or agent, e.g., where his nephew, a competent chauffeur, has borrowed or has taken the vehicle without his knowledge and was in charge of it at the time of the accident.

Robillard v. Bélanger, 50 Que. S.C. 260.

RESPONSIBILITY—AUTOMOBILE—ASSOCIATES—CHAUFFEUR—C.C. ARTS. 1053, 1054.

The responsibility of the owner of an automobile, which is in the possession of a chauffeur, continues until this possession ceases by the return of the car to the owner. The member of a company, who is driven out in the company's automobile without the knowledge of his partner, is personally liable for an accident which was caused by the fault of the chauffeur.

Lafontaine v. Christin, 25 Rev. Leg. 110, MOTOR VEHICLES ACT—INJURY BY AUTOMOBILE ON HIGHWAY—EXCESSIVE SPEED—UNAUTHORIZED USE OF VEHICLE BY SERVANT.

(§ III C—315)—RESPONSIBILITY OF OWNER—CAR OPERATED BY BORROWER.

The owner of an automobile is not liable for the negligence of his brother to whom the car was loaned for the latter's own purposes, although at the time of the accident in question the brother was engaged in driving home the owner's wife at the request of the owner's daughter, it not appearing that the owner was aware that the car was being used for that purpose, nor that the daughter had any authority from the owner to request or direct his brother to use the car for the purpose for which it was actually used. [B. & R. Co. v. McLeod, 7 D.L.R. 579, referred to; Lane v. Crandell (No. 1), 5 D.L.R. 580, affirmed.]

UNLICENSED DRIVER.

If the owner of an automobile permits his brother who is not competent, has not had the necessary experience and is not licensed to drive, to habitually use it he is liable, jointly with him and severally, for the injury resulting from a collision caused by the fault of the driver.

Lebau v. Colas, 51 Que. S.C. 335.

MOTOR CAR DRIVEN BY DRIVER—HIRED TO A THIRD PARTY—COLLISION—INJURY TO PASSENGER—DAMAGES—LIABILITY OF MASTER.

A servant, who is driving his master's motor car notwithstanding the fact that such car was with others supplied to a third party, the servant of his master, and the latter is responsible for his servant's negligence. [Quarman v. Burnett, 6 M. & W. 499, 151 E.R. 509, followed; Consolidated Plate Glass Co. v. Caston, 29 Can. S.C.R. 624, followed.]

Heron v. Coleman, 49 D.L.R. 602, 46 O.L.R. 154.

JOINT LIABILITY—RULE OF ROAD.

Injuries occasioned by collision with an automobile due to the negligence of the driver in driving on the wrong side of the road, and that the father of the driver, being owner of the car and having authorized the use if it was liable with the son for damages both under the statute and at common law.

Boyd & McDougal v. Houston (B.C.), 10 W.W.R. 518.

D. DUTY AND LIABILITY TO OPERATOR OR PERSON USING.

(§ III D—350)—DUTY AND LIABILITY TO ANOTHER OPERATOR—EMBARRASSMENT CAUSED BY ANOTHER OPERATOR.

The driver of an automobile is not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law where on approaching another automobile coming towards him on the wrong side of the road and having reasonable ground to believe that there was not ample room for him to pass the approaching vehicle on his right side of the road, turns to his left, though it turned out to be the wrong course to adopt because a collision resulted, where it appears that the driver's embarrassment was due solely to the action of the approaching automobile in adhering too long to the wrong side of the road without turning to the right of the road seasonably. [Adams v. Laneshire & Yorkshire R. Co., L.R. 4 C.P. 739, 38 L.J.C.P. 277, distinguished. See also Campbell v. Pugsley, 7 D.L.R. 177.]

CAUSE OF ACCIDENT—SPEED—FINDINGS OF JURY.

In an action for damages for injury to an automobile on a highway the findings of the jury should not be disturbed although they have not directly indicated the connection between the negligence found and the accident, if they did on the evidence reasonably draw the inference that the effective cause of the accident was the "excessive rate of speed," and that the plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence.

Gallagher v. Toronto R. Co., 40 D.L.R. 114, 41 O.L.R. 143, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 257.

COLLISION—NEGLECT—INSTINCT OF SELF-PRESERVATION.

It is a defence to an action for negligence, that the defendant did the act complained of in an emergency in response to his instinct for self-preservation, provided that his action was what a reasonable man might well have done under the circumstances.

V. Garage.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ V A—450)—ATTACHMENT—EXECUTION—LANDLORD AND TENANT.

One placing an automobile in a garage to be sold, at a rent of $5 a month, payable to the keeper of the garage, who is a tenant, will be deemed a subtenant to the owner of the building in which the garage is situated. So that, if the latter issues execution by way of security against his tenant and seizes the automobile, the owner must, in order to obtain his machine, pay the amount of the rent which he owed at the time of the seizure.

Marcotte v. Auto Garage, 53 Que. S.C. 77.

RIGHTS OF GARAGE KEEPER—JUDGMENT—EXECUTION—OWNER OF MACHINE.

A garage keeper receiving an automobile from one who is not the owner, who makes repairs upon it and keeps it in his garage, cannot, after obtaining judgment for his services, seize the automobile in execution; he could only do so in execution of a judgment against the owner of the automobile in a suit brought against him.

Rapid Motor Co. v. Dagenais, 24 Rev. de Jur. 101.

B. RIGHT OF PROPRIETOR TO LIEN.

(§ V B—460)—GARAGE—LIEN CLAIM OF PROPRIETOR.

The fact that an automobile was returned in a damaged condition to the care of the garage keeper on the order of the conditional vendee to be left until repaired but without any change of the terms upon which the garage keeper had theretofore taken care of it on a monthly engagement, will not change the latter's status to that of a warehouseman so as to entitle him to a lien for the fixed monthly compensation as against the conditional vendor. [Automobile and Supply Co. v. Hands, 13 D.L.R. 222, referred to.]

Webster v. Black, 17 D.L.R. 15, 24 Man. L.R. 456, 28 W.L.R. 300.

C. LICENSING OF GARAGE.

(§ V C—470)—LICENSE—MEANING OF "GARAGE."

A "garage" under the Quebec Motor Vehicles Law, R.S. Que. 1909, art. 1492b (added by Quebec statutes 1916, c. 21), for which a license is required does not include a place where automobiles are kept without extra charge while repairs are being made to them.

D. DUTY TO CUSTOMER.

(§ V D—480)—AUTOMOBILE DAMAGED BY FIRE—LIABILITY OF GARAGE OWNER.

The owner of a garage is a paid depository, and as such is responsible for damage by fire to an automobile entrusted to his care, unless he can prove that the accident did not result from any fault on his part. Brunet v. Painchaud, 48 Que. S. C. 59.

AUCTION.

(§ 1—1)—"PUFFING"—SELLER'S RIGHT TO BID NOT RESERVED—SALE OF GOODS.

Where at an auction sale of a horse it appears that the vendor employed a "puffer" to bid at the sale, without reserving the right to do so, and the price was bid up to much beyond the value of the animal without the knowledge of the person who became the purchaser, the latter would be entitled to rescind the transaction upon discovering the fraud, even before the passage of the Sale of Goods Act, 1910, N.S. Stat. 1, s. 58, subss. 3 and 4, making a sale under such circumstances unlawful. [Mortimer v. Bell, L.R. 1 Ch. 10, and Smith v. Clerke, 12 Ves. 482, referred to.]

(§ 1—5)—SALE OF FARMING EFFECTS—TERMS—PROMISSORY NOTE.

On an auction sale of farming effects on advertised terms of six months' credit, three months without interest, on approved joint note, a buyer, who obtains delivery on a promise to pay cash in a few days and attempts to give an approved note on the advertised terms, may be sued forthwith on defaulting in his promise, and cannot set up in answer that the three months' credit term had not expired.

Crossman v. Mosely, 22 D.L.R. 713, 48 N.S.R. 227.

AUCTION—VERBAL EVIDENCE—AUCTIONEER—BOOK OF SALE—C.C. ARTS. 1255, 1567, S. REF. [1909], ART. 1191.

Verbal proof of the sale and auction of commercial goods, the value of which exceeds $50, is inadmissible when the purchaser has not accepted nor received any part of the goods and has not made a deposit and if besides, the formalities required by s. 1567 C.C. have not been followed. The sale of a thing sold at auction should be verified by the signing of the purchaser's name in the auctioneers book of a sale by the auctioneer himself. This book should be a register held by the auctioneer in the manner prescribed by art. 1191, s. ref. [1909]. A simple loose sheet of paper containing neither the date, nor the signature, nor the description of the parties nor of the object sold, cannot take the place of the auctioneers book, nor of the writing required by art. 1235, C.C.

BAIL AND RECOGNIZANCE.

Annotation.

Bail pending decision on writ of habeas corpus: 44 D.L.R. 144.

Right to bail for a misdemeanour: 50 D.L.R. 633.

(§ 1—2)—CRIMINAL LAW—APPLICATION FOR BAIL—CHARGE OF TREASON—STATE OF WAR.

R. v. Rowens, 7 O.W.N. 467.

FAILURE TO FILE RECOGNIZANCE—DISMISSAL OF APPEAL.

Where no attempt is made by an appellant to secure the return of a recognizance into court by magistrates within the statutory ten days, a return which can be compelled by mandamus, the failure to file such recognizance should entail the dismissal of the appeal. [Wills v. McSherry, [1913] 1 K.B. 20, distinguished, and R. v. McKay, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, disapproved. Re McNeill and Saskatchewan Hotel Co., 17 W.L.R. 7, followed.]

R. v. McNamata, 12 D.L.R. 859, 18 B.C.R. 125, 4 W.W.R. 647.

CRIMINAL CASE—SUBMITTING NAMES AND PARTICULARS OF BONDSMEN.

Upon an application for bail to a judge or magistrate, the practice which should be followed is for the accused to submit the names of his sureties and their residence and occupation, and for the judge or magistrate, in his discretion, to give leave to the Crown prosecutor to make inquiries as to whether the proposed sureties have sufficient means to satisfy the amount in which they are to be found, and that, after inquiries have been made and the parties heard, the judge or magistrate should thereupon decide whether or not the bondsmen offered by the accused are sufficient.

R. v. Greig, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 352.

BAIL UNDER CR. CODE, S. 698—SUFFICIENCY OF—DUTY OF JUDGE—PRACTICE.

Where bail is granted by a judge of a Superior or County Court under Cr. Code, s. 698, the sufficiency of the sureties is to be passed upon by the judge who grants the bail; the duty of the justices before whom the recognizance is taken is in such case of a merely ministerial character to carry out the judge's order. After an order for bail made by a District Court Judge has been issued and acted upon, there is no jurisdiction to amend it, but if after release of the prisoner thereunder he is re-arrested for alleged irregularity in the warrant of deliverance, bail may be applied for de novo. A judge's order for bail should not delegate absolutely to the representative of the Attorney-General the duty of the court to stand between the Crown and the prisoner, and should therefore provide for submission to the judge of the sufficiency of the bondsmen in case the Attorney-General is not satisfied in that regard. The practice in Saskatchewan is to require the bail to justify unless the judge or magistrate making the order for bail dispenses with their justification because of his personal knowledge of their sufficiency.

R. v. Greig, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 352.

CONTEMPT.

A party in custody in execution under a sentence, for a time certain, for contempt of court is not bailable.

Re Beck (Man.), 32 D.L.R. 15, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 657.

(§ 1-4)—CRIMINAL OFFENCES—JURISDICTION OF JUSTICES.

Rape is a capital offence in Canada, and justices of the peace have no jurisdiction to grant bail after the holding of the preliminary enquiry before the justices upon which the accused was committed for trial before a Court of Competent Jurisdiction.

Re Hopfe's Bail, 10 D.L.R. 216, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, 5 A.L.R. 398, 23 W.L.R. 751, 4 W.W.R. 1.

COMMITTAL ON CHARGE OF MURDER.

The general rule is that a person committed for trial on a charge of murder will not be granted bail. [R. v. Rae, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 266, 32 O.L.R. 89, applied.]

R. v. Gentile, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 342, 8 W.W.R. 1081, 32 W.L.R. 217.

JURISDICTION AFTER COMMITTAL WHEN ACCUSED MOVED TO JAIL OUT OF DISTRICT FOR SAFE CUSTODY.

Where owing to the lack of a jail in the district in which a prisoner has been committed for trial there is no place where prisoners who are committed for safe keeping to await their trial can be confined and they are sent to a provincial jail outside of the district of the District Court Judge where the committal took place, it is to be assumed that such confinement is a confinement within such district so as to enable such District Court Judge to make an order for bail under Cr. Code, s. 698.

R. v. Greig, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 352.

CAPITAL OFFENCE—MURDER CHARGE POSTPONED BY CROWN.

That the prisoner against whom a true bill had been found for murder had been ready for trial at the Assizes and that the trial had been postponed at the request of the Crown will not constitute sufficient ground for concurrently making an order to admit to bail; semblé, the prisoner's recourse is to apply on the first day of the following Assize to be brought to trial, under the Habeas Corpus Act, 31 Car. II, c. 2, and in default that he be granted bail. [R. v. Keeler, 7 P.R. (Ont.), 117, and R. v. Mullady, 4 P.R. (Ont.), 314, followed; R. v. Chapman, 8 C. & P. 558, considered.]

R. v. Rae, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 266, 32 O.L.R. 89.

(§ 1-6) — CAPIAS — BOND TO SHERIFF — IRREGULARITY OF CAPIAS—DELAY.

A delay on the part of defendant in not applying to set aside a writ of capias and a bail bond given to the sheriff thereunder until two months after judgment by default had been entered against him and a fi. fa. issued thereon, constitutes such an unreasonable delay as would justify a court under N.B. Order 70, r. 2, of the Judicature Act, 1909, in refusing an application founded on the irregularity in failing to properly endorse the writ under N.B. Order 3, r. 7.

Gunns v. Dugay, 10 D.L.R. 416, 41 N.B. R. 402.

APPEAL FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION — CONTINUANCES.

The recognizance given on the release of the accused pending an appeal to an Inferior Court from a summary conviction will remain in force for the purposes of continuances ordered by a Superior Court in substitution for the erroneous quashing of the appeal by the Inferior Court to which by statute the appeal had to be taken. Ex parte Blues, 24 L.J.M.C. 138, specially referred to.

R. v. Trotter, 14 D.L.R. 355, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 102, 6 A.L.R. 451, 25 W.L.R. 663, 5 W.W.R. 263.

CERTIORARI—PETITION.

A petition in the name of the surety for the accused, to revoke a judgment forfeiting the recognizance is the proper proceeding to take to have the judgment revoked, and the petition may and should be accompanied by a certiorari if it is desired to have the sentence against the accused revoked.

The King v. Davis, 16 Que. P.R. 297.

(§ 1-9)—SURETIES TO KEEP THE PEACE—BREACH OF CONDITION.

The certificate of the magistrate before whom a recognizance to keep the peace had been taken that the condition of such recognizance had been broken is conclusive evidence of breach and forfeiture in the Province of Quebec under Code, ss. 1113 and 1114.

R. v. Walker, 18 D.L.R. 541, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 179.

(§ 1-10) — ESTREAT — SURETIES FOR THE PEACE UNDER JUSTICE'S ORDER.

Where a person under recognizance to Keep the peace ordered by a justice under Code, s. 748 (2) on complaint of threats made, is afterwards guilty of a breach of the peace, though towards a person other than the complainant, the recognizance may be forfeited, and the same justice may give the certificate of default after written notice to the defendant and his sureties to shew cause, although the second conviction was before the Court of Sessions not presided over by the justice who ordered the recognizance.

R. v. Walker, 18 D.L.R. 541, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 179.

ESTREAT — REQUÊTE CIVILE TO SET ASIDE FORFEITURE—CERTIORARI.

The surety of an accused person may petition by requête civile in the Province of Quebec to have set aside a judgment given upon an order for forfeiture of the recognizance, and his petition may and should be accompanied by a writ of certiorari if it is desired to shew that the order itself was irregular.

R. v. Davis, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 382, 16 Que. P.R. 297.

DISCHARGE OF BAIL.

It is only in a very plain case that bail put into a writ of capias under the Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 12, should be discharged on the ground that the plaintiff cannot succeed upon his alleged cause of action.

Oliphant v. Alexander; Selkirk v. Alexander, 6 D.L.R. 261, 2 W.W.R. 908.

DEFAULT—FORFEITURE OF BAIL.

When an accused is bound over by recognizance for trial at the "next criminal sitting," that means the term of the court which will sit for the hearing of criminal causes, and not a sitting for which, by direction of the Crown authorities, neither grand nor petit jury had been summoned; so the forfeiture of a recognizance to appear for trial at the next criminal sitting is not authorized in respect of a session of the Court of King's Bench in Quebec without a grand or petit jury on default in obeying a notice to appear on the opening day fixed by order-in-counsel.

R. v. Tremblay, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 46, 50 Que. S.C. 97.

(§ 1-12)—RECOVERY BACK OF MONEY DEPOSITED AS BAIL.

Where, before the granting of an order by a higher court prohibiting a County Court hearing an appeal from a conviction by a police magistrate, which order carried $75 costs, such appeal was allowed by the County Court with costs of the same amount, upon a subsequent action being brought by the appellant to recover cash deposited as bail, a tender by the defendants to the plaintiff of the amount of the bail, less the costs of such prohibiting order, was refused, the court declining on the ground that a counterclaim had not been filed, nor a tender pleaded, nor any money paid into court, to consider whether the defendants were entitled to deduct the amount of such costs from the bail money. Cash deposited as bail with the attorney for the prosecution upon an appeal to a County Court from a conviction by a police magistrate may, upon an allowance of the appeal, be recovered by the appellant. In an action brought after the allowance by a County Court of an appeal from a conviction by a police magistrate, to recover cash deposited as bail, an allegation in the plaint to the effect that such money was deposited with the defendants as security for the appearance of the appellant, while in another paragraph the money was referred to as having been given as security for costs, does not embarrass or confuse defendants as to what money was claimed by the plaintiff, where the bail money was paid to one of the defendants, since it was received by him as bail only and for no other purpose, notwithstanding that in the order allowing the appeal and requiring the money to be returned, it was referred to as having been given as security for costs.

(§ 1-16)—ORDER ON HABEAS CORPUS—PRIOR TO COMMITTAL FOR TRIAL.

Although s. 698 of the Criminal Code does not confer jurisdiction upon a judge of a Superior Court to grant bail in respect of an indictable offence until the accused has been committed for trial, a defendant has his remedy by way of habeas corpus upon the return of which the court may order bail pending a remand by a magistrate, and this remedy is applicable as well where the charge upon which the remand was made is a subject of summary conviction and not indictable. [R. v. Hall, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 492; R. v. Cox, 16 O. R. 228, referred to.]

R. v. Vincent; R. v. Fair, 14 D.L.R. 221, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 98, 5 O.W.N. 141, 25 O.W. R. 104.

SEDITIONS CONSPIRACY — FORMER MISDEMEANOUR—CR. CODE, SS. 14, 134, 698.

Although seditious conspiracy (Cr. Code, s. 134) was a misdemeanour and not a felony before the abolition of the distinction between felony and misdemeanour (Cr. Code, s. 14) there is no absolute right after committal for trial to bail either on habeas corpus, or on a summary application. In either case the question of bail is in the discretion of the court under Cr. Code, s. 698.

R. v. Russell, 50 D.L.R. 629, 32 Can. Cr. Cas. 66.

ORDER IN HABEAS CORPUS.

Where it appears from the record on a habeas corpus application that the applicant is held in custody on a committal for trial and that the offence is one for which he should be admitted to bail, but the question of the validity of the commitment cannot be decided for failure of the applicant to produce a copy of the warrant, the court may, nevertheless, make an order for bail.

Ex parte Aubin, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 94, 13 Que. P.R. 27.

HABEAS CORPUS—BAIL ON CONCURRENT CHARGES.

R. v. Drake (N.S.), 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 174.

HABEAS CORPUS—BAIL—CONDITION FOR SURRENDER IN ANOTHER PROVINCE—AUXILIARY JURISDICTION OF PROVINCIAL COURTS.

On an application for a writ of habeas corpus, the Supreme Court of Alberta has jurisdiction to admit to bail one arrested on a criminal charge laid in another province, though the arrest be legal, and to make the condition of the recognizance that the prisoner shall surrender himself to the proper officer in the province in which the charge is pending against him, the Superior Courts of the several provinces being, in criminal matters, auxiliary to each other.

R. v. Hughes, 28 W.L.R. 559, 6 W.V.R. 1120.

§ 1-17—CERTIFICATE OF FORFEITURE—CONCLUSIVENESS.

A certificate of forfeiture of recognizance for appearance taken before a justice of the peace or police magistrate in Quebec is "conclusive evidence" under Cr. Code, s. 1114, and R.S. Que. art. 3395, only for the purposes of the entry of the ex parte judgment authorized by Cr. Code, s. 1115; after such entry is made, the certificate of the breach of recognizance as well as the judgment thereon may be attacked by an "opposition to judgment" under the Quebec Code of Civil Procedure. [Cr. Code, ss. 1097, 1114 and 1117, and R.S. Que. art. 3397, considered.]

R. v. Edwards, 19 D.L.R. 207, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 296.

ESTREAT OF RECOGNIZANCE—SETTING ASIDE.

Where an order has been made estreating bail and for a writ of fi. fa. and capias, the court before which the writ is returned for further disposition of the matter may, with the concurrence of the judge who made the order, set aside the same and the writ issued thereunder, if it appears that the bail was taken by justices in a case in which they had no jurisdiction to bail and that the estreat order was in consequence made imprudently.

ESTREAT CHARGE AT—PRELIMINARY HEARING—CHARGE BY GRAND JURY—MOTION TO SET ASIDE.

A bailor remains responsible for a prisoner being brought into court, even though the charge on which the accused was committed for trial was later changed to a more serious charge by the grand jury. The bail may be estreated, if the prisoner is not produced.

The King v. Mandacos, 50 D.L.R. 427.

ESTREAT—EX PARTE JUDGMENT—ATTACK—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

The ex parte entry of judgment by the prothonotary of the Superior Court in Quebec on a certificate of forfeiture of recognizance whether from the court of King's Bench, criminal side, or from a Magistrate's Court, is subject to attack in the Superior Court by any one of the modes of procedure authorized by its practice in regard to ex parte or default judgments. In the Province of Quebec (differing from the practice in other provinces), two modes of procedure are available for the collection of recognizances forfeited in the Criminal Courts; one is by means of the ex parte judgment resulting upon the entry in the records of the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec of the recognizance and certificate of default, and the other by direct action at the suit of the Attorney-General of Canada, or of the Attorney-General of Quebec, or of other officer authorized to sue for the Crown. [Cr. Code, ss. 1114, 1115, and 1117, and R.S. Que. arts. 3396, 3398, 3399, considered; Re Hopfe's Bail, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, 10 D.L.R. 216, referred to.]

R. v. Edwards, 19 D.L.R. 207, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 296.

ESTREAT — SUFFICIENCY OF AFFIDAVIT — ACKNOWLEDGMENT — NOTICE TO SURETIES—ORDER OF JUDGE.

The King v. Zarkas, Antonio & Kortes, 39 D.L.R. 776, 11 S.L.R. 51, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 183, [1918] 1 W.V.R. 323.

ENFORCEMENT AND ESTREAT OF RECOGNIZANCE — CALLING THE BAIL — CERTIFICATE OF DEFAULT.

Where bail was given for the accused's appearance on a fixed date and he defaulted, failure to call the bondsmen three times within and three times without the court-room, will not invalidate a certificate of default and the subsequent estreat of the recognizance, where it was shown that the bondsmen were not in court on the date fixed for appearance.

R. v. Sullivan, 18 D.L.R. 535, 29 W.L.R. 115, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 174.

FILING AFFIDAVIT TO HOLD TO BAIL—ORDER 69, R. 30—DISCRETION OF JUDGE.

Gunn v. Dugay, 41 N.B.R. 401.

§ 1-20—BINDING OVER TO KEEP THE PEACE—THREATS AND PROVOCATION THEREOF.

Binding over a person to keep the peace because of threats made against the complainant, and without any assault upon or injury to the latter having occurred, is a procedure which is not in the nature of a punishment, but is dependent only upon proof of the complainant's fear of bodily harm based upon some reasonable ground; and it is not an answer to shew that there was provocation for the threats. [See R. v. McDonald, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 64; Re John Doe, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 370; R. v. Power, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 378; Re Sarah Smith's Bail, 6 Can. Cr.

Cas. 416; R. v. Mitchell, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 344.]

Pouliot v. Desroiselles, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 243.

DISCHARGE—TAKING ACCUSED IN CHARGE AFTER CONVICTION—CHANGE OF SENTENCE.

Where, after verdict of "guilty," the accused is taken into custody thereunder, his bail is discharged; so where on a plea of guilty by the accused appearing for summary trial, imprisonment is first adjudged, but after the accused has been taken in charge by the deputy sheriff, the magistrate has the accused recalled and imposes instead a fine with imprisonment in default, the bail is not responsible for the fine where the accused was not held in custody until paid, under a recognizance in terms to "appear and answer the charge and to be further on treated according to law."

R. v. Edwards, 19 D.L.R. 207, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 296.

FINDING—SURETIES TO KEEP THE PEACE—THREATS—ENFORCEMENT OF RECOGNIZANCE—PARTIES TO PROCEEDINGS.

Proceedings for the forfeiture and estreat of a recognizance to keep the peace which had been required on proof of threats under subs. (2) of Code, s. 748 may in the Province of Quebec, be taken at the instance of another individual than the first complaining party or the party threatened, as the case may be; and this without the intervention of any public authority or Crown officer. [R. v. Young, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 580, distinguished.]

R. v. Walker, 18 D.L.R. 541, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 179.

(§ 1-21)—CALLING THE BAIL UPON THE RECOGNIZANCE.

A previous notice to the bail is essential before a certificate of forfeiture can legally be issued for default of the accused to appear, where the latter and his bail were not called upon their recognizance on the day when he was bound to appear, and it is sought to estreat the recognizance at a later date. [R. v. Croteau, 9 L.C.R. 67, and Atty.-Genl. v. Beaulieu, 3 L.C. Jur. 117, referred to.]

R. v. Edwards, 19 D.L.R. 207, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 296.

(§ 1-25)—CRIMINAL LAW—DIRECTION FOR BAIL IN LIEU OF COMMITTAL FOR TRIAL—RECORD.

Where an order is made on a preliminary enquiry that the accused give bail under Code, s. 696 to appear for trial, but no committal for trial is made as the magistrate does not consider the case sufficiently strong to order committal, the recognizance of bail acknowledged before the magistrate or two justices and duly signed, is the only necessary record to go before the trial court with the depositions and information; and a speedy trial without jury on defendant's subsequent election of same is not annulled by the lack of a formal order signed by the magistrate to further evidence the direction to give such bail.

R. v. Daigle, 18 D.L.R. 56, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 92.

(§ 1-30)—NOTICE TO SURETIES—DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE—CRIMINAL LAW.

No preliminary notice to the sureties is required in the Yukon Territory, under the English Crown Rules or otherwise on estreating bail given for appearance before justices in the event of default of appearance by the accused. [R. v. Creelman, 25 N.S.R. 404; Re Barrett's Bail, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 36 N.S.R. 135, and Re Burns' Bail, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 292, considered.]

R. v. Sullivan, 18 D.L.R. 535, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 174, 29 W.L.R. 115.

(§ 1-35)—ADJOURNMENT OF PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY BY CONSENT FOR MORE THAN EIGHT DAYS—WAIVER.

The sureties to a recognizance of bail expressly given for an adjournment of a preliminary enquiry by consent, for longer than the eight days provided by Code, s. 679, are not released for nonconformity with the statutory direction that adjournments shall not be for more than eight days, that being a matter of procedure only which it was competent for the parties to waive, if indeed the statutory direction applies at all where bail is given. [Re Burns' Bail, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 292, and R. v. Hazen, 20 A.R. (Ont.), 663, applied; Dick v. The King, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 44, considered.]

(§ 1-40)—DISCRETION OF COURT—MISDEMEANOUR—FELONY—DOMINION STATS. 1869—SUBSEQUENT RE-ENACTMENT—LAW OF MANITOBA.

By Dominion Statute 1869, 33 Viet. c. 30, s. 53, the question of granting or withholding bail was made discretionary in cases of misdemeanour as well as in cases of felony and although Manitoba had not then been taken into the Dominion the subsequent re-enactment of this section in the Code made it also the law in Manitoba.

BAILIFFS.

See Sheriff; Levy and Seizure.

(§ 1—1)—BAILIFFS' SOCIETY (QUE.).

The Bailiffs' Society of the District of Montreal is responsible for the acts of its members in the ordinary exercise of their functions. It must reimburse, to the amount of the judgment obtained, the value of goods regularly seized by one of its members, and entrusted to the care of a guardian, if said goods are not forthcoming on the day of sale.

Kaster v. Bailiffs' Society of the District of Montreal, 14 Que. P.R. 184.

BAILIFFS' SOCIETY (QUE.).

The Bailiffs' Society of the District of Montreal cannot, by simple resolution, deprive a member guilty of certain irregularities at a time already distant of the right to exercise his functions, especially if his contributions for the current year have been accepted without conditions; the society should, in such case, prefer a formal charge against the offending member.

Recovery by bailee against wrongdoer for loss of thing bailed: 1 D.L.R. 110.

I. In general.

(§ 1—3)—GRATUITOUS UNDERTAKING—CUS-TODY OF MONEY.

Where in bailment the principal objects sought in the contract are service and labour and the custody of the chattel in bailment is merely incidental, the ordinary rule that in cases of gratuitous bailment the bailee is only liable for acts of gross negligence, does not apply; the element of personal trust dominates that of mere custody, and the custodian of money will be liable as for breach of trust in case of loss due to the negligence or misconduct of another person to whom he delegated the custody of the money without the owner's consent where a right of delegation is inconsistent with the gratuitous service which the bailee undertook.

580, 20 O.W.R. 880.

LIABILITY OF EXHIBITION ASSOCIATION—
DEATH OF DOGS EXHIBITED, FROM INFEC-TIOUS DISEASE—ABSENCE OF NEGLI-GENCE.

An exhibition association that solicited the exhibition of the plaintiff's dogs, is not liable for their subsequent death from distemper, which developed upon their being returned to him, where it did not appear that other dogs there exhibited had such disease, and that there was ample opportunity for the plaintiff's dogs to have contracted it elsewhere, and no negligence was shown on the part of the defendant, either in inspecting dogs admitted to the exhibition, or in caring for the plaintiff's dogs while there. [Coltart v. Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition, 17 W.L.R. 372, affirmed; Connacher v. Toronto, 21 C.L.T. 172, distinguished.]

DAMAGES RECOVERED BY BAILEE FOR LOSS OF CHATTEL—ACCOUNTING TO BAILEE.

Where a bailee in possession recovers from a wrongdoer the damage done to the subject of the bailment, the money received in excess of the monetary interest of the bailee in the chattel are deemed to have been received to the use of the bailor and the bailee must account to the bailor in respect thereof. [See Beven on Negligence, 3rd ed. 1908, p. 737.]

Compton v. Allward, 1 D.L.R. 107, 48

DESTRUCTION OF GOODS WHILE IN BAILEE'S CUSTODY — PRESUMPTION — OUSUS TO DISAPPROVE NEGLIGENCE.

Where goods are taken by any one as a bailee and are lost or destroyed when in his custody, he will be liable in damages, unless he shows circumstances negating the presumption of negligence on his part which arises from such circumstances.
[Pratt v. Waddington, 23 O.L.R. 178, and WAREHOUSED GOODS—RESPONSIBILITY.

A public warehouseman is only required to exercise the reasonable care of a prudent man in the storage of merchandise entrusted to him; he is not responsible for damage resulting from the precarious nature of the goods stored and does not occupy the relation of insurer with relation thereto. [Searle v. Laverick, L.R. 9 Q.B.
122, specially referred to.]

Roy v. Adamson, 3 D.L.R. 139.

(§ 1—7)—MONEY PLACED FOR SAFE KEEPING —RIGHT TO FOLLOW FUNDS—DEPOSIT IN BANK.

Money placed with one for safe keeping creates a bailment not a debt, and may be followed up by the bailor in the bank where the money had been deposited in the bailee's name.

Beamish v. Lawlor, 23 D.L.R. 141, 43 N.B.R. 426.

CAR LEFT AT SHOP FOR REPAIRS—LIEN FOR VALUE OF WORK DONE—DELIVERY OF CAR TO OWNER WITHOUT PAYMENT—RETURN OF CAR TO SHOP FOR ADDITIONAL REPAIR—REPAIR EXECUTED AND PAID FOR—ASSIGNMENT OF LIEN AND RIGHT TO DETAIN CAR FOR BALANCE DUE FOR FIRST REPAIRS — ABSENCE OF AGREEMENT — LOSS OF LIEN—COUNTERCLAIM FOR STORAGE CHARGES DURING PERIOD OF DETENTION — CONVERSION — DETINUE — JUDGMENT FOR RETURN OF CAR—DAMAGES — COUNTERCLAIM FOR BALANCE DUE FOR FIRST REPAIRS — SET-OFF — COSTS.

A lien implies the right of continuing possession, or the continuing right of possession. [Forth v. Simpson, 13 Q.B. 680, followed.] The plaintiff left his car at the defendant's repair shop to be repaired, and was afterwards allowed to take it out without paying for the repairs which had been actually made. While he had the car out, the plaintiff paid the defendant a part of the charge for the repairs; afterwards he returned the car to the shop for a minor repair, which was made and for which he paid; but the defendant then refused to allow the plaintiff to take the car out until the balance of the charge for the first repairs was paid:—Held, that the defendant's lien did not reattach upon the car being brought back for the minor repair, at all events in the absence of an agreement that the lien should continue and that the plaintiff should be the agent of the defendant as to possession; no such agreement was proved; and the defendant's lien was lost. Held, also, that the defendant, unlawfully detaining the car, could not recover storage charges on his counterclaim against the plaintiff. [Some v. British Empire Shipping Co., 30 L.J.Q.B. 229, 8 H.L.C. 338, followed.] Held, also, that there had been no wrongful appropriation of the car by the defendant to his own use, or wrongful deprivation of possession permanently, or for any very substantial time, when the plaintiff began this action for conversion of the car; the plaintiff's claim was more properly in detinue and he should have judgment for delivery to him of the car and damages assessed at $20, with costs fixed at $75. The defendant was held entitled to judgment upon his counterclaim for the balance of the amount of the charge for the first repairs, $67.75, without costs. It was ordered that there should be a set-off and that the balance should be paid to the plaintiff.

Katzman v. Mannie, 46 O.L.R. 121.

(§ 1—8)—WAREHOUSEMAN—STIPULATION TO RETAIN GOODS—LIEN AT COMMON LAW—INCONSISTENCY.

If by the agreement of bailment the party owning the goods is entitled to have them immediately and the payment in respect of their storage is to take place at a future time, as in the case of an agreement for monthly settlements with the warehouseman, such is inconsistent with the latter's right to retain the goods until payment, and negatives his claim to a lien at common law. [Fisher v. Smith, 4 App. Cas. 1; Crawshay v. Homfray, 4 B. & Ald. 50, applied; Canada Steel & Wire Co. v. Ferguson, 19 D.L.R. 581, reversed.]

Smith v. Campbell, 16 B.C.R. 505, 17 W.L.R. 493.

II. Rights of bailee.

(§ II—10)—GRATUITOUS BAILMENT—COMPENSATION—EXPENSES.

A gratuitous bailee entrusted with money for the purpose of safe keeping is entitled to traveling expenses and costs of exchange incurred in the performance of the trust, but cannot recover any commissions or charges for services performed therein.

RIGHTS OF BAILLEE AGAINST WRONGDOER FOR CONVERSION.

As against a wrongdoer, possession is title and a bailee of goods may recover the full value thereof if they are wrongfully taken out of his possession; the amount recovered must be accounted for to the bailor who likewise may sue instead of the bailee, the first recovery of damages operating in full satisfaction. [The Winkfield, [1902] P. 42, approved; Glenwood Lumber Co. v. Phillips, [1904] A.C. 405, referred to.]

Eastern Construction Co. v. National Trust Co.; National Trust Co. v. Miller (No. 2), 15 D.L.R. 755, [1914] A.C. 197, 110 L.T. 321, 25 O.W.R. 756.

RIGHTS OF BAILLEE—INJURY TO PROPERTY BY THIRD PERSON.

A bailee may recover against one who wrongfully injures the bailed property, regardless of whether the bailee is bound to make good to the bailor any damage to the property; and, hence, the bailee of a scow injured by another's act in negligently permitting another scow to come in contact with it, is entitled to recover the whole damage as if he was the actual owner, subject to his accounting to his bailor. [The Winkfield, [1902] P. 42; Claridge v. South Staffordshire Tramway Co., [1892] 1 Q.B. 422, and Irving v. Hagerman, 22 U.C.R. 545, referred to.]

Cotton Co. v. Coast Quarries & Patterson, 11 D.L.R. 219, 24 W.L.R. 288, 4 W.W.R. 142, 515.

RIGHTS OF BAILLEE.

As against a wrongdoer the possession of a bailee is title, and the bailee is entitled to recover for the whole loss or deterioration of the subject of the bailment, ex. gr., a horse and buggy hired from a livery stable keeper, and the wrongdoer having once paid full damages to the bailee has an answer to any action by the bailor against him. [Re The Winkfield, [1902] P. 42; Glenwood Lumber Co. v. Phillips, [1904] A.C. 405, and Turner v. Snider, 16 Man. L.R. 81, followed. And see Beven on Negligence, 3rd ed. 1908, pages 736, 737.]

III. Duty and liability of bailee.

(§ III—17)—LIABILITY OF BAILEE—LOSS OF GOODS BY THEFT.

A person holding grain under a threshing lien is liable merely as a bailee for the safe-keeping thereof; and is not answerable for grain stolen from his custody in the absence of negligence on his part. [Fincham v. Small, 1 Esp. 315, followed.]

Hill v. Stait, 14 D.L.R. 158, 23 Man. L.R. 832, 25 W.L.R. 475, 5 W.W.R. 225.

MONEY FOR SAFE-KEEPING—THEFT—LIABILITY OF GRATUITOUS BAILEE.

Sech v. Rodnicke, 25 D.L.R. 757, 25 Man. L.R. 685, 32 W.L.R. 505, 9 W.W.R. 244.

LOSS OR INJURY TO PROPERTY GENERALLY.

The effect of an arrangement between the parties being to constitute a gratuitous bailment which subsequently became a bailment for hire, the bailee is liable to the plaintiff in damages for any injuries resulting from his negligence. When it is shown by the bailee that his negligence did not produce the damage complained of he had discharged the onus resting upon him, and is not required to shew the cause of such damage.

Wright v. Smith, 4 S.L.R. 253.

INJURY TO HIRED HORSE—NEGLIGENCE OF HIRER.

The jury having found that it was negligence for the hirer of a horse to allow it to stand harnessed but unbridled in an open place near the shafts of the waggon while he went to the waggon to get the bridle, in consequence of which the horse escaped from his control into a ploughed field, where it lay down and rolled, and in getting up cut itself in the foreleg, the court will not disturb the verdict.

DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY BY BAILEE—DAMAGES.

Green Fuel Economiser Co. v. Toronto, 8 O.W.N. 541.

KENNEL CLUB—LIABILITY OF OFFICERS.

Officers of a kennel club who hold an exhibition are bailees of the dogs placed in their charge, and must use reasonable care and diligence in looking after them. [See Col-tart v. Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition, 4 D.L.R. 108.]

DESTRUCTION OF GOODS BY STRIKERS—PLEADING.

Where coats were entrusted to a workman to make buttonholes in them, and strikers entered his shop, and, without his knowledge, poured corrosive acids on them, the damage so caused is due to force majeure. The workman has only to allege and prove such cause, and if the owner of the coats could set up against him a fault which preceded or accompanied it, it was his duty to so allege and prove it. The workman cannot be found to be in fault for not having foreseen that the strikers, after having once entered his shop and made threats to him, would return and damage the coats left with him.

It is not negligence on the part of a bailee, whether his relationship is that for a reward or that of a paid agent entrusted with the moneys of his principal, to leave unlocked the door of a safe where the money was kept while he was using a book which was to be restored to the safe, where after the fire broke out he made such efforts to rescue the money as a reasonable man might be expected to make.

When a dress is delivered to a dyer and cleaner establishment to be dyed and cleaned, and the same is destroyed by a fire, the contract is one of hire of work, and the proprietor of the establishment is only obliged to prove that he had taken the care of a prudent administrator, and is not obliged to prove that the dress was destroyed by inevitable accident or force majeure to throw the loss on the owner of it, unless it is proved that the proprietor of dyeing and cleaning work has been guilty of fault or negligence.

A restaurant keeper, in whose custody clothing or other articles are deposited temporarily as an incident to his general business is liable as an ordinary bailee for hire for any loss resulting from ordinary negligence. The burden is on the plaintiff to establish negligence, but where the loss is established, a sufficient prima facie case against the bailee is raised to put him on his defence. [Utizen v. The plaintiff sold his business and agreed to assign to the purchasers the lease of the premises upon which the business was carried on. The plaintiff sent the keys of those premises to the defendant bank, manager of a branch of the defendant bank, in a letter, in which he requested C. to hand the keys to W., one of the purchasers, upon receiving from W. a cheque for a named sum. C., however, without getting the cheque, gave up the keys to the landlord of the premises, who handed them to W. The purchasers then got possession, and refused to pay the plaintiff the full amount which they had agreed to pay and which C. was authorized to accept.—Held, that C. had failed to carry out the terms of his instructions, and was liable to the plaintiff, unless he (C.) was entitled to set up the jus tertii; the onus of proof of the title of the third party (the landlord) was upon C., and, upon the evidence, he had not discharged this onus. Held, also, that the keys were sent to C. in his capacity as manager; and the transaction was within the scope of his authority as manager; the bank was the plaintiff's agent for the collection and remission of the money; and the position was in no way different from what it would have been if a bill of exchange had been attached to the keys. But held, that the onus of proving damage was on the plaintiff, and he had not satisfied it; the wrongful act of the defendants was not the effective cause of the ultimate damage, for W. could have got possession, without the keys, by breaking into the premises; and there was a question whether he was not entitled to the keys in any event by virtue of a new contract with the landlord. [Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341, applied.] An action brought against the bank and C. was dismissed without costs.

FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT OF ASSETS—EXTRAORDINARY FOR BANKRUPTCY FRAUDS.

Extraordinary proceedings against the bankrupt for concealment of property in fraud of a bankruptcy trustee are not defeated by the fact that the concealment took place two months prior to the trustee's appointment, as the failure to disclose the prior concealment is in itself a concealment at the later date when the trusteeship became operative.

Evidence of the concealment by the accused of certain other sums of money a few days before the concealment of a larger sum in respect of which the charge was laid that he had concealed part of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, is admissible as evidence of the intent to defraud and of guilty knowledge. [R. v. Shellaker, [1914] 1 K.B. 414; R. v. Ball, [1911] A.C. 47; R. v. Ollis, [1900] 2 K.B. 758, applied.]

FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT OF ASSETS.

The essence of the offence of fraudulent concealment of assets by a bankrupt under the law of the United States is the continuance of the concealment after adjudication of bankruptcy and the appointment of a trustee, whose title relates back to the date of the adjudication, and extradition will not be refused merely on the ground that the act of concealment is alleged to have taken place before the date of the adjudication.

(§ 1—2)—ENGAGING IN TRADE—BANK ACT (CAN.)—VOTING POWER ON COMPANY SHARES HELD AS COLLATERAL.

The two essential rights of a shareholder in a company embrace (a) the profits, and

(b) the voting power, and the inhibition of subs. 2, s. 76, of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29 (the gift of whose intent is merely that a bank shall not create an alias carrying on business for the bank with its money and giving it the profits), cannot ordinarily be invoked against a bank which did not have the right nor the intention to share in the profits although it did in substance have the voting power. A bank does not engage in a trade or business in contravention of subs. 2, s. 76, of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, [34 Geo. V. (Can.), c. 9], where its operations are through the medium and intervention of the company chartered to carry on such trade or business and having a distinct and separate legal existence, although the bank holds a controlling interest and is thus enabled and in reality does direct the affairs of such company, if the bank does not share in the profits nor is the business of the company owned by the bank. (§ I-3)—BANK—LETTER OF CREDIT—CANCELLATION.

A person who induces a bank to give him a letter of credit may, by his subsequent conduct, justify the bank in revoking it, but it is otherwise when a customer induces a bank to give him a letter of credit to a third person. In this case the customer cannot, of his own will, compel the bank to cancel the letter, because the contract is not between a customer of the bank but between the bank and the third person. A letter of credit issued by a New York bank must be interpreted according to the New York law. When a bank issues a letter of credit to a customer who transfers it to a third person, the bank cannot revoke it. There is nothing in the law which prevents a person who receives a consideration in favour of another, from rendering the latter liable to a third person for an obligation.

(§ I-4)—PURCHASE OF ENTIRE ASSETS OF ANOTHER BANK—ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITIES.

The purchase by one chartered bank of the entire assets of another chartered bank can only be carried out under statutory authority; and where it is a term of the arrangement as approved by the governor-in-council under ss. 99-111 of the Bank Act, Can., that the purchasing bank shall assume the liabilities of the selling bank, a statutory obligation is created in respect of each liability which is enforceable by the creditor of the selling bank. (§ II-6)—TRANSFER OF STOCK.

The sale or transfer of shares in capital stock of a bank is perfected by the mere consent of the parties and the formalities required by ss. 43 et seq. of c. 29 R.S.C. 1906, respecting the capacity of the transferor and the registration in the books of the bank affect only the relations between the shareholder and the bank. The acceptance by the vendor of bank stock in part payment for land sold does not constitute a dation en paiement nor involve the obligations of such an act. Shares in the capital stock of a bank have a real existence so long as the affairs of the bank are not in liquidation whatever reduction may be made in its capital or whatever may be its state of solvency. Hence, they can form the legal consideration of a contract, e.g., they may be transferred in payment of the price of a sale.

Bessette v. Brien, 21 Que. K.B. 132.

(§ II-9)—WHO LIABLE AS STOCKHOLDER.

Under s. 125 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, making shareholders liable upon a deficiency in the property and assets of the bank to pay its debts and liabilities, to an amount equal to the par value of the paid-up shares held by them, the holders of fully paid-up shares on the date of the commencement of the proceedings are liable as contributories notwithstanding a subsequent transfer by them of their shares and the fact that a judgment was obtained against the transferees by the liquidator. Where a liquidator on winding up the affairs of a bank places the names of transferees of stock made after the proceedings were begun upon the list of contributories, who are liable upon a deficiency in the property and assets of the bank under s. 125 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, instead of the names of the holders of the stock on the day the proceedings were commenced, such action upon the part of the liquidator, does not constitute an election on the part of the liquidator to accept the transferees instead of the original holders as contribuories, even though the liquidator had obtained a judgment against such transferees. Under s. 21 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, providing that all transfers after the commencement of winding-up proceedings, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidator under the authority of the court, shall be void, the mere entry in the transfer book of the company of a transfer of stock, after the commencement of the winding-up proceedings, will not shift the responsibility as contributories under s. 130 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, from the transferees to the transferees. WHO LIABLE AS SHAREHOLDERS—ASSIGNOR OF SHARES — NONCOMPLIANCE WITH BANK ACT.

A subscriber for bank shares, who, before the organization of the bank, rescinds his subscription for fraud and receives back the payment made by him, at the same time executing a document purporting to be an assignment to an agent of the bank, of his shares, which at the time, had not been allotted or issued, and who was never afterwards treated as a shareholder, cannot, on the subsequent insolvency of the bank, be placed on the list of contributories or held for a shareholder's double liability on the ground that the assignment of his shares was not made in conformity with the requirements of the Bank Act, since, at the time of the purported assignment, there were no shares he could assign. A subscriber for bank shares who, before its organization, rescinds his subscription for fraud, and receives back the money he paid thereon, cannot, on the subsequent insolvency of the bank, be placed on the list of contributories or held for the double liability of a shareholder, notwithstanding that on the organization of the bank, shares were allotted him, where such allotment was made without his knowledge and no calls were ever made on, or any shares ever issued to, or received by him, or any dividends paid to him, and he had never attended or voted at a shareholders' meeting, or knowingly permitted his name to appear as a shareholder.

Subscribers for shares in a bank which never went into operation because of failure to get the necessary amount of subscriptions to obtain a certificate from the Treasury Board (Can.), and to whom the provisional directors had made allotments, may be placed on the list of contributories on the winding-up of the bank; a subscriber who has paid his entire subscription may be placed on the list of contributories for the purpose of apportioning the amount returnable to him over and above the amount which may be found to be his proper share. [Atty. Gen. v. Great Eastern, 5 App. Cas. 473, and Re Anglesea Colliery, L.R. 1 Ch. 553, applied.]

III. Officers and agents.

B. AUTHORITY; RATIFICATION.

(§ III B—25)—OFFICERS AND AGENTS — AUTHORITY—BRANCH MANAGER — CERTIFYING CHEQUE GIVEN IN PAYMENT OF INDIVIDUAL DEBT.

The payee of a cheque is placed on strict enquiry as to the authority of the manager to bind the bank by its certification of the cheque where the drawer did not have funds on deposit to meet it and the payee knew that the nominal drawer of the cheque gave same in the personal interest of the bank manager. In order to bind a bank by a transaction in which a branch manager acts for himself, or as agent for a third person, in a matter in which the bank has no interest, the manager must possess special authority. The manager of a branch bank cannot, in the absence of special authority, bind a bank by the certification of a cheque of a third person given in payment of the individual debt of the manager, or of the drawer, in the creation of which the manager acted as the latter's agent, unconnected with his duty to the bank, where the drawer did not have funds on deposit to meet the cheque. A letter in the name of a bank written and signed by a branch manager, promising to redeem bonds deposited by the manager as collateral to his individual debt, or of a third person for whom the manager acted as agent, and in which the bank had no interest, is not binding on the bank unless the branch manager was expressly authorized by the bank to make the agreement. The Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, does not empower the manager or branch manager of a bank to pledge its credit to the payment of the debt of a person in which the bank has no interest. The appointment of a person as manager of a branch bank does not imply any authority to bind the bank by an agreement to purchase shares of stock or bonds on the bank's account. The general manager of a bank cannot ratify an unauthorized contract of a branch manager so as to bind the bank unless it be one that the general manager himself has authority to make.

McIntosh v. Bank of New Brunswick, 15 D.L.R. 375, 42 N.B.R. 152.

(§ III B—27)—OFFICERS AND AGENTS — AUTHORITY OF GENERAL MANAGER — DEALING IN SHARES OF THE BANK'S OWN STOCK.

OFFICERS — AUTHORITY OF GENERAL MANAGER.

The general manager of a bank has no implied authority from the bank to agree on its behalf to remunerate or indemnify a person who purchased shares of the bank's stock at the manager's instance to be held subject to his order and will be liable on the liquidation of the bank for the overdraft occasioned by the bank's payment of his cheques given for the purchase price. C. LIABILITY.

(§ III C—35)—GUARANTEE BY MANAGER—AUTHORITY—BANK RECEIVING BENEFIT.

The officers of a bank are held out to the public as having authority to act according to the general usage of their business, and their acts, within the scope of such usage and of their several lines of duty, will, in general, bind the bank in favour of third persons who possess no other knowledge. A bank is liable on a guarantee given by its local manager for the repayment of a loan made to a customer of the bank, the loan to be used by the customer in assisting it in its business and reducing its indebtedness to the bank, and being paid to the manager and by him deposited to the credit of the customer, the fact that the manager had no authority to give such guarantee being unknown to the lender, and the bank receiving a benefit from the transaction.

(§ III C—37)—LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS—BREACH OF TRUST.

Where, in breach of trust and without the authority of any resolution of the board of directors or other corporate act of a chartered bank, funds of the bank were used by its manager, in connivance with one or more of the directors, to make purchases of bank shares in the names of brokers and others who were allowed to overdraw their accounts with the bank to make the purchases, knowing that the bank was prohibited by statute from purchasing or dealing in its own shares, the duty of the other directors, on ascertaining that such breach of trust had been committed, was to repudiate the transactions and insist on the restoration to the bank of the funds illegally diverted; in such event there could be no claim to indemnity against the bank on the part of such nominal purchasers even if the bank asserted a lien on the shares for the overdrafts while repudiating the purchases; nor can any claim for indemnity against the bank arise in favour of the directors who, after the illegal diversion of funds had occurred, attempted to rectify the same by an adjustment whereby promissory notes of the directors were given to the bank to recoup it for the money unlawfully diverted, although the recoupment represented the price of the shares illegally purchased. Royal Trust Co. v. Moisons Bank, 8 D. L.R. 478, 27 O.L.R. 441.

ACCOUNTS IN JOINT NAMES.

A written direction to the manager of a bank, to open a joint account in the names of the depositors, stating that all moneys which may be deposited are their joint property, is in no sense a contract between the parties themselves, and is not proof that the plaintiff is in fact entitled to one-half of the account, although evidence against either of them as an admission in favour of the other.

Southby v. Southby, 38 D.L.R. 700, 40 O.L.R. 429.

POWER OF ATTORNEY—TO DRAW—REVOCA-TION—KNOWLEDGE.

A power of attorney by which a creditor authorizes an advocate "to withdraw for me the sum of $2,025, and to give a receipt for it in my name, to endorse all documents and cheques, and ratifying in advance everything that he shall do for withdrawing the said sum," gives the attorney the right not only to receive this amount from the debtor, but also to deposit it in a bank and to withdraw it upon his or their own cheques. A creditor has no recourse against a bank which has paid such sum to the attorney, if the bank had no knowledge of the revocation of the power of attorney, or of any fraud committed by him. The knowledge which a bank has that a deposit is made by an agent for his principal does not prevent the agent from drawing money upon his cheques. The responsibility of the bank is only concerned in a case in which it has profited by the funds.

Robidoux v. Royal Bank, 44 D.L.R. 765, 54 Que. S.C. 529.

BANKING — DEPOSITS — MANAGER'S AUTHORITY TO RECEIPT FOR, HOW LIMITED.

A bank is not bound by a receipt given by its agent or branch manager in charge of a branch bank to its customer's agent for moneys said to have been deposited to the customer's credit on current account if no such deposit was in fact made, as it is not within the scope of the manager's authority to give a receipt for money he had not received and as such limitation of authority is generally known by business men. [Grant v. Norway, 10 C.B. 665, 20 L.J.C.P. 93, applied.]

Sask. and Western Elevator v. Bank of Hamilton, 18 D.L.R. 411, 7 S.L.R. 134, 20 W.L.R. 262, 7 W.W.R. 100.

JOINT ACCOUNTS — INTENTION — CORROBORATION.

Money deposited by a testator in a joint account of himself and his niece, to be devoted to his support and that of his business establishment, including the support of the niece during his life, does not, in the absence of other corroborative evidence, shew an intention of establishing joint ownership of the funds, and they form part of the testator's estate.

DEPOSIT BY CUSTOMER—ENTRY IN PASSBOOK — ESTOPPEL — EVIDENCE — FINDING OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Collins v. Dominion Bank, 8 O.W.N. 432.

DEPOSIT AND LOAN DISTINGUISHED.

There is a deposit in the legal sense of the word only so long as the preservation of the thing deposited has been the main object of its being placed in the hands of the depository. A document, by which a bank acknowledges having received on deposit a sum of money repayable in ten years on a year's previous notice and carrying interest at 15% payable monthly, is not a deposit but a loan at interest.

Allard v. Demers, 48 Que. S.C. 34.

DEPOSIT OF MONEY—SUPPOSED DEATH OF DEPOSITOR — RIVAL CLAIMS — ORDER DIRECTING TRIAL OF ISSUE—MONEY PAID INTO COURT.

Re Darnod & Bank of Hamilton, 15 O.W.N. 360.

BANKING — JOINT ACCOUNT IN BANK IN NAMES OF PLAINTIFF AND DECEASED PERSON—MONEYS BELONGING TO ESTATE OF DECEASED—PLAINTIFF GIVING CHEQUE AND THEN COUNTERMANDING IT BUT THE BANK PAYING IT—NO STATUS IN PLAINTIFF TO BRING ACTION AGAINST BANK.

Plaintiff and her mother had a joint account in defendant bank, the moneys really belonging to her mother. The latter died and plaintiff subsequently gave a cheque on said account but before payment thereof she countermanded it, but nevertheless the bank paid it. Held plaintiff had no status to bring action against the bank for the amount, the only party having the right to bring such action being the administrator of her mother's estate.

Radeliffe v. Bank of Montreal, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 887.

(§ IV A-48)—LIEN.

As a general deposit in a bank is the property of the bank the bank's right to apply the same upon its contra account against the customer is one of "set-off" rather than one of "lien," the latter term being specially applicable to the right of retention of documentary securities or specific articles.

Royal Trust Co. v. Molsons Bank, 8 D.L.R. 478, 27 O.L.R. 441.

BANKING—DRAFT—PAYMENT OF—LIEN ON NOTE.

The $150 draft had on its face, embodying the terms on which it was negotiated, and stamped by an official of the bank when it was negotiated, the words: "Surrender documents attached on payment of draft only." The only document attached was the $250 note.—Held, that the bank had no general banker's lien on the note, and was not entitled to collect from the defendant and retain a sum which it had paid for costs in respect of other commercial paper given to it by the customer, even if there had been evidence that the customer was liable for those costs or had acknowledged or promised to pay them. [Judgment of Morson, Jun. Co. C.J., York, varied.]

Sterling Bank of Canada v. Zuber, 32 O.L.R. 123.

(§ IV A-49)—CHANGING ACCOUNT TO JOINT ACCOUNT.

A written notice to a bank by a depositor to so "arrange" the latter's savings deposit account (then standing in her own name) in the name of the depositor's daughter that the latter can draw the money, is not sufficient authority to the bank to transfer the deposit to the joint account of the mother and daughter withdrawable by either with right of survivorship.

(§ IV A-50)—SET-OFF AGAINST GENERAL ACCOUNT OF DEPOSITOR—ASSIGNEE.

Roy v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, 38 D.L.R. 742, 24 B.C.R. 397.

ENTRIES IN PASSBOOKS—FRAUD ON CREDITORS.

Where the customer of a bank has two passbooks representing two deposits, one for the payment of his old debts to the bank, the other for current account and his new debts, the entries made in these passbooks are imputations of payment in which the depositor concurs and which are equivalent to receipts by the bank. An imputation of payment may be set aside for the same causes as contracts, especially on account of frauds against creditors.

MONEY APPLIED BY BANK FOR PURPOSES OF BUSINESS—OWNERSHIP OF BUSINESS—LIABILITY.

Bank of Ottawa v. Dick & Walker, 11 O.W.N. 180.

BANK'S CONTROL OVER—APPLICATION OF.

The Terminal City Sand and Gravel Company gave a promissory note to C. G. Johnson & Co., who indorsed it and handed it to the bank as security for general advances. The note was not paid when it fell due, and was charged by the bank back to Johnson & Co., who then sued for the amount. While the note was under discount, and after it was due, the defendant voluntarily handed to the bank a share certificate in his favour from the Terminal Gravel Company (a concern in which defendant was a director and shareholder). This certificate, the evidence shewed, was not deposited in pursuance of any previous arrangement, though probably in the hope of securing forbearance in the future. Held, (1) that defendant was liable upon his indorsement, and (2) in the circumstances in which the share certificate was deposited, it was not available in satisfaction of the claim upon the note.

Johnson v. McRae, 16 B.C.R. 473, 17 W.L.R. 132.

(§ IV A-51)—APPLICATION OF PAYMENT—CHEQUE IN PAYMENT OF NOTE.

Where the maker of a promissory note pays the indorsee, and the latter gives his own cheque to a bank for the payment of the note, which cheque the bank accepts and charges to the overdraft account of the endorsee, and the overdraft is extinguished by subsequent deposits in the current account, the note is paid, and the maker is entitled to its possession.

Gagnon v. Imperial Bank; Crête v. Gagnon, 29 D.L.R. 439, 49 Que. S.C. 428.

TITLE TO NOTES DEPOSITED AS COLLATERAL—APPLICATION.

A bank becomes a holder for value of notes deposited with it by its customer as collateral to the latter's promissory note not then due, as soon as the customer's indebtedness to the bank matures or at the time when such indebtedness was increased during the currency of the promissory note in question, particularly where the bank held general letter of hypothecation in respect of all notes, bills and securities lodged with the bank in connection with the customer's account. [Merchants Bank v. Thompson, 3 D.L.R. 577, referred to.]

BANK—PROMISSORY NOTE—RENEWAL—DEPOSIT—IMPUTATION OF PAYMENT—PARTIAL PAYMENT—BANK'S DUTY—C.C. ARTS. 1149, 1161, 1960.

When a promissory note, discounted by a bank, is kept constantly renewed, payable at future terms, the deposits made by the maker at the bank cannot be imputed upon the said debt, if the said note was not actually payable at the time of the deposits. The bank is not obliged to receive partial payment of its debt. The verbal communication by the indorser of a promissory note to the manager of the bank which has discounted it, that it has been agreed between him and the maker that all the monies which the latter might deposit with the bank would be applied to the payment of such note, does not constitute an undertaking on the part of the bank to make this imputation. It was the duty of the indorser to follow up the imputation, and not that of the bank. When a bank received as a partial payment, from the maker of a promissory note which is due, the transfer of a certain property at a determinate value, it must give credit pro tanto to the indorser of the note.

Bank of Ottawa v. McConnell, 55 Que. S.C. 477.

(§ IV A—52)—APPLICATION OF PAYMENTS—NOTE OF THIRD PERSON.

A bank which is not aware of the insolvency of its debtor, and obtains from him a written document declaring that all his stock in trade which he transfers to it shall be considered "as a general and continuing collateral security for payment of the present or any future liability to which it may seem expedient to the bank to apply it," cannot be held bound by imputations of payments which have been made to it by the debtor by means of notes of third persons; and it has the right to make the imputations upon an old account or upon new advances.

Valentine v. Bank of B.N.A., 25 Que. K.B. 47.

(§ IV A—53)—ON NOTE ON WHICH DEPOSITOR IS SURETY—REFUSAL TO HONOUR CHEQUE—ACTION AGAINST.

A bank holding notes upon which a depositor is liable as endorser may, at any time after the notes became due, apply pro tanto the money so on deposit at the credit of the endorser upon his indebtedness under the notes. The application by a bank of a customer's credit balance on his deposit account against his indebtedness to the bank, is a complete answer to an action by the depositor against the bank for damages in refusing to honour a cheque drawn by the depositor, where, after such application by the bank, no balance remains to the credit of the depositor.
Can. Dig.—14.

Royal Trust Co. v. Molsons Bank, 8 D. L.R. 478, 27 O.L.R. 441.

(§ IV A—57)—DEPOSIT BY ADMINISTRATOR.

A bank that advances money to the executor of an estate authorized by the will to borrow for the needs of its administration, but also vested with full powers of alienation and disposal, is under no obligation to take notice of the use made of such advances. When an executor opens an account with a bank, for both himself and the estate, in the name of the latter, no presumption arises therefrom of fraudulent complicity or participation by the bank in any improper conversion he makes to his own use of the funds of the estate. No action will lie to recover the amount of indebtedness paid through error, when it was represented by promissory notes that were surrendered in good faith, at the time of payment, and are no longer available. No action will lie against a bank to recover moneys alleged to have been improperly paid to it by the executor of an estate, when such payment has been acquiesced in and tacitly ratified by the representatives of the estate, by dealings, renewals of notes, etc., during a period of six or seven years.
Gratton v. La Banque D'Hochelega, 21 Que. K.B. 97.

(§ IV A—58)—DEPOSITS—BANK CONTROL OVER—RIGHT TO CHARGE PERSONAL ACCOUNT WITH OVERDRAFT AGAINST TRUST ACCOUNT.

Where the customer of the bank has two accounts with it, one his personal account and the other in his name with the addition of the words "in trust," but in which he alone was dealt with, the bank has prima facie a right to set off an overdraft of the trust account against its indebtedness to him in respect of a credit balance on the personal account. (§ IV A-60)—CHEQUE—AUTHORITY TO SIGN.

A cheque signed by delegated authority is notice to the bank that the person signing only has a limited authority to sign and the bank is bound to enquire as to the extent of such authority.

Swift Canadian Co. v. Ouimet, 40 D.L.R. 597, 24 Rev. Leg. 269.

PAYMENT OF CHEQUES—ACCOUNT—CREDITS.

A bank is not bound to pay a cheque drawn upon an account in credit, if upon considering all the accounts of the drawer in the bank he is not in credit.

Carlson v. Dominion Bank, 38 D.L.R. 232, 40 O.L.R. 245, affirming 37 O.L.R. 591. [Reversed in part 46 D.L.R. 281.]

LIEN—DUTY TO CASH CHEQUE OR RETURN IT.

Held, that where a cheque is delivered to a banker to be cashed, he must either cash it or return it. He cannot place the money to the payee's credit and assert a lien thereon for the amount of a judgment previously recovered by the bank against the payee.

Rouxel v. Royal Bank, 11 S.L.R. 218, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 791.

DEPOSIT—BANK ACCOUNT—RIGHTS OF DEPOSITOR—CONFUSION OF NAMES—DEPOSIT IN THE PROVINCIAL TREASURER'S OFFICE—C.C. ART. 1799—3-4 GEO. V. [1913] C. 9 ART. 95 — SECTION REY. [1909] ART. 1496 ET SEQ.

A bank must at all times reimburse a depositor for the monies which he has left on deposit, unless these monies are legitimately claimed as being the property of a third party. An error of the bank's employee who entered the name of an illiterate depositor erroneously, or the confusion which arose later from this erroneous entry, cannot justify the bank in depositing the money received from the depositor in the office of the provincial treasurer.

Asoff v. Royal Bank, 56 Que. S.C. 439.

(§ IV A-61)—PAYMENT OF INFANT'S CHEQUE.

The effect of ss. 47, 48 and 165 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, is to constitute a cheque drawn by an infant upon an account standing in his name a complete discharge to the bank which pays it. A cheque drawn by an infant upon a bank account standing in his name is a good discharge to the bank which pays it, and the amount of a cheque so paid cannot be recovered by the infant from the bank. (§ IV A-63)—BANKING — PAYMENT — CHEQUE OF FIDUCIARY—TRUSTEE.

If a bank has a reasonable suspicion that money drawn from the trust account by the trustee is being applied in breach of trust, and if the bank is going to derive a benefit from the money being transferred out of the trust account, and intends and design that it should derive a benefit from it, then the bank is not entitled to honour the cheque drawn upon the trust account without some further inquiry. AUTHORITY OF AGENT OF CROWN—INDORSEMENT OF CHEQUE—PAYMENT BY BANK —BANK'S AUTHORITY—PROOF.

The burden of proving the authority of a Government agent to receive payment of a cheque drawn on a certain bank, payable to "Dominion Government Elevator Co.," rests upon that bank. The Crown is not liable for the negligence of its officers. [Viscount Canterbury v. Attorney-General, 1 Ph. 306, referred to.]

(§ IV A-66)—LIABILITY FOR DISHONOURING CHEQUE—SUFFICIENCY OF FUNDS—APPLICATION.

A bank has no right to dishonour cheques on account of an insufficiency of funds, if at the time they were received through the clearing house it had sufficient funds to the credit of the drawer available for the payment thereof; in the absence of any directions by the drawer it cannot give priority to cheques subsequently presented, and in doing so it commits a breach of duty which renders it liable for the damages directly resulting therefrom.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Standard Bank of Canada, 35 D.L.R. 761, 38 O.L.R. 579, affirming 26 D.L.R. 777, 34 O.L.R. 648.

LIABILITY FOR DISHONOURING CHEQUE.

No action lies by the holder of a cheque against a bank refusing to honour it whilst there were funds to meet it.

Dubreuil v. Bank of Montreal, 19 Que. P.R. 168.

(§ IV A-67)—CHEQUE FOR PROFESSIONAL SERVICES—STOPPING PAYMENT.

One who gives a cheque for professional services protesting at the same time that the amount claimed is excessive, but believing himself obliged to make the payment in order to obtain the return of documents which he requires, can afterwards stop payment of this cheque if the amount claimed was really too great, it having been given without consideration.

BANKS AND BANKING—CHEQUE—PAYMENT BY BANK OF COUNTERMANDED CHEQUE—BANK HOLDER FOR VALUE THROUGH ANOTHER BRANCH.

Plaintiff given judgment against bank for amount of his cheque which though countermanded had been paid by the bank. PRECAUTIONS AGAINST FORGERIES—FILLING IN BANKS—"RAISING" OF CHEQUE.

A bank which accepts a cheque drawn upon it is not bound to fill in the blank spaces, or to stamp it in such a manner as to make "raising" impossible. Its failure to do so does not make it liable for a larger amount paid by reason of an alteration on the cheque made after acceptance.

Duquet v. La Banque Nationale, 46 Que. S.C. 131.

PAYMENT — ENDORSEMENT — FALSE — SUIT AGAINST THE BANK—BORROWER "MIS EN CAUSE" — JUDGMENT — C.C., ART. 1241.

In a suit by an endorser of a check against the bank which has paid the check on a false endorsement, where the evidence establishes that the money has been paid to a lawyer charged to prepare a loan in favour of the borrower, the court before deciding ought to order the latter to be an added party before settling judgment between all the parties.

The Royal Bank & the Quebec Bank v. Laporte & The Quebec Bank, 25 Rev. Leg. 429.

B. COLLECTIONS.

(§ IV B-90)—DUTY TO NOTIFY OF PAYMENTS RECEIVED—RIGHT TO APPLY FINES TO NOTE.

Where in a contract of sale it is stipulated that the purchasers shall pay the price agreed upon directly to a bank and that the latter shall remit to a tradesman of the vendor a document declaring that the purchasers "are obliged to have all monies due remitted to the bank and as soon as we receive it we will advise you," knowing that the tradesman had advanced goods only on the condition of being paid directly by the bank, the latter by this document incurs an obligation towards these tradesmen not only to notify them when it has received the money from the purchaser, but also to pay over this money even if at the time the bank had claims against the vendor arising out of the discounting of a note of the purchasers in payment of the selling price and out of other matters.

Fortier v. Lemay, 47 Que. S.S. 277.

BANKING—COLLECTIONS—DUTY OF BANK TO FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS RELATING TO DELIVERY OF GOODS—LIABILITY FOR NEGLIGENCE.

A bank is liable for loss incurred through its neglect to follow specific instructions given it by a shipper of goods, as too the conditions upon which it is to deliver the bills of lading or documents of title to the consignee.

Schweiges v. The Bank of Hochelaga & Goodwyn, 46 Que. S.C. 164.

(§ IV B-101)—LIEN OF COLLECTING BANK.

Where a negotiable instrument is endorsed to a bank by a customer for collection, the bank is entitled to a lien thereon for all debts then payable to it by the customer, and for all debts which may become so payable while the instrument is in its possession, but the customer is entitled to take up the instrument from the bank whenever he is free from any obligations to the bank and even (semble) when he is free only from debts presently payable, though there may be debts due but not yet payable, e.g., negotiable instruments discounted by the bank which have not yet matured. Where a negotiable instrument is endorsed to a bank by a customer as security for such debts as may from time to time be due by the customer to the bank, the instrument is good in the hands of the bank against the maker thereof for the amount of the indebtedness of the customer to the bank, and the fact that at some times during the bank's possession of the instrument there is no such indebtedness existing, will not deprive the bank of its rights or of its position as a holder in due course. Merchants' Bank v. Thompson, 3 D.L.R. 577, 3 O.W.N. 1014, 21 O.W.R. 740.

C. OTHER TRANSACTIONS: DISCOUNTS, ETC.

(§ IV C-110)—SECURITY—AGREEMENT—CONSTRUCTION.

An agreement between bank and depositor, entitling the bank to hold the depositor's securities as security for the payment of all his present and future liability, covers an indebtedness on a promissory note given by him to a third person of which the bank became the holder in due course.

Morgan v. Bank of Toronto, 35 D.L.R. 698, 39 O.L.R. 281.

(§ IV C-111)—GUARANTY—ILLEGAL RATE OF INTEREST.

A director of an incorporated company who has given a written guarantee to a bank that he would pay any indebtedness incurred by the company to the bank, not exceeding $3,000, is not released by the bank charging the company interest at a rate higher than that allowed by the Bank Act, without the knowledge of the company. The agreement between the bank and the company is not void because of the illegal interest charged, but the bank can only recover interest at the legal rate and the guarantor is liable for the amount which can be legally claimed not exceeding $3,000. Merchants Bank v. Bush, 42 D.L.R. 236, 56 Can. S.C.R. 512, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 574, reversing 38 D.L.R. 499, 24 B.C.R. 521.

LOAN—INTEREST—AGREEMENT.

Art. 1789, C.C. (Que.), which declares that "the rate of conventional interest may be fixed by agreement between the parties with the exceptions, 1, 2, 3, of banks, etc.," only applies to banks legally constituted as bodies politic, and not to individuals styled bankers and doing financial business.

GUARANTY—BILLS OF LADING—IMPAIRMENT OF SECURITY—DISCHARGE.

When a guarantee of the payment of a "draft with bill of lading attached" is given, a condition is implied that the bill of lading shall be in a form which protects the guarantor, and therefore such a guarantor was not liable where the bill of lading was endorsed with a provision that the shipment might be delivered on the shipper's order without production of the bill of lading.

Pioneer Bank v. Bank of Commerce, 31 D.L.R. 507, 53 Can. S.C.R. 570, affirming 25 D.L.R. 385, 34 O.L.R. 531.

GUARANTY NOTE.

A promissory note indorsed to a bank as a guaranty of other notes due and accruing due, may be discounted by the bank and with the proceeds thereof to make payment to itself of the previous notes, and to transmit such notes to the makers. The action on such note may be brought in the ordinary form without alleging any contract of suretyship.

Lemaire v. La Banque Nationale, 25 Que. K.B. 259.

(§ IV C—113)—LIABILITY FOR WRONGFUL DISCOUNTING—AGENT'S DRAFTS.

Where a bank has agreed to furnish "currency" to the plaintiff's agent by "cashing" the agent's drafts on the bank, and where the bank knows that the money supplied is to be used solely for the purchase of grain, it is a breach of trust on the part of the bank to allow the money to be used to reduce the agent's personal or firm account, and where loss has occurred the bank is liable. [Gray v. Johnston, L.R. 3 H.L. 1, followed; Shields v. Bank of Ireland, [1901] 1 Ir. R. 222; Coleman v. Bucks, [1897] 2 Ch. 243, distinguished.] If an agent gives his personal cheque to cover an amount due to his principal for which there are no funds in the bank, but after the cheque has been protested, the agent has drawn on the principal for an amount sufficient to cover the cheque, the bank is justified in paying the cheque and is not liable to the principal. D. CLEARING-HOUSE BUSINESS.

(§ IV D—120)—CLEARING-HOUSE BUSINESS.

The method of clearing-house dealings between banks whereby they form a voluntary association to adjust balances in lieu of separate presentation of maturing securities is not one of which notice is to be imputed to the public dealing with the bank, and unless there is evidence that the customer dealt with the bank subject to the usage of the clearing house, such usages will not per se affect the customer's rights against the bank.

(§ V-125)—FURTHER SECURITY TO—MORTGAGE OF ONTARIO PROPERTY—MORTGAGE OF QUEBEC PROPERTY—LAW GOVERNING—SOLVENCY OR INSOLVENCY OF DEBTOR.

A manufacturing company agreed to give the bank a mortgage on Ontario property and also a mortgage on Montreal property as further security. The court held that as to the Ontario property the Ontario law applied so that the date of the promise to give the mortgage governed and as the company was then solvent the mortgage was valid, but as to the Quebec property the Quebec law applied and only the date when the mortgage was executed could be considered, and as the company was then insolvent the mortgage was invalid.

WINDING-UP—UNCLAIMED DEPOSITS—MINISTER OF FINANCE—POWERS OF REFEREE—APPEAL.

An order for the winding-up of a banking or other company establishes a forum for the determination of all the questions incident to the liquidation and the adjustment of the rights of all interested in the due winding-up—including the distribution of the assets—and to this forum all claiming under the liquidation must resort. It was held, in the case of the winding-up of a bank, that the claim of the Minister of Finance to two sums representing outstanding circulation and unclaimed depositors' balances was within the jurisdiction of and should be adjudicated upon by the referee to whom the powers of the court were delegated by the winding-up order. Re Toronto Gypsum Co., 6 O.L.R. 515; Re Sun Lithographing Co., 22 O.R. 57, distinguished. Held, also, that the Minister had no locus standi to appeal from orders of the referee barring all claims that were not put in and proved in response to advertisements.

(§ VI-144)—DEPOSITORS—TRUST COMPANY—LIEN.

The depositor's moneys were placed along with all other moneys of the trust company in one account kept in the Royal Bank of Canada and all payments out were made by cheques on that account. Held, that, to the extent that the depositors could show by positive evidence that their moneys had been used in making the payments on the property in question, they would be entitled to the lien they claimed if such moneys had not been paid back to them; also, following the rule in Clayton's Case, 1 Mer. 572, that there was, in the absence of any evidence of a contrary intention, an appropriation in the order of their respective dates of the sums drawn out to the sums previously deposited, and therefore the withdrawals could not be applied in discharge of the deposits made subsequent to the payments upon the purchase of the property so as to keep alive any lien of the defendants upon the property in respect of the earlier deposits.

 (§ VII—151)—TAKING DEPOSITS WHEN INSOLVENT.

A warrant for the extradition to a foreign state of a bank officer for receiving deposits with knowledge of the insolvency of the bank may be sustained under s. 405, Crim. Code 1906, providing that everyone is guilty of an indictable offence who, with intent to defraud, by any false pretence, either directly or through the medium of any contract obtained by such false pretence, obtains anything capable of being stolen or procures anything capable of being stolen to be delivered to any other person than himself, and under s. 405a of the Code, s. 6 of 7 & 8 Edw. VII, (Can.) c. 18, making everyone guilty of an indictable offence who, in incurring any debt or liability, obtains credit under false pretences, or by means of any fraud, though that part of the foreign statute pertaining to the receipt of deposits with such knowledge was amended by striking out the words "fraudulently and with intent to cheat and defraud any person." VIII. Statutory security to banks.

A. WHAT BANKS MAY LEND ON.

(§ VIII A—160)—LANE OF CREDIT—WRITTEN PROMISE TO PAY — SPECIFIC ADVANCES ON SPECIFIC GOODS—BANK ACT, s. 90 (b)—SECURITY FOR INDEBTEDNESS.

The written promise required by s. 90 (b) of the Bank Act (1906 R.S.C., c. 29) refers to a specific loan then being negotiated for, and to specific goods proposed to be given in security for such loan. Where a line of credit has been renewed from time to time, and after each renewal the bank takes security not only for a present advance but for the whole prior indebtedness, the security taken for the whole debt is only valid for the amount of the loan made at the time it was acquired, but the security given for each individual advance is not released and does not merge in the general security taken and so the bank is entitled to the benefit of all the securities.

Clarkson v. Dominion Bank, 46 D.L.R. 281, 58 Can. S.C.R. 448, reversing in part, 38 D.L.R. 232, 40 O.L.R. 245.

MORTGAGE—SCOPE OF SECURITY—SUBSEQUENT LIABILITY—CREDITOR.

A mortgage to a bank cannot be a valid security for a liability contracted subsequently to its execution. A bank which is secured as to part of a claim may be an unsecured creditor as to the remainder thereof.

RENEWAL NOTE—BANK ACT—PLEDGE OF MANUFACTURED GOODS—ESTOPPEL—REMOVAL OF GOODS—CONSENT—EVIDENCE.

In order that a note may be a renewal note within the meaning of s. 90 of the Bank Act, c. 9, 1913 (Dom.), it is not necessary that it be for the same amount between the same parties for the same period as and commencing from the date of maturity of the original note; thus a renewal note may be one for the amount remaining unpaid after a part payment on the original note or it may be a note consolidating two or more original notes. [Barber v. Mackrell, 40 W.R. 618, and Credit Co. v. Pott, 6 Q.B.D. 295, distinguished.] A manufacturing company which had borrowed money from the plaintiff bank on the security of goods alleged to have been manufactured by it, held to be estopped from objecting, on the ground that the goods could not be legally pledged, to their seizure and removal by the bank. STATUTORY SECURITY TO BANKS.

The advancement by a bank of money on a demand note under a contemporaneous agreement that a chattel mortgage should be given as security therefor as soon as it could be prepared, constitutes a violation of s. 76, subs. 2 (c) of c. 29, R.S.C. (the Bank Act), which prohibits a bank, either directly or indirectly, lending money or making advances upon the security of any goods, wares, and merchandise. A chattel mortgage taken by a bank cannot be sustained under s. 80 of c. 29, of the Bank Act, as one given for additional security for a debt contracted in the usual course of business, where money was advanced upon a demand note under an agreement that it should be secured by a chattel mortgage as soon as it could be prepared. LAND MORTGAGE—MORTGAGE TO SECURE PAST INDEBTEDNESS—EFFECT OF INCLUDING FUTURE ADVANCES.

A mortgage taken by a bank on land as security for a large past due indebtedness is not invalidated as to the past indebtedness because it purports to be also for such further and future advances as should be made from time to time to the mortgagor, or which might be represented by bills or notes made or endorsed by the latter, or any renewals thereof, by reason of the prohibition of s. 76 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, 3-4 Geo. V. (Can.) c. 9, against lending money on land, where the instrument was not intended by the parties as a mere colourable or collusive scheme to defeat the restrictions of the act, and no future advances were contemplated or made except in so far as they might be incidental to the working out of the past due account. (§ VIII B—174)—STATUTORY SECURITY—WHAT BANKS MAY NOT LEND ON—GOODS.

A chattel mortgage, taken by a bank in violation of clause (c) of subs. 2 of s. 76 of the Bank Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 29) prohibiting banks from making advances "upon the security of any goods, wares and merchandise" (except as authorized by the act), may be valid and enforceable if taken to secure an existing indebtedness, but not otherwise.

(§ VIII B—175)—EXECUTION—ASSIGNMENT OF LEASE—CROPS—BILL OF SALE.

A bank, which had notice of executions against a debtor who was also indebted to the bank at the time, advanced money to put in and harvest a crop grown partly on the debtor's homestead which he had leased to his infant son on a crop payment lease, and partly on the other land also leased by the son on a similar lease; both leases were assigned by the son to the bank and both father and son undertook that the proceeds of the sale of the crops would be applied first in payment of the advances and next to the payment of the old debt of the father's to the bank; bills of sale of the severed crop were subsequently given to the bank under a covenant for further assurance in the assignments. Held, that the transactions were not fraudulent as against the father's creditors but as the bank had notice of the executions at the time of entering into the transactions, it lost its security on the father's share of the crop grown on the homestead, but the rest of the grain in which the father had no interest remained as security to the bank. Held, that so far as the bills of sale of the crops were intended to secure the past debt to the bank they were fraudulent and void, and the assignments were void, under s. 15 of the Bills of Sale Ordinance (Con. Ord. N.W.T. c. 43). Also held that the transactions were void under the Bank Act (s. 76, subs. 2 (e)).

(§ VIII C—180)—SECURITY FOR ADVANCES—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

The guarantee obtained by a bank upon all goods or effects for advances of money has the same effect as if the bank had obtained from the owner a warehouse receipt. In such case if there is failure in payment the bank becomes owner of these goods or effects subject only to the lien of the unpaid workmen during a period of three months.

ADVANCES OF MONEY—SHIPPING-BILLS—INSPECTION CERTIFICATES—NON-NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS—FRAUD—THIRD PARTY—RESPONSIBILITY—LEGAL RELATIONSHIP—C.C., ART. 1052.

A manufacturer having a contract with the Imperial Munitions Board for the furnishing of boxes of munitions should obtain the delivery of these boxes, and should have on its shipping-bill, a certificate of an inspector named by a company representing the Imperial Munitions Board. This manufacturer who drew money from the plaintiff bank on the transfer of its shipping-bills and inspection certificates, obtained from the inspector a large number of certificates signed in blank on false shipping-bills, and obtained thus fraudulently from the said bank the sum of $46,647.90. It was decided that the company which represented the Imperial Munitions Board and whose employee had committed the imprudence of signing the certificates in blank, was not responsible to the plaintiff bank for the loss suffered by it, and that the legal relationship existed between them. The shipping-bills and the above-mentioned written certificates are not negotiable instruments.

(§ VIII C—181)—IN GENERAL—EFFECT OF TAKING SECURITIES.

Commercial documents, such as securities under the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, should not be scrutinized with the same particularity as those of the class usually prepared and examined by solicitors and executed only after having been carefully settled as to form. S. 90 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. c. 29, should be construed liberally and not strictly or critically.

ASSIGNMENT OF CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

An assignment of a chattel mortgage by a mortgagee, a trust company, to a chartered bank on the latter taking over the trust company's securities and giving credit therefor, is not in contravention of s. 76 of the Bank Act (Can.), if the transaction was entered into with good faith and without any intention of evading the provisions of that act. STATUTORY RECEIPT AS COLLATERAL SECURITY—ACTION FOR DEBT PRIOR TO ACCOUNTING.

A bank which has made advances to a lumber company upon assignments and statutory receipts under the Bank Act (Can.), whereby the company thereafter held the logs and lumber as bailes of the bank, may maintain an action against the company for the balance due them in respect of such advances without having rendered prior to the action an account of the proceeds realized under the security so held as collateral; it is sufficient that the details of such accounting should be furnished under oath in the action, and that the defendant has had an opportunity of contesting its accuracy.

There is vested in a bank no implied right to assign the securities which it is specially privileged to take under s. 88 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29.

Chesley Furniture Co. v. Krug, 18 D.L.R. 486, 7 O.W.N. 144.

(§ VIII C-189)—LOANS BY—STATUTORY SECURITY—"FORESTS PRODUCT"—SAWN LUMBER—"WHOLESALE PURCHASER."

Sawn lumber is a "forest product" on which a bank may take a statutory receipt under s. 88 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, from a customer, who is a "wholesale purchaser" of lumber, as security for a loan made to him. [Molsons Bank v. Beaudry, 11 Que. K.B. 212, dissented from.] One who purchases lumber in carload lots, both for use in his business as a building contractor and for resale in small lots, is a "wholesale purchaser" of "forest products" from whom a bank may take a statutory receipt pledging his stock as security for a present advance by virtue of s. 88 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29.

(§ VIII C-191)—STATUTORY SECURITIES—BANK ACT (CAN.)—FORM, LATITUDE IN.

A bank may take security for advances from a wholesale manufacturer under subs. 1, 3, 5 and 6 of s. 88 of the Bank Act (Can.), R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, provided the goods involved are capable of ascertainment and identification; the statutory form in the schedule to the act, is not compulsory as to its directions for description of goods and their locality but is intended as a guide. [Imperial Paper Mills v. Quebec Bank, 6 D.L.R. 475, 26 O.L.R. 637, affirmed; Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 A.C. 523, at 533, applied.]

Imperial Paper Mills v. Quebec Bank, 13 D.L.R. 702, 24 O.W.R. 930.

(§ VIII C-192)—STATUTORY SECURITY—PRIORITY FOR WAGES—BANK ACT (CAN.) 1913.

As against a bank taking possession under a statutory security given to it by a wholesaler or other person under s. 88 of the Bank Act (Can.), 1913, the employees of the company may enforce their prior lien to the extent of three months' wages either by resort to the assets or by a claim in debt against the bank which has disposed of the same, the intent of s. 88 being that the bank obtaining the benefits of the security must also assume its burdens. Edborg v. Royal Bank, 16 D.L.R. 385, 6 W.W.R. 180, 27 W.L.R. 680, 19 B.C.R. 514.

(§ VIII C-202)—UPON WRITTEN PROMISE OR AGREEMENT.

A security under s. 88 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. c. 29, upon some part of a larger number of similar articles is not invalid under s. 90 of that Act because the antecedent promise or agreement in writing, in pursuance of which it is given, does not state the precise amount of the debt to be secured or identify the precise articles to be charged.

(§ VIII C-203)—RENEWED OR EXTENDED.

Security under s. 90 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. c. 29, which, though given less than 60 days before an assignment by the giver thereof for the benefit of his creditors, is but a continuation of a former security of the like character held by the bank for the indebtedness more than 60 days before the assignment, is not given within 60 days of the assignment so as to throw upon the bank the onus of supporting it.

FURTHER ADVANCES—UNMATURED NOTE OF THIRD PERSON—GENERAL LETTER OF HYPOTHECAATION.

The making of further advances by a bank to its customer is a consideration which would apply to all the securities held by it at the time of making such advances and place it in the position of a holder in due course of an unmatured note of a third party payable to its customer and by him endorsed to the bank under the terms of a general letter of hypothecation, where the bank had no notice of any defect in its customer's title to the note at the time of making the further advances on the customer's account in respect of which such promissory note was taken as collateral. BARBERS.

AS TRADER.

A barber is not a trader, within the meaning of art. 853, C.P. Que., even though he may occasionally sell to customers perfumes or other things pertaining to the exercise of his art.

Robitaille v. Fiset, 51 Que. S. C. 248.

INFECTION FROM SHAVING—LIABILITY.

A barber who in shaving a customer cuts him is liable for the injury resulting from subsequent infection from the cut. His act is not a quasi-delict but a failure to execute the obligation imposed by his contract. Therefore, it is not for the customer to prove that the barber has committed a fault, but for the latter to justify the imperfect carrying out of his obligation by proving that the cut inflicted on the plaintiff happened without fault on his part, by a fortuitous event or force majeure. In order that the injury may be an immediate and direct result of the fault it is not necessary that the consequential damage be probable. It suffices that it is natural and might have been avoided.

GROUND FORS—EXORBITANT COMPENSATION—RESTITUTION.

The removal of a barrister from the rolls for unprofessional conduct, is justified where he entered into a contract with a man without business experience and of very moderate understanding, whereby the barrister was to receive one-third of about £500 that was due the client from an estate in Scotland, and where the barrister knew at the time such agreement was made that the money was ready for remittance, and that all the client had to do to obtain it was to execute a discharge therefor, notwithstanding which the barrister grossly exaggerated the difficulties in the way of obtaining the money, and stated that it might involve litigation, and be some time before the money could be obtained. The fact that such barrister was not a solicitor, will not, under s. 74 of the Law Society Act of Manitoba, prevent him being stricken from the rolls of barristers or being disciplined in the latter capacity. [Re J.B., an attorney, 6 Man. R. 19, distinguished; Re Hulm & Lewis, [1892] 2 Q.B. 261; Re Hurst & Middleton, 56 Sol. Jour. 520, specially referred to, 21 W.L.R. 450.] The fact that such barrister has made restitution, is no defence to an application to strike him from the rolls, it may be taken into consideration in awarding punishment. SOLICITOR'S LIEN—WHAT IS—DIFFERS FROM ORDINARY LIEN.

A solicitor's lien is not a lien in the ordinary sense of a charge on property in possession, but is a right to acquire a charge on property of the client, but not on property of someone else; unless the costs become the costs of the client there is nothing to which a lien may attach. AGREEMENT FOR COMPENSATION.

It does not necessarily follow that, because the senior taxing officer has, under the provisions of the recent amendment to the Manitoba Law Society Act, set aside an agreement for compensation obtained by a barrister or solicitor from his client by misrepresentation, that the conduct of the barrister or solicitor will be regarded as unprofessional, as each case must depend upon its own circumstances.

(§ I-1)—TRIAL DE NOVO—AMOUNT OF AWARD.

Where the defendant in bastardy proceedings obtains a trial de novo on an appeal from a magistrate to the County Court sitting with a jury, and without objection allows the case to go to the jury solely upon the question of paternity, he cannot afterwards object that the question of the amount to be awarded should also have been left to the jury and not fixed as it was by the judge in affirmation of the magistrate's order, on the jury finding against the defendant on the question of paternity.

ORDER FOR SUPPORT—POWER OF JUDGE—EXPENSES OF BIRTH—AMOUNT.

An order made under an act respecting the support of illegitimate children, c. 39, 1912, by the judge of the District Court wherein the complainant resides is not bad because of the omission of words therein indicating the capacity in which the judge acted, but the order may be amended. A provision in such an order requiring the respondent to pay the expenses incidental to the birth of the child but which does not fix the amount thereof is bad, and where there is no evidence as to such amount the provision should be struck out, but the fact that such provision cannot stand does not make the whole order bad.

AMENDMENT—PAYMENT OF ENDOWMENT POLICY.

The amendment to the Ontario Insurance Act, made by 3 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 15, s. 8 [R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 185], enabled a benevolent society subject to the provisions of the Ontario Insurance Act to so amend its constitution as to make the one-half of the benefit which was originally payable in a lump sum to the member on his attaining the endowment age, so that the same would thereafter be payable in fixed yearly instalments commencing at the endowment age; but the statute does not enable the society in the absence of any reservation to that effect in its constitution to postpone or change the endowment age already fixed. A benevolent society has not right after a benefit in nature of an endowment insurance is accrued due to its member so that he became a creditor of the society for the amount thereof, to forfeit or impair such creditor's rights to his debt, or to postpone his payment, or to make its payment conditional upon the member paying further assessments, although the society had power under its constitution to alter its constitution and by-laws, other than the fundamental declaration under which it was incorporated, which included as one of the objects of the society the payment of endowment at the age in question. A member of a benefit association who makes a claim for benefits which is refused by the executive council, and who without appealing from such decision to the general council of the society sends through his attorney two letters to the association, has sufficiently conformed to a by-law of the association providing, that in order to be entitled to take action against the society in a Civil Court the member must first have exhausted all the means put at his disposal by statute. If in such action the society joins issue upon the merits and calls witnesses, it thereby acquiesces in the jurisdiction of the court.

When the constitution of a Mutual Benefit Society only admits blood relations to the benefits of its endowments, the conferring of a certificate of endowment to a nephew by marriage, whom the insured has falsely declared to be his sister's son, is null and inoperative. In the Province of Quebec, under our present legislation, a member of a Mutual Benefit Society can distribute his endowment benefits by will, notwithstanding the rules of the association to the contrary. (§ III—11)—AMENDMENT RAISING ASSESSMENTS—NOTICE OF.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the defendant (a fraternal benevolent society) from taking any proceedings under a certain amendment to the constitution of the defendant society, where it appeared that the amendment in question greatly increased the assessments (or premiums) on the insurance of the plaintiffs, as aged members of the society; and where its constitution required that a copy of all proposed amendments should be forwarded to the Grand Recorder on or before a certain fixed date each year, in order that the Grand Recorder, in turn, might send a copy to each subordinate lodge in time for a full discussion of the proposed amendment before selection of a Grand Lodge representative; and where the constitution also provides that in all important matters the representative in Grand Lodge of a subordinate lodge has as many votes as his lodge has members; and where the Grand Lodge had assumed to pass such constitutional amendment without such notice being given to the Grand Recorder, as provided by the constitution of the society. CHANGES IN.

A payment of monthly assessments due on the certificates of a mutual benefit and benevolent brotherhood is not a renewal of the contract under which the members joined it within the meaning of the word "renewed" as used in those provisions of s. 197, 8 Edw. VII. (Que.) c. 69, now contained in subs. (1) of art. 7028 R.S.Q. 1909, and, therefore, as far as concerns those who became members of the society and received their certificates of membership before the section aforesaid was passed they can be no application of the provisions thereof that if an insurance contract made by any company or association is evidenced by a written instrument, the company shall set out all terms and conditions of the contract in full on the face or back of the instrument forming or evidencing the contract, and, unless so set out, no term or condition, stipulation or proviso, modifying or impairing the effect of any such contract made or "renewed" after the coming into force of this act, shall be good and valid or

Where the application for the incorporation of a Police Benefit Fund Association contained a statement that the by-laws governing such corporation and its members should be approved of at the first annual meeting of the corporation after its incorporation or at any general meeting of the members called for that purpose, a portion of a by-law offered at a meeting of the police force who were members of the association, which portion was objected to and not adopted at that or any other meeting of the association is not operative by reason of any ratification or adoption thereof by the board of trustees of the funds of the association.

(§ IV—15)—EXCLUSION OF MEMBERS—SOLDIER IN ACTIVE SERVICE.

A mutual benevolent and benefit association, which has been authorized by its charter to make by-laws for the admission, expulsion or exclusion of its members, may make a regulation to the effect that any person who enlists as a soldier on active service may not be admitted into the association, and that, if he has already been admitted, he shall be excluded therefrom as a matter of course; such a by-law is not contrary to public policy.

Ainslie v. L'Union St. Pierre, 50 Que. S.C. 185.

EXPULSION OF MEMBERS.

No member of an association can be expelled without a resolution validly adopted, and verbal decision taken at a meeting cannot supplement the absence of such a resolution and have any effect. In the absence of powers conferred to the parties by the deed of association, no member can be expelled; and in case of any violation of the by-laws, and of the existence of serious grounds of complaint, recourse must be had to the tribunal.

Wohlk v. Montreal Protective Shoemakers Assn. 54 Que. S.C. 29.

(§ IV—17)—EXPULSION OF MEMBERS — REMEDY—INJUNCTION—NOMINAL DAMAGES.

The foundation of a court's jurisdiction to prevent an improper expulsion of a club member rests upon the principle that by such expulsion the member may be deprived of his right of property (Baird v. Wells, 44 Ch. D. 661). The remedy is by declaration, and injunction if necessary. Apart from this, the courts take no cognizance of such expulsions except in so far as they may be a breach of contract, and in the latter cases the ordinary principles of assessing damages in contract apply (Wayman v. Perseverance Lodge, [1917] 1 K.B. 677, is not an authority to the contrary). Only nominal damages may, therefore, be recovered for expulsion from membership in a lodge, where it is shown that the only injury which the plaintiff suffered therefrom was the deprivation of the right of access to the lodge room where the lodge meetings and social evenings were held, if such access to the meetings did not confer any pecuniary benefit and attendance at the social gatherings entailed either the payment of an entrance fee or a contribution of refreshments, and no special damages are claimed.

DISPUTES, WITHDRAWAL FROM MEMBERSHIP.

That portion of a rule of a benevolent association which provided that a member failing for thirty days after the same was due to pay an assessment which was by another part of the rule made payable on the first day of every month, should ipso facto be deemed suspended from all the privileges of the order and his benefit certificate thereby avoided, is waived by the association where it appears that to the actual though not "official" knowledge of the executive officer of the grand lodge, the officer of a subordinate lodge who was charged with the duty of preparing a statement of collection of assessments and the money collected and delivering the same to another officer of the lodge so that it could be sent to the grand lodge and reach it on or before the 15th of each month, had followed the custom for years of making the return himself to the grand lodge on the 15th of the month, and, before making it, of receiving from the members payment of their assessments shortly before the 15th so that it became the custom of the greater number of the members of the lodge to pay their assessments after the expiration of the thirty days, that is to say, in the first half of the month following that in which the assessments were payable. (§ I—5)—SERIES OF PRIVATE BETS—ENGAGING IN THE BUSINESS OF BETTING.

A repetition or series of acts of private betting must be proved to constitute an "engaging in the business" of betting or wagering in contravention of Cr. Code, s. 235, subs. (e).

R. v. Hynes, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 293, 45 O.L.R. 51.

PUBLISHING RACE BETTING INFORMATION.

An unlawful intent to publish, sell, etc., information intended for use in connection with betting on horse-races may be inferred from the fact that the seller of the newspaper which featured "racing tips" was advertised in it as having been appointed "distributor" for the paper. [R. v. Luttrell, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 295, distinguished.]

R. v. Roher, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 376, 10 O.W.N. 303.

(§ I—10)—BOOKMAKING OR POOL SELLING —AIDING AND ABETTING.

A person who does or omits an act for the purpose of aiding another in "book-making or pool selling or in his business or occupation of betting or wagering," may be convicted of the principal offence (Cr. Code, ss. 69 (b) and 235 (e)).

TELEGRAMS—WIRE FROM TRACK—WILFULLY AND KNOWINGLY DESPATCHING BETTING INFORMATION.

The King v. Hogarth, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 272, 2 O.W.N. 727.

BIGAMY.

(§ I—7)—CONTINUOUS ABSENCE OF DEFENCE.

The continuous absence referred to in Cr. Code, s. 307 (3) as an answer or excuse to a bigamy charge is absence from the person, and it is not essential to a defence under that heading that the absence of the spouse should have been either out of Canada or out of the province in which the first marriage took place and in which both parties were domiciled until their separation, ten years before the alleged bigamous marriage.

R. v. Rafuse, alias Penaul, 28 D.L.R. 182, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 161, 49 N.S.R. 391.

(§ I—10)—PROOF OF FOREIGN MARRIAGE—DE FACTO OFFICER.

The presumption that a person acting in a public or official capacity in a foreign country is entitled so to act will apply to the proof of the first marriage in a charge of bigamy to support the testimony of the first wife that she and the accused were married by a justice of the peace in one of the United States, such an officer being shown by proof of the foreign law to be qualified to perform the ceremony, although there was no formal proof of the election of this particular justice to the office. [R. v. Naoum, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 102, 24 O.L.R. 316, referred to.]

R. v. Debard, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 122, 44 O.L.R. 427.

(§ 1-12)—MENS REA—INTENT—BELIEF IN DIVORCE.

An honest belief on the part of the defendant that he was divorced constitutes no defence to the charge of bigamy either at common law or under ss. 16 and 307 of the Criminal Code (1906). [R. v. Brinkley, 14 O.L.R. 434, followed; R. v. Sellars, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 153, disapproved.]

The King v. Beiler, 1 D.L.R. 878, 21 W.L.R. 18, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 249, 4 A.L.R. 329.

(§ 1-15)—PROOF THAT OFFICIATING MINISTER QUALIFIED.

On a charge of bigamy the celebration of the first marriage by a minister of some religious denomination "recognized as duly ordained" (R.S.N.S., c. 111), is sufficiently shown by proof that the person officiating was a clergyman de facto in charge of the church where the ceremony took place and made return thereof as "locum tenens."

A. IN GENERAL.

Lien note, see Sale.

(§ 1 A-1)—SIGNING BLANK NOTE.

The mere signing of a blank form of promissory note, not done negligently, creates no liability thereon in the absence of authority, or of an intention, to issue or negotiate the document as a promissory note. [The Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, ss. 31, 32, considered.]

Sair v. Warren, 34 D.L.R. 268, 19 S.L.R. 129, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 265.

INSTRUMENT VALID ON FACE AS PROMISSORY NOTE — INDEPENDENT MEMORANDUM WRITTEN AT BOTTOM—EFFECT.

A document which on its face complies with all the requirements of a valid promissory note is not invalidated as such by a memorandum written at the foot of the document, which constitutes an independent agreement relating to something to be performed immediately upon payment of the note.

PROOF OF SIGNATURE—MARK—WITNESS.

The signature on a cheque by means of a cross in the presence of the person who signs as witness is legal. The proof of the signature of the witness after his death may be made by oral evidence.

Himbeault v. Banque d'Hochelega, 51 Que. S.C. 143.

(§ 1 A-2) — WHAT ARE — DOCUMENT IN WRITING—CONDITIONAL SALE OF IMPLEMENT—ABSENCE OF ABSOLUTE AND UNCONDITIONAL PROMISE.

Molsons Bank v. Howard, 5 D.L.R. 875, 3 O.W.N. 661, 21 O.W.R. 278.

PROMISSORY NOTE — WHAT IS — INSTRUMENT WITH CONDITIONS INCONSISTENT WITH NATURE OF NOTE.

The character of an instrument as a promissory note is destroyed by a condition to the effect that the payer waived all his statutory exemptions; and that title to the property for which the note was given should remain in the payee until it was paid for; and that, on the refusal of the payer to furnish satisfactory security at any time, or if he should make default in payments, or sell or encumber his land, or if the payee should consider the note, or any renewals thereof, to be insecure, the latter might declare the notes due and enter suit thereon, and also take possession of and hold the property purchased until the note, or renewal notes were paid, or sell it at public or private sale, and apply the proceeds on such indebtedness. [Dominion Bank v. Wiggins, 21 A.R. (Ont.) 275; Bank of Hamilton v. Gillies, 12 Man. L.R. 495; Frank v. Gazelle Live Stock Assn., 6 Terr. L.R. 392, followed; Yates v. Evans, 61 L.Q.B. 446; Kirkwood v. Carroll, [1903] 1 K.B. 532, distinguished.]

LIEN NOTE — AGREEMENT FOR ADDITIONAL SECURITY—NOT A NEGOTIABLE PROMISSORY NOTE — BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT (CAN.).

A lien note which contains, in addition to the promise to pay, the promisor's agreement to furnish additional security when demanded and which stipulates for acceleration of the due date by the promisee if he deems himself insecure, is not a negotiable promissory note within the Bills of Exchange Act, Can., and presentment before action thereon is not necessary. [Bank of Hamilton v. Gillis, 12 Man. L.R. 495, applied.]

NEGOTIABILITY—"VALUE RECEIVED" STRUCK OUT — "ACCOUNT OF LUMBER TO BE SHIPPED" ADDED.

An instrument in the form of a promissory note payable to order is none the less a promissory note because of the words "value received" being struck out and the words "account of lumber to be shipped" being inserted in lieu thereof. [Siegel v. Chicago Trust & Savings Bank, 23 N.E.R. 417; First National Bank v. Lightner, 88 Pac. R. 59; Chase v. Kellogg, 13 N. Y. Supp. 351, referred to.]

[Merchants Bank of Canada v. Bury, 21 D.L.R. 495, 33 O.L.R. 204.]

PROMISSORY NOTE — WHAT CONSTITUTES — "THRESHING MEMORANDUM."

A promise to pay subjoined to a "threshing memorandum" acknowledging the quantity and price of threshing certain grain, may constitute the document a promissory note and therefore transferable by endorsement. [Can. Dig.—15.]

ment although the payee is not indicated therein by name, if the document shews with reasonable certainty that the payee is the contractor for the threshing who had acquired a lien under the Threshers Lien Act, Alta.

[Case Threshing Machine Co. v. Desmond, 22 D.L.R. 455, 8 A.L.R. 298, 7 W.W.R. 895.]

NOTE RESERVING LIEN.

A document containing an unconditional promise to pay at a fixed date, a sum certain in money, is a promissory note, notwithstanding there are additional words expressive of a lien, if such words are meaningless as between the parties. [Frank v. Gazelle Live Stock Association, 6 Terr. L.R. 392; International Harvester Co. v. Maxwell, 15 D.L.R. 654; Kirkwood v. Carroll, [1903] 1 K.B. 531, referred to.]

[Robert Bell Engine & Thresher Co. v. Topolo (Sask.), 32 D.L.R. 77, 9 S.L.R. 384, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 608.]

(§ I A—4)—FILLING IN BLANKS.

A vendor may, after the execution and delivery of a lien note from which his name was omitted, give for personality purchased at an auction sale, the terms of which required such a note to be given, insert his name in the blank spaces intended therefor.

[Bell v. Schultz, 4 D.L.R. 400, 5 S.L.R. 273, 21 W.L.R. 408.]

FILLING IN BLANKS.

A person to whom is transferred a blank promissory note with only the signature of the maker thereon has no authority to fill in and perfect the same, the statutory right to complete and fill in a blank note conferred by s. 31 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, is limited to the person to whom the signed blank is delivered in order that it may be converted into a bill. [Ray v. Willson, 45 Can. S.C.R. 401; Smith v. Prosser, [1907] 2 K.B. 735; Herdman v. Wheeler, [1902] 1 K.B. 361, and Aude v. Dickson, 6 Ex. 869, distinguished.]

[Demers v. Léveillé, 11 D.L.R. 22, 44 Que. S.C. 61.]

FORM—LIEN NOTES ON CONDITIONAL SALES.

So-called promissory or lien notes incorporating conditional sale agreements are not promissory notes within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act. [Douglas v. Auten, 12 D.L.R. 196, applied.]

[International Harvester Co. of Canada v. Maxwell, 15 D.L.R. 654, 27 W.L.R. 41.]

FILLING IN BLANKS.

[Demers v. Léveillé, 11 D.L.R. 22, affirmed.]

[Demers v. Léveillé, 20 D.L.R. 976, 23 Que. K.R. 346.]

CONTEMPORARY AGREEMENT.

A contemporary agreement in respect of a promissory note may be valid, whether oral or in writing.

[Shaw v. Hossack, 36 D.L.R. 760, 39 O.L.R. 440, 12 O.W.N. 183. [Reversed in

BLANK FORM—ALTERATION—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.

Striking out the place of payment printed in a form which is intended to be used as a promissory note and which has been signed, and delivered, and inserting another place of payment, is a material alteration, and is excluded by s. 31 of the Bills of Exchange Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 119); the alterations being apparent, an indorsee does not become a holder in due course, but is put upon inquiry, and can stand in no better position than the party endorsing the notes to him.

Bellamy v. Williams, 40 D.L.R. 396, 41 O.L.R. 244, affirming 12 O.W.N. 232.

CHEQUES PAYABLE TO ORDER OF CLUB — AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY TO INDORSE—CHEQUES DEPOSITED TO CREDIT OF SECRETARY IN PRIVATE ACCOUNT WITH TRUST COMPANY.

Toronto Club v. Dominion Bank; Toronto Club v. Imperial Bank; Toronto Club v. Imperial Trusts Co., 25 O.L.R. 330.

JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.

There is no several liability on a note commencing by the words "We promise to pay, etc.," and signed by two persons.

Brosseau v. Jodoin, 52 Que. S.C. 38.

PROMISSORY NOTE — INCOMPLETE INSTRUMENT — DELIVERY — HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.

Hubbert v. Home Bank of Canada, 20 O.L.R. 651.

PROMISSORY NOTE — INSTRUMENT PAYABLE ON DEMAND.

Decision in Northern Crown Bank v. International Electric Co., 22 O.L.R. 339, 17 O.W.R. 561, 2 O.W.N. 286, affirmed on appeal by the Divisional Court.

PROMISSORY NOTE — INCOMPLETE INSTRUMENT — DELIVERY TO CUSTODIAN FOR SPECIFIC PURPOSE — FRAUDULENT FILLING UP.

Bank of B.N.A. v. McComb, 16 W.L.R. 204 (Man.).

B. VALIDITY GENERALLY; DELIVERY.

(§ I B-5)—VALIDITY GENERALLY—DELIVERY.

Where a promissory note that was void as to its purported maker, a nonexistent company, began "we promise" and was signed by two persons who added the words "president" and "manager" to their respective signatures thereto, such designations will be disregarded and the signers held individually liable thereon under subs. 2 of s. 52 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, which requires that the "construction most favorable to the validity of an instrument shall be adopted." [Fairchild v. Ferguson, 21 Can. S.C.R. 484; Watling v. Lewis, [1911] 1 Ch. 414, and Chapman v. Smethurst, [1909] 1 K.B. 927, specially referred to.]

VALIDITY — EXCESSIVE INTEREST — MONEY LENDERS ACT.

As the taking of more than 12 per cent per annum in violation of s. 6 of the Money Lenders Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 122, is an indictable offence, a promissory note taken by a money lender for less than $500 stipulating for a greater rate of interest is absolutely void, and cannot be upheld for the maximum contract rate of interest under s. 7 of the Act, since the latter section permits relief only from excessive payment of interest.

Bellamy v. Porter, 13 D.L.R. 278, 28 O.L.R. 572.

SALE PROHIBITED — CONTAGIOUS DISEASES ACT.

The Contagious Diseases Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 75, s. 38, is in force in Manitoba notwithstanding R.S.M. 1913, c. 8. The act prohibits and makes illegal the sale of any animal afflicted with an infectious disease, and a promissory note given for the purchase price of such animal is void; knowledge on the part of the vendor is immaterial. [Nickle v. Harris, 3 S.L.R. 200, followed; Manitoba El. & Gas Co. v. Gerrie, 4 Man. L.R. 210; Bartlett v. Vinor, Carthew 252, 90 E.R. 750; Forster v. Taylor, 5 B. & Ad. 887, 110 E. R. 1019; Bensley v. Bignold, 5 B. & Ald. 335, 106 E.R. 1214, referred to.]

Baldwin v. Snook (Man.), 40 D.L.R. 333, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 314.

JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY — INFANT — CLUB.

When several persons sign a note "We promise to pay," they are jointly and severally liable, if the note is given for a commercial debt. It is otherwise if it is a civil debt. A minor, who is a member and officer of an unincorporated athletic association and who signs a note personally for the benefit of the association, without receiving any benefit himself, is not responsible for the amount of the note. A club formed for amusement, which sells cigars and refreshments to its members, in small quantities, does not do an act of trade.

Cassanbon v. Bedard, 54 Que. S.C. 385.

SIGNATURE—AUTHORITY TO WIFE.

A husband who authorizes his wife to sign notes, but only in his absence and for the purpose of his business, is not liable on a note signed by her to pay the debt of their son.

Brodeur v. Dubois, 51 Que. S.C. 14.

PROMISSORY NOTE — ACTION AGAINST MAKERS OF JOINT AND SEVERAL NOTE—DENIAL OF SIGNATURES—ALLEGATIONS OF FRAUD — FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE — EFFECT OF ONE OR MORE ALLEGED MAKERS BEING BELIEVED.

McLarty v. Havlin, 6 O.W.N. 330.

PROMISSORY NOTE OF CORPORATION—SIGNATURES—PERSONAL LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS.

In an action upon a promissory note signed by a company and several individuals the question at issue was whether the note was that of the company only or whether the individual signers of it, who were the defendants in the action, were also liable on it. Held, that there was nothing upon the face of the note to indicate that the individual signers of it were not to be personally liable, and that, therefore, they must be held liable. The court then dealt with the extrinsic evidence, and held that the liability of the defendants was even more clearly established by this evidence than by the note itself. [Judgment of Scott, J., 2 A.L.R. 3, reversed.]

Union Bank v. Cross & Everard, 5 A.L.R. 489.

LEGAL CONSIDERATION — INSOLVENCY — COMPROMISE.

A promissory note given by a third party to the creditor of an insolvent in order to obtain his consent to a deed of compromise is illegal and void as founded upon an immoral consideration and contrary to public order.

Quebec Bank v. Weinstein, 51 Que. S.C. 69.

NOTE—ALTERATION—INCREASE OF AMOUNT—BLANK—NULLITY—S. REV. 1906, c. 119, ARTS. 145, 146.

In order to render a note void on account of alteration, the alteration must be made in an essential part of the note. Thus a note on which the drawer had written the date and also $250 in figures at the top of the note, leaving the rest blank, and which the holder had changed by adding the figure "1" to make $1,250 and by writing this sum in letters, does not constitute an essential alteration which involves the nullity of the note.

Bombardier v. Crevier, 55 Que. S.C. 163

VALIDITY GENERALLY—DELIVERY.

A promissory note signed, without consideration, by an employee of a bank at the request of his superiors and under the impression that a refusal would cost him his position is void for having been signed through fear.

La Banque Nationale v. Hamel, 43 Que. S.C. 425.

(§ I B—8)—BY INTOXICATED PERSON.

One, who, when so drunk as to be incapable of knowing what he is doing, signs an application for life insurance on his children and a note for the premium thereon, and subsequently, when sober enough to know the nature of his actions, signs an amended application, and knows that the children are being medically examined for insurance, and, when informed by his wife that the policies had been sent to the house, makes no objection, and does nothing until payment of the premium note is demanded, will be deemed to have ratified his action when drunk, and will be estopped from raising the defence of incapacity in an action on the premium note, and from saying that there is no contract of insurance upon which he is liable, but he will not necessarily be held to have ratified everything contained in the original application.

(§ I B—10)—ILLEGAL USE OF MONEY LENT

Notwithstanding the provisions of the Dominion Elections Act, R.S.C., c. 6, s. 279, the holder of a promissory note given for money used for illegal purposes in connection with an election, is entitled to recover where it does not appear that, at the time of lending the money, he had knowledge of the intended illegal purpose. There is no burden cast upon the party making the loan of proving that, at the time he made the loan, he had no knowledge of the illegal purpose. The court will not give an unreasonable construction to a statute where a more natural meaning and sufficient scope can be given to the words.

Cashon v. Kaulbach, 46 N.S.R. 289.

(§ I B—11)—ILLEGALITY OF CONSIDERATION—VIOLATION OF PROHIBITION ACT

A bill of exchange given for the sale of liquor in violation of the Prohibition Act is illegal and unenforceable, although such sale was effected by a resident agent for a nonresident creditor not having paid the license fee required by the Act. [Brown v. Moore, 32 Can. S.C.R. 93, followed.]

Wickwire v. Carver, 24 D.L.R. 821.

(§ I B—14)—PAYMENT OF NOTES NOT PROVIDED—RIGHT TO INDEMNITY BOND.

In paying a note which was given by testator and which has been lost or is not produced, his executors are entitled to a bond of indemnity against it from the payee.

Board of Governors of King's College v. Poole, 11 D.L.R. 116, 24 O.W.R. 601, 4 O.W.N. 1293.

C. CONSIDERATION.

(§ I C—15)—CONSIDERATION—EXTENSION OF DEBT.

Where the promissory note of another endorsed by the debtor is given to and accepted by the creditor at the maturity of a debt, the effect is merely to postpone the payment, although the new note was for the exact amount of the debt, unless the debtor proves that the new note so endorsed was given and accepted as an accord and satisfaction.

SALE OF MOTOR CAR—AGREEMENT TO OBTAIN PROMISSORY NOTE OF THIRD PARTY—FAILURE TO OBTAIN—NOTE OF PURCHASER GIVEN IN PLACE OF—CONSIDERATION.

The purchaser of a motor car agreed to give a promissory note made by a third party in part payment. The note was endorsed to the vendor and the car delivered. The vendor objected to the note on the ground that it was written on a piece of note paper and had no place of payment mentioned. The purchaser thereupon agreed to get a new note but failed to do so, and the vendor having ascertained that the third party was not financially sound, the purchaser gave his own note for the amount. Held, that the failure of the purchaser to procure the new note constituted a liability on his part sufficient to furnish a valuable consideration for the note sued on under s. 53 of the Bills of Exchange Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 119). [Haigh v. Brooks, 10 Ad. & EL. 309, 113 E.R. 119; Wilton v. Eaton, 127 Mass. 174; Coggins v. Murphy, 121 Mass. 166, referred to.]

Pedlar v. Carswell, 47 D.L.R. 651, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 277.

CANCELLATION OF SURETYSHIP.

The cancellation of a suretyship contract forms a sufficient consideration for a promissory note.

Standard Bank of Canada v. Alberta Engineering Co., 33 D.L.R. 542, 11 A.L.R. 96, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1177, varying 27 D.L.R. 707.

CONSIDERATION OF ACCOMMODATION NOTE—RENEWAL—LIABILITY.

McCain Produce Co. v. Lund, 31 D.L.R. 249, 44 N.B.R. 242.

FUTURE DEBTS—RIGHTS OF TRANSFEREE.

A promissory note given on account of an anticipated threshing bill, on which no liability was in fact incurred, is unenforceable for failure of consideration even in the hands of a transferee for value who acquired it with knowledge of its true conditions. [Cossitt v. Cook, 17 N.S.R. 84, applied.]

Harris v. Wilson, 23 D.L.R. 86, 8 S.L.R. 220, 8 W.W.R. 1184, 31 W.L.R. 825.

FORBEARANCE—ACCOMMODATION NOTE.

The forbearance of a creditor, under an arrangement by which the debtor was given a reasonable time to realize on securities owned by him in order to pay the debt, is a sufficient consideration to support an accommodation note given by a third party directly to the creditor as collateral security.

Union Bank v. Dodds, 22 D.L.R. 545, 31 W.L.R. 521.

SUBSTITUTED NOTE — MISREPRESENTATION—FORGERY.

There is a failure of consideration for a substituted promissory note given by the promisor in exchange for what was represented as his original note, but which was in fact a forgery, his original note having been transferred into other hands. [Gurney v. Womersley, 24 L.J.Q.B. 46, 119 Eng. R. 51, and Kennedy v. Panama, etc., Mail Co., L.R. 2 Q.B. 580, applied.]

PROMISSORY NOTE—SIGNATURE—INTENTION—WITNESS—CONSIDERATION.

Apart from any question of estoppel, no liability is created by affixing a signature to a note intending to sign merely as a witness to the signature of the real maker who had already signed and who alone dealt with the payee and got the chattels for which it was given; there is no consensus ad idem, as there was no intention of promising to pay.

Haynes v. Wilson, 20 D.L.R. 569, 29 W.L.R. 381, 6 W.W.R. 1495, 7 S.L.R. 449.

NOTE—REASON FOR—MORAL CONSIDERATION—REPARATION—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT—FRENCH AND ENGLISH LAW—C.A. ART. 984, 989, 1140 — BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT—S. REV. [1906], c. 119, ART. 53.

S. 53 of the Bills of Exchange Act, which has for its object the reason or consideration for a bill of exchange, should be interpreted according to the principles of French law. A person who in good faith and involuntarily has caused injury to another and who moved by a feeling of honour and delicacy, wishes to set right, wrong which he has thus caused, although he is not bound by law to do so, and gives this person a note to cover his loss, he is bound to pay it; he cannot pretend after the event that the note was given without reason or consideration.

Stephen v. Perrault, 56 Que. S.C. 54.

INVESTMENTS.

Money invested by one brother for another, and payments and promises made in connection therewith, held not to constitute any legal liability upon a note given for the original amount of money invested.

Irvine v. Irvine (Man.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 184.

CONSIDERATION—DEFENCE THAT NOTE GIVEN AS EVIDENCE OF DEBT AND FOR ACCOMMODATION OF PLAINTIFF—ONUS—FAILING TO PROVE FACTS—ABSENCE OF CONSIDERATION.

Pettit v. Barton, 4 O.W.N. 200.

NOTE PAYABLE TO CORPORATION — INDORSEMENT BY OFFICER NO PROOF OF CONSIDERATION.

Due negotiation of a note payable to a company is not proved by simply showing that it is indorsed by an officer who has general authority to indorse, if no consideration has passed to the company.

ACCOMMODATION NOTE—SECURITY FOR.

The giver of security for the maker of an accommodation note cannot plead want of consideration when he made it expressly to give value to a bill of exchange which without him would not have had such value. The principal debtor for a note cannot be relieved from the obligation to pay it by offering the holder to reimburse him merely what the latter had paid.

David v. Beauregard, 47 Que. S.C. 312.

REQUISITES AND VALIDITY—CONSIDERATION —RIGHTS OF HOLDER—MAXIM "EXPRESSIO UNUS EST EXCLUSIO ALTERIUS."

Discussion of the maxim "expressio unius est exclusio alterius" and review of the authorities:—Held, also, that the plaintiff, being the holder of the note and entitled to sue upon it and in a position to deliver possession of it to the maker, and also entitled to sue upon the original consideration for the note; by s. 141 of the Act, the delivery to the maker after maturity would discharge the note, and all rights of action upon it would thereby become extinguished.

Johnson v. L'Heureux, 27 W.L.R. 21, 6 W.W.R. 53.

PROMISSORY NOTES—INDEBTEDNESS OF MAKERS TO PAYEE—FINDING OF TRIAL JUDGE AGAINST PLEA THAT NOTES MADE FOR ACCOMMODATION OF PAYEE—THIRD PARTY ISSUES—INDEMNITY—JUDGMENT—ENFORCEMENT.

Royal Bank of Canada v. Smith, 6 O.W.N. 695.

PROMISSORY NOTES—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION—LEGACY—WILL—ATTEMPTED CANCELLATION OF NOTE BY CROSS-INSTRUMENT—RENUNCIATION IN WRITING—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT—TESTAMENTARY INTENTION—EVIDENCE—FOREIGN DOMICILE—FORUM—COSTS.

Snider v. Snider, 7 O.W.N. 445.

CONSIDERATION.

Daivison v. Thompson, 4 O.W.N. 1310, 24 O.W.R. 604.

(§ 1 C—24)—SUBSTITUTING CURRENT LIEN NOTE.

There is no consideration supporting the making of a lien note in place of another note which is still current for the same indebtedness.

Mellis v. Blair, 27 D.L.R. 163, 22 B.C.R. 450.

DEMAND NOTE MADE BY DIRECTORS OF COMPANY—COMPANY INDEBTED TO BANK—ACTION AGAINST ONE DIRECTOR.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Turner, 28 D.L.R. 363, 10 O.W.N. 196. [Affirmed conditionally in 10 O.W.N. 237.]

ACCOMMODATION NOTE—NOVATION.

The maker of an accommodation note in favour of a third party who, before its maturity, pays the amount of the note to a holder who had discounted it on condition that the holder should deliver to him in writing with the paid note another note signed by himself, becomes a creditor of the latter. There is then in accordance with the provisions of art. 1169, C.C., a novation by a change of debtor from the first maker of the accommodation note to the maker of the second note. The consideration of the second note is that the holder of the first note receives from the maker the amount which he had paid on discounting it, and that he is thus immediately put in funds.

Côté v. Dufresne, 47 Que. S.C. 215.

COLLATERAL NOTE BEFORE RENEWAL OF ORIGINAL.

Where a promissory note is by the payee deposited with a bank together with the usual letter of hypothecation as collateral security to a note made by the payee to the bank—the latter note not having matured at the time of such deposit—and the latter note matures before the due date of the collateral note and is renewed by the bank—the bank at that time not having notice of a defect in the collateral note—the renewal is sufficient consideration for the collateral note. [Can. Bank of Commerce v. Waldenar & Murphy, 30 W.L.R. 857, followed; Can. Bank of Commerce v. Waite, 7 W.L.R. 255; Bank of B.N.A. v. McComb, 18 W.L.R. 94; Merchants Bank v. Williams, 6 W.W.R. 563, distinguished.]

Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Barlow, 31 W.L.R. 664.

(§ 1 C—27)—FORBEARANCE TO SUE.

Delay in enforcing a claim against copartners and permitting them to transfer the assets of the firm to a company formed by them to take over their business, is a sufficient consideration for a promissory note to hold the makers liable, where the note was void as to the company purporting to be its maker, which was executed by the copartners as president and manager thereof.

Crane v. Lavoie, 4 D.L.R. 175, 22 Man. L.R. 330, 21 W.L.R. 313.

(§ 1 C—28)—ILLEGAL CONSIDERATION—PLAINTIFF NOT A HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—FAILURE OF ACTION.

A holder of a promissory note given for an illegal consideration cannot succeed in his action to recover on the note. The holder cannot set up the claim that he is a holder in due course, when the note in question is obtained by his agents, and with his knowledge as to the circumstances under which it was obtained.

U. S. Fidelity & Guarantee Co. v. Cruikshank & Simmons, 49 D.L.R. 674, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 821, affirming [1919] 2 W.W.R. 264.

CONSIDERATION ILLEGAL.

Promissory notes which are in reality given to the holder of a public office as payment for his influence in obtaining a contract for the erection of a public building, although apparently given in payment for shares in a company, are illegal and void as contrary to public order.

Cloutier v. Trudel, 41 D.L.R. 145, 24 Rev. de Jur. 317, 54 Que. S.C. 459.

ILLEGAL CONSIDERATION—CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

Held, the note signed by defendant as part payment of plaintiff's claim against one of defendant's relatives, so as to prevent further criminal proceedings, must be considered as having been given for an unlawful consideration, against public policy, null and void, and defendant cannot be held liable thereon. Plaintiff's action must therefore be dismissed.

S. B. Townsend v. Holder, 24 Rev. de Jur. 225.

D. NEGOTIABILITY.

(§ 1 D—30)—PROMISSORY NOTE—WRITTEN CONDITION NOT APPEARING ON NOTE—NEGOTIABILITY OF—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE FOR VALUE—NOTICE.

A promissory note given to a company upon the express written condition not appearing on the face of the note but in the accompanying correspondence, that the note was for the purchase of certain bonds of the company and was to become null and void in case other parties did not purchase a like amount, is not thereby rendered negotiable and may be recovered in the hands of a holder in due course for value without notice of the condition when he took the note although no bonds were issued.

Auger v. McDonnell, 20 D.L.R. 363, 45 Que. S.C. 427.

LIEN NOTE—DAYS OF GRACE.

A lien note is not a negotiable instrument and does not carry days of grace.

Mellis v. Blair, 27 D.L.R. 165, 22 B.C.R. 450.

RESTRICTIVE ENDORSEMENT—ASSIGNABILITY.

A promissory note payable to "C. only" is not negotiable, but the debt represented by it is assignable. [The Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, ss. 60, 68, considered.]

Chandler v. Edmonton Portland Cement Co., 33 D.L.R. 392, 10 A.L.R. 454, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1408, affirming 28 D.L.R. 732, 10 W.W.R. 653.

"NEGOTIABLE PAPER"—MEANING.

The phrase "negotiable paper or cash" contemplates, not a mere personal note, but a documentary security which could be discounted for cash.

Martin v. Jarvis, 31 D.L.R. 740, 37 O.L.R. 269.

LIEN NOTE—NEGOTIABILITY—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT—FARM IMPLEMENT ACT.

Robert Bell Engine Co. v. Topolo, 32 D.L.R. 77, 34 W.L.R. 824, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 698, 9 S.L.R. 384.

LIEN NOTE—CONDITIONS.

An instrument in the form of a promissory note given for the price of an article with the added condition that the title to the possession of the property, for which this note is given, shall remain in the vendor until the note is paid, is not a promissory note or negotiable instrument.

Dorval v. Carrier, 51 Que. S.C. 343.

(§ 1 D—31)—EFFECT OF BLANKS.

Liability of maker—Blank note filled up and used for unauthorized purpose.

Brown v. Chamberlain, 2 D.L.R. 918, 3 O.W.N. 569, 20 O.W.R. 962.

SIGNING IN BLANK—DELIVERY FOR CUSTODY ONLY—FRAUDULENT FILLING IN OF BLANKS.

An action cannot be maintained, even by a subsequent holder without notice of the fraud, as against the person who signs a blank printed form of promissory note and delivers it to another as custodian only and without any authority to fill up the blank or to make himself payee or to get an advance or borrow money on the note, where the custodian held the same as promoter of a proposed company which when organized was to become the payee as consideration for the signer's stock subscription and where the promoter fraudulently filled up the note by making himself payee (the company not having been incorporated) and making the note payable in sixty days. [Hubert v. Home Bank, 20 O.L.R. 651; Ray v. Willson, 45 Can. S.C.R. 401; Smith v. Prosser, [1907] 2 K.B. 735, applied; Lloyd's Bank v. Cook, [1907] 1 K.B. 794; Cox v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, 21 Man. L.R. 1, distinguished. And see Falconbridge on Banking, 2nd ed., 596.]

Campbell v. Boursce, 17 D.L.R. 262, 24 Man. L.R. 252, 28 W.L.R. 148, 6 W.W.R. 861.

FILLING UP BLANKS—AUTHORITY.

Filling up a blank in a promissory note at the time of its delivery to the payee completes the negotiability thereof, and where such fact is established by the evidence, the question whether it was filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given, as mentioned in ss. 31 and 32 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, has no application, and the note will be enforceable in the hands of an indorsee who had obtained it in due course without knowledge of any defects. [Ray v. Willson, 45 Can. S.C.R. 401; Smith v. Prosser, [1907] 2 K.B. 735, distinguished.]

McBride v. Rusk, 25 D.L.R. 39, 33 W.L.R. 20.

(§ 1 D—32)—CERTAINTY AS TO PARTIES.

Persons who sign a promissory note made ostensibly by a company, as president and manager thereof, warrant that such company actually exists. The liability of persons who sign a promissory note as president and manager of a nonexisting company, thereby warranting the existence of such company, is not to be measured by what the holder of the note could have obtained after the subsequent incorporation of the company upon the settlement of its affairs in bankruptcy.

Crane v. Lavoie, 4 D.L.R. 175, 22 Man. L.R. 330, 21 W.L.R. 313.

DIRECTOR SIGNING NOTE OF CORPORATION—"I" OR "WE."

The word "we" instead of "I" used in a promissory note signed by an officer of a corporation in his individual capacity does not necessarily imply that the note was that of the corporation.

Lindsay-Walker v. Hilson, 27 D.L.R. 233, 26 Man. L.R. 296, 34 W.L.R. 290.

NEGOTIABILITY—CERTAINTY AS TO PARTIES—NOTE OF COMPANY—SIGNATURE—MANAGER INSERTING NAME—LIABILITY OF COMPANY.

The words "Kasow Electric Company" followed by a dotted line at the end of which were the letters "Mgr." were placed on a promissory note by means of a rubber stamp. Just above the letters "Mgr." appeared the name "C. A. Kasow" in handwriting:—Held, that the promissory note was that of the company and that "C. A. Kasow" was not liable thereon on the ground that the rubber stamp, coupled with the handwritten signature, constituted the signature of the company to the note. [Chapman v. Smethurst, [1919] 1 K.B. 73; Union Bank v. Cross, 2 A.L.R. 3, followed.]

Northern Electric & Mfg. Co. v. Kasow Electric & Seaborn, 29 W.L.R. 582.

(§ 1 D—33)—REQUISITES — NEGOTIABILITY — ADDED STATEMENT AS TO GUARANTY.

The addition of the words "in guaranty" of bills discounted with the bank (named "I") to a promissory note payable to the order of third parties will not prevent the document operating as a promissory note and being transferable by endorsement to the specified bank.

La Banque Nationale v. Lemaire, 15 D.L.R. 152, 44 Que. S.C. 445.

(§ 1 D—40)—CERTAINTY AS TO MATURITY.

A promise in writing payable on the happening of any one of a number of events or at any time at the option of the promisee is not a promissory note within the meaning of s. 176 of the Bills of Exchange Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 119), "To pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time." [Robert Bell v. Topolo (Sask.), 32 D.L.R. 77, referred to.]

Gardiner v. Muir, 38 D.L.R. 115, 10 S.L.R. 388, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1080.

CHEQUE—DATE OF PAYMENT.

The date of payment made by a cheque is not that which the cheque bears, but that of the receipt and acceptance of such bill by the creditor.

Cleveland Stove Co. v. Walters, 54 Que. S.C. 154.

PROMISSORY NOTE—NO DATE FOR PAYMENT—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, S. 23—PAYABLE ON DEMAND—EVIDENCE INADMISSIBLE TO SHOW DATE AGREED ON.

S. 23 of the Bills of Exchange Act does not make a note where no time is expressed for payment a demand note by presumption only, and parol evidence is inadmissible of an agreement fixing a due date for such note (Vachoe v. Stratton, 2 Sask. L.R. 72, and Wilton v. Manitoba Independent Oil Co., 9 W.W.R. 202, referred to.)

Polanuk v. Osterberg, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 394.

BILL—AMBIGUOUS TERMS—INTERPRETATION—CONDITIONAL SALE—COLLATERAL SECURITY—ENDORSEER—C.C. ART. 1223, C.C.P. ARTS. 532, 535—S. REV. [1906] C. 119 (LETTERS OF EXCHANGE), ART. 176.

When the date of an agreement for the payment of a sum of money, and the date on which the payment ought to be made are ambiguous, the court ought to interpret in the meaning that has been given by the plaintiff and his lawyer, if the defendant does not offer an objection to this interpretation. An agreement providing a sale on terms with retention of property made under form of promise to pay to order with endorsement is not a demand bill but a conditional sale. This agreement can no longer be considered as including only the security of a collateral guarantee but as rendering the bill null in virtue of article 176 S. rev., c. 119 [Letter of exchange]. The endorser of the above-mentioned agreement can in consequence be held as an endorser in virtue of the law of letters of exchange S. rev. [1906] c. 119.

Morin v. Giroux, 25 Rev. Leg. 480.

(§ 1 D—42)—PROMISSORY NOTE—NATURE—REQUISITES—AUTHORITY TO CONFESS JUDGMENT.

Where a written instrument includes a promissory note form for a stated indebtedness adding a stipulation by the payor authorizing "any attorney of any court of record" to confess judgment against the payor for the amount unpaid thereon "together with costs and $50 attorney's fee:" the provision as to "costs" renders the amount payable uncertain and prevents the instrument from being a promissory note. Waters v. Campbell, 14 D.L.R. 448, 7 A.L.R. 298, 25 W.L.R. 838.

(§ 1 D—44)—PROMISSORY NOTE—PROVISION FOR PAYMENT OF ATTORNEY FEE—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT—NOT FOR AMOUNT CERTAIN—VALIDITY AS NOTE.

A document purporting to be a promissory note but containing a provision for payment of "10 per cent attorney fee," is not for a sum certain within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act, and is not a promissory note.

A. Macdonald Co. v. Dahl, 46 D.L.R. 250, 12 S.L.R. 209, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 156.

(§ 1 D—46)—NEGOTIABILITY—PROVISIONS FOR DISCOUNT — PAYMENT IN INSTALLMENTS—ACCELERATION ON DEFAULT.

A note given for the price of goods is valid and negotiable, though it provides for a discount at a fixed percentage for payment within a specified time from date, though it provides for payments in instalments of fixed amounts on specified dates, and though it provides that default in payment of any instalment shall, at the option of the payee, render the unpaid balance immediately due and payable. [Jury v. Barker, E. B. & E. 459, and Carlon v. Kenealy, 12 M. & W. 139, referred to.]

Smith v. Mason, 40 Que. S.C. 75.

III. Indorsement and transfers.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A-55)—AUTHORITY OF PARTNERS.

A member of a partnership by tendering a note for discount and credit to his firm's account, adopts as genuine an indorsement which purports to be that of his firm. [Magrath v. Cook, 8 A.L.R. 318; Standard Bank v. McCullough, 25 D.L.R. 813, considered.]

PROMISSORY NOTE PAYABLE ON DEMAND—ENDORSEMENT — PRESENTATION — PAYMENT—SECURITY—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, R.S.C., ss. 86, 91, 111.

The endorser of a demand note payable by monthly instalments, who undertakes, in writing, with the payee, but without joint and several liability, to secure the maker, does not lose the benefit of the terms if the later makes a judicial assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Although a demand note should be presented for payment and protested within a reasonable time in order to bind the endorser, yet, if the note is payable by instalments, the payee may wait to protest it until the first instalment becomes due after the maker's assignment; and moreover, the endorser did not, by that delay, suffer any prejudice.

Cassidy's v. Katz, 46 Que. S.C. 409.

FRAUD—WARRANTY.

When the transferor of a note or a claim fraudulently conceals the debtor's insolvency, he is a warrantor of the claim transferred by operation of law, in the absence of any express guaranty.

Vezina v. Meilleur, 24 Rev. Leg. 300.

(§ III A-56)—SECURITY SIGNING CONDITIONALLY—CONDITION NOT FULFILLED—RELEASE OF SURETY.

Where a person signs a note as surety on condition that it is not to be used until a cosurety has signed it, any person who, having knowledge of that condition, discounts the note without first obtaining the signature of the co-surety holds it free from any liability on the part of the surety is released. [Ellesmere Brewing Co. v. Cooper, [1896] 1 Q.R. 75, referred to.]

Ripley v. Vellie, 21 D.L.R. 723, 8 S.L.R. 197, 8 W.W.R. 764, 32 W.L.R. 184.

(§ III A-59)—LIABILITY OF INDORSEER.

Where a promissory note which was payable to the order of the payee, was indorsed to the plaintiff in the name of the payee per the name of another party who was a stranger to the note, the plaintiff cannot recover thereon without showing that such person was duly authorized by the payee to indorse the note for him.

B. LIABILITY OF INDORSERS.

(§ III B-60)—LIABILITY OF ENDORSEER.

Where one who has witnessed the signatures to a promissory note signs a guarantee of the payment thereof, upon the back of the note, and adds, after his signature, the word "witness," his signature is complete before the addition of the word "witness," which is thus mere surplusage, and he is liable as an "aval" upon the note. Nicholson v. McKale, 5 D.L.R. 237, 41 Que. S.C. 340.

PRODUCTION—SIGNATURES—AGENT—AUTHORITY.

An endorsement on a note, "Jennie Green, H. Green, AGY.," is sufficient, under s. 31 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, to charge with notice that the agent has but a limited authority and that the principal is only bound if the agent was acting within the actual limits of his authority.

Robinson v. Green, 26 D.L.R. 194, 49 N.S.R. 409. [See also 36 D.L.R. 631, 51 N.S.R. 294.]

TO UNENDORSEING PAYEE.

A person endorsing a promissory note not indorsed by the payee may become liable as an indorser to the payee. [Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, s. 131; Robinson v. Mann, 31 Can. S.C.R. 484, followed.]

Pacific Lumber Co. v. Imperial Timber & Trading Co., 31 D.L.R. 748, 23 B.C.R. 378, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 507.

FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE.

Where creditors agree to give an extension of time to a debtor upon condition that he give them promissory notes for the debts due them, an indorsement of notes given to one debtor, without the knowledge or consent of the others, to procure his consent to the agreement, is void on grounds of public policy, as constituting a secret advantage over other creditors.

Hochberger & Sons v. Rittenberg, 31 D.L.R. 678, 25 Que. K.B. 42. [Affirmed, 36 D.L.R. 450, 54 Can. S.C.R. 480.]

INDORSERS REAL PURCHASERS OF PROPERTY FOR WHICH NOTE GIVEN—MAKER AN ACCOMMODATION MAKER ONLY—LACK OF NOTICE OF DISHONOUR—INDORSERS NOT RELEASED FROM LIABILITY.

When the indorsers of promissory notes are the real purchasers of the property for the purchase price of which the notes are given, and are the real makers of the notes, and the ostensible maker is an accommodation maker only, such indorsers are not released from liability through lack of notice of dishonour.

Heughan v. Short & Binder, 6 O.W.N. 545.

LIABILITY OF ENDORSER—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—DILATORY EXCEPTION.

The endorser of a promissory note cannot, by a dilatory exception, stop the action of the holder in due course, in order to call in warranty his subsequent condorsors who have themselves been summoned as codefendants jointly and severally.

Trudeau v. Laurin, 16 Que. P.R. 111.

PROMISSORY NOTES—LIABILITY OF INDORSER—INTENTION—TRANSFER OF CLAIM—EVIDENCE.

Frame v. Hay, 7 O.W.N. 738.

The Terminal City Sand and Gravel Company gave a promissory note to C.G. Johnson & Co., who endorsed it and handed it to the bank as security for general advances. The note was not paid when it fell due, and was charged by the bank back to Johnson & Co., who then sued for the amount. While the note was under discount, and after it was due, the defendant voluntarily handed to the bank a share certificate in his favour from the Terminal Gravel Company (a concern in which defendant was a director and shareholder). This certificate, the evidence shewed, was not deposited in pursuance of any previous arrangement, though probably in the hope of securing forbearance in the future. Held (1), that defendant was liable upon his endorsement, and (2) in the circumstances in which the share certificate was deposited it was not available in satisfaction of the claim upon the note.

Johnson v. McRae, 16 B.C.R. 473.

A person who endorses a promissory note payable to payee or order, and not then endorsed by the payee, is liable to a payee who has given value for it to the maker. [Robinson v. Mann, 31 Can. S.C.R. 484; Pacific Lumber Co. v. Imperial Timber Co., 31 D.L.R. 748, followed.]

ACCOMMODATION MAKER—LIABILITY TO ENDORSEE WHO ADVANCED MONEY UPON SECURITY OF NOTE—NOTE MADE PAYABLE TO BANK—TITLE TO NOTE—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.

Fox v. Patrick, 13 O.W.N. 400.

INDORSEMENT—ASSIGNMENT.

Negotiation by indorsement of a note payable to order differs in certain respects from the assignment of debts. In an assignment of debts the assignor guarantees only the existence of the debt and the assignee when sued can take advantage of it by exceptions. The holder of a note, who endorses and transfers it, becomes the debtor of the assignee and cannot set up any defence to the action of the regular holder. Nadeau v. Provost, 52 Que. S.C. 387.

WRITTEN ORDER—ENDORSEMENT—RENEWAL—DELAY—ENGLISH LAW—RESPONSIBILITY OF THE ENDORSER—PROTEST—LIBERATION—C.C. ART. 1961 S. REV. [1906], c. 119, ART. 10.

S. 10 of the law of Bills of Exchange (8.

Rev. 1906, c. 119), which says that the rules of the Common Law of England apply to bills of exchange to notes, and cheques, does not make it necessary to go back to English Law to decide the question of responsibility of the endorser. Whatever may be the laws of this province on this subject, the English Common Law ought to apply only to that which is of the essence itself of bills of exchanges, notes and cheques. The endorser of a bill, after expiration and protest, or where protest has been waived, should be considered as a jointly liable debtor or at least as a jointly liable surety and his responsibility as such as regulated by our civil law. The joint debtor or the joint surety are not freed from their obligation as such, by the act of a creditor who would have given time to the principal debtor for the payment of the guaranteed debt. The endorser of a bill of consent does not find himself discharged of his responsibility because the bank which has discounted the bill has consented to renew it without notifying endorser who had waived protest.

The Bank of Hochelaga v. Leger, 25 Rev. Leg. 158.

(§ III B—62)—MAKERS OR INDORSERS—TRUE RELATION BETWEEN—WHOLE FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES TO BE REFERRED TO—LIABILITY OF PARTIES—INTENTION.

For the purpose of ascertaining the true relation to each other of the parties who put their signatures upon a promissory note either as makers or indorsers, the whole facts and circumstances attendant upon the making, issue and transference of the note may be referred to by the court, and reasonable inferences derived from these facts and circumstances are admitted to qualify or alter the relative liabilities which the law merchant would otherwise assign to them.

MacDonald v. MacDonald, 44 D.L.R. 519, 52 N.S.R. 415.

(§ III B—63)—ACCOMMODATION INDORSERS—MENTAL CONDITION OF ENDORSER—INABILITY TO APPRECIATE TRANSACTION—KNOWLEDGE OF HOLDERS OF NOTES—FRAUD AND UNDUE INFLUENCE OF MAKER OF NOTES—COUNTERCLAIM—MONEYS APPLIED BY BANK ON INDEBTEDNESS OF MAKER—EVIDENCE.

Bank of Ottawa v. Bradfield, 1 D.L.R. 904, 3 O.W.N. 688.

ACCOMMODATION INDORSEMENT—MARRIED WOMAN—POWER OF ATTORNEY.

The business of a married woman conducted for her by her husband and son under a general power of attorney is not of itself sufficient to charge her with liability on an accommodation indorsement executed in her name outside of the scope of the business, in the absence of proof that such indorsement was expressly authorized by the terms of the power of attorney or otherwise.

Robinson v. Green, 26 D.L.R. 194, 49 N.S.R. 409. [See also 36 D.L.R. 631, 51 N.S.R. 204.]

ACCOMMODATION ENDORSERS—ORDER OF ENDORSEMENTS—PRESUMPTION—LIABILITY.

Each indorsement in blank of a promissory note is presumed, until the contrary is proved, to have been made in the order in which the endorsements appear on the note, and the endorsers are prima facie liable amongst themselves in the same order.

Wickwire v. Passage, 20 D.L.R. 864, 20 B.C.R. 485.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ACCOMMODATION NOTE—ENDORSEMENT TO BANK AS COLLATERAL SECURITY FOR DEBT OF PAYEE—DEBT PAID BEFORE ACTION BEGUN—CLAIM OF BANK TO HOLD NOTE FOR SUBSEQUENT DEBT—EVIDENCE—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Bank of Ottawa v. Hall, 7 O.W.N. 475.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ENDORSEMENT—THIRD PARTIES—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT—FRAUD—WARRANTY—QUE. C.C. 993.

One who endorses a note to accommodate the holder, and without the note being endorsed by the firm to whose order it is made, is responsible to a third person holding the note in good faith. Such an endorser has no recourse against the maker of the note who only signed it on the endorser's false representations, in settlement of a sale of shares in a fictitious mine.

Charron v. David, 23 Que. K.B. 399.

ACCOMMODATION ENDORSER—SURETY—AGREEMENT TO RELEASE PRINCIPAL DEBTOR—FAILURE TO PROVE—DIVIDEND ON DEBT RECEIVED BY HOLDER OF NOTES FROM TRUSTEE FOR CREDITORS OF PRINCIPAL DEBTOR—RATABLE APPLICATION ON PORTION OF CLAIM SECURED BY NOTES AND UNSECURED PORTION.

R. H. Thompson Co. v. Brown, 11 O.W.N. 235.

ACCOMMODATION—SURETY.

An accommodation party on a promissory note is a surety towards the person accommodated, but not with regard to his co-endorsers and their juridical relations must be determined according to the principles of suretyship. An indorser by accommodation, who pays the note, can recover, from the maker and the other indorser, only the amount which he paid to the bearer of the note. As a surety he may acquire the claim for which he bound himself, instead of purely paying it, and in such a case he acquires all the rights of the creditor against the debtor.

Jacobs v. Starfilms, 53 Que. S.C. 363.

PROMISSORY NOTE—DEMAND NOTE—ACCOMMODATION ENDORSERS—ADVANCES BY BANK—DEFENCES TO ACTION AGAINST ENDORSER AGREEMENT FOR PAYMENT—EVIDENCE—UNREASONABLE DELAY IN PRESENTMENT—CONTINUING SECURITY—COLLATERAL SECURITY—ASSENT OF ENDORSERS—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, s. 181.

Bank of Ottawa v. Christie, 37 O.L.R. 646, affirming 37 O.L.R. 330.

(§ III B-64)—EFFECT OF ENDORSEMENT CANCELLED WITHOUT AUTHORITY.

The fact that the endorsement on the original note has been erased after a renewal has been given does not result in novation and does not release such endorser from liability thereon in the event of non-payment of the renewal, when such cancellation has been made unintentionally or without the authority of the holder (e.g., by an assistant manager of a bank acting without instructions).

Bank of B.N.A. v. Hart, 2 D.L.R. 810.

(§ III B-65)—ENDORSEMENT AT OR BEFORE DELIVERY.

In Quebec, one who puts his name on the back of a note before its delivery or endorsement by the payee is an endorser "pour aval," and is liable without notice of protest or dishonor. [Patterson v. Pain, 1 L.C.R. 219; Merrit v. Lynch, 3 L.C.J. 276; Parisseau v. Ouellette, M. Cond. R. 69; Narbonne v. Tétreau, 9 L.C.J. 80, and Pratt v. MacDougall, 12 L.C.J. 243, referred to.]

Nicholson v. McKale, 5 D.L.R. 237, 41 Que. S.C. 340.

ENDORSEMENT BY THIRD PARTY—SUBSEQUENT ENDORSEMENT BY PAYEE—LIABILITY—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, s. 131.

When a promissory note is indorsed by a third party, before it is indorsed by the payee, the former is liable as an indorser to the latter. [Robinson v. Mann, 31 Can. S.C.R. 484, followed.]

Grant v. Scott, 50 D.L.R. 250, affirming 32 N.S.R. 360.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ENDORSEMENT PRIOR TO THAT OF PAYEE—LIABILITY OF ENDORSER—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT.

A note was made by A, payable to the order of B, and C. endorser his name on the back of the note before it had been completed by any endorsement by B. C. contended that he was not liable, having endorsed the note previously to the payee, and cited, in support of his contention, the cases of Steele v. McKinlay (1880), 5 App. Cas. 754; Jenkins v. Comber, [1898] 2 Q.B. 108, 67 L.J.Q.B. 780; Shaw v. Holland, [1913] 2 K.B. 15, 82 L.J.K.B. 592; Trimble v. Hill (1879), 5 App. Cas. 342, 49 L.J.P.C. 49.—Held, that under the Bills of Exchange Act, and following Robinson v. Mann 31 S.C.R. 484 (cited by counsel for the plaintiff bank), C. was liable as an endorser within the meaning of the act.

Bank of B.N.A. v. McKinnon, 7 W.W.R. 689.

FAILURE TO ENDORSE BY PAYEE—ENDORSEMENT BY THIRD PARTY—LIABILITY.

A note made by A, payable to the order of B, and not completed by the endorsement of the latter, but endorsed, when still incomplete, by a third party, will render such third party not liable or liable as an endorser of a negotiable instrument. Steele v. McKinlay, 5 App. Cas. 754; Robinson v. Mann, 31 Can. S.C.R. 484, followed.]

Pacific Lumber Agency v. Imperial Timber & Trading Co., 7 W.W.R. 260.

(§ III B-70)—RESTRICTIVE ENDORSEMENTS.

Signing a negotiable instrument in a representative or descriptive character does not per se exempt from personal liability; to escape personal liability an individual must sign in such a way as absolutely to negative his personal liability, and if, through carelessness or otherwise, he fail to do this, he must pay the penalty by being held personally liable. [Wakefield v. Alexander, 17 T.L.R. 217, referred to. See also Falconbridge on Banking and Bills of Exchange, p. 471 et seq.]

Nicholson v. McKale, 5 D.L.R. 237, 41 Que. S.C. 340.

C. DISCHARGE OF ENDORSERS.

(§ III C-75)—DISCHARGE OF ENDORSER.

When a bank draft is purchased from the holder by another bank which forwarded it to the place of payment and delivered it to the paying bank and permitted the latter bank to stamp it as their property in the course of settling balances at the clearing house, the purchasing bank has, by so dealing with it, lost recourse against the party from which it purchased the draft upon his endorsement thereof, and will be held to have surrendered the draft and to have accepted the liability of the paying bank for the clearing-house adjustment, although such liability was not in fact met by reason of the insolvency of and suspension of payment by the paying bank on the same day on which the draft was cleared through the clearing house.

Sterling Bank of Canada v. Laughlin, 1 D.L.R. 383, 3 O.W.R. 643, 21 O.W.R. 221.

DISCHARGE OF ENDORSER—RENEWAL OF NOTE—ALTERATION IN TIME TO RUN.

Where a renewal note endorsed by the same endorser as the earlier note is altered by a change in the time it was to run made after its endorsement and without the endorser's consent, the endorser is discharged from liability on the earlier note as well as on the renewal note.

Great Western Securities & Trust Co. v.

McDonald, 30 D.L.R. 573, 9 S.L.R. 99, 33 W.L.R. 728.

ENDORSER'S RELEASE OF BY LAPSE OF TIME—UNREASONABLE DELAY.

The endorser of a cheque is released by the mere lapse of time if the delay is unreasonable and he need not show that, if the cheque had been presented sooner, it would have been paid. [Firth v. Brooks, 4 L.I.N.S. 467, referred to.]

Harris Abattoir Co. v. Maybee & Wilson, 20 D.L.R. 651, 31 O.L.R. 453.

DISCHARGE OF INDORSER.

The holder of a promissory note payable to order who, on accepting a renewal from the maker, erases the indorser's signature discharges the latter from liability on the former note. Therefore, if by reason of the insufficiency or irregularity of the renewal he wishes to recover the amount his right of action is against the maker only.

Hart v. Bank of B.N.A. 22 Que. K.B. 233.

RETURNING NOTE TO MAKER.

The fact that a bank discounted a note as a renewal of former notes due and accruing due, and that the latter had been transmitted to the makers, does not have the effect of discharging the indorsers of those notes.

Lemaire v. La Banque Nationale, 25 Que. K.B. 259.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE OF AGREEMENT THAT ENDORSER NOT TO BE LIABLE.

In an action against an endorser on a promissory note evidence was held admissible to show that the endorsement was made after maturity and on the agreement that the endorser was not to be liable on the note.

Yorkshire & Canadian Trust v. Scott, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 87.

ACCOMMODATION ENDORSER — SURETY — AGREEMENT TO RELEASE PRINCIPAL DEBTOR—FAILURE TO PROVE—DIVIDEND ON DEBT RECEIVED BY HOLDER OF NOTES FROM TRUSTEE FOR CREDITORS OF PRINCIPAL DEBTOR—RATABLE APPLICATION OF PORTION OF CLAIM SECURED BY NOTES AND UNSECURED PORTION.

Thompson Co. v. Brown, 11 O.W.N. 235.

(§ III C—76)—INDORSEMENT FOR ACCOMMODATION—RENEWAL.

A note was signed by a company in favour of an accommodation payee who indorsed it and deposited it in a bank to the credit of the maker. The bank after its maturity transferred the note to the directors of the company. While it was in possession of the bank the company gave instructions for its payment out of moneys on deposit. The bank did not carry out the instructions, and the note, on request of the company, was renewed from time to time. In these circumstances, and notwithstanding the renewals, the note should be considered as paid and the indorser could not be held liable in an action by a third party, acting as prête-nom of the directors.

Friedman v. Scott, 24 Que. K.B. 21.

(§ III C—77)—DISHONOUR—NOTICE—DUE DILIGENCE.

The Bills of Exchange Act (R.S.C., c. 119) provides the method and time in which notice of dishonour, or a promissory note is to be given; a holder cannot elect to give personal notice if delay is caused thereby.

D. TRANSFERS WITHOUT INDORSEMENT.

(§ III D—79)—TRANSFERS WITHOUT INDORSEMENT—EFFECT OF DELIVERY—ONUS OF PROOF.

Where the plaintiff suing on a promissory note is not the payee or endorsee, the onus is on him to prove that he is the holder if delivery to him is disputed by the defence.

Torney v. McNeil, 18 D.L.R. 10, 28 W.L.R. 563, 7 S.L.R. 224, 6 W.W.R. 1146.

TRANSFER WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT — BY SEPARATE INSTRUMENT—ORDER FOR PAYMENT—VALIDITY.

A written order from the payee directing the maker of a promissory note to pay the amount due thereon to a third person, operates as an assignment, and not merely as an order which is revoked by the death of the signor. [Harding v. Harding, 17 Q.B.D. 442; Farquhar v. Toronto, 12 Gr. 187, and Bank of British North America v. Gibson, 21 O.R. 613, referred to.]

Tyrell v. Murphy, 18 D.L.R. 327, 30 O.L.R. 235.

TRANSFER WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT—HOLDER — DEMAND FOR ENDORSEMENT—EQUIVALENT JUDGMENT—DAMAGES—S. REV. [1906], c. 119 (BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT), ARTS. 56, 61.

The transferee of a Bill of Exchange, payable to the order of one who receives it from a person to whom the first holder had transferred it without endorsement, is not a regular holder according to the terms of art. 56 of the Bills of Exchange Act. It follows that he cannot, by virtue of art. 61 of that Act, compel the endorsement of the first transferor. The right is personal between himself and an immediate transferee. The holder in due course, on the refusal of a transferor to endorse a bill transferred without endorsement, can not only obtain a judgment of the court equivalent to such endorsement, but he has a right of damages.

Grothé v. Juneau, 56 Que. S.C. 193.

IV. Presentment; demand; notice; protest.

A. IN GENERAL; NECESSITY.

(§ IV A—80)—PRESENTMENT—DEMAND—NOTICE—PROTEST.

Presentation of a promissory note is not necessary to hold the maker, and the holder may sue the maker, without presenting it, but if it appears that there were funds available at the place of payment the costs may be awarded against the plaintiff in an action on the note. [Freeman v. Canadian Guardian Life Ins. Co., 17 O.L.R. 296, followed; Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. (1906) c. 119, s. 183; Robertson v. North-west Register Co., 13 W.L.R. 613; Jones v. England, 5 W.L.R. 83, referred to.] Where a promissory note matures payable at a branch bank, which is then the holder thereof, its only duty is to hold the note at the place of payment ready for surrender to the maker upon payment, or to charge it to his account if there is to his credit at such branch bank enough money to pay it.

CHEQUES — PRESENTMENT — DEMAND — NOTICE — PROTEST — CLEARING HOUSE — ITS EFFECT—HOW LIMITED.

The time for presentment of cheques on branch banks in the same city is not modified or extended by reason of the establishment of a clearing house system between the banks and of a clearing house rule of the Canadian Bankers' Association purporting to authorize the holding over of cheques at the bank, where presented through the clearing house, until the day after their receipt by such bank; r. 12 of the Clearing House Regulations is not included in the regulations submitted to and approved by the Treasury Board under the act incorporating the Canadian Bankers' Association 63-64 Vict. (Can.) c. 93, and consequently can have no statutory effect in variance of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Haslip; Bank of B.N.A. v. Elliott, 19 D.L.R. 576, 30 O.L.R. 299.

PROMISSORY NOTES — ACTION AGAINST EXECUTORS OF MAKER—NOTES PAYABLE AT PARTICULAR PLACE — BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, s. 183—NONPRESENTMENT—EFFECT AS AGAINST MAKER—INTEREST—CLAIM OVER AGAINST THIRD PARTY—PROMISE—DEFENCES TO CLAIM ON—CONSIDERATION—BAR BY LIMITATIONS ACT—PAYMENT MADE BY THIRD PARTY—STARTING POINT FOR STATUTORY PERIOD—ABSENCE FROM ONTARIO—“RETURNS” TO ONTARIO—SECTION 52 OF ACT.

The effect of subs. 2 of s. 183, of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119 is that nonpresentation of a note payable at a particular place is no answer to an action against the maker. Freeman v. Canadian Guardian Life Insurance Co., 17 O.L.R. 296, 302, 303, followed. In Oct. 1917, the defendants issued a third party notice and claimed over against the third party upon an undertaking in writing given by him to the original defendant, in Feb. 1906, to pay the notes when due. One of the notes in question was payable in Feb. 1907, and the other in Feb. 1908. There were two defences to this claim—want of consideration for the promise, and that the claim was barred by the Limitations Act:—Held, that the promise was not a guaranty to a creditor that a debtor will pay his debts, but a promise to the original defendant by the third party that, if the defendant gave certain promissory notes to H., the third party would pay them; the defendant did give them upon the faith of the promise, and the signing of them was consideration to support the third party's promise. S. 52 of the Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 45, was relied upon as extending the time for commencing the third party proceedings—the third party having left Ontario in 1910; but it was held, assuming that the third party was resident out of and absent from Ontario when the cause of action against him accrued, that, as he retained his commercial interests in and held land in Ontario, and in every month of the year 1911 spent some days in the province, he “returned” to Ontario, within the meaning of s. 52; and, even if the time for the commencement of the period of limitation had been suspended, the suspension ceased more than six years before the proceedings against him were initiated; and so the defendants' claim against the third party failed. [Moore v. Balch, 1 O.W.R. 824, followed. Boulton v. Langmuir, 24 A.R. 618, referred to.]

Sparks v. Connee, 45 O.L.R. 202.

PRESENTATION—DATE—KNOWLEDGE OF.

A defendant sued as maker of the notes claimed cannot have any interest in knowing the date of their presentation for payment, except in the case provided for by law, in order to establish the amount of damage he has suffered owing to the delay in their presentation for payment.

Chaurest v. Provost, 16 Que. P.R. 153.

(§ IV A—81)—DECLINATORY EXCEPTION—PROMISSORY NOTE—RENEWAL—AMENDMENT—QUE. C.P. 170, 513.

There can be no adjudication on a motion to amend served and filed after the filing and presenting of a declinatory exception until the jurisdiction has been declared by a judgment on that declinatory exception. The fact that the defendant made notes and a draft at Victoriaville, District of Arthabaska, and the fact of electing domicile there for the acceptance of that draft, do not constitute an election of domicile to recover, before the Court of the District of Arthabaska, certain notes given as renewals and dated at Montreal.

Molson's Bank v. Jodoin, 15 Que. P.R. 376.

(§ IV A—85)—FAILURE TO PRESENT—LIABILITY FOR MONEY LENT ENDORSER.

The person who accepts from the debtor the promissory note of another with the debtor's endorsement for the amount of a debt for money lent the debtor, but without an accord or satisfaction in respect of the debt, may still sue on a count for money lent, although he did not protest the note, endorsed or give notice of dishonour thereof, nor will it constitute a defence that the note was not presented at maturity at the bank where it was payable, unless it is also shown that the money to pay it was in the bank awaiting presentment of the note.

COSTS UPON NONPRESENTMENT.

The court, in exercising its discretion as to awarding costs under s. 183 (2) of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, in the case of nonpresentment of a note, should not deprive the plaintiff of his costs unless it appeared that the defendant had been in some way prejudiced by the note not having been presented. [Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bellamy, 25 D.L.R. 133, 8 S.L.R. 381, followed.]

Hayden, Clinton National Bank v. Dixon, 26 D.L.R. 694, 9 A.L.R. 303, 33 W.L.R. 838, 9 W.W.R. 1269. [See also Union Investment Co. v. Grimson, 27 D.L.R. 208.]

JOINT MAKERS OF LIEN NOTE—DEFAULT BY ONE—NOTICE TO OTHER.

The joint maker of a lien note given for the sale of a plow purchased by another is not entitled to notice of default of the principal obligor in order to hold him liable on the note. [Hitchcock v. Humfrey, 12 L.J. C.P. 235; Carter v. White, 25 Ch.D. 666, applied; Black v. Ottoman Bank, 15 Moore P.C. 472, referred to.]

(§ IV A—87)—PROTEST—WAIVER—NOTICE OF DISHONOUR.

Where the endorser of a promissory note, when endorsing, waives protest this imports waiver of notice of dishonour.

Rat Portage Lumber Co. v. Margulius, 15 D.L.R. 577, 24 Man. L.R. 230, 26 W.L.R. 765, 5 W.W.R. 1169. [Affirmed in 16 D.L.R. 477.]

PROMISSORY NOTE—PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT—ORAL PROMISE TO MAKE PAYMENTS—WAIVER.

Waiver of presentment of a promissory note at the place of payment is shown by an oral promise made by the maker after the note fell due to make payments on it at specified times as admitted in his examination for discovery.

Newton v. Husson, 20 D.L.R. 617, 7 S.L.R. 354, 30 W.L.R. 99, 7 W.W.R. 726.

INDORSER—PRESENTMENT—FOR PAYMENT—NOTICE—WAIVER.

Held, under s. 106, subs. (b) 2, of the Bills of Exchange Act, that an endorser of a promissory note who being aware of an omission to give him due notice of dishonour, gives a written promise to pay the note thereby waives the notice and is liable on the note.

Martin Hargreaves Co. v. Wrigley, 30 W.L.R. 92, 7 S.L.R. 415.

NOTICE OF DISHONOUR—WAIVER—INDORSER — PROMISE TO PAY — STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

If there is an unequivocal promise to pay or admission of liability on the part of the endorser of a promissory note he is deemed to have waived notice of dishonour. Two letters written by the endorser of a note to the holders, in one of which he said, "I hope you can give an extension of time," and in the other, "I think I can promise that you will receive it"—that is, the amount of the note—"in a short time," were held, sufficient, both as to admission of liability and promise to pay, to constitute a waiver of notice. The onus of showing that the defendant gave the promise or made the admission under a mistake of fact was upon him, and he had failed to discharge it. The Statute of Frauds had no application. [Britton v. Milson, 19 A.R. (Ont.) 96, distinguished.]

Swift Canadian Co. v. Duff & Alway, 35 O.L.R. 163, 11 O.W.N. 140.

B. SUFFICIENCY.

(§ IV B—90)—PROMISE TO PAY.

A promise to pay a promissory note after it has fallen due is prima facie evidence of presentment. [Deering v. Hayden, 3 Man. L.R. 219, followed.]

Sparrow v. Corbett, 18 B.C.R. 356.

CHEQUE—NOTICE OF DISHONOUR—DELAY IN PRESENTATION.

Held, the notice of dishonour of the cheque endorsed by defendant at Ormstown must, under the special circumstances of this case, be considered valid and legal although the same was addressed to defendant at Ste. Martine, whereas said defendant, at the time and long before, resided at Ste. Clothilde. 2. The loss resulting from the tardy presentation of a cheque, when there were sufficient funds to pay the same at the time of the making thereof, must be borne by the party who is at fault. Under the evidence of record in the present instance, such loss must be borne by defendant and in consequence plaintiff's action must be maintained and the action in warranty dismissed with costs.

Sorel v. Hebert, 24 Rev. de Jur. 473.

REASONABLE TIME—DELAY—EXCUSE.

When each of two parties is holder of a note endorsed by the other, the holder of the note first maturing cannot excuse his failure to protest it within a reasonable delay on the ground that then the note would become due before his own which would have been unjust to the other party.

Nadeau v. Provost, 52 Que. S.C. 387.

(§ IV B—91)—NOTICE OF DISHONOUR—BY MAIL—MISCARRIAGE.

Where a notice of dishonour of a promissory note is duly addressed and posted at the place where the note is dated, as provided by R.S.C. 1906, c. 119 ss. 103 and 104, the sender is deemed to have given due notice of dishonour, notwithstanding any miscarriage by the post office.

Banque D'Hochelega v. Hanson, 53 Que. S.C. 266.

CHEQUE—BILL—PRESENTMENT BY MAIL.

R. sent to the C. Co. a cheque drawn on the E. Security Co. (not a chartered bank), which was given by the C. Co. to a bank for collection. The bank sent the cheque by mail to the E. Security Co., who debited R's account with the amount thereof, returned the cheque to R. and sent to the collecting bank a draft for the amount drawn on a second bank, which was dishonoured. Shortly afterwards the E. Security Co. failed with heavy liabilities. Held, that the cheque was not a cheque within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act, but a bill of exchange. [Trunkfield v. Proctor, 2 O.L.R. 326, followed]; there was a due presentation of the bill for payment by sending it through the post office. [R. v. Bank of Montreal, 1 Can. Ex. 154, referred to]; the draft on the second bank was not accepted as payment; that R. must bear the loss.

(§ IV B—92)—CHEQUE—"BANK"—DELAY IN PRESENTATION—DISCHARGE.

F., in settlement of a claim for material supplied, sent to R. a cheque drawn on the Dominion Trust Company. R. did not present the cheque for five days. Upon presentation it was dishonoured, the Dominion Trust Co. having suspended payment. Held, that if the Dominion Trust Co. was an incorporated bank or a savings bank so as to come within the definition of bank contained in the Bills of Exchange Act, F. was discharged as to the amount of actual damage suffered by him through the delay in presentation, and R., under s. 166, subs. (b) of the Act, became a creditor in lieu of F. of the Dominion Trust Co. to that amount, but that if the Dominion Trust Co. was not a "bank" within the above definition, not only was F. discharged in respect of the bill, but he was also discharged from his liability on the original consideration for which it was given.

Revelstoke Sawmill Co. v. Fawcett, 8 W.W.R. 477.

(§ IV B—93)—DEMAND NOTE.

To determine what is a reasonable delay for presentation for payment of a note payable on demand, it is necessary to take into account local customs, the character of the note and the special circumstances accompanying the making of it. A demand note for a loan, indorsed by relatives of the maker and providing that interest will be payable semi-annually, although presented for payment and protested more than two years from its date, is nevertheless presented within a reasonable delay and the indorsers are not discharged from their liability.

Vermette v. Fortin, 52 Que. S.C. 229.
(§ IV B—94)—PRESENTMENT—PLACE—NOTE PAYABLE AT BANK—NECESSITY OF PRESENTATION AT.

An action cannot be maintained against the makers of a promissory note which was not presented for payment at a bank designated in the body of the instrument as the place of payment. [Warner v. Simon-Kaye Syndicate, 27 N.S.R. 340, followed; Sanders v. St. Helens Smelting Co., 39 N.S.R. 370, distinguished; Merchants Bank v. Henderson, 28 O.R. 360, considered.] Albert v. Marshall, 15 D.L.R. 40, 48 N.S.R. 34, 13 E.L.R. 514.

STIPULATION AS TO PLACE—EFFECT OF NON-COMPLIANCE.

Under s. 183 of the Bills of Exchange Act (Can.), a failure to make presentation of payment of a note at the place specified therein does not necessarily discharge the maker from liability on the note; but if upon an action on the note before presentation it appears that there were sufficient funds available at the place of payment to satisfy the note if it had been presented, the court may award the costs of the action against the plaintiff. [Union Bank v. MacCullough, 7 D.L.R. 694, followed; see Annotation, 15 D.L.R. 41.] Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bellamy, 25 D.L.R. 133, 8 S.L.R. 381, 33 W.L.R. 8, 9 W.W.R. 587.

MISPRESENTMENT—COSTS.

If no place of payment is specified in the body of the note, presentation for payment is not necessary in order to render the maker liable, notwithstanding art. 1152, C.C. Que. and in such a case it is the duty of the debtor to seek his creditor to make payment. Even where the note is made payable at a particular place and a suit is brought without presentation, the maker is not discharged, but the costs are left at the discretion of the court.

Flechlme Sign Co. v. Ettenberg, 50 Que. S.C. 308.

PRESENTMENT—SUFFICIENCY—PAYABLE AT BANK.

Held, following Jones v. England, 5 W.L.R. 83, that, unless the note was presented for payment, the maker was not liable upon it; but, there being no evidence that the note was not presented for payment at the bank at which it was payable, which was the same bank to which it had been endorsed, it might be assumed that the note was there when it fell due, ready for delivery to the maker upon payment; and this would constitute a sufficient presentation to comply with s. 183.

Johnston v. L'Heureux, 6 W.W.R. 53, 27 W.L.R. 21.

PLACE OF PRESENTMENT—COSTS.

Want of presentation of a note where payable is not a defence in an action against the maker, and the plaintiff will not be deprived of his costs unless funds were deposited at the place of payment to meet the notes. [Bank of Commerce v. Bellamy, 25 D.L.R. 133, followed.]

Anderson v. Hiested, 34 W.L.R. 474, 10 W.V.R. 636.

(§ IV B-96)—PROMISSORY NOTE FOR $200—SUIT IN COUNTY COURT—NOTE DEPOSITED IN BANK—NOT PAID—PROTESTED BY BANK—UNNECESSARY—NOTARIAL FEES—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, s. 109—COMPETENCE OF DIVISION COURT—COSTS—SET-OFF—COSTS OF APPEAL.

Under s. 109 of the Bills of Exchange Act, the makers of a note are bound without protest, and so a notice of protest forwarded to them by the holder's agent is unnecessary. Notarial fees for such protest cannot be added to the amount of the note on suit so as to bring it within County Court jurisdiction.

(§ IV B-97)—PARTNERSHIP NOTE—JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.

The promissory note sued upon was signed in the name of what was said to be a partnership composed of the two defendants.—Held, upon the evidence, that the defendant R.L. was not a partner of the defendant F.L., and was not interested in the business carried on under the name referred to, and had not held herself out to the plaintiff as a partner; and, as against the defendant R.L., the action failed.—Held, that the plaintiff's rights were governed by s. 140 of the Bills of Exchange Act; that s. 61 did not apply; and that no re-endorsement was necessary in order to give the plaintiff the right to sue. [Harrop v. Fisher, 30 L.J.C.P. 283, distinguished; Black v. Strickland, 3 O.R. 217, and Moyer v. Jadis, 1 Mood. & R. 247, followed.]

Johnston v. L'Heureux, 6 W.V.R. 53, 27 W.L.R. 21.

C. NOTICE OF PROTEST: CERTIFICATE.

(§ IV C-100)—FAILURE TO GIVE NOTICE—LOSS OF THRESHER'S LIEN—DISCHARGE.

Orders for the payment of money due for threshing, given in connection with an assignment of a thresher's lien as part of the purchase price for a threshing engine, are inland bills of exchange within the meaning of s. 17 of the Bills of Exchange Act, though such orders contained a statement of the transaction; and where no notice of their dishonour is given to the drawer and the holder fails to seize the grain under the lien thereby occasioning the loss of the drawer's security, the latter will thereby be discharged from liability and entitled to have the amount represented by them credited on the purchase price.

International Harvester Co. v. Smith, 26 D.L.R. 102, 9 S.L.R. 46, 33 W.L.R. 540, 9 W.V.R. 1033.

WAIVER OF PROTEST—ORAL PROOF.

An agreement to waive protest of a bill payable to order can be proved by witnesses, even if the consideration for the bill is not connected with commercial matters.

PRESENTMENT — DEMAND — NOTICE — PROTEST — PROMISSORY NOTE — ENDORSEMENT — ADDRESS GIVEN BY ENDORSER — NOTICE OF PROTEST — MAILING TO IMPROPER ADDRESS.

Rosenberg v. Johnson, 40 Que. S.C. 511.

D. DAMAGES FOR NONACCEPTANCE, NON-PAYMENT AND PROTEST.

(§ IV D-104)—CHEQUE—UNREASONABLE DELAY—DISCHARGE OF MAKER.

The maker of a cheque is discharged from his liability if the agent of the payee, instead of insisting on prompt payment out of funds then available, allows an unreasonable time to elapse, and then accepts a draft, which is dishonoured, on another bank, immediately after which the drawee goes into insolvency.

Rogers v. Calgary Brewing & Malting Co., 40 D.L.R. 238, 56 Can. S.C.R. 165, [1918] 1 W.V.R. 965, reversing 34 D.L.R. 252, 19 S.L.R. 246, [1917] 2 W.V.R. 344, 33 D.L.R. 173.

V. Rights and liabilities of transferees.

A. EXTENT OF RIGHTS AND PROTECTION GENERALLY.

(§ V A-105)—EXTENT OF RIGHTS AND PROTECTION GENERALLY.

A bank taking a promissory note, in the regular course of business, as collateral for an overdraft and without notice of any arrangement between the maker thereof and the payee, who is the depositor of the bank, is entitled to recover on the note from the maker; although as between the original parties to the note there could be no recovery against the maker by the payee by reason of failure of consideration. [Glegg v. Bromley, 81 L.J.K.B. 1081, and Bank of Commerce v. Wait, 1 A.L.R. 68, distinguished.]

Bank of Nova Scotia v. Harvey, 8 D.L.R. 476.

STRIKING OUT SPECIAL ENDORSEMENT BY HOLDER.

Where the plaintiff was endorsee for value of a promissory note but subsequently endorsed the note specially to a third party, in an action brought by plaintiff on the note as holder and owner, the court may at any time before judgment, allow the plaintiff to strike out the special endorsement, on a proper shewing, negating any interest in such third party.

CONDITIONAL ACCEPTANCE — KNOWLEDGE OF CONDITIONS.

A bank receiving a bill of exchange before maturity, with knowledge of the conditions as to its acceptance, does not stand in the position of a holder in due course, and can only claim on it by way of equitable assignment.

Standard Bank v. Wettlaufer, 23 D.L.R. 507, 33 O.L.R. 441.

PROMISSORY NOTE—TRANSFERRED AFTER MATURITY—SUBJECT TO EQUITIES ATTACHING—SOLICITOR'S FEES—TAXATION OF COSTS.

A promissory note given by the client for solicitor's fees is subject to the equities attaching to it in the hands of the original payee when transferred after maturity; and where the costs would be subject to taxation the transferee will be entitled to judgment only for the amount at which the costs will be taxed on a reference for taxation, but not exceeding the amount of the note.

Newton v. Hussion, 29 D.L.R. 617, 7 S.L.R. 354, 39 W.L.R. 99, 7 W.W.R. 726.

NOT HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.

The transferee of a note, not a holder in due course, who is ready and willing to perform the payee's contract for a transfer of land, for which the note was given, is entitled to enforce payment thereon against the maker of the note.

Quebec Bank v. Mah Wah, 33 D.L.R. 133, 16 A.L.R. 413, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1246. [See 34 D.L.R. 191, 10 A.L.R. 417.]

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE — CONSIDERATION — UNFAIR DEALING — SETTING ASIDE TRANSACTION FOR FRAUD.

Bank of B.N.A. v. McComb, 21 Man. L.R. 58, 18 W.L.R. 94.

REMEDY—RIGHT TO SUE.

Under s. 61 of the Bills of Exchange Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 119), the transferee of a bill or note, before indorsement, is in the position of an equitable assignee of a chose in action, and may sue in the name of the transferor, and also enforce by action his right to have the instrument indorsed to him.

Morgan v. Bank of Toronto, 35 D.L.R. 698, 39 O.L.R. 281.

SETTLEMENT OF BUSINESS TRANSACTION — NOTES OF THIRD PARTIES GIVEN IN SETTLEMENT — PERSONAL NOTE GIVEN AS SECURITY — ACTION ON PERSONAL NOTE BEFORE EXHAUSTING MEANS OF COLLECTING ON OTHERS.

For v. Hiltz, 45 D.L.R. 761, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 961.

ACCOMMODATION MAKER — EXONERATION.

An accommodation maker of a note is entitled to exoneration by the principal debtor from liability on the note, even before payment of the note is demanded, and

Can. Dig.—16.

may obtain a declaration to that effect in an action against the principal debtor.

Ramey v. Marcus, 39 D.L.R. 725, 52 N.S.R. 8.

JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY—COLLECTION.

A promissory note payable to order may be signed by several persons and in that case they are held jointly and severally liable. If the note commences with the words "I promise" the makers are jointly and severally bound. The holder of a note for collection has the right to sue on it.

Audette v. Heald, 24 Rev. Leg. 230.

JOINT OWNERSHIP.

One who is half owner of a note cannot dispossess the owner of the other half who holds the note.

Beauvage v. Brunette and Sorel, 54 Que. S.C. 383.

EFFECT OF INSOLVENCY.

A transferee, under whose name the insolvent is disguised, has no action for the payment of a note made in favour of the insolvent estate. One who sets up that he is not a holder according to law, does not take advantage of another's right, but of his own right to pay only to the creditor or to some one authorized to receive payment, as to a holder vested with the right of action.

Drouin v. Bertrand, 24 Rev. de Jur. 29.

(§ V A—111)—PROMISSORY NOTE—ENDORSEE AFTER MATURITY AND DISHONOUR—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE, WHEN.

The endorsee of a promissory note after maturity and dishonour is a holder in due course if the endorser from whom he took it obtained it for value before maturity and without notice of any equity attaching to the note in favour of the maker.

Shore v. Mead, 20 D.L.R. 813, 29 W.L.R. 283.

PROMISSORY NOTE — NEGOTIABLE SECURITY — ACCOMMODATION.

Hebert v. Poirier, 40 Que. S.C. 405.

RIGHTS AFTER MATURITY — EQUITIES — RENEWAL.

A note payable to order, endorsed and deposited in a bank by the payee, for collection, is held by the bank in trust for her; if the husband obtains possession of the note after maturity and dishonour, he takes subject to the trust, and any renewal obtained by him does not change the title.

Roblin v. Vanaalstine, 38 D.L.R. 159, 40 O.L.R. 99.

PAYABLE ON DEMAND — DEMAND MADE — PAYMENT ON ACCOUNT — PAYMENT VALID — ENDORSER FOR VALUE TAKES SUBJECT TO SUCH PAYMENT.

An endorser for value takes a promissory note, payable on demand, subject to any prior payments made on account to the drawee provided that the drawee has demanded payment of the note, and such note has so become overdue. [Glasscock v. Balls,

24 Q.B.D. 13; Borough v. White, 4 B. & C. 325, 107 E.R. 1080, referred to.]

HOLDER AFTER MATURITY — EQUITIES — FRAUD.

The maker of a note payable to order can set up against a third party, who has become holder since its maturity, all the defenses which he would be entitled to set up against the payee, especially the procuring of the note under false representations.

Labrecque v. Dombrowski, 49 Que. S.C. 289.

(§ V A—112) — TRANSFER BY RESTRICTIVE ENDORSEMENT.

The holder of a note to whom it was transferred in breach of a condition written on its back that it would be held by the secretary of the payee until due, occupies no superior position to that of the payee and cannot enforce payment of the note if it was fraudulently obtained from the maker. [Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Gillis, 3 O.W.N. 359, affirmed on appeal.]

Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Gillis, 2 D.L.R. 250, 3 O.W.N. 646, 21 O.W.R. 224.

TRANSFER WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT.

One who, before maturity, took a promissory note as security for a loan made the payee, is not a holder in due course for value without notice, where, at the request of the latter, the note was not endorsed to him until after maturity; the effect of the transaction was that such note was in the hands of such holder, subject to all equities between the maker and the payee.

Lilly v. Robertson, 4 D.L.R. 852, 21 W.L.R. 585.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF TRANSFEREE — TRANSFER WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT — ACTION BY TRANSFEREE.

If the payee of a promissory note in writing directs the maker to pay the amount due thereon to a third person, the latter, although not an endorsee of the note, becomes the beneficial owner of the money due thereon, and is entitled to hold the note against all the world; and the absence of an endorsement is no bar to his right to recover the consideration; since he is in a position to deliver the note to the maker on payment.

TRANSFEREE WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT — LIABILITY — HOW DETERMINED.

Where the holder of a promissory note delivers the note without indorsement to a third party as collateral security for a debt, the latter cannot sue the original maker on the note, in the absence of the indorsement. The Court of King's Bench (Man.), may, in a proper case, when the transferor is a party to the suit, direct the indorsement to be made, and then proceed to determine the liability of the maker, but the County Court has no power to do so. [The Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, s. 61, considered. See also Canada Food Co. v. Stanford (N.S.), 28 D.L.R. 689.]

(§ V A—113) — FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

An overdraft in a depositor's bank account is a sufficient consideration to constitute the bank a "bona fide purchaser without notice" of promissory notes payable to its customer and transferred by the latter to the bank as collateral security for such overdraft.

Bank of Nova Scotia v. Harvey, 8 D.L.R. 476.

(§ V A—115)—PROMISSORY NOTE—TRANSFER TO BANK BY PAYEE BEFORE MATURITY—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, s. 54(2).

The defendant made a promissory note for $250 in favour of a customer of the plaintiff bank; the note was transferred by the customer to the bank as collateral security to a draft for $150, which was discounted by the bank for the customer, the proceeds, $149.60, being placed to his credit. This draft was not accepted or paid. The customer had in fact no right to pledge the note, but should have given it up to the defendant.—Held, upon the evidence, that the note was completed by the defendant and delivered as a promissory note, and was given to the bank, before maturity, for value, without notice of any defect; and so the bank became the holder in due course, and was entitled to recover from the defendant thereon to the extent of its lien, i.e., $149.60 and interest: Bills of Exchange Act, s. 54, subs. 2.

Sterling Bank of Canada v. Zuber, 32 O.L.R. 123, 7 O.W.N. 189.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—AGENT.

An agent, prête-nom, the holder of a promissory note, has an interest sufficient to maintain an action and obtain judgment thereon; the holder of a promissory note, whether he has given value therefor or not who is the transferee of a holder in due course, has himself all the rights of such holder in due course.

Desjardins v. Maccubbin, 50 Que. S.C. 307.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—PRESUMPTIONS AS TO.

The law presumes any holder of a bill of exchange to be a holder in due course, to have given value for it, and the obligation arising from the bill of exchange to have a lawful cause.

Chaurest v. Provost, 16 Que. P.R. 153.

RIGHTS OF BONA FIDE HOLDERS.

In an action against the several makers of a joint and several promissory note, the plaintiff's failure to shew that all the de-defendants signed the note will not preclude him recovering against those shewn to have signed it. Peters v. Perras, 42 Can. S.C.R. 214, followed as to sufficiency of evidence to shew the plaintiffs to be holders in due course.

Park v. Pullishy, 3 A.L.R. 340.

PROMISSORY NOTE — SALE OF LAND — NOTE GIVEN TO VENDOR — NEGOTIATED BY VENDOR BEFORE MATURITY TO HIS VENDOR UNDER ANOTHER AGREEMENT OF SALE — BOTH AGREEMENTS CANCELED — RECOVERY ON NOTE.

The defendants one of whom signed for accommodation of the other, gave to one S. a promissory note as collateral to an agreement for the sale of land from S. to one of the defendants. S., before maturity negotiated the note to the plaintiff on account of an agreement of sale of certain land from the plaintiff and one T. to S. Both agreements of sale were subsequently cancelled and the respective purchasers executed quitclaim deeds to the respective vendors. The note had not been paid. Held (distinguishing Marckel v. Taplin, 6 S.L.R. 77, 4 W.W.R. 1292, and Wilson v. Abbott, 7 S.L.R. 197, 6 W.W.R. 1097) that as the plaintiff had taken the note before maturity for value the defendants were liable thereon.

Shatsky v. Krosnuk, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 75.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE — WHEN.

An action upon two promissory notes:—Held, on the facts, the plaintiffs were not holders in due course for valuable consideration, and the plaintiffs' claim was dismissed with costs.

First State Bank v. Clouthier, 31 W.L.R. 504.

(3 V A—116)—ACCOMMODATION CHEQUE—RIGHTS OF BONA FIDE HOLDER—BANK.

A person is not relieved from liability on his accommodation cheque given to the manager of a bank to enable him to buy shares of the bank which the bank paid in good faith; nor will the manager's promise to reimburse the maker of the cheque for moneys so advanced affect such liability, where the transaction was carried on without the knowledge or authority of the bank.

Fox v. Patrick, 14 O.W.N. 263, affirming 13 O.W.N. 490.

RIGHTS OF BONA FIDE HOLDER—ACCOMMODATION PAPERS.

Held, that, where a person signed a promissory note for the accommodation of the maker and the said person entrusted the custody thereof to the maker, a bona fide holder who acquired the said note from the latter, obtained thereby an incontestable title thereto and property therein, although in parting with it the maker acted without authority or in breach of express instructions. [London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, [1892] A.C. 212; Lloyds Bank v. Cooke, [1907] 1 K.B. 794; Ray v. Wilson, 45 Can. S.C.R. 421, followed.]

(3 V A—118)—RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF TRANSFEREE—NOTE PROCURED BY FRAUD — NOTICE — ONUS — RIGHTS OF BONA FIDE HOLDERS.

Where a promissory note given for the purchase price of certain property is obtained from the maker by the fraud and deceit of the payee in the inception of the transaction, such fraud being duly established, the burden of proving want of notice of the fraud is on a plaintiff claiming as bona fide holder for value without notice under such payee's endorsement before maturity. An indorsee, who took a promissory note before maturity in good faith for value and without notice of defects in the holder's title, is not, in the absence of circumstances sufficient to put him on inquiry, affected by the fraud and deceit of the holder in obtaining the signatures of the makers. Where a promissory note given for the purchase price of certain property is obtained from the maker by the fraud and deceit of the payee, while such fraud in the inception of the transaction precludes such payee from recovering, yet his endorsee taking the note in due course before maturity without notice of the fraud may recover.

Langley v. Joudrey, 15 D.L.R. 10, 47 N. S.R. 451, 13 E.L.R. 432, affirming 13 D.L.R. 563, 13 E.L.R. 135.

NOTE PROCURED BY FRAUD—ONUS ON ENDORSEE.

Where the promissory note is shewn to have been obtained by fraud, the plaintiff, claiming as endorsee, must prove that before its maturity he, in good faith, gave valuable consideration therefor. Falconbridge on Banking and Bills of Exchange, 2nd ed., 438, referred to.

KNOWLEDGE OF EQUITIES—SALE.

The holder of a bill in due course for value is not affected by his knowledge at the time he acquired the bill that it was given for a chattel so defective as to justify the rejection thereof by the purchaser.

McLarty v. Dixon, 7 O.W.N. 347.

FRAUD — WANT OF CONSENT.

Although the holder in due course of a bill of exchange or promissory note is not as a rule subject to a plea of fraud, it is not so when the defence is want of consent or of capacity. One who, believing that he signs a receipt, accepts drafts upon himself is not bound by his signature and the drafts are a nullity.

Coté v. Brunelle, 51 Que. S.C. 35.

A third party the holder in due course of a note cannot obtain payment from the maker when the making of the note was obtained by fraud. [R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, s. 56-8.]

Lamothe v. Lafontaine, 18 Que. P.R. 184.

(§ V A—121) — PROMISSORY NOTE — UNENDORSED — LEFT FOR COLLECTION WITH AGENT — THEFT OF — PAYMENT MADE TO PERSON PRESENTING — DISCHARGE OF MAKER.

Where an unendorsed promissory note, which has been placed in the hands of a solicitor for collection, is stolen from his office and the maker pays the note in good faith to the person presenting it without notice of or reasonable cause to suspect that it has been stolen, such payment relieves the maker from liability on the note.

LOST CHEQUE FOR WAGES — RIGHTS OF BANK UPON FORGED ENDORSEMENT.

There can be no recovery for the amount of wages represented by a cheque which was lost by the payee and later came into the possession of a bank upon a forged indorsement, where for the protection of the maker the payee is unable to deliver possession of the cheque.

Kelly v. C.P.R. Co., 25 D.L.R. 79, 22 B.C.R. 231, 32 W.L.R. 891, 9 W.W.R. 531.

(§ V A—122) — HOLDER IN DUE COURSE — ILLEGAL CONSIDERATION.

Even when a promissory note has been given for illegal consideration and contrary to good morals, the person to whom it has been transferred in good faith, before its maturity for valuable consideration, who is not aware of the circumstances in which the note was made nor of the illegality with which it is affected, is a holder in due course and is entitled to recover the amount thereof.

Dubuc v. St. Vincent, 50 Que. S.C. 288.

B. WHO ARE PROTECTED AS BONA FIDE PURCHASERS.

(§ V B—130) — PURCHASER IN GOOD FAITH WITHOUT NOTICE FOR VALUE BEFORE MATURITY — ENDORSER WITHOUT ANY TITLE — EFFECT.

Under the Bills of Exchange Act R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, a person taking a bill of exchange or promissory note before maturity in good faith without notice of any defect and giving value for same obtains a valid title though he takes it from one who has none by reason of his having obtained it solely for collection on behalf of the previous holder. [London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, [1892] A.C. 201; Venables v. Baring Bros., [1892] 3 Ch. D. 527; Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C.B. 161, Appeal.]

Campbell v. Ghiz, 20 D.L.R. 27, 7 S.L.R. 326, 30 W.L.R. 95, 7 W.W.R. 703.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE — NOTE MARKED "RENEWAL" — BANKABLE NOTE.

A promissory note marked "renewable," and indorsed to a bona fide transferee before its maturity does not prevent such transferee from being a holder in due course because of his failure to make inquiries to ascertain the title of the transferor, particularly where the note was originally given as "bankable paper" with power of discounting it.

KNOWLEDGE OF MAKER'S RELATIONSHIP — SURETY — DUTY AS TO.

When the holder in due course of a promissory note has knowledge that the maker is in reality a surety only for a third person, the creditor, after notice, is bound to do nothing to the prejudice of the surety. [Rouse v. Bradford Banking Co., [1894] A.C. 586, applied.]

PROMISSORY NOTE — HOLDER FOR VALUE — ENDORSATION BY PAYEE — ALLEGED CANCELLATION — BURDEN OF PROOF.

Under c. 144 Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, the party claiming to be the holder of a promissory note for value, which was alleged to be endorsed by the payee, whose signature was apparently cancelled, must prove that such cancellation was made unintentionally or by mistake, in order to be found the rightful holder of the note in question.

Royal Bank of Canada v. Allen, 49 D.L.R. 572, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 1063.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE — COLLECTION.

The fact that a note is transferred to a third party for collection is no obstacle to that third party being able to be the regular holder of it and to seek payment.

Gingras v. Chaffee, 49 Que. S.C. 42.

ALTERATION — BLANK — TIME OF PAYMENT.

When a note is transferred to a third person for the purpose of bringing suit and recovering judgment such person may sue in his own name. It is not an essential alteration of a note in which a blank was left after the word "one," the date of payment not being stated, if the holder fills in such blank by adding the word "month," provided that the time of maturity of the note is not shortened.

Giguère v. Pagnuelo, 53 Que. S.C. 63.

PURCHASER AT JUDICIAL SALE.

One who purchases a note given for a subscription for shares, at a public judicial sale by a liquidator of the book debts of the company in liquidation, can transfer it to a third party at prête-nom and the latter becomes the regular holder of it.

Boulet v. Hudon, 51 Que. S.C. 29.

(§ V B—132)—RELIANCE ON SECURITY.

The fact that the assignment of property covered by a lien note transferred to a bank, as security for money borrowed from the bank by the payee thereof, was invalid, would be no bar to the right of the bank to recover on the note itself. [National Bank of Australasia v. Cherry, L.R. 3 P.C. 299, specially referred to.]

Alfred Thien v. The Bank of B.N.A., 4 D.L.R. 388, 4 A.L.R. 228, 21 W.L.R. 192, 1 W.W.R. 795.

(§ V B—135)—FACTS PUTTING ON INQUIRY—ACTION BY INDORSEE—HOLDING IN DUE COURSE—SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.

In an action on a note brought by an indorsee and defended on the ground that the note was obtained through fraud, it appearing, among other things, that the indorsee knew that liability on similar notes taken by the same payee had been defended on the same ground, and that in taking the note he knew that interest payments were in arrears and made no inquiry as to the circumstances under which it was given; the indorsee is not prima facie a holder in due course. [Jones v. Gordon, 2 App. Cas. 616, referred to.]

Vaughan v. Schneider, 11 D.L.R. 290, 24 W.L.R. 313, 4 W.W.R. 582.

BANK—KNOWLEDGE OF FRAUD—DIFFICULT COLLECTION AS CIRCUMSTANCE.

The mere fact that a bank, when acquiring a note, knew officers of other banks which have had difficulty in collecting from the same makers does not raise a presumption that the bank had acquired information that the notes were tainted with fraud; and even if a bank has knowledge at the time it acquires a note that other banks had experienced difficulty in collecting other notes of a similar character, that fact would not be sufficient to disentitle the bank to recover as a holder in due course. [S. 58 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, considered; Peters v. Perras, 42 Can. S.C.R. 244, 1 A.L.R. 201, referred to.]

Hayden Clinton National Bank v. Dixon, 25 D.L.R. 694, 9 A.L.R. 303, 33 W.L.R. 838, 9 W.W.R. 1269.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—BANKING TRANSACTION—KNOWLEDGE OF FRAUD—FACTS PUTTING ON INQUIRY.

A promissory note acquired in an ordinary banking transaction, as collateral security for advances does not necessitate the making of inquiries about it, unless there is something which might reasonably lead to suspect something wrong with the particular note; the fact that a banker, before acquiring the note, knew that similar notes were tainted with fraud or that in some of the actions brought upon them the defence of fraud was raised, does not reasonably lead to suspect that all such notes were tainted with fraud as affecting the right to recover as a holder in due course. [Oldstadt v. Lineham, 1 A.L.R. 416; Jones v. Gordon, 2 App. Cas. 616, distinguished.]

Union Investment v. Grimston, 27 D.L.R. 208, 9 A.L.R. 554, 33 W.L.R. 845, 9 W.W.R. 1430.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—ALTERATION—RATE OF INTEREST—BLANKS—ESTOPPEL.

A bill is not lacking in any "material particular" within the meaning of s. 31 of the Bills of Exchange Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 119) because a space reserved for a rate of interest is unfilled, and filling in a rate, after the maker has signed the note, is a material alteration, if without his authority, which vitiates the note except against a holder in due course. One who acquires the note with knowledge of such alteration is not a holder in due course, nor can he hold the maker liable thereon on the ground of estoppel.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Robertson, 36 D.L.R. 166, 28 Man. L.R. 54, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1110.

ALTERATION—"APPARENT."

An unauthorized insertion of an interest clause in a promissory note after the making thereof, is a material alteration, but will not affect the rights of a holder in due course acquiring the note after the insertion if the alteration is not "apparent" within the meaning of s. 145 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119.

Black v. Collin, 36 D.L.R. 665, 28 Man. L.R. 179, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 225.

AGREEMENT—RESCISSON—FRAUD—PROMISSORY NOTE TRANSFERRED UNDER AGREEMENT—RECOVERED BY PAPER FROM TRANSFEREE FOR LESS THAN FACE VALUE—PAYOR'S KNOWLEDGE OF TRANSACTION—TRANSFEROR'S RIGHT TO RECOVER.

An action by the liquidator of the Acadia, Limited, of Vancouver for rescission of an agreement between that company and the Union Trading Co., of Seattle, on the ground of fraud and that D., one of the directors of the Acadia, who was in wrongful possession of a promissory note given by him, was dismissed. Held, on appeal, reversing the decision of Hunter C.J.B.C., that the scheme whereby the agreement was brought about was conceived in fraud and it should be set aside. Held, further, that D, though not a party to the fraud, having obtained the note from the wrongful holder with full knowledge of the facts, was liable to the plaintiff for its full amount.

Schetky & Acadia v. Cochrane, 26 B.C.R. 257.

PRIOR HOLDERS—AGREEMENT.

The holder in good faith of a promissory note is not bound to take account of the relations between the successive holders prior to the discount of it made by him and he cannot be bound by agreements which were made among them.

Versailles, Vidricaire & Boulais Co. v. Mississiquoi Lantz Corp., 51 Que. S.C. 435.

(§ V B—137) — TAKEN FROM TRUSTEE — PROMISSORY NOTE—EQUITY ATTACHING TO, IN HANDS OF HOLDER ACQUIRING AFTER MATURITY — RENEWALS — ADVANCE—NOTICE OF CLAIM—EVIDENCE.

Binder v. Mahon, 1 D.L.R. 924, 3 O.W.N. 848, 21 O.W.R. 695.

(§ V B—138) — RIGHTS OF HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—ACQUIRING NOTE FOR SHARES FROM OFFICER OF CORPORATION—KNOWLEDGE.

(§ V B—145) — RIGHTS OF HOLDER FOR VALUE — CONSIDERATION — ANTECEDENT DEBT.

Bank of Montreal v. Pope, 31 D.L.R. 238.

COLLATERAL SECURITY—BANK.

Promissory notes held by a bank as collateral security, though given by the maker as renewals, under pressure of legal proceedings by the bank, entitle the bank, where no fraud is shown, to recover from the maker as a holder for value, to the extent of its lien. (S. 54 (2) of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906 c. 119.)

Bank of Montreal v. Weisdepp, 34 D.L.R. 26, 24 B.C.R. 73, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 615.

CHEQUE TAKEN FOR PRE-EXISTING DEBT—PRESUMPTION OF CONDITIONAL PAYMENT—DISHONOUR—REVIVAL OF DEBT—IF GIVEN IN EXCHANGE FOR GOODS—BARTER WITH ALL RISKS.

If a bill, note, or cheque is taken for or on account of a pre-existing debt, the presumption is that it is only a conditional payment, and if it is dishonoured the debt revives; but, if it is given in exchange for goods or other securities sold at the time, the transaction amounts to a barter of the bill with all its risks.

McGlynn v. Hastie, 46 D.L.R. 20, 44 O.L.R. 190.

(§ V B—147) — RENEWALS—TAKEN AS COLLATERAL SECURITY—ORIGINAL NOTE FOR SAME DEBT HOLDING OTHER PARTIES.

A "renewal" of a promissory note under the terms of a security given in respect of its endorsement is not necessarily restricted to another note made by the same parties, but may be shown by the attendant circumstances to include within the protection of the security, the promissory note of another party; this result will follow where the latter had received the benefit of the original transaction and was obtained to substitute his direct obligation for the first note as a continuation of the original transaction and not with any intention of creating a novation, and where the endorser of the original note had endorsed the substituted note on the faith of such security with the concurrence of all the parties. [De St. Aubin v. Binet, 22 Que. K.B. 564, affirmed.]

De St. Aubin v. Binet, 18 D.L.R. 739.

HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—COLLATERAL TO BANK—NONEXISTENCE OF DEBT.

A promissory note indorsed over a bank by the payee named in the note, even as a collateral, does not necessarily constitute the bank a holder in due course, where there is no existing indebtedness on the part of the payee to the bank and is, therefore, not subject to summary judgment in face of a plea that the note was given to the payee on account of a sale of land to which no title could be made. [Bank of B.N.A. v. McComb, 21 Man. L.R. 58, applied.]

Royal Bank v. Hickney, 24 D.L.R. 525, 9 W.W.R. 60, 32 W.L.R. 349.

COLLATERAL SECURITY TO BANK—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.

The fact that a note was discounted by a bank on the strength of another note which it had required as collateral security does not in any way negative the fact that consideration was given for the note sued on, which, if received in good faith and without notice of defects in the title of the payee, makes the bank a holder in due course under s. 56 of the Bills of Exchange Act.

Sparta State Bank v. Alberta Financial Brokers, 25 D.L.R. 321, 30 W.L.R. 708, 9 W.W.R. 851.

COLLATERAL SECURITY TO BANK—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE—AUTHORITY OF CORPORATION OFFICER TO INDORSE.

Standard Bank v. McCullough, 25 D.L.R. 813, 8 A.L.R. 320.

ACCOMMODATION NOTE — INDORSEMENT TO BANK AS COLLATERAL SECURITY FOR DEBT OF PAYEE—DEBT PAID BEFORE ACTION BEGUN—CLAIM OF BANK TO HOLD NOTE FOR SUBSEQUENT DEBT—EVIDENCE—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE—APPEAL.

Bank of Ottawa v. Hall, 8 O.W.N. 15.

ENDORSEMENT TO BANK AS SECURITY—PRINCIPAL DEBT NOT MATURED—HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.

Where a promissory note of a third party is endorsed by way of collateral security to a bank by a person whose indebtedness to the bank has not matured, the bank having no right to anticipate the day of payment, the bank are not holders in due course. [Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Wait, 1 Alta. L.R. 68, followed.]

Merchants Bank of Canada v. Williams, 6 W.W.R. 563.

Cox v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, 21 Man. L.R. 1, 18 W.L.R. 568.

VI. Actions and defences; acceleration; maturity; extension and renewal.

A. IN GENERAL; RIGHT TO SUE.

(§ VI A—150) — MATURITY — ACCELERATION — PROVISION FOR — EXERCISE — STRICT COMPLIANCE NECESSARY.

A condition of a lien note that the payee might, should he consider the amount thereof insecure, declare it due and payable and bring action thereon, does not become operative by a mere demand for the payment of the note; since a strict compliance with such condition by declaration that he was insecure, was necessary in order to render it effective.

Gill v. Yorkshire Insurance Co., 12 D.L.R. 173, 23 Man. L.R. 368, 24 W.L.R. 389, 4 W.W.R. 692.

ACCEPTANCE — DISHONOUR — DRAWER'S RIGHTS.

A drawer of a bill of exchange made payable to the order of a third party, and duly accepted, can, upon the dishonour and return of the bill, maintain an action against the acceptor in his own name, without first obtaining the indorsement of the payee.

Cossey v. McManus (N.S.), 40 D.L.R. 369, 52 N.S.R. 235.

REMEDY OF HOLDER — INSOLVENCY.

As a creditor has a right to exercise, at the same time, the different remedies which the law gives him, a holder of a note may put in a claim on the insolvency of one of the makers and, at the same time, sue both of the makers, jointly and severally.

Charest v. Gervais, 24 Rev. Leg. 245.

RIGHTS OF INDORSER — WARRANTY — SERVICE — COSTS.

The indorser of a note may, by dilatory exception, stay the plaintiff's action to call in the warranty the signer of the note on which the action is based. If security judicatum solvi has been ordered, the delay for producing such dilatory exception runs from the day of presentation of the security. A plaintiff who untimely contests a dilatory exception of warranty will be ordered to pay the costs of such exception.

Compania Ingeniera, etc. v. San Martin Mining Co., 20 Que. P.R. 274.

WARRANTY — PARTIES.

The maker of a promissory note, sued by the holder, may, by exception, call in warranty the party in whose favour the note was originally made.

Dawson & Co. v. Jago Co., 19 Que. P.R. 157.

COLLATERAL AGREEMENT — NOTES PAYABLE ONLY UPON EVENT WHICH DID NOT HAPPEN — DELIVERY UP AND CANCELLATION OF NOTES HELD BY PAYEE — NOTES TRANSFERRED TO THIRD PERSON — CLAIM FOR DAMAGES FOR TRANSFERRING NOTES — VALIDITY OF AGREEMENT — COUNTERCLAIM — FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION — FAILURE TO PROVE.

Burton v. Cundle, 14 O.W.N. 306.

COLLATERAL AGREEMENT — NOTES PAYABLE ONLY UPON EVENT WHICH DID NOT HAPPEN — TRANSFER BY PAYEE TO PLAINTIFF — NOTICE TO TRANSFEREE OF AGREEMENT — TRANSFEREE SUBJECT TO EQUITIES BETWEEN ORIGINAL PARTIES — ACTION ON NOTE RETAINED BY TRANSFEREE — DISMISSAL — DAMAGES FOR FRAUDULENTLY TRANSFERRING OTHER NOTES TO PERSONS WHO COMPELLED PAYMENT — COUNTERCLAIM.

Huff v. Burton, 14 O.W.N. 307.

ACTION BY EXECUTOR OF PAYEE — DEFENSE AND COUNTERCLAIM — NOTES MADE BY SON OF DECEASED PAYEE — BARGAIN ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN MADE WITH FATHER — STATUTE OF FRAUDS.
O'Neill v. O'Neill, 15 O.W.N. 9.

SEVERAL LIEN NOTES — DEFAULT IN ONE — ACCELERATION CLAUSE — RIGHT TO SUE ON ALL NOTES.

Where several lien notes, given on the conditional sale of a chattel, each contained a proviso that in default of payment of such note or of any of the other notes, the whole amount of the price and interest and all obligations and notes given therefor should forthwith become due and payable without making presentment or demand, which were thereby waived, the conditional vendor may sue on all of the lien notes where one only is in default; no preliminary notice is necessary of an intention to claim the benefit of the acceleration clause, or, if such were necessary, the service of the writ was sufficient, subject to any right as to costs which might have arisen had the defendant forthwith paid the note which was past due. [Westaway v. Stewart, 2 S.L.R. 178, distinguished.]

International Harvester Co. v. Knox, 21 D.L.R. 807.

RIGHT TO SUE ON ORIGINAL CONSIDERATION—RETURN OF NOTE.

A creditor who has received a promissory note in settlement of his claim may sue on his original claim without producing the note, but if the debtor has reason to believe that the note is in the hands of a third party, he may, under art. 177, C.P. (Que.), par. 2, file a dilatory exception requesting a suspension of the proceedings until the production of the note.

National Breweries v. Guillemette, 32 D.L.R. 365, 50 Que. S.C. 329.

NON-NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT—NOTE GIVEN FOR BALANCE OF PURCHASE MONEY OF LAND TO WIFE OF VENDOR—VENDOR'S LIEN PASSING WITH NOTE TO WIFE—TRANSFER OF NOTE FOR VALUE—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT OF CHOSE IN ACTION—RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE TO SUE WITHOUT MAKING ASSIGNOR PARTY—RULE 85—CONVEYANCING AND LAW OF PROPERTY ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 109, s. 49.

Graham v. Crouchman, 39 D.L.R. 284, 41 O.L.R. 22.

PROMISSORY NOTES—CONTEST AS TO OWNERSHIP—COSTS.

Hannah v. Robson (No. 2), 13 O.W.N. 215.

SUFFICIENCY OF ALLEGATIONS—PRIVITY—SIGNATURE.

In an action on a note filed with a declaration it is sufficient, to establish privity between the plaintiff (holder) and the defendant (maker), that the obligation of the latter substantially appears, and there is an allegation that the defendant has made a payment on account. The omission to mention that the defendant signed the note is not of itself fatal if it is implied by other allegations.

Gautier v. Lowe, 52 Que. S.C. 276.

WARRANTY.

The maker of a note, defendant in an action to recover the amount, cannot by dilatory exception demand that the indorser, to whom he had remitted a sum of money and a note to pay in part and renew for the rest the note sued upon, be summoned in warranty.

Starke-Seybold Co. v. Damiens, 18 Que. P.R. 212.

ACTIONS AND DEFENSES—DILATORY EXCEPTION—ENDORSERS—ADDING PARTIES.

An indorser on a promissory note has the right to stay the proceedings by a dilatory exception to call the maker in warranty, although plaintiff contends that the note was signed for accommodation, even if the note was for accommodation, this question should only be decided when the maker is on the case, so as to constitute chose jugée between all the parties to the note and the case.

Duclos v. Sparrow, 15 Que. P.R. 222.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ACTION ON—PAYMENT—ONUS—FAILURE TO SATISFY—INTERPLEADER ISSUE—ASSIGNMENT OF CHOSE IN ACTION—VALIDITY—EVIDENCE—FRAUDULENT INTENT—CREDITORS UNDER FOREIGN JUDGMENT—PROOF OF JUDGMENT—RIGHT TO SHARE IN FUND IN COURT.

St. Jean v. Laurin, 7 O.W.N. 702.

PROMISSORY NOTE—APPLICATION OF PAYMENTS—RENEWAL—WAIVER—GUARANTY—MISREPRESENTATION—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Bank of Toronto v. Hall, 8 O.W.N. 465.

PROMISSORY NOTE—EVIDENCE—INTEREST. McKay v. Good & Rochester, 8 O.W.N. 296.

PROMISSORY NOTE—COMPANY—SETTLEMENT OF DIFFERENCES—EVIDENCE.

Toronto Brick Co. v. Brandon, 7 O.W.N. 646.

SUING ON ORIGINAL DEBT—STAY—RETURN OF NOTE.

As a promissory note has not the effect of novation, the creditor may maintain an action for the recovery of the original debt without offering to return the note. By dilatory exception, the defendant is entitled to have a stay of proceedings in the action until the plaintiff has filed the note.

National Breweries v. Guillemette, 50 Que. S.C. 329.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ACTION BROUGHT IN NAME OF COMPANY HAVING INTEREST IN—NOTE PAYABLE TO SOLICITORS FOR COMPANY—NOTE ENDORSED BY SOLICITORS BUT NOT UNTIL AFTER ACTION BROUGHT—ACTION BEGUN BY SPECIALLY ENDORSED WRIT IN COUNTY COURT—JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF COMPANY ENTERED IN COUNTY COURT WITHOUT AMENDMENT OF WRIT—RIGHTS DETERMINABLE AS OF DATE OF WRIT, BUT PROCEEDINGS NOT A MERE NULLITY—ADDITION OF SOLICITORS AS PLAINTIFFS AS OF DATE OF WRIT—POWER OF APPELLATE COURT TO MAKE AMENDMENT WITHOUT REQUEST.

Tennessee Fibre Co. v. Smith, 16 O.W.N. 169.

ACTION ON PROMISSORY NOTE — GIFT OF MONEY TO DAUGHTER—NOTE OF SON-IN-LAW HELD BY PAYEE AS TRUSTEE FOR DAUGHTER—NO DEBT DUE BY MAKER OF NOTE.

Macleod v. Dickie, 12 O.W.N. 54.

SUFFICIENCY AS CAUSE OF ACTION.

In an action upon a promissory note held a good cause of action was disclosed by a statement of claim reading as follows: "The plaintiff's claim against the defendant is for the sum of $2,505, being the amount of a joint and several promissory notes given by McHugh Brothers on August 1st, 1908, in the words and figures following: '$2,505.00, London, England, August 1, 1908. On demand we jointly and severally promise to pay to Mrs. J. J. McHugh or order, Two Thousand and five hundred and five dollars, with interest at 10 per cent, for value received, McHugh Bros.'" McHugh v. McHugh, 11 A.L.R. 545, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1044.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE—PAYEE OF NOTE ALSO A COMAKER—NOTE JOINT AND SEVERAL — ACTION MAINTAINABLE BY PAYEE AGAINST OTHER COMAKERS.

Held that an action on a promissory note on which the plaintiff as payee was himself a comaker could be maintained against the other two makers, it being a joint and several note and each maker liable for the whole amount thereof (Beecham v. Smith, 11 B. & E. 442 followed). The note was made to raise money for an enterprise in which they were all interested and the understanding was that all were to be equally liable for the indebtedness thus incurred; judgment was therefore given plaintiff against defendants for two-thirds of the amount of the note. A defense that the note was inchoate and incomplete in that the payee was to secure the signatures of certain others was, on the evidence, not allowed.

McDermott v. Fraser & McDougall, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 662.

R. MATURITY; ACCELERATION; EXTENSION; RENEWAL.

(§ VI B-155)—MATURITY — PREMATURE ACTION.

There can be no recovery on a note in an action commenced before its maturity, even though forming part of an action on other notes that had matured.

Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bellamy, 23 D.L.R. 133, 8 S.L.R. 381, 33 W.L.R. 8, 9 W.W.R. 587.

LIES NOTE — ACCELERATION CLAUSE — INSECURITY — RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE.

The plaintiff being the assignee of three lies notes made by defendant in favour of one Moore, purported, before maturity of any of them, to declare the notes due in pursuance of power therein contained, and brought this action to recover payment. Such power was as follows: "And if default is made in the payment of this note or any renewal or renewals thereof, or should D. H. Moore deem this note or any renewal or renewals insecure, of which he shall be sole judge, he shall have full power to declare this note or any renewal or renewals thereof due and payable at any time;"—Held, that it was incumbent on the plaintiff to prove that the notes were as a matter of fact deemed insecure by him at the time he purported to declare the same due, and the plaintiff having failed to prove this, his action must fail. Quaere, whether in any event the plaintiff could exercise such power since by the terms of the notes such power was given only to Moore and might have been so given because of special personal confidence reposed in Moore by the defendant.

Harris v. Murk, 8 S.L.R. 90, 32 W.L.R. 53, 7 W.W.R. 1338.

PRICE OF WORK DONE—EXCESSIVE CHARGE—ACCEPTANCE OF — RENEWAL OF NOTE — ACTION ON RENEWAL — DEFENSE — FAILURE TO ESTABLISH.

Rose v. Rose, 12 O.W.N. 235.

(§ VI B-158)—ACTION ON ORIGINAL NOTE — EFFECT OF RENEWAL.

When a note is renewed the fact of such renewal does not operate as a novation and it is immaterial whether the holder sues on the original note or on the renewal note; the remedy on the original note is merely suspended until the maturity of the new one.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Hart, 2 D.L.R. 810.

EXTENSION AND RENEWAL.

An agreement set up by the maker of a promissory note that both the original payee and the plaintiff endorsee had agreed before the note was given to grant a renewal thereof at maturity, but not evidenced by any writing, does not disclose a defense entitling the defendant to proceed to trial, where the plaintiff's claim has been verified in the manner required for summary judgment.

Union Bank v. MacCullough, 7 D.L.R. 694, 4 A.L.R. 371, 2 W.W.R. 403.

TAKING MORTGAGE SECURITY — MERGER — DIFFERENT MATURITY DATES.

The acceptance of a mortgage security maturing after the due date of promissory notes for the same debt does not of itself and apart from any express agreement impair or suspend the right of action upon the notes.

Campbell v. Heinka, 17 D.L.R. 586, 28 W.L.R. 297.

AGREEMENT FOR RENEWAL—SCOPE OF.

A promissory note given in payment of merchandise under an agreement that it is to be renewed after maturity for any portion of the goods unsold entitles the maker to but one renewal. [Innes v. Munro, 1 Ex. 473, followed.]

ACTION ON NOTE — DEFENSES — RENEWAL — ABSENCE OF CONSIDERATION — FAILURE TO ALLOT SHARES — FRAUD.
Crooks v. Cullen, 25 D.L.R. 817, 32 W.L.R. 308.

ALTERATION — RENEWAL — DEPOSIT IN BANK — RIGHTS OF ENDORSEER.

If a note given in renewal of a previous note, but without novation, is altered by adding the words "with interest," the holder may sue on the original note. When a depositor owes a bank on several notes, all of the same class, an amount exceeding his deposit, and the maker of the notes has not declared how his payment was to be applied, and has withdrawn all his funds from the bank, the endorser of one of the notes cannot plead payment by compensation.

La Banque Nationale v. Joncas, 24 Rev. Leg. 365.

PROMISSORY NOTES — AGREEMENT FOR RENEWAL — CANCELLATION — MISREPRESENTATION — EVIDENCE — IMMATERIALITY — ACTION ON NOTES — JUDGMENT.
Piggott v. Hedrick, 15 O.W.N. 123.

(§ VI B—159) — STAY OF ACTION — WAR RELIEF ACT.

A bank may recover against an endorser of a promissory note, notwithstanding that the action is stayed as against the principal debtor by the War Relief Act. The deposit of certificates of title with the bank as additional security at the time the advance was made, although an unenforceable hypothecation, does not relieve the surety from liability.

Royal Bank v. Gold (B.C.), 41 D.L.R. 276, 25 B.C.R. 409, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 745.

NOTE — RENEWAL — PRODUCTION IN COURT — COSTS — DISCRETION OF COURT — C.C.P. ART. 549.

In the case where an action is founded on a note which is only the renewal or the settlement of other notes not brought before the court, the defendant can produce a dilatory exception and ask that he be only compelled to pay the amount of the original notes sent to him, but he has no right to demand the dismissal of the action for this reason. The general rule is that the party who fails should pay the costs, unless, for special reasons the court decides otherwise. But the law has established that these special reasons should appear in the judgment. Basing itself on the facts mentioned in the first paragraph herein, the court can condemn the plaintiff to pay the costs up to his reply, because he has only produced the original note in court with his reply to the defense.

National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada v. Weinfeld, 55 Que. S.C. 268.

ACCOMMODATION NOTE — KNOWLEDGE.

An opposition to judgment in an action on a renewed note, on the ground that it was given for accommodation only, will be dismissed if the defendant does not prove that the holder knew that the original note was an accommodation note.

Versailles Vidrecaire & Boulais Co. v. Charlebois, 17 Que. P.R. 394.

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT.

A promissory note for $150 made by a debtor and indorsed by a third party was given upon an undertaking in writing by the creditor that if $60 and interest be paid on the note when it became due he would agree to its renewal for the balance due for a term of three months. The note was protested at maturity and on the following day the debtor tendered $60 with interest and a renewed note for the balance which the creditor then refused to accept. An action to enforce payment of the note was dismissed. Held, on appeal (reversing the decision of Schultz, Co. J.), that where there is a condition precedent such as in this case it must be strictly performed. The agreement to extend the time never came into operation because the condition upon which the right to an extension was based had not been complied with.

Amyot v. Quinby & Watt, 22 B.C.R. 402.

AGREEMENT TO RENEW — ONUS.

Where the defense to an action on a promissory note is an engagement to renew the same, it is incumbent on the defendant to shew that he has taken the proper steps towards such renewal. [Maillord v. Page, L.R. 5 Ex. 312, referred to.]

Norton v. Kennealy, 8 W.W.R. 799.

C. DEFENSES.

(§ VI C—160) — DEFENSES — COUNTERCLAIM BASED ON FRAUD — ADDING PARTIES — PROMISSORY NOTE.

Hamilton v. Harvey, 20 D.L.R. 951.

MISREPRESENTATIONS — TIME OF PAYMENT.

Where there has been no deceit as to the actual terms of the note, fraud is not shown upon which to invalidate the sale of goods by the selling agent's representation that the buyer would not have to pay anything on the price until May 1, while at the same time the agent obtained the buyer's signature to a promissory note maturing at an earlier date, which note remaining in the possession of the payee, the buyer was not in fact called upon to pay sooner.

McDonald v. Morgan, 22 D.L.R. 705, 49 N.S.R. 1.

LIABILITY OF ENDORSER—DEFENSE—INFANCY—EVIDENCE OF.

Held, that in an action on a promissory note where the endorser set up the defense of infancy, the said defense could not be supported by the endorser's own evidence of the date of his birth, which information he got from his mother, and from a copy of a certificate of his birth, since the said evidence was hearsay.

Martin Hargreaves Co. v. Wrigley, 7 S.L.R. 415, 30 W.L.R. 92.

ACTION BY ASSIGNEE FOR CREDITORS—COUNTERCLAIM FOR ACCOUNTING.

The defendant held a promissory note of one Gray, who made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to the plaintiff. On the note coming due the plaintiff and defendant arranged for the renewal thereof by the defendant signing a note in favour of the plaintiff, who carried the note in his account as assignee for Gray. In an action for payment of the note:—Held, that there should be judgment for the plaintiff, but that the defendant was entitled to counterclaim for an accounting by the plaintiff of the moneys collected by him as assignee of the Gray estate, which were applicable to the debt that Gray owed the defendant. Helps v. Charette, 13 O.W.N. 412.

ACTION BY ENDORSEE—DEFENSE OF FRAUD—EVIDENCE — PLEADING.

In an action by the endorsee of a promissory note against the makers thereof where in the defense was set up that the defendants had been induced to sign the note by fraud and the whole of the evidence bearing upon the point was taken upon commission, held, on two grounds, that the court was not justified in refusing to accept the denial by the plaintiff and his brother, who purchased the note for him, of any knowledge concerning the transaction in which the note originated or any suspicion touching the validity of it, the first of such grounds being that the circumstances relied upon by the defendant were insufficient to support a successful impeachment of the testimony in question, and the second, that there was no notice in the pleadings or otherwise shewing the circumstances upon which the defendants relied as sustaining or pointing to their imputations of bad faith and no opportunity was given the witnesses for the plaintiff to explain or qualify the facts or conduct upon which the defendants mainly based their attack (per Duff, J., Davies and Anglin, J.J., concurring; Fitzpatrick, C.J., and Idington, J., dissenting).

Peters v. Perras, 13 A.L.R. 80.

DENIAL OF SIGNATURE—AFFIDAVIT.

Arts. 1233, C.C. (Que.) and 208, C.C.P., only create in favour of the holder of a promissory note who sues the maker, a presumption juris tantum, and the defendant should be allowed to prove that the signature on the note is false, although he has not accompanied his plea with the affidavit required by the said articles.

Butler v. Butler, 4 Q.W.N. 1308, 24 O.W.R. 677.

(§ VI C—164)—PAYMENT OR EXTINGUISHMENT.

When a debtor, in account current with his creditor, informs him that he will be unable to meet a note about to mature, and the creditor obtains from a third party, indebted, or about to be indebted, to the debtor on a contract between them, a note of the same amount, and uses it to take up the maturing note, and it is paid in due course, the operation amounts to a payment made, if not by the debtor, for him and with his money, and the rule of art. 1161, etc., that imputation of it should be made upon the oldest debt due, applies to it. Hence, if the indebtedness from the note taken up with the proceeds of the other is the oldest in the account, it is extinguished.

Craik v. Macfarlane & Co., 21 Que. K.B. 10.

(§ VI C-167)—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION — SALE OF SHOP FIXTURES WITHOUT HAVING TITLE THERETO.

Where a promissory note is given for shop fixtures purchased from the assignee of a tenant, and the lease does not clearly entitle the landlord to the fixtures at the expiration of the term, but it appears that the landlord could obtain reformation of the lease so as to entitle him, there is a failure of consideration for the note, even though no claim for reformation has been made by the landlord.

Tew v. O'Hearn, 3 D.L.R. 446, 3 O.W.N. 1116.

DEFENSES—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION — CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT FOR WHICH GIVEN.

One who acquired a promissory note after maturity cannot recover thereon from the maker where the consideration for the note failed by reason of the cancellation of the contract for which it was given on account of the nonpayment of the note at maturity. [Jackson v. Scott, 1 O.L.R. 488, referred to.]

DEFENSES—PARTIAL FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

Partial failure of consideration is no defense pro tanto in an action against the maker of a note by the payee, where such partial failure is not a liquidated amount, and it is error to allow judgment for defendant though the jury finds that there was such partial failure, the proper practice being to give judgment for the plaintiff on the note and award the defendant the amount of such failure of consideration found by the jury, as a counterclaim. [Georgian Bay Lumber Co. v. Thompson, 35 U.C.R. 64; Goldie v. Harper, 31 O.R. 284, applied.]

Automobile Sales v. Moore, 10 D.L.R. 184, 4 O.W.N. 700, 24 O.W.R. 26.

WANT OR FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

Where a promissory note is given in payment of a premium upon the admission of the maker into a partnership in the business of the payee, and a partnership between them is in fact created, but no term for its duration is agreed upon, the subsequent dissolution thereof, or even the wrongful expulsion therefrom of the maker of the note, does not give rise to a total failure of consideration for the note, so as to make it unenforceable in the hands either of the payee or of a holder, though the maker may be entitled as against the payee to a return of a proportion of his premium. [Judgment of a Divisional Court, Merchants Bank of Canada, v. Thompson, 23 O.L.R. 502, reversed; Lindley on Partnership, 7th ed., p. 625 et seq., specially referred to.]

Merchants Bank of Canada v. Thompson, 3 D.L.R. 577, 3 O.W.N. 1014, 21 O.W.R. 740.

PROMISSORY NOTE — FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION—ACTION TO RECOVER AMOUNT.

In an action on a promissory note, the consideration for which is the delivery of stock, which has not been delivered, the plaintiff in order to succeed must show readiness and willingness to deliver the stock.

McGirr v. Youngberg, 50 D.L.R. 113, [1920] 1 W.W.R. 146.

ILLEGAL CONSIDERATION — BANK TRAFFICKING IN ITS OWN SHARES.

Promissory notes given to a bank by certain of its directors are not invalidated as for an illegal consideration by reason of the fact that they were given for the purpose of recouping to the bank, moneys which had been unlawfully and without the authority of its shareholders employed in the purchase of the bank's shares in furtherance of a scheme whereby the bank's funds were used in trafficking in its own shares to support the price quotations of same on the stock market. [Stavert v. McMillan, 24 O.L.R. 456, 3 O.W.N. 6, affirmed on appeal.]

McMillan v. Stavert, 13 D.L.R. 761, 24 O.W.R. 936.

TRANSFER OF SHARES—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

An executor suing upon promissory notes given by the defendant to the testator under the latter's executory agreement for the transfer to the maker of the note of certain shares in a vessel so soon as the note should be paid, cannot recover on the note if the testator had treated the agreement as non-existent, made no tender or offer of the shares, made no demand under the notes, and had treated the defendant as having no interest in the vessel by selling the shares in question without referring to the defendant.

Kaulbach v. Begin, 21 D.L.R. 77, 49 N.S.R. 66.

WANT OF CONSIDERATION—CONDUCT OF PARTIES — ACCOMMODATION PAPER.

In determining whether or not a promissory note was given only as accommodation, the inconsistency of the conduct of the party denying that such was the case will be considered in conjunction with the indefiniteness and improbability of the agreement which he sets up in answer.

Calhoun v. Williams, 17 D.L.R. 68, 28 W.L.R. 236.

DEFENSES—WANT OR FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION FOR TRANSFER OF NOTE—RIGHT OF MAKER TO QUESTION.

The maker of a promissory note cannot set up the want of consideration for the assignment of a note to the person seeking to enforce it, since the former is a stranger to the transaction. [Walker v. Bradford Old Bank, 12 Q.B.D. 511, referred to.]

Tyrell v. Murphy, 18 D.L.R. 327, 30 O.L.R. 235.

ACTION ON CHEQUE FOR PRICE OF GOODS—

FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

A defense to an action based upon cheques which alleges that the cheques were given for the price of goods part only of which had been delivered, which apart from the remainder of the goods ordered were useless to the purchaser, and the failure to deliver the remainder caused to the latter damages to an amount greater than the sum claimed, is not a demand in compensation but a plea of failure of consideration. Hertington v. Carey, 9 O.W.N. 75, affirming 8 O.W.N. 451.

ILLEGAL CONSIDERATION—STIFLING PROSECUTION.

Any arrangement to take security to stifle a criminal prosecution is against public policy and the holder of a note given in pursuance of such an arrangement (knowing the circumstances under which it was given) cannot recover on it, as the consideration is illegal. MATERIAL ALTERATION AFTER SIGNATURE BY ONE JOINT MAKER—LIABILITY ON RE-NEWAL NOTE—WANT OF CONSIDERATION.

Where after the signature of a note by one of two makers, the note is materially altered, and thereafter the note is renewed by both makers, the maker who signed the original note prior to its alteration is not liable on the renewed note for want of consideration.

PRESUMPTION—C. CIV. ART. 1222 AND 1223—C. PRAC. ART. 208.

The denial of a signature to a bill payable at sight on which a demand is made, should be accompanied by an affidavit. A defendant who has not complied with this formality cannot be allowed, at the time of the inquiry, to put in a written evidence of the falsity of the signature.

BANK—PROMISSORY NOTE—MARRIED WOMAN—POWER OF ATTORNEY TO HUSBAND—LIABILITY.

When a bank discounts the note of a married woman signed by her husband without authority, and she deposits the proceeds to her credit, and then gives a power of attorney to her husband to manage her affairs, and leaves the said deposit under his control, the bank can afterwards recover from her the amount of the promissory note, even if the husband has appropriated the amount to his own use.

Banque de St. Jean v. Mollleur, 46 Que. S.C. 347.

(§ VI C—169)—SIGNING NAME OF NON-EXISTING COMPANY.

The fact that the defendants, who executed a promissory note in the name of a nonexisting company, added the words "president" and "manager" to their respective personal signatures below the name of the alleged company is not sufficient to absolve them from personal liability thereon under s. 52 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 119, which relieves from liability one who signs an instrument in a manner indicating that he did so on behalf of a principal or in a representative capacity, the mere addition of descriptive words to the signer's name not being sufficient for that purpose. ENDORSEMENT AND DELIVERY — NOT INTENDED TO PASS PROPERTY — DEALINGS WITH SAME BY HOLDER — THIRD PARTIES MISLED — ESTOPPEL.

An endorsement and delivery of a bill of lading does not pass the property in the goods covered thereby where this has not been intended; and the holder of the bill of lading under such endorsement and delivery cannot, apart from estoppel, convey any greater rights than he himself has, even to a bona fide purchaser for value. But the principle of estoppel is especially applicable to such a case. When one person arms another with a symbol of property he should be the sufferer, and not the person who gives credit to the operation and is misled by it. And the owner of goods by endorsing bills of lading in blank and delivering them to another, thereby enabling that other to hold himself out as the true owner, and by permitting him to draw demand drafts in his own name and upon his own account to which drafts the bills of lading are attached as security for advances of money, thereby misleading third parties into the reasonable bona fide belief that such other person is the rightful owner of the goods represented by the bills of lading, and into dealing in accordance with such belief, may be estopped as against such third parties, from denying such ownership so believed as aforesaid. The insertion at the owner's request of the words "To be held pending instructions," "to be sold on instructions," "to be sold on advice," respectively in certain of the bills of lading is not sufficient to affect such third parties with notice of the true owner's title or to put them upon enquiry.

CONSIDERATION FOR — UNTRUE STATEMENT OF — EFFECT.

An absolute bill of sale based on a consideration of future support is void as to the vendor's creditors under s. 6 of the Bills of Sale Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 142, which requires that the consideration shall be truly stated, where there is no change of possession, and the consideration expressed in the bill of sale was untrue stated as being a monetary one.

Ouellette v. Albert, 13 D.L.R. 698, 42 N.B.R. 254, 13 E.L.R. 271.

STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—STATING CONSIDERATION.

A bill of sale is not made void as not truly expressing the consideration therefor under the Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 144, s. 13, by reason of the inclusion therein after a statement of the amount of money consideration of general words such as the words "and other valuable considerations" where the latter words were introduced only by the conveyancer and were without special significance in the transaction; and in such case the unnecessary words may be considered as mere surplusage.

TRUE STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION—SUFFICIENCY OF AFFIDAVIT—RIGHTS OF CREDITORS.

A bill of sale is not void as against creditors under s. 11 of the Alberta Bills of Sale Ordinance because of an untrue expression of the consideration in the affidavit of bona fides; it is good under s. 9 of the Ordinance, unless the consideration be wilfully mis-stated, with intent to deceive, and the transaction it evidences is not an honest one.

GROWING CROPS—SECURITY—BONA FIDE PURCHASER—NOTICE.

A bill of sale of growing crops is not within the registration requirements of the Alberta Bills of Sale Ordinance, nor within s. 15 thereof, if not intended as a security, and is therefore not void as against a subsequent purchaser, even though the consideration was not truly expressed; the status of a bona fide purchaser is not affected by notice which has come to him after he has incurred liability in the transaction.

B.C. BILLS OF SALE ACT—WHETHER A "RECEIPT" AN "ASSURANCE" AND WITHIN SAID ACT.

There being nothing in the British Columbia Bills of Sale Act requiring that sales shall be evidenced by any written document, a debtor can make a secret verbal sale of his personal property and not be affected by the Act; while if the sale is made in writing it comes within its purview. "Receipts for purchase moneys of goods" must be "assurances of personal chattels" to fall within the definition of a bill of sale within said Act. If such a receipt is intended by the parties to it to be a part of the bargain to pass the property in the goods, it is such an "assurance" and bill of sale. A receipt in question was held as not intended simply as a receipt for payment of the money, but as having been expected to operate as proof of the change of ownership and therefore an "assurance," thus coming within said Act and requiring compliance therewith as to registration, etc.

Hendry v. Laird, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 341.

AFFIDAVIT OF BONA FIDES BY OFFICER OF COMPANY—SUFFICIENCY.

An affidavit of bona fides in support of bill of sale made to a company and made by an officer of the company to the effect that such bill of sale "is not for the purpose of holding or of enabling me this deponent to hold" the goods against the creditors of the bargainer, is insufficient.

Walter v. Leduc, 8 W.W.R. 360.

(§ 11 A-7)—NON-REGISTRATION—SUBSEQUENT CREDITOR.

The "creditors of the bargainer," as against whom s. 9 of the Bills of Sale Ordinance, N.W.T., c. 43 (Alta.), makes absolutely void a sale by the bargainer without immediate delivery or actual and continued change of possession or the registration of a bill of sale, includes not only the then existing creditors but also the subsequent creditors of the bargainer. F. AFTER-ACQUIRED CHATTELS.

(§ III F—40)—AFTER-ACQUIRED CHATTELS. The Bills of Sale Act, R.S.N.S., 1900, c. 142, does not by registration protect the grantee as to property to be acquired by the grantor after the making of the bill of sale and which the latter thereby purports to transfer in advance of his obtaining title thereto. [Thomas v. Kelly, 13 A.C. 519, referred to.]

A clause in a bill of sale which purports to include after-acquired property confers as to the latter a mere equitable title which must give way to a legal title obtained bona fide and without notice. [Reeves v. Barlow, 12 Q.B.D. 436, commented on; Holroyd v. Marshall, 10 H.L.C. 191, applied.]

(§ III G—41)—TAKEN MERELY AS SECURITY FOR INDEBTEDNESS—DEPOSIT IN BANK—BANK MANAGER'S KNOWLEDGE OF CIRCUMSTANCES—AFFIDAVIT OF BONA FIDES—TRANSACTION VOID—RIGHTS OF CREDITORS.

Where the irresistible conclusion is that a bill of sale was taken merely as security for an indebtedness, and deposited with the bank as collateral security, the bank manager having full knowledge of all the circumstances surrounding the giving of the bill, the affidavit of bona fides on the bill of sale does not truly set forth the consideration and not being the affidavit of bona fides as required in the case of a chattel mortgage, the transaction is void as against creditors.

IV. Rights and liabilities of parties.

(§ IV—45)—RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES.

A simple contract creditor cannot make an attack upon a chattel mortgage under the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 11. [Parkes v. St. George, 10 A.R. 496, and Hyman v. Cuthbertson, 10 O.R. 443, followed.]

An interlocutory injunction will not be granted to nullify the effect of a resolution of the Board of Commissioners of the city of Montreal, which directs the exclusion of the public and of the representatives of the press from its sittings. The Board of Commissioners has by law discretionary power to decide as to the manner of its sittings, and the right conferred on the Super-ror Court by art. 50, C.P.Q., should not be exercised in such case. It is sufficient if the writ of summons is served at the same time as the writ of injunction when the latter is granted. If the Superior Court has the power to compel the commissioners to hold public sessions it can only exercise such power under mandamus.

- (§ 1—1)—INCOMPLETENESS IN EXPRESSING AMOUNT PAYABLE—NO RECOVERY—INSUFFICIENT NOTICE OF ASSIGNMENT—REFUSAL TO ADD ASSIGNOR AS PARTY AFTER TRIAL.

Action on a bond for "the sum of two thousand of lawful money of British Columbia" was dismissed, there being nothing in the document to help in construing said words. [Coles v. Hulme, 8 B. & C. 568, distinguished.] Semble the ambiguity, being patent, could not be cured by extrinsic evidence. Notice of assignment of bond held insufficient to enable assignee to maintain action in his own name, as the persons named in the notice as assignees were not the assignees in the assignment actually made; also as the notice was of assignment of a bond bearing date on or about the 18th day of Sept., 1915, whereas the bond sued on was dated "this eighteenth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and fifteen." The court refused to add of its own motion the assignor as a party after trial and argument and its finding of the notice of assignment insufficient.

Meldrum v. Maclure & Houghton, 23 B.C.R. 176.

INDEMNITY ON STAY OF EXECUTION—WANT OF CORPORATE SEAL—LIABILITY.

A bond filed to obtain a stay of execution and signed under his own hand and seal in the name of the company by the local agent of a non-resident company, the company having given the agent power to canvass for the company and to issue bonds, is binding, although not under the corporate seal of the company—and if consideration were required to support it the premium paid and the stay of execution obtained were sufficient, as between the company and the person bonded and the obligee respectively. An alternative claim against the agent for damages for breach of warranty of authority was dismissed without costs.

Calhoun v. Maryland Casualty, 31 W.L.R. 269.

(§ II A—6)—INTERPLEADER BOND—EXECUTIONS—LIABILITY.

The liability of obligators upon an interpleader bond is not confined to the amount remaining due on the executions, but other creditors having executions in the sheriff's hands are entitled to share in the funds represented by the bond.

McPherson v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 24 D.L.R. 77, 33 O.L.R. 524.

(§ II A—9)—FOR INDEMNITY AND SECURITY—CONTRACTOR'S BOND.

Where a guaranty company entered into a bond which was conditioned that a subcontractor would "well and faithfully in all respects perform, execute and carry out the said contract," and recited that annexed to the bond was a copy of the contract in question, which, however, did not contain some slight alterations made on the final revision of the contract as re-executed by the parties after the date of the bond, the guaranty company are not relieved from liability if the words inserted do not alter the meaning of the contract in any way, since the guaranty company was not prejudiced by an immaterial alteration. [Tolhurst v. Portland Cement Manufacturers, [1903] A.C. 422; Harrison v. Seymour, L.R., 1 C.P. 518; Croydin, etc., Co. v. Dickinson. 2 C.P.D. 46, referred to.]

CONTRACT TO BUILD AND LEASE—SCOPE OF LIABILITY.

Where in an agreement by the lessor to erect a building, and to lease same when completed, there is no provision similar to that generally contained in a building contract whereby the owner may, upon default of the contractor, proceed with the completion of the building and charge the amount expended against the contractor, a surety for the performance of such contract unless it is otherwise expressly agreed, cannot be called upon to assume any further liability than for the amounts of liquidated damages expressly fixed by the contract for any delay of performance thereof, and will, therefore, not be liable for the amounts expended by the lessee for the completion of the building. BUILDING CONTRACTOR'S BOND—EXTENT OF SURETY'S LIABILITY.

G. agreed to erect a building and to lease the same when completed to M., the agreement containing a stipulation that rent was not to be chargeable until the building was finished, and fixing damages for breach of the agreement at $20 per day. Upon G. becoming financially embarrassed, U. went surety for the performance of the agreement by G. G. becoming further embarrassed, M. at his own cost proceeded with the work:—Held, upon the facts, and inasmuch as the agreement contained no stipulation that M. could, in default of G. completing the building, undertake the work, the surety could not be called upon to assume any further liability than the said $20 per day.

B. FOR FIDELITY OF EMPLOYEES OR CORPORATE OFFICERS.

(§ II B-15)—RENEWAL OF BOND—CONDITIONS OF APPLICATION.

A new bond replacing an expiring bond of fidelity insurance in the same company and in favour of the same employer upon the same risk is a "renewal" of the original insurance, and the answers of the assured on the application for the original bonding are to be looked at and their materiality considered in an action on the new bond issued without fresh questions to the assured where the original answers were stipulated to be the basis of the bond then applied for "or any renewal or continuation thereof or of any substituted bond." [Town of Arnprior v. U.S. Fidelity, 20 D.L.R. 929, 30 O.L.R. 618, affirmed; Jordan v. Provincial Provident, 28 Can. S.C.R. 554, considered.]

Arnprior v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 21 D.L.R. 343, 51 Can. S.C.R. 94.

FOR FIDELITY OF EMPLOYEES — GUARANTY POLICIES OF INSURANCE — CONDITIONS PRECEDENT — NEGLIGENCE SUPERVISION OF INSURED.

Under a guaranty policy of insurance by which the insurers engaged to reimburse the insured for pecuniary loss sustained by him through the fraud or dishonesty of one of his employees, failure on the part of the insured to give notice of a material change in the position of the employee, which change reduced his salary, will avoid the policy, since the company is entitled to know the earning power of the employee to satisfy itself that no temptation is placed in his way by a changed pecuniary position. Failure by the employer to require weekly reports from time to time by the employee of the cash received by the latter and payment of same into the bank and to make a monthly audit, the bank books shewing such payment, all of which was required by the terms of a fidelity insurance bond issued to the employer in respect of such employee, constitutes such a breach of duty to the bonding company as will avoid liability to make good the employee's deficit in his accounts. In matters of guarantee insurance the employer, who is the beneficiary under a policy guaranteeing him against loss by embezzlement or theft of money by his employee, must comply strictly with all material conditions, stipulations and undertakings contained in the policy. [See Lachine v. London Guarantee & Accident Co., 3 D.L.R. 335.]

Gray v. Employers' Liability Ass'ee Corp., 10 D.L.R. 369, 23 W.L.R. 627, 4 W.W.R. 106.

(§ II B-21)—BANK EMPLOYEE—PECUNIARY LOSS FROM THEFT.

Money stolen by a bank clerk, and used by him to make up shortages which occurred before a fidelity bond was given is not a "pecuniary loss" sustained by theft within the meaning of the bond. [Gwynne v. Barnell, 7 C.L. & F. 572, distinguished.]

U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Union Bank of Canada, 36 D.L.R. 724, 39 O.L.R. 338.

(§ II B-23)—FIDELITY INSURANCE BOND.

The right of recovery under a fidelity insurance bond, given for the purpose of guaranteeing the assured against loss by reason of any default of a named employee, is not defeated merely by reason of the business of the assured being carried on in the name of a company in which the employee had been given a right to a share of the profits by his employer to encourage greater business activity on the employee's part, where the entire capital had been contributed by the assured and the insurance or bonding corporation knew the true state of affairs when it entered into the bonding contract.

(§ II C—37)—FIDELITY BONDS—TAX COLLECTOR — DEFALCATIONS — DEFENCES — MISREPRESENTATIONS.

Recovery on a fidelity bond issued to a municipality against loss through the fraud or dishonesty of its tax collector may be denied where it was represented in the answers given on behalf of the municipality with the application to the bonding company that auditors would examine the tax rolls and vouchers yearly, and on each renewal of the bond a further representation was made that the collector's books and accounts had been examined and found correct, when in fact neither the municipal auditors nor any one on behalf of the municipality checked up the collector's tax rolls for arrears of previous years which it was his duty to collect and in respect of which the defalcation occurred. (§ III B—100)—PAYMENT—TIME AND PLACE—NOVATION—CHANGES.

Novation of a debt by agreement takes place by an instrument in which the creditor and the debtor express the intention to, and actually make, several changes in the minor incidents of the bond, e.g., as to the time and place of payment, and when the debtor consents to additional mortgages to guarantee the carrying of the changes into effect.

Chas Urbains v. Commissaires du Havre, 24 Que. K.B. 503.

PUBLIC PLACE — SIDEWALK — PRESCRIPTION — POSSESSION — LAND SURVEYORS — MEASUREMENTS.

In an action between a municipal corporation and a riverside proprietor, to establish the boundaries of a public place, the following facts were held not to establish a 30-year prescription from possession. Placing doorsteps on the sidewalk; having cornices and verandahs projecting above the sidewalk; having a sewer which ran along the edge of the land in litigation; putting agricultural implements and other goods on the sidewalk; paying municipal taxes. It is not illegal for land surveyors entrusted with the setting of boundaries to let their chainmen go alone to measure the land, provided that they personally ratify their work and declare the correctness of it; to take their measurements in English feet, if they afterwards reduce them into French measurements; not to verify their standards of measures of length by the Minister of Lands or by some one authorized by him, or by the secretary of the board of management of the land surveyors, as the act prescribes.

AGREEMENT AS TO FENCE.

Although the allegation of title to a servitude does not necessarily imply that it was constituted by an instrument in writing, the defendant in a possessory action en reinteigrande cannot prove by witnesses that the plaintiff had agreed that a fence separating their two properties should be removed, and the land claimed be the property of the defendant.

Raymond v. Leclere, 15 Que. P.R. 105.

IN GENERAL—RULES FOR FIXING.

When a borinage has been made between adjoining owners one of whom, refusing to accept it, brings an action to have it declared erroneous and a new borinage made and the other defends on the ground that it is correct, demands acte of the acceptance which he has always been ready to make and asks for dismissal of the action, the court, finding the claim of the plaintiff ill founded should dismiss, each party paying his own costs as the defence was useless.

Mathieu v. Moira, 42 Que. S.C. 484.

BORINAGE—POSSESSION AS TITLE—ERROR IN DESCRIPTION—AMENDMENT.

Possession alone is a sufficient title to maintain an action for fixing boundaries. But if the plaintiff files a title containing an error in description he will be permitted to amend the declaration by alleging that his title has been made good.

Morneau v. Belanger, 47 Que. S.C. 173.

BORINAGE—PARTIES.

Boundaries shewing the lateral line between adjoining lots need shew only the direction of the line, they need not be placed along the front and the depth of the lots. At all events they cannot determine the lines of the front and depth unless third parties interested joined in the borinage.

Moré v. Bilodeau, 50 Que. S.C. 437.

BORINAGE—CONVENTIONAL AND JUDICIAL.

Per Cannon and Déry, J.J. In order that there may be a conventional borinage between adjoining owners it is necessary that this borinage should be evidenced by a procès-verbal signed by the parties of their free will; so long as the procès-verbal is not signed by the two parties either may repudiate the existence of the borinage agreed upon. There is no form of action by which one of the parties can demand that the other be condemned to sign a procès-verbal of a conventional borinage, or on his default to have the judgment made equivalent to his signature. The only remedy open to either of them is the action en borinage. Per Drouin, J.—The friendly borinage agreed to and settled as to details and executed is a contract the same as any other. In order to have it recognized a right of action exists equivalent to an action for passing title.

Moré v. Bilodeau, 51 Que. S.C. 406.

BORINAGE—REMOVAL OF BOUNDARY—PENALTY.

Art. 5197, R.S.Q. 1909, which renders anyone removing a boundary fence liable to a penalty, applies not only to the removal of stone boundaries placed pursuant to a borinage between individuals but also to the removal of any pole placed by a surveyor in the exercise of his duties. The penalty, however, can only be claimed by a person interested in the borinage affected by the removal, viz.: By one of the parties bound by the borinage or some one of them having rights in it.

Drouin v. Roy, 51 Que. S.C. 339. [Confirmed in review.]

BORINAGE—MISE EN DEMEURE.

The action en borinage should always be preceded by a mise en demeure. When one of the parties declares to the other that he had chosen his surveyor to proceed to the borinage, and the other party replies that he "will attend to the borinage at the proper time," there is a refusal which justifies the bringing of the action en borinage. In such case the defendant should pay the costs of the contestation.

Blais v. Delorme, 52 Que. S.C. 530, 24 Rev. de Jur. 304.

POSSESSION—PRESCRIPTION—TITLE—FENCES.

A peaceful, public, undisputed, quiet and lawful possession of a property for thirty years is a title by which the ownership may be acquired even beyond what is contained in the possessor's own title. The fixing of bounds is a judicial act, which is complete only by the intervention of the court or of a public officer called a "sworn surveyor of the Province of Quebec." The fixing of bounds by agreement, or any other fixing of bounds de facto, has not the strength of res judicata and does not prevent an action of boundary before the court. Fences put up and recognized for thirty years do not constitute a boundary, but are proof of public and rightful possession. Clark v. Lacombe, 23 Que. K.B. 466.

PETITORY ACTION—ENCROACHMENT—SETTLEMENT OF BOUNDARIES—QUE. C.C. 504—QUE. C.P. 1059.

When it is necessary to settle boundaries, there must first be a petitory action or possessory action.

Leduc v. Deshaies, 23 Que. K.B. 416.

BORNAGE—WHO ENTITLED TO.

One who has a real right in land bordering on other lands is entitled to a bornage even when he is not the owner.

Chars Urbains v. Commissaires du Havre, 24 Que. K.B. 503.

BOUNDARY ACTION—CONTIGUOUS PROPERTIES—BROOK—POSSESSION.

The fact that between two estates there is a brook owned by one or the other of the parties does not prevent the bringing of a boundary action; even when the defendant, either himself or by others, had occupied his property for more than 30 years.

Ouellette v. Plante, 54 Que. S.C. 150. [Affirmed 28 Que. K.B. 236.]

CONCLUSION—PETITORY JUDGMENT—MISTAKE—APPEAL—REMANDING CASE.

When, in a boundary action, the parties agree to the respective boundaries of their properties, and make no other conclusions except those referring to the boundaries, and the Superior Court adjudicates on the right of ownership of the parties and dismisses the demand; and the plaintiff before the Court of Review, denies having given up her right, and claims to have only consented to the judgment as being "indicative" of the right of property for boundary purposes, and not "attributive" of such a right as in the petitory action, the trial judgment being based on a misunderstanding between the Trial Judge and the plaintiff's attorneys, the Court of Review may order that the record be sent back to the Superior Court so that the parties may proceed there according to their conclusion.

BOUNDARY ACTION—CHAINMEN—COMPLETION OF REPORT—DESCRIPTION OF LANDS—EXPERTS' OPINION—LOCATION OF LANDS—FILING OF PLANS AND SURVEYORS' NOTES—QUE. C.P. 1060—R.S.Q. s. 5179.

Even if the chainman had proceeded during the surveyors' absence, the report will be valid if the chainmen's figures have subsequently been checked by the surveyors. When English measures are changed to French measures, such changes being necessary, the report is still regular. The court may order the experts to complete their report by filing the plans to which they refer in their conclusions. The measurements of the land are sufficiently described by the titles which contain the cadastral number. The experts' report and plan may be completed by adding thereto the parties' principal contentions. The expression by the experts of their opinion does not bind the court, especially if such an opinion refers to possession or prescription. It is not necessary to mention the number of feet acquired by a party by way of possession. The experts must explain the location of the lands by an illustrating plan, and shew the respective claims of the parties. The surveyors must file the original or the copy of the "special" plans mentioned, and also file their notes and data on the measurements.

WHARF—CONVENTIONAL LINE—TRESPASS.

In an action claiming damages for trespass to land, the trespass complained of consisted in the erection of a wharf or abutment on plaintiff's land. Plaintiff failed to show that the erection complained of was within the lines of the description of his lot, while defendant, on the other hand, proved that the abutment was erected upon the bed logs of an older abutment. Plaintiff also relied upon a conventional line alleged to have been entered into between plaintiff's predecessor in title and one M., since deceased. Judgment having been given in plaintiff's favour on the trial:—Held, that defendant's appeal must be allowed and plaintiff's action dismissed with costs. Per Sir Wallace Graham, C.J.:—It is exceedingly dangerous when one of the parties is dead to accept too implicitly evidence of the other as to an alleged conventional line which supersedes the boundaries of the documentary title deeds.

Letarte v. Turgean, 26 D.L.R. 25, 24 Que. K.B. 514.

(§ II C—31)—SURVEYOR—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

In the action on bornage each party is, at the same time, plaintiff and defendant. Therefore, each of them, even if there is no contestation, has a right to have witnesses examined and documents produced to establish their respective claims as to possession, etc., and, therefore, also, they bear the costs in common as those of the bornage itself. The report of the expert surveyor that, without any order from the court "he had heard part of the witnesses for the defence" (whose depositions were not produced) and which was afterwards altered, is irregular and its conclusions should not be adopted. Failure of the defence to oppose the application for its homologation made by the plaintiff before it was altered, does not raise a presumption of acquiescence in the altered report.

(§ I-1) — WHAT CONSTITUTES — HIRING TEAMS TO CONVEY ELECTORS—MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

The hiring of horses, teams, carriages or other vehicles for the purpose of conveying electors to or from the polls, is bribery within the meaning of s. 245 of the Consolidated Municipal Act (Ont.), no matter what was the motive in so hiring, and disqualifies a member of the council so doing from holding his seat.

TO INDUCE ANOTHER TO—ELECTION ACT.

It is a bribery offence under the Alberta Election Act, s. 254, to give or offer money to any person "in order to induce any voter to vote or refrain from voting" at any election which is subject to that act, but the essence of the offence is, that the payment or offer of the money should itself influence the mind of the voter; the section does not make it an offence to send $10 to a person who had consented to work for one of the election parties to pay for his own time, trouble and expense in getting to the polls five voters who were believed to have already decided to vote on a plebiscite in the way favoured by such election party.

ATTEMPTS — SOLICITATION OF OFFER TO BRIBE.

For a municipal councillor to ask from a contractor doing business with the municipal council a sum of money for himself for his assistance in obtaining contracts with the municipality and in renewing contracts then current, is not an offence under s. 161 of the Criminal Code if such offer is not accepted, nor can the councillor be convicted under s. 72 of the Code of attempting the offence of which the contractor would have been guilty under s. 161 had he paid the money or even offered to pay it. But the unsuccessful solicitation by the councillor is a substantive offence under s. 69 (d) of the Code.

Bribery is an act to which it is necessary that two persons be parties, the briber and the corrupted party, and an information for the completed offence, should include the names of both as parties charged; but, if only an attempt to bribe is alleged, the offence is unilateral and the information is sufficient, if it charges only the person making the attempt.

The corrupt offer to give a sum of money to a member of the Police Commission appointed for a city by its municipal council from amongst its members, for the purpose of inducing such Commissioner to use his official position to aid in procuring the appointment of a third party as Chief of Police by the Board of Police Commissioners is an indictable offence under s. 163 of the Criminal Code. [R. v. Vaughan, 4 Burr. 2494; R. v. Casano, 5 Esp. 231; R. v. Pollman, 2 Camp. 229, referred to.]

REWARD FOR ASSISTANCE TO PROCURE OFFICIAL POSITION.

An attempt to improperly procure the appointment of another to the position of Chief of Police for a city by promising a reward to a member of the appointing board for his influence, will not support a charge under subs. (b) of Codes. 162 making it an indictable offence directly or indirectly to give a reward for the purchase of an appointment to an office or to agree or promise to do so; such facts do not disclose an attempted sale or purchase of an office under s. 162 (b), but may sustain a count laid for an attempted offence under s. 163 (b) relating to giving or procuring rewards "for any interest, request or negotiation about any office."

Municipalities are not bound to take all the precautions necessary for absolute protection from automobiles in public streets, or upon public bridges, nevertheless if an automobile is thrown below a bridge because the hand rail is completely rotten, the municipality is responsible for having contributed, in part, to the accident. When an automobile wheel turns to the left at a right angle, and thereby causes the automobile to be thrown below a bridge, and the turning of the wheel cannot be explained, the machine must be deemed to have been in bad order, and the owner should be held responsible for a contributory part of the damage which he suffered.

I. Stock brokers.

(§ I-1)—STOCK BROKER.

Where a stock broker is given a limited authority to sell certain company shares on terms requiring a deposit of ten per cent in cash and he receives a lesser deposit with an application for the shares, he is not warranted in forwarding such deposit to his principal, and will himself be liable to the prospective purchaser for its return. [McPherson v. Fidelity Trust & Savings Co., 17 B.C.R. 182, judgment of Hunter, C.J., at trial, affirmed on appeal.]

McPherson v. Fidelity Trust & Savings Co., 6 D.L.R. 530, 17 B.C.R. 182.

STOCK BROKERS—CLEARING HOUSE—CUSTOMER — STATUS OF EACH IN OPTION DEALS.

A person buying and selling options on a stock exchange which employs a clearing house association, is taken to accept the usage of putting the transactions through the clearing house with the result that the association will, in the ordinary course become the opposite party in each contract he makes, while he will be represented by his own broker as the nominal principal.

Richardson v. Beamish, 13 D.L.R. 400, 23 Man. L.R. 396, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 487, 24 W.L.R. 514, 4 W.W.R. 815.

STOCK BROKERS—AUTHORITY TO SELL STOCK RIGHT TO PLEDGE — RESTRICTIVE ENDORSEMENT.

Power to pledge a certificate of shares of company stock for the total amount thereof is not conferred on a broker by the delivery to him by the registered owner of a certificate for forty-six shares for the purpose of having the broker sell twenty-five of them, where the certificate bore a restrictive endorsement to the effect that "for value received . . . hereby sell, assign and transfer unto . . . twenty-five shares," etc.; since such endorsement gave notice that the broker had authority to deal with only twenty-five shares for the purpose of sale. [Colonial Bank v. Cady, 15 A.C. 267, followed; Smyth v. Rogers, 30 O.R. 256, distinguished.]

Mathers v. Royal Bank of Canada, 14 D.L.R. 7, 29 O.L.R. 141.

STOCK BROKER — SALE OF SHARES ON DEFAULT OF CLIENT TO PAY—CONVERSION.

A stock broker who, on the refusal of a client to pay for shares purchased on his order, sells them, is liable for a conversion; since, in the absence of a pledge of the shares with the broker, his rights are limited to holding them until paid for.

STOCK BROKER—FAILURE TO GIVE NOTICE OF EXECUTION OF ORDER—DELAY IN DELIVERY OF STOCK CERTIFICATE.

A stock broker who gives his client speedy notice of the purchase of shares of stock for him is not answerable, in the absence of damage to his client, for a delay in the delivery of the stock certificate, where the latter could have dealt with the shares and negotiated them on the strength of such notice, and the delay in the delivery of the certificate was due to the conduct of a competent broker employed by the first broker with the implied consent of the client, to purchase the shares in another city.

Buchan v. Newell, 15 D.L.R. 437, 29 O.L.R. 308.

WHEN LIABLE AS PRINCIPLE — ACTING AS PURCHASER.

A broker constituting himself the actual purchaser of bonds, though he is to receive a certain allowance in the nature of a commission by way of deduction from the price is liable, in the event of his refusal to accept the bonds in accordance with the contract, in the capacity of principal and not as agent.

McKinnon v. Doran, 26 D.L.R. 488, 35

O.L.R. 349, affirming 25 D.L.R. 787, 31 O.L.R. 463. [Affirmed in 31 D.L.R. 307, 53 Can. S.C.R. 609.]

INSTRUCTIONS TO SELL AT CERTAIN PRICE—SALE AT LOWER PRICE—LIABILITY.

Geahart v. Quaker Oats Co. (Sask.), 42 D.L.R. 791.

SALE OF GRAIN — MARGINS — CHEQUE TO COVER—RETURN OF MONEY DEPOSITED.

Footbrads v. Regina Grain Co. (Sask.), 42 D.L.R. 787, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1093.

Where, on three occasions during the period of three years, a broker delivered to his client certificates of stock transactions, known as "bought and sold notes," signed by one of his employees on his behalf, the client is justified in the belief that the employee has proper authority from the broker for that purpose, and the broker is responsible and bound towards the client by a subsequent irregular or false certificate, of the same nature, signed in a similar manner.

Bolton v. MacDougall, 20 Que. K.B. 544.

POWER TO AGREE ON CONDITIONAL ACCEPTANCE OF SHARES — PRIVILEGE TO RETURN.

A broker or agent of a joint stock company, who has a mandate to procure subscriptions for shares in the capital stock of the company, cannot accept subscriptions on the understanding that if the subscriber does not wish to take the shares he will not be obliged to pay for them.

Forget v. Cement Products Co., 24 Que. K.B. 445. [Affirmed, 28 D.L.R. 717.]

(§ 1-2)—MARGINS—RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES.

The broker is protected only in so far as he acts reasonably thereunder, by a clause in bought and sold notes of a grain broker, that he reserves the right in case at any time margins are running out or approaching exhaustion, to close the trades by purchase or sale upon the exchange without calling for additional margins or the giving of further notice.

Nelson v. Baird, 22 D.L.R. 132, 25 Man. L.R. 244, 8 W.W.R. 144, 30 W.L.R. 822.

GRAIN—COMMISSIONS—PRIVITY OF PRINCIPALS.

A grain broker who does not procure privity of contract between a seller and a purchaser is not entitled to his commissions as for a sale nor to damages resulting to him from a refusal to deliver by the seller.

Smith Grain Co. v. Pound, 36 D.L.R. 615, 10 S.L.R. 368, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 516.

MARGIN—RULES OF STOCK EXCHANGE.

An order to purchase shares "subject to the rules and regulations of the Montreal Stock Exchange" imports into the contract the custom or usage of brokers on that Exchange, and if it is a usage thereof to buy shares on another Exchange if necessary to fill an order, such a purchase is valid; a broker of such other Exchange buying to fill such an order is an agent of the original broker, not a principal.

McDougall v. Riordan, 38 D.L.R. 198, 24 B.C.R. 446, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1076.

GRAIN EXCHANGE—MARGINS—CR. CODE.

Dealing in "futures" on the grain exchange where the intent of the transactions is to meet the obligations to deliver by a set-off of a contract to purchase a like quantity of grain, and to adjust the differences between the selling and the buying prices and by thus dealing in such differences to make grain or profit by an anticipated fall in the price of the merchandise, are in contravention of s. 231 of the Criminal Code. [Beamish v. Richardson, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 394, 16 D.L.R. 855, 49 Can. S.C.R. 595, 6 W.W.R. 1258, applied.]

Richardson v. Gilbertson, 39 D.L.R. 56, 29 O.L.R. 423, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 431.

PURCHASE OF CORN ON MARGIN—FURTHER MARGIN CALLED—FAILURE TO COVER—SALE BY BROKER.

A person dealing in margins on the stock exchange is deemed to have knowledge of the rules which authorize brokers to sell stock carried on margin for their own protection, and failing to cover when called upon must bear the loss. Such a transaction is not within the provisions of s. 231, Cr. Code.

RULES OF STOCK EXCHANGE—AUTHORITY OF BROKER TO PURCHASE STOCK TO FILL AN ORDER.

Rosenthal v. Pitblado, 20 Que. K.B. 566, varying as to quantum of damages, 37 Que. S.C. 443.

STOCK BROKERS—SALE OF STOCK ON MARGIN.

On an ordinary purchase of stock on margin through a broker, if the broker fails to deliver the shares upon a demand being made with a tender of the balance due on them, the purchaser is entitled to the value of the shares at the time of such tender and demand, less any balance owing upon them and less commission and interest. In a stock margin deal, the "bought notes" are not in themselves conclusive in establishing the terms of the actual purchase. [Aston v. Kelsey, [1913] 3 K.B. 314; Johnston v. Kearley, [1908] 1 K.B. 514, considered.]

In a transaction between a stock broker and his customer for stocks on margin, a stipulation saving the broker from liability for "any kind of failure or default on the part of (such broker's) correspondents" is to be construed as referring to the correspondents' possible neglect in executing the order, and not as covering the contingency of the correspondents' bankruptcy or its effect on the customer's order. A condition printed upon a stock broker's "bought note" sent to the customer after the order is executed will not bind the purchaser unless he has assented thereto or has failed to express immediate dissent under circumstances which cast upon him the duty of notifying the broker forthwith that he does not agree to the conditions expressed. [Price v. Union Lighterage Co., [1903] 1 K.B. 750, 20 Times L.R. 177, applied; Ewing v. Dominion Bank, 35 Can. S.C.R. 133, referred to.] In a stock margin deal where the buyer's broker in the usual course of the transaction would select and employ a foreign broker to complete the transaction, the fact that the customer was charged with the entire cost of the shares at the foreign price plus the foreign broker's commission, without distinction being made as to the commission or notice to the customer that the commission was included, and the customer is also charged a commission by his own broker, is evidence to shew that the foreign broker was the agent only of the local broker, and that the local broker was himself responsible to the customer for putting through the transaction and not merely an agent to transmit the order to the foreign broker.

Croft v. Mitchell, 14 D.L.R. 914, 5 O.W.N. 481, 25 O.W.R. 503, affirming 10 D.L.R. 695.

STOCK BROKERS—MARGINS—"REAL" OR "FICTITIOUS" TRANSACTIONS—"BUCKET SHOP" DEFINED.

"Bucket shops," inhibited by virtue of s. 31 of the Criminal Code (Can.) 1906, c. 146, are places where bets are made against the rise or fall of stocks or commodities and where the pretended transactions of purchase or sale are fictitious. [Pearson v. Carpenter, 35 Can. S.C.R. 380, 382, referred to. Forget v. Ostigny, [1895] A.C. 318, applied.]

Richardson v. Beamish, 13 D.L.R. 460, 23 Man. L.R. 306, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 487, 24 W.L.R. 514, 4 W.W.R. 815.

PURCHASE OF SHARES ON MARGIN—CONTRACTS—TERMS—FAILURE TO KEEP UP MARGINS—RESALE BY BROKERS.

Gray v. Buchan, 6 D.L.R. 875, 23 O.W.R. 210. [Affirmed, 9 D.L.R. 880, 24 O.W.R. 70.]

GRAIN EXCHANGE — MARGIN TRANSACTIONS —CRIMINAL CODE, S. 231 — SET-OFF AGAINST LEGAL TRANSACTION.

One who knowingly is a party to and acquiesces in a transaction inhibited under s. 31 of the Criminal Code cannot set-off an amount owing under such transaction from a member of a company against an amount due to such company from a legal transaction.

Medicine Hat Grain Co. v. Norris Commission Co., 45 D.L.R. 114, 14 A.L.R. 235, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 161, reversing 37 D.L.R. 188.

TRANSACTION IN COMPANY SHARES—"BORROWING STOCK"—PAYMENT MADE BY BORROWER, WHETHER FOR "MARKING UP" OR "CLOSING OUT" TRANSACTION—EVIDENCE—FINDING OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE—REVERSAL ON APPEAL.

The plaintiff in Feb. 1916, "borrowed" from the defendants, stockbrokers, a block of shares of the stock of a mining company, and paid them the market price of the stock on that day, as security. In such a transaction, the lender can at any time call in the loan, and then the borrower must return the stock, receiving his money back; but the more usual course is for the borrower to pay the lender the amount representing the rise in value of the stock and allow the loan to be continued until a new demand by the lender—this is called "marking up." If the borrower fails to return the stock or to "mark up," the lender may buy in to protect himself and charge the borrower with the difference in price. On April 29, 1916, the defendants asked the plaintiff to "close out the account" on May 1, and threatened to close it out on that day if the plaintiff did not "bring the stock in." A day or two after May 1, the plaintiff went to the defendants' office and paid $400 by a cheque which had no memorandum on its face as to the object for which it was given. This was the sum which he should have paid to entitle him to retain the stock as his own and so close out the account; it was equally the sum which he should have paid to "mark up"—being the amount by which the stock had risen. In Oct. or Nov., 1917, the plaintiff offered to return the stock and demanded the return of his money. The defendants refused to return the money, and this action was brought to recover it. The defendants asserted that they had, on the 1st May, 1916, bought stock to replace the borrowed stock, and had advised the plaintiff, but the plaintiff did not know of the purchase, and received no notice till long afterwards. The plaintiff swore that he paid the $400 for "marking up," and there was no contradiction;—Held, that, upon the evidence, it must be found that the money was paid for "marking up," and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the amounts he had paid, on his handing back the borrowed stock. Judgment of Rose, J., Trial

Judge, reversed; the majority of the court disagreeing with him upon the facts. [Beal v. Michigan Central R.R. Co., 19 O.L.R. 502, and Dempster v. Lewis, 33 Can. S.C.R. 292, followed.]

Jarvis v. Connell, 44 O.L.R. 264.

(§ 1-3)—RIGHTS TO CLAIM SHARES—DEFINITE.

Since "borrowing" in stock-broking circles does not imply a return of the very stock certificates borrowed, the borrower having the right to return the stock at any time and demand the return of money paid as security, a stock broker, who lends mining stock to another broker upon the customary security representing the market value, cannot after his refusal to comply with the borrower's demand for a return of the money and to take back the shares when the values declined, compel the delivery of the shares upon a rise of the price, or recover their value where the shares have meanwhile been sold.

Wills v. Ford and Doucette, 26 D.L.R. 500, 35 O.L.R. 126.

TRANSFER OF SECURITIES—STOCKS HELD FOR RE-SALE ON CUSTOMER'S ACCOUNT.

Long v. Smiley, 6 D.L.R. 904, 4 O.W.N. 229, 23 O.W.R. 229.

(§ 1-4)—STOCK BROKERS—FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP — BROKER'S OWN STOCK — PROFITS.

An agent cannot make a profit at the expense of his principal; and a broker employed to purchase stock at the market price who issues to the customer a bought note in respect of the broker's own stock cannot escape from the operation of the rule unless he makes full disclosure to his principal, nor is the broker's duty in that respect performed by putting through the stock exchange a transaction whereby he sold proforma to an officer of the exchange at a quotation at which he, the broker, had made a bid to either buy or sell without obtaining any acceptance, repurchased proforma at the same quotation from such officer, and charged his principal with the price, adding commissions and carrying charges.

Playfair v. Cormack, 13 D.L.R. 816, 5 O.W.N. 35, 24 O.W.R. 591, affirming 11 D.L.R. 128, 4 O.W.N. 1195, 24 O.W.R. 988.

II. Real estate brokers.

A. IN GENERAL, AUTHORITY AND LIABILITY OF.

(§ II A-5)—LISTED LANDS—AUTHORITY TO SELL.

Where a principal has merely instructed a broker to place lands on his list of properties for sale, such "listing" does not of itself constitute an authorization to the broker to enter into a contract for the sale of the lands on behalf of his principal.

Peacock v. Wilkinson, 23 D.L.R. 197, 51 Can. S.C.R. 319, 8 W.W.R. 600, affirming 18 D.L.R. 418, 7 S.L.R. 259, 29 W.L.R. 373, 7 W.W.R. 85.

CANCELLATION OF AUTHORITY.

Where a broker is given charge of the sale separately of a number of lots and is to receive a percentage on the net profits on the total sales, he would not be subject to dismissal, after having started on his work until it was completed, except for cause; but if the broker neglects the work of selling where it was a part of the arrangement that he should give his personal attention to the business, the property owner may cancel his authority.

Gier v. Van Aalst, 22 D.L.R. 438, affirming 16 D.L.R. 870, 28 W.L.R. 665.

REAL ESTATE—AGENCY CONTRACT—NECESSITY FOR WRITING, HOW LIMITED.

The Alberta statute, 1906, c. 27, requiring real estate agent's commission contracts to be in writing does not apply to a contract by the recipient of a commission from the owner to divide it with another person through whose influence such recipient obtained the listing from the owner. [Heaton v. Flater, 16 D.L.R. 78, followed.]

REAL ESTATE—AGENCY CONTRACT, WHEN WRITING NECESSARY.

Chapter 27 of the Alberta Statutes of 1906, providing against action being brought for commission on realty sales unless the contract therefor or some note or memorandum thereof is in writing, does not apply to a case for apportionment of commission where three persons agree to share between themselves a commission earned by their joint efforts, the intent of the statute being not to operate in favour of any one except the person to whom the services are alleged to have been rendered.

Heaton v. Flater, 16 D.L.R. 78, 8 A.L.R. 21, 5 W.W.R. 1228, 27 W.L.R. 98. [Followed in Kattar v. Schubert, 19 D.L.R. 804.]

REAL ESTATE BROKERS.

To prove that a person was appointed by the owner as his agent for the sale of land there must appear in some shape an offer upon the one hand and an acceptance on the other, out of which there grew a contract establishing the mutual rights and responsibilities of the relation of principal and agent.

Maybury v. O'Brien, 6 D.L.R. 268, 26 D.L.R. 628, 22 O.W.R. 677.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—COMPENSATION—SHARING OF COMMISSION.

The mere receipt of a secret commission from his own principal would not disentitle the broker from the benefit of an agreement between himself and the broker for the other party for sharing the latter's commission, where it did not involve the plaintiff in any conflict of duties. [Mimer v. Moyie, 19 Man. L.R. 797, referred to.]

Sargent v. Eidsvig, 13 D.L.R. 752, 25 W.L.R. 366.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—COMPENSATION—SALES OF MINING PROPERTIES.

Crichton v. Ewyer, 25 O.W.R. 391.

REAL ESTATE—AUTHORITY—"TO BRING A PURCHASER," CONSTRUED.

In an agreement between an owner of land and an agent employed to procure a customer, the words "to bring a purchaser," or "to produce," or "to introduce," or "find a purchaser," have no real difference in meaning so far as liability of the seller to pay the commission is concerned, if the steps taken by the agent were the efficient cause of bringing the owner into relation with the person who finally became the purchaser.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—LISTING AGREEMENT—AUTHORITY TO CONCLUDE SALE.

Where an owner places land in the hands of an agent for sale, under a listing agreement, which does not contain an express authorization to conclude a contract of sale, the authority of the agent is limited to finding a purchaser, and the agreement does not give him the right to conclude a contract of sale binding on the owner; and this is true whether the listing agreement authorizes the agent "to list the property for sale," or "to sell it." [Hamar v. Sharpe, L.R. 19 Eq. 108; Prior v. Moore, 3 T.L.R. 624; Chadburn v. Moore, 61 L.J. Ch. 674, and Gilmour v. Simon, 37 Can. S.C. R. 422, applied; Rosenbaum v. Belson, [1900] 2 Ch. 267, doubted; Boyle v. Grassick, 6 Torr. L.R. 232, followed; Schaefer v. Millar (No. 1), 8 D.L.R. 706, affirmed.]

Schaefer v. Millar and Good (No. 2), 11 D.L.R. 417, 6 S.L.R. 395, 23 W.L.R. 913, 4 W.W.R. 490. [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada, dismissed.]

REAL ESTATE AGENT—RE-SALE—ALTERNATIVE PROMISE TO TAKE PROPERTY HIMSELF.

Where a real estate agent, in order to induce a proposed purchaser to buy certain land orally promises the proposed purchaser that he would make a profit of a stated sum within 60 days on the deal or take the property himself, such promise is to be construed as indivisible, but it cannot be enforced because of its uncertainty where it does not appear whether or not the latter alternative of "taking the property" was to include the suggested profit, nor was any time fixed for carrying it out, nor specification made as to the liabilities or encumbrances which the purchaser had assumed with the property.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—COMMISSION TO PURCHASER'S AGENT AS CONDITION OF CONTRACT—EFFECT.

Where a real estate broker enters into negotiations with the owner to buy for an undisclosed purchaser, and on concluding the bargain includes in it a condition which the owner accepts, that the latter to whom he was under no fiduciary obligation should pay him a commission on the sale, such will not alone constitute the broker an agent of the vendor.

Alexander v. Enderton, 15 D.L.R. 588, 5 W.W.R. 1022, 50 C.L.J. 277, 26 W.L.R. 535. [Affirmed, 19 D.L.R. 897.]

REAL ESTATE—DUTY TO OBTAIN HIGHEST PRICE, HOW LIMITED—REASONS.

Where the prices of large acreages of farm lands are fixed approximately on well-understood standards, the owner who in the usual course employs a selling agent and names the selling price either adding the agent's commission to that price or allowing the agent to retain whatever amount he can secure from a purchaser over and above the price named, cannot invoke the ordinary rule which imposes upon an agent the duty of obtaining the highest possible price for his principal. [Morgan v. Eiford, 4 Ch. D. 352, applied.]

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—AUTHORITY—LISTING AGREEMENT, TO "SELL," EFFECT.

Where an owner in a listing agreement gives authority to a real estate agent to "sell his property," and in such agreement reserves the right to sell the property either by himself or through other agents, such reservation is to be interpreted as an intimation that the agent's authority is limited to finding a purchaser, since to hold otherwise would place the owner in an embarrassing situation if he had such an agreement with several agents. [Wilde v. Watson, 1 L.R. Ir. 402, referred to; Schaefer v. Millar (No. 1), 8 D.L.R. 706, affirmed.]

Schaefer v. Millar and Good (No. 2), 11 D.L.R. 417, 6 S.L.R. 393, 23 W.L.R. 913, 4 W.W.R. 490, affirming 8 D.L.R. 706. [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada dismissed.]

SALE OF LAND—BROKER'S COMMISSION—EVIDENCE.

Chapman v. McWhinney, 23 O.W.R. 834. PROOF OF EMPLOYMENT.

A mandate to sell property given to a real estate agent cannot be proved by witnesses. Although oral evidence may be admissible to establish that the immovable was for sale and that the agent had found a purchaser to whom he had sold it, these facts alone are not sufficient to entitle him to a commission. He should prove that his services were retained by the owner to effect the sale.

Dudemaine v. Pelletier, 47 Que. S.C. 154.

REAL ESTATE BROKER—SALE OF LAND—COMMISSION—TIME LIMIT TO AGENCY—LAPSE OF AUTHORITY—EVIDENCE—PRODUCTION OF PLAINTIFFS' DIARY—ALTERATION IN—FINDINGS OF FACT BY TRIAL JUDGE—DUTY OF APPELLATE COURT.
Currie v. Hoskin, 23 O.W.R. 676.

(§ II A—6)—REAL ESTATE—OPTIONS TO PURCHASE OR SELL—MONEY LENT.

Where the owner of property employs an agent, under a combined option and agency contract for the sale of such property at a fixed price, with stipulation that the agent shall advance moneys to keep up the property for the promotion of the sale, a provision that, in case the sale is effected by the owner himself, such advances shall be deemed a loan and repayable to the agent is governed not by the principles applicable to an option automatically ending at a fixed time and importing forfeiture, but rather as a loan constituting a debt due from the owner to the agent.

Nebraska v. Moresby, 17 D.L.R. 790, 19 B.C.R. 341, 27 W.L.R. 973, 6 W.W.R. 1040.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—OPTION TO PURCHASE OR SELL.

Beer v. Lea, 14 D.L.R. 236, 29 O.L.R. 255, affirming 7 D.L.R. 434.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—OPTION TO PURCHASE.

An option contract for the purchase of land made in favour of a firm of real estate brokers who were under no fiduciary relationship to the owner who gives the option, may also provide for payment by the owner to the firm of brokers of a stated commission whether they become the buyers themselves or procure another to carry out the terms of the option as the purchaser in substitution for the brokers; and such stipulation for payment of commission will not alone constitute the brokers the agents of the owner so as to create the fiduciary relationship of principal and agent between them. [Livingstone v. Ross, [1901] A.C. 327, 85 L.T. 382, distinguished.] The fact that the payment of a commission, if a sale was made, was provided for in an agreement giving a person an option to purchase property does not constitute him the vendor's agent.

PROCEEDS APPLIED ON CUSTOMER'S ACCOUNT—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

The business transactions between stock-brokers and one of their customers having been begun, and always carried on, under an agreement in writing whereby when stocks held by the brokers for the customer were sold the proceeds were to be applied on the customer's account and the customer was to pay interest at "such rate or rates" as the brokers "might notify" the customer of from "time to time," a sale of the customer's stocks and the application of the proceeds towards payment is a payment made by the customer, which saves the broker's claim out of the Statute of Limitations under which it otherwise would be barred. [Waters v. Tompkins, 2 C.M. & R. 723, followed.]

Stark v. Sommerville, 41 D.L.R. 496, 41 O.L.R. 591, affirming 40 O.L.R. 374.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—OPTION TO "PURCHASE OR SELL."

Where a real estate agent in the ordinary course of his business listed certain property for sale on commission at the request of the owners and afterwards, without severing his relation as agent, secured from the latter an option "to purchase or sell" the same, which also provided for a commission to the agent "in the event of a sale being made," and he found a purchaser willing to pay a price much greater than the figure placed on the property by the owners plus the agent's commission and gave him a receipt for his deposit, which stated that it was "given by the undersigned as agent and subject to the owner's confirmation," he continued to be the agent of the owner and was bound to disclose all information he had of circumstances that pointed to an enhanced price for the property, and he is not entitled to specific performance of the option.

Bentley v. Nasmith, 3 D.L.R. 619, 22 W.L.R. 209, 46 Can. S.C.R. 477, 2 W.W.R. 301, reversing 16 B.C.R. 308.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—OPTION TO PURCHASE OR SELL.

Where an agent for the sale of land, who also holds an option to purchase the property, agrees for a re-sale at an advanced price, he cannot exercise his option until he has divested himself of his character as agent, and, in order so to divest himself, he must disclose his contract for resale. [Bentley v. Nasmith, 3 D.L.R. 619, 46 Can. S.C.R. 477, followed.]

Bier v. Lea, 7 D.L.R. 434, 4 O.W.N. 342, 29 O.L.R. 255, 23 O.W.R. 826.

(§ II A-7)—REAL ESTATE AGENT'S PURCHASE IN OWN NAME—LIABILITY TO ACCOUNT FOR PROFITS.

A real estate agent cannot make a secret profit for himself at the expense of his principal, and where he secretly purchases the land himself and afterward makes a profit on the resale, he must account to his principal for the amount of such profit. [See also Miller v. Hand, 10 D.L.R. 186, and Re Blaylock, 16 D.L.R. 487.]

Simpson v. Davis, 17 D.L.R. 413, 7 S.L.R. 250.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS—FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP TO THEIR PRINCIPAL—DUTY TO DISCLOSE INFORMATION.

Where real estate agents, while acting in a fiduciary relation to the property owner, become aware of a change of circumstances affecting the property, but not known to the owner, which would make wholly inadequate the price at which the owner had previously authorized them to sell, they are bound as agents to disclose the fact to their principal and to advise him to seek independent advice before taking from him an option of purchase in their own names at the price he had named. [See also 1 Halsbury's Laws of England, p. 189.]

Can. Dig.—18.

REAL ESTATE BROKER—PAYMENT OF COMMISSION—AGENT—FIDUCIARY RELATION—OPTION TO PURCHASE OR SELL.

The fact that the payment of a commission, if a sale was made, was provided for in an agreement giving a person an option to purchase property does not constitute him the vendor's agent. The fact that, without the knowledge of the vendor, commissions he had agreed to pay to a real estate agent upon the sale of property the latter had an option to purchase, were paid by such agent to a person who, in the negotiations for the purchase ostensibly acted as agent for the person to whom the property was conveyed, but really purchased it for his own benefit, will not make him the vendor's agent, or create a fiduciary relation between them.

Kelly v. Enderton, 5 D.L.R. 613, 22 Man. L.R. 277, 21 W.L.R. 337, 2 W.W.R. 453. [Affirmed 9 D.L.R. 472, 23 W.L.R. 310, 3 W.W.R. 1003.]

PURCHASE BY REAL ESTATE AGENT SUBSEQUENT TO AGREEMENT TO SELL—DIFFERENCE IN PRICE—FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP.

Stevenson v. Sanders, 3 D.L.R. 790, 20 W.W.R. 242, 20 W.L.R. 787.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—AGENT PURCHASING FROM PRINCIPAL BOUND TO DISCLOSE HIS IDENTITY—VALIDITY OF CONTRACT.

A real estate agent purchasing from his principal the lands which the latter has listed with him for sale is bound to disclose to the latter that he is the purchaser; and, although the sale may be fair and reasonable in other respects, yet if the vendor has not been made aware that the real purchaser is his agent, such a sale cannot be supported unless the principal chooses to ratify it after knowledge of such fact. [McPherson v. Watt, 3 A.C. 254, 263, followed.]

Edgar v. Caskey (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 45, 5 A.L.R. 245, 22 W.L.R. 91, 2 W.W.R. 1036, reversing 4 D.L.R. 460.

BREACH OF DUTY—SECRET COMMISSION—FRAUD.

Where an agent employed to make a purchase of property for his principal has taken a secret commission from the vendor the principal is not only entitled to recover from the agent the amount of such commission, but is released from his obligation to pay a commission to the agent, and is entitled to recover the secret commission received by the latter. [See also Andrews v. Ramsay, 72 L.J.K.B. 865; Manitoba & North-West Land Co. v. Davidson, 34 Can. S.C.R. 225, and Hutchison v. Fleming, 40 Can. S.C.R. 134.]

Stapleton v. American Asbestos Co., 6 D.L.R. 340.

FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP—RIGHT OF OWNER TO RECOVER AMOUNT REALIZED ON SALE—EXCESS OVER NET PRICE.

A real estate broker with whom the owner of land had listed the same for sale at a price net to the owner at a certain amount per acre plus the broker's commission at a certain figure per acre, secured, without informing the owner, a purchaser through a third person at a higher price per acre than the net price to the owner plus the owner's commission, and agreed to give the third person such excess for his commission, and was paid a cash price from which he subtracted his commission and the excess over the net price of the whole of the land, the owner of the land sold, in an action brought by her for the balance of the cash payment less the commission she promised the broker, is entitled to recovery.

REAL ESTATE AGENT'S PURCHASE IN OWN NAME—LIABILITY TO ACCOUNT FOR PROFITS.

An agent selling land cannot make a profit for himself at the expense of his principal; and so if the agent fraudulently purchases the land himself, and afterwards makes a profit on the resale he is accountable to his principal for the amount of his profit less the commission on such profit.

Miller v. Hand (No. 2), 10 D.L.R. 186, 4 O.W.N. 936, affirming 8 D.L.R. 463, 24 O.W.R. 523.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP—BROKER BUYING CLANDESTINELY FROM HIS PRINCIPAL, EFFECT.

Where real estate agents enter into an agreement as agents with the owner of lands to negotiate a sale of the property, and where in such capacity they induce the owner to sell at a reduced price to a third party, who is merely a pretended purchaser and who has no interest in the transaction except to lend his name to the agents, who themselves are the real purchasers, the pretended contract of sale may be repudiated by the vendor on discovering the true facts, by reason of the fraud of the agents for whose benefit the pretended contract was made.

Watts v. Robertson, 9 D.L.R. 375, 23 Man. L.R. 534, 23 W.L.R. 261, 3 W.W.R. 936.

(§ II A—8)—REAL ESTATE—EMPLOYMENT OF SUBAGENTS—ONUS OF PROOF.

Where the real estate agent suing for commission on a sale of lands completed by him entered into the negotiations as the subagent of another broker with whom the owner had listed the property, and who also laid claim to the commission, the onus of proof is strictly on the former to shew an agreement with the owner whereby he became the latter's agent in substitution for the agent through whom he had been introduced into the transaction. [Greatorex v. Shackle, [1895] 2 Q.B. 249, 64 L.J.Q.B. 634, referred to.]

Morris v. Walton, 18 D.L.R. 655, 24 Man. L.R. 361, 28 W.L.R. 547.

COMMISSION—REAL ESTATE AGENT—TRANSACTION CLOSED BY PRINCIPAL—EMPLOYMENT OF SUBAGENTS—ABSENCE OF AUTHORITY OR RATIFICATION.

EMPLOYMENT OF SUBAGENT.

The business of selling real estate is one in which the right of an agent to employ another to dispose of the lands listed with him may reasonably be presumed.

Edgar v. Caskey (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 45, 5 A.L.R. 245, 22 W.L.R. 91, 2 W.W.R. 1036.

B. COMPENSATION.

(§ II B—10)—SALE OF LAND—AGENT—SUBAGENT—COMMISSION—PRIVITY OF CONTRACT.

SURPLUS ABOVE AMOUNT OF SALE—VARIATION OF TERMS.

An agreement, whereby a real estate broker is entitled to the surplus over and above the amount of the sale by way of commissions, does not entitle the broker upon his procuring the purchaser, to claim such commissions from the funds paid by the purchaser to the vendor's agents under terms at variance with the commission agreement.

Chalmers v. Machray, 26 D.L.R. 529, 26 Man. L.R. 105, 33 W.L.R. 656, 9 W.V.R. 1435, reversing 21 D.L.R. 635, 30 W.L.R. 836, 8 W.W.R. 27. [Affirmed, 39 D.L.R. 396, 55 Can. S.C.R. 612.]

COMMISSIONS — AGREEMENT — "ON ANY TERMS WHATSOEVER" — REMUNERATION FROM OTHER PARTY.

Herbert v. Anderson (Man.), 33 D.L.R. 171.

AUTHORITY OF SOLICITOR TO EMPLOY AGENT — LIABILITY OF PRINCIPAL — MISTAKE.

A solicitor, with whom land is placed for sale, has no implied authority to employ a broker to effect the sale, and, if acting under the solicitor's directions, the principal is led to sign a contract of sale containing a promise by the principal to pay the broker his commissions on the sale, without having his attention directed to it, the principal will not be bound by such promise. [Foster v. Mackinnon, L.R. 4 C.P. 704; Lewis v. Clay, 67 L.J.Q.B. 224; Carlisle, & Co. v. Bragg, [1911] 1 K.B. 489, followed.]

Rose v. Mahoney, 24 D.L.R. 326, 34 O.L.R. 238.

DEFAULT OF PURCHASER.

In the absence of any stipulation to the contrary, a real estate agent is entitled to his commission although the vendor has taken back the property and forfeited the purchaser's rights under the contract of sale for default in paying the second instalment of purchase money. [McCallum v. Russell, 2 S.L.R. 444, followed.]

MODIFICATION OF TERMS BY VENDOR—EFFECT.

The subsequent alteration, by mutual agreement of the vendor and purchaser, of the terms of payment set forth in their agreement of sale of a leasehold interest in lands, will not deprive the real estate agent who made the sale under vendor's authority, of his right to remuneration or postpone the date of payment of same. [Burchell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 614, referred to.]

Chalmers v. Campbell, 21 D.L.R. 635, 8 W.W.R. 27, 30 W.L.R. 836.

CUSTOMARY COMMISSIONS.

In ordinary business transactions where the parties have not settled the salary (remuneration) of the mandatory, the salary, under Quebec law, depends upon the usage of the place where the transaction took place or upon the equitable determination of the judge.

Wright v. The King, 22 D.L.R. 269, 15 Can. Ex. 293.

REAL ESTATE BROKER—SALE—VARIATION IN TERMS—COMMISSION CONTRACT—RIGHT TO COMMISSION.

Schliefer v. Kaufman, 20 D.L.R. 984, 47 Que. S.C. 145.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS—COMPENSATION—AGREEMENT TO DIVIDE COMMISSIONS.

Dixon v. Comley, 16 D.L.R. 882, 27 W.L.R. 276.

REAL ESTATE—COMPENSATION—ONUS OF PROVING CONTRACT EXPRESS OR IMPLIED.

In order to entitle a real estate broker to a commission there must be proved a contract therefor with the vendor either express or implied; proof that the broker's services were not gratuitous because of an agreement with the buyers whereby they paid half commission if the vendor paid none, tends to negative any presumption arising from acceptance of the service and to establish a defence that the vendor stipulated that he would pay no commission.

COMPENSATION—SALE ON UNAUTHORIZED TERMS.

Where an agent authorized to sell company shares and assets negotiates a sale at the price but upon terms not authorized by his principal as to the limit of liability of the purchasers in case of their default and the terms are not acquiesced in by the principal, the agent is not entitled to the stipulated commission.

REAL ESTATE BROKER—COMMISSIONS UNDER OPTION CONTRACT—DEFAULT OF PRINCIPAL.

Where as part of an agency agreement with a real estate agent, an option contract was given to him stipulating for the payment out of the purchase money of a sum as "commission" in the event of the sale of the property before the expiry of the option, the optionee is entitled to such commission where the owner refused to sell to a person produced by the optionee within the stipulated time, who was able and willing to buy on terms of the option. [Kelly v. Enderton, 9 D.L.R. 472, referred to.]

Booker v. O'Brien (No. 2), 12 D.L.R. 509, 6 S.L.R. 291, 24 W.L.R. 899, 4 W.W.R. 1228, affirming 9 D.L.R. 801.

COMPENSATION OF REAL ESTATE AGENT—CONTINGENT COMMISSION—NET PRICE TO OWNER.

Where land is listed with a real estate agent for sale under a contract of special employment whereby he is to negotiate a sale to net the owner the latter's minimum price over and above the commission, it is the owner's duty to ask from prospective purchasers with whom he may negotiate, a sufficient price to cover both the net price and the commission; but, where the purchaser will not pay more than the net price and there is no collusion between the owner and the purchaser to deprive the agent of his commission, the owner will not be liable for any commission on a sale bona fide closed at the net price, although the purchaser was introduced by the agent. [See Wrenshall v. McKeen, 5 D.L.R. 608.]

REAL ESTATE—CONTINGENT COMPENSATION—RESALES.

A real estate agent who purchases lands for his principal with a stipulation for commission on such purchase only when the lands shall be resold at a profit either by the purchaser or the agent is not necessarily disentitled by the lapse of time to payment of his commission on the owner himself reselling the same two years later.

Manchester v. Brown, 13 D.L.R. 148, 25 W.L.R. 157.

COMPENSATION OF REAL ESTATE AGENT.

In an action by a real estate agent for a commission on a sale, it is for the jury to say whether the contract was or was not brought about by the agent by his introduction or intervention; the test is, was the sale brought about in consequence of the introduction and is it traceable thereto; and if it resulted directly from the continuation of the negotiations begun by the agent, the latter is entitled to compensation. [Morson v. Burnside, 31 O.R. 438; Wolf v. Tait, 4 Man. L.R. 59, and Re Beale, Ex p. Durrant (1888), 5 Morrell 37, specially referred to. See also Leake on Contracts, 6th ed., 366, 367; Phipson on Evidence, 5th ed., 75.]

OF REAL ESTATE—RIGHT TO COMPENSATION—COMMISSIONS—FAILURE TO PROCURE PURCHASER WITHIN TIME SPECIFIED.

An agent is not entitled to his commission where by the term of the contract he was to procure a purchaser by a certain hour of the day, unless the purchaser is brought in within the time fixed; and this is true notwithstanding that the principal later negotiated with the person introduced by the agent after the expiration of the time limit.

Sibbitt v. Carson (No. 2), 8 D.L.R. 791, 27 O.L.R. 237, affirming 5 D.L.R. 193, 26 O.L.R. 583.

REAL ESTATE AGENT'S COMMISSION—LANDS TAKEN AS PART PAYMENT ON AN EXCHANGE OF PROPERTIES.

Where the owner of farm lands authorizes an agent to dispose of them and agrees to pay him the usual commission, and the latter succeeds in bringing about an agreement whereby the lands were taken as part payment in an exchange for city property, the owner of the farm lands is liable to the agent for commission on the sale.

Lewis v. Buckman, 1 D.L.R. 277, 20 W.L.R. 4, 1 W.W.R. 760.

COMPENSATION—EQUAL DIVISION OF PROFITS ON A RE-SALE—TITLE OR INTEREST IN LAND.

Where a purchaser of land enters into a contract with a real estate agent, whereby the purchaser is to furnish the purchase money less the commission payable to the real estate agent, and the profits on a re-sale of the property are to be divided equally between them, this does not create a partnership between the parties, and the real estate agent acquires no title or interest in the land in question.

Donough v. Moore, 2 D.L.R. 525, 22 Man. L.R. 79, 20 W.L.R. 334, 1 W.W.R. 845.

COMPENSATION.

The fact that real estate brokers after their employment by the landowner take to themselves an option from the owner to sell to them at the price fixed, does not preclude them from claiming the commission originally agreed upon, if the option was not intended to be in substitution for the previous agreement, but was given for the express purpose of satisfying a prospective purchaser of the agent's right to sell. [For cases on the general law of options, see Colgate's Law of Options, 36 Can. Law Journal 521.]

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—SALE OF LAND—AGENT'S COMMISSION—AUTHORITY TO SELL, BUT NOT EXCLUSIVE RIGHT—SALE BY PRINCIPAL WITHOUT NOTICE TO AGENT—SAME PROPERTY SOLD BY AGENT BEFORE NOTICE—RIGHT TO COMMISSION IN RESPECT THEREOF.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—COMMISSION ON SALE OF LAND—CONTRACT FOR PAYMENT OF COMMISSION—SALE TO BE WITHIN LIMITED TIME—SALE AFTER TIME BY VENDOR INDEPENDENTLY OF AGENT—QUANTUM MERUIT—RIGHT OF AGENT TO RECOVER THEREON.

A claim for the value of services rendered as agent in buying and selling land does not come under the law relating to summary procedure. The plaintiff in such case will be allowed to amend on payment of the costs of the exception to the form.

AGENT'S COMMISSION ON SALE OF LAND—OPTION FOR LIMITED TIME—EXPIRY OF OPTION—SUBSEQUENT SALE TO PURCHASER FOUND BY AGENT.

Hubbard v. Gage, 4 O.W.N. 901, 24 O.W.R. 184.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—COMMISSIONS—RIGHT TO—NEW CONDITIONS BY PRINCIPAL—CIVIL CODE ARTICLE 1534.

An owner who gives a real estate agent an option to sell his property cannot, after the latter has made a sale, insert in the deed of sale clauses which were not in the option, such as to pay interest on the balance of the unpaid purchase money; and, if the purchaser refuses to sign the deed so drawn, the agent has, nevertheless, a right to his commission. 2. An option of sale of real estate for $1,000 cash, $2,500 in a year, and the balance in 2 years, does not require payment of interest on the balance of the purchase money.

Merineau v. Viau, 46 Que. S.C. 197.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—COMMISSION ON EXCHANGE OF LANDS—CLAIM FROM BOTH PARTIES—CUSTOM OF LAND BROKERS.

Unless in exceptional cases, where both parties are aware that a double commission is charged and agree to it, an agent is not entitled to commission from both vendor and purchaser, as he must not place himself in a position causing a conflict between duty and interest; and this principle applies to an exchange of lands. [Thordarson v. Jones and Thordarson v. Heal, 17 Man. L.R. 295, distinguished.] The plaintiff's claim to be paid a commission by the defendants, to whom he brought a proposal for exchange of lands from two other persons, his principals, which was carried out, was denied. If a rule of the local association of land brokers or a custom by which a land broker was entitled to a commission from both parties to an exchange could be shown, it was in contravention of the general law, and therefore bad.

Bradley v. Coaflee, 28 W.L.R. 520.

COMMISSION ON SALE OF REAL ESTATE—SALE BY PROPRIETOR AT A PRICE BELOW.

One who instructs an agent or real estate broker to sell a property at a fixed price, in consideration of a commission of 2½ per cent within a period of three months, or afterwards "as long as he does not give him written notice to the contrary;" and who, after being put in touch with a purchaser, by the agent within 3 months, agrees to a sale to such purchaser after the three months at a price less than that fixed, but without having given any notice to the agent, owes the latter the commission on the sale price, at the amount agreed upon.

Leclerc v. Fissault, 45 Que. S.C. 182.

REAL ESTATE BROKER—COMMISSION—CON-TINGENT OFFER TO PURCHASE—AGREE-MENT—COMPLETION OF SALE.

When it is agreed between an owner and a real estate agent that the latter's commission shall consist of the surplus over the fixed price of sale, and that it shall be payable out of the first moneys received from the price of sale, the agent has no recourse against the owner if the purchaser refuses to carry out the contract of sale. Although, as a rule, a sale is completed solely by the agreement of the parties, nevertheless, in a case in which the parties manifest their intention that the agreement appearing from the informal documents is to be followed by a notarial deed, upon the usual conditions, the sale is not complete and the property is not transferred until the execution of such deed.

CUSTOM—QUE. C.C. 1722.

It is the custom that a real estate agent who sells a property has a right to a commission of 2½ per cent, payable by the vendor, unless there is a stipulation to the contrary.

Raymond v. Marcotte, 46 Que. S.C. 384.

OPTIONS—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE.

A document, which states that an owner sells his property to a real estate agent on the conditions mentioned in it and ends by a promise to pay to the agent a commission of 5 per cent upon the price of sale which he, the vendor, will accept, is not a sale in view of nonacceptance by the purchaser as the delivery of this document to the real estate agent cannot be considered a sufficient acceptance. In any case the agent can claim from the owner his commission for having found a purchaser on the vendor's conditions only by tending the portion of the price of sale payable in cash.

Langevin v. Duval, 47 Que. S.C. 511.

AGENT PROCURING OPTION—SALE TO AN-OTHER.

Although a person who instructs a real estate agent to sell his property is obliged to pay him the usual commission even without a provision therefor if the agent succeeds in finding a purchaser, such commission is not due when the agent obtains an option for some days at a fixed price without commission and after the expiration of the time the owner sells to another purchaser even introduced by the agent. The reason is that in such case the owner never employed the agent to sell his immovable.

SALE OF LAND—SECRET PROFIT BY REAL ESTATE BROKER—IMPLIED PARTNERSHIP—LIABILITY TO ACCOUNT.

Coy v. Pommerenke, 44 Can. S.C.R. 543. (II B—11)—VENDOR ACTING AS PURCHASER'S AGENT—SHARE OF PROFITS.

Where in an agreement for the sale of land by the plaintiff to the defendant, the former agreed to act as agent in its sale, and to subdivide it into lots and advertise them for sale, for which he should receive one-half of the net profits from the sale thereof after repaying to the defendant the purchase money, and where, on the failure of the plaintiff to perform such covenant the defendant did not terminate his agency in the manner required by the agreement, nor proceed to do what the plaintiff should have done, but sold the land en bloc without any subdivision into lots, the plaintiff is entitled in the absence of any provision to the contrary in the agreement, to the agreed proportion of the profits obtained by the sale en bloc.

Cruikshank and Brien v. Irving, 6 D.L.R. 257, 4 A.L.R. 348, 21 W.L.R. 172, 2 W.W.R. 134.

COMPENSATION—ACTING AS AGENT FOR PURCHASER—NONDISCLOSURE THAT HE WAS MEMBER OF FIRM PURCHASING.

A firm of real estate brokers is not entitled to a commission from a vendor for securing a purchaser for land, who was, without the fact being disclosed to the vendor, a member of such firm and bought the land for its benefit.

Edgar v. Caskey, 4 D.L.R. 460, 5 A.L.R. 245, 21 W.L.R. 444, 2 W.W.R. 245.

REAL ESTATE AGENT — COMPENSATION CLAIMED AGAINST BOTH PARTIES.

A real estate agent employed by a prospective purchaser for the purpose of buying a property is not, in the absence of a special contract to that effect, entitled, after the sale has been concluded, to claim a commission on the purchase price from the vendor who did not retain his services, any custom obtaining amongst real estate brokers notwithstanding. [Carroll v. O'Shea, 18 N.Y. Supp. 146, approved.]

Lemieux v. Seminary of St. Sulpice, 3 D.L.R. 639.

ACTING FOR BOTH PARTIES—COMPENSATION FROM BOTH—COLLUSION.

If a real estate agent entrusted to find a purchaser of property directly or indirectly colludes with the purchaser and so acts in opposition to the interests of the principal, he is not entitled to any commission. [Andrews v. Ramsay [1903] 2 K.B. 635, applied; see also vol. 1, Halsbury's Laws of England, p. 196, see. 416.]

Canadian Financiers, v. Hong Wo, 1 D.L.R. 38, 17 B.C.R. 8, 19 W.L.R. 843, 1 W.W.R. 677.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS—COMPENSATION—COLLUSION—FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP.

A real estate agent is not entitled to commission on an alleged sale of his principal's land to a salesman in the agent's own office, holding, moreover, a close relationship with the agent, where the alleged purchaser's position was not disclosed to the principal and the latter on learning thereof repudiated the agreement.

Arnold v. Drew, 11 D.L.R. 72, 24 W.L.R. 51, 4 W.W.R. 435.

FORMALITIES OF CONTRACT FOR COMMISSION—WRITING REQUIRED BY STATUTE (ALTA.)

The signed memorandum essential in Alberta in a contract for commission to a real estate broker (6 Edw. VII., Alta., c. 27) must be one to which the sale relied upon is referable; and the statutory requirement is not satisfied by the production of a written authority to the real estate broker to sell as one parcel a section and a half section of land for cash for a stipulated price, and to pay thereupon five per cent commission, when the contract made by the principal with the customer whom the broker had introduced, was an essentially different transaction not including the half section and accepting other lands in exchange for the section as part payment therefor, although the stipulated price for the section on the exchange was at a rate per acre higher than the rate per acre at which the broker had been authorized to sell the "section and a half" of land. [Herron v. Como, 9 D.L.R. 381, 23 W.L.R. 328, reversed.]

Como v. Herron, 16 D.L.R. 234, 49 Can. S.C.R. 1, 5 W.W.R. 662 and 678, 27 W.L.R. 165, reversing 9 D.L.R. 381.

[Leave to appeal to P.C. refused, March 20, 1914.]

AGENT ACTING FOR BOTH PARTIES.

The general rule is that a real estate agent cannot at the same time represent the vendor and the purchaser, but there are exceptions to this principle. Thus when a party gives a mandate to a person whom he knows to be agent of the party with whom he may enter into a contract, he cannot afterwards raise the objection that this agent is unable to act for both of them. The real estate agent is entitled to his commission even when there has been no sale if it failed from the fact that the property to have been sold was not in a condition provided for by the parties, so much so that either of them may properly refuse to carry out the agreement, for instance, in the case of the sale of a licensed hotel if the transfer of the license cannot be obtained.

Lamarre v. Clairmont, 48 Que. S.C. 461.

The defendant, agreed with the plaintiffs, land agents, that they should endeavour to procure a purchaser for his land at $45,000 before the end of September, and to leave it in their hands for that purpose until that time, and to pay them the regular commission if they did procure a purchaser. The plaintiffs spent time and money in advertising and in bringing the property to the notice of probable purchasers. The defendant on the 27th September revoked the plaintiffs' authority; but before that the plaintiffs had introduced the property to M., who was able to buy it at the price and on the terms mentioned. M., before the revocation, had made up his mind to buy the property and had told the plaintiffs' manager that he believed he would buy it, and requested him to call again, and the manager understood that M. intended to buy, but he had not definitely agreed to do so before the revocation. After the revocation, later on the same day, M. definitely agreed to buy and gave the plaintiffs a cheque for $500 as a deposit on the purchase, and was at that time ready, able and willing to complete the purchase at the price and on the terms mentioned, within the time limited by the defendant. It was held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to a quantum meruit on the basis of compensation for services, fixed at one-half the regular commission. Aldous v. Swanson, 20 Man. L.R. 191, 21 Man. L.R. 559, followed. The judgment of Mathers, C.J.K.B., 17 W.L.R. 230, was affirmed on appeal.]

Aldous v. Grundy, 20 W.L.R. 550.

PROOF OF AUTHORITY—ACTING FOR BOTH PARTIES.

A real estate agent cannot claim a commission for the sale of a grocery without proving his mandate. Any doubt should be interpreted against him. An agent who wishes to act for both contracting parties should obtain a formal mandate from each of them.

Caron v. Fagnan, 51 Que. S.C. 543.

(§ II B—12)—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICE—CONDITIONAL SALE.

A broker is only entitled to commission if he carries out the terms of his employment in their entirety. An action for commission for the sale of a chattel is therefore premature if the sale is subject to a condition which has not been complied with at the time the action is brought.

Greer v. Godson, 40 D.L.R. 218, 25 B.C.R. 229.

LOAN—POWERS OF CORPORATE OFFICER—CONDITIONS OF PROPERTY.

The principle that a real estate agent has a right to his commission when he had found a purchaser, and that it was the vendor's fault that the sale was not made, applies equally to a loan. So, an agent can claim his commission if the loan was not made because the lender discovered that the property offered in guarantee was likely to become enclosed, and that the borrower could not succeed in getting rid of such impediment. The borrower, in such case, is liable for the commissions, even if the mandate contained the words "no commission to be paid until the amount of the loan is received." The secretary-treasurer of a company authorized by it to borrow has power to stipulate that the real estate agent employed to find the money shall have the right to a commission. A purchaser or a lender has a right to count upon the apparent condition of the property offered for sale or guarantee; and if the actual condition of the property is different he may refuse to carry out the contract.

Regent Construction Co. v. Johnson, 24 Rev. Leg. 328.

SALE BY OWNER—REVOCATION OF AUTHORITY—DAMAGES—PAROL EVIDENCE.

One who gives a real estate agent a mandate to sell his property without limiting the time, but for a fixed price and for a commission, reserving the right to sell it himself, who in fact does sell the property, thereby tacitly revokes the mandate which he had given to his agent. In such case the agent cannot claim the commissions, but he has a right to damages he has sustained if the revocation was not warranted. In order to get damages, the agent must prove that he had actually found a purchaser. A mandate to a real estate agent for the sale of a property cannot be proved by witnesses without commencement of proof in writing. Such commencement of proof exists, when the principal so sued pleads admitting the mandate but maintaining that it had been agreed that if sale was not made by the agent he had no right to commissions.

Caron v. Couture, 24 Rev. Leg. 44.

SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES.

In an action by the plaintiff as real estate agent for commission for alleged sale of lands setting up a written authority to them from the owner with a provision worded as follows:—"In case you find such a purchaser, or in case you bring the property directly or indirectly to the attention of any one who becomes a purchaser upon any terms whatsoever, you are to be paid by me a commission of five per cent;" such a provision means that the agents must bring the property, directly or indirectly, to the attention of some person who shall thereby become a purchaser; and where the plaintiffs actually brought the property to the attention of a third party who, however, did not thereupon agree to buy, but on the contrary gave up all idea of buying, yet subsequently took the matter up afresh with another agent and purchased, the plaintiffs, as a matter of law, had nothing to do with effecting such sale and are not entitled to any commission.

Herbert et al. v. Bell ("The Locators" v. Bell), 8 D.L.R. 763, 6 S.L.R. 10, 22 W.L.R. 884, 3 W.W.R. 608.

SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES—OPTION.

An agreement taking an option is not a sale, since the proposed purchaser need not express his readiness to buy until the period given by the option has expired; until that time when the purchaser actually binds himself as such a real estate agent cannot say he has found a purchaser ready and willing to buy, so as to be able to claim his commission.

CHARTER PARTY—PROCURING CAUSE.

A ship broker employed to procure a charter party, has earned his commission when, having brought the parties together, an agreement to charter has resulted. The fact that the shipowner succeeded in procuring a slightly better rate than the broker does not justify an inference that the broker was not the efficient cause in procuring the charter party. [Burchell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 625; Austin v. Can. Fire Engine Co., 42 N.S.R. 77, followed. See also Chalmers v. Machray (Man.), 26

COMMISSIONS—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES—DISTINCTION BETWEEN PROCURING LOAN AND AGREEMENT TO LEND.

Johnson v. Regent Construction Co. (Que.), 37 D.L.R. 790, 23 Rev. de Jur. 575.

SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICE—CANCELLED SALES.

A stipulation in an agreement authorizing an agent to retain the commissions owing and due him of each sale out of the instalments collected from the purchaser, but that he was to collect the various instalments without further charge, entitles the agent to his full commissions on each sale approved by the principal, notwithstanding its subsequent cancellation in consequence of the default of the purchaser in the payment of instalments.

Powell v. Montgomery, 23 D.L.R. 213, 8 S.L.R. 224, 21 W.L.R. 759.

EXCHANGE OF LANDS—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES.

A real estate broker negotiating an exchange of lands for his customer is in no better position to claim that he procured a party ready, able and willing to exchange on the authorized terms than he would have been if the sale had been for a fixed price which the purchaser was unable to pay, if the proposed exchange fell through because the other party to it was not able to give what he had agreed to give in exchange for the property of such customer, nor was any exchange effected or finally agreed upon by the document which the defendant signed.

Business Brokers v. Diner, 22 D.L.R. 305, 25 Man. L.R. 471, 31 W.L.R. 455.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS — COMMISSION — WRITTEN MEMORANDUM.

The written memorandum which, by Alberta Statutes, 6 Edw. VII. c. 27, is necessary to support an action for a real estate agent's commission may consist of the owner's written offer to the agent to sell at a higher price than that which was eventually accepted, to which offer there was added an agreement to pay the agent a fixed percentage on the "purchase-price" by way of commission; such result will follow if the conduct of the parties shews that the words "purchase-price," as used in the offer, had not sole reference to the price mentioned in the offer, but related to that or any other sum which the owner might accept; the conduct of the parties in such case settling any doubt or ambiguity as to whether there was a mere option at the stated price, or a general retainer to sell. [Toulmin v. Millar, 58 L.T. 96, and Burchell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 614, referred to.]

REAL ESTATE BROKERS — SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES — PROCURING CAUSE — COMPENSATION.

When a proprietor with the view of selling his estate goes to an agent and requests him to find a purchaser, naming at the same time the sum which he is willing to accept, that will constitute a general employment; and should the estate be eventually sold to a purchaser introduced by the agent, the latter will be entitled to his commission, although the price paid should be less than the sum named at the time the employment was given. [Toulmin v. Millar, 58 L.T.R. 96; Burchell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 614; Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395; McBrayne v. Imperial, 28 O.L.R. 653; Stewart v. Henderson, 30 O.L.R. 447, applied.]

Hunt v. Emerson, 20 D.L.R. 381.

REAL ESTATE — COMPENSATION — SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES—SALE BY OWNER.

Where a real estate agent's commission on "all lands" sold within a specific subdivision during the continuance of his contract, is stipulated to be payable upon certain services and expenses by him promoting the sale, whether the lands be sold "by the agent, by the owner, or by any other person"; a sale in block by the owner to a corporation for a price fixed by him substantially all of which is paid in corporation stock, is basis for the commission, the services and outlay by the agent being established. [See also Kennerley v. Hextall, 9 D.L.R. 609, as to premature action.]

REAL ESTATE—LISTING OF WIFE'S PROPERTY AUTHORIZED BY HUSBAND—WIFE'S REFUSAL TO SELL WHEN PURCHASER FOUND.

Fraser v. Lande, 19 D.L.R. 886.

REAL ESTATE — COMPENSATION — SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES.

That a real estate agent, authorized by the owner to find a purchaser, but not having the exclusive agency, had introduced the property first to the eventual buyer, who had then declined to negotiate for it, will not entitle the agent to any compensation or commission on a sale being later effected through another agent if what the first agent did was not the efficient cause of the sale, nor was the fact of such introduction by him notified to his principal until after the sale had been effected through the other agent.

Astley v. Garnett, 20 D.L.R. 457, 7 W.W.R. 538, 20 B.C.R. 526, 29 W.L.R. 796.

REAL ESTATE—PARTICIPATION IN FRAUD ON LAND LAWS—EFFECT ON CLAIM FOR SERVICES.

Where persons are employed to make applications under the B.C. Land Act, 8 Edw. VII. (B.C.) c. 30, ss. 34 and 36, for the purchase by each in his own name of a tract of public land in British Columbia, allotted under settlement conditions as to improving the same before a Crown grant would be obtainable, and it is the purpose of the arrangement that they should hold the lands for the benefit of the employer until sold by him and thereby enable him to evade the statutory provision limiting purchases under such statutory provision to one tract for each person, an agreement entered into by parties to the original scheme for the purpose of carrying out the fraud upon the Land Act, is unenforceable; and this applies to nullify, as tainted with the illegality of the scheme as a whole, an alleged agreement by such employer to pay the person who had previously acted as his agent in getting nominees to apply for the lands, an additional compensation for his services in securing purchasers. [Followed in Clark v. Swan, 16 D.L.R. 382.]

Brownlee v. MacIntosh, 15 D.L.R. 871, 48 Can. S.C.R. 588, 26 W.L.R. 906, 5 W.W.R. 1137, affirming 9 D.L.R. 400.

REAL ESTATE — COMPENSATION — SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES—SPECIAL AGENCY CONTRACT — QUANTUM MERUIT, WHEN.

Where the defendant purchases certain lands through the plaintiffs for the disclosed purpose of reselling at a profit, listing the property for resale with the plaintiffs as his exclusive real estate agents for a fixed period at a fixed minimum price on a special contract for commission and expenses; and where the plaintiffs, pursuant to and during the period of the agency contract, expend time and money in efforts to make a sale, including the transportation charges in taking a proposed purchaser on a trip of inspection to the lands; and where later, while the agency contract is still in force, the owner, through another agent, effects a sale at the minimum price, the plaintiffs are entitled to recover upon a quantum meruit for their services, and are not limited to the actual value of the time given or the moneys expended, but are entitled to a substantial sum to be fixed by regard being had to the defendant's profit from the transaction. [Aldous v. Swanson, 14 W.L.R. 186, and Aldous v. Grundy, 17 W.L.R. 230, applied.]

REAL ESTATE AGENTS—SALE OF PART RATED BY PRINCIPAL.

A real estate agent authorized to sell acreage land in one lot at a price not less than a fixed minimum per acre will be entitled, unless the contract of agency provides to the contrary, to recover commission at the stipulated rate upon a sale of a part of the land at a higher acreage rate made through him and accepted by his principal.

SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES.

Where property is listed with a real estate agent for sale, with a stipulation that the sale was to net the owner a certain price per acre, and the agent's commission was to be a certain price per acre above the net price, the employment is a special one and the sale must be made above the stipulated net price in order to entitle the agent to a commission. [Wrenshall v. McCammon, 5 D.L.R. 608, considered; Rowlands v. Langley, 17 W.L.R. 443; Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, distinguished.] Where the employment of the real estate broker by the owner is a general one as distinguished from a special employment, and a minimum price is fixed for a certain period with a proviso for notice thereafter of withdrawal from sale or of increase or decrease in price, the broker will be entitled to commission at the stipulated rate per acre although the selling price finally agreed upon between the owner and the purchaser whom the agent procured is less than the price named to the agent as the lowest at which he might sell. [Burchell v. Gowrie & Blochhouse Collieries, [1910] A.C. 614, followed.] If an agent employed to sell real estate has a special employment as distinguished from a general employment, he is entitled to commission only when he brings himself within the terms of the special employment. [Monro v. Beischel, 1 S.L.R. 238, followed.]

REAL ESTATE—COMPENSATION—NEGOTIATIONS WITHOUT PRINCIPAL'S KNOWLEDGE, WHEN SUFFICIENT.

The right of a real estate agent to commissions for procuring a customer for his principal is not dependent upon the knowledge of the principal that the agent was the means of bringing the parties together, if as a matter of fact the agent was the efficient cause of the sale, and asserted his rights to the commissions promptly. [Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, applied; Spensard v. Rutledge (No. 1), 5 D.L.R. 649, reversed.] A real estate agent employed to procure a customer, and whose acts in bringing the buyer and seller together were the effective cause of the sale, is entitled to the commission, although the sale was finally completed through another agent whom the prospective customer had brought in under a scheme to deprive the real agent of his commission, the real agent acting promptly in claiming the commission from the seller before it was paid over to the other agent. [Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395; and Burchell v. Gowrie and Blockhouse Collieries, [1910] A.C. 614, applied; Spenard v. Rutledge (No. 1), 5 D.L.R. 649, reversed.]

REAL ESTATE—RELINQUISHMENT OF RIGHTS—COMMISSION—PAYMENT OF PURCHASE PRICE.

An agreement by an agent, who has become entitled to commission for the sale of land and who has been paid part of it, that he waives all claim for the balance of his commission in the event the second instalment is not paid by the purchaser on the due date, does not amount to a waiver of the agent's contractual rights unless there is a consideration to support such an agreement.

DeSals v. Jones, 11 D.L.R. 228, 24 W.L.R. 65, 4 W.W.R. 522.

RIGHT TO COMMISSION—HALF INTEREST IN REAL ESTATE.

A contract by defendants to pay plaintiff a broker's commission on all such sales respecting a townsite owned by defendants as should be effected through his introductions, does not limit the right to commission to sales of lots made to a company in contemplation as prospective purchasers when the contract was made, and entitles plaintiff to a commission on an accepted sale of an undivided half interest in the townsite made through his introduction, especially where all the initial transactions negotiated were merged into the final sale. [Burchell v. Gowrie & Blockhouse Collieries, [1910] A.C. 614, and Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, distinguished.]

COMPENSATION—SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES—INTRODUCING TO CLIENT PERSON FORMING COMPANY TO PURCHASE.

A broker, who introduces a prospective purchaser to his client is entitled to a commission on a sale being subsequently made by the latter to a company which such prospective purchaser assisted in forming as he intended doing when introduced to the client, although the company was organized on different lines than had been originally planned, where no person other than the broker assisted in bringing about the sale. AGENT'S COMMISSION ON SALE OF LAND.

An introduction by an agent for the sale of land of one who does not in fact purchase the land, but himself introduces a purchaser to the owner, though it may be a causa sine qua non, is not the causa causans of the sale, and the agent is not entitled to commission. Imrie v. Wilson, 3 D.L.R. 826, 3 O.W.N. 1145, 21 O.W.R. 962.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—LOWER PRICE ACCEPTED BY PRINCIPAL AFTER AGENT'S REFUSAL.

Where there has been an oral contract of employment of the real estate agent by the owner without a limitation of time, or stipulation of the price to be obtained other than that the agent shall obtain a satisfactory offer, the owner must pay the agent's remuneration in respect of a sale which the owner makes directly to the prospective purchaser at a price which the latter has offered the agent, but at which the agent does not submit a written offer because of instructions from the owner to demand a higher price. Where the prospective purchaser with whom the agent is negotiating goes to the vendor direct and buys at a price lower than the limit given by the owner to the agent, the agent is entitled to a commission based upon the price at which the property was sold. A real estate agent is entitled to a commission from the person who employs him to sell his property, if his introduction of the parties was the foundation of the negotiations which resulted in a sale being made by the principal to the buyer even at a lower price than that which the agent was authorized to accept. [Green v. Bartlett, 14 C.B.N.S. 681; Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395; Burchell v. Gowrie and Blockhouse Collieries, [1910] A.C. 614, followed.]

Singer v. Russell, 1 D.L.R. 646, 25 O.L.R. 444, 21 O.W.R. 24.

SALE OF LAND—COMMISSION—QUANTUM MERUIT—TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT—OFFER TO PURCHASE ON OWN BEHALF. Westergaard v. Weyl, 7 D.L.R. 847, 21 W.L.R. 403.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—COMPENSATION—FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION—RESTRICTED SPECIAL AGENCY.

Where the plaintiffs and the defendants are real estate agents, and the defendants to the knowledge of the plaintiffs hold a restricted special contract from the option-holders of certain lands under which the defendants are to receive not a variable percentage commission, but the lesser lump sum of $1,000 for negotiating at a stipulated price and terms a sale of the lands, and where the defendants agree to pay to the plaintiffs $500 as one-half of the lump sum for negotiating the sale at the price and terms so fixed, and where, under that agreement, the plaintiffs introduce to the option-holders a proposed purchaser, who, however, fails to agree definitely with the option-holders upon the terms or to make the purchase, but instead purchases a few days later directly from the owners at the same price on terms undisclosed in the evidence, the plaintiffs cannot, under such a restricted special contract, recover any compensation. Although vendors may sometimes be held liable where the vendors themselves proceed to sell to parties introduced by those agents on terms other than those on which the agents were instructed to procure purchasers, upon the ground that a vendor may not, after making such a sale and taking the benefit of the agent's services, refuse to pay therefor, such a principle cannot apply in an action by a real estate agent as against his employer, another real estate agent, who derives no benefit whatever and is no party to the change in the terms of sale.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—COMMISSION—PAYMENT OUT OF PURCHASE MONEY.

Where the plaintiff, a real estate agent, procured a written offer from a person to purchase land owned by the vendor, which the latter accepted, and where the only agreement shown as to the payment of the plaintiff's commission was a stipulation in such offer that it was to be paid out of the purchase money, the agent is not entitled, upon the refusal of the purchaser to complete the purchase, to recover a commission from the vendor, unless the latter is at fault in not carrying out the purchase.

Robinson v. Reynolds, 4 D.L.R. 63, 3 O.W.N. 1262.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—RIGHT TO COMMISSION—ABSENCE OF BEING THE REAL AND EFFICIENT CAUSE OF SALE.

A real estate agent cannot recover a commission if, notwithstanding the original introduction of a purchaser by him, his act is not the real and efficient cause of the sale. [Gillow & Co. v. Lord Aberdeen, 9 T.L.R. 12, affirming 8 T.L.R. 876, followed.] A real estate agent is entitled to a commission if the relation of buyer and seller was really brought about by his act, however trifling, though the actual sale was not affected by him. [Green v. Bartlett, 14 C.B.N.S. 681, at p. 685, and Steere v. Smith, 2 T.L.R. 131, referred to.] A real estate agent is not entitled to any commission, upon the ground that while his services were a causa sine qua non they were not a causa causans, where it appeared that he communicated with a prospective purchaser and went to the owner and asked her if she would sell her house and she authorized him to obtain a purchaser upon the usual terms as to commission, and finally an agreement of sale was entered into between the owner and the prospective purchaser, who signed nothing, and could not, therefore, be compelled to carry out the contract, and he afterwards repudiated the contract, and the owner went to the agent she had first employed, and he, after having been approached by the wife of the purchaser aforesaid, finally brought about a sale of the property to him. [Imrie v. Wilson, 3 D.L.R. 826, 3 O.W.N. 1145, affirmed, 3 D.L.R. 833, 3 O.W.N. 1378; Barnett v. Isaacson, 4 T.L.R. 645; Taplin v. Barrett, 6 T.L.R. 30, specially referred to; Wilkinson v. Alston, 48 L.J.Q.B. 733, 41 L.T.R. 394, distinguished.] The right to a commission on the part of a real estate agent is not lost by his discharge and the withdrawal of the lands from his hands before the sale if his acts were the efficient cause of the sale. [Wilkinson v. Martin, 8 C. & P. 1; Lumley v. Nicholson, 2 T.L.R. 118, per Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, at p. 119, referred to.]

Travis v. Coates, 5 D.L.R. 807, 27 O.L.R. 63, 22 O.W.R. 917.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—COMMISSION—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES.

Where land was listed with an agent to sell at a price net to the owner, the agent to receive for his services anything he could obtain over that amount, and the agent found a purchaser ready, willing and able to purchase for a price at a slight advance over the net price and on the terms given by the owner to the agent, and the owner refused to sign an agreement for sale for the reason that the price was not enough, the agent is entitled to recover on a quantum meruit the difference between the net price to the owner and the price the purchaser was willing to pay. [Bagshaw v. Rowland, 13 B.C.R. 262, specially referred to.]

REAL ESTATE AGENT—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES—SALE AFTER EXPIRATION OF EXTENDED OPTION.

A real estate broker exclusively employed for a specified time is not entitled to any commission upon a sale by his principal after the expiration of the agency to two persons, of whom one (the other having had no negotiations with the agent) verbally agreed to take some interest in a syndicate to be formed to purchase the property and in a subsequent dispute between himself and the agent as to the amount of such interest finally withdrew from the agreement and declined to have anything whatever to do with the agent and immediately put himself into communication with the principal for the purpose of buying the property. [Burrell v. Gowrie & Blockhouse Collieries, [1910] A.C. 614; Stratton v. Vaehon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, and Rice v. Galloath, 2 D.L.R. 859, 26 O.L.R. 43, distinguished. See also Singer v. Russell, 1 D.L.R. 646.]

AGENCY—COMMISSION—SALE OF LANDS—CAUSA CAUSANS—LIABILITY OF VENDOR FOR TWO COMMISSIONS.

Where two actions are brought by two separate land agents, each claiming, as against the vendor, commission on the same sale of the same property, the right to commission is his who was causa causans or the efficient cause of the sale to the exclusion of the other agent so claiming. [Burton v. Hughes, 1 T.L.R. 207, specially referred to.]

Walker and Webb v. MacDonald; Graham v. MacDonald, 6 D.L.R. 501, 4 O.W.N. 1, 22 O.W.R. 964.

EMPLOYMENT OF AGENT TO SELL LAND—PURCHASER PROCURED BY AGENT REFUSING TO CARRY OUT PURCHASE—RIGHT TO COMMISSION—CONTRACT—SCOPE OF—FINDING—APPEAL.

Robinson v. Reynolds (No. 2), 6 D.L.R. 855, 4 O.W.N. 111, 23 O.W.R. 144.

COMMISSION OF REAL ESTATE AGENT—CAUSA CAUSANS.

Where an agent claims commissions under a contract for negotiating the sale of lands, the determining principle is that he must have brought the vendor and purchaser together, not necessarily a personal introduction, but one through which the purchaser knew that the land of the vendor was for sale; and the absence of that element is fatal to the claim. Although it is clearly the law that an agent may not be disentitled to the commission on a sale of lands merely because the actual sale takes place without his knowledge, if his acts really brought about the relation of buyer and seller; yet, in a case in which the agent fails to show that some act of his was the causa causans or an efficient cause of the sale, he cannot recover. [Burrell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 614, specially referred to.]
 St. Germain v. L'oiseau, 6 D.L.R. 149, 48 C.L.J. 711, 5 A.L.R. 429, 22 W.L.R. 125, 2 W.W.R. 1007.

REAL ESTATE AGENT'S COMMISSION—REQUISITES OF LIABILITY.

In order to entitle a real estate agent to commission, he must have been the "efficient cause" of the sale; it is not enough that there was an introduction and that such introduction was a causa sine qua non. [Burrell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 614; Stratton v. Vaehon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, followed; Boyle v. Grassick, 6 Terr. L.R. 232; Miller v. Radford, 19 T.L.R. 375, referred to.]

COMPENSATION—PAYMENT FOR LOTS ACTUALLY SOLD—ALLEGED AGREEMENT—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION ON LOTS SOLD BY OTHER PARTIES.

Wright v. MacLachlan, 4 D.L.R. 354, 20 W.L.R. 646.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—RIGHT TO COMMISSION—PURCHASER FOUND BY ANOTHER BROKER—"QUANTUM MERUIT."

The plaintiff, a real estate agent, in whose hands the defendant had placed property for sale, but not exclusively, cannot recover commissions from the latter on a quantum meruit where a purchaser was found by another broker purporting to act independently of and without the plaintiff's assistance, although the attention of the other broker, to whom a commission had been paid by the defendant for effecting the sale, had been called to the property by the plaintiff, but without notice from the latter to the owner that such other broker had been referred to the property by him, was paid a commission by the defendant on the sale being made.

VERDICT—INSUFFICIENT ANSWERS OF JURY—DISAGREEMENT IN PART ONLY.

Where a vendor and the agent who sold land for him agreed that the agent's commission should be paid him in instalments, as the payments of the vendee fell due, the latter is not entitled to credit for payments made to the agent, to apply on his commission, when made without authority from the vendor.

Emerson v. Cook, 5 D.L.R. 232, 3 O.W.N. 968.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—COMMISSION—LIABILITY OF OWNER OF LAND—PROPOSED PURCHASE ON UNAUTHORIZED TERMS.

The defendant, the owner of property that he had placed for sale in the hands of the plaintiff, a real estate agent, is not liable to the latter for commissions where the agent found a purchaser for the property on terms he had no authority to offer, and which the defendant refused to accept, notwithstanding that the proposed purchaser testified at the trial that he had been and was ready and willing to buy upon the defendant's terms, which fact he had not until then communicated to either the plaintiff or the defendant.

Haffner v. Grundy, 4 D.L.R. 529, 21 W.L.R. 460, 2 W.W.R. 451.

COMPENSATION—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICE—MISREPRESENTATION.

Where the defendant, a woman, refused to give the plaintiff an exclusive right to sell a piece of property for her, but, on the representations of the plaintiff that she would still have the right to sell it without becoming liable to him for commissions, she was induced to sign a written agreement prepared by the plaintiff which in fact gave him for thirty days the exclusive right of selling the property for an agreed compensation, the plaintiff cannot, upon the defendant making a sale of the property within such period, recover the agreed compensation where all he did towards making a sale was to advertise the property in a newspaper. [Hart-Parr v. Eberle, 3 S.L.R. 386, referred to.]

Cadwell v. Stephenson, 3 D.L.R. 759, 5 S.L.R. 308, 21 W.L.R. 199, 2 W.W.R. 291.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—SALE BY OWNER DIRECT —AGENT'S PREVIOUS DEALINGS WITH PURCHASER.

If a real estate agent is employed by the owner to sell his property and brings it to the notice of a prospective purchaser, the owner, who subsequently makes the sale himself to the same purchaser without knowing that the purchaser came to him through the agent, is liable to pay the agent's commission if there has been no revocation of the agent's authority, and the contract of employment specified no time limit. [Locators v. Clough, 17 Man. L.R. 659, doubted; Wilkinson v. Alston, 48 L.Q.B. 733, approved; Burchell v. Gowrie, [1910] A.C. 614; Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, and Sagar v. Sheffer, 2 O.W.N. 471, specially referred to.]

Rice v. Galbraith, 2 D.L.R. 859, 26 O.L.R. 43, 21 O.W.R. 571.

SALE OF GRAIN—DIFFERENT BUYERS—LOSS—COMMISSION—NO PRIVILEGE OF CONTRACT.

A broker who does not procure privacy of contract between two principals, and fails to establish performance of the contract for which he was employed, cannot succeed in an action for loss sustained by him and for commission. [Beamish v. Richardson, 13 D.L.R. 406, 16 D.L.R. 855, 49 Can. S.C.R. 595; Smith Grain Co. v. Pound, 36 D.L.R. 615, 10 S.L.R. 368 followed.]

Canadian Grain Co. v. Nichol, 50 D.L.R. 431, [1920] 1 W.W.R. 160.

COMMISSION—INTRODUCTION BY AGENT—SUBSEQUENT PURCHASE THROUGH THIRD PARTY — COMMISSION TO ORIGINAL AGENT.

When the steps taken by an agent bring the future purchaser of land into touch with the principal, and purchase is subsequently completed, even through the medium of another agent, the original agent is entitled to a commission on the sale. [Spensard v. Rutledge (No. 2), 10 D.L.R. 682; Burchell v. Gowrie & Blockhouse Collieries,

[1910] A. C. 614; Vachon v. Stratton, 3 S.L.R. 286, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, referred to.]
Pettypiece v. Holden, 49 D.L.R. 386.

SALE OF LAND — COMMISSION — "SPECIAL EMPLOYMENT" — AGREEMENT SIGNED — UNSATISFACTORY—QUANTUM MERUIT.

An agent, who obtains a fixed price and stated percentage of commission on real estate listed with him by his principal, cannot recover the full commission when he concludes a sale for a much lower price, and on entirely different terms than those set out by his principal in their agreement. [Smith v. Barr, 8 D.L.R. 996; Herbert v. Vivian, 8 D.L.R. 340; McCallum v. Russell, 2 S.L.R. 442, referred to.]

Bannerman v. Bradley, 49 D.L.R. 391, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 952.

SPECIAL AGENCY—GENERAL AGENCY—SUFFI-CIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES.

The listing of lands for sale for a period of two months constitutes a contract of special and not general agency, and such contract is not converted into one of general agency by the addition of a clause to give ten days' notice of withdrawal or increase or decrease in price. The agent not having performed the special contract cannot recover. [Toulmin v. Millar, 58 L.T. 96, distinguished; Chappell v. Peters, 9 D.L.R. 584, 6 S.L.R. 16, followed.]

SALE OF LAND—COMMISSION AGREEMENT—SUFFICIENCY OF BROKER'S SERVICES.

An agent is not entitled to commission under an agreement to get a purchaser for lands at a certain price per acre, where he introduces a party who has previously negotiated with the owner for a trade which is subsequently completed.

Brown v. Patchell, 49 D.L.R. 198, 12 S.L.R. 430, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 701.

COMMISSION — "GENERAL EMPLOYMENT" — "SPECIAL EMPLOYMENT"—DEFINITION.

An agent, who has been employed to sell real estate, has been given a price by his principal has a right to the commission on any sale made by his principal to a purchaser introduced by him, even though such sale be at a lower price than the one given, unless the terms of his contract with his principal are such as would shew "special employment" only. [Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395; Burchell v. Gowrie & Blockhouse, [1910] A.C. 614; Colonial Real Estate v. Sisters of Charity, 45 D.L.R. 193, 57 Can. S.C.R. 585, referred to; see also Bridgman v. Hepburn, 42 Can. S.C.R. 228; Prentice v. Merriek, 38 D.L.R. 388.]

Wright v. Smith & Nelson, 49 D.L.R. 408, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 1094.

SALE OF LAND—COMMISSION.

Plaintiff at one time obtained an option on defendant's ranch, with the idea of promoting a syndicate to purchase it. In this he was unsuccessful, and then undertook the sale of the ranch on a commission basis, $100,000 being the purchase price, and his commission or profit to be made by adding $5,000 thereto. He endeavored to effect a sale in various quarters, and ultimately introduced H. to the defendant, telling the former that the price was $105,000 and asking the latter to protect him at that price. H. stayed for some days on the ranch inspecting it, and, having concluded to purchase, asked defendant his price and was told $100,000, which he paid. Held, on appeal, affirming the verdict of the jury at the trial, that plaintiff was entitled to recover the commission of $5,000 from the defendant (vendor).

Langley v. Rowlands, 46 Can. S.C.R. 626, affirming 16 B.C.R. 72.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—COMMISSION ON SALE—NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN AGENT AND PURCHASER — SUBSEQUENT SALE WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE OF AGENT'S INTERVENTION—RIGHT OF AGENT TO COMMISSION.

Dicker v. The Willoughby Sumner Co., 4 S.L.R. 251.

AGENT'S COMMISSION ON SALE OF LAND AND BUSINESS—PURCHASER FOUND BY AGENT AND AGREEMENT SIGNED—PARTIES NOT AD IDEM—SALE NOT COMPLETED—PAYMENT OF DEPOSIT BY PROPOSED PURCHASER TO AGENT—RIGHT OF PRINCIPAL TO RECOVER FROM AGENT—COUNTERCLAIM.

Moody v. Murray, 8 O.W.N. 138.

The agreement by which a property owner nominates a person as his sole agent, for three years, to sell his immovables on payment of a commission and expenses is a mandate and not a hiring of services, and is, therefore, revocable at any time, subject to liability for damages in case of revocation without cause or reason.

Hudson v. Cool, 42 Que. S.C. 228.

COMPENSATION FOR SERVICES.

An agreement (commonly called an option), by which the owner of real estate promises to sell it to a party, at a stated price, within a stated delay, enlarged by a subsequent covenant, and followed by another promise within such enlarged delay, to sell to a third party at an advanced price, the difference to be shared between the owner and the first promisee, but which is not carried out, does not create the relation of principal and agent between the owner and the first promisee that entitled the latter to reward or commission, on a subsequent sale made by the former.

Beddy v. Rutherford, 43 Que. S.C. 289. [Affirmed 20 D.L.R. 981, 23 Que. K.B. 493.]

REAL ESTATE—COMPENSATION—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICE.

The broker or agent who sues to recover a commission on a sale of immovables for the price of $15,000, may prove by witness facts which establish that it was, to the knowledge of the owner, due to his intervention and his actions that the former was able to effect the sale.

Dudemaine v. Pelletier, 44 Que. S.C. 239.

REAL ESTATE BROKER—SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES—COMMISSIONS.

A real estate broker, to whom an owner entrusts a sale, is not bound to do more than find a person who may be accepted as a purchaser. He is thereupon entitled to his commission without being obliged to complete the contract of sale, or the payment, by the purchaser, of that part of the price which is payable in cash. [Judgment of Superior Court of Quebec affirmed.]

Girouard v. Beaudoin, 46 Que. S.C. 57.

SUFFICIENCY OF AGENT'S SERVICES—FINDING PURCHASER SUITABLE TO VENDOR.

There is no necessity for a mise en demeure when it is impossible for the debtor to fulfil his obligations, but the creditor should not content himself with proving this fact, but should also establish that he himself is in a position to fulfil his own obligations. Thus, a real estate agent who sues for his commission, without mise en demeure, alleging that the owner had himself sold his immovable to the prejudice of his rights as agent, should prove that the purchaser he had found was ready to purchase upon the conditions imposed by the vendor. In order that an owner whose immovable is sold by an agent should be bound to the purchaser produced by the latter it is necessary that the acceptance of such purchaser should conform to the terms of sale.

Cyr v. Lecours, 47 Que. S.C. 80.

WHEN RIGHT TO COMPENSATION ACCRUES—PURCHASER SIGNING DEED.

To be entitled to claim his commission on the sale of an immovable the agent who claims to have found a purchaser should prove that the latter has signed the deed of sale and made a tender of the price within the delays agreed upon. If this is not proved and the sale has not taken place the agent is not entitled to his commission.

Hoffman v. Desaulniers, 48 Que. S.C. 15.

SALE AT LOWER PRICE.

When it is agreed that a real estate agent shall receive a commission if he sells a property at a price named he is not entitled to his commission if it is sold at a lower price.

Jacques v. Léonard, 47 Que. S.C. 344.

COMMISSIONS—OUT OF SURPLUS.

A real estate agent, who sues on a contract by which it had been agreed that if he sold certain lots for more than a certain amount, the surplus would belong to him, cannot, if he is unable to establish that there has been a surplus, claim the usual commission. An allegation that the sum claimed represents the value of the services rendered is not sufficient for this purpose. The agent has no right to claim this sum by reason of mistake and misunderstanding between the purchaser and the owner.

Simard v. Dubors, 26 Que. K.B. 81.

SALE BY ANOTHER AGENT.

In a contract between an owner and a real estate agent, it was stipulated that if the property is sold after the delay granted to effectuate a sale to a party with whom the agent was in negotiation, he shall be entitled to a commission of 2½%. After the expiry of the delay, the property was sold through another agent. It was proved that the first agent had dealings with the same buyer before the delay had expired, but that he had abandoned them. Under these circumstances the agent was not entitled to his commission.

Browne v. Major Mfg. Co., 24 Que. K.B. 270.

(§ II B—13)—REAL ESTATE—COMMISSIONS—SALE WITHOUT BROKER'S AID.

A sale of land directly by the owner, after it had been listed for sale with a broker, does not entitle the latter to his commissions, merely because it happened to be a purchaser with whom he negotiated in a previous transaction.

Gilbert Bros. v. McDill (Alta.), 36 D.L.R. 324.

REAL ESTATE—INTRODUCTION—SALE UNSUCCESSFUL — COMMISSION — INDEPENDENT NEGOTIATIONS.

Where a real estate broker has negotiated with a certain person or introduced him to the owner, but his efforts to sell to such person have proved unsuccessful and have been abandoned, he can claim no compensation on a sale afterwards made as the result of independent negotiations with which such broker was in no way connected. [Stratton v. Vaehon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 295, distinguished.]

Chadburn v. Pinze, 20 D.L.R. 741, 45 Que. S.C. 442.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—RESERVING RIGHT OF INDEPENDENT SALE—AGENT'S OFFER PROCURED BEFORE INDEPENDENT SALE LEGALLY EFFECTED.

Where the owner employing a real estate broker expressly reserves the right of independent sale he will be liable to the broker for the agreed commission on the latter submitting an offer in accordance with the listing terms from a purchaser able and willing to carry it out; and such right to commission is not displaced by the owner's offer previously made independently of the agent for the sale of the property to a company subject to approval and acceptance by the company's directors, but not in fact accepted by them until after the offer of the agent's customer had been submitted, where the owner was not legally committed or bound to the company at the time when the agent submitted his customer's offer, and this, although the owner completes the transaction with the company and not with the agent's customer.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—TRANSACTION EFFECTED WITHOUT BROKER'S AID

Allard v. Meunier, 14 D.L.R. 399, 46 Que. S.C. 193.

COMPENSATION—AGENCY TO SELL TO ONE PERSON—SALE TO ANOTHER—SALE EFFECTED WITHOUT BROKER'S AID.

A broker whose agency permitted him to sell to a designated person only and who fails to effect such sale, is not entitled to a commission on a subsequent sale being made by his principal to a different person. [Toppin v. Healey, 11 W.R. 466, referred to.]

REAL ESTATE BROKER — COMPENSATION — TRANSACTION EFFECTED WITHOUT BROKER'S AID.

A real estate broker cannot recover a commission, on the sale of land by his client before the expiration of the period for which the broker had the exclusive listing, by procuring, before notice of such sale, a prospective purchaser, unless it appears that the latter had decided or promised to buy the land before becoming aware of its prior sale.

Edmonton Securities v. Lepage, 14 D.L.R. 66, 6 A.L.R. 282, 25 W.L.R. 532, 5 W.W.R. 188.

AGENCY—COMMISSION—SALE OF LANDS—PURCHASER INDUCING VENDOR TO LOWER PRICE BY MISREPRESENTING THAT VENDOR'S AGENT HAS EARNED NO COMMISSION — INDEMNITY BY PURCHASER — THIRD PARTY.

Where a purchaser of real estate, in assuming to be making the deal entirely without the intervention of the vendor's agent, misrepresents to the vendor that the vendor's agent has earned no commission on the sale, and thereby misleads the vendor and induces him to lower his price by the amount of the commission which would otherwise be payable, in an action subsequently brought by vendor's agent against the vendor (adding the purchaser as a third party) establishing the claim for commission, the purchaser may be held bound to make good to the defendants the amount of such commission.

Walker & Webb v. MacDonald; Graham v. MacDonald, 6 D.L.R. 591, 4 O.W.N. 1, 22 O.W.R. 964.

EFFECT OF PRINCIPAL'S FRAUD—PURCHASER'S MISREPRESENTATIONS.

One who, in dealing with an agent for the sale of land, acts as the owner thereof and as the person liable for commission, cannot, in the event of a sale, escape liability for such commission on the ground that he is not in fact the owner. [Jones v. Littledale, 6 A. & E. 490, referred to.]

Imrie v. Wilson, 3 D.L.R. 826, 3 O.W.N. 1145, 21 O.W.R. 964.

REAL ESTATE — EFFECT OF PRINCIPAL'S FRAUD—COLLUSION TO AVOID PAYING COMMISSION.

The land owner who listed his property for sale with a real estate agent is under a legal obligation to do nothing calculated to deprive the agent unfairly of his commission.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—RIGHT TO COMPENSATION—SALE AFFECTED BY PURCHASER'S MISREPRESENTATIONS AS TO KNOWLEDGE OF AGENT.

Where a real estate broker is engaged by the owner to sell an undivided lot of land and he succeeds in selling half of the lot and is paid his commissions for that sale, and later, with the knowledge of the owner, engages with a prospective purchaser for the sale of the other half, but the parties cannot agree as to the price, and several months later the prospective purchaser goes to the owner and offers him a price which offer he tells the owner is made independently of the agent, and the owner believing he would have no commissions to pay, accepts the offer, the owner is liable for commission at the ordinary rate, where it appears that the instructions of the agent had never been countermanded and all that the agent did was consistent with a contract of agency between himself and the owner.

Copeland v. Wagstaff, 9 D.L.R. 13, 4 O.W.N. 567, 23 O.W.R. 679.

SUBDIVISION LANDS—SALE EN BLOC BY PRINCIPAL—RIGHTS OF AGENT.

Where an agency agreement stipulates that the agent is to receive his commissions from the sales of all lands within a subdivision, whether sold by the agent, the owner, or any other person, a transfer of the unsold residue of the subdivision en bloc by the owner in consideration of shares of stock, though constituting a sale, is not such a sale as contemplated in the agreement to entitle the agent to the stipulated commissions, but the remedy of the agent is to damages for breach of an implied obligation on the part of the principal to do nothing to prevent the agent from earning his commissions. [Burchell v. Gowrie & Co., [1910] A.C. 614; Inchbald v. Western etc. Co., 34 L.J.C.P. 15, followed; Kennerley v. Hextall, 18 D.L.R. 375, 7 A.L.R. 469, varied.]

AUTHORITY TO SELL IN LOTS—SALE EN BLOC.

Owners of land divided into building lots, Can. Dig.—19.

who instruct a real estate agent to sell their lots, can be sued after the sale of the land by a partnership of which the agent is a member, the sale being carried out by the partnership to the knowledge of the owner. Although the land was to be sold in lots as subdivided, the agent has a right to the usual commission if the owners by his intervention have sold them en bloc.

Bonsquet v. Mignault, 48 Que. S.C. 5.
ABANDONMENT OF SALE BY AGENT—SUBSEQUENT SALE BY PRINCIPAL.

A real estate agent who receives in advance a note for a sum of money representing his commission, in case of sale of an immovable within a certain delay conformably to the contents of a written contract between him and the owner, but who delivers up the note and the written contract to the owner, abandons thereby his commission and is unable to claim it, if later the owner himself sells his property.

Brunet v. Caron, 47 Que. S.C. 244.

(§ II B—14)—COMMISSIONS — QUANTUM MERUIT—PROCURING CAUSE.

Where land is sold through the instrumentality of a broker, to a purchaser procured by him, for a less sum than that for which he was employed to sell, the broker is entitled to his commissions, or to a quantum meruit equal to the amount of commissions.

Jardine v. Prescott Lumber Co., 37 D.L.R. 342, 44 N.B.R. 595.

REAL ESTATE AGENT—TAKING OFFER AND CONTRACT IN HIS OWN NAME.

A real estate agent who without disclosing that he is a real estate agent obtains in his own name a contract of sale of a property at a fixed price and disposes of it to a third party is not entitled to charge the vendor with any commission on the sale of such property inasmuch as there is no contract of agency whatsoever. [Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, referred to. And see Haftner v. Grundy, 4 D.L.R. 529.]

Besner v. Levesque, 8 D.L.R. 494, 18 Rev. de Jur. 60.

COMPENSATION—OPTION TAKEN FROM PARTY FROM WHOM COMMISSION CLAIMED.

A real estate agent who had been attempting to sell a certain tract of land for the owner, and who afterwards took from the latter an option for its purchase made in his own favour, which contained no stipulation that if the agent produced another purchaser to take his place under the instrument the agent was to have a commission for the sale of the land to the substitute, and there was no other contemporaneous agreement to that effect, cannot claim any commission after the transfer of the property to a new purchaser, especially where it is shown that the owner, upon being so requested, refused to stipulate in his contract of sale with the substituted purchaser that the agent should have a commission, and the latter then abandoned his claim rather than have the sale fall through.

Nixon v. Dowdle (No. 2), 2 D.L.R. 397, 20 W.L.R. 749, 2 W.W.R. 198, reversing on the facts, 1 D.L.R. 93, 19 W.L.R. 775, 1 W.W.R. 455.

AMOUNT OF COMPENSATION.

Where a broker obtains an option in his own name and thereby puts himself in the relation of purchaser as regards the owner, he is not entitled to claim remuneration, in the absence of a special agreement to that effect, in respect of a sale afterwards made by the owner without reference to the option to a prospective purchaser whom the broker had introduced within the time limit of the option, the option itself not having been taken up by the broker.

Sutherland v. Rhinart, 2 D.L.R. 204, 20 W.L.R. 584, 1 W.W.R. 1090, 5 S.L.R. 343.

JOINING WITH THIRD PERSON IN PURCHASING PROPERTY—COMPENSATION TO BROKER—DUTY OF VENDOR.

Where an agent employed to sell property on commission, himself joins with a third person in purchasing it at a price which is larger by the amount of the commission than that at which he could himself have bought the property, it is the duty of the vendor, when aware of the relation between the broker and the third person, to inform the latter of the existence of the agency, and of the arrangement to pay a secret commission to one of the purchasers.

Hitchcock v. Sykes, 13 D.L.R. 548, 29 O.L.R. 6, reversing 3 D.L.R. 531, 3 O.W.N. 1118.

COMMISSION — LIABILITY OF BROKERS BETWEEN THEMSELVES — ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.

King v. Irvine, 31 D.L.R. 562.

AGENT TAKING OPTION TO HIMSELF.

A real estate agent who obtains from an owner an option for the purchase of property and at the same time the promise of a commission of $500 if he should effect the sale of the immovable, cannot claim the commission if he himself purchases under the option. The owner who admits having promised a commission to a real estate agent for the sale of his property, but who maintains at the same time that the latter renounced it, makes an admission which is indivisible.

Lecours v. Dagenais, 47 Que. S.C. 1.

(§ II B—15)—REAL ESTATE — COMPENSATION—FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION—DIVISION OF PROFITS.

Gier v. Van Aalst, 16 D.L.R. 870, 28 W.L.R. 665.

FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION.

As the information contained in a list of property listed for sale with a real estate exchange and sold by it to brokers, who made sales therefrom, is held out and guaranteed by the exchange to be correct, and their subscribers are invited to act thereon, it is immaterial, in an action for the loss of commissions on a sale of property improperly listed by the exchange, that a long time elapsed between the listing and the sale by the plaintiff where it appeared that before the latter acted he was informed by the exchange that the property was still for sale.

Austin v. Real Estate Exchange, 2 D.L.R. 324, 17 B.C.R. 177, 20 W.L.R. 924, 2 W.W.R. 88.

REAL ESTATE — COMMISSIONS — PROCURING SALE — TIME — SALE BY OWNER.

Where by the terms of an agreement a broker is to effect a sale of land within a specified time, and does procure a purchaser within such time but the transaction falls through, he is not entitled to his commission, when after the expiration of the time limit the land is sold to such purchaser by the owner directly. [Stratton v. Vachon, 44 Can. S.C.R. 395, distinguished.

Colonial Real Estate Co. v. Sisters of Charity, 45 D.L.R. 193, 57 Can. S.C.R. 585, affirming 27 Que. K.B. 433.

(§ II B—16)—ACT OF PRINCIPAL PREVENTING SALE.

A sale of land cannot be said to have been prevented by the wrongful act of the principal in refusing to accede to terms in variation with those first agreed upon between him and the broker.

Huff v. Maxwell, 27 D.L.R. 400, 9 A.L.R. 458, 10 W.W.R. 214.

FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION — LEASE BY PRINCIPAL PREVENTING.

Where a real estate broker's claim for commission is based upon his having procured a purchaser ready, willing and able to carry out the deal upon the terms specified, and that the vendor himself made a lease which prevented the carrying out of the proposed sale, the broker must shew that, had it not been for the lease, the proposed purchaser was ready and willing to carry out the deal on the terms upon which the property was listed.

Dumphy v. Cariboo Trading Co., 22 D.L.R. 658, 21 B.C.R. 484, 8 W.W.R. 116.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS — COMPENSATION ON PRINCIPAL'S FAILURE TO COMPLETE.

Where a real estate broker employed to sell, has obtained a contract of purchase and the landowner after accepting the deposit of the purchaser declines to carry it out and gets the purchaser to take back the deposit, the claim of the broker for negotiating a sale has nevertheless accrued for the full commission stipulated for, as upon the complete performance of the broker's part of the contract, and is not restricted to a claim upon a quantum meruit. [Austen v. Canadian Fire Engine Co., 42 N.S.R. 77, applied. As to real estate brokers' commissions generally.]

Burchell Co. v. Dillon, 9 D.L.R. 607, 13 E.L.R. 6.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS — COMPENSATION — FAILURE TO COMPLETE.

Where an employee of a real estate brokerage company having property listed for sale, introduced a probable buyer who paid for a ten-day option signed by the owner's representative or agent, and on the option holder electing to buy within the limited period it was discovered that the owner himself had sold the property in the interval, and the company's employee received from the owner's representative a sum of money in lieu of commission as compensation for having lost the sale of the property, the money so paid must be accounted for to the brokerage company without deduction for any payment thereout made by the employee to the option holder without the company's authorization.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS—DEFAULT OF PRINCIPAL—COMMISSION UNDER OPTION CONTRACT.

A real estate broker who takes an option contract from the landowner with a stipulation for payment out of the purchase price of a fixed sum as "commission" provided sale is made before the expiry date, cannot obtain specific performance of the option purchase if he did not himself become the purchaser; but he is entitled to judgment for the agreed commission in respect of a sale, made and notified to the owner before the expiry of the option, to a purchaser able and willing to purchase on the terms authorized although the owner declines to carry it out.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS—DEFAULT IN MAKING TITLE—BROKER'S WARRANTY OF OWNERSHIP.

Real estate agents who, on making a contract of sale, misrepresent to the purchaser that the party whose name is then disclosed by them as being the vendor and with whom the contract purports to be made, has been ascertained by them to be the registered owner of the property, will be held liable not only for the return of the payments made to them on the faith of the contract but for damages in not carrying out the contract where no effort had been made by them to get in the outstanding title which was in a third party so as, if possible, to carry out the sale. [O'Neil v. Drinkle, 1 S.L.R. 492, applied. See also Reeve v. Mullen (Alta.), 14 D.L.R. 345.]

Peacock v. Wilkinson, 15 D.L.R. 216, 26 W.L.R. 396, 5 W.V.R. 1012.

DEFAULT OF PRINCIPAL—REVOCATION OF AUTHORITY.

Where a real estate agent procures a written offer of purchase made in good faith by a person able and willing to carry out the same, of which written offer the owner signs an acceptance, and the offer contains a stipulation that the owner shall pay a certain percentage "provided he accepts the offer," the agent's mandate is fulfilled and the commission earned, although the owner declines to carry out the sale; so far as concerns the agent's right of action for his commission, the signing of the agreement under private signature is an acceptance of the offer, although his principal refuses to complete the sale. [Lightball v. Caffrey, 6 L.N. 202; Thomas v. Merkle, 32 L.C. Jur. 207; Gohier v. Villeneuve, R.J.Q. 6 S.C. 219; Brown v. McDonald, R.J.Q. 6 S.C. 491, and Massicotte v. Lavoie, R.J.Q. 40 S.C. 258, specially referred to.]

Brotman v. Meyer, 1 D.L.R. 371, 41 Que. S.C. 433.

FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION — DEFAULT OF PRINCIPAL.

A vendor, who is the cause of a sale falling through, is obliged to pay the commission to the real estate agent that he employed. If it is agreed that he would transfer to him an hypothecary debt in payment of his commission and he is unable to do so, he will be obliged to pay it in money.

Roch v. Joron, 48 Que. S.C. 39.

FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION — DEFAULT OF PRINCIPAL.

If an owner gives to a real estate agent the following mandate: "I, the undersigned, undertake to pay a commission of 24 per cent to Jarry & Jarry for a property situated on Daniel Street at the corner of Boyer, if this property is sold by their intervention," and the agent finds, on the conditions agreed upon, a purchaser whom the principal refuses, and the latter subsequently by intervention of another agent sells this property to the same purchaser on the same conditions, he should pay to his first agent the commission agreed upon in the written contract.

Jarry v. Baril, 48 Que. S.C. 475.

FAILURE TO COMPLETE TRANSACTION — DEFAULT OF PRINCIPAL.

Real estate agents were to receive a commission of $1,000 from the purchaser for the purchase of land at the price of $40,000. The sale fell through by the default of the purchaser, but the latter obtained by the intervention of the same agents two-fifths of the property, which was sold for $9,000. The agents claimed $300 as commission for the value of their services. It was decided that they had a right to the commission claimed against the purchaser. Shipman v. Pélouquin, 48 Que. S.C. 492.

(§ II B—17)—REAL ESTATE — COMPENSATION — DEFAULT OF OTHER PARTY.

An agent to whom an owner of realty has promised a commission in the event of his finding a purchaser, is for the loss of this commission entitled to damages against the defendant who after offering to purchase refuses without cause to carry out his undertaking which was duly accepted by the owner at the agent's instance; although the agent may by fresh and renewed efforts have later on earned a commission by finding another purchaser for the same property.

Moscovitch v. Desambor, 18 D.L.R. 230, 21 Rev. de Jur. 81.

COMPENSATION — PAYMENT OF PURCHASE MONEY — INABILITY OF PURCHASER TO COMPLETE.

A real estate broker who procures an offer to purchase land, stipulating that his commission should be paid "out of and from part of the purchase money," is not entitled to a commission from his client, or to retain as such a deposit made by the purchaser, where, without the client's fault, the sale was not completed by reason of the inability of the prospective purchaser to carry out his contract. [Mackenzie v. Champion, 12 Can. S.C.R. 649; Copeland v. Wedlock, 6 O.W.R. 539, and Smith v. Barff, 8 D.L.R. 996, 27 O.L.R. 276, distinguished.]

Fletcher v. Campbell, 15 D.L.R. 429, 29 O.L.R. 501.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS — COMPENSATION — DEFAULT OF PURCHASER INSTIGATED BY BROKER.

A real estate broker selling lots in his principal's subdivision on terms upon which small down payments are accepted to cover the commission and the balance is left outstanding upon contract, is under a duty, even after leaving the principal's employ, not to induce the respective purchasers to abandon the contracts so made and to purchase in their stead other lots which the broker then has for sale either on the broker's own account or as salesman for another.

DEFAULT OF OTHER PARTY.

Where a real estate agent was employed to "sell" certain property and he found a purchaser and obtained an agreement of sale to be entered into between such purchaser and his principal, a subsequent written agreement between the agent and his principal whereby it was stipulated that the latter should pay the agent a stated percentage as commission "for selling my property" is to be construed as contemplating merely an agreement of sale with a person of substance against whom it might be enforced; and the commission will be payable although the sale was not completed by reason of the purchaser's default in carrying it out and the dishonour of his cheque given for the deposit. [Robinson v. Reynolds, 4 D.L.R. 63, 3 O.W.N. 1262, distinguished; Mackenzie v. Champion, 12 Can. S.C.R. 649, referred to.]

Smith v. Barff, 8 D.L.R. 996, 27 O.L.R. 276.

III. Business and general brokers.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—30) — COMPENSATION — BUSINESS BROKERS.

Where to the knowledge of the seller of a business as a going concern, a person who assisted in the sale was in the employ of the purchaser and was also a member of a firm of business brokers, it is properly assumed, in the absence of an express contract to the contrary, that services rendered by such person in obtaining the listing for another brokerage firm and assisting in the sale are referable to his employment for the purchaser so as to bar a claim by the firm of which he was a member to a division of the commission paid to the other brokerage firm in pursuance of the listing agreement, such person is not entitled to a commission for making the sale.

Mowat v. Martindale, 13 D.L.R. 215, 18 B.C.R. 220, 24 W.L.R. 818.

BROKERS GENERALLY — COMPENSATION — SALE OF LIQUOR LICENSE.

Where the licensee of a license transferable only with the consent of the license commissioners agrees to sell this license to a purchaser, the negotiations being carried on by a real estate agent, and where the transfer cannot be effected owing to the refusal of the license commissioners to approve the same, there is no sale at all for lack of object to the contract, and the agent who negotiated the transaction is not entitled to any commission.

Lepage v. Bouchard, 8 D.L.R. 295, 43 Que. S.C. 181, 19 Rev. de Jur. 217.

MIXING PROSPECTOR.

Where a mining prospector at the request of a prospective purchaser of mining property examines a mine and reports favourably thereon, he is not entitled, if the purchaser buys such mine, to remuneration on the basis of a commission on the purchase price in the absence of an agreement to that effect; the custom existing in the Cobalt district which allows mining commissions to "grub-stakers" who discover and stake out for another a claim on land of the government open for discoveries does not extend to such a case.

Lee v. Jacobs, 8 D.L.R. 447.

AUTHORITY — PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Authority to an agent to effect a sale of certain company bonds, shares and assets at a stated price does not involve an authority to include as a stipulation in the agreement of purchase obtained from the purchasers that the latter should be liable to no damages over and above the deposit or other sum which they may have paid, in the event of the purchaser's default.

BUSINESS AND GENERAL BROKERS.

It is the duty of an insurance broker to the client by whom he is employed to place the latter's fire insurance, to see that any policy which he obtains for his client appears to be in valid form, and that it is in conformity with the class of risk which his client has submitted; so, therefore, if the policy is issued with a wrong specification of the concurrent insurance the broker will be liable in damages where he fails to discover the error through neglect to inspect the policy when received, and the client not becoming aware of the discrepancy is compelled to accept a lesser amount from the insurer than he would otherwise have received.

SHIPMENT OF GOODS FOR SALE—ACCOUNT SALES—CHARGE FOR "COMMISSION AND GUARANTEE"—"GUARANTEED ADVANCE."
Kelly v. Stevenson, 5 O.W.N. 10, 25 O.W.R. 37.

INSURANCE BROKERS—LIABILITY FOR PREMIUMS—CUSTOM AS TO.

Where persons make a business of soliciting insurance and of placing the insurance so solicited with one or more of the insurance companies doing business in the city, there is a custom in the City of Vancouver that the persons thus placing insurance in insurance offices are liable for the premiums on the insurance so placed by them, and such custom will be noticed by the court.

Wright, Cameron & Co. v. Bullock, 5 W.W.R. 1226.

B. COMPENSATION; COMMISSIONS.

(§ III B—35) — BUSINESS AND GENERAL BROKERS — COMPENSATION — SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES — INTERMEDIATE ABORTIVE NEGOTIATIONS ON STIPULATED COMMISSION—QUANTUM MERUIT.

Where an agent is employed to bring together his employers (as vendors) and a prospective purchaser, and where subsequently (after negotiations and a tentative agreement of sale) his employers, believing a bargain within reach enter into an agreement with the agent fixing his commission on the basis of the presumed selling price and making the payment of same contingent on the deal going through, the agent is still entitled to remuneration if the bargain at the presumed price is not carried out, but a sale is effected by the principal at a lower price; under such circumstances the agent is entitled to recover as upon a quantum meruit. [See as to right to commission generally, Singer v. Russell, 1 D.L.R. 646.]

Strong v. London Machine Tool Co., 10 D.L.R. 510, 4 O.W.N. 1062, 24 O.W.R. 365.

BUSINESS AND GENERAL BROKERS — COMPENSATION — SUFFICIENCY OF SERVICES — PRINCIPAL STEPPING IN.

Sales agents selling machinery on commission are entitled to their commission, when it was through their efforts that the vendors and purchasers were brought together, even though the vendors stepped in and closed the sale irrespective of the agents. COMMISSION — STIPULATION FOR "WHEN MONEYS OR CORPORATE STOCK RECEIVED" — RIGHT OF ACTION ACCRUES, WHEN.

Under a contract to pay an agent a commission on a sale of a secret process, as and when the moneys or considerations in corporate stock or otherwise are received, a judgment in favour of the agent will be limited to an award of the commission on the amount actually received by the defendant, leaving it open to the plaintiff to bring action from time to time as further sums might accrue due in respect of the defendant's receipts under a contingent contract of sale; it is improper to order by a present judgment an inquiry by a referee from time to time as to the future rights. (§ I-1)—AGREED PRICE—PAYMENT BY INSTALLMENTS — RETENTION OF CERTAIN AMOUNT BY OWNER—CONSTRUCTION.

A building contract for the erection of an elevator, for an agreed price provided for payment by the owner to the contractor, in instalments, of all wages, for labour done and performed and sums paid for materials supplied, upon certified vouchers and "Provided that the total amount so paid by the owner during the progress of the work, shall not exceed a sum equal to 80 per cent of the amount of work done, and materials furnished on the premises at the contract price. And . . . the owner shall be and is hereby authorized to retain out of the moneys payable to the contractors the sum of 20 per cent of the amount of the contract. . . . Their Lordships held that the proper interpretation of the proviso was that the owner was entitled to make payments for all work certified as actually done, and materials as actually supplied provided that the total of such payments did not exceed 80 per cent of the total contract price. A clause in the contract providing for the entry of the owner upon the work in default of the contractors, in order to finish it, in which case the contractors should not be entitled to receive any further payment under the contract until the work was wholly finished. . . . did not disentitle the owner from paying orders which effected given assignments of moneys due to the contractors up to the limits within which the contractors were entitled to be paid, although such payments were actually made at a date subsequent to the owners taking over the work in default of the contractors.

(§ II-5)—STOCK — PART PAID SHARES — SHARING IN EARNINGS — WHEN TO BE CREDITED ON SHARES.

The holder of building and loan shares issued at a reduced rate under a provision that, in addition to a specified rate per annum, they should receive their "proportion of the entire earnings" of the association, is not entitled to have such earnings credited to his shares from time to time, or to receive dividends thereon, until the earnings equal the amount remaining unpaid of his shares, where such was the plan under which they were issued. STOCK — PART PAID SHARES—SHARING IN EARNINGS — TRANSFERRING EARNINGS FROM CREDIT OF SHARES TO RESERVE FUND.

The fact that for a number of years the earnings of a building and loan association, in excess of a fixed rate payable annually on its shares, which were issued at a reduced rate, and which were entitled also to share in the entire earnings of the association, were credited on the books of the association to the shareholders, does not prevent their subsequent transfer from such accounts to a reserve fund, where the shareholders were not entitled to have the excess earnings credited on their shares until the amount thereof equalled the unpaid balance thereon; since the matter was a mere matter of bookkeeping without any intent on the part of the officers of the association to improperly divert such earnings.

III. Loans; mortgages.

(§ III-10)—RIGHT TO INTEREST WHERE BORROWER HAS ELECTED TO RETIRE SHARES.

Section 6 of the Interest Act, R.S.C. c. 120, prevents the recovery of any interest where a mortgage to a loan company contains a covenant for monthly payments of interest at the rate of 12 per cent per annum, and also a proviso giving to the mortgagor the option of making certain monthly payments on account of shares in the company, subscribed for by him, which shall be accepted in full payment of principal and interest, and the proviso does not shew what is the rate of interest per annum if the method of payment thereby allowed be adopted, nor does the covenant for interest shew that the rate thereby provided for is the same, and in fact it is not the same in result as the payment under the proviso, and the mortgagor has adopted the method of payment allowed by the proviso.

IV. Powers generally.

(§ IV-39) — POWERS GENERALLY — AS TO DIVIDENDS.

The amount of surplus profits of a building and loan association, after payment of preferred dividends, to be made available for distribution among the holders of shares is to be determined by the directors, after making in good faith all reasonable and proper provision for the safety and prosperity of the association, having regard to expenses, contingencies, actual and possible losses, and the necessity of keeping a reserve fund. [Bain v. Ethna Life Ins. Co., 21 O.R. 233, applied.] Dividends on shares of a building and loan association, in addition to a stipulated rate per annum, from their "proportion of the entire earnings" of the association, are payable only from the excess receipts over and above all expenses properly chargeable to revenue account. (§ I A-5)—DISTANCE FROM STREETS—MUNICIPAL BY-LAW REGULATING BUILDING FRONTING OR "ABUTTING" ON STREET—VALIDITY OF.

A municipal by-law regulating the distance at which buildings may be built or erected on lots fronting or "abutting" on a designated street is not authorized by 4 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 22, s. 19, permitting municipal councils to regulate and limit by by-law the distance from the line of the street in front thereof at which buildings on residential streets may be built, since the word "abutting" in the by-law was not authorized by such act. [Justices of Bedfordshire v. Commissioners, for the Improvement of Bedford, 7 Ex. 656, and Governors of the Bedford General Infirmary v. Commissioners, 7 Ex. 768, distinguished. A house upon a corner lot facing and opening upon one street with one side abutting on another street, is not within a municipal building restriction prohibiting the erection of houses within 40 feet of the line of the latter street where the authority to restrict was further limited to streets "in front of" the building. MUNICIPAL BY-LAW — REGULATION OF DISTANCE FROM STREET LINE.

A municipal by-law passed under the authority of the Municipal Amendment Act, 4 Edw. VII. c. 22, s. 19, regulating the distance from the street line at which buildings on a residential street may be built, need not be confined to such buildings as front on the residential street, and a prohibition in such a by-law against the erection of any building within the given distance from the street line is therefore valid. [Toronto v. Shultz, 19 O.W.R. 1013, disented from, and question referred to a Divisional Court.]

Dinnick v. Toronto, 3 D.L.R. 310, 3 O.W.N. 1061, 21 O.W.R. 897.

DISTANCE FROM STREET LINE.

If the wall of a building which supports the superstructure and its roof is not nearer than fifty-five feet to the centre line of a certain specified street, there is no violation of a building restriction requiring the main wall of buildings on such street to be no nearer than such distance to its centre, though the wall of the bay-windows of the building is nearer to the centre of the street than fifty-five feet.

Holden v. Ryan, 4 D.L.R. 151, 3 O.W.N. 1585, 22 O.W.R. 767.

(§ I A-7) — SEMIDETACHED HOUSE — MUNICIPAL REGULATION — APARTMENT HOUSE — MEANING OF "APPERTENANT."

A building structurally divided into two equal divisions by a wall extending its whole height with no internal communication, common staircase, or common front door, constitutes a pair of semidetached buildings, and to erect such a building upon a lot which has a frontage of only forty feet on a specified street would be a violation of a building restriction that every pair of semidetached buildings shall be upon land having a frontage on such street of at least fifty feet. [Hford Park Estates] v. Jacobs, [1903] 2 Ch. 522, followed.] In a building restriction requiring that every building on certain lots "shall have appurtenant to it land having a frontage on" a certain street of at least a specified number of feet, the word "appurtenant" is not to be given a strict legal meaning, but its ordinary popular meaning that the buildings in question must be erected upon lots having the required frontage on such street. It is a violation of a building restriction that buildings erected upon certain lots having a frontage upon some other street as well as upon a specified street shall have its front upon such specified street, to erect an apartment building on the corner of such street and another street with an entrance to only one of the apartments on the specified street and the main entrance for all the other apartments on the other street, there being no connection between them and the one apartment entered from the specified street.

Holden v. Ryan, 4 D.L.R. 151, 3 O.W.N. 1585, 22 O.W.R. 767.

BUILDING PERMITS—APPLICATION—FEE FOR INSURANCE—MANDAMUS.

A refusal on the part of a municipal officer to grant a building permit before a written application is made therefor, pursuant to a by-law, does not excuse the necessity for a tender of such written application as a condition precedent to the applicant's right to compel the issuance of the permit. The application for a permit provided for in paragraph 9 of the building by-law of the city of Winnipeg (by-law No. 4283) before a permit will issue, means a written application. A city has a right to charge a moderate fee for the issuing of a building permit. [Montreal v. Walker, Montreal L.R. 1 Q.B. 469, followed.] Where applicants for a building permit were not acting bona fide in respect of their building, but were following out a system of selecting lots of land in portions of the city where high class residences prevailed, and threatening to build apartment blocks on such lots, with a view to being bought out by the residents of the neighbourhood, such a course of conduct, though it might be termed reprehensible from a strictly moral point of view, is nevertheless within their legal rights. In a mandamus proceeding to compel the issuance of a building permit, the onus is upon the applicant to shew that he is in all respects entitled to the permit in question. [As to the subject generally of "Municipal regulation of building permits," see annotation, 7 D.L.R. 422.] On a motion for a mandamus to compel the issuing of a building permit, where the applicants are asserting a purely legal right, their motives cannot be inquired into. (Dietum per Galt, J.).

Frankel v. Winnipeg, 8 D.L.R. 219, 22 W.L.R. 597, 3 W.W.R. 405, 23 Man. L.R. 296.

BUILDING PERMITS — MUNICIPAL REGULATIONS — ALTERATION IN PLANS — AMENDMENT IN EFFECT A FRESH APPLICATION.

Where a building permit is regularly granted to an applicant by the city architect of a municipal corporation for an apartment house and subsequently, owing to certain building restrictions affecting his title, the owner is compelled to deviate substantially from the original plans, and applies to the city architect for his assent to the alterations, such later application being for a building substantially different from that originally proposed, although in form an application for leave to alter the plans of the original building, is in truth a fresh application for a building permit, and the architect may legally apply to such fresh application the civic by-laws and regulations in force at its date, including those passed in the interim since the date of the first permit. Toronto v. Wheeler, 4 D.L.R. 352, 3 O.W.N. 1424, distinguished. An applicant for a building permit within a municipal corporation who regularly obtains same from the city architect of the municipality and proceeds to erect and partially completes his building pursuant to the permit, acquires a vested right only with respect to the building plans submitted with and approved upon the granting of the permit, which cannot be interfered with by subsequent municipal by-law unless the statute under which the by-law is based clearly discloses such intent.

BUILDING PERMITS — PROHIBITION AND REGULATION — MEANING OF "STORE" COMPARED WITH "SHOP."

The purpose of a city by-law under the Municipal Act, 1903 (Ont.), s. 541a, as amended by 4 Edw. VII, c. 22, s. 19, is to protect residential districts in cities from being disturbed by proximity of buildings in which general business is actively carried on and goods kept for sale, or wares are bought and sold, or machinery or other commodities are manufactured, repaired, or otherwise generally dealt in. [Toronto v. Foss, 5 D.L.R. 447, 3 O.W.N. 1426, Century and English Imperial Dictionaries see voce "store," and Hall on North American Vocabulary, referred to.] Under a by-law based on the Municipal Act, 1903 (Ont.), s. 541a, as amended by 4 Edw. VII, c. 22, s. 19, a city corporation may properly issue a permit for a building as a place for the storage of commodities, providing that machinery or other articles which may be stored therein shall not be repaired, refurbished, painted, traded in, bought or sold, as would ordinarily be done in a repair shop, salesroom, or factory. A permit to erect a building for the mere purpose of storage or safe-keeping of furniture or machinery or implements does not fall within the classes of buildings for "laundries, butcher-shops, stores, and manufactories," which may be prohibited by city by-law under the Municipal Act, 1903 (Ont.), s. 541a, as amended in 1904 by 4 Edw. VII, c. 22, s. 19.

STATUTORY REGULATION — RESIDENTIAL STREET — CORNER LOT — MUNICIPAL ACT (ONT.), S. 541A, AS ENACTED BY 4 EDW. VII (ONT.), C. 22, S. 19.

A building is on a residential street and the residential street is in front of the building, within the meaning of s. 541a of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, as enacted by the Municipal Amendment Act, 4 Edw. VII, (Ont.), c. 22, s. 19, when it is on a corner and one side faces upon the residential street, though the front of it faces upon another street.

BUILDING PERMITS — STATUTORY BUILDING LINE — FRONT STEPS.

The steps, as a means of access to the front of a building extending out across the prescribed building line but the building itself being within the prescribed line, is not within the prohibition of a municipal by-law authorized by s. 406, subs. 10, of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, prohibiting the placing of a building on a residential street nearer to the street line than a certain prescribed distance, as to disentitle one to a building permit. Re Masonic Temple Co. & Toronto, 22 D.L.R. 458, 38 O.L.R. 497.

MUNICIPAL REGULATIONS — LOCATION — MUNICIPAL ACT (ONT.) — REVOCATION OF BUILDING PERMIT.

A permit by a municipality to build is merely a license revocable by the city where nothing has been done by the builder after the granting of the permit, to change the situation, and no outlay has been incurred by him under it. The mere getting of a permit to erect an apartment house without doing work in pursuance thereof does not amount to a "location" of the house within the meaning of the statute 2 Geo. V, (Ont.), c. 40, s. 10, giving municipalities having a population of not less than 100,000 the right "to prohibit, regulate and control the location on certain streets to be named in a by-law of apartment or tenement houses and garages to be used for hire or gain." Where a statute gives a municipality the right to prohibit the location of apartment houses on certain streets and a by-law is passed pursuant to this statute and revoking former permits, the municipality is not estopped where the only acts that were done under the former permit and prior to the passage of the by-law were the preparation of the plans and specifications from enforcing the new by-law as to the property covered by such permit. [Toronto v. Wheeler, 4 D.L.R. 352, 3 O.W.N. 1424, distinguished.]

Mackenzie v. Toronto, 7 O.W.N. 820.

(§ 1 A—9a) — GARAGES — LOCATION — BY-LAW PROHIBITING ERECTION.

The prohibition of the "location" of garages on certain streets of a city by a by-law is a different thing from the "erection and use" thereof, and a garage that was in the course of construction under a permit from the city, at the time such by-law was adopted, was completely "located" by virtue of such permit, so as not to be affected by the subsequent adoption thereof.

Toronto v. Wheeler, 4 D.L.R. 352, 3 O.W.N. 1424, 22 O.W.R. 326.

ERECTION OF APARTMENT HOUSE — CORNER LOT — MUNICIPAL BUILDING RESTRICTIONS.

Although it is a violation of a building restriction that a building erected upon any of certain lots having a frontage upon some other street as well as upon a specified street shall have its front upon such specified street, to erect an apartment building on the corner of such street and another street with an entrance to only one of the apartments on the specified street and the main entrance for all the other apartments on the other street, there being no connection between them and the one apartment entered from the specified street; yet when the building is subsequently altered so that the end fronting the specified street will be the predominating front of the building constituting the main entrance from the outside to all the apartments, this is a sufficient compliance with the requirement of the restriction, and the fact that the side entrance is more imposing is not material.

MUNICIPAL REGULATION — ROOM IN DWELLING USED FOR LADIES TAILORING — "MANUFACTORY."

The use of a room in a dwelling house as a sewing room for three or four persons who make up clothes for customers who furnish the material, does not constitute the premises a "manufactory" within the meaning of a municipal by-law, prohibiting the location, erection or use of manufactories in certain districts. MUNICIPAL REGULATIONS — LOCATION OF APARTMENT HOUSES — WHAT CONSTITUTES LOCATION.

The staking out of the site for a building, entering into contracts with builders and the commencement of the work of excavation, particularly the construction of a trench for foundation walls, is within the meaning of the word "location" in a by-law prohibiting the location of an apartment or tenement house, and if done before the passing of the by-law exempts the land from the operation of the by-law. [Toronto v. Wheeler, 4 D.L.R. 352, 3 O.W.N. 1424; Toronto v. Williams, 5 D.L.R. 659, 27 O.L.R. 186, followed; Re Dinnick and McCallum, 11 D.L.R. 509, 4 O.W.N. 687, referred to.]

MUNICIPAL RESTRICTIONS — APARTMENT OR TENEMENT HOUSE.

Where it appears from the plans and specifications filed with the city architect and superintendent of buildings that the applicant sought to erect a building with three or more sets of rooms for separate occupancy by one or more persons, it is within the prohibition of by-law No. 6061 of the city of Toronto forbidding the erection of apartment or tenement houses within certain districts, notwithstanding the applicant called the building a hotel, and notwithstanding provision made for a dining room in which all meals would be served to the tenants by the landlord. BUILDING PERMITS — MUNICIPAL REGULATIONS — BY-LAW, ULTRA VIRES — WHEN.

A fire limit by-law under the Municipal Act, 1903 (Ont.), which authorizes a municipal council to prohibit the erection of any building the main walls of which are not of "brick, iron or stone" will be invalid for excess of jurisdiction if it purports to include in the prohibition buildings with main walls not constructed of "brick, stone, concrete or other approved of incombustible material," for under the latter heading the by-law contemplates some one approving of the proposed incombustible material and that his approval shall be necessary to the taking of the proposed building out of the prohibited class; this as to buildings to be constructed of galvanized iron is beyond the powers conferred by the statute. formed, unless the condition upon which it was obtained is carried out.

SEMIDETACHED HOUSES — SIZE OF LOT — ALTERATION TO SINGLE HOUSE.

Although a building structurally divided into two equal divisions by a wall extending its whole height with no internal communication, common staircase, or common front door, constitutes a pair of semi-detached buildings, and to erect such a building upon a lot which has a frontage of only forty feet on a specified street would be a violation of a building restriction that every pair of semi-detached buildings shall be upon land having a frontage on such street of at least fifty feet; yet when the building is subsequently altered by constructing and maintaining a door as a permanent passageway through the dividing wall, the structure becomes only one building within the meaning of the restriction in the deed [*Hford Park Estates Limited v. (§ II—21)—DANGEROUS WALLS.

Where the walls of a building are dangerous because of a fire, the owners of the damaged building from time to time are under a legal duty to the adjoining owner to take all reasonable measures to prevent the wall from falling over to the injury of his neighbour's property. [Ryland v. Fletcher, L.R. 3 H.L. 330, and Attorney-General v. Tod Heatley, [1897] 1 Ch. 569, applied.] If the purchaser of land and of a building thereon which had been ruined by fire takes measures for the preservation of the building which were adapted only to the winter season, and the debris caused by the structure only while the debris caused by the fire remained a frozen mass and neglects to put in more substantial supports on taking out the debris in warmer weather, he will be liable to the adjoining owner whose building is injured by the fall of the wall, although he had followed the advice of the city building inspector, and of his own architect that the walls were sufficiently braced for the changed conditions. [Dalton v. Angus, 6 App. Cas. 740; Jolliffe v. Woodhouse, 10 T.L.R. 553; Valliquette v. Fraser, 39 Can. S.C.R. 1, applied; Ainsworth v. Lakin (Mass.), 57 L.R.A. 132, approved. And see 3 Halsbury's Laws of England, p. 315.]

RESPONSIBILITY—DECAY OF A WALL—PRESUMPTION — CONTRARY EVIDENCE — VIS MAJOR AND ACCIDENT—TRAMWAY — RAINFALL—C.C. ART. 17, S. 24, 1955.

In the case of decay of a building no presumption of wrong exists against the owner. Thus it is incumbent on the person who claims damages by reason of the decay of a wall of a house, to prove that the decay has been caused by a defect in the construction or in its maintenance. According to the doctrines of jurisprudence, the decay of a wall caused by the vibration of a tramway which passes on the street, or by heavy rains followed by severe frosts, is not an accident or vis major.

(§ 1—1)—PROMISSORY NOTE — MISREPRESENTATION AS TO IDENTITY OF ORIGINAL MAKER.

Where the payee of a note agreed to accept a renewal not executed by the original makers to replace a note which he held and in which the makers were father and son, and the renewal note was executed by the son and a woman who the payee honestly believed was the son's mother, while, as a matter of fact, it was executed by the son's wife, of whose existence the payee had no knowledge; but the payee knowing that the mother was a responsible party, was content to accept her in lieu of her husband, as one of the makers, the payee is entitled on discovering the error to have the cancellation of the original note set aside, as made under an honest mistake of fact, and to sue the father and son on the original note.

Ward v. Wray, 9 D.L.R. 2, 4 O.W.N. 562, 23 O.W.R. 719.

FRAUD.

Where the evidence shows that the alleged vendor under a contract for the sale of land signed the agreement of sale on the representation of one of the alleged vendees, whom she hired as agent to sell the land, that it was an agreement in blank to be used by him in the event of obtaining a purchaser for the land, while as a matter of fact the agent wrote his own name and that of another in the agreement as vendees, the vendor is entitled on discovering the facts to have the agreement in question delivered up for cancellation and to an order for the removal from the register of the caveat and any lis pendens filed by the vendees.

PROMISSORY NOTE — SIGNATURE — SCHEME IMPRACTICABLE AND VISIONARY — ABSENCE OF ANY BENEFIT.

Where a signature to a promissory note, antedated and overdue at the time of signing, has been obtained from a person unaccustomed to business affairs by a representation that the giving of the note is part of a scheme to obtain by legal proceedings a sum of money for a company in which the maker is a shareholder, and, though there was no intention on the part of the payee to defraud, the scheme and proceedings were in fact visionary and impracticable, and the maker received no benefit from the giving of the note, the court may order the payee in whose hands it remains to deliver it up for cancellation.

INSCRIPTION EN FAUX—IRREGULARITY—CERTIFIED COPY.

Even though the original of a document sans seing privé is informal and irregular, there cannot be an inscription en faux against a copy of it, certified by a public officer who has the legal custody, if such copy is a faithful reproduction of the document deposited. A copy certified by a prothonotary has not the effect of curing irregularities which affect the original. The party who takes exception to these irregularities can prove them and obtain the annulment of the document without having recourse to the inscription en faux.

(§ 1—5)—IMPRISONMENT — PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENT.

Imprisonment proceedings should only be commenced when it is contended that the allegations in the document are false, or that the signatures are false; when the contention is merely that an alleged copy of the document is not a true copy, the proper proceeding would be to compel production of the instrument filed.

CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS—CANCELLATION OF TRANSFER AND CERTIFICATE OF TITLE OBTAINED BY FRAUD.

Annable v. Coventry, 5 D.L.R. 661, 2 W.W.R. 816.

GROUNDS FOR.

The purport of the words "saving the rights of creditors who contract in good faith," which were introduced by an amendment in 1904 to art. 1301 C.C. (Que.), is to authorize the courts to distinguish between the creditors who unwittingly and in good faith violate the terms of art. 1301, and those who violate it in bad faith, and to protect only the creditors of the former class from the nullification of their security. Where a person lends a sum of money and accepts as security a mortgage on an immovable belonging to the borrower's wife, by means of a deed of sale of the property secured with right of redemption or otherwise, he has no action against the wife for the recovery of the money loaned, and the wife can have the deed set aside as being in violation of art. 1301 C.C. (Que.), which makes void any obligation contracted by the wife with or for her husband otherwise than as being common as to property, saving the rights of creditors who contract in good faith.

Lebel v. Bradin, 7 D.L.R. 470, 19 Rev. Leg. 16.

WHEN REMEDY REFUSED—INSTRUMENT NOT NEGOTIABLE.

An action to have a valid instrument, not negotiable, delivered up to be cancelled, does not lie unless there is some real danger of its being used for an improper purpose, to the loss, in some way, of the party seeking its cancellation; and in a case in which there is a possibility that the instrument has not fulfilled all its purposes, there can, even where that danger may exist, be no such right of action. Brooking v. Maudslay Son & Field, 38 Ch. D. 636, and Guaranty Trust Co. of New York v. Hanway & Co., [1915] 2 K.B. 536, referred to for the practice of Courts of Equity in decreeing cancellation of valid instruments and making declaratory judgments.

(§ 1-4)—FERRYBOAT—HORSE—COMMON FAULT—DAMAGES.

Although a ferryman, who carries passengers and vehicles from one bank of a river to the other by means of a ferryboat towed by a gasoline yacht, is not a carrier, he is responsible for accidents caused by his negligence or faulty management of the boat. But one who takes on board such boat a horse hitched to a carriage should take precautions to assure its being quiet. Where both parties are negligent, there is common fault, and the damages should be divided.

Gauvin v. Legault, 24 Rev. Leg. 32.

II. Carriers of passengers and other persons.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A — 10) — ADDITIONAL PASSENGER TRAIN SERVICE.

Where the gross earnings per passenger train mile on a passenger train between Lachute and Montreal are not only much below the average return of the whole system, but are also below the average costs of the system, the Board would not be justified in directing that an additional passenger train should be put into service between the same points.

Massiah v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 358.

TRAFFIC — MOVEMENT — SHORTER ROUTE — MORE DIRECT — MORE ECONOMICAL — TOLL SITUATION — MILEAGES — REDUCTION.

It is the duty of a rail carrier in the interests of the shippers to take the shorter, more direct, more economical traffic movement route, but since under the present toll situation the whole of the economy is obtained by the rail carrier, the mileage via the Ladysmith transfer ought to be reduced to the mileage via the Esquimaux transfer to Nanaimo, and the mileages of stations served by the Ladysmith transfer reduced in the same manner plus the mileage from Ladysmith to destination.

Nanaimo Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 92.

ADDITIONAL PASSENGER SERVICE — UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

The Board is not justified in directing additional passenger service where the passenger train mile earnings would be one-half of the passenger train mile cost of operation in the absence of any evidence of similarity of conditions and of affirmative evidence that the difference in passenger-train service has resulted that persons and localities located on one section of railway have profited at the expense of those on another section so as to shew unjust discrimination. ACCIDENTS OF TRAVELING — PRELIMINARY REQUEST—AUTHORIZATION TO SEE—S. REF. (1909), ART. 7347.

The presentation of the preliminary request to obtain permission to sue in accordance with law of accidents while traveling, is a formality destined above all to furnish an opportunity for conciliation. It should not be refused unless the acts are such that the law cannot manifestly be invoked.

Gauthier v. Cohen, 25 Rev. Leg. 49.

(§ II A—12)—DUTY TO TRANSPORT GENERALLY.

A railway company cannot lawfully carry passengers over a road that has not been opened for traffic by an order of the Board of Railway Commissioners under s. 261 of the Railway Act, except labourers employed in the construction thereof.

PASSENGERS—OPERATION—CARS—THROUGH—POINTS—TERMINAL AND INTERMEDIATE—39 VICT. c. 87 (O.)—3 AND 4, GEO. V. c. 36 (O.)—AGREEMENT—BY-LAW.

Neither the Act of Incorporation of the defendants, 39 Vict. c. 87 (O.), nor the agreement with, and the by-law of the City of Hamilton, contains any limitation upon the right of the defendants to operate through cars between terminal points without stopping, and by the absence of any regulation by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board under the Ontario Railway Act, 3 and 4, Geo. V. c. 36, the defendants have the same right as steam railways to run trains or cars from one point on its line to another without making any intermediate stops.

B. RULES AND REGULATIONS.

(§ II B—20)—AS TO TICKETS OR FARES.

In a special passenger tariff filed with the Board of Railway Commissioners specifying that the tolls to be charged persons attending a convention would be a one-way fare plus twenty-five cents, it is unnecessary to state that the twenty-five cents is a "fee" and is charged for the purpose of defraying the expenses in vising the railway certificates entitling such persons to a return trip without the payment of a return fare.

C. WHO ARE PASSENGERS.

(§ II C—35)—INJURY TO BRAKEMAN—NEGLIGENCE—CROWN.

The death of a brakeman while riding on a box car in the discharge of his duties on the Intercolonial Railway, occasioned by the overturning of the car when it suddenly jumped the track, the roadbed and the car being in perfect condition and the train traveling at a moderate speed, must be regarded as an accident of an unforeseen event and is not attributable to the "negligence of any officer or servant of the Crown . . . in or about the construction, maintenance or operation of the Intercolonial Railway;" within the meaning of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act.

(§ II C—40)—WHO ARE PASSENGERS—PERSON OBTAINING REDUCED FARE BY WRONGFUL USE OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELER'S CARD—LIABILITY OF CARRIER FOR INJURY TO.

The fact that a person who was injured by the derailment of a passenger car, obtained his ticket at a reduced rate by presenting a commercial traveler's card after he had ceased to be entitled to use it, does not make him a trespasser on the train so as to relieve the carrier from liability.

D. ABUSE OF PASSENGERS; INSULTING LANGUAGE, ETC.

(§ II D—55)—ABUSE OF PASSENGER.

Held, common carriers are liable, for insulting language and conduct of their servants to their passengers, in damages measured by circumstances, such as the sex and social standing of the party aggrieved, and the nature and gravity of the offence. Hence, when a railway conductor, in a controversy with a lady passenger, as to the fares of her children, says he does not believe her, and persists in speaking to her, though told to desist, and, when she moves away, follows her with the annoyance, the company will be condemned to pay her $100, the full amount of her action.

PASSENGER STEPPING OFF TRAIN—INVITATION TO ALIGHT.

A conductor of a passenger train, who after telling a passenger that the next stop is his station, "where you get off," opened the door guarding the steps of the car, and allowed the passenger to go down the steps from which the passenger stepped off, while the train was still going at a high rate of speed, was not guilty of negligence; the conductor was entitled to assume that the passenger would act with ordinary prudence and discretion.

STOPPING CAR SUDDENLY NOT AT STOPPING PLACE.

The stopping of a street car in the middle of a block, not being necessary or justifiable under the circumstances, a jury is justified in finding negligence, where the car was brought to a violent or sudden stop, which caused a passenger standing in the car to fall and sustain injuries.

Billington v. Hamilton Street R. Co., 34 D.L.R. 708, 39 O.L.R. 25.

BUMPING OF CAR.

Failure to detect bumping by a railway car, which later overturned, does not of itself imply negligence.

MEASURE OF CARE REQUIRED—NEGLIGENCE—DISCHARGING PASSENGERS AT DANGEROUS SPOT—STREET RAILWAYS.

If the act of a third party, ex. gr. the city municipality, in reconstructing a street paving, has rendered dangerous an alighting place chosen by the street railway, the latter must, even at the risk of inconvenience to the passenger, choose another point of alighting for the time being at least; or it should take reasonable and prudent steps to cause the threatened danger for the time being to disappear or should warn of the danger a passenger who is about to alight.

(§ II G-96)—STREET CAR APPROACHING RAILWAY CROSSING—NEGLIGENCE OF MOTORMAN IN CROSSING TRACK—COLLISION WITH WORK TRAIN—INJURY TO PASSENGER FALLING OFF CAR—DAMAGES.

An electric railway company which by the inexcusable negligence and breach of rules of one of its motormen, places the passengers of a car in a position of great peril from imminent danger of collision with a railway work train, is liable in damages for the death of one of the passengers who becoming terrified jumps or falls off the car and is killed by the train. The railroad company whose employees could have prevented the accident by prompt action, are equally liable and cannot plead as an excuse from such liability, the fact that, but for the negligence of the Electric Railway Company, the accident would not have taken place.

(§ II G-100)—TOWARDS HOLDER OF ORDINARY TICKET ENTERING PULLMAN.

A passenger in a day coach who finds the ordinary mode of exit at the rear vestibule closed at his destination, and who thereupon enters the adjoining Pullman car in search of an opened vestibule, is not a trespasser as to such Pullman coach so as to disentitle him to damages for personal injuries received in alighting therefrom.

McDougall v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 271, 4 O.W.N. 363, 23 O.W.R. 364.

(§ II G-101)—PASSENGER ON TRAIN—REFUSAL TO STOP TRAIN FOR HIM TO ALIGHT—AGREEMENT OF BRAKEMAN TO SLOW UP—PASSENGER JUMPING UNDER DIRECTION OF BRAKEMAN—INJURY—LIABILITY OF COMPANY.

A traveler on a railway train who, wishing to alight at a station where the train does not stop and which is not the destination to which he has bought his ticket, assents to a suggestion of the brakeman that the train should be slowed down in order that he may jump from the moving train, takes all the risk of alighting, although he acts under the direction of such brakeman as to when it is safe to do so. (§ II G-111)—NEGLIGENCE—ELECTRIC RAILWAY—EXPLOSION IN CONTROLLER—INJURY TO PASSENGER.

A carrier is liable for an injury received by a street car passenger as the result of an explosion in the controller of the car due to a defect that should have been discovered by proper inspection.

(§ II G-114)—PASSENGER—DERAILMENT OF CARS—CAR DEFECTIVE—NEGLIGENCE—PROOF.

The plaintiff was injured by the derailing of a passenger coach in which he was riding as a passenger on defendants' railway; the cause of the derailment was the breaking of an equalizing bar. Their Lordships concurred in the finding of the Manitoba Court of Appeal that the maxim res ipsa loquitur applied and that by proving that the car in which he was riding ran off the track the plaintiff made a prima facie case of negligence and that the duty then devolved upon the defendant to show that the accident was not due to any fault or carelessness on its part. There was evidence to support the jury's conclusion that the defendant had not acquitted itself of this burden of explanation. As carriers of passengers the defendants' undertaking was to exercise a high degree of care, and to carry safely as far as reasonable care and forethought could attain that end. The verdict of the jury that the negligence of the defendant consisted "in not having proper inspection or testing of equalizing bars" was justified on the evidence.

§ II G—124)—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE —CROSSING TRACK—NOT CONTINUING TO LOOK, EFFECT.

A railway company is not liable for injuries sustained by a person who crosses a street in front of a moving street car without keeping the car in sight until he has crossed the street, and trusts blindly to an opinion formed on leaving the sidewalk that there was ample time to cross.

Myers v. Toronto R. Co., 10 D.L.R. 754, 24 O.W.R. 452, 4 O.W.N. 1120. [Reversed in 18 D.L.R. 335; 30 O.L.R. 263.]

§ II G—131)—INJURY TO PASSENGER—RIDING ON STEP OF CAR—PERMISSION OF DEFENDANT—NEGLIGENT OPERATION OF CAR.

An intending passenger may recover for injuries sustained through the negligent operation of a crowded car, notwithstanding the fact that he was riding on the step of the car, where such was a practice commonly permitted by the company. [Williams v. B.C. Electric R. Co., 7 D.L.R. 459, affirmed.]

H. EJECTION OF PASSENGER OR TRESPASSER.

§ II H—140)—RIOTOUS OR DISORDERLY CONDUCT OF PASSENGERS—EJECTION FROM TRAIN.

Riotous or disorderly conduct, or the use of indecent or profane language in a railway passenger coach, works a forfeiture of a passenger's right to be carried as such, and he may for such conduct be ejected from the train, unless he is through drunkenness or other cause bereft of all intelligence and is put off and left on a track or other dangerous place, under such circumstances that the conductor ought to

Dunn, Administrator v. Dominion Atlantic R. Co., 45 D.L.R. 51, 25 Can. Ry. Cas. —. [Reversed by Supreme Court of Canada, 52 D.L.R. —.]

§ II H—141)—FOR INJURY TO—NEGLIGENT EVICTION.

Even to trespassers a railway company owes a duty not to willfully injure them nor endanger their safety; and where trespassers are stealthily riding on a ledge 14 inches wide at the back of the tender, and the brakeman, while in the course of his employment and without ascertaining the dangerous position of the trespassers as a reasonable man would, forces one of them from the ledge thereby knocking him against the other and causing the latter to fall beneath the train and seriously injuring him, it is sufficient to warrant a jury's finding of the company's negligence; whether or not the brakeman had knowledge of their position or whether he acted as a reasonable and prudent man, are questions of fact for the jury. [G.T.R. Co. v. Barnett, [1911] A.C. 361, 22 O.L.R. 84, applied; Bondy v. S.W.A.R. Co., 24 O.L.R. 409, considered; Lowery v. Walker, [1911] A.C. 10, distinguished. See also Nolan v. § II H—155)—EJECTION OF PASSENGER—
REFUSAL TO PRODUCE HAT CHECK.

A passenger on a railway subject to the Dominion Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, who has lost the "hat check" given him on the surrender of his ticket by the conductor for the latter's own convenience, is not liable to expulsion from the train in default of paying another fare under a railway by-law purporting to authorize the company to put off the train any passenger who refuses to produce and deliver up his "ticket" on demand. [G.T.R. Co. v. Beaver, 22 Can. S.C.R. 498, considered; Butler v. Manchester, Shobfield and Lincolnshire R. Co., 21 Q.B.D. 297, applied.]

Haines v. G.T.R. Co., 15 D.L.R. 714, 29 O.L.R. 558, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 359.

CARRIAGE OF PASSENGERS—RIGHT TO A SEAT —PASSENGER CARRIED STANDING—EX-PULSION FROM TRAIN.

The contract between a railway company and a passenger to whom the company sells a ticket, gives the passenger the right to a seat in a car. If the company cannot, on account of the number of travelers, give him a seat, the traveler can refuse to be carried standing; he can get off the train and exercise his right to recover damages for nonfulfillment of the contract. But if he prefers to stay on the train and be carried standing, he cannot refuse to give up his ticket, or to pay his fare. Such a refusal gives the conductor the right to put him out of the train, as provided by art. 6637, of R.S.Q. 1909. Vide, also, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 281.) This can only be done at a usual station, and, if it is done elsewhere, the expelled passenger has the right to recover the damages which result.

Langlois v. Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co., 45 Que. S.C. 223.

K. GETTING ON OR OFF.

(§ II K-209)—ALLOWING TIME TO ALIGHT—ASSISTANCE TO PASSENGERS.

The plaintiff was riding as a passenger on one of the defendant company's cars. Upon the conductor collecting her fare she asked him to let her off at a certain place, to which he answered, "All right." He then went into the motor vestibule in front and stayed there until after the accident. After turning a corner at plaintiff's destination the car stopped, and as the plaintiff was about to alight it started up again, throwing her to the ground, and from the fall she sustained injuries. At the time of the accident there were but three passengers in the car. The jury gave a verdict for $1,000 for the plaintiff and $500 for her husband:—Held, on appeal, that there was evidence upon which the jury might reasonably come to the conclusion that the company was negligent.

Armishaw v. B.C. Electric R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 393, 18 B.C.R. 152.

(§ II K-210)—FAILURE TO OPEN VESTIBULE DOOR AT STATION.

Where a railway company negligently omitted to open the vestibule door of a day coach on arrival at a passenger's destination and the passenger in his efforts to get off the train went to the next coach to find an open vestibule from which to alight, and the train was, by that time, pulling away from the station at a speed of three or four miles an hour, there was nothing in the rate at which the train was proceeding to make it manifestly dangerous for the plaintiff to attempt to get off, and such course of his part was not contributory negligence. [Keith v. Ottawa & New York R. Co., 5 O.L.R. 116, applied.] Where a railway company negligently closes a passenger's natural means of getting off a train, without notice to him, such company is guilty of negligence in starting the train before the passenger has sufficient time to get off by the means he adopts, provided such means be reasonable.

McDougall v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 271, 27 O.L.R. 369, 23 O.W.R. 364.

(§ II K-212)—INJURY TO STREET CAR PASSENGER—ALLOWING TIME TO ALIGHT—SUDDEN STARTING OF CAR.

A passenger may recover damages for being thrown from a street car by its sudden starting as he was about to alight in compliance with the conductor's request that all passengers should disembark as the car was going no further.

Montreal Street R. Co. v. Marins, 12 D. L.R. 620.

NEGLECT OF STREET RAILWAY—ALLOWING TIME TO ALIGHT.

Where the circumstances of the case are such that positive and direct evidence on specific negligence cannot be given, as where a street car had stopped to permit a passenger to alight, and the latter, while in the act of alighting, is rendered unconscious so as not to be able to remember what happened after getting to the car step, and where it is proved that when the car had proceeded only a short distance ahead without knowledge of the accident by any one on it, the passenger was found injured and unconscious by the track, and where there was no evidence to indicate any intervening cause, the jury may infer in the absence of any evidence for the defence, that the car had been negligently started before the passenger had alighted, and that such negligence caused the fall and consequent injuries. [McArthur v. Dominion Cartridge Co., [1905] A.C. 72, and G.T.R. Co. v. Hainer, 36 Can. S.C.R. 180, referred to.]

Winnipeg Electric R. Co. v. Schwartz, 16 D.L.R. 681, 27 W.L.R. 439, 5 W.W.R. 1298, 49 Can. S.C.R. 80, 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 1, affirming 9 D.L.R. 708, 23 Man. L.R. 69, 5 W.W.R. 1298.

GOVERNMENT RAILWAY—FAILURE TO AFFORD OPPORTUNITY TO ALIGHT AT STATION PLATFORM—PASSENGER STANDING ON LOWER STEP OF CAR—INJURY—RIGHT TO RECOVER DAMAGES.

Suppliant purchased a ticket entitling him to travel as a passenger on a railway between the stations at B and M and return. On the return journey to B, the train, instead of proceeding to the station platform and giving the passengers an opportunity to alight there, pulled up at a tank, before reaching the platform, for the purpose of watering the engines. While the train was at the tank, a period of from 10 to 13 minutes, the greater number of the passengers alighted; but the suppliant did not, expecting the train to pull up at the station platform. During this same interval the suppliant went out of the car in which he was being carried, and stood upon the lower step of the platform of the car preparatory to alighting at the station. The conductor, apparently on the assumption that all the passengers for B had previously alighted, started the train and allowed it to pass the station platform at a considerable speed. As the train was passing the station the suppliant was thrown from the step of the car to the ground between the station platform and the rail of the track, and was severely injured:—Held, that the suppliant was justified in assuming that the conductor would stop the train at the station, after leaving the tank, and that under the circumstances he was justified in remaining on the step where he was standing. That the accident would not have happened had the conductor fulfilled his duty under the law and regulations, and stopped his train at the platform of the station.

L. SAFETY OF STATIONS, APPROACHES, AND PLATFORMS.

- (§ II L—240)—STATION HOUSE—FAILURE TO PROVIDE—EXPOSURE OF PASSENGER TO ELEMENTS—ILLNESS—LIABILITY FOR.

The failure of a railway company to provide a suitable station house at a regular stopping place, as required by s. 284 of the Canada Railway Act, renders it liable for the resultant illness occasioned a passenger from exposure to the elements while waiting at night for a train.

Morrison v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 12 D. L.R. 344, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 406, 23 O.L.R. 319, affirming 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 402, 27 O.L.R. 551.

CONVENIENT MODE OF DESCENT—NEGLIGENCE.

A tramway company is bound to procure for its passengers a convenient mode of descent, and if it has no station should provide some easy means of descending and indicate to passengers where they should descend, and the negligence of the passenger does not excuse the torts of the carrier.

Montreal Street R. Co. v. Chevandier, 24 D.L.R. 349, 24 Que. K.B. 48.

- (§ II L—245)—SAFETY AT STATIONS—AS TO THROWING OFF BAGGAGE.

Negligence cannot be predicated against a railway company merely on its failure to protect an intending passenger, standing on a station platform on its line, from injury due to the unauthorized action of a passenger unconnected with the railway company, in throwing off his baggage while the train passed through without stopping. [Blain v. C.P.R. Co., 5 O.L.R. 334, distinguished.]

FAILURE TO PLACE TRAIN ON SIDING AT ARRIVAL—COLLISION.

There is gross negligence on the part of the conductor of a railway company whose train arrives at a station when the conductor knows that another train which should have the right of way would arrive in a few moments, if the train remains from 8 to 10 minutes in the station in order to receive his instructions without giving any order to have the train placed safely upon a siding, and in such case the company is liable for the damages caused by a collision.

- (§ II M—273)—CONDITIONS AND LIMITATIONS—BAGGAGE.

A condition stated on a passage ticket for transportation upon a boat whereby the transportation company was not to be liable for injury to the passenger or baggage, (inter alia) from perils of the sea or defects in the boat fittings, where reasonable means had been used to send the boat to sea in a seaworthy state, will bind the passenger where the latter had ample opportunity to read the ticket and to get notice therefrom and from the posted notices of the limitation of liability if the company did all that was reasonably required to bring the conditions to the attention of prospective passengers.

Dill v. G.T.P. Coast S.S. Co., 21 D.L.R. 392, 21 B.C.R. 182.

- (§ II M—287)—REQUIREMENTS AS TO STAMPING RETURN PART.

The charge made by a passenger association formed by the principal railway and steamship companies of Canada for vising railway certificates entitling persons attending a convention who had paid a one-way fare to a return trip without payment of a return fare is a "toll" within the meaning of 7 and 8 Edw. VII. (Can.) c. 61, s. 9, defining "toll" or "rate" to mean and include "any toll, rate, charge or allowance charged or made either by the company . . . or by any person on behalf or under authority or consent of the company, in connection with the carriage and transportation of passengers." though in a special passenger tariff filed with the Board of Railway Commissioners such charge was stated to be a "fee" and to be made for the purpose of defraying the expenses of vising the certificates.

Canadian Fraternal Assn. v. Canadian Passenger Assn., 5 D.L.R. 171, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 178.

- (§ II M—295)—PASSES.

The plaintiff's husband was an employee engaged as a mechanic in the company's workshops and was traveling thither to his work on one of the company's passenger cars, as a passenger, without payment of fare. A freight car became detached from a train, some distance ahead of the passenger car and proceeding in the same direction, it ran backwards down a grade, collided with the passenger car and the plaintiff's husband was killed. The manner in which the freight car became detached was not shown. On the body of the deceased there was found a permit or "pass," which was not produced, and there was no evidence to show any conditions in it, nor over what portion of the company's lines nor for what purposes it was to be honoured. On the close of the plaintiff's case, the defendants adduced no evidence whatever, and the jury found that the company was at fault, owing to a defective system of operation of their trains, and assessed damages, at common law, for which judgment was entered for the plaintiff. Held, that there was a presumption that deceased was lawfully on the passenger car, and, in the exercise of their business as common carriers of passengers, the company were, therefore, obliged to use a high degree of care in order to avoid injury being caused to him through negligence; that there was nothing in the evidence to show that deceased occupied the position of a fellow servant with the employees engaged in the operation of the trains which were in collision; and that, in the absence of evidence shewing any agreement, express or implied, or some relationship between the company and deceased which would exclude or limit liability, the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages at common law. [Nightingale v. Union Colliery Co., 35 Can. S.C.R. 65, distinguished.]

B.C. Electric R. Co. v. Wilkinson, 45 Can. S.C.R. 263, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 382, affirming 16 B.C.R. 113.

PASSES—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE IN GETTING OFF.

The stipulation by a railway company printed on the back of a pass, that it will not be liable for injury by accidents, becomes a legal contract on acceptance by the donee. It relieves the company from liability for accidents resulting from imprudence or slight fault but not for those caused by the gross negligence of its employees. The passenger traveling on a pass is deemed to know the conditions under which he accepts it and which are printed on it.

Bergevin v. Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co., 43 Que. S.C. 38.

ACCIDENT—RAILWAY—ACTIONS UNDER QUE. C.C. 1056—PASS—CONDITION—WIDOW'S RIGHT—RENUNCIATION—DOMICILE—QUE. C.C. 6, 8, 982, 989, 1056, 1250.

The signature to a renunciation of damages, on the back of a pass, or permission to travel, is a presumption juris tantum that the signer knew the terms of the renunciation, but this presumption can be negated by other presumptions, or by positive proof. Though a pass given gratuitously or for a consideration, and which admits a renunciation of a contingent remedy in damages, is valid, the renunciation, without consideration, to a right certain, or simply contingent, constitutes a contract null (nudum pactum). The right of the wife and the children to an indemnity according to art. 1056 Que. C.C. is a personal right, conferred on them by law, which no act performed by the husband with a third person can compromise, and which gives them an action different from that which the husband would have had against the author of the quasi offence. The widow's indemnity under art. 1056 Que. C.C. results from her personal or matrimonial status, and this indemnity ought to be regulated by the law of domicile of her husband. In order to know what the law is which governs contracts, it is necessary to take into consideration the intention of the parties making the contract, but they are supposed to have been according to the law of their domicile. A deed contrary to the law of domicile, and prohibited by it as prejudicial to the rights of the wife, made by the husband with the sanction of the law of another place, is null, as being made in fraud of the law of domicile.

Farmer v. The B.C. Electric R. Co., 16 B.C.R. 423.

(§ II M—310)—PASSENGERS, INJURIES TO—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY—DAMAGES—JURY FINDINGS.

The verdict of a jury in an action claiming damages for injuries, resulting from an accident on a railway, which awards the plaintiff (of the age of 45 years and earning $2,000 per annum), in addition to his disbursements for medical treatment, $1,000 for past suffering, $1,500 for future suffering and medical treatment and $18,000 for other damages, is not excessive when it is proved that the injuries he sustains have diminished by one-half his physical faculties and subjected him to trouble from insomnia, vertigo, etc., as well as to morbid fits for the rest of his life. The failure of the jury to state the nature of the other damages, though required to do so in the question submitted is not a ground for setting aside their verdict when the reasons and object of the allotment sufficiently appear from their answer to other questions.

C.P.R. Co. v. Roy, 22 Que. K.B. 459.

(§ II M-317)—SHIPPER OF STOCK.

A contract exempting entirely a railway company from liability in respect of the death or injury of a passenger who is the holder of a ticket issued by the railway company, which ticket was sold at a reduced rate good for passage on a train conveying live stock belonging to the passenger, does not destroy all the liability of the railway company in "respect of the carriage of any traffic" and is therefore not a contravention of s. 340, subs. 1 of the Railway Act (Can.), where the exemption contracted for is restricted to the transportation of the passenger and not to the transportation of the live stock. [The Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, ss. 2 (31) and 340, considered.]

(§ II N-320)—TIME-TABLE—CHANGES IN—PUBLIC CONVENIENCE.

Public convenience does not demand the restoration of a former time-table, where the railway company has justified the change in it by showing that the early mail arrives at the point in question, as usual, early in the morning; and its trains by leaving the point of departure, later, in the morning, serve the convenience of the traveling public by enabling them to make close connections from various points with the later morning trains.

CONTENTS LOST OR STOLEN—LIABILITY—ONUS.

In an action against a common carrier for the value of baggage lost or stolen from a valise during transportation, the onus of proof is upon the person who made the shipment to show that the things lost or stolen were in the valise at the time it was delivered to the carrier.

BAGGAGE DELIVERY SERVICE—CONDITIONS LIMITING LIABILITY.

Conway v. Canadian Transfer Co., 40 Que. S.C. 89.

LIABILITY OF STAGE-COACH PROPRIETOR AS COMMON CARRIER OF PASSENGER AND FOR LOSS OF LUGGAGE—LIMITATION TO PERSONAL LUGGAGE—EXCLUSION OF PROFESSIONAL INSTRUMENTS.

The defendant, the proprietor of a stage-coach, was held liable as a common carrier for the loss of the plaintiff's luggage carried by the defendant in the coach with the plaintiff. The recovery was limited to the value of personal articles contained in the bag which was lost, nothing being allowed for professional instruments also contained in the bag. In carrying a passenger's luggage along with the passenger without any additional remuneration for the luggage, the stage-coach proprietor must be taken, following the general usage and conduct of business, to have impliedly contracted to carry safely only what it designated as a passenger's personal luggage; the liability should be no wider than that of a railway company in the like circumstances. Review of the authorities.

Kent v. Petrine, 28 W.L.R. 542, 6 W.W.R. 1111.

(§ II O-329)—CHECK ROOM—RECEIPT—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

The receipt of a railway company to a passenger delivering baggage to its parcels office for safe keeping, on payment of five cents, is not a contract of hiring, but a merely voluntary deposit or hiring of services, which renders the depository or lessor liable for the loss of the deposited articles only in case of negligence; the burden of proof of such is on the depositing party. One who obtains the receipt, without informing himself of the conditions thereon limiting the company's liability, is guilty of negligence; and if such person is accustomed to travel on that railway and often makes use of the parcels office, the court will presume that he had knowledge of the conditions printed thereon.

(§ II O-340)—SKIFFS, CANOES AND ROWBOATS—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY—WAREHOUSEMAN.

Canoes, skiffs and rowboats are not such articles of necessity or personal convenience as are usually carried by passengers for their personal use so as to be "baggage." [Macrae v. G.W.R. Co., L.R. 6 Q.B. 612, considered.] The construction of the words, "owner's risk," used in r. 12 (Baggage Rules) is a matter for decision by the courts. The Board has power under s. 340 of the Railway Act (Canada) to sanction the limitation of the carrier's liability to $100 in the case of baggage checked free of charge, and the limitation is a reasonable one. The Board is not given any jurisdiction under s. 340 of the Railway Act to limit the carrier's liability as a warehouseman. [Rule 2, ss. (c), 11 and 26 (c) of the Baggage Rules also considered. S. 283 of the Railway Act (Canada) considered.]

Re Baggage Car Traffic Rules, 33 W.L.R. 54.

(§ II Q—365)—NEGLIGENCE—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY—CHECK ROOM.

The liability of a common carrier with respect to baggage checked for safe keeping is that of a bailee for hire, and he is liable for a loss thereof through misdelivery notwithstanding a condition on the receipt limiting the liability of which the holder had no notice.

McEvoy v. G.T.R. Co. (Que.), 35 D.L.R. 301.

BAGGAGE OR PROPERTY OF PASSENGER—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY FOR LOSS—CONDITION ON BACK OF CHECK—WANT OF NOTICE—EFFECT.

A passenger who checks his baggage on a ticket previously purchased is not bound by a condition printed on the check but not on the ticket, limiting the liability of the carrier in case of loss, where such condition was not brought to the notice of the passenger, and the circumstances disclosed no assent either actual or constructive to such condition by the passenger. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

Where baggage is checked without extra charge upon an ordinary railway ticket and would ordinarily be forwarded upon the next passenger train, but the passenger who might have traveled by that train purposely delays his journey until a later train in the expectation that his baggage will have preceded him, the railway company is a gratuitous bailee and liable only for gross negligence as regards its custody of the baggage at the point of destination, after the time when it should have been claimed by the passenger, had he taken the earlier train. A. IN GENERAL: POWERS OF AGENTS.

(§ III A—370)—AUTHORITY TO SIGN BILLS OF LADING—ESTOPPEL FROM DISPUTING.

It is not open to a railway company which has actually received grain for transportation to dispute the bill of lading or shipping bill issued on its regular form merely on the ground that its agent had not by reason of some inside regulations between the company and its servants the power to sign the bill, where the company received and carried the grain, collected the freight and made delivery pursuant to its terms. WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS—RELEASE OF GOODS—SHORTAGES—CONTRIBUTION.

A railway company maintaining warehouses as a necessary incident to its business is bound by the act of its agent, acting within the scope of the authority, which it holds him out to the world to possess, in signing warehouse receipts; it is therefore liable for shortages, in consequence of the agent's release of the goods to the shipper, without the permission of a bank to which they were hypothecated as collateral security, the railway company, however, is entitled to contribution from the shipper to the amount recovered by the bank for such shortages.

IN GENERAL—POWERS OF AGENT.

Plaintiff company, a British Columbia concern, sought from the defendant company's agent at Seattle, Wash., U.S.A., information as to the rate on plaster from a point in Kansas and was given a certain figure per ton. There was some dispute as to whether the rate quoted was from Kansas to Seattle (according to defendant company's contention) or to Vancouver, B.C. (according to plaintiff company's contention), but a letter from an official of defendant company confirming the quotation of a rate to Vancouver was put in evidence. There was no evidence that there had been any carelessness or recklessness shown in giving the information. Held, on appeal, reversing the finding of the Trial Judge, that an action of deceit did not lie in the circumstances. Held, further, that there is no duty cast upon a common carrier to give correct verbal information as to rates. Held, further, that to entitle plaintiff company to succeed, the wrong complained of, having been committed in the State of Washington, must be shown to be actionable in British Columbia as well. AS TO CARS FOR HORSES.

Where a special horse-car was ordered from a railway station agent for the purpose made known to the agent, of carrying horses to be exhibited at a winter fair, and the agent had previously supplied cars upon similar orders. His action in this instance having been ratified by his superiors, there being no notice to the plaintiff of any limitation of the agent's authority, the company is bound by the agent's action in accepting the order for the car and is liable in damages for failure to supply it.

(§ III A—378)—JURISDICTION—STOP-OVER PRIVILEGES—DISCRETION OF CARRIERS—STORAGE, INSPECTION OF COMPLETION OF CARLOAD—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

It is entirely within the discretion of the carriers to grant or withhold stop-over privileges on carload and part carload shipments during its transportation to final destination at concentration points for the purpose of storage, inspection or completion of carload; therefore, where the stop-over privilege is not granted, unjust discrimination not having been established, the Board is without jurisdiction to direct that this privilege shall be given by the carrier.

STOP-OVER PRIVILEGE—POINTS—SHIPPING—DESTINATION—TOLLS—“DIRECT RUN”—EXTRA DISTANCE—ROUTES.

Where a tariff provided specific freight tolls to apply to designated distances, but also provided that stop-over privileges, at a point out of the direct run between shipping point and destination, should be permitted on payment of a stop-over charge and an additional toll per mile of extra distance, the railway company was held entitled to enforce the latter provision, and the toll specified for the mileage between shipping point and destination by the circuitous route was held not applicable.

Hannah v. G.T.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 123.

(§ III A—379)—SETTLER'S EFFECTS—CARLOAD LOT—AGENT—SCOPE OF DUTIES—EXCESS CHARGED—RECOVERY OF—RAILWAY ACT—R.S.C. 1906, c. 37.

Excess freight charges collected at destination in respect of carload lot of settler's effects over and above the amount quoted at the point of shipment and on the bill of which quotation the shipment was made, may be recovered by the shipper who paid the same under protest: the contract by the railway agent for a lower rate than the ordinary one was within the apparent scope of the agent's authority, and being in respect of settler's effects it was permissible under s. 341 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, for the railway to make a specific bargain to carry one lot of such goods at a reduced rate subject to the action which the Railway Commission may take under s. 341 to extend or restrict the railway's power in that respect, and the low rate quoted inadvertently was therefore not illegal as an unjust discrimination. B. DUTY TO RECEIVE AND TRANSPORT.

(§ III B—380)—DUTY TO RECEIVE AND TRANSPORT.

Application directing the respondent to furnish an adequate supply of cars suitably equipped for the carriage of fresh meat and packing house products and to disallow the increase in rates. The respondent neglected to supply cars with cross pieces in the top so that the shipper might hang his meat to hooks inserted in them. On the 3rd October, 1910, the respondent issued a tariff effective on the 10th October, granting certain commodity rates on the commodities in question. This tariff remained in effect until 1st August, 1911, when a supplement was filed more than doubling the rates and raising the minimum C.L. weight from 17,000 to 20,000 lbs. It was said that these charges were made in error and that they should have been upon a mileage basis at 9 cents per 100 lbs. Held, 1. That suitable accommodation for carrying the traffic under s. 284 of the act included furnishing cross pieces in the top of the car for the shipper to put his hooks in for his meat. 2. That the tariff of 1st August, 1911, should be cancelled and the tariff of 10th October, 1910, reinstated and should remain in effect for at least one year, and during that time if the respondent can show that the tariff is not fair or remunerative, an opportunity will be given it to increase the rates. 3. That the Board had no jurisdiction to order a refund.

STATIONS—REGULAR AND FLAG—TRAFFIC—CONSIGNED TO ORDER—BILL OF LADING—TOLLS—FREIGHT—REBILLING—DEMURRAGE.

Traffic to flag stations consigned "to order" should be billed to the nearest regular station short of the flag station and sent on to destination, after the endorsed bill of lading has been produced and surrendered and the freight tolls paid. For unloading into the freight shed and reloading and for rebilling L.C.L. traffic from regular to flag stations, forwarding to and unloading at the said station, the carrier should receive the local toll between the two stations, and for C.L. traffic the through toll should be charged with an additional toll of 83 per car for rebilling and terminal charges. The detention allowance of 48 hours free time is computed from the time of notice of the arrival of the car by the agent to the consignee after which the carrier will be entitled to charge the authorized demurrage toll. INTERSWITCHING—CARRIERS COMPELLED TO FURNISH SERVICE—PUBLIC INTEREST—TRACKS—INTERCHANGE—EQUALITY OF SERVICE.

Interswitching, having regard to the public interest, should be treated as a right, and carriers should be compelled at all times, according to their powers, to furnish an interswitching service, as to all their tracks, including team tracks, equal to the service accorded to their own traffic at all points, where interchange tracks are now installed, or may hereafter be provided.

In re Interswitching Service, 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 324.

(§ III B—384)—RAILWAY IN COURSE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A railway company may rightfully carry as freight over a road that is in course of construction, for an independent contractor, who was building it, ordinary construction and camp supplies necessary to such work, and, as passengers, it may also carry labourers for employment thereon, notwithstanding the road has not been opened for general traffic by an order of the Board of Railway Commissioners under s. 261 of the Railway Act.

C. LOSS OF, OR INJURY TO PROPERTY.

(§ III C—385)—DELIVERY TO—LOSS OF PART OF GOODS—NO EXPLANATION—PRESUMPTION OF NEGLIGENCE—LIABILITY FOR LOSS.

Where goods are shewn to have been delivered to a railway company for carriage, and they are not delivered, at their destination, and no explanation is furnished, negligence may be presumed. Where the initial carrier undertakes the entire transportation, the connecting carriers through whose hands the goods pass in the performance of the contract are the agents of the initial carrier, who is liable for their negligence. [Ferris v. C.N.R. Co., 15 Man. L.R. 134; Henry v. C.P.R. Co., 1 Man. L.R. 210, followed.]

LOSS OF GOODS ENTRUSTED TO—NO EXPLANATION—PRESUMPTION OF NEGLIGENCE OF.

In the absence of evidence that the loss of goods entrusted to a railway company for carriage was not caused by the negligence of the railway company, the rule res ipsa loquitur applies and the carrier is responsible. [Ferris v. C.N.R. Co., 15 Man. L.R. 134; Randall C.N.R. Co., 21 D.L.R. 457, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 343, 25 Man. L.R. 293; Scanlin v. C.P.R. Co., 44 D.L.R. 352, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 336, followed.]

COMMON CARRIERS—LIABILITY FOR LOSS OF GOODS—WHEN IT BEGINS—GOODS LADEN BY SHIPPER ON CAR ON SIDING—DELIVERY TO RAILWAY COMPANY.

The liability of common carriers under art. 1674 C.C. begins only from the time of delivery of the goods, and when a shipper, for his own convenience, puts them himself on board the cars of a railway company, on a siding near his warehouse, the delivery to the company takes place when it seals the cars, or otherwise takes charge of them, and hands the shipper a bill of lading. It incurs no liability for loss from pilfering, etc., that occurs before that.

Spedding v. G.T.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 46, 40 Que. S.C. 463, 10 E.L.R. 369.

LOSS OF, OR INJURY TO, PROPERTY.

Plaintiffs having carried on business for over twenty-five years, and having shipped live stocks frequently, should have known of the conditions mentioned in the company defendant's bill of lading, and plaintiffs having failed to prove any fault or negligence on the part of the company defendant, the latter must be declared relieved of any responsibility for the loss of live stock in transit, under the terms of the bill of lading duly signed by plaintiffs.

WARRANTY—CARRIERS—MIS EN CAUSE—MOTION—C.C., ART. 1053, 1675—C.P. ART. 183.

An action in warranty does not exist, unless there is privity of contract (lien de droit) between the principal plaintiff and the party called in warranty. When goods sold are delivered for transportation to a railroad company, which, at the terminus of its line, handed them over to another railway company, the buyer (consignee) cannot by motion, obtain the permission to call in the case the seller and the first carrier, in order that they may be condemned, if they are found responsible for the damaged condition of the merchandise.

Richardson v. C.P.R. Co., 7 O.W.N. 458, and 8 O.W.N. 221.

(§ III C—387)—BY FREEZING.

Where, under a bill of lading which required protection of goods from frost, a carrier has had possession, for an unreasonably long time during very cold weather, of a consignment of figs, which were found to be frozen upon arrival at their destination, a prima facie case of negligence on the part of that carrier is established which casts the onus upon it, in order to escape liability of showing that the consignment was in a damaged condition when received from the connecting carrier.

Albo v. G.N.R. Co., 2 D.L.R. 290, 17 B.C.R. 226, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 82, 20 W.L.R. 844, 1 W.W.R. 1105.

PERISHABLE GOODS—HEATED CARS—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

The carrier should be obliged to accept shipments of perishable commodities, providing heated cars, subject to the stipulation that the shipper must sign a release waiving all claim for frost damage unless he can prove that the heating appliances were missing, with a further exception that if the fires in the heaters are allowed to go out through the negligence of carrier, the damages recoverable will be limited to one-half the freight tolls charged on the shipment in question.

SHIPMENT OF FLAX—LOSS IN TRANSIT—PRESUMPTION AS TO NEGLIGENCE.

Where the bill of lading called for "even hundred bushels more or less" of flax and the evidence proved the delivery of over 900 bushels in a carload lot, the onus is upon the railway company to account for the deficiency on the car arriving at destination with only half the quantity stated in the bill; where no satisfactory explanation of the loss is given by the railway, negligence may be presumed against it. [Ferris v. C. N.R. Co., 15 Man. L.R. 134, referred to.]

(§ III C—390)—LOSS OF CARGO—WATER CARRIAGE ACT.

The owner of a seaworthy freight vessel is not liable under the Water Carriage Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 113, s. 964) for loss of cargo due to the fault of navigation on the part of the captain of the tug towing such vessel.

Alex. McFee & Co. v. Montreal Transportation Co., 42 D.L.R. 714, 27 Que. K.B. 421.

(§ III C—392)—LIABILITY AS WAREHOUSEMAN—GOODS IN CAR ON SIDING—DEGREE OF CARE.

A railway company is in the position of a warehouseman in respect of a carload lot in bond held on a siding after the arrival at destination where the holding of the car is subject to demurrage charges until the consignee shall remove the contents; the onus is upon the railway to shew affirmatively that it had exercised reasonable care in an action for nondelivery of the goods which were lost from the car while under demurrage and had probably been stolen.

Great West Supply Co. v. G.T.P.R. Co., 23 D.L.R. 780, 8 A.L.R. 478, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 347, 31 W.L.R. 259, 8 W.W.R. 720.

ACCEPTANCE OF GOODS FOR CARRIAGE—NEGLECT—LIABILITY FOR INJURY.

A railway company which, by its local station agent, accepts and receives goods for carriage is bound to use reasonable care for the protection of such goods. If they are carelessly left on the station platform uncovered overnight and thereby become damaged, the company is liable.

Fisher v. C.P.R. Co., 44 D.L.R. 517, 55 Que. S.C. 60.

(§ III C—394)—CARE OF PROPERTY—UNCLAIMED FREIGHT.

The purpose of a bill of lading is satisfied when the transit is complete except as to any rights of lien or of absorption from claims not promptly made; and where the consignee fails to take over the goods under a condition that the consignee should pay the charges and take the goods within twenty-four hours after their arrival, the railway company is in the position of an involuntary bailee thereof. D. DELIVERY BY CARRIER; DELAY.

(§ III D—395)—PROOF OF DELIVERY—RECEIPT—OSTENS.

A receipt for goods by the consignee's agent is not necessarily conclusive as to their actual delivery; the burden of proof is upon the carrier to shew that the goods were in fact delivered.

Henderson v. Inverness R. & Coal Co., 33 D.L.R. 374, 50 N.S.R. 518. [For previous decision in same case, see 16 D.L.R. 420, 47 N.S.R. 530.]

DELAY IN TRANSMITTING REQUEST FOR RETURN OF GOODS—CARRIERS OR WAREHOUSEMEN—STIPULATION AS TO DAMAGES—VALUE OF GOODS AT DATE OF SHIPMENT.

Certain packages of leather were carried by the defendants to the plaintiffs to Galt, and on the 20th May, 1915, delivery thereof was tendered to the plaintiffs, who refused delivery; and it was found that thereafter the defendants became warehousemen of the goods, and retained possession of them as such until the 21st January, 1916, when the defendants sold them for unpaid charges for transportation and storage. On the 18th January, 1916, the plaintiffs requested the chief agent of the defendants at Galt to deliver the goods to the plaintiffs, and undertook to pay the charges thereon; the agent, on behalf of the defendants, accepted the undertaking; and it was found that prepayment or tender of tolls and charges was thereby effectually waived. At that date, the goods had been forwarded to Montreal to be sold there; and, in consequence of delay in communicating to the proper authority at Montreal the request to return the goods to Galt, the request did not reach the proper hands in Montreal until after the goods had been sold; and this delay was found to have arisen from the negligence of the defendants' clerks. In these circumstances, it was held, that the defendants were liable in damages; and, although on the 21st January, 1916, they held the goods as warehousemen, they were entitled to the benefit of a provision in the shipping contract that "the amount of any loss or damage for which the carrier is liable shall be computed on the basis of the value of the goods at the place and time of shipment." When the stipulation is one which, by its terms, is to apply to a state of things which may arise after the goods have arrived at their destination, it remains in force notwithstanding that the transit is ended. [Swale v. C.P.R. Co., 29 O.L.R. 634, distinguished; Mayer v. G.T.R. Co., 31 U.C.C.P. 248, referred to.] The damages were accordingly computed on the basis of the value of the goods in May 1915. DELAY IN DELIVERY OF MERCHANDISE.

A carrier who has no notice of special cause for the delivery of the goods within a given time, is not liable for general damages for delay.

Clarke v. Holliday, 39 Que. S.C. 499.

(§ III D-400)—NOTICE OF ARRIVAL—PERSON OTHER THAN CONSIGNEE—PRACTICE OF COMPANIES—DELAY.

Where a railway bill of lading is issued with the name and address of a party other than the consignee as a person to be notified on bulk grain reaching the destination, the railway is under obligation to send notice to such person, and is not relieved therefrom by the practice of the terminal elevator companies of forwarding weight certificates; and the railway is liable for delay in giving notice due to the freight conductor's error in naming in the waybill as the party to be notified another firm having no interest in the matter. [Golden v. Manning, 3 Wils. 429, and Collard v. South Eastern Ry. Co., 30 L.J. Ex. 393, applied.]

ONUS OF PROVING DELIVERY.

The onus of proving a valid delivery of the goods under a bill of lading, by which they were consigned to the consignors or their assigns, is upon the railway company which received the goods for the last portion of the transportation from the preceding carrier.

(§ III D-402)—NOTICE OF ARRIVAL—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

A carload of coal carried by a railway company under a condition in a bill of lading approved by the Railway Board (s. 340 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37), that "goods in carloads destined to a station where there is no authorized agent shall be at the risk of the carrier until placed on the delivery siding," manifests no intention as to require the carrier to give notice of the arrival of the car at such station, the failure of which cannot render the carrier liable for the contents stolen therefrom after the car has been placed upon the delivery siding.

(§ III D-404)—NOTICE OF ARRIVAL—DELIVERY OF NOTICE—DEMURRAGE.

An advice note mailed to a consignee, but not received by him, is not notice within the meaning of a bill of lading subjecting the goods to demurrage charges if not removed after "written notice has been sent or given;" the burden of proving that the notice reached the consignee is upon the sender.

Duquette v. C.P.R. Co., 37 D.L.R. 298, 23 Rev. de Jur. 416, 52 Que. S.C. 188.

(§ III D-406)—TERMINATION OF LIABILITY—ARRIVAL OF GOODS—REASONABLE TIME FOR DELIVERY.

The liability of carriers by railway qua carriers terminates upon the arrival of the goods carried at their destination and the expiration of a reasonable time for delivery. Where a car of potatoes arrives at a station at 5 A. M. on Saturday in very cold weather the freight should be paid and delivery taken on the same day. 2. The court will not give evidentiary value to statements made over the telephone by an unidentified person. [Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. McMillan, 16 Can. S.C.R. 543, followed.] Lockshin v. C.N.R. Co., 47 D.L.R. 516, 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 362, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 898.

CONSIGNEES' DELAY IN UNLOADING—NOTICE TO SHIPPER—CHARGES—ACTION.

When a railway company has delivered to a consignee goods which it undertook to carry, it is not bound to notify the shipper of delay caused by the consignee in unloading, and of the costs incurred by the consignee in consequence. If the shipper subsequently pays such costs, to the discharge of the consignee, he has no action in repetition (i.e., money paid under a mistake) against the railway company.

Raine v. G.T.R., 54 Que. S.C. 474.

(§ III D-410)—WRONGFUL DELIVERY—LIABILITY TO CONSIGNOR AFTER INSTRUCTIONS TO RETURN GOODS.

Where a shipper entrusted goods to a carrier for delivery to a consignee and the consignee refuses to accept the goods and on being informed thereof by the carrier, the shipper acquiesces in such refusal and instructs the carrier to return the goods immediately, the carrier is responsible for the value of such goods if he deliver them to another party, even if he does so on the consignee's order presented by a third party who holds himself out as the shipper's agent.

Zimmerman v. C.P.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 900, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 78, 43 Que. S.C. 297.

CARRIAGE ON PERISHABLE GOODS—WRONGFUL DELIVERY—DAMAGES—LOSS OF MARKET—REJECTION OF GOODS BY PURCHASER.

If a legal right is invaded or a contract broken, the person injured thereby may maintain an action, notwithstanding that no real damage is shown; and the vendors were entitled to maintain that the taking of the goods into the purchaser's warehouse on the 17th February was a wrongful delivery, contrary to the bill of lading, and were entitled to recover, not the value of the goods, but the damages sustained by the wrongful act, i.e., their real loss caused by the deprivation of control over the goods from the 18th February, when the purchasers inspected and rejected, until the 21st February, when the plaintiffs' control was re-established, if they chose to exercise it. [Sanquer v. London & South-Western R. Co., 16 C.B. 163, and Hiort v. London & North-Western R. Co., 4 Ex. D. 188, applied and followed. Judgment of Falconbridge, C.J. K.B., reversed.]

Lemon v. G.T.R. Co., 32 O.L.R. 37, 25 O.W.R. 720.

SHORTAGE IN DELIVERY—RECEIPT—PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE.

The plaintiff, intending to move his business from A. to T., sent a number of packages of goods to the railway station at A., and was allowed to place them in a car. A few minutes before his own departure from A., the plaintiff applied to the defendants' agent there for a shipping bill for the packages in the car. The agent handed him a bill but did not count the packages; the bill stated the number of packages, according to the plaintiff's statement, with the addition of "S. L. & C.," which was said to mean "shipper's load and count." The car was immediately sealed by the agent, with the packages uncounted. In due course the car arrived at T., accompanied by its waybill, and when it arrived it had not been tampered with. It was unloaded by a checker, and it was found that there were four packages short of what were called for in the waybill. The plaintiff was advised of the arrival of the car; he paid the freight, and delivery was made, the delivery-notice being marked "four pieces short." This was based upon the documents and the count made by the checker.—Held, that, as regarded the plaintiff, no effect could be given to the placing of "S. L. & C." upon the shipping bill, nor to the explanation given to him by the agent, that, there being no opportunity to count, his count would have to be accepted; also, that, while the shipping bill was a receipt for the goods, it was not conclusive, and might be controverted by evidence shewing that the goods were not received; The agent had no authority to make a contract of carriage binding on the defendants, save in respect of goods actually received by him; the receipt was prima facie evidence, and it was upon the defendants to explain it away. [Leduc v. Ward, 20 Q.B.D. 475, 479; Smith & Co. v. Bedouin Steam Navigation Co., [1896] A.C. 70, followed.] And held, upon the evidence—weighing the preponderating probability, having regard to the burden of proof—that the defendants had delivered to the plaintiff all the goods that they actually received from him.

MISDELIVERY OF FREIGHT — GOVERNMENT RAILWAY.

Plaintiff shipped two trunks by the Intercolonial Railway and received a bill of lading in which she was named as consignee. The railway agent delivered the trunks to another party on demand and without presentation of the bill of lading. Plaintiff sued the Government Railways Managing Board in a County Court under 9 and 10 Edw. VII. (Dom.) c. 26, for damages caused by the loss of the trunks, alleging negligence, and recovered judgment. On appeal, held, there was sufficient evidence of negligence on the part of the railway agent. The cause of action was the breach of duty by negligently misdelivering plaintiff's goods, and therefore plaintiff was entitled to sue in a County Court, under 9 and 10 Edw. VII. (Dom.) c. 26. While the Crown in its operation of the Intercolonial Railway is not subject to the common law in regard to carriers it is made liable for negligence of its servants on the Intercolonial Railway, resulting in loss of goods by the Government Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 36, and the Act, 9 and 10 Edw. VII. (Dom.) c. 19, s. 1, amending the Exchequer Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 140. This was a case of negligent misfeasance and the cause of action could be maintained without relying on or proving a contract.

Victoria Dominion Theater Co. v. Dominion Express Co., 35 D.L.R. 728, 23 B.C.R. 396.

UNREASONABLE DELAY—DEFENCES.

Common carriers, in keeping wheat in a car in their yard 47 days, delayed delivery an unreasonable length of time, and should not, under the circumstances, be allowed to set up as a defence the abnormal moisture of the year, they having undertaken to move the crop with full knowledge of the conditions; that the defence of unusual pressure of business and congestion of traffic had not been proved and the defendants were liable for the loss caused by the wheat heating in the car.

Central Grain Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 34 W. L.R. 899.

DELIVERY—DELAY—FORTUITOUS EVENT.

Defendant has failed to prove that the delay in transit was due to a fortuitous event and also that if the horses remained at St. Cuthbert over night, it was due to the negligence of plaintiff; consequently defendant is guilty of negligence.

Auger v. C.N.Q.R. Co., 20 Rev. de Jur. 385.

(§ III D—421)—INJURIES DUE TO DELAY. Where it appears that the climate at the point of shipment precludes the frosting of a consignment of figs at the time of their delivery to an initial carrier, and that a connecting carrier had possession of them for an unreasonably long time in very cold weather without offering any acceptable explanation for the delay, a strong presumption arises that if they were damaged by frost it was while in the latter's possession.

FREIGHT—NONPAYMENT OF—SHIPPER PRIMARILY LIABLE—MISTAKE—CONSIGNEE—ACTION AGAINST.

The person who is primarily liable for the payment of freight on a railway shipment is the shipper of the goods; a contract to pay freight is to be implied from the mere fact that he has placed the goods with the carrier for the purpose of being carried to their destination; and where by mistake of the railway the goods were delivered without collecting the freight indicated by the way bill from the consignees who were agents holding the goods for sale as factors only and who by reason of the railway's mistake were led to suppose that the freight had been prepaid, the railway has no right of action against the latter for the freight.

LIABILITY OF SHIPPER FOR FREIGHT CHARGES.

A contract by a carrier to transport by mule packs a quantity of freight, divisible in its nature, at a stipulated rate per item, will support an action for the freight charges pro rata, on the part delivered, where it does not appear that the parties contemplated the delivery of the complete consignment as a condition precedent to the recovery of any freight whatever, and the delay in delivery of the balance was not due to any fault of the carrier. TRANSPORTATION OF FEED—FREIGHT AND EXPRESS CHARGES.

Two transportation companies entered into a contract whereby the one agreed to carry for the other "mail and express" upon certain terms. Feed (hay and oats) was offered for carriage under the contract "as express," but the carrier refused to accept delivery as "express," and carried it as "freight." It appeared from the evidence that both parties had been engaged in the transportation business within the area in question for some years and were familiar with the custom and usages established, and that it had always been the custom to carry feed as freight. In an action for freight charges for the feed carried by the plaintiff for the defendant—Held, that the parties knew that it was the custom to carry feed (hay and oats) as freight, and that it was in their minds when they entered into the contract.

TOLLS—COMMODITIES—CLASSIFICATION—ANALOGOUS.

Shell blanks being a transient article of commerce are not specifically provided for in the freight classification, but are covered where necessary by commodity tolls, these void the "analogous articles" rule of classification, even if the blank and billet are assumed to be analogous, the cutting and addition of ten per cent in value does not make the shell blank a billet and entitle it to the steel billet toll.

(§ III E—426)—TOLLS—REASONABLE—WEIGHT—UNIVERSAL BASIS—COMPARISON—PRODUCT—RAW MATERIAL—IM-PRACTICABLE.

The universal basis in fixing tolls is the weight of the product carried, a comparison therefore between the toll on a carload of the product and the quantity of raw ma-material required to produce it is impracticable. The tolls on logs between Dorr and Baynes, B.C., not shown to have been unreasonable.

Adolph Lumber Co. v. G.N.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 173.

(§ III E—427) — UNCLAIMED FREIGHT — LIEN AND SALE FOR CHARGES — EMPLOYMENT OF AUCTIONEER.

Where a consignee fails to pay the charges and take over the goods at the destination, the railway company has a right to detain them and to sell them for unpaid charges under the statutory authority conferred by the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, ss. 345 and 346, and the goods remain "at owner's risk," while in the custody of the railway; but the railway company is not excused thereby from responsibility for the default of an auctioneer to whom the goods are handed over to sell for unpaid charges to account for the surplus of the goods not required for that purpose and the railway company will be liable for such negligence of its agent, the auctioneer, as would make a bailee liable for damages or would constitute conversion. [Dixon v. Richelieu Navigation Co., 15 A.R. (Ont.) 647, referred to.] The Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, does not require the employment of a licensed auctioneer to carry on the sale of unclaimed freight for unpaid tolls; the statutory right conferred on the railway company to sell by auction goods on which the charges have not been paid is one necessary to the carrying on of a railway business and such right cannot be qualified by any limitations imposed by provincial authority. (§ III E—429) — TOLLS — DELIVERY — SWITCHING — TRAFFIC — DESTINATION — REFUND.

A carrier is bound to have a place of delivery for traffic destined to a point to which it has quoted a tariff of tolls free from the imposition of a switching toll on shipper or consignee, therefore, an order may go permitting the respondent to refund the moneys it has collected under their switching conditions at the point in question.

F. CARRYING LIVE STOCK.

(§ III F—430)—SHIPMENT OF FOXES—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

Several boxes of foxes were shipped under a contract containing a clause providing that in case of carload shipments, if the owner or attendant travel, accompanying the animals, free transportation will be furnished the attendant, and the animals during transportation in charge of the attendant will be at owner's risk. On the back of the contract was an attendant's contract, signed by the shipper, providing that if free transportation was furnished by the company it would not be liable for any injury or loss occurring to the owner or attendant. One of the owners traveled on the same car, the foxes being in the express car with the other express parcels. No free transportation was furnished.—Held, that the attendant's contract only applied in case of carload shipments, and the Trial Judge was right in directing the jury that it did not apply to the shipment in question, and the company was liable if the foxes died during transportation through its negligence.

Trenholm v. Dom. Express, 43 N.B.R. 98.

(§ III F—437)—RESPONSIBILITY—RAILWAY—HORSE—LANDING PLACE—DAMAGES—C.C. ARTS. 1053, 1675.

A railway company should apply to the carriage of goods and animals entrusted to it, all the care of a good father of a family. It has not carried out its obligations in the following case: A horse was placed on one of its cars at Ottawa, destined for Joliette. At the latter place, it let the horse out in front of a freight shed instead of taking it to the landing place for animals, and there, at a very bad place for many reasons so that the horse took fright and was severely injured. In these circumstances, the railway company is responsible for the decrease in value of the horse.

Desormiers v. The Canadian Northern Quebec R., 56 Que. S.C. 156.

(§ III F—439)—INJURY TO CARETAKER—LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

A condition in a live stock contract between shippers and a railway company, relieving the company of liability for injury or death of men in charge of cattle while being carried by the railway, is binding on the men so in charge if they accept passes, granted under the contract containing substance of the conditions, the acceptance of otherwise is a question of fact.

LIABILITY TO CARETAKER.

Where the general form of a shipping contract has been approved by the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada and it provides for exemption of the railway from liability for personal injuries through negligence of the railway of a shipper of live stock under a ticket issued by the railway at half fare, permitting him to ride on the train on which the live stock was being carried for the purpose of looking after the same while in transit, such exemption will apply notwithstanding that the shipper signed the contract without reading the same over or knowing its contents.

G. STIPULATIONS AS TO LIABILITY.

(§ III G-440)—"AT OWNER'S RISK."

Where the carrying of goods is stipulated in the bill of lading to be "at owner's risk," this does not have the effect of exonerating a common carrier from its liability for damages caused by its fault, or the fault of those for whom it is responsible.

Ottawa Forwarding Co. v. Ward, 23 D.L.R. 645, 47 Que. S.C. 171.

(§ III G-441)—LIABILITY TO CARETAKER OF STOCK—REDUCED FARE.

One who travels upon a railway in charge of live stock at a reduced fare paid by the shipper of the stock under a special contract between the shipper and the railway company, and pays no fare himself, and has no other ticket or other authorization entitling him to be upon the train, cannot be heard to deny that he is traveling under the provisions of the special contract, though he has neither read nor signed it, and is bound by a provision therein relieving the railway company from liability for his death or injury, though caused by the negligence of the company.

(§ III G-443)—LIABILITY FOR DELAY—CONNECTING LINE—JOINT TARIFF.

An initial carrier, who contracted to be liable to the shipper for loss on connecting railways, unless expressly stipulated otherwise, has the burden of proof of the existence of such stipulation.

Ouellet v. Manager of Government Rys., 33 D.L.R. 655, 49 Que. S.C. 494.

(§ III G-450)—INJURY TO ARTICLE DELIVERED FOR CARRIAGE—NEGLIGENCE—LIABILITY.

If a carrier injures an article delivered to him for carriage, the owner of such article may recover damages, not only for the amount which it may be necessary to spend for repairs but also for the loss of the article injured during the period that the repairing may occupy. The damages must, however, be such as may be reasonably supposed to have been in the contemplation of the parties when the contract was made.

Davis v. Canadian Express Co., 44 D.L.R. 454, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 340, 52 N.S.R. 392.

IMMUNITY AS TO NEGLIGENCE OF SHIPPER'S CREW—PUBLIC POLICY.

Although the court should accept the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Glengoil S.S. Co. v. Pilkington, 28 Can. S.C.R. 146, namely, that a condition in a bill of lading to the effect that the owner of a ship will not be responsible for the negligence of the master or other employees, or for the equipment, is not contrary to public order nor to the laws of the province of Quebec, nevertheless this principle, which is not in accord with the general jurisprudence of our courts, should not be extended. Thus, this clause for immunity should be strictly interpreted and should not be applied when there is no proof of the manner in which damage was caused to the goods carried.

Dechéne v. C.P.R. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 431.

LOSS OF GOODS—NEGLIGENCE—OWNER.

The stipulation of the carrier, that he will not be responsible for any damage unless he is guilty of negligence, has not the effect of throwing the burden of proof of negligence upon the consignor, but of rendering the carrier free from liability if he proves that he is not at fault.

De Tonnacourt v. Canadian Express Co., 49 Que. S.C. 113.

(§ III G-455)—LOSS OF PART OF SHIPMENT—VALUE.

Where the contract of shipment fixes the value of the goods shipped and limits the liability of the carrier to that value, in case of a loss of part of the shipment, the shipper may recover the real value of the property lost, not exceeding the limits of liability stipulated in the contract, and is not limited to a recovery of such proportion of the amount named in the contract as the value of the property destroyed bore to the value of all the property shipped. [Gibson v. Paynton, 4 Burr. 2298, 98 E.R. 199; Bradley v. Waterhouse, 3 C. & P. 318; McCance v. London and N.W.R. Co., 3 H. & C. 343, distinguished.]

Spanner Bros. v. Central Canada Express Co. (Alta.), 43 D.L.R. 400, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 332, [1918] 3 W.V.R. 140.

AS TO AMOUNT.

The fact that an express company is enabled by statute to make use of a special form of contract impairing, restricting, or limiting its liability does not prevent the company from contracting upon the basis of a more extended liability as upon its contractual rights at common law, although such special form has received the approval of the Railway Commissioners of Canada, exercising governmental powers of supervision over common carriers.

LIABILITY—IMMUNITY CLAUSE—KNOWLEDGE—EVIDENCE—FRENCH AND ENGLISH CARRIERS CONTRACT—C.C., ARTS. 1576, 1673, 1674, 1675, 1682c.

The clause that a carrier company places in a company contract stipulating that it will not be responsible for the carriage of packages, trunks or goods consigned to it, except up to the sum of $50 only binds those who have knowledge of it. The carrier must prove this knowledge. Carriers must deliver a copy of their carrying contract printed in French and in English.

(§ III G—457)—ABSENCE OF EXPRESS AGREEMENT—NEGLIGENCE OF CARRIER—DAMAGE TO GOODS—MEASURE OF LIABILITY.

In the absence of express terms in the agreement, a carrier's liability for goods damaged in transit, through negligence, must be computed on the market price or value of the goods at the time of shipment and at the place of consignment.

Dominion Textile Co. v. Canada Steamship Lines, 46 D.L.R. 255, 25 Rev. de Jur. 164.

(§ III G—460)—STIPULATION AS TO NOTICE OF LOSS—FAILURE TO GIVE.

A bill of lading, approved by the Railway Board, containing a clause releasing the carrier from liability if notice of the loss is not given within four months of a reasonable time for delivery, is binding upon the shipper and will bar his right of recovery for a lost shipment where the required notice is not in fact given.

Drury v. C.P.R. Co., 48 Que. S.C. 326.

(§ III G—467)—"EFFECTS OF CLIMATE"—NEGLIGENCE.

A stipulation in an English bill of lading against liability for damage from the "effects of climate," or from negligence, includes damage from freezing while discharging cargo at an intermediate port, and the negligence clause is binding between the parties.

H. CONTRACT OR DUTY TO FURNISH CARS.

(§ III H—470)—CONTRACT TO FURNISH CARS.

Where the railway company makes a continuing offer and in effect says "order our cars and we will supply them at a certain rate of freight" a complete contract is established between a railway company and a shipper the moment the shipper gives the order in consequence. FOREIGN CARS—JURISDICTION OF BOARD.

The obligation of a carrier under s. 317 of the Railway Act is to supply cars according to their respective powers. Where a carrier is called upon to supply a car which is not carried on its equipment register, it is within its powers to supply a car on its equipment register which is nearest available to the length asked for. When foreign cars of larger sizes than are carried on their equipment register are available, carriers may furnish such cars, but the Board has no jurisdiction to compel carriers to supply a larger car of foreign equipment. Hunting-Merritt Lumber Co. v. C.P. & B.C. Electric R. Cos., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 181.

DUTY TO FURNISH HEATED CARS—PERISHABLE COMMODITIES—RECOVERY BACK OF FREIGHT TOLLS.

The carrier should be obliged to accept shipments of perishable commodities providing heated cars, subject to the stipulation that the shipper must sign a release waiving all claim for frost damage unless he can prove that the heating appliances were missing, with a further exception that if the heaters are allowed to go out through the negligence of the carrier, the damages recoverable will be limited to one-half the freight tolls charged on the shipment in question.

GRAIN—CONGESTION—PUBLIC INTEREST.

The Board having satisfied itself that a very large quantity of grain (estimated at 60 per cent of the year's crop) remained in the Goose Lake District at the end of February, 1916, awaiting transportation, was in danger of deterioration and loss, and that the Canadian Northern Railway Company was unable to move the crop quickly enough to serve the public interest, made an order under 6 & 7 Geo. V. c. 2, s. 317 (a) of the Railway Act, as follows:—(a) Requiring the Canadian Northern Ry. Co. to supply at once 1,200 cars and 36 engines to be used solely in that district in carrying grain to the terminal elevator at Saskatoon and to the transfer track of the Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. Co. there (b) Requiring the Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. Co. (which had cars idle) to use all available rolling stock in carrying grain from the Saskatoon elevator to eastern points and to supply the Canadian Northern with one empty box car for each car of grain received at the transfer track. (c) Directing the railway companies to fix proportionals of the through rate (which was not to be increased) in such manner as to give the Canadian Northern a larger share than it would receive on a mileage basis as its proportion of the through rate.

LOADING CAPACITY—MINIMUM WEIGHT.

A reduction in the general minimum weight will not be made because in a particular instance it is slightly in excess of the average loading capacity of the car.

CONTRACT OR DUTY TO FURNISH CARS—TRAFFIC—CANADIAN AND INTERNATIONAL—ADEQUATE FACILITIES—BOX AND ORE CARS—EXTRA WEIGHT TOLL FROM MOISTURE.

The duty of a railway in furnishing adequate facilities for traffic includes supplying cars for business originating on its lines in Canada, independently of whether or not box cars are received from the United States waiting to be unloaded and returned, and it is neither necessary nor desirable to hold any particular cars exclusively for Canadian traffic. Box cars are suitable—in many cases necessary—for ore traffic, and must be supplied where required, since the extra weight in open dump cars used for carrying ore, caused by absorption of moisture in wet weather or winter time, would make the toll prohibitive.

I. DEMURRAGE ON CARS.

§ III 1—475)—STOP-OVER—EXTRA TOLLS.

A stop-over privilege of 72 hours after arrival at Cartier is sufficient time for a trader to decide where to send his grain, and an extra toll should be paid for cars remaining on hand waiting for furtherance orders after the expiration of that period.

DEMURRAGE TOLLS—REFUND—DISCRIMINATION—CAR SERVICE RULES.

Under the car service rules, demurrage tolls in force in 1912-13, where the consignee was in default from December 15, 1912, to March 31, 1913, he was subject to the penalty fixed by the filed tariff of demurrage tolls effective December 15, 1912, to March 31, 1913 (higher than $1 per day), but demurrage tolls on cars on and after March 31, 1913, must be reduced to the $1 per day toll basis, irrespective of the date transportation commenced or when the right to collect demurrage first accrued. Tariffs are not retroactive and carriers can only collect for the transportation of traffic the tolls authorized and in force at the time of shipment. No charge for demurrage as such is included in any ordinary transportation toll, consequently the car service demurrage toll

The obligations of carriers under contracts of carriage cease when notice of the arrival of the car has been given or it has been placed for unloading and the free time allowed under the car service rules has elapsed. The car service tolls are independent of the toll applying on the shipment and the car is liable to the car service tolls in force at the time of its arrival at destination.

ACTION FOR RECOVERY OF MONEY—COST OF DEMURRAGE—DELAY OF CONSIGNEE TO UNLOAD—SHOULD THE CARRIER NOTIFY THE SENDERS?—C.C. ARS. 1672, 1673, 1681.

When a railway company has delivered to a consignee the goods which it contracted to carry, it is not obliged to notify the sender of a delay on the part of the consignee to unload and of the costs incurred by the latter in consequence. If the sender finally pays the costs and acquits the consignee of blame, he has no right of action to recover the money from the Railway Company.

Kaine v. G.T.R. Co., 56 Que. S.C. 223.

(§ III 1—476)—REASONABLENESS OF CHARGE.

Demurrage charges upon cars, due to slowness in unloading them by reason of a longer haul, may be considered as an element of damages for the wrongful removal by a railway company of a spur track adjacent to a coal and lumber yard, from which tracks cars of coal and lumber could be quickly and cheaply unloaded directly into such yard, where, by reason of such removal, such commodities had to be hauled by the owner of such yard from a greater distance in a slower manner.

Robinson v. C.N.R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 716, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 281, 21 W.L.R. 916.

(§ III 1—482)—UNDUE DETENTION.

Application by the Canadian Freight Association to revise the charges provided by the Car Service Rules with reference to refrigerator cars. The association proposed to leave the charge, as at present, for the first two days at $1.00 per car per day after the expiration of the 48 hours free time; but to charge for the next two days $3.00 per car per day or fraction thereof; and for each succeeding day thereafter $4.00 per car per day or fraction thereof. With the object of obtaining the benefit of the cold or warm storage at the nominal charge of $1.00 per car per day until the contents of cars were disposed of, consignees have been holding perishable freight loaded in refrigerator cars very frequently from 10 to 15 days, commonly 20 days, and in various cases over a month. The said charges of $1.00 was cheaper than that in any other cold storage warehouse in Winnipeg or any other city in the west. Held, 1. That cars were transportation facilities, not a portion of the warehousing premises of the consignee leased from a railway at a nominal rental. 2. That such undue detention of cars for storage purposes was contrary to the public interest and a hardship where refrigerator cars were required. 3. That section 6 of the bill of lading in use by carriers should be sufficient to enable them to deal with the matter. 4. That though it appeared that a grievance existed, the Board should not take any action or make any direction until it was affirmatively shown that the matter could not be adequately dealt with under the said action. Canadian Freight Assn. v. Winnipeg Board of Trade & Canadian Manufacturers' Assn., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 122.

J. CONNECTING CARRIERS.

(§ III J—485)—CONNECTING—BILL OF LADING—TOLL—THROUGH—INLAND DESTINATION—JURISDICTION—CARRIAGE—CONDITIONS.

A bill of lading issued by a steamship company containing the inland destination and the through toll thereto is made a through bill of lading although it does not contain the conditions of carriage by rail. By Order No. 7562, dated July 15, 1909, the Board prescribed the form of bill of lading for inland carriage from a Canadian seaport. S. 2 of the Order provides that the carrier issuing the bill of lading shall be liable for any loss, damage or injury sustained to the goods carried under such bill of lading, but the delivering carrier is not made liable unless it be so de facto. Where a shipment was carried under a through bill of lading issued by a steamship company from India to Boston, Mass., and thence to final destination at Winnipeg, where delivery was made by the last connecting carrier, the Board has no jurisdiction over the steamship company nor over the initial carrier at Boston, and the delivering carrier is not liable for the shortage of goods received by it "short" from its connections.

CONNECTING CARRIERS—COMMON CARRIERS' LIABILITY—SHIPMENT FORWARDED TO DESTINATION BY SEVERAL DIFFERENT CARRIERS—LIABILITY OF EACH.

In the case of a shipment forwarded to its destination by different successive carriers, each one is liable only for his handling of it, and is in no wise the warrantor of the others. Hence, if it arrives in a damaged condition, the consignee or owner has no action against the last carrier, unless the latter have, himself, by neglect or otherwise, caused the damage.

CONNECTING—HAULS—TWO OR MORE LINES—TOLLS—THROUGH—DIVISION—REASONABLE.

The division of the through toll as between connecting carriers on hauls over two or more lines is a matter of domestic concern, and so long as the through toll is not unreasonable, it does not matter to the public how it is divided. —EXTRAORDINARY — TOLLS — JOINT — LOCAL — NET — REDUCTION.

The Board refused to reduce the tolls on the respondent power company's line, on account of its extraordinary operating conditions, but made a reduction in the respondent railway company's toll by following the practice in Eastern Canada, where connecting carriers having no joint tolls, each takes one cent from its local toll, subject to a minimum net toll. IV. Governmental control; rates; discrimination; duty as to stopping places.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ IV A—515)—MILLING-IN-TRANSIT—BY-PRODUCT OF BREWERIES—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

No instance can be found where a milling-in-transit privilege on the by-product has been granted, apart altogether from the main product, a brewing company, therefore is not entitled to a milling-in-transit privilege on the offal of malt grain carried by the respondent on its line from Fort William to Sudbury, and there brewed in the applicant's brewery. Shippers are not entitled to a milling-in-transit privilege as a matter of right, and its allowance in the public interest by carriers to shippers in one section must be without unjust discrimination to shippers in another section served by its line. [Koch v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 10 I.C.C.R. 675; Ontario & Manitoba Flour Mills v. C.P.R. Co., 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 430, followed.]

Sudbury Brewing & Malting Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 26 D.L.R. 673, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 410.

INTERSWITCHING—MILLING-IN-TRANSIT.

The toll for the milling-in-transit privilege does not include the toll for inter-switching necessary to take the traffic from the line of one railway company to another. [Anchor Elevator Warehousing & Northern Elevator Cos. v. Can. North. and C.P.R. Cos., 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 175, followed.]

Taylor & Can. Flour Mills Co. v. C.P.R. & Pere Marquette R. Cos., 28 D.L.R. 557, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 264.

FREIGHT RATES—TARIF—MISDESCRIPTION OF GOODS.

A common carrier cannot collect freight rates on "metal scrap" at a rate different from that established by the Railway Board tariff, simply because the shipper innocently misdescribed the goods in the bill of lading, what was in fact "metal scrap" being described as "copper ingots."

Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Mueller Mfg. Co., 48 D.L.R. 468, 45 O.L.R. 312.

TOLLS—BASIS—FIXED PERCENTAGE—OVERHEAD OR CAPITAL CHARGES—COMPARISON—FOREIGN CARRIERS—STANDARD TARIFFS—MILEAGE TOLLS—MAXIMUM—RAILWAY ACT, S. 326.

The contention that rates should be made on the basis of cost plus a fixed percentage to cover overhead or capital charges cannot be sustained nor can effect be given to contentions based upon results obtained by lines in the United States. [Boileau v. Pacific & Lake Erie R. Co. 22 I.C.C.R. 640, at p. 653, followed.] It is in the public interest that railway tolls should be of such a character as to attract investment and render railway securities marketable. These tolls should be such as to give a fair return to the railway company independent of the reserves or liabilities of such company. The Board decided that the five standard tariffs under s. 326 of the Railway Act known as:—

- (1) The Manitoba Scale.
- (2) The Saskatchewan Scale.
- (3) The Mountain Scale.
- (4) The Lake Scale between Lake Ports in B.C.
- (5) The Lake and Rail and Inter Lake Scale B.C. in effect at the time of the inquiry should be reduced to three to be called:—

(1) The Prairie Standard Tariff extending from the Great Lakes to the Rocky Mountains.

(2) The Pacific including mainland rail lines in B.C. and

(3) The B.C. Lakes including inland navigable waters in that province. The Board should not assist the construction of the additional railway lines required in these provinces by authorizing higher rates over a railway system than would be reasonable having regard to the other portions of the railway producing satisfactory traffic returns. Thus railway tolls in Western Canada cannot be based upon consideration of the position of anyone of the three existing lines of railway either completed or partially completed, viz., C.P.R., C.N.R., or G.T.P.R. The question to be decided is what tolls are fair irrespective of the financial position of any of such companies. The Board found also that through the paralleling of existing lines a certain amount of overlapping exists in all the western provinces, and that control by the government is necessary to prevent unnecessary duplication of railway facilities in the future. The existing railway mileage is inadequate for the needs of those engaged in farming (in Saskatchewan and Alberta). In the former province, 39 per cent, and in the latter 48 per cent of the total acreage is unprovided with railway facilities within a haul of ten miles. Thus, farmers living at greater distances spend more in hauling the grain to the railway than it costs to haul the grain by rail from the railway station to Fort William. The governments of these provinces are therefore justified in assisting railway construction so as to shorten the average haul for the farmers.

Re Western Tolls, 19 D.L.R. 43, 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 123.

INTERSWITCHING—PUBLIC INTEREST—JUSTIFICATION—TOLLS—COMMODITY AND CLASS—COMPETITION—USE OF TERMINALS—LINE TRAFFIC—INTERCHANGE.

The only justification for subjecting the facilities of one carrier to the business of another is the public interest, and orders as to inter-switching should not be used for the purpose of enabling one carrier to take from another not only the use of its terminals but line traffic. Where, therefore, the shipper expressly requires inter-switching from team tracks, and the inter-switching carrier is equipped and actually ready, in accordance with its published tariffs of tolls to carry to destination and to afford the same delivery and facilities itself, or through its connections, or by interswitching, at the same toll as the competing carrier, the interswitching carrier should be allowed to charge, instead of an interswitching toll, the appropriate toll of its published class or commodity tariff to the point of interchange, which toll should be made an additional charge against the shipment, provided however, that in case of failure to place cars within a reasonable time, ordinary interswitching tolls only should apply. In view of the fact that interswitching from and to private spurs has been freely accorded in the past by the carriers to one another, those provisions of General Order No. 230, issued pursuant to the judgment of May 15, 1918, which were designed to protect the initial carrier in its enjoyment of the line haul, were amended by General Order No. 252, so as to apply to team tracks only, and not to be applicable to shipments interswitched from private spurs. [G.T.R. Co. v. C.P.R. Co. & London (London Interswitching Case), 6 Can. Ry. Cas. 227, at p. 231, followed.] Distinction should be made between team tracks and private or industrial spurs as to terms of interswitching, the service to team tracks being subject to the consideration (a) that the first duty to the carrier owning the terminal facilities is to provide for its own traffic, and (b) that the carrier owning the terminal is entitled to fair remuneration for the use of its property. Interswitching tolls in the case of team tracks should be higher than for private or industrial spurs, and should be absorbed by the line carrier, as in the case of private spur.

WATER COMPETITION—DISCRETION—TOLLS — LOW — REASONABLE — COMPETITION—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

A carrier is not obliged to meet water competition, and is free in its discretion to take out low competitive tolls, provided there is no unjust discrimination, and the tolls made effective are reasonable in themselves.

Martin & Robertson & Imperial Rice Milling Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 141.

TOLLS — SEPARATE — DISTINCTION — SLACK COAL—INCREASE.

In the decision of the Board in the 15 per cent Increased Rates Case, 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 49, allowing an increase on coal of 15 cents per ton, there is no separate toll for slack coal and no distinction can be made in the tolls on slack lump or run of the mine coal. DISCRETION—COMMODITIES—MILEAGE SCALE — TOLLS — SPECIAL — REASONABLE — LOW — COMPARISON — TRAFFIC — VOLUME.

Comparing the commodity mileage scale on agricultural limestone with the special commodity tolls on crushed stone, and taking into consideration that the volume of traffic of agricultural limestone to large consuming points is not comparable with crushed stone, and that the latter commodity has been granted low commodity tolls by the carriers in their discretion, it has not been established that the existing toll basis is unreasonable. Crushed Stone, & Henderson Farmers' Lime & Phosphate Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 132.

TOLLS — REASONABLE — INCREASE — BASIS — TAPERING — HAULS — SHORTER AND LONGER—EASTERLY AND WESTERLY—COMPARISON.

An increase in freight tolls on potatoes and turnips from points in New Brunswick to points in Ontario and Quebec was approved by the Board, with the exception that tolls west of Hamilton and Guelph should be reduced one cent upon the general basis of 8th class under the classification tapered downwards for the shorter easterly haul from New Brunswick in comparison with the longer haul from the western provinces.

New Brunswick Vegetable Growers v. C.P. & Temiscouata R. Cos., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 128.

TOLLS — DUAL — HIGHER — UNIFORM — SAME COMMODITY—ULTIMATE USE—RETURNED EMPTIES.

Dual tolls, charging a higher toll on cream for domestic use than on that for butter making are anomalous and inexpedient. [Manitoba Dairymen's Association v. Dominion and Canadian Northern Express Cos., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 142, followed.] In dealing with the question whether the rules as to carriage of cream should provide for delivery, the Board follows the principle of "all or none" since it is unfair and inexpedient to make the use of delivery service at a given point optional with individual consignees. The toll for a returned empty is a charge for a service distinct from that of handling the incoming package and the existence of this toll is justifiable.

Riley v. Dominion Express Co., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 112.

COLONIZATION LINES—BRANCH—TRANSCONTINENTAL SYSTEM—MOUNTAIN SCALE.

A "Mountain" scale of tolls may be authorized by the Board where the railway is a colonization line with but little developed traffic and bears to the transcontinental systems the relation of a branch line.

Re Edmonton, Dunvegan & B.C.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 1.

TOLLS—INCREASE—STANDARD AND SPECIAL —RAILWAY ACT.

Notwithstanding that standard tariffs of tolls have heretofore been filed with and approved by the Board as required by s. 327 and that the increased tolls proposed by the System which that province is ultra vires as regards the C.N.R. Co., a Dominion corporation; and as regards subsidiary companies incorporated by the province and subsequently declared to be for the general advantage of Canada; it is superseded by the Railway Act in so far as the two are inconsistent and also by 1 Edw. VII, c. 52, s. 3. (Dunn.) So that the Board's general jurisdiction under the Railway Act as to tolls is not limited or affected by the Board's decision in considering tolls to be authorized, or declined to give effect to an agreement to the effect that tolls made between a railway company and a province and confirmed by provincial legislation, where the company had afterwards passed under the Dominion jurisdiction, and the agreement it observed would either have prevented an increase of tolls necessary in the public interest, or resulted in discriminatory lower tolls in that province as compared with other provinces with similar conditions. (Trow's Nest Pass Coal Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 23, at p. 41; Regina Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 259, at p. 291, followed.) The Board in neither order nor enforced tolls which are inimicable to the principle of the Railway Act by denying the principle as a fair and just toll. An inquiry into rate constitutes an interference with the rate just as much as an unreasonable rate just as much as an unreasonable rate is unduly low, and the question whether a rate is unduly low or unduly high can only be determined by the knowledge of the cost of the service. An agreement to the effect that tolls entered into by a railway company will not be enforced or regarded by the Board unless made binding upon the Board by valid enactment, if it is found that the tolls agreed upon are unreasonable and improvident, so that the railway cannot be properly maintained and operated. In the public interest, when tolls reserved by contract prove unreasonable and increased costs, changed conditions and increased costs, tolls must be made reasonable notwithstanding the contract. [R.C. Pacific Coast (Times v. C.P.R. Co. (Vancouver Interior Rates Case), 7 Can. Ry. Cas. 122, at p. 146, followed.) Holding that 50-61 Val. c. 5, it could not increase rates beyond the maximum rates thereby fixed on lines of the C.P.R. Co. in operation when that act was passed. The Board also held that to prevent discrimination the same maximum must be applied to the whole system of that company as now operated; and that similar rates must be applied to other railways in the territory affected. The Board, having regard to increased cost of maintenance and operation and finding that tolls therefore charged had been unreasonable and insufficient to ensure a proper service, authorized the railway companies concerned to submit new standard freight and passenger tariffs providing for a general increase of maximum mileage tolls on a percentage applicants to be imposed under special tariff conditions. Freight tolls in Eastern Canada should not be called upon to support investments by the C.P.R. in the C.P.R. or deficits upon operation of subsidiary lines in the United States, notwithstanding that these subsidiary lines supplied a large tonnage to be carried over the company's lines in Canada. In the interest of shippers and the public, railway companies should be allowed to charge tolls which will yield a return sufficient to provide facilities and rolling stock. Toll in Eastern Canada and in Western Canada should be brought to a parity, so far as this can reasonably be done. Loss of traffic by reason of competition of new lines, or the need of new lines themselves for traffic returns which would make them self-supporting, does not in itself justify increase of tolls, whereas the tolls cannot be allowed simply because the carriers require money, nor can percentage increases be authorized simply to augment revenue; each toll must be determined with regard to its reasonableness for services performed. On the facts presented, the Board found that in general a case for increase of tolls in Eastern Canada had been made out.

The War Measures Act, 5 Geo. V, c. 2, s. 2.
The War Measures Act, 5 Geo. V, c. 2, s. 2.
 does not authorize the Board any jurisdiction to increase tolls, or to advise the Government to increase tolls, in aid of the finances of carriers; the Board's jurisdiction in that regard is that given by the Railway Act. The Act of the Parliament of Canada, 50-61 Val. c. 5, providing for a resubject to the Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. in respect of the "Trow's Nest Line" and for a limitation of freight tolls on lines then in operation between Fort William and points to the west thereof, is a special act within the meaning of s. 2 of the Railway Act. It therefore overrides any provisions of the Railway Act inconsistent with it and limits the general jurisdiction of the Board as to tolls. The Board has no power to advance tolls on the C.P.R. within that territory beyond the maximum fixed by the special Act. TOLLS — MEASURE — COMPARISON — REASONABLENESS.

The toll charged by one carrier is not necessarily a measure of what another should charge. Conversely it would appear that where different schedules are voluntarily adopted the higher toll existing on one railway is no conclusive measure of the toll properly chargeable for the same distance by the other carrier. [Dominion Sugar Co. v. Canadian Freight Association, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 188, at p. 192, followed.] A consideration of the tolls in themselves, as well as a comparison with those the Board has found reasonable, shews that a toll from Hagersville to Windsor on a 65 cent basis is out of line, therefore a toll not exceeding 75 cents from Hagersville to Windsor is reasonable. TOLLS—JOINT—INCREASE—TRAFFIC.

The railway companies having filed cancellations of a large number of joint tariffs, the effect being to increase tolls by substituting the sum of the local tolls for the joint tolls formerly in force, the Board intimated that the action was objectionable and would not be allowed. Subsequently, after a hearing, it directed that the joint tolls and service be maintained, and that the companies should file joint tariffs setting out the tolls based upon the increase authorized by the Board in the Eastern Rates Case, 22 Can. TOLLS—ICING IN TRANSIT—REFRIGERATOR CARS—ACTUAL COST.

Railway companies should not profit by shipments handled except as carriers. The tolls for in transit icing of refrigerator cars should be made up on the basis of the average actual cost of the ice and the placing thereof upon the cars. Upon an analysis of the different cost factors the proposed increase in the icing tolls is not justified. The tolls on salt in refrigerator cars owing to the gradual development of its use in connection with the packing industry have been treated as an incident of its refrigeration, and it is claimed is properly included in the icing toll therefor. The carriers have justified the toll for salt over and above a toll for icing in the tariffs of tolls now in force. [Ontario Fruit Growers Assn. v. C.P.R. Co. (Canadian Freight Assn.) It is in the public interest that there should be no congestion of the railway facilities at elevator terminals. Accordingly, an application for switching cars of grain to private elevators at Fort William after the cars had been placed for unloading at other elevators was refused. Under the provisions of s. 8 of the Bulk Grain Bill of Lading, delivery may be made at any of the elevators at Fort Arthur, Fort William or West Fort, without waiting 48 hours after written notice of arrival has been sent or given.

EQUIPMENT OF FOREIGN CARS—RAILWAY ACT—COUPLERS—SHORT LEVERS.

For a railway company to haul a box freight car owned by a foreign company, which was equipped with a coupling lever so short that it could not be operated without going between the ends of the cars, is a violation of s. 264 (1) of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, requiring all freight cars to be equipped with couplers that can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the ends of the cars. [Stone v. C.P.R. Co., 4 D.L.R. 789, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 61, 3 O.W.N. 973, 26 O.L.R. 121, reversed.] Stone v. C.P.R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 93, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 408, 47 Can. S.C.R. 634.

A railway company, as carriers, must furnish equipment reasonably suitable for carrying the traffic of the shipper. In each case it is a question of fact whether the particular equipment is or is not suitable for carrying the particular traffic that is offered. And in this case, where the complaint was, that a sufficient number of suitable cars were not furnished for the shipping of meat, the Board found as a fact that "suitable accommodation" included the furnishing of cars with cross pieces at the top for the shippers to put their hooks on for their meat; and that the complaining shippers were not furnished with enough cars of that kind; and an order was made requiring the company to provide cars accordingly. If the carrier is required, under the law, to furnish a higher or more expensive class of equipment for carrying a certain kind of traffic than for another, the law intends that the extra expense shall be provided for in the rate that is obtained. On the 3rd October, 1910, the railway company issued a tariff of rates upon shipments of meat; the tariff went into effect and traffic moved under it. It remained in effect from October, 1910, until the 1st

August, 1911, when a supplementary tariff was filed, under which the rates were more than doubled. It was held, upon a complaint of shippers, that, as the railway company had not given any evidence to shew that the old tariff was not remunerative, an order should be made cancelling the new tariff, and directing the railway company to reinstate the old one, which should remain in effect for at least a year. The Board has no jurisdiction to order rebates of any kind.

BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS—POWER TO PERMIT STREET RAILWAY TO DEVIATE LINE.

As the Toronto and York Radial Railway Company is not authorized by legislation to deviate its line from Yonge street, in the city of Toronto, to a private right-of-way, the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board is without jurisdiction to permit it to do so.

BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS—ORDER IMPOSING UNENFORCEABLE CONDITIONS—ACCEPTANCE IN PART.

An order of the Board of Railway Commissioners imposing some conditions on an applicant railway company that the Board did not have power to impose in invitum, is void unless such conditions are assented to by the company, as it cannot accept part and reject the remainder of the order; and if the terms upon which the Board's order was made are rejected by the applicant company, and an appeal taken instead of a motion to rescind the order, it may be declared upon appeal that the order shall remain inoperative unless or until the terms are accepted.

BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS—JURISDICTION—PARTIALLY ORGANIZED COMPANY, STATUS—PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS.

A railway company whose organization has not been completed as required by the provisions of the Railway Act, but which is assuming to carry on business through its provisional directors, has no standing to file detailed plans of its undertaking with the Board of Railway Commissioners, it being necessary, on the part of the company, to file evidence with the Board shewing that the provisions of the Railway Act relating to organization have been complied with as a condition precedent to its right to file such plans, or its right to any recognition by the Board of any such partially organized company. The Board of Railway Commissioners will not pass on any issue arising between provisional directors of a railway company and municipalities in regard to the legality of payments for calls on subscriptions made by the provisional directors, or other issues of such character.

RAILWAY BOARD—JURISDICTION OF—STATUTORY PROVISIONS—AMALGAMATION OF RAILWAY COMPANIES—LEASE DISTINGUISHED.

Amalgamation of railways is essential to the operation of Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 362, which gives an amalgamated company all powers possessed by the consolidated railways; and, hence, the section does not apply to make one company of both where a lease has been made of a provincial railway to a Dominion company for 999 years, though the only occasion for the continued corporate existence of the lessor company appears to be the issuance of stock, bonds and debentures, and the receipt of rent. S. 361 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, which provides for sale or lease of one railway company's line to another, and which requires the agreement therefor to be submitted to the Board of Railway Commissioners, with application for recommendation to the Governor-in-council for sanction, does not give the Board jurisdiction of a lease of a provincial line to the C.P.R., though the statute 2 Geo. V. (Can.) c. 78, s. 14, provides that, subject to ss. 261-263 of the Railway Act, that company may, for any of the purposes specified in s. 361, enter into an agreement with the provincial company, and may lease its railway and undertaking. GOVERNMENTAL CONTROL—ORDERS OF THE RAILWAY AND MUNICIPAL BOARD—JURISDICTION—6 EDW. VII. (ONT.) C. 30, s. 57, SUBS. 6.

Where under subs. 6, of s. 57 of the Ontario Railway Act, 1906, 6 Edw. VII. c. 30, the Railway and Municipal Board makes an order declaring that s. 57 shall apply to two railways, as to one of which it has jurisdiction to make such an order, but not as to the other, the intention being to bring about an interchange of traffic between them, the Court of Appeal will not strike out that part of the order which is beyond the Board's jurisdiction and let the remainder stand, when the effect of so doing would be to name a different order from that which the Board intended to make, and in fact, made. Upon the proper construction of subs. 6 of s. 57 of the Ontario Railway Act, 1906, 6 Edw. VII. c. 30, the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board has power only to declare that that section shall apply to a particular railway, without any limitation as to the railways with which such railway may thereby become liable to interchange traffic, but such a declaration does not restrict the power of the Board to refuse subsequently to order an interchange of traffic between such railway and any other railway, or to impose such terms of interchange as it may see fit.

GOVERNMENTAL CONTROL—ORDER OF BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

Where a railway company had been carrying passengers over a newly constructed road that had not been opened for traffic by an order of the Board of Railway Commissioners under s. 251 of the Railway Act, the Board will refuse to make any order directing the company to open the road for traffic on that account, but will forbid the company from continuing to carry passengers except under the provisions of the Railway Act. The Board of Railway Commissioners cannot compel a railway company to open and operate for passenger and freight traffic a newly constructed road, as the determination as to when it shall be opened for traffic rests solely with the railway company.

CONSTRUCTION OF SPECIAL AND GENERAL ORDERS OF BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS—ERECTIONS NEAR TRACK—NOT RETROACTIVE—SPECIAL ORDERS.

A special order of the Board of Railway Commissioners, under subs. (g) of s. 30, c. 37, R.S.C. 1906, providing that water stand pipes shall be placed not less than 7 feet 6 inches from the centre of the tracks of the C.P.R., is not abrogated by the subsequent general order, not retroactive in effect, which prohibited the placing of water stand pipes so that there should be less than 2 feet 6 inches between them and the widest engine cab, so as to render the railway company liable to a brakeman who was injured by coming in contact, while riding on a ladder on the side of a car, with a stand pipe which was 7 feet 6 inches from the centre of the track, but not 2 feet 6 inches from the side of the widest engine cab. A general order of the Board of Railway Commissioners, under subs. (g), s. 30, c. 37, R.S.C. 1906, providing that thereafter no structure more than 4 feet in height shall be placed within 6 feet from the nearest rail of a railway track, and that no water stand pipe shall be placed so that there shall be less than 2 feet 6 inches between it and the widest engine cab, is not retroactive, and does not contemplate the removal of stand pipes within such prohibited distance erected under a special order of such Board permitting the C.P.R. to maintain its stand pipes at a lesser distance. The Railway Commission of Canada may, of its own motion, submit a stated case for the opinion of the Superior Court of Canada upon a question of its jurisdiction which in the opinion of the Commission involves a point of law. The Railway Commission (Can.) has no power under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, to order deviations, changes or alterations, in a constructed line of railway of which the location has been definitely established, except on the request of the railway company.

The railway company, in view of the double tracking of its main line from Vancouver to Hammond, applied to terminate a siding agreement made with the storage company on the 1st November, 1911; but the storage company opposed, and made the suggestion that the siding agreement should stand, and that the new double track should be placed on the other side of the company's right-of-way. The agreement contained a clause that either party should have a right to terminate, at any time by leave of the Board, upon notice:—Held, that, in view of the necessity of a double track in the interests of public traffic, such a condition was proper and sufficient to justify the cancellation. Held, also, that the Board would not be justified in changing the location of the new track. Held, therefore, that the agreement should be terminated, upon proper compensation to the storage company for the expense and inconvenience of rearranging its warehouses. Re C.P.R. Co. & Vancouver Ice & Cold Storage Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 1, 23 W.L.R. 607.

TOLLS AND RATES—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—GEOGRAPHICAL ADVANTAGE—FOREIGN RAIL ROUTES.

In considering geographical advantage as an element in rate regulation the Board must recognize existing rail conditions in Canada as it finds them, and as, e.g., Wallaceburg and Montreal are practically equidistant from Winnipeg by rail routes within Canada, Wallaceburg is not entitled to a lower rate than Montreal by reason of geographical advantage though over foreign roads its distance from Winnipeg is much shorter.

JOINT TOLLS—RELIEF.

Under s. 338 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, no joint toll can be disregarded by the carriers until it has been superseded or disallowed by the Board. If the carriers desire to get relief from concurrence in joint tolls they must apply to the Board making out a case justifying the extension of such relief.

Re Joint Tolls & Concurrence, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 379.

INTERNATIONAL JOINT TARIFFS.

As a matter of practice the Board in the past has dealt with international joint tariffs having regard to the outward movement only, and speaking generally it has not interfered in any way with any tariff properly filed under the practice prevailing in the United States directly applying to a joint movement into Canada.

Anger & Son & D'Auteuil Lumber Co. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 401.

INTERCHANGE TRAFFIC—FACILITIES—PUBLIC INTEREST.

Public interest, economy of movement to shippers and convenience must be established before the Board will grant to one carrier interchange traffic facilities with another. No carrier is entitled to such facilities as of right. The property and advantages of one carrier should not be interfered with for the mere benefit of another, but objections by a carrier on the ground that the other carrier will thereby obtain a great advantage at its expense will be overruled in the interest of the public.

C.N.P.R. Co. v. C.P. Ry. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 200.

SPECIAL FREIGHT TARIFFS—JOINT TOLLS—DISCRIMINATION—REASONABLENESS.

The scheme of the act is that traffic moving over the lines of two or more carriers shall be considered and carried as through traffic on one bill of lading, and not that local tolls shall be filed as proportionals and the traffic moved under separate bills. The duty is cast upon the carriers to establish joint tolls for such traffic. This duty can be enforced under s. 334 of the act; and the Board will not approve special freight tariffs in contravention of this principal made for the purpose of carrying out special arrangements between carriers and individual shippers. Special freight tariffs and commodity tolls permitted by the Act are just as much subject to the provisions relating to equality and to joint toll movements as are the original standard tariffs. Artificial or unjustly discriminatory tolls must not be made in order to take away from distorting points or manufacturing centres the natural advantages of their geographical situation; nor to favour a manufacturer in one locality against his competitor in another. Traffic must be moved on the tariffs filed—no more and no less; and these tariffs must be free of unjust discrimination and comply not only with the general sections, but in cases where applicable, with the joint traffic sections of the act. The Board disallowed as contrary to s. 334 (3), 332 and 337 of the act a special freight tariff filed by a carrier to cover carriage of a specified commodity over its own lines, Toronto to Regina only, where the toll was made applicable only to shipments originating at Sarnia (on another railway), and was less than the toll by standard tariff from either Sarnia or Toronto to Winnipeg, an intermediate point. The Board will not give effect to an application to compel a railway company to file a tariff fixing lower rates than the tariff in force, unless the existing tariff be shown to be unreasonable. The principle that larger quantities may be carried at tolls proportionately lower than those for smaller quantities of the same commodity is properly recognized in the lower toll approved for C.L. as against L.C. L. shipments; but it should not be extended as any further application of it would handicap the smaller dealer in competition with the larger.

Imperial Oil Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 171.

TRAFFIC—INTERCHANGE—SENIOR AND JUNIOR—COST.

The general practice of the Board when an application is made for an interchange track for the purpose of interchanging traffic, where it appears that the effect of establishing such interchange is to subdivide the traffic by diverting it from the older line, is to place the full cost of construction and maintenance on the junior line.

G.T.P.R. Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 187.

TRAFFIC—INTERCHANGE—TRANSFER TRACK—REMOVAL—ROLLING STOCK.

The Board may authorize the removal of a transfer track used for the interchange of traffic, when the interchange can be done at another point, resulting in economy of rolling stock movement in the public interest, thus relieving the strain on the existing facilities by removing the track and using the rails and ties at other points where there is urgent need.

C.P.R. Co. v. Saskatoon & Moosejaw Boards of Trade, 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 349.

CABMEN AND 'BUSMEN—DESIGNATION OF PLACES FOR VEHICLES TO STAND—DISCRIMINATION—TICKETS FOR FREE TRANSPORTATION.

A cabman or 'busman carrying on a general business has no special rights in connection with traffic to or from a railway station. He has a general right to take his cab or 'bus to the station for the purpose of discharging passengers; and he has the same right to back his 'bus up to the station platform, at a convenient spot for receiving passengers. The railway company is under an obligation to see that passengers are not unduly importuned by cabmen or 'busmen at or on its platform; and in the discharge of that obligation, the railway company has the right to designate the points where the traveling public will be received from cabs and 'busses, and where they will go for such conveyances on the arrival of trains. In this case it was held, that there was no discrimination by the railway company against the complainant, a 'busman. A question of fact in regard to tickets entitling passengers to free transportation by 'bus from the railway station at Saskatoon to the city, was found against the complainant.

S. 57 of the Ontario Railway Act, 1906, 6 Edw. VII. c. 30, does not apply to a railway owned by a municipal corporation. (Per Magee, J.A.) Subs. 4 of s. 57 of the Ontario Railway Act, 1906, 6 Edw. VII. c. 30, applies only to railways actually in existence and operation at the time of the application to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board thereby provided for, and there is no difference in this respect when the railways in question, or any of them, are street railways.

 CONNECTION SWITCHES—INTERCHANGE OF TRAFFIC.

The Railway Commission may order discontinued an embargo placed by a railway against receiving, for interswitching delivery, upon private sidings of their line, the loaded cars of another railway from stations on such other railway, if taken merely as a means whereby to recover cars of the railway placing such embargo located along the line of the railway from which the shipments originated, where there were at the points of shipment no cars belonging to the railway seeking to enforce such embargo available for the use of the shippers affected thereby.

FULL TARIFF TOLLS—COMMODITY—CONNECTING CARRIER—UNREMNERATIVE BUSINESS.

The Board ordered an express company to establish a commodity toll for carriage of milk by express for delivery to a connecting express company in the United States, and in so doing overruled the respondent company's objection that it did not want the business unless at its full tariff tolls, but suspended operation of the order pending proof that a toll had been agreed upon with the foreign connecting carrier which would permit the carriage of the commodity to its destination in the foreign country.

The Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada has jurisdiction by virtue of the Railway Act, s. 26 to make a declaratory order as against the carrier that rates exacted by it between certain dates were illegal, although by reason of a subsequent change in the authorized tariff no executive order was necessary nor was any made by the Board. THROUGH RATES.

The Board of Railway Commissioners is without jurisdiction to require carriers of express from points within the United States to Canadian points to join with a Canadian express carrier in the establishment of joint through tariffs on traffic originating in such foreign country. The Board of Railway Commissioners cannot, without the concurrence of the foreign express company, require the re-establishment of a joint through tariff on express traffic between points in the United States and Canadian points.

INCREASE — CARRIER — CHARACTER — TRAFFIC—NATURE—CONDITIONS.

The Board, in dealing with an application to increase tolls, will consider the character of the railway, the nature of the traffic carried by it, average haul, average tonnage per train, and other conditions affecting its traffic, as well as, the tolls charged and sanctioned upon the lines, and the traffic conditions of the latter. Robertson v. C.P.R. Co., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 108.

TOLLS — INCREASE — EFFECT — CONTRACTS—CONSIGNOR AND CONSIGNEE.

Notwithstanding the provision in the Railway Act, that, tolls may be increased on thirty days' notice, the Board, in sanctioning an increase, will take into consideration the effect such increase is likely to have upon existing long-term contracts between consignors and consignees, and will, when necessary, suspend the increase for a reasonable period so that it shall not fall unfairly upon the shipper in such cases.

Eastern Tps. Lumber Co. v. Temiscouata R. Co., 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 260.

TOLLS—THROUGH—SUM OF LOCALS—JOINT — DIVISION — UNREASONABLE — JURISDICTION.

The Board has no jurisdiction over the tolls for the transportation of commodities by carriers in a foreign country, and a joint toll in excess of the sum of the locals being prima facie unreasonable, it is within its jurisdiction to direct that a Canadian carrier should not, as its division of a through toll exceed its local. [In re Joint Freight & Passenger Tariffs, 10 Can. Ry. Cas. 343; Continental Prairie & Winnipeg Oil Cos. v. C.P.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 156, at p. 161, followed.]

TOLLS — INCREASE — REASONABLENESS — UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — DIFFERENT SYSTEMS—MILEAGE BASIS — TERMINAL CHARGES — LOCAL AND IMPORTED PRODUCTS.

The difference in toll treatment between two points does not necessarily create an unjust discrimination since they are on different systems of railways. Upon comparing the toll on imported wood pulp with the toll on the local product, and taking into consideration the mileage involved and the terminal charges on the imported product, the Board found that the toll on the imported product was reasonable.

CONNECTING CARRIERS—THROUGH TOLLS.

When two connecting carriers are separate legal entities, and the former operates and tariffs the latter as a separate property, the latter is under no obligation to put a construction toll of the former into effect on its line, but the shipper is entitled, on a through bill of lading, to the benefit of the through toll to the point of delivery. [See Wylie Milling Co. v. C.P. & K. & P.R. Cos., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 5.]

Oliver-Serim Lumber Co. v. C.P. & E. & N.R. Cos., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 324.

THROUGH TOLLS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — JOINT TARIFFS—INCREASED RATES.

Where the carrier reduced the local tolls on the raw material even lower than on firewood, having the assurance of the second haul of the pulp or paper products, and under the schedules in force prior to September, 2, 1912, the proportions accruing to the Canadian carriers from through shipments to the United States are lower than the tolls paid by Canadian manufacturers, there is no unjust discrimination against their foreign competitors, the tolls for Canadian delivery being based on the resultant traffic. Joint tariffs increasing the through tolls on pulpwood from shipping points in Eastern Canada to manufacturing points in the Eastern States of the United States were authorized by the Board. In the apportionment of the through tolls between two or three and, in some cases four carriers, it is reasonable that the joint through tolls should be on a higher basis than for similar distances on the line of a single company. [Continental Prairie & Winnipeg Oil Cos. v. C.P.R. Cos., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 156, followed.] The right of the carrier to consider the resultant traffic as a reason for the lower toll on the original commodity where hauled to points of manufacture on the carrier's line is well established. CARRIERS OF FREIGHT—EXPRESS COMPANY—CHARGES ON SHIPMENTS OF CREAM—REDUCTION WHERE COLLECTION AND DELIVERY SERVICE NOT FURNISHED—DECLARATORY ORDER.

Upon the proper construction of C.R.C. tariff No. 4139, rr. 1, 2, 3, dealing with the charges of the express company upon shipments of cream, it was held, as to the area adjacent to a "point," but not included within the collection and delivery area, that the deduction of 5 cents per can "where a collection and delivery service is not furnished," as set out in r. 3, should be made. It was held, also, that the Board, in making a declaratory ruling as to the deduction to be made under the tariff, could not take into consideration undercharges alleged by the express company to have been made to the applicant dairy company. The obligation is on the express company to collect in accordance with the tolls in its tariffs legally published and in force: s. 344 of the Dominion Railway Act.

[Purcell v. G.T.P.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 194, distinguished.] Since a railway station is private property as between a railway company and the general public excepting persons who have occasion to use it for the purpose of transportation, the company may grant the exclusive privilege to a bus or transfer company of sojourn within its stations the carriage of passengers and baggage.

RATES—BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS—TOLLS—CARTAGE.

Although cartage companies per se are not under the jurisdiction of the Board, the charge made for cartage by railway companies is a toll under s. 2 (30) of the act, and must be approved by the Board. The tariff of tolls filed by the railway companies increasing the tolls for cartage to the shipping public from two cents a hundred and fifteen cents for smalls to three cents and twenty cents, respectively, was amended by the Board to two and a half cents a hundred, and the present toll on smalls continued. The increase was approved on account of the advance in the cost of horses, wages and feed during the last few years. Re Cartage Tolls, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 372, 23 W.L.R. 598.

CARTAGE.

Under the Railway Act cartage is not a railway service or facility, although by the interpretation clause, s. 2 (30), "toll" included charges for cartage, it is not included in any tariff of tolls approved by the Board for line haul. The question of who should pay cartage is a matter of contract between the consignor and consignee and the Board should not attempt to interfere between them. [Sowerby v. G.N.R. REFUND—JOINT TARIFF—CANCELLATION.

The Board has no power to authorize a refund from a toll properly quoted under a tariff duly filed. However, under s. 338, a joint tariff cannot be cancelled without a new one being filed in substitution thereof, and a railway who charged a toll under a cancelled joint tariff, was authorized to make a refund of the difference between such toll and that chargeable under the substituted tariff.

REGULATION OF RATES—TOLLS—ADJUSTMENT—INCREASE—RESTRICTION.

It is a well-established principle of rate regulation that where a business has been built up relying upon a particular rate adjustment, an increase in this rate adjustment should not be made without amply sufficient reasons. The rate on pressed brick from Bradford, Penn., to Windsor, Ontario, formerly 81.60 was increased to 82.00 per ton. Under the former rate the Grand Trunk received 88 cents as its proportion and the B.R. & P. (United States carrier) 72 cents. Under the new rate the Grand Trunk received an increase of 32 cents and the B.R. & P. of 8 cents. Upon complaint being made of the increase in rate, held, that in the absence of evidence showing any increase of cost to justify the increase of 32 cents in the rate from Bradford to Windsor the 88 cent division of the through rate which formerly prevailed should be re-established by the Canadian carriers as a proportional limited to brick ex Bradford and Bradford points for furtherance. [Metropolitan Paving Brick Co. v. Ann Arbor R. Co., 17 I.C.C.R. 197, referred to.] A toll established in the first instance by a carrier of its own volition, having remained some time in force, is presumptively reasonable, and the onus is on the carrier to shew, with reasonable conclusiveness, that changed conditions or increased cost of operation justified an increase. BOARD—TOLLS—INCREASE—COMMODITY RATES—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

The Board allowed tariffs which had the effect of cancelling commodity rates less than 5th class theretofore enjoyed for many years on rope in carload lots out of Montreal upon its appearing that Montreal was the only point in Canada where a less than 5th class rate applied and that there had, therefore, been unjust discrimination in favour of Montreal against other Canadian points. MILK IN CAR LOADS.

As a general order for milk in car loads (C.L.) would be practically ordering a paper tariff and little or no milk would move under it the Board will not fix a C.L. toll based upon a minimum number of cans of milk. WATER COMPETITION.

It is not contrary to the Railway Act that carriers should meet water competition in a measure when it is effective and afterwards meet it in a less degree when it is less effective.

Dominion Cannery and Glasco v. Canadian Freight Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 312.

DISCRETION—TOLLS—WATER COMPETITION.

Carriers may in their discretion meet water competition by reducing tolls; they may also in their discretion restore tolls to a normal basis when water competition ceases. [Dominion Millers Assn. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 363, at p. 368, followed.]

Regina Board of Trade v. C.P.R., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 315.

DISCRETION — TOLLS — REDUCTION — WATER COMPETITION.

Tolls reduced by a railway company to meet water competition may, at the discretion of rail carriers, be brought up more closely to the normal level when water competition becomes less effective. [Dominion Millers Assn. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 363, at p. 368; In re Western Tolls (Western Freight Rates Case), 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 123, at pp. 123, 124, 159, 166, followed. Canadian Oil Cos. v. G.T., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 350, at p. 351. Blind River Board of Trade v. G.T., C.P.R., Northern Navigation & Dominion Transportation Cos., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 146.

Boards of Trade of Western Cities & Canadian Manufacturers' Assn. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 324.

FACILITIES — TRANSPORTATION — COMPETING LINES — CARS — SHORTAGE — EQUIPMENT.

Shippers located on one line of railway are not entitled to as good transportation facilities as if located on two or more competing lines. In times of car shortage it is the duty of a carrier to retain its equipment so as to serve shippers on its own line. [C.P.R. Co. v. Nelson & Fort Sheppard R. Co., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 400, followed.] The initial or originating carrier is entitled to as long a haul as reasonable on its own lines. [Imperial Steel & Wire Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 395; C.P.R. Co. v. Nelson & Fort Sheppard R. Co. (Memorandum), 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 400; Jacobs Asbestos Co. v. Quebec Central Ry. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 357; Plymouth, Devonport & South Western Junction R. Co. v. Great Western R. Co., 10 Ry. & Ca. Tr. Cas. 68; Riddle v. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R. Co., 1 I.C.C.R. 374, followed.] The Board laid down the following rules for the movement of coal, not only to points on the originating line but also to points on other lines:

(a) Cars must be supplied for this purpose as well as for delivery at points on the originating line to the full extent cars are available; (b) where the originating or receiving line enjoys the long haul it must supply the cars; (c) where the line that ought to supply the cars is unable to do so, then the other line although not enjoying the long haul should supply the cars and be paid by the defaulting line a per diem toll of $1.25 instead of 45 cts. from the time the car leaves until it is returned to the owning line, but no existing freight toll may be increased to cover the additional per diem toll; (d) it is the duty of the receiving line to return the cars promptly to the owning line, either at the junction point where the car was received or, in case return loads can be obtained, to another junction point on the line of the return movement. To provide for an emergency due to shortage of equipment and scarcity of coal, railway companies without sufficient equipment were ordered to make forthwith the necessary changes in flat or live stock cars to enable them to carry coal.

Re Coal Transportation Facilities, 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 338.

CLASSIFICATION—COST OF TRANSPORTATION—LUXURIES.

Classifications must be arranged according to the ability of the various articles to bear their share of the cost of transportation to admit of cheaper goods being carried any distance; thus luxuries which move in comparatively small quantities, are given a higher classification than indispensables. While the present war conditions may affect tolls per se these should have no bearing on classification.

Horne Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 344.

CLASSIFICATION — WEIGHTS — MINIMUM—COMMODITY.

Fibre board cheese boxes, rated in the classification as fifth class with a minimum weight in C.L. lots of 20,000 lbs., are entitled to the same rating as wooden cheese boxes with the same minimum weight, either by a change in the classification or by a commodity toll of general application.

Canada Cheese Box Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 347.

JURISDICTION — INTERNATIONAL TRAFFIC — EXPORT—PARITY—CLASSIFICATION.

The Board has no jurisdiction to vary or modify the U.S. official classification in the case of C.L. traffic moving from a Canadian point to a Canadian port, and, under s. 321 (2, 3, 4), the only jurisdiction the Board has is when such classification is used with respect to traffic to or from the United States, and the carriers, being under no statutory obligation to use the classification, may, in their discretion, with the leave of the Board, do so on export business from Canadian points to Canadian ports in order to assure a parity of treatment as to tolls and ports in the United States. Subject to the provisions of the Railway Act in respect to unjust discrimination, it is entirely within the discretion of carriers whether they shall or shall not fix tolls to meet the competition of markets. When export tolls have been installed the Board has directed their continuance, or re-establishment to maintain a parity of ports, but the Board will not direct export tolls to be put into force where no such tolls have existed. [Montreal Produce Merchants Assn. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 232; B.C. Sugar Refining Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 10 Can. Ry. Cas. 169, at p. 172; Canadian Lumbermen's Assn. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cas. 95, at p. 97, followed. British American Oil Co. v. G.T.R. Co. (Stoy Oil case), 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 178, at p. 184; Dominion

Millers Assn. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 363, referred to.]

Graham Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 353.

INTERNATIONAL TRAFFIC — TOLLS — CONTINUOUS ROUTE.

The rule that a joint or through toll between any two points properly filed is the only legal toll in respect of the particular traffic between such points, applies also to international traffic, where a joint tariff of tolls for a continuous route has been filed for part of the distance, the through toll for the continuous route plus the local toll to the point beyond the end of the continuous route is the only toll that can be charged.

General Traffic Service Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 372.

EXPRESS—LIMITS—ZONES—SCALE.

Municipal boundaries may usually be taken as suitable limits for free express delivery service, in villages, towns and small cities, but not in large cities where municipal boundaries are enlarged from time to time. The Board established a central zone in Toronto with free pick-up and delivery service. Outside of the central zone, additional areas, as a toll zone, were established in and about Toronto comprising any place within half a mile from the nearest free zone limit, except the southern limit on the water front. A graduated scale of charges, according to weight, was fixed for delivery of parcels in the toll zone. After a year's operation a report is to be made to the Board, upon which a revision of conditions may be made if deemed necessary by the Board.

Toronto & Citizens' Committee v. Express Traffic Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 375.

TOLLS — AGREEMENT — SPUR — CARS — INTERSWITCHING.

The Board is not bound, nor may the provisions of the Railway Act be defeated, by an agreement between two railway companies respecting tolls. A provision in an agreement made in 1901 between two railway companies, whereby the former in consideration of the latter undertaking to build a spur from its line to a pulp mill, agreed to build a connection between the two lines and switch loaded and empty cars for the latter company at $1.50 per loaded car, was abrogated by the Board in 1917, the tolls being found unremunerative, and the regular inter-switching charge of 1 cent per 100 lbs. applied under the General Interswitching Order No. 4988. [Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 33; Lake Superior Paper Co. v. Algoma Central & Hudson Bay R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 361, followed. Village of Fergus v. G.T.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 42, distinguished.]

C.P.R. Co. & Spanish River Pulp & Paper Mills v. Algoma Eastern R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 381.

INCREASE — "SPREAD" BETWEEN COMPETITORS—RAIL AND WATER TOLLS.

The Board will not authorize an increase of remuneration in lake and rail tolls for the purpose of lessening a prohibitive "spread" between them and all-rail tolls of the same and other carriers between the same points, in order to induce part of the traffic to move all rail and so to prevent the all-rail tolls from being "cut" by a carrier having no lake and rail route and desiring to participate in the traffic. Having regard to the decision in the Eastern Rates Case allowing an increase in general freight tolls east of Fort William, 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 4, and the reasons for that decision the Board held that reasonable increases in the tolls on grain and grain products east of Fort William should be allowed and approved revised tolls accordingly.

Dominion Millers Assn. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 393.

MAIL ORDER BUSINESS — DISTRIBUTING POINTS.

Lower or joint tolls will not be granted to a retail dealer, in a distant point (such as Winnipeg), seeking to do a mail order business (L.C.L. lots) through a well-established distributing point (such as Edmonton, 848 miles from Winnipeg), into territory tributary thereto (the Peace River Country), which would give the shipper a toll lower than the local toll at the distributing point (Edmonton). [In re Western Tolls (Western Tolls case), 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 123, at p. 156; In re Edmonton, Dunvegan & B.C.R. Co. (Mountain Scale Tolls case), 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 1, referred to.]

Newman v. Edmonton, Dunvegan & B.C.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 399.

CLASSIFICATION — DISTRIBUTING POINTS.

Two L.C.L. classification ratings will not be granted on the same commodity differing in value. Where a C.L. classification rating from Wallaceburg, a manufacturing centre, to Winnipeg was voluntarily put in by the carriers, it is only reasonable that similar commodity tolls should be given from Wallaceburg to Toronto and Montreal, similar distributing centres in the east. [Ledoux Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 3, distinguished.]

Wallaceburg Cut Glass Works v. Canadian Freight Assn., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 408.

TOLLS—JOINT—FOREIGN COUNTRY.

Under s. 336 a joint tariff of tolls must be filed covering a continuous route traffic movement from a point in a foreign country into Canada. Without passing on the question of the jurisdiction of the Board to regulate a through toll from a point in the United States to a point in Canada, it may be said in general that where a through toll is attacked as being unreasonable because it is in excess of the sum of the locals the Board has jurisdiction only as far as to direct a reduction for the future, but pos-assess no power to direct a refund of a portion of the toll charged.

Security Traffic Bureau v. C.N.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 414.

TOLLS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — UNDUE PREFERENCE.

A toll of 22 cents per 100 pounds on newsprint paper from Thorold, Ontario, to Chicago, Illinois, U.S.A., was not found to constitute an unjust discrimination or undue preference in favor of competitors in the Chicago market.

Ontario Paper Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 177.

CLASSIFICATION — TRADE CONDITIONS — CARS—CARRYING POWER—REASONABLENESS.

In matters of classification and tolls established trade conditions or obligations, while not of necessity conclusive obstacles in the way of change, must be considered; it is a question of judgment what is a fair mean between the physical carrying power of the car and the public interest as affected thereby and the conditions under which business is carried on. [Western Retail Lumbermen's Assn. v. C.P., C.N. & G.T.P.R. Cos., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 155, referred to.] The Board is not concerned with equalizing costs of production; its jurisdiction relates only to reasonableness of tolls. [Hudson Bay Mining Co. v. G.N.R. Co., 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 254, at p. 259; Canadian Portland Cement Co. v. G.T. & Bay of Quinte R. Cos., 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 209, at p. 211, followed.]

Dominion Millers' Assn., Toronto Board of Trade & Montreal Corn Exchange v. Canadian Freight Assn., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 83

DISCRETION — TOLLS — COMMUTATION — UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — RAILWAY ACT, s. 341.

Within the limits of the standard passenger toll per mile, railway companies have discretion to vary the toll under certain conditions, that discretion may be exercised by the granting of commutation tolls to one point and not to another, such difference in the treatment of different places is not necessarily unjust discrimination, and in the absence of affirmative evidence of actual discrimination, resulting in the positive detriment to a place to which such tolls are refused, the Board will not interfere. [Wegemast v. G.T.R. Co., 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 42; Toronto & Town of Brampton v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 370, at pp. 374, 375; B.C. News Co. v. Express Traffic Assn., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 178, followed.]

Massiah v. C.P.R. Co., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 88.

ROUTES—RAIL AND WATER—COMPETITION.

Rail carriers engaged in the business of transportation via a rail and water route in competition with an all-water route may, in their discretion, meet water competition if they see fit, and may also determine the extent to which they shall meet it, and the Board cannot interfere with the tariff of tolls filed. [Blind River Board of Trade v. G.T., C.P.R., Northern Navigation & Dominion Transportation Cos., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 146, followed.]

Boards of Trade of Montreal & Toronto & Canadian Manufacturers' Assn. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 77.

CLASSIFICATION — C.L. RATING — PEANUT BUTTER — GROCERY LIST — RAILWAY ACT, s. 317 (3) (c).

Peanut butter, having been included in the grocery list, should be given a fourth class carload rating, with jams and jellies with which it is in competition.

Application directing the respondent to provide a C.L. rating as of the fourth class for peanut butter.

Toronto Board of Trade v. Canadian Freight Assn., 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 442.

COST OF PRODUCTION—EQUALIZATION—COMPETITION—MINIMUM WEIGHTS.

It is not part of the obligation of carriers to equalize the cost of production through lower tolls, so that all may compete on an even keel in the same market.

Carriers are not justified in imposing tolls on the same commodity differing according to the use to which it is put; the same inhibition attaches to a differentiation of minimum weights for the same reason, nor are they under obligation to so adjust minimum weights as to offset any inherent disadvantages of the business. [Western Retail Lumbermen's Assn. v. C.P.R. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 155, followed.]

Hay & Still Mfg. Co.'s v. G.T. & C.P.R. Co.'s, 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 43.

JOINT—TOLLS—SINGLE LINE.

A joint toll of 47 cents per ton (3 cents over the single line haul toll) was established on coal over the Michigan Central and Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto R. Cos. from the Niagara frontier to St. Catharines and adjacent points, in the proportion of 27 cents to the Michigan Central and 20 cents to the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto R. Co.

Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto R. Co. v. Canadian Retail Coal Assn., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 28.

HIGHER TOLLS—BRANCH LINES.

A slightly higher toll basis is justifiable from branch and lateral line points than from adjacent main line points. [Almonte Knitting Co. v. C.P. & Michigan Central R. Cos. (Almonte Knitting Co. Case), 3 Can. Ry. Cas. 441; Malkin & Sons v. G.T.R. Co. (Tan Bark Rates Case), 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 183; Oyley & Bridgeport Lumber Co. v. Dominion Atlantic R. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 238, followed.]

Hunting-Merritt Lumber Co. v. C.P. & B.C. Electric R. Cos., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 181.

PASSENGER TRAIN SERVICE—MILK TRAFFIC—MIXED TRAINS.

The Board refused to order a carrier to give passenger train service on a milk train when it appeared that the milk traffic had originally been carried on a mixed train, No. 81, and had been transferred to a special milk train in order that No. 81 might run as a passenger train only and the passenger service be thereby improved.

Town of Massena Springs v. G.T.R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 34.

PASSENGERS — TRAFFIC — THROUGH JOINT TICKETS—REASONABLENESS.

The Board is not concerned with the disputes of rival railway companies as such, or with the fact that one desires to do business with another to the exclusion of a third; its only interest being that of the public in the transportation of passengers and freight. Under the special circumstances of this case the respondent Michigan Central R. Co. are obliged under ss. 217 and 334 of the Railway Act to make reasonable traffic arrangements to enable the applicant to do business with it, by issuing through joint tickets for the transportation of passengers.

London & Lake Erie R. Co. v. Michigan Central & London & Port Stanley R. Cos., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 194.

SHORT LINE COMPETITION.

The Railway Act does not require carriers to meet short line competition if they do not desire to do so. [Edmonton Clover Bar Sand Co. v. G.T.P.R. Co., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 95, followed.]

In re Passenger Tolls, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 223.

TRAFFIC — SERVICE — SPECIAL TRAIN MOVEMENTS—MILEAGE—JUNCTIONS.

The obligation of carriers is to furnish such service as the traffic demands, but not to treat it as special train movement, and require a guarantee of a certain number of cars to be handled. In dealing with the reasonableness of tolls charged on a slight traffic movement, the Board has recognized that under certain conditions tolls to or from a point on a branch line may be higher than in the case of a main line movement. [Almonte Knitting Co. v. C.P. & Michigan Central R. Cos. (Almonte Knitting Co. Case), 3 Can. Ry. Cas. 441; Malkin & Sons v. G.T.R. Co. (Tan Bark Rates Case), 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 183, followed.] A somewhat higher toll basis is justifiable, where, on account of the urgency of the grain movement, leave is given before completion to a branch line to engage in the carriage of traffic. In general standard mileage tolls may properly be charged to the junction point where the special mileage tolls become effective on the branch line.

Oyler & Hicks & Son v. Dominion Atlantic R. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 238.

TERMINAL TOLL—COMPETITION—BY WATER—DISCRIMINATION.

If a carrier does not choose to meet water competition, the Board's whole right to interfere with a toll is confined to a case where the toll charged is unreasonable for the services rendered, therefore, where a carrier changes the route of its car ferry it is not unjust discrimination for it to charge a reasonable toll for the rail haul necessitated, instead of the former terminal toll only. [Plain & Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 223; Canadian Oil Cos. v. G.T., C.P. and C.N.R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 350; Blind River Board of Trade v. G.T., C.P. Ry. Co., Northern Navigation and Dominion Transportation Cos., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 146, followed.]

Nanaimo Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 224.

COMPETITION—BY WATER.

It is in the carrier's discretion whether it will meet water competition, and it is not the privilege of the shipper to demand less than normal tolls because of such competition, which the carrier in its own interest does not choose to meet. [Plain v. C. P.R. Co., 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 222, at p. 223; Blind River Board of Trade v. G.T., C.P. Ry. Co., Northern Navigation & Dominion Transportation Cos., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 146, followed.] Where the carrier is subject to effective water competition in varying degree, and also to potential water competition, it is in its discretion whether it shall meet it and the fact that it has met the competition at one point does not place it under any obligation to meet it at another point nor is the toll as it is put in to meet such competition to one point a necessary measure of the toll to another. [Dominion Millers' Assn. v. G.T. & Can. R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 363; Re Western Tolls, 19 D.L.R. 43, 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 123, followed.]

Bowlby v. Halifax & South Western R. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 231.

DEMURRAGE — ADJUSTMENT — LONG AND SHORT HAUL.

The long and short haul clause, s. 315 (5) of the Railway Act is superior to any toll in any tariff approved by the Board which conflicts therewith. Where freight tolls demanded by a carrier are proved to be incorrect, the consignee is not properly charged demurrage because he refuses to unload until the freight tolls are adjusted. A toll which violates a provision of the Railway Act is unlawful even if shown on a filed tariff. Where, therefore, a toll of 12 cents per 100 lbs. was charged on a carload of logs from Warren, Mich., to Tilbury, Ont., and at the same time there was a special toll of 5½ cents from Utica, Mich., to Tilbury, Warren being an intermediate point, the toll of 12 cents is illegal by the long and short haul clause, s. 315 (5).

Canadian Handle Mfg. Co. v. Michigan Central R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 12.

TOLLS—C.L.—GOODS—MIXED.

C.L. tolls are only given for the purpose of mixing on account of the varied nature of the goods that can be mixed.

Canadian Rubber Manufacturers v. Canadian Freight Assn., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 59.

TOLLS — ORIGINAL SHIPMENT — RESHIPMENT—MILLING-IN-TRANSIT OR ANALOGOUS PRIVILEGES.

The rates from point of reshipment chargeable on grain under tariffs allowing milling-in-transit or analogous privileges are those effective at the time of the original shipment, not those effective at the time of reshipment, unless the tariff under which the grain originally moved clearly provides otherwise.

United Grain Growers v. Canadian Freight Assn., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 128.

TOLLS—C.L.—WATER COMPETITION — REDUCTION.

The Board refused to restore a toll on rice in carloads (60,000 lbs. minimum) of 65 cents per 100 lbs. from Vancouver and Victoria to Toronto and Montreal points, in place of a toll of 75 cents (30,000 lbs. minimum) temporarily reduced on account of water competition.

Martin & Robertson & Imperial Rice Milling Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 141.

TOLLS — CONSTRUCTION — SAME — EXPORT.

Upon the proper construction of the tariff C.R.C. E. 3677, which specifically names Collingwood as a point taking Toronto tolls, a shipper at Collingwood is entitled to the same toll as a shipper at Toronto on nails for export to China and Japan via Pacific Coast ports.

Imperial Steel & Wire Co. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 150.

LINED AND RACKED BOX CARS — REFRIGERATOR — SHORTAGE — HEATERS SUPPLIED BY SHIPPERS — NO REMUNERATION — FREE RETURN.

Where the shortage of refrigerator cars has been relieved by supplying lined and racked box cars, but the carrier has been unable to secure a sufficient number of heaters for them, such heaters ought to be supplied as far as possible at the tolls provided by the tariffs, but in cases where heaters are supplied by the shippers, the carrier is entitled to no remuneration, and should also return the shippers' heaters from destination to point of origin free of cost.

Okanagan Valley Growers v. Canadian Freight Assn., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 55.

CLASSIFICATION — COMPETITION — UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — TOLLS — C.L. — SHIPMENTS — MIXED.

It would be unjust discrimination to authorize the shipment of rubber boots and shoes in mixed carload lots at third class tolls in competition with manufacturers who have not the same privilege of mixing their leather or felt boots with other leather or felt commodities which are entitled to the same classification in C.L. lots.

Canadian Rubber Manufacturers v. Canadian Freight Assn., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 50.

RESHIPMENT — REVENUES — TOLLS — INCREASE — REASONABLE — HAULS — SINGLE LINE.

Considering the tolls approved on analogous forest products on single line hauls, where the two Canadian carriers have no reshipment advantages and revenues accruing therefrom, an increase in tolls of 1 cent per 100 lbs. on pulpwood from territory west of Montreal via Ottawa or St. Polycarpe Jet. to Rouse's Point is not unreasonable.

West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. & North-east Mills Group v. C.P.R. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 153.

TOLLS — MILEAGE — BASIS — BLANKETED — COMPETITION — COMMON MARKET.

Where tolls are blanketeted, a too rigid adherence to a mileage basis, thereby giving a sudden break in the middle of a coal shipping area between coal mines competing with each other in a common market, is undesirable. [Galbraith Coal Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 10 Can. Ry. Cas. 325, followed.]

Great West. Rivers Mine Coal Cos. & Edmonton Collieries v. G.T.P.R. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 175.

JUSTIFICATION — TOLLS — LOWER — COMPETITION — HAULS — LONG AND SHORT — POINTS — TERMINAL — INTERMEDIATE — TRAFFIC — CIRCUMSTANCES AND CONDITIONS — SUBSTANTIALLY SIMILAR — RAILWAY ACT, s. 315 (5).

Under s. 315 (5) where traffic moves under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, carriers are justified in charging lower tolls to Victoria, B.C., an ocean terminal point, for the longer haul than for the shorter haul to Sidney, B.C., an intermediate point, where Victoria is, and Sidney is not, subject to competition.

Sidney Board of Trade v. G.N.R. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 173.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — CONTRACT — TOLLS — FAIR AND REASONABLE — SCALE—GENERAL.

The Board will give no effect to a contract fixing a toll so unreasonably low and so out of proportion to the general scale, that it constitutes in effect unjust discrimination in favour of one shipper as against other shippers on the respondent carrier's line. The Board ordered the respondent to remove such unjust discrimination by filing tariffs providing for a fair and reasonable toll.

Lyons Fuel & Supply Co. v. Algoma Central & Hudson Bay Ry. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 146.

(§ IV C—527)—POSTING OR FILING RATES.

A uniform charge of twenty-five cents included in a tariff of passenger tolls as a special charge to be added to single first-class fare on the sale of excursion or return tickets at single fare plus twenty-five cents, sold in connection with conventions and payable on vising the tickets for free return, is not objectionable as a discrimination because of such extra charge being payable in respect of transportation for any distance within the excursion radius, and, where the total charge to the passenger is less than the authorized tariff allowances for regular rates, the Board of Railway Commissioners will not interfere to annul or vary the visé charge.

Canadian Fraternal Assn. v. Canadian Passenger Assn., 5 D.L.R. 171, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 178.

BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS — JURISDICTION AS TO EXCURSION TICKETS.

The Board of Railway Commissioners has no authority under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, to compel a railway company issuing tickets at special rates to 300 people or more to offer such privilege to a less number.

The Board of Railway Commissioners has no jurisdiction to compel railway companies to make special excursion rates.

Canadian Fraternal Assn. v. Canadian Passenger Assn., 5 D.L.R. 171, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 178.

FILING TARIFFS — FOREIGN CARRIER — THE RAILWAY ACT, s. 336.

Notwithstanding s. 336 of the Railway Act requires joint tariffs to be filed covering all traffic carried from foreign countries into Canada, the Board of Railway Commissioners cannot require the initial carrier to file such tariffs.

Stockton & Mallinson v. Dominion Express Co., 3 D.L.R. 848.

An agreement between a provincial railway company and a shipper for a rebate of tolls for carrying the latter's goods is only a contravention of art. 5172, R.S.Q. 1888 (art. 6907 et seq. R.S.Q. 1909) if it involves an advantage or undue privilege. Hence, if it is given on special conditions, for example, that the shipper shall give to the company for carriage all the goods he manufactures himself paying the charges both of loading and discharging, etc., the agreement will be deemed valid until it is proved that an injustice results therefrom. The directors of the company have power to enter into such an agreement without special authorization from the shareholders.

Kennedy v. Quebec and Lake St. John R. Co., 21 Que. K.B. 85, reversing 39 Que. S.C. 344.

(§ IV C—528)—CARRYING SHIPMENT OVER ROUTE AT HIGHER TOLL—LIABILITY FOR OVERCHARGE.

A shipment of household goods, originating at Kingsville, consigned to Bridgeburg, Ontario, was delivered by the Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore Rapid R. Co., to the C.P.R. Co. at Lake Shore Junction, and by that line delivered to the G.T.R. Co. at London—the initial carrier, without instructions from the owners, having chosen a route at a higher toll than that available via Michigan Central R. from Lake Shore Junction to Bridgeburg, and being under obligation, in the absence of specific instructions as to the routing off its own lines, to send the goods forward on the lowest toll combination available, should make adjustment accordingly.

Sinclair v. Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore Rapid R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 344.

REDUCTION OF TOLLS BY BOARD—FREIGHT TRAFFIC—UNFAIR—UNREMNERATIVE.

The annual statistical returns made by railway companies showing the average revenue per ton per mile of all freight movements, will not justify a reduction by the Board of tolls. In every case the traffic moved must be of sufficient volume and the hauls of sufficient length to insure proper remuneration. Without prejudice to a pending application for increased tolls a flat blanket C.L. toll of 50 cents per ton for any distance up to and including 50 miles on gravel was voluntarily conceded under s. 341 by railway companies concerned to aid municipalities in Western Ontario in prosecuting the "good roads" movement. The Board cannot order railway companies to put in an unremunerative toll so low as to be unfairly out of line with tolls which are necessary to be maintained in order to permit the continuance of satisfactory operation of railways, due regard being had to proper consideration of the value of the commodities shipped and the services performed, it cannot take into account matters of business policy and railway administration, but can only inquire whether tolls are excessive or unfair.

Western Ontario Munic. v. G.T., M.C. & P.M.R. Cos., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 329.

(§ IV C—529)—OVERCHARGE REFUND.

Application for a refund of an overcharge on the transportation by water of a shipment of carbide from Vancouver to Alberni, B.C., and for a reimbursement of expense in obtaining redress. Held, 1. That the Board had jurisdiction under s. 7 of the act, over the charges for transportation by water when such transport is under the control of a railway company. 2. That the Board could only declare the overcharge illegal, having no jurisdiction to order a refund in a case of mistake. 3. That the Board has not set a precedent by ordering reimbursement of expense in obtaining redress, but that means should be adopted by railway companies to rectify plain and palpable errors leading to overcharges and that if this is not done it may be necessary for the Board to compel railway companies to reimburse those incurring expense in similar cases.

Currie v. C.P.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 31.

TOLLS — ILLEGAL — REFRIGERATOR CARS — HEATERS — ADDITIONAL — REFUND.

Where the toll from the point of shipment to destination provided for a heated refrigerator car, and the transportation of a messenger, a charge made by the carrier for supplying additional heaters is not covered by the tariff of tolls, is illegal, and refund should be allowed.

Plunkett & Savage v. C.P.R. Co., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 178.

(§ IV C—530) — COMMERCE — RAILWAY TOLLS — "MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS" — GRAMOPHONES.

Gramophones and graphophones are "musical instruments" and therefore may be shipped over Canadian railways in mixed carload lots with pianos and other musical instruments at the general carload rate applicable to musical instruments generally under the tariff of tolls fixed by the Canadian freight classification with the approval of the Railway Commission.

Re The Berliner Gramophone Co., 3 D.L.R. 496, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 175.

REGULATING RAILWAY RATES—FREIGHT AND PASSENGER CHARGES—BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

As a railway company is entitled to earn a fair and reasonable return upon the money invested in it, the Board of Railway Commissioners will not reduce the freight and passenger tolls where the results would be an annual deficit to a company, whose net earnings under existing tolls, permitted a dividend of but one per cent upon its outstanding stock. Improper inflation of the stock of a railway company, which is all held by the original builders of the road, may be taken into consideration by the Board of Railway Commissioners in determining whether a reduction of its freight and passenger tolls would permit fair and reasonable earnings upon the money actually invested. The fact that, in the past, the stockholders of a railway company have received back in stock and cash dividends all of their original investment will not justify a reduction by the Board of Railway Commissioners of the freight and passenger tolls which would, with its present earnings, result in a deficit.

Dawson Board of Trade v. White Pass & Yukon R. Co., 2 D.L.R. 552, 21 W.L.R. 7, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 527.

ROUTES—LONGEST HAUL.

The right of the initial carrier to the "longest haul" is recognized by Canadian decisions, and founded on sound principle: the initial carrier in choosing between two routes, equally advantageous to the shipper as to time, toll, and facilities, may select the route which will give it the longest haul, notwithstanding routing directions of the shipper to the contrary, and the principle will be applied where the railway of the initial carrier, technically owned by a separate company maintaining a distinct organization, is, in fact, operated under lease as part of a larger system. [Imperial Steel Wire Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 395, followed.]

Jacobs Asbestos Co. v. Quebec Central R. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 357.

FOREIGN CARRIERS—JURISDICTION.

The Board has no jurisdiction over tolls charged by carriers in a foreign country (U.S.A.). The toll on steel via Minnesota Transfer (St. Paul), over the Soo Line to Moose Jaw, and thence by C.P.R. to Calgary being higher than via Winnipeg to Calgary, but there being no difference in the toll treatment in respect of movements in Canada as between similar movements into and out of Winnipeg and into and out of Moose Jaw, no relief can be given by the Board. (Complaint against freight tolls on steel to be fabricated for bridge construction.)

Sask. Bridge & Iron Co. v. Sault Ste. Marie R. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 443.

JURISDICTION OF RAILWAY BOARD — DECLARATORY ORDERS—JOINT TARIFF.

The Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada has power upon an application by the shipper to make a declaratory order as to what is the proper tariff of tolls applicable to a certain class of goods although no consequential relief was granted to the complainant on the application. The tariffs of tolls applicable to shipments of petroleum and its productions from the United States into Canada is the "joint tariff" of January 1907, filed with the Board to the exclusion of subsequent tariffs filed, but not sanctioned by the Board. [Canadian Oil Cos. v. G.T., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos., 12 Can. Ry. Co. 360 affirmed.]

C.P.R. Co. & G.T.R. Co. v. Canadian Oil Companies, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 201, 47 Can. S.C.R. 155, 23 W.L.R. 216.

CARS—SHIPPING SYSTEM—C.L. TRAFFIC—TRACK SCALE WEIGHT—CARE OF CARS—ABSORPTION OF MOISTURE—ACCUMULATION OF SNOW, ICE AND REFUSE—ALLOWANCES—BLOCKING—DENYANCE — TEMPORARY RACKS.

Application directing the respondents to continue the allowances for blocking, damage and temporary racks and that the railway companies' weighmen should not be allowed to estimate by guesswork the allowances to cover the weight of accumulated ice, snow or refuse which may be in or upon the car.

Canadian Manufacturers', Canadian & Montreal Lumbermen's Assn. v. Canadian Freight Assn. & Railway Cos., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 3, 20 W.L.R. 614.

(§ IV C—535) — REASONABLENESS OF RATES.

Notwithstanding the Board of Railway Commissioners cannot require a foreign express company to file or concur in a joint tariff on traffic originating in the United States for Canadian points, if they do concur with a Canadian express carrier in a joint through tariff that is fair and reasonable, the latter may be required to file it. The Board of Railway Commissioners cannot require the re-instatement of a joint through tariff that formerly existed on express traffic from points in the United States to Canadian points, so as to apply to points in Canada to which it was not formerly applicable, where the reasonableness of the rate to the new point is not shown and the foreign carrier did not concur therein, as, in order to do so, it would be necessary to impose the cost of the additional haul upon the Canadian carrier, which would be unfair, as no portion thereof could be imposed by the Board upon the foreign carrier.

Stockton and Mallinson v. Dominion Express Co., 3 D.L.R. 848.

TOLLS — REDUCTION — HIGHER — COMPARISON — EASTERN AND WESTERN CANADA — DISCRIMINATION.

The history of toll making in Canada East and West of Fort William has been reviewed, the Board finding that no reduction in tolls had heretofore been made in Eastern Canada as a result of charging higher tolls in Western Canada, although it was admitted that the tolls are higher in Western than in Eastern Canada, and that prima facie discrimination in such tolls exists.

Re Western Tolls, 19 D.L.R. 43, 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 123.

WHARFAGE — REASONABLENESS.

Upon complaint made against a charge of one cent per 100 lbs. with a minimum of 85 per car for switching from boat to rail at Port Arthur, the carrier pointed out that the toll was the usual one for inter-switching, except that the minimum was 85 instead of 82, also, that there was a greater service provided because in ordinary switching the carrier that does the work merely takes a loaded car from one point to another, whereas in the case under discussion the carrier must place its empty car, load it, and then switch it to destination. The Board held that the charge was reasonable whether taken by itself or in connection with a wharfage charge of 2½ cents per 100 lbs., imposed for other services and facilities.

Fort William Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 392.

MOUNTAIN AND PRAIRIE SCALES — REASONABLENESS.

The Board gave temporary approval for three months to the applicants' tariff of tolls on the higher mountain scale, under the particular circumstances of the case and without any finding as to the reasonableness of such tolls.

Re Edmonton, Dunvegan & B.C.R. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 395.

JURISDICTION — TOLLS — REASONABLENESS — EXPERIMENTAL — INDUSTRY — DEVELOPMENT.

The jurisdiction of the Board is confined to dealing with the reasonableness of tolls, and it is not its function to put in experimental tolls with a view to developing industry. [B.C. News Co. v. Express Freight

Traffic Assn., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 176, at p. 178, followed.]

Southern Alberta Hay Growers v. C.P.R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 226.

TOLLS — COMPARISON — MOVEMENT.

Tolls for crushed stone of $1.10 and 70 cents per ton from Burritts, Ontario, to Montreal, 121 miles, and to Ottawa, 34 miles, respectively, were found not to be unreasonable in comparison with other tolls in force in the same territory and the large movement of crushed stone thereunder. [Doolittle & Wilcox v. G.T. and C.P. R. Cos. (Stone Quarry Toll case), 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 10, at p. 13, distinguished.]

Provincial Stone & Supply Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 411.

TOLLS — REASONABLENESS — CONTRACT — ADEQUACY OF CONSIDERATION.

The Board will not consider adequacy of consideration in a contract as any justification for favoured treatment by a carrier of a shipper in respect of tolls. [Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 33, at pp. 40, 41, followed.] While it is proper to take into consideration the period a toll has been established, the investment of capital made in the belief that such toll would continue and the further commitments made, there is no property in a toll, mere continuance is only one factor, its general reasonableness must be considered. [International Paper Co. v. G.T., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos. (Pulpwood case), 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 111, followed.] The through toll or the division of the through toll between two points is not necessarily a test of the reasonableness of the local toll to an intermediate point. A blanket toll put in for development of traffic, with but little attention to the resultant profit, does not create an obligation to continue an unduly low toll basis. [International Paper Co. v. G.T., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos. (Pulpwood case), 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 111, followed.] The Board found that the tolls charged by the respondent for the shorter hauls are lower as compared with other carriers in Eastern Canada, and having regard to the nature and volume of traffic, the tolls and scaling in the tariffs of tolls are not unreasonable.

Lake Superior Paper Co. v. Algoma Central & Hudson Bay R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 361.

TOLLS — INCREASE — LOW — COMPETITION — JUSTIFICATION — MISAPPREHENSION.

The respondent is justified in increasing the toll charged, through misapprehension, on asbestos cement in a plastic form, where it is in competition with stove putty used for the same purpose.

Sterne & Sons v. Canadian Freight Assn., 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 171.

Application under s. 323 of the Railway Act to disallow the proposed increase in the tolls on hay shipped from Ontario and Quebec to certain points in the Unit-

States. The respondent had increased the toll 2 cents per 100 lbs. making the local and export tolls equal. The respondent submitted that the old tariff was not fairly remunerative when the nature of the service and the conditions under which it was rendered was taken into account and that the following conspicuous peculiarities distinguish this from other traffic: (1) Movement spasmodic, not capable of being foreseen and not occurring with any regularity as to volume; (2) movement affected by usages of the trade and lack of terminal facilities at the chief markets of the United States, resulting in extreme detention of cars and their diversion to remote places. It was also submitted that there had been a great and unforeseen increase in the cost of construction and operation. Held, 1. That the points urged were factors that might properly be considered in making commodity rates but were not reasons for increasing the rates already established with the knowledge possessed by the framers of traffic conditions. 2. That the volume of general traffic had increased almost pari passu with the increase in the cost of construction and operation. 3. That the present tolls were fairly remunerative and all that the traffic can bear. 4. That all the tariff increases should be disallowed, the respondents not having justified them.

Montreal Hay Shippers' Assn. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 142.

Dominion Railway Board ordered that the freight rate on binder twine, from Auburn, in U.S.A. to points in Canada, less two cents, should be the maximum rate to Welland, the present rate being unreasonable.

Welland v. Canadian Freight Assn., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 140, 22 O.W.R. 260.

DESTINATION — CHANGE — TRAFFIC — "C.L." IN TRANSIT — TOLLS — REASONABLE.

Common carriers under the jurisdiction of the Board will be allowed to make a uniform charge of 83 a car, as a reasonable toll for changing destination of C.L. traffic in transit.

Hyde & Webster v. Can. Freight Assn., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 40.

TOLLS — REASONABLE — SIMILAR CIRCUMSTANCES.

Tolls as arrived at in the United States are not the criteria of reasonable tolls in Canada unless the circumstances in both cases are on all fours. [Manitoba Dairy-men's Assn. v. Dominion & Canadian Northern Express Co., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 142, followed.]

Riley v. Dominion Express Co., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 112.

TOLLS—REASONABLE—LOW—HIGH—PUBLIC INTEREST.

A toll is unreasonable where it is too low just as much as where it is too high. Tolls must be reasonable, having regard to the carrier just as much as to the traveling public.

Burlington Beach Commission v. Hamilton Radial Electric R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 39.

PLACING CARS—PRIVATE SIDING—COMPENSATION.

A carrier which, for the convenience of shippers or consignees and at their request, places their cars on a private siding owned by other parties, is entitled to charge against such shippers or consignees the amount of compensation payable by the carrier to the owners of the siding for such use of it.

Canyon City Lumber Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 9.

TOLLS — THROUGH — ARRANGEMENTS — AMBIGUOUS — CONSTRUCTION — REASONABLE AND PROPER — MILLING-IN-TRANSIT OR ANALOGOUS PRIVILEGES — SHIPMENTS—INWARD AND OUTWARD—SAME MOVEMENT.

Tariffs when ambiguous are to be construed in case of the shipper, when they can reasonably and properly be so read. Where the milling-in-transit or analogous privileges are exercised the inbound and outbound shipments are to be treated as part of the same movement, under the contract, and subject to a through rate arrangement.

United Grain Growers v. Canadian Freight Assn., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 128.

DISCRETION — TOLLS — REASONABLE — JURISDICTION—DEVELOPMENT OF BUSINESS.

Carriers in their discretion may fix tolls to develop business; the Board's jurisdiction is concerned only with the reasonableness of tolls. [Canadian Portland Cement Co. v. G.T. & Bay of Quinte R. Waterloo v. G.T.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 143.

TOLLS—FLAT—UNIT OF WEIGHT.

The Board upholding the principle of charging on the unit of weight, refused to grant a flat toll instead of a toll by weight on shipments of wood from Algonquin Park, Ontario, to municipalities for distribution among their citizens at cost.

Waterloo v. G.T.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 143.

ELECTRIC LINE — UNDERTAKING — VALUE — OPERATION — CHANGE IN SYSTEM — COSTS—INCREASE—CAPITAL CHARGES—REVENUE—TOLLS.

The London & Port Stanley Ry., a steam railway recently operated by electricity in a densely populated part of Ontario, may be taken as shewing in the highest degree, the economies of electric railway operation. To provide for capital charges on the value of the undertaking, and cost of change in the system of operation, as well as for the large increases in wages of employees and costs of supplies, an increased revenue is necessary in order to operate the line as a commercial venture, without loss to the owners or depreciation in the property. Accordingly the passenger toll of 2½ cents per mile was increased by 15 per cent, and the toll on coal by 15 cents per ton, as in the case of steam railways. The Board will extend similar relief to any other electric line whose operation and financial condition require it. [In re Eastern Tolls (Eastern Toll Case), 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 4; In re Increase in Passenger & Freight Tolls (Increase in Rates Case), 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 49, followed.]

In re London & Port Stanley R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 160.

CLASSIFICATION — LOWER — REASONABLE — TOLLS—POULTRY.

Poultry shipments move under a lower classification in Canada than in the United States, and third-class rating for live poultry in earloads is not unreasonable. Live poultry in earloads is not entitled to the same classification and the same tolls as live stock, and in making a freight toll reshipment of the finished product is always taken into consideration.

Warrington v. Canadian Freight Assn., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 155.

TOLL — SPECIAL — HIGHER — REASONABLE — REFUND — JURISDICTION.

The Board refused to give a ruling that a special toll which had already expired was unreasonable, where no further shipments will be made, and the ruling was desired solely for the purpose of claiming a refund from a higher toll charged on the shipment in question. [British American Oil Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 327, at p. 333, followed; British American Oil Co. v. G.T.R. Co. (The Stoy Case), 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 178; Canadian Condensing Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 1, at p. 3, referred to.]

St. Lawrence Pulp & Lumber Corp. v. C.P.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 107.

INCREASE OF TOLLS—ABSORPTION—FOREIGN MANUFACTURER—CANADIAN PRODUCER.

No attention need be paid to the consideration that the toll charged upon the raw material should be such as would conserve the resources of the country. If the toll is an improper one, with which the Board is alone concerned, there is no reason why it should be allowed to stand because the foreign manufacturer absorbs the increase instead of the Canadian producer.

International Paper Co. v. G.T.R., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 111.

TOLLS AND RATES—REASONABLENESS—RELATION OF RATES ON RAW MATERIAL AND FINISHED PRODUCT—EQUALIZING COST OF PRODUCTION AT VARIOUS POINTS—INCREASE OF PREVIOUSLY EXISTING RATES—ONUS.

Carriers are not required to adjust their rates (apart from the general question of reasonableness) in such manner as to equalize cost of manufacturing production in different sections; nor is it necessary that rates on raw material and finished product should be so related as to tend to that result. Where special circumstances have operated for a time, e.g., effective water competition, to induce a carrier to give a low rate, the burden of disproving unreasonableness is not necessarily upon the carrier when the rate is subsequently increased.

Dominion Sugar Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 188.

REASONABLENESS OF TOLLS—EX-LAKE—REDUCTION—COMPETITION BY WATER—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—AGAINST COMMODITIES.

It has not been shown that either in point of water competition, or in point of conditions affecting carriage, there was such a difference of condition as to justify the discrimination between the ex-lake toll on corn and that on wheat, oats, and barley, and corn should, therefore, be given the same treatment as the latter, where an ex-lake toll on it was in effect. It did not appear that there was any such essential difference between the commodities corn and wheat and oats as would justify a higher toll basis in the case of corn.

Montreal Board of Trade v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 351.

TOLLS—PARITY—LONG AND SHORT HAUL—COMPETITION.

The tolls to points midway between Montreal and Toronto and to certain points at the same distance from Montreal as others from Toronto, were placed on a parity, but to points immediately west of Montreal a reduction below fifth class was refused because the advantage of the shortness of the haul against the long haul of the competing Ontario manufacturers would result in equalizing the tolls. The object of a freight classification is the distribution of the cost of transportation, but a refinement of it is impossible with the limited number of merchandise classes, and goods have therefore to be broadly grouped. A reduction in the rating of the dearer commodities that are able to bear higher carrying toll must necessarily tend to curtail the ability of the carrier to make lower tolls, without which cheaper commodities cannot move at a profit.

Montreal Board of Trade v. Canadian Freight Assn., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 429.

REASONABLENESS OF RATES.

Where a railway company transports cars from the end of its line by means of barges, and the cars are unloaded at the dock by a winch, and then hauled by horses over spur tracks, leading to warehouses, proper delivery is made at the dock, and a further charge for hauling and placing cars under an agreement is reasonable although under the tariff filed with the Board through tolls are quoted from the point of shipment to destination, including water transportation.

Kelowna Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 441.

REASONABLENESS — EQUALIZATION AS TO CONDITIONS.

The Board has no right to attempt to equalize geographical, climatic or economic conditions affecting cost of production, but is only concerned with the reasonableness of the toll which the carrier is seeking to collect for the transportation of a given commodity.

Canadian China Clay Co. v. G.T., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 347.

REASONABLENESS OF RATES—TOLLS.

The rates of one railway company are not to be taken as a conclusive measure of what it is reasonable to charge on another railway. It is in the discretion of a railway company to take into consideration, not only the rate on the in-bound raw material, but also the rate on the out-bound product. The circumstances affecting the rate charged on the movement of ore over the C.P.R. differ to such an extent from those attaching to the movement on the Nelson and Fort Sheppard Ry. that it would not be just to take the rate of the former company as a measure of what should be charged by the latter. The Board made an order for additional and lower rates on the movement of ore from Salmo to Nelson, when the valuation does not exceed $15 and $20 per ton. [Dominion Sugar Co. v. Canadian Freight Assn., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 192; Michigan Sugar Co. v. C. W. & L.E.R.W. Co., 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 363, followed.]

TOLLS—REASONABLE—THROUGH AND LOCAL —COMPETITION BY WATER.

The proposed through tolls on pulpwood which were not attacked as unreasonable per se through (being held down by water competition) and being lower than the tolls between the same points on other rough forest products (in force some time without complaint) may fairly be considered reasonable.

International Paper Co. v. G.T., C.P.R. & C.N.R. Cos., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 111.

TOLLS—JOINT—SUM OF THE LOCALS—UNREASONABLE—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION —ONES—CARRIERS.

To charge a joint toll in excess of the sum of the locals is prima facie unreasonable and unjustly discriminatory, and the onus of disproof should, in individual complaints, be on the carrier or carriers concerned. [In re Joint Freight & Passenger Tariffs, 10 Can. Ry. Cas. 343, followed.]

Montreal Board of Trade v. C.P., O. & N.Y., & I.R. Cos., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 6.

TOLLS—INTERPRETATION—LITERAL.

Tariffs of tolls should be interpreted literally without reference to unexpressed intentions of carriers framing them.

Imperial Steel & Wire Co. v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 150.

TOLLS — UNREASONABLE — THROUGH — DIVISION.

A through toll of $1.00 per ton on moulding sand from Fonthill to Toronto, a distance of 78 miles, whereof the G.T.R. Co. receives 78 cents and the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto R. Co. 22 cents, was held not unreasonable. [Canadian Manufacturers Assn. v. Canadian Freight Assn. (General Inter-switching Order), 7 Can. Ry. Cas. 202, followed.]

Fonthill Gravel Co. v. G.T. & Niagara, etc., R. Cos., 20 D.L.R. 976, 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 248.

SHIPMENT OF CHINA CLAY FROM ENGLAND—THROUGH TOLLS—CONNECTING RAIL CARRIER—EQUALIZATION.

Where china clay from Cornwall, England, for Canadian delivery, moves under through bills of lading at a through toll to the point of destination, any change advancing the rail carriers' import toll representing part of the through movement would result in the Canadian carriers not being able to hold the business in competition with foreign ports and rail carriers quoting a lower through toll, and where the point of production of the Canadian product is from 60 to 80 miles further than Montreal from the majority of the western destinations, and a two-line haul has to be employed as against one, the Board will not make the local joint toll from the point of Canadian production equal to the Montreal import toll to the same points of destination.

Canadian China Clay Co. v. G.T., C.P. & C.N.R. Cos., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 347.

(§ IV C—537)—EXPERIMENTAL TOLLS—DEVELOPMENT OF BUSINESS.

It is not the function of the Railway Board to order experimental tolls, against the objection of the carrier, with a view to develop business, but the Board is to deal with the reasonableness of the transportation charges, recognizing the right of the carrier to a reasonable profit. [Florida Fruit Co. v. A.C.L. R. Co., 17 J.C.C.R. 500, specially referred to.]

B.C. News Co. v. Express Traffic Assn., 4 D.L.R. 239, 21 W.L.R. 5.

DISCRETION—TOLLS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—COMPETITION.

A toll obtaining on one railway cannot be claimed to be unjustly discriminatory simply because a toll on another which is put into effect for competitive reasons is lower, it being within the discretion of a carrier whether it shall meet competition or not.

Edmonton, Clover Bar Sand Co. v. G.T. P.R. Co., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 95.

§ IV C—538)—CLASSIFICATION—C.L. AND L.C.L. TRAFFIC.

The Board refused an application to add flannelette sheets to the dry goods list of the Canadian Freight Classification at the same rating provided for "Cotton piece goods," viz., L.C.L. 2nd class, and C.L. 4th class, instead of a rating 1st class in any quantity with no C.L. rating as in United States Official and Western Classifications.

Montreal Board of Trade v. Canadian Freight Assn., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 429.

(IV C—340)—SEASONED AND UNSEASONED WOOD—EQUALIZATION—DISCRIMINATION.

Railway companies are not obliged to equalize the disadvantages of the shippers from the standpoint of the costs of production. The basis of toll-making so far as the unit of weight is concerned is 100 lbs., and the tolls vary with the weight. The Board will not require seasoned and unseasoned wood to be carried at the same C.L. toll, irrespective of weight, in order to equalize the disadvantage arising to shippers without capital as compared with shippers having capital, to do so would create unjustly discriminatory conditions. TOLLS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—UNDUE PREFERENCE—QUESTION OF FACT—EFFECTIVE COMPETITION—BY WATER AND FOREIGN CARRIERS.

The Railway Act does not forbid all discriminations and preferences, but only forbids unjust discrimination or undue preference, and whether either one or the other exists in any particular case is a question of fact to be decided. The Board found that the existing discrimination between the tolls in Eastern and Western Canada is not unjust, but is justified by effective water competition, and by the competition of U.S. Railways throughout Eastern Canada [The International and Toronto Board of Trade Rate Case].

Re Western Tolls, 19 D.L.R. 43, 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 123.

DISCRIMINATION—REBATES—PASSES.

A claim of unjust discrimination, between tolls charged for delivery of freight at different points, some of which have and others have not, further railway communication before final delivery is made, cannot be supported where the same circumstances and conditions do not and cannot exist.

Kelowna Board of Trade v. C.P. R. Co., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 441.

DISCRIMINATION—REBATE—PASSES.

Application that the tolls charged were unjustly discriminatory and that they should be reduced, being unreasonable per se. The applicant submitted that the existing commodity or fifth-class rate from Auburn in the United States to points in Canada, less two cents, should be the maximum subject to the qualification that when the rates from Welland, Ontario, to shorter distance points were less than the Auburn rate they should apply as maximum. It was alleged by the respondent and admitted by the applicant that there was no movement of binder twine from Auburn into Canada. Held, 1. (Mr. Commissioner McLean):—That since the rate from Auburn was only a paper rate there could be no competition and no unjust discrimination. 2. Held, however (the Chief Commissioner and Mr. Commissioner Mills):—That the toll was unreasonable and the Auburn rate less two cents should be applied.

Town of Welland v. Canadian Freight Assn., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 140, 22 O.W.R. 290.

Complaint of unjust discrimination against the respondent, alleging that the tolls for export from Routher and other points north of Noming to Montreal are excessive and bear a higher proportion to the locals from points north of Noming than from points south of it. Held, that the export tolls at Montreal from Loranger, Hebert and Campeau must be reduced to 5 cents from Routher and Mont Laurier to 6 cents and a tariff to that effect filed. UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—PREFERENCE.

A mere statement as to difference of tolls is not conclusive as shewing the existence of unjust discrimination or undue preference; there must be evidence of the traffic moving and the effect thereon, and the discrimination must be one creating actual detriment to complainants to make it unjust.

TOLLS—PERMISSIVE—JURISDICTION—AMENDATORY—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—RAILWAY ACT, s. 341 (a).

The Board has no power under s. 341 (a) to extend the carriage of traffic so as to include a practice not already existing where no question of unjust discrimination arises. The granting of the tolls provided for by s. 341 is permissible so far as the carrier is concerned; the jurisdiction of the Board under that section is simply amendatory.

Waterloo v. G.T.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 143.

WHARFAGE TOLLS ON THROUGH SHIPMENTS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

It is not unreasonable that the combined tolls on shipments from the east contracted to Fort William, delivered and stored there, and subsequently shipped west should exceed those charged from the same eastern shipping point to the same western destination, for the trans-shipment of which the carrier must necessarily provide facilities at Fort William, as in the latter case there is but one transaction or contract, whilst in the former there are two; therefore it is not unjust discrimination against Fort William to impose a wharfage toll on shipments to that point and not to exact it on through shipments.

Fort William Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 491.

STANDARD FREIGHT MILEAGE TARIFF—MAIN AND BRANCH LINES—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

Difference in density of traffic as between main and branch lines does not affect the application of a standard freight mileage tariff; therefore, all points, whether on a main or branch line, within the same mileage group, should be given the same toll, and it is unjust discrimination to make a different toll against one point of the group.

(§ IV C—541)—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—PASSENGER TOLLS—COMPETITION.

Under s. 315, unjust discrimination does not exist, where there is actual competition at the initial and terminal points reached by railway lines, and the potential choice of a passenger at an intermediate point whereby he may elect to buy a through ticket for the whole distance between the initial and terminal points, cheaper than one on a mileage basis from such intermediate point to the terminal point, spreads the effect of competitions over the whole journey.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—STOP-OVER PRIVILEGES—CANNERS—DIFFERENT LOCALITIES.

The Board held that it was unjust discrimination to grant stop-over privileges to canners in one locality and refuse them to canners in another locality.

REDUCTION OF TOLLS—FARMERS ATTENDING AGRICULTURAL CONVENTION—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

Under ss. 77, 315, 341, the Board has no jurisdiction to compel a railway company to issue reduced tolls to farmers attending agricultural conventions, or to any other class of the community. It is entirely within the discretion of the carriers whether they will do so or not, and for the Board to do so would be unjust discrimination against other classes of the community.

Roy v. Can. Passenger Assn., 17 Can. Ry. Cas. 320.

COMMUTATION TICKETS—CANCELLATION—STANDARD PASSENGER TOLLS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

For many years the respondent company sold ten-trip tickets between Quebec and St. Catherine station for $4, and similar tickets to other suburban points. Upon these tickets being cancelled the Board refused an application for their re-establishment. No contract was shown with any of the applicants who built summer cottages at St. Catherine, that if these were established on the line of the railway they would forever give these ten-trip tickets. It is a well-settled principle that a railway company will not be ordered to establish passenger tolls less than its standard toll unless it can be shown that an undue or unreasonable preference or advantage has been given to any particular description of traffic or that unjust discrimination has been shown to exist between different localities under substantially similar circumstances and conditions.

Brown v. Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 342.

(§ IV C—542a)—COMPETITION—DISSIMILAR CONDITIONS.

It constitutes an unlawful preference and discrimination, under s. 317 of the Railway Act, for a railway company to carry for an independent contractor over a road he is constructing which had not yet been opened to the public for traffic by an order of the Board of Railway Commissioners under s. 261 of the Railway Act, camp and contractor's supplies other than those actually necessary for the construction of the road, to be sold by the contractor for his own benefit. The fact that the officers of a railway company that gave a contractor, who was building it, a preference in the transportation of freight over the road before it was opened for traffic to the public by an order of the Board of Railway Commissioners, under s. 261 of the Railway Act, did not have knowledge that the goods transported were being sold by the contractor for his own benefit, or that they were not camp and contractor's supplies necessary for the construction of the road, will not relieve the company from the charge of giving an unlawful preference under s. 317 of the act, where no attempt was made by them to ascertain if the goods transported were actually necessary to the construction of the road.

The tolls for the lake and rail route being on a competitive basis and the all-rail route eastbound having the advantage of one cent over the rail portion of the route westbound to Winnipeg there was no unjust discrimination. The Board is concerned with seeing that tolls are on a relatively equal basis. It is not its function to equalize costs of production and upon the evidence a case for reduction in tolls was not made out. [Canadian Portland Cement Co. v. G.T. & Ry. of Quinte R. Cos., 9 Can. Ry. TERMINAL — UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — JURISDICTION—AMENDMENTS AND SUPPLEMENTS.

Where no unjust discrimination is shewn among shippers, it is not the function of the Board to exercise its jurisdiction by inquiring into the status of connecting carriers, approving amendments and supplements to the tariffs of tolls of the line carriers engaged in international traffic for the purpose of removing a terminal carrier as a participator on the ground that it is of the character known in the United States as an industrial railway. The Essex Terminal R. Co. (Incorporated 2 Edw. VII., c. 62) was found by the Board upon the evidence not to be an industrial railway with in the terms of the Industrial Railways Case, 29 I.C.C.R. 212. Amendments to the tariffs of line carriers engaged in international traffic removing the Essex Terminal as a participating carrier therefrom were suspended.

Essex Terminal R. Co. v. G.T., M.C. Wabash and N.Y.C.R. Cos., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 301.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — JURISDICTION — REFUND.

It is unjust discrimination, other things being equal, to charge a higher toll from one point of origin as compared with another, at practically the same distance from the same point of destination. The Board has no jurisdiction to direct a refund of a portion of a toll charged and collected under a tariff legally in force. [Montreal Board of Trade v. G.T. and C.P. Ry. Cos., 14 Can. Ry. COMPETITION BY WATER—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

It is not unjust discrimination nor undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage under ss. 315 (5), 318, for a carrier to charge lower than normal toll from the point of shipment to a destination point owing to effective water competition, than on shipments from the same point to an intermediate point where such competition is not effective.

City of Chatham & Chatham Board of Trade v. C.P.R., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 391.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—MILLING IN TRANSIT—CANADIAN AND FOREIGN MILLERS—TOLLS—ADJUSTMENT—COMPETITION—PARTICIPATING CARRIERS.

Unjust discrimination in favour of United States milling points as against Canadian milling points is not established by proof that, in order to meet the toll of United States lines and participate in the business, milling-in-transit privileges and tolls are allowed over Canadian lines in respect of shipments milled at the former points, and not to shipments milled at the latter, where it appears that the Canadian milling points can enjoy similar tolls and privileges by an alternative route through the United States to the same destinations so that there is no actual disadvantage in practice. Unjust discrimination is not a matter of tolls in the abstract, and the Board is not justified in interfering on that ground without an affirmative shewing that there is actual detriment resulting from the existing toll adjustment. The abrogation of milling-in-transit privileges, formerly allowed in respect of shipments milled at points on the respondent's line in Canada destined to points on or via participating lines and their connections, was held not to be unjust discrimination, as it was shewn that the participating carriers did not grant the privileges in question to millers on their own lines under similar conditions.

DISCRETION—WATER COMPETITION—TOLLS—TERMINAL COMBINATION—RAIL AND WATER—ALL RAIL—LOWER—COMMON DISTRICT—OPERATING AND TRAFFIC CONDITIONS—SIMILAR AND DISSIMILAR—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—TRAFFIC MOVEMENT—SMALL VOLUME.

The main question in this case relates to the terminal toll which represents the toll quoted from points in eastern territory to those in western and vice versa, where the movement is open by water, or where the distance from water is so short that the combination rail and water toll is lower than the regular all rail toll, the Board has invariably held that carriers, in their discretion, may or may not meet water competition or competition of any form, and may elect to attempt to get business at small remuneration or do without it altogether, subject to the qualification that when competition is met the competitive toll should be extended to all points in a common district where similar operating and traffic conditions obtain. The volume of traffic moving by water into Nanaimo being very small as compared with that into Victoria, conditions are dissimilar, there is no unjust discrimination. [Nanaimo Board of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 224, reheard and affirmed; B.C. News Co. v. Express Traffic Assn., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 170; Midland Lumber Shippers v. G.T.R. Co., (Pine Lath Refund Case) 22 Can. Ry. UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—MILLING IN TRANSIT—THROUGH TOLLS—COMPETITION.

The Board, in the exercise of its jurisdiction to prevent unjust discrimination has power to order that milling-in-transit be allowed to flour mill owners applying therefor, upon proof that circumstances and conditions with respect to the traffic from the applicants' mill are substantially similar to those of mills already enjoying such rate.

Riverside Lumber Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 17.

COMPETITION BY WATER—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

Where the underlying principle of competition by water affects the whole toll structure, a point unaffected by such competition is not unjustly discriminated against in not receiving as favourable tolls as points that are affected.

Cowichan Ratepayers Assn. v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 395.

STORAGE TOLLS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—COMPETITION.

The practice of railway companies in granting the lower forwarding storage tolls than the local storage tolls is not unjust discrimination, because tolls which otherwise of necessity might be charged on parity may differ one from the other as a result of competitive conditions.

Port Arthur & Fort William Boards of Trade v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 406.

COMPETITION—FOREIGN ROAD—TOLLS AND RATES—REASONABLENESS.

A carrier is not obliged to meet a lower rate made by a competing foreign road and failure to meet it is not necessarily evidence of the unreasonableness of the higher rate. (Davy v. (§ IV C—543)—DRIED FRUIT—BLANKET TOLL—COMPETITION—LONG AND SHORT HAULS.

Dried fruit is carried eastward from the Pacific coast under tariffs giving a blanket toll of $1.10 from San Francisco to, e.g., St. Paul, Duluth, Buffalo and New York. The same toll is applied to junction points adjacent to the international boundary, and there is the same toll to Winnipeg. The toll to Toronto is the same as to Buffalo, while Montreal has the same toll in competition with New York. The toll to Fort William is the toll to Duluth, plus the by water toll from Duluth to Fort William, and wharfage charges at Fort William. Competition is thus more effective in favour of Toronto than Fort William. There being no movement of dried fruit via Winnipeg and Fort William to Toronto—the traffic moving through United States points only—therefore, there is no violation of the long and short haul clause, s. 315 (5), and the existing toll adjustment has not been shown to work detrimentally to Fort William.

Mathias v. C.P., C.N. & G.T.P.R. Cos., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 410.

INTERSWITCHING CHARGES—LONG AND SHORT HAUL.

Under the General Interswitching Order No. 4988 (July 4, 1908) (see 7 Can. Ry. Cas. 332), the carrier that has the right or obligation to perform the interswitching service is entitled to the interswitching toll applicable to any distance within four miles, however short it may be, so long as the toll is not graduated according to distance.

Brampton Milling Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 337.

INTERSWITCHING TOLLS—DISTRIBUTION AS TO ZONES.

It is a principle of tariff making to break the toll groups at flag stations or unimportant points as far as practicable. Acting upon this principle the Board refused an application to distribute the zones in respondents' city of Hamilton terminals, within which interswitching tolls of 1 cent and 1½ cents per 100 lbs. respectively prevailed.

Steel Co. of Canada v. Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 339.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—TOLLS—REDUCTION—REASONABLENESS.

The application of Montreal manufacturers for a reduction in tolls below the fifth class on shipments to points on the branches north of the main line of the C.P., Montreal to Toronto, and north of the Grand Trunk main line, Toronto to Sarnia, was refused because all manufacturers shipping to the northern localities were subject to the fifth class, and the Board was not dealing with the reasonableness of the tolls, but with unjust discrimination against Montreal.

(§ IV C—544)—DISCRETION—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—FACILITIES—EQUAL BASIS—SPURS—SWITCHING TOLLS—SPECIAL OR ARBITRARY—RAILWAY ACT, s. 226.

The object of s. 226 was to compel carriers, instead of leaving it entirely to their discretion, to construct spurs furnishing facilities to all traders on an equal basis, not subject to any special or arbitrary switching toll for the use of such spur, and failure to do so is unjust discrimination, but if, after the spur has been constructed, the traffic moved is not sufficient to warrant its construction, the loss is on the trader and not on the carrier.

Hepworth Silica Pressed Brick Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 9. [Affirmed 21 D.L.R. 480, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 365, 51 Can. S.C.R. 81.]

(§ IV C-545) — EXPRESS AND C.O.D. CHARGES.

It is an unjust discrimination against a shipper, as well as an excessive charge, for an express company to remit money collected on a C.O.D. shipment to the shipper by an express money order instead of sending him the money therefor, and to exact for such service the regular merchandise C.O.D. rate which was greatly in excess of that chargeable for the money order.

EXPRESS AND C.O.D. CHARGES.

It appeared that the rates charged by an express company between certain points were higher than those of another express company for similar or greater distances, but that such rates were within the maximum prescribed by the Board in the general inquiry relating to express companies' rates; as a result of the judgment upon that inquiry, the discrimination will disappear when the new rates come into force.

(§ IV C-546) — UNJUST DISCRIMINATION — AGAINST COMMODITIES — MILEAGE BASIS — DIFFERENT COMMODITIES.

Putting the tolls on cornmeal on a mileage basis by reducing them from 17½ cents to 15 cents per 100 lbs., from Montreal to New Brunswick points, would be unjust discrimination against the Maritime millers, and these tolls should not be disturbed.

(§ IV C-547) — PROVINCIAL RAILWAYS — FREIGHT TOLLS — REBATE AGREEMENT — ANTI-REBATE RAILWAY ACT (QUE.).

An agreement between a provincial railway company in Quebec and a shipper, whereby a rebate is allowed upon freight tolls, is not necessarily a violation of the Anti-rebate Act, Que. 1906 (art. 6607 et seq., R.S.Q. 1909), although it stipulates that the shipper is to give the railway all his shipments, where the rebate is granted in respect of other valuable considerations moving from the shipper, such as the assumption of the task of loading and unloading; and a railway company which has received tolls paid to it on the faith of such an agreement made prior to the passing of the Anti-rebate Act, cannot set up the statute in answer to the shipper's action for recovery of rebates where the rebates are not shown to constitute an unjust discrimination, particularly where the tolls paid had not been authorized by any provincial order-in-council. [Kennedy v. Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 161, 21 Que. K.B. 85, affirmed in the result.] Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co. v. Kennedy, 15 D.L.R. 400, 48 Can. S.C.R. 520, 13 E.L.R. 566.

TOLLS ON FREIGHT—SPUR LINE—REBATE.

In subs. 3 of s. 226 of the Railway Act, Can., the words "tolls charged by the company in respect of the carriage of traffic for the applicant over the spur line" mean the tolls charged for the transportation, on the railway company's line, of goods carried to or from the applicant's premises and not tolls charged for the movement of freight on the spur alone; consequently a railway ordered to build a spur line to an industrial plant under s. 226 at the expense of the applicant and to move cars over it without additional toll, may be directed by the Railway Commission to rebate to the applicant a fixed sum per car from the tolls on business done with the applicant and carried over the spur line until the cost of construction shall have been repaid by the railway.

TRAIN SERVICE—PASSENGERS.

In answer to complaints that a railway company during a period of depression has decreased and impaired the passenger service upon one of its local lines forming part of its system, the company submitted figures shewing a deficit as a result of the operations of its system as a whole within the province. It appeared, however, that the earnings of the local line in question shewed a decrease in the passenger traffic but there had been an increase in its freight earnings, resulting in net increase, the Board held, that the local line should not be blamed for the deficit on the system generally (due to the operation of lines which could hardly be said to have passed beyond the construction stage), that the former passenger service should be restored, and it so ordered.

The Board of Railway Commissioners will not permit a railway company to change the places at which its predecessors in title were compelled to make stops where by its act of incorporation the municipal by-laws granting franchises for the building of road and designating such stopping places were continued in force.

Re London & Lake Erie Transportation Co., 10 D.L.R. 211.

TRAIN SERVICE—ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

Suburban populations, usually dependent on electric railways for ingress and egress to and from large cities, should have a satisfactory train service.

East Greenfield Park v. Montreal & Southern Counties R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 208.

TRAIN SERVICE—STEAM AND ELECTRIC—BREACH OF AGREEMENT—JURISDICTION.

Where respondent steam lines have been paralleled by electric lines, which have taken practically all the business, and ordering the respondent to give an increased service, might secure a better service from the electric line, such an order would not be justified in the public interest, where this could only be done at an unjustifiable cost and entail a continuing loss to the respondent. A specific breach of an agreement must be shown to give the Board jurisdiction under 8 & 9 Edw. VII, c. 32, s. 1.

City of Hamilton v. G.T.R., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 211.

FLAG STATIONS—AGENTS—EARNINGS.

The practice of the Board is not to direct that a flag station shall be made an agency point unless there is a business of $15,000 per annum at the point in question. Carriers with a view to expanding business, have a wider discretion to make ventures in creating agency points than the Board. Where the earning power of a carrier at a station is low the matter to be considered is what accommodation it is reasonable for the public to expect.

Re Lower Argyle Station, 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 434.

FACILITIES — FLAG STATION — THROUGH TRAFFIC.

In adjudicating on the location of stops the Board will take into consideration the average of convenience to the public and the obligation of the carriers to afford reasonable facilities, having in view the nature of traffic on the railway, and will give due regard to the effect of additional stops on the ability of the carriers to give efficient through service in competition with other lines. The general intention of the Railway Act is that the initial discretion as to the location of station shall be with the carrier. The Board is justified in intervening only when there has been an unreasonable exercise of this discretion, or when there are exceptional circumstances.

Hartin v. C.N.R., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 437.

TRAIN SERVICE—LOSS OF REVENUE—DIVERSION OF TRAFFIC.

It would not be reasonable to compel a carrier to operate its train service in connection with a competing carrier and thus lose revenue by the diversion of its traffic to its competitor, if it can handle it as well, or reasonably as well, over its own lines. Cole v. C.N.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 429.

TRAIN SERVICE—AGREEMENT—PASSENGER AND FREIGHT—STATION—JURISDICTION—PUBLIC INTEREST.

By agreement between the G.T. and C.P. R. Cos., dated May 13, 1896, confirmed by statute, 59 Vict. c. 6 (C), the Canadian Pacific were given a lease for a period of 50 years of the joint use of the Grand Trunk line between Hamilton Junction and the city of Toronto, known as the "Joint Section." By the 16th clause of the agreement, the Canadian Pacific agreed to do through passenger and freight business over the joint section, but not local business between either Hamilton or Toronto and an intermediate station on the joint section. Oakville is a town on the joint section, with a population of over 3,000 inhabitants, about 21 miles west of Toronto. Many of its residents have their offices or places of business in Toronto. For many years the G.T.R. gave a fairly satisfactory suburban service between Oakville and Toronto, until in January, 1917, the 11.45 p.m. train out of Toronto was discontinued to economize fuel, and the Canadian Pacific voluntarily agreed to stop its 7.15 p.m. train out of Toronto for Buffalo. In June, 1917, the Grand Trunk re-established its 11.45 p.m. train and discontinued it again in September, 1917. The Canadian Pacific being unwilling, the Board ordered its 7.15 p.m. train out of Toronto to stop at Oakville. Assistant Chief Commissioner:—The confirmatory act is not a special act within the meaning of s. 3 of the Railway Act, but merely validated a private arrangement between two railway companies and does not make any enactment affecting the general public. Commissioner McLean:—The confirmatory act is a special act within the meaning of s. 3 of the Railway Act, but there is no such repugnancy between the provisions of the special act and the Railway Act as to oust the jurisdiction of the Board in matters of train service. [G.T. & C.P.R. Cos. v. Toronto (Viaduct Case), 11 Can. Ry. Cas. 38, at p. 39; Municipality of La Salle v. C.P. & New York Central R. Cos., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 190, at pp. 192, 193, followed.]

Town of Oakville v. G.T. & C.P.R. Cos., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 433.

FACILITIES—POLICE REGULATIONS.

The obligations of a carrier are to provide proper facilities for the arrival and departure of passengers, subject to regulations for proper policing of its station premises within which the allotment of space falls. [Twin City Transfer Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 323, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 433, followed.]

Banif Livery & Busmen v. C.P.R. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 425.

PASSENGER FACILITIES—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

A carrier's obligation, at a station to its passengers, is to provide proper facilities for their arrival and departure, but it is not permitted to discriminate between passengers so using its facilities by ss. 284 and 317. [Twin City Transfer Co. v. C.P. R. Co., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 323, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 435; Cuneo Fruit & Importing Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 414, followed.] Congreave v. C.P.R. Co., 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 423.

TRAIN SERVICE—STOPPING AT STATIONS.

Ordinary local trains should stop at stations where there is a sufficient volume of traffic to call for additional train service, as the operating conditions and control of operations are entirely different and distinct from through express trains. It is no answer to such a claim that the existing service is unremunerative.

Municipality of La Salle v. C.P. & New York Central R. Cos., 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 190.

Under s. 333 (5) of the Railway Act, when a rail carrier subject to the jurisdiction of the Board owns, operates or uses a water carrier as a direct connection with the parent rail carrier, between any Canadian terminus of the rail carrier and another port in Canada, the earnings for the water portion should be considered as part of the through route and toll. Applying this principle to shipments of silver lead ore from New Hazelton to Vancouver, the earnings at the former station were found by the Board to justify the retention of a station agent at that point.

G.T.P.R. Co. v. Town of New Hazelton, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 169.

PRIVATE SIDING—TRAFFIC FACILITIES.

A private siding, not on the railway right of way, is not part of the railway, and a carrier cannot be ordered, at the instance of a stranger, to connect it with the railway for the purpose of operating it as part of the railway or to place cars upon it for receipt of traffic.

Kammerer v. C.P.R., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 74.

TRAIN SERVICE—CONNECTIONS—INCONVENIENCE.

Upon an application for better train service, the Board declined to make an order where it appeared that the proposed change would disrupt the existing schedule of connections, cause longer waits at some junction points, break connections at others, and result in increased inconvenience to persons using the line who were not parties to the application.

Town of Massena Springs v. G.T.R. Co., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 34.

PASSENGER TRAIN SERVICE—MILK TRAFFIC—CONGESTION—PUBLIC INTEREST—DISCRIMINATION.

The Board refused to direct the previously existing passenger train service to be restored, where a change made in such service upon the opening of new station at North Toronto relieved the congestion of traffic at the Union Station, but incidentally involved unloading milk at West Toronto instead of Parkdale, in the City of Toronto, the change appearing to be in the public interest and to involve no unjust discrimination or unfairness in the treatment of the particular interests prejudicially affected.

Harris & Son v. C.P.R., 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 21.

TRAIN SERVICE—STOP—TOLLS—LOW—HIGHER—COMMUNICATION—EARNINGS—FRACTIONAL—EMERGENCY—TRANSPORTATION OF PASSENGERS—INCONVENIENCE—CONNECTIONS.

The applicant having accepted on its express train in question the respondent's tickets issued at specially low commutation tolls to Oakville out of which it only receives a fraction of the earnings and the emergency which justified the previous order having ceased, it is inequitable that the applicant should be forced to continue the train service stop, or that larger numbers of passengers who pay for their transportation at a higher toll should be inconvenienced and their connections jeopardized. In view of the fact that it has been found impossible to set back the running time of train G.T.R. No. 89, leaving Toronto at 5.45 p.m. and that train G.T.R. No. 7 formerly leaving Toronto at 11.45 p.m. has been restored, the Board cannot consistently order any further train service to or from Oakville, as the trains are reasonably spaced and sufficient for the accommodation of passengers and the previous order to stop the C.P.R. train should be rescinded. [Oakville v. G.T. & C.P.R. Co., 22 Can. Ry. Cas. 433, order rescinded.]

C.P.R. Co. v. Town of Oakville & G.T.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 375.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION—STATIONS—TRANSFER COMPANIES—RAILWAY ACT, ss. 284, 317.

A carrier may rent space in its stations to transfer companies on different terms for each without coming within the inhibitions as to discrimination contained in ss. 284, 317 of the Railway Act.

Twin City Transfer Co. v. C.P.R. Co., 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 435, 27 W.L.R. 384.

STATIONS—LOCATION.

The Board refused an application for an order directing a railway company to establish a station at the crossing of another railway about two miles distant from its existing station where a townsite had been located, elevators erected and a municipal body organized, the usual distance between stations being eight or ten miles. [Eby v. G.T.P.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 22, followed.]

Town of Forward v. C.P.R. Co., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 377.

The board will not require the establishment of a station within two or three miles of another one. In this case the board declined to interfere with the location of stations proposed by a railway company.

Eby v. G.T.P.R. Co., 20 W.L.R. 629.

LOCATION OF STATIONS—DISCRIMINATION—ESTABLISHMENT OF STATION WITHOUT APPROVAL OF BOARD—DOMINION RAILWAY ACT, s. 258.

Upon a former application, the Board decided that it was impossible to direct the railway company to give freight and passenger accommodation at King street in the village of Entwistle, and approved of a station site for Entwistle at another point, suggested by a railway company; and the Board now declined to reconsider the matter, no new facts being disclosed, upon the application of the village corporation. Reference was made upon the application to a station established at Pembina Mines as a discrimination against the village; but the board pointed out that the company had established this station without approval, in disregard of the specific requirements of s. 258 of the Railway Act.

Entwistle Village of, & G.T.P.R. Co., 27 W.L.R. 832.

(§ IV D—551)—MAINTENANCE OF AGENT AT STATION—AMOUNT OF REVENUE.

The Board has fixed an arbitrary amount of $15,000 as the revenue which a railway company should derive at a station to warrant it in ordering the maintenance of an agent.

Ozias v. C.P.R. Co., 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 425. STATION AGENT—ADEQUATE SERVICE—APPOINTMENT.

The Board refused an application for the appointment of an agent where it appeared that it was almost impossible for railways to obtain agents to man stations much more important than the 4th class station in question, and an agent could not be installed without depriving a more important station of adequate service.

Edmonton Board of Trade v. C.N.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 7.

STATIONS—FLAG STATIONS—NECESSITY FOR APPROVAL OF BOARD.

When a railway company opens a station and appoints a permanent agent there, business in that locality is built up on the assumption that the station will continue to be a permanent station; and the railway board should be consulted and the representatives of the public heard, before such a station is closed, or turned into a mere flag station.

Re Removal of Agents from Agency Stations, 27 W.L.R. 387.

MAINTENANCE OF DEPOSITS.

A former order of the Board approving of the location of a station at Prince George was rescinded, and a new location at a point three thousand feet east of the eastern boundary of Fort George townsite was approved, notwithstanding an engineering difficulty, Mr. Commissioner McLean dissenting. Matters to be considered in determining the location of a station site, discussed.

Re G.T.P.R. Station Site, 24 W.L.R. 584.

(§ IV D-552)—TERMINAL TRAFFIC FACILITIES—REFUSAL TO FRUIT DEALERS—UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

Under the Railway Act, the statutory duties of the railway company to furnish facilities relate, in so far as the terminal station is concerned, merely to the unloading and delivery of the goods, and do not include facilities for their sale; thus the prohibitions against undue preference or unjust discrimination in furnishing facilities do not apply to the failure or refusal of a railway company to allot space to a wholesale fruit firm in a building owned by it used by other fruit dealers as a market into which railway tracks run. (§ IV D-554)—PRACTICE—TRAIN SERVICE—REVENUES—REMUNERATIVE—JURISDICTION—MUNICIPAL AGREEMENTS—BY-LAWS—7 & 8 EDW. VII. c. 117 (C) s. 10.

Under the established practice, train service without such cash remunerative revenues as will enable the carrier to continue its operations cannot be ordered by the Board under the Railway Act, but in view of municipal by-laws and agreements confirmed by s. 10 of 7 & 8 Edw. VII. c. 117 (C.), the Board can only exercise in the present instance the jurisdiction which enables it to order that the by-laws should be carried out by furnishing the train service stipulated for therein, even though such service cannot be furnished except at a loss to the company. TRAIN SERVICE—TRAFFIC—INCREASE IN—UNNECESSARY—CURTAILMENT—MINIMUM—"CARRY ON BUSINESS."

As traffic increases, train service must be increased, but even where business is decreasing, such minimum train service as will enable the necessary and ordinary business of the country to be carried on should be given.

PASSENGER TRAIN SERVICE—REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF TRAINS WEEKLY.

On the 1st November, 1913, the company were ordered by the Board to furnish a daily (except Sunday) train passenger service on their line of railway west of Alaskan; but, on the application of the company, the order was now varied by authorizing the company to reduce the daily service to a three-times-a-week service each way between Kindersley and Hanna till the 1st June, 1914.

(§ IV D-555)—POTATOES—SPECIAL EQUIPMENT—OPERATING CONDITIONS AND EFFICIENCY.

The fitting of cars used for shipping potatoes with special equipment, such as air spaces in the sides and bottoms, to prevent damage by freezing, is a matter concerned with operating conditions and efficiency, and the Board is not justified in making an experimental order requiring carriers to so equip cars, there being no assurance that an improvement will be effected.

Potato Shippers v. C.P.R. Co., 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 46.

REGULATION OF REFRIGERATION CARS—RATES.

Upon an application by the Canadian Freight Assn. to revise the charges provided by the Car Service Rules with respect to refrigerator cars, the chief complaint was as to the detention of the cars by consignees. Held, that no order could be made until it was affirmatively shown that the provisions of s. 6 of the form of bill of lading authorized by the order of the Board No. 7502, of the 13th July, 1909, were insufficient to furnish a remedy for the grievance. Semble, that, if it is shown that s. 6 is inadequate for the purpose, there is sufficient of a grievance to warrant an increase of charges on refrigerator cars detained more than two days over the authorized free time.

Canadian Freight Assn. v. Winnipeg Board of Trade & Canadian Manufacturers' Assn., 21 W.L.R. 646.

(§ IV D-556)—CONDUCTOR DEMANDING ILLEGAL COMMISSION FROM SHIPPERS FOR EMPTY CARS—RAILWAY ACT, R.S.C. c. 37, s. 317, SUBS. 3 (A), (B), (C), s. 427, AND s. 431 SUBS. 3—REFUSAL OF BOARD TO INTERFERE—REMEDY, ACT 8-9 EDW. VII. c. 33.

A conductor of a railway company was in the habit of refusing to give to shippers empty cars in which to load their goods unless the applicant paid a sum of money either directly, or, as alleged, through the agent of a certain lumber company. The Board refused to take action against the conductor under the Railway Act, R.S.C. c. 37, s. 317, subs. 3 (a), (b), (c), s. 427, and s. 431, subs. 3, on the ground that it was not in the best interest of railway administration for the Board to interfere with the proper disciplining by a company of employees at fault unless there was a failure on the part of the railway company to administer such discipline as the public safety demanded.—Held, that the proper remedy was criminal proceedings under the provisions of the Secret Commissions Act, 89 Edw. VII, c. 33.

Re Conductor, 29 W.L.R. 449.

TO FURNISH CARS.

The shipper should have something to say with regard to the equipment necessary for the purposes of his business. Box cars were held, upon the evidence, to be suitable—and in many cases necessary—for the shipping of ore; and the railway company was ordered to supply to mining companies when requested. Upon a complaint as to the insufficiency of rolling stock of the railway company, it was held, that the proper practice was for the company to supply the equipment necessary for the handling of traffic from Canada, as well as in Canada, that such practice entailed, to the extent of international traffic, the common use of a portion of the equipment provided for United States traffic; that the company had failed to provide adequate facilities for its Canadian traffic; that it must so provide; and that the Canadian business must not depend on whether or not there are box cars from the United States waiting to be unloaded and returned. Consideration of the question of freight rates was postponed until the work of collecting further data should be completed.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ I A—1)—RIGHT TO—TAKING AWAY BY STATUTORY IMPLICATION.

The jurisdiction to review on certiorari a summary conviction for an offence under the Liquor License Act, N.E. Con. Stat. 1963, c. 22, is not in effect taken away by the declaration of s. 104 (1) of the Act that a conviction thereunder shall be "final and conclusive." The right to review a conviction for a criminal offence on certiorari can be taken away only by an express statutory declaration to that effect. [Ex parte Herbert, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 153, 34 N.B.R. 455, explained.]

R. v. Allingham; Ex parte Keefe, 12 D. L.R. 9, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 268, 41 N.B.R. 558, 12 E.L.R. 504.

MINISTERIAL IRREGULARITIES—RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Certiorari will not lie to remove a ministerial act; consequently it will not be granted to quash an examination for discovery where the issue is irrelevant, and the special examiner has neither jurisdiction nor authority; if the examination be used in an action, the remedy is by appeal; any irregularity in County Court proceedings should be brought to the notice of that court, not to the Appellate Division.

Re Elliott v. McLennan, 30 D.L.R. 729, 36 O.L.R. 573, affirming 9 O.W.N. 468.

An objection to a summary conviction that the same is made under a statute or part of a statute, claimed to be no longer effective because of subsequent legislation, is properly raised by a certiorari proceeding. Kokoliades v. Kennedy, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 495.

JURISDICTION—USE OF WRIT GENERALLY.

A Circuit Court in the Province of Quebec has no jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari in respect of a charge of assault heard before justices of the peace.

Dion v. Champagne, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 489, 13 Que. P.R. 36.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT—BY-LAWS—REGULARITY OF PROCEEDINGS.

An application by way of certiorari to quash a decision of a County Council will be refused when the Council has acted in accordance with the Municipalities Act, N.B., 2 Geo. V., 1912, and the by-laws of the municipality, and there has been no gross miscarriage of justice.

Ex parte Fawcett, 39 D.L.R. 296, 45 N.B.R. 524.

RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Where no appeal is given, the case may be evoked before judgment, or the judgment may be revised by means of a writ of certiorari.

Henry Morgan Co. v. Montreal, 24 Rev. Leg. 486.

JURISDICTION OF JUDGE OF KING'S BENCH.

A Judge of the King's Bench Division has jurisdiction under O. 62, rr. 1-3, of the Judicature Act, 1909, in certiorari proceedings, and the jurisdiction there given is not limited by the Act 3 Geo. V. (1913), c. 23, to the Appeal Division or a judge thereof. The King v. Borden; Ex parte Kinnie, 42 N.B.R. 641.

IN GENERAL—ORDER OF COUNTY COUNCIL AS TO VOTING.

A vote having been taken of the rate-payers in a parish under s. 20 of the Liquor License Act, C.S. 1903, c. 2, as amended by 9 Edw. VII. c. 16, s. 21, a writ of certiorari was applied for to remove and quash the order of the county council directing the vote to be taken and the proceedings upon which this order was based, on the ground of irregularities in the petition for the election.—Held, certiorari did not lie, the acts complained of not being judicial.

Ex parte Doyle, 41 N.B.R. 138, 11 E.L.R. 548.

IN GENERAL.

In case of doubt as to the validity of the proceedings below the court will order the issue of a writ of certiorari. [Thomas v. Matthews, 1 Q.L.R. 354, followed.]

Lalberge v. Langelier, 14 Que. P.R. 186.

NOTWITHSTANDING STATUTORY RESTRICTION.

The Superior Court may issue a writ of certiorari when the applicant appears to have suffered an injustice even though the statute under which the proceedings attacked purport to take away the right to certiorari. In the present case there was no injustice caused by the recorder of the town of Maisonneuve, in condemning the applicant to pay a fine of $10, made it payable to prothonotary to be appropriated as provided by law and not to His Majesty. Boivin v. Senecal, 14 Que. P.R. 183.

JURISDICTION IN GENERAL.

The Superior Court has no power, in virtue of a writ of certiorari, to review the evidence given before the court below whose decision is final, as far as the facts are concerned.

Kastel Hotel Co. v. The Recorder's Court, 15 Que. P.R. 139.

JURISDICTION TO GRANT — DETERMINING LICENSING OF JUSTICES.

Certiorari will lie to bring up the determination of licensing justices, where such justices lack personal qualification or where the subject-matter is outside the jurisdiction.

Re New Westminster Board of License Commissioners, 6 W.W.R. 681.

(§ 1 A—2)—NONCOMPLIANCE WITH CRIMINAL CODE—APPELLATE COURT QUASHES.

An Appellate Court on certiorari will quash an order of a justice under the Master and Servants Ordinance where the proceedings have not complied with the provisions of part 15 of the Criminal Code.

MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION — CROWN PRACTICE RULES.

In cases to which Nova Scotia Crown Rule 32 does not apply, a motion to quash a magistrate's conviction as upon certiorari cannot be made without the conviction being brought into the superior court, even where the issue of a writ of certiorari is waived by the prosecutor. Unless the convictions are brought into court there is no jurisdiction to deal with them, and in cases to which Crown Rule 32 (N.S.) applies the order to quash is effective only upon a return being made.

R. v. Rusko (N.S.), 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 433. N. S. TEMPERANCE ACT—MAGISTRATE'S JURISDICTION.

Although certiorari is taken away by statute in respect of offences against the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, it is open to the Court to review on certiorari the jurisdiction of the magistrate; but where the jurisdiction to make an order for the destruction of liquors seized depends upon the person arrested and brought before him being in fact the "occupant" of the premises where the liquor was found, the court will not interfere if there was some evidence, whether direct or circumstantial, upon which the magistrate could have found him so to be. [R. v. Walsh, 29 N.S.R. 531; R. v. Hoare, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 279, 49 N.S.R. 119, referred to.]

R. v. Collier, 35 D.L.R. 131, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 87, 51 N.S.R. 64.

POWER TO LOOK AT DEPOSITIONS.

The general power of supervision of inferior Courts by certiorari process includes the right to look at the depositions taken before the convicting magistrate on a summary trial under Part XVI. of the Criminal Code and authenticated so as to become in effect a part of the record, to ascertain whether there is any evidence to support the conviction; and if there is none, to order the conviction to be quashed. [R. v. Carter, 28 D.L.R. 606, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 51; R. v. Walsh, 29 N.S.R. 521, not followed; King v. Mahoney, [1910] 2 Irish R. 695; Reg. v. Bolton, 1 Q.B. 66; Colonial Bank v. Willan, L.R. 5 P.C. 417, distinguished.]

R. v. Emery, 33 D.L.R. 556, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, 10 A.L.R. 139, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 337. [Applied in R. v. Barb, 35 D.L.R. 102.]

ALBERTA LIQUOR ACT.

S. 41 of the Alberta Liquor Act has not the effect of taking away certiorari except in the two cases of charges against or respecting a "vendor" or a druggist (subs. 2) and not then unless an appeal would not afford an adequate remedy (subs. 8).

R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 25, 10 A.L.R. 349, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 919.

SUMMARY TRIAL—THEFT.

Certiorari proceedings do not lie for the review of a conviction made on summary trial by the police magistrate of a city of over 25,000 population, proceeding without the consent of the accused upon a charge of theft of less than $10; the offence in such case being triable under Code, s. 777. S. 1013 applies to restrict appeals to the Court of Appeal (Code, ss. 2 (7) and 1013) to those provided for in ss. 1013-1021. [R. v. Thornton, 30 D.L.R. 441, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 120, cited.]

R. v. Sinclair, 32 D.L.R. 796, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 350, 38 O.L.R. 149, quashing appeal from 31 D.L.R. 265, 36 O.L.R. 510.

REMEDY AGAINST CONVICTION UNDER QUEBEC GAME LAWS—C.C.P. ART. 1292; R.S. QUE. 1909, ARTS. 2309, 2358; 7 GEO. V. (1916), c. 26.

Hudson Bay Co. v. Dion, 38 D.L.R. 477, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 265, 52 Que. S. C. 69.

WHERE NO ADEQUATE REMEDY BY APPEAL.

Where the Court before which a certiorari motion is brought in respect of a conviction for an offence subject to the Ontario Summary Convictions Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 90, cannot find that an appeal which was available would not have afforded "an adequate remedy" (s. 10) had such appeal been prosecuted, the motion to quash the conviction will be refused although the appeal had been quashed for failure to perfect the requisite security. [R. v. Keenan, 13 D.L.R. 125, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 467, 28 O.L.R. 441, referred to.]

R. v. Chappuis, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 157, 38 O.L.R. 576. [Affirmed in 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 411, 39 O.L.R. 329.]

Where the law provides an appeal which practically enables the accused to have a retrial of the case in which he was summarily convicted, such appeal affords an adequate remedy for raising the question that there was no evidence to show that the alleged offence had been committed, and if the particular offence is subject to a statute which takes away the right of certiorari where there is another adequate remedy, a certiorari will be allowed only for want or excess of jurisdiction. If the Justice had the right to enter upon the inquiry and the summary conviction is good on its face, the court, in view of the statutory restriction, cannot look either at the depositions or at affidavits to ascertain whether or not the justice came to a proper conclusion. [R. v. Bolton, 1 Q.B. 66; R. v. Morn Hill Camp, [1917] 1 K.B. 176, applied.]

R. v. Chappus (No. 2), 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 411, 39 O.L.R. 329, affirming 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 157, 38 O.L.R. 576.

TO REVIEW OF JUDICIAL DECISIONS.

The court on certiorari will not exercise its judgment upon the credit or weight due to the facts from which the magistrate's conclusion was drawn if such facts would be sufficient to be left to a jury on a trial.

The King v. Kolotyla, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 23, 21 Man. L.R. 197.

JURISDICTION—GAME LAWS, R.S. QUE. 1909, ARTS. 2334, 2338, 2342—BEAVER SKINS APPEARING TO HAVE BEEN TAKEN IN A CLOSE SEASON—EXCEPTION AS TO POSSESSION OF FURS OF GAME ANIMALS KILLED OUTSIDE OF QUEBEC.

A person found in possession during a close season of skins of game animals which appeared to have been taken or killed during the close season and charged with illegal possession thereof under the Quebec game laws (R.S. Que. 1909, art. 2334) must prove to the satisfaction of the magistrate that the game was killed or taken outside of the Province of Quebec in order to be entitled to the exemption in that respect contained in R.S. Que., art. 2338. If evidence is not given by the magistrate to evidence given on that point, the magistrate has jurisdiction to convict and certiorari will not lie on the ground that such evidence should have been credited, if there was a trial upon the merits and there were no gross irregularities in the proceeding to lead to the belief that justice had not been done (C.C.P. art. 1293). [See also Hudson Bay Co. v. Dion, 38 D.L.R. 477, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 265; R. v. Morin, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 414; R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 25, 10 A.L.R. 349.

Halpern v. St. Cyr & Hudson Bay Co., 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 214.

REVIEW OF SUMMARY CONVICTION—SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.

Upon a motion to quash a summary conviction for keeping intoxicating liquor for sale contrary to the Liquor License Act (Ont.), upon the ground that there was no evidence of the offence, the court will not quash the conviction if there was evidence upon which it was open to the magistrate to find that the liquor found was intoxicating and that it was illegally kept for sale.

R. v. Scaynetti, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 40, 34 O.L.R. 373.

CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT.

Where certiorari is taken away by statute (ex. gr. under the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906 (c. 152)), and the magistrate has proceeded regularly with the enquiry and heard witnesses in support of the charge, the court will not look at the depositions on a certiorari application for the purpose of seeing whether there was evidence before the magistrate which would warrant the conviction, that ground not being strictly one of jurisdiction so as to be available notwithstanding the statute taking away the remedy of certiorari. [R. v. Wallace, 4 O.R. 127, followed; R. v. Carter, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 51, referred to; R. v. Coulson, 24 O.R. 246, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 114; R. v. Coulson, 27 Ont. R. 59; R. v. Borin, 15 D.L.R. 737, 29 O.L.R. 584, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 248, distinguished.]

R. v. Berry (Ont.), 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 129, 38 O.L.R. 177. [See 39 O.L.R. 20, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 341.]

ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—SPECIAL FINDINGS OF MAGISTRATE.

The limitation of the right of certiorari under s. 10 of the Ontario Summary Convictions Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 90, is excluded as regards convictions under the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, by s. 92 (1) of the latter act, and there being no prohibition of certiorari, the court may examine the evidence to ascertain whether the magistrate had jurisdiction. The magistrate's opinion on the facts must be presumed to be such as will support the conviction unless his express findings are otherwise; these may be certified to the court along with the summary conviction and proceedings or may be brought up on a stated case under Part XV. of the Criminal Code and sec. 4 of the Ontario Convictions Act. [R. v. Borin, 15 D. L.R. 737, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 248, 29 O.L.R. 584, applied; R. v. Berry, 38 O.L.R. 177; R. v. Cantin, 39 O.L.R. 20, referred to.]

R. v. Thompson, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 271, 39 O.L.R. 108.

MAGISTRATE'S JURISDICTION TO ENTER UPON THE INQUIRY.

Where certiorari is taken away by statute, the court may still review a summary conviction for want of jurisdiction of the magistrate, but such ground can be supported only if it were made to appear that the magistrate's commission did not justify him in exercising jurisdiction in the locus or that he was not in fact proceeding on an alleged violation of the act under which the charge was brought. A conviction under the Canada Temperance Act, by s. 148 of which certiorari is taken away, will not be quashed for an alleged mistake in the conclusions arrived at by the magistrate if he had jurisdiction to enter upon the inquiry. [Colonial Bank v. Willan, L.R. 5 P.C. 417, applied.]

R. v. Cantin; R. v. Weber, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 341, 39 O.L.R. 20. [See 38 O.L.R. 177.]

TO REVIEW INFERIOR APPELLATE TRIBUNAL.

Certiorari will not be granted in respect of a County Judge's order setting aside a magistrate's decision unless a want or excess of jurisdiction be shown or some gross miscarriage of justice.

R. v. McLatchy, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 277, 44 N.B.R. 402.

QUASHING ORDER MADE WITHOUT JURISDICTION—SERVICE OUT OF PROVINCE.

An order for review made by a Judge of the County Court will be quashed on certiorari if made without jurisdiction. Service of an order for hearing of a review on the opposite party out of the province is not sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the reviewing judge under C.S. 1903, c. 122, s. 6, and an order based on such a service will be quashed on certiorari.

The King v. Jomah; Ex parte Pugsley, 43 N.B.R. 166.

The order of a County Court Judge upon review, under C.S. 1903, c. 122, is final, if within his jurisdiction.

The King v. Wedderburn; Ex P. Carnworth, 40 N.B.R. 285.

CERTIORARI — RECORDER'S SENTENCE — DEFENDANT NOT REPRESENTED AT HEARING—QUE. C.P. 82.

A sentence of the recorder, which condemns the accused to pay a penalty and costs for violation of a city by-law, will be annulled if the case was not heard on the day for which it was fixed, and the defendant's advocates were not present. A certiorari will be granted.

Montreal v. Robin, 16 Que. P.R. 70.

(§ 1 A—3)—CONVICTION OF HAVING COCAINE IN POSSESSION—REASONABLE EXCUSE—DOM. STATUTES, 1 & 2 GEO. V, c. 17, s. 3—CERTIORARI TAKEN AWAY BY STATUTE—EXAMINATION OF DEPOSITIONS.

R. v. Featherstone, 46 D.L.R. 665, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 829. [See The King v. Vroom, 45 D.L.R. 494.]

IN CRIMINAL CASE—ANCILLARY WRIT IN AID OF HABEAS CORPUS.

A second motion for a certiorari in aid of a habeas corpus, being purely ancillary, may be made before another judge after the dismissal of one application on the same facts, in like manner as a motion for a writ of habeas corpus may be renewed before another judge. [As to the Province of Ontario, there is a statutory restriction of renewed applications for habeas corpus, with right of appeal in substitution; see article in 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 213.]

R. v. Weiss; R. v. Williams (No. 2), 13 D.L.R. 632, 32 Can. Cr. Cas. 42, 6 A.L.R. 262, 25 W.L.R. 354, 5 W.W.R. 48.

REVIEW OF JURISDICTION TO HEAR SUMMARY CONVICTION APPEAL.

Notwithstanding s. 1122 of the Criminal

Code, certiorari will lie to review the jurisdiction of a District Court Judge to hear an appeal under Cr. Code, s. 749, from a summary conviction. Certiorari can be maintained on the ground of a total want of jurisdiction even where there is a statutory direction that proceedings of a certain tribunal shall not be removed by certiorari; express words taking away the certiorari are inapplicable where there is a want or excess of jurisdiction, but would apply to a mere irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction.

SUMMARY TRIAL FOR INDICTABLE OFFENCE—CROWN'S ADMISSION.

Where it appears that a plea of guilty to a charge of kidnapping was entered by the accused without the advice of counsel and without due appreciation of the character of the charge as distinct from the offence of abduction, a conviction for kidnapping made on summary trial by a magistrate without taking any testimony, may be quashed on certiorari by a court of superior criminal jurisdiction on an admission by the Crown that the offence, if any, was not kidnapping, but abduction, but with leave to institute fresh proceedings for the latter charge.

R. v. Steckley, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 263.

ILLEGAL CONVICTION—"PERSON AGGRIEVED"

Where an information is laid for an assault occasioning actual bodily harm to the complainant (Cr. Code, s. 295), and on the return of the process issued thereon, two justices illegally proceed to try the charge instead of holding a preliminary enquiry (Cr. Code, s. 608), the complainant who has by such illegality been deprived of the right to have her complaint dealt with according to law, is a "person aggrieved" by an illegal conviction, made by the justices for common assault and is entitled to apply for a certiorari to quash such conviction. [R. v. Groom, [1901] 2 K.B. 162, applied.]

R. v. Law, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 251, 33 W.L.R. 569, 9 W.W.R. 1075.

ERRONEOUS FINDING BY MAGISTRATE.

An objection of defect of jurisdiction is not available on certiorari if it rests solely on the ground that the magistrate has erroneously found a fact which was essential to the validity of his order, but which he was competent to try. [Colonial Bank v. Willan, L.R., 5 P.C. 417, applied; R. v. Walsh, 29 N.S.R. 521, referred to.] [Followed in R. v. Carter, 28 D.L.R. 606.]

IRREGULAR CONVICTION—DEFECTIVE DEPOSITIONS.

Where depositions in a summary conviction matter returned on certiorari contained no caption (Code form 16), nor were they annexed to the information or otherwise identified as pertaining thereto, the court may decline to peruse them for the purpose of supporting, under Cr. Code, s. 1124, a conviction irregular on its face because not under seal. [Bond v. Connee, 15 Ont. R. 716 and 16 A.R. 398, approved.]

R. v. Dickey, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 55, 9 W.W. R. 142, 32 W.L.R. 404.

CONVICTION FOR OBSTRUCTING PEACE OFFICER—INTOXICATING LIQUOR ACT—APPEAL.

A certiorari will not lie to remove a conviction for resisting or wilfully obstructing a peace officer in the execution of duty, whether the complaint is laid and conviction made for an offence under s. 169 of the Criminal Code, 1906, or s. 153 of the "Intoxicating Liquor Act, 1916," unless under the former act there are exceptional circumstances, because an appeal is provided under s. 749 of that Act, or under the latter Act because certiorari is taken away by s. 111 of that Act, and the ground relied upon to quash does not go to the jurisdiction. Under the present practice as to certiorari objection to the writ may be made on the return of the rule nisi to quash.

The King v. O'Brien, 45 N.B.R. 275.
CONVICTION—EVIDENCE—PREVIOUS OFFENCE—IDENTITY.

An accused found guilty of a second offence, may by way of certiorari, obtain the annulment of the judgment pronounced against him, if the record contains no evidence of the first offence or of the identity of the accused with the person condemned the first time. Any extra judicial knowledge with a magistrate may have of the first offence, or of the identity of the person found guilty, cannot take the place of evidence of such fact.

Duberger v. Morkill, 20 Que. P.R. 49.
ADULTERATION ACT—SENTENCE TO HARD LABOUR—COSTS—PUBLIC OFFICER.

A sentence of hard labour in default of payment of the fine imposed by s. 31 of the Adulteration Act will be set aside on certiorari. A public officer who has succeeded before a magistrate will not be condemned to the costs of the certiorari issued against the conviction which he has secured.

Therrien v. Leet, 19 Que. P.R. 389.
GAME LAW OF QUEBEC—EVIDENCE.

If an accused, found in possession of furs, claims that the animals were not killed in the province, a writ of certiorari cannot be had against the conviction of the accused after hearing evidence on this point.

Halpern v. St. Cyr, 20 Que. P.R. 65.
CONVICTION WITHOUT HEARING—RECORD—IMPRISONMENT.

If an accused, in a petition for certiorari, alleges that he has been condemned without being heard, and if the documents filed with the magistrate's report declare that the accused has been duly called, the petitioner applying for the writ of certiorari may proceed by impropriation against such documents.

Lajeunesse v. Court Recorder of the City of Maisonneuve, 19 Que. P.R. 333.

IN CRIMINAL CASE.

Accused was convicted before a police magistrate for a city of over 6,000 inhabitants of an offence over which the magistrate had jurisdiction only by consent. The record stated "accused consents to jurisdiction and pleads not guilty," and the conviction "the accused having consented to jurisdiction." The accused denied that she had been informed of her right, but the magistrate filed an affidavit, corroborated by the chief constable, shewing that the necessary preliminaries had been taken. On motion to quash the conviction:—Held, before the magistrate has jurisdiction to try the accused there must be at least a substantial compliance with the provision of s. 778 of the Criminal Code. 2. In considering whether these provisions were complied with, the record is the only evidence that can be considered in support of the conviction, and affidavits cannot be received for that purpose. 3. Such proceedings must shew on their face that jurisdiction has been acquired, and the simple statement, "the accused consents to jurisdiction," does not sufficiently shew what steps were taken by the magistrate to acquire jurisdiction. 4. Nothing should be inferred in support of the jurisdiction of an inferior court. 5. The Crown having asked for leave to begin de novo, such leave should be granted.

R. v. Crooks, 4 S.L.R. 335.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—SEARCH—OBSTRUCTING INSPECTOR—CERTIORARI REFUSED.

Appeal dismissed with costs from judgment refusing certiorari where it appeared that an inspector under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act entered defendant's premises for the purpose of searching for liquor and was obstructed by defendant and interfered with in the discharge of his duty.

The King v. Solomon, 52 N.S.R. 258.
(§ 1 A—4)—MILITARY SERVICE ACT, N.B.—CONVICTION—REVIEW—CRIMINAL CODE—APPEAL.

Certiorari will not lie in New Brunswick to remove a conviction under the Military Service Act (1917, 7-8 Geo. V. c. 19, Dom.), unless there are exceptional circumstances, because a review is provided by s. 749 of the Criminal Code which provides for an appeal by either the prosecutor or complainant to a County Court Judge. [The King v. O'Brien; Ex parte Theriault, 45 N.B.R. 275, followed.]

The King v. Hanson; Ex parte Dunster, 49 D.L.R. 161.

(§ 1 A—5)—STATUTORY ABOLITION OF REMEDY.

Where a special statute expressly takes away the right to remove a conviction on certiorari, there are only two grounds upon which that procedure can still be resorted to by an accused, (1) lack of jurisdiction in the magistrate, and (2) fraud in obtaining the conviction. [Colonial Bank of Australasia v. Willans, L.R. 5 P.C. 417, followed.]

A statutory provision taking away the right to certiorari forbids the operation of r. 824, because, although that rule provides a procedure for sending upon conviction different in form from a writ of certiorari, the only jurisdiction to make the rule at all is under the power given to deal with certiorari.

R. v. Richmond, 39 D.L.R. 117, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 89, 12 A.L.R. 133, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1290.

INSUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.

Where certiorari is taken away by statute, as under the Canada Temperance Act, the court will not take cognizance of any supposed miscarriage in the enquiry before the justice from the insufficiency or irregularity of the evidence. [Ex parte Morrison, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 28, 39 N.B.R. 298, followed.]

Ex parte Doyle; R. v. Lawlor, 31 D.L.R. 90, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 60, 47 N.B.R. 90.

(§ 1 A—8)—USE OF REVIEW OF TAX ASSESSMENT—STATUTORY PROHIBITION—WANT OF JURISDICTION.

A writ of certiorari may issue to review a tax assessment notwithstanding the prohibition of s. 69 of 53 Vict. (N.B.) c. 73, that such writ shall not be issued until after an appeal to the town council, where the objection to the assessment goes to the jurisdiction of the assessor to make it.

The King v. Town of Grand Falls, 13 D.L.R. 266, 42 N.B.R. 122, 13 E.L.R. 210.

RECORDER'S JUDGMENT—CONSTRUCTION OF RESOLUTION AS TO TAXES.

A judgment by one of Montreal's recorders which construes a resolution of the municipality of Rosemount stipulating exemption from taxes as applying to real estate taxes only, and not to business taxes, is intra viros and will not be revised by way of certiorari.

Lapierre & Geoffrion v. Montreal, 16 Que. P.R. 250.

(§ 1 A—9)—INTOXICATING LIQUOR—PLACE OTHER THAN PRIVATE DWELLING—EVIDENCE.

On a charge of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling, without having first obtained a license therefore, unless it is shown that the place in which the liquor was, was a place other than a private dwelling within the meaning of the act, the magistrate has no jurisdiction to try the case, and a conviction will be quashed on certiorari.

Note.—This case is considered important by many of the profession in N.B. as widening the scope of certiorari when expressly taken away by the Act, c.f. ss. 125, 126 of the N.B. Act (1916, 6 Geo. V. c. 20) with ss. 100 and 101 of the Manitoba Temperance Act (1916, c. 112).

The King v. Vroom; Ex parte McDonald, 45 D.L.R. 494, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 316, 46 N.B.R. 214.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR ACT, N.B.—RIGHT OF APPEAL—ABOLITION OF.

The Intoxicating Liquor Act (New Brunswick) having taken away the right of certiorari as well as the right of appeal, the court is powerless to afford any redress or relief or interfere with the decision of the magistrate, no matter how erroneous or unjust the conviction may be if he had in law jurisdiction to make the conviction. [Ex parte Daley, 27 N.B.R. 129, followed; The King v. Vroom; Ex parte McDonald, 45 D.L.R. 494, 46 N.B.R. 214, referred to.]

MAGISTRATES—NECESSITY OF MAKING NOTE OF APPLICATIONS AND OTHERS—TO BE FURNISHED ON REQUEST OF EITHER PARTY.

Magistrates should be specially careful either to make a note themselves or to see that a note is made of every application, and of every ruling made during the course of a case before them, so that no party may possibly be deprived of any advantage he may be entitled to, and having taken, or caused to be taken, such notes, to return them along with the depositions in answer to a notice by way of certiorari or to furnish them on request to either party to the proceedings, who is prepared to pay the proper fees.

R. v. Dominion Drug Stores; R. v. C.N.R. Co., 44 D.L.R. 382, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 318, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 285. [Affirmed in 14 A.L.R. 384, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 86.]

LIMITATIONS OF REVIEW—EVIDENCE.

The absence of any evidence of the offence is not sufficient ground for quashing a summary conviction on certiorari, nor does it raise any question of jurisdiction of the magistrate; and a court hearing a certiorari application in respect of a summary conviction valid on its face should not look at the depositions in furtherance of an enquiry as to whether there is any evidence of the offence. [Reg. v. Bolton, 1 Q.B. 66, and Colonial Bank v. Willan, L.R. 5 P.C. 417, applied; R. v. Hoare, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 279; R. v. Weiss, 3 D.L.R. 632; R. v. Holyoke, 13 D.L.R. 225; R. v. CONVICTION UNDER LIQUOR ACT—EVIDENCE.

The court on certiorari will not consider the weight of conflicting evidence but where there is no legal evidence at all to support the finding, the conviction cannot be upheld; and a summary conviction for illegally keeping liquor for sale where there were no facts from which an inference of guilt could be drawn and where the testimony for the accused was corroborated and uncontradicted that he purchased the liquor then in transit as the agent for friends of his, and was to be reimbursed only the amount expended will be set aside notwithstanding a statutory provision such as that contained in the Sales of Liquor Act (Sask.), s. 128, that the burden of proving the right to keep liquor shall be on the person accused of improperly or unlawfully keeping for sale. [E. Trepanier, 12 Can. S.C.R. 111; R. v. McArthur, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 343; R. v. Allingham, 12 D.L.R. 9, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 268; R. v. McElroy, 14 D.L.R. 529, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 123, referred to.]

INTOXICATING LIQUOR CASES—REFUSAL TO CREDIT CROSS-EXAMINATION AN AGAINST DEPOSITION IN CHIEF.

On a charge of unlawful sale of liquor it is for the magistrate to decide whether he will believe the evidence in chief, to the effect that the witness bought a bottle of whisky from the accused, or the evidence brought out on cross-examination of the same witness that he had given the accused the money to buy the whisky for him and that the accused had done so; and the fact that the magistrate gave credence to the former and not to the latter statement is not a ground for quashing a conviction on certiorari.

Woodhouse, [1906] 2 K.B. 501; Re Constables of Hipperholme, 5 D. & L. 79; Reg. v. Aberdeen Canal Co., 14 Q.B. 854, 117 Eng. Rep. 328, followed; Boulter v. REVIEW PROHIBITED BY STATUTE—QUESTIONING JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE—DEPOSITIONS AND EVIDENCE.

Where certiorari has been taken away by a statute as regards summary convictions for offences thereunder, the rule in New Brunswick is that the court will not look at the depositions to ascertain whether the evidence adduced establishes the offence, if the convicting magistrate had jurisdiction, over the subject-matter and, by virtue of the information, jurisdiction also over the accused and the particular offence charged, ex. gr., infraction of the Can. Dig.—24.

JURISDICTION—WANT OR INSUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE—LIQUOR LAW TAKING AWAY CERTIORARI.

Where a magistrate has jurisdiction to enter upon the inquiry as to an offence under a liquor law, he is not ousted from that jurisdiction by any want or insufficiency of the evidence to support the charge, at least where there was relevant evidence and it was not palpably inadequate, and a certiorari application must be dismissed if the right to certiorari has been taken away by statute as to offences of that class. [Ex parte Daley, 27 N.B.R. 129, considered.]

R. v. Davis; Ex parte Miranda, 19 D.L.R. 475, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 33, 42 N.B.R. 338.

POWER TO LOOK AT DEPOSITIONS.

In view of the express provision of the Manitoba Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. Man., c. 112, preserving the right to certiorari although denying any right of appeal from a summary conviction under it, and the references contained in it (ss. 100 and 101) to the sufficiency of the evidence to support the case and the disposal of a certiorari application upon the merits, the court hearing a certiorari application is bound to look at the evidence taken before the magistrate in conformity with ss. 682 and 683 of the Criminal Code to see whether there is evidence or not to prove the offence. [R. v. Brady, 13 Ont. R. 359; R. v. Borin, 15 D.L.R. 737, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 248, 29 O.L.R. 584; R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 25; R. v. Emery, 33 D.L.R. 556, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, discussed.]

R. Code, s. 1124, which gives power to the court on certiorari to peruse the depositions in order to ascertain if an offence of the nature described in the conviction attacked has been committed, conclusively shews that the depositions in a summary conviction matter form a part of the record and that the court on certiorari may read the depositions with the view of ascertaining if there is evidence to support the conviction and, if there is none, the conviction may be quashed. [R. v. Emery, 33 D.L.R. 556, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, 10 A.L.R. 139, approved. See R. v. Barb, 35 D.L.R. 192, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 93.]

Lacasse v. Fortier (Que.), 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 87.

DEPOSITIONS WRONGLY ADMITTED—MAGISTRATE'S CERTIFICATE.

Where the magistrate wrongly admitted in evidence the depositions of a witness in another case, the court on certiorari may conclude that he was influenced by such depositions and quash the conviction on that ground notwithstanding the certificate of the magistrate that he was not so influenced. [R. v. Melvin, 31 D.L.R. 282, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 350, 38 O.L.R. 231, applied.] R. v. Bracci, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 351, 14 O.W.N. 305.

SUMMARY CONVICTION—EVIDENCE—JURISDICTION.

Evidence by affidavit is admissible on a certiorari motion to quash a summary conviction to prove that the accused did not plead guilty as set forth in the magistrate's record of proceedings; and in like manner affidavits are admissible contra to support the claim that the plea was correctly recorded by the magistrate. If it be found that the magistrate's record of the proceedings was wrong in that respect, the conviction made in his belief that the defendant pleaded guilty must be set aside on certiorari because of lack of jurisdiction to convict without evidence or a plea of guilty. [R. v. Richmond, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 29, referred to.]

LIQUOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS—REVIEW OF JURISDICTION—DISCRETION.

Certiorari to review the jurisdiction of license commissioners in granting a license upon a petition, said to have been insufficiently signed, is discretionary with the court where the applicant is not specially aggrieved beyond the injury suffered by the public generally. A sufficiently signed petition under the B.C. Liquor License Act is a condition precedent to the founding of jurisdiction in the license commissioners to act thereupon, and their acceptance of the petition as being sufficiently signed is open to review on certiorari.

The King v. Bryson, 21 D.L.R. 777, 21 B.C.R. 313, 31 W.L.R. 307.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR CASES.

Failure to prove that notice of cancellation of the license has been given in conformity with the Licensing Act, R.S. Que. 1909, c. 1077, constitutes a serious irregularity which will warrant the issue of a writ of certiorari.

Metropole Co. v. Recorder's Court, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 492.

A conviction for selling liquor or keeping liquor for sale in contravention of a local option municipal by-law prohibiting the issue of liquor licenses is a conviction under the Liquor License Act for selling or keeping for sale "without a license," and is subject to the same limitations as to review on certiorari and habeas corpus as a conviction against a nonlicensee in a district in which licenses are issued.

Re Leach & Fogarty, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 487, 21 O.W.R. 919.

JURISDICTION—FINDING ON QUESTION OF FACT.

The court will not review on certiorari the magistrate's finding upon a question of fact which he was competent to try. [R. v. Cunerty, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 325, 26 Ont. L.R. 51, applied.]

R. v. Reinhardt Salvador Brewing Co.; R. v. McFarlane, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 443, 11 O.W.N. 346.

LIQUOR CASES—FINDING AS TO PRIOR CONVICTIONS.

The question whether the defendant, found guilty of a third offence against the Canada Temperance Act, had been previously convicted or not, or how often or when, is a matter entirely within the jurisdiction of the magistrate, and, certiorari being taken away by that statute, the magistrate's finding as to prior convictions is conclusive. The King v. Holyoke; Ex parte Blair, 41 N.B.R. 223.

JURISDICTION—INTOXICATING LIQUOR CASES—LICENSE—COMMISSIONERS GRANTING A LICENSE—VALIDITY.

Held (Martin, J.A., dissenting), that by virtue of Crown Office r. 35, a judge could proceed with a motion for an order absolute where a verified copy of an order of a Board of License Commissioners directing the issue of a license was not before him since the absence of the said copy was accounted for to his satisfaction by reason of the fact that he granted leave to file said copy:—Held, that certiorari proceedings are the proper proceedings by which to question a decision of a Board of License Commissioners. [R. v. Board of License Commissioners for the Municipality of Point Grey, 18 B.C.R. 648, followed.]

Fremman v. License Commissioners of New Westminster, 20 B.C.R. 438, 29 W.L.R. 892, 7 W.W.R. 963.

The court refused to set aside a search warrant issued under the Canada Temperance Act where the informant's grounds of suspicion were written on a separate piece of paper attached to the information, but not initialled.

The King v. Wilson; Ex parte Harrington, 40 N.B.R. 384.

Where an information under the Canada Temperance Act was laid within three months after the offence, but no summons was issued thereon for a year and fourteen days after information laid:—Held, that the delay in issuing summons did not deprive the magistrate of jurisdiction. The magistrate issued his summons upon an information alleging only information and belief without previously examining witnesses, and, upon proof that the summons had been duly served, and the failure of the defendant to appear, he issued a warrant, upon which the defendant was arrested and brought to trial. Upon certiorari—Held, the conviction is good even though the warrant was improperly issued. No sworn information being necessary where defendant disobeys a summons. Per Barry, J.—The warrant is bad because a sworn information is necessary and where no witnesses are examined the information must contain a positive statement that an offence was committed.

The King v. Peck; Ex parte O'Neill, 40 N.B.R. 339.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR—LICENSE COMMISSIONERS—DELAY.

There is no express provision in the Code as to the delay within which a writ of certiorari must issue after having been granted; all that is necessary is that it should have issued without unreasonable delay. See 14 Que. P.R. 186.

Re LeBerge & Langelier, 15 Que P.R. 226.

R. EXISTENCE OF OTHER REMEDY.

(S 1 B—10)—OTHER REMEDY—OBJECTION TO PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS—RAISING SAME QUESTION AT TRIAL.

The court may exercise its discretion by refusing a certiorari when sought to remove into a superior court an information and proceedings thereon before a magistrate under which the defendant was held to bail with sureties to appear at the County Court for trial upon a quasi-criminal charge under a provincial statute, if the same grounds upon which the claim of irregularity or nullity in the magistrate's proceedings is founded would be open to the defendant on the hearing in the County Court, while a rule for a certiorari, if granted, would not be returnable until a later date and might prejudice the enforcement or renewal of the recognizance of bail.

RESERVED CASE—EVIDENCE IN WRITING.

Where the magistrate making a conviction on summary trial refuses to reserve a case for the consideration of the Court of Appeal as to the sufficiency of the evidence, the remedy of certiorari is still applicable to quash the conviction on the ground that the magistrate did not have the evidence reduced to writing. [R. v. Harris, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 392, followed.]

R. v. Perron; Perron v. Sénécal, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 442, 22 Rev. Leg. 448.

REMEDY BY REVIEW.

The court has a discretion to refuse a writ of certiorari, even for an alleged lack of jurisdiction in the magistrate to try the case, if there was an alternative remedy by review and no special circumstances are shown as to why that remedy was not pursued.

Ex parte St. Onge, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 169, 43 N.B.R. 517.

APPROPRIATE REMEDY AFTER PROCEEDINGS TAKEN BY INFERIOR TRIBUNAL IN CAPACITY IN WHICH JURISDICTION EXCLUDED—DOUBLE QUALIFICATION OF TRIBUNAL AS RECORDER AND AS A JUSTICE.

Certiorari and not an appeal from the summary conviction is the proper remedy in respect of proceedings taken before a person adjudicating in his capacity of a recorder or as presiding over the Recorder's Court in a matter outside of his jurisdiction as such, although the same person would have had jurisdiction had he proceeded in the capacity of an ex officio justice of the peace and in that event an appeal would have been proper. [Paradis v. Dunham, 15 Que. P.R. 189, referred to.] Latendresse v. Piette & The Corp. of Joliette, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 248.

STATUTORY RESTRICTION—OTHER "ADEQUATE REMEDY."

Where certiorari is taken away only in the event of an appeal affording an "adequate remedy" it may, notwithstanding, be maintained if the prosecution was conducted in such a way as misled the accused in regard to what he had to answer, and so avoided a motion by the defence before the taking of testimony began for a postponement of the trial.

R. v. Dominion Drug Stores (No. 2), 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 86, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 413.

CRIMINAL LAW—PRELIMINARY OBJECTIONS TO MOTION—LENGTH OF NOTICE—AFFIDAVITS IN SUPPORT—TIME OF FILING—FILED SAME DAY AS NOTICE SERVED—ASSUMPTION AS TO PRIORITY OF TIME—CR. CODE 749 (F)—PROPER COURT OF APPEAL—CR. CODE 1122—NOTICE OF APPEAL TO WRONG COURT—APPEAL TO RIGHT COURT BUT JUDGE HOLDING HE HAS NO JURISDICTION—CERTIORARI NOT LOST—CERTIORARI GRANTED NOTWITHSTANDING POSSIBLE REMEDY BY MANDAMUS.

Under the Saskatchewan Crown Practice Rules and the Rules of Court thereby made applicable to Crown matters, the notice required to be given application for certiorari is limited to at least two clear days. Where affidavits in support are required to be filed prior to notice of motion, and it appears that the affidavits were filed and the notice of motion served on same day, the assumption is that the affidavits were filed first. The District Court to which appeal is given by the Code s. 749 (b) is the District Court of the Judicial District within which the cause of complaint arose. Where notice is given of appeal to the wrong court, such notice is of no effect to defeat the right of certiorari under s. 1122 of the Criminal Code, as the appeal is not "authorized by law." Where appeal is made to the right court, but the judge of that court, in error, holds he has no jurisdiction, it is not an appeal contemplated by said s. 1122 so as to take away the right of certiorari (R. v. Delegrade; Ex parte Cowan, 36 N.B.R. 303, 9 C.C.C. 454, referred to); and in such case certiorari should be allowed notwithstanding the possible remedy by way of mandamus. The granting of a writ of mandamus is a matter within the discretion of the court; and it ought not to be granted where another remedy is provided which is not less convenient, beneficial and effectual. (Reference to authorities.)

R. ex rel. Poppoff v. Deer, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 410.

(§ I B—11)—REMEDY BY APPEAL.

A provincial law which makes provision for appeals in summary proceedings under it, and which further declares that the "proceedings on such appeals" shall in other respects be "governed" by the same rules as appeals from summary convictions or orders made by justices of the peace under the Cr. Code, does not make applicable to such appeals the provision of Cr. Code, s. 1122, forbidding a certiorari to remove a conviction when an appeal has been taken; Code, s. 1122 deals rather with the consequences of an appeal than with the proceedings thereon, and semble, even if it applied, would not prevent the granting of a certiorari on the question of jurisdiction. [Johnston v. O'Reilly, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 218, 16 Man. L.R. 405; R. v. St. Pierre, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 365; R. v. Horning, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 268; R. v. Ashcroft, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 385, referred to.]

RIGHT OF APPEAL—COMMON ASSAULT.

Where there is a right of appeal certiorari will be granted only under very exceptional circumstances; a conviction for a trifling offence, such as common assault, involving a small penalty, is not reviewable on certiorari. DISCRETIONARY WRIT — MANIFEST INJUSTICE—DISCRETION IN FAVOUR OF WRIT — RIGHT TO APPEAL — DOES NOT BAR REMEDY BY.

The writ of certiorari is a discretionary writ and where a manifest injustice has been done, such as assessing a ship, under the Nova Scotia Assessment Act, to one to whom it does not belong, such discretion will be exercised in favour of applying the remedy which certiorari provides, although the party applying has not availed himself of the right of appeal. The existence of an appeal does not displace the remedy by means of a writ of certiorari. [R. v. Jukes,

USE OF WRIT—IN CRIMINAL CASES—TAKING AWAY—DOES NOT APPLY TO WRIT IN AID OF HABEAS CORPUS.

(Ont.) c. 17, R.S.O. 1914, c. 90, where adequate relief is afforded by appeal, in respect of a summary conviction under an Ontario statute, and imprisonment thereunder. Appeal and not certiorari is the appropriate procedure affording an adequate remedy for reviewing a summary conviction on the merits, where the question involved is one of fact only and not of jurisdiction.

FAILURE TO APPEAL IN TIME.

Where the justice's jurisdiction was not in question nor was any exceptional reason

SUMMARY CONVICTION — CRIMINAL CAUSE — CIRCUIT COURT (QUE.).

A Circuit Court in the Province of Quebec has no jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari in respect of a charge of assault heard before justices of the peace.

NOTICE OF MOTION TO QUASH CONVICTION—TIME LIMIT.

The onus is upon the party moving to quash a summary conviction under the Liquor License Act (Ont.) to prove that notice of the motion was served on the magistrates within twenty days from the date of conviction as required by s. 95 of the revised Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, formerly 9 Edw. VII. c. 82, s. 25.

(§ II—18)—SUBSTITUTING PROCEDURE BY NOTICE OF MOTION FOR PROCEDURE BY WRIT.

The effect of s. 576 of the Criminal Code, 1906, is not to authorize the provincial courts to create a new practice as to certiorari nor to change the practice altogether; it is limited to a "regulation" of the practice and it is to be doubted whether there is power thereunder to substitute a procedure by notice of motion to quash a conviction for the procedure by writ of certiorari (Ont. Crown Rules, 1908, r. 1279).

R. v. Titelmarsch, 19 D.L.R. 306, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 419, 6 O.W.N. 317. [Affirmed, 22 D.L.R. 272, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 38, 32 O.L.R. 569.]

(§ II—19)—APPLICATION FOR — NOTICE NOT GIVEN—NOTICE LEFT AT OFFICE OF SOLICITOR—SOLICITOR HAVING APPEARED ON HEARING.

An application for a writ of certiorari on the ground that notice of the time and place for hearing the matter in review, as directed by 1903 C.S.N.B. c. 122, s. 6, was not given to the plaintiff, will not be granted when the notice was left at the office of the counsel retained on the first hearing, and he has actually appeared on the hearing in review.

The King v. Armstrong; Ex parte Case, 44 D.L.R. 429.

REGULARITY OF NOTICE.

Where a notice of motion for a certiorari is intitled in the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan, the omission to add the designation of the appropriate judicial district of that province will not invalidate the notice.

CRIMINAL LAW—NOTICE—LENGTH OF—AFFIDAVITS FILED AND NOTICE OF MOTION SERVED ON SAME DAY—PRESUMPTION AS TO PRIORITY—APPEAL TO DISTRICT COURT JUDGE—JUDGE ERRONEOUSLY HOLDING THAT HE HAS NO JURISDICTION—RIGHT TO CERTIORARI NOT AFFECTED BY.

That the Statute, 13 Geo. II., c. 18, ss. 1 and 5, do not apply to Saskatchewan and two clear days' notice of application for certiorari is sufficient. Where affidavits in support of certiorari are filed on the same day that notice of motion is served, it will be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that the affidavits were regularly filed prior to the service of the notice. The giving of a notice of appeal from a conviction or order of a justice does not take away the right to certiorari where such notice is given for the wrong court or, where such notice being given for the right court, the court erroneously holds that it is given to the wrong court and refuses to hear the appeal. The fact that the appellant has a possible remedy by mandamus to compel a District Court Judge to hear an appeal is not in itself a bar to the remedy by certiorari. [*Fauchaux v. (S II—20)—FILING AMENDED CONVICTION—DEPOSITIONS.

Leave to file an amended conviction on the return of a certiorari motion to quash will be refused where it was essential to the offence under a provincial law that it should have taken place in an electoral district constituting a restricted locality and the description of the place of offence in the first conviction did not show that it was within the restricted locality, unless the amendment intended to cure the defect is supported by the evidence and proceedings before the magistrate.

R. v. Bissette (Alta.), 41 D.L.R. 52, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 97, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 501.

AMENDMENT OF CONVICTION — RIGHT OF COURT TO MAKE CONVICTION CONFORM TO CODE—CR. CODE, s. 754.

Assuming that a police magistrate, who imposed a penalty in excess of what was authorized by the Criminal Code, 1906, had no power, after service upon him of a notice of motion to set aside the conviction, which called upon him to make a return of the conviction, information, etc., to amend the conviction by substituting a penalty provided by the Code, the court, to which the conviction was removed by certiorari, may amend the conviction so as to conform to the Code, under the authority given by s. 1124 thereof providing that no conviction made by any justice should be held invalid for any irregularity, etc., therein, if the court or judge before which or whom the question is raised is satisfied that an offence of the nature described in the conviction has been committed, over which such justice has jurisdiction, and giving the judge or court where so satisfied, even if the punishment imposed is in excess of that which might lawfully have been imposed, like powers in all respects to deal with the case, as are given by s. 754 of the Code providing that, in every case of appeal from a summary conviction, the court to which such appeal is made, shall, notwithstanding, among other things, that the punishment imposed may be in excess of that which might lawfully have been imposed, hear and determine the charge on which such conviction was made upon the merits and, among other things, exercise any power which the justice whose decision is appealed from, might have exercised.

R. v. Marcinko, 4 D.L.R. 687, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 388, 3 O.W.N. 1626, 22 O.W.R. 846.

AMENDMENT OF CONVICTION.

The word "justice" is to be construed in s. 1124 of the Criminal Code 1906 in a different manner from the words "justice of the peace" which were used in the corresponding section of the former Code (Cr. Code 1892, s. 889) by reason of the statutory definition given to the word "justice" by the interpretation clause, Cr. Code, 1906, s. 4 (18), whereby police magistrates and stipendiary magistrates are included in its meaning, and also by reason of the transposition of former s. 889 in the 1906 consolidation from the summary convictions part to the part of the 1906 Code entitled "Extraordinary Remedies," with the result that the present s. 1124 as to amendment on certiorari applies not only to "summary convictions" but to convictions on "summary trials" held under Part 16 of the Code.

R. v. Crawford, 6 D.L.R. 380, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 49, 5 A.L.R. 204, 22 W.L.R. 107, 2 W.W.R. 952.

POWER TO AMEND SUMMARY CONVICTION.

A summary conviction for "storing inflammable goods," following an information in like terms, cannot be supported under a statutory regulation or by-law making it an offence to store "explosive material" at a particular place; the defect is fundamental and the court cannot on certiorari amend the conviction to conform with the by-law.

R. v. Little (B.C.), 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 422.

STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS OF NOTICE OF MOTION.

A notice of motion to quash a summary conviction under the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., Ont. c. 50, must specify the objections intended to be raised (Ont. Judicature Act, s. 63, subs. (2)); this includes an objection that a conviction does not specify what offence under the Ontario Temperance Act has been committed, and although the notice of motion must be served within 30 days from the conviction (7 Geo. V., Ont. c. 50, s. 33) it is competent for the court after the 30 days to give leave to amend the notice served within the time, or to serve a supplementary notice, so as to specify the objection in compliance with the Judicature Act.

R. v. Leduc, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 246, 43 O.L.R. 290.

POWER TO AMEND — EXCESSIVE PUNISHMENT.

Where evidence was irregularly given of a previous offence, and the penalty imposed by a summary conviction was in excess of that authorized for a first offence, the court reviewing the conviction on certiorari for illegal importation of liquor into prohibited territory will decline to amend the conviction by reducing the penalty, if it is not satisfied by the depositions that the accused was guilty of the offence which was then being tried, although neither the information nor the conviction purported to be for other than a first offence.

R. v. L'Hirondelle, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 71, 34 W.L.R. 722.

AMENDMENT OF CONVICTION—PLEA GUILTY

If the information for an indecent act, under Cr. Code, s. 205, omits to charge that the act was "wilfully" committed and defendant pleads guilty before any evidence is taken, the defect will then not be curable on a motion to quash the summary conviction, but if a plea of not guilty is changed to one of guilty after the evidence has been given for the prosecution which satisfies the court hearing the certiorari that the indecent act was wilful, the defect is amendable under the curative provisions of Cr. Code, s. 1124. [R. v. Clifford, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 5, distinguished.]

R. v. Gerold, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 7.

OFFICIAL TITLE OF MAGISTRATE INCOMPLETELY STATED—AMENDMENT.

On certiorari the Court has power to amend a summary conviction by adding to the magistrate's official designation as a county police magistrate words to indicate that he was ex officio a city magistrate as regards an offence committed in the city, if by statute the original appointment for the county has been extended to include the city without further appointment and without any further oath of office being required.

(§ 11—21)—PROCEDURE — AFFIDAVITS — SUFFICIENCY — INFORMATION AND BELIEF.

PROCEDURE — HEARING — ADMISSIBILITY OF AFFIDAVIT OF MAGISTRATE.

On an application for a writ of certiorari to set aside a conviction for a violation of the Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, on the ground that it had not been shewn that a fiat had been obtained under the act, an affidavit of the convicting magistrate in answer is admissible to shew that, before information was laid, he had received the fiat of the Attorney-General to the prosecution being instituted as the statute requires, and that it was in his possession during the trial.

R. v. Thompson; R. v. Hammond; R. v. Churchill, R. v. Aherns, 14 D.L.R. 175, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 78, 7 A.L.R. 40, 25 W.L.R. 576, 5 W.W.R. 157.

AFFIDAVITS.

The court will not admit affidavits in support of a certiorari motion under Ontario law to quash a summary conviction for petty trespass upon enclosed land for the purpose of shewing that the lands were not in fact enclosed or to controvert otherwise the findings of the magistrate upon questions which it was competent for him to try. AFFIDAVITS ON QUESTION OF COSTS.

Affidavits will be received as to the conduct of the parties as bearing upon the question of costs in certiorari proceedings to quash a summary conviction, although the matter set up may not be relevant to the case presented for quashing the conviction.

R. v. Hekam, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 414, 44 O.L.R. 224.

(§ 11—24)—ONUS OF PROOF—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

The court hearing a certiorari motion may quash a summary conviction which a magistrate has entered arbitrarily in reliance upon the shifting of the onus of proof by statute upon the defendant without giving judicial consideration to the question of the credibility to the defendant's evidence contra, but if the statutory onus is that the accused shall prove that he did not keep liquor for sale when a quantity of liquor was found in his possession the magistrate may take into consideration the circumstances under which it was found and under which it was obtained in deciding that he will not accept the defendant's denial on oath that it was kept for purpose of sale. REVIEW OF CONVICTION UNDER MUNICIPAL BY-LAW.

On a certiorari application in respect of a summary conviction under a municipal by-law, the court may look at the depositions and proceedings before the magistrate to see if the by-law has been proved, and, if not, may quash the conviction. [R. v. Banks, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 370, 2 Terr. L.R. 81, followed.]

City of Lethbridge v. Hanson (Alta.), 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 43.

NATURE AND EXTENT OF REVIEW—CONVICTION UNDER LIQUOR LICENSE ACT—REVIEWING EVIDENCE.

On certiorari the court will not examine the evidence in a summary proceeding for a violation of the Liquor License Act, N.B. Con. Stat. 1903, c. 22, pertaining to the very issue which the inferior court had to enquire into, notwithstanding an erroneous conclusion may have been reached, except in so far as to ascertain whether the depositions show any evidence warranting a conviction. [Ex parte Coulson, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 31, 33 N.B.R. 341; Re Melina, Trepanier, 12 Can. S.C.R. 111; The King v. McArthur, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 343, referred to.] On certiorari a summary conviction for violating the Liquor License Act, N.B. Con. Stat. 1903, c. 22, will be sustained, notwithstanding the contradictory nature of the evidence, where there is testimony from which the magistrate might have found the accused guilty, since the former saw and heard the witnesses and, as a judge of the evidence, was in a position to accept such opinion as he might think credible. [The King v. Conrod, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 414, 35 N.S.R. 79, referred to.]

R. v. Allingham, Ex parte Keefe, 12 D. L.R. 9, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 268, 41 N.B.R. 558, 12 E.L.R. 504.

NATURE AND EXTENT OF REVIEW—VIOLATION OF TEMPERANCE ACT—SALE OF LIQUOR FOR INDIVIDUAL USE OF PURCHASER.

Whether liquor sold in violation of the Canada Temperance Act was intended for the individual use of the purchaser is to be determined by the magistrate and is not open to review on certiorari. [R. v. Peck, Ex parte Beal, 40 N.B.R. 320, referred to.]

R. v. Holyoke, Ex parte McIntyre, 13 D.L.R. 225, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 422, 42 N.B.R. 135, 13 E.L.R. 210.

NATURE AND EXTENT OF REVIEW—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

Where certiorari is not taken away by statute, a Superior Court, exercising powers of supervision and revision is ordinarily confined, when dealing with the question whether there is evidence to justify a summary conviction, to the evidence for the prosecution; but where the evidence for the prosecution justifies a conviction only on the ground of natural inference or statutory legal presumption and the evidence for the defence does not contradict the facts from which the inference or presumption arises, but proves the existence of other facts which show that the inference, otherwise rightly drawn, ought not to be drawn when the whole facts are known, the court is bound to consider also such defence evidence in determining whether there was evidence to justify the conviction.

R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 25, 19 A.L.R. 349, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 919.

SUMMARY CONVICTION UNDER LIQUOR LAW—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

The rule in civil cases as to supervision of the findings of a jury on the ground that they are against the weight of evidence does not apply to a certiorari application for review of the findings of a magistrate in respect of an offence as to which the right of certiorari of convictions thereunder has been taken away by statute; certiorari can only be granted in such cases in the event of the magistrate acting without jurisdiction. [Solomon v. Bitton, 8 Q.B.D. 176, and Phillips v. Martin, 13 App. Cas. 193, distinguished.]

R. v. Davis; Ex parte Miranda, 19 D. L.R. 475, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 33, 42 N.B.R. 338.

NATURE AND EXTENT OF REVIEW—CONVICTION WITH SUPPORTING EVIDENCE—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE NOT CONSIDERED.

Where there was some evidence before the magistrate to support his findings of fact such findings will not be reviewed in certiorari proceedings.

R. v. Campbell, 8 D.L.R. 321, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 490, 3 W.W.R. 192. [Affirmed, 13 D.L.R. 941.]

EXTENT OF REVIEW—JURISDICTION—EVIDENCE OF THE OFFENCE.

Where certiorari is taken away by statute and is consequently restricted to the matter of jurisdiction, the erroneous finding by the magistrate of one of the constituents of the offence itself as distinguished from some collateral fact upon which his jurisdiction was contingent, does not go to the magistrate's jurisdiction so as to support a certiorari. [R. v. Walsh, 29 N.S.R. 531, followed; Colonial Bank v. Willan, L.R. 5 P.C. 417, applied.]

R. v. Hoare, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 279, 40 N.S.R. 119.

OMISSION OF PROSECUTION TO NEGATIVE ACCEPTIONS.

A summary conviction under the Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, will not be set aside on certiorari for the omission of the prosecution to negative circumstances the existence of which would legalize the Sunday work or labour complained of as being a work of necessity or mercy or as otherwise lawful under some provincial act or law. [Cr. Code, ss. 1124, 1125, applied.]

R. v. Sam Bow, 31 Can. Crim. Cas. 269, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 315.

NOTICE OF APPEAL FROM ORDER TO QUASH CONVICTION—STATING GROUNDS—ALTA. R. 847.

A notice of appeal from an order quashing a summary conviction on certiorari must specify the grounds of appeal. (Alta. Criminal Rule 847). Failure in that respect would justify the Appellate Court in disregarding an objection that an adequate remedy was afforded the accused by an appeal and that in such event certiorari was taken away by statute. (Per Stuart, J.).

R. v. Dominion Drug Stores (No. 2), 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 86, 14 A.L.R. 384, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 413.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—KEEPING FOR SALE—CONVICTION FOR JURISDICTION OF COURT TO REVIEW—ORDERS FOR CERTIORARI GRANTED BUT WRITS NOT ISSUED—APPLICATIONS TO QUASH CONVICTIONS DISMISSED.

The three defendants having been convicted of having unlawfully kept intoxicating liquor for sale, applications were made on their behalf to the Judge of the County Court for district number 7 for writs of certiorari to remove the convictions into the Supreme Court in order that they might be reviewed. The judge granted the applications, and an order in each case for a writ of certiorari was made, but the writs were not actually issued. Held, that, unless brought into the court by certiorari, the court had no jurisdiction to quash or otherwise deal with the convictions, and the applications to quash must therefore be dismissed.

The King v. Rusko, 52 N.S.R. 181.

(§ II—26)—DEPOSIT OF FINE.

To obtain a certiorari in respect of a summary conviction under the Quebec License Law for illegal sale of liquors without a license, the defendant must within eight days after the conviction deposit with the Clerk of the Peace the amount of the fine and costs and a further sum of $50 as security for future costs (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 1166), and, in default, his petition for certiorari will be dismissed.

Gélinas v. Jolin, 34 D.L.R. 700, 51 Que. S.C. 26, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 392.

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Under Sask. Crown Practice Rules 2 and 5 leave to proceed without furnishing security may be given on the return of a certiorari motion.

R. v. Adamson, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 440, 9 S.L.R. 91, 33 W.L.R. 566.

QUASHING CONVICTION — RECOGNIZANCE.

Where the summons for certiorari gives notice that on the hearing of the motion for the writ the applicant will ask for the quashing of the conviction without the actual issue of the writ and it appears on the motion that the magistrate acted absolutely without jurisdiction, the court may quash the conviction under B.C. Crown Office Rule No. 37, and the applicant need not in such case file a recognizance such as would be necessary under r. 36, if the writ were to be issued.

R. v. Dhana Singh, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 250, 7 W.W.R. 1101.

RECOGNIZANCE.

An application for a writ of certiorari should not be dismissed under B.C. Crown Office Rule 36 on a preliminary objection that no recognizance had been filed. Somble, Crown Office Rule 36 is complied with if the recognizance on a certiorari is filed on taking out the order or writ in case the judge grants the certiorari.

The King v. Ferguson, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 31, 16 B.C.R. 287.

(§ II—27)—STAYING PROCEEDINGS ATTACKED.

When the Council of the Bar is served with a notice of certiorari in respect of a charge of unprofessional conduct against a member, it should suspend all proceedings pending the decision on the certiorari, and if it disregards the same and proceeds to decree the suspension of the advocate who had served notice of this certiorari the exception of this suspension will be restrained by prohibition.

Gosselin v. Bar of Montreal (No. 1), 2 D.L.R. 19.

(§ II—28)—AMENDMENT OF SUMMARY CONVICTION—UNLAWFUL PRACTICE OF DENTISTRY.

An objection that a conviction for unlawfully practising dentistry in contravention of the Dental Profession Act, R.S.S. c. 108, does not specify the particular acts which constituted the alleged practising, may be remedied on certiorari by the court directing an amendment of the conviction so as to insert a statement of the several acts shewn in the evidence to have been committed by the defendant, if the court finds that the magistrate had jurisdiction and that an offence was committed of the nature specified in the conviction. [Cr. Code, s. 1124; R. v. Coulson, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 114, applied; R. v. Harris, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 393, referred to.]

SUMMARY CONVICTION BAD ON ITS FACE—FILING SUBSTITUTED CONVICTION.

On a motion for a writ of certiorari, where the practice is to hear the merits on the motion for the writ, and if granted to include an order quashing the conviction on the return being made, the court will not permit the filing of a substituted conviction made up by the justice after notice of the certiorari application to remedy the defect of the first formal conviction in not stating any place at which the offence was committed, where the depositions themselves did not shew where the offence was committed, and consequently did not shew territorial jurisdiction of the magistrate. [Compare R. v. Oberlander, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 244, 15 B.C.R. 134; R. v. Pickard, 11 D. L.R. 423, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 250.]

R. v. Aikens, 21 D.L.R. 633, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 467, 48 N.S.R. 509.

RETURN OF AMENDED CONVICTION—DEPOSITIONS.

If the magistrate returns to a certiorari an amended conviction by which the substance of that first drawn is changed, the court may decline to accept the amended conviction in the absence of the depositions. [R. v. Barker, 1 East 188, referred to.]

R. v. Watchman, 20 D.L.R. 201, 30 W.L. R. 534, 7 W.W.R. 880, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 362, 7 S.L.R. 350.

PRACTICE AS TO COSTS — ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURE OF APPEAL AVAILABLE — SUMMARY CONVICTION UNDER CRIMINAL CODE.

It is a ground for refusing costs to the successful defendant on his conviction being quashed on certiorari that he might instead of taking certiorari proceedings have appealed to a local court from the summary conviction and that the local court would have had even wider powers upon the appeal than were available to the Superior Court in the certiorari proceedings.

DISCRETION IN GRANTING — STATUTORY PROCEEDINGS—CURATIVE STATUTE.

Where, by statute certain defects in proceedings under the Bastardy Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 182, are declared not to prevent the trial of the accused or to avail as a defence upon the trial, the discretion of the court to grant or refuse a certiorari will be exercised by refusing to remove the information and preliminary proceedings thereon for defects of the class which, if raised before the trial tribunal, would be cured by the statute.

Ex parte Seriesky, 10 D.L.R. 613, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 140, 41 N.B.R. 475, 12 E.L.R. 387.

NEW GROUNDS — AMENDMENT — DISCRETION.

Leave to add new grounds to an order nisi to quash in certiorari proceedings is discretionary with the court and should be refused at the hearing if the applicant has had ample time to formulate them and give notice to the opposite party and has failed to do so.

Ex parte Murchie; R. v. Gloucester, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 228.

(§ II—29) — REPRESENTATION OF MAGISTRATE BY ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT—COSTS.

Where the Attorney-General is represented on a certiorari application brought by the person convicted in a criminal matter, it is to be presumed that the Attorney-General's department is supporting the proceedings on behalf of the magistrate or other government officer; and the magistrate or officer so represented will, in a proper case, on the setting aside of the conviction, be ordered to pay costs irrespective of any misconduct being shewn as was formerly necessary, there being jurisdiction in Alberta under Crown rule N.W. T. 39, and Cr. Code (1906), s. 576. [Thomas v. Pritchard, [1903] 1 K.B. 209, 72 L.J. K.B. 23, 20 Cox C.C. 376, applied.]

(§ II—30)—CONVERTING THE RETURN—SUMMARY CONVICTION — USE OF EVIDENCE IN A PRIOR CASE.

A magistrate's return in certiorari proceedings is conclusive only as to matters which are required to be included and does not prevent the controverting of the magistrate's statement therein that it had been agreed that the evidence in another case previously tried should be considered as applicable, where the record of the depositions and proceedings contained no reference to such consent or agreement. [R. v. Strachan, 20 U.C.C.P. 182, referred to.]

R. v. Davey, 14 D.L.R. 727, 5 O.W.N. 464, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 185, 25 O.W.R. 478.

CONVERTING THE RETURN.

The court will not hear evidence on a certiorari application to contradict the return of the magistrate as to the course of procedure at the trial; affidavits to be receivable to disprove jurisdiction must be directed to the commencement of the inquiry and not to the facts disclosed in the progress of same. (Per Barry, J.) [Ex parte Steeves, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 160, 39 N.B.R. 2; R. v. Bolton, 1 Q.B. 66, followed.]

Ex parte Richard; R. v. Steeves, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 183, 42 N.B.R. 596.

(§ II—35)—RETURNING AMENDED CONVICTION—COPY.

A statute requiring the magistrate to file a "copy" of each conviction under a particular statute in a public office within a limited time will not debar the magistrate from amending the original conviction while still in his possession in a manner conformable to the actual adjudication and filing a copy of such amended conviction so as to cure an omission in the first copy filed of the time when the offence was committed as proved by the evidence, and such amended conviction may be returned to an order for certiorari granted after the filing of a copy of the first pursuant to the statutory requirement. [R. v. Learmont, 23 N.S.R. 24, distinguished; R. v. McAnn, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 110, referred to.]

R. v. Shatford, 38 D.L.R. 366, 51 N.S.R. 322, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 284.

RETURNING AMENDED CONVICTION — SUMMARY TRIAL PROCEDURE.

A magistrate making a conviction on a summary trial for an indictable offence may in answer to a certiorari motion attacking the same for irregularity, return an amended conviction conforming with the adjudication and setting out in a more formal manner the conviction which he had already drawn. [And see R. v. McAnn, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 110; R. v. Whiffin, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 141; R. v. Barre, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 1; Ex parte Giberson (No. 1), 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 66; Ex parte Giberson (No. 2), 16 Can. Cr. (§ II—36)—SUMMARY CONVICTION—COSTS —MINUTE OF CONVICTION.

A summary conviction under the Liquor License Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 22, will not be quashed on the ground that the amount of the costs of the prosecution and of the costs of commitment and conveying to goal were first fixed in the formal conviction and that the "minute of conviction," which the magistrate is directed to make by s. 29, adjudged the fine "besides costs" and in default three months' imprisonment, without specifying either the amount of such costs or the costs of commitment and conveying to gaol in the event of the fine and costs not being paid;semble, the minute of conviction was not defective, but, if it were, the defect was cured by s. 89 of that act (similar to Cr. Code, s. 1124), so far as the conviction was concerned, where the latter was in due form. [Ex parte Van Buskirk, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 234, 38 N.B.R. 335; Ex parte Bertin, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 65, 36 N.B.R. 577, referred to.]

R. v. Dugas; Ex parte Paulin, 27 D.L.R. 683, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 173, 43 N.B.R. 58.

SUMMARY CONVICTIONS—APPEAL.

A summary conviction is to be considered as "removed by certiorari" for the purposes of Code s. 1124, and its curative provisions as regards convictions otherwise irregular but founded on evidence satisfactorily disclosing an offence of the nature described in the conviction, although the conviction itself had not in fact been brought up under a writ of certiorari but on a motion to quash the conviction under a method of procedure authorized by Rules of Court passed under Code, s. 576. It is sufficient in such case that the conviction and papers pertaining to it were certified and returned to the Superior Court on notice, instead of by a return to a writ of certiorari, and that for the purposes of an appeal from an order refusing to quash, the Appellate Court has before it the conviction and papers so returned by the magistrate and certified to the Appellate Division by the proper officer of the division in which the order appealed from was made. (Per Meredith, C.J.C.P., R. v. Titchmarsh, 52 O.L.R. 569, applied; Ont. Practice Rule 1287, considered.)

R. v. Jackson, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 352, 40 O.L.R. 173, affirming 12 O.W.N. 161. [See 12 O.W.N. 77, 161.]

RIGHT TO AWARD COSTS AGAINST INFORMANT, RESPONDENT, ON QUASHING A SUMMARY CONVICTION.

A Superior Court having by statute the powers formerly held by the Court of Chancery in England, as well as common law powers, has jurisdiction to award costs against the informant appearing in support of a summary conviction in certiorari proceedings resulting in the conviction being quashed. Such jurisdiction in Saskatchewan is supported also by Crown r. 40 and King's Bench Act (Sask.) s. 51. [R. v. Woodhouse, [1906] 2 K.B. 501, applied; Re Mills Estate, 34 Ch. D. 24; Reg. v. Parby, 6 T.L.R. 36, held overruled; The Queen v. Banks, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 370; Reg. v. Coutts, 5 Ont. R. 644; R. v. Rondeau, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 523; R. v. Bennett, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 456, not followed.]

R. v. Standall, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 144, 12 S.L.R. 282.

(§ II—40)—WAIVER—NOTICE OF MOTION SERVED TOO LATE—ENLARGEMENT OF MOTION BY CONSENT.

The enlargement by consent of a motion to quash a summary conviction under the Liquor License Act (Ont.) and the demanding by the respondent of copies of affidavits in support, do not operate as a waiver by the prosecutor of a preliminary objection that the notice of motion was served too late, even if it were possible for the prosecutor to waive the statutory requirements. [R. v. Whitaker, 24 O.R. 437, distinguished; R. v. How, 11 A. & E. 159, applied.]

I. IN GENERAL.

II. AGREEMENTS BETWEEN ATTORNEY AND CLIENT.

I. In general.

(§ I—1)—ASSIGNMENT BY SEVERAL CREDITORS OF SEPARATE CLAIMS TO ONE PARTY FOR SUIT—QUEBEC CIVIL CODE, 1582.

When several creditors assign their several claims to one of their number, without selling them to him, but transferring them for the purpose of having but one suit brought against their common debtor, so as to avoid costs and multiplicity of actions, the defence of litigious rights cannot be pleaded, art. 1582 of the Quebec Civil Code applying only in the case of an onerous contract based on speculation. [Powell v. Watters, 28 Can. S.C.R. 133, followed.]

French Gas Saving Co. v. The Desbarats Advertising Agency, 1 D.L.R. 136.

(§ I—2)—TRANSFER OF LITIGIOUS RIGHTS.

An exception to an agreement, whereby the principal plaintiff agrees to limit the responsibility of the principal defendant (who is also plaintiff in warranty) to a certain sum on condition that such principal defendant prosecuted an action in warranty against the defendant in warranty, on the ground that such agreement is a transfer of litigious rights should be raised by a peremptory exception to the action in warranty and cannot be entertained as a ground against an appeal from a judgment rendered on such action.

Stilwell-Bierce & Smith-Vale Co. v. Lyall, 3 D.L.R. 369.

SUPPORTING TEST CASE—ASSISTING IN SIMILAR INDEPENDENT ACTION.

Champerty or maintenance is not shewn by an agreement of a plaintiff in a similar action against the same defendant to pay the costs of another plaintiff's solicitor in proceeding with a test action in the name of such other plaintiff, leaving the action of the person so paying the solicitor in abeyance under an order of stay to abide the result of the contested action, even although the plaintiff in the contested action had no means to carry on the litigation alone, if the latter's cause of action was an independent one and the other plaintiff had no share in the possible proceeds of the contested action.

The courts of this country will decline on grounds of public policy to enforce an agreement made in another country between a foreign attorney and his client whereby the attorney was to receive one-half of the proceeds by compromise or suit of the client's claim against her husband for alimony; and will in lieu thereof fix and allow such reduced amount as is found to be reasonable.

(§ I-1) — ROMAN CATHOLIC EPISCOPAL CORPORATION—ACT CREATING—EFFECT OF ACT—POWERS OF BISHOP OF TORONTO AND KINGSTON.

The Act of 8 Vict., c. 82, by which the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of the Diocese of Kingston was created, in effect created the Bishops of Kingston and Toronto corporations for the purpose of acquiring and holding land for the general use, eleemosynary, ecclesiastical, or educational, of the Church of Rome or of the religious community or any part of it within their respective dioceses, with the right, having obtained the consent provided for by s. 5, to sell, exchange, lease, or otherwise dispose of the land. The act does not vest in the corporation any spiritual jurisdiction or ecclesiastical rights, nor are such rights conferred upon the Bishops in the corporate status which the act gives them.

CHARITABLE ASSOCIATIONS ACT — INCORPORATION—"ORPHANS"—"FAMILY."

Under the Charitable Associations Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 27) a corporation may be created "for any benevolent or provident act not connected with trade or commerce," therefore where any society is incorporated under said act by letters patent which provide that it shall have all powers, rights and immunities vested in such bodies under the law, the powers of the association are not limited to those specified in s. 2 (a) of the Act, and include the power to make provision for the several classes of persons named in s. 52 of the Beneficiary Laws. The word "orphans" in s. 2 of the act means children and does not include the grandchildren of a deceased member who have been bereft of their mother. The word "family" in the by-laws of a benevolent association may include all persons who habitually reside under one roof and form one domestic circle.

Hunter v. Dow (Man.), [1917] 3 W.W.R. 132.

C. CONDITIONS; EXISTENCE AND CAPACITY OF TRUSTEES OR BENEFICIARIES.

(§ I C-22)—CAPACITY GENERALLY.

R.S.O. 1897, c. 307, s. 23, gives power to sell land held by churches in trust, when it becomes unnecessary to hold it for the religious use of the congregation, and it is deemed advantageous to sell, but without disturbance of special trusts, the aim of the statute being to give a right of alienation to a religious body holding lands by trustees capable of perpetual succession. Where a given trust deed provides a specific event when "the church, for which the trust was created shall lose its visibility and cease to exist," this cannot be said to have happened where the church congregation has merely moved to another location. Where a church, to which certain lands are conveyed in perpetual trust for its maintenance, is organized on a congregational basis, the view of the majority prevails, and no breach of a general trust occurs by the conversion of the lands pursuant to direction of the majority of the congregation; and resolutions to change the place of worship and sell the lands deeded to the trustees of the congregation are matters of congregational competence and are conclusive against dissident members of the congregation. [Newburgh Reformed Church v. Princeton Theological Seminary, 4 N.J. Eq. 77, and Pine Hill Lutheran v. St. Michael's Evangelical, 48 Pa. St. 29, followed.] A deed of land to church trustees upon trust that the land shall be forever held and enjoyed for the use of the members of a specified local church and that rents derived from any portion of the site shall be applied towards the upkeep of the meetinghouse thereon, is a trust which forbids a change of site so long as a congregation exists.

(§ I C—24)—TRUST DEED OF CHURCH LANDS—EXTENSION AND DIVISION OF PARISH.

Where a conveyance of land was made to the rector of a certain parish, "his successor and successors in office forever," in trust to erect and maintain a church thereon, and a statute, 39 Vict. Que. 1875, c. 74, declared that the land and the new church to be erected thereon should "be vested in the rector and churchwardens of the church" and their successors in office "in trust for the uses and purposes ecclesiastical of the said parish," and after many years the old parish was made into a separate parish and called by a new name while a strip of noncontiguous territory which had been added to the old parish retained the old name, the title to the old church was not vested in the corporation of the parish retaining the old name, since the trust on which the land was conveyed had a territorial meaning and related to a defined and well understood parochial area and to the maintenance within that area of a church for the purposes ecclesiastical of the original beneficiaries, the inhabitants of the district formerly known by the old name.

Parish of St. Stephen's v. Parish of St. Edward's, 2 D.L.R. 594.

(§ I C—27)—RIGHTS OF DISSIDENT MEMBERS.

Dissident members of a church organized on an independent or congregational basis, who band themselves together with others in a new organization, are an off-shoot from the old body, and, therefore, have ceased to be a part of it, and can have no right as once members of the original body to claim any part of the property vested in trustees for that original body.

Hengli v. Pauli, 4 D.L.R. 319, 26 O.L.R. 94, 3 O.W.N. 915, 21 O.W.R. 776.

UNINCORPORATED ASSOCIATION.

A deed of property made by ratepayers in Nova Scotia to a religious order not incorporated in Nova Scotia is a nullity and no title passes under it. The same defect would affect the title of defendant under the deed to him from the mother of the order and the mortgage to his brother who was aware of the facts. The action by the Attorney-General on the relation of one of the ratepayers to recover for the section property which rightfully belonged to it would not be affected by a resolution of the majority of the ratepayers instructing discontinuance of the proceedings for the recovery of the property. The property having been obtained by public subscription for the use of the ratepayers of the section for educational purposes was a charitable trust, for the enforcement of which the Attorney-General was properly made a party, and was property which it was the duty of the trustees to take possession of under the provisions of R.S.N.S., c. 52, s. 55, subs. (a), and as to which they were guilty of a breach of trust in abandoning the proceedings for its retention.

The Attorney-General ex rel. Morrison v. Landry, 45 N.S.R. 298.

D. DEFINITENESS; DISCRETION OF TRUSTEE.

(§ I D—35)—NATURE AND VALIDITY—DEFINITENESS—DISCRETION OF TRUSTEES—WILLS.

While art. 869 of the Civil Code (Que.), gives the right and power to a person to freely dispose of his property by will (and that to charities or charitable institutions), if the will does not indicate clearly the charitable institutions or the class of charitable institutions or the class of charitable institutions, the charitable bequest will be nugatory for uncertainty and vagueness, and this result follows where the testator leaves it entirely to his executors or trustees to select the charities and the class of charities to be benefited. [Grimmond v. Grimmond, 74 L.J. Ch. 35, referred to.]

Atkinson v. Cinq-Mars, 20 D.L.R. 404.

POWERS OF TRUSTEES—CONVEYANCE—PURPOSES OF TRUST.

Property held as a charitable trust for the use of all Protestant denominations, for social and religious purposes, cannot be conveyed by the trustees for the purpose of a church for any particular congregation or faction thereof.

Langille v. Nass, 36 D.L.R. 368, 51 N.S.R. 429.

(§ I D—38)—DEFINITENESS—DISCRETION AS TO PURPOSE OF GIFT—VALIDITY.

A bequest of property to be used by the legatees "for benevolent purposes anyway they may see fit" is void for uncertainty.

Lawrence v. Lawrence, 13 D.L.R. 737, 42 N.B.R. 260, 13 E.L.R. 519.

(§ I D—39)—CROWN GRANT OF LAND TO USE OF CLERGYMEN—DISCRETION AS TO APPOINTMENT OF PROCEEDS.

On a Crown grant of land to trustees their heirs and assigns to be held to and for a glebe for the use and benefit of the ministers and congregations of the Church of England in a certain town or city, the income of the trust is to be divided in aliquot parts according to the number of the churches of that denomination existing from time to time in the city; the minister and congregation of each church may properly be treated as a single entity, and payment may be made to the rector and churchwardens, leaving it to them to apportion the distribution as between the minister and congregation. [Dumoulin v.

Langtry, 13 Can. S.C.R. 258; Re Hislop, 22 D.L.R. 710, 8 O.W.N. 53 referred to.]
Re Chatham Glebe Trust, 22 D.L.R. 798, 8 O.W.N. 169.

DISCRETION AS TO BENEFICIARIES.

Vacating the site of a place of worship by a church organized upon a congregational basis pursuant to a special trust granting the site to the church for that purpose, does not amount to a cesser of the existence of the beneficiary. [Compare Parish of St. Stephen's v. Parish of St. Edward's, 2 D.L.R. 594, a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada affirming the King's Bench of Quebec.]

A statutory receipt in the nature of a warehouse receipt given under s. 88 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, as security to a chartered bank is not a "chattel mortgage" within a warranty condition of a fire insurance policy that the insurance shall be void if the insured property "be or become encumbered by a chattel mortgage."

II. Validity; consideration.

A. GENERALLY.

(§ II A—5)—VERBAL AGREEMENT—RIGHT OF SIMPLE CREDITOR TO ATTACK VALIDITY.

The validity of a chattel mortgage executed in pursuance of a verbal agreement cannot be attacked by a simple creditor under s. 8 of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 17. [Parkes v. St. George, 10 A.R. (Ont.) 496; Empire Sash, etc. v. Maranda, 21 Man. L.R. 695, followed.]

Richards & Brown v. Leonoff, 24 D.L.R. 180, 25 Man. L.R. 548, 31 W.L.R. 621, 8 W.W.R. 966.

VALIDITY—CONSIDERATION.

Where the object of a chattel mortgage made by an insolvent debtor is to withdraw all his assets from the reach of the other creditors in order to enable a surety to pay a debt of the insolvent which the surety had guaranteed, the chattel mortgage is invalid as against creditors under the Assignments and Preferences Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 64, as having been made for an unlawful purpose.

Stecher Lithographic Co. v. Ontario Seed Co., 7 D.L.R. 148, 46 Can. S.C.R. 540.

OMITTING RATE OF INTEREST—FAILURE TO ANNEX NOTE.

A chattel mortgage given to a bank as security for the payment of a promissory note, containing recitals showing particulars of the note and that interest was payable on the amount thereof, but the note itself not being annexed to nor registered with the instrument, and the rate of interest payable thereon not being specified, does not disclose a complete statement of the terms of defeasance or assurance, and is, therefore, inoperative under s. 19 of the Bills of Sale Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 20, requiring all defeasances and conditions to be truly set out in the same instrument.

Ball & Whieldon v. Royal Bank, 26 D.L.R. 385, 52 Can. S.C.R. 254, reversing 22 D.L.R. 647, 1 B.C.R. 67.

ACTION BY JUDGMENT CREDITORS TO SET ASIDE—BILLS OF SALE AND CHATTEL MORTGAGE ACT—JUDGMENT SATISFIED—COSTS—OTHER CREDITORS.

The plaintiffs, being judgment creditors of the defendant company by virtue of a judgment recovered in a Division Court, brought this action, in the Supreme Court of Ontario, to have it declared that a certain chattel mortgage made by the defendant company to the defendant T, was void as against the plaintiffs and other creditors of the defendant company. When the action was commenced, execution had not been issued upon the plaintiffs' judgment. Before this action came down to trial, the amount of the plaintiffs' judgment had been paid to them; and, so far as they were concerned, only the costs of this action were in question. The Trial Judge determined that the chattel mortgage was void against creditors of the mortgagor, and ordered the defendants to pay the plaintiffs' costs of the action. The defendants appealed from this judgment:—Held, that the chattel mortgage was rightly found to be void under the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 135—the transaction between the defendants was in fact an endorsement by the defendant T, of the defendant company's promissory note, whereas the chattel mortgage was in the form prescribed for a direct loan. Held, also, that the Trial Judge's award of costs to the plaintiffs could not be interfered with, but that the plaintiffs should have no costs of the appeal. After this action was brought, the plaintiffs' claim was not for the amount owing upon their judgment only, but for the costs of this action also. The costs did not become a debt until adjudged to the plaintiffs; but, when adjudged, an invalid mortgage should not be allowed to stand in the way of enforcing payment of them. The plaintiffs should have issued execution in the Division Court, caused the mortgaged goods to be seized under their execution, and, if a claim had been then made by the mortgagor, litigated that claim in the Division Court in interpleader proceedings. Having taken a more expensive course, they should be deprived of the costs of the appeal. Although it was not shown by the style of cause, as it should have been, it sufficiently appeared from the statement of claim, that this action was brought on behalf of all creditors, and on amendment of the style of cause was properly allowed at the trial. The defect in the chattel mortgage was one of which advantage could be taken by creditors. If the plaintiffs had not sued on behalf of all creditors, not being execution creditors when they commenced this action, they would have had no locus standi; but, suing as they did on behalf of all creditors, their status was expressly established by s. 2 (b) of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act. And they had proved there were other creditors.

Barchard & Co. v. Nipissing Coca Cola Bottle Works, 42 O.L.R. 196.

UNDUE INFLUENCE—ILLITERACY.

Where mortgagées deliberately exclude a friend of an illiterate foreigner, who is with him at his request to advise him as to the effect of his acts, from the room where the foreigner is persuaded to sign a mortgage which he does not understand, the mortgage will be set aside.

Kardosy v. Massey-Harris (Sask.), 34 W.L.R. 808. [See also Vanholt v. Newton (Man.), 29 D.L.R. 425.]

(§ II A—6)—RENEWAL STATEMENT—MORTGAGEE'S SURNAME OMITTED—IDENTIFICATION.

A renewal statement of a chattel mortgage under R.S.S. c. 144 is not invalidated by the omission of the surname of the mortgagor or of the additions of the mortgagor and mortgagee if the affidavit verifying the renewal statement identifies the mortgage referred to in which those details are set forth.

Rogers Lumber Co. v. Dunlop, 20 D.L.F. 154, 7 S.L.R. 421, 30 W.L.R. 209, 7 W.W. R. 975.

(§ II A—7)—VALIDITY—CONSIDERATION—BILL OF SALE AS SECURITY—AFFIDAVIT OF BONA FIDES.

A chattel mortgage given for advances made and to secure against liability on indorsements of promissory notes is insufficient under the Bills of Sale Act, 1905, B.C., c. 8, s. 7, as against an assignment for creditors made before possession had been taken by the chattel mortgagee, where the affidavit of bona fides on the chattel mortgage stated that the same was made bona fide for the valuable consideration therein mentioned but did not state that the mortgagors were justly and truly indebted to the mortgagees in respect of the considerations recited in the mortgage. [Winter v. Gault, 13 D.L.R. 176, 18 B.C.R. 487, affirmed.]

Gault v. Winter, 19 D.L.R. 281, 49 Can. S.C.R. 541.

AFFIDAVIT OF OFFICER OF CORPORATION—FAILURE TO STATE PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE—BONA FIDES—SEIZURE WITHOUT REMOVAL.

An affidavit of bona fides of a chattel mortgage sworn by an officer of a corporation is defective if it fails to state, as required by s. 24 of the Chattel Mortgage Act (Sask.), as enacted by c. 67, s. 22, of the statutes 1913, that the deponent is aware of the circumstances connected with the mortgage and has a personal knowledge of the facts deposed to. A chattel mortgage is not rendered invalid because the affidavit of bona fides is sworn before the solicitor acting in the matter. A chattel mortgage given to secure a past indebtedness of $600 and a future advance of $100, the consideration expressed in the mortgage being "$700 in hand paid," while the actual indebtedness at the time being only $600, does not truly express the consideration as required by the statute, and will render the mortgage void as against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith. A mere seizure by a bailiff under a distress warrant on the maturity of a mortgage, without removing the goods from the mortgagor's control, does not amount to such an actual change of possession of the mortgaged goods as will cure a defective mortgage as against subsequent equities.

VALIDITY—DEFECTIVE AFFIDAVIT—FAILURE TO STATE DAY OF EXECUTION—R.S.O. 1914, c. 135, s. 5.

The purpose of that part of s. 5 of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 135, which requires that the affidavit of the attesting witness shall state the date of the execution of the chattel mortgage is to insure the registration of a chattel mortgage within the statutory period from its actual execution and to prevent the execution of chattel mortgages with the dates left blank to be post-dated at the discretion of the mortgagee, whereby a mortgage actually too late and therefore invalid might appear to be in regular form when registered. [Parsons v. Brand, 25 Q.B.D. 110; Archibald v. Hubley, 18 Can. S.C.R. 116, referred to.]

Martin v. Shapiro, 20 D.L.R. 574, 32 O.L.R. 640.

INSOLVENT COMPANY—CASH ADVANCE—MORTGAGEE NOMINEE OF COMPANY—COLLUSION—SECURED CREDITOR—PREJUDICING OTHER CREDITORS—ASSIGNMENTS AND PREFERENCES ACT (ONT.).

A chattel mortgage given by a company when insolvent will be set aside under the Assignments and Preferences Act, Ont., notwithstanding that the consideration was a cash advance where the chattel mortgage was made to a nominee of one of the company's officers and such officer provided the money and negotiated the transaction so as to pay off a company debt for which he was surety and so relieve himself from that liability by collusion with another executive officer of the company to give the officer furnishing the money under cover of his nominee and to the secured creditor who was paid the money an unjust preference and to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice other creditors both knowing the company to be insolvent. [Stecher Litho Co. v. Ontario Seed Co., 7 D.L.R. 148, 46 Can. S.C.R. 540, affirmed on appeal; Middleton v. Pollock, 2 Ch.D. 104, referred to.]

Uffelmann v. Stecher Lithographic Co., 20 D.L.R. 619.

TRUE CONSIDERATION—BALANCE OF PURCHASE PRICE—VERBAL AGREEMENT.

The sale of a business by verbal agreement creates a valid existing debt for the purchase price which may form the bona fides of a chattel mortgage, though such agreement is formally reduced to writing subsequent to the execution of the mortgage; and a recital in the mortgage that it was given as security for the balance of such purchase price truly sets forth the consideration thereof.

Russell v. Quaker Oats Co., 25 D.L.R. 82, 8 S.L.R. 399, 32 W.L.R. 953, 9 W.W.R. 617.

"$1,500 NOW PAID"—PAST DUE AND ACCRUING DEBTS—CONSIDERATION TRULY EXPRESSED.

A chattel mortgage in which the consideration is stated to be "the sum of $1,500 now paid" truly expresses the consideration so as to satisfy s. 13 of the Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.S. ch. 144, where the consideration money was made up of a past due note and a new advance from the mortgagor to the mortgagee. [Patterson v. Palmer, 4 S.L.R. 487; Credit Co. v. Pott, 6 Q.B.D. 295, applied.]

McCready v. International Harvester Co., 21 D.L.R. 769, 8 S.L.R. 261.

TRUE EXPRESSION OF CONSIDERATION—SUFFICIENCY OF AFFIDAVIT—CLERICAL DEFECTS—EFFECT OF POSSESSION.

The consideration in a chattel mortgage is truly expressed, notwithstanding a portion of it was not actually paid over but formed part of a debt for which the mortgage was given. The affidavit of bona fides made by the manager of a company need not state knowledge of the circumstances connected with the mortgage, as required by s. 22 of the Bills of Sale Ordinance (C.O. 1898, c. 43, as amended in 1915, c. 2, s. 11); nor is a clerical error as to the name of the mortgagee fatal to its validity. Besides, possession by the mortgagee, even in the form of seizure without removal, has the effect of curing any defect in the mortgage, and will prevail over a subsequent seizure of the chattels by a municipality for arrears in taxes.

AS TO EXISTING AND FUTURE DEBTS.—See

AMARITY.

A chattel mortgage, given as security for the payment of an existing debt, and also to secure future indebtedness, though invalid as against creditors in so far as it purports to be a security for future indebtedness in noncompliance with s. 6 (1) of the Bills of Sale Act, R.S.B.C. 1911,

Art. R.S.O. 1914, c. 133, is nevertheless valid as security for the existing indebtedness if the requirements of s. 5 have been observed. [Campbell v. Patterson, 21 Can.

An affidavit of execution of a chattel agent, without express authorization, but such officer or agent must state in the af-

FURTHER STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION—NOTE

FOR PAST DEBT.

The consideration in a chattel mortgage is truly set forth within the meaning of s. 7 of the Bills of Sale Act, R.S.B.C. 1911,

c. 20, where it is stated to be for "a loan of $1,200 on a promissory note of even date," though it fails to set out the full particulars for which the note is given. [Credit

BILLS OF SALE ACT—TRUST AND REGISTRAR

FACTS OF TRANSACTIONS NOT SHOWN IN MORTGAGE.

Mortgage of chattels held invalid under the Bills of Sale Act because while the mortgage on its face appeared to be given to secure a loan, the transaction was in fact largely for security for prior indebtedness; the true consideration was not stated;

there was nothing to show the mortgages were trustees, as they in fact were; and their authority to act and receive the mortgage was not shown.

DESCRIPTION OF CHATTELS—BILLS OF SALE

Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 144), s. 14.

A description of articles comprised in a chattel mortgage cannot be considered sufficient and full when all the following four elements are absent: (1) A definite description permitting of a ready distinction of the articles from similar articles in the same locality; (2) a particular and definite statement of the locality of the goods; (3) a statement that the goods are in the possession of the mortgagor; (4) a statement that the goods are all the goods of that description in the possession of the mortgagor or in the locality mentioned. [Mason v. McDougald, 25 U.C.C.P. 435; Holt v. Carmichael, 2 O.A.R. 639; McCall v. Wolfe, 13 Can. S.C.R. 132; Hovey v. Whiting, 14 Can. S.C.R. 566; Ward v. Serrell, 3 A.L.R. 138, referred to.]

Edwards v. Boulton, 7 W.W.R. 217.

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY—IDENTIFICATION.

A chattel mortgage on 700 unidentified bushels of a crop is void because of the impossibility of identifying the particular bushels intended to be mortgaged.

Little v. Magle, 7 W.W.R. 224, 29 W.L.R. 596.

C. PROPERTY SUBJECT TO MORTGAGE; AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY.

(§ II C—15)—AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY—EJUSDEM GENERIS.

Where a chattel mortgage instrument assumes to cover in a shop (a) a stock of hardware, crockeryware and groceries, (b) the shop and office fixtures, scales and appurtenances, (c) all other goods that may be put in said shop in substitution for or in addition to those already there, the same and as fully to all intents and purposes as if said "added or substituted stock" were already in said shop; the "stock" and the "fixtures" are distinct "genera," and only within the latter can an "account register" properly come, hence it cannot be included in the "added or substituted stock." Dominion Register Co. v. Hall (No. 1), 8 D.L.R. 577, affirmed.]

Dominion Register Co. v. Hall (No. 2), 11 D.L.R. 366, 47 N.S.R. 57, 12 E.L.R. 494.

INTEREST OF PURCHASER UNDER CONDITIONAL SALE.

The interest of a purchaser under a conditional sale, whereby the title to the goods remains in the seller until the price is fully paid, may form the subject-matter of a chattel mortgage.

Sharp v. Ingles, 23 D.L.R. 636, 21 B.C.R. 584, 32 W.L.R. 150, 9 W.W.R. 1325.

NO AFFIDAVIT OF EXECUTION — INVALID AGAINST CREDITORS—BILLS OF SALE AND CHATTEL MORTGAGE ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 135, ss. 5-7—PROVISO IN MORTGAGE—VALIDITY.

Under R.S.O. 1914, c. 135, the Bills of Sale Act, a chattel mortgage registered without an affidavit of execution is void as against the mortgagor's creditors. But a proviso in the mortgage itself that the goods will be insured with loss (if any) payable to the mortgagee is valid, and acts as an equitable assignment of the insurance moneys. [In re Isaacson, ex parte Mason, [1895] 1 Q.B. 333, specially referred to.]

Marks-Clavet-Dobie Co. v. Russell Timber Co., 7 O.W.N. 229.

(§ II C—16)—FUTURE CROP—SEED-GRAIN MORTGAGES IN SASKATCHEWAN.

A valid chattel mortgage can be taken in Saskatchewan for the price of seed grain sold bona fide for seed purposes on any crop to be grown by the mortgagor whether the same be grown from the seed sold or not.

R. v. Holderman, 19 D.L.R. 748, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 369, 7 S.L.R. 279, 7 W.W.R. 729, 30 W.L.R. 82.

FUTURE-ACQUIRED GOODS — MORTGAGOR'S TRANSFEREE.

The general inclusion in a chattel mortgage of future-acquired goods brought upon the premises by the mortgagor will not recover future-acquired goods separable from the others and brought in by the mortgagor's transferee who had purchased the business subject to the chattel mortgage.

AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY—IN ESSE OR IN POSSE—"EXCEPTING LOGS ON THE WAY TO THE MILL," CONSTRICTED.

Where a mortgage by a wholesale manufacturer stipulates to cover generally all present and future-acquired assets "excepting logs on the way to the mill," such exception is not to be construed as limited to logs on the way to the mill at the date of the mortgage, when the reason for the exception is in the interest of all parties (including the mortgagee himself) to facilitate those ordinary and essential financial arrangements between mortgagor and his bank which are only possible if advances can be made upon logs in transit from time to time during the general and regular course of the trade and contract.

PRIORITIES—MORTGAGE ON MERCHANDISE—AFTER-ACQUIRED GOODS—SEREGATION—ONUS.

Where a chattel mortgage purports to include after-acquired goods, the extent of the latter, even if not within the express terms of the Bills of Sale Act, 1905, B.C., would have to be proved by the claimant chattel mortgagee thereof as against an assignment for creditors made by the chattel mortgagor before possession had been taken by the chattel mortgagee; the latter's interest is a merely equitable one to after-acquired goods when they come under the operation of the mortgage, and the onus is upon the chattel mortgagee to establish his title to same. [Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 A.C. 523; Traves v. Forrester, 42 Can. S.C.R. 514, referred to; and note subsequent legislation of 1912, 2 Geo. V. (B.C.), c. 2.]

(§ II C-22)—BOOK DEBTS.

A transfer of book debts is not within the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 65, and does not require registration under that act in order to be valid against creditors if the transaction is otherwise unimpeachable. [Kitching v. Hicks, 6 Ont. R. 739; Thibaudan v. Paul, 26 Ont. R. 385, followed; Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 523, applied.] Where a mortgage not specifically mentioning present or future book debts covers "undertakings . . . together with . . . incomes and sources of money, rights, privileges . . . held or enjoyed by [the mortgagor], now or at any time prior to the full payment of the mortgage," such language is sufficiently comprehensive to create an equitable charge on present and future book debts of the trading corporation by which the mortgage was made. Book debts are not within the Ontario Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 148 (now 10 Edw. VII. c. 65), and the transfer of them does not require registration, and, therefore, the mortgagee in an unregistered mortgage covering book debts as well as other personal property which would require its registration to make it valid as against creditors of the mortgagor, is entitled to recover the amount realized from the book debts by the mortgagor's assignee for the benefit of creditors or by the liquidator appointed under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, even though no notice was given by the mortgagee to those owing the book debts.

National Trust Co. v. Trusts & Guarantee Co., 5 D.L.R. 459, 26 O.L.R. 279, 22 O. W.R. 933.

D. POSSESSION; POWER TO SELL.

For wrongful exercise of power of sale, see Injunction, II-134.

(§ II D-25)—SECOND CHATTEL MORTGAGE—SEIZURE IN DEFAULT.

A second chattel mortgagee may have a right of seizure under an express stipulation in the mortgage subject to the rights of the first mortgagee, notwithstanding that the legal estate in the chattels passed to the first mortgagee and that the latter's mortgage stipulated that the mortgagor should hold them as bailee in trust exclusively for him. [Rugg v. Barnes, 56 Mass. 591, distinguished.]

ABSENCE OF DEFEASANCE CLAUSE—POSSESSION IN MORTGAGEE.

The right of possession is an incident to the right of property in the goods, and, where a chattel mortgage vests the right of property in the chattel mortgagee and there is no defeasance clause or other stipulation to the contrary, the chattel mortgagee becomes entitled to the possession. [Smith v. Fair, 11 A.R. (Ont.) 755, referred to.] McDermott v. Fraser, 23 D.L.R. 430, 25 Man. L.R. 298, 8 W.W.R. 196.

DEGREE OF CARE IN EXERCISING SALE—LIABILITY.

A mortgagee in possession who does not exercise care and discretion in the sale of mortgaged goods is liable in damages for the difference between the real value of the goods and their sale price.

Vanbolt v. Newton, 29 D.L.R. 425, 9 W. W.R. 1407.

(§ II D-29)—WRONGFUL SEIZURE—CONSENT—UNDUE INFLUENCE—ILLITERACY.

The assent of a mortgagor to the seizure and sale of his property is null and void for undue influence when the mortgagor is of but moderate intelligence and little education and the mortgagee intelligent and shrewd, and the assent is procured by the misrepresentations and threats of the mortgagee.

Vanbolt v. Newton, 29 D.L.R. 425, 9 W. W.R. 1407.

(§ III—31)—NECESSITY OF FILING OR RECORDING.

A mortgage is a "mortgage or conveyance intended to operate as a mortgage of goods and chattels" within the meaning of ss. 2 and 23 of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 148 (now ss. 5 and 24 of 10 Edw. VII. c. 65), which mortgage covered the mortgagor's "undertakings then made or in course of construction, or thereafter to be constructed, together with all the property, real and personal, tolls, incomes, and sources of money, rights, privileges and franchises, owned, held, or enjoyed by it" and "all machinery of every nature and kind including all tools and implements used in connection therewith," although it stipulated that for the purpose of the mortgage security "all machinery, plant, and personal property of the mortgagor were to be considered fixtures to the realty" and that the mortgage was not to be registered as a bill of sale or chattel mortgage; and therefore, if such mortgage is not accompanied by an immediate delivery for an actual and continued change of possession of the things mortgaged, or is not registered as a chattel mortgage, as required by s. 2 of that Act, it is absolutely null and void as against creditors of the mortgagor under s. 5 of that Act (now s. 7, 10 Edw. VII. c. 65).

LIQUIDATOR OF COMPANY — NECESSITY OF COMPLYING WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—STATUS OF LIQUIDATOR.

The liquidator of an incorporated company is not a creditor of, or a purchaser for valuable consideration from the company, within the meaning of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 148 (see now 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 65). [Re Canadian Camera and Optical Co., 2 O.L.R. 677, distinguished, and dictum of Street, J. therein dissented from.]

Re Canadian Shipbuilding Co., 6 D.L.R. 174, 26 O.L.R. 564, 22 O.W.R. 585.

(§ III—32)—FILING—SUFFICIENCY—AFFIDAVIT OF ATTESTING WITNESSES—FAILURE TO STATE DATE OF EXECUTION.

Failure to state in the affidavit of the attesting witness the year of execution of a chattel mortgage given to a creditor of the mortgagor, will, under clause (a), s. 5, of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 65, render the conveyance void as to the mortgagor's subsequent assignee for the benefit of his creditors. The requirement of clause (a) s. 5, of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 65, as to stating the date of the execution of a chattel mortgage in the affidavit of the attesting witnesses, is imperative and must be strictly construed.

Cole v. Racine, 11 D.L.R. 322, 4 O.W.N. 1327, 24 O.W.R. 622.

(§ III—38)—RENEWAL — EXTENSION OF TIME.

An order extending the time for renewal of the mortgage, made subject to the rights of third parties, is effective as against those whose rights have not accrued at the time the order was made.

Royal Trust Co. v. Town of Castor, 37 D.L.R. 277, 13 A.L.R. 355, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 586.

RENEWAL—POSSESSION—RIGHT TO ATTACK.

Held, that the plaintiffs, not being creditors, were not in a position to assert that the chattel mortgage had ceased to be valid by reason of noncompliance as to renewal, with s. 21 of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 135; and their position was not improved by a provision in the chattel mortgage enlarging the meaning of "mortgagor" and "mortgagee" so as to include the executors, administrators, and assigns of the mortgagor and mortgagee. Held, also, that s. 23 of the act, as to taking possession, and s. 3 of the Fraudulent Conveyances Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 105, had no application. Taking possession of the goods by placing a proposed purchaser in possession before the plaintiffs had obtained judgment—the chattel mortgage being in default and there being no fraud—the subsequent sale is valid and the bill of sale unimpeachable by the plaintiffs.

Brown Bros. v. Modern Apartment Co., 37 O.L.R. 642.

A simple contract creditor cannot attack a chattel mortgage for a defective renewal after the goods have come into the mortgagee's possession.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ IV A—40)—RIGHT TO DISTRESS UNDER LAND MORTGAGE.

Where a mortgage of land contains an attornment clause whereby the mortgagor becomes the tenant of the mortgagee at a yearly rent equivalent to the annual interest, the mortgagee has a right of distress in like manner as a landlord for interest in arrear, and this right may be exercised under the Distress Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 55, s. 5, as against a chattel mortgagee of the goods distrained.

B. PRIORITIES.

(§ IV B—45)—REMOVAL OF MORTGAGED CHATTELS—RIGHTS OF SUBSEQUENT PURCHASERS.

The failure to reregister a mortgage in the district where mortgaged animals are removed within six months of their removal as required by the Bills of Sale Act (Man.), does not give a purchaser a better title to them as against the mortgagee where the purchase is made before the expiry of the statutory period. [Hodgins v. Johnston, 5 A.R. (Ont.) 449, applied.]

McIntyre v. Prefontaine, 23 D.L.R. 129, 25 Man. L.R. 572, 8 W.W.R. 1149, 31 W.L.R. 928.

PRIORITIES — DEFECTIVE REGISTRATION — FAILURE TO STATE DATE—R.S.O. 1914, c. 135, s. 5.

A chattel mortgage, although registered within five days from the date shown thereon, is invalid against the mortgagor's assignee for creditors if the affidavit of execution does not state the date of execution as required by the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 135, s. 5. [Cole v. Racine, 11 D.L.R. 322, 4 O.W.N. 1327, followed.]

Martin v. Shapiro, 20 D.L.R. 574, 32 O.L.R. 640.

DEFECTIVE AFFIDAVIT—EXECUTION CREDITORS.

A chattel mortgage whose mortgage is not effectively registered because of a defective affidavit will not be protected as against execution creditors of the mortgagor by the fact that he took and held actual possession against the mortgagor for a short time after the execution of the mortgage, if he afterwards voluntarily parted with possession to the mortgagor so that the latter appeared thereafter to be the ostensible owner of the mortgaged goods. CREDITORS.

The expression "creditor" in s. 5 of the Chattel Mortgage Act, Man., declaring that a mortgage of goods not accompanied by immediate delivery and an actual and continued change of possession and not registered, shall be void as against "the creditors of the mortgagor and as against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith," means an execution creditor or a judgment creditor, i.e., one who is in a position to assert and exercise a present right to take possession of the goods. HIRE AGREEMENT—REGISTRATION—PRIORITIES

An unregistered chattel lease which provides that the lessee may acquire a similar chattel from the lessor for the total amount of the rental is not as against creditors null and void under the Bills of Sale Act (R.S. N.S. 1909, c. 142, as amended by 1908, c. 24), whether the chattel delivered at the outset is the identical subject-matter of the hiring or otherwise. [Guest v. Diack, 29 N.S.R. 504, 32 D.L.R. 561, followed.]

Chapman v. McDonald, 34 D.L.R. 124, 51 N.S.R. 70, reversing 32 D.L.R. 557.

CROPS—EXECUTION.

Section 17 of the Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 144, as amended by 1916 stats., c. 37, s. 22, authorizes a chattel mortgage to be given on growing crops to secure the purchase price of food and supplies; but such mortgage does not take priority over a prior execution.

De Laval Dairy Supply Co. v. Nichol, 42 D.L.R. 713, 11 S.L.R. 295.

POSSESSION UNDER DEFECTIVE MORTGAGE.

Possession taken by a mortgagee, under a defective chattel mortgage, in that it did not comply with the requirements of the Bills of Sale Ordinance (C.O. 1898, c. 43, s. 17, Alta.), saves the mortgagee as against all persons who are not at the time of the taking of the possession either execution or attaching creditors or purchasers or mortgagees for value.

Security Trust Co. v. Stewart, 39 D.L.R. 518, 12 A.L.R. 423, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 709, reversing 39 D.L.R. 801, 12 A.L.R. 420.

PRIORITIES—PRIOR UNREGISTERED MORTGAGE—SUBSEQUENT MORTGAGEE IN GOOD FAITH—ACCOUNTING—RIGHT OF SUBSEQUENT MORTGAGEE.

Held, that, under the Chattel Mortgage Act, R.S.S. c. 144 and amendments, a prior bona fide mortgage, unregistered, is void as against a subsequent mortgagee in good faith—Held, that where in a chattel mortgage there is expressed to be an absolute conveyance from mortgagor to mortgagee, then a defeasance on a certain event, then a provision that the mortgagor will forever waive and defend the goods unto the mortgagee, then a declaration that the mortgagor does put the mortgagee in possession of the goods by delivery of some kind, the possession follows the property conveyed and the mortgagee, though no default has been made, is entitled to assume possession at any time, and, if the goods covered by his mortgage have been seized and sold by a mortgagee under a prior unregistered mortgage, he is entitled to compel the latter to account.

VI. Enforcement.

(§ VI-55)—POWER TO SUE—ORDER PERMITTING SALE NECESSARY—SALE WITHOUT ORDER ILLEGAL—LIABILITY OF AGENT AND BAILIFF ENFORCING WARRANT—DUTY OF PRINCIPAL TO OBTAIN ORDER.

A mortgagee has no power to sell and recover the amount due under a chattel mortgage until an order is obtained from the judge permitting the sale (Alta. Stats. 1914, c. 4, s. 4), and a sale without such order is illegal although the warrant itself purports to give such authority. The sheriff to whom the warrant is directed acts as agent of the mortgagee and stands in no better position. The bailiff to whom he endorses the distress warrant cannot be said to exceed his authority in selling if the warrant expressly authorizes the sale. It is the duty of his principals to obtain the order, and if they have not done so they should not direct more than a seizure. Where a sale of mortgaged chattels has been illegally made in that the order of a judge has not been obtained as required by Alta. Stats. 1914, c. 4, s. 4, by the mortgagee, such mortgagee cannot set up his disregard of the law as an answer to an action at the suit of an innocent purchaser.

Lipsev v. Royal Bank, 47 D.L.R. 345, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 979.

ENFORCEMENT—NECESSARY COSTS OF REALIZING—STATUTORY TARIFF—SALE.

On a realization of mortgaged property by a chattel mortgagee under a power of sale contained in the instrument, the chattel mortgagee should be allowed to deduct from the amount realized the reasonable expenses of such realization, ex. gr., the necessary costs for care and removal of horses from quarantine and keeping them in good condition, S. 2 of c. 34 of the North-West Territories Consolidated Ordinances, 1898, merely fixes a statutory scale of costs for certain ~~ans~~ which ordinarily must be performed in connection with any seizure or sale, but it does not interfere with the rights of the parties to a chattel mortgage to deal with reference to other expenses of realization which are reasonable and necessary in the interests of both parties. It is the duty of a chattel mortgagee when realizing the mortgaged property by sale under the power contained in the mortgage, to act in the realization by sale as a reasonable man would act in the realization of his own property, so that the mortgagor may receive credit for the fair value of the property sold.

EXCESSIVE SEIZURE—CONCURRENT DISTRESS FOR REST SECURED BY CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Where a creditor, holding two distinct securities against his debtor, i. e., by an attornment clause in the contract of sale and also by a chattel mortgage against specific goods, concurrently makes seizure under both, one of the seizures may be declared oppressive and illegal, when he knew or should have discovered (a) that his protection was ample without the double process, and (b) that serious inconvenience and loss would ensue to the debtor.

RIGHT TO DISTRESS.

Where the land mortgagee having a right to distrain for rent to the amount of the interest overdue under the terms of his mortgage, includes in his distress not only such interest but an instalment of principal money for which he had the authority of a mere personal license from the mortgagor, the distress is not thereby vitiated in toto as to a chattel mortgagee; the inclusion of the principal money is only an irregularity, and will not prevent the distress being upheld for the amount of the interest rental. SEIZURE AND SALE—SHERIFF'S PERMISSION—LIVERY COSTS.

Where a chattel mortgagee of live stock knows at the time he makes a seizure under his mortgage that he will require to obtain the permission of the sheriff to sell the chattels, he should not remove them when the owner has feed for them, but should put a man in possession until he obtains such permission, and he will not be allowed the additional cost of removing the chattels and keeping them in a livery stable. The mortgagee was only entitled to the costs of twenty-one days' possession, although nearly three months had elapsed between seizure and sale owing to the necessity for obtaining the sheriff's permission to sell. (§ I—5)—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

A married woman, member of the community, authorized by her husband "to institute any action whatsoever, to plead, etc.," has no right to sue in her own name for a debt due to the community. But the husband himself may afterwards bring an action which will not be barred by the plea of chose jugée. CIVIL APPLICATION.

(§ I—1)—APPEAL—OPPOSITION TO JUDGMENT—PERSONAL FRAUD—GARNISHMENT—DEFINITIVE JUDGMENT—C.C.P. ARTS. 645, 695, 1163, 1177.

In our system of procedure a civil application is introductory to a really new and principal action. That is always one of its incidents, our Code has not copied on this point, like the modern French Law, the provisions of the ordinance of 1667. A civil application can be received by a judge ex parte without previous notice to the opposite party. Appeal, opposition judgment, and a civil application do not exist simultaneously. The condemned party has not a choice between the three methods, for they are each exclusive of the other. A civil application only exists if an appeal is impossible or useless. But when an appeal is impossible or useless, a civil application is necessary and not discretionary. All judgments not subject to appeal or for which appeal is impossible or useless, whether they are definitive or interlocutory, preparatory or examinations, no matter what court they emanate from, are subject to civil application when they are contradictory, provided that the party finds himself really in the conditions laid down by s. 1177.

Rousseau v. Pelletier, 56 Que. S.C. 486.
CIVIL APPLICATION—APPEAL—NULLITY—

NOTICE OF SETTING DOWN—ACTION IN PURSUIT OF CLAIM C.C.P. ARTS. 82, 112, 296, 480, 924, 935, 948, 1159, 1177.

In the application of par. 2 of art. 1177, which prescribes the opening of a civil application "if the prescribed procedure has not been followed and the nullity resulting therefrom has not been rectified by the parties," we must distinguish between the formalities prescribed for the parties and their advocates and solicitors and those which concern the judges. In principle the violation of the first alone, cannot give use to a civil application, the latter are subject to the method of appeal. This rule, however, is subject to exception. Even in the case of a violation by the court, there takes place, in effect, a civil application in our system of procedure, and if this violation was not even apparent on the face of the brief in the action even an appeal would be of no use, since an examination would be necessary. The method of civil application only exists where there is no right of appeal. The nullity is overcome when the party who has the right to invoke it, has not taken exception to the nullity in the first instance, as required by art. 164 C.C.P. and has pleaded later on. But this nullity cannot be overcome if it is a public matter and if he who had an interest in pleading it was incapable of renouncing it. Art. 1177 which allows a civil application to quote a judgment "for which appeal or opposition is not a real remedy," is unknown in French law, because the judicial organization, different from ours, gives the Appeal Courts jurisdiction to proceed with the examination of cases which are submitted to them for the first time. In giving a notice of less than 6 days for the examination and hearing of a suit which he is opposing, the opposing party has violated the rule of art. 296 C.C.P. but when an examination is unnecessary to establish the facts stated in the information, the case of the plaintiff falls within the above mentioned exception and the judgment which she asks to be quashed by way of civil application can then be quashed by way of appeal. Art. 43 C.C.P. sanctions the principle that an appeal is a right common to all matters; unless it is especially taken away by statute. The result of the combination of arts. 948, 934, and 935, is that the action in pursuit of a claim is subject to the formalities of ordinary rules of subpenas and executions.

CLOUD ON TITLE.

WHAT ARE CLOUDS.

Defendant recovered judgment and issued execution against a party bearing the same name as plaintiff. This was registered against plaintiff's land. He demanded that the defendant remove same, but this was not done. In an action brought to secure the removal, the defendant admitted that the execution did not bind plaintiff's land, and was a cloud upon the title, but pleaded that he had not refused to remove the execution, and that in any event he had commanded the sheriff to register the execution against the lands of his execution debtor, and not the plaintiff's land, and was not, therefore, responsible for the sheriff's act:—Held, that the plaintiff in issuing his execution, the sheriff in delivering the certificate, and the registrar in registering the same against plaintiff's land, were only carrying out the provisions of the act governing the issue and registration of execution, and none of them were tortfeasors. (2) But the defendant, by neglecting to remove the execution and defending the action, had rendered himself liable to costs.

EXPULSION OF MEMBER FOR POLITICAL OPINIONS—FREEDOM OF SPEECH—INJUNCTION.

A resolution, adopted by a social club for the purpose of expelling one of its members, on account of words spoken by him in the exercise of his duties as a member of the legislative assembly, constitutes a violation of the parliamentary immunity of the freedom of speech, and is, in such respect, illegal and void. When club by-laws provide for the constitution of a committee before acting as a special tribunal for the expulsion of members, such tribunal alone has jurisdiction in the matter, and the method of expulsion set out in the by-laws must be strictly followed. Any concerted action by other members of the club than those of the committee regularly convened is illegal, improper and void.

Where a vessel at a dock in a harbour is unloading grain into an elevator with which it is coupled and an approaching vessel entering the harbour proceeds to turn around near the unloading vessel thereby surging the water and unmooring the latter vessel whereby injury to the elevator results, the approaching vessel is not liable where the surging was not a natural or anticipated result, and the nautical manœuvre was reasonable and usual and under the elevator owner's instructions, it appearing that the accident resulted from the unavoidable breaking of a cable in an emergency and there being no evidence of any undue or sudden action by the approaching vessel.

FIXING LIABILITY — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE—VESSEL COLLIDING WITH RAFT—RULES.

A vessel is not liable for a collision with a boom of logs being towed by a steam tug in a locality which is admittedly one that is dangerous for such purposes, and where it appears that the collision was due to the negligence of the tug (a) in shewing misleading lights (b) in having too long a tow (c) in having insufficient lights on the boom, and (d) losing control of the boom and blocking the channel, the colliding vessel being misled by the lights to such an extent that the boom of logs was not visible until it was too late to avoid the accident, and where it is shewn that the colliding vessel exercised a degree of care commensurate to the circumstances. SHIPPING—COLLISION REGULATIONS—SPEED REDUCTION.

In an action against a vessel for damages resulting from a collision with a tug towing a scow in a fog, where it is shewn that the defendant vessel failed to comply with the provisions of art. 16, imposing a duty on a vessel in a fog to proceed at a moderate rate of speed, liability is not avoided unless it be shewn that the speed of the vessel was not more than was necessary; the fact that she was running at a speed which would make it safer for herself in determining her position is not the determining factor if such excessive speed made her more dangerous to other vessels. [The "Lord Bangor," [1896] P. 28; The "Challenge and Duc d'Aumale," [1905] P. 198 (C.A.), referred to.]

Fuller v. The "Iroquois" (No. 2), 11 D.L.R. 41, 18 B.C.R. 76.

RULE 16 OF REGULATIONS FOR AVOIDING COLLISIONS AT SEA.

At about 9 o'clock a.m. on June 15, 1917, a collision occurred at the entrance to Halifax Harbour between the ship "Deliverance" and the defendant ship "Regin" in a dense fog. The "Deliverance" was yoked up to the S.S. "Belain" and was outward bound engaged in mine sweeping in the harbour, and the "Regin" was coming in. Held, that inasmuch as the "Deliverance" admittedly heard the fog signals of the "Regin" well forward of her beam and still kept on at her speed into the fog, she violated the provisions of art. 16 of the rules of the road and was at fault. That such fault was the proximate cause of the collision and she was wholly to blame therefore.

Southern Salvage Co. v. The Ship "Regin," 49 D.L.R. 107, 19 Can. Ex. 159. [Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, allowed, Nov. 24, 1919, to the extent of declaring the ships equally liable for the collision.]

HARBOUR—INCOMING AND OUTGOING VESSELS—DUTY.

A vessel has no right to manœuvre her entry into the basin of a harbour while another vessel was leaving her moorings ready to come out; under such circumstances it is the duty of the former to remain below the canal entrance, in order to give way to the out-going vessel, and her failure to do so will render her liable in case of collision. EVIDENCE—WEIGHING—DISINTERESTED WITNESSES—REASONABLE POSSIBILITIES.

In case of a collision between two ships in a narrow channel the evidence of disinterested witnesses standing on the shore in such a position of advantage as to have a full and clear view of both ships and who follow the courses and manœuvres of the vessels, will be accepted in preference to that of a passenger in the saloon of one of the ships with a limited range of sight as to the course of the two colliding ships. That where there is conflicting evidence, the court should examine into the probabilities of the matter and draw its own conclusion as to what would be the most reasonable courses. CANAL — PASSING VESSELS — LIABILITY — PROXIMATE CAUSE.

Where vessels passing one another in a canal have exchanged the proper signals, and were properly navigated, the fact that one took a starboard course to avoid collision, and in doing so struck the canal banks and was damaged, does not give her a right of action against the other; where the damage was about the bilge or bottom of the vessel it is evidence of its having been caused by an obstruction at the canal's bottom and not by its banks.

Canada Steamship Lines v. Montreal Transportation Co., 45 D.L.R. 478, 18 Can. Ex. 354.

TUG AND TOW — SNOWSTORM — INEVITABLE ACCIDENT.

In attempting to avoid a collision with a black gas buoy in a channel, which became invisible owing to a snowstorm, the master of a tug, after passing an upbound steamer, starboarded his vessel and ran his tow, composed of several barges, into shallow water, thereby bringing about a collision between them. Held, it was not an inevitable accident and could have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary caution and maritime skill; that the collision was caused by the improper starboarding of the tug; its failure to take soundings; the failure to anchor.

"Lawrence C. Giff" v. Sincennes-McNaughton Line, 45 D.L.R. 402, 18 Can. Ex. 366.

SHIPPING—RESPONSIBILITY—GROSS NEGLIGENCE—REGULATIONS—ART. 27.

The collision happened in Halifax harbour at 8.50 a.m., in broad daylight. The weather was perfect, there being no wind, and the ships could see each other several miles away. The "Imo" was keeping as far as practicable to her side of the fairway or mid-channel and blew a signal of three blasts and reversed her engines when about a mile apart, having previously signalled she would keep to starboard; she then reduced speed and did not put on engines again before collision. When "Mont Blanc" blew a two-blast signal, indicating she was coming to port and would cross bow of the "Imo," the "Imo" reversed engines and gave a three-blast signal. The "Mont Blanc" was travelling at excessive speed and, starboarding her helm, attempted to cross the bows of the "Imo." She did not reverse engines nor drop anchor. The collision happened with the waters of the "Imo," that is, on the Halifax side of mid-channel, and after collision the "Mont Blanc" ran upon the Halifax shore, where the explosion took place. Held, that the collision was wholly due to the last order of the "Mont Blanc" and to the gross negligence of her officers in attempting to cross the bows of the "Imo." That the order could not be justified as an emergency order, in view of the respective positions of the ships.

General Transatlantic Co. v. The "Imo," 47 D.L.R. 462, 19 Can. Ex. 48. [Reversed in part 59 Can. S.C.R. 644, which was affirmed 51 D.L.R. 403.]

RESPONSIBILITY — RIGHT-OF-WAY — REGULATIONS—ART. 19.

A collision occurred between the "Durley Chine," bound from Halifax to Norfolk, and the "Harlem," bound from New York to Bordeaux, at 1.19 a.m. on April 22, 1917, some 65 miles southeast of Ambrose Channel lightship, off New York harbour. It was starlight, though the night was dark, and a haze was on the horizon. Just before the collision, the course of the "Durley Chine" was S. 50° W. and that of the "Harlem," S. 52° E., or at right-angles to one another, with the "Harlem" on the starboard side of the "Durley Chine." Art. 19 of the Rules to Prevent Collision at Sea provides that when vessels are crossing so as to involve risk of collision, the vessel which has the other on her starboard side shall keep out of the way of the other. Held, that within the meaning of said rule, the "Harlem" was a crossing ship, carrying proper regulation lights, and that being so, the "Durley Chine" was obliged to keep out of her way.

The King v. The "Harlem," 47 D.L.R. 471, 19 Can. Ex. 41. [Affirmed 59 Can. S.C.R. 653]

BETWEEN SAILING VESSELS — REGULATIONS RELATING TO LIABILITY.

The regulations relating to sailing vessels require that when two sailing vessels are approaching one another so as to involve risk of collision the one which is running free shall keep out of the way of the one that is close-hauled; if both are running free with the wind on different sides the vessel which has the wind on the port side shall keep clear of the other. Where one vessel is to keep out of the way the other shall keep her course and speed. Held on the evidence that the defendant vessel had violated these rules.

Le Blanc v. The "Emilien Burke," 46 D.L.R. 59, 19 Can. Ex. 24.

TUG AND TOW—STEAMSHIP—NARROW CHANNEL—RULES OF ROAD—LIGHTS.

A steamship was coming up the St. Lawrence River in ballast, at a great speed, and approaching a tug and tow in the bend of the channel changed her course with the intention of passing them starboard to starboard, contrary to art. 25 of the Rules of the Road. Thereupon the master of the tug ported his helm in an endeavour to avoid a collision. The steamer then tried to manoeuvre herself into position and collided with two barges at the head of the tow. Held, the collision resulted from the steamer's failure, "when safe and practicable, to keep to the starboard side of the fair-way or mid-channel," as required by art. 25; even if the pilot of the steamer believed the tug and tow coming down the wrong side of the channel, good seamanship required him to stop or slow up, which he failed to do; that no blame could be imputed to the tug. The length of the tow and the absence of regulation lights on the barges cannot be said to have contributed to the collision when it occurred at the head of the tow.

ACT OF GOD—RESPONSIBILITY—BURDEN OF PROOF—INEVITABLE ACCIDENT—DEFINITION OF NEGLIGENCE—DEFINITION OF NEGLIGENCE—COSTS—RULE 132, ADMIRALTY PRACTICE

Held, that where the action of tide and currents is so contrary to experience, that it could not be reasonably anticipated or foreseen it is to be regarded as an "Act of God," and collision due to such is an "inevitable accident." That "inevitable accident" is that which the party charged with damage could not possibly prevent by the exercise of all reasonable precautions which ordinary skill and prudence could suggest. That where "inevitable accident" is pleaded the onus is primarily on the plaintiff to show that blame does attach to the vessel proceeded against, and a prima facie case in this behalf must be established. That, on an action being dismissed on the ground that the damage was due to inevitable accident costs will follow the general rule, unless special circumstances exist requiring a departure therefrom. FIXING LIABILITY—DEATH OF RAILWAY FIRE-MAN ON SNOBLOW—UNQUALIFIED SIGNALMAN.

FIXING LIABILITY—OFFENDING VESSEL TAKING WRONG SIDE—OTHER'S DUTY TO REVERSE—LATITUDE ALLOWED.

Where two vessels are meeting in a river and one of them in violation of the rules, negligently takes the wrong side of a narrow channel from which immediate danger of collision arises, the vessel offended against is not to be held to have been negligent in giving aid to prevent a collision, merely from its miscalculation by a few seconds of the exact juncture at which her engines might effectively be reversed to avoid the danger, since the offending boat's negligence tended to surprise and confuse the other which might reasonably expect the offender promptly to reverse her own engines to escape the danger caused by herself.

C.P.R. Co. v. The "Kronprinz Olav," The "Montcalm" v. Bryde, 14 D.L.R. 46, 13 E.L.R. 178, reversing the judgment of the Canada Supreme Court (unreported), which affirmed the judgment of the D.L.J. Judge Admiralty reported 19 Can. Ex. 138.

NEGLIGENT NAVIGATION—FIXING LIABILITY.

In a personal action for damages for negligent collision of the boats of the plaintiff and defendant operating in Ontario inland waters brought in the Supreme Court of Ontario, if it appear that both parties were guilty of acts of negligent navigation contributing to the collision, the action is not to be dismissed, but the damages are to be apportioned in conformity with s. 918 of the Canada Shipping Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 113.

Shipman v. Phinn, 20 D.L.R. 596, 32 O.L.R. 329.

VESSELS IN CHANNELS—FIXING LIABILITY.

A vessel which fails to keep to the starboard side of the fairway or mid-channel, when entering a harbour, in violation of art. 25, and crosses at an excessive speed to the wrong side of the channel, without excuse, is liable for collision with a tug prudently proceeding out of the harbour, at a very low speed, with a heavy scow lashed to her starboard bow; under such circumstances the latter cannot be blamed for her failure to reverse her engines to avoid the collision. [The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, [1907] P. 239; Richelieu & Ont. Nav. Co. v. Cape Breton, [1907] A.C. 112, 76 L.J.P.C. 14, referred to.]

The King v. The "Dispatch": The Border Line Transportation Co. v. McDougal, 28 D.L.R. 42, 22 B.C.R. 496, 16 Can. Ex. 319.

OPEN SEA—RULES OF NAVIGATION—NEGLIGENCE.

The rules of navigation governing the open sea apply to open water of the St. Lawrence river; it is negligent for a ship approaching another in a fog to alter her course and fail to reverse engines, in violation of rr. 16, 21, and 29, where the other vessel has obeyed r. 23. [See also C.P.R. Co. v. S.S. "Storstad," 34 D.L.R. 1.]

C.P.R. Co. v. S.S. "Storstad," 40 D.L.R. 600, 17 Can. Ex. 160.

CANAL—RULES AND REGULATIONS.

The only exception to a rigid compliance with the regulations prescribed for the navigation of Canadian waters and canals is when it appears with perfect clearness, amounting almost to a certainty, that adhering to the rule would have caused a collision and violating the rule would have avoided it. The Rules of the Department of Railways and Canals, except where they indicate the contrary, govern vessels using the canals, and are not intended merely for the preservation and safety of the canals.
