Where in a fog or thick weather a steamer proceeds at an excessive speed, without a sufficient lookout, and fails to keep out of the way of a schooner keeping properly within her course, she is in violation of arts. 19 and 29 of the Rules of the Road, and liable for a collision with the latter vessel.

Smith v. Mackenzie, 41 D.L.R. 393, 17 Can. Ex. 493.

FOG—DUTY AS TO SPEED—LIABILITY—COSTS.

The provisions of art. 16, requiring each vessel in case of fog or thick weather to "stop her engines and then navigate with caution," must be strictly adhered to in order to avert a collision. Mere sounding of the fog signal is not sufficient. Where both vessels are at fault "the damages shall be borne equally by the two vessels," pursuant to s. 918 of the Canada Shipping Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 113). The old rule that each delinquent vessel shall bear her own costs is still in force.

Allen v. The "Iroquois," 11 D.L.R. 41, 17 Can. Ex. 185, 18 B.C.R. 76.

OVERTAKING VESSEL—FOG SIGNALS—FACTS COMMUNE—DAMAGES.

A steamer descending the St. Lawrence River in foggy weather had come to anchor for safety. Previous to anchoring the ship was being overtaken by another ship descending the river. Both ships had failed to give the proper fog signals, and as a result the steamer at anchor was run down by the other. Held, as the ships were both at fault the damages should be divided. Status of report of the Commission of Wrecks before the court commented on.

TUG AND TOW—BARGE.

Held, that upon the evidence the judgment of the court below was correct in finding a tug, having a dead tow, responsible for a collision with a barge properly moored.

The "Ethel Q" v. Beaudette, 17 Can. Ex. 305.

TUG AND TOW—BOOM OF LOGS—LIGHTS.

In an action against defendant ship for having run through and scattered a boom of logs belonging to the plaintiff while being towed by plaintiff's steam tug, the collision having occurred at night at a difficult point of a channel: Held, that the collision was occasioned by the tug's negligence (1) in showing misleading lights; (2) having too long a tow; (3) displaying insufficient lights on the boom; (4) and losing control of the boom and blocking the channel. Also, that a boom of logs is not a vessel within the meaning of the regulations.

Paterson Timber Co. v. The "British Columbia," 16 Can. Ex. 305.

FOG AND SNOW—SPEED OF VESSEL—APPORTIONMENT OF DAMAGES.

A ship is not entitled to run through fog and snow at a speed which is safe for herself but immoderate and dangerous for others. [Allen v. Iroquois, 11 D.L.R. 41, 18 B.C.R. 76, followed.] In apportioning damages resulting from a collision between two ships, where the evidence does not establish that a clear preponderance of culpability rests upon one ship, the division of damages should be half and half. The Beldridge v. The Empress of Japan (Exch.), [1917] 3 W.W.R. 961.

HARBOUR—PROPER LOOKOUT—COURSE AND SPEED.

The making of a landing along the waterfront of a busy harbour is a manoeuvre which ought to be accompanied by full precautions, the first of which is an adequate lookout. [Observations of Martin, J., in Brie v. C.P.R., 13 B.C.R. 96, affirmed by the P.C. 15 B.C.R. 510, 13 Can. Ex. 394, upon the "proper precaution" of keeping a "general lookout" in Vancouver Narrows, applied.] A serious burden is imposed upon a vessel if she fails to "keep her course and speed" as required by art. 21 of the Sea Regulations, and she lays herself open to attack by the "give-way" vessel by departing from the directions of the article and must be prepared to justify the departure by the proper execution of nautical manoeuvres, such as in dropping a pilot, or approaching a landing or drawing up to an anchorage, or to lessen the consequences of collision to save life or otherwise. [Albano v. Allan Line S.S. Co., and the Parisian, [1907] A.C. 193, 76 L.J.P.C. 33 at p. 40, followed.]

The Cleve v. The Prince Rupert (Ex.), [1917] 3 W.W.R. 957; [1918] 1 W.W.R. 345.

TUG AND SCOW—NARROW CHANNEL.

While a channel, admittedly difficult of navigation under certain conditions, might properly be used by a ship, she is under an obligation to take all precautions to avoid collision with another ship. Where prudent seamanship precludes a tug, in charge of a laden scow, from following certain of the regulations, she will be exonerated from blame in departing therefrom.

(§ 1—8)—LIMITATION OF ACTION.

An action for damages for personal injury against the owners of a motor vehicle by collision with the motor vehicle, commenced three and a half years after the cause of action arose, does not fall within the two-year limitation of 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 34, s. 49 (h), upon actions for "damages given by any statute," notwithstanding the statutory provisions governing the operation of motor vehicles, and is, therefore, not barred on a plea of the Statute of Limitations. Act.

COMPANY WITH SHARE CAPITAL—LETTERS PATENT—SALE OF SHARES—S. REF. [1909] ARTS. 6011, 6019, 6036.

A company with share capital becomes a corporation from the date of its letters patent, after the publication in the Quebec Official Gazette of the notices mentioned in art. 6011, of S. ref. [1909]. The obligation on a company formed by a virtue of letters patent not to commence business before 10 per cent of its capital has been subscribed and deposited, and a declaration to this effect has been filed with the provincial secretary's department, in accordance with S. ref. [1909], art. 6019, so that the deposit of a contract of sale required by art. 6036 of the said statute as amended, does not involve the nullity of the letters patent, nor of intervening contracts between the company and a third party, but constitutes, in case of default, in carrying out these formalities, an infraction of the act punished in the manner indicated in the said statutes. The sale by a shareholder to a third party of all his shares in the capital of the company does not need to be authorized by the direction of the company. A person who has bought shares of a company with the clause that if he does not make the payments as they fall due the contract will be void, has no right to demand the nullity of the sale and of the shares transferred to him on account of a defect of form in the formation of the company and in the issue of its shares.

Perrusse v. Fuller, 55 Que. S.C. 254.

TERRITORIAL POWERS—BUSINESS OUTSIDE OF PROVINCE.

A company incorporated by provincial letters patent has the capacity to acquire and exercise powers and rights outside the territorial boundaries of the province where it is incorporated; an Ontario mining corporation is not precluded from carrying on mining business in the Yukon Territory and receiving licenses or certificates in respect thereto from the executive officers of that territory.

B. CORPORATE PURPOSES.

(§ I B—5) A prospectus ordered and prepared by an agent engaged by a company to sell its shares who has obtained from the directors of the company the information to be inserted therein, partly or wholly corrected by the president of the company, and received by the directors of the company without demur, will be held the prospectus of the company itself, especially when it is so described in its headline.

(§ I B—6)—REGISTRATION—ACTION FOR PENALTY—R.S.Q. SS. 6091, 6095.

The obligation, imposed on the president of an incorporated company doing business in the Province of Quebec, of signing and filing a declaration to this effect in the office of the prothonotary and of the registrar within 60 days after the company began doing business, does not extend to his successor. Even if it should be held that the law extends to his successor, it would be unjust to declare him guilty in the absence of proof that he exercised his functions for more than 60 days. A person who sues to recover the penalty imposed by law for default in filing the said declaration must prove that the company has not deposited it within the said 60 days.

(§ I B—7)—DELAY IN ORGANIZING.

Where letters patent incorporating a company have been obtained under the Ontario Companies Act, and though no steps have been taken towards its organization, its corporate powers have not been forfeited by delay, the company is an existing legal entity, and solicitors entering an appearance on its behalf cannot be made personally liable for the costs of the action as having appeared for a nonexistent client. Where the name of a company has been struck off the register a customer of such company who prior to the striking off institutes an action against the same, and seeks not merely for unliquidated damages, but for repayment of a sum certain under an agreement to that effect, is a "creditor" within the meaning of s. 24 (5) of the Companies Act, so as to be entitled to make an application for the restoration of the name of the company to the register. Held, also, that the company at the time of the striking off was not "carrying on business or in operation" owing to the fact that all its assets had then been sold.

GOVERNMENTAL REGULATION—COMPANIES—WITH OBJECTS EXTENDING TO THE ENTIRE DOMINION—FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL POWERS—RIGHT TO SUE, WHENCE DERIVED.

The legislative power to regulate trade and commerce which by s. 91 of the B.N.A. Act belongs to the Dominion Parliament enables the latter to prescribe to what extent the powers of trading companies which it incorporates with objects extending to the entire Dominion should be exercisable and what limitations should be placed on such powers; and ss. 5, 29, 30 and 32 of the Companies Act (Can.) and s. 30 of the Interpretation Act, 1906 (Can.), purporting to enable any federal company incorporated under the Companies Act of Canada to sue and be sued and to contract in the corporate name and establishing the place of its legal domicile and declaring the limitation of personal liability of the shareholders are within the legislative powers of the Parliament of Canada.

INVESTIGATION OF OIL COMPANIES.

PENALTIES FOR NOT MAKING GOVERNMENT RETURNS—REMISSION.

In an action against an incorporated company and its secretary to recover $12,760 as penalties incurred under the Ontario

Companies Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 178, s. 135, for not making returns to the government, it appeared that the plaintiff had been induced by false and fraudulent statements of a broker, acting for the company, to pay $3,000 for shares in the company. She brought an action against the broker and the president and secretary of the company to recover her $3,000; in that action the returns were demanded, and it was found that they had never been made. The plaintiff then applied to the Att'y-Gen'l. for leave to sue for the penalties; and, after some delay in order to afford the company an opportunity to make the returns, the leave was granted, and this action was begun. Two days later the returns were made. An application was then made by the defendants to the Att'y-Gen'l. to rescind the leave to sue or to remit the penalties; this was refused. Upon application by the defendants to a judge in court, an order was made, under s. 6 of the Fines and Forfeitures Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 99, remitting the penalties, upon the terms that the defendants should repay to the plaintiff the money received from her for the shares, with interest at 6%, and her costs as between solicitor and client of both actions and the proceedings before the Att'y-Gen'l.

Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Travelers' Life Ins. Co. of Canada, 29 Que. K.B. 437.

CORPORATE NAME—ACTION AGAINST FIRM WITH SIMILAR NAME.

An incorporated company has, under the provisions of art. 7438 R.S.Q., 1909, a right of action against a partnership which, by its registered declaration, has adopted a firm name likely to produce the confusion aimed at in said article. Thus, a company incorporated under the name of Lamontague, Limited, is entitled to cause the registration of a declaration of a firm under the name of Lamontague & Co. to be annulled. (Cf. Laing Packing & Provision Co. v. Laing, Q.R. 25 S.C. 344.)

COMPANY WITH FEDERAL LICENSE — EXCLUSIVE AGREEMENT FOR SALES TERRITORY WITH RESIDENT OF PROVINCE — WHEN PROVINCIAL COMPANY LICENSE IS REQUIRED — "CARRYING ON BUSINESS," MEANING OF.

A contract made between a company carrying on business as implement dealers and holding a federal charter under the Companies Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 79, and a merchant in B.C. whereby the latter was to sell their goods with an exclusive right within a part of the province and with a limitation on his selling prices, and whereby the company also retained title to the goods until paid for and the merchant agreed to take lien notes from customers to the company direct if it so requested and to hold money received in partial payments from customers as in trust for the company, does not involve the "carrying on of business" within the province by the company under s. 139 of the B.C. Companies Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 7, and the company, although it has not obtained a provincial license under that statute, may maintain an action against the merchant upon his promissory notes payable within

A charter is always presumed to authorize legitimate business, and is never intended to override the general law of the land, nor justified persons for their own gain and profit to violate law established for the general welfare of the public.

Wilson v. North American Securities, 52 Que. S.C. 522.

(§ III-32) — AMENDMENT OR REPEAL.

Under a statutory authority enabling a company to alter or add to its articles of association, it may provide that a shareholder shall not sell his shares except for cash and that sales should be subject to the approval of the directors of the company. [Borland v. Steel Bros. & Co., [1901] 1 Ch. 279, followed.]

Leiser v. Popham Bros., 6 D.L.R. 525, 17 B.C.R. 187.

(§ III-33) — INCORRECT STATEMENT OF LIABILITY.

Where a certificate of incorporation incorrectly states that the liability of the company is specially limited under § 63, the Companies Ordinance, the certificate is erroneous to the extent of that statement only and the company has all the usual powers given by the Ordinance or incident to the company's objects.

IV. Powers; liabilities and officers.

A. RIGHTS AND POWERS GENERALLY.

(§ IV A—35)—DOMINION COMPANY—LIMITATIONS IN CARRYING OUT OBJECTS.

A trading corporation of Dominion-wide scope, incorporated by Dominion legislation, is subject to the limitation that in carrying out its objects it must comply with the laws relating to property and civil rights in each of the provinces of Canada.

HOSPITAL—ELECTION OF TRUSTEES—CHARTER—BY LAW.

The powers of a hospital board under its Incorporating Act, as to the election or appointment of trustees for the management thereof, cannot be varied by a by-law; though empowered to make the necessary by-laws therefor, it cannot legislate for an increase of its membership nor fix any qualification for voters outside of the corporation, nor to sanction persons taking part in the business of the hospital who were not members of the body corporate, unless expressly or impliedly authorized by the charter.

(§ IV A—40)—RIGHTS AND POWERS GENERALLY—IMPLIED POWERS.

The objects which a company may pursue must be ascertained from its charter or memorandum of association, and the powers to be exercised in furtherance of those objects must either be expressly conferred by, or derived by reasonable implication from, the provisions of such charter or memorandum. [Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants v. Osborne, [1910] A.C. 87, applied.]

EXTRA-PROVINCIAL POWERS—MEETINGS OUTSIDE PROVINCE—CARRYING ON BUSINESS — RESOLUTIONS — VALIDITY — LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDER — CONTRIBUTORIES—ESTOPPEL.

A company incorporated under the Companies Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, and the Memorandum of Association, of which gives it power "to do any or all of the above things in any part of the world," has the capacity analogous to that of a natural person, to exercise extra-provincial powers [Bonanza Creek case, [1916] 1 A.C. 566, 26 D.L.R. 273, discussed.] Section 72 (3) of the Companies Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, which declares that "every general meeting of the company shall be held within the province," applies only to annual general meetings, and does not prohibit the holding of other meetings outside the province. A shareholder held to be estopped from disputing his liability to be placed on the list of contributories of the above-named company. Quære, whether the holding of shareholders and directors' meetings in a carrying on of business. Certain resolutions of a company held to have been regularly passed under the company's Memorandum and Articles of Association and Act of Incorporation and shares issued in pursuance of such resolutions held to have been validly issued.

B. OWNING STOCK OF OTHER COMPANIES.

(§ IV B—50)—POWER TO ACQUIRE STOCK IN OTHER COMPANIES.

A power by statute or charter, purporting to authorize a company to sell its entire undertaking does not alone give a power to sell for shares in another company; there must be express words to give that power.

(§ IV B—51)—CONTROLLING INTEREST OR ENTIRE OWNERSHIP.

Under 63-64 Vict. (Can.) c. 98, empowering a cotton company "to construct, acquire, operate and dispose of cotton and woollen manufactories of every description," the company has the power to lease its mills to another company formed for the purpose of acquiring capital stock and a controlling influence in the cotton company and its three principal competitors.

Dominion Cotton Mills Co. v. Amyot and Brunet, 4 D.L.R. 306, [1912] A.C. 546.

(§ IV B—52)—SYNDICATE HOLDING SHARES.

An application for shares and payment of a call thereon to a syndicate is not an application to the company whose shares this syndicate may hold and there is no contractual relation between the applicants and the company until, at any event, an allotment thereof is made.

Consumers Cordage Co. v. Molson, 2 D.L.R. 451.

C. MODE OF CORPORATE ACTION; ACTS OF AGENTS.

(§ IV C-55) — REGISTRATION OF "MORTGAGE OR CHARGE."

An assignment of an unascertained amount, to be credited to the assignor when collected, as security for a debt, is a "mortgage or charge," within the meaning of s. 102, c. 39, R.S.B.C. 1911, though absolute in form, and is not valid as against the liquidator of the assignor if not registered before his appointment.

Dominion Croasting Co. v. Nickson Co., 38 D.L.R. 69, 55 Can. S.C.R. 303, affirming, 35 D.L.R. 272, 23 B.C.R. 72. [Leave to appeal to Privy Council refused.]

It is only purchasers, mortgagees or creditors in relation to the mortgagor who are entitled to the benefit of s. 102 of the Companies Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, requiring mortgages or charges created by a company to be filed with the registrar of joint stock companies.

Dalton v. Dominion Trust Co., 25 B.C.R. 240, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 42.

CORPORATE ACTION — USE OF COMPANY'S NAME AS PLAINTIFF.

Though the name of a joint-stock company cannot be used as a party plaintiff in an action unless authorized by resolution of the directors or shareholders, where such objection is interposed by the defendants as against a rival faction suing as shareholders to set aside an ultra vires transaction of the company, the court may refuse to strike out the name of the company as a party plaintiff where it is clear that the rights of the company should be protected either by having it a party plaintiff or party defendant, and where the defence has not produced any evidence to show that the personal plaintiffs do not represent the majority of the shares. Colonial Ass'ce Co. v. Smith, 12 D.L.R. 113, 23 Man. L.R. 243, 24 W.L.R. 105.

EXECUTION OF INSTRUMENTS — SIGNATURE.

Clause 76 of table "A" of the Companies Act, R.S.B.C. c. 39, requires that instruments of a company should be signed by three distinct persons, who must be present to join in the signing, and a director who has been appointed secretary cannot in such a case fill both positions.

OFFICERS—POWER OF DIRECTOR TO SUE FOR COMPANY—ACTION WITHOUT PROPER AUTHORITY.

One director alone has no power prima facie to act on behalf of the company (unless specially authorized by the Articles of Association or by delegation from the Board of Directors). He is only one of a body of directors in whom collectively the management is vested. A managing director is only an ordinary director entrusted with some special powers. [Hopkins v. The Newspaper Proprietary Syndicate, [1900] 2 Ch. 349, followed.] These special powers may be given him by the Articles of Association or by delegation from the board of directors, or perhaps by a course of conduct long acquiesced in by shareholders. [Ho Tung v. Man On Ins. Co., [1902] A.C. 232, applied.] Apart from such special powers, he has no power to institute legal proceedings. When a solicitor's right to issue a writ in the name of a company as plaintiff is questioned the onus is on the solicitor to shew his authority, and if he has acted without proper authority he is liable for the defendant's costs. [Porter v. Fraser, 29 T.L.R. 91, followed.]

The Standard Construction Co. v. Crabb, 7 S.L.R. 365, 7 W.W.R. 719, 30 W.L.R. 151.

DEEDS — EXECUTION OF MORTGAGE — NON-COMPLIANCE WITH TABLE A, ART. 76 — PRINCIPLE IN ROYAL BRITISH BANK V. TURQUAND NOT PROTECTING MORTGAGEES — SUBSEQUENT MORTGAGES CONFIRMING.

Seemle where a mortgage by a company had the seal of the company affixed in the presence of two directors (one of whom was the secretary) and of "W. P. Morgan, assistant secretary," there being no appointment proved authorizing W. P. Morgan as an assistant secretary or otherwise to sign the mortgage or authenticate the affixing of the seal, the execution was bad as not complying with art. 76 of table A of the Companies Act, and where one of the mortgagees was a solicitor who had prepared the document, instructed its mode of execution and been appointed solicitor for the company prior to its execution, knowledge of the defective execution was brought home to the mortgagees and they were not protected by the principle contained in Royal British Bank v. Turquand, 6 El. & Bl. 327. (The mortgage was held good however by reason of confirmation by subsequent mortgages.)

Innes & Griffith v. Cameron Valley Land Co. & Merchants Finance & Trading Co., [1919] 1 W.W.R. 751.

D. CONTRACTS: ULTRA VIRES.

(§ IV D-60) — COMPANIES ACT OF CANADA (R.S.C. 1906, c. 79) — REAL SUBSCRIPTION FOR SHARES — CONTRACT FOR UNREAL SUBSCRIPTION — ULTRA VIRES — POSITION OF SUBSCRIBER.

The Companies Act of Canada (R.S.C. 1906, c. 79) requires a real subscription and real payment for the shares of the capital stock of a company, a plan whereby there is an unreal and fanciful subscription and payment for shares, and whereby no money was ever paid nor intended to be paid to the company for the shares is ultra vires the company. The alleged subscriber cannot retain the position of a paid-up stockholder, nor can he be put in the position of a holder of stock upon which nothing has been paid, nor can the company recover the amount, as money payable by him to them for money lent by them to him.

RAILWAY DIRECTORS—REBATE AGREEMENTS WITH SHIPPERS.

The directors of a provincial railway in Quebec, without being specially authorized thereto by the shareholders, have the power to enter into an agreement with a shipper to grant him rebates upon freight charges in return for valuable consideration rendered on his part, where no unjust-discrimination results therefrom.

Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co. v. Kennedy, 15 D.L.R. 400, 48 Can. S.C.R. 529, 13 E.L.R. 566, affirming 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 161, 21 Que. K.B. 85.

MORTGAGE IN AID OF MINING OPERATIONS—CONSIDERATION.

The discharge of the company's indebtedness and the securing of financial aid to the company for the future may be shown to be the real consideration for a mortgage given by the company on two of its three stockholders selling out their holdings to the third, although the expressed consideration of the mortgage was the price fixed for such holdings; such mortgage made by a mining company when it had no other means of procuring money for operating is not ultra vires even as to the excess of the expressed consideration above the indebtedness assumed and paid off or cancelled by the arrangement so made by the continuing stockholder. [Northern Electric v. Cordova Mines, 31 O.L.R. 221, reversed; Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409, and G.N.W. v. Charlebois, [1899] A.C. 114, distinguished.]

POWERS OF CEMETERY COMPANY—DISPOSITION OF LOTS FOR NONBURIAL PURPOSES.

Land held by a company incorporated under the Cemetery Companies Act, R.S.O. 1887, c. 175, for burial purposes cannot be disposed of for any other purposes, which powers of disposition cannot be enlarged by subsequent reincorporation; and any attempted disposition by the corporation of any part of such land for purposes foreign to its original powers is an act ultra vires which may be enjoined by any shareholder.

CONTRACTS—ULTRA VIRES.

Where the legislature gives a company express power, within certain limits, to do a special thing, it is to be taken prima facie to prohibit by implication any deviation from the power so given.

McGregor v. St. Croix Lumber Co., 8 D.L.R. 876, 12 E.L.R. 199.

CHARTER—RIGHTS AT COMMON LAW—FUTURE OF CHARTER.

The Ontario Companies Amendment Act (1914), 6 Geo. V., c. 35, s. 6, expressly declares that "every corporation or company . . . heretofore or hereafter created by or under any general or special act . . . shall, unless otherwise expressly declared in the act or instrument creating it, have and be deemed from its creation to have had, the general capacity which the common law ordinarily attaches to corporations created by charter." A corporation created by charter had at common law almost unlimited capacity to contract, to bind itself by contracts, to deal with its property and to do all such acts as a private person could do. Statements in the charter defining the objects of the incorporation do not take away that unlimited capacity, and even express restrictions in the charter do not take it away, but are simply treated as a declaration of the Crown's pleasure, in reference to the purposes beyond which the capacity of the corporation is not to be exercised, a breach of which declaration gives to the Crown a right to annul the charter. [British South Africa Co. v. DeBeers Consolidated Mines, [1910] 1 Ch. 354; Dibel v. Stratford Improvement Co., 37 O.L.R. 407; National Malleable Castings Co. v. The King, 26 D.L.R. 273, distinguished.]

CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT—IRREGULAR RESOLUTION—SALARY—SHARES—DAMAGES.

A contract for the employment of a manager, signed by the president and secretary of a company under a resolution of the Board of directors, cannot be repudiated by the latter, after it has admitted its fulfilment, on the ground that it was irregularly passed. Such contract, stipulating a salary $2,500 a year, payable $125 per month in money and $83.33 a month in shares, which he was to subscribe for, is only a contract of service at a salary of $125 a month. As a subscriber for the shares, he is not bound to make a formal demand for delivery of his paid-up shares, and if the company refuses to issue them to him, or to recognize him as a shareholder, he has the right to seek damages for the nonfulfilment of his obligation. The damages he is entitled to in such case is the value of the shares.

Schneider v. La Compagnie de Sable et de Brique des Laurentides, 54 Que. S.C. 4.

ULTRA VIRES — FORFEITURE OF CHARTER — DISTINCTION.

In the case of a company created by charter, the doctrine of ultra vires has no real application in the absence of statutory restriction added to what is written in the charter, and such company has the capacity of a natural person to acquire powers and rights; if by the terms of the charter it is prohibited from doing so, a violation of this prohibition is an act not beyond its capacity, and is, therefore, not ultra vires, although such violation may well give grounds for proceedings by way of scire facias for the forfeiture of the charter. [Ashbury Carriage Co. v. Riche, L.R. 7 H.L. 653, distinguished.]

BY-LAW RESTRICTING COMPETITION — FREEDOM OF CONTRACT.

A by-law which prescribes, that whenever a shareholder patronizes any other manufactory, in any manner whatsoever, he will be subject to a fine of 50 cents per day for each infraction, is ultra vires, and null as an attempt to abridge personal liberty.

St. Narcisse Butter & Cheese Mfg. Co. v. Demers, 50 Que. S.C. 6; 49 Que. S.C. 406.

RULES OF INTERPRETATION.

The rules of interpretation which govern agreements between individuals should be applied in the same manner to corporations, but it is not necessary to attach too much importance to the acts and doings of their employees.

Charrs Urbains v. Commissaires du Haire, 24 Que. K.B. 503.

MIXING LEASE — ULTRA VIRES PARTIES TO ACTION — ACQUESCENCE — INJUNCTION.

In an action by a shareholder of the above-named company to have a certain lease made by it rescinded as ultra vires, it appeared that the lease was made to the defendant the Y. E. company by the other defendant companies and that the defendant B. joined in the lease for the purpose of personally guaranteeing certain of its provisions. The defendant, the N.L. & P. Co. owned the whole of the stock of the defendant companies, except the stock of the lessee company. By the lease, all the property of the other defendant companies was devised to the lessee company:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to maintain the action. [Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H.L.C. 712.] Held, also, that the defendant lessee company and the defendant B., its president, were properly made parties defendants: [Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks Co., 44 L.J. Ch. 496.] Held, also, that the other codefendant companies were proper parties. [Great West-ern R. Co. v. Rushout, 3 DeG. M. & G. 354, 64 E.R. 1121.] Held, also, that the defendant lessee company, incorporated under the Companies Act of the Dominion of Canada, could not under the provisions of its charter, as a purely mining company, take over the undertakings, property, and rights of the codefendant companies. Held, also, that acquiescence on the part of the plaintiff, even if proved, would not avail, as acquiescence cannot cure an illegality. Held, therefore, that the lease was illegal; and an injunction was granted, but no other relief.

Newhouse v. Northern Light, Power and Coal Co., 29 W.L.R. 249.

(§ IV D—65)—CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT — DELEGATION OF DIRECTORS' AUTHORITY.

A contract of service giving the employee power over "all the administration of the business of the company subject only to such direction and control as is the duty of the directors to exercise" is not such a delegation of the authority of the directors as to be ultra vires the company.

Montreal Public Service Co. v. Champagne, 33 D.L.R. 49.

POWERS OF DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—COVENANT TO ESTABLISH RAILWAY STATION.

A covenant to establish and maintain a railway station is within the corporate powers of a development company "to do any act to increase the value of the property . . . or to enter in any arrangement capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company," and within the requisite or incidental powers under s. 29 (3) of the Companies Act (Alta.), particularly where the establishment of such station may be procured from a railway company owing to an identity of management. [Union Bank v. McKillop, 16 D.L.R. 701, 30 O.L.R. 87, referred to.] Norquay v. G.T.P. Town & Dev. Co., 25 D.L.R. 59, 9 A.L.R. 190, 32 W.L.R. 756, 9 W.W.R. 347.

POWER TO CONTRACT — EXECUTORY CONTRACT NOT GERMANE TO PURPOSE OF INCORPORATION—SEAL.

An executory contract of a trading company unless germane to the purpose of its creation, is void unless made under its corporate seal. [Garland Mfg. Co. v. Northumberland Paper and Electric Co., 31 O.R. 40, followed; National Malleable Castings Co. v. Smith's Falls Malleable Castings Co., 14 O.L.R. 22; and South of Ireland Colliery Co. v. Waddle, L.R. 3 C.P. 463, specially referred to.]

ERROR IN CERTIFICATE AS AFFECTING CORPORATE POWERS.

An incorrect statement in the certificate of incorporation that the liability of the company is specially limited under s. 63 of the Companies Act (Alta.) does not thereby affect the usual powers of the corporation incidental to the corporate objects and a contract executed by the corporation within the scope of those powers is not on that account ultra vires.

MINING AND "MINERALS" — CONTRACT TO DRILL FOR OIL.

Rock oil is a "mineral," and drilling for it is a mining operation within the contemplation of ss. 63 and 63a of the Alta. Companies Act (N.W.T. Ord. 1905, c. 61, as amended by Act 1911-12, c. 4, s. 5); a mining corporation empowered by virtue of s. 63a(2) "to dig for minerals, whether belonging to the company or not," has a legal right to drill oil wells, and to carry on the work as a contractor on lands belonging to others.

POWER TO CONTRACT.

A company incorporated under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act has no power to bargain away paid-up shares in the company for a mere covenant or agreement by the subscriber to do certain future acts as to which upon nonperformance the company's rights would lie only in damages. [Re Jones & Moore Electric Co., 18 Man. L.R. 549, 571, approved; and see Elkington's case, L.R. 2 Ch. 511.]

(§ IV D-66)—OSTENSIBLE AUTHORITY OF OFFICER.

It is not necessary for any person dealing with an officer of a corporation to ascertain the proper steps taken to clothe him with the authority, where it is apparent that he is the agent of the corporation to transact the particular business.

CLUB — LIABILITY FOR GOODS ORDERED BY HEAD STEWARD—SEAL.

An incorporated club cannot disclaim liability for club supplies sold and delivered to it upon the verbal orders of its head steward or manager, although such orders were placed without the knowledge of the principal officers, and no agreement under seal relating thereto has been executed by the corporation.

(§ IV D-67)—AS TO NEGOTIABLE PAPER. Upon a bank refusing to discount a company note, which was indorsed by the directors for the sole purpose of being discounted, and insisting upon holding it as collateral security for the company's indebtedness, the managing director had power to consent to so pledging such note, where the latter had, to the knowledge of the bank, been empowered by a resolution of the company to deal with such bank, and to negotiate with, deposit with, or transfer to it for the credit of the company, bills of exchange, promissory notes, and, under such circumstances, the bank was a holder in due course for value, there being no circumstances which would place it on inquiry.

Cox v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, 5 D.L.R. 372, 2 W.W.R. 835.

(§ IV D-69)—POWERS AS TO SURETYSHIP.

Unless expressly within the powers conferred upon it by the act of incorporation or those arising from necessary implication, a contract of suretyship by an incorporated company guaranteeing the payment to a bank of advances to another company is ultra vires and void.

(§ IV D-71)—PURCHASE OF "ASSETS AND LIABILITIES" OF OTHER COMPANY—PAYING ITS LIABILITIES.

Where a newly organized company under an intra vires agreement in writing purchases "the assets and undertakings" of two dissolving industrial companies, and it was the intention of such agreement that the liabilities of the dissolving companies should be assumed and paid by the purchasing company, the payment in pursuance thereof will not be declared void in a shareholder's action, if there was no fraud or want of good faith in the transaction; although the agreement did not on its face specifically stipulate for such payment. PURCHASE OF LANDS FOR LOTTERY PURPOSES —RIGHTS OF SUBSEQUENT PURCHASERS.

The purchase of land by a real estate company for the purpose of carrying on a lottery scheme is an act ultra vires and will be vacated in favour of a purchaser claiming under a subsequent sale from the original vendor.

(§ IV D-73)—SUBSCRIPTION FOR SHARES

—COLLATERAL AGREEMENT — REPURCHASE OF OWN STOCK — ULTRA VIRES

—SUBSCRIBER DE FACTO SHAREHOLDER.

A condition subsequent or collateral agreement annexed to a subscription for shares in a company, by which under certain circumstances the subscriber is to be entitled to surrender his shares and demand a return of his money, is ultra vires the company as involving an unlawful reduction of its capital.

The nonfulfilment of the agreement by the company does not prevent the holder of such shares from being a de facto shareholder of the company, he having retained the shares and given proxies to vote thereon.

(§ IV D-74)—POWER TO ISSUE BONDS TO RAISE LOAN — SECURITIES — "PLEDGE" — PRIORITIES.

(§ IV D-75) — "TRADING COMPANY," MEANING OF.

For the purpose of the exception to the general rule that contracts of corporations must be made under the corporate seal, the meaning of the expression "trading company" is not confined to companies with the object of barter, and a building company is a "trading company" within the meaning of the exception.

(§ IV D-76) — POWER TO CONTRACT — SALES GENERALLY — CORPORATE PURPOSES.

A trading corporation making a sale of land with the view of enabling it to purchase other lands to carry on its business is bound by its contract of sale although not under the corporate seal, as the circumstances shewed that the contract was in furtherance of the objects of the corporation. [Beer v. London & Paris Hotel Co., L.R. 20 Eq. 412, referred to.]

SALE OF ASSETS — DEBENTURE MORTGAGE — CLAIM AGAINST TRUSTEES — SECURITIES HELD BY BANK — SUBROGATION — EVIDENCE.

Stuart v. Bank of Hamilton, 7 O.W.N. 727.

(§ IV D-77) — TRANSFER OF ENTIRE PROPERTY.

An agreement entered into by the directors of a company for the sale of the entire undertaking to another company, although ratified by a resolution passed at a meeting of shareholders, is ultra vires and cannot be enforced in the absence of the special resolution called for by the amending act, s. 5, as defined by s. 93 of the Companies Act. The procedure prescribed by the Nova Scotia Companies Act for the sale of its whole undertaking and assets must be strictly followed. Under the provisions of the Nova Scotia Companies Act, R.S.N.S. c. 128, as amended by N.S. Acts of 1912, c. 47, a company, whether incorporated before or after the passage of the latter Act, may dispose of the whole of its undertaking; such sale is not limited to sales for shares, debentures or securities of other companies carrying on a business of a similar character, but covers sales for money as well.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE — INCIDENTAL POWERS.

A chattel mortgage for money lent must be held invalid where the company in whose favour it was given had no power to lend money under its memorandum of association and where the lending could not be classed as an incidental power to the specific objects of the company's incorporation; the company may nevertheless have power to sue for the return of the money. [Ashbury Carriage Co. v. Riche, L.R. 7 H.L. 653, 44 L.J. Ex. 185; A.G. v. Great Eastern, 5 App. Cas. 473; Osborne Case, 79 L.J. Ch. 93, [1910] A.C. 87, 79 L.J. Ch. 93; A.G. v. PROMISSORY NOTE, POWER TO MAKE.

Where a company takes, within the purview of its charter powers, a chattel mortgage to protect credits extended by the company, it may be within the ordinary scope of its business, when such mortgage security is threatened by a creditor of the mortgagor, to avert the danger by giving the promissory note of the company as additional security for the creditor's debt and so in effect protecting the company's own mortgage.

Vancouver Engineering Works v. Columbia, 16 D.L.R. 841, 6 W.W.R. 413.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

A document by which the title and right to possession of chattel property of a company is transferred to a trustee for bondholders is within the purview of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 65, although a "floating charge" passing no property in the goods and conferring no rights of possession or interference therewith, but giving preferential rights on the winding up of a company, may be created as to present and future property of a company without coming within the terms of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act. [Johnston v. Wade, 17 O.L.R. 372, specially considered; Re London Pressed Hinge Co., [1905] 1 Ch. 576, specially referred to.]

National Trust Co. v. Trusts and Guarantee Co., 5 D.L.R. 459, 26 O.L.R. 279, 22 O.W.R. 933.

(§ IV D-78) — JOINT STOCK COMPANY UNDER LETTERS PATENT — POWERS OF DIRECTORS — MORTGAGE OF REAL ESTATE.

The directors of a company incorporated by letters patent (R.S.Q. 1909, arts. 6002 et seq.), can only mortgage the real estate if they are authorized to do so by by-law approved by the vote of shareholders representing at least two-thirds of the subscribed capital. Consequently a mortgage agreed to by resolution only is void, and does not give a creditor the right to rank by preference on the proceeds of the mortgage of the real estate.

Cimon Shoe Mfg. Co. v. Therrien & Desmarais, 45 Que. S.C., 336.

(§ IV D-79)—CONTRACT TO REPAY LOAN.

A guaranty by a corporation for the payment of work performed under a building contract is within the powers conferred upon it by s. 23 of the Companies Act, Ont., 1912, 2 Geo. V. c. 31.

POWER TO BORROW—SUBROGATION.

An insurance company is a commercial corporation, and therefore has implied power to borrow, and to pledge and mortgage its securities to secure the sum borrowed, though for the purpose of meeting the statutory security to the government authorities to enable it to carry on the business; even if ultra vires, if moneys were used for the payment of a just debt, the lender is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of those whose debts were paid therewith.

Royal Bank v. B.C. Accident, 35 D.L.R. 650, 24 B.C.R. 197, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 898.

LOAN CONTRACT — SHAREHOLDERS' LIABILITY — EXISTING DEBTS AFFECTED.

Where a corporation without the previous sanction of a formal resolution required by Alberta Companies Ordinance (Alta. Ordinances 1911, c. 61), s. 98, borrows money for the purposes of the corporation, and where the money so borrowed is applied to discharge existing enforceable legal debts of the corporation, the lender may recover though he knew that the authority to borrow was insufficient; since the transaction does not really add to the corporate liabilities, their amount remaining in substance unchanged, it being merely for convenience of payment a change of creditor. [Reversion Fund v. Maison Cosway, [1913] 1 K.B. 364; Blackburn Building Society v. Cudliffe Brooks & Co., 22 Ch. D. 61, 71, referred to.] The borrowing powers under the Companies Ordinance (Ordinances 1911, Alta. c. 61), s. 98, conferred on a corporation when sanctioned by a resolution thereof previously given in general meeting, are strictly construed and can be validly exercised only when previously authorized by the shareholders, and to that extent the principle of ratification has been abolished, the import of the enactment being to enable every shareholder to deliberate upon and discuss the question in advance, the theory that (when prudent and proper) he may at that stage withhold his consent, although after the unauthorized transaction has taken place, he might hesitate to condemn the directors.

PRIVATE COMPANY — DEBT OF INDIVIDUAL SHAREHOLDERS — ASSUMPTION BY COMPANY.

That the only real shareholders in a company had paid a part of their own debt to the plaintiff with the company's money and had obtained the issue and transfer to him of certain of the company's shares by way of security, is not an assumption of the debt, and will not operate to make the plaintiff a creditor of the company for the balance; it is, moreover, to be doubted whether a trading company can voluntarily assume an obligation incurred by an individual in the purchase of the company's own shares or become guarantor or surety in respect thereof.

LOAN—REPAYMENT.

Where a number of persons agree to subscribe shares to form themselves in corporation and borrow from one of them a sum of money if once incorporated, the corporate body cannot, when sued by the lender, refuse to pay on the ground that the debt has been extinguished by confusion.

Howard v. Findley, 51 Que. S.C. 375.

(§ IV D-80)—DOMINION COMPANY—BOND—ULTRA VIRES AS DEFENCE.

A trust company incorporated by Dominion authority having applied for and obtained registry under the Ontario Act, and as a term of receiving its license having given a bond to the Attorney-General for Ontario for the due performance of the duties of any office to which it might be appointed, cannot, nor can its sureties, in an action on the bond—after the winding-up of the company—for balances improperly advanced, set up that the provisions of the Act under which the bond was demanded and given were ultra vires the province so far as it was sought to apply them to a Dominion company.

ULTRA VIRES AS DEFENCE.

A corporation is liable for goods acquired under an ultra vires contract; though there can be no liability on the contract itself, there is an implied obligation to make restitution or compensation.

Trades Hall Co. v. Erie Tobacco Co., 29 D.L.R. 779, 26 Man. L.R. 468, 34 W.L.R. 780, 10 W.W.R. 846.

RIGHT OF CREDITOR TO SET UP.

The plea of ultra vires cannot be set up by a creditor defending on behalf of the company.

(§ IV D—81)—RIGHT TO SET UP ULTRA VIRES AS DEFENCE—RIGHT OF CORPORATIONS—CORPORATE OBJECTS.

Where a company incorporated to carry on a general contracting business and having no specific power in its memorandum of association either to guarantee the payment of the obligations of others or to undertake primary liability therefor, without consideration gives its promissory note for the debt of another company at the request of the payee, the transaction will be held ultra vires as between the original parties where no circumstances are shown which would make the transaction a "necessary or convenient" one as regards the corporate objects mentioned in the memorandum of association; and in like manner the company's endorsement of another note given in renewal thereof by the debtor company creates no cause of action in favour of the payee who is not a holder for value. [Ashbury v. Riche, L.R. 7 H.L. 653; Atty. Genl. v. Great Eastern, 5 App. Cas. 473; A. R. Williams Co. v. Crawford, 16 O.L.R. 245, referred to; Ex parte Booker, 14 Ch.D. 317, distinguished.]

(§ IV D—85)—CONTRACTS—FORMAL REQUISITES—SPECIFIC ENFORCEMENT OF LAND CONTRACT.

Where the by-laws of a trading company authorized the president and the secretary-treasurer, who had the management of the company, to make all contracts and engagements on its behalf and both concurred in an agreement of sale of the company's lands, but it was signed by the secretary-treasurer only, the contract is binding on the company and may be ordered to be specifically performed.

CONTRACTS—FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—CONTRACT FOR SALE BY LAND COMPANY.

As to lands for resale by a land company incorporated under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, a wholly executory agreement of sale entered into by the company's officers must have been authorized at a shareholder's meeting or have been specially authorized by a by-law passed by the Board of directors to conform with s. 68 of the Act (s. 65a added in 1911), otherwise a defence of want of mutuality must prevail as to a document purporting to be a contract under the hand and seal of the purchaser and under the seal of the land company attested by its executive officer, where no consideration had passed and the purchaser had given notice of repudiation.

RIGHT OF TRADING COMPANY TO CONTRACT WITHOUT THE SEAL OF THE COMPANY.

A contract by a trading company entered into for the purpose for which the company is incorporated need not be under the common seal of the company. [Clarke et al. v. Cuckfield Union, 21 L.J.Q.B. 349; Henderson v. Royal Mail Navigation Co., 5 E. & R. 409, and South of Ireland Colliery v. Waddle, L.R. 3 C.P. 463, referred to. CORPORATIONS AND COMPANIES—REQUISITES OF CORPORATE CONTRACT—ADOPTION OF OFFICER'S REPORT OF ASSETS.

The fact that the financial statement of a company submitted by its treasurer and adopted by its directors enumerated as one of the assets of the company, an item as follows: "Patent $20,000" is not, in the absence of a by-law or other document under the corporate seal or of assumption or user of the patent rights by the company, sufficient evidence of a contract binding the company to take over at that price from the incorporators acting as a syndicate a patent right for the transfer of which to the company negotiations had been pending between the syndicate and the company.

FORMAL REQUISITES.

Section 64 of the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act which dispenses with the necessity for the corporate seal upon a contract or agreement made for the company by its agent, officer or servant "in general accordance with his powers" does not apply to agreements made out of the ordinary course of the company's business, even by its vice-president in the company's name; and the person dealing with the company's officer or agent in respect of agreements of that nature is put upon inquiry to ascertain that the officer or agent has in fact been duly authorized to enter into them.

CORPORATE SEAL—INSURANCE—AUTHORITY OF OFFICERS.

An insurance company is liable on contracts not under the corporate seal entered into for the purposes for which it was incorporated, particularly where the contract is executed; the authority of a managing director to bind the company by a contract of reinsurance, authorized by the terms of the charter, will be presumed unless the contrary is shown.

(§ IV D—90)—RATIFICATION.

After the incorporation of a company the personal liability of the signatories to a promissory note executed in the company's name by persons purporting to be the president and manager thereof and signed prior to the incorporation remains unaffected by the incorporation of the company.

CONTRACT BY FINANCIAL AGENT FOR ADVERTISING—RATIFICATION.

When an incorporated company allows a prospectus ordered and prepared by a financial agent employed by them to sell their shares to be circulated amongst the public which purports to be the prospectus of the company and permits any advertisements based thereon to be published without any disclaimer on the part of the company, it will not be allowed to deny the authority of the apparent agent, who gave the orders for the printing and advertisements, whether such apparent agent be really the duly authorized agent of the company or not.

French Gas Saving Co. v. The Desbarats Advertising Agency, 1 D.L.R. 136.

ULTRA VIRES TRANSACTION—RATIFICATION PRECLUDED.

An illegal or ultra vires transaction on the part of a stock company cannot be ratified, sanctioned or authorized by the shareholders, either through a majority or by the whole body acting in concert. [Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409, referred to.]

A ratification by the Crown, express or implied, in orders-in-council, of a contract makes it valid, notwithstanding what may have been lacking in the powers of the corporate body. Nor can the latter set forth, as an answer, that the Crown had no power to make such orders, as in doing so, it violates the rule that forbids to plead a jus tertii.

It is only the Crown that can take advantage of the prohibition enacted by s. 119 of the Companies Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 35, as amended by s. 4 of c. 29 of 6 Geo. V., against the acquiring or holding of land in this province by a company not incorporated under the provisions of the statutes of the province unless under license issued to it under the Act. Such a company may, therefore, although not so licensed, acquire such an interest in land in this province that a creditor claiming under a judgment against the person from whom the land was acquired, registered after such acquisition, cannot have the conveyance declared void and the land sold to satisfy the judgment. G. OFFICERS, MEETINGS.

(S. IV G—105)—DIRECTORS—QUALIFICATIONS—SHARES HELD IN TRUST.

Section 112 of c. 37 of the Canada Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, prevents one holding shares of a company organized under such act, merely as a trustee, without any beneficial interest in them, becoming a director of the company. [Pulbrook v. Richmond Consolidated Mining Co., 9 Ch. D. 610, considered.]

INTERNAL MANAGEMENT—MEETINGS—NOTICE—VOTING—ACQUESCENCE—NO ULTRA VIRES.

The conditions of a statute validating an ultra vires agreement to secure debentures subject to the confirmation of the company's acts by a specified majority of the shareholders must be actually and literally complied with to render the agreement intra vires, and the fulfilment cannot be inferred from acquiescence; a notice of meeting which does not sufficiently apprise the shareholders of the purpose of the meeting, so that each could judge for himself whether he would consent to the proposals made at the meeting, is insufficient and the resolutions of the meeting are null and void.

OFFICERS—STATUS OF DIRECTORS.

There is no legal incompatibility between the office of director of a company and any other office in the service of the company, for directors do not stand in the position of masters to the officers of the company, but are themselves the servants of the company. [King v. Tizzard, 9 B. & C. 418, referred to.]

Bashforth v. Provincial Steel Co., 10 D.L.R. 187, 4 O.W.N. 1019, 24 O.W.R. 334.

DISMISSAL OF OFFICERS—POWERS.

Held, the power of the defendants as a legally constituted association to remove their secretary-treasurer, whom they had elected to office, is a power which is inherent to such association, at common law, provided such removal be for cause affecting the plaintiff's fitness and capacity for office; that this power was justly exercised.

Poliquin v. Longshoremen's Union, 24 Rev. de Jur. 573, 24 Rev. Leg. 504.

DIRECTORS—MOTION TO RESTRAIN FROM ACTING AS SUCH—OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL OF SHARES—INTERIM INJUNCTION.

Tough Oakes Gold Mines v. Foster, 10 O.W.N. 209.

(§ IV G-106)—ELECTION OF DIRECTORS—SUFFICIENCY OF QUORUM—DISQUALIFICATION OF MEMBERS—UNPAID CALLS. Doig v. Mathews, 25 D.L.R. 732, 22 B.C.R. 352, 33 W.L.R. 275, 9 W.W.R. 487.

OFFICERS—ELECTION—OFFICE OF ASSISTANT MANAGING DIRECTORS—AUTHORITY FOR CREATION.

An article of association authorizing the directors of a company to appoint one of more of their number to be managing director or managing directors, warrants creation of the office of assistant managing director in addition to the office of general manager.

(§ IV G-109)—DIRECTORATE—REDUCTION OF ITS MEMBERSHIP, HOW EFFECTED.

A board of directors of 7 members having been determined upon by a resolution of the previous board of 3 directors and elected by the shareholders of the company in accordance therewith, the new board was validly elected and constituted so as to authorize a call on the unpaid shares of the company.

REDUCTION OF NUMBER OF DIRECTORS.

Clary v. Golden Rose Mining Co., 4 O.W.N. 1491, 24 O.W.R. 813.

(§ IV G-110)—MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS—IRREGULARITY.

Where the secretary-treasurer of a company has called a meeting of the shareholders of the company and is seeking to take advantage of resolutions passed at that meeting although it was irregularly held, the company is entitled to take advantage of such irregularity although it could not invoke it against third parties acting in good faith.

Couchene v. Viger Park Co., 23 D.L.R. 693, 24 Que. K.B. 97.

POWER OF OFFICER TO INDOSE NOTE.

The authority of an officer of a corporation to indorse a note for the corporation cannot be disputed after the corporation has obtained advances from a bank on the strength of such indorsement.

MANAGING DIRECTOR—POWERS OF—DISPOSING OF REAL ESTATE ACQUIRED MERELY TO PROTECT CLAIM OF COMPANY.

Although one who is president and managing director of a company, with the powers of a general manager, has no implied power to dispose of the company's real estate, yet where he has bid in certain real estate at a sale for the purpose of protecting a claim of the company and to secure its payment and with no intention of acquiring the property for the use of the company, and in pursuance of the previous understanding with another person and to implement his intention with respect to the property when he bid it in he agrees to transfer the property, such agreement may be held to be within his implied powers and be given effect to by the court. Armstrong v. Grenon, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 290.

OFFICERS—"FIRST DIRECTORS"—QUALIFICATIONS—QUORUM—VALIDITY OF CALLS.

A call on shares made by a meeting of directors which included as one of the quorum a director who had vacated his office by not taking up his qualification shares, is valid by reason of clause 71, table 3 of the Companies Act. [Dawson v. African Consolidated Land and Trading Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 6, 67 L.J. Ch. 47; British Asbestos Co. v. Boyd, [1903] 2 Ch. 439, 73 L.J. Ch. 31; *Chanel Collieries Trust v. Alberta Improvement Co. v. Peverett, 7 W.W.R. 757, 7 S.L.R. 342.

(§ IV G-111)—LIABILITY OF PRESIDENT ON AGREEMENTS EXPRESSLY ENTERED INTO ON HIS OWN BEHALF AND THAT OF THE COMPANY—SIGNATURE OF COMPANY.

Where, by an agreement which is in writing, but which it would have been competent to the parties to make without any writing, the president of an incorporated company enters into an undertaking expressly upon his own behalf and upon behalf of the company, but signs the agreement in the name of the company only, the written document will be regarded merely as a record of the agreement and not as the agreement itself, and the president will be held personally bound by his undertaking.

POWERS OF PRESIDENT—RIGHT OF NOTARY PUBLIC TO PASS A DEED AS NOTARY IN WHICH COMPANY IS A PARTY—EFFECT OF ITS REGISTRATION.

A notary public holding the position of president of an incorporated company is not competent to pass a deed in his capacity of notary where to such company is a party; and the registration of such deed is ineffective if registration is made of it as if it were an authentic deed.

Belard v. Phoenix Land Improvement Co. & Drolet, 8 D.L.R. 686.

POWERS OF DIRECTORS—ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF COMPANY'S INSOLVENCY.

An officer of a company who is at the same time director, president and manager, cannot make the acknowledgment of insolvency specified in sub. (d) of s. 3 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, in the absence of authority so to do. [Almon v. Law, 26 N.S.R. 540, and Re Brit-

(§ IV G—114) — POWERS OF VICE-PRESIDENT.

An agreement by a company engaged in the business of company flotation and of selling shares in the companies promoted through its efforts, to give the buyer of corporate stock sold by its salesman the option of returning the shares within a limited time and of receiving back the purchase price with a premium added, is not a transaction in the ordinary course of the company's business and will not be binding on the selling company although made by the authority of its vice-president, if such contracts had been forbidden by the president and were neither made nor authorized by any document or record under the corporate seal.

(§ IV G—115) — POWERS OF OFFICERS—IMPLIED AUTHORITY TO CONTRACT.

Whilst it is safe as a general rule, and in the absence of proof of direct authority, to ascribe an implied authority in the case of the managing director of a company, such a rule cannot be held to apply to a subordinate officer of a company, such as a logging superintendent of a lumber company. [Doctor v. People's Trust, 16 D.L.R. 192, 18 B.C.R. 382, distinguished; Wright v. Glynn, [1902] 1 K.B. 745, referred to.]

Hedican v. Crow's Nest Pass Lumber Co., 17 D.L.R. 164, 19 B.C.R. 416, 28 W.L.R. 37, 6 W.W.R. 969.

POWERS OF OFFICERS.

A trading company is bound by acts of its officers done in the course of negotiations for a contract for the purpose for which it is incorporated, and its common seal is not necessary. Where the managing director of an incorporated company in Saskatchewan holds himself out as having authority to do certain acts, which are not unusual for the managing director of such a company, the company will be bound by such acts. Where a school board calls for tenders for the construction of a building upon the terms that a marked cheque for a proportion of the tender should accompany the tender and be forfeited if the successful tenderer should fail to execute a contract within 3 days of receipt of notice of acceptance of his tender, and the successful tenderer, an incorporated company, refuses to sign a contract for the amount named in its tender, because of an error in its estimates, it cannot recover the amount of its deposit on the ground that it has made no contract under its seal with reference thereto, and that the authority of its managing director, who signed the tender and conducted the negotiations on its behalf, was confined to the making of the tender, and did not extend to agreeing to the condition as to the forfeiture of the deposit.

Can. Dig.—27.

(§ IV G—116) — POWERS OF MANAGER — BOOKKEEPING ENTRIES.

The manager of a company, who, upon a proposed transfer of assets to another company, has himself charged on the company's books with various debts of the company, will not be liable as a contributor, on its winding-up, as having been guilty of misfeasance, where such charging of debts to himself was done merely as a matter of bookkeeping and the company was not thereby prejudiced.

Re Stewart, Howe & Meek, 9 D.L.R. 484, 4 O.W.N. 506, 23 O.W.R. 852.

POWERS OF MANAGING DIRECTOR.

The managing director of a company who has authority to manage and conduct its business, does not have implied authority to sell the entire assets of the company as a going concern, since such a sale does not relate to the carrying on of its business.

POWERS OF MANAGER—AGREEMENT BY MANAGER, RATIFICATION ESSENTIAL, WHEN — KNOWLEDGE.

An agreement made by a general manager or the vice-president of a company is only tentative and will not bind the company without ratification, when the fair inference to be drawn from the evidence is that all the parties to the transaction knew that such agreement was subject to being ratified by the Board of directors of the company. [Skinner v. Crown Life Ass'ce Co., 1 O.W.N. 921, 2 O.W.N. 647; National Malleable Castings Co. v. Smith's Falls Malleable Castings Co., 14 O.L.R. 22; Russo-Chinese Bank v. Dickson Co. v. Graham, 9 D.L.R. 813, 4 O.W.N. 670, 23 O.W.R. 749.

POWERS OF SECRETARY-TREASURER — INSURANCE CONTRACT.

Where a contract for insurance is not authorized by the board of directors, the promise of the secretary-treasurer to recommend to the corporation the acceptance of certain insurance proposals is not of itself sufficiently definite to create a binding contract as will render the corporation liable thereon.

Douglas v. Eastern Car Co., 25 D.L.R. 481, 49 N.S.R. 208.

POWERS OF MANAGING DIRECTOR—LEASE.

The managing director of a company incorporated in England under the Companies Consolidation Act, 1908, to whom the company has given power of attorney to do all acts, execute all deeds and instruments as, in his opinion, may be necessary, convenient or expedient in relation to the property and business of the company, has authority to lease the company's salmon cannery and business as a going concern.

POWERS OF OFFICERS—SCOPE OF APPARENT AUTHORITY—MANAGER.

It is sufficient for persons dealing with the managing director of a company in the ordinary course of business and bonâ fide, if the articles of the company show that he might have the powers which he purports to have, and a promissory note taken in such circumstances is prima facie enforceable. [Doctor v. People's Trust Co., 16 D.L.R. 192, applied.]

(§ IV G—117)—ADVISORY BOARD—DUTIES TO INVESTIGATE APPLICATIONS—APPLICATION AND VALUATOR'S REPORT APPARENTLY SATISFACTORY—NEGLIGENCE—LIABILITY OF COMPANY.

Members of an advisory board of a loan company whose duties are to investigate the application and valuator's report, and who act without remuneration, are not liable for negligence, causing loss to the company, in recommending a loan based in part upon the personal standing of the applicant, the application and valuator's report being apparently regular and satisfactory, the loss being caused by the fraud of the local solicitor of the company who was also on the advisory board, but of whose fraud the other members were unaware.

Prudential Trust Co. v. McQuaid, 45 D.L.R. 346, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 523.

POWERS OF DIRECTORS—REMOVAL OF MANAGING DIRECTOR.

The directors of a company are prevented by s. 72 of the Companies (Consolidated)

Act of 1908 (Imp.) from removing a managing director from office.

RIGHT OF DIRECTOR TO CONTRACT WITH COMPANY—ABSENCE OF ANY ADVANTAGE BEING TAKEN.

One who contracts with an incorporated company, of which he is a director, must show that the contract is a fair one and that he has taken no advantage of the company. It is not within the authority of the managing director of an incorporated company to compromise or release the liability of another director in respect of misrepresentations made by that director inducing a contract between him and the company.

POWERS OF DIRECTORS.

The power to adopt by-laws relative to the voting of shares by proxy at elections of company directors is, by s. 15 of c. 53 of 52 Vict. (Man.), vested in the directors only, and not in the shareholders of the company. [Kelly v. Electrical Construction Co., 16 O.L.R. 232, applied.]

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS—POWERS AS TO HIRING MEDICAL EXAMINER—TERM.

Provisional directors of a joint stock company have no right to make a contract for hire of services of a medical examiner for the whole duration of the company's existence. Such a contract is void if it is not approved and ratified by the board of directors of the company properly appointed.

Lebel v. Security Life Ins. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 238.

(§ IV G—118)—POWERS OF AUDITORS.

An auditor appointed by an incorporated company in pursuance of the Companies Ordinance (Alta.), cannot enforce against the directors of the company a right of access to the company's books and records by means of an application to the court instituted by an originating summons under Alta. r. 469 of the Judicature Ordinance.

(§ IV G—120)—OFFICERS—COMPENSATION—APPOINTMENT OF DIRECTOR AS MANAGER, WHEN LAWFUL.

In the absence of express statutory provisions, the general rule that a director of a company cannot take the benefit of a contract entered into between himself and the company, does not apply to a contract of employment between the company and the director, whereby the latter is engaged as manager of the company, if it appears that such engagement is more in the interest of the company than the appointment of some one outside of the directorate. COMPENSATION.

Directors who perform mere manual labour as servants or clerks of a company are entitled to remuneration therefor at the ordinary market price, without such payments being first authorized by a by-law adopted at a general meeting as required by s. 88 of 7 Edw. VII. c. 34 (The Ontario Companies Act), in the case of compensation of officers whose appointment must be by by-law. [Burland v. Earle, [1902] A.C. 83, followed; Re Queen City Plate Glass Co., Eastmure's Case, 1 O.W.N. 863; Re Morlok & Cline, Sarvis & Canning's Claims, 23 O.L.R. 165, and Benor v. OFFICERS—COMPENSATION—MANAGING DIRECTORS—SALARIES—VOTE REQUIRED—IMPROPER PAYMENTS TO DIRECTOR, LIQUIDATOR'S RIGHT TO RECOVER.

Under an article of incorporation providing that the directors may pay to any managing directors such salary as they may think fit, provided that a majority of all the directors (exclusive of any managing director) vote in favour of such salary, the salary may be paid on the vote of a majority of the directors exclusive of the managing director to whom it is voted. The liquidator of a company is entitled to recover from a director, under a misfeasance summons, money paid by the director by the company as commission on shares subscribed for by him at the time he signed the memorandum of association; such payments not being authorized by the articles of association or the prospectus, and being in violation of Companies Ordinance (N.W. Terr. 1911, c. 61), s. 111. [Re Newman (George) & Co., [1895] 1 Ch. 674; Re Bodoga Company, [1904] 1 Ch. 276; Re Oxford

Re Canadian Diamond Co., Broad's Case, 11 D.L.R. 251, 6 A.L.R. 42, 4 W.W.R. 578. SALARY—BONUS—KNOWLEDGE OF RESOLUTION.

Where the articles of incorporation of a company authorize payment for services rendered to the company by directors as well as others, a bonus and salary voted to a director for services rendered, at a meeting of the company at which the shareholders were all present, by the majority of shareholders, are acts intra vires, and cannot subsequently be recovered back by the company or the majority of shareholders.

Macdonald Bros. v. Godson, 31 D.L.R. 363, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 233.

DIRECTORS—COMPENSATION.

Directors have no right to be paid for their services, and cannot pay themselves or each other, or make presents to themselves out of the company's assets, unless authorized so to do by the instrument which regulates the company or by the shareholders at a properly convened meeting. [Re G. Newman & Co., [1895] 1 Ch. 674, referred to.]

MUTUAL AID SOCIETY—REMUNERATION OF DIRECTORS—COSTS.

Directors of a mutual aid society should give their services gratuitously, and they have no right to issue paid-up policies to themselves and to vote themselves an indemnity in money in payment for their past and future services. The directors, in committing such illegal acts, have acted as agents and jointly committed a délit. In the two capacities they may be jointly and severally condemned to payment of the costs.

Roy v. La Caisse des Familles, 48 Que. S.C. 43.

COMPANY FUNDS—ADMINISTRATION—INTERVENTION OF TRIBUNAL—SALARY OF DIRECTORS—C.C., ART. 361.

The courts of justice ought not to interfere in the direction of interior affairs of a society by actions, unless in case of fraud or illegality; thus they have no right to interfere in the reimbursing of the salaries of the directors which had been voted and paid, when they have acted in good faith conforming to the rules of the company and as they have been accustomed to do each year to the knowledge, and without any observation on the part of the shareholders. An action against the directors of a society to make them pay pretended salaries illegally received in virtue of a resolution adopted by them, ought not to be formed personally against them. The action ought to first of all be intended against the corporation to make them annul this resolution authorizing the payment of salaries.

(§ IV G—123)—SECRET PROFITS.

Secret profits obtained by those who are in reality trustees of a company, organized and incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act, for the purpose of acquiring and reselling land, which had been purchased by a syndicate, the members of which became shareholders of the company, are profits of the company, and those who in effect paid it are liable to refund it or cause it to be refunded.

DIRECTORS NOT ENTITLED TO REMUNERATION — BY-LAW AUTHORIZING PAYMENT — CONSENT OF SHAREHOLDERS NOT UNANIMOUS—INVALIDITY.

A by-law authorizing the payment out of the funds of a company of salaries to directors of the company, such directors not being entitled to remuneration from the company, is invalid without the unanimous consent of the shareholders.

ILLEGAL COMPENSATION TO PRESIDENT—VOTING ISSUE OF STOCK TO ENABLE CONTROL OF MEETING.

Directors cannot vote to their president an indemnity as salary which is not justified, either by services rendered nor by the state of the company's business, in order to permit him to acquire shares which would give him the majority and the control in a shareholders' meeting. Resolutions respecting this indemnity and the issue of shares purchased with the amount of it are void. Giguère v. Colas, 48 Que. S.C. 198.

DIRECTORS — TRUSTEES — ACCOUNTS — SALARIES AND DISBURSEMENTS OF DIRECTORS—VALUE OF PREFERRED SHARES RECEIVED BY DIRECTORS—EVIDENCE—INTEREST—ESTOPPEL—REMUNERATION OF TRUSTEES—COSTS.

Hyatt v. Allen, 9 O.W.N. 173, 415.

(§ IV G—125)—FIDUCIARY RELATION—OFFICER PURCHASING STOCK FROM SHAREHOLDER.

Where directors of a landholding company passed a resolution appointing three of themselves as a committee to bring in a proposal for disposing of the whole of their lands and also of the corporate shares in the company, the responsibility of the members of the committee acting upon such resolution is more extensive than the ordinary duties devolving upon company directors; and, on any proposal of purchase being received by them which involved the acquisition of the land forming the entire assets of the company, the committee were under a duty to the shareholders whose rights as such, would, on completion of the sale, be limited to a reimbursement pro rata out of the purchase money, to make full disclosure to them as well as to the company, as represented by its directors and officers, of the terms of the offer.

FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP OF DIRECTORS—RAILWAY CONTRACT—ACCOUNTING TO MINORITY.

The majority directors of a corporation formed with an object of undertaking railway contracts, who are entrusted with the conduct of affairs of the company, cannot consistently, before dissolution, deliberately exclude, by using their influence and position, the interest of the corporation in a railway contract they procured, in favour of a company separately formed by them with a similar object, and owe a duty of accounting to the minority in respect of the profits realized from such contract. FIDUCIARY RELATION—MISFEASANCE BY DIRECTOR—ACCEPTANCE OF STOCK FOR SERVICES.

A director's acceptance of stock issued to him for services rendered prior to the incorporation of the corporation, did not constitute misfeasance in the nature of a breach of trust where the memorandum of association authorized the issue, though the company's prospectus states that "no amount has been or will be paid to any director beyond the purchase price paid to the syndicate as above mentioned;" no claim of fraud as to the rendition or value of the services being made. DIRECTORS SELLING COMPANY'S BUSINESS TO THEMSELVES—SHAREHOLDERS' MEETING TO CONFORM—WANT OF DUE NOTICE TO ALL SHAREHOLDERS—NO RIGHT IN OUTSIDER TO COMPLAIN.

Plaintiff held certain premises under lease from defendant company which lease provided that in the event of the company selling or in any way disposing of the restaurant business carried on by it in the same building it should have the right to cancel the lease to plaintiff on certain notice. The company being in financial straits, two of its directors at a directors' meeting passed a by-law sanctioning the sale of the business to themselves, the consideration being the assumption of the liabilities. Said by-law was confirmed at a shareholders' meeting, the minutes of which were signed by all the shareholders except one who was not shown to have been present at, or notified of, the meeting. The court found that the sale to the two directors was made bona fide because of the financial condition of the company and only after they had failed by inducing any other purchaser to take over the business. A notice of cancellation of the lease was then served on the plaintiff signed by the company per said two directors as its officials. Held although as against a shareholder or any person having a direct interest in the company such a sale from directors to themselves could not be permitted to stand unless it was sanctioned by the shareholders at a meeting at which all the shareholders were present or of which they all had notice, the irregularity was not such as the plaintiff could take advantage of; even if that were not the case the court should not declare the sale void under the circumstances because the approving shareholders represented the large majority of the shares and they could at once approve the sale at a regularly called meeting, which would be a work of supererogation.

terests purchasing the assets of the corporation, and the directors of said corporation secured the consent of a majority of the shareholders thereof for the sale and transfer of the plant and property of the corporation, and where said shares were surreptitiously acquired by the directors for their own profit, a trust or fiduciary relation was established between the directors of said corporation and its shareholders. Where directors of a corporation were approached with a view of merging or consolidating with similar interests, by the merged interests purchasing the assets of the corporation, and the directors of said corporation secured the consent of a majority of the shareholders thereof for the sale and transfer of the plant and property of the corporation, and where said shares were surreptitiously acquired by the directors for their own profit, the directors are agents of the shareholders and cannot personally profit by the transaction in question. DISPOSITION OF ASSETS—REMUNERATION. M., a solicitor, whose firm financed a company by which a large indebtedness accumulated, acted as the company's solicitor, for which he was paid a stipulated sum monthly. He obtained one share and became a director in the company largely for the purpose of protecting his firm's interest. The debt to the firm was secured by some of the individual directors and by an assignment of an agreement for sale made by the C.P.R. to the company of 1,100 acres of timber lands on which $2,000 was owing. Later a sale was made of the C.P.R.'s lands to E. & W. at $7 an acre, the terms being $2,000 down and the balance in payments, extending over some years; this sale was brought by M.'s efforts, for which he received a commission of $268.87. E. & W. purchased in order to sell at an advance to a certain group of persons (including themselves), and later carried out this sale. M.

was not interested at the time of the sale, but later became interested in the purchasing group. The directors held all the shares in the company. On the company going into liquidation the liquidation brought action against the directors for misappropriation and dissipation of the company's assets. The case narrowed down to a claim against M. in respect to three items: (1) his remuneration as a solicitor for the company; (2) the item of $268.87 for commission; (3) the profit obtained from his interest in the purchasing group of the C.P.R. lands.—Held, on the facts, that the claims do not come within the provisions of the Winding-up Act, nor do they give rise to any statutory presumption which is not refuted by the evidence.

Dividend declared and paid by a company before it is actually earned and which infringes upon and lessens its capital, the said dividend being taken from alleged eventual, fictitious, and problematical profits, is illegal. A shareholder who has received such dividend is bound to restore to the liquidator of the company which paid the dividend, the latter's bonds which he received in payment thereof, at the par value, or the price for which he sold the same. Art. 1032 to 1040, C.C. referring to the "Paulian" action are not applicable to a case where a company divides amongst its members not only the accumulated profits, but also bonds, part of its capital, without paying its debts. Therefore, an action instituted by the liquidator of the company to revivificate these bonds or the value thereof, is not a "Paulian" action which is prescribed by one year. This action may be taken not only against the directors, but also against any shareholder having, in bad faith, received any illegal dividend.

Hyde v. Scott, 28 Que. K.B. 80.

LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS—DIVIDENDS—PROSPECTUS.

When directors of a company in formation signed and published a prospectus guaranteeing the subscribers of stock a dividend of 30 per cent, secured by a deposit of 10 per cent taken from the payments of the stock, they are in fact declaring a dividend taken out of the capital obtained from the sale of the company's stock, and not earned from the profit. The declaration of dividend is illegal and null. If the company commences its operations before 10 per cent of its authorized capital has been subscribed and paid for, the directors are responsible personally for the losses of the shareholders. Election of directors and officers made before any certificate has been issued and without even the company having a stock book is of no legal effect. A prospectus which announced that the provisional directors have promoted this company for the purpose of taking up certain "contracts which they made for the purchase and delivery of," without specifying the date of the agreements and the name of the parties to them, and which contained assertions false, susceptible of deceit, is deemed fraudulent on the part of directors who issued such notice. The directors, in acting as aforesaid, are jointly and severally responsible towards a shareholder having acted in good faith, and bound to reimburse him the amount he has paid for his stock. The secretary-treasurer of the company who was not a provisional director, is not liable for the repayment of this money.

The plaintiff signed an application for 82,000 worth of shares in the defendant company, an industrial concern, organized under the Ontario Companies Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 178, and paid $1,000 on account. He was shown a document called a "statement" issued by the company, which contained several untrue representations bearing on the value of the shares, such as that all the earnings would be available for the common stock, and that the superintendent of the company's factory had an interest in the company. Misrepresentations were also made to him by an agent of the company who obtained his application—held that the "statement" as it was issued for the purpose of being used to promote or aid in the subscription or purchase of the shares of the company, was a "prospectus" within the meaning of s. 99 of the Ontario Companies Act. The misrepresentations were sufficient to justify a rescission of the agreement (if any) to take shares. If the statement was not a prospectus, no prospectus was delivered at the time the subscription was obtained, and under s. 101 (3) of the act the plaintiff was not bound by and was entitled to withdraw his subscription; and, as no notice of allotment was ever sent to him, his withdrawal could be at any time. There was not only no notice of allotment to the plaintiff, but there was no allotment. What was relied upon—a resolution of the directors—was too vague, and was not intended to apply to the plaintiff, who was never entered on the company's register as a shareholder.

LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS—WAGES—WINDING-UP—EXECUTION.

The recourse granted by art. 6072, R.S.Q., to labourers, clerks and servants of a joint stock company against its directors, jointly and severally, to recover six months' wages, has no criminal character, but rests on a purely civil obligation created by the law and subject to the conditions imposed by it. In order to exercise such recourse against the directors, a workman, who has obtained a judgment against the company, is not bound to obtain by a process verbal a report that the company has not sufficient assets to satisfy his judgment, if such insufficiency is otherwise shown by an immediate winding-up of the company. A delay of 9 days to execute the judgment obtained against the company does not constitute, on the part of the workman, an act of negligence which the directors may oppose him as means of contesting the action he has taken against them, unless a prejudice is shown. The order of winding-up of an incorporated company does not terminate the powers of its directors, but only suspends the exercise of such powers. The directors lose their capacity as such only at the end of the winding-up.

[Nixon v. Brownlow, 1 H. & N. 405, and Brice v. Munro, 12 A.R. LIABILITY FOR WAGES—LACHES—ENFORCEMENT.

The remedy given by art. 6072, R.S.Q. 1909, to the workmen, clerks and servants of a joint stock company, against its directors jointly and severally, to recover six months wages, should be strictly interpreted, by considering the personal responsibility of the directors as a penalty, and an employee who wishes to make use of this remedy should first satisfy all the requirements of the law. A workman cannot exercise this remedy when, having obtained judgment against the company, he neglects to execute it upon its property before it goes into liquidation, and neglects to obtain leave of the court to execute it after it has been put into liquidation. Pilote v. Leclerc, 92 Que. S.C. 127.

(§ IV G-140)—ONTARIO COMPANIES ACT—FAILURE TO MAKE STATEMENT—PENALTIES—SECRETARY—LIABILITY OF—WILFULLY PERMITTING.

By s. 134 (6) of the Ontario Companies Act the secretary of a company is liable to penalties for default in making out and transmitting to the Provincial Secretary the summary statement prescribed by subs. 1 to 5 only when he wilfully authorizes or permits the default. The court held under the circumstances that the conduct of the secretary, who was a barrister and also a director of the company, and who was more in control than either of the other two directors, and whose office was the head office of the company, showed that he wilfully permitted the default.

(§ IV G-153)—CRIMINAL LIABILITY.

An officer of a company is criminally liable under art. 69 of the Cr. Code, providing, among other things, that everyone is a party to and guilty of an offence who does an act for the purpose of aiding any person to commit the offence, where on the strength of a false representation in a report made by him with intent to perpetrate the offence of obtaining credit by false pretences, goods were obtained on credit for the company.

Rex v. Amos Campbell, 5 D.L.R. 370, 23 Que. S.C. 400.

(§ IV G—155) — OFFICERS' MEETINGS —
CHANGING NUMBER OF DIRECTORATE.

Where a board of directors consisting of three members were unanimous in deciding that the board should be increased to 7 members, but the resolution was not reduced to writing, a subsequent meeting of shareholders may confirm the directors' resolution although it was not in writing, by electing a directorate of 7 members. [Colonial Ass'ce Co. v. Smith, 4 D.L.R. 814, 22 Man. L.R. 441, and Kelly v. Electrical Construction Co., 16 O.L.R. 232, referred to.]

Where a bare majority of the directors of a company call a meeting of directors at a time that does not reasonably permit of the attendance of a full board, and not acting in a bona fide manner or in the interests of the company, but for the purpose of defeating shareholders in respect to resolutions to be considered at a company meeting, and for the purpose of retaining themselves in office, and altogether apart from any business investigation, the parties to whom the shares are issued will be restrained from making use of them in voting at such meeting. There is no difference between preventing a threatened issue of stock for improper purpose and the use of stock improperly issued and intended for improper control.

The Glace Bay Printing Co. v. Harrington, 45 N.S.R. 268.

ACTS OF DIRECTORS—INTERNAL MANAGEMENT.

In the absence of deceit or fraud a joint stock company is bound by the act of its board of directors acting within the limits of their powers even when adopted at a meeting of the board irregularly convened. The company cannot set up a breach of its by-laws for governing its internal affairs to revoke a contract entered into between it and a third party in good faith.

Goulet v. Hydraulic Co. of Portneuf, 52 Que. S.C. 58.

MEETINGS—QUORUM.

A director disqualified from voting upon a contract by reason of interest therein cannot be included in the number of directors necessary to constitute a quorum at the meeting at which the contract is made. One director cannot constitute a meeting.

The B. & S. Drug Co., Donald's Claim (Alta.), 10 W.W.R. 612.

(§ IV G—156) — MEETINGS OF OFFICERS — OUTSIDE OF PROVINCE OF INCORPORATION —LEGALITY OF.

Where meetings of members or directors of a company relate to the internal affairs of the company only or to transactions in the province of incorporation the mere holding of such meetings in another province is not carrying on business outside the boundaries of the province of incorporation in a manner that transcends the limitation to provincial objects imposed on the company by s. 92 of the B.N.A. Act. The receipt of applications for shares in the company and the issue of such shares to applicants may take place outside the province because such transactions do not of themselves involve extra-provincial objects. (§ IV G—157) — NOTICE OF.

The action of the board of directors of a company incorporated under the Imperial Companies Consolidation Act of 1908 in appointing a managing director is not invalid because two of the directors, who were temporarily in B.C., did not receive notice of the meeting, as the requirement as to notice will be reasonably construed so as to facilitate the efficient carrying on of the business of the company. The fact that the articles of association of a company provide for the payment of the traveling and hotel expenses of directors while attending meetings of the board, does not require that notice of meetings thereof to be held in England shall be given to directors who are temporarily in British Columbia.

COMPANY FUNDS—PREFERRED STOCK—ASSEMBLY—NOTICE—LOAN.

A director of a company cannot complain on September 4, that he had not received notice of an assembly of the administrative council held April 9 preceding, at which it had been decided to borrow a sum of $7000 from a third party on the guarantee of preferred stock previously underwritten by this director, with the understanding that the company should use it to obtain capital.

H. PROMOTERS.

(§ IV H—161) — PROMOTERS AND INCORPORATORS—LIABILITY FOR MISREPRESENTATIONS.

The prospectus is the basis of the subscription for company shares and the company issuing shares upon a subscription contract based upon a prospectus thereby adopts the prospectus although it was issued before the incorporation of the company; but where a person becomes one of the original incorporators there is no ratification by the company of any misrepresentation made by a promoter whereby a person was induced to become one of the incorporators and to join in the petition for the company's charter; each petitioner by signing the memorandum of incorporation becomes bound not only as between himself and the company, but as between

AGREEMENT FOR ADVANCE TO COMPANY BY PROMOTER—PROCEEDS OF SALE OF PROMOTER'S SHARES.

A stipulation between the buyer and seller that the purchase price of shares in a company should be applied by the seller in accordance with his promotion agreement in reduction of certain liabilities against the assets of the company, with the intention that the seller should later be repaid by the company, is one which the buyer may have an interest in enforcing as affecting the value of the shares he is getting, and the court may therefore, in an action brought by the seller for the price, give effect to such stipulation by directing payment in accordance therewith of the balance for which judgment is entered in the seller's favour.

PROMOTERS—SALE TO TRUSTEES FOR COMPANY—LIABILITY.

An agreement for the sale of goods by a manufacturer to parties acting as trustees for a company about to be, and subsequently incorporated, creates no liability on their part to pay for the goods. Irregularities in the proceedings of incorporation of the company afford no ground for challenging its existence, after the certificate of incorporation has been made and delivered by the competent authority.

(§ IV H—162)—PROMOTERS—COMPENSATION FOR SERVICES BEFORE INCORPORATION.

A company is not liable to a promoter for services rendered or expenses incurred by him before its incorporation in promoting the company, unless after its incorporation it expressly agrees with him to make such payment, or such other facts exist from which the court can infer a new contract to reimburse him as by the acceptance of the benefit of the services. (§ IV H—164)—SALES BY PROMOTERS TO CORPORATION.

Where shares in an incorporated company are issued to one of the promoters of the company in alleged consideration of the transfer to the company of patent rights which were already known to be of no real value to the company, the transaction may be declared a fraud upon the company and the promoter in whose name the shares remain may be held liable as a contributory upon a liquidation proceeding under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144.

Shares in a company may be declared to have been allotted illegally and the certificate in favour of a promoter may be cancelled where such shares represent an illicit profit made by him as a vendor to the company out of a transaction of pretended sale not properly disclosed to the company inasmuch as the prospectus issued with the privity of the promoter and in which the latter's personal interest should have been disclosed had contained a statement that there were no promoters' shares to lessen the public's dividends, if in fact the transaction was a mere scheme whereby three promoters divided amongst themselves the shares ostensibly allotted to one of them for releasing his claim to the property which the company was to buy from the other two, subject to the payment of the real purchase price of the property.

The defendant company was incorporated in 1912 under the Ontario Companies Act, with an authorised capital stock of $150,000, divided into 1,500 shares of the par value of $100 each, but only 1,208 shares had been issued. The plaintiff, a director, was the registered holder of 458 of these, and had agreed to buy 150 shares from another shareholder; which would give him a majority of the issued shares. At a meeting of the directors held in Oct. 1918, a resolution was passed (the plaintiff voting against it) that "the balance of the shares capital of the company unissued be offered to the shareholders at par. This offer to remain open for 20 days." There were five directors, and all were present at the meeting. The president then asked each one present how many shares he would take. Two asked for 10 each, one for 100, and one for 50—these numbers bearing no fixed relation to their previous holdings. The plaintiff said he would take his proportion based upon his holding of 608 shares. This was not conceded; the plaintiff was offered 98 shares, which he refused. The directors then passed a resolution (the plaintiff voting against it) that the applications for the shares be accepted and that certificates be issued accordingly. The plaintiff, suing on behalf of himself and all shareholders other than the individual defendants, brought this action against the company, his four codirectors, and another shareholder who was to get some of the shares, to restrain them from making the allotment:—Held, that the purpose of the defendant directors in all they did was to deprive the plaintiff of the controlling position which he had acquired—they were making a one-sided allotment of shares with a view to the control of the voting power. Although the shares were not actually shares of new stock, they were practically in that position. No shares had been issued for a long time; the company had been carrying on a successful business with the capital it had; the readily saleable assets were apparently worth three or four times the par value of the issued shares, and each shareholder was justified in considering that he had an interest in these assets proportionate to his holding of the issued shares. To do something which would alter those proportions, to do it without giving to each shareholder an opportunity of protecting his interest, and to do it, not in the usual course of the company's business, but for the purpose of shifting from one body of shareholders to another the power of electing directors and so of controlling the company's policy, was beyond the powers of the directors. [Martin v. Gibson, 15 O.L.R. 623, applied and followed; Harris v. Sumner (1909), 39 N.B.R. 204, considered.] The second resolution passed at the meeting of the directors in October, 1918, was adjudged void, and the defendants were enjoined from acting thereon.

SALE OF SHARES ACT—DEBENTURES—FLOATING CHARGE—CERTIFICATE.

An application for a certificate under the Sale of Shares Act, c. 15, 1916, allowing the sale of certain debentures issued by a company and secured by a floating charge upon all the assets of the company, excepting uncalled capital stock, refused on the grounds that the security of such stock was not included, and that, as the charge did not fasten on ascertained and specific property, there was nothing to prevent the company from issuing a second series of debentures secured by a legal mortgage upon specific property which would rank in priority to the floating charge, or creating by a trust deed a charge on specific property, or from creating specific mortgages which would rank in priority to the floating charge; [Re London Pressed Hinge Co., [1905] 1 Ch. 576, distinguished on the ground that the debenture therein provided against the granting of prior securities, and because the debenture itself placed no restriction upon the amount of debentures which might ultimately be issued, and the debenture holders had evidently no legal right to prevent future issues.

Re Sale of Shares Act; United Grain Growers Case (Sask.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 92.

ONE MAN CORPORATION—SALE OF STOCK—VALIDITY—CREDITORS.

Under English law, as laid down by the Privy Council, a company composed of a single shareholder, the others only sending their names, can legally exist, and a sale made by him personally to such company of his business, in consideration of the grant of the whole capital stock, is legal, if it is not fictitious and fraudulent. The purchase of the capital stock of a company for a fixed price and the payment of the whole price to the vendor, without retaining the amount due to the creditors according to the list attached to the deed of sale, creates a presumption of simulation sufficient, under the circumstances, to throw upon the vendor the obligation of proving that, subsequently at least, other persons became shareholders of the company, and of explaining the understandings which must necessarily have taken place between the company and the vendor's creditors.

Traban v. Painchaud, 53 Que. S.C. 445.

(§ V A—167)—CAPITAL STOCK—INCREASE—VOTING.

When the letters patent fix the capital stock at a certain amount and do not include any clause permitting the shareholders to increase such capital and such capital has been increased without the issuing of supplementary letters patent; a resolution voted on by the holders of the additional shares, even although the majority were original shareholders, is illegal and void.

(§ V A—168) — CAPITAL STOCK — BONUS SHARES.

The issue of paid up shares of stock to the promoters of a stock company, otherwise than for value, is a breach of trust on the part of the directors, and the company or its creditors are entitled to have such shares treated as not paid up, unless they are in the hands of a bona fide holder for value without notice of the facts, or perhaps unless they are in the hands of persons who though they have notice themselves, derived their title through a bona fide holder for value without notice, or unless the company is otherwise precluded from showing that they have not been paid up. Where a company, as a special inducement to subscribers for its debentures, offers a bonus of common stock, such inducement is an essential and important consideration of the contract; and, therefore, if such issue of stock is null and illegal, the underwriting agreement itself becomes void.

The right to repudiate a subscription for shares on account of misrepresentation or because of nondelivery of a copy of the prospectus as required by the Ontario Companies Act (6 Edw. VII. c. 27, s. 3), must be exercised promptly and will not be accepted as a defence where there has been unreasonable delay in approving or repudiating.

NONALLOTMENT — MISREPRESENTATION — MATERIALITY.

An underwriting subscriber for company shares which were not to be allotted until bills of exchange given by him for the shares were fully paid, cannot plead non-allocation as a defence to an action by the liquidator of the company on the bills of exchange; neither can he plead misrepresentation in inducing the subscription where the misrepresentation did not play a material part.

SUBSCRIPTION NOTE—MISREPRESENTATION — REMEDY.

Liability on a promissory note, given for company shares, cannot be evaded on the ground that the note had been obtained on a representation which was never fulfilled; the remedy in such case, if any, is by an action or counterclaim for damages for breach of warranty.

STOCK — SUBSCRIPTION — AGENT'S UNTRUE STATEMENT—VALIDITY.

An untrue statement by an agent of a company who was employed to solicit subscriptions to its capital stock, made to one who becomes a subscriber, constitutes a fraud with respect to such person which cancels the subscription. A subscription to the capital stock of a company only binds the subscriber upon the company's acceptance of it, followed by an allotment in the manner provided by the charter or rules of the company. [Nasmith v. Manning, 5 Can. S.C.R. 417; Pellatt's Case, L.R. 2 Ch. 527, and Common v. Matthews, 8 Que. Q.B. 138, followed.]

Robertsonville v. Bilodeau, 46 Que. S.C. 5.

SUBSCRIBERS' AGREEMENT.

A memorandum to become a shareholder in a company to be formed is an agreement between each subscriber and the others, and not between the subscribers and the promoters, and still less between them and the company, which has yet no legal existence.

Bergeron v. LaCompagnie De Jonquiere, 22 Que. K.B. 341.

ALLOTMENT—LIABILITY—FRAUD.

A subscription for shares in a joint stock company constitutes an offer on the part of the subscriber to become a shareholder of the company and from the time it is accepted and the subscriber notified of its acceptance the contract is formed and the parties are bound. The acceptance may be made by the allotment of the shares subscribed for or by other equivalent acts. If the subscriber signs the subscription book and pays for his shares in money or by a note, and such payment is accepted by the company, an allotment of the shares is not necessary to the validity of the contract. A shareholder cannot demand a certificate for his shares so long as they are not paid for in full. A subscriber for shares cannot plead to an action upon a note given in payment for his subscription, and transferred by the liquidator of the company to the plaintiff, that his subscription was obtained under false pretences and by fraudulent means, especially when he has never demanded its cancellation by the company before it was put in liquidation.

Boulet v. Hudon, 51 Que. S.C. 29.

SALE OF SHARES—UNdertaking to RESELL OR REPURCHASE—FRAUD—EVIDENCE—DAMAGES—RESCISSIOn—POWER OF COMPANY—COSTS.

The plaintiffs, two elderly spinsters, paid to the defendants, a company incorporated under the laws of Ontario, and S., who was the president of the company, certain sums of money, upon agreements executed by the company and S. personally, in the following or similar terms: "In consideration of . . . $500 received, . . . from Miss M.W. and Miss H.W. . . . by the (company), in full payment of 5 shares of the par value of $500, we hereby guarantee that, at any time after one year from the date hereof, upon receiving 60 days' notice in writing that said Miss M.W. and Miss H.W. . . . wish to dispose of their holdings in our company, we will resell or repurchase said 5 shares of the par value of $500 at par with . . . interest . . ." The plaintiffs became the holders of certificates for the stock of the company. They brought this action against the company and S. alleging fraud, misrepresentation, and other grounds for relief and claiming to recover the moneys they had paid. The writ of summons was specially endorsed: the defendant S. did not appear; and the plaintiffs entered final judgment against him for the sums paid by them and interest. As against the company, the action proceeded to trial, and it was held:—(1) That the plaintiffs could not recover damages for deceit: actual fraud had not been proved; but, if it had been, the plaintiffs, having taken final judgment against S., upon the contracts in respect of the shares, could not both affirm and repudiate them; the judgment against S. could have been only upon the claim upon the contracts; and the question whether a claim for damages for deceit, against several defendants, is merged in a final judgment upon it against one of them, did not arise. (2) That, for the like reasons, the plaintiffs could not succeed upon a claim to set aside the transactions on the ground of actual fraud. (3) That the plaintiffs' claim to set aside the transactions on the ground of misrepresentation without actual fraud failed for want of proof of misrepresentation; and the election of the plaintiffs to affirm and enforce the contracts defeated a claim to set them aside.

(4) That the plaintiffs could not enforce against the company the agreements to resell or purchase; for such agreements were ultra vires of the company. [Helwig v. Siemon (1916), 10 O.W.N. 29, followed, Edwards v. Blackmore, 42 D.L.R. 280, 42 O.L.R. 105, referred to.] (5) That the plaintiffs could not recover from the company the moneys paid upon the allegation that they were moneys lent to the company. Semble, that, if the plaintiffs had not affirmed the transactions, they would have been entitled to relief upon another ground: the company, if they failed to become bound according to the terms upon which they were to get the money, could not retain it; when an essential part is omitted, there is no contract. [Morris v. Baron & Co., [1918] A.C. 1, followed.] The action as against the company was dismissed, but without costs.

(§ V B—174)—STOCK—ALLOTMENT—PARTIAL PAYMENT.

The allotment of shares in a company is evidenced by production of the minute book of the directors' meeting moving a resolution allotting stock to the different persons whose names appear in the list set out in the minutes and a contract is completed on posting the notice of allotment. WHEN BINDING—ALLOTMENT OF SHARES.

A promissory note given for shares in a company not yet incorporated is an offer to take shares when the company becomes incorporated; to constitute a binding contract there must be an acceptance of this offer by an allotment of the shares applied for and a notice to the applicant of such allotment.

CAPITAL STOCK—SUBSCRIPTION—ALLOTMENT—FORFEITED AND CANCELLED SHARES.

Where a company accepted an application for a definite number of shares not specially identified or ear-marked, and gave due notice of the allotment thereof made at the directors' meeting, the subscriber cannot repudiate the contract because of the tender to him of shares previously allotted to another and while the company claimed had been cancelled as forfeited and contest in an action for the price the regularity of the forfeiture, if the company always had other shares available to give the applicant in their stead and was willing to do so.

STOCK—SUBSCRIPTION COMPLETE AND BINDING.

As soon as a proposed purchaser of company shares signs the memorandum and the articles of association, and these are registered as required by the Companies Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 72, he and his fellow subscribers become a body corporate, and his agreement to take shares becomes binding without further formality under s. 13 of the Act.

SALE OF SHARES—RELIANCE ON MISREPRESENTATIONS—PURCHASER'S PRIOR STATEMENT.

A subscriber for shares is not precluded from questioning the truth of statements contained in a company prospectus by an admission made by him before subscribing for his shares, to the effect that he was not influenced by anything contained in the prospectus, where he afterwards gave his subscription in reliance on false statements in the prospectus and oral misrepresentations by an agent of the company. Aitibi Power & Paper Co. v. Smart, 20 D.L.R. 977.

ALLOTMENT OF SHARES—RESOLUTION.

The allotment of shares among subscribers by a resolution of the directors of a joint stock company, is not necessary where each of them has subscribed for a stated number of shares.

Pineau v. St. Laurent, 25 Que. K.B. 210. Can. Dig.—28.

WHEN SUBSCRIPTION COMPLETE AND BINDING.

A party who subscribes the memorandum that accompanies the petition for the incorporation of a company, under art. 6008 R. S.Q. 1909, becomes, by the issuing of the letters patent, a shareholder of the incorporated company for the amount of his subscription, and no further allotment of shares to him is required.

Bergeron v. La Compagnie De Jonquiere, 22 Que. K.B. 341.

WHEN SUBSCRIPTION BINDING—ALLOTMENT—ASSIGNABILITY.

The subscription for a share in a joint stock company which has not yet been accepted nor allotted does not form a complete contract, but is only an offer or a promise to buy. The subscription is not transferable and can be revoked. There is no privity of contract between the subscriber for a share and the person to whom he has transferred it before acceptance and allotment by the company.

Duclos v. Bilodeau, 47 Que. S.C. 205.

SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE—PAYMENT.

Generally a shareholder who wishes to purchase shares in a joint stock company does not become shareholder by the offer alone that he makes of the latter; it is necessary that the company should accept this offer. But it is not necessary that the acceptance should be formal; it is sufficient that there be a manifestation of the intention to accept on the part of this company and this acceptance may be legally proved. When a subscription for privileged shares in the capital of a company has been made on the condition that the subscriber would obtain in addition a certain number of common shares it is not necessary for the company, before taking action for the amount subscribed, to make an actual offer of the latter shares and deposit the certificates in court; it is sufficient for it to declare itself ready to deliver them upon payment. Although generally the subscriber for shares is not obliged to pay for them before being requested, he can nevertheless undertake, in his contract for subscription, to pay at specified dates.

Forget v. Cement Products Co. 24 Que. K.B. 445, affirming 46 Que. S.C. 351. [Affirmed by the Privy Council, 28 D.L.R. 717.]

APPLICATION FOR SHARES—OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE.

Where an offer to purchase shares in a company is duly made to the company and by the subsequent conduct of the parties the offeror becomes aware that the offer has been accepted by the company, then the usual requirements of a binding contract have been complied with. Re Winding-up Act & Canadian etc., Tractor Co., 7 W.W.R. 562.

SUFFICIENCY OF ALLOTMENT—JOINT SUBSCRIBERS.

A. and B. applied for shares in a company in the following terms: "I hereby subscribe for and request you to allot me five shares of stock," etc., both signing the one application. The minute-book of the company shewed that the directors allotted five shares to B. only, although five shares were entered in the share ledger to A. and B. jointly, and a share certificate for five shares was issued to them jointly, but never delivered, being held by the company pending payment for the shares in full. Subsequently the company went into liquidation, and A. and B. were both placed upon the list of contributories by the registrar, whose report was affirmed by the court:—Held, on appeal, that as there was no allotment of shares to A., there was not a concluded contract as between A. and the company, and A.'s name must be removed from the list of contributories.

Re Federal Mortgage Corp. and Kipp, 24 B.C.R. 12.

(§ V B—177)—SUBSCRIPTIONS—RECEIPT OF COPY OF PROSPECTUS AS CONDITION PRECEDENT—ALBERTA COMPANIES ACT.

Where the company comes within the terms of s. 57a of the Alberta Companies Ordinance as enacted by c. 5 of statutes of 1909, s. 1, prescribing that a prospectus must be filed, the provisions of subs. 3 of the new s. 57a, invalidating every stock subscription and relieving the subscriber unless he shall have received a copy of the prospectus, will be construed strictly as a condition precedent to a valid subscription, and the statute cannot be defeated by the failure of the company to issue or file any prospectus whatever. STOCK—CONDITIONS TO SUBSCRIPTION—SEAL, EFFECT.

That an application for shares in a company is under seal does not dispense with the necessity of the company doing something to indicate its acceptance and communicating such acceptance to the applicant to make a complete contract. CONDITIONS TO SUBSCRIPTION.

The effect of s. 57a of the Companies Ordinance, C.O. 1898, c. 61, as amended 1909, c. 5, is to make voidable a subscription for a stock obtained by verbal representations to the subscriber where he has not received a copy of the prospectus, such being the effect of the words "no subscription, etc., shall be binding upon the subscriber," which do not imply that the contract shall be absolutely void and incapable of ratification.

(§ V B—178)—CANCELLATION OR RELEASE.

One who accepts shares of company stock as a bonus cannot, upon discovering their illegality, have their allotment cancelled on the ground that they were issued under a mistake of fact, since, if there was any mistake, it was one of law. [Ex p. Sandys, 42 Ch. D. 98; Welton v. Saffery, [1897] A.C. 299, and Re Cornwall Furniture Co., 29 O.L.R. 529, followed; Burkinshaw v. Nicolls, 3 App. Cas. 1004, distinguished.]

INFERENCE OF ALLOTMENT—PAYMENT.

An allotment of stock pursuant to an application for the same can be shewn by inference and implication as well as by express words. Subsequent payments made on account of the stock, and acceptance thereof by the company, constitute an inference that the applications had been accepted and stock allotted. Application by liquidator to place a name on the list of contributories refused because from certain books and documents, being the only evidence produced, it appeared that while entries and writings had at one time been made (including stock certificate) to show the person in question to be a shareholder, there had been subsequent crossing out of certain of such entries and writings and a cancellation of shares, and it was held that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the court must presume that all the steps and proceedings necessary to bring about or authorize the cancellation were taken and that reasons to justify same existed. Where there is a bona fide dispute concerning the validity of the holding, or the contract to take shares, a company may compromise and may bona fide cancel the stock in question.

§ V B—180 — BANKS — SHARES — SUBSCRIPTION — PROMISSORY NOTE — DEMAND FOR PAYMENT—NOTICE OF ALLOTMENT — AGENT SOLICITING — CONDITION SUBSEQUENT.

Assuming that allotment and notice of allotment are necessary to bind a bargain to take shares of stock in a bank, for which a promissory note payable on demand has been given, the allotment having been made, a written demand for payment of the note is sufficient notice. If the agreement to take shares was made upon the condition that the subscriber should be appointed to some local office in management of the bank and that his account should be taken over by the bank, such undertaking being that of the person who solicited and made the agreement for the bank the condition was a condition subsequent and was no defence to a claim for payment for the shares.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS—PAYMENT BY PROMISSORY NOTE.

Where a promissory note was given for an original subscription to the stock of a company in payment for the stock, the liquidator, on the winding-up of the company, cannot place the name of the maker of the note upon the list of contributories, where the note had been transferred by the company to a bona fide holder.

MODE OF PAYMENT — STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—WATERED STOCK.

Under the Quebec Companies Act no issue of stock not paid for in cash is legal unless a contract be filed with the provincial secretary at or before the issue thereof shewing that payment in a form other than cash had been sanctioned. Under the Quebec Companies Act stock issued direct from the treasury of a company without being paid for in cash is watered stock and therefore illegally issued and void even though it be claimed that such stock represents the increased value of the company's property.

(§ V B—181)—STOCK ALLOTTED TO BE PAID FOR IN TRADE.

A resolution of the board of directors authorizing the president and vice-president to complete the formalities necessary for the issue and disposal of the shares at par implies that the shares are to be paid for in cash, and does not authorize those officers to accept, without further reference to the board, an application for shares to be paid for in trade by the supply of merchandise at current prices. STOCK AGREEMENT TO TRANSFER—EFFECT—RIGHT TO DECLARE TRUST.

Breach of plaintiff's agreement to transfer stock to defendant does not entitle defendant to have plaintiff declared a trustee respecting the stock, and defendant is entitled to damages only, based upon the value of the stock at the time it should have been delivered; it not appearing that defendant might not have bought other shares at their value at that time. Plaintiff's agreement to transfer stock to defendant in consideration of services rendered by the latter should be construed as an admission that defendant was entitled to receive an amount at least equal to the value of the stock at that time.

(§ V C—187) — TRANSFER OF SHARES IN BLANK — HOLDER — COMMERCIAL ACT.

The delivery of a share certificate of an incorporated company, endorsed by the holder in blank, is not equivalent to a transfer or alienation of the certificate, and does not give rise to that presumption. The holder continues to be the owner of the shares as long as a transfer has not been made in the manner and according to the formalities provided by the charter or rules of the company. The sale of transfer of shares in an incorporated company is a commercial act, and facts which are connected therewith can be proved by witnesses.

TRANSFER ON BOOKS.

A transfer of shares of stock of a company is not invalidated, under s. 64 of c. 79 of R.S.C. 1906, by failure to have the transfer registered on the books of the company, as such section, for the purpose of exhibiting the rights of the parties toward each other, expressly preserves the validity of an unregistered transfer. The directors of a company cannot refuse to register a transfer of its shares of stock, under s. 67 of c. 79 of R.S.C. 1906, on the ground that the transferor was indebted to the company, where the indebtedness did not exist at the time the transfer was executed, although it was incurred before the application for registry was made.

SALE OF SHARES — DIRECTORS PREVENTING TRANSFER — LIABILITY OF CORPORATION.

A company owes a duty to a shareholder to permit the transfer of his shares, and where its directors wrongfully prevent the transfer, the company is liable for the natural consequences of such breach of duty which in a case where a sale of the shares is prevented is the loss of the sale.

Wolverton v. Black Diamond Oil Fields, 8 A.L.R. 283.

(§ V C—189) — AGREEMENT BY PROMOTERS AS TO DISPOSITION OF STOCK — TRUST — "FOR THE PURPOSE OF PROVIDING FUNDS."

Black v. Carson (P.C.), 36 D.L.R. 772, affirming 7 D.L.R. 484, 22 Que. K.B. 217.

TRANSFER OF COMPANY SHARE — UNDERTAKING TO RETRANSFER — SALE OR LOAN OF SHARE.

Lamoureux v. Simpson, 2 D.L.R. 917, 3 O.W.N. 569, 21 O.W.R. 64.

SHARES HELD IN FAMILY — TRUST — REPRESENTATIONS TO BANK.

Pope v. The Royal Bank, 39 D.L.R. 757, 55 Can. S.C.R. 622, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 38, affirming 11 A.L.R. 68.

TRANSFER — TRUST.

The endorsement by a holder of shares in an incorporated company, of his certificate in favour of himself in trust for a third person, and the delivery to such third person of the certificate so endorsed, does not constitute a valid gift of the shares.

H. Corby Distillery Co. v. O'Meara, 20 Que. P.R. 101, 55 Que. S.C. 34. [Affirmed, 28 Que. K.B. 332.]

(§ V C—190) — TRANSFER OF SHARES FOR PURPOSES OF SALE.

A transfer of company shares to a person for sale to another does not amount to a sale to the transferee.

(§ V C—191) — RIGHTS OF PLEDGEE.

Section 53 of the B.C. Companies Act, 1897, c. 44 [R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, s. 40] has no reference to a case where a transfer of shares is made, but applies only where the shares appear to have been pledged as collateral security and where the owner's name and not the name of the pledgee remains on the books of the company as the holder of the shares; it does not enable the company to set off against a dividend a debt due by a person who was a shareholder, but whose transfer of the shares to a bank manager in trust for the bank as collateral security for a loan to such shareholder had been accepted and registered by the company and a new certificate issued in respect thereof in the name of the bank manager; the company might have declined, under its articles (art. 10, table A, Companies Act, 1897), to register any transfer of shares made by a member who was indebted to it, but having registered, it must treat the transferee as the owner of dividends thereafter payable.

(§ V C-192)—RIGHT OF TRANSFEREE TO HAVE RECORD OF TRANSFER ENTERED IN BOOKS—PRIOR OPTION GIVEN BY TRANSFEROR.

An agreement giving an option to purchase shares of stock in case the owner should desire to sell them does not create a contract with the company issuing the stock so as to justify the refusal of the directors, upon a transfer thereof to a third person, to record the transaction on the books of the company.

Re Polson Iron Works, 4 D.L.R. 193, 3 O.W.N. 1269.

One who purchases shares of stock under an irregular sale by a pledgee will not be protected as a purchaser for value without notice, where the solicitor who acted for the former was also the solicitor for the pledgee, and had knowledge of such irregularity, as his knowledge was imputable to the purchaser.

Bartram v. Grice, 4 D.L.R. 682, 3 O.W.N. 1296, 22 O.W.R. 191.

TRANSFERS—AGREEMENT FOR SALE—CONFLICTING EVIDENCE.

(§ V C-195)—PRIOR RIGHT OF PURCHASER.

A transfer of shares of stock to a trustee under a marriage settlement does not constitute a sale within the meaning of an agreement giving a third person an option for their purchase should the settler desire to sell them.

Re Polson Iron Works, 4 D.L.R. 193, 3 O.W.N. 1269, 22 O.W.R. 84.

SHARES—DIRECTORATE—PRIOR RIGHT OF PURCHASER—FORMAL REQUIREMENTS—HOW CONSTRICTED.

Where articles of association of a company required that before selling certain shares they should first be offered to the board of directors, an objection by an outside purchaser to closing the purchase for default of his vendor in submitting to the directors must fail if notice that the shares were for sale was given to the individual directors and they took no action towards exercising the privilege of buying.

(§ V C-200)—LIEN ON SHARES FOR HOLDER'S DEBT TO COMPANY—PURCHASER WITHOUT NOTICE—DUTY TO INQUIRE.

A by-law of a company creating a lien in its favour on shares of a stockholder in respect to his indebtedness to it, is not binding on a purchaser of shares for value without notice of such by-law; nor need the purchaser make inquiry as to its existence. The purchaser of company shares takes them subject to a lien of the company for an indebtedness due it from the seller, where the purchaser had notice of the lien before he acquired the legal title to the shares. Power to adopt a by-law creating a lien in favour of a company upon the shares of a stockholder in respect to his indebtedness to it is conferred by the Joint Stock Companies Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 30 [Montgomery v. Mitchell, 18 Man. L.R. 37, followed.]

D. FORGED OR FRAUDULENT ISSUE.

(§ V D-205)—POWER TO ISSUE DEBITURES—FRAUD—KNOWLEDGE—BONA FIDE PURCHASER.

Jefferson v. Pacific Coast Co. Mines, 31 D.L.R. 557.

SHARE CERTIFICATE—FRAUDULENT OR ILLEGAL ISSUE.

A plaintiff who, by his pleadings in an action against a company to declare him a shareholder, bases his claim upon an alleged agreement with the company itself as authorizing the share certificate delivered to him by the company's manager, but who fails to prove any consideration for its issue other than between himself and the manager personally, will not be permitted afterwards on appeal to set up a case inconsistent with that so advanced and to claim an estoppel against the company in respect of the issue of the certificate, where no question of estoppel was directly before the trial court, nor was the company called upon to give the additional evidence which the raising of such a question would have necessitated had the plaintiff alleged and proved that he was deceived by the issue of the certificate into believing that it represented a portion of the manager's personal holding, transferred at the latter's instance.

E. RIGHTS OF SHAREHOLDERS.
(§ V E.—210) — MISAPPROPRIATION OF FUNDS ON CONSENT OF DIRECTORS — SHAREHOLDERS' RIGHTS.
The receipt of two collectors of a joint stock company in an overdraft of the company on the part of the managing director of the company will not estop the stockholders of the company from claiming interest on the overdraft on an accounting against the managing director or his representatives for the amount of the overdraft, since such consent is not binding on the company unless the claimant shareholders attending the dealing with the company's funds have been fully brought into a general meeting of the shareholders and their sanction thereto obtained. *General Investment Co. v. THE REAL TELEPHONE ACT (SASK.). — FORMATION OF COMPANY — MEMBERSHIP — PLAINTIVE SINGEMER AT TIME OF PETITION, BUT NOT MEMORANDUM OF ASSOCIATION — ORIGINAL ACCREDITED TO PLAINTIVE FOR TELEPHONE SERVICE TO PLAINTIVE — ALTERATION OF PLAN AFTER ORGANIZATION OF COMPANY — COSTS.
Plaintiff subscribed to the list of subscribers for stock in proposed defendant company, subsequently formed, under the Real Telephone Act, which list was forwarded with the petition as part of the information required by s. 4, and paid for his share, the money going into the treasury of the company, but he did not subscribe to the memorandum of association of the company nor was there any register of members. Held, plaintiff was entitled to recognition as a shareholder. In the original plan sent in with the petition and accepted, provision was made for telephone service to plaintiff. After organization of the company the plan was altered and the issue of debentures authorized on behalf of the company, but did not provide for plaintiff, the intention being that he should be served by another company, with whose terms however he was satisfied. The defendant company tried to have the department revert to the plan as originally proposed and accepted but as originally proposed and accepted secured the approval of the minister. The court, with considerable doubt, refused to grant the approval of the minister. The court, with considerable doubt, refused to grant the approval of the minister. Where stock of a shareholder partly paid for has been improperly declared forfeited for nonpayment of calls, the shareholder is not restricted to an action for damages, but is entitled to sue for his stock and for a judgment giving him his obligations legally imposed upon him as such. REPEALMENT TO COMPANY OF MONEY

TEXT.

The plaintiff, a shareholder in an incorporated company, sued W.S. & Son, and the company for a declaration that a certain agreement, dated August 24, 1910, and a loan of money made by the company to W.S. & Son, were illegal, and for relief in respect of the money to the company.—Held, that the plaintiff must be taken to be suing alone, inasmuch as she had not in the style of cause proclaimed herself as suing on her own behalf and on behalf of all other shareholders of the company; that she should be permitted to amend so as to claim in representative capacity. (2) That 210 shares of the stock of the company allotted to W.S. had been paid up in full, the company having legally accepted a cheque in recovery of what it should otherwise have per cent of the company, the court should not be asked to set up the company, but there is no evidence to show that the broker is acting for the company, the court may assume that such method has been adopted under which the broker might lawfully become entitled to the stock which he is agreeing to sell as by himself becoming the original subscriber under an appropriate commission of 10 per cent commission.

payment; and, even if the shares were not paid up, the plaintiff could not maintain an action for recovery of a balance due from a shareholder to the company in respect of his shares—the company would be the only proper plaintiff. [Burland v. Earle, [1902] A.C. 83; Bennett v. Havelock Electric Light Co. 25 O.L.R. 209, and Allen v. Hyatt, 17 D.L.R. 7, followed.] (3) That the plaintiff could not attack the agreement on the ground that the company was not bound by it because it was improvident; such an agreement can be attacked by a shareholder only if the agreement is fraudulent and constitutes a fraud upon him. (4) That, upon the evidence, there was consideration to the company for the agreement. (5) That a board of directors of the company was properly elected on August 24, 1910, and that there continued to be a proper board to carry on the affairs of the company from that time on. (6) That the agreement was ultra vires by reason of the fact that it was for a loan from the company to one of its shareholders of money belonging to the company, in contravention of s. 29, subs. 2, of the Canadian Companies Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 79. The 510 shares were the property of W.S.; the share register showed that, and it must govern, unless definitely proved to be incorrect or false, which was not the case; and, even if the shares were the property of the firm of W.S. & Son, of which W.S. was a member, the firm was not a separate entity; and, when the loan was made to W.S. & Son, it was made to W.S. and his partners. The depositing of the money with W.S. & Son constituted a lending to them upon the principle, well established in the case of banks, that a deposit of money makes the depositee not a bailee but a debtor. (7) That the plaintiff was entitled to maintain the action to prevent the company from doing something ultra vires; and, as a necessary incident the court should direct the repayment of the money lent. (§ V E—221)—EFFECT OF PURCHASE OF STOCK—RIGHT OF ACTION.

An assignment of a share of stock in a company, made more than one month after a winding up order was entered, although not proceeded with, is inoperative as a transfer of stock to qualify the transferee to sue to set aside a sale of the assets of the company by the assignee of the company for the benefit of creditors, on the ground that one of the inspectors of the estate was interested in the purchase.

(§ V E—223)—RIGHTS OF SHAREHOLDER—INVESTIGATION OF INTERNAL MANAGEMENT—ACTION AGAINST DIRECTOR.

Although the court has no jurisdiction to interfere with the internal management of companies acting within their powers, yet where a company is formed by special Act and provision is made thereby for provincial aid, and to extend protection to the interest of both the public and of individual shareholders, the court should interfere where serious allegations are made leading to the necessity of interpreting one of the sections of the private Act. [Stone v. Theatre Amusement Co., 6 W.W.R. 1438, applied; Foss v. Harbottle, 2 Ha. 461; Mozley v. Alston, 1 Ph. 790; and MacDougall v. Gardiner, 1 Ch. D. 13, distinguished.] Where an action is taken by the shareholders of a company against a shareholder director thereof, such defendant should be excepted from the general body of shareholders referred to in the style of cause as plaintiffs.

(§ V E—224)—PROCEEDINGS FOR ILLEGAL APPLICATION OF FUNDS.

Held, on appeal, that the shareholders holding a majority of the stock issued, having been indorsers of the notes securing the indebtedness of the Victoria Contracting Co., and they having carried a resolution indorsing the action of paying said company's indebtedness the day before the trial of this action, it was not necessary for the plaintiff to make a formal request in meeting assembled to enable him to obtain a status to bring this action in his own name. That the plaintiff must first apply to the defendant company to proceed to recover the moneys alleged to be lost before he can bring this action in his own name. The court being equally divided, the appeal was dismissed.

DIVIDENDS—IMPAIRED CAPITAL.

It is ultra vires on the part of a stock company to declare a dividend, no matter how small, at a time when its capital is impaired.

Colonial Assur. Co. v. Smith, 12 D.L.R. 113, 23 Man. L.R. 243, 24 W.L.R. 105.

DIVIDENDS—STOCK DIVIDENDS—WHAT ARE.

A stock dividend is a distribution to those already holding shares of a company by way of a dividend upon their holdings; it does not amount to a new investment, but is merely a mode of distributing accumulated profits in the shape of new stock, and which has the effect of reducing pro tanto the value of the shares already held.

Ec Fulford, 14 D.L.R. 844, 29 O.L.R. 375.

DIVIDENDS—DECLARATION OF, AT GENERAL MEETING.

Where the articles of association provide that "the company in general meeting may declare dividends," and this is the only authority for the declaration of dividends, a dividend cannot be legally declared by a meeting of the directors. Although the minutes of a company meeting state that it was a meeting of the company, the court may find from an inspection of these minutes as well as from the minutes of other meetings, that the meeting in question was not a meeting of the shareholders, but a meeting of the directors only.

Re Cardiff Coal Co., 3 A.L.R. 325.

DIVIDENDS.

The declaration of a dividend by a share company is a question of administration and of jurisdiction of the board of administration, unless there was a by-law adopted by the shareholders limiting this power. Shareholders have not the right to intervene in the administration of the affairs of the company, which is, by law, entrusted to the board of administration. A resolution declaring a dividend, adopted by a board of administration, is not a by-law and does not require ratification by the shareholders to become valid. In joint stock companies a by-law differs from a resolution; a by-law being of a permanent character, governs the affairs of the company until it is repealed. A resolution, on the other hand, is transitory and has for its object only to deal with a particular case. If a dividend is declared by the board of administration, in reduction of capital or from the reserve, the resolution adopted to this end is illegal and renders the directors personally liable.

Denault v. Stewart, 54 Que. S.C. 209.

DIVIDENDS—ULTRA VIRES—LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS—SHAREHOLDERS' ACTION.

Dividend paid to shareholders, in part paid out of capital, is ultra vires of the directors and incapable of ratification by the shareholders; and in an action properly constituted the director might be ordered to repay the sum illegally paid out. Other proceedings, either under s. 15 of the Companies Act or by way of voluntary winding-up, might be taken so as to reach the same result and, even if taken, would not be a ratification of the distribution complained of.

Crawford v. Bathurst Land & Development Co., 37 O.L.R. 611.

NONDECLARATION OF DIVIDEND—INVESTIGATION UNDER STATUTE.

The fact that no dividend is declared by a profit-making company is insufficient to warrant an order for an inspection pursuant to s. 92 c. 79, R.S.C. 1906.

(§ V E—231)—PROHIBITED FROM PAYING UNEARNED DIVIDEND—R.S.Q. (1909), ART. 5999—DUTY OF SHAREHOLDER RECEIVING.

R.S.Q. (1909), art. 5999, prohibits a company from declaring a dividend the payment of which impairs or lessens the capital of the company, and from declaring or paying any dividend which has not been actually earned. A shareholder who has received such illegal dividends is bound to return to the liquidator of the company, bonds of the company which he received in payment thereof or the price for which he sold such bonds.

Where shareholders entitled to be paid their dividends in cash take shares instead to the amount of the dividend, such shares are to be considered as having been allotted for cash.

(§ V F—235)—PURCHASE OF SHARE IN—RIGHT OF COMPANY TO QUALIFY AGREEMENT—PURCHASER ALLOWING NAME ON REGISTER AND ATTENDING MEETINGS—LIABILITY OF.

Taking a share in a limited company is an agreement to become liable to pay to the company the amount for which the share has been created and the company has no authority to alter or qualify such agreement, except in the particular way authorized by s. 45 of c. 35 R.S.M. 1913. Although the contract to purchase shares at a discount may be an illegal contract, a purchaser of such shares who allows his name to be put on the register of shareholders and attends shareholders' meetings cannot deny that he is a shareholder and is liable for the amount unpaid on such shares. (3) V F—236—APPLICATION FOR SHARES—MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT—ACCEPTANCE.

An application for shares in a company to be organized under the Quebec Companies Act and not included in the memorandum of agreement accompanying the petition for incorporation cannot be accepted two years later, so as to make the applicant, who had paid nothing upon them and had not participated in the corporate business, liable for calls: where at the time of the pretended acceptance and allotment the company was insolvent and the shares valueless.

LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDERS—EXEMPTION—ONUS.

In a winding-up proceeding, where it is shown that a person subscribed for a certain number of shares of stock in a company subject to the Companies Clauses Act (Can.), and that his subscription had not been entirely paid-up, the onus is upon him to show that he is discharged from the liability which usually flows from the ownership of such shares, ex. gr., where the contention is that he held the stock as a trustee or in a representative capacity only, and consequently that the trust fund only is liable for the amount unpaid under the Companies Clauses Act, 3 Edw. PLAINTIFF CONTRACTING FOR ORIGINAL SHARES IN COMPANY—GIVEN SHARES ALREADY ISSUED AND HELD BY THIRD PERSON—CONTRACTUAL RELATION CONTEMPLATED NOT ESTABLISHED—ENTITLED TO RECOVER MONEYS AND TO BE REMOVED FROM LIST OF CONTRIBUTORIES.

Plaintiff applied for shares in defendant company and from the wording of such application and other documents the court found that he bargained for original shares in defendant company, which was not complied with by giving him shares already issued and held by a third party; the result being that the contractual relation contemplated was never established, and, the plaintiff having taken prompt steps on becoming aware of the facts, was entitled to recover back the moneys and securities given to the company as a result of his application, notwithstanding the liquidation of the company, and to be removed from the list of contributories. Where plaintiff recovered judgment against a company in liquidation for moneys paid as a result of his application for shares, which application the court found had been improperly complied with by giving him shares already issued and held by a third party, he was given interest on such moneys to the date of the liquidation; the company was not allowed to set off or recover sums which had been paid to plaintiff as dividends on the shares.

(3) V F—241—ALLOTMENT—NOTICE—DE FACTO OFFICERS—ESTOPPEL.

The receipt of notice of a shareholders' meeting by a subscriber for shares is notice of acceptance of his application for shares; the allotment of the shares is valid though made by de facto directors, particularly where there is a provision in the charter validating their acts; and where after receiving the notice he attends the meetings, or gives proxy to another to represent him thereat, without taking any steps to repudiate the subscription, he will be precluded from disclaiming his liability as a shareholder. (3) V F—242—OF TRUSTEE OR ATTORNEY.

A member of a syndicate in whose name, with the addition of the words "trustee for syndicate" share certificates are issued for of the shares:—Held, that the allotment and notice amounted to an acceptance of the offer contained in the application; and, under the contract thus formed, T. did not become a subscriber for shares subject to call but a subscriber upon the terms of the contract—the payments of 20 per cent and 10 per cent became due by virtue of the contract, and were not "calls" within the meaning of the Act, ss. 58 et seq. In August, 1910, T. desired to retire from the company, and made an arrangement with his codirectors for relief from liability in respect of his subscription. This was in consequence of a change in the policy of the company. On August 26, 1910, T. signed a memorandum of transfer to L. of "all my rights under this subscription," and L. in writing, accepted the transfer. At a meeting of the directors held on that day, T.'s resignation as a director was accepted, and a resolution passed approving and sanctioning the transfer of T.'s subscription. At the same meeting it was resolved "that a call be made upon the directors for payment of 25 per cent. of the amount of their subscriptions." The appropriate entries transferring the shares from T. to L. were made in the books of the company. The arrangements between T. and his codirectors were made honestly, in good faith, and before the company had incurred any substantial liabilities. The company afterwards went actively into business, incurred large liabilities, and soon became insolvent; a winding-up order was made in January, 1913. In the winding-up the liquidator sought to make T. a contributory in respect of the 100 shares, and the Master found T. liable, for the reason, among other reasons, that payments were in arrear under the terms of his subscription, and the shares could not, as the Master thought, be validly or effectively transferred:—Held, upon appeal from the Master's ruling, that s. 66 of the Act, which provides that "no shares shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon are fully paid in," did not apply to T.'s subscription—his liability thereon was not a liability for "call," and the shares held by him were not subject to call. [Re Peterborough Cold Storage Co., 14 O. L.R. 475, explained and distinguished.] Held, also, that the directors' resolution purporting to make a "call" had no operation on T.'s shares; indeed, the "call" had no validity as such, for it purported to be a call upon the shares held by the directors only, and the very essence of a call is that it shall bear equally upon all shares allotted; and there was nothing to prevent the directors assenting to the transfer of T.'s shares, for there was no "call" in arrear. Held, also, that there was a novation, the company accepting L. as transferee of the shares, and L. accepting T.'s position as holder of the shares. If the dealings did not amount to a novation, T.'s liability was not such as could be enforced by a call;

the remedy would be by an action upon his promise to pay; he would be liable as a debtor and not as a contributory. [In re Hoylake R. Co., Ex p. Littledale L.R. 9 Ch. 257, followed; Dietum of Duff, J., in Smith v. Gow-Ganda Mines, 44 Can. S.C.R. 621, at pp. 625, 626, dissented from.] Held, also, that the transaction was not in the nature of a compromise; nor was there a surrender of the shares—though, sensible, an agreement to surrender might be made by a company of Dominion incorporation. Sensible, also, that, while the liquidator might sell any claim which he might have as liquidator, and the chose in action would become vested in the purchaser, he could not sell the right to use the machinery of the Winding-up Act. When he has sold the assets of the company, it is his duty to distribute the proceeds; and, when that is done, the liquidation ends. Held, therefore, that T. was not liable as a contributory; and the same considerations applied to the case of S., who had subscribed for shares on the strength of T.'s connection with the company, and, desiring to retire when T. retired, was permitted to transfer his shares.

The general rule is that a shareholder who has duly transferred his shares on the books of the company, and whose transferee has been registered as a shareholder in his stead, is discharged as between himself and the company from all liability upon such transferred shares as well in respect of past as of future transactions, and he is not liable to be put on the list of shareholder contributories on the insolvency and winding up of the company except under the terms of statutory enactments making past shareholders liable. SHAREHOLDER—RELIEF FROM LIABILITY—UNCONDITIONAL SUBSCRIBERS—CONSENT OF OTHER SUBSCRIBERS.

(§ V F—263)—CONDITIONAL SUBSCRIPTION—LIABILITY AS CONTRIBUTORY—RIGHT TO REPAYMENT.

An allotment of shares upon a subscription which was subject to a condition that the subscriber, a physician, should be appointed chief medical referee for the company, which has not been fulfilled, nor notice of such allotment given, is illegal, and will, therefore, not render the subscriber liable as a contributory upon liquidation of the company; nor will such subscriber be entitled to a repayment out of the assets of the company of the money paid on such subscription to the promoters, but which has never reached the company. Graham Island Collieries Co. v. Macleod, 16 D.L.R. 281, 6 W.W.R. 154, 27 W.L.R. 227.

ILLEGALITY AS DEFENCE—ESTOPPEL.

The defendant had applied for $5,000 stock in a company and paid $2,500 in cash on account of his shares. Some months afterwards he was appointed a director of the company. As such he attended at several meetings of the directors and took an active part in the business of the company. Subsequently, the defendant being still a director, the plaintiff bank made a large advance to the company on a security of the balance remaining on the unpaid stock of several shareholders, including the defendant, and took an assignment of such balances. Shortly after making the advance, the bank gave the defendant notice of the assignment by letter, requesting him to verify the amount of his unpaid stock, to which the defendant replied: "I hereby verify the amount of the unpaid subscription assigned to your bank." After receiving the defendant's letter, the plaintiffs paid out for the company considerable sums far exceeding the amount claimed from the defendant. There was nothing to show that the defendant had any shares in the company upon which to qualify as a director, other than the $5,000 above referred to. Held, that the defendant was estopped from denying that he was a shareholder who owed on unpaid stock the sum of $2,500, and from setting up irregularities or defects in connection with the organization of the company, the passing of its by-laws or the issue of the stock to him. INVALID SUBSCRIPTIONS—ILLEGAL DIRECTORATE.

Part VIII of the Companies Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 178) is for the protection of shareholders, and non-compliance therewith will entitle subscribers for shares to cancellation of their subscriptions, and the removal of their names from the list of contributors, notwithstanding any proceedings under the Dominion Winding-up Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 144); a commercial company, incorporated under the above Companies Act, which, elects a board of directors exceeding the number required by its charter has no validly constituted directorate, and cannot make a valid allotment of any shares. REGULATORY—RESOLUTIONS.

Where the by-laws of a company require the meetings of shareholders to be called by the president of the company at the written request of five members; a meeting called by the secretary-treasurer without the consent and against the will of the president is illegal, and any resolution adopted at such meeting is null and void.

It is not necessary to give special notice to each shareholder of a joint stock company of a general meeting; a public notice given 14 days previous to the meeting is sufficient.

(§ V G—284)—VALIDITY OF QUORUM.

At a general meeting of the defendant company held on September 15, 1915, and at an extraordinary general meeting held later, there were present on each occasion seven members, only two of whom were qualified to vote. Under art. 51 of Table A of the Companies Act, three members personally present shall form a quorum. In an action by the plaintiff on behalf of himself and the other shareholders for a declaration that the proceedings were irregular for want of a quorum and for an injunction, held, that arts. 51 and 63 of Table A of the Companies Act must be read together and there must be three members qualified to vote to form a quorum competent to transact voting business, although three not qualified to vote may form a valid quorum to transact nonvoting business.

(§ V G—290)—VOTING POWER—RIGHTS OF MINORITY.

Apart from the principle of ultra vires, directors holding a majority of votes cannot make a gift to themselves of the property belonging to the corporation, and if directors have acquired for themselves property or rights which they must be regarded as holding on behalf of the company, a resolution that the rights of the company should be disregarded in the matter amounts to a forfeiture of the interest and property of the minority of shareholders in favour of the majority, by the votes of those who are interested in securing the property for themselves; such use of the voting power is not sanctioned by the courts. MAJORITY VOTE.

No abuse of power by the majority of the stockholders of a company and no deprivation of the rights of the minority calling for the interference of a court are shewn where it appears that the directors and more than three-fourths of the shareholders in a cotton company, because its financial condition was going from bad to worse, and there was no reasonable prospect of any revival of prosperity, due to the ruinous competition which was going on in the cotton business, accepted an offer to purchase their shares made on behalf of a syndicate (afterwards incorporated as a company) formed for the purpose of acquiring capital stock and a controlling influence in the cotton company and its three principal competitors, a fair and liberal valuation being placed upon the assets of the cotton company, and afterwards the cotton company executed a lease to the new company, though the original agreement was that the new company should sell the goods produced by the cotton company at a fair and reasonable commission and the terms of the lease were fair and there was no evidence of any oppressive conduct or want of good faith on the part of either of the parties to the transaction.

(§ V G—293)—PROXIES.

Where the directors of a company knowingly allow trust shares to be voted upon at a shareholders' meeting contrary to the wishes of the cestui qui trust, and it is fairly shown that such voting is illegal, a shareholder, whose voting power is thereby designedly made useless, is entitled to an interlocutory injunction restraining the company from acting upon a resolution passed at such meeting.

RIGHT OF MEMBER IN DEFAULT TO VOTE BY PROXY.

A proxy may be voted at an election of company directors by a shareholder who is, by reason of nonpayment of calls, under s. 12 of c. 53 of 52 Vict. (Man.), precluded from voting his own shares. The right of a shareholder to appoint a non-member as proxy to vote at an election of company directors may be taken away by by-law. Unless the incorporating statute or a by-law of the company provides otherwise, the proxy appointed to represent a shareholder at a shareholders' general meeting at which the election of directors is to be held, need not himself be a shareholder. [Lindley on Companies, 6th ed. 429; and Ernest v. Loma, [1897] 1 Ch. 1, specially referred to.] Under s. 12 of c. 53 of 52 Vict. (Man.), company directors cannot be elected in any manner except by ballot. The fact that a shareholder who was in arrears for calls and therefore not entitled, under s. 12, c. 53, 52 Vict. (Man.), to vote at elections of directors, had been permitted to vote at previous elections, will not justify his voting at a subsequent election. A shareholder whose note given for a call is overdue cannot, under the provisions of s. 12 of c. 53 of 52 Vict. (Man.), vote at an election of company directors.

VI Dissolution; forfeiture; insolvency; winding-up.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ VI A—395) — RIGHT TO APPLY FOR WINDING-UP — SHAREHOLDER — PARTNERSHIP.

A fully paid-up shareholder is entitled to apply for a winding-up order as a contributory and where it appears just and equitable a corporation formed out of a partnership may be dissolved as if it were in substance a partnership. A share held by the solicitor of a partner in trust for his client cannot be used to deprive the partner of his equal voice in the corporation. Re Winding-up Ordinance & Timbers, 35 D.L.R. 431, 11 A.L.R. 432, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 965.

WINDING-UP — PRIOR DEBENTURE RECEIVERSHIP.

When opposed by a large proportion of company creditors a winding-up order will be refused, where, if granted, the chances of the creditors obtaining payment would be diminished; or where, by reason of the property of the company being held by a receiver for its debenture holders, there would be nothing on which the order could operate.

DOMINION WINDING-UP ACT — JURISDICTION OF PROVINCIAL COURTS.

The British Columbia Court having made the winding-up order is a Dominion Court ad hoc, and that, generally speaking, a Provincial Court should not act unless at the request of the Dominion Court, but, if requested, it should in every way assist such Dominion Court. That the only grounds justifying a Provincial Court acting in the first instance would be matters of urgency, and that the facts in the present case do not disclose such grounds.

PROCEEDINGS PENDING IN FOREIGN COURT — DOING BUSINESS ELSEWHERE — STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

The court has jurisdiction to make a winding-up order under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, against, and to proceed with the winding-up of, a company incorporated in Manitoba having its head office here and empowered, amongst other things, to carry on the business of a land company, if it has assets in Canada, although it never carried on any of its business in Manitoba and dealt chiefly in lands in the Province of Saskatchewan, and although bankruptcy proceedings are pending in the United States where all of its operations were carried on, under which proceedings the winding-up of the company could be completed subject to the want of power in the trustee in bankruptcy to deal with the lands of the company in Saskatchewan. [North Australian Territory Co. v. Goldsborough, 61 T.L.R. 716, and Re Tobique Gypsum Co., 6 O.L.R. 515, followed.] There is a discretion under s. 19 of the Act, to stay proceedings under a winding-up order and, if the procedure of the foreign bankruptcy court is as efficient for the purpose of securing an equal distribution of the company's assets as our procedure under the Winding-up Act, the winding-up under the order should only be proceeded with as far as may be necessary to make the lands in Saskatchewan available for the Canadian creditors pari passu with the creditors in the United States.

DISCRETIONARY POWERS AS TO WINDING-UP—BEST INTERESTS OF CREDITORS.

Upon application to have a joint stock company wound up, the court grants the order only if it believes it just and equitable for all the interests concerned. The discretionary powers of the court in such a matter are very wide. The winding-up of a company being made especially and above all in the interest of the creditors, the judge should as a rule, when considering the advisability of the winding-up, conform to their views and exercise his discretion in their favour if their interests come in conflict with those of the shareholders.

Fortin v. Dorchester Electric Co., 48 Que. S.C. 258.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS—MEETING—NOTICE.

The notice calling a meeting of the shareholders of a joint stock company, convoked for the purpose of placing the company in liquidation, should contain the information that this proposition will be submitted to the meeting. Where the legality of such meeting, the resolution passed in favour of liquidation, and the regularity of share certificates belonging to the greater number of shareholders who voted in favour of the liquidation, have been contested by direct action, the court should await the decision of that litigation before ordering that the company should be placed in liquidation; the court of appeal, in such case, will suspend the liquidation.

Belanger v. Union Abitibi Mining Co., 25 Que. K.B. 376.

PRIORITY OF PETITIONERS TO CONDUCT PROCEEDINGS.

In the absence of collusion or other circumstances which would make it more desirable that the conduct of the proceedings should be given to the second petitioner for a winding-up order, the person who files his petition first should have the conduct of the proceedings, even where he is absent on active service.

TECHNICAL INSOLVENCY—BREWING COMPANY.

An order winding-up a brewing company refused and the hearing of the petition enlarged, notwithstanding the fact that the petitioner showed the company's technical insolvency by proving that it had permitted a writ of execution under which its goods were levied upon to remain unsatisfied for fifteen days after seizure, there being no suggestion of any unpaid capital and no evidence of the assets of the company other than its plant and stock in trade.

The decision in Embre v. Millar, 11 A.L.R. 127, does not apply to a case where before the dissolution of a company its assets were acquired by a shareholder who claims them as his own.

APPLICATION TO WIND UP—PROOF OF INSOLVENCY—R.S.C., c. 144, s. 12.

A creditor must have an unquestioned and liquidated debt of at least $200, in order to ask for the winding-up of a company. One who claims a salary payable in shares of the company ought to bring an action against it for the shares or to pay a fixed sum. He can then ask for the winding-up of the company. A company which has sold paid up shares to the amount of $40,000 upon an authorized capital of $50,000, which has a line of credit of $10,000, in the bank upon its directors' guarantee, and which has never discounted more than half of this opening of credit, is not insolvent by reason of the fact that it contests the suit of one claiming to be a creditor.

Schneider v. Laurentide Brick & Sand Co., 15 Que. P.R. 271.

An order for winding-up a company, being susceptible of appeal or opposition, cannot be set aside for irregularities by requête civile. A winding-up order made by a Superior Court Judge cannot be set aside by another judge of the same court, but may be by the Court of King's Bench. On a motion to set aside a winding-up order the applicant cannot, by tierce opposition, attach the legality of proceedings prior to its issue. Four days' notice to the company of the application for a winding-up order is not required when the company is a party to the application. A winding-up order may be granted in vacation. McKinestry v. Irwin, 21 Que. K.B. 339.

WINDING-UP ORDER — PROCEDURE — CREDITORS—LIQUIDATOR.

An order for winding-up a company under the provisions of R.S.C., 1906, c. 144, suspends the rights of the creditors. All the property of every kind passes into the possession and under the control of the liquidator, who alone can dispose of it in the manner prescribed by the Act. Hence, an opposition by the liquidator to set aside a pending seizure by a creditor cannot be dismissed as being frivolous. An adjournment for a fortnight of the hearing of an application to dismiss an opposition to the sale by the sheriff of immovables seized and pending the action of the liquidators who must wind-up the affairs of the company without delay followed by a second adjournment for a fortnight and a third for four days, does not justify the dismissal of the opposition as frivolous and vexatious when, in the interval, a resolution of the inspectors to the effect that liquidation within the time is impossible has been filed.

Organ v. Gamache, 22 Que. K.B. 389.

WINDING-UP — POWERS OF LIQUIDATOR.

The liquidator of an insolvent company being an officer of court, the court will invest him with the powers necessary to enable him to put the purchaser of a lease of the company in possession of the property of which he has become the tenant.

In re Dominion Medical Institute, Dorval v. Smith, 15 Que. P.R. 102.

CONTESTATION BY A SHAREHOLDER AS CONTRIBUTORY — TAXATION OF COSTS.

When the claim against a contributory contestant is separate and distinct from the claims and demands against the other shareholders of the company insolvent, the fact that all the names of the contributories are mentioned in the same petition, and it is demanded by the same conclusion, that they be declared contributories for the amounts remaining unpaid, does not change the nature of the individual character of the claims against each other. So, according to the tariff, on contestation of an application to have a party held to contribute, the same fees are granted as in ordinary actions. If a special enquete is made with respect to said contestation, a special fee will be granted. The words "the same fees as in ordinary actions for a like amount" in s. 7, art. 76 of the tariff of advocates' fees in cases of the Superior Court, refer only to actions taken in the Superior Court, and claims for less than $100 would entitle the liquidator to an attorney's fee of a fourth class action in the Superior Court.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

The provision of the Winding-up Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, s. 19), which permits the court to stay the winding-up proceedings, either altogether or for a stated time, should be strictly interpreted. An order for this purpose should only be granted by the unanimous consent of the creditors, unless those opposing it have their claims satisfied and their rights safeguarded. In case of conflict among them as to the expediency of staying the proceedings the court will only grant the stay if the creditors who demand it pay those who oppose it or guarantee payment of their claims.

PROVINCIAL COMPANY — OBJECT — COMMERCE AND AMUSEMENT — LIQUIDATION — S. REV. 1906, c. 144.

The Winding-up Act (S. rev. 1906, c. 144) only applies to provincial companies instituted for commercial purposes, and not to those whose object it is to encourage the art and practice of athletic games and sports. Even if the latter have a clause in their charter authorizing them to sell drinks, candy, etc., to the public which frequents their establishment, they are not by that subject to this Act, if in fact they did not exercise their powers. A creditor who, at a meeting of the shareholders of a company called to place the company in liquidation, by virtue of the Federal Act, does not oppose this petition for the reason that this Act does not apply to a company which is not commercial, is not for this reason deprived of the right to raise this objection by an intervention.

After assignment, to wit, in 1908, defendants obtained in their own names, the other directors of the company having refused to take up the same, new lease, or, as it was called, an extension of lease until 1917. After issue of winding-up order the curator sued for a declaration that the extension was taken by defendants as trustees for the company. EFFECT OF WINDING-UP ORDER—EXECUTION AND INTERPLEADER.

Where during the pendency of interpleader proceedings between execution creditors of the company and claimants of the goods seized, the company consents to a winding-up order which is made without notice to execution creditors, the latter may, on a motion to stay proceedings under the winding-up order, be given leave to proceed with the interpleader issue upon which the winding-up order had operated as a stay, and to apply again for the further disposal of the rights of the parties after the trial of the issue.

A liquidator appointed for an insolvent company cannot, if he has been dismissed for fraud during the winding-up, claim salary for his uncompleted administration. No fee is due to a liquidator for receiving or swearing the claims of creditors. He has no right to engage and pay a special guardian without being authorized by the inspectors and a judge. Upon his dismissal, he should obtain the cancellation of insurance policies he took out upon the assets, and the repayment of the unexpired premium. If he neglects to do so, he cannot claim this amount from the estate, nor is he entitled to costs of a guarantee policy he was required to furnish for the proper discharge of his duties. It was held that s. 8 of c. 143, Cons. St. N.B. 1903, must be read as subject to the provisions of s. 2 of the Act, and in order to obtain the benefit of the provisions of s. 8 the vendor of a chattel, under a contract that the sale shall not pass the title until the chattel is paid for, must file a copy of such contract with the registrar of deeds of the county in which the conditional purchaser resided at the time of the sale within fifteen days from the delivery of possession of the chattel mentioned in the contract. (2) In a mortgage given by the N.L. Company, to secure a certain bond issue, the trustee under the mortgage deed was a foreign corporation not having a license to do business within the Province of New Brunswick, as required by Cons. St. N.B. 1903, c. 18, and, therefore, under the provisions of the Provincial Act, 5 Edw. VII, c. 28, was unable to take or hold property in New Brunswick. After the bonds were issued and the mortgage executed the N.L. Company went into liquidation, and a liquidator was appointed under the provisions of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144. Held, that while the mortgage deed was not effectual to convey to the foreign corporation the property it was intended, or purported to convey, yet, inasmuch as it was clear upon the fact of the bonds that the bondholders acquired the bonds under an agreement that they were to be secured by a mortgage upon the property of the N.L. Company, the bondholders, who were not responsible for the failure of the company to appoint a competent trustee, were entitled in equity as against the company and its liquidator, to a first charge, as security for the payment of such bonds, upon all the property of the company specified as intended to be so charged in the bonds themselves and in the ineffectual mortgage deed. (3) While insolvency of a company is one ground upon which the Winding-up Act provides that the company may be wound up, this does not make the Winding-up Act an "act relating to insolvency" within the meaning of the New Brunswick Bills of Sale Act; nor does it make the liquidator an assignee for the general benefit of creditors. (4) A liquidator is in no sense a subsequent purchaser for value, but represents the company and acquires no rights as liquidator which the company itself did not possess, save those which are given to him by the Winding-up Act.

COSTS OF LIQUIDATION—REVT.

In the winding-up of companies under the Winding-up Act (R.S.C., c. 144, s. 92), the expenses and costs properly incurred in the winding up, which includes the remuneration of the liquidators, are payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims, and include the claim of the lessor; the rank and privilege of the lessor are governed by the provisions of the said Winding-up Act, and not by those of the Civil Code, when they are in opposition to the costs of liquidation. A voluntary liquidation commences from the date of the resolution ordering it, even when the liquidator is only named later on. A lessor is not a creditor holding security on the estate of the company which he can place a value on, and which he can retain or assign to the estate under ss. 76, 77, R.S.C. c. 144.

EXHIBITING STATEMENT SHOWING INSOLVENCY.

That a company's president threw open the books of the company to an accountant employed by a creditor, and the accountant embodied the result of his examination thereof in a report to the creditors shewing that the company was insolvent, does not bring the company within subs. Where an affidavit offered in support of a petition for winding up a company stated that the deponent, an auditor designated by certain creditors, had examined the company's books and records and, in connection therewith, had obtained from time to time information as to the affairs of the company from its president, and that though the deponent was unable from the limited time at his disposal to make a complete audit or arrive at a balance, he made a sufficient examination and secured sufficient information from the president to arrive at the conclusion that the company was insolvent, such statement is but an expression of the auditor's professional opinion and is not an acknowledgment by the company of its insolvency within subs. (d) s. 3 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144. The acknowledgment of insolvency required by subs. (d) of s. 3 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, must be some formal act of the directors or of the shareholders or of some officer expressly or impliedly authorized to make such an acknowledgment on the company's behalf. Under s. 88 (7) of the Bank Act, the salaries of employees are privileged to the extent of three months, without any limitation to any specified three months, if the bank takes possession of such security as is mentioned in the section. Held, that if a liquidator takes a transfer from a bank of security held by it under s. 88, the wages in respect to which the employees would be entitled to priority would be such as had accrued to them during the three months next previous to the date of the winding-up order, but if the liquidator does not take over the security held by the bank, the bank must, if it realizes its security, do so under the Bank Act, and, therefore, must treat the wages of the employees to the extent of three months, independently of the date when they accrued, as a prior charge to its own claim.

(§ VI F-359)—WINDING-UP—LIQUIDATOR CONTINUING BUSINESS — COMPLETING CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT—PRIORITIES.

Where the liquidators of a construction company have been authorized by the court in winding-up proceedings to complete a construction contract for the benefit of the estate, and in the work of completion adopt the prior contract between the company and a subcontractor for part of the work, the subcontractor's contract price is to be divided so as to allocate him for a dividend (where the claim is not privileged) as upon an ordinary claim in respect of the work done prior to the liquidation, but the subsequent work will be ordered to be paid for in full.

Re Bishop Construction Co., Hains v. Garth, 15 D.L.R. 911, 23 Que. K.B. 284.

PREFERENCES—LOAN TO LIQUIDATOR—ORDER OF COURT—PRIORITY OVER COSTS OF WINDING-UP.

A claim for money lent the liquidator of a company under an order of a court declaring that the loan should be a first charge on all the assets of the company, subject only to existing liens, charges or encumbrances, is entitled to priority over the costs and charges of the winding-up proceeding, including liquidator's and solicitor's fees; and such file is not affected by s. 92 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, providing that the costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in a winding-up proceeding, including remuneration of the liquidator, shall be payable from the assets in priority to all other claims; since such section applies only to confer priority over claims against the company in existence at the time of going into liquidation.

(§ VII B—370)—EXTRATERRITORIAL POWERS TO DOING BUSINESS—INSURANCE.

A company incorporated for the purpose of carrying on the business of insurance has general power to do business and effect policies outside of the province of incorporation; a recital in the preamble of the act of incorporation as to the purpose of carrying on the business "within the province" is no limitation upon its general powers. [Bonanza Creek Case, 26 D.L.R. 273, [1916] 1 A.C. 566, followed. See Montreal-Canada Fire Ins. Co. v. National Trust Co., 35 D.L.R. 445.]

A mandamus will not be granted to compel the registrar of joint stock companies to register under the Foreign Companies Ordinance, Alta. Ord., 1911, c. 63, a company having only a provincial incorporation in another province, though it had as one of its expressed objects of incorporation that of carrying on business throughout the entire Dominion, as the duty to register is not so clear that the court should exercise its discretion to grant a mandamus to compel him to do so, the object of incorporation so indicated being one for which a Dominion and not a provincial charter should have been obtained.

(§ VII B—371)—DOING BUSINESS WITHIN PROVINCE.

The defence that an extra-provincial corporation is not licensed under C.S. 1903, c. 18, is not a matter to be pleaded, but a ground for a stay of proceedings. [The Empire Cream Separator Co. v. The Maritime Dairy Co., 38 N.B.R. 309, followed.] The plaintiff, an extra-provincial corporation, sued defendant on a contract, made in New York, by which plaintiff was to ship goods at Toronto to defendant in Sussex, N.B., by freight, defendant to pay freight. The plaintiff shipped the goods by express and prepaid the charges which were afterwards paid by the defendant. Held, this was not carrying on business within New Brunswick as the title to the goods passed in Toronto.

Culbert v. The McCall Co., 40 N.B.R. 385.

(§ VII B—373)—ACTS OF UNLICENSED FOREIGN COMPANY—ACTIONS.

The effect of s. 122 of the Companies Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 35, upon extra-provincial companies carrying on business in the province without a license, in addition to the penalty provided therein, is merely to suspend the remedy of the company to maintain actions upon contracts, until the license is obtained and the fees paid. It does not render void contracts made or acts done by such unlicensed corporations in the course of their business, nor does it disable them from bringing actions of tort. [Consolidated Investments v. Caswell, 21 D.L.R. 325; Randall v. British & American Shoe Co., [1902] 2 Ch. 334, followed; North-Western Construction Co. v. Young, 13 B.C.R. 297, distinguished.]

CONTRACTS OF UNLICENSED COMPANIES—VALIDITY.

A contract made in British Columbia with a company incorporated under the Companies Act (Canada), but not licensed or registered as required by R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, is unenforceable in the courts of British Columbia if made in respect of business carried on in the province by such company without provincial license or registration and consequently in contravention of the provincial law.

FAILURE TO REGISTER—VALIDITY OF CONTRACT.

Under the Companies Act, R.S.M. c. 35, ss. 118 and 122, contracts entered into by unregistered foreign corporations are not void, but the right of action is suspended until the company registers. Bessener Gas v. Mills, 8 O.L.R. 647; Semi-Ready v. Tew, 19 O.L.R. 227, applied.]

NONCOMPLIANCE WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—EFFECT ON VALIDITY OF CONTRACT.

A contract entered into by a foreign corporation in violation of the Extra-Provincial Companies Act, 1913 (P.E.I.), prohibiting, under penalties, foreign corporations from carrying on business unless a sworn statement, required by the statute, is submitted to the provincial authorities, is illegal and unenforceable by the corporation.

Failure of foreign insurance company to obtain license to do business in Canada, Pacific Coast Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 13 E.L.R. 194.

(§ VII B—374)—ACTS OF GENERAL AGENT.

A foreign company doing business in Canada is bound by the action of its general agent appointed for a province, although the insurance policy contains a clause that "the company is not liable for loss . . . if any subsequent insurance is effected in any other company unless and until the company assents thereto" where such agent, after a fire has occurred, leaps of subsequent insurance having been effected, and does not repudiate on account of the condition in the policy, but continues to treat the claim as good and appoints an adjuster with authority to make a settlement with the assured, his action constitutes an assent on behalf of the company.

C. ACTIONS BY OR AGAINST.

(§ VII C—375) — NOT LICENSED IN PROVINCE.

Under s. 168 of the Companies Act (R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39) as re-enacted by the Companies Act Amendment Act, 1917 (7 & 8 Geo. V., c. 19), allowing a company, if it is licensed, to "maintain anew" an action which has been decided against it, on the ground that any transaction of the company was invalid because it was an extra-provincial company and was not licensed; the company is not obliged to bring an action de novo but is entitled to have the action reinstated at the stage at which it was when the judgment based on the statute was given.

ACTION BY FOREIGN COMPANY—REGISTRATION—REPEAL OF STATUTE.

The repeal of the Foreign Companies Act (R.S.S. (1909), c. 73) pending an action by a foreign company unregistered thereunder, but subsequently registered under the new Act (The Companies Act, 1915, c. 14), removes the disability to sue under which the plaintiff company would otherwise have been.

FOREIGN ACTION TO RESTRAIN FROM APPLYING FOR PROVINCIAL LICENSE—AMENDMENT OF INSURANCE ACT—DOMINION LICENSE NECESSARY—ACTION PREMATURE.

An action brought to restrain a foreign insurance company from applying for registration under a Provincial Act was dismissed. Between the date of the trial judgment and the hearing of the appeal the Dominion Insurance Act was amended (7 & 8 Geo. V., c. 29) and ss. 4 and 11 provided that a foreign insurance company could not carry on its business in Canada unless and until it had obtained a license from the Minister of Finance for the Dominion of Canada. The court held that the Court of Appeal for the province should have taken judicial notice of the Dominion amendment, and that as the company could not transact any business by the issuing of a provincial license the proceedings by way of injunction were premature. (§ VII C—376)—FOREIGN CORPORATION—ACTION AGAINST CANADIAN STOCKHOLDER—BOUND BY LAWS OF FOREIGN STATE.

An action is instituted by the receiver of a foreign corporation to recover the

Allen v. Standard Trust Co., 49 D.L.R. 399, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 974.

FOREIGN COMPANY—RIGHT TO SUE.

Section 3 of the Saskatchewan Foreign Companies Act, forbidding a foreign company having gain for its object from carrying on any part of its business in the province unless it is duly registered, cannot be relied upon to defeat an action on notes given by the defendant to the plaintiff company for the price of certain goods sold by the latter to the former on the ground that the company's statement of claim, while alleging that it was an incorporated company carrying on business in another province, failed to allege that it was registered under the above Act, where it was shown that the goods had originally been sold to another, from whom the defendant purchased them with the consent of the company who took the notes for the price in substitution for those given by the first purchaser, and no evidence was offered as to the place of the original contract of sale and there was no allegation that the plaintiff was such a company as to require registration under the Foreign Companies Act. [Bank of Montreal v. Bethune, 4 U.C.Q.B. (O.S.) 241, disapproved; C.P.R. Co. v. Western Union T. Co., 17 Can. S.C.R. 151, applied.]

NONREGISTRATION—CARRYING ON BUSINESS—WHAT IS.

The mere setting up and starting the working of machinery sold by an extra-provincial company does not constitute a carrying on of business in another province within the meaning of the Foreign Companies Act, R.S. Sask. 1909, c. 73, depriving foreign companies of the right of action in the event of their noncompliance with the requirements as to registration.

Linde Canadian Refrigerator Co. v. Sask. Creamery Co., 24 D.L.R. 703, 51 Can. S.C.R. 400, 8 W.W.R. 1246, reversing 7 S.L.R. 245.

FOREIGN CORPORATIONS—UNREGISTERED EXTRA-PROVINCIAL COMPANIES—ACTIONS BY—REGISTRATION PENDENTE LITE.

That an action was begun by an extra-provincial company before being registered in accordance with s. 10 of the Ordinance of 1903, c. 14, 1st sess. (Alta.), declaring that no such company "while unregistered" shall be capable of "maintaining" any action in any court of the province, will not prevent the action being prosecuted to final judgment if the plaintiff was registered in compliance with the act pendente lite, since it is only the "maintaining" and not the bringing or commencement of an action that is prohibited by the Act. [Blais v. Bankers' Trust Corp., 14 D.L.R. 277; Smith v. Western Canada Flour Mills Co., 3 A.L.R. 348; Moon v. Durden, 2 Ex. 22, 29; and Re Jones, L.R. 9 Eq. 63, specially referred to.]

FOREIGN COMPANIES — RIGHT TO SUE — FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE OF LAND IN DOMESTIC LAW DISTRICT.

Where the action is not in respect of any contract made in whole or in part in Saskatchewan, a foreign company may maintain an action on behalf of itself and all other creditors to set aside as fraudulent certain conveyances made by the debtor of real estate situate in Saskatchewan, though the plaintiff company is not registered under the Foreign Companies Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 73, so as to confer upon it the right to do business in that province.

ACTIONS BY.

A foreign company by registration in Alberta, although clothed with all the rights, powers and privileges of companies incorporated under the Companies Ordinance, is not thereby absolved from giving security for costs as a nonresident in an action brought by it, since there is nothing in such ordinance exempting companies so incorporated from giving security for costs.

Frost & Wood Co. v. Howes, 4 D.L.R. 527, 5 A.L.R. 47, 21 W.L.R. 335, 2 W.W.R. 321.

ACTION BY FOREIGN LAND COMPANY—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

A foreign corporation not licensed to hold lands within Manitoba under R.S.M. 1913, Pt. IV, cannot maintain an action in that province for specific performance of an agreement to exchange lands in the foreign jurisdiction for lands in Manitoba; the action may be dismissed on a summary application under Manitoba Rule 639. FOREIGN COMPANY'S RIGHT TO SUE—SALE DISTINCT FROM AGENCY.

Where a company's contract purporting to appoint a special agent for sale in Alberta of a line of goods is really only a contract for sale of the goods to him with a restriction that he should not carry an opposition line of goods, and delivery is stipulated to be made f.o.b. in another province, in which the company's head office is situate, the vendor company is not debarred by the Foreign Companies Ordinance (Alta.) from suing for the price, although not licensed in Alberta as an extra-provincial or foreign corporation, merely by reason of such buyer being called the company's agent. FOREIGN COMPANY'S RIGHT TO SUE.

An unregistered foreign company is not deemed to be carrying on business in Alberta within s. 3 of the Foreign Companies Act, N.W.T. 1903, 1st Session, c. 14, as amended by statutes of 1903, 2nd Sess., c. 19, merely because it enters into an agreement with a person in Alberta purporting to appoint the latter as its "agent," if in fact the agreement is made by the company outside of the province for the sale of its goods f.o.b. at a point outside of the province to the so-called agent with certain privileges of return or exchange, and no power is thereby conferred to act on the company's behalf. (§ VII C—377) — EXTRA-PROVINCIAL COMPANIES—ACTIONS AGAINST—EFFECT OF WINDING-UP ORDER MADE BY COURT OF DOMICILE.

An action begun against an extra-provincial company after the making of a winding-up order by a court of its domicile will not be entertained without leave of such court, since the action is governed by s. 22 of R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, prohibiting the commencement of or proceeding with suits against a company after the making of a winding-up order except with the leave of the court and subject to such terms as the court making the order may impose. ACTIONS AGAINST.

Where no evidence is given as to the place at which a contract for the sale of goods by an unregistered foreign company was made, the fact that the goods were afterwards purchased from the original buyer within Saskatchewan, and that his contract with the company selling the machines was, with its consent, assumed by the new purchaser, who gave his own notes for the price in place of the original buyer's notes, shews no violation of Saskatchewan Foreign Companies Act, s. 3, imposing a fine upon foreign companies doing business for gain within the province if they fail to register.

EXTRA-PROVINCIAL COMPANIES—ACTIONS AGAINST—AFTER WINDING-UP ORDER BY COURT OF DOMICILE—STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

An action commenced against an extra-provincial company after the making of a winding-up order by a court of its domicile is irregular, and, under s. 22 of R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, prohibiting the commencement of, or proceeding with, an action against such company after the making of such order without the leave and direction of the court making it, the action will be stayed until leave to proceed can be obtained. A garnishee summons issued after in another province than that of the debtor company's domicile will be set aside if it appears that the proceedings in which the garnishee summons was issued had been begun in contravention of the Winding-up Act after the date of the winding-up order against the company made in the province in which it had its head office and without leave of the court in that jurisdiction. An action begun against an extra-provincial company after the making of a winding-up order by a court of the province in which it has its domicile will not be entertained without leave of such court, as the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, s. 22, prohibits the commencement of or proceeding with suits against a company after the making of a winding-up order except with the leave of the court and subject to such terms as the court making the order may impose. FOREIGN COMPANY—ACTION AGAINST—PLACE OF BUSINESS—SERVICE ON FOREIGN COMPANY—SECRETARY TEMPORARILY WITHIN JURISDICTION.

Appeal from a decision of the Master in Chambers. The plaintiff resident within the jurisdiction, issued a writ against non-residents. The defendants were L. G. Harrison, H. F. Schultz and the Stewart-Harrison Land Co. The plaintiff held the writ and subsequently the individual defendants came temporarily into the jurisdiction, whereupon the plaintiff served the defendant Schultz in his capacity as secretary-treasurer of the defendant company. The defendants moved to set aside the service on all the defendants. Newlands, J., held that where a foreign company has no place of business in the province, the service of the writs of summons upon the secretary, who is temporarily in the province on his own business but not on that of the corporation, is not a compliance with subs. 3 of r. 18; and as the court in this case had jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the action, service on the other two defendants, although they were only temporarily in the province, was a sufficient compliance with subs. 1 of r. 18. The service on the company was therefore set aside with costs in the cause to the successful party.

Where it is not made to appear that a petitioner for a winding up order, under R.S.C. (1906), c. 144, has a substantial interest in the winding-up, and where he is the only creditor desiring an order to wind-up, the order ought not to be made. [Re Okell v. Morris, 9 B.C.R. 153, applied.]

WINDING-UP—COMPANY OF FOREIGN DOMICILE—DEBTS INCURRED IN CANADA.

Proceedings under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, for winding-up of an insolvent company are applicable to a foreign company as an effective recourse upon property in Canada or to enforce satisfaction of obligations created in Canada, and it is not necessary that similar insolvency proceedings should have been instituted in the foreign jurisdiction where the company's head office is situated.

FOREIGN COMPANY—COMPANIES ACT, 1910.

A certificate purporting to be given under the authority of a federal order-in-council dated December 22, 1917, giving approval for the issue and sale is no defence as it only removes the prohibition of the order but gives no authority beyond the right to disregard such order-in-council.

LIQUIDATED AND EXIGIBLE DEBT.

A debt which the debtor acknowledges and promises to pay is a liquidated and exigible debt. The creditor can directly oppose it, by a defence in compensation, to a demand based on a note payable to order.

Cauchon v. Forget, 25 Que. K.B. 479.

SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM—WAGES—DAMAGES.

Only legal compensation, namely that which exists in full right between two debts equally liquidated and exigible, can be directly set up by way of defence. It is by means of a reconventional demand that the defendant can set up a counterclaim which would not be liquidated and exigible by the same title as the principle demand. In the second case when the court adjudicates upon the two demands at the same time it can give judgment for judicial compensation between them. The exceptions mentioned by law to legal compensations are no obstacle to judicial compensation. Thus the court deciding at one time upon a principal demand for wages and a reconventional demand for damages may declare that there is compensation between them.

Figinière v. Cauchon, 50 Que. S.C. 477.

JUDGMENT—INSCRIPTION IN REVIEW—RETROACTIVE EFFECT.

Compensation operates by force of law even although the contestation of the debt opposed in compensation renders it necessary to proceed with the trial. Because it is a matter of principle that the final judgment which is declaratory of a pre-existing right has retroactive effect to the date of the action. Inscription in review of the judgment offered in compensation has merely the effect of suspending the contestation of the offer of compensation and, if the judgment is confirmed, the final judgment has a retroactive effect to the date of the demand in compensation.

An agreement between an employer and a workman in settlement of a claim of the latter for damages caused by the neglect of the former, is in the nature of a transaction (art. 1918 et seq. C.C.), and though, by its terms, the employer promises to pay, and does pay for a while, by monthly instalments, "a sum equivalent to what the workman would earn during the time he is disabled as the result of the injuries," if it is not governed by the rules applicable to contracts for hire of the work, and does not give the workman, in case of breach by the employer, a right to claim a lump sum as damages; he is only entitled to the amount "equivalent to what he would have earned," that remains unpaid at the time his action is brought.

FOREIGN DIVORCE—REMARRIAGE ABROAD.

Where a British subject domiciled in this country enters into a contract of marriage during a temporary visit to a foreign country, the question of the validity of marriage, as to essentials, not as to form, depends upon the laws of this country.

Miller v. Allison (B.C.), 33 D.L.R. 144, 24 B.C.R. 123, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 231.

FOREIGN DIVORCE—DOMICILE—JURISDICTION OF FOREIGN COURT—FRAUD—ESTOPPEL.

The defendant, being sued for alimony, set up that the plaintiff was not his wife. The real crux of the case was the domicile of the plaintiff and her former husband at the time of the filing of the bill for divorce. Upon the evidence, the former husband changed his domicile to the State of Illinois in 1892; and, until after the divorce proceedings were completed, there was no change of domicile from Illinois. The Illinois Court had jurisdiction to grant a divorce, as the defendant in the cause in that court was domiciled within its jurisdiction; and this court was not concerned (in the absence of fraud) to inquire whether the foreign court made a mistake. An agreement or understanding between the former husband, his wife, and the defendant in this action, that a divorce should be obtained in order that the wife might marry the defendant and the husband marry some one else, was not proved; and, if it were, it did not prove fraud upon the court. The defendant was not estopped, by having in a sense procured the divorce, from saying that the divorce was invalid. Quære, whether a wife can ever acquire a domicile different from that of her husband. In this case there was nothing to give the plaintiff a different domicile from that of her husband. Per Meredith, C.J.C.P. (dissenting).

—The domicile of both husband and wife was in law and in fact in Ontario when the decree of divorce was obtained in Illinois; and, even if that decree were valid in Illinois, it was invalid in Ontario; and accordingly the plaintiff could not be the lawful wife of the defendant according to the law of England or the law of Ontario. Matrimonial differences should be referred to the courts of the country in which the parties are domiciled (Wilson v. Wilson, L.R. 2 P. & D. 435); the reason is, that the views of the community in which the parties concerned are permanently settled are the views which ought to prevail in divorce cases; and there was no power in the Illinois Court to dissolve a marriage solemnized in Ontario between British subjects.

It was for the Ontario Court to find whether there was jurisdiction in the Illinois Court; that court did not consider the question of jurisdiction, being misled by false testimony in regard to domicile or residence in an undefended case; and its jurisdiction was now successfully impeached by the defendant.

(§ I C-66)—MARITAL RIGHTS.

The law of the province where a marriage takes place governs, as to the form of the marriage, but the domicile of the husband governs as to the marital rights and obligations of the parties.

MARRIAGE.

The law of the country where a marriage is celebrated determines the validity of the ceremony; the personal capacity of the parties to the ceremony depends on the law of their domicile.

Johnston v. Hazen, 43 N.B.R. 154.

(§ I C-67)—MARITAL RELATIONS—DOMICILE.

A woman married without a marriage contract in the Province of Ontario, where the marriage without a matrimonial agreement establishes separations as to property, cannot be regarded as separated as to property in the absence of proof of the place where the husband lived before his marriage, where he had his principal place of business at the time of the marriage, and what his intentions were then as to the place where he would fix his domicile after his marriage. The isolated fact of the celebration of the marriage in a place does not prove that the consorts were domiciled there.

A company's interests in Saskatchewan lands could be seized and realized upon by creditors recovering judgment there, notwithstanding the bankruptcy proceedings in a foreign country: Macdonald v. To give the Courts of Ontario jurisdiction to entertain an action for a tort committed abroad, the act must be such as is not justifiable in the place where it was committed. BANKRUPTCY — FOREIGN DISCHARGE — PROMISSORY NOTE—RIGHT TO SUE.

A discharge in bankruptcy by a court of a foreign state from liability on a promissory note made by the bankrupt while domiciled in such foreign state and payable therein, is a good defence to an action here upon the note. Where a promissory note made, and payable, in Canada while the maker was domiciled here is a renewal of a note from which the maker had been discharged by the courts of a foreign state wherein the original note was made, the maker may be sued in Canada upon the renewal note if it be the law of such foreign state that the moral obligation to pay the original note constitutes a good consideration for a new promise to pay.

G. RIGHTS IN PROPERTY GENERALLY.

(§ I G—125)—RIGHTS IN PROPERTY GENERALLY—LEX SITUS — LANDS — FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

An action by creditors to set aside as fraudulent certain conveyances by debtors of land situate within a province is governed by the laws of the province where the land is situated and all creditors, no matter where they reside, are entitled to the benefit of that law; except where otherwise expressly prescribed by statute.

GUARDIANSHIP—LOCUS OF PROPERTY.

The courts in this province will recognize the authority of a foreign guardian, under the foreign law with respect to trust funds situated within this province.

Kelly v. O'Brian, 31 D.L.R. 770, 37 O.L.R. 326.

H. TRANSFER OF PROPERTY GENERALLY.

(§ I H—137)—DECREE OF FOREIGN COURT.

Upon confirming a sale of lands by an executor a Michigan Court of Chancery cannot make its decree effective as a conveyance of land situated in Ontario without a conveyance signed by the executor as directed by the decree. J. DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION—WILLS.

Foreign executors, see Executors and Administrators.

(§ I J—147)—FOREIGN WILL—EFFECT OF MARRIAGE—REVOCATION—LAW GOVERNING.

A will made in a foreign jurisdiction in which the testator was domiciled, and which under the foreign law was not revoked by the subsequent marriage of the testator, is valid as to lands in Alberta subsequently acquired if made in the form required by Alberta law, notwithstanding the subsequent marriage in the foreign jurisdiction in which he was domiciled; and, semble, the result would be the same even had he owned the real estate in Alberta at the date of the marriage. [Re Martin, [1909] P. 211, referred to.] The principle as to whether a will is revoked by a second marriage is governed by the law of the matrimonial domicile and not by the law of the place where the property affected by the will is situated.

LAND AND PERSONALTY—DOMICILE AND SITUATION—RIGHTS OF WIDOW.

Personal property being governed by the law of the domicile it followed that the personal property in Saskatchewan disposed of by the will is not subject to the law of Saskatchewan and could not be taken into consideration on the present application. That notwithstanding the provision of s. 21 of the Devolution of Estates Act providing that land in Saskatchewan shall descend to the personal representative of the deceased owner and be distributed as if it were personal estate, land still remains land until it is sold and the proceeds are available for distribution, and being land it is subject to and must be dealt with according to the lex situs, and that in consequence the widow had the right to ask for the statutory relief as against the real property situate in Saskatchewan.

VALIDITY OF WILL—LAND—SITUS—RELIGIOUS USES.

The validity of a will of immovables is determined by the laws of the place where the property is situate, and this rule is not affected by the Devolution of Estates Act. [Re Ostrander Estate, 8 W.W.R. 367, followed.] Quere, whether the fact that it is not land but the proceeds of land which is to be distributed under a will affects the validity of, or the right of the court where the land is situate to pass upon the validity of, a bequest thereof.

II. Remedies.

(§ II—150)—REMEDIES—ENFORCEMENT OF CONTRACT.

The interpretation of a contract and the rights of the parties are to be determined in accordance with the "proper law of the contract," i.e., the law by which the parties intended, or may be presumed to have intended, the contract to be governed, so that a contract of guaranty made in Minnesota and to be performed there is prima facie subject to the Minnesota statutes. [Lloyd v. Guibert, L.R. 1 Q.B. 115, 123, referred to.]

PROVINCIAL MORATORY LAWS — ACTIONS IN ENGLAND—INJUNCTION.

Merchants Bank v. Eliot (Eng.), [1918] 1 W.W.R. 698.

VERBAL EVIDENCE—ADMISSIBILITY—LOAN—LEX FORI.

The admissibility of verbal evidence to prove a loan, cash advances and recovery of the value of articles appropriated, is governed by the lex fori; and according to our law a loan of $500 cannot be established by testimonial evidence.

Abbott v. Arnton, 24 Rev. Leg. 236.

(§ II—151)—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT.

The question as to whether foreign courts might not accord Ontario Courts any extra-territorial recognition is a question of policy affecting those who make the law and cannot be considered by the courts who are called upon to administer the law as they find it. [The King v. Lovitt, [1912] A.C. 212, distinguished; Western National Bank of New York v. Perez, Triana & Co., [1891] 1 Q.B. 204; Tyler v. C.P.R., 29 O.R. 654, specially referred to.]

McMalkin v. Traders Bank of Canada, 6 D.L.R. 184, 26 O.L.R. 1, 21 O.W.R. 640.

(§ II—152)—DIVORCE AND ALIMONY—PUBLIC POLICY.

A permanent alimony judgment embodied in a foreign divorce decree is not of a penal nature, and is enforceable in the courts of Ontario for arrears of payments thereunder; the fact that because of remarriage of the husband its enforcement would result in contributing to the support of a divorced wife while a wife was living does not contravene the morals upheld by English law. Wood v. Wood, 31 D.L.R. 765, 37 O.L.R. 428.

(§ II—154)—PERSONAL ACTIONS—STATE OF LIMITATIONS—LEX FORI.

In matters of limitations of personal actions the lex fori prevails, except where the debt has been absolutely extinguished by the Statute of Limitations of the locus contractus. [Rutledge v. U.S. Savings & Loan Co., 37 Can. S.C.R. 546, applied.]

(§ II—159) — REMEDIES — INJURY SUSTAINED IN QUEBEC—ACTION IN ONTARIO—MEASURE OF DAMAGES—LEX FORI.

Where the courts of Ontario have jurisdiction to entertain an action for tort committed abroad (the wrong being actionable under Ontario law and not justifiable in the foreign law district) the domestic courts act according to their own rules in the damages to be awarded.

WHAT MUST BE SHOWN IN ACTION FOR.

In an action for damages for conspiracy it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove a design common to the defendant and to others to damage the plaintiff without just cause or excuse; such a conclusion may be established by inference from proven facts, but the facts must be such that any other inference cannot fairly be drawn from them. [Sweeney v. Coote, [1907] A.C. 221, followed.] The facts proven in the present case held not to be such as to admit of no other inference.

(§ I—3)—TO WITHHOLD CERTIFICATE OR DIPLOMA.

A willful and fraudulent conspiracy on the part of the examiners and the College of Dental Surgeons to undermark the examination papers of an applicant so as to prevent his admission to the college, is not established by the fact that the secretary of the college, after the commencement of the plaintiff's action and making discovery therein of his own examination papers and the books of the college, while making a change in his office, destroyed, without the knowledge of his codefendants, before the time fixed by said college therefor, and before he had knowledge that their discovery would be required, among a quantity of other papers, the examination papers of the other candidates who were examined with the plaintiff.

On a charge under Criminal Code s. 444 of conspiracy to defraud the public, if there is no direct proof of the existence of the unlawful agreement between the defendants and the acts proved are not such as to show from their very nature that they are parts of a common scheme, the jury must separately consider the case of each defendant and determine from his conduct whether there is evidence of the conspiracy alleged; it is only after the conspiracy has been proved that the acts of the one become evidence against the other.

TO FRAUD—SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE—IDENTITY.

The defendants were tried by a County Court Judge without a jury upon a charge of conspiring to defraud the complainant. At the trial the complainant, in the witness box, would not swear positively that the defendant H, then present in court as a prisoner in the dock, was the man or one of the men who had defrauded him, although he had identified the same man at the preliminary hearing in the police court. The complainant said: "To the best of my knowledge he was the man. There is another man here to-day, and I am undecided which it is." The County Court Judge thought the evidence of identity sufficient, and convicted the two defendants. Held, that the conviction could not be disturbed, there being some evidence to sustain it, that, if there had been a jury the case could not have been withdrawn from them.

(§ III A—10)—TO INJURE ONE IN EMPLOYMENT—OVERT ACT.

(§ III A—11)—ACTION ON THE CASE—LABEL AND SLANDER—MEETING OF VILLAGERS TO INJURE REPUTATION OF MARRIED WOMEN—PROOF OF SPECIAL DAMAGE.

The plaintiff, a married woman whose husband was overseas, drove to another village with a married man; upon their return in the evening the defendants, residents of the village in which they lived, met them near the village, fired off guns, rang bells and shouted. The plaintiff claimed that they did these acts for the purpose of bringing her into disrepute and injuring her reputation for chastity. Harris, C.J., held that the acts of the defendants amounted to libel and were actionable without proof of special damage. Ritchie, E.J., and Russell, J., held that the case was technically not an action for slander or libel but an action on the case for conspiracy. All the elements of conspiracy were present, and the defendants had committed a tort for which they, or any of them, could be sued, and punitive damages might be imposed by the jury, the amount being within wide limits a matter for their discretion. Chisholm, J. (dissenting), held that the action was one of trespass on the case, but in the absence of special damage, the demonstration of the defendants was not actionable. *Varner v. The distribution of powers under the B.N.A. Act, between the Dominion and provinces, extends not only to legislative but executive authority; hence, the effect of ss. 12, 64 and 65 of the act is, that, subject to certain express provisions in that act and to the supreme authority of the Sovereign, the exercise of the prerogative is delegated to the Governor-General and through his instrumentality to the Lieutenant-Governors, and the powers to grant letters patent for the incorporation of companies, which the Governor-General or Lieutenant-Governor possessed before the Union or Confederation, must be taken to have passed to the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, the continuity of which is made by implication to depend on the appropriate maritime not interfering. DELEGATED AUTHORITY—OPEN TO REVIEW BY COURTS — INVALID IF NOT WITHIN POWERS CONFERRED—ORDERS-IN-COUNCIL.—HABEAS CORPUS.

Orders and regulations made by virtue of a delegated authority from a legislature are open to review by the courts and are invalid if they do not come within the powers conferred by the legislative enactment, or are inconsistent with the direct enactments of the legislature which conferred the delegated power. Order-in-council passed April 29, 1918, cancelling exemptions granted under the Military Service Act, 1917, held to be ultra vires. [Review of legislation.]

HABEAS CORPUS — SUSPENSION OF — WAR MEASURES ACT—MILITARY SERVICE ACT —ALIENS.

1. Section 5 of the order-in-council of April 30, 1918, purporting to suspend the right of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum "Canada Official Gazette," May 18, 1918, t. 51, n. 46, p. 4027, is ultra vires of the powers of the executive because it is authorized neither by the War Measures Act of 1914 (5 Geo. V., c. 2), nor by the Military Service Act of 1917 (7-8 Geo. V., c. 19), nor by any express and formal law of the federal parliament. 2. In ordering that those who claim not to fall under the provisions of the Military Service Act of 1917 (whether on account of age, status, or nationality) should carry with them, at all times, their birth or marriage certificate, as the case may be, or a certificate, if aliens, signed by the consul or vice-consul of the country of which they are subjects—the said order-in-council of April 30, 1918, is ultra vires of the powers which s. 6 of the said War Measures Act gives and confers upon the executive. 3. The only penalty which the federal parliament has permitted the executive to prescribe for infraction of the provisions of the order-in-council of April 30, 1918, is a fine or imprisonment, or both, by s. 10 of the War Measures Act of 1914, but not the suspension of the remedy of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum, accorded by s. 1120 of the Cr. Code to all persons incarcerated in criminal matters. 4. The issue of the writ of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum cannot be refused; the writ is of right, and is accorded ex debito iustitie. 5. In all matters concerning the liberty of the subject, the acts of the Crown, its Ministers, the members of the Privy Council, or the executive are subject to revision and control by the court and its judges, by way of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum. (16 Chas. I, c. 10.) The military tribunals and officers are also subject to this revision. 6. By sub-par. (c) s. 1 of the said order-in-council of April 30, 1918, with s. 2 thereof, the presumption, prima facie, of the liability of an alien for military service, when he has not in his possession the necessary consular certificate, establishing his nationality, can be rebutted and destroyed by contrary proof.

THE B.N.A. ACT s. 92 (15)—RIGHT OF PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE TO IMPOSE FINE AND IMPRISONMENT.

Notwithstanding the wording of subs. 15 of s. 92 of the B.N.A. Act empowering a provincial legislature to impose punishment "by fine, penalty or imprisonment" for enforcing its laws it has power to impose a penalty by fine coupled with imprisonment.

In re Kennedy, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 777. STATUTES—THE WAR MEASURES ACT 1914—EXTENT AND VALIDITY OF AUTHORIZATION — ORDER-IN-COUNCIL. P.C. 1725 PASSED JUNE 25, 1917—POWERS OF DIRECTOR OF COAL OPERATIONS—WHETHER POWER TO CREATE RIGHT IN MINERS TO RECOVER WAGES AT RATES DECLARED—DELEGATION OF POWERS—CONSTRUCTION.—SUBDELEGATION.

It was not ultra vires of the Dominion parliament to pass the War Measures Act, 1914, even assuming that Act to authorize the Governor-in-Council to take charge of the operation of coal mines or to make all regulations which could conceivably be advisable (as to which the Governor-in-Council would be the sole judge) for the purpose of securing their continuous and satisfactory operations. Section 6 of that Act is wide enough for such authorization, including the power to create a right of action in the ordinary civil courts as upon a debt for wages at a rate which may have been fixed. The order-in-council P.C. 1725 passed on June 25, 1917, by virtue of the War Measures Act, 1914, did not delegate any power to the director of coal operations to create a right in miners to recover in a civil action wages at the rates declared by the director. (Query whether the Governor-in-Council could delegate such a power.) The authorized orders of the director only amounted to command for payment at the stated increase under the penalty provided for disobedience thereto. In a matter of so grave a nature as the delegation of a law-making power by a body to whom the law-making power has already been delegated, the court should at least, even assuming the power of subdelegation to exist, not act on any vague implication arising out of the language used, but should take the words as they are used in the plain ordinary sense and give them simply the meaning that they will thus bear and no more. A subsequent order in council extended the territorial jurisdiction of the director. It was held that the orders made by him prior to such extension did not thereafter become effective within the added territory without renewed promulgation therein.

[§ I D—85]—CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE.

It was competent to the Parliament of Canada under s. 91 (27) of the B.N.A. Act, 1867, Imp., in legislating as to criminal law and procedure to declare that what might previously have constituted a criminal offence should no longer do so, although a procedure in form criminal was kept alive.

[§ I D—88]—APPOINTMENT OF JUDGES—MASTERS—POWERS OF PROVINCE.

The office of the Master is essentially that of an officer, and while his duties are largely judicial in their character they do not constitute him a judge within the meaning of s. 96 of the B.N.A. Act, so as to require his appointment by the Governor-General.

[§ I D—90]—INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM—ULTRA VIRES.

An act to confer upon the electors of a province the right to initiate legislation which should come into force if certain votes in its favour were given would be an abdication of the powers conferred upon the legislature by the B.N.A. Act, 1867, and an interference with the powers of the Lieutenant-Governor, and, therefore, the Initiative and Referendum Act, Man. Stat. 1916, c. 59, is ultra vires.

[§ I D—95]—WINDING-UP ACT—DELEGATION OF COURT'S POWER TO REFEREE.
The Dominion Parliament, having power to legislate as to insolvency and the winding-up of insolvent companies, has power to determine upon the machinery by which they shall be wound up; s. 110 of the Winding-up Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 144), which empowers the court, after a winding-up order is made, to refer and delegate to any officer of the court any of the powers conferred upon the court by the Act, is no encroachment upon the constitutional appointive powers as to the judiciary (B.N. A. Act, s. 96) and is not ultra vires. [See also Polson Iron Works v. Munns, 24 D.L.R. 38 (annotated); Colonial Invest. & Loan Co. v. Grady, 24 D.L.R. 176, 8 A.L.R. 496.]

[§ I D—100]—TEMPERANCE ACT—MUNICIPALITY.

The Temperance Act of Quebec (R.S.Q. arts. 1316 to 1328) is of a private and local nature; it has effect only in the localities which adopt it; it has not in view the regulation of the trade generally, but only the particular interest of the municipalities. It is, therefore, constitutional. The Quebec Legislature has the right, without abdicating any of its prerogatives, or any of its rights, to confer upon municipalities the power to prohibit, within their own limits, the trade in intoxicating liquors. So the proceedings taken by a city clerk, at the request of the required number of municipal electors, to convene a public meeting for the purpose of adopting a by-law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in the municipality, are legal. Municipal institutions in this province relieve the legislature; it can organize them as it wishes, and distribute powers as it thinks desirable. It does not violate any principle by leaving the initiative of the adoption or abrogation of any by-law whatsoever jointly to the council and to the municipal electors. The fact that a municipality already had in its charter power to prohibit within its limits the sale of intoxicating liquors, does not withdraw it from the application of the Temperance Act of Quebec, which is a law complete in itself and independent of any municipal charter. The unconstitutionality of an act cannot be pleaded unless 8 days' previous notice has been given to the Atty.-Gen'l. Municipal electors have a right without proving special interest to intervene in an action brought to have declared illegal proceedings having in view the adoption of the Temperance Act of Quebec.

E. SEPARATION OF POWERS.

(§ 1 E—120)—SEPARATION OF POWERS—EXTRA-TERRITORIAL UNDERTAKINGS—GOVERNING PRINCIPLE CONFERRING, NOT ACTUAL EXERCISE, OF POWERS.

Upon a question of provincial as distinct from federal jurisdiction over a railway with a federal charter conferring powers to operate beyond the limits of a province the governing principle is the conferring of such powers and not whether they were actually exercised. [Toronto Corp. v. Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, [1905] A.C. 52, referred to.] Where powers are conferred by the Parliament of Canada for an undertaking extending beyond as well as within the limits of a province and falling within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament, a declaration thereby that such undertaking is a work for the general advantage of Canada is unnecessary to bring it within the ambit of that exclusive jurisdiction and is therefore "unmeaning" and the legislature of such province has no jurisdiction to impose conditions precedent to the exercise of such powers. The restriction introduced by the consolidated Sunday Observance Act of B.C. in 1888, limiting the application of certain Imperial Acts, (including 29 Charles II. c. 7) as to Sunday observance to the old colony of British Columbia, was beyond the competency of the legislature of British Columbia as an infringement upon the exclusive jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada, prior to the delegation of certain powers by Parliament to the provincial legislatures under the Lord's Day Act (Can.), 6 Edw. VII. c. 27, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, s. 5. [See also special case Re Provincial Legislative Jurisdiction on Sunday Observance, 35 Can. S.C.R. 581.] The declaration of the British Columbia legislature limiting to the mainland the operation of certain Sunday observance Imperial Acts (cited in the consolidation of R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 219) does not prevent the application to Vancouver Island of the new general prohibition embraced in s. 5 of the Dominion Lord's Day, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153.

Prohibition Act, is within the powers enumerated in the Public Inquiries Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 110, which empowers the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to appoint a commissioner to inquire into matters connected with the administration of justice in the province. The Public Inquiries Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 110, which empowers the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to appoint a commissioner to inquire into matters connected with the good government of the province, the conduct of public business and the administration of justice is within the provincial legislative powers, under s. 92 of the B.N.A. Such capacity need not be expressly conferred. DOMINION OR PROVINCIAL DOMAIN—INDIAN LANDS.

Crown lands not surveyed and appropriated to the use of Indians prior to July 1, 1867, are not "lands reserved for the Indians" within the meaning of s. 91 (24) of the B.N.A. Act, 1867, and consequently are not under Dominion control: the presumption is that they become vested in the Crown in the right of the province. On the principle omnia præsumentur rite esse acta the order-in-council of 1853 respecting the constitution of the "reserve" being carried out, the surrender thereof by the Indians to the Crown with a trust resulting in their favour has made it subject to Dominion control under s. 91. PUBLIC HARBOURS—WHAT ARE.

English Bay, lying outside the entrance to the harbour of Vancouver, B.C., is not a "public harbour," within the meaning of that term used in the third schedule of the B.N.A. Act, 1867, and, therefore, not "the property of Canada" under s. 108, so as to entitle the Dominion Government to restrain parties from removing gravel from a bank running out from the coast into the bay, necessary for the protection of ships anchoring therein, as a harbour of refuge from storms. INCORPORATION OF COMPANIES—"PROVINCIAL OBJECTIONS."

The limitations of the legislative powers of a province expressed in s. 92 of the B.N.A. Act, 1867, and in particular the limitation of the power of legislation to such as relates to the "incorporation of companies with provincial objects" (subs. 11 of s. 92), confine the character of the actual powers and rights which the provincial government can bestow either by legislation or through the executive, to powers and rights exercisable within the province. Section 92 (11) is wide enough to enable the legislature of the province to keep alive the power of the executive to incorporate by charter in a fashion which confers a general capacity analogous to that of a natural person, with an ambit of vitality wider than that of the geographical limits of the province, except that rights outside of the province would have to be derived from authorities outside of the province.

PROVINCIAL REGULATION OF FENCELOSURE PRACTICE—POWERS OF MASTER.

A Provincial statute which confers upon a Master the extraordinary powers of a judge, in respect of actions for the enforcement of mortgages or agreements for the sale of land, is in conflict with the appointive power of s. 96 of the B.N.A. Act, which provides the appointment of judges by the Governor-General-in-Council, and is therefore ultra vires.

Dufresne v. The King, 5 D.L.R. 501, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 414.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS OF PROVINCE—ACT ALTERING CONDITIONS OF LOAN—NON-RESIDENT BONDHOLDERS—SITUS OF REMEDY ON FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

Where the purchase price of bonds was remitted by the lenders in London to a branch of a Canadian bank in New York, to be applied in carrying out the proposed construction of a railway upon a guarantee of the bonds by the Provincial Government of Alberta, and in pursuance thereof the bank through its head office in Montreal authorized the opening of a credit for the amount in a branch of the same bank in Alberta subject to be drawn upon only upon the terms of the scheme which the province had approved by statute and order-in-council, the province cannot, by declaring a forfeiture of the concession and enacting a statute purporting to alter the conditions of the scheme previously approved, acquire jurisdiction to legislate over the civil right which arose in favour of the bondholders in London to claim from the bank in Montreal, outside of the jurisdiction of the Alberta legislature, a return of the money which they had advanced for a purpose which had ceased to exist. [The King v. Loutch, [1912] A.C. 212, distinguished.] As the effect of the Alberta statute, 1910, c. 9, the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway Bonds Act, if validly enacted would have been to preclude the bank, through which the money of the bondholders was being advanced under the terms of a government concession, from fulfilling its legal obligation accruing and remaining enforceable at a place outside of the Province of Alberta, the statute is ultra vires.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE LAWS.

Under s. 91 (26) of the B.N.A. Act, marriage and divorce are within the exclusive legislative powers of the Dominion Parliament, with the exception of the solemnization of marriage in the province, which is by s. 92 (12) under the exclusive powers of the Legislatures of the province; therefore, s. 36 of the Marriage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 148, empowering the Supreme Court of Ontario to adjudge the invalidity of marriages entered into between persons of prohibited age without the required consent is beyond the powers of the provincial legislature.

Peppiatt v. Peppiatt, 34 O.L.R. 121, 8 O.W.N. 447.

The Act known as the Anti-Treating Act S. ref. [1909] art. 1033a, is constitutional and intra vires of the powers of the legislature of Quebec contained in pars. 8, 15, and 16, of s. 92 of the B. N. A. Act.

Godbout v. Justice Choquet, 56 Que. S.C. 62.

FISHERY LAWS OF QUEBEC—B.N.A. ACT, s. 92 (5), (16)—CRIMINAL LAW.

The fishery laws of Quebec are constitutional because they deal only with the administration of the public lands belonging to the province and touch only upon matters of a purely local nature such as are mentioned in subss. 5 and 16 of s. 92 B.N.A. Act, 1867. When the Legislature of Quebec passes Acts within the powers conferred upon it by the B.N.A. Act, it may provide fine or imprisonment for violation of said Acts without infringing upon the provisions of the B.N.A. Act which gives to the Federal Parliament exclusive power to legislate in criminal matters. The Indians who inhabit the province are British subjects and as such subject to its laws. The Hudson Bay Co., having sold and conveyed to the Government of Canada all the rights and privileges that it possessed under its charter with the exception of that of carrying on the business of trading in furs, is subject to the laws of this province by virtue of arts. 6 and 17 C.C.

A. EQUAL PROTECTION AND PRIVILEGES—ABRIDGEMENT OF IMMUNITIES AND PRIVILEGES.

(§ II A—154)—DENOMINATIONAL SCHOOLS—PROVINCIAL COMMISSION—ABRIDGEMENT OF CONSTITUTIONAL PRIVILEGE.

C. 45 of the Statutes of Ontario, 5 Geo. V., providing for the suspension of the powers of a denominational school board and for conferring such powers upon a commission, is within the legislative powers of the province and does not prejudicially affect any right or privilege with respect to denominational schools guaranteed by s. 93 of the B.N.A. Act, 1867.

V., c. 60, validating the expenditures and obligations of commissioners in reference to the management of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools of Ottawa, incurred under the Act of 5 Geo. V., c. 45, which was later held ultra vires, does not "prejudicially affect any rights or privileges with respect to denominational schools," within the meaning of s. 93 of the B.N.A. Act, and is intra vires; the acts of commissioners, in the circumstances, must be regarded as those of a de facto body, with the right to be recouped of the moneys they had expended in the management of the schools.

Regulation No. 17 (of 1912 and 1913) of the Department of Education for Ontario providing inter alia the manner of conducting schools in districts where the scholars or a majority of them were French-speaking Canadians and making it compulsory that teachers in such schools should understand the English language does not infringe any constitutional right which the supporters of such schools have under the B.N.A. Act, [Mackell v. Ottawa Separate School Trustees, 18 D.L.R. 456, referred to.]

DENOMINATIONAL SCHOOLS—REGULATION—ULTRA VIRES.

The status of the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools of the city of Ottawa depends on the provisions contained in the Separate Schools Act, 1863 (U.C.), and is protected by subs. (1) of s. 93 of the B.N.A. Act. That status cannot be prejudicially affected without an Act of the Imperial legislature, and therefore s. (3) of 5 Geo. V., c. 45 (1915) (Ont.), authorizing the Minister of Education to suspend or withdraw all the rights and powers of the board is ultra vires the Legislature of Ontario.

SCHOOLS—DENOMINATIONAL PRIVILEGES.

The jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature over education is absolute unless it invades certain rights and privileges reserved by s. 93 of the B.N.A. Act; and even if s. 17 of the Saskatchewan Act (4 and 5, Edw. VII, c. 42, Can.) is ultra vires of the Parliament of Canada, the Provincial Legislature would still have power to enact s. 39 of the School Act, which does not prejudicially affect any right or privilege with respect to separate schools under cc. 29 and 30 of the N.W.T. Ordinances, existing at the date of the passing of the Saskatchewan Act, and so does not conflict with s. 93 of the B.N.A. Act. [Ottawa Separate School Trustees v. Mackell, 32 D.L.R. 1; Winnipeg

(§ II A—160)—MARRIAGE LAWS.

Upon the true construction of the B.N.A. Act conferring upon the Parliament of Canada the exclusive legislative authority over "Marriage and Divorce," and upon the Legislature of each province the exclusive power of making laws in relation to the "Solemnization of Marriage in the Province," the Parliament of Canada has no power to amend the Marriage Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 165, by adding thereto either the whole or any of the provisions of a section, providing that every ceremony or form of marriage theretofore or thereafter performed by any person authorized to perform any ceremony of marriage by the laws of the place where it is performed, and duly performed according to such laws, shall everywhere within Canada be deemed to be a valid marriage, notwithstanding any differences in the religious faith of the persons so married and without regard to the religion of the person performing the ceremony; and that the rights and duties as married people of the respective persons married as aforesaid and of the children of such marriage shall be absolute and complete, and that no law or canonical decree or custom of or in any Province of Canada shall have any force or effect to invalidate or qualify any such marriage or any of the rights of the said persons or their children in any manner whatsoever. The powers conferred by subs. 26, s. 91, of the B.N.A. Act upon the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada to make laws in respect to "Marriage and Divorce" are limited by the provisions of subs. 12 of s. 92 of the said act, which confers exclusive jurisdiction upon the Legislatures of each province to make laws relating to "the solemnization of marriage in the province."

(§ II A—178)—REGULATION OF BUSINESS GENERALLY.

Those provisions of the B.C. Companies Act, 10 Edw. VII. (B.C.) c. 7, which impose conditions upon companies incorporated under the Companies Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 79, in order to do business within the Province of British Columbia are not ultra vires. DOMINION POWERS—REGULATION OF TRADE AND COMMERCE—FOREIGN COMPANIES.

The Dominion Parliament, in virtue of the power to regulate trade and commerce under s. 91 (2) of the B.N.A. Act, has jurisdiction to require a foreign company to take out a license from the Dominion Minister, even in a case where the company desires to carry on its business only within the limits of a single province.

AS TO BANKS—SHARE REGISTRY OFFICES.

The Dominion Parliament, for the purpose of carrying into effect its powers as to banks and banking under s. 91 (15) of the B.N.A. Act, has the power to require banks, in the interest of shareholders to maintain share registry offices where their shares may be conveniently transferred, though it in effect operates as a change of the situs of the shares from one province to another; it is no encroachment upon the constitutional powers of the provinces as to "property and civil rights in the province." DOMINION POWERS — RAILWAYS — "GENERAL ADVANTAGE OF CANADA."

The Parliament of Canada has power by subsequent enactment to properly and effectually modify or repeal a declaration under s. 92 (10) B.N.A. Act, 1867, whereupon a railway previously declared "to be for the general advantage of Canada or for two or more of the provinces," becomes again subject to the jurisdiction of the province in which it is situate.

 — INTERFERENCE WITH DOMINION RIGHTS

It is not competent to the Legislature of the Province of Alberta to enact legislation authorizing the construction and operation of railways in such a manner as to interfere with the physical structure or operation of railways subject to the jurisdiction of the federal Parliament.

CARRIERS — "GENERAL ADVANTAGE OF CANADA" — CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTES — EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION

Section 6a of the Railway Act of Canada, 1903 as amended by c. 32 of 1906, s. 2 (re-named substantially in R.S.C. 1906, c. 27, s. 3), subjecting certain railways to provincial legislation and conferring and authorizing such legislation (s. 13) of the Railway Act, 1903, is construed as covering the peculiar status of those railways (and only those railways) declared by the Dominion Parliament to be "works for the general advantage of Canada" and drawn from the provincial jurisdiction to which otherwise they, as provincial undertakings, would have been subject. Where incorporated under an Act of Parliament, a railway and transportation company is not beyond as well as within a certain province, and (b) declaring its undertaking to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, its undertaking falls within the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada conferred by subs. 29 of c. 91 of the R.N.A. Act. [Toronto Corp. v. Bell Telephone Co., [1905] A.C. 22, 10-11 D.L.R. 189.

When a railway company constituted by a provincial Act is, after completion, declared by Parliament to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, it becomes subject to Federal jurisdiction; but it, by a general Act, the company is authorized to purchase and operate another provincial railway which is not declared to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, it remains subject, as to the latter, to provincial jurisdiction. Therefore, the Public Utilities Commission is competent to arbitrate on disagreements provided for by art. 27 of the R.N.A. Act, 1906, which may arise respecting the last mentioned railway between the company and individuals. [Quebec R. Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Langlais, 21 Que. K.R. 107.

DIRECT AND INDIRECT TAXATION — SUCCESSION DUTY.

As a condition for local probate in respect of property situated within a province, payment of a succession duty may be required under provincial legislation, for example R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 217. Where a party dying, domiciled in Manitoba, has by a verbal agreement contracted to erect elevators in another province, but is to retain possession and control over them until they are fully paid for, the debt thus created constitutes "property" within Manitoba and is subject to succession duty under the Succession Duties Act, R.S.M. 4 and 3 Edw. SUCCESSION TAX — PARTICULAR LEGATEE REQUIRED TO PAY INDIRECT TAX — LAW.

The provision of art. 1380, R.S.Q. 1909 (repealed by 4 Geo. V. c. 9) which requires a particular legatee to pay the entire succession duties before being able to demand payment of his legacy imposes an indirect tax, and is, accordingly, unconstitutional and void.

SUCCESSION TAX — "TAXES, DIRECT AND INDIRECT" — LIMITATION OF PROVINCIAL POWERS — SUCCESSION DUTY ORDINANCE, 1903, SESS. 2, C. 5 (ALTA.).

The Succession Duty Ordinance, 1903, 2nd Sess. c. 5 (Alta.), is ultra vires of the provincial legislature even as to property within Alberta of persons domiciled there at time of death, as it purports to make the executor or administrator primarily liable for the succession duty and not the property devolving or the beneficiaries who take the same, and in consequence the ordinance imposes "indirect taxation," which is beyond the powers of the province. [Cotton v. Rex, 15 D.L.R. 283, applied.]

TAXES, DIRECT AND INDIRECT — PROVINCIAL LAW-MAKING POWERS—SUCCESSION TAX.

A succession tax directly laid on property within the province by provincial law is not an indirect tax under the B.N.A. Act although payment thereof must be made or security given therefor concurrently with taking out letters probate to the decedent's estate. [The King v. Lovitt, [1912] A.C. 212; *Cotton v. TAXES, DIRECT AND INDIRECT — LIMITATION OF PROVINCIAL POWERS — SUCCESSION DUTY ACT, 1906 (QUE.).

An impost of taxation by way of succession duty on the devolution of an estate is for an "indirect tax" and therefore beyond the powers of a provincial legislature if the scheme of succession duty statute is to make one person pay duties which he is not intended to bear but to obtain from other persons; and as the Succession Duties Act, 1906 (Que.) is of this character, inasmuch as the notary or administrator making the property declaration for the estate might be held personally liable to the provincial collector of inland revenue for the tax, although not sharing in the benefits of the succession, it is ultra vires of the province where, as in Quebec Province, no local service such as the granting of letters probate is rendered by the government therefor or is required by law.

(§ II A—212)—TAXING POWER — CROWN LANDS—PURCHASERS.

The fact that the Crown has a reversionary interest in land does not thereby render it, as far as the interest of a purchaser is concerned, exempt from taxation under s. 250 (Alta. Stats. 1911-12, c. 3), or s. 125 of the B.N.A. Act, 1867.

CROWN LANDS—GRAZING LEASE.

Though under s. 125 of the B.N.A. Act, 1867, the provinces have no constitutional power to tax Crown lands, that restriction does not prevent them from imposing a tax upon the interest of a tenant of such lands under grazing leases from the Dominion Government.

That a by-law passed by the Dental Council under the provisions of the Dental Practice Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 108, respecting examination for admission to the Dental College, exempted from examination dentists already practising in Saskatchewan, is not an unjust discrimination which would invalidate the by-law. (§ II A—245) — SUNDAY LAWS — DOMINION LORD'S DAY ACT — PROVINCIAL POWER.

The Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, by the proviso in s. 5, enables a province to reduce the scope or mitigate the severity of the general prohibition in respect of the topics mentioned therein, but does not clothe the province with power, either itself to deal generally with the matter of Sunday observance, or to confer such powers on municipalities so as to enlarge the scope of the Dominion Act; and a conviction under a municipal by-law so framed under the municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, cannot be sustained.

(g) of s. 2 of that Act. Up to the enactment of the Lord's Day Act R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, the Sunday observance laws of B.C. stood as they had existed at Confederation in 1867 by virtue of the exclusive jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada.

That part of the Quebec statute 7 Edw. VII. c. 42, as amended by statute 9 Edw. VII. The special powers conferred upon the City of Montreal in 1869, by the legislature of the Province of Canada, 23 Vict., c. 72, to pass by-laws "for the better observance of the Sabbath," not having been repealed by Dominion legislation since Confederation, and having been continued in the Montreal Charter, art. 300, parts 75 and 76, the by-law of that city prohibiting a tradesman from selling goods on Sunday is not ultra vires, such by-law being a mere continuation of the by-law passed by the city in 1865, prior to the B.N.A. Act; and a grocer who kept his store open on Sunday and sold a pound of sugar is properly convicted under that by-law. [Re Sunday Legislation, 35 Can. S.C.R. 581, and Oummet v. Bazin, 20 Can. Cr. among other things, prohibits, under penalty, the giving on Sunday of theatrical performances for gain, is prohibitive and not permissive, and cannot be upheld under s. 16 of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, which permits provincial legislatures to except from its operation any Act which provincial legislation, existing at the time the Federal Act came into force or which might be subsequently enacted, "permitted" to be done. The Act, 7 Edw. VII. (Que.) c. 42, as amended by the statute 9 Edw. VII. A provincial legislature has exclusive legislative authority to regulate matters of procedure and evidence in prosecutions under the provincial statutes even where the offence may be termed a "provincial crime" because punishable by fine or imprisonment. The exclusive control given by the B.N.A. Act (s. 91) to the Federal Parliament in respect of "procedure in criminal matters" does not include procedure with reference to the so-called "provincial crimes." The Animal Contagious Diseases Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 75, does not give a right of action to a buyer of animals who suffers damage from a sale which is illegal under that Act. [Ward v. Hobbs, 30 App. Cas. 13, followed.] In interpreting this statute there must be taken into consideration, in addition to the rules applicable to penal statutes generally, the fact that it is a Dominion statute relating to agriculture, and to hold that it gives a right of action for damages would be to hold that parliament intended to legislate not only for public order and safety, but also over “property and civil rights,” thereby invading the provincial jurisdiction. Where the field is one wherein there is concurrent jurisdiction such intention should not be found in the absence of express enactment or necessary intent.

(§ II B—430)—EVIDENCE ACT—ASSIGNMENTS AND PREFERENCES ACT—EXAMINATION OF ASSIGNOR—QUESTIONS TENDING TO CRIMINATE—CRIMINAL LAW.

Upon the examination, under s. 28 of the Assignments and Preferences Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 134, of a person, who has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors under the Act, he has no right to refuse to answer questions put to him, on the ground that his answers would tend to criminate him—the privilege to refuse to answer which formerly existed has been abrogated by legislative enactment, now contained in s. 7 of the Ontario Evidence Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 76, and recognized by the Canada Evidence Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 145, s. 5 (2). The contention that this privilege was part of the criminal law, and could not therefore be abrogated or restricted except by legislation of the Parliament of Canada, and that the provincial legislation which assumes to take it away is ultra vires, is not well-founded. [Chambers v. Jaffray, 12 O.L.R. 377, approved.] The privilege is a civil right, and may be taken away by a provincial legislature as to matters with respect to which it has authority to legislate, as it has to the matters dealt with by the Assignments and Preferences Act. The question whether sufficient protection has been afforded by the provisions of the Dominion and Ontario Acts to the witness who has been compelled to answer is not for the court, but for Parliament and the legislature, to determine. Semble, if the privilege were part of the criminal law, it had been abrogated by s. 5 (1) of the Canada Evidence Act, as applied by s. 2 of that Act. The B.N.A. Act, s. 91 (27) and s. 92 (13) and (14), considered.

C. POLICE POWER.

(§ II C-440)—LAWS FOR PEACE, ORDER AND GOOD GOVERNMENT — DOMINION POWERS.

The general authority to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada, which the initial part of s. 91 of the B.N.A. Act confers, does not, unless the subject-matter of legislation falls within some of the enumerated heads which follow, enable the Dominion Parliament to trench on the subject-matters entrusted to the provincial legislatures by the enumeration in s. 92 of the Act. (Russell v. The Queen, 7 App. Cas. 829, followed; Hodge v. The Queen, 9 App. Cas. 117; John Deere Plow Co. v. Wharton, 18 D.L.R. 353, [1915] A.C. 330, referred to.)

(§ II C-500)—REGULATION OF MANUFACTURE AND SALE.

(1) It is within the legislative powers of the Dominion Parliament to enact as a part of legislation intended to protect the public against fraud that it shall be a criminal offence for a dealer in watch cases or other plated ware to apply a mark to plated goods purporting to guarantee that the plating would last for a specific time or to advertise to that effect; and the prohibited offence may be made a crime and punished as such, regardless of the question of intent to deceive the public and regardless of the fairness or truth of the warranty.
 (2) Subs. (b) of s. 16 of the Gold & Silver Marking Act, 7 and 8 Edw. VII. (Can.), c. 26, is intra vires.

The King v. Lee, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 480.

(§ II C-502)—HEALTH REGULATIONS — TRADE AND COMMERCE—RESTRICTIONS.

If the aim of a municipal by-law be to provide for the public health as authorized by provincial legislation, the mere fact that it incidentally affects the mode in which persons engaged in trade and commerce shall supply containers or a wrapping for certain classes of goods does not make the subject-matter one of "trade and commerce" exclusively under Federal jurisdiction under the B.N.A. Act.

MUNICIPAL BY-LAW—CHARTER—CONSTITUTIONALITY—NOTICE TO ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

When in a suit before the Recorder's Court of the City of Montreal, the unconstitutionality of a municipal by-law and of a law of the Quebec Legislature purporting to authorize the city to adopt this by-law is raised the recorder must not give judgment on the merits unless the notice required by art. 114 of the Code of Procedure (Que.) had been given to the Att'y-Gen'l of the province; and if the recorder gives a final judgment on the question without requiring that notice his judgment can be set aside on a writ of certiorari.

(§ II C-503)—REGULATION OF SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR.

Section 3 of the Dominion Police Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 92, authorizing the appointment of commissioners of police by the Governor-in-Council and conferring upon them the authority of justices of the peace in matters arising under Dominion laws, is within the legislative powers of the Dominion Parliament. The Dominion Parliament has power to make it a crime to be in possession of liquor for the purpose of giving it or selling it to another person within a defined distance of any public work under construction, and Cr. Code, s. 143, is, therefore, not beyond the legislative power of the Canadian Parliament.

(§ II C-505)—VAGRANCY OFFENCE—PROVINCIAL LAW.

The Superior Court of the Province of Quebec has jurisdiction to entertain a certiorari application in respect of a summary conviction under a Quebec statute, and will grant the preliminary writ of certiorari to bring up the proceedings where the magistrate's jurisdiction is attacked, if the conviction appears to be one under a provincial statute made in the exercise of police powers although for a like offence as is designated vagrancy by Cr. Code, s. 238 (f) —causing public disturbance by being drunk; the provincial jurisdiction in such matters is concurrent with that of the Dominion Parliament unless there is a conflict between the two enactments. G. IMPAIRING OBLIGATIONS OF CONTRACTS. (§ II G-525)—IMPAIRING OBLIGATIONS OF CONTRACTS.

A provincial statute is not ultra vires merely because it may operate as a confiscation of private rights the benefit whereof is thereby applied for the purpose of the public revenue of the province. [Florence Mining Co. v. Cobalt Lake Mining Co., 192 L.T. 375 (P.C.), and 18 O.L.R. 275, specially referred to.]

Contempt of Court: 51 D.L.R. 46.

I. What constitutes.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ I A—1)—BREACH OF COUNSEL'S UNDERTAKING ON CLIENT'S BEHALF—CLIENT'S LIABILITY.

An undertaking given by counsel on behalf of his client, and with the knowledge of the client may be enforced against the client by process of contempt, and in the case of a company by sequestration. [D. v. A. & Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 484, and Millburn v. Newton Colliery (1898), 52 Sol. J. 317, referred to.]

St. Clair v. Stair, 9 D.L.R. 377, 4 O.W.N. 808, 24 O.W.R. 45.

SEIZURE BY GARNISHMENT AFTER JUDGMENT—MARRIED WOMAN—REFUSAL TO ANSWER—CONTEMPT OF COURT—QUE. C.P. 686, 834.

A married woman ordered, as garnishee, to answer certain additional questions, cannot refuse to do so on the pretext that she cannot testify against her husband, or that the rejection of her evidence would then be asked for until the final judgment is rendered, the judgment ordering her to answer is res judicata. If she persists in refusing to answer, she may be imprisoned for contempt of court.

Cole v. Birchough, 15 Que. P.R. 345.
(§ I A—4)—FILING REPEATED MOTIONS—OPPOSITION.

The fact that after an opposition was dismissed as frivolous another based upon the same ground was filed by the opposant and also dismissed, is not sufficient in itself to constitute a contempt of court by the latter when his attorneys declare that these oppositions were dismissed in their absence and by inadvertence on their part.

Chabot v. Lauzier, 51 Que. S.C. 197.

B. CHARGE AGAINST JUDGE—PUBLICATION AS TO PENDING CASE OF JUDICIAL DECISION.

(§ I B—5)—NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

To support a charge of contempt of court against a newspaper editor for published comment about a pending case, the comment must be such as to manifest that the object is to taint the source of justice and to obtain a result of legal proceedings different from that which would follow in the ordinary course.

(§ I B—7)—NEWSPAPER CHARGING MISCONDUCT OF CROWN PROSECUTOR.

For a newspaper to falsely publish pending the prosecution of a criminal charge that the Crown prosecutor had proceeded with the preliminary enquiry without the authority of the Attorney-General and that he was engaged in prosecution and seeking notoriety in the matter, is contempt of court punishable summarily on a motion to the Superior Court of criminal jurisdiction by committal or fine, as tending to impair the administration of justice; the article could not be considered as one directed to a criticism of the Attorney-General's department as a branch of the public service so as to be exempt on that score. [Meriden Britannia Co. v. Walters; Re Lewis, 25 D.L.R. 167, referred to.]

BEFORE JUSTICES—JURISDICTION.

A justice of the peace not being police magistrate, district magistrate or magistrate (Cr. Code, s. 607), has no power to commit for contempt for insulting statements made to him by the person being tried under the summary convictions clauses. [Young v. Saylor, 23 O.R. 513, 29 A.R. (Ont.) 645, followed.]

FAILURE OF SHERIFF TO EXECUTE WRIT OF REPLEVIN—DEFENCES.

The neglect or refusal of a sheriff to execute a writ of replevin after he had been furnished the statutory indemnity renders him subject to attachment for contempt of court; and it is no defence that at the time the writ was issued the animal therein mentioned was dead or that it was fera natura and consequently not recoverable.

HABEAS CORPUS—DISOBEDIENCE OF WRIT BY MILITARY OFFICER—ATTACHMENT—SHERIFF—POSSE COMITATUS.

The refusal of a military officer to obey an order of a judge of the Supreme Court commanding him to appear in court with a drattee in his custody who has applied by way of habeas corpus for his discharge, is not legally justified by the orders of a superior officer not to do so, or by an invalid order-in-council directing military officers to disregard such orders by the court. If the command of the writ of habeas corpus is disobeyed the usual remedy by attachment may be resorted to; and in addition the court may, by appropriate writ, order the sheriff to take the body of the drattee and produce him in court, and in either case if the sheriff meets with resistance his duty is to take with him armed men in his district and go in person to execute the writ. [Statute of Westminster (2nd) 1285, c. 39, ss. 22-24.]

DISOBEDIENCE.

Plaintiff served notice of motion to attach for failure to comply with an order of the court, such notice being returnable before the court at a sittings thereof appointed for trials. On the motion being made, the Chief Justice refused to hear it, but granted a summons returnable in Chambers at Regina for the purpose of the motion. This summons having come on to be heard,—Held, that such applications should not be made to the court at regular sittings appointed for trials. (2) That no procedure for motion to attach being provided in the rules of court, the English practice prevails, and that practice requires notice of motion to be given; the summons was, therefore, irregular, and, as in such proceedings the practice should be strictly observed, the order should be refused.

CONTEMPT OF COURT—WITNESS—REFUSAL TO ANSWER—IMPRISONMENT—C.C.P. ARTS. 339, 334.

A witness is not the judge of the relevancy or irrelevancy of a question and cannot refuse to answer because he believes the question has nothing to do with the case. And if he persists in his refusal, although ordered to answer by the judge, he may be condemned for contempt of court to be imprisoned for a year, or until he should be willing to give his evidence.

While there is an appeal to this court from a judgment of the Superior Court ordering coercive imprisonment for contempt of any process or order of court, the subject of such appeal should be limited to an inquiry as to whether or not the forms and rules of law and procedure have been complied with.

Eliasoph v. The Towle Maple Products Co. & The Canada Maple & Exchange, 25 Rev. Leg. 178.

(§ 1 C—11)—REFUSAL TO ANSWER EXAMINATION—SERVICE OF FORMAL ORDER.

An application for an order to compel the defendant for contempt in refusing to answer certain questions on examination in aid of an execution will be denied when based only on the service of a copy of the judge's memorandum of the order he had made directing the defendant to answer where the memorandum did not clearly indicate what questions were directly to be answered; a formal order should first have been taken out in which at least the subject in respect of which the defendant must submit to further examination should be clearly indicated.

(§ 1 C—13)—OF ORDER TO PAY—IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT ACT.

A debtor cannot be committed for contempt for disobedience of an order directing him to pay the amount of a judgment by instalments, where the circumstances referred to in ss. 15 and 19 of the Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt Act, R.S.B.C. c. 12, do not exist.

OF CONSENT JUDGMENT—JURISDICTION OF RAILWAY AND MUNICIPAL BOARD—MANAGER OF COMPANY—FAILURE TO SHEW DUTIES AND POWERS OF.

A judgment pronounced upon the consent of the parties is nevertheless a judgment of the court; and any disobedience of its directions is punishable in the same way as if it had not been based on consent. If it be shown that the disobedience of a judgment of the court by a corporation is the act of its manager, an order for his commitment may properly be made; by r. 553, a judgment against a corporation wilfully disobeyed may be enforced by attachment against the directors or other officers of the corporation; and a manager or other officer who had the power or whose duty it was to do an act which the corporation was ordered to do would come within the rule. But in this case, where it was sought to commit the general manager of the defendant company because the company had neglected or refused to comply with the judgment referred to, an order for his committal was set aside, because there was nothing before the court to shew what his duties or powers were, or that the furnishing of the statement was a duty which, as manager, he had to perform.

SALE OF PROPERTY BY JUDGMENT DEBTOR TO DEFEAT EXECUTION.

The sale sous seing privé by a debtor of his property before its seizure, but after judgment has been obtained against him, does not subject him to a rule nisi with arrest for contempt of court on the ground that it had prevented the seizure and sale of his property in execution of the judgment.

DISOBEDIENCE OF INJUNCTION FORBIDDING RECEIPT OF MONEY.

A person forbidden by a restraining order from receiving any money out of a railway subsidy fund pending an action for the determination of rights thereunder is bound by the order so long as it remains undischarged, and his acceptance of money in breach of such order constitutes a contempt, although the payments were made by the Crown. INJUNCTION—APPEAL—STAY.

The judgment pronounced at the trial of this action directed the immediate delivery by the defendant to the plaintiffs of possession of the lands in question, and restrained the defendant from trespassing upon or in any way interfering with the plaintiffs' possession. The Trial Judge directed that the defendant should be allowed to occupy the house and barns on the lands "for 15 days, or until appeal, if any, may be had." An appeal having been lodged, and the defendant continuing to occupy the house and barns, the plaintiffs moved for his committal for contempt of court.—Held, that, an appeal having been lodged, the situation was governed by the rules; and the effect of r. 496, coupled with r. 498, was to stay all further proceedings in the action other than the issue of the judgment and the taxation of costs. The effect of the injunction not being stayed (r. 496), but the plaintiffs not being in a position, by reason of the stay of other proceedings, to enforce their judgment for immediate possession, and not being in actual possession—that the defendant was not guilty of a breach of the injunction. The plaintiffs' proper course would be to apply under r. 496 to a judge of a Divisional Court to remove the stay.

INJUNCTION—STYLE—SECURITY—SERVICE OF ORDER.

In the issuing of an interlocutory injunction, a failure to comply with the formalities required by law, such as not having previously furnished security for costs and failing to serve upon the defendant an order signed by the judge, but instead only a copy of the petition bearing an indorsement that a temporary injunction had been granted, signed merely with the judge's initials and intitled "temporary injunction," may give occasion for the contestation of the injunction, but will not justify a refusal to obey it. In doing that which is enjoined not to do there is a contempt of court. It is not necessary that an injunction should have been served upon the person restrained in order that he should be obliged to obey it. From the time that he has knowledge that it has been issued he renders himself guilty of contempt of court by doing any act which he is forbidden to perform by the order issued.

II. Procedure.

[§ II—15]—PROCEDURE—"BENEFIT OF DOUBT" TO DEFENDANT, WHEN.

On an application to commit a defendant for contempt of court for disobeying a judgment restraining him from proceeding with the erection of a building on the ground that it is in contravention of certain building restrictions, any doubt as to the time, construction and meaning of the restrictions should be resolved in favour of the defendant.

WRIT OF ATTACHMENT—NOTICE OF MOTION FOR ORDER TO COMMIT—PERSONAL SERVICE.

The defendant was found to be in contempt for not producing and delivering to the plaintiff the possession of a certain infant, as required by a judgment of the court. The notice of motion was for an order to commit the defendant, and was served upon her personally with a copy of the judgment; but she did not appear upon the return. An order was made, not for committal, but for the issue of a writ of attachment, that being deemed the more appropriate remedy. Rules 545, 546, and 547, considered. Review of the English authorities:—Held, that there was power to order the issue of a writ or attachment, although the notice of motion was for an order to commit. [Piper v. [§ II—16]—PROCEDURE—IN WHOSE NAME PROSECUTED.

Commitment for disobedience of an injunction restraining the defendant in his disposal of certain property is to be based on a wilful disregard of the order itself, and is a question between the offender and the court, limited so strictly to the actual order that no agreement between counsel for the parties can be read into it to support a commitment not within the strict terms of the order.

[§ II—19]—PROCEDURE—AFFIDAVITS—SERVICE ON RESPONDENT.

[§ II—22]—OPPORTUNITY TO DEFEND SPECIFIC CHARGE.

A conviction for the criminal offense of contempt of court can be made only where the specific charge against the accused has been distinctly stated and he has been given an opportunity of answering it. [Chang Hang v. Piggott, [1909] A.C. 312, applied; Re Pollard, L.R. 2 P.C. 106, referred to.]

B. OF COURT.

[§ III B—35]—INTERFERENCE WITH FAIR TRIAL.

The disciplinary power of the court to punish for contempt the publisher of a newspaper making improper comment on a pending case is to be sparingly and carefully exercised, and it must be shown that it was probable that the publication would substantially interfere with a fair trial. Contempt of court being a criminal offence, the person charged must be specifically named in the application to commit, and an application to amend by adding the name of such person will be refused.

IV. Judgment; punishment.

(§ IV—40)—MANDAMUS — DISOBEDIENCE — SCHOOL TRUSTEES — TOWNSHIP COUNCILLORS — COSTS — SOLICITOR AND CLIENT.

The end to be attained by a motion to commit for contempt of court persons who refuse to obey an order, is obedience, and not vindictive punishment. In contempt cases, solicitor and client costs may be awarded. Where tardy obedience was yielded to orders, made upon the application of ratepayers, directing the trustees of a continuation school to discharge their duty by opening and carrying on the school, and directing the township council to fill vacancies in the board of school trustees, no order was made upon motions to commit the trustees and the members of the council except that the applicants' costs of the motions should be paid out of the corporate funds of the school board and township corporation respectively, and that those costs should be taxed as between solicitor and client. Seemingly, where a mandamus is granted and treated with contempt, the extreme remedy found in r. 552 is open and appropriate.

V. Purging for contempt.

(§ V—50)—PURGING CONTEMPT—INJUNCTION.

Where the defendant moves to dissolve an injunction restraining him "until further order from interfering with the plaintiff in his use and occupancy of" certain premises, and where upon this motion coming up for hearing it appears that a prior motion to commit the defendant for breach of the injunction had been instituted, the motion to commit will, under the Alberta practice, take precedence over that to dissolve, and, it appearing that the defendant had been guilty of contempt by disobeying the injunction, such contempt must be purged before the application to dissolve will be heard.

CESATION OF ACT NOT PURGING—IRREGULARITIES.

A contempt by disobedience of the court's injunction is not purged by mere cessation from the act giving rise to it; a technical irregularity in the motion to commit by reason of noncompliance with r. 298 (Ont.), may be condoned by the court. CONTINUANCE AND ADJOURNMENT.

I. IN GENERAL.

II. GROUNDS FOR.

III. AFFIDAVITS FOR.

I. IN GENERAL.

(§ I—1)—INHERENT JURISDICTION "TO ENTER CONTINUANCES" FROM COURT TO COURT, NUNC PRO TUNC.

Where an Appellate Court is permanent and continuing, it has inherent power to adjourn from one sitting to another and in a proper case "to enter continuances" from court to court, nunc pro tunc, by virtue of which a pending appeal may, where a hearing day has been allowed to pass, be revived and brought to a hearing. [R. v. Justices of Oxfordshire, 1 M. & S. 446; R. v.

DISCRETION OF MAGISTRATE.

Unless it appears that the refusal of a magistrate to grant an adjournment of the hearing results in the accused being prevented from making his "full answer and defence" (Cr. Code, s. 715), the magistrate's bona fide exercise of discretion cannot be reviewed. [R. v. Irwing, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 489, referred to.]

R. v. Tally, 21 D.L.R. 651, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 449, 8 A.L.R. 453, 7 W.W.R. 1178, 39 W.L.R. 296.

When the roll is too heavy (during the vacation) for the presiding judge to hear the case, such an adjournment does not constitute a postponement, according to the terms of the lawyers' tariff. Item 45 applies only when a postponement takes place with the consent of the parties when the court is ready to hear the case, or when the case is postponed at the request of one of the parties, when the other party was ready.

Baudin v. Union Abitibi Co., 16 Que. P.R. 228.

(§ 1—2)—FOR CROSS-EXAMINATION—WHEN REFUSAL JUSTIFIED.

The court hearing a prohibition motion has a discretion to refuse an adjournment for the purpose of cross-examination upon an affidavit, where the adjournment would be against justice.

LIMITATIONS OF CRIMINAL.

The delay of 8 clear days which must not be exceeded between two remands upon a preliminary enquiry does not apply to the case of an accused who is held on bail. The Cr. Code, s. 479, in stating that the accused cannot be detained in prison more than 8 clear days between two adjournments ipso facto permits an adjournment until the ninth day, as the statute expressly provides that the day following the remand is to be counted as the first day.

Diek v. The King, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 44, 13 Que. P.R. 57.

(§ 1—3)—DATE OF ADJOURNMENT.

The court may extend the time for renewing a motion if it has lapsed through a misunderstanding as to the date to which the previous motion was enlarged, particularly where the enlargement was not recorded. Where there are no fixed days for holding Chambers, and an enlargement is made of a summons upon an application to vary the clerk's report, and for other purposes, until after vacation, without a date being fixed for hearing the application, it need not be taken up on the first day after vacation when Chambers may be held, but may be heard at any time upon giving the opposite party 2 clear days' notice.

(§ 1—4)—CRIMINAL LAW—SUMMARY TRIAL BY MAGISTRATE—ADJOURNMENT SINE DIE FOR DELIBERATION.

Where the magistrate who had heard the evidence on a summary trial had adjourned to a fixed date for judgment but, being unable to then attend, another magistrate took his place and further adjourned the case sine die, the conviction recorded by the first magistrate at a later date when the accused was again brought before him is invalid, as any adjournment must be to a day certain. [See R. v. Morse, 22 N.S.R. 298; R. v. Quinn, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 153; Plante v. Cliche, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 43, 38 Que. S.C. 542; Cairns v. Choquet, 3 Que. P.R. 25; R. v. Smith, 10 Can. Cr. R. v. Wilson, 19 D.L.R. 797, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 256, 1 W.W.R. 160.

ADJOURNMENT FOR JUDGMENT IN SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

A summary conviction by two justices following a reservation of judgment to a fixed date is not invalid because then delivered by one of them in the unavoidable absence of the other, where both had met on a prior day and had then concurred in written reasons for judgment and signed the formal conviction. [Ex parte McCorquindale, R. v. Haines (1908), 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 187, 39 N.B.R. 49, discussed.]

SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS—RESERVING JUDGMENT WITHOUT FIXING DATE.

In the absence of prejudice to the accused, a summary conviction by a justice is valid, although there had been an adjournment without any date fixed for rendering judgment, if the magistrate beforehand has given notice to the solicitor for the accused. [R. v. Quinn, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 153, distinguished.]

Bedard v. The King, 30 D.L.R. 326, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 99, 22 Rev. Leg. 392.

SUMMARY CONVICTION—ADJOURNMENT WITHOUT DAY.

It is a ground for certiorari that a judgment of a summary conviction was pronounced in the absence of the accused at a date later than that at which the evidence was concluded but without formal announcement to the parties of the time when judgment will be delivered.

Ex parte Pelchat, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 75, 49 Que. S.C. 195.

CANCELLING POSTPONEMENT.

The judge at the Assizes may, after postponing till the next Assizes the trial of a person accused of murder on account of the absence of a witness, order the trial to be proceeded with at the same Assizes if the witness is produced.

R. v. Reed, 21 Man. L.R. 785.

If on the hearing of a summary conviction matter, counsel for the complainant and for the accused agree that judgment may be reserved without fixing a date for same, other than that the decision shall be given within one week, and shall be notified to the respective solicitors, and the magistrate acquiesces in and conforms to such arrangement, he does not thereby lose jurisdiction and a conviction made within the week should not be set aside.

II. Grounds for.

(§ II—5)—TO PRODUCE EXPERT TESTIMONY AS TO FUNCTION OF DYNAMITE—CAUSE OF EXPLOSION.

It is a proper exercise of discretion in refusing to adjourn a trial for the purpose of enabling a defendant, who had been unaware of the turning point in a case as to the cause of an explosion, to obtain expert testimony as to the action of dynamite, where the evidence at the trial shows that the injuries were caused by contact with an unexploded hole, in contravention of statutory regulations, and not with loose powder in the muck.

GROUND FOR—ATTENDANCE IN PARLIAMENT.

The plaintiff who is a member of the House of Commons has not, for that reason alone, a right to have the trial of his action stayed during a session even if he is to give evidence himself but the court will order a stay if he advances sufficient reasons for wishing to absent himself.

Forget v. Simmeler, 14 Que. P.R. 335.

(§ II—6)—ABSENCE OF COUNSEL.

The magistrate has a discretion to grant an adjournment of the hearing in order that the defendant may obtain counsel, but where the accused failed to ask for counsel or for an adjournment until after the evidence for the prosecutor was closed, the magistrate's refusal to adjourn will not invalidate the conviction.

The King v. Pfister, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 92, 3 O.W.N. 440.

(§ II—7)—CRIMINAL TRIAL—AFFIDAVITS.

An application by the accused to postpone a criminal trial because of the absence of his witnesses is to be made after plea pleaded, and although in an ordinary case an affidavit in common form is sufficient, yet where from the nature of the case, or from the affidavit on the opposite side, the court has reason to suspect that the application is not made bona fide for the purpose of obtaining material evidence but merely for delay, the court will require to be satisfied specially by affidavit (a), that the persons are material witnesses; (b) that there has been no neglect in omitting to apply to them and endeavouring to procure their attendance, and (c) that there is reasonable expectation of counsel being able to procure their attendance at the future date if a postponement be granted. (§ II—8)—CRIMINAL TRIAL—PREJUDICE OF JURY BY PRESS COMMENTS.

The postponement of a criminal trial should be ordered on motion of the accused, where the court is satisfied upon the affidavits filed on the motion that the minds of the jurymen in attendance have been affected to the prejudice of the accused by the publication of press notices stating that the accused had confessed the crime. TO PAY FOR SERVICES—PROMISE OF LEGACY.

Where a person often served as the testator's guide for fishing and hunting, without an agreement as to wages, but by the testator's promise that he would provide for him in his will, which he did not do, a universal legatee must pay the value of the services of such persons for the period of time not prescribed.

Where there has been no agreement for payment of any definite amount as remuneration for personal services in looking after an aged person, the fact that a fixed monthly allowance had been for a long time paid and accepted, will not bar a claim for a larger allowance for a later period, during which the services were more onerous by reason of the illness of the aged person during which the usual allowance was not paid.

SERVICES RENDERED BY NIECE—PRESUMPTION.

The defendant had at her request brought her aunt to her (the defendant's) house; the aunt, who was suffering from an incurable disease, continued to live with and be cared for by the defendant for nearly a year, when the aunt and the defendant both went to reside with defendant's sister, where the defendant looked after the aunt until her death. The court held, under the circumstances of the case, that large sums of money paid by the aunt to the defendant were intended to enable the defendant to defray the costs of maintenance, nursing, medical supplies and other necessities of the aunt, and that, in accounting, the defendant was entitled to a reasonable sum for her services in addition to the money disbursed on the aunt's account. The evidence was sufficient to rebut the presumption of gratuitous service on account of the relationship.

(§ I B—9)—IMPLIED AGREEMENTS—PURCHASE PRICE PAYABLE WHEN OTHER GOODS SOLD.

Under an agreement that payment for goods is to be made when certain other goods then in the possession of the buyer were sold by him, there is an implied agreement that such goods are to be sold within a reasonable time, and in the absence of very special circumstances the keeping of such goods for 6 years after the contract was made is not selling them within a reasonable time.

TIME IN WHICH CONTRACTS ARE TO BE PERFORMED.

Where a party to a contract undertakes to do some particular act, the performance of which depends entirely on himself, so that he may choose his own mode of fulfilling his undertaking, and the contract is silent as to time, the law implies a contract to do the act within a reasonable time under the circumstances; and, if some unforeseen cause over which he has no control prevents him from performing what he has undertaken within that time, he is responsible for the damage. C. CONSIDERATION.

(§ I C—10)—CONSIDERATION FOR OPTION—EFFECT OF REPUDIATING ON TIME LIMIT.

Where an option is given for a consideration for a limited time from its date and is later amended, and related as of the date of the amendment without further payment, the amended option as to the time for which no consideration was paid is a new agreement without consideration, and is revocable at any time before acceptance. *Archdekin v. (§ I C—12)—FOR OPTION.

Where the plaintiff relies on an extension of an existing option to purchase land, or the making of a new option, it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove that he gave consideration for the same.

OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND.

When a right to purchase is part of a demise of lands, there is consideration; when the option is exercised before revocation mutual obligations are created.

CONSIDERATION—OPTION GIVEN TENANT TO PURCHASE DEMISED LANDS—REVOCAION.

An option given in a lease to a tenant to purchase the demised premises at any time during the term, is based on a sufficient consideration, i.e., the creation of the tenancy, and is not revocable at the will of the lessor, although not under seal.

Where the consideration upon which an agreement to give money or property or a security is illegal, e.g., the stiling of a criminal prosecution, the money or property cannot be recovered back or the security set aside at the instance of the person who has agreed to give it, on the ground of the illegality of the transaction, if it is no longer executory but has been carried into execution. (§ 1 C-15)—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION—SHARES—COMPANY NOT FORMED.

There is an important distinction between the interest which a shareholder has in a lease owned by the company and the interest a partner has in a lease owned by the partnership; and an agreement, whereby one agrees to assign his share of commissions earned in the negotiation of oil leases in consideration of shares to be issued to him out of a company to be formed in taking over those leases, does not, in the absence of positive evidence that he shall become a joint owner or partner of the leases, effete the creation of such an interest therein as debarring him from retaining his commissions upon a failure of consideration resulting from the nonlotation of the company.

Adams v. Acheson, 26 D.L.R. 633.

CONSIDERATION—NECESSITY, LACK OF—WRITING SILENT AS TO—EFFECT—OVS.

(§ 1 C-20)—CONSIDERATION—SUFFICIENCY—PAST SERVICES RENDERED WITHOUT PREVIOUS REQUEST.

A promise to compensate a person for past services rendered as an act of mere friendliness, and without a previous request, will not support a subsequent promise to pay therefor, nor entitle the promisee to sue for a quantum meruit.

CONSIDERATION FOR COVENANT IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE—REASONABLENESS—INFLECTION.

The employment forms a sufficient consideration for a covenant by an employee in restraint of his trade.

(§ 1 C-25)—INADEQUACY AS GROUND FOR REFUSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Specific performance will not be refused on the sole ground of inadequacy of consideration unless the disparity in price is so great as to shock the conscience and constitute in itself a badge of fraud.

Baxter v. Rollo, 5 D.L.R. 764, 18 B.C.R. 369, 21 W.L.R. 892, 2 W.W.R. 786.

(§ 1 C-26)—TO WILL PROPERTY.

A binding contract arises from the performance, by a woman, of household work, for a man in consideration of his promise to make her a testamentary gift of all of his property. [See also McGugan v. Smith, 21 Can. S.C.R. 263, and Kinsey v. National Trust Co., 15 Man. L.R. 32.]

PROJECT TO KEEP BOARDERS—RELINQUISHMENT OF—VALID CONSIDERATION—LIFE ANNUITY.

The relinquishment by a niece of the testator of a project of keeping boarders, in order to support herself and her mother, held to have been a valid consideration for an agreement by the testator to provide her with a life annuity. A compromise of a disputed claim which is honestly made constitutes valuable consideration, even if the claim ultimately turns out to be unfounded.

MAINTENANCE OF AGED—MONEYS IN JOINT ACCOUNT—PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES.

Where a letter addressed to a bank in which deceased has his moneys deposited, directing the bank to open an account in the names of the deceased, his wife, and daughter, and authorizing the bank to pay all moneys to the credit of such account to any one of the three and the survivor or survivors and signed by all three, is shown to be in pursuance of an agreement whereby the daughter and her husband were to take care of deceased and his wife during their lives, in return for which he was to give them all his property, and where the agreement is being carried out and the widow of the deceased is living with the daughter and is strenuously opposing the action, which is in the circumstances not improvident, an action against the mother and daughter for a declaration, that the money in the bank belongs to the personal representatives, will be dismissed. SUBSCRIPTION FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSE.

A subscription whereby a certain sum of money is promised towards the erection and equipment of a building for the Y.M.C.A. in reliance of which liabilities are incurred and other subscriptions obtained, forms a sufficient consideration for a contract and is enforceable even before the completion of the building. [Sargent v. Nicholson, 25 D.L.R. 638, followed.]

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSE.

A written promise to contribute a certain sum of money towards the erections of a building for the Y.M.C.A. in reliance of which advances have been made and liabilities incurred, forms a valid and binding contract which cannot thereafter be revoked by the promissor, and is enforceable against him on behalf of the association. [Re Hudson, 54 L.J. Ch. 811, distinguished; Williams v. CONSIDERATION—NATURAL AND MORAL OBLIGATION—PAROL EVIDENCE—GIFT—CHEQUE—QUE. C.C. 762, 776, 777, AND 984—R.S.C., c. 119, ss. 158, 165.

Natural obligation and simple moral obligation are sufficient to render a gift a binding contract. Engagements thus contracted, with the object of fulfilling a natural or moral obligation, are valid without the fulfilment of the special formalities required by law for gifts. A father who promises to pay the price of a lot which his son wishes to purchase, and also to pay the cost of constructing a house which the said son wishes to build thereon, engages himself sufficiently to produce a civil obligation, and the contract resulting therefrom is binding. Such an obligation may be proved by witnesses. The act of a father who, two days previous to his death, gives to his son two cheques, which are presented at the bank and which the bank refuses to pay because of insufficiency of funds, does not constitute a manual gift.

Legris v. Chene, 23 Que. K.B. 571.

(§ I C—33)—PERFORMANCE OF EXISTING OBLIGATION.

Where one enters into an agreement to purchase certain shares of stock for cash, and subsequently substitutes for such agreement a new agreement to deliver certain bonds in exchange for the shares, and to sell the bonds within a certain time for the face value thereof, the agreement to sell the bonds is not without consideration as being merely collateral to the main transaction, but is part thereof, and can be enforced.

Martin v. Munns, 3 D.L.R. 435, 3 O.W.N. 1055.

(§ I C—37)—FORBEARANCE TO SET ASIDE SALE.

A forbearance from proceeding to set aside a judicial sale of land is sufficient consideration to sustain a promise by the highest bidder to pay the difference between what the land will bring at a future sale and what he paid for it.

Leslie v. Stevenson, 24 D.L.R. 544, 34 O.L.R. 473, varying 23 D.L.R. 776, 34 O.L.R. 93.

FORBEARANCE TO SUE.

Where a landlord in misconception of his legal rights bona fide believing that a lease had been terminated, forbears bringing an action to enforce this claim against a tenant who is in possession claiming to have exercised an option to renew contained in the original lease, for a further term of five years, by an unsigned notice in writing, such forbearance is sufficient consideration to support the compromise effected whereby two years of the alleged renewed term was surrendered. TRANSACTION—REASON OR CONSIDERATION — LITIGATION — PRIVILEGES — MIS- TAKE OF LAW—C.C. ARTS. 1918, 1921.

The reasonable fear of being sued is a sufficient cause or consideration for a transaction. In order to decide if there is a case for litigation between the parties it is necessary to place oneself in the position of the parties interested. In a transaction concessions can only be made by one of the parties. A mistake of law cannot be invoked in a transaction.

D. MEETING OF MINDS; DEFINITENESS; OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE.

(§ I D—45)—MISTAKE—REFORMATION— NECESSARY PROOF.

To justify reformation on the ground of mistake, proof must be clear and convincing and upon testimony that is unexceptionable both with regard to the agreement actually made by the parties and the mutuality of the mistake from which the different agreement was inserted in the document sought to be reformed. REALTY CONTRACT — CONSENT OBTAINED THROUGH FALSE REPRESENTATIONS.

An agreement between a real estate agent and a husband and wife, both illiterate, by which they transferred to him their property value at over $1,000 in consideration of nine promissory notes of $100 each, one payable each year, but which notes he had fraudulently represented to them as immediately negotiable at all banks, is fraudulent and void.

SALE — JURISDICTION — CORRESPONDENCE —C.C. ART. 1472—C.C.P. ART. 94.

Where the parties correspond with each other in order to make a contract and each letter contains new conditions there is no concurrence of minds and therefore no perfect contract. In this case the delivery of merchandise, the sale having been made in the district of Roberval and the payment in the district of St. Francois, the whole cause of action did not arise in the same district. The tribunal which has jurisdiction is the one at the home district of the defendant, where the action has been brought against him.

(§ I D—46)—MISTAKE OR FRAUD.

Where a contract for the sale of certain machinery was neither read over nor explained to the purchasers other than the part that dealt with the description of the machinery, and a provision that the damages for a breach thereof should be a certain per cent of the price of the machinery was not read over to them or in any way brought to their notice, and the vendor's agent knew that one of the purchasers could neither read nor write and that the other could not read the proposed contract so as to understand it, both being foreigners with little if any education, there was no agreement on their part to the per cent fixed as damages for breach or to any other part of the contract than the order for the machinery.

(§ I D—4)—JOINT OBLIGATION—INCOMPLETE EXECUTION.

(§ I D—59)—LACK OF MUTUALITY—MATERIAL ALTERATION—PLACE OF PAYMENT.

In a land contract the place of payment of the purchase money is a material term, and where, on its execution by the intending purchaser, he alters, without the consent of the vendor, the formal contract of sale already executed and forwarded by the vendor, by changing the place of the payment of the purchase money, or inserting a stipulation that payments shall be "at par" at the city where the purchaser lives (the vendor being in another jurisdiction and executing the document therein), such amounts to a material alteration, and the contracts may be avoided by the vendor.

MUTUALITY—DEALING IN OPTIONS ON STOCK EXCHANGE—PRIVITY OF CLEARING ASSOCIATION.

In the purchase and sale of options by a customer on a stock exchange which uses a clearing house to clear such transactions, privity of contract between the clearing house and the customer is sufficiently established when the association, under the usages of the exchange, assumes the position of buyer to each seller and that of seller to each buyer in respect thereof with the result that all such transactions become merged in the process of clearing.

DIFFERENCE IN CONTRACTS—INTERPLETION IN ONE COPY—SALE OF SHARES—CORPORATION.

Where the question in an action by the owner of certain mining stock for the specific performance of an agreement which he alleged to be for the sale of the shares was whether the instrument was an option or a contract for sale, and it appeared at the trial that the agreement was made in duplicate in the handwriting of the plaintiff and that his duplicate contained a statement following his agreement to sell that the purchaser agreed to take the stock, which statement was absent from the defendant's duplicate, and the evidence as to what occurred at the execution of the agreement consisted of conflicting statements of the parties and of the testimony of one witness who corroborated one party as much as the other, so that there was no preponderance in the plaintiff's favour, the fact that the instrument contained the further provision that the stock was to be transferred three months after the date of the instrument "without interest" while hardly applicable to the case of a mere option, was not sufficient to establish the plaintiff's claim that it was a contract for sale.

SALE OF GOODS—CORRESPONDENCE—FAILURE TO SHEW CONSENSUS AD IDEM.

Hay v. Green, 11 O.W.N. 97.

(I D—52)—OMISSION OF TERMS OF MORTGAGE FROM CONTRACT—INCOMPLETE CONTRACT.

The omission from a written contract for the sale of lands of the time when the principal is to mature under a mortgage to be given by the purchaser as security for payment of a portion of the purchase price, the contract specifying only the amount and the rate of interest, is of such a material portion of the agreement as to render it incomplete in a particular that could not be supplied by implication, and enforcement of the contract will be refused where no case is made out for a reformation of the document.

MUTUALITY—CONTRACT FOR SALE OF LAND.

Where the defendant, who had contracted to sell land to a purchaser, agreed with him to convey it directly to the plaintiff, to whom the defendant's vendee had resold it, upon the remainder of the purchase money due being paid him, there is sufficient mutuality between the plaintiff and the defendant to permit the specific performance of the agreement to convey to the plaintiff.

MUTUALITY IN CONTRACT FOR SALE OF LAND—ALTERATION IN TERMS—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Graydon v. Gorrie, 10 D.L.R. 826, 4 O.W.N. 704, 24 O.W.R. 23.

SALE OF REAL PROPERTY.

The defendant offered to sell his land to the plaintiff by letter in the following terms: "With reference to lot 5, block 19, Edmonton, I will take $1,000 for it, half cash and the balance in 6 months with interest 5 per cent, or I will give you 10 per cent discount for cash." The plaintiff wired defendant accepting at $900:—Held, per Harvey, J., the construction given to the words of the offer was not a reasonable one and could not be supported. Held, per Harvey and Stuart, J.J., that the term "or I will give you 10 per cent discount for cash" was void for uncertainty as it was not stated upon what sum the discount would be allowed. Also, that the rule of construction that an interpretation is to be applied which would be most disadvantageous to the author, does not apply except to formal documents and in any event there was here no ambiguity but a meaningless phrase. Held, per Beak, J., the clause was ambiguous, and as the plaintiff had accepted the offer in a sense different from that intended by the defendant, there was no consensus ad idem. Judgment of Sifton, C.J., trial judge, in favour of the defendant, affirmed.

Watson v. Jamieson, 3 A.L.R. 230.

SALE OF REAL PROPERTY.

A writing in the following terms:—"I agree to purchase from B. through the intervention of D. . . his land, etc. . . at the price of . . ." creates the obligation to purchase from the intermediary D. and establishes a privity of contract between the latter and the promisor. Therefore, the nonperformance of this obligation gives a right of action to D. to recover from the promisor the damages which he has suffered. In a contract by which a party agrees with an intermediary to do something the profit which the latter would have made determines the amount of his damages in case of nonperformance. When a defendant, sued for nonperformance of a contractual obligation repudiates such obligation as nonexistent the court cannot dismiss the action on the ground of non-fulfilment of conditions or nonobservance of formalities which the defendant has not invoked.

LETTING OUT WORK—PRICE—NULLITY—MISTAKE—EXECUTIVE OF CONTRACT—ADDITIONAL PRICE—C.C. ARTS. 992, 1601, 1690.

When in a contract for work, the price is not mentioned, an essential element is lacking and no contract is formed, but if a real price has been stipulated whether it be too great or too little, the contract exists, and the courts have no right to inquire if it is equitable. So if the contractor of a building following his plans and estimates is mistaken in his calculations in determining the price of his work, this mistake is no reason for cancelling the contract, and he cannot take advantage of it to avoid the contract or to increase the price agreed upon. An action for cancellation of a building contract or any other contract cannot be commenced after the work is finished; if the agreement has been on either part, as the parties can no longer be placed in the position in which they were before having contracted, the contract cannot be cancelled. There does not exist, in our law, any action to supplement, modify, or increase, the price.

§ I D—55—DEFINITENESS—NEGOTIATIONS—CONCLUDED CONTRACT. Sawyer v. Millett, 48 D.L.R. 714.

DEFINITENESS.

Uncertainty in a contract can be cured by a later agreement or transaction by the parties; e.g., any uncertainty in a contract to continue financing a company as the obligor has done in the past.

SALE OF GOODS—AGREEMENT TO "STAND ITS SHARE OF LOSS"—AMBIGUITY—UNENFORCEABLE.

In an action for the balance due for goods sold and delivered to a firm of wholesale liquor dealers, the court held that an alleged agreement that if prohibition hit the country the plaintiff would "stand its share of the loss" was so ambiguous and uncertain as to be unenforceable.

NATURE AND REQUISITES—DEFINITENESS.

Where an employer arranges with a restaurant keeper to supply an indefinite number of midnight meals from time to time to his employees producing the employer's meal tickets, redeemable by the latter at a fixed rate per meal, there is no implied stipulation that the employer shall send all or any of his employees to get their meals exclusively at that restaurant; and an action for damages does not lie against the employer at the instance of the restaurant keeper for issuing tickets good as well at other restaurants as at that of the plaintiff for their employees' meals. MEETING OF MINDS—DEFINITENESS.

In order to constitute an agreement between two parties there must be a consensus ad idem, a meeting of the two minds upon ascertained terms. [Brogden v. Metropolitan R. Co., 2 App. Cas. 666; Pearson v. O'Brien, 10 D.L.R. 175, referred to.]

DEFINITENESS.

An agreement is too indefinite and incomplete to call for a specific performance thereof, by which the plaintiff was to sell to the defendants his interest in a mining claim upon the basis of a specified amount for the whole claim, less a sum not to exceed a certain amount for charges against the first mentioned sum, the price to be in certain instalments at fixed rates, shares to be delivered as paid for or secured, and there was nothing to show what interest the plaintiff had in the claim or how many shares he was entitled to, so that the price was not ascertainable without further negotiations between the parties. Thompson v. McPherson, 3 D.L.R. 269, 3 O.W.N. 791, 21 O.W.R. 646.

DEFINITENESS—TIME FOR PAYMENT.

In cases of sale a contract or agreement is complete and susceptible of being executed when the parties have agreed as to the object sold and the amount of the price; absence of a stipulated term for payment of the balance of purchase price is no bar to the enforcement of such contract.

Poirier v. Archambault, 1 D.L.R. 358.

SALE OF MINING CLAIMS—DEFINITENESS—PAYMENT OF PURCHASE PRICE—POSSESSION.

An agreement concerning mining claims is a contract of sale and purchase and not a mere option to purchase, which provided not for a small down payment, but for a cash payment of $20,000 and the payment of the balance of the purchase price, $15,000, in two cash instalments within one year and that the vendors were to sell and the purchaser was to purchase all the right, title and interest of the vendors in the mining claims, it also appearing that the purchaser went into possession and continued therein until after all the purchase money was paid, when he received from the vendors written documents transferring to him all their right, title and interest in the claim.

DEFINITENESS—ASSIGNMENT OF $2,500 OUT OF $6,500 FIRE INSURANCE.

An oral promise by the debtor in consideration of an extension to assign to his creditor out of $6,500 fire insurance then in force a portion thereof "to the extent of $2,500" as security for a $2,200 debt is unenforceable for uncertainty, where there is no ascertainment of any particular policy of several aggregating the total insurance as the one to be subject to such lien or charge. [Godwin v. Murchison National Bank, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 935, applied; Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 523, distinguished.]

DEFINITENESS—COMPROMISE OF SUIT.

Gnaun v. McNeil, 16 D.L.R. 880, 6 O.W.N. 315.

UNCERTAINTY — LETTERS — SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

The defendant by letter gave the plaintiff a 15-day option on 7 timber licenses on a basis of 50 cents a thousand stumpage net, adding that if the plaintiff approved of the timber, he (the plaintiff) should have the timber surveyed and pay all back licenses and all future payments and that an agreement of sale will be entered into if he takes his option up. In answer by letter the plaintiff stated that he had inspected the timber comprised in the 7 timber licenses upon which he held a 15 days' option and agreed to purchase same on lines of said option. Held, that the two letters do not constitute an enforceable agreement, it being void for uncertainty.

McMillan v. Cameron, 24 B.C.R. 509, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 836, affirming a decision of Murphy, J.

The promise on the part of the buyer to resell to seller, "if he should decide to alienate," constitutes a "preferential agreement" and not a nullity as a purely facultative, since the condition is subordinate not to the will of the obligor, but to a fact depending whether or not this fact will be followed up or not.

Herbert v. Corp. en Village de Saint-Michel, 18 Rev. de Jur. 228.

(§ 1 D.—60)—OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE—REAL PROPERTY — OPTIONS — WHEN TURNED INTO CONTRACT OF SALE.

An option for the sale of land is turned into a contract of purchase, where the buyer is permitted to go into possession and the seller gives him further time and accepts money on account of deferred payments.

OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE.

A telegram instructing an agent to buy grain at a certain price, which has been communicated to a third person, who thereupon intimated to the sender that he will deliver at the price named, is not an offer constituting the basis of a contract; nor does such an alleged acceptance amount to a counter-offer, capable of acceptance by the recipient.

OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE—REASONABLE TIME — COUNTER-OFFER — ACCEPTANCE BY TELEGRAM—SALE OF BANK SHARES.

LETTER QUOTING PRICES FOR SUPPLY OF COAL — ABSENCE OF ACCEPTANCE—FRAUD—RESCISSON.

The defendants, dealers in coal, wrote a letter to the plaintiff, a retailer of coal, quoting prices for delivery of coal to him at their yards, during a named period. No quantity was agreed to be supplied; and on the part of the plaintiff there was no undertaking or agreement to purchase from the defendants any coal whatever. After about 40 tons of coal had been supplied to the plaintiff, it transpired that he had attempted to bribe a servant of the defendants to issue false weight-tickets to him, and thus defraud the defendants for his benefit.—Held, that there was no contract between the plaintiff and defendants. [Harty v. Gooderham, 31 U.C.R. 18, and Johnston v. Rogers, 30 O.R. 150, followed.] Even if there was a contract, the defendants had the right to rescind it on account of the plaintiff's fraud. [Panama and South Pacific Telegraph Co. v. India Rubber Gutta Percha and Telegraph Works Co., L.R. 10 Ch. 515, followed.]

SALE OF WHEAT—OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE.

Badger v. Torosoff (Sask.), 39 D.L.R. 696, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 496.

PLACE OF CONTRACT—ACCEPTANCE—AGENT — RATIFICATION.

A contract of hire of services negotiated with an agent of the employer, subject to ratification by the latter, is completed at the place where it is ratified.

Swan v. Roy, 19 Que. P.R. 298.

PLACE OF CONTRACT—CORRESPONDENCE.

If correspondence takes place between the parties, who make a series of propositions and counter propositions, the contract is completed at the point where the last modification is made.

Laferre v. Martel, 19 Que. P.R. 249.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR SUPPLY OF MANUFACTURED GOODS — FORMATION OF CONTRACT — WRITTEN MEMORANDUM — EVIDENCE OF SURROUNDING CIRCUMSTANCES — ADMISSIBILITY — AUTHORITY OF AGENT OF COMPANY — APPARENT MANDATE — NECESSITY FOR NEW MACHINERY — REQUIREMENT FOR MANUFACTURE GOODS ORDERED — EFFECT ON QUESTION OF AUTHORITY — APPROBATION OF CONTRACT — RATIFICATION — SUBSEQUENT REPUDIATION — NECESSITY FOR SPECIFICATIONS BY BUYERS — CUSTOM OF TRADE — FURNISHING OF CREDIT — TERM OF CONTRACT — NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CANCEL — DAMAGES — INCREASED PRICES OF GOODS — INCREASE IN FREIGHT RATES — EXPENSES OF SPECIAL JOURNEY — REMOTENESS.

Rowdson Drew & Clydesdale v. Imperial Steel & Iron Co., 14 O.W.N. 298.

ACCEPTANCE OF OFFER CONSTITUTE CONTRACT.

Plaintiffs offer to sell and defendant's acceptance of same constitute a contract of sale from plaintiff to defendant. Resolutions by defendants' Central Board to cancel sale did not set aside the contract of sale.

Good v. Catholic School Commission of Montreal, 25 Rev. de Jur. 509.

OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE — PUBLIC WORK — APPROVAL OF GOVERNOR-IN-COUNCIL.

Where a sum of money was claimed for extras under a contract, a letter by the representative of the debtor to the claimant asking whether he would be willing to accept an amount less than that claimed, and to which letter the claimant replied: "I am willing to accept your offer," is not an accepted and binding contract, but merely a statement that the claimant is willing to accept such sum. Where a sum of money was claimed to be due by the Crown for extras under a contract made with the Public Works Department, a letter from the chief architect of that department to the claimant saying: "I am directed to offer you the sum of $4,327 as full and final settlement of all claims you may have against this department . . . subject to approval of council," does not bind the Crown if the governor-in-council refuses to ratify the alleged offer of the chief architect.

Askwith v. The King, 18 Can. Ex. 206.

LAND OPTIONS — REVOCATION AND ACCEPTANCE.

An agreement for sale or option which contains no time limit, and is made for no consideration, may be revoked by the owner within a reasonable delay. The acceptance of such agreement by a real estate agent after receipt of a letter from the owner dated the preceding day revoking the agreement is not sufficient. To be valid the acceptance should be notified to the vendor before his revocation.

Langevin v. Duval, 47 Que. S.C. 511.

BY TELEPHONE.

A contract made by telephone, as those by correspondence or telegrams, is concluded and made perfect at the place where the proposition made is accepted and agreed to.

Canadian Malleable Iron Co. v. London Machinery Co., 6 O.W.N. 722, 26 O.W.R. 772.

OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE — QUALIFIED ACCEPTANCE.

Contract for sale of land held not established because the alleged acceptance of the offer of sale was not an absolute and unqualified assent to the terms of the offer.

Coulter v. Timlick, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 736.

(§ I D—61) — NECESSITY OF ACCEPTANCE.
One who has made an offer cannot dispense with an acceptance thereof, so as to create a contractual relationship without such acceptance.

ACCEPTANCE OF OPTION TO PURCHASE LANDS — "ACCEPTANCE OF OPTION" — "EXERCISE OF OPTIONS."

The phrases "acceptance of option" and "exercise of option" as used in a written agreement giving an option to purchase land, mean one and the same thing, that is, the time when an election is made to buy upon the terms specified.

OPTION—ACCEPTANCE.

The relation of vendor and purchaser is not established by a mere option given for value; there must be an unqualified acceptance of the option to found an action for specific performance upon it.

(§ 1 D—62)—COMPANY—GENERAL MANAGER AUTHORIZED TO MAKE SPECIAL EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT—MANAGER EXERCISING POWERS—LIABILITY OF COMPANY.

Acceptance of an offer to purchase binds a company, though ignorant of the employment, to pay to agents whom its general manager is authorized to employ to procure the very offer accepted, but not in like ignorance to pay commission on a contract of employment which the general manager has neither the actual authority to enter into nor to bind the company by estoppel.

Roray v. Nimpkish Lake Logging Co., 47 D.L.R. 395, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 105.

CORRESPONDENCE—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

A contract of purchase and sale of real estate may be proved by the exchange of letters and where an offer made by letter is accepted by letter, the agreement is completed, and such a contract is sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds.

OFFER TO PURCHASE LAND—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE.

Where a written offer to purchase land purported to be made pursuant to conditions imposed by the owner and set out in the offer, to the effect that no application would be considered by the owner unless accompanied by a cash payment of a certain amount, and the prospective purchaser forwarded with it a lesser sum than was called for by the terms of the offer the fact that the owner replied, acknowledging receipt of the offer and stating that a sight draft would be made for the balance of the first payment does not constitute an acceptance of the offer where such balance represented by the draft was not in fact paid.

SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE—STIPULATION THAT CONTRACT NOT SUBJECT TO COUNTERMAND.

Where it was stipulated in a written offer to purchase a piano, that the order was not subject to countermand or rescission, and the vendee requested that the piano should be held for him until such time as his rooms should be ready to receive it, the offer is sufficiently accepted so as to create a binding contract which was not subject to countermand, where, after the piano had been held about two months, the vendor acted upon the offer by requesting the vendee to name a time for delivery, whereupon the vendee did not repudiate but asked the vendor to hold the piano a little longer. [Ellis v. Abell, 10 A.R. (Obl.) 226, and Ruess v. Picketsley, L.R. 1 Ex. 342, specially referred to.]

OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE—ACCEPTANCE CHANGING PLACE OF PAYMENT.

The place of payment is a material term of a contract, and where the alleged acceptance changes the places of payment, it is merely a new offer and not an acceptance which concludes a contract. Where a person holding an option to purchase land forwards a remittance of the deposit money required on acceptance with a letter enclosing for signature by the vendor formal agreements of sale already signed by the sender who wrote that the documents were "in accordance with" the option, the vendor may properly treat the letter as a proposal to accept the offer only in the sense of the formal documents and to pay the money on the like terms; consequently the vendor is not bound if there is a material variance and a further definite acceptance in conformity with the option is not made within the option period.

OPTION TO PURCHASE CONTAINED IN A LEASE—OFFER WITHOUT CONSIDERATION.

A clause in a lease not under seal giving to the lessee the option to purchase the demised premises at a stated price, is not necessarily an integral part of the lease and where it is not founded upon any consideration, specific performance of the option will be refused. [Davis v. Shaw, 21 O.L.R. 474, and Maltezos v. Brouse, 19 O.W.R. 6, applied; Hall v. Center, 40 Cal. 65, referred to.]

Miller v. Allen, 7 D.L.R. 438, 4 O.W.N. 346.

TIME, AS ESSENCE OF.

Where one party interested with another a piece of land makes an offer by mail to sell his interest and requests an answer by return mail, an attempt to accept the offer 8 days after its receipt by the offeror is too late, where in the meantime the interest was sold to another.

OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND—TIME AS ESSENCE OF FAILURE TO MAKE PAYMENT OR "EXERCISING THE OPTION."

Where, in an option to purchase land, time was declared to be of the essence of the agreement which stipulated that 25 per cent of the purchase money should be paid at the time of "exercising the option," the failure to make such payment when an election was made to buy upon the terms stated in the option will permit the owner of the property to treat the agreement as broken and ended.

SUFFICIENCY.

The mere acceptance of a proposal to materially modify the terms of an existing contract, will not have that effect when the proposal was made subject to the express condition that it should not have legal effect on such contract until its terms were reduced into a new written agreement. [Chimnock v. Marchioness of Ely, 4 Dug. J. & D. 638, and Rossiter v. Miller, 3 App. Cas. 1124, followed.]

MEETING OF MINDS—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE.

The owner of land who signs and forwards to the proposed purchaser an agreement of sale thereof is entitled to withdraw his offer before the latter accepts; and such right is not barred by the purchaser signing and retaining the agreement where he did not disclose the fact of signature to the vendor, but, on the contrary, held out to him that he would not accept unless certain restrictions contained in the contract form were removed.

THREATS—VITIATION.

Forcing a contractor to sign a letter consenting to a certain interpretation being given to a contract, on the threat that if it is not signed all further payments to him will be stopped, which would cause the financial ruin of the contractor, is sufficient to vitiate the consent thus given.

Vinet v. Canadian Light & Power Co., 42 B.L.R. 709, 54 Que. S.C. 134.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELER—POWER TO ACCEPT ORDER.

In the absence of express authority a commercial traveler has no authority to accept an order on the merchant's behalf; he merely takes the order and submits it to his principal for acceptance or refusal.

Lamontagne v. C. Parsons & Son, 42 D.L.R. 365, 54 Que. S.C. 297.

NATURE AND REQUISITES—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE—ADDING A TERM TO THE OFFER.

Where a written contract is expressed in such general or ambiguous terms as to admit of different constructions, it is open to either party to allege, consistently with the terms, that he accepted the contract with a different construction to that charged by the other party and to claim that there is no real agreement between them, though the written contract must be applied if possible so where the offer was made by letter for the sale of machinery "in place," the latter phrase being intended by the seller to indicate that delivery must be taken by the buyer of the machinery where it stood; and this interpretation was consistent with the preliminary negotiations, and the proposed buyer replied by letter purporting to accept, but adding that "in place" was considered to mean on board a railway car and that advice would be sent as to the destination to which it should be shipped, the seller properly treats the added words as an attempt to impose upon him the duty of loading on the car, and may decline to consider the alleged acceptance as any acceptance in fact.

OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE—TIME FOR PAYMENT OF DEPOSIT.

Time is of the essence of the contract as regards the cash payment or deposit on a sale of lands, and if the vendor under a contract requiring the cash payment to be made "forthwith" gives time to the purchaser until a future day specified, when payment is to be made at a business office of a firm authorized to receive it for the vendor, time remains of the essence of the agreement as to the deferred date and the vendor may withdraw if the purchaser fails to attend and pay the money within reasonable business hours at the time and place appointed. [Cushing v. Knight, 6 D.L.R. 820, 46 Can. S.C.R. 555, referred to.]

OFFER—ACCEPTANCE OF OPTION—SUGGESTION OF ALTERNATIVE PLAN OF COMPLETION.

Where a vendee, holding an option for the purchase of land, which option merely recites that the vendor agrees to give to the vendee an option for the purchase of his land at a certain price, replies within a reasonable time by letter that he is prepared to carry out the terms of the option, but in the same letter suggests that the vendor instead of executing an agreement for the sale of the land, make a transfer of the land and take a mortgage back for the unpaid balance, such a suggestion does not impose a condition or qualify the acceptance, but the letter constitutes an unconditional acceptance, the vendor being at liberty to accept or reject the suggestion. [Pearson v. O'Brien (No. 2), 11 D.L.R. 175, referred to.] In a contract of option for the sale of land which does not specify a time for acceptance, but which provides that the first of three annual payments should be made on a specified date about two months after the date of the option, such annual payment is not a condition precedent for the acceptance of the option in the absence of circumstances connected with the giving of the option which would justify the conclusion that the vendee could not have until the time of the first payment to decide whether he would accept. [Mills v. Haywood, 6 Ch. D. 196; Dart's Vendors and Purchasers, 7th ed., 272, referred to.]

PAYMENT OF PURCHASE PRICE AS ACCEPTANCE—"REASONABLE TIME" ILLUSTRATED.

Under an alleged agreement of sale of lands stipulating for the payment of the purchase price at a fixed hour, and a cheque tendered therefor is dishonoured, what is a "reasonable time," within which to substitute a cash payment for such dishonoured cheque, may be very short, the test being the object for which the time is given. [Webb v. Hughes, L.R. 10 Eq. 281, applied.]

Bennett v. Newcombe, 11 D.L.R. 87, 24 W.L.R. 59.

JURISDICTION—SALE BY TRAVELER SUBJECT TO ACCEPTANCE—QUE, C.P. 94.

A sale of goods made by a commercial traveler, submitted for acceptance by its employer, is only completed by such acceptance, and the contract is actually made at such place.

Jackon v. Tremblay, 15 Que. P.R. 424.

AGREEMENT OF SALE—INTERPRETATION OF THE BILL—PROPERTY—RESPONSIBILITY—DAMAGES—C.C. ART. 1053.

In the following writing "We, the undersigned, sell and give the above mentioned hydrant with all the rights and powers therein attached to C. E. for the sum of $1,000 on the following conditions: the purchaser shall have 6 months to accept and conclude the purchase, etc." not a sale but only a promise of sale is expressed and the purchaser having made default of accepting in the stipulated time it becomes void. If in these circumstances, the purchaser on the expiration of the time, acts as owner of these hydrants causing thereby a wrong to the promiser, he will be responsible.

Henderson v. Fortin, 25 Rev. Leg. 384.

LAND OPTIONS—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE.

Although an offer to purchase an immoveable is not accepted in writing, the fact that the vendor attends at a notary's office to execute the deed of sale of the property constitutes a sufficient acceptance; but such acceptance will be considered insufficient if the draft of the deed of sale contains conditions different from those in the agreement of sale, and the purchaser may then withdraw his offer.

Rivet v. Anctil, 47 Que. S.C. 240.

SALE—CORRESPONDENCE—ACCEPTANCE OF OFFER—BREACH—FAILURE TO DELIVER GOODS—RISE IN MARKET-PRICE—TIME OF BREACH—ABANDONMENT OF CONTRACT.

Powers & Son v. Hatfield & Scott, 10 Q. W.N. 198, 11 O.W.N. 109.

SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE—OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE.

§ I D—63—WITHDRAWAL OF OFFER.

A statement by the giver of an option to purchase, which is not under seal, and for which there is no consideration, that the option has expired and that he will have nothing further to do with the holder of it, constitutes a sufficient withdrawal of the offer contained in the option.

VARIATION OF OFFER—REFERENCE TO LATER QUOTATION AS "PRACTICALLY A CONFIRMATION OF FORMER PRICE."

Where the owner telegraphed to a real estate agent who was not only seeking to procure a purchaser for him, but who was also acting as agent of a proposed purchaser for the purpose of completing the deal, that he would "accept $2,400, $400 cash, purchaser paying costs, commission," and then wrote him referring to his previously quoted price as $15 per acre (which in fact amounted to less than $2,400), saying that his telegram is "practically a confirmation of" the price previously quoted of $15 per acre, the word "practically" in such case means no more than "very nearly" and the letter does not constitute a renewed offer to take $15 per acre.

OFFER TO ACCEPT CERTAIN PERSON AS ENDORSER—WITHDRAWAL BEFORE ACTUAL SIGNING OF NOTE.

The vendor of goods sold at auction who agreed to accept a designated person as accommodation signor to the note to be given for the purchase money, may retract such consent and refuse to accept such signor at any time before the note was actually signed, where the conditions of sale provided that for goods not paid for in cash, the vendor should receive the note of the purchaser and of an accommodation maker satisfactory to the vendor, particularly where an enquiry by the latter as to the financial standing of the proposed surety disclosed misrepresentations of the buyer with reference thereto.

WITHDRAWAL OF OFFER BEFORE ACCEPTANCE.

An offer to purchase property for a speci-fed sum without terms or conditions can be withdrawn at any time before its acceptance has been signified to the one who made it.

Bernard v. Kirsch, 51 Que. S.C. 135.

WITHDRAWAL OF OFFER.

A writing in the words, "I buy from B, acting for M, 4 houses, etc., for the price of, etc.," signed and delivered to B, is a mere offer to buy, and only becomes an effective sale, by M's acceptance made known to the buyer. If, therefore, such offer is withdrawn by the latter before such acceptance, no action for specific performance (making and signing of a deed, etc.) will lie against him.

Martin v. Joly, 44 Que. S.C. 134.

SALE OF GOODS—CORRESPONDENCE—EVIDENCE—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Croxford v. McMillan, 11 O.W.N. 308.

(§ 1 D—64)—PLACE OF ACCEPTANCE.

Contracts by letter correspondence are only completed where there is absolute agreement between the parties as to the object, price and conditions of the contract, and the place where the contract is completed is the place where the letter of actual acceptance is posted irrespective of whatever offers and negotiations may have preceded it. [See also Magann v. Auger, 31 Can. S.C.R. 186.]

Bailey v. Mechanical Equipment Co., 7 D.L.R. 77, 22 Que. K.B. 199.

PLACE OF CONTRACT—MODIFICATION BY TELEPHONE.

A contract prepared at Montreal, and forwarded to the defendant at St. Jean and there altered by a telephonic conversation between the parties, is perfected at the time when the parties agreed by telephone, and consequently at St. Jean.

Lamache v. Audette, 17 Que. P.R. 456.

E. FORMAL REQUISITES; STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

(§ 1 E—65)—SALE OF LAND—ALTA. STATUTES—AGENT TO SELL—NECESSITY OF CONTRACT IN WRITING.

Chapter 27, s. 1, 1906, Alta., provides that no action shall be brought whereby to charge any person either by commission or otherwise for services rendered in connection with the sale of any land, etc., unless the contract upon which recovery is sought is in writing signed by the party sought to be charged or by his agent thereto lawfully authorized in writing. Held, that the correspondence relied on by the plaintiff did not constitute such an agreement as entitled him to recover under the above act.

FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

The effect of ss. 4 and 17 of the Statute of Frauds is the same; they do not render Can. Dig.—34.

contracts within them void, still less illegal, but they render the kind of evidence required indispensable when it is sought to enforce the contract. [Maddison v. Alderson, 8 App. Cas. 467, referred to.]

SALE OF GOODS—RECEIPT AND ACCEPTANCE.

The receipt of a shipment of goods from the carrier taken into the buyer's warehouse where they were examined and rejected, constitutes an actual receipt and acceptance sufficient to take the transaction out of the Statute of Frauds. [Page v. Morgan, 15 Q.B.D. 228; Taylor v. Smith, [1893] 2 Q.B. 65, followed.]

SALE OF GOODS—DELIVERY—ACCEPTANCE.

To satisfy the terms of art. 1235 C.C., which provides that in all commercial matters no action can be maintained against a person without an agreement in writing signed by him for sale of the effects unless the purchaser has accepted or received a part of them, it is not required that the purchaser should accept delivery; it is sufficient if delivery is made.

Underhill Coal Co. v. G.T.R. Co. & Paddy Bros., 16 O.W.N. 354.

(§ 1 E—67)—SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The validity of a contract for the sale of goods is not affected by the omission therefrom of the date of their delivery.

Schrader, Mitchell & Weir v. Robson Leather Co., 3 D.L.R. 838, 3 O.W.N. 962.

SALES UPWARDS $50 AT STOCK EXCHANGE—PAROL EVIDENCE—BROKERS TRANSACTIONS.

The mandate of a broker in stock exchange transactions may be proved by parol evidence; but the sale and purchase of grain under that mandate is considered as goods, and if the sale exceeds the amount of $50, it must be established by a writing in accordance with art. 1235 C.C., unless admitted by the party charged. In making purchases and sales of goods for clients, brokers act as agents, and the transactions are not contracts for the sale of goods, which are required to be proved by writing, but are such commercial matters as may be proved, under the C.C. (Que.), by parol evidence.

MANUFACTURE AND SALE OF GOODS—FORMATION OF CONTRACT—WRITTEN ORDER BUT NO WRITTEN ACCEPTANCE—DELIVERY OF PART OF GOODS—APPROPRIATION TO ORDER—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—TERM OF CONTRACT—DELIVERY "AT ONCE"—REASONABLE TIME—REPUTATION—RIGHT TO RESCIND—DAMAGES—MEASURE OF.

The plaintiff alleged a contract for the manufacture by the defendants for and the sale and delivery to the plaintiff of 100 chucks, the delivery to be made "at once," and a breach of the contract. At the time when the contract was said to have been made, the defendants had on hand 12 partly manufactured chucks, but had not on hand the material or the appliances for making any more. In December, 1916, a written order was sent by the plaintiff to the defendants for 100 chucks of varying sizes at stated prices. The words "shipment is wanted at once" were in the order. There was no written acceptance:—Held, that delivery by the defendants of 9 chucks, stated by the defendants to be delivered on the order referred to, was an acceptance sufficient to satisfy the provisions of the Statute of Frauds. [Martin v. Harbner, 26 Can. S.C.R. 142, followed.] "At once" meant "within a reasonable time." [The Queen v. Rogers, 3 Q.B.D. 28, 33, approved.] And held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the amount claimed, 81,488.

—MONEY PAID FOR DEFENDANT'S USE.
Bingham v. Millican, 10 D.L.R. 809, 4 O.W.N. 739, 23 O.W.R. 950.

PROMISE TO PAY DEBT OF ANOTHER.

The oral promise of a wife to pay for goods purchased by her husband, in order to avoid the seller's threat to stop the goods in transitu, is an undertaking to answer the debt of another within the Statute of Frauds, and unenforceable because not in writing. [Brown v. Coleman Develop. Co., 26 D.L.R. 438, 31 D.L.R. 191, referred to.]
Jeffrey v. Aylea, 39 D.L.R. 341, 36 O.L.R. 391.

COLLATERAL CONTRACTS—DEBTS OF OTHERS—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—TRUE TEST

Upon a promise to answer for the debt of another being original not collateral under s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, the true test is that whenever the main purpose and object of the promisor is not to answer for another, but to subserve some pecuniary or business purpose of his own involving either a benefit to himself or damage to the other contracting party, his promise is not within the statute, although it may be in form a promise to pay the debt of another and although the performance of it may incidentally have the effect of extinguishing that liability.

PROMISE TO REPAY ADVANCES TO CORPORATION.

An oral promise by an officer of a company to repay money advanced to the company is an original undertaking and not a promise to answer the debt of another with in the meaning of the Statute of Frauds as affecting its enforcement. [Lakeman v. Mountstephen, L.R. 7 H.L. 17, followed; Guild v. Conrad, [1894] 2 Q.B. 885; Thomas v. Cook, 8 B. & C. 728; Wildes v. Dudlow, L.R. 19 Eq. 198, referred to.]

FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—COLLATERAL CONTRACTS—DEBTS OF OTHERS—DUAL LIABILITY.

Dual liability is the prime test as to whether a verbal agreement is collateral and within s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds as a promise to answer for the debt of another; and where the defendant gives a contract to construct a building to a third party who subcontracts the roof to the plaintiff; and where (before anything is done under the subcontract) the contractor dies and the subcontractor, looking upon the death as putting an end to the subcontract, makes a verbal agreement with the defendant to do for him the identical roof work on the identical terms covered by the original subcontract under which the defendant promises "to pay for it," such verbal agreement, since it imports no dual liability is not within the statute, although the original contract was not in any way formally rescinded. [Guild v. Conrad, [1891] 2 Q.B. 885, applied; Bond v. Treashey, 37 T.C.Q.B. 360, disapproved.]

COLLATERAL CONTRACTS—DEBTS OF OTHERS—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—TRUE TEST.

Upon a promise to answer for the debt of another being original not collateral under s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, the true test is that whenever the main purpose and object of the promisor is not to answer for another, but to subserve some pecuniary or business purpose of his own involving either a benefit to himself or damage to the other contracting party, his promise is not within the statute, although it may be in form a promise to pay the debt of another and although the performance of it may incidentally have the effect of extinguishing that liability.

(§ 1 E.—75)—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—CONTRACT NOT TO BE PERFORMED WITHIN YEAR—SUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM.

A memorandum of an agreement not to be performed within the year, sufficient to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, is shewn, notwithstanding that one of the parties made alterations in the terms of the agreement after execution by the other party, where the latter subsequently assented thereto, although he did not re-execute the agreement.

Canadian Lake Transportation Co. v. Browne, 14 D.L.R. 744, 5 O.W.N. 376, 25 O.W.R. 365.

LEASE—FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Where a parol agreement provides for a rental for a year certain, with a right of renewal from year to year for 2 years or more, and possession is taken thereunder, the agreement is not void under the Land Titles Act (Alta.), nor under the Statute of Frauds. [Hand v. Hall, 2 Ex. D. 355, applied.]

PERFORMANCE WITHIN A YEAR—AGREEMENT FOR FUTURE PROFITS.

Although a sale of land may not be made for many years, still a parol agreement for the payment by the promisor of the profits realized thereon upon such event happening and based on a forbearance by the promisee from legal proceedings is not within the Statute of Frauds. [Mills v. New Zealand Alford Estate, 34 W.R. 669, 32 Ch. D. 266, followed.]

PERFORMANCE WITHIN YEAR—EMPLOYMENT.

A contract to serve for 1 year, the service to commence on the next day after that on which the contract is made, is not a contract which is not to be performed within a year, within the meaning of s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, and is enforceable though not in writing.

PERFORMANCE WITHIN YEAR—AGREEMENT TO STAY MORTGAGE PROCEEDINGS.

A contract, the performance of which within a year by one of the parties was contemplated by them when making the contract, is not within the Statute of Frauds. [Reeves v. Jennings, 79 L.J.K.B. 1137; but where a second mortgagee, who at the request of a third mortgagee, agrees to stay proceedings upon his mortgage for a term of 2 years, an agreement that the principal shall be paid at the expiration of 2 years is one which is not to be performed within 1 year, although the second mortgagee was willing to take his principal money at any time, and is within the Statute of Frauds, and must be in writing signed by the defendant.

Hadfield v. Radger, 33 W.L.R. 713, 9 W.W.R. 1189.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER—AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—ORAL AGREEMENT—POSSESSION TAKEN BY VENDOR—PAYMENT OF TAXES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—PART PERFORMANCE—AGREEMENT ENFORCED AGAINST GRANTEE OF VENDOR WITH ACTUAL NOTICE—TRESPASS—INJUNCTION.

Cook v. Barsley, 6 O.W.N. 608.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—AGREEMENT NOT TO BE PERFORMED WITHIN THE YEAR—AGREEMENT EXECUTED.

An agreement incapable of being performed within the year and not reduced to writing does not become invalid under the Statute of Frauds by reason of an absence of a memorandum in writing of the terms thereof if the agreement is completely executed at the time of action brought.

Thacker v. Sweetman, 7 W.W.R. 262.

(§ 1 E-76)—CONTRACT NOT TO BE PERFORMED WITHIN YEAR—PAROL AGREEMENT FOR SUPPORT FOR LIFE.

A parol promise, in consideration of a conveyance of land, to support another for life is not within the Statute of Frauds as an agreement not to be performed within a year, since, by its terms, it might terminate within the year. [Slater v. Smith, 10 U.C.Q.B. 630; McGregor v. McGregor, 21 Q.B.D. 424, referred to.]

(§ 1 E-78)—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—PAROL PARTNERSHIP FOR MORE THAN A YEAR.

A parol partnership agreement for more than one year is not enforceable under the Statute of Frauds unless there has been part performance taking it out of the statute. [Caddick v. Skidmore, 2 DeG. & J. 52, 44 E.R. 907; Downs v. Collins, 6 Hare 418, 67 E.R. 1228; Johannson v. Gudmundson, 19 Man. L.R. 83 at 96, referred to; see Baxter v. West, 1 Drew & Sm. 173; and Crowley v. (§ 1 E-80)—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—CONTRACTS AS TO REALTY.

A parol agreement made by the purchaser of land to sell to another a half interest in his purchase, but upon which the prospective subpurchaser does not make any payment, is barred from enforcement by the Statute of Frauds unless there has been part performance.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—CONTRACT PERTAINING TO REALTY—AGREEMENT TO SUPPORT FOR LIFE IN CONSIDERATION OF CONVEYANCE OF LAND.

A parol agreement, in consideration of a conveyance of land to the promisor, for the support of another for life, is not within the Statute of Frauds as a contract relating to land. [Smith v. Ernst, 3 D.L.R. 736,

CONTRACTS AS TO REALTY.

A letter written to the plaintiff by the defendant stating that "I will sell my hotel . . . for the sum of $4,000, covering lots 1 and 2, blocks 4, and lot 19, block 4, in Blairmore. I will pay you 5 per cent commission on purchase price," and signed by the defendant, is sufficient, under c. 27 of the Alberta Statute of Frauds of 1906, to constitute a contract to pay commission in the event of the plaintiff finding a purchaser for the property.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS (S. 4)—VERBAL AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LANDS—VALIDITY AS TO SUBSTANCE—STATUTE A BAR ONLY TO ENFORCEMENT.

In an action for the sale of lands under a certificate of judgment, for a sum of money, registered in the Land Titles Office (Man.), where the judgment debtor, prior to the registration, had entered into a verbal agreement to sell the lands in question to a purchaser for a fixed and adequate consideration contemporaneously paid, such an agreement is valid at common law, and, although it is well-settled law that under s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds it cannot be enforced against an unwilling or dishonest vendor, yet it is equally well-settled law that the statute does not affect the validity of the agreement, but only the remedy upon it, the signature so required is not of the substance of the contract, but is matter of procedure only, making a particular kind of proof necessary to enable a party to bring an action upon it; hence the verbal agreement is as effective (except as to enforcement) as a written contract. [Leroux v. Brown, 12 C.B. 801; Jones v. Victoria, 2 Q.B.D. 314, 323; Re Hoyle, [1893] 1 Ch. 84; Laythorp v. Bryant, 2 Bing N.C. 733, referred to; see also Fry on Specific Performance, 6th ed., 254.]

MARRIAGE CONTRACT—COMMUNITY PROPERTY—SUBSTITUTION—TESTAMENTARY DISPOSITION TO DEFEAT THE SUBSTITUTION, EFFECT OF.

Where a marriage contract provides that the community property of the proposed husband and wife shall, during the marriage, be used for their joint benefit, and that, upon the death of either, the usufruct goes to the survivor, and that, after, the survivor's death, the property shall go in moieties to the two families of the proposed husband and wife; it is beyond the power of either of the parties, after the marriage, to make any change in the marriage agreement contained in the contract.

Houde v. Marchand, 8 D.L.R. 431.

PAROL AGREEMENT TO FURNISH PART OF PURCHASE PRICE—DEMAND—NOTICE OF REPUDIATION OF CONTRACT.

Where the plaintiff, who had agreed, in consideration of a half interest in property to the defendant purposed to purchase, to provide a large sum for the initial cash payment, instead of doing which he claimed to have found a purchaser for the property, but upon terms the defendant refused to accept, and also attempted to obtain an option on the property to the exclusion of the defendant, the latter is relieved from making a demand upon the plaintiff to furnish the money necessary for such payment, or of giving him notice of the repudiation of such agreement.

(§ 1 E-90)—TO COMPLETE TITLE.

Where the grantee of lands subject to an instalment contract of sale made by his grantor under which a Torrens title was to be given, orally agrees with the purchaser to furnish a Torrens title if the balance of the purchase money is paid directly to him instead of to the original vendor, such agreement is not a contract for the sale of lands or of an interest therein within the meaning of the Statute of Frauds, but for the performance of an act with reference to his own lands and title, and it may be specifically enforced at the instance of the purchaser. [Angell v. Duke, L.R. 10 Q.B. 174; Jeakes v. White, 6 Ex. 873, and Boston v. Boston, [1904] 1 K.B. 124, followed.]

(§ 1 E-95) — SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING — LETTERS.

A contract for the sale of land contained in correspondence is sufficiently evidenced so as to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds, where the vendor in reply to the purchaser's letter submitting offer, purported to accept the offer but stated that the terms were to be "cash or its equivalent," and in reply to this the purchaser wrote, "I take this to mean, terms cash, unless we can agree on other terms mutually satisfactory, and this is, of course, all right so far as I am concerned, if we cannot agree I will pay cash;" the agreement was completed by the last-mentioned letter as the payment was to be cash if the equivalent could not be arranged.

SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING — STATUTE OF FRAUDS — LAND SALE BY AGENT AS SUCH.

When the sufficiency of the memorandum, on a sale of land, is in question under the Statute of Frauds, such memorandum may meet the requirements, if, when read with the purchase cheques (a) the parties can be identified, (b) the property is described, (c) the price and terms are stated; and this although the actual owner is not named in the memorandum of the contract which was signed by the agent in his own name, where the form of the contract shewed on its face that it was made on behalf of the "owner." [Rogers v. Hewer (No. 2), 8 D.L.R. 288, specially referred to.]

SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING.

Where a contract is made by correspondence between the parties, even though the final letters of both parties are under seal, any letter in the series of correspondence may be read in evidence for the purpose of explaining any ambiguity or doubt which might exist in the contract. [See Phipson on Evidence, 5th ed., 580.]

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—TERMS NOT INCLUDED.

A writing shewn by parol not to include the entire contract and which does not purport to contain all the terms of agreement is insufficient as a memorandum under the Statute of Frauds to establish a sale of lands.

Rogers v. Hewer (No. 2), 8 D.L.R. 288, 5 A.L.R. 227, 22 W.L.R. 807, 3 W.W.R. 477, reversing in the result 1 D.L.R. 747.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SALE OF LAND—UNEQUIVOCAL ACT OF POSSESSION.

An act of possession by an alleged vendee of land under a parol contract, in order to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, must be an unequivocal act. [See Thomson v. Playfair, 6 D.L.R. 263, reversing 2 D.L.R. 37, and see annotation, 2 D.L.R. 43 on possessory acts under the Statute of Frauds.] Proof of the existence of a written memorandum of an agreement for the sale of land without proving what were the terms of payment is insufficient to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. Proof of the mere letting into possession of an alleged vendee of land is not sufficient to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. The fact that the alleged vendee of land under a parol contract of sale entered the land and cut the natural hay thereon and put out the stray cattle and repaired the fences so as to keep the cattle out, does not constitute such an unequivocal cal act as would take the case out of the Statute of Frauds where those acts were explained by the alleged vendor on some other theory than that of a contract of sale. In order for possession of land to take a case out of the Statute of Frauds, the act of possession must be incapable of explanation on any other theory than that of the existence of a contract of the nature alleged by the plaintiff, and where the alleged act of possession involved no permanent interest in the land, and was, from its nature, capable of explanation in the manner sworn to by the defendant, the plaintiff cannot succeed even where such plausible explanation is disbelieved by the trial judge. [Maddison v. Alderson, 8 App. Cas. 467; Ungley v. Ungley, 5 Ch. D. 887, and Bodwell v. McViney, 5 O.L.R. 332, specially considered.]

INCOMPLETENESS OF WRITING—ADMISSIBILITY OF PAROL EVIDENCE.

Although a writing appears on its face to constitute a complete contract in itself, it may by oral or other evidence be shown to constitute only a part of the real contract; the terms of the instrument may be inconsistent with the real agreement which may be proved by oral or other evidence, but the giving of the instrument in that form may be consistent with the true agreement. [Eaton v. Crooks, 3 A.L.R. 1, affid.]

SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING.

A memorandum in the following terms: "Witness that I have this day sold and agree to deliver to the Smith Grain Company at Port Arthur, Ont., 3,000 bushels wheat on or before Oct. 31, 1914, at an agreed price of 83 cents per bushel basis, 1 Northern, delivered free on board cars at Port Arthur. Government weights and grades to govern. Shipper also pays freight and dockage. I hereby acknowledge receipt of $1.00 on above contract," signed by the owner of the wheat, and witnessed by the agent of the purchaser, is a complete memorandum of the contract of sale and not merely an offer to sell. No further assent by the purchaser is required. Parol evidence is not admissible to vary the terms which appear on the face of the contract.

SALE OF LAND — MEMORANDUM SIGNED BY PURCHASER — DESCRIPTION — SUFFICIENCY—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

The defendant signed a document reading: "A. E. Sparks sell and J. Clement buy the 50 acres of land across the road from him for the sum of $4,000.00 cash;" —held, that the description was sufficient to identify the parcel of land sold, and that the contract was enforceable against the Statute of Frauds. (2) That a defence to an action for specific performance brought by the vendor, that the alleged contract was not a real contract at all, the defendant merely signing the document to help the plaintiff to make a sale to another at a good price, was not sustained by the evidence. Semble, that the defence that the transaction was not a real one, that is, not that the contract which the plaintiff alleged was unlawful, but that it never was made, was one upon which the defendant might rely. Such maxims as, "No one alleging his own baseness is to be heard," or "A right of action cannot arise out of fraud," were not applicable. Specific performance of the contract decreed.

OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND—PURCHASER RESIDING AT A DISTANCE—SUFFICIENCY OF ACCEPTANCE BY LETTER.

An option to purchase land given to a person living at a distance from the owner may be effectually accepted by letter. [Bruner v. Moore, [1904] 1 Ch. 305, referred to.]

SUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM — CORRESPONDENCE—PAROL EVIDENCE.

The written memorandum required by the Statute of Frauds, R.S.O. 1914, c. 102, is sufficiently met if from correspondence between the parties the terms of the sale are ascertainable. Parol evidence is admissible to explain the terms of a telegram in order to connect it with other writings as a sufficient memorandum in writing under the Statute of Frauds.

Doran v. McKinnon, 31 D.L.R. 307, 53 Can. S.C.R. 609, affirming 26 D.L.R. 488, 35 O.L.R. 349, which affirmed 25 D.L.R. 787, 34 O.L.R. 403.

SALE OF LAND—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—INSUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM — RECEIPT.

Lesiuk v. Schneider (Alta.), 36 D.L.R. 598, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 747.

AGREEMENT FOR EXCHANGE OF PROPERTIES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—ACTUAL BARGAIN NOT EVIDENCED BY WRITING — FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION—SECRET COMMISSION — ACTION FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE — UNFOUNDED CHARGES — COSTS.

Boyer v. Bright, 11 O.W.N. 351.

(§ I E—97)—FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SEVERAL PAPERS — SALE OF LAND.

An objection that a contract for the sale of real estate is defective under the Statute of Frauds, in that it does not disclose the name of the owner of the land, is ineffective if the vendor can be ascertained from some other document which is sufficiently connected with the contract in question. [Rogers v. Hewer (No. 2), 8 D.L.R. 288; Conley v. Paterson, 2 D.L.R. 94, referred to.]

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SEVERAL PAPERS.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SEVERAL WRITINGS.

A party seeking to make out a memorandum to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds, cannot select some of the writings and say that they sufficiently evidence a contract, regardless of the fact that there were other important conditions of the intended contract which were not embraced in the writings and were still unsettled. [Hussey v. Horne-Payne, 4 App. Cas. 311; Bristol Co. v. Maggs, 44 Ch. D. 610; Stov v. Currie, 21 O.L.R. 486; Queen's College v. Jayne, 10 O.L.R. 319, and Bohan v. Galbraith, 15 O.L.R. 37, specially referred to.]

SEVERAL WRITINGS.

Where an owner answers a real estate agent's inquiry as to price and terms and intimation of the possibility of prospective sale on given terms, by instructions to take a deposit and prepare agreements for signature, the contract is closed by taking the deposit and giving a receipt shewing a sale on the terms of the instructions.

SALE OF LAND — SEVERAL DOCUMENTS — STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Where the defendant orally agreed with the agent of the plaintiff to sell the plaintiff certain land and thereafter enclosed the conveyance thereof and other documents to be executed in compliance with the oral contract in a letter signed by him and addressed to the plaintiff stating that he therewith handed him a transfer of the land, describing it, to be delivered to the plaintiff upon the payment of the purchase price, the letter and the documents enclosed therein, together with a sight draft made by the defendant on the plaintiff for the amount of the purchase price, constitute a contract of sale in writing under s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—CHECK AND RECEIPT — SUFFICIENCY OF WRITINGS — SUBSEQUENT FORMAL AGREEMENT WITH ADDITIONAL TERMS CONTEMPLATED.

Where an alleged agreement for the sale of land is contained in a cheque and receipt, and it appears in an action for specific performance thereof that a more formal agreement was to be prepared, providing for payment of taxes, cancellation on default, transfer of the property, and other important matters not mentioned in the cheque and receipt, the cheque and receipt do not constitute a sufficient memorandum in writing of the agreement to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. [Green v. Stevenson, 9 O.L.R. 671, followed; Harris v. Darroch, 1 S.L.R. 116, distinguished.] Strickland v. Ross, 5 D.L.R. 706, 5 S.L.R. 347, 21 W.L.R. 945, 2 W.W.R. 887.

SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING — REFERENCE TO FUTURE FORMAL CONTRACT.

A receipt given a purchaser of land for his first payment, which stated all the terms of the contract of sale and was sufficiently executed to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, is a binding agreement of itself, and the fact that it contained a provision making a specified sum payable "on the execution of the necessary agreement of sale," does not make it merely a contract for a contract. [Von Halzfeldt Wildenburg v. Alexander, [1912] 1 Ch. 284, specially referred to.]

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING—SEVERAL PAPER.

Where a receipt for a payment on account of the purchase price of an interest in lands, containing sufficient particulars to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, is signed by the vendor, and a copy of it, headed "copy of receipt," is signed by the agent of the purchaser and handed to the vendor, the two documents may be read together, and constitute as against the purchaser a sufficient memorandum in writing to satisfy the Statute of Frauds.

REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SUFFICIENCY—SEVERAL WRITINGS.

Where the defendant, who had, while dealing with a real estate agent, mentioned property belonging to his wife, without giving him instructions to sell it, upon receiving an offer by telegraph for such property, which, however, was in fact made to another real estate agent, not associated with the first real estate agent, in any manner, but who had negotiated a sale with the plaintiff, and had given him a receipt for a cash payment stating that it was received to apply on the offer to purchase the property, which it described, refused such offer, and later, the second real estate agent sent a telegram in the name of the first real estate agent making another offer, which the defendant wired the first agent to accept, stating that the title was in his wife, whereupon the second agent accepted from the plaintiff a further payment by cheque, payable to the Realty Exchange, which did not shew for what it was given, and which was indorsed by the second agent in his own name under instructions from the first agent, such receipt and telegrams did not amount to a written contract sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds, since the defendant's telegram to the first agent was an instruction to him to accept the offer of the plaintiff, which he did not do, and the acceptance by the second agent was insufficient because the defendant had not given him authority to accept it for him, and the indorsement of the cheque by the second agent under the first agent's instructions, if sufficient to constitute an acceptance, was not binding upon the defendant, since the first agent could not delegate to the second agent the authority the defendant had given him.

SALE OF LAND—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE—CONTRACT BY CORRESPONDENCE.
Storie v. Hancock, 4 O.W.N. 459.

(§ 1 E—98)—DESCRIPTION UNCERTAINTY—TERMS OF CONTRACT ELECTION.

Uncertainty of description of the subject matter in the sale of land may be aided by a right of election vested by the terms of the contract in the purchaser whereby the latter is given the power of rendering certain that which before was undetermined, and so make the sale enforceable by a decree for specific performance. [Duckmanton v. Duckmanton, 5 H. & N. 219; Holson v. Blackburn, 1 Myl. & K. 571; Bumble v. Blygate, 18 W.R. 749; Jenkins v. Green, 27 Bev. 437, referred to.]

Fredrickson & Grand Lake Coal & R. Co. v. Harding, 20 D.L.R. 803, 42 N.B.R. 363.

DESCRIPTION OF LAND.

Where a receipt for the initial payment upon land sold failed to shew with certainty how many lots were sold, its insufficiency in this regard under the Statute of Frauds, if any, was covered by the fact the cheque given by the purchaser for such payment plainly showed that the sale was of a specified number of lots.

(§ 1 E—99)—CONTRADICTORY TERMS OF PAYMENT.

Where the terms of payment stated in a memorandum of the sale of land are contradictory, the contract is within the Statute of Frauds.

(§ 1 E—100)—EXECUTION.

Where the real estate agent obtained on the owner's behalf a deposit on the purchase of land and gave a receipt therefor specifying as the terms of the sale that a portion of the price (including the deposit) should be "cash" and balance in instalments, and a formal agreement to the like effect was afterwards signed and delivered by both the vendor and purchaser, the latter agreement is evidence in writing of the contract under the Statute of Frauds although the cash payment, the receipt whereof it purported to acknowledge, was not actually paid, if the agreement was not delivered conditionally upon such payment being made. [Re Hoyle, Hoyle v. Hoyle, [1893] 1 Ch. 98, specially referred to.]

(§ 1 E—101)—FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING—ACCEPTANCE AS PER PAROL VARIATION OF OFFER.

A contract was not sufficiently shown against the vendor so as to satisfy the Statute of Frauds where the written acceptance of the written offer was alleged to have been modified by a parol arrangement varying material terms of the original offer as to the terms of payment.

(§ 1 E—103)—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SIGNATURE BY ONE OF TWO ADMINISTRATORS.

An offer to sell land belonging to the estate of a deceased person is not a sufficient memorandum under the Statute of Frauds where the offer is signed by only one of two of the personal representatives of the deceased. [Gibb v. McMahon, 37 Can. S.C.R. 362, applied.]

SIGNATURE.

Where a writing relied upon as an acknowledgement or waiver is a printed form with intervening blanks between the various clauses thereof, a signature placed in one of such blanks is not equivalent to a signature placed at the end of the document, and cannot be considered as an authentication of a clause which follows the signature so placed.

Eisler v. Canadian Fairbanks Co., 8 D.L.R. 390, 22 W.L.R. 888, 3 W.W.R. 753.

(§ 1 E—105)—FORMAL REQUISITES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—CONTRACTS AS TO REALTY—DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY—RECEIPT.

An incomplete description in a receipt for an initial payment on a sale of land, which described the property by lot and block number, and as being 25 feet on a designated street, may be read with correspondence and documents with which it is connected, so as to shew in what municipality the lot was and to what registered plan the lot and block numbers applied. [Heath v. Sandford, 17 Man. L.R. 101, at 102; Owen v. Thomas, 3 Myl. & K. 353;

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—INDEFINITE TERMS OF WRITING.

The Statute of Frauds is not satisfied where the written instrument or correspondence constituting the memorandum required by the statute, though otherwise satisfactory, fails to fix definitely the amounts of the deferred payments on a sale of land or the times when such payments are to be made.

MEMORANDUM.

To satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds as to the formalities of a written contract for the sale of lands, it is essential that the manner and time of payment, as well as the amount to be paid, should be set out with such particularity and certainty as would enable the court to ascertain and define whether or not payment was to be made in cash, and if not in cash, then on what dates and in what amounts the payments are to be made. [See also Fenske v. Farbacher, 2 D.L.R. 634.] An agreement in writing for the sale of lands in which the price is shewn, but the terms of payment are not inserted, is insufficient to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. [Reynolds v. Foster, 3 D. L.R. 506, 3 O.W.N. 983, applied.]

Clement v. McFarland, 8 D.L.R. 226, 23 O.W.R. 613.

SALE OF GOODS ACT — MEMORANDUM — WHETHER "SIGNED BY PARTY TO BE CHARGED"—PRINTED FORM.

Where the jury, although questioned on the point, fails to find whether a memorandum put forward to satisfy the Sales of Goods Act was "signed by the party to be charged," the court has power to make the finding. [Sewell v. B.C. Towing Co., 9 Can. S.C.R. 527 at 552, applied.] A printed form of contract containing the names of the defendant companies stamped at the end thereof, and between which the agent of both defendants, for handing the form to a bonding company as evidence of the contract, had written the word "and," held to be "signed by the party to be charged" [Schmeider v. Norris, 2 M. & S. 286, followed], and to be a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the Sales of Goods Act, although it made no reference to an agreement by the plaintiffs to give a bond for the due performance of the contract.

Gibb v. Canadian Northern Construction Co. (B.C.), [1918] 1 W.W.R. 575. [Reversed in 43 D.L.R. 276, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 396.]

SALE OF GOODS — STATUTE OF FRAUDS — STATEMENT OF PRICE — REFERENCE TO PRICE LIST — INCORPORATION OF DOCUMENT BY REFERENCE — BREACH OF CONTRACT—DAMAGES.

Bimel-Ashcroft Mfg. Co. v. Chaplin Wheel Co., 15 O.W.N. 52.

(§ 1 E—106)—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—SUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM—DESCRIPTION OF PARTIES—CONTRACT IN AGENT'S NAME.

An agreement relating to land made in the name of an agent sufficiently satisfies the Statute of Frauds, since parol evidence is admissible to disclose the principal.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS — SUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM — NAME OF PURCHASER NOT INDICATED IN DEPOSIT RECEIPT. Woodhouse v. Foxwell, 11 D.L.R. 860.

SUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM — LAND OPTION.

A written option to purchase land at a named price, signed by the vendors, though their names do not appear in the body of the writing and no time is fixed for the exercise of the option, is a sufficient memorandum under the Statute of Frauds, and enforceable if accepted.

DESCRIPTION OF PARTIES—DEFINITENESS.

The description of a contracting party as the "client of, etc.," without specifying the name and with no independent writings to establish the identity, is defective for want of definiteness under the Statute of Frauds, and the contract operates only as an offer on the party to be charged.

GUARANTY—SUFFICIENCY OF MEMORANDUM —PARTIES.

The defendant wrote the following memorandum on a leaf of a ledger in the plaintiff's office: "I hereby guarantee the account of W.G. Fletcher successor to Fletcher and Jackson covering past and future purchases to the value of $750. (Signed) Emma Fletcher." There was no writing on the ledger to shew to whom it belonged. In an action by the guaranteee: Held, that as the name of the plaintiff did not in any way appear upon the document there was no sufficient agreement or memorandum or note of an agreement within s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds and the plaintiff cannot recover. [Williams v. Lake, 29 L.J. Q.B. 1, followed.] Where there is nothing in the document to indicate that the account which was guaranteed was the account of the plaintiff, parol evidence cannot be given to prove that it was the plaintiff's account.

Macdonald & Co. v. Fletcher, 22 B.C.R. 298

SALE OF LAND—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—DESCRIPTION OF PARTIES—SEPARATE WRITINGS.

The particulars required to make a complete memorandum for the purposes of the Statute of Frauds need not all be contained in one document. The signed writing may incorporate others by reference, but taken together they must identify the parties and subject-matter. [Clergue v. Preston, 8 O.L.R. 84, distinguished.]

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—DESCRIPTION OF PARTIES.

A contract for the sale of land which is signed by persons "as agents for the owner" sufficiently satisfies the requirements of the Statute of Frauds in that regard. [Rossiter v. Miller, 3 App. Cas. 1124, applied.]

STATUTE OF FRAUDS — DEFINITENESS — "CLIENT OF P. N. ANDERSON"—INSUFFICIENCY OF.

Where the only document available in proof of the alleged agreement of sale and signed by the party to be charged gave no further particulars from which it could be ascertained who was the other party to the contract than the words "client of P. N. Anderson," there is not a sufficient agreement to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. [Hatham v. Caldwell, 16 B.C.R. 201, followed; Andrews v. Calori, 38 Can. S.C.R. 988, distinguished.]

Newberry v. Brown, 20 D.L.R. 896, 20 B.C.R. 483, 7 W.W.R. 802.

(§ I E—108)—SUFFICIENCY OF WRITING—SIGNATURE "PER" ONE OF SEVERAL JOINT OWNERS—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

A receipt for the deposit on a sale of land expressed to be "subject to owners' approval" and containing a statement of the price and terms of sale will not satisfy the Statute of Frauds where it is signed "per" one of several joint owners and was repudiated by the co-owners, who declined the deposit and had it returned to the proposed purchaser.

SIGNATURE.

A concluded bargain is made for the sale of land when the owner signs a receipt that he had received a certain sum of money on account of the purchase thereof.

Baxter v. Rollo, 5 D.L.R. 764, 18 B.C.R. 769, 21 W.L.R. 892, 2 W.W.R. 786.

INTEREST IN LAND—UNDERTAKING TO CONFIRM—WRITTEN MEMORANDUM—PROOF BY SIGNATURE—HANDWRITING EXPERTS — STATUTE OF FRAUDS — TRUSTEE — FRAUDULENT BREACH OF TRUST—TAX SALE.

O'Brien v. Moore, 8 O.W.N. 378.

(§ I E—110)—EFFECT OF FRAUD—REAL ESTATE BROKER'S LISTING CONTRACT — WRITING—PAROL EVIDENCE.

Where brokers with whom defendant had listed for sale to a fixed date a particular property held by him under option, on obtaining a renewal of the listing, got defendant to sign a listing agreement in which, without his knowledge, they had added to the reference made to the particular property the words "and properties belonging to myself," the latter addition may be shown by parol to have been fraudulently obtained and will not be binding when promptly repudiated on discovery of the fraud; a reference to the listing as then "expiring" is evidence that only the property covered by the expiring contract was to be included in the renewal.

Gillespie v. Bending, 19 D.L.R. 187.

SETTLEMENT OF ACTION—INTERVENTION OF STRANGER—PROMISE TO PAY COSTS—WITHDRAWAL OF ACTION—PERFORMANCE OF PROMISE—FAILURE TO PROVE PROMISE TO PAY DAMAGES—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Gnam v. McNeil, 6 O.W.N. 223.

(§ I E—111)—PART PERFORMANCE—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

MISREPRESENTATION—LAPSE OF TIME—INABILITY TO RESTORE.

Misrepresentation as to the revenue derived from a theatre is not sufficient ground for setting aside a sale thereof, where the purchaser has had an opportunity to estimate the amount and has not complained of the small revenue received for several months after taking possession. Especially where such purchaser is in such a position that he cannot restore the business to the vendor if successful in the action.

Rodden v. Sauriol, 42 D.L.R. 220, 24 Rev. Leg. 421.

(§ I E—115)—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—ACTS OF PART PERFORMANCE.

Acts of part performance in order to be effective to take a contract for the sale of land out of the operation of the Statute of Frauds, must be done by the person asserting the contract with the knowledge of the person sought to be charged that the acts are being done and are so done on the faith of the contract; and such acts must be consistent with the contract alleged, and performed on the faith thereof. [Fry on Specific Performance, 5th ed., s. 588, specially referred to, and Maddison v. Alderson, 8 App. Cas. 467, referred to.]

FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION—REALTY CONTRACTS—AGENT'S DECEIT.

Kenner v. Proctor, 5 O.W.N. 552, 25 O.W.R. 439.

PART PERFORMANCE—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.

The plaintiff held a mortgage secured by a property occupied by a garage, of which the defendant was owner. They both employed the same agents, who collected the rent, paid the interest on the mortgage and the balance to the owner. Upon certain principal coming due the mortgagee wrote the agents stating he was willing to forego the payment for 6 months, but the mortgagor must sign an agreement guaranteeing that a sufficient sum be reserved from the garage rent to pay the interest without lapse until such time as the whole loan be refunded. Upon this letter being shown the mortgagor he wrote the agents instructing them to act as his sole agent, collect the rents, and pay the mortgage interest regularly until the loan be refunded in full. This arrangement was carried out for a year, when the mortgagor wrote the agents instructing them to cease collecting the rents. The mortgagee then sued the tenant for the rents, claiming there was an equitable assignment thereof and that the revocation was nugatory. On an interpleader issue it was held by the Trial Judge that the mortgagor's authority was revocable as there was no sufficient evidence of the agreement to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, and the letter from the mortgagor relied on did not constitute an equitable assignment, as it showed no consideration on its face. Held, on appeal, that irrespective of the question of equitable assignment, the extending of the time for payment of principal, the benefit of which was accepted by the mortgagor upon his agreeing that the mortgage should be paid out of the rents, was a sufficient part performance of the agreement to take the case out of the Statute of Frauds, and the appeal should be allowed.

Wardroper v. Stewart-Moore, 25 B.C.R. 69.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—PART PERFORMANCE—AGREEMENT TO CONVEY LAND—EVIDENCE—CORROBORATION—EXCITORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

The owner of a farm agreed by a formal document to convey the farm to his son, in consideration of the payment by the son of a rental to his father and mother during their lives and the life of the survivor and the performance of certain services. The son, for nearly a year, lived on the farm and carried out the terms of the agreement. He, then, owing to domestic difficulties, went away. The father then farmed the land for some months; but, after that, saw the son and persuaded him to return, upon, as stated by the son, the same terms as those previously agreed upon. The son then again continued to carry out, until the death about 10 months later of both father and mother, obligations which were the same as those specified in the original agreement.—Held, that the evidence of the son as to the second agreement was amply corroborated, and that the possession of the farm by the son, the payment of the stipulated rent, the making of repairs, and the removal of large stones from the land, were acts of part performance sufficient to take the case out of the Statute of Frauds.

Wilson v. Cameron, 30 O.L.R. 486, 5 O.W.N. 234, 787, affirming a judgment of Middleton, J.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—CONTRACTS AN TO LAND—PART PERFORMANCE—VENDOR AND PURCHASER—AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—PAYMENT OF TAXES—TRESPASS—INJUNCTION—APPEAL—DAMAGES.

Cook v. Bartsley, 7 O.W.N. 161.
(§ 1 E—121)—ORAL AGREEMENT—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—POSSESSION AND IMPROVEMENT.

The purchaser under an oral agreement for sale cannot set up his own contract of resale made with a third party as a part performance of the original agreement excluding the operation of the Statute of Frauds for the purpose of the purchaser's action for specific performance, if the contract of resale was made without the knowledge or acquiescence of the original vendor. [See also Fry on Specific Performance, 5th ed., p. 311.] No taking of possession sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds, occurs where one in possession of a piano under a storage arrangement, orally agrees to exchange certain land for the piano, and merely continues in possession of the piano without any overt act or writing to indicate a change in the character of the continued possession. [Maddison v. Alderson, 8 App. Cas. 467, specially referred to.]

INCOMPLETE AGREEMENT OF SALES—PURCHASER GOING INTO POSSESSION OF LAND—PAYMENT OF MUNICIPAL TAXES.

No taking of possession sufficient to operate as a part performance so as to take the case out of the Statute of Frauds, occurs where the intended purchaser, under an incomplete and unfinished contract, without the privity or consent of the owner goes into possession of the land being negotiated for and also pays part of the municipal taxes levied against the same. [Fry on Specific Performance, 5th ed., par. 387, specially referred to.]

PART PERFORMANCE—POSSESSORY ACTS.

Where there has been part payment on a contract to purchase timber limits not sufficiently evidenced by a writing under the Statute of Frauds, the subsequent entry upon the lands by the purchaser's agents or employees and their examination of the timber, may constitute a taking of possession and a part performance of the contract sufficient to take the case out of the operation of the Statute of Frauds, if the vendor as a licensee under the Crown Timber Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 32, s. 3, had the exclusive right of possession and the acts of the purchaser were not referable to or justifiable from any circumstances other than the contract in question.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS—PAROL AGREEMENT TO SELL LAND—PART PERFORMANCE—POSSESSION AND IMPROVEMENT.

A parol agreement to sell land is taken out of the Statute of Frauds where the vendee, with the knowledge of and without objection from the vendor, went into possession and built a house on the land.

INCORPORATING EXTRINSIC DOCUMENT.

The terms of a written contract with a municipal corporation, under its seal, cannot be varied so as to result in a binding agreement, by a written acceptance of a proposition to enter into a new and modified contract, contained in a letter written by a city solicitor, under directions from the city council, where such letter expressly stated that the offer therein contained was merely a tentative suggestion which was not to have any legal effect on the existing contract until reduced into a new written agreement. (Bonnewell v. Jenkins, 47 L.J. Ch. 758; Bosster v. Miller, 3 App. Cas. 1124; Shaw v. Currie, 21 O.L.R. 486, and Chinnock v. Marchioness of Ely, 4 DeG. J. & S. 638, at p. 644, applied.)

VAGUE OR AMBIGUOUS TERMS — CONSTRUCTION.

In the interpretation of a vague or ambiguous term used in a contract, a letter having reference to the same subject-matter written by another person on the plaintiff's instructions in which the same term is used, may be considered as the language of the plaintiff for the purpose of assigning to such term a meaning consistent with that in the letter but adverse to the meaning which the plaintiff seeks to place upon it in the contract.

REQUESTS—SALE OF LAND—EFFECT OF TAKING POSSESSION.

A contract to purchase is not established as against a railway company entitled to take lands by eminent domain proceedings, by the fact of the company having taken possession of same after notice from the owner naming his price and stating that if they took possession he would construe their action as an acceptance of his terms.

II. Construction.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A—125)—AGREEMENT TO BUY LAND—TERMS ON WHICH LAND TO BE RECONVEYED—TENDER OF INTEREST IN LAND INSTEAD OF SYNDICATE—NONCOMPLIANCE WITH TERMS.

The defendants organised a syndicate for the purpose of acquiring land in Alberta. The plaintiff subscribed for one share. An agreement was entered into, by which if the land purchased was not sold within a certain time, and the plaintiff wished to dispose of his share in the syndicate defendants would take over the plaintiff's interest at the actual cash amount invested by him with interest on execution by plaintiff of a good and sufficient transfer of his share containing covenants that said share had not been in any way incumbered. The court allowed the appeal and dismissed the action on the ground that, under the terms of the agreement, it was necessary for plaintiff to tender a conveyance of his interest in the syndicate; this he had not done but had only tendered a conveyance of his interest in the land held by the syndicate. Treen v. Silliker, 44 D.L.R. 515, 52 N.S.R. 464.

CONSTRUCTION—AMBIGUITY—PRESUMPTION.

Upon the construction of contracts, doubts are solved in favour of him who has contracted the obligation and against the person claiming its benefit, especially where the latter drew the contract.

Ha Ha Bay R. Co. v. Larouche, 10 D.L.R. 388, 22 Que. K.B. 92.

CONSTRUCTION OF—COMMERCIAL CONTRACT—QUE. C.C. 1069.

A contract between a lumber company and a trader, owner of land, for the cutting down of a certain quantity of wood each year for a number of years (coupe de bois) on the trader's land for the purpose of gradually clearing the land, is a commercial contract, and where a delay is fixed for the accomplishment of an obligation, the party under such obligation is in default by the lapse of time alone.

Brosseau v. Benard, 9 D.L.R. 172, 43 Que. S.C. 165.

CONSTRUCTION—CONDITION THAT CONTRACTEE MAY PAY FOR LABOUR AND SUPPLIES.

A condition in a construction contract that the contractee may pay for "labour and supplies" furnished the contractor, does not give the former power to decide what claims fall within such stipulation, since that is a question for decision by the court.

CONSTRUCTION—TELEGRAM FOLLOWING QUOTATION INCOMPLETE—RIGHT TO REJECT.

A contract is not made out by a telegram from the buyer following a quotation for a cargo of all chestnut coal, that he "must have 75 tons grate coal for foundry, balance nut, cargo not over 200 tons, price for nut satisfactory;" the buyer must be taken to have desired a quotation for the foundry coal then first mentioned, and was justified in refusing the entire shipment consigned to him without further order.

Phillips v. Hatt, 20 D.L.R. 186.

BREED OF FOXES.

It is not to be inferred that a written contract which recites that the vendor company is the "owner of a certain breed of foxes commonly known as blue foxes," and which provides for the sale of two pairs of blue foxes on specified terms, that the sale is one of foxes bred by the plaintiff company and not of foxes which it has purchased.

Provincial Fox v. Tennant, 21 D.L.R. 236, 48 N.S.R. 555, reversing 18 D.L.R. 380.

SUBSEQUENT ACTS OR CONDUCT.

Where the language of a contract is unambiguous its interpretation cannot be affected by subsequent acts or conduct.

Union Natural Gas Co. v. Chatham Gas Co., 34 D.L.R. 484, 38 O.L.R. 488. [See also 38 D.L.R. 753, 40 O.L.R. 148.]

ONUS AS TO CORRECT INTERPRETATION.

Where an agreement is capable of being taken in several meanings, the onus is upon the party seeking to show that his interpretation is the correct one, to establish it with reasonable clearness. [Falek v. Williams, [1900] A.C. 176, applied.]

Adams v. Acheson, 26 D.L.R. 633.

CONSTRUCTION OF — RENUNCIATION OF RIGHTS CONSTRUED STRICTLY WHEN.

An agreement alleged to import the renunciation of a right is interpreted strictly; and where a land owner permits his land to be taken for the construction of a railway, and reserves his right of action for possible damages, resulting from the obstruction or closing of a roadway leading from his farm to the St. Lawrence River, he is not estopped therefrom by a stipulation in the agreement of sale to the effect that the price of the land sold on the same day to the company "shall include all damages caused by the running of the railway over the land sold."

Desnoles v. Quebec & Saguenay Ry. Co., 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 94, 43 Que. S.C. 150.

AMBIGUOUS WORDS CONSTRUED AGAINST PARTY USING THEM.

It is a principle recognized on the interpretation of contracts that when the writing is drawn by a party, the doubts and ambiguities found in it are interpreted against him.

Casestari v. Lecavaller, 47 Que. S.C. 296.

MARRIAGE CONTRACT IN QUEBEC.

The clause in a marriage contract by which "the future husband donates to the future wife the sum of $4,000 half of which on his death, should go to the children born of the marriage and, if there were no children, the whole should return to the husband" with an hypothecary guarantee in favour of the future wife, constitutes, not a contractual institution of heirship nor a donation in contemplation of death, but a present donation of property, namely, of the income from the sum donated, to the future wife for her life, the property in it to be determined only at her death.

Martel v. Vignault, 44 Que. S.C. 68.

SALE — INTERPRETATION — CUTTING OF WOOD — C.C. ART. 1013, 1016, 1019.

The following clause stipulated as consideration for the sale of a wood lot, namely, "and also for the price of the work of cutting from now till 4 years from the date of these presents (for the profit of said vendors): the wood which is found on the part of the said land sold" should be interpreted in this sense that the purchaser binds himself to cut, during the four years immediately following the signing of the contract, the wood necessary for fuel for the vendor in each year. The rest of the wood should belong to the purchaser, the owner of the land. The above clause being doubtful, the common intention of the parties should be determined by interpretation. But the vendor has himself interjected the contract by only demanding from the purchaser in each year a limited quantity of wood namely, that which he needed for fuel.

SHARING OF PROFITS ON PURCHASE AND RESALE OF LAND — INTEREST ON MONEYS PAID BY PARTY IN BUYING AND HOLDING THE LAND TO BE TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT AS PART OF COST.

In estimating the profits on the purchase and resale of certain land for the purpose of dividing the profits, interest on the money paid out by one of the parties in buying the land and for taxes, etc., during the period of holding it, forms part of the cost and should be taken into account.

Moore v. Donogh, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 680.

(§ II A—127) — CONSTRUING AS A WHOLE.

Under an absolute covenant in a contract for the sale of mining claims that the purchaser should pay a royalty at a specified rate for each long ton of ore removed from the claims, the amount to be removed from the claims in each year to be not less than a specified amount of long tons and that the said royalty at such rate should be paid on such number of tons annually at least, whether that amount should be actually removed or not, the fact that no merchantable ore was found in the claims will not relieve the purchaser from the royalty. [Palmer v. Wallbridge, 15 Can. S.C.R. 650, applied; Leake on Contracts, 6th ed., 490, specially referred to.]

Dubé v. Mann, 4 D.L.R. 164, 3 O.W.N. 1580, 22 O.W.R. 75.

AGREEMENT TO SELL ALL GAS WHICH OTHER PARTY REQUIRES — INFERENCE.

Where the agreement between the parties is that the one shall supply all the gas which the other may use for power purposes, though there is no express agreement that the other would take all the gas which it needed, yet the court will infer an agreement on the part of the latter to do so. [The Queen v. MacLean, 8 Can. S.C.R. 210, referred to.] An offer by a gas company that it would supply gas at a certain reduced rate for a certain period of years to a manufacturing company for power purposes, and would extend its system and install apparatus so as to be able to make such supply, when accepted by the manufacturing company, is an agreement that the gas company would manufacture and supply to the manufacturing company all the gas which it would use for power purposes in its factory during that period at that reduced rate, and that the manufacturing company would take all the gas which it would use for that purpose during that period. [The Queen v. MacLean, 8 Can. S.C.R. 210; Kenney v. The Queen, 1 Can. Ex. 68, referred to.]

CONSTRUCTION AS A WHOLE—CIVIL CODE, QUEBEC, ART. 1641.

In an action for rescission under art. 1641 C.C. (Que.), the contract must be looked at as a whole, and the relative importance of the result of any single breach thereof must be considered in determining whether the party injured is entitled to rescind.

Consumers' Cordage Co. v. Bannerman, 2 D.L.R. 419.

SIGNATURE OF TWO ONLY OF THE THREE PARTIES—CONSTRUCTION.

An agreement of three persons relating to property and dealing with matters in which all three were interested, to be binding on any one of them must be executed by all, and where such a contract is signed by two only, the third refusing to sign, and one of the two signers proceeds to do what is required of him by the contract, he cannot recover from the other signer for any damages suffered by reason of the latter's failure to perform his part.

PRINTED FORM — PARTIAL FILLING IN OF BLANKS.

Kelly v. Locklin, 8 D.L.R. 1039, 17 B.C.R. 331, 3 W.W.R. 15.

(§ II A—128)—AMBIGUOUS — CONSTRUCTION BY CONDUCT OF PARTIES — ACCEPTATION OF BY COURT.

A contract being ambiguous in its terms and a construction having been placed upon it by the conduct and language of the parties, that construction will be accepted by the court as the true one.

Adolph Lumber Co. v. Meadow Creek Lumber Co., 45 D.L.R. 579, 58 Can. S.C.R. 306, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 823, reversing 25 B.C.R. 298.

CONSTRUCTION—INTENTION OF PARTIES.

Though the offerer proposes a modification of the terms of the offeror and requests an acceptance or refusal by cable, and a cable message is sent by the offeror accepting the modification of the terms, but adding the word "writing" to such acceptance in the message, the informal contract between the parties will be spelled out by reference not only to the previous correspondence between the parties, but also to a subsequent letter purporting to state its terms where nothing was done by the offerer in the interim and where he, through inadvertence, failed to repudiate the interpretation placed by the offeror on a material term of the contract contained in such subsequent letter.

CONSTRUCTION—REFERENCE TO PRIOR OFFER.

Where the proposed agent's counter-proposition for the sales agency of a work to be published in volumes issued at intervals, stipulates for the agency a fixed period "from the date of publication" the latter term is properly construed as referring to the publication of the first volume, where the negotiations were based upon a prior offer of the principal in which he had proposed an agency for a similar period expressly stated to be from publication of the first volume.

CONSTRUCTION — AGENCY — COUNTER-PROPOSITION — EXCLUSION OF RENEWAL CLAUSE.

Where in reply to a proposition for a contract of agency the proposed agent purports to set out a full statement of the terms to which he will agree but does not mention the offer of a renewal term which was contained in the original proposition made to him nor does his counter-proposition purport to be a mere modification of the terms of the original proposition, the renewal clause in the latter will not form a part of the contract although the acceptance by the principal refers to the counter-proposition as the agent's "modification" of his terms, if the acceptance further restates the terms as to the duration of the contract to the exclusion of the renewal clause.

CONSTRUCTION — INTENTION OF PARTIES—QUE. C.C. 1068.

Where large trees are to be cut and conveyed to the mill, it must be done in the autumn and winter, so as to allow of the logs being hauled out of the woods before the snow disappears, and failure so to do also puts the party who agreed to do the work in default without any formal notice being necessary.

Brosseau v. Benard, 9 D.L.R. 172, 43 Que. S.C. 165.

INTENTION OF PARTIES—CONSTRUCTION.

The acts and conduct of the parties cannot be invoked to affect the interpretation of plain and unambiguous language used in their written contract. [Baynham v. Guy's Hospital, 3 Ves. 294; Iggulden v. May, 9 Ves. 323, followed.]

Wilson v. Kerner, 3 D.L.R. 11, 3 O.W.N. 769, 21 O.W.R. 477.

AMBIGUITY—INTENTION.

Where a contract is devoid of any ambiguity, its plain provisions must not be defeated merely because the parties have acted upon a mistaken interpretation of its provisions; but where there is an ambiguity the acts of the parties done under it are admissible in evidence as a clue to their intention. [Lewis v. Nicholson, 18 Q.B. 593; North Eastern R. Co. v. Hastings, [1900] A.C. 269, referred to.]

Toronto General Trusts v. Gordon, Mackay & Co., 21 D.L.R. 394, 53 O.L.R. 183. [Reversed in 22 D.L.R. 904, 34 O.L.R. 101.]

INTENTION AS TO LEX LOCI.

The intention of parties to a contract which has been executed in a form usual in the Province of Ontario is that it should be interpreted according to the law of that province.

Canadian General Electric Co. v. Canadian Rubber Co., 27 D.L.R. 294, 52 Can. S.C.R. 349, affirming 47 Que. S.C. 24.

INTENTION—CIRCUMSTANCES AND COURSE OF DEALINGS.

Where the language used in an agreement is capable of more than one meaning the circumstances surrounding the contract and the course of dealing between the parties may be looked at to see in what sense the parties were using the words.

EMPHYTEUTIC LEASE—INTENTION.

In construing an agreement respecting the unexpired term of an emphyteutic lease, the intention of the parties must be sought, and however ambiguous and involved the language may be, if the intention can be ascertained with reasonable certainty, effect must be given to it.

Quebec v. Lampon, 40 D.L.R. 522, 56 Can. S.C.R. 288, reversing 49 Que. S.C. 307.

INTENTION OF PARTIES—CONSTRUCTION GIVEN BY THEM.

It is necessary, in interpreting a contract, to endeavour to ascertain the common intention of the parties rather than to be satisfied with the literal meaning of the expressions used. Thus when in a contract to furnish beer to a customer at a price fixed and for a term of years the brewer covenants that "if he should join a trust" formed for the purpose of procuring a monopoly of the business he would incur a penalty, the condition is formed and the penalty incurred by the sale of his brewery and good will to the trust though he does not per se acquire any interest in it. The common intention of the parties by the penal clause was to oblige the brewer not, by his act, to allow the brewery to pass into the hands of the trust whether he joined it or not. The fixed penalty provided for is only the valuation agreed upon for the damages caused by nonobservance of the main obligation. The court may reduce the amount in case of partial performance or if the circumstances exclude in the right to demand the whole, e.g., in allowing a penalty to indemnify a hotel-keeper for loss in his business, it is necessary to consider the limited time for his license to run.

Can. Dig.—35.

Robitaille v. Proteau, 41 Que. S.C. 214.

INTENTION.

The nature of an agreement should be determined by the intention of the contracting parties as well as by its main objects, taking into account the relations of the parties. It is necessary to follow the terms of the contract which has been actually effected, although in the agreement stipulations are found of the nature of some other contract.

Gallagher v. Confer, 48 Que. S.C. 303.

CONFLICTING CLAUSES — INTENTION OF PARTIES.

Where in an agreement a clause is susceptible of two interpretations, the one pertaining to the contract and compatible with the mutual intention of the parties, and the other unusual and tending to avoid the undertaking entered into, it is the first which should be adopted.

Browning v. The Masson Co., 24 Que. K.B. 389. [Reversed in 27 D.L.R. 360, 52 Can. S.C.R. 379.]

(§ II A—129) — UPHOLDING CONTRACT TO PREVENT FORFEITURE.

When a contract of option for the purchase of mining locations provides (a) that the owner giving the option shall deposit all the titles in escrow in the hands of a third party within the delay for declaring the option, under a fixed penalty; (b) that the intending purchaser may take immediate possession of the property; (c) that in the event of the option being made the owner will execute the necessary instruments to put the purchaser in full possession and ownership of the property; (d) that the price agreed upon will be paid by instalments at stated dates; the first of these covenants is sufficiently executed by depositing the documents of title exhibited at the time of the contract and on which it was made, though not perfect and complete. The penalty is not incurred till the purchaser, by payment of the entire price, has put the owner in default of vesting him with the ownership of the property.

Marshall v. Leckie, 41 Que. S.C. 203.

(§ II A—131) — PRINTED AND TYPEWRITTEN PROVISIONS.

The rule of interpretation that that which is in handwriting must be preferred to that which is in printing, does not apply where the contract is typewritten.

Howard v. Calkins, 50 Que. S.C. 147.

CONTRADICTORY CLAUSES — PRINTED AND WRITTEN.

If in a contract there is a clause printed and a clause written which contradicts it, the latter should prevail. [See remarks of Demers, J., in the case of Rosconi v. Péladan, 48 Que. S.C. 356.] Thus, when a mandate for sale of a property contains a printed clause providing that it shall remain in force as long as it is not revoked by a written notice this clause will be non-effective if at the foot of the writing the principal has himself written that the contract will expire at a fixed date.

Rodier v. Meehan, 48 Que. S.C. 397.

(§ II A—132)—PLACE OF PAYMENT.

Where a contract for sale of lands made by offer and acceptance is silent as to the place of payment of the purchase money, the presumption is that the price is payable at the place where the party made the offer and was domiciled. [Fessard v. Mugnier, 34 L.J.C.P. 126, and Robey v. Snaefell, 20 Q.B.D. 152, followed.]

PLACE OF CONTRACT — TRADE USAGE — REASONABLENESS.

By agreement in writing the plaintiff, a corporation having its head office in Toronto, agreed to sell certain goods on certain terms to the defendants, a firm of commission merchants in Winnipeg. The contract was drawn and executed by the plaintiff in Toronto, and was afterwards executed by the defendants in Winnipeg. The goods would necessarily be shipped from Ontario and payment therefor made to the plaintiff in Toronto. Held, that it was an Ontario contract and no usage adopted by the trade in Winnipeg would be admissible to explain, vary or contradict any of its terms, and there was no evidence to affect the plaintiff with any knowledge of or assent to the usage in question; that the usage alleged by the defendants was unreasonable. [Perry v. Barnett, 15 Q.B.D. 388, applied.] The construction of contracts containing words, the natural meaning of which has been changed by local usage, discussed. [McCowan v. Baine [1891] A.C. 408, and Myers v. Sarl, 3 E. & E. 306, considered.]

(§ II A—133)—INCONSISTENT PROVISIONS.

In an action by the plaintiff for a stipulated sum as liquidated damages under the defendant's written agreement to carry out and complete an option with a third party for the purchase of a certain interest in a mine, where the recital provides that in case the option is not carried out and completed the defendant will "on or before" June 1 pay the sum so fixed, and where a later clause stipulates that in case of the defendant's failure to carry out the option and complete the purchase he shall "within one month after such default, on or before June 1st," pay the stipulated sum, the specific provisions of the later clause prevail, and the liability will arise at the expiry of one month after the default, although such construction of the contract may mature the obligation prior to June 1. Kennedy v. Harris, 7 D.L.R. 291, 4 O.W.N. 183, 23 O.W.R. 179.

On September 7, 1907, a written agreement was entered into between the plaintiff D. D. and the defendants C. McM. and L. McM., for the sale of certain lands, the title to which was vested in the defendants, for the sum of $200. At the time there was a verbal understanding between the parties to the agreement and S. D., the mother of the plaintiff, that the agreement was only to be used to raise money to pay the creditors of the plaintiff and S. D., and was not to be used for any other purpose until the assent of R. C. D., the father of the plaintiff, had been obtained. The agreement was never used for the purpose of paying the creditors and the assent of R. C. D. to it was never obtained. Held, that the agreement was valid, although the assent of the plaintiff's father was never obtained, and that the verbal agreement not to use was only a collateral agreement, and did not affect the validity of the agreement itself. Held also, that the defendants are liable to account to the plaintiff for the moneys received by them on the sale of the property, subject to the trust that such moneys be held for the benefit of the creditors of the plaintiff and his mother.

Donald v. McManus, 4 N.B. Eq. 390.

B. ENTIRETY.

(§ II B—135) — ENTIRETY — COMPLETE PERFORMANCE FOR KNOWN PURPOSE — ENTIRE AND INDIVISIBLE, WHEN.

An agreement to clear stones from and to steam plough a certain number of acres of land before a specified date is an entire and indivisible contract, where the surrounding circumstances shew that the parties were anxious to get the land in shape for cropping by the time set in the agreement; and hence no recovery can be had for work done under the contract where plaintiff has not performed the entire contract. [King v. Low, 3 O.L.R. 234, applied.]

SEVERABILITY.

Where tenders of the same contractor for two independent construction works for a municipality are accepted by separate resolutions of the council of the municipal corporation, the subsequent execution under the corporate seal, of one indenture of agreement embodying the two contracts formed by the separate resolutions, which were not under seal, whereby the tenders are accepted will not destroy the separalate identity of each contract embodied in the one indenture if there was no consensus of intention of the parties that both should constitute one entire contract.

Where, in an agreement between the parties, the first clause contained a declaration of title, and subsequent clauses gave a right of mining with a power of cancellation under certain contingencies:—Held, that the agreement was severable, and that the exercise of such power related to the operative clauses only and did not affect the clause containing the declaration of title.

Bansmoir v. Last Chance Mining Company, 16 B.C.R. 499.

ENTIRETY—LIABILITY FOR PARTIAL PERFORMANCE.

Where one agrees to cut and deliver at a given point all the hay upon a piece of and owned by another for a stated price per ton, the agreement is an entire agreement, but the owner must nevertheless pay for each ton as it is delivered. Jalinston v. Keenan, 3 Terr. L.R. 239; Taylor v. Kinsey, 4 Terr. L.R. 178, followed.

SALE—TREES—GROWTH—NULLITY—C.C. ARTS. 1013, 1065.

When the seller of a vacant lot agrees "to remove all the trees from both of the avenues," that is, the avenues on which the lot was fronting, he is not only obliged to cut the trees, but he must also remove the stumps thereof.

Matley v. Kingsley, 25 Rev. Leg. 8.

C. TIME.

(4 H.C.—140)—TIME—CONTRACT OF HIRING—MONTHLY PAYMENTS AND NOTICE.

Where a contract of hiring provides that the salary is to be payable at a certain rate per month and that either party has the right to terminate the hiring by giving a month's notice, the hiring is to all intents and purposes a monthly one, although other terms of the contract refer to the hiring as being upon a yearly basis.

Braden v. Reid & Co., 9 D.L.R. 668.

REALTY SALE—INCOMPLETENESS OF AGREEMENT—TIME AND MODE OF PAYMENT.

There is not a completed agreement where essential things are not provided for expressly or tacitly or otherwise; so in an agreement for the sale of land, which provided for payment of a comparatively small proportion in cash, the only stipulation as to the time for payment of the remainder was as follows: "Balance to be arranged by mortgage bearing 6 per cent interest," there was an omission of an essential part of the agreement, inasmuch as neither of the parties was to be at liberty to fix the terms and mode of payment of the mortgage. [Reynolds v. Foster, 9 D.L.R. 836, 4 O.W.N. 694, approved.]

Stevens v. Moritz, 14 D.L.R. 699, 5 O.W.N. 421, 25 O.W.R. 453.

TIME.

Where a contract to sell goods stipulated for delivery "on or about the 28th April," the variance from the exact date "28th April" must be only slight if at all, where the seller at the time of the contract knew the purpose of the purchase and that the buyer needed and expected prompt delivery not later than the day specified, and this, especially where between the date of execution of the agreement and the date for delivery, the buyer further gave special written notice that failure to deliver promptly would involve him in a loss of $40 per day. [Cross v. Elgin, 2 B. & Ad. 100, applied.] Leonard & Son v. Kremer, 7 D.L.R. 244, 4 A.L.R. 152, 20 W.L.R. 147, 1 W.W.R. 642. [Affirmed, 11 D.L.R. 491, 48 Can. S.C.R. 518, 4 W.W.R. 332.]

CONSTRUCTION—OPTION—DEFAULT IN KEEPING ALIVE THE OPTION—DATE, HOW DETERMINED.

Where a written mining contract prescribes a fixed liability if one of the contracting parties "fails in carrying out" a certain option with a third party, such is in effect an agreement to keep the option alive; and the date of the default may be fixed by reference to the date of the cancellation of the option by the third party. Kennebec v. Harris, 7 D.L.R. 291, 4 O.W.N. 183, 1 O.W.R. 179.

CONSTRUCTION—RIGHT TO REDEEM WITHIN FIXED PERIOD—NOTICE OF INTENTION—ACQUIESCENCE OF BUYER.

Where the vendor of a property who has reserved in his favour a right of redemption of such property, exercisable within a certain stipulated delay, informs the buyer within such delay of his intention to exercise such privilege, and does as a matter of fact come to exercise such right on the day following the expiry of the delay and the buyer requests him to call later, the buyer will be held to have acquiesced in the exercise of such right of redemption.

Malo v. Roy, 3 D.L.R. 431, 18 Rev. de Jur. 462.

TIME OF CONTINUANCE.

The words "whilst the mother is self-dependent" contained in a stipulation to pay for a grandchild's maintenance are not to be restricted to the lifetime of the testator, but are equally applicable to the period after his death as to that before, during which the child's mother continues to be self-dependent. A stipulation in a contract to pay maintenance made for valuable consideration whereby the promisor agrees to pay the maintenance money quarterly in advance "so long as I can," will not enable the promisor to terminate the contract at his own will and pleasure; the words "so long as I can" are to be considered as having reference to his financial ability, and such ability being proved the promisee is entitled to recover.

Chisholm v. Chisholm, 2 D.L.R. 57, 46 N.S.R. 27.

TIME OF THE ESSENCE—EFFECT OF EXTENSION.

Where it is a condition of a contract for the sale of land that time is to be considered as of the essence of the agreement, a mere extension of time is a waiver of such condition only to the extent of substituting the extended time for the original time and the condition remains effective so as to make time of the essence of the agreement as to the substituted date. [Barclay v. Messenger, 43 L.J. Ch. 449, followed.]

Hicks v. Laidlaw, 2 D.L.R. 460, 22 Man. L.R. 96, 20 W.L.R. 479, 1 W.W.R. 1008.

TIME—SERVICES OF CONSULTING ENGINEER REPORTING ON MINING PROPERTY—PER DIEM RATE.

Allen v. Crepeau, 20 D.L.R. 985.

SHARES—COMPANY NOT FORMED.

An agreement to give cash and shares in a company to be afterwards formed, in payment for mining areas, is not broken by a failure to deliver the shares if the formation of the company does not take place: it was an implied condition of the contract that the shares should come into existence. [Wood v. Grand Valley R. Co., 22 D.L.R. 614, referred to.]

Roche v. Johnson, 29 D.L.R. 329, 53 Can. S.C.R. 18, reversing 24 D.L.R. 305, 49 N. S.R. 12.

TIME FOR PERFORMANCE—COMMERCIAL CONTRACT.

A contract between the owner of a stone-quarry and a building contractor, for the hewing and delivery of stone, is of a commercial nature, and the debtor is put in default by the mere lapse of time fixed for performance.

Wighton v. Hitch, 44 Que. S.C. 128.

SALES AGENCY — BREACH BY PRINCIPAL —

DAMAGES — PERIOD OF CONTRACT INDEFINITE — CONSTRUCTION — REASONABLE TIME—LOSS OF PROFITS.

The plaintiff a resident of Vancouver and the defendant, an English manufacturing company, entered into an arrangement by correspondence whereby the plaintiff was to be the sole agent of the defendant for the sale of its goods in the 4 western Canadian Provinces. A letter from the defendant setting out proposed terms of agreement after stating the percentage allowed on sales was followed by the words "this offer to be firm for one year." The letter then continued with advice as to development of sales and wound up with the words, "we are willing to give you the agency as long as you like on a small minimum turnover." There was nothing elsewhere in the correspondence fixing any definite time during which the contract was to continue. The plaintiff accepted the offer and devoted his time and attention in developing the agency and incurred considerable expenditure in advertising. The defendant company repudiated the contract about 4 months later. In an action for damages it was held by the Trial Judge that it was not the intention of the parties to limit the contract to one year and as no time was stated a reasonable time should be allowed for the performance of the contract which he fixed at 2 years, allowing the plaintiff the profits he reasonably would have made during that period. Held, on appeal, and that the trial judge had reached a right conclusion and the appeal should be dismissed; that the plaintiff's damages should be reduced to the sum allowed for 1 year.

Macdonald & Co. v. Casein, 26 B.C.R. 204.

CONSTRUCTION — TIME — ESSENCE OF.

The clause in the original agreement making time of the essence of the contract was followed by a clause giving the vendor the right to treat the contract as cancelled if any of the stipulations as to time, title, etc., were not observed by the purchaser.—Held, that the right to treat the contract as cancelled was merely ancillary to the substantial right. The rights annexed by law to a contract in favour of one party thereto are not limited by an express right in excess of those annexed by law in favour of the other. At the common law, time was always strictly of the essence of the contract; and, when time is by express provision made of the essence of the contract, the rights of the parties are still as at common law. If the vendor is not ready and willing to perform his part of the contract at the time specified, the purchaser may at once bring his action; and it is no answer that the vendor is afterwards able and willing to implement his agreement.

Winniffrith v. Finkleman, 32 O.L.R. 318.

LOAN—DATE OF PAYMENT.

When the date for the payment of a loan is not fixed by agreement, the court at the demand either of the lender, or the borrower will determine the term according to circumstances.

Howard v. Findlay, 51 Que. S.C. 375.

TIME — SALE OF LAND — NEGOTIATIONS AFTER LAPSE.

An offer of purchase of an immovable duly accepted by the owner, with a proviso that "a good deed of sale shall be executed within 15 days," is binding after the expiry of that delay, when the parties continue to carry on negotiations respecting the transaction, shewing that they did not consider the condition an absolute one, or that they have renounced it.

Daves v. Ward, 43 Que. S.C. 456.

SALE OF LAND — TIME — TITLE — REGISTRATION.

A promise of sale which stipulates that on default of making a payment on June 2, and of signing the deed of sale June 3, the deed should be void, becomes cancelled and annulled on the expiration of the delay, without formal demand. Even if, on such date, the vendor's title should not be perfect; based with hypotheses and certitudes; such defects do not prevent the promise of sale from becoming void, the owner not being compelled to remove these charges, if the purchaser does not fulfil the conditions to which he has agreed. A promise of sale of real property, binding only on one party, is not a deed of transfer of the property, and does not, by itself, encumber such property with any real right; it only gives his beneficiary a right of preference over the other purchasers, and only creates a personal obligation, whose carrying out can be demanded, and it is only when it is accepted that the vendor can be compelled to carry it out; it cannot then be registered.

Gohiet v. Morrisset, 53 Que. S.C. 505.

BUILDING — ACTION FOR BALANCE OF PRICE — EXTRAS — WORK DONE UNDER CONTRACT — COUNTERCLAIM — PENALTIES FOR DELAY — RECOVERY FOR ACTUAL LOSS AND DAMAGE ONLY — REFERENCE — COSTS.

Norman McLeod v. Orillia Water Light & Power Commission, 17 O.W.N. 124.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER — AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND — TIME MADE OF ESSENCE — FAILURE OF PURCHASER TO CLOSE TRANSACTION ON DAY NAMED — REGISTRATION OF PLAN — DISMISSAL OF ACTION FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Larson v. Hunt, 6 O.W.N. 89, 26 O.W.R. 58.

AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND — TIME MADE OF ESSENCE — FAILURE OF PURCHASER TO MAKE PAYMENT — FAULT OF SOLICITOR — TERMINATION OF AGREEMENT BY NOTICE FROM VENDOR.

Marotta v. Reynolds, 5 O.W.N. 907, 25 O.W.R. 833.

MORTGAGE OF HOUSE — DATE OF COMPLETION — REASONABLE TIME — DELAY — DAMAGES.

The defendant on October 12 agreed to move a house for the plaintiff, and to finish the moving on October 21, "or as soon thereafter as possible".—Held, that the words quoted meant within a reasonable time after October 21; and in the circumstances, that a few days thereafter would have been a reasonable time; and a delay till December 29 was unreasonable.—Held, therefore, that there had been a breach of contract by the defendant, for which the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages, measured by the value of the use of the house during the time for which the plaintiff was deprived thereof by the defendant's delay, assessed at $15, for which sum judgment was given, with costs on the District Court scale.

Archambault v. Day, 27 W.L.R. 15.

SALE OF LAND — PROMISSORY NOTE — NOTE GIVEN FOR OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND — OPTION NOT TO BE EXERCISABLE UNTIL PAYMENT OF NOTE — NOTE NOT PAID WITHIN TIME LIMIT — OPTION PERIOD EXPIRED — MAKER OF NOTE LIABLE THEREON.

Layng v. Pede, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 714.

D. PARTICULAR WORDS, PHRASES AND CASES. (§ II D—145) — CONSTRUCTION — PARTICULAR WORDS — "ALL MATERIALS EXCEPTING ROCK."

Under a contract to "do the excavating of all materials excepting rock" under a building, the court held that the word "rock" should be considered as having its usual meaning of large stones or boulders, and that the contractor was under the circumstances entitled to charge extra for removing these.

PURCHASE OF LAND — JOINT OWNERSHIP — ASSIGNMENT OF INTEREST BY ONE PARTY — TERMS OF PAYMENT — "NET PROCEEDS" — INTERPRETATION — EXCUSE FOR NONPERFORMANCE — ACTION.

A party to an agreement who covenants to pay a certain sum and interest from the "net proceeds" of the sale of land, cannot set up the excuse that "net proceeds" mean "net profits" and that as there were no "net profits" he is absolved from payment. [Canadian Port Huron Co. v. Fairchild, 3 S.L.R. 228, distinguished.]

Montgomery v. Scott, 50 D.L.R. 394, 30 Man. L.R. 90, [1920] 1 W.W.R. 140.

SYNDICATE AGREEMENT TO PURCHASE LAND — PARTICULAR CLAUSE — CONSTRUCTION OF.

A syndicate agreement contained the following clause:—"The said Stephen Benson shall notify the other parties hereto of all sums required to meet the obligations of the syndicate, and in the event of any of the parties hereto failing to pay his share within 30 days after having been notified thereof, the interest of the party so failing, as aforesaid, in the land so purchased, shall, at the expiration of the 30 days forthwith cease, and the property so purchased shall thereupon become vested in the remaining members of the syndicate freed and discharged from any claim or interest in the same of the party so failing as aforesaid. The court held that this clause did not exclude all other remedies, and that the plaintiff had a perfect right to look to the defendants for their respective shares of the amount disbursed by him for taxes.

PARTICULAR PHRASES — IMPORT OF "FULLY EQUIPPED" — AUTOMOBILE SALE — TIRES.

An agreement in writing for the sale and purchase of an automobile "fully equipped" was held on the evidence not to include other than plain tires.

BREACH — ARBITRATION CLAUSE — CONSTRUCTION OF.

In a contract to dig an oil well, it was provided: "That if at any time during the prosecution of the said work, or after the completion thereof, any dispute, difference or question shall arise between the parties hereto, or any of their representatives, touching the said work, or the construction, meaning, or effect of these presents, or anything herein contained, or the rights or liabilities of the parties or their representatives, under these presents or otherwise in relation to the premises, then every such dispute, difference or question shall be referred to . . . arbitration." The court held that the words "if at any time during the prosecution of the said work or after the completion thereof" referred to time and not to the condition of the work, and applied even although the work was not being carried on through the fault of one of the parties. Held, also, that it was the intention of the parties to refer all disputes or differences arising between them as well as the question whether such disputes were within the arbitration clause.

PARTICULAR WORDS — REALTY SALE — GUARANTEED PROFITS ON "THE PURCHASE."

On a sale by the vendor real estate company where the first deferred payment and interest did not become due for 6 months, a guarantee given to the purchaser by a large shareholder in the vendor company, as an inducement for the purchase, that such shareholder would, within 6 months, effect for the purchaser a resale to realize a profit of 25% "on the purchase" is not necessarily a guarantee of 25% on the entire price, but may, having regard to the customary method of speculative real estate dealings in the locality, be construed to guarantee only that profit on the actual expenditure which the purchaser would require to make, up to the end of the 6 months' period fixed for the prospective resale.

CONSTRUCTION — PARTICULAR WORDS — "TO DO THE SQUARE THING" — COMPENSATION — QUESTION FOR JURY.

Where the defendant employed the plaintiff to perform certain services for him, promising as compensation therefor "to do the square thing," this is a promise to pay what is an adequate and reasonable price for the services rendered, in other words a quantum meruit. [Crossdale v. Hall, 3 B.C.R. 384, distinguished; Bryant v. Flight,

5 M. & W. 114, applied.] Where the plaintiff agreed to perform, and did perform, certain services for the defendant, relying upon his promise "to do the square thing" as compensation for such services, the question as to what compensation under the circumstances a promise "to do the square thing" imports, should be submitted to the jury. [Crossdale v. Hall, 3 B.C.R. 384, distinguished.]

PARTICULAR WORDS ON PHRASES — AGREEMENT BETWEEN PHYSICIANS — "PERCENTAGE OF TOTAL NET RECEIPTS" — CONSTRUED.

Where, in an agreement between two physicians, one is employed by the other for a fixed sum for each of 2 years, for the first year at a percentage of the net proceeds of business for that year and for the next at an increased percentage on the same basis, the percentage on the business for the year is not necessarily based upon the amount of money actually received during any of the years in question, but payments made subsequently for services rendered during such year, whether paid for during each of such years or at a subsequent period, are to be taken into consideration.

CONSTRUCTION — PARTICULAR PHRASES — INTERPRETATION BY REFERENCE TO PRIOR CONTRACTS.

Where a restaurant keeper in a local option town buys table water from the defendant under his warranty that the commodity was "nonintoxicating hop ale" and not inhibited by the Liquor License Act (Ont.), and where subsequent orders were given for "hop ale" simply, this phrase will be construed as "nonintoxicating hop ale" so as to be included in the original warranty.

REMUNERATION — BUSINESS — "DEFINITE SHAPE" — MEANING OF.

Where under a contract of hiring it is a term of the contract that the remuneration shall be based on the business which shall have assumed "definite shape" during the term of the contract, a tender for a contract, accompanied by a letter and a marked cheque, where the tender was afterwards accepted, is sufficient proof that the necessary stage of definiteness has been reached.

Whyte v. McTaggart, 22 D.L.R. 8, 31 W.L.R. 654.

WORDS AND PHRASES — "AND" — "SO."

Where the literal meaning of a contract leads to no inconsistency, absurdity or injustice, and the text is unambiguous and grammatically correct, the word "and" cannot be read as "so."

Ritchie v. Webster, 35 D.L.R. 373, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1124.

"or"—"AND."

In an assignment of "all moneys due or accruing due," the word "or" will be read as "and."

Ledingham v. Merchants Bank of Canada, 35 D.L.R. 191, 24 B.C.R. 207, reversing 10 W.W.R. 1360, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1016.

AGENT—COMMISSION—PARTICULAR WORDS.

An agent whose commissions on sales are to be paid "on orders received through you" is not entitled to commission where from the evidence the only inference is that it was the act of the company's manager alone that secured the order, or where orders were received otherwise than through the agent's efforts.

Band v. Sturgeon Consolidated Collieries, 41 D.L.R. 165, 13 A.L.R. 530, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 912.

PURCHASE OF GOODS—PAYMENT OF FREIGHT

—INTERPRETATION OF CONTRACT—EVIDENCE.

BROAD V. PETERS (Sask.), 43 D.L.R. 754.

SALE OR LOAN—RIGHT TO REDEEM—INTEREST.

One who exercises the right of redemption, is only bound to reimburse his purchasers' capital without interest, and the costs of sale. It is nevertheless possible for the parties to agree that the return of the price of sale shall also include the payment of interest. But, in such case, no interest is due before the redemption has been determined on and the capital reimbursed. If such a contract is made, a stipulation for payment of interest, as well as a clause that the capital can only be returned to the purchaser in 3 years, are elements which contribute to making the agreement deemed to be a loan and not a sale with right of redemption. If such a contract was not a loan, but a sale with right of redemption, the clause declaring that the purchaser must pay interest upon the capital before the expiry of 3 years is void, as imposing a conditional obligation which cannot be performed. One of the strict rules of interpretation of agreements, besides those indicated in arts. 1013, 1018, 1019, C.C. (Que.), is to adopt the meaning that the parties themselves have given to their contract in their carrying it out.

Marcil v. Bureau, 53 Que. S.C. 496.

CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS — HIRING OF AN ARCHITECT TO DRAW PLANS OF A BUILDING AND OVERSEE THE WORK—FEE TO BE A PERCENTAGE ON THE COST—ESTIMATED AND ACTUAL COST — PRESCRIPTION — SHORT PRESCRIPTIONS — DATE FROM WHICH PRESCRIPTIONS OF A CLAIM FOR PROFESSIONAL SERVICES RUN.

When one about to build hires an architect to draw plans, etc., and oversee the work, for a fixed percentage on the cost, such percentage is due on the actual cost and not on the estimated cost at the time of the agreement. The prescription of a claim for professional services by an architect begins to run from the date at which he can bring suit to recover the amount, after the completion or abandonment of the work. Hence, if an interruption of the services, or a stoppage of the work, occurs through litigation or from other causes, prescription only runs from the time when the work is definitely abandoned.

WORK — COMMERCIAL OR NOT — CONTRACT — PENALTY FOR DELAY—QUE. C.C. 1011, 1067, 1069, 1138, 1233, 2188, 2267.

A contract made by a contractor who supplies the material is always commercial; such a contract is a commercial one as respects the owner only if the construction is made for the purposes of his trade. When in a commercial contract there is a clause imposing a penalty "for each day after which the work remains unfinished," there is a putting in default, by the terms of the contract, from the day on which the work should have been completed.

Boivin v. Paquet, 40 Que. S.C. 461.

CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS — GRANT OF EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGE — PREFERENCE FOR RENEWAL THEREOF — POWER OF TOWN CORPORATIONS—GRANT OF RIGHT TO SUPPLY A COMMODITY FOR EVERY PURPOSE FOR WHICH IT MAY BE USED — MUNICIPAL BY-LAWS SUBJECT TO APPROVAL OF ELECTORS—MEANING OF THE WORDS "THE MAJORITY OF ELECTORS."

A contract in conformity with a by-law, by which a town corporation gives a party, for a period of 10 years, the exclusive privilege to supply electricity in the town for lighting, heating, motive power, electrolysis, metal-working, locomotion, and generally for all the purposes for which electricity may be used, with a preference, at the end of that period, of renewal of the contract, over any competitor, for a further period of 10 years, at the rates offered by such competitor, is a contract for a period, not of 20 years, but of ten only, at the expiration of which it ceases and is determined. Such a grant is ultra vires of a town municipality, and the contract is therefore null and void. A special enactment that gives a town the power to purchase "any system of electric light, etc., and for that purpose to make a by-law to be submitted for approval to the majority in number and in value of the electors who are proprietors," means the majority of such electors notwithstanding a general enactment that has governed the town for more than 10 years and that provides in express words, for the approval of by-laws of a like nature by "a majority in number and value of proprietors who are electors and who have voted."

Ricard & Town of Grand Mere, 23 Que. K.B. 97.

PARTICULAR WORDS, PHRASES AND CASES.

Claim by unsecured creditor of a litigant against attorney "ad litem" of the latter for reimbursement, in pursuance of agreement, of advances for costs, upon attorney having recovered his costs from adverse party. It was held (confirming adjudication made by the Superior Court), that the right of action, against the defendant, was not vested in the plaintiffs.

Gagnon v. Bedard, 18 Rev. de Jur. 134.

INTERPRETATION—FORCE MAJEURE—C.C., ART. 1013.

The following clause in a contract made by an electric company to supply, during five years, the energy necessary for the operation of a plant, to wit:

"23. If any time during the continuance of the contract the operation of the works of the works of either party is suspended owing to war, rebellion, civil disturbances, serious epidemics, fire or other causes of a like nature beyond the control of either party, the party whose operations are so suspended shall not be liable to the other party, until the cause of such suspension has been removed, but there shall be a corresponding abatement of rent, provided that both parties take all reasonable precautions and adopt all reasonable measures for the prevention of fire and the extinguishing of same, and the party whose operations are so interfered with shall use all reasonable diligence to remove the cause of such suspension," must be construed as contemplating temporary suspension only, and not a total destruction by force majeure. The contract does not provide against this latter occurrence. Therefore, the company receiving the electric power not being obliged to rebuild its factory and the contract having become ineffective, the electric company has no claim for profit, losses nor disbursements for the balance of the contract.

Curtis Harvey v. Vaudrenil Electric Co., 28 Que. K.B. 473.

In an agreement for the sale of shares in a lumber company, were the following covenants: "(2) It is understood and agreed and the parties of the first part hereby guarantee that the assets of the said company with their approximate values consist of the lands and tenements and goods and chattels set forth in the schedule hereunto annexed. (6) The said parties of the first part further guarantee that the balance of the assets of the said company over and above the logs, stock in store, piles, boom sticks and boom chains are truly and correctly set forth in the said schedule, and if upon investigation and examination it turns out that the said assets or any of them are not forthcoming and cannot be delivered the value of said deficiency shall be estimated by three arbitrators, one to be chosen by each of the parties of the first part and second part and a third by the two arbitrators so named as aforesaid and the amount of the award of the said arbitrators shall in manner hereinbefore mentioned be deducted from the said purchase money still owing and unpaid under this agreement." Assuming the clauses to be independent, the defendant, not having counterclaimed under clause 2, he should not be allowed to amend on the appeal, as to do so would be simply allowing him to set up a cross-action. It was intended by clause 6 that any deficiency should be decided by arbitration. Defendant should have been permitted to establish the deficiency, if any, in court, and then gone to arbitration to determine the value of such deficiency.

(§ II D—150)—SALE OF GOODS—CONDITIONS—TIME FOR DELIVERY—BREACH—REPUDIATION—RIGHT TO RESCIND.

A contract for the sale of goods contained the following conditions: "Default in payment of any delivery will entitle seller to cancel contract. If after entering into contract the purchaser fails to execute any of his obligations thereunder, the sellers have the right to terminate the contract without prejudice to any claim for damages they may make. "Seller gives the buyer the privilege of cancelling any one month's delivery, if such delivery is delayed more than 30 days beyond the expiration of the month in question, provided buyer notifies seller within 10 days after the expiration of the said 30 days' delay of their desire to cancel." Held, that it was evident from these conditions that time was not of the essence of the contract and that no obligation was thrown upon the purchaser to demand or insist upon delivery, a demand on the part of the vendor that the purchaser should take delivery under the terms of the contract was a condition precedent to a claim on his part that the failure of the purchaser to take delivery had discharged him from his obligations under the contract.

SUBJECT-MATTER NOT IN ESSE—HAIL INSURANCE—"NOT TO EXCEED."

In an action for damages for breach of a contract whereunder the defendant agreed to secure hail insurance notes "not to exceed" $50,000 in amount which were not then in existence, but to be obtained by a firm of insurance brokers in the course of the season's business, which was just then commencing, and to hand them over to the plaintiff for collection on certain terms of remuneration in consideration of the plaintiff giving up his agency for a certain hail insurance company, the defendant proved that the notes never came into existence and contended that, therefore, he should not be liable for non-performance of his contract.—Held, in view of the conduct of the parties and the peculiar circumstances in which the agreement was made, that the existence, or coming into existence, of $2000 of such notes, could not be said to be the foundation of what was to be done and that, therefore, Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 826, was not applicable. Where, from the nature of a written contract, it appears that the parties knew when it was made that it could not be fulfilled unless some particular thing specified therein continued to exist, the contract is not to be construed as positive, but as subject to an implied condition that the parties shall be excused if such existence ceases; and if that principle holds good where the thing has never existed, the situation of the parties, all the surrounding circumstances and the reason of the thing, must be considered in construing the contract.

RIGHT TO ERECT HOARDING—FIXTURE—LICENSE—CANCELLATION OF—RIGHTS OF LICENSEE.

An agreement entered into by the owner of land giving a company the right to erect a bill posting board or hoarding on the land on certain terms, and subject to certain conditions as to removal, creates nothing more than a license to go on the owner's land for the purpose of erecting such hoarding. A licensee who erects a hoarding for bill posting and advertising purposes, on certain land under a revocable license is entitled to notice of revocation and a reasonable time afterwards in which to remove his goods.

SALE OF LOGS — "EXPENSE OF DRIVING LOGS" INCLUDES WHAT.

Sale of all logs that shall be cut by a jobber who has contracted to cut a specific quantity. Reference to jobber's contract in the sale. Clause that purchaser may take possession of the logs and charge expenses. Fees paid to solicitor. Rights of owner of a dam on a floatable river against those who use it. A clause in the sale, that the purchaser, in a certain case, may take possession of the logs and drive them and charge the seller with the expense, does not include fees paid to a solicitor.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING — CONDITIONS —

PENALTY OR DAMAGES.

A stipulation in a contract for newspaper advertising, that the advertiser should pay 5¢ cents per agate line, provided that payments should be made regularly every month for the space used, and that in default of such payments, the price should be 15 cents per agate line is not a penal clause, nor a claim for damages, but a conditional obligation. The words "extra space used on this contract within time limit will be charged according to terms of published tariff, unless otherwise provided for" mean that additional space should be subject to the same prices and upon the same conditions as those of the main contract.

La Presse Publishing Co. v. Scroggie, 25 Que. K.B. 163.

SALE OF SET OF LAW REPORTS AT FIXED PRICE PER VOLUME — "150 VOLUMES MORE OR LESS"—ESTIMATE—LIABILITY OF VENDEE TO PAY FOR VOLUMES IN EXCESS OF 150.

By a contract in writing between the plaintiffs and defendants, the plaintiffs agreed to give the defendants the sole Canadian market for the "English Reports Reprint," to be published by British publishers, the defendants agreeing to take a certain number of copies "of each volume of the set (150 volumes more or less) at a price of 10s. 6d. per volume." By the plaintiffs' agreement with the publishers, the plaintiffs became agents for the reprint, "to be printed according to the prospectus hereto annexed," and they agreed to take a certain number of "copies of each volume of the reprint as issued" at named prices. The prospectus annexed described the reprint as "a complete reissue of all the decisions . . . in one uniform set of 150 volumes." The volumes were issued from time to time, and when 150 volumes had been issued it was apparent that, to cover the ground, there must be 40 additional volumes or more. The defendants took the position that, having paid for the first 150 volumes at the stipulated price per volume, they were entitled to the additional volumes free of cost;—Held, that, in the circumstances of the case, the liability must be determined entirely upon the terms of the contract itself; the words in brackets, "150 volumes more or less," did not control and dominate the contract; "150 volumes" was a mere estimate; and the defendants were liable to pay for the additional volumes as issued.

FORECLOSURE SALE—THREATENING TO SET ASIDE—AGREEMENT TO PAY PROFIT AT RESALE.

An agreement by a bidder at a foreclosure sale to pay a lienholder threatening to set aside the sale the excess of the cost of the property realized at a resale purports an intention that the lienholder should receive only to the extent of the balance remaining due on his claim and not the whole surplus realized upon the resale.

(§ II D-157)—SUPPLY OF GAS "IN THE CITY"—EXTENSION OF CITY LIMITS.

A contract by the producers to supply all the gas required, to a company empowered to distribute and sell to consumers "in the city" does not extend to territory annexed to the city after the contract was made. SUPPLY OF GAS—COVENANT—EXCEPTIONS—BREACH—INJUNCTION—DAMAGES—APPEAL—VARIATION OF JUDGMENT—COSTS.

Dom. Natural Gas Co. v. National Gas Co., 14 O.W.N. 16.

AS TO NATURAL GAS—APPROPRIATIONS—EXTENT OF SUPPLY—INTEREST IN LAND.

A clause in the contract for the supply of natural gas, which concedes the right to supply others with gas after the company shall be supplied "to the full extent of its requirements at all times and which may be required for supply, marketing, or sale," does not create a duty of storing up of all assets, or the preservation of a reserve of untapped gas, in order to be able at some indefinite future time to meet any possible demand which may be made, but merely obligates to deliver only what is actually required and demanded from time to time. [Dolan v. Baker, 10 O.L.R. 259, applied.]

A provision for the delivery of the gas at sufficient pressure and with regularity indicates a duty of so handling the gas when not so controlled as to enable its delivery in a usable condition, and until so done it is not appropriated under the contract. An agreement to bore for gas and deliver it into pipe lines does not differ from a contract to deliver timber when cut, and is not an agreement for the sale of or concerning an interest in land. [Smith v. Surman, 9 B. & C. 561; Marshall v. Green, 1 C.P.D. 35; Erie County Natural Gas Co. v. Carroll, [1911] A.C. 195, 116, referred to.]

TO SUPPLY GAS—RATES—MINIMUM CHARGE.

A gas company, bound under the terms of a municipal franchise to supply gas at a specified rate, subject to its general rules and regulations not inconsistent therewith, cannot validly obligate the consumers to pay for a minimum quantity whether the gas be used or not as a condition precedent to their being supplied.

Re City of Hamilton and United Gas and Fuel Co. of Hamilton, 37 D.L.R. 246, 39 O.L.R. 542.

TO FURNISH GAS.

Where a contract was entered into between a natural gas company and certain holders of stock in another company in the same business absorbed by the contracting company whereby it was agreed on the part of the company as a further consideration for the purchase of such stock, that the holders thereof should be entitled to receive from the company gas free for use in their private dwellings in the district in which the company was carrying on its operations, the effect of such contract is that the company was bound to supply the other parties to the contract gas free for use in their private dwellings so long as they lived in such district and gas was obtainable therein sufficient for that purpose.

(§ II D-163)—WITH CARRIER.

Where seed grain is delivered by rail and the bill of lading is endorsed "for seed purposes free from noxious weeds," if it be shown that the seller made this endorsement as a representation to the railway company which refuses to carry seed grain containing noxious weeds, the words will not necessarily, upon a legal construction of the contract of sale, be read into it. Carlstadt Development Co. v. Alberta Pacific Elevator Co., 7 D.L.R. 200, 4 A.L.R. 366, 21 W.L.R. 433, 2 W.W.R. 404.

(§ II D-164)—ASSUMPTION OF DEBTS—CONSTRUCTION—PURCHASE OF ASSETS OF COMPANY—ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITIES—LIABILITIES ASSUMED “WITHOUT CORRESPONDING VALUE”—SCURROUNDING CIRCUMSTANCES AND OBJECT—TRANSFER OF SHARES—RECTIFICATION OF CONTRACT—DAMAGES—LOSS OF DIVIDENDS—COUNTERCLAIM.

Grice v. Bartram, 3 D.L.R. 868, 3 O.W.N. 1312, 22 O.W.R. 182.

ASSUMPTION OF DEBTS—THIRD PARTY.

A stipulation for the benefit of a third party as a condition of a contract, cannot be revoked if the third party signifies his willingness to profit by it. In a contract with a third party, in which a creditor undertakes to pay the debts of his debtor, the latter cannot avail himself of this undertaking and set it up as a bar to an action by the creditor to recover the amount of his debt.

Poulin v. St. Victor Lumber Co., 49 Que. S.C. 208.

The defendants agreed to purchase from the plaintiff, for $10,000, five-sixths of the plaintiff's shares in an incorporated publishing company; and the plaintiff agreed to “pay all the liabilities” of the company, out of the “first payment of $5,000 paid to him,” the plaintiff. The defendants, instead of paying the first instalment of $5,000 direct to the plaintiff, and trusting to him to fulfill his covenant to pay the liabilities of the company therewith, ascertained the names of the creditors and the amounts of their claims, and, with the plaintiff's consent, paid these sums, and charged the amounts thus paid against the first instalment payable to the plaintiff. Before the sale agreement the company had undertaken to do some printing for the government at the price of $404; and this amount had been paid to the plaintiff before the sale agreement, but the work had not been done. After the agreement, the company sublet the contract for the printing and got it done for $200, which the company paid. In adjusting the accounts between themselves and the plaintiff, the defendants retained, out of the first payment of $5,000, the sum of $404, contending that it constituted a “liability,” within the meaning of the sale agreement. The plaintiff assented to being charged with $200, the amount which the printing actually cost, but not with the balance, $204, for which he sued. It was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the $204. Judgment of Lees, Dist. Ct.J., affirmed.

(§ II D-165)—TRANSFER OF PROPERTY—LANDS—EXECUTORY CONTRACT FOR SALE—AGENT'S COMMISSION PAYABLE FROM PURCHASE PRICE.

An executory contract for the sale of lands made by the owner thereof, comes within the meaning of an agreement between the owner and an agent whereby the agent was to receive as commission a certain percentage of the gross selling price of all lands “sold” during the continuance of the agreement, such commission accruing whether the sale be made by the agent or the owner, and being payable out of the first instalment of the purchase price. TRANSFER OF PROPERTY—LANDS—SALE.

A transfer of lands by the owner thereof to a corporation for substantially all of which transfer the owner receives stock of the corporation is a sale and not merely a change in the manner in which the title should be held by the owner, especially where it appears that the owner (a) received some cash (b) values the shares at par or better and (c) fixed the consideration.

(§ II D-170)—CONSTRUCTION—REAL PROPERTY—AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF “BUILDING”—WHAT COVERED BY.

An option in a rental agreement in respect of a store described by its street number which states that the tenant shall have the option “of buying the building,” where practically all of the demised premises was covered by the store building which was annexed to the land so as to become a part of the freehold, has the effect of an option for the sale of the land and building and not of the building only. SALE OF LAND—BREACH—PENALTY OR LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—CONSTRUCTION.

The question whether a sum mentioned in an agreement to be paid for a breach is to be treated as a penalty or as liquidated and ascertained damages is a question of law to be decided by the court upon a consideration of the whole instrument.

AS TO TRANSFER OF REAL PROPERTY.

Where a vendor and vendee stipulated in an agreement for the sale of property, that the vendee might, before a certain cash payment was due, obtain a designated credit thereon by conveying certain other property to the vendor, the former is not entitled to such credit where he did not, nor could not, convey the land until after such maturity date. CONSTRUCTION—PURCHASE PRICE—UNACQUIRED TITLE—RIGHT TO CONVEYANCE—PURCHASE OF SEVERAL LOTS OF LAND.

Where an entire contract for the sale of several lots of land mentions the prices of all the lots except one, and provides that the price of that one, which the vendor has not yet acquired, shall be its cost price to him, the purchaser is not entitled to insist upon a conveyance of one of the other lots at its cost price, merely because it also had not been acquired by the vendor at the date of the agreement.

SALE OF LAND—OPTION—PRIVITY.

In a deed of sale of certain lands and property previously held under option, there being doubt in the minds of some of the interested parties as to whether all the rights under the option had lapsed, a clause inserted as between the Crown and its vendors whereby the former would not hold their vendors responsible for any trouble which might arise from said option does not establish any privity of contract as between the Crown and third parties.

SALE OF LAND—COLLATERAL AGREEMENT.

In the case of an agreement for the sale of land with an independent collateral agreement for the resale of the lots, it is not necessary for the collateral agreement to appear in the agreement for sale. The collateral agreement, being an agreement to sell land, not for the sale of land, is not within the Statute of Frauds.

Canadian General Securities Co. v. George, 43 D.L.R. 20, 42 O.L.R. 560; 14 O.W.N. 71 reversing 13 O.W.N. 355. [Reversed 59 Can. S.C.R. 641.]

LAND OPTION—ACCEPTANCE—OMISSION OF TIME OF PAYMENT.

The acceptance of an offer for the sale of land at a fixed price, even though coupled with a request for particulars of title, constitutes a complete contract of sale and does not render such request a condition subject to which the offer is accepted; nor will an inadvertent omission of the time at which a second instalment of the purchase price is to become payable, affect the right to specific performance of the contract.

SALE OF SAW MILL—INTEREST IN LAND.

A sale of a saw-mill and machinery, even if it indicates that it is to be removed from the land, constitutes a contract for the sale of an interest in land. [Lavery v. Pursell, 39 Ch. D. 508, followed.]

McPherson v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 24 D.L.R. 77, 33 O.L.R. 524.

ACCEPTANCE—MODIFICATION OF ORIGINAL TERMS—COMPLETION.

A contract is not complete until the proposition put forward by the proposer is accepted by the other party in a simple and direct affirmative. Conditions which vary the terms or provisions of such contract must be agreed to by the party making the proposal otherwise there is no contract enforceable at law. [Cole v. Sumner, 30 Can. S.C.R. 379, applied.]

Gauthier v. Letchford, 49 D.L.R. 369.

SALE OF LUMBER—DESTRUCTION BY FIRE—CHECK FOR PRICE—PAYMENT STOPPED—ACTION—INSURANCE—COUNTERCLAIM—NEGLIGENCE—WAREHOUSE RECEIPT—BANK ACT—GRATUITOUS RAILEE—REASONABLE CARE—CAUSE OF FIRE—ENGINE.

Held, that the Act to preserve the Forests from Destruction by Fire, R.S.O. 1897, c. 267, had no application to a mill-yard and an engine running upon rails therein. And held, upon the evidence, that the plaintiffs and their codefendants by counterclaim had shown that there was no such want of reasonable care on their part of the lumber in question as a prudent man would exercise with regard to his own property, and had negatived the charge of negligence made against them in the counterclaim.

Ferguson v. Eyer, 43 O.L.R. 190.

TIMBER—SALE—LIEN.

By a contract dated December 16, 1915, between a lumber company and D., it was stipulated that D. should cut on his property 2,000,000 feet of wood, board measure; that he should carry it to the mill, and saw it, and pile it ready to be shipped on order. The lumber company on its part, undertook to make advances to D. on each of his operations and to remit to him the product of sales which it was authorized to make, less advances made, all costs and disbursements, $1 per 1,000 feet upon the net profit, and $2.50 per 1,000 feet to be applied in redacing the debt. It was provided that the lumber company assumes no risk for sales which it may make D, reserving the right to oppose sales which might offer some risk. Later, on January 26, 1916, D, transferred the wood to the lumber company as security for $7,000 advances. Held, that the lumber company was never the owner of the wood. It never had it in its possession until January 26, 1916, and the possession that the transfer of that date gave to it was only that of a pledge, which could not affect the privilege which the wood cutters then had, and were able to acquire since, for the payment of their wages under R.S.Q. art. 7464. Consequently, the intervention filed in the case, which claims neither privileges nor right of retention but a right of property which the intervening party (the lumber company) has never had, is not well founded.

Pelletier v. Lagace, 24 Rev. de Jur., 21.

SALE OF WOOD—REDEMPTION.

A clause in a contract of sale of a certain quantity of wood, with right of redemption, which authorizes the vendor to exercise his right in part only, according to his need of the wood, must be interpreted in his favour and not against him or in the interest of the purchaser, and, if the vendor so prefers, he may exercise his right of redemption once only.

Heronx v. La Compagnie de Brique et de Sable des Laurentides, 53 Que. S.C. 517.

The contract by which the owner of an immovable grants the possession and use of it, by means of a lease, for a term, at the expiration of which he undertakes to consent to a sale to the lessee is a mixed contract of renting and promise of sale. The latter remains subject to the suspensive condition of the lease which alone determines the judicial relations between the parties during the term and gives to the owner all the remedies of a lessor in case of nonobservance of his obligations by the lessee including the action for rescission of the lease in default of payment of rent and that with saisie-gagerie to recover the amount.

Carey v. Carey, 42 Que. S.C. 11.

TO REPLACE FURNACE IF NOT SATISFACTORY—DETERMINATION.

The vendor of a building who agrees to install a "Daisy" furnace in place of a "King" if the latter, actually in the building, does not give satisfaction to the purchaser, is bound to do so on the demand of the latter; he cannot refuse to fulfill his obligation on the ground that the "King" furnace is as good as the other and gives as much satisfaction; the vendor cannot substitute his discretion for that given to the purchaser according to the contract which was made between them.

Donohue v. McCallum, 7 O.W.N. 534. [Affirmed, 8 O.W.N. 199.]

SALE OF LAND IN SEVERAL LOTS—DIVISIBILITY.

A contract for sale of nine lots of land is divisible in its performance, especially if it is proved that the vendor can only partially execute his obligation, the provisions of art. 1122 C.C. being in his favour. A unilateral agreement for the sale of land is valid in law, and an actual sale results therefrom from the time the parties have manifested, in any form whatever, their mutual assent.

SALE OF REALTY—OFFER TO BUY WITHIN A SPECIFIED TIME—EFFECTS OF ACCEPTANCE—FORMAL EXECUTION—HOW AFFECTED BY DELAY.

When an offer to buy real estate within a specified delay, for a price and upon conditions mentioned, is accepted by the owner, the agreement is perfected and the formal execution of it by the making and signing of the deed of sale, the payment of the cash instalment, etc., are not affected by the expiry of the delay specified, as aforesaid, in the offer to buy.

Dufresne v. Dubois, 23 Que. K.B. 28.

TERMS OF OFFER—TIME FOR CLOSING SALE.

The condition in a proposal to purchase land that the deed would be delivered within 15 days is not on pain of nullity, and failure to comply with it does not entitle the proposed vendor to a dismissal of an action for damages based on such noncompliance. The agreement for sale resulting from acceptance merely of an offer to buy should be carried out in the terms of such offer and the proposed vendor cannot demand the insertion in the deed of conditions foreign to it, for instance, that default in payment of the instalments of the purchase money will effect a rescission of the sale.

Dubout v. Groulx, 44 Que. S.C. 113.

SALE OF LAND—MORTGAGE AS PART OF PURCHASE PRICE.

It was held that, under an agreement containing the following clauses: "The vendor agrees to sell to the purchaser the land in question at and for the price and sum of $1,583, payable as follows: $600 on delivery of these presents; the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged; the balance of $985 as follows: On the first day of November A.D. 1913 (the figures '1913' were first type-written '1915', and the 5 was afterwards changed to '3'). The purchaser agrees to assume and pay a certain mortgage in favour of the Mortgage Company of Canada, numbered 1884, for $600 and interest. The property to be clear of all encumbrances with the above exception." (This mortgage was payable $20 each year, and the last payment would have been made in 1915.) The mortgage was to be part of the purchase price of $1,585.

(§ II D—171)—CONSTRUCTION—REAL PROPERTY—AGREEMENT TO SELL FOR "NOT LESS THAN" A STATED SUM.

An option agreement to sell land "for not less than $10,000" is an offer to sell for that figure. [Re Richard, 38 Can. S.C. 275, 294; and Leeming v. Snaith, 16 Q.B. 275, 117 E.R. 884, applied.]

(§ II D—173)—COAL RESERVATIONS IN AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—NOT SET OUT IN DEED—INTERVENTION OF PARTIES—EVIDENCE OF SOLICITOR.

In an action to obtain a declaration that the plaintiff was the owner of the surface rights of certain lands, and of the mines, beds of coal and other minerals lying thereunder, the Court of Appeal for British Columbia held that as nothing was said during the negotiations about the coal reservations the true inference was that there was no reservation of the coal. Their Lordships of the Privy Council reversed this judgment on the evidence of the solicitor who acted for the plaintiff during the negotiations, which showed conclusively that the respondent had got all he bargained for or that it was intended to sell, which was the land minus all minerals lying thereunder.

CONSTRUCTION—AS TO QUANTITY OF LAND.

A contract for the sale of "lots 1 to 4" in a land sub-division is to be construed as inclusive of all four of the lots. [Hag-

Quail v. Beatty, 9 D.L.R. 784, 5 A.L.R. 482, 24 W.L.R. 242, 4 W.W.R. 55.

AS TO QUANTITY OF LAND.

Where an agreement for the sale of a specified number of feet of land more or less for a lump sum, provides that, upon any valid objection to title being made which the vendor is unable or unwilling to remove, the agreement shall be null and void, and an objection is made by the purchaser on the ground that parts of the land are subject to rights of way, the vendor, if he acts in good faith, and promptly under the circumstances, and not unreasonably or capriciously, and does not waive his rights, or omit anything which the ordinary prudent man, having regard to his contractual relations with other parties, is bound to do, is entitled to rescind the agreement. PURCHASE OF TIMBER—PERSONAL INSPECTION—DEFICIENCY IN QUANTITY—LIABILITY FOR PURCHASE PRICE.

One who, after personally examining a piece of land, purchased the right to cut and remove the timber therefrom, cannot, after removing the timber without complaint as to the extent of the land, in an action for the balance of the purchase money, assert that there were not as many acres in the property as called for in the deed thereof, where the court found that he purchased it as he found it on examination, entirely independent of an exact or approximate measurement or acreage.

Leslaire v. Laviolette, 3 D.L.R. 716.

DESCRIPTION OF LANDS SOLD—INDEFINITE-NESSES.

Where the subject of a written contract of sale is therein referred to as premises "known" by a specified name indicating a building such as an apartment house and as also "known" by the street number also specified in the agreement, it is not to be assumed, in the absence of evidence to prove what property is in fact "known" by such indefinite description, that all lands used in connection with the lands upon which the buildings stood are to be included.

The interpretation of an agreement of sale of realty ambiguous on its face as to the description of the property sold may be based on the subsequent conduct of the parties to the agreement, and where one of such parties later than the sale makes a notarial declaration in a collateral matter fixing the description such declaration is admissible as against him in construing the contract.

Berlin v. Tipograph, 18 D.L.R. 258, 21 Rev. de Jur. 185.

(§ II D-174)—AS TO EVIDENCE OF TITLE.

A stipulation in a promise to sell to the effect that the vendor will not be obliged to furnish copies of title deeds under which the property was sold to him, but that same may be inspected in the hands of a named custodian does not release him from the obligation of giving communication of his own deed of acquisition which had not been in the same custody.

VENDOR SELLING LAND—TITLE UNDER AN AGREEMENT—PURCHASER'S RIGHT TO INSPECT AGREEMENT.

A person contracting to buy land from one he knows to be merely a holder of an agreement for its purchase, is entitled to an inspection of such an agreement before he pays any part of the purchase price and the vendor has no power to cancel the agreement upon a failure of the purchaser to pay the first instalment of the purchase price when due where he has refused the other's request for such inspection and ignored the further demand, on the latter's part, for a solicitor's abstract of title both made before any part of the purchase price was due, even though time was made of the essence of the contract as far as the payment of the purchase price was concerned. *Ramble v. AS TO TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Upon the sale of certain machinery and accessories where the buyer agreed to give the seller a lien or charge on certain lands for the price, but because of the seller's failure to deliver three of the articles enumerated an allowance was agreed upon in lieu of such articles and their delivery was waived, such does not constitute a substitution of a new verbal contract for the original written agreement, but only a modification of one part of it, to which modification the defendant was a consenting party, and the sellers were entitled not only to judgment for the balance of the original debt but to a lien or charge on the lands referred to and a sale of the buyer's interest therein to realize the amount of the debt and costs. [Rustin v. Fairchild, 39 Can. S.C.R. 274, distinguished.] Garr-Scott v. Mitchell (No. 2), 8 D.L.R. 129, 22 Man. L.R. 474, 3 W.W.R. 19.

SALE AND DELIVERY OF GOODS AT SAUND PRICES PER TON—BREACH—DEFICIENCIES IN DELIVERIES—"ABOUT"—"APPROXIMATE"—DAMAGES—ALLOWANCES—MISTAKE IN WORDING OF WRITTEN CONTRACT—FINDING OF REFEREE—DISCREDITING OF WITNESSES—APPEAL.

Where the subject of a contract of sale of goods is not a bulk lot with an estimate of the probable quantity, but the engagement is to furnish goods to a certain amount, the quantity specified is material, and governs the contract. The addition, in such a case, of a qualifying word such as "about" or "approximate," when not supplemented by other words, provides only against accidental variations arising from slight and unimportant excesses or deficiencies in number, measure, or weight. [Brawley v. United States, 96 U.S. 168, and Steel Co. of Scotland v. Tanager Arrol & Co., 26 Sc. L. Repr. 305, 314, followed.] A contract for the supply by the defendants of "about 150 tons" of shell steel turnings at so much a ton, and another for "approximate quantities" of "200 tons steel shell turnings" at so much a ton and "100 tons shell ends and defective shells" at so much a ton, were made. Under the first contract, precisely 100 tons were delivered; under the second, 175 tons instead of 200, and 38 and a fraction instead of 100.—Held, that, in estimating the damages for breach of the contract, no allowance should be made in favour of the defendants on account of the use of the words "about" and "approximate"—the damages should be based on the actual deficiencies. Report of a referee varied on appeal. Before the referee the defendants contended that in the second contract "200" was a mistake; but the referee discredited the evidence which was adduced on this point by the defendants:—Held, that the appellate tribunal was not in a position to differ from the referee on this point. AGREEMENT TO PURCHASE TIMBER BERTHS—

SALE OF TIMBER BEFORE PURCHASE—SUSPENSIVE CONDITION.

Where two parties agreed to purchase from the government certain timber berths at private sale, one furnishing the experience and knowledge, the other the funds, and that no sale could be obtained from the government, but that later on the same timber was publicly sold by auction, and one of the contracting parties bought them, the other party has no right to claim that the sale falls under the contract, as this later must be considered as a contract under a suspensive condition which has failed. [Rainboth v. O'Brien, 24 Que. K.B. 88.]

SALE OF AUTOMOBILE—COMMISSIONS—NOTE.

A contract by which an automobile company sells a machine and receives in payment a note at 60 days with the following conditions: "It is agreed that A.B. (purchaser) becomes agent for the St. O.M. Company, and that for every car that the latter shall sell or cause to be sold for the said company, the sum of $100 will be credited to him upon the above mentioned note, and upon full payment of the note through the commission the St. O. M. Company will afterwards pay $100 commission on each car that A.B. shall sell or cause to be sold," does not stipulate that the amount of the note shall be payable only by means of the commissions which the agent may gain, and if the company in good faith ceases to do business the maker of the note must pay it.

Hooe v. Beaudoin, 52 Que. S.C. 381.

"F.O.B."—PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT.

The expression of "f.o.b. cars" in a contract for the sale of wood means that the purchaser ought to place at the disposal of the vendor the cars required to carry the wood, but this rule is modified if the parties have by their actions given to the contract a contrary signification, or if such signification results from circumstances in which the delivery should take place, such as the disposal at the place of delivery, of public vehicles intended for the carriage of similar goods. When one party to a contract carries it out in a certain way he cannot afterwards alter his interpretation and claim that it should be carried out differently, unless a mistake is proved. If a date is fixed for delivery of goods sold, and a portion is delivered before such period, the vendor can not allow the period to elapse and then ask that the sale be voided because the purchaser has not fulfilled his obligations; his silence is a ratification of the way in which the purchaser carried out the contract.

(§ II D-185)—CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS—MEDICAL AND HOSPITAL EXPENSES—RIGHT OF SUBCONTRACTOR TO REIMBURSEMENT.

An agreement by a contractor to supply medical and surgical attendance for the employees of a subcontractor cannot be inferred from a letter written by the contractor to the latter stating that a certain physician had been appointed to attend to the medical work in connection with the construction of a line of railway, and requesting the subcontractor to collect a stated sum monthly from each of his employees, and to remit it to the contractor, who would deliver it to the medical department. Even though a contractor may be liable for medical and surgical services the employees of a subcontractor by virtue of a letter written the latter to the effect that a certain physician had been appointed to attend to the medical work in a certain district in connection with the construction of a line of railway, and requesting the subcontractor to collect a stated sum monthly from each employee and to remit it to the contractor to be turned over to the medical department, where such physician afterwards notifies the contractor and subcontractor that after a certain day he will not continue to serve at the old rate, and the subcontractor subsequently pays for such services at a sum in excess of the contract price, the contractor, who was not informed by the former that he was paying such extra charge, is not bound to reimburse the subcontractor therefor.

CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS—INDEMNITY OF EMPLOYER FROM LIABILITY FOR CONTRACTOR'S NEGLIGENCE—WITHIN—NEGLECT OF EMPLOYER'S SERVANTS.

A contract to fence a railway right-of-way in which the contractor agreed to in-dennify the railway company against claims for injury to persons or property "occasioned in carrying on the work," does not entitle the company to indemnity against a claim of an employee of the contractor for injuries received through the negligence of an employee of the railway company.

PARTICULAR WORDS AND PHRASES—CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS OR WORKS—"LABOUR AND SUPPLIES" FURNISHED IN BUILDING RAILWAY.

The term "labour and supplies" as used in a contract for the construction of a railway giving the contractor the right to pay for labour and supplies furnished in the work, before paying the contractor, includes the furnishing of a plant for use in the work; railway sleepers, and coal and hay, as well as the boarding of men, and money furnished to pay labourers; but does not include services rendered by a secretary, an expert accountant, or a civil engineer, or the claim of a contractor or subcontractor for work performed. The word "labour" as used in a contract permitting a contractor to pay for labour and supplies furnished a contractor in connection with the work, will ordinarily include only claims for manual labour. (Morgan v. London General Omnibus Co., 53 L.J.Q.B. 352, referred to.) Where a provincial government, by the terms of a contract for the construction of a railway, before paying the contractor, is entitled to be satisfied that he had paid all claims for "labour" performed on the work, the word "labour" will not cover services performed by a commissioner appointed by the government under the Public Inquiries Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 12, to ascertain whether the contractor has paid all such claims; since the commissioner must be compensated by the government in the absence of statutory power to charge it to some one else.

SUBCONTRACT—CONSTRUCTION WORK—CHANGE OF SCHEME OF WORK—RESTRICTIONS—VARIATIONS—SCALE OF PAYMENT.

A subcontractor for railway construction work who by reason of a change of the scheme of work by the supervising engineer demands the right to proceed with certain new work which the change necessitated as "grading" is restricted to the price stipulated for that class of work between himself and the principal contractor although the latter, because of the extra expense which such grading entailed, was paid by the railway on the higher scale pertaining to "trainfilling;" nor was the subcontractor entitled to claim upon a percentage clause in the subcontract which applied only to "variations" in the specified work for which the subcontract provided.

AGREEMENT TO DRILL FOR OIL—COVENANT THAT EQUIPMENT FREE FROM LIENS AND CLAIMS—BREACH—RIGHT TO SEIZURE.

The plaintiff and the defendant entered into an agreement whereby the plaintiff was to bore for oil for the defendant at a definite rate. The defendant agreed to pay $5,000 on the execution of the agreement and $5,000 when the drilling equipment was on the ground, which sums were to be in payment of the work thereafter done. The first $5,000 was paid. The agreement provided: "The contractor hereby covenants to place their equipment, material, tools and appliances on the ground free of debt and of all and every lien and encumbrance, and to so keep and maintain the said equipment, material tools and appliances until the completion of this contract, and not to sell the same until this contract has been performed in every respect by the contractor. It is further agreed that if the contractor abandons the work before the completion of either well to the depth of twenty-five hundred feet as provided in this contract, or fails in any respect in the substantial performance of any of the agreements herein contained, the company shall have the right forthwith and without notice by any officer or agent of the company to seize the drilling equipment, material, tools and appliances owned by the contractor on the well site and to complete the well." After placing the equipment on the ground the plaintiff demanded the payment of the second $5,000. There was a balance of $4,945 of the purchase price of the machinery still unpaid and on that account the defendant's manager objected to pay the $5,000 due by it. An order for the unpaid balance was given to the sellers by arrangement with them upon the defendant, and an affidavit showing that the machinery was paid for in full was made by the plaintiff's manager and taken to the defendant's manager with an order to pay the balance of the $5,000 into a bank to the credit of the seller. He did not do so, but next day seized all of the equipment, giving notice that the defendant would continue drilling with it. In an action for damages because of the seizure:—Held, that although the plaintiff was indebted for the machinery, there was no lien against the machinery within the meaning of the contract, i.e., there was no charge on the machinery itself, and, moreover, it was only a failure in the substantial performance of the agreement which would have justified the defendant's act, and in this case the machinery was in substance, at least, paid for, by the acceptance of the order on the defendant and, if it was not in reality paid for, the non-payment was because of the defendant's refusal to do what it was, by the terms of the agreement, bound to do.

Where a railway contractor turns over to the plaintiff a number of contracts for the construction of railway stations under an arrangement which was in effect that the plaintiff should supply all materials for and construct the stations in the place and stead of the original railway contractor and that the latter would pay over to the plaintiff the progressive payments as and when they were from month to month received from the company, such a turning over is a valid and enforceable equitable assignment placing the assignee in the shoes of the original contractor, even without the railway company's consent as a literal compliance with the original contract, and the plaintiff can collect for his work and materials. BUILDING CONTRACTS.

The failure of a contractor to keep an account of materials used and time devoted to extra work on a building he agreed to erect for a stated consideration, does not prevent his recovery of the value thereof, where he was not required by the terms of his contract to keep such account, but it was a requirement imposed by an architect for his own convenience in fixing the value thereof. The owner of a building erected by a contractor at a fixed price, is answerable for material and labour for extras ordered by or approved of by him.

EXCAVATION WORK—SUBSIDENCE OF ADJOINING BUILDING OF SAME OWNER.

It is not to be assumed that a contractor authorized by the landowner to make excavations for footings is to protect adjoining buildings belonging to the landowner with whom he contracted from subsidence by reason thereof where it was apparent that the work would interfere with the support of such buildings; the landowner should himself see to such protection and cannot recover from the contractor unless the latter's work was done negligently.

BUILDING CONTRACTS—SUBLETTING PORTION—PAYMENT OF FIXED ADVANCE ABOVE COST.

A written agreement to build a house at a fixed advance above the cost of material will not prevent the contractor subletting such portions of the work as are usually undertaken by special trades, and from recovering the cost thereof from the person for whom the work was done. A statement in a written agreement by a contractor to build a house at a cost of "about" $3,500 is a mere expression of judgment and does not amount to a warranty or a condition limiting its costs to that figure.

BUILDING CONTRACT—WRONG NAME FILLED IN BY MISTAKE IN ONE COPY—ORAL EVIDENCE.

Where a building contract was intended to be made out in duplicate and an agreed alteration of a name therein was made on one copy left with the owner and authority given to the building contractor to similarly alter his copy, the contractor may, in case of variance, rely on the copy produced from the possession of the property owner in preference to his own copy on showing by parol that the wrong name had been filled in on his copy by mistake. Where the signed memorandum of a building contract had the specifications attached to it, but the latter were not signed, they may still be incorporated by reference into the signed memorandum so as to constitute both writings one agreement.

BUILDING CONTRACT—TIME LIMIT—ALTERATIONS—EXTRA WORK—VARIANCE.

Where a building contract renders certain what is intended to be the time limit, the erroneous statement of the time limit in the accompanying specifications has not the effect of altering it. The power reserved in a building contract to make alterations or additions must be reasonably exercised by the owner. [Dodd v. Churton, [1897] 1 Q.B. 562, 66 L.J.Q.B. 477, and McLeod v. L.R. 312, referred to.] The addition of an extra story to a six-story building pursuant to a condition of a building contract and in respect to which addition the cost of the extra work was agreed upon and an extension of time granted by the architect, is not such a variance from the original undertaking as will operate as a waiver by the owner of his right to claim the per diem allowance for the contractor's delay in completion upon the demurrage clause in the contract.

PENALTY OR LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—SET-OFF.
When a building contract stipulates that the contractor shall pay to the owner as liquidated damages a sum of $5 for each day of delay of the work, the owner cannot set up the amount of this penalty in compensation of a demand for the price of the work done by the contractor, this debt not being one to be considered as liquidated and exigible. The owner should proceed by conventional demand. It is not necessary for the plaintiff in such case to oppose the compensation offered by an inscription en droit.

BUILDING MATERIALS—PRICE—ERROR.

The owner of a house under construction writing to the furnishers of material that

Lapointe v. Bureau, 51 Que. S.C. 402.
The contractor for construction of work according to his own plans is subject to the ten years' guarantee provided for by arts. 1688 and 1696 C.C. He cannot plead the nature of the soil, its porosity, etc., nor the custom of the place, as to the mode of construction. The words "if a building perish in whole or in part" in art. 1688 C.C. are not limitative but comprise grave defects which involve serious inconvenience. The acceptance of the work and payment of the price by the owner do not extinguish his obligation of warranty especially as regards poor work and imperfections constituting latent defects. The contractor in the above circumstances has no recourse in warranty against his subcontractor who constructed the work according to his plans and under his direction.

BUILDING CONTRACT—DELAY—FORCE MAJEURE.

A clause in a contract for the construction of a church, that "the contractor shall, without remedy against church authorities, bear the consequences of any delay in the execution of the work which may be caused by force majeure, legal proceedings or other causes independent of the act of the authorities," does not entitle the contractor to indefinitely suspend the works until the authorities are able to procure the necessary funds for completing it. There is no force majeure justifying the suspension from the fact that the church has not been able to borrow at an ordinary rate the amount sufficient to continue the work on account of the unsettled state of the money market.

Tessier v. Fabrique of Parish Notre Dame-Du-Perpetuel-Secours, 52 Que. S.C. 510.

BUILDING CONTRACT—PRICE—EVIDENCE—FINDINGS.

In an action by plaintiffs to recover a sum of money claimed for goods and materials sold and delivered, and for work and labour done in connection with the erection of a building for defendants and for a commission of ten per cent on the goods and materials and work and labour, the whole amounting to some $35,000, the only persons who were in a position to speak as to the terms of the contract were a member of the defendant firm and B., who was agent for the plaintiffs at the time the contract was entered into, both of whom agreed that the contract was that plaintiff company should erect the building at a cost not to exceed $25,000. Held, that under the evidence, the court could not properly reverse the finding of fact made by the learned Trial Judge in defendant's favour. Also, that the costs of a reference for which plaintiffs were responsible, which were made costs in the cause, were rightly awarded to defendants.

Rhodes Curry Co. v. Redden, 51 N.S.R. 17.

BUILDING CONTRACT—COST OF MATERIALS.

BUILDING CONTRACTS—PENAL CLAUSE—STIPULATED DAMAGE—DELAY—COMPENSATION—EXECUTION OF CONTRACT—C. C., ARTS. 1131, 1187, 1188.

When a contract of lease on hire of work contains the following clause: "I will deliver the machinery completed on your premises on or before the first of May, 1911, for the sum of $33,000. If I make late delivery of all on any one of the distinct and separate machine I have undertaken to deliver on the 1st of May, 1911, I agree to allow you to deduct, when paying me from the purchase price as stipulated in the contract $25 for each day's delay in the delivery of each of the separate machine, and this a liquidated damage, and not by way of forfeiture," and delay takes place in the delivery of the works, the sum mentioned in the penal clause must be considered as liquidated damages, and the defendant opposing that clause need not allege nor prove any damage. The defendant was not obliged to allege that the delay was due to the fault of the plaintiff. When the defendant opposed this clause to the action for the balance of the price of the works done, by deducting the liquidated damages from the price stipulated, he did not plead compensation, but was only executing the contract.

Canadian General Electric Co. v. Canadian Rubber Co., 47 Que. S.C. 24.

One who contracts to erect a building for another can claim payment only when he has entirely completed the work. Therefore he cannot recover the value of work done and materials furnished by offering to deduct the amount of damages caused by defective work, delays, etc. Except in cases expressly provided for by law the court cannot set aside a contract, under the provisions of art. 1065 C.C. unless the decree can restore the parties to the position in which they formerly were. If it gives an advantage to the one to the prejudice of the other cancellation should be refused.

Rochon v. Favreau, 21 Que. K.B. 61, reversing 38 Que. S.C. 421. [Reversed 8 D.L.R. 1031, 46 Can. S.C.R. 647.]

BUILDING CONTRACTS—ENTIRE CONTRACT—SPECIFICATIONS—CONTRACT PRICE NOT PAYABLE UNTIL COMPLETION—ACCEPTANCE—WAIVER—KNOWLEDGE OF DEFECTS—CONTRACT PRICE—ALLOWANCE FOR EXTRAS—COSTS.

Where there is a contract to erect a building, according to specifications, for a lump sum, the price is not recoverable until the building is completed in accordance with the specifications, unless the defendant has accepted the work with a knowledge of the defects, or has done something from which a new contract to pay for the work can be inferred or unless the variations from the specifications or omissions in details are so unimportant or trifling as to exclude the general rule, and so entitle the plaintiff to recover. [Broley v. Mills, 1 S.L.R. 20, and French v. Holby, 10 W.R. 821, followed.] The contract for the painting of the defendant's house by the plaintiffs was held to be an entire contract, to which the above principle was applicable. Although, during the progress of the work, the defendant moved into the house and occupied it, using such portions as were ready for occupation this did not constitute an acceptance or waiver. The defendant had no knowledge of omissions or defects up to the time the plaintiffs declared the work completed. The defendant did not nothing from which a new contract could be inferred. The plaintiffs did not upon the evidence, complete their contract to an extent which entitled them to payment of the contract price—there were substantial omissions. The plaintiffs, were, however, entitled to recover a small sum for extras, with costs on the scale of the small debt procedure; and the defendants were entitled to their costs on the district court scale, set-off pro tanto directed.

BIDDING CONTRACTS—RIGHT OF RECOVERY OF PART PERFORMANCE — QUANTUM MERUIT.

The plaintiffs contracted with the defendant to erect a house, the defendant to pay for lumber and materials and allow the plaintiffs 10 per cent on the cost for their trouble and supervision. Before the house was finished, the defendant notified the plaintiffs that he would finish the house, to which the plaintiffs agreed, and the defendant accordingly completed it.—Held, upon the defendant's appeal from the judgment in an action brought in a District Court, that the contract was not an entire one, and the Trial Judge was right in allowing the plaintiffs $300 for commission—there was evidence of a fresh contract by the defendant to pay for the work done. [Sumpter v. Hedges, [1898] 1 Q.B. 673, distinguished.] Held, also, that the sum of $465 allowed to the defendant on his counterclaim for damages for defective construction, should be increased; the measure of damages being the difference between the value of the work as performed by the plaintiffs and the value it would have had if it had been performed in a proper and workmanlike manner; and that the defendant, after accepting the house, was not entitled to the cost of tearing down and rebuilding the walls, unless he had been compelled to tear them down. [Smith v. Johnson, 15 T.L.R. 479, referred to.];—Held, also, that r. 77 of the Supreme Court Rules was applicable to the practice of the District Courts, and, by that rule, the judge had power to award a lump sum for costs, and had properly exercised his discretion in limiting the defendant's costs to $50.

BUILDING CONTRACT—INCOMPLETE PERFORMANCE — ENCROACHMENT ON ADJOINING LOT—WAIVER—RIGHT TO RECOVERY.

Where a building is erected by a contractor so as to encroach slightly on an adjoining lot, and action is taken by the contractor for the moneys payable under the building contract, the procuring by agreement of a transfer of the portion of the adjoining lot encroached upon, after the commencement of the action, but before the trial, operates as a waiver of objection by the building owner on the ground of the encroachment. A building contract whereunder the principal pays the contractor at the end of each month the cost of labour and material plus ten per cent is not an entire contract, and the contractor may from time to time recover from the principal these payments as they accrue due.

BUILDING CONTRACT—MEASURE OF DAMAGES—ESTIMATES—FRAUD.

Under a contract made between the plaintiffs and defendant on April 28, 1913, the plaintiffs undertook the erection of a building for the defendant. The plaintiffs were to supply the plant and tools necessary in the construction and attend to all details of construction under the supervision of defendant's architect and the defendant was to pay for all labour, material and other charges incidental to the work from time to time as such payments were due and notified to the defendant by plaintiffs. For this work the defendant agreed to pay the plaintiffs a fixed sum of $15,000 subject to increase or deduction by a sum equal to 20 per cent of such sum as ultimately was found to be less than or in excess of $189,000, being the fixed estimated cost of the work. This estimated cost had been furnished by the plaintiffs and was by them guaranteed. The work commenced upon the execution of the agreement and continued until some time in November, 1913, when it stopped because the defendant was unable to furnish the money to carry out his part of the contract. In fact his financial condition had been embarrassing before November and he had become indebted to plaintiffs for advances of about $7,000, which he finally paid in 1916. The defendant in July, 1916, advertised for tenders to complete the building in a modified form. Before any new contract was let he received a letter from plaintiffs protesting against the work being continued under any contract but the one here in question, and warning defendant that he was not relieved from this contract. Without any serious effort, however, to get rid of this contract, the defendant entered into a new one with other contractors. Thereupon this action was brought to recover damages for breach of contract. Judgment was given for the plaintiffs at the trial and reversed on appeal [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1021, on the ground of fraud in making the estimate. The plaintiff's appealed. Held, that the defence of fraud was not available; also, that the plaintiffs were entitled to damages for breach of contract as of the date when the new contract was let by the defendant, and that, in ascertaining such damages, the total cost of the building if completed under the plaintiff's contract had they resumed work on the date of the breach should be estimated, and to the extent to which that cost should exceed or fall below $189,000, 20 per cent thereof should be deducted or added, as the case might be, to the amount to which the plaintiffs might be found entitled in respect of the $10,000 (balance of $15,000, less $5,000 paid), and in ascertaining the damages payable in respect of this item there should be taken into account the value of the time, labour and expense which the plaintiffs were saved through being relieved of their obligation to carry out their contract and any contingencies which might have interfered with their doing so, and that the defendant having broken his contract, was not entitled to anything in respect of the 20 per cent on estimated increased cost over $189,000, except by way of set-off against the plaintiffs' recovery in respect of the $10,000 item.

BUILDING CONTRACT—AQUEDUCT—CHANGE OF PLAN—EXTRA WORK—QUANTUM MERUIT.

A contract for the construction of an aqueduct, according to a design adopted by the owner's engineers required the contractors to reinforce one section thereof with steel. After the work had been begun the contractors, owing to the development of certain defects, were ordered by the owner's engineers to reinforce the whole work. The Trial Judge found that no blame attached to the contractors for these defects, but that they resulted wholly from natural causes, which an aqueduct constructed without steel reinforcement and according to the design contracted for was unable to resist. In an action for the price of the extra steel on a quantum meruit basis, held that the terms of the contract failed to provide for the contingency which resulted in the change of plan and that there was an implied agreement to pay for the extra work and material on a quantum meruit. [Boyd v. South Winnipeg, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 489, applied; Thorn v. London Corp., 1 App. Cas. 129, distinguished.]

J. H. Tremblay Co. v. Greater Winnipeg Water District, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 713. [Reversed, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 1083.]

BUILDING CONTRACT—EXTRAS—PAROL EVIDENCE—JURISDICTION OF COURTS—MECHANICS' LIENS.

A contract for the construction of a building containing a clause that "the owner may, without invalidating the contract, make changes which he deems necessary to make in the plans and specifications of the works to be done, provided, however, that all increases or decreases, as the case may be, be added or deducted," is not a contract for a fixed price to which apply the rules of art. 1690 C.C. (Que.) relating to payment for works resulting from changes or increases made in the plans and specifications. Such contract being of a commercial nature, parol evidence is admissible to prove the works ordered by the owner. A clause in the contract stipulating that all difficulties shall be settled by the architect, whose decision shall bind the parties without appeal, does not take away their recourse before the courts. One who builds upon a lot of land which does not belong to him has not the right to ask for the obliteration of the privileges of a builder, of furnishers of material and of workmen registered upon the building and the land, or the voiding of the contract signed by him for the erection of such building.

Amyot v. Pageau, 53 Que. S.C. 414.

EXTRAS—UNLIQUIDATED DAMAGES.

Where a proprietor, derogating from article 1690 C.C., stipulates with a contractor regarding any sum to be paid for extras as to "any work which may be done by the contractor and not mentioned or referred to (in the devis) which may be considered as an extra, will require to be recognized either verbally or in writing by the architect or proprietor before payment can be collected for such work," it applies only to increase in the labour and materials, and does not apply to any change from the plan and specifications which remain regulated by art. 1690 C.C. Although unliquidated damages must be offered in compensation by an incidental demand, a proprietor sued by his contractor for works done, may plead directly that this latter has not executed his contract according to agreement, and that the costs of completing it should be deducted from his claim by way of compensation; doing this, he is not asking for damages.

Nutt v. Marshall, 24 Rev. Leg. 129.

(§ II D—190)—DIGGING WELL.

Where, as the result of his own negligence, the plaintiff was compelled to abandon a well he had sunk for the defendant under an agreement to do so for a stated price per foot, but with no stipulation that he should go to any particular depth to obtain water, and without a new agreement, but with the knowledge and consent of the defendant, he began another, which, after going a considerable depth, he also abandoned without finding water, the defendant is answerable only for drilling the second well, since it became necessary to do so as the result of the plaintiff's own negligence.

Wright v. Edwards, 4 D.L.R. 497, 21 W.L.R. 851, 2 W.W.R. 746.

DRILLING—PRICE OF WORK.

Where one is employed to perform drilling work, and no price for the work has been agreed upon, the court will fix a price that is fair.

Robertson v. Beadle (Alta.), 36 D.L.R. 176, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 184.

DRILLING CONTRACT—COVENANT AGAINST ENCUMBRANCES—SEIZING EQUIPMENT.

An agreement whereby an oil drilling contractor covenants the drilling equipment to be free of debt, lien or incumbrance and to so maintain it until completion of the contract, and that in the event of an abandonment or failure to substantially perform the contract the oil company is given the right to seize the equipment and complete the well, does not entitle the company to exercise the right of seizure for an outstanding indebtedness on the machinery not amounting to a charge or lien, and that it is only upon the failure of substantial performance of the contract that the right to seizure may lawfully be exercised.

ARTESIAN WELL—DEPTH—PRICE.

In a contract for digging an artesian well, at the rate of 82 per foot, provided that drinkable water be obtained but with no condition as to the depth, the contractor, when stopped by the owner at 85 feet in depth because he has not yet found drinkable water, has a right to the price agreed upon for the 85 feet.

Venus v. Linkis, 51 Que. S.C. 15.

18 H D—1921—BUILDING CONTRACTS—EXTENT ONLY ON ARCHITECT'S WRITTEN ORDER.

A building contractor is bound by the strict terms of a building contract whereby he has agreed to make no claim for extras done without the written order of the architect, nor can he set up in support of his claim for extras the verbal order of the architect in the face of such condition of the contract where no fraud or collusion is shown between the owner and the architect.

Vandewater v. Marsh, 14 D.L.R. 737, 5 O.W.N. 213, 25 O.W.R. 178, affirmed 10 D.L.R. 810, 4 O.W.N. 882.

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT.

Where a building contract provides that any dispute as to extras or reductions after the issuance of the architect's certificate shall be referred to arbitration and also provides for the recovery of what is "justly due," the latter stipulation not being conditioned upon an architect's certificate or upon an award, and the contract does not contain any proviso that the certificate of the architect shall be final, the contractor is entitled to recover the amount earned under the contract and for extras, without either an architect's certificate or an award, particularly where no certificate had been given by the architect until after the litigation had begun and no arbitrator had been appointed.

Contractors' Supply Co. v. Hyde, 2 D.L.R. 161, 3 O.W.N. 723, 21 O.W.R. 530.

(§ H D—193)—ADVERTISING CONTRACTS.

Where the plaintiff claims a balance as due for advertising, under a written contract which purported to lease to the defendant for one year for advertising purposes a numbered space on the "specialty drop curtain" of the "Empress Theatre" with a proviso for a pro rata reduction if the "theatre" during the term should close, or fail to give the regular number of performances; and, where the evidence shewed that such theatre was of the vaudeville class and within four months was moved with all its plant and scenery, except the "specialty drop curtain," to another building on another street in the city, and there adopted the same name "Empress Theatre" and that the name of the original "Empress Theatre" building was changed to the "Bijou," and was operated for the remainder of the term as a moving picture show under that name, the advertisement on the curtain remaining in the "Bijou" on the original drop curtain left there, the true construction of the words "Empress Theatre" read with "theatre" in contract, as gathered from the whole instrument, is that the parties thereby contemplated the organization, including the plant and scenery, as an active theatre and vaudeville show giving regular performances, and therefore that as to the remaining eight months the defendant was not liable under the contract, the advertisement in the "Bijou" was not of the kind contracted for.

WHAT ACTIONABLE—PUBLISHING FIRM PUBLISHING A CITY DIRECTORY—RESPONSIBILITY FOR UNINTENTIONAL OMISSIONS.

Where a publishing firm publishes from year to year a directory of the names and addresses of the inhabitants of a city, and sells copies thereof to any residents who may choose to become subscribers, under a custom that the names and business addresses and callings of such subscribers shall be published in large, heavy type, the enterprise being a private one in the publishing firm's own interest, it is presumed to take all the risks of oversights and omissions in respect of any such subscriber, and may be held responsible in damages therefor. Where the defendants have for several years been publishing an annual city directory, and the plaintiff, a practising barrister, gives the defendants a written order for a copy of the directory for a certain year, and where it was and had been the custom of the defendants to publish in large, heavy type the names, callings and office addresses of all subscribers, and where all this was omitted from the directory in respect of the plaintiff, the omission is actionable.

Archambault v. Lovell, 8 D.L.R. 611, 42 Que. S.C. 344.

VOTING CONTEST — NEWSPAPER AWARD — RIGHTS OF WINNER THEREUNDER.

A newspaper held a voting contest in order to increase its circulation and offered to give a trip to the five ladies obtaining the greatest number of votes. The terms of the contest further provided that the lady who obtained the greatest number of all the votes cast had the right to choose the chaperon of the party. The plaintiff obtained the greatest number of votes and appointed H. chaperon. A few days later she changed her mind and appointed M. chaperon. The newspaper was not prejudiced by the change and the manager of the newspaper agreed to it. Subsequently the directors of the newspaper notified the plaintiff that, having appointed H. she could not reconsider her choice. When the tickets for the trip arrived, the newspaper tendered one to the plaintiff. She refused to accept it, because she was not tendered one for M. as well and obtained an injunction, restraining the defendant from delivering a ticket to H.:—Held, that the plaintiff had the right to change her mind and was entitled to receive as damages the price of the chaperon's ticket and certain expenses incurred in preparing for the trip:—Held, that the appointment of the chaperon was not in the nature of an execution of a power.

TO REPAIR — NEW MATERIAL SUPPLIED BY REPAIRER — REDELIVERY TO OWNER — SALE OF MATERIAL—LIABILITY—DELAY — UNREASONABLENESS—DAMAGES.

Under a contract to repair, where new material is put into the article repaired by the repairer, the new material so supplied passes to the owners by way of sale with all the rights incident to a sale, on redelivery of the article to the owners, and the repairer is bound to supply such material as is fit for the purpose for which it is required and is liable for latent defects in such material. The owner of the article repaired is entitled to have the defects remedied by the repairer, or by some one else at the expense of the repairer, but unreasonableness and delay on his part will disentitle him to damages for expenses which would not have been incurred but for such delay and unreasonableness.

III. Validity and effect.

A. IN GENERAL.

As affected by drunkenness, undue influence, see Deeds, II G—70; Contracts, I D—43.

(4 III A—195) — VALIDITY AND EFFECT — CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT BY ONE UNDER EXISTING CONTRACT — KNOWLEDGE OF CONTRACTEE — ACTION FOR BREACH.

Under the axiom ex turpi causa oritur actio an action cannot be maintained for the breach of a contract of employment where the plaintiff, at the time the agreement was made, was aware that it could not be performed without the defendant breaking an existing contract of employment with a third person. [*Harrington v. ILLEGAL—STIFLING PROSECUTION—ENFORCEMENT.

An agreement to stifle a prosecution which has a tendency, however slight, to affect the due administration of justice, is illegal, and any obligation assumed by a person not previously liable therefor as a result of such agreement cannot be enforced. [Lourd v. Grimswade, 39 Ch. D. 605; Windhill v. Vint, 45 Ch. D. 351; Williams v. Bayley, L.R. 1 H.L. 290, applied.]

Ralston v. Tanner, 43 O.L.R. 77.

STOLEN GOODS—COMPROMISE.

A promise to pay a debt as soon as it "will be possible," or when the promisor's "finance will permit it," is a legal contract; it is for the court to declare, when the debtor is sued, if he is in a condition to satisfy his obligation. A compromise effected by the seller of stolen goods with a buyer, to whom he had fraudulently sold them, does not bind the owner of the effects, who may sue this latter for the price of sale.

Orban v. Levy, 27 Que. K.B. 370.

MUNICIPAL CONTRACT—PARTIAL INVALIDITY.

If a by-law or municipal ordinance, or a contract of a municipality, can only be interpreted as a whole, the nullity of a part involves the nullity of the whole; but if, on the other hand, the stipulations are independent one of the other, one part of a contract, or even one part of a clause of a contract, may be null and the other part legal and valid.

Compagnie Elder Ehano v. Ville de Maisonneuve, 24 Rev. de Jur. 95, 27 Que. K.B. 95.

IMPROVIDENT TRANSACTION—RELIEF THEREFROM.

In order to have a valid contract or conveyance of property, there must be a reasonable degree of equality between the contracting parties. Quit-claim deed set aside because the court was of opinion that the giving of it under the circumstances was an improvident transaction from which the parties giving it were entitled to be relieved.

Barker v. Baker, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 335.

B. ILLEGAL BY EXPRESS PROVISION.

(§ III B—200)—SALE OF OIL—STIPULATION AS TO FOREIGN STANDARD MEASURES.

The sale of a quantity of oil is considered to be made according to the Canadian standard measures, and a contract which stipulates that such sale is made subject to the American standard measures is void.

Premier Oil Co. v. Lavigne, 47 Que. S.C. 543.

VOID—LORD'S DAY ACT—COMPENSATION—DUTY OF COURT.

A contract entered into by a tradesman on the Lord's Day for the sale of goods is void. The purchaser, however, having received the goods must either return them or compensate such tradesman (R.S.S. 1909, c. 69). It is the duty of the court to notice that such contract was made in violation of the Lord's Day Act although no objection on that ground is taken in the pleadings.

VALIDITY—VIOLATION OF STATUTE—ALIEN LABOUR CONTRACT—BANK CLERK.

A contract to work as a bank clerk is within s. 3 of c. 43, of the B.C. Master and Servant Amendment Act of 1899, declaring void all contracts for the performance of labour or service in the province made by a nonresident before emigrating to or entering the province.

STIPULATION AS TO EXTRAS.

The law which declares that a contractor cannot claim any extras, except under certain conditions, is not a law of public order, and the parties can contravene to it by private agreement.

Great Northern Construction Co. v. Ross, 25 Que. K.B. 385, 404.

ILLEGAL BY EXPRESS PROVISION — VIOLATIONS OF STATUTE, PUBLIC POLICY.

No right of action can spring out of an illegal contract; an agency contract constituting an essential part of a scheme to evade the B.C. Land Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 129, and therefore illegal as contrary to public policy, is not enforceable. [Brownlee v. McIntosh, 15 D.L.R. 871, 48 Can. S. C.R. 588, followed; N.W. Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co., 107 L.T. 439, referred to.]

Any agreement contrary to the Workmen's Compensation Act is null.

St. Maurice Lumber Co. v. Cadorette, 25 Que. K.B. 410.

(§ III B—211)—VALIDITY AND EFFECT—SALES OF LIQUOR FOR RESALE IN VIOLATION OF LAW.

A nonresident vendor who contracts to sell an article (ex. gr., intoxicating liquor) with the knowledge that it is to be used for resale in violation of law cannot recover the price by action in the courts of the province, the laws of which would be infringed by the contemplated resale.

SALE OF LIQUOR.

Where a sale of intoxicating liquor is made by a principal through an agent to a purchaser who, to the knowledge of the agent, acting in the course of his employment and within the scope of his authority, intends to dispose of the same in violation of law, the contract is void for illegality and the principal cannot recover the purchase price. In such a case the knowledge of the agent is attributed to the principal and it makes no difference that the principal reserves to himself a discretion as to whether he will accept the order or not. [Craigellaehie v. Bigelow, 37 N.S.R. 482, 37 Can. S.C.R. 55, distinguished.] Drysdale, J., dissented on the ground that the agent in question only had a limited authority to solicit and transmit orders and had no authority to make sales, and his knowledge (as to which he thought the evidence insufficient) was therefore not sufficient to bind the principal.

St. Charles & Co. v. Vassallo, 45 N.S.R. 195, 9 E.L.R. 355.

C. PUBLIC POLICY.

Stifling prosecution, duress, see Compromise and Settlement, 1—4; Mischief, 1—15.

Secret preference to creditor, see Insolvency, 11—5.

(§ III C—215) — BIASING MIND OF PURCHASER—CORRUPT ACT.

An agreement to pay a sum of money for biasing the mind of a prospective purchaser to accept the bargain is a corrupt act and unenforceable. [Wyburd v. Stanton, 4 Esp. 179; Harrington v. Victoria Graving Dock Co., 3 Q.B.D. 549, followed.] Sproule v. Isman, 23 D.L.R. 68, 8 S.L.R. 237, 8 W.W.R. 1133, 31 W.L.R. 776.

(§ III C—216)—BY GUARDIAN.

An agreement made by the grandfather of a child to pay the mother of a child a fixed sum annually on condition that he be appointed the guardian of the child is not void as against public policy where such appointment is merely asked for as a guarantee that the education of the child shall be finished in an institution named by the grandfather, and there is no desire otherwise to divest the mother of her rights and liabilities with respect to the child. [Humphreys v. Pollys, [1901] 2 K.B. 285, distinguished.]

Chisholm v. Chisholm, 45 N.S.R. 288.

(§ III C—228)—AS TO CHANGING JURISDICTION OF COURT.

A covenant in a contract that litigation arising from it, shall be had before the court in a different district from that in which it should be had in the ordinary course, is not invalid, but no consent of parties, by contract or otherwise, can vest in a judge or a court a jurisdiction that the law does not give them.

Jonquières Pulp Co. v. Chicoutimi Pulp Co. 41 Que. S.C. 97.

(§ III C—238)—IMMORAL CONSIDERATION—TITLE.

A contract with an immoral consideration is of no effect. It cannot constitute a title sufficient to transfer property nor one upon which to found possession animo domini.

Lafortune v. Vézina, 25 Que. K.B. 544, 48 Que. S.C. 254. [Reversed in 41 D.L.R. 208, 26 Can. S.C.R. 246.]

IMMORAL USE OF PROPERTY—HOUSE OF ILL-FAME.

A contract founded upon a consideration illegal or contrary to public order or good morals is non-effective. There is no right of action for recovery of the price of an immovable to be used as a house of ill-fame when this unlawful and immoral use was the sole consideration and determined the price in excess of the intrinsic value of the immovable.

Noel v. Brunet, 48 Que. S.C. 119.

LEASE FOR IMMORAL PURPOSE—CONTRACTS FOR SALE.

An agreement for sale of a house for a price exceeding its value payable by instalments, the excess being agreed to in consideration of the immoral use which the purchaser, to the knowledge of the vendor, proposed to make of it, having become void through failure of the purchaser to pay the instalments, the vendor is not entitled to an action to annul it nor to recover moneys payable thereunder when he has already received more than the value of the property.

Brunon v. Vézina, 44 Que. S.C. 189.

IMMORAL PURPOSES—REPAYMENT.

A donation inter vivos of an immovable for immoral purposes, for a house of prostitution, is void as being contrary to arts. 788 and 990, C.C. Que. The demand for repayment of money paid to a person who is not in the cause should be refused.

Balthazar v. Quillam, 51 Que. S.C. 193.

(§ III C—239)—IMMORAL MOTIVES.

Where both parties enter into a contract from an improper and immoral motive, then that motive becomes the real cause of the contract and the contract is illegal.

Bedard v. Phenix Land & Improvement Co., and Drolet, 8 D.L.R. 686, 43 Que. S.C. 50.

VALIDITY AND EFFECT—AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY—TO COMPOUND CRIME—TEST.

The misappropriation of his employer's money by an employee creates a debt in favour of the employer for which he may lawfully take security so long as there is no agreement not to prosecute. Ward v. Lloyd, 6 M. & G. 785, referred to.]

RATIFICATION OF FORGERY—COMPOUNDING CRIME.

The forgery of another's name may be ratified by the party whose name has been attached without his authority unless such ratification involves an agreement to stifle a prosecution. [Scott v. Bank of New Brunswick, 23 Can. S.C.R. 277, 283, applied; for previous decisions see 6 D.L.R. 119, 8 D.L.R. 68.]

IMMORAL PURPOSES.

The ground upon which the court refuses to enforce immoral contracts is that they are against public policy as encouraging and aiding immorality. It is not necessary in order to render the contract unenforceable that the plaintiff should expect to be paid out of the proceeds of the immoral act. The distinction is to be observed between those things which, while necessary or useful for the ordinary purposes of life, may also be applied to an immoral purpose and those which under the circumstances appear not to have been required except for an immoral purpose. Where additions to a house of ill-fame are known to the contractor to be required for the purpose of increasing the immoral business, he cannot enforce a mechanic's lien in respect thereto. In an action to enforce a mechanic's lien for such additions when judgment in favour of the plaintiff is reversed on appeal, there should be no costs of either action or appeal. [Pearce v. Brooks, L.R. 1 Ex. 213, 35 L.J. Ex. 134, as explained in Clark v. Hagar, 22 Can. S.C.R. 510; Perkins v. Jones, 1 W.L.R. 41, followed.]

TO COMPOUND CRIME.

Defendant had allowed a fire to escape from his land, and was liable to a fine and costs under the Forest Fires Act. He was informed by the defendant, an officer charged with the enforcement of the act, that he would be liable to a fine of $20 and that the costs of extinguishing the fire would amount to $25 more. Wishing to prevent an information being laid against him the plaintiff agreed to pay the defendant these amounts, and actually paid him $29 on account. Held, that if the agreement was a legal one, there was consideration for the payment, and if the agreement was illegal then the plaintiff was a party to it, and in either event the money could not be recovered back.

Chipman v. Whitman, 11 E.L.R. 313.

PUBLIC POLICY—TO COMPOUND CRIME.

A loan of money by the victim of a robbery to the father of the thief to enable him to stifle the prosecution by paying the expenses incurred is not a nullity as being made for a consideration contrary to good morals and public order.

Doucet v. Lanoix, 22 Que. K.B. 473.

CONVEYANCE OF LAND—ILLEGAL CONSIDERATION—STIFLING PROSECUTION—THREATS—DURESS—AGREEMENT TO HOLD DEED AS SECURITY.

Boon v. Fair, 11 O.W.N. 177.

IMMUNITY CLAUSE—RESPONSIBILITY—PUBLIC ORDER—INSURANCE—TRANSFEREE—ACTION—C.C., ART. 1054—R.S. [1906], c. 37 (RAILWAY ACT), ARTS. 226, 340, 346.

A party to a contract may legally stipulate that he will not be responsible for the negligence of his employees. Therefore, a clause in an agreement between a railway company and a private individual for the building of a siding, connecting with the company's railways, which purports to exempt the company from liability for injury or loss caused by its negligence or that of its servants in use of said siding, is not void as being against public order, as far as the fault of the Company's employees is concerned. This contract does not require the authorization and approval of the Railway Commission under art. 340 of the Railway Act. An insurance company which has paid the damages suffered by the insured in an accident, may, as transferee, sue the party responsible for the accident in recovering the amount paid in the name of the insured.

Canadian Northern Quebec R. Co. v. Argenteuil Lumber Co., 28 Que. K.B. 408.

(§ III C—247)—AS TO STEAMSHIP COMPANIES.

An agreement between steamship companies fixing rates for freight and passengers for one season is not void as against public policy if the rates are proper and reasonable and the contract in fact beneficial to the public. The plaintiffs proved one breach of such contract by the defendants and the court directed the jury that in the absence of evidence to the contrary they might infer that other breaches had been committed. Held, the direction was right, inasmuch as the defendants knew and could have given evidence as to whether or not other breaches had been committed.

St. John River Steamship Co. v. The Star Line Steamship Co., 40 N.B.R. 405.

(§ III C—249)—FOR TERM OF YEARS—EXPIRATION OF TIME—NO NEW CONTRACT—CONTINUATION UNDER TERMS OF OLD CONTRACT—RENEWAL FROM YEAR TO YEAR OR MONTH TO MONTH.

A contract for the supply of water was entered into in 1886 to extend over a period of 20 years with right of renewal. At the end of that period no new contract was entered into, but the company continued to supply water at the old rate, and no effort was made to secure a renewal of the contract. Held, that the contract had not been renewed for a period of twenty years and at the most the supplying of water under the original conditions and at the original rates could not be construed as anything more than a renewal of the contract from year to year or possibly only from month to month.

The King v. Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities; Ex parte Town of Milltown, 47 D.L.R. 219.

(§ III C—260)—HIRE OF HORSES—MILITARY OFFICER—LIABILITY OF CROWN.

A contract for the hire of horses entered into by an officer of the Crown's military forces acting under the authority of the commanding officer is binding upon the Crown.

Gulf Pulp & Paper Co. v. The King, 41 D.L.R. 508, 17 Can. Ex. 294.

AGREEMENT TO REMUNERATE PLAINTIFF FOR USE OF POLITICAL INFLUENCE WITH SERVANTS OF CROWN TO OBTAIN BENEFIT FOR DEFENDANTS—ACTION UPON AGREEMENT—SUMMARY DISMISSAL AS CONTRARY TO PUBLIC POLICY—COSTS.

An action to cover a commission for procuring for the defendants contracts from the Crown was summarily dismissed, upon it appearing, by the admissions of the plaintiff upon his examination for discovery, that the commission was claimed under an agreement by which the plaintiff was to use his political influence with servants of the Crown to obtain the contracts, which was an agreement contrary to public policy. [Montefiore v. Menday Motor Components Co., [1918] 2 K.B. 241, followed.] The action was dismissed with costs, the plaintiff having been paid a part of the commission, which he did not legally earn.

Yeomans v. Knight, 45 O.L.R. 55.

(§ III C—262)—OF PUBLIC OFFICERS—COMPENSATION—SPECIALTY CONTRACT—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

A claim for unpaid salary by a public school inspector is a claim in debt on the statute, hence a specialty contract and not barred for twenty years under 10 Edw. VII., c. 34, s. 49, although the facts bringing the defendant within the liability of the Act may be dehors the statute. [Cork & Brandon R. Co. v. Goode, 13 C.B. 826; Shepherd

v. Hills, 11 Ex. 55, 105 R.R. 286, followed; Ross v. G.T.R. Co., 10 O.R. 447; Essery v. G.F.R. Co., 21 O.R. 224; Beatty v. Bailey, 26 O.L.R. 145; Magherafelt v. Gribben, 24 I.R. 17, 209, referred to.]

(§ III C—264)—PRIVATE INTEREST OF PUBLIC OFFICER—CONTRACT FOR A MUNICIPAL WORK.

A contractor with a municipality who had entered into an arrangement with the mayor whereby the latter was to receive from him a bonus for financial assistance personally given by the mayor in carrying out the work contracted for, under circumstances which gave the mayor an interest in the contract incompatible with his official duty and in violation of the statute 58 Vict. (Que.), c. 42, ss. 1 and 2, is not entitled to retain the illegal bonus money out of proceeds of the contract coming to his lands; the contractor may recover same either as money had and received to his use or under the statute 58 Vict. (Que.), c. 42, s. 12.
Lapointe v. Messier, 17 D.L.R. 347, 49 Can. S.C.R. 271.

D. GAMBLING AND WAGER CONTRACTS.

As affected by Cr. Code, grain future, see Gaming, 1-5.

(§ III D—270)—PURCHASE ON MARGIN—CHEQUE.

Purchasing stock on margin for speculative purposes, without an actual transfer of the stock certificates, does not constitute the transaction a gaming contract as affecting the validity of a cheque given to a broker in consideration thereof, whose only interest in the contract is his commission. [Forget v. Ostigny, [1895] A.C. 318; Stevenson v. Brains, 1 Que. Q.B. 77, followed; S. 231 of the Cr. Code, R.S.C. 1906, c. 146, referred to.]

Bernstein v. Shapiro, 26 D.L.R. 406, 49 Que. S.C. 350.

GAMING—STAKEHOLDER—RETURN OF DEPOSIT.

The deposit with a third party by a bettor of his stake is not a mere revocable promise to pay but an actual payment subject to the conditions on which the bet is made. [See Marquis v. Cantin, 42 Que. S.C. 132.] The bettors, with a contract in writing, are bound by the declaration made when it is executed, that the recognized betting rules will be observed. Therefore, the announcement by the judges and starter on a race course that the racing will be conducted according to the rules of the National Trotting Association, compels the bettors to submit to the decision of the judges, after four heats had been run, to postpone the last heat to another day owing to the late hour as allowed by said rules, especially when the contract is silent on the matter. Oral proof of the said rules and declaration is admissible. The bettor who refuses to accept the judges' decision loses his bet and his opponent may recover the stake from the depository.
Can. Dig.—37.

Giroux v. Ailaire, 44 Que. S.C. 425.

(§ III D—272)—GRAIN—"FUTURES"—INTENTION AS TO DELIVERY—CRIM. CODE, s. 231.

The plaintiffs, grain-merchants and grain-brokers, acting as brokers for the defendant, a bank clerk, bought and sold for him grain upon the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. All the transactions were in "futures." The defendant never ordered a purchase or sale with the intention of accepting or making delivery, and the plaintiffs' manager knew that the defendant was merely a bank clerk, and that his orders were purely speculative.—Held, that the transactions were prohibited by s. 231 of the Criminal Code, and the plaintiffs could not recover a balance said to be due to them when they sold at a loss the grain which the defendant had previously purchased upon margin through them. Maloo v. Bickell, 14 O.W.N. 289, affirming 13 O.W.N. 4.

STOCK—MARGIN.

The client of a stock broker deposited into his hands a margin of 2 per cent on a certain stock on the following condition: (a) if, at a certain date, the price of the shares dropped, on the New York Stock Exchange, to the price covered by the margin, the client loses the margin and remained liable for interest; (b) if the stock went down but not below the margin, the client would have the right to withdraw his margin less the amount represented by the decline of the market and $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent commission; (c) if the stock went up, the client could close the option, and the broker would pay him the profits represented by the rise of the market and his margin. Neither of the parties ever contemplated the delivery of the stock. It was held, that this transaction was a pure gambling in the rise or fall of the shares in New York Stock Exchange, and that it was illegal as contrary to the civil and criminal laws.

Wilson v. North American Securities, 52 Que. S.C. 322.

DEALINGS ON MARGIN ON GRAIN EXCHANGE—SPECULATIVE OPTIONS—PRIVILEGES.

This was an application for leave to appeal to the King in Council from a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, 16 D.L.R. 853, 49 Can. S.C.R. 595, 4 W.W.R. 1258, in favour of the defendant, which leave was refused.

(§ III D-273)—BETTING ON HORSE RACE—
MONEY LENT—ACTION TO RECOVER.

Scully v. Ryckman, 4 O.W.N. 850, 24 O.W.R. 221.

(III D-274)—STAKES, RIGHT TO RECOVER.

The deposit with a third part of the stakes by the makers of a wager is not a mere revocable promise to pay but a real payment by anticipation and subject to the conditions governing the wager. From the time that it is decided the stakes become the property of the winner by that very event and the loser has no means of recovering it either from the winner or from the depository.

Marquis v. Cantin, 42 Que. S.C. 132.

E. IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

As to personal service, exclusive agency, time and space, see Injunction, I B-22.

Criminal restraint of trade, see Monopoly and Combinations.

(§ III E-275)—RESTRAINT OF TRADE—
CRIM. CODE.

A contract whereby the sale of about 90 per cent of the salt output in Canada is controlled, but where the quantity imported and subject to competition exceeds the home manufactured article, and the prices not having been enhanced thereby, is not in undue restraint of trade in violation of s. 498 of the Criminal Code.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE—SALE OF GOODS BY MANUFACTURERS—CONDITION AS TO PRICES AT WHICH SALES TO BE MADE BY VENDEE TO CUSTOMERS—CRIMINAL CODE,
S. 498 (b), (d)—UNDULY PREVENTING OR LESSENING COMPETITION.

Dominion Supply Co. v. Robertson Co., 34 D.L.R. 740, 39 O.L.R. 495.

MONOPOLY—MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

The contract of a municipal corporation "not to use or allow to be used any other asphalt or bitumen than that of the plaintiff, especially where it has awarded, or will award, the contract for any paving work directly or indirectly within the limits of the city or elsewhere where the contracts are awarded, or it can exercise any control until the end and completion of the paving work which will be constructed within the limits of the said city and of its dependencies" restricts its natural liberty of doing business and is contrary to public order as preventing competition and creating a monopoly.

Elder-Elano Asphalt Co. v. City of Montreal, 31 Que. S.C. 295. [Reversed in 27 Que. K.B. 95.]

(§ III E-282)—RESTRICTING PRICES TO BE PAID.

An agreement between two dealers in junk aimed to destroy all competition in that business in the territory in which they were operating and aimed to lower prices paid by them for the stuff and indirectly to raise prices paid to them by their customers, the profits resulting to be divided between them, is not void at common law as being in restraint of trade.

AGREEMENT CREATING MONOPOLY—ENHANCING PRICES.

An injunction to restrain the defendant from selling goods of the plaintiff's manufacture, except at prices mentioned in an agreement between them, was refused, where the stipulations imposed by the vendor-plaintiff were such as unreasonably to enhance the price to the purchasing public; the element of crime came in and affected the freedom on contract. [Wampole & Co. v. F. E. Karn Co., 11 O.L.R. 619, followed; Elliman Sons & Co. v. Carrington & Son, [1901] 2 Ch. 275, not followed.]

Stearns v. Avery, 33 O.L.R. 251, 8 O.W.N. 70.

(§ III E-285)—TO RESTRAIN FROM BUSI-NESS—VIOLATION OF COVENANT—ACT-ING AS MANAGER.

Acting as manager of a competing business is a breach of a covenant given by defendant on selling out to plaintiffs that the defendant would not "alone or jointly with or as agent or otherwise for any other person, firm or company, directly or indirectly, enter into competition with or opposition" to the business of the plaintiffs within a stated time and radius.

Parkers Dye Works v. Smith, 20 D.L.R. 500, 32 O.L.R. 169, affirming 18 D.L.R. 631.

COVENANT NOT TO ENGAGE IN BUSINESS—PENALTY FOR—FORFEITURE OF.

A penal clause becomes operative the moment proof of violation of the contract is made, and the entire penalty becomes exigible without any proof of wrongful intention or damages suffered being required. This is different from the "concurrente deloyale" where the vendor of a stock-in-trade and goodwill proceeds to solicit his old customers.

Fortin v. Perras, 9 D.L.R. 16, 43 Que. S.C. 313.

REASONABLE RESTRAINT—TIME AND SPACE—INJUNCTION—DAMAGES.

A perpetual injunction will be granted restraining the vendor of the stock in trade and good will of a business from carrying as a business of a similar kind in a city where, in the circumstances of the case, such restraint seems reasonably necessary to protect the interest of the purchaser and is not injurious to the public.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE—SALE OF BUSINESS—COVENANT BY VENDOR NOT TO ENGAGE IN BUSINESS OF "MILK-DEALER" — ACTION FOR BREACH—WHETHER SALE OF BUTTER AND BUTTERMILK INCLUDED — EVIDENCE OF UNDERSTANDING OF PERSONS IN TRADE—EVIDENCE OF CONDUCT OF PARTIES—DECLARATION OF RIGHTS UNDER AGREEMENT.

Willis v. People's Dairy Co., 15 O.W.N. 257.

TO REFRAIN FROM BUSINESS—INJUNCTION — INSCRIPTION IN LAW.

A covenant by which a commercial traveler agrees, if he leaves his employ for any cause, not to be engaged by any one in Canada in the same capacity during one year or not to engage in the same line of business himself, is too restrictive, going beyond what was reasonably necessary for the protection of the employer's business and could not be enforced against him by an injunction.

Canada Metal Co. v. Berry, 15 Que. P.R. 178.

[§ III F.—287]—TO REFRAIN FROM BUSINESS—REASONABLENESS AS TO SPACE — RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

A covenant against competing in trade is reasonable as to space, although it includes the entire Province of Ontario where the covenantor's business embraces Ontario.

REASONABLENESS — SPACE — MISREPRESENTATION.

A covenant by a cake salesman not to engage in the sale of cakes or confectionery within 12 months after the termination of his employment, within a city of a half million inhabitants, is reasonable as to time, but unreasonable as to space, and is unenforceable, particularly when obtained under a misrepresentation that other employees have signed a similar contract; where the reasonable and unreasonable parts are not separable the contract is wholly unenforceable.

COVENANT BY SERVANT NOT TO ENGAGE IN SIMILAR BUSINESS WITHIN DEFINED TERRITORY—BREACH—INJUNCTION.

A company is liable to third parties who in good faith contract with a person in reality not the agent of the company under the belief that he was so when the company and its directors have given reasonable cause for such belief.

French Gas Saving Co. v. The Desbarats Advertising Agency, 1 D.L.R. 136.

ILLEGALITY—EXPRESS STATUTORY PROVISION — WAIVER—SERVICE TO BE PERFORMED.

The performance of services and the bringing of an action for wages earned under a contract is a waiver of the right to assert its invalidity because made by a nonresident of the province in violation of s. 19 of c. 153 of R.S.B.C. 1911.

Ashmore v. Bank of B.N.A., 13 D.L.R. 73, 18 B.C.R. 257, 21 W.L.R. 840, 4 W.W.R. 1014.

VALIDITY AND EFFECT—RATIFICATION WITH-OUT SEAL OF AGREEMENT UNDER SEAL.

An agreement under seal for the sale of land made by one purporting to be the agent of the owner, may be ratified by the owner by a writing not under seal, since the seal on the agreement of sale is mere surplusage, if the agreement is otherwise a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT—SIGNATURE OF HUSBAND INSERTED BY HIS WIFE—RATIFICATION—WRITING MADE VALIDLY —EVIDENCE BY WITNESSES OF A CONTRADICTORY NATURE—C.C. ART. 1234.

A written contract, in which a wife inserted the signature of her husband without his authority, may be valid if the husband later on ratifies the signature of his wife. Beyond this oral evidence cannot be admitted to contradict the terms. Acceptance by the husband of advances paid to his wife in execution of a contract, which she signed without authority but which is subsequently read to him, constitutes ratification of the contract.

Toussaint v. Lemieux, 28 Que. K.B. 212.

(§ III F.—291)—MISREPRESENTATION—CONTRACT INDUCED BY—PARTIAL INFORMATION RATIFICATION.

It is insufficient to prove partial information giving rise to suspicion only, to prove affirmance of a contract notwithstanding the false representation on which it was obtained; there can be no effective affirmation or election which is not based on complete and exact knowledge. Universal Marine, L.R. 8 Ex. 40, 197, referred to.]

SYNDICATE PURCHASE OF LAND—MISREPRESENTATION—PAYMENT OF INSTALMENT—WANT OF RATIFICATION.

The respondent, a member of a syndicate, brought an action to set aside an agreement of the sale entered into by the appellant, the owner of the lots, and the syndicate, on the ground that her assent to the purchase had been procured by fraudulent representations as to the situation of the lots bought. It was shown that the respondent, with full knowledge of the fraud, had given an option on these lots to a third party and had paid without protest an instalment due under the contract. The court held, Davies and Anglin, J.J. dissenting, that, on the evidence and under the circumstances of the case, the respondents' acts did not constitute ratification or confirmation or a waiver of her right of revocation.

G. REMEDIES; PROCEEDS OF UNLAWFUL CONTRACT.

(§ III G—295)—VIOLATION OF FARM IMPLEMENT ACT—RIGHTS OF SELLER.

An agreement of sale of threshing machinery in violation of the Farm Implements Act (Sask.), is not illegal, but merely unenforceable, and the seller has the right to recover the machinery and the profits made therewith by the buyer.

PUBLIC POLICY—IMMORAL MOTIVES—WANT OF CONSIDERATION—PROMISE EX TURPI CAUSA.

A promise made in consideration of the cessation of illicit cohabitation is void simply for want of any consideration, so that if made in the form of an instrument under seal, there may be prima facie a valid contract; yet if the transaction is of such a nature as to hold out an inducement or to constitute to either party a motive to continue the connection, the instrument would be void ex turpi causa and no claim or defence can be maintained which requires to be supported by allegation or proof of such an agreement; hence each of the parties thereto is powerless to enforce or to set aside an agreement of this character by judicial process.

Allen Mfg. Co. v. Murphy, 22 O.L.R. 539, 23 O.L.R. 467, 17 O.W.R. 917.

IV. Performance; breach.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ IV A—315)—BREACH—DISCLOSING TERMS.

Parties to a joint venture owe an obligation to each other not to do any act which will prevent or render less probable the contingency which will make the venture successful, and the one who throws over the opportunity of himself closing the transaction in which he is to divide the profits with another working in the same interest so as to enable a third party to secure the benefit which is the object of the venture because of the latter's offer to divide with him may be compelled to pay out of the profits so received to his partner in the venture the amount which the latter would have been entitled to receive had the defendant made the deal himself. [Inchbald v. Western, etc., Coffee Co., 17 C.B.N.S. 733, referred to.]

AGISTMENT CONTRACT—DEGREE OF CARE.

On a contract of agistment the onus is upon the agister to prove that the death of the pony, which was turned out on his range for food and shelter for the winter season, did not arise by reason of the agister's neglect to use such care as a prudent or careful man would exercise in regard to his own property. [Phipps v. The New Claridge's Hotel, 22 T.L.R. 49; Platt v. Waddington, 23 O.L.R. 178, referred to.]

SALE OF PULPWOOD—BREACH BY VENDOR—ACTION BY PURCHASER FOR DAMAGES—DEFENCE—REPUTATION OF CONTRACT BEYOND OF MISREPRESENTATIONS — FAILURE OF PURCHASER TO SHOW DAMAGES—RELIEF OF PURCHASER FROM LOSS BY TRANSACTION WITH STRANGER. New Ontario Timber Co. v. McDonald, 14 O.W.N. 261.

DELIVERY OF GRAIN—BREACH—DAMAGES. Burford Coal & Grain Co. v. McPherson, 14 O.W.N. 283. [Affirmed in 15 O.W.N. 85.]

CONSTRUCTION OF SIGN—COMPLIANCE WITH UNDERWRITERS' RULES. One who has undertaken to make and set up a sign is not obliged to comply with the rules of the "Canadian Association of the Insurers against Fire," unless he is under such obligation by his contract. Massey Sign Co. v. Routtenberg, 48 Que. S.C. 346.

IN GENERAL—QUALITY OF MATERIALS.

The word "edifice" in art 1688 C.C. comprises all large works of any nature whatever, for instance, an aqueduct which a municipality has had constructed for the use of its inhabitants. The contractor is not relieved from the liability provided for by said article from the fact that the work was not superintended by an architect. When loss occurs through the poor quality of the materials used in construction the contractor is liable notwithstanding that the owner had himself directed the work and made changes in the specifications. In such case it is not the owner but the contractor who must make certain that the materials are good quality.

Village of Warwick v. Gagnon, 22 Que. K.B. 280.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR—DEFENDANTS UNDERTAKING THAT A CERTAIN SUM BE PAID PLAINTIFF BY A COMPANY—REFUSAL OF COMPANY TO PAY BY REASON OF INDEBTEDNESS TO IT ON OTHER ACCOUNTS—LIABILITY OF DEFENDANTS TO PLAINTIFF.

By an agreement signed by plaintiff and defendants and others it was agreed that plaintiff was to be credited by M. Co. with certain salary and expenses "and said amount to be paid in cash;" and by another agreement defendants undertook and agreed that said amount should be paid by M. Co. forthwith. M. Co. refused payment to plaintiff alleging that plaintiff was indebted to it on other accounts exceeding said amount. It was held that plaintiff could recover against defendants even though had the M. Co. been sued by plaintiff it might have counterclaimed.

Camusia v. Smith & Christie, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 332.

(§ IV A—316)—PERFORMANCE—BREACH—WHO MUST PERFORM—UNFORESEEN CONTINGENCIES.

Where there is a positive contract to do a thing not in itself unlawful, the contractor must perform it or pay damages for not doing it, although through unforeseen contingencies its performance has become unexpectedly burdensome or even impossible.

Inland Investment Co. v. Campbell, 18 D.L.R. 177, 24 Man. L.R. 703, 29 W.L.R. 561, 7 W.W.R. 375, affirming on this principle, 16 D.L.R. 410.

WHO MUST PERFORM — AGREEMENT BETWEEN SHAREHOLDERS—AS TO CONTRIBUTION TO COMPANY.

Kenworthy v. Kenworthy, 6 D.L.R. 919.

PERFORMANCE—DUTY CREATED BY PARTY—NEGLECT TO PROVIDE AGAINST ACCIDENT.

Where a party by his own contract creates a duty or charge upon himself, he is bound to make it good notwithstanding any accident, by inevitable necessity, because he might have provided against it by his contract. Sunday v. Dominion Natural Gas Co., 4 D.L.R. 663, 3 O.W.N. 1575, 22 O.W.R. 743. (§ IV A—319)—NOTICE, OFFER.

There cannot be recovery for a breach of warranty in the sale of an engine, where the purchaser did not give notice of its failure to work properly in the manner required by the contract of sale, but continued to use it for nearly a year afterwards.

Robert Bell Engine Co. v. Burke, 4 D.L.R. 342, 5 S.L.R. 75, 19 W.L.R. 934, 1 W.W.R. 707.

CONDITION AS TO NOTICE.

Where it is stipulated in a contract that one of the parties may exercise certain rights by giving 2 months' notice to the other party, the admission by the latter that he has received a verbal notice is sufficient to make the notice regular.

Ménard v. Thout, 50 Que. S.C. 289.

(§ IV A—321)—RECOVERY FOR EXTRA WORK.

A contractor who built the foundation and walls for a stone building, may recover for extra work caused by the property owner enlarging the dimensions of the building from those specified in his contract. Iredale v. Drowey, 4 D.L.R. 808, 19 W.L.R. 931.

EXTRA WORK—"EFFECTIVE" CONSTRUCTION OF COFFER-DAM.

A contract for the construction of a coffer-dam providing, that "whatever type of dam is used the contractor shall assume all responsibility for the effectiveness and maintenance thereof," renders the contractor responsible for the full effectiveness of the coffer-dam, and will preclude him from claiming any additional sum for extra work or delays in sealing the dam so as to make it effective. [Art. 1690, C.C. Que., applied.]

Fraser Brace & Co. v. Can. Light & Power Co., 26 D.L.R. 655, 49 Que. S.C. 145.

EXTRA WORK—CONTRACT PRICE.

A contractor who has agreed to do any work ordered by the owner, "notwithstanding to what extent such increase or diminution of quantities may be carried during the performance of the work," cannot charge any additional price, if he has done the work without protest, and has accepted payment at the contract price without objection.

Vinet v. Canadian Light & Power Co., 42 D.L.R. 709, 54 Que. S.C. 134.

BUILDING CONTRACT—EXTRAS—CHANGES—"WRITTEN INSTRUCTIONS."

Changes by way of substitution are not necessarily extras, except in cases where the substitution is of a character which necessarily involves greater expense; the plans may form the "written instructions" required by the agreement to make such changes.

Purdy & Henderson Co. v. Parish of St. Patrick (Alta.), 37 D.L.R. 642, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 710, 12 A.L.R. 263, varying [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1416.

BUILDING—EXTRA WORK—AUTHORITY OF ARCHITECT.

An architect employed to prepare plans and supervise a building is not thereby given the power of a general agent to bind his employer beyond the limits of the contract for the work; he cannot bind him for extra work without his authorization.

Caisse v. Besette, 37 D.L.R. 167, 52 Que. S.C. 199.

CITY SEWERS—EXTRA WORK—CERTIFICATE OF ENGINEER—FINALITY—MISREPRESENTATION.

Where a contract for the construction of city sewers stipulates against any claim for extra work unless on the written order and approval by the city engineer, whose decision shall be final, the contractor will be entitled to recover for extra work if the engineer's decision was influenced by the city's Board of Control; but not on the ground of an innocent misrepresentation as to the depth of the rock to be encountered in course of the work, it being the duty of the contractor to satisfy himself thereof from the plans and specifications.

Brennan & Hollingsworth v. Hamilton, 37 D.L.R. 144, 39 O.L.R. 367.

BUILDING AGREEMENT—EXTRAS—REASONABLE ADDITIONAL EXPENSES—TRANSPORTATION—DELAYS.

Allison v. Greater Winnipeg Water District, 28 D.L.R. 784, 34 W.L.R. 494, 10 W.W.R. 573.

AGREEMENT TO SEED LAND—CLAIM FOR EXTRA WORK AUTHORIZED—PAYMENT—COUNTERCLAIM.

CLAIM FOR PAYMENT FOR WORK DONE—EXTRAS—CERTIFICATE OF ENGINEER—IMPARTIALITY.

Curley v. Village of New Toronto, 26 D.L.R. 750, affirming 8 O.W.N. 274.

RECOVERY FOR EXTRA WORK.

A claim by a contractor for extra time because of severely cold weather will not be considered in the absence of any clause in the contract making such weather condition a ground for extension, particularly where the contract does provide for extension on certain grounds and where the work contracted for was to be done in the middle of the winter the contractor would be estopped from setting up the cold weather as a ground for extension of time.

Cockshutt Plow Co. v. Alberta Bldg. Co., 3 A.L.R. 593, varying 2 A.L.R. 472.

ERECTION OF BUILDING—ACTION FOR BALANCE OF CONTRACT PRICE, EXTRAS, AND DAMAGES—COUNTERCLAIM—DISPUTED ITEMS—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE.

McLeod v. Sault Ste. Marie School Board, 8 O.W.N. 569.

EXTRAS—CHANGES IN PLANS.

Art. 1690, C.C. Que., respecting changes in the plans and specifications of construction works undertaken at a fixed price, has no application where it has been stipulated in the contract that the owner should have the right to make changes and that the contract price should be increased or diminished accordingly.

Bernier v. Dockhands of Montreal, 50 Que. S.C. 337.

EXTRA WORK—WRITTEN ORDER.

Where there is a stipulation in a contract that "no allowance shall be made for any extra or additional work, unless the same be ordered in writing by said city or architect," the acknowledgment of the architect who has ordered the additional works for which the contractor claims the cost, takes the place of the requisite writing. A letter of the architect "to have the excavation carried down and the terrace wall built on rock as required under the specifications and to proceed with the work accordingly," cannot be considered as a written order to make the excavation as additional or extra work but rather to execute the works according to the contract.

Quindan v. Montreal, 25 Que. K.B. 272.

EXTRA WORK.

A tender for work accepted by the owner, without plans or specifications other than the details in the tender, is not a contract within the provisions of art. 1690, C.C. Que., respecting claims for extra work.

Lalonde (Damien) v. Galeries Parisiennes Co. 31 Que. S.C. 134.

§ IV A—322—AGREEMENT WITH CROWN AND STUDENT FOR EDUCATION—PAYMENT OF EXPENSES GUARANTEED BY GUARDIANS — STUDENT A MINOR — BREACH—SUIT FOR DEBT.

The guarantors of a debt owing under an agreement between the Crown and a minor, are liable to the Crown for such debt on proof of same, when the minor has defaulted. (Harris v. Huntbach, 1 Burr. 373, 97 E.R. 355 referred to; Haneock v. Hodgson, 4 Bing. 269, 12 Moore 504; McIntyre v. Belcher, 14 C.B. (N.S.) 654, 8 L.T. 461, followed.)

B. EXCUSE FOR FAILURE OF PERFORMANCE.

§ IV B—325—EXCUSE FOR FAILURE OF PERFORMANCE.

A persistent failure on the part of the vendors to respond to the frequent calls of the vendee for more grain under several contracts for future delivery justifies a breaking off of the contract on the part of the vendee.

Wilks v. Matthews, 7 D.L.R. 395, 22 Que. K.B. 97.

FAILURE TO MAKE TEST.

Where a dealer in motor cars sells a car unfit for ordinary use, due in part to a defective battery resulting from the want of a proper primary charge, that is, in this instance from a failure to properly saturate the cell plates of the battery, without which a car could not be expected to work properly; it was the duty of the seller in the circumstances to have had a proper primary charge made, and in this respect there was no obligation whatever upon the buyer, who neither knew nor could be expected to know of such requirements. Where a dealer in motor cars sells a car with a stipulation to equip it with a certain kind of battery and without the buyer's knowledge substitutes a different kind of battery, such variance constitutes a breach of contract notwithstanding the seller's opinion that the substitute may be better than the stipulated appliance. [Forman & Co. v. The Ship "Liddesdale," [1900] A.C. 190, applied.]

Trethewey v. Moyes, 8 D.L.R. 280, 4 O.W.N. 445, 23 O.W.R. 563.

BREACH OF PROMISE OF MARRIAGE—EVIDENCE OF PROMISE — CORROBORATION — EVIDENCE ACT, S. 11—FINDINGS OF JURY — SANITY OF PLAINTIFF—MENTAL UNFITNESS FOR MARRIAGE—DEFENCE TO ACTION — APPEAL — OBJECTION TO CHARGE NOT MADE AT TRIAL AND NOT TAKEN IN NOTICE OF APPEAL—RULE 493 — DISCRETION OF COURT—DEFENCE NOT PASSED UPON BY JURY.

At the trial of an action for breach of promise of marriage the jury, in answer to the questions, found: (1) That the defendant promised to marry the plaintiff; (2) that he broke that promise; (3) damages, $10,000; (4) that the plaintiff was sane at the time the promise was made; (5) and at the time when it should have been fulfilled. The Trial Judge directed that judgment be entered for the plaintiff for $10,000, and the defendant appealed. Held, that, although the evidence as to the promise was contradictory, there was evidence which, if believed, warranted the finding that the promise was made, and it could not be said that the finding was one which no reasonable jury could make. (2) That there was sufficient corroboration in the testimony of the plaintiff's father and mother, as well as in the admitted acts and conduct of the defendant, to satisfy the Evidence Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 76, s. 11. The plaintiff laid the promise in August, 1915, and the breach in August, 1917. The defendant, besides denying the promise, pleaded "that the plaintiff now is and subsequent to the month of August, 1915, became mentally unfit to marry, and that such unfitness existed in the month of January, 1917, and has ever since continued." It was argued for the defendant before the Appellate Court that the jury were misdirected or not directed on the question of the alleged mental condition of the plaintiff and the issue raised as to that condition rendering her unfit to marry. This objection was not taken in the notice of appeal:—Held, per Meredith, C.J.O., that the objection was not open to the appellant (the defendant). Per Hodgins, J.A.:—The objection was open, in the discretion of the court, notwithstanding the omission to take it in the notice. Rule 493 should not be strictly enforced in a case where the objection not taken in the notice may be considered without unfairness to the opposite party. But effect could not be given to the contention that there was such a mental unfitness, not necessarily insanity, as justified the defendant in refusing to marry the plaintiff. At the trial mental unfitness was treated as equivalent to insanity; the jury were not asked to consider whether the evidence disclosed the kind of mental unfitness that was now urged as a defence; and there was, therefore, no proper foundation for a decision of the question whether mental unfitness, in the sense now urged, was a good defence. Per Ferguson, J.A.:—The Trial Judge was not asked to leave to the jury a question with regard to the contention now made, and the judge's charge was not objected to before him on the ground that he had failed to bring that contention to the attention of the jury; the contention now made was an afterthought which could not and should not be given effect to in an appellate court either as a matter of right or a matter of grace.

AGREEMENT FOR SALE—DEFAULT IN PAYMENT—ANNULMENT—FEAR OF TROUBLE—OCCUPATION—TESTIMONIAL PROOF—C.C. ARTS. 776, 1233, 1521, 1535, 2268.

A purchaser can demand a renewal of an action to nullify an agreement of sale in default of payment by alleging fear of trouble. He should either make an offer and demand security or he should abandon the property and sue to annul the agreement. When a contract is annulled in default of payment the vendor has a right to rent from the purchaser; this right is by virtue of the principle that in the case of contracts where there is rescission the parties ought to be placed in the same condition that they held before the agreement. Art. 776 C.C. in making an exception in favor of gifts of chattels accompanied by delivery, only touches the form of donations, as regards matter these gifts are subject to the ordinary rules.

Bastarache v. Bastarache, 25 Rev. Leg. 183.

REMOVAL OF BUILDINGS TO ANOTHER SITE.

McKenzie & Blundell v. Ball, 24 W.L.R. 367.

(§ IV B—330)—STRIKE.

Delay caused by a strike over which a party to a contract has no control, should not be counted in deciding what is a reasonable time for the performance of such contract.

Henry Hope & Sons v. Canada Foundry Co., 39 D.L.R. 308, 40 O.L.R. 338, affirming 12 O.A.W. 168.

EMBARGO—REASONABLE TIME.

If it is within the contemplation of the parties to a contract at the time the contract is entered into that an existing embargo of the railway company is of a temporary character and may be raised at any time, the vendor is not justified in repudiating the contract on the ground of impossibility of delivery until a reasonable time has elapsed; what is a reasonable time is a question of fact in view of the contemplated duration of the contract and circumstances of the case.

Brenner v. Consumers Metal Co., 41 D.L.R. 339, 41 O.L.R. 334.

IMPLIED CONDITION—CARGO SHIPS.

A vendor is released on the ground of impossibility of performance, if an implied condition in the contract, that freight space could be booked for certain deliveries, by general cargo ships in the ordinary course of transport, cannot be realized. If there is no such implied condition it must be proved that the goods could not be shipped from another port or on any transport vessel.

Wilcox & Frost v. Lamarre, 40 D.L.R. 653, 27 Que. K.B. 265.

PROMISE TO TRUSTEES OF CHURCH—DEATH OF PROMISOR—IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE—CONSTRUCTIVE FRAUD.

An action by the trustees of a church against the administrator of the estate of a deceased member of the congregation to enforce an agreement made between the trustees and the member, whereby she was to make a gift of $1,000 to the church as a contribution to a fund for the erection of a parsonage and lend $1,500 to the trustees to be also expended in the erection of the parsonage, was dismissed, on the ground that her death had made the performance of the agreement, having regard to its terms and conditions and the delay of the trustees in proceeding with the building, impossible of performance; and that part of the promised money which was meant to be charity and that part which was meant to be for a consideration, could not be separated. The transaction, it was considered, was not open to attack on the ground of constructive fraud. The dismissal of the action was without costs.

Reinhart v. Bargar, 43 O.L.R. 120.

BUILDING—QUALITY OF MATERIAL—DECAY—INEVITABLE ACCIDENT.

Where a contractor puts up the woodwork of a building of a different quality of timber than that set forth in the specifications, resulting in "dry rot" setting in on account of the inferiority of quality, he is liable to the owner for the costs of reconstruction of the building to render it safe, and even for replacing the wood material with that of steel; it is not a case of force majeure or inevitable accident.

Canada Spool Cotton Co. v. Peter Lyall & Sons, 35 D.L.R. 783, 51 Que. S.C. 227.

CONDITIONS—FAILURE TO PLEAD.

Where the issue is not raised on the pledging, it cannot be set up that an agreement for the supply of ties was subject to a verbal condition not to supply the whole quantity of ties in case there was not sufficient snow during the winter enabling the doing so, and that the stipulated supply was prevented by a lack of snow during a portion of the winter.

IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE—INCONSISTENCY OF CONDITIONS.

An agreement to purchase all the structural steel work needed under a municipal contract, if "consistent with the conditions" of the latter contract, is rendered impossible of performance and inoperative upon the municipality awarding such contract on condition that the steel and iron works should be purchased from another party.

Browning v. Masson, 27 D.L.R. 360, 52 Can. S.C.R. 379, reversing 24 Que. K.B. 389.

SERVICE RENDERED TO MASTER—PROMISE TO REMUNERATE AT DEATH OF MASTER—PROMISE OF MARRIAGE—BREACH—COMPENSATION—INSTRUMENT IN WRITING SIGNED BY MASTER SUBS UPON AN PROMISSORY NOTE—CERTIFICATE OF PROMISE TO PAY—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, s. 176—EVIDENCE OF PROMISE—STATUTE OF FRAUDS—UNCERTAINTY AS TO TIME OF FULFILLMENT—WILL—ACTION AGAINST EXECUTORS—CORROBORATION—EVIDENCE ACT, s. 12—RECOVERY UPON CONTRACT OR UPON QUANTUM MERUIT.

The plaintiff before the year 1901, was engaged by B., a money lender, as bookkeeper, at a salary of $10 a week. She remained in his employment down to the time of his death in November, 1915. His wife died in September, 1910. For many years, and until his death, the plaintiff was B.'s bookkeeper and secretary, made his collections, and managed nearly the whole of his business; and, besides, attended his wife as nurse during a long period, and afterwards was housekeeper and nurse to B. until two years before his death. During his wife's lifetime, B. promised to marry the plaintiff upon his wife's death and to make provision for her in his will if she would nurse his wife until her death, which the plaintiff did. He did not marry the plaintiff after his wife's death, though he renewed his promise to marry her, but he did, in June, 1910, make a will in which he gave the plaintiff the income of $10,000, referring to her as his "bookkeeper and faithful nurse." This bequest B., early in 1913, purported to cancel. In March, 1913, after B. had refused to marry the plaintiff and was contemplating marriage with another person, he promised to give the plaintiff $10,000 in lieu of the provision made for her in the will, and he then signed a document worded thus: "This is to certify that I have this day given to the plaintiff "a promise of $10,000 . . . at my death." He was then 80 years of age. In July, 1913, he signed another document as follows: "To whom it may concern. You will please pay to the bearer any money due to her as such collection is authorized by me." He made a new will in June, 1915, in which he gave the plaintiff $3 a week. This will was cancelled in August, 1915, and a new will made, in which no bequest was made to the plaintiff. The last will signed by B. was dated September 15, 1915—2 months before his death. In it he gave to the plaintiff "who was for many years my private secretary and bookkeeper for her long and faithful service in my behalf the sum of $10,000 . . . the same to be accepted by her in full satisfaction of any claims that she may have against my estate." This was signed by B., but was not properly attested; and the will of August, 1915, was admitted to probate. The plaintiff sued the executors upon the promise made in 1913, alleging it to be a promissory note for $10,000.—Held, that the document was not a promissory note; Bills of Exchange Act, s. 176. [Dasylyva v. Dufour, 16 L.C.R. 294, referred to.] The document, however, was evidence of a promise by B. to pay the plaintiff $10,000 at his death, not only as compensation for her services, which had not, upon the evidence, been adequately remunerated, but also as compensation for the breach of his promise to marry her, that is, the promise made after his wife's death. The agreement was not within s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds: Agreements consisting of mutual promises to marry do not require written evidence under the statute; and the contract was not to be regarded as one not to be performed within a year; Where there is no mention of time, and the time is uncertain, the agreement is not within the statute. [Hanau v. Ehrlich, [1912] A.C. 39, followed.] There was ample corroboration to satisfy s. 12 of the Evidence Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 76. The plaintiff was entitled to recover either upon B.'s contract to pay her $10,000 or upon a quantum meruit—in the circumstances of the case, $10,000 should be fixed as a reasonable allowance.

LOAN—PENAL CLAUSE—FORCE MAJEURE.

A clause, in a loan agreement, stipulating that the principal and interest should be payable at the residence of the lender, should be understood to be the residence of the lender at the time of the contract, and not that which the creditor has at the time of the payment. 2. When the creditor transfers his debt, the place of payment is the domicile of the new creditor, if the position of the debtor is not thereby rendered more onerous. 3. If the debt is transferred to different people, the debtor is not bound to pay at the place agreed upon, even if he has consented to the transfers, because in that case the position of the debtor has become more onerous, and, in such case, the debt becomes payable at the domicile of the debtors. 4. In a case where interest is to be demanded at the domicile of the debtor, the creditor must go there to make his demand for payment, otherwise the debtor is not at fault, and the creditor cannot claim the penalty attaching to his default in payment. So a loan agreement which stipulates that, upon default by the borrower to pay the interest due, the principal shall become due without demand at law, or formal demand or other method, does not dispense with the creditor making his demand for payment of interest, at the place where he ought to make the payment; if he has not done so, the penalty clause cannot be enforced. 5. One who, on account of force majeure, does not fulfil an obligation to which a penalty clause is attached, is thereby freed from the penalty. 6. It is force majeure when a debtor allows to run by the delay, for paying a debt without doing so, because, found wounded and senseless near his residence, he remained for a week in entire unconsciousness and inertness, having lost his speech and memory of passing events.

Trester v. Desève, 27 Que. K.B. 237.

HEATING SYSTEM — WARRANTY — IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE.

Though it may not be possible to lay down a rule as to the length of pipes necessary to produce 70 degrees of heat in a dwelling house seeing that it is a question of fact depending on the circumstances as well as the number and the size of the openings, the situation of the building itself and the arrangement of the rooms, nevertheless, he who undertakes to place a heating apparatus capable of developing 70 degrees of heat in a house that he is well acquainted with or that he has himself examined, cannot relieve himself from liability by pleading that it was impossible to do more than to place in the premises a heating apparatus able in the ordinary conditions to furnish the degree of heat agreed upon.

Roy v. Barbeau, 47 Que. S.C. 395.

(§ IV B—331)—EARLY FROST.

A consignee is justified in refusing to accept a consignment of figs, which, through the negligence of the carrier, were frozen in transit.

Albo v. G.N.R. Co., 2 D.L.R. 290, 17 B.C.R. 226, 20 W.L.R. 844, 1 W.W.R. 1165.

(§ IV B—333) — IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE — MACHINERY FOR MAKING SHELLS—FIXTURES.

Kokomo Investment Co. v. Dominion Harvesting Co. (Alta.), 43 D.L.R. 198, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 366, 14 A.L.R. 27.

TRAVELING SALESMAN — COMMISSION BUSINESS—AGREEMENT FOR ADVANCES—BUSINESS DEPRESSION — IMPOSSIBILITY OF GETTING GOODS FROM EUROPE—CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT.

Business depression and the impossibility of procuring goods from Europe on account of the war is sufficient to justify an employer cancelling an agreement, with a traveling salesman, selling high-class specialties (luxuries) on a commission basis. Such salesman has no claim for damages, based on an agreement to advance monthly a certain sum to be charged against commissions.

Greenberg v. The Gresca Co., 46 D.L.R. 231, 55 Que. S.C. 263.

FORCE MAJEURE—STATE OF WAR.

War, and the disturbances which it causes in commerce, industry and transportation do not constitute a fortuitous event or irresistible force which the debtor can invoke to escape from obligations which he has contracted during the existence of such economic conditions.

Duchaine v. La Compagnie Marier et Trudel, 53 Que. S.C. 302.

FORCE MAJEURE—FLOODS.

An architect, who has hired his services at a time when the owner did not yet know the delay he was to grant for the completion of the works, cannot reasonably argue that the delay subsequently fixed is the delay which the architect and owner had in mind at the time of the agreement between them; he cannot either conclude that such delays stipulated solely for the benefit of the owner are the delays normally required for the execution of the works. No additional fee is due the architect, whatever may be the delay incurred by the contractor, if such a delay is caused by a fortuitous event, or superior force, or by a fact independent of the owner's or architect's will; the architect may only, in such a case, ask the cancellation of his contract and the value of his services to date; he cannot either ask an additional fee owing only to ordinary delays which happen in most contracts, but only in the case of delays resulting from gross neglect, and provided he himself takes against the contractor all the recourses mentioned in the contract and also that he protests the owner. River floods in the fall or spring are not, properly speaking, fortuitous events; but their intensity may sometimes cause them to be considered as such, and excuse a contractor's delays.

Surveyor v. Town of GrandMere, 53 Que. S.C. 357.

(§ IV B—335)—NONPERFORMANCE — PREVENTION BY OTHER PARTY.

A penal clause in a contract to erect a building, that the contractor will pay a fixed sum for every day of delay beyond a date fixed for the completion of the work, as liquidated damages, apart from any loss or damages that the owner may sustain, cannot be enforced in the case of delay caused by the doing of work to the building under a distinct subsequent contract between the owner and the contractor.

Papineau v. Guertin, 15 D.L.R. 513, 22

Que. K.B. 529, affirming Papineau v. Guertin, 40 Que. S.C. 97.

PREVENTION OR HINDRANCE BY OTHER PARTY.

Where a term of a contract is that it shall be completed by the plaintiff by a certain time and the defendant by his own act makes it impossible for the plaintiff to complete within the specified time, the contract is impliedly varied and the time for completion is extended for a reasonable time. Under a contract by the plaintiffs to cut permits ties, the defendant furnishing the permits for cutting such ties, the plaintiffs are not bound to select the timber limits, and are entitled to damages for being prevented from carrying out their contract by reason of the permits not being provided.

Kelly v. Nepeigon Construction Co., 8 D. L.R. 116, 4 O.W.N. 279, 23 O.W.R. 298.

OPTION AGREEMENT — BREACH — NOTICE — ACTION FOR DAMAGES — TIME LIMIT — TENDER OF PURCHASE MONEY.

Where there has been a breach of an option agreement to purchase land, the holder of the option may, upon receiving notice of the breach, bring an action for damages, although the time limit named in the option has not expired. It is not necessary for him to tender the purchase money required under the option to be paid within the time limit, before bringing the action.

Stover v. Gold, 48 D.L.R. 620, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 503, reversing the judgment of Stuart, J.

PART PERFORMANCE — OUSTED BY EMPLOYER — PAYMENT CONDITIONED ON COMPLETION.

A provision in a contract for work and labour that no formal payment will be made on account of the work until completion and acceptance thereof becomes operative if the contractor is wrongfully ousted by the other party from the work before its completion. [See also Leake on Contracts, 6th ed., 507; and compare Dodd v. Churton, [1897] 1 Q.B. 562.]

HINDRANCE BY OTHER PARTY — ORDERS FOR FURTHER QUANTITIES.

It is no defence that a party was unable to complete a contract for the supply of ties by reason of having been required by the other party to the contract to proceed with the manufacture of lumber, not provided for by the agreement, where the contract provided for the delivery, in addition to the stipulated quantity of lumber, any such further quantity as may be ordered.

PERFORMANCE — EXCUSE FOR FAILURE — PREVENTION OR HINDRANCE BY OTHER PARTY.

The prima facie liability of a builder, for failure to complete the construction of a building for the owner until some months after the time stipulated, resulting in damages to the owner, is subject to abatement if it be shown that part of the delay was due to the default of the owner himself. Alberta Engineering Co. v. Blow, 17 D. L.R. 497, 28 W.L.R. 391.

There can be no recovery on a contract express, for a definite sum and for definite work, where the contract is not performed by reason of the plaintiff's own default.

Hyland v. Harrison, 49 N.S.R. 75.

HIRING OF WORK — PAVING OF STREETS — DEPOSIT — RESTITUTION — COMPENSATION — C.C. ARTS. 1013, 1188, 1190.

A principal contractor for the paving of streets who has received from his subcontractor a deposit repayable when the paving is finished cannot retain this deposit under the pretext that the work is not yet completed on two streets; when the work upon these two streets has been suspended by order of the town and the principal contractor has himself sued the latter for damages on this account. Even if it is stipulated in the subcontract that the work will not be finally accepted until two years after its completion and reception, the principal contractor cannot retain this deposit where the subcontractor has undertaken the obligation to maintain the pavements in good condition, and where the principal contractor has kept back 10 per cent of the contract price to guarantee the execution of this. The obligation to carry out the work and that of maintaining in good repair being different and distinct. No compensation arises in the case of a debt contested and sued for, nor in that of restitution of a deposit which is considered as a sacred obligation.

Palermo v. Gagnon & Massicotte, 55 Que. S.C. 159.

BUILDING CONTRACT — HINDRANCE — VIS MAJOR.

A building contractor who agrees to protect, by canvas or otherwise, a building of which he has undertaken to repair or raise the roof, is responsible for all damages resulting from insufficient protection and he cannot be permitted to invoke, as vis major, the inclemency of the season, however extraordinary it may have been. There can be no application of a penal clause when the debtor has been prevented, by the act of the creditor, from executing his obligation.

Boivin v. Paquet, 25 Que. K.B. 69.

C. INCOMPLETE PERFORMANCE; SUFFICIENCY OF PERFORMANCE.

Sufficiency of performance, under building contract, see Mechanics' Liens, VIII—66; Under towage agreement, see Towage, I—5.

Substantial performance, see Mechanics' Liens, II—5.

(§ IV C-340) — SUBSTANTIAL PERFORMANCE — BUILDING CONTRACT — DEFECTS.

Substantial performance of a building contract entitles the builder to recover the contract price subject to deduction for so much as ought to be allowed for defects.

BUILDING CONTRACT—CONDITION OF FLOORS — FROST.

A contract for the supplying of a special material for the hardening of concrete floors provided as follows: "We (the defendant) will ask you to pay us at thirty days from date of shipment, 25 per cent of the amount of the bill. The balance we will allow to stand for six months without interest, at the end of which time you are to be the judge as to whether the floors are perfectly satisfactory to you. Then, if satisfactory, we will expect settlement of the balance. If not, we will undertake to make them satisfactory, failing which we will refund you the 25 per cent which you have paid us." The plaintiffs paid the 25 per cent, but the floors proved unsatisfactory to them and the defendant did not make them satisfactory. The plaintiffs sued to recover the sum paid by them and for damages for breach of contract. It was held that the condition of the floors was due to frost, and that, as the plaintiffs had failed in their duty to keep the building sufficiently warm, the action should be dismissed. On appeal, held that the evidence did not show that the condition of the floors was due to lack of heating and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the $614 paid by them. Cameron, J.A., was of the opinion that the plaintiffs were also entitled to damages for injury to their printing machinery because of dust on the floors and for the cost of painting the floors.

PURCHASE OF MEASURED ELECTRICAL CURRENT—UNMEASURED CURRENT OFFERED — PURCHASE OF MEASURED CURRENT ELSEWHERE — RIGHT TO RECOVER EXCESS IN PRICE.

One who has contracted to purchase measured electrical current is not obliged to take unmeasured current, and incur the danger of a controversy, but is entitled to obtain the measured current elsewhere at the best price procurable, and charge the defaulting party with the excess in price.

Yukon Gold Co. v. Canadian Klondyke Power Co., 47 D.L.R. 146, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 814.

SUFFICIENCY OF PERFORMANCE — CONTRACT TO FURNISH ELECTRIC MOTOR.

A contract to install a silently running electric motor having carbon brushes is not satisfied with a motor of a type without such brushes, and which would not run as silently as a motor of the character described in the contract.

Stevens v. Pryce-Jones, 13 D.L.R. 746, 25 W.L.R. 172.

BUILDING CONTRACT — SUBSIDENCE OF WALLS DURING PROGRESS OF WORK — FAULT OF CONTRACTORS — REFUSAL TO REPAIR — TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT — JUSTIFICATION — CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT — MODIFICATION OF SPECIFICATIONS — NEGLIGENCE OR LACK OF JUDGMENT OF ARCHITECTS — BURDEN OF PROOF — REFUSAL OF PROGRESS CERTIFICATE — COUNTERCLAIM — EXPENSE INCURRED IN COMPLETING BUILDING — INJURY TO NEIGHBOURING BUILDING — MEASURE OF DAMAGES — OFFER TO RESTORE — ESTOPPEL — DELAY IN COMPLETION — LOSS OF PROFITS — LIQUIDATED DAMAGES — EXTENSION OF TIME — EXTRAS — DAMAGES FOR NON-COMPLETION WITHIN TIME SPECIFIED BY CONTRACT.

The judgment of Mathers, C.J.K.B., 16 W.L.R. 627, was affirmed by the Court of Appeal as regards the dismissal of the plaintiffs' claim, and varied in respect of the recovery by the defendants upon their counterclaim, by the disallowance of the sum awarded as liquidated damages and in other respects.

WORK AND LABOUR — TRIMMING LAND — FAILURE TO PERFORM CONTRACT — PART PERFORMANCE — QUANTUM MERUIT — COUNTERCLAIM.

In his statement of claim the plaintiff alleged a contract by which he undertook to cut the poplars and grub the willows on 34 acres of land of the defendant and that he had done the work; and he claimed the stipulated remuneration. The defendant admitted the contract, but alleged that the plaintiff had not performed it, inasmuch as he had never grubbed the willows. At the trial, the plaintiff swore that his agreement was to cut the brush, both poplar and willow, but not to grub the willows. The defendant swore that the contract was as alleged in the statement of claim, and in this he was corroborated.—Held, that the evidence, that the contract was that sworn to by the defendant; and, as the plaintiff did not grub the willows, he had not performed his part of the agreement, and was not entitled to recover anything thereunder.—Held, however, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover quantum meruit for the work he had done, of which the defendant had the benefit, and of which the fair value was $100. The defendant counterclaimed for several sums, all of which were disallowed except one of $53; deducting this from the $100, the balance in the plaintiff's favour was $47, for which judgment was entered with costs on the small debt scale.

Fuerster v. Aebig, 27 W.L.R. 18.

TRANSFER OF MINING RIGHTS — SUFFICIENCY OF PERFORMANCE — TITLE.

The assignor of mining rights, who convenants to deposit with a third party within a stipulated time, the evidence of title to the rights assigned under a penalty of $75,000, acquits himself of his obligation by depositing documents which substantially prove the title though they lack certain formalities such as the consent, required by law of the minister or an authorized official to the transfer made by the original locators, and the failure of the latter's attorney, who signed the transfers for them, to file his power of attorney.

Marshall v. Leekie, 22 Que. K.B. 364, affirming 41 Que. S.C. 206.

§ 14 IV C—345)—RIGHT OF RECOVERY ON PART PERFORMANCE.

In an action for an overdue instalment of the purchase money under an agreement for the sale of land, the defendant cannot set up as a defence that he paid the instalment by virtue of a new contract with the plaintiffs for the sale to them of an interest in other land at a price equivalent to the amount of the new instalment due; where the evidence shewed that the new contract was only in the nature of a security and was upon a condition which was not performed and there was a total failure of consideration for it.

PART PERFORMANCE — OUSTER — QUANTUM MERUIT.

Where a contract for railway grading empowered the employing party, if in the opinion of a certain specified person there was not sufficient force at work to complete the grading within the time called for by the contract, to put on an additional force to be charged to the contractor or to take over the work by giving direction of such intention, and the employing party after notifying the contractor that an additional force would be put on without notice that the work was to be taken over, not only put an additional force but also took charge of the work and of the contractor's workmen, it amounts to an ouster of the contractor from the work and he is entitled to recover on a quantum meruit for the work performed by him with damages, if any, sustained by reason of not being permitted to complete the same.

INCOMPLETE PERFORMANCE — QUANTUM MERUIT.

The mere fact of a building contractor abandoning his contract does not preclude him from recovering on a quantum meruit for the work already done if there is evidence of a fresh contract to pay for same, and such fresh contract may arise from a notice by the property owner to the contractor that he will engage other tradesmen to complete the work and charge the cost to the contractor's account. [Sumpter v. Hedges, [1898] 1 Q.B. 673, followed.] Elford v. Thompson, 1 D.L.R. 1, 5 S.L.R. 96, 19 W.L.R. 809, 1 W.W.R. 409.

RIGHT OF RECOVERY ON PART PERFORMANCE.

In an action by way of quantum meruit for the partial performance of a contract to do certain work on the defendant's premises, where it appears that the plaintiff contracted to do the work for a specific sum to be paid on completion of the whole, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover anything until the whole work is completed, unless it is shewn that the performance of his contract was presented by the default of the defendant. [See Appleby v. Myers, L.R. 2 C.P. 651, and King v. Low, 3 O.L.R. 234.]

PART PERFORMANCE — ENTIRE CONTRACT — RECOVERY.

In the absence of acts amounting to acquiescence or acceptance, a contractor cannot recover on a contract to be executed in a specified manner and not to be paid for until completion, if the work as done is different from that stipulated in the contract. [Sumpter v. Hedges [1898] 1 Q.B. 673, referred to. See also Elford v. Thompson, 1 D.L.R. 1.]

Harris v. Westholme, 12 D.L.R. 640, 3 W.W.R. 783.

RIGHT OF RECOVERY ON PART PERFORMANCE — SUBSTANTIAL COMPLIANCE.

The liability of a builder, for failure in certain respects to complete the construction of a building for the owner pursuant to agreement, is properly met by a fair allowance for the expenditures made and to be made by the owner, in remedying the defects, it appearing that there was a substantial compliance resulting in a practically first class job by the builder.

Alberta Engineering Co. v. Blow, 17 D.L.R. 497, 28 W.L.R. 391.

WORK AND LABOUR — PART PERFORMANCE

—PREMATURE ACTION—REMEDYING DEFECTS IN WORK.

Where a contract for work and labour provides that after giving notice to the contractor to remedy any defective work, the owner may, on his default, have the defective work remedied and the cost charged to the contractor, the latter cannot sue on the original contract for lack of its completion, nor can he sue in the alternative, on the owner's election to have the contract finished by another, until the cost of remedying the defective work can be ascertained.

BUILDING CONTRACT — WORK IMPROPER — INTERVENTION OF INSPECTOR — SUBSTITUTED WORK.

MAINTENANCE OF MOTHER — PART PERFORMANCE — STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Maintenance of his mother by an illegitimate son, presumably under an oral agreement, by which she promised to devise and bequeath to him her whole estate, in return for such maintenance, is not such an act of part performance of the agreement as to take the case out of the Statute of Frauds, as it might be referable to the relationship between them. The son is, however, entitled to remuneration for the maintenance.

PART PERFORMANCE — DISCHARGE OF "AGREEMENT" — LAWS DECLARATORY ACT.

Section 2 (33) of the Laws Declaratory Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 133, which provides that part performance of an obligation extinguishes the obligation "when expressly accepted by the creditor in satisfaction or tendered in pursuance of an agreement for that purpose," does not change the law that a promise, not under seal, requires a consideration to support it, and the word "agreement" therein means a binding agreement. It seems, moreover, that in the case of a debt the part performance referred to is something other than the payment of money.

Bell v. Quagliotti, 25 B.C.R. 466, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 915.

ARCHITECT — WORK AND SERVICES IN ERECTION OF BUILDING — CONTRACT — REMUNERATION — WORK TAKEN OUT OF ARCHITECT'S HANDS DURING PROGRESS OF WORK — RECOVERY ON QUANTUM MERUIT BASIS — NEGLIGENCE AND INCOMPETENCE — COUNTERCLAIM — DISMISSAL — MONEY PAID INTO COURT — R. 316 — PAYMENT OUT ON ACCOUNT OF AMOUNT OF JUDGMENT.

Gouinlock v. Maclean, 14 O.W.N. 142. [Varied in 15 O.W.N. 70.]

RECOVERY OF WAGES — COMPLETION OF TERM.

Where a farm labourer has hired for the season at a certain sum per month, but the wages are not to be paid until the end of the season, the contract is an entire one, and the employee is bound to complete the term before he can recover any wages. (Crab v. James, 4 Tett. L.R. 174, followed; Moussah v. Tome, 6 W.L.R. 117, distinguished.)

La Plante v. Kinnon, 21 D.L.R. 293, 8 S.W.R. 25, 8 W.W.R. 332, 30 W.L.R. 949.

Ponberthy v. Corner, 15 O.W.N. 383.

RIGHT TO RECOVER ON PART PERFORMANCE. — McKinnell v. Rembrandt School District Trustees, 25 W.L.R. 372.

WORK AND LABOUR — WORK NOT COMPLETED ACCORDING TO CONTRACT — ACCEPTANCE — WAIVER — COSTS — DEDUCTION OF SUM FOR WORK NOT COMPLETED.

Keith v. Brown, 15 O.W.N. 255.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO THRESH WHOLE CROP — RIGHT OF PAYMENT FOR PART THRESHED.

The fact that defendant threshers broke their contract in not threshing the whole of plaintiff's crop as agreed held not to deprive them of their right to be paid for what they threshed, no stipulation having been made that they were not to be paid until all the threshing was done.

Hill v. Howie, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 392.

RECOVERY FOR PART PERFORMANCE.

A building contractor cannot claim the price agreed upon until he has completely executed his contract. The court cannot condemn the owner to pay him the price of part of the work done, and of that which remains to be done or repaired, in case the contractor should finish it in a satisfactory manner within a certain delay without even reserving to the owner the right to do it himself at the expense of the contractor.

Painchaud v. Trahan, 26 Que. K.B. 188.

The contractor for construction work has no right of action against the owner so long as he has not entirely finished his contract in conformity with the conditions agreed upon. This is especially the case when the cost of the work remaining to be done exceeds the sum claimed.

Bertrand v. Pèpin, 51 Que. S.C. 496.

SUBSTANTIAL PERFORMANCE — QUANTUM MERUIT.

Where an entire contract for work and labour has not been substantially performed or where the contractor, although the contract has been substantially carried out, refuses to complete it, he is not entitled to recover quantum meruit. (Dakin & Co. v. Lee (1915), 84 L.J.K.B. 2031; Hollingsworth v. Lacharite, 19 Man. L.R. 379; Adams v. McGreevy, 17 Man. L.R. 115, distinguished.)

Yakowehnk v. Crawford (Man.), [1917] 3 W.W.R. 479.

(§ IV C-347) — ARCHITECT'S DEDUCTION.

A provision in a building contract from an architect's certificate as to the completion of the work, that if the work is incomplete but may be readily completed by the contractors, to state in what particulars, being for the benefit of the contractor, so that he may then complete the work if in his power, does not call for the architect to set out, in his certificate, the particulars of the deduction made if the incomplete part of the work cannot then be readily finished and the certificate is a final one directing the deduction of the value thereof in pursuance of an alternative power reserved to the architect to deduct such value, together with a fixed percentage thereof, if the work cannot readily be completed for reasons beyond the contractor's control.

(§ IV C-350) — SUBLETTLING OF EXPORT LIQUOR WAREHOUSE — CONDITIONS — PERMIT TO CARRY ON BUSINESS — PERMISSION OF LICENSE COMMISSIONERS — PERMISSION NOT OBTAINED — FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

Finkelman v. Lyons Wine & Spirit Co., 48 D.L.R. 716.

SALE OF SECOND-HAND TRUCKS — TO BE "PROPERLY OVERHAULED" — MISREPRESENTATION — PERFORMANCE — ONUS OF PROOF — LIABILITY.

On the sale of two 3½ ton second-hand Sheffield motor trucks the vendor agreed to "properly overhaul trucks and turn them out in A1 shape mechanically." The purchasers knew that they were getting old trucks that had been discarded by a mercantile company, and there was no misrepresentation or fraud. Held, that the contract was not to turn them out as good as new, but in first-class shape mechanically for second-hand trucks, and to succeed in a counterclaim for breach of the contract it must be shown that the overhauling given them by the plaintiffs was not such as to put them in first-class condition mechanically for second-hand trucks, it was not sufficient to show that they did not run satisfactorily. The onus of proving that the supplying of other engines in the trucks, and of goods and services charged for, was in the endeavour to implement their contract to "properly overhaul the trucks and put them in A1 shape mechanically," was on the defendant, and there was no evidence to establish this contention.

"SATISFACTORY COMPLETION" — SUBSTANTIAL PERFORMANCE.

The substantial performance of work under a contract is a "satisfactory completion" thereof, though minor details have not been supplied, and the contractor is entitled to the contract price less the cost of supplying the minor omissions.

Canadian Western Foundry & Supply Co. v. Hoover, 37 D.L.R. 285, 13 A.L.R. 347, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 594.

ALTERNATIVE METHODS OF PERFORMING WORK.

A stipulation in a building contract, that the footings should be sunk to hard bearings, and in case where sloping rock beds are encountered the same must be levelled, affords an alternative method of performing the contract, which may be done by levelling where rock is struck, to answer the purpose of footings.

RESTORATION OF BUILDING — SERVICES OF ARCHITECT — REMUNERATION — EVIDENCE.

Meredith v. MacFarlane, 9 O.W.N. 160.

CONDITIONS — INDEMNITY.

A stipulation to pay "as soon as the contract which we have for the property shall be in good and proper shape," contains on the part of the debtor, not a conditional obligation, but an obligation with a term. In the case of conditional obligations the condition is presumed to have been performed when the debtor, who is bound under the condition, has prevented its performance.

Serré v. Bourgon, 50 Que. S.C. 187.

COMPLETION OF BUILDING — SUFFICIENCY.

A contractor whose duty it is to place the brick on woodwork constructed by another, cannot justify the poor execution of his work by pleading that the woodwork was badly done. It is the duty of the contractor in such case to serve a protest on the owner and refuse to carry out his contract unless the owner assumes the risk of it.

Chevalier v. Tompkins, 48 Que. S.C. 53.

BUILDING CONTRACT — INSUFFICIENT PERFORMANCE.

When a contractor sues for the balance of the price of the work done by him, it is presumed that they are entirely completed according to the contract. If they have been improperly done, he is responsible for damages to the proprietor without any other putting in default.

Gagnon v. Maheux, 24 Que. K.B. 129.

(§ IV C-351) — EDUCATIONAL COURSE — NONPERFORMANCE BY DEFENDANT — PLAINTIFF READY AND WILLING — ACTION TO ENFORCE.

A party to a contract cannot by his own act or default defeat the obligations which he has undertaken to fulfil. [Sailing Ship "Blairmore" Co. v. Macredie, [1898] A.C. 592, applied.]

Alexander Hamilton Institute v. McNally, 49 D.L.R. 696.

SUFFICIENCY OF TENDER OR OFFER TO PERFORM.

A tender on the part of the vendors during the lifetime of a contract for future delivery of grain by sending a number of cars loaded for the purpose of fulfilling the contracts or some one of them, but subsequently diverting such shipments to some other destination at the request of the vendee, is not a pro tanto fulfilment of the contract, in the absence of a showing that the parties intended to treat the tender of these cars as such part fulfilment.

Alberta Elevator v. Vancouver Co., 7 D.L.R. 392, 2 W.W.R. 526.

DELIVERY BY INSTALMENTS — ORDER OR REQUEST.

A written contract should receive that construction which its language will admit and which will best effectuate the intention of the parties, to be collected from the whole of the agreement, and greater regard should be had to the clear intent of the parties than to any particular words which they have used in the expression of that intent. The court held that, under a contract for "1,560 bags H. Queen $2.45—delivery as required—30 bags week to be taken out by Nov. 1st," neither party was entitled to make or have delivery otherwise than in weekly instalments, not exceeding 30 bags a week, that the time fixed for delivery and request for delivery were of the essence of the contract, that on the lapse of time fixed for each delivery there was a mutual termination of rights in reference to that delivery. The plaintiff was not entitled to ask for or receive delivery in any other manner. [Doner v. Western Canada Flour Mills Co., 41 D.L.R. 476, followed.]

DELIVERY BY INSTALMENTS — TIME — ESSENCE OF.

In a contract for the sale of flour for 1,000 bags of one kind of flour and 1,000 bags of another kind to be "Delivered as required up to Nov. 1, 35 bags week" the court held that this must be read to mean that the flour was to be delivered as required, in instalments of about 35 bags per week, and that it was incumbent upon the purchaser to specify his requirements and accept delivery in instalments of about 35 bags a week, that if he failed to prove such specifications and requests, time and manner being of the essence of the contract, he was not entitled to ask or demand delivery at any other time or in any other manner. [Doner v. Western Canada Flour Mills Co., 41 D.L.R. 476, 41 O.L.R. 503, followed.]

FAILURE TO MEET PAYMENTS WHEN DUE — SET-OFF — DELIVERY BY INSTALMENTS — REMEDIES OF PARTIES.

The contract being for different quantities, at different prices, of three different kinds of flour, there must be an order or request from the buyers for what they required, before the obligation to ship arose. The contract, being for delivery by instalments and for payment for each instalment separately, is to be treated as a separate contract for each instalment; the purchasers are entitled to damages for nondelivery of an instalment for which an order had been duly given, but are not entitled to call for delivery, in a subsequent month, of any instalment in respect of which no order to ship was given in due time.

Doner v. Western Canada Flour Mills Co., 41 D.L.R. 476, 41 O.L.R. 503, reversing 12 O.W.N. 301.

(§ IV C-355)—WAIVER OF OBJECTIONS—MISTAKE IN CONSTRUCTION OF FOUNDATIONS—DUTY AS TO LAYING OUT GROUND—AUTHORITY OF CLERK OF WORKS — POWERS OF ARCHITECT.

WORK ON SHIP — LIGHTING APPARATUS — ACCEPTANCE AND RETENTION.

Where a contract for the installing of a lighting apparatus in a vessel has been performed, and the work has been accepted and a promissory note given for the contract price, the defendant in an action for the contract price cannot, certainly where he retains the apparatus, set up defective installation or that the work was not performed according to contract. The plaintiff's right in the res is not affected by a judicial sale of the vessel subsequent to his seizure.

Electric Repair & Contracting Co. v. S.S. "Prefontaine", 16 Can. Ex. 328.

(§ IV C-356)—ACCEPTANCE OF BUILDING.

The mere taking possession of a building agreed to be built is not, of itself, acceptance of the work. Where a contract is to erect a building to certain specifications for a lump sum, the price is not recoverable until the building is completed in accordance with the specifications, unless the owner has accepted the work with a knowledge of the defects or variations, or has done something from which a new contract to pay for the work done can be inferred. [Broley v. Mills, 1 S.L.R. 20, followed; Elford v. Thompson, 1 D.L.R. 1, specially referred to.]

CONSTRUCTION OF WORKS — DEFECTS — SEVERAL CONTRACTORS.

A person who accepts a delegation of payment for certain construction work, which he declares in the same document to have been done to his entire satisfaction, cannot afterwards refuse to pay by pleading compensation for defects in the work and the poor quality of the materials furnished, his acceptance of the delegation being equivalent to a promise to pay and to a complete abandonment of every recourse by reason of these works. In the construction of a building when the work is given out by contract and executed by several contractors separately it can also be accepted separately and each contractor is liable only for his own work.

Lalonde v. Austria-Hungarian Sick Benefit Society, 47 Que. S.C. 364.

(§ IV C-357) — BUILDING CONTRACT — DEFECTS — WAIVER.

The failure of a contractor to join the ends of some of the reinforcing rods in a cement structure as required by contract, will be deemed waived by the owner's failure to require it to be done when the omission occurred, of which he was then aware, as the defect was one that could not be afterwards rectified.

Rice v. Sackett, 12 D.L.R. 506, 4 O.W.N. 1576, 24 O.W.R. 882.

BUILDING ENCRoACHING ON OTHER PROPERTY — WAIVER OF DEFECT.

Where the building contractor, by his own mistake, encroached upon adjoining property with the building, an agreement between the contractor and the owner of the building that the former would procure and furnish to the owner a title to the strip of land encroached upon will, if carried out, operate as a waiver of an objection on that score.

DELAY IN PERFORMANCE — ERROR — WAIVER.

A contractor is not responsible for the delay in the completion of a work occasioned by the joint error of the parties, particularly where such delay is condoned by their subsequent conduct.

Fraser Brace & Co. v. Can. Light & Power Co., 28 D.L.R. 655, 49 Que. S.C. 145.

ACCEPTANCE OF WORK — OCCUPATION — RIGHT TO PAYMENT.

A contractor for the construction of a house has no right of action for the balance of the price of sale or to demand the execution of the contract by the owner, if the payment was to be made by a mortgage upon the lot built upon unless he has executed the work in a manner sufficiently complete, regular and honest. The habitation by the owner and his lessees of a house built by a contractor is not an acceptance of the latter's work, if such occupation was brought about by force of circumstances to avoid greater damages to the contractor, the owner and his lessees having no other lodgings which they could occupy.

Lalonde v. Fickles, 47 Que. S.C. 257.

POSSESSION OF BUILDING AFTER EXAMINATION — WAIVER OF DEFECTS.

When an owner constructs for his lessee a warehouse according to certain plans and specifications, the latter, after having examined the building, takes possession and sublets it without protest, cannot complain that the work was not done in conformity with the conditions agreed upon and claim to be authorized to do the work on default of the owner.

Manson v. Bertrand, 47 Que. S.C. 270.

D. CONDITION: CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE.

See Mechanics' Liens, VI—45
Can. Dig.—38.

(§ IV D-360)—CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE.

Where a builder's contract calls for payment as the work progresses, the owner of the building is not entitled to retain in his hand a large amount of the contract price on the ground that the work has not been properly done, when it is established that the work of a value of $8,000 is all finished saving a few trifling imperfections (e.g., $15.40), and in such case the owner will be condemned to pay the balance of the contract price less the value of such imperfections. A builder or contractor who agrees to build according to plans and specifications for a fixed price cannot recover for alterations and extras unless such alterations and extras and the price to be paid therefor are stipulated in writing, and parol evidence of such additional contract alleged to have been made verbally is inadmissible.

Dulac v. Lauzon, 8 D.L.R. 400.

BUILDING CONTRACT—TIME FOR FINAL PAYMENT—STATED TIME AFTER COMPLETION — NECESSITY OF PROCURING ARCHITECT'S FINAL CERTIFICATE.

A stipulation in a building contract to the effect that final payment should be made within twenty days after the substantial completion of the structure, does not mean twenty days after the architect's final certificate was given, and an action begun three days after the giving of such certificate was not premature, where the building was substantially completed more than twenty days before. Where a building contract provided that if the contractor did not give satisfactory proof that there were no liens against the building, final payment should be made two days after the expiration of the time within which liens might be filed, it is no defence to an action by the contractor for the balance of the contract price due him brought after the expiration of the time within which liens might be filed, that he did not give satisfactory evidence that no liens existed other than of his own or liens of which he held discharges.

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS—STIPULATION TO REFER DIFFERENCES TO ENGINEER—DISQUALIFICATION.

Where an engineer is appointed by the contract to be the arbitrator or referee between the partners on questions as to the execution of the work, he must retain a neutral position between the parties, and if he places himself in such a position that his independence is destroyed and he is no longer a free agent, the stipulations so to refer and for his certificate as a referee become inoperative.

BUILDING CONTRACT — CHANGE IN SPECIFICATIONS — BUILDING OF DIFFERENT CHARACTER — QUANTUM MERUIT.

Where a clause in the specifications in a building contract permits the proprietor to modify in detail the plans and specifications, the contractor is not bound to accept changes which would make the building one of a different character, as by the substitution of plans for a one-storey building where a three-storey building was the subject of the contract and the first storey was completely changed; and if the builder, without protest, proceeds under the new plans and the proprietor accepts his work, the builder is not restricted to a pro rata share of the original contract price, but may recover on a quantum meruit; semble, had he declined to proceed under the new plans, he might have recovered damages for loss of profits on the cancellation of his contract.

Jalbert v. Cardinal, 20 D.L.R. 841, 45 Que. S.C. 468.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS — CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE.

Where the question of proper work and of due diligence in proceeding with the work to be done for a municipal corporation in making road improvements is left to the decision of the construction engineer under the contract, and upon the contractor's default and due notification of the engineer's decision in respect thereof, the municipality takes the work out of the contractor's hands under a condition of the contract empowering it so to do, the contractor may still be liable to the municipality for the loss incurred by the latter through the failure of the contractor to fulfil his contract, if the option given by the contract for terminating the contractor's work expressly reserves any right of action to which the contractor may be subject from any neglect in not proceeding with the work in accordance with the specifications.

SUBSTITUTION OF MATERIAL — ACCEPTANCE — CERTIFICATE.

Where a contract calls for an article of a specified type, and the purchaser knowingly receives and uses another, he is liable for the contract price, despite the nonapproval of the furnished article by the purchaser's architect.

O'Leary v. Keuffel & Esser Co. of New York, 36 D.L.R. 709, 52 Que. S.C. 263.

INSTALLATION OF TELEPHONE SYSTEM — PERFORMANCE—PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS — CERTIFICATE OF ENGINEER — EXTRA WORK.

Reid v. Pipestone, 23 D.L.R. 884, 32 W.L.R. 161.

CONSTRUCTION OF FAIR GROUNDS — CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE — WORKMANSHIP — PUTTING IN FLOOR PREVIOUS TO ROOF — EXTRA WORK — DEMURRAGE — PENALTY OR LIQUIDATED DAMAGES.

Lund v. Vancouver Exhibition Assn., 25 D.L.R. 863, 22 B.C.R. 182, 9 W.W.R. 356, 32 W.L.R. 845.

EXTRA WORK—CERTIFICATE OF ENGINEER.

There can be no recovery for extra work performed in connection with a contract entered into with the Crown, in the absence of an authorization and certificate of the chief engineer required by the stipulations of the contract. The court, under s. 48 of the Exchequer Court Act, is bound to adjudicate upon the claim in accordance with the stipulations.

Beaulieu v. The King, 17 Can. Ex. 298.

ALTERATIONS IN AND ADDITIONS TO PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS PROVIDED FOR IN THE CONTRACT — BUILDING CONTRACT — QUANTUM MERUIT.

During the progress of the work, defendant's engineer changed the specifications and required the plaintiffs to supply and use steel reinforcements for the concrete. The plaintiffs, in complying with this order, had to purchase and put in place 1,517,345 pounds of steel over and above the quantity originally estimated. Owing to an advance in the price of steel, this excess quantity cost the plaintiffs 5 cents per pound and they claimed in this action $22,894.34, being the amount paid for it in excess of the price allowed under the terms of the contract, contending that the extra work had been done and extra materials supplied, not under the original contract, but under a new agreement to be inferred from the circumstances by which they were to be paid on a quantum meruit for such extra work and materials. Held, that the changes in the work made by the defendant were fully covered and provided for in the contract and that the plaintiffs could not recover. [Bristol v. Aird, [1913] A.C. 241; Thorne v. London, 1 App. Cas. 129; followed; Buch v. Whitlaver, 2 Hudson on Building Contracts, 122, distinguished.]

tion of his works, there may be facts and circumstances where that rule cannot be applied, as in the case of the construction of a railway, where the company takes possession of the line when a very small portion of it remained to be done, and the contractor offers to the company to leave in its hands a sufficient sum to finish the line. A condition, that the contractor shall be paid only on a final estimate prepared by the engineer of the company, becomes obsolete when the company neglects to replace the engineer who has resigned, without the necessity on the part of the contractor to put the company in default in se on demerit.

Great Northern Construction Co. v. Ross, 25 Que. K.B. 385, 404.

(§ IV D—361)—EXTRA WORK AND VARIATIONS—NEW PLANS—REJECTION.

A condition in a building contract entitling the owner to vary, by way of extra work or omission, from the plans of specifications, justifies the contractor from proceeding with variations of extra work radically different from the original plans, and upon the termination of the contract for such refusal, he will be entitled to recover damages for the breach, or upon a quantum meruit for work performed and materials furnished. [R. v. Peto, 1 Y. & J. 37, 52, followed.]

BIDDING CONTRACT — ALTERATIONS — EXTRA WORK.

Where the circumstances of a building contract are so changed as to make the special conditions of the contract inapplicable (e.g. by nonadherence to the original plans and substitution of others without the knowledge or sanction of the contractor at the time of entering upon performance, but subsequently acquiesced in by him in the honest belief that he would be paid for additional work), the contractor may treat the contract as at an end and recover upon a quantum meruit. [Bush v. Whitehaven Trustees, 2 Hudson on Building Contracts 122, applied.] If additional work done by a building contractor is the kind of additional work contemplated by the contract, the contractor must be paid the contract price, but if the additional or varied work is so peculiar, so unexpected, and so different from what any person reckoned or calculated upon, it may not be within the contract at all, and in that case he can either refuse to go on or claim to be paid on a quantum meruit. [Thorn v. London Corp., 1 App. Cas. 120, applied.] It would be a fraud on the part of a building owner to desire by his engineer alterations, additions and omissions to be made, and then to stand by and see the expenditure going on upon them, and then refuse payment on the ground that the expenditure was incurred without proper orders having been given for the purpose. [Hill v. S. Staffordshire Ry., 12 L.T. 63.] A party who has done work for another under a supposed contract void for fundamental error (e.g. where building contractor and building owner appear to contract, but with reference to different sets of plans) can sue only for the value of his work. Where a building contractor has as part of the consideration for obtaining the contract put himself in the hands of the owner's engineer, he is bound by the findings of the engineer. [Bristol v. Aird, [1913] A.C. 241, referred to.]

Boyd v. South Winnipeg, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 489, affirming 33 W.L.R. 786, 9 W.W.R. 1470.

(§ IV D—362)—BUILDING CONTRACT—CONCLUSIVENESS OF FINAL CERTIFICATE — RIGHT OF CONTRACTOR IN RESPECT TO DEPOSIT.

As an architect's final certificate is conclusive as to the completion of a structure by a contractor, upon the giving of such certificate, the contractor is entitled to have returned to him a deposit made to secure the execution of the contract, or which was given in lieu of a bond as security for the performance of the contract.

NECESSITY OF CERTIFICATE.

Where payment under a building contract is conditioned on the completion of the work to the satisfaction of the engineer, and upon the strict compliance with all the provisions of the contract, the contractor cannot recover the contract price without asserting and proving strict compliance with all conditions precedent. [Brydon v. Lutes, 9 Man. L.R., at pp. 471, 472, followed.]

CONDITION PRECEDENT TO RECOVERY — INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE — GOOD FAITH — FINALITY.

A certificate of an inspector that the ploughing and improving of land by the plaintiff had been done to the satisfaction of the former, as was required by the terms of the contract, is a condition precedent to the right of the plaintiff to recover for doing such work, and, where such inspector acts honestly and in good faith, his decision that the work was not performed in accordance with the contract is final and cannot be questioned in the courts. [McRae v. Marshall, 19 Can. S.C.R. 10, applied.]

NECESSITY OF CERTIFICATE.

Where in a building contract an architect's certificate of completion of the undertaking is required and the architect is not a mere agent of the owner but is required to exercise his own judgment, his approval is a condition precedent to the contractor's right to recover the contract price even if the architect is unreasonable in withholding his certificate. Where contractors fail to obtain the architect's final certificate, this being a condition precedent to the contractor's right to recover, the owner may after taking the proper course as to giving notice, as required by the contract, complete the building to the satisfaction of the architect and recover the outlay from the contractor. Where material alterations were contemplated by a building contract and the contract provided for extensions of time to be certified by the architect, the contractor will not be allowed such extensions unless the architect so certifies.

Cockshutt Plow Co. v. Alberta Bldg. Co., 3 A.L.R. 503.

CONDITION — CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE — NECESSITY OF ARCHITECT'S CERTIFICATE — BUILDING CONTRACT.

Under a building contract which provides that the price shall be paid the contractor in instalments as certified by the architects from time to time according to the progress of the work, failure to pay the amount of the first certificate does not dispense with the necessity of obtaining further certificates before bringing action for the additional work or for the entire price; the refusal to pay the amount of the first certificate is not a repudiation by the owner of the architect's authority to certify.

EXTRAS — CONDITION PRECEDENT — ARCHITECT'S CERTIFICATE.

Italian Mosaic & Marble Co. v. Vokes, 5 O.W.N. 15, 24 O.W.R. 970.

(§ IV D—363)—CONCLUSIVENESS AND SUFFICIENCY OF CERTIFICATE.

Where the architect under the agreement has not the power to settle or waive claims of the owner against the contractor, a progress certificate issued by the architect, does not, even if it authorizes payment of a sum which the owner could have set off damages against, waive any claim for damages. A penalty of $17 a day fixed by contract was allowed for each day's delay as liquidated damages, the total contract being for $10,921.

Cockshutt Plow Co. v. Alberta Bldg. Co., 3 A.L.R. 503.

BUILDING CONTRACT — PAYMENT — CERTIFICATE OF ENGINEER — AUTHORITY TO GRANT FINAL CERTIFICATE.

Where provision is contained in a contract for the construction of certain works that payment is to be made on the completion of the work to the satisfaction of the engineer, the authority of the engineer is to be confined to what is specially conferred on him by the contract including the specifications, and while he may, pursuant to the provisions of the specifications, issue progress estimates from time to time, he has no authority to release the contractor from the performance of any essential part of the work, nor has he power to give a certificate, final in its nature, until the work is completed to his satisfaction. [Davidson v. Francis, 14 Man. L.R. 141; Cauty v. Clark, 44 U.C.R. 222, followed.] In a proviso in a building contract that, if the contractor shall observe and keep its terms and conditions, the owner will make monthly payments to him of a fixed percentage of the estimate certified by the engineer or architect in a progress certificate, the payments so provided for are subject to adjustment or readjustment at the end of the contract, and, if the contractor abandons the work so that he is disentitled to claim for the work done, his right to claim on the progress certificate falls with the principal claim and he cannot recover thereon. [Tharsis v. McIlroy, 3 App. Cas. 1040, applied.]

BUILDING CONTRACT — CERTIFICATE AS TO EXTRAS.

Where a stipulation in a building contract leaves it to the architect to settle what extras should be allowed and the value thereof by his final certificate, such certificate is binding upon the parties as an award, until set aside for cause.

BUILDING CONTRACT — CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE — CONCLUSIVENESS OF ARCHITECT'S CERTIFICATE — RIGHT TO ARBITRATION UNDER STIPULATION.

A stipulation in a building contract that on a "final certificate being given by the architect either of the completion of the works and the amount due in respect of the last payment to be made by the owner or stating in what respects the works are incomplete, the architect's decision should be final, subject to arbitration," confers a right to an arbitration in the manner provided for in another clause of the contract not only where the certificate is of the unfinished details but where under an admittedly complete contract the owner desires to review the correctness of the certificate as to "last payment due" and "the amount thereof."

CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE—CONCLUSIVENESS—BAD WORKMANSHIP.

Where it is a term of the building contract that payment on any certificate granted by the architect is not to exonerate the contractor from liability for bad material or bad workmanship, such defects are likewise available in defence of an action brought by the contractor to enforce payment of the amount certified by the architect. Where the builder and the architect knew when a progress certificate was being given by the latter that there was nothing due from the owner and that more than the entire value of the work up to that time had already been paid, the architect's certificate is not binding between the builder and the owner. Price v. Forbes, 23 D.L.R. 532, 33 O.L.R. 136.

CONCLUSION AND SUFFICIENCY OF CERTIFICATE.

An architect's decision as to the value of work performed or of materials furnished for a building erected under a contract declaring that his decision should be final, is not open to attack if he acts fairly and honestly and no collusion between him and the contractor is shown.

Hamilton v. Vinsberg, 4 D.L.R. 827, 3 O.W.N. 1337, 22 O.W.R. 238, affirming on appeal, 2 D.L.R. 921, 3 O.W.N. 605, 21 O.W.R. 139.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION — ESTIMATE OF ENGINEER EMPLOYED BY ANOTHER COMPANY—CONCLUSIVENESS.

The C.N.P.R. Co. contracted with the Northern Construction Co. and Patrick Welsh for the construction of their roadbed between Inkitsaph Creek and Lytton. The Construction Company then subcontracted to Griffin & Welch, who again subcontracted to the plaintiffs. The final contract with the plaintiffs provided that the final estimate of the engineers of the Northern Construction Co. as to the quantity and classification of the plaintiffs' work should be binding on the parties. The engineers who made the final estimate were in fact in the employ of the C.N.P.R. Co., and had no connection in any way with the Northern Construction Co. As the work progressed, the plaintiffs were paid from time to time on the estimates of these engineers. In an action for the recovery of the balance due under the contract, it was held by the Trial Judge that the plaintiffs, by their own action, were estopped from setting up that the engineers were not the engineers of the Northern Construction Co., and were bound by their final certificate as to the quantity and classification of the work:—Held, on appeal (reversing the decision of Hunter, C.B.C.), that the plaintiffs are only bound by the estimate of the engineers of the Northern Construction Co., and the engineers who gave the final certificate as to the work not being in the employ of that company, the plaintiffs were entitled to a new trial.

(§ IV D—364)—APPLICATION TO ARCHITECT FOR CERTIFICATE—NOTICE.

It is no defence to an action for the balance due for the erection of a building that no notice was given the owners of the contractor's application to the architect for a final certificate where the contract was silent in that regard and required the architect upon notice from the contractor that the latter considers the work complete, to issue a final certificate and to make deductions from the price for unfinished work. Alsip v. Monkman, 9 D.L.R. 97, 22 Man. L.R. 779, 22 W.L.R. 667, 3 W.W.R. 459.

CONDITION — CERTIFICATE OF PERFORMANCE — FORMAL CERTIFICATE, WAIVER OF.

Where a town, under a construction contract, treats an inspector's informal certificate as if it were in fact a final one, although not in the exact form contemplated by the contract, the necessity of a formal certificate is waived, and a recovery may be had on such informal certificate.

ENGINEER'S CERTIFICATE—FINALITY OF.

A document signed by an engineer on the construction of works certifying to the correctness of a statement shewing the balance due a contractor up to a fixed date, and that the same had not been previously certified to, but withholding a sum "pending repairs," is not a final certificate, nor can it be construed as a progress estimate.

APPLICATION FOR CERTIFICATE.

It is no defence to an action for the balance due for the erection of a building that no notice was given the owners of the contractor's application to the architect for a final certificate where the contract was silent in that regard and required the architect upon notice from the contractor that the latter considers the work complete, to issue a final certificate and to make deductions from the price for unfinished work. Where a contract for the erection of a building authorized the architect to give a final certificate that the work was completed, or if incomplete to state in writing in what particulars, and in the next sentence it was stipulated that, if any part of the work remained incomplete for reasons not within the contractor's control, the architect should deduct the value of the incomplete portions from the contract price and that he should be the judge of the propriety of such deduction and its amount, a certificate stating that a specified sum should be deducted for work not complete is not objectionable because it fails to show that the work for which the deduction was made could not then have been readily completed. [Richards v. May, 10 Q.B.D. 400, specially referred to.] Under a contract for the construction of a building which stipulated that the work was to be performed "to the satisfaction of" the architect and authorizing him to give a final certificate that the work was completed as a prerequisite to the final payment therefor, a final certificate stating that the contractor was entitled to final payment on his contract is sufficient though it fails to certify in terms that the work was "completed" in accordance with the contract. [Accord, 3 Halsbury's Laws of England, p. 214, s. 429, 1 Hudson on Building Contracts, 3rd ed., 383.] A contract for the erection of a building authorizing the architects, if there was any part of the work remaining uncompleted for reasons not within the contractor's control, to deduct the value of the incomplete portions from the contract price and to issue a final certificate that the work was completed, gives the architect no power to accept the contractor's guarantee that he will complete the uncompleted portions of the work in lieu of the deduction required by the contract and a certificate by the architect to that effect is not a final one.

(§ IV D—365)—BUILDING CONTRACT—INCOMPLETE PERFORMANCE — CONDITION PRECEDENT.

The completion of a building contract is a condition precedent to the builder's right to recover unless the contract provides otherwise or unless there has been a waiver of such condition by the other party, or an interference preventing the completion of the contract. [See Efford v. Thompson, 1 D.L.R. 1.]

Failure to complete a building in accordance with the specifications in a building contract precludes recovery of the contract price and the enforcement of a mechanic's lien thereon.

E. BREACH AND ITS EFFECT.

(§ IV E—365)—DEFECTIVE HEATING SYSTEM—RIGHT TO FIXTURES.

Failure to perform an entire contract to install a heating system capable of properly heating the premises, precludes recovery of the lump sum price agreed upon; the owner of the premises has a right to counterclaim for the breach of contract, but he is not entitled to retain the fixtures installed.

TO DELIVER GOODS—MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

In an action for damages for breach of contract to deliver goods the measure of damage is the difference between the contract price and the price of similar goods the measure of damage is the difference between the contract price and the price of similar goods in the open market at the time of the breach.

Laumontagne v. C. Parsons & Son, 42 D.L.R. 365, 54 Que. S.C. 297.

SALE OF MACHINERY—DELIVERY—DAMAGES.

Held, that a printed condition forming part of the contract, and providing "that retention of the property forwarded after thirty days from the date of shipment shall constitute a trial and acceptance, and be a conclusive admission of the truth of all the representations made by or for the consignor and void all contracts of warranty, express or implied," did not relieve the plaintiff company from its obligation provided in the written part of the contract to ship and deliver at a specified time, and that the defendant company's right to counterclaim for a breach was not waived by accepting and retaining the machinery. The defendant company having sold the output of its mill for the season, of which fact the plaintiff company had knowledge before entering into the contract, bought and delivered to the purchaser of such output at his request, at an advance of fifty cents per thousand feet on the price to be paid by such purchase, 1,000,000 feet of lumber to supply an alleged shortage in output of mill caused by machinery not having been delivered according to agreement between the defendant company and plaintiff company. Held, on appeal (reversing the judgment of Barry, J., in this particular) that the defendant company was not entitled to recover on its counterclaim this advance of 50 cents per thousand on this 1,000,000 feet so purchased as damages resulting from a breach of the plaintiff company's contract, where it did not appear that the defendant company was bound to deliver any specific quantity of lumber other than the actual cut of its own mill.

Berlin Machine Works v. Randolph, 45 N.B.R. 201.

BUILDING CONTRACT—BREACH—STIPULATIONS.

In a contract for the supplying and erecting of steel work for buildings and machinery a clause providing that the contractors "shall not be responsible or liable for any direct or indirect damage, loss, stoppage or delay which the purchaser may sustain, whether the said plant or machinery is specified for any particular purpose or not," held not to apply to such breaches of contract as the long-delayed frame contracted for. Another clause provided that "we (the contractors) would expect to make shipments of this material about the 1st April to complete erection of the steel work in about two months after the arrival of the same at site," held not to amount to a contract to ship and complete the work at the dates mentioned, but only to bind the contractors to ship the material and complete the work within, in each case, a reasonable time in that behalf.

CONTRACT TO SUPPLY LUMBER—BREACH—IMPLIED TERMS—DAMAGES—PRESUMPTIONS.

If a person enters into a contract which can take effect only by the continuance of an existing state of circumstances there is an implied engagement on his part that he shall do nothing of his own motion, e.g., the selling of his assets, which will put an end to that state of circumstances. [Stirling v. Matland, 5 B. & S. 840, at 852, followed.] In respect to damages for breach of contract, the injured party is entitled to the benefit of every reasonable presumption as to the benefit which he might have obtained had the agreement been performed. BREACH AND ITS EFFECT.

Where a contract between the owner of land and a real estate agent provided that the land in question be sold at a profit to be divided equally between them, and the owner declines to entertain an offer, made either by the real estate agent or any other person, the real estate agent is not obliged to treat such refusal as a breach of the contract, but may elect, either to consider the contract as still in existence and await the performance of the same or to treat it as a breach and in the absence of such election the contract still stands. *Johnstone v. PERFORMANCE BY PARTY SEEKING REMEDY.

In bilateral contracts if one of the parties to the contract wishes to take advantage of nonperformance by the other he should first show that he himself is in a position to execute the contract; in the same way the party who complains of fault on the part of the other should first show that he himself is not in fault.

CANCELLING — RULING OF ACCOUNTS — PENALTY CLAUSE—C.C. ARTS. 991, 1134.

It is not necessary to demand of tribunals the cancellation of a contract when the parties have annulled it themselves and have rejected the accounts. Thus in a contract with a penalty clause not taking effect till after one year, if the parties in their ruling of accounts before this delay have established a settlement in favour of one of them, he may claim his rights without taking into account this penalty clause.

AGREEMENT TO TAN SKINS—LOSS BY DESTRUCTION AND SEIZURE.

The defendant agreed with the plaintiff to tan 1,000 skins (sheerings). Eleven bundles were tanned and returned. The other skins were not returned; and, after being kept for a long time some were burned by the defendant as having deteriorated, and the balance were taken out of the possession of the defendant by one of his creditors. Subsequently the plaintiff brought an action claiming that the skins returned were not the skins delivered to the defendant, and for nonperformance of the agreement to tan. The Trial Judge held on the facts, that the skins returned were those received by the defendants, but gave judgment for the plaintiff for the price of the skins not returned with County Court costs without a set-off.

(§ IV E—367)—SALE OF UNISSUED SHARES IN COMPANY—IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE—REMEDIES—ELECTION.

Where a contract is for certain specified stock of a company and a sufficient number of unissued shares to give the purchaser a controlling interest in the company, both parties believing at the time of entering into the contract that such unissued shares existed when in fact they did not exist. The purchaser has the right at his election to the enforcement or rescission of the part of the contract which can be carried out, and that the amount paid for the unissued shares be returned to him, and to damages in respect of these shares. BREACH OF COVENANT TO SUPPLY NATURAL GAS—DAMAGES—CONTINUING BREACH.

Where a contract was entered into between a natural gas company and certain holders of stock in another company in the same business absorbed by the contracting company whereby it was agreed on the part of the company as a further consideration for the purchase of such stock, that the holders should be entitled to receive from the company gas free for use in their private dwellings in the district where the company was carrying on its operations and the company continued to supply the other party to the contract with natural gas free of charge for more than six years when it discontinued doing so and took up the pipe line by which the gas was delivered and sold the wells producing it to third persons from whom the other parties to the contract were obliged to secure their supply of gas upon the company refusing to furnish it and to pay therefor and the company claimed that its action was caused by the fact that the wells in the district had run down to a point that made it commercially unfeasible to continue to pipe from them, though after the pipe line was taken up, it was still drawing gas from wells in the same field which it still owned and was piping it by another line to the same place where the old line ended, the company is liable to the other parties to the contract for the breach of the agreement for failing to provide the gas free, without prejudice to their rights in any future action, if the company continues to refuse to supply them with free gas, the covenant to supply the same being still an existing and binding one under the circumstances shown.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO PURCHASE TIMBER — PURCHASER'S IMPROVEMENTS — FUTURE.

Not only property sold under a contract for the sale of timber rights but also the purchaser's lumbering plant found on the land at the time of the seller's re-entry for the purchaser's default, belongs to the former under a stipulation of such contract that upon such default "all plant and timber cut" as well as "all improvements shall remain the property of the" seller "without recourse or claim of any nature whatsoever in damages for compensation against" him.

Block v. The Molsons Bank (No. 1), 3 D.L.R. 321, 44 Que. S. C. 193.

The fact that property was genuinely listed for sale with a real estate exchange, which, for a monthly payment, sold a list thereof to real estate brokers, who make sales therefrom, and that the exchange acted bona fide throughout the transaction, will not relieve it from responsibility for a breach of warranty to a subscriber who made a sale of property of which, it afterwards appeared, there was no such listing as the exchange held out to its subscribers, and which could, therefore, not be carried out. Austin v. Real Estate Exchange, 2 D.L.R. 224, 17 B.C.R. 177, 20 W.L.R. 921, 2 W.W.R. 88.

When there is a voluntary forbearance to enforce a contract for sale of goods by one party at the request of the other, and the party so asking such forbearance finally makes default, the party damaged by such default is entitled to damages as of the date when the final default took place. 2. That to entitle the plaintiff to such damages it is not necessary to show a completed agreement for such extension; it is sufficient to show forbearance at the request of the defendant, or that the plaintiff extended the time for the benefit of the defendant, and so notified the defendant, if the defendant does not dissent from such extension or then indicate his intention not to deliver at all.

Glebe v. Schaffer, 4 S.L.R. 508.

MAINTENANCE OF GRANTOR—DEFAULT.

In consideration of the conveyance of an immovable the transferee covenanted to "board, lodge and maintain" the transferor securing the covenant by an hypothec on said immovable. He failed in his obligation and diminished the security by alienating the immovable:—Held, that the transferor had a right of action for such nonperformance and was entitled to join his demand there in a saisie-arrêt conservatoire to conserve the price of sale of the immovable in the hands of the purchaser.

(§ IV E—368)—WAIVER OF BREACH.

Where the buyer of a motor car by sample incidentally learns after its delivery of a certain disparity in the car as to the number and sizes of its cells, and where pending further tests he maintains silence with respect to such discovery, he is not necessarily estopped thereby from setting up such disparity to establish the seller's noncompliance with the contract, especially where the seller's agent lulled him into security by giving a false reason for the difference. OPTION TO PURCHASE—MANNER OF ACCEPTANCE.

A contract of option for the purchase of land which does not specify a time or manner for the acceptance of the option, but which fixes a date, about two months later, when the first payment of the purchase price was to be made, may be accepted within a reasonable time, and an acceptance before the time for such first payment is not an unreasonable delay. YEARLY TELEPHONE CONTRACT—INSTALLMENT PAYABLE QUARTERLY—DEFAULT.

The regular form of contract in use by the Bell Telephone Company is a contract for one year, with instalments payable quarterly, and on default of payment of any instalment the company may remove the instrument and collect the amount owing for the balance of the year, and a customer will not be relieved from the contract on the ground that he did not read the conditions and did not receive a copy of the contract.

THRUSHING—REASONABLE TIME—CAPACITY OF MACHINE FOR DAILY OUTPUT OF WORK—COMPENSATION.

Gillespie v. McKeen (Sask.), 38 D.L.R. 750.

PRINTING—DELAY—DAMAGES.

When a printer undertakes to print a catalogue and envelopes to be delivered within a fixed time, and by the fault of the other party in delaying to furnish him with copy and correcting the proofs, he can only deliver his work two months after the expiration of the time fixed, he is not liable for damages which may result therefrom, and may, in making tender of the work done, claim the price of his contract.

American Fashion Co. v. Lavesque, 24 Rev. Leg. 419.

TIME FOR PERFORMANCE NOT FIXED—TENDER—DEFAULT.

When, in a contract, each party assumed reciprocal obligations, and no time was fixed in the deed for its performance, one party cannot claim that his obligation is extinguished because the other party did not make him a tender with promptness. In order to be freed, he must himself make tender to the other of the presentation of which he is debtor, and put the other in fault by accepting and carrying out his part of the contract within the time fixed. [Labrun v. Gruninger, 27 Que. K.B. 210, TIME.]

Where a written order for the purchase of goods fixes a date for delivery, and the buyer having duly signed the order in transmitting same to the seller writes and mails concurrently a separate letter to accelerate the delivery, such letter has not the legal effect of varying the contract but the date of delivery is determined from the written order without reference to the letter.

(§ IV F.—371)—TIME OF THE ESSENCE—DEFAULT—PROVISO FOR FORFEITURE OF INSTALLMENTS PAID.

Where a contract of sale of lands upon deferred payments stipulates that time shall be of the essence of the agreement and that in default of punctual payment of any instalment of purchase-money or of any part thereof the agreement should be void and all payments absolutely forfeited to the vendor and that the vendor should be at liberty immediately to resell, the court should relieve against the strict letter of the contract when the arrears are paid into court in the vendor's action brought shortly after the default for the enforcement of the forfeiture, particularly where the strict wording of the agreement would otherwise involve the right to confiscate sums of money increasing from time to time as the agreement approached completion in case of default occurring upon subsequent instalments.

FAILURE AS TO TIME—TIME OF ESSENCE—WAIVER.

Where the time limited for completion of a sale contract has passed, but the vendor thereafter by his conduct recognized the contract as subsisting and continued the negotiations for completing the same, he cannot set up the stipulation of the contract that time shall be of the essence thereof, but must give notice to the other party and allow a reasonable time thereafter for completion before he is enabled to declare the contract off for the other's default. (§ IV F—372)—BUILDING CONTRACT—WORKING DAYS—DELAY—DAMAGES—COSTS.

Where dredges or machinery are hired from the Crown by the day, only working days can be charged for. The Crown, by failing to deliver a tug, as required by the terms of the lease, cannot recover the rent therefor, but is not liable for damages to the lessee, more or less remote, by reason of delays in work occasioned thereby. 2. An offer or statement of settlement based on error is not binding and cannot operate as a judicial admission under the Quebec Civil Code. 3. The Crown cannot be held for delays occasioned by it in the performance of a building contract, where by the terms of the contract it was relieved from liability in any such event. The court, under § 48 of the Exchequer Court Act, is bound to decide in accordance with the stipulations of the contract. 4. Where a party does not succeed on all the issues of an action, the court has a discretion to deprive him of the costs. 5. The right of action having arisen in the Province of Quebec, interest upon the amount due under the contract was allowed from the date of the deposit of the petition of right with the Secretary of State.

V. Change or extinguishment.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ V A—375)—DIMINUTION OF SECURITY.

A creditor cannot declare his debtor deprived of the benefit of the term fixed for the performance of his obligation on account of diminution of security, unless such diminution affects the sureties who were specially furnished to him by the contract.

Jacques v. Bellehumeur, 50 Que. S.C. 319.

(§ V A—376)—SPECIFIED WORKS—TIME SPECIFIED FOR COMPLETION—FINAL CERTIFICATES GRANTED BY ENGINEER—PAYMENT BY CORPORATION—POSSESSION—EXTENSION OF TIME.

A contract with a corporation for the execution of certain specified works, provided that the works should be completed by a certain day and contained a clause that: "If the contractor shall fail to complete the work by the time specified, a sum of $25 per day for each and every day thereafter as liquidated damages . . . shall be deducted from the money payable under this contract and the engineer's certificate as to the amount of this deduction shall be final." Held, that the granting of certificates by the engineer without deduction, including one marked "final," such certificates being paid by the municipality without deduction, coupled with the circumstance of the municipality having taken possession, and with the correspondence, justified the court in drawing the inference that the time for completion was extended until the date when the works were substantially completed by the contractor.

(§ V A—377)—MODIFICATION BY PAROL.

Where plaintiff relies on an extension of an existing option to purchase land, or the making of a new option, and a plea of the Statute of Frauds is entered by defendants, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show that the alleged new agreement was in writing.

HIRE OF WORK—APPLICABILITY OF ART. 1690 C.C.—EXTRAS—TESTIMONIAL PROOF—C.C., 1233, 1690.

Article 1690 C.C. ought only to be applied to anticipated cases, that is to say to a contract pure and simple. It does not concern an agreement to paint a house when the parties have stipulated clauses and conditions which modify the contract. In this case testimonial proof of supplementary work will be admitted.

Renaud v. Bernier & de Jerres, 25 Rev. Leg. 389.

(§ V A—379)—REPUDIATION—STOCK BOUGHT AT RATE ON DOLLAR.

Where, under the terms of a written contract a stock of goods had been bought at "the rate of one hundred and ten cents on the dollar, invoice price," the failure of the seller to produce invoices for all of the goods is not sufficient ground to justify the buyer in repudiating the contract, if the buyers' representative had been engaged in the store for a month preceding the stock-taking, and had been given the private cost mark and had every opportunity to acquaint himself with the price marking system in force, and if the buyers did not insist on the production of the missing invoices at the time of the stocktaking.

RELEASE—ASSENT—TO ENGAGE IN SAME BUSINESS.

A party to an agreement that he shall not carry on a certain business within a particular locality, will not be restrained from doing so where the other party's conduct amounts to a release from the obligation. [Freeth v. Burr, 43 L.J.C.P. 91, considered.]

(§ V A—381)—CHANGE OR EXTINGUISHMENT—ABANDONMENT—LAND SALE.

A vendee of property, under an agreement for the sale thereof, will be held to have abandoned the agreement where it appears that he never went into actual possession of the land, which was purchased on speculation, though the first cash payment was made and a caveat filed by him and the agreement registered, but where default was made in the payment by the second instalment of the purchase price, time being expressly of the essence, and where his subsequent conduct for a period of over four years after default clearly indicated that he had relinquished all rights under the agreement, and his letter after suit was of like effect. [Hicks v. Laidlaw, 2 D.L.R. 460, 22 Man. L.R. 96, applied.]

ABANDONMENT.

The contract for the sale of an interest in a mining claim of a fluctuating character must be held to have been rescinded where a caution was filed against the claim after the execution of the agreement and the vendor knowing that it was useless to try to complete the sale while the caution remained undischarged had so conducted himself as to give the vendees reasonable ground to conclude that he had abandoned the contract and they did so conclude. [Morgan v. Bain, L.R. 10 C.P. 15, specially referred to.]

Thomson v. McPherson, 3 D.L.R. 269, 3 O.W.N. 791, 21 O.W.R. 646.

ABANDONMENT—CLEAR RIGHTS, HOW GUARDED.

Abandonment of a clear right, by way of a half-interest in lands, cannot properly be inferred, except upon very convincing evidence, evidence reasonably consistent only with such conclusion. [Prendergast v. Turton, 13 L.J. Ch. 268, referred to.]

OPTION OF TENANT TO PURCHASE DEMISED PREMISES—WAIVER OF.

An option in a lease permitting a tenant to purchase the demised premises during his term is rendered imperoperative before the expiry of the term by the tenant accepting a new lease for a further period to commence immediately after the expiry of the original term where the new lease contains terms and conditions inconsistent with the right to exercise such option.

ABANDONMENT—PRESUMPTION AS TO—LONG DELAY.

Although abandonment of an acquired right is not easily presumed, a long period of inaction on the part of a claimant in circumstances in which inaction tends to confirm the version of adversary, whilst, if his own version were the true one, he would have had reason to have acted and spoken, affords a strong support to the pretension of the adversary.

Rainboth v. O'Brien, 24 Que. K.B. 88.

B. TERMINATION.

Failure of subject-matter as termination of contract, see Landlord and Tenant, II B-39.

(§ V B-385)—BY STATEMENT OR DECLARATION.

The flat declaration that an agreement is void cannot be construed a declaration of an intention to put an end to it. [Canadian Fairbanks Co. v. Johnson, 18 Man. L.R. 589, referred to.]

Price v. Ruggles (Man.), 28 Man. L.R. 132, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1035.

(§ V B-387)—BY DEATH OF PARTY.

A contract by the testator to pay a specified sum of money per annum payable quarterly in advance, so long as he was able to do so and whilst the payee was self-dependent: provided the payee would agree to place her daughter (testator's granddaughter) in a certain educational institution until she had finished her education, is not terminated by the death of the testator but continues as against his executors. Chisholm v. Chisholm, 2 D.L.R. 57, 46 N.S.R. 27.

(§ V B-388)—RIGHT TO TERMINATE BUILDING CONTRACT—DISMISSAL OF CONTRACTOR—JUSTIFICATION—FORCIBLE REMOVAL FROM PREMISES—RIGHTS OF BUILDING OWNER—TERMINATION OF LICENSE.

McInnis v. Public School Board, 9 O.W.N. 281.

BUILDING CONTRACT—CHANGE OF CLASS—QUANTUM MERUIT.

Where the original plans upon which a tender is made and a contract entered into for the performance of certain work are not adhered to, but a new set of plans and profiles is prepared and used without the knowledge or sanction of the contractor, when he first entered upon the performance of his contract, but in which he acquiesces subsequently, in the honest belief that he would be paid for the additional work thereby entailed, the circumstances contemplated by the building contract so changed as to make the special conditions of the contract (for example a provision that the obtaining and filing of an engineer's certificate for the work claimed would be in each case a condition precedent to the right of the contractor to payment), the contractor may treat the contract as at an end and recover upon a quantum meruit. [Bush v. Whitehaven Trustees, 52 J.P. 392, followed.]

Boyd v. South Winnipeg, 33 W.L.R. 786, [Affirmed [1917] 2 W.W.R. 489.]

INSOLVENCY OF BUYER.

The seller of goods, who agrees to release the buyer from the payment of a balance of the price, for the consideration that the latter will order a further specified quantity of the goods before such balance falls due, is relieved from the agreement by the insolvency of the buyer.

White Sewing Machine Co. v. Bélanger, 44 Que. S.C. 402.

C. RESCISSION; CANCELLATION.

See Vendor and Purchaser, I E; Sale, III C.

(§ V C-390) — SALE OF LAND — ORAL AGREEMENT TO RESCIND.

An agreement for the sale of lands may be rescinded by the parties by an agreement not in writing, notwithstanding an action could not be maintained thereon because the agreement is within the Statute of Frauds.

RESCISSION—MISTAKE—NEGLIGENCE

Rescission of a contract entered into by reason of mistake as to the subject-matter will be granted where the plaintiff can prove that the parties were never ad idem that the mistake was not caused by his negligence, but on the contrary was contributed to by the other party's language and conduct. [Slouski v. Hopp, 15 Man. L.R. 548, and Van Praagh v. Everidge, [1902] 2 Ch. 266, discussed.]

RESCISSION—REPUTATION.

Reputation of a contract by one of the parties thereto does not operate as a rescission unless accepted by the other party; a right to withdraw from a contract, and to recover back payments thereon, may arise from the terms of the contract.

Cromwell v. Morris, 34 D.L.R. 305, 12 A.L.R. 534, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 374.

NONPAYMENT OF INSTALLMENTS BUE ON ON LAND CONTRACT — RIGHT TO HAVE CANCELLED—IPSO FACTO VOID.

Where a contract for the sale of lands does not provide for its cancellation by the vendor but that it shall be ipso facto void upon nonpayments of instalments of purchase money, a court will not declare a cancellation thereof for nonpayment.

REPUTATION—WAIVER.

There can be no waiver of the right to repudiate an agreement where there has been no knowledge of the facts on which the right to repudiate is based.

CANCELLATION IN PART — WHAT CONSTITUTES CANCELLATION.

Where one contract has been made for the construction of three machines the purchaser cannot cancel it as to part and retain it as to part, but must either cancel or retain the entire contract. Where a contract has been made for the construction of three machines a letter containing the words, "I do not wish you to deliver any more as we will have to refuse same until they have been satisfactorily demonstrated as being able to do the work contracted for," is not a cancellation of the contract, but a suspension of delivery until a demonstration is had.

Mechanical Equipment Co. v. Butler, 21 D.L.R. 714, 47 Que. S.C. 478.

ACTION FOR.

The commencement of an action for rescission is a sufficient repudiation of the contract for sale of lands. [Reeve v. Mullen, 14 D.L.R. 345, followed.]

Krom v. Kaiser, 21 D.L.R. 700, 8 A.L.R. 287, 31 W.L.R. 742, 8 W.W.R. 239, reversing 18 D.L.R. 226, 7 A.L.R. 467.

MISREPRESENTATION—MATERIALITY.

The test of a material inducement on a claim to rescind a contract for misrepresentation is not whether the buyer would have acted differently if the misrepresentation had not been made, but whether he might have done so; it is sufficient to prove that in the ordinary course of events the natural and probable effect of the misrepresentation was to influence the mind of a normal representee in the manner alleged.

FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION — RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEES—REPAYMENT.

Rescission of a contract for sale of lands may be granted on the ground of fraud and misrepresentation, although the purchaser seeking the rescission had assigned the contract, if the assignees are parties to the action and therein repudiated the contract; and if it appears that the money paid to the vendor was in fact the money of such assignees with whom the original purchaser had contracted in advance of his own agreement to purchase, the court may in such action in which all parties are before it, direct repayment of such moneys to be made direct to the assignees. [Medcalf v. Oshawa Lands and Investments, 15 D.L.R. 745, referred to.]

Oshawa Lands v. Newsom, 21 D.L.R. 838, 27 O.L.R. 744.

ACTION FOR CANCELLATION — FAILURE OF PROOF—COSTS.

Erindale Power Co. v. Interurban Electric Co. (No. 2), 9 O.W.N. 24.

FRAUD—RETURN OF MONEY PAID.

Acres v. Consolidated Investments, 8 O.W.N. 193; Wyatt v. Consolidated Investments, 8 O.W.N. 194.

EXECUTION—CANCELLATION.

A party to a contract, after having asked for its execution, cannot afterwards demand its cancellation for the same causes.

Lapierre v. Magnan, 46 Que. S.C. 395.

(§ V C—391)—RESCISSION—NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CANCEL — REGULARITY OF NOTICE.

Under a contract of excavation on an irrigation ditch for active work and completion by a specified time, where the contractor breaks the contract by undue delay, thus giving the contracts the right to cancel, such cancellation is subject to the strict condition precedent that the contractee must give to the contractor due notice of intention to cancel unless the default is remedied.

REGULARITY OF NOTICE.

Notwithstanding time is declared to be of the essence of a contract for the sale of lands, specific performance will be decreed where a failure to promptly make a stipulated payment was due to the inadvertence of the vendee's partner, with whom, upon his departure for England, the vendee had left funds with which to make payments which came due during his absence, and it appeared that a day or two after such payment was due the vendor called on the vendee's office and without inquiring whether the latter had left instructions regarding the payment, obtained his address in England; and afterwards the vendor mailed a notice of forfeiture to the vendee's office in an unofficial looking envelope, addressed in a lady's handwriting, marked "private," on account of which the vendee's partner returned it to the post office; and the notice of forfeiture forwarded to the vendee's English address was not received by him until after his return to Canada, as these circumstances cast such suspicion upon the vendor's conduct as to require a strict construction of the stipulation in the contract providing that notice of forfeiture should be given by personal service, or by delivery at the vendee's place of business by registered mail.

SALE OF LAND — CANCELLATION BY VENDOR UPON DEFAULT.

A notice by a vendor of land while the purchaser was in default in respect of some of the payments stipulated for, that unless immediate payment is made "proceedings of foreclosure will follow" is not a sufficient notice of intended cancellation under a contract providing for a notice of intended cancellation and for forfeiture in thirty days thereafter. A notice is insufficient to cancel a contract for the sale of land which, contrary to the terms of the agreement, demands compound interest, and the payment of the balance due within thirty days from the date of the notice and not from the time of its service as required by the contract, where service was not effected until the thirty-day period had about expired.

(§ V C—295)—ACTION BY ASSIGNEE.

The effect of s. 101 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.) is to make the assignment of the purchaser's rights under a written contract for the sale of land effectual at once even without notice to the vendor, subject to the proviso that any rights at law or in equity acquired under the agreement by the vendor before he receives notice shall not be prejudiced by the assignment; an action by a purchaser's assignee against the vendor to declare the contract rescinded and for a return of the money paid thereunder is not subject to the limitations of the Judicature Ordinance, 1907, Alta. c. 5, s. 7, subs. 3, as to a preliminary written notice of assignment of a chose in action. [Armstrong v. Marshall, 19 D.L.R. 183, disapproved; Torkington v.

Magee, [1902] 2 K.B. 427; McNiven v. Piggott, 19 D.L.R. 846, referred to.]

(§ V C—396)—RESCISSIION OF—MISREPRESENTATION — LACHES — CONSEQUENCE OF.

The only legal consequences of inaction or laches on the part of the representative in rescinding a contract to purchase land on the ground of fraudulent misrepresentation is to furnish some evidence with other facts, in support of a plea of knowledge, or affirmation, against himself, or to give scope for the intervention of the ius tertii, or of the plea of inability to make specific restitution to the representor; but, where the inaction, for however long a period it extends, is not sufficient to constitute such evidence, or where, notwithstanding the lapse of time, no innocent person has, in fact, acquired rights or interests under the contract sought to be set aside, and the property to be restored to the representor, as the condition of rescission, can be so restored in the same plight as that in which it was received, the delay, laches, or so-called "acquiescence" does not constitute a defence.

RESCISSIION — PROMPTNESS — STALLION — MUTUAL MISTAKE — RETAINING POSSESSION AFTER DISCOVERY.

Rescission of a contract for the sale of a stallion on the ground that the wrong animal was delivered, will not be allowed where it appears that the delivery of the wrong stallion on the part of the seller was an honest mistake, and where after the mistake was discovered and the selling price had been paid, instead of rejecting the horse the buyer retained possession of him and hired him out frequently for breeding purposes.

PROMPTNESS.

The redhibitory action (or action in cancellation of sale for latent defects) must be brought with reasonable diligence according to the nature of the defect and the usage of the place where the sale is made; and where there is no usage, the old French law prescription of six months from the date of the sale will be applied.

Jacobsen v. Peltier, 3 D.L.R. 132, 42 Que. S.C. 35.

(§ V C—397)—BREACH—RESTORING BENEFITS.

On the breach of a contract, based on a valuable consideration, to support another for life, the person from whom the consideration flows must be restored to as good a position as he occupied before the contract was made.

CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT — FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION — RESTORATION OF BENEFITS.

The leasing of an orchard upon land the lessor had been induced to purchase by false representations, does not amount to such dealing with the property as will take away his right to rescind upon the ground of fraud, where the lease had been cancelled and the vendee was in a position to restore the land to the vendor practically as he received it.

RESTORING BENEFITS.

The repudiation by an incorporated company of a contract with one of its directors, on the ground of misrepresentation, must be made promptly after the discovery of the misrepresentation, and while the company is still in a position to restore matters, not necessarily to their precise original position, but to a position which shall be just with reference to the rights which the director had before the contract. [Adam v. Newbigging, 13 A.C. 398, referred to. See also Kerr on Fraud and Mistake, 4 ed., pp. 365 et seq.]

RETURN OF CASH PAYMENT IF "CONTRACT NOT COMPLETED"—RESCISSION.

Where an offer to sell property was accepted in writing on condition that a cash payment should be returned "if the contract was not completed," it is sufficient to permit the purchaser to rescind where it was shown that such condition was inserted at his instance for his own benefit, since it would be difficult to perceive how it could benefit the purchaser unless it conferred the right to rescind. An option for the purchase of property providing that a specified sum of money deposited by the person to whom the option was given, should be returned to him "if contract not completed" calls for a return of such sum to the person who furnished the money and for whom the person who secured the option was acting, where no further steps were taken to carry out the contract except the writing of a letter by the vendor authorizing its agent and the agent of the purchaser to insert in the option the name or names of the persons for whom the latter assumed to act.

Munn v. Vigon (No. 2), 4 D.L.R. 341, 3 O.W.N. 1532, 22 O.W.R. 736, affirming 2 D.L.R. 246, 3 O.W.N. 811.

RESTORING BENEFITS.

The general rule that in order to entitle a purchaser of property to rescind a voidable contract against the vendor, such purchaser must be in a position to offer back intact the subject-matter of the contract does not apply where such subject-matter has become deteriorated solely by the fault of the vendor himself. [Clough v. L. & N. W.R. Co., L.R. 7 Ex. 26, 41 L.J. Ex. 17, applied.]

RESCISSIO—RESTORING BENEFITS.

The general rule is that a rescission on account of the seller's innocent misrepresentations will be ordered in respect of a contract of sale only where the transaction can be rescinded in toto and where there can be restitution in integrum.

O'Connor v. Sturgeon Lake Lumber Co., 17 D.L.R. 316, 6 S.L.R. 69, 27 W.L.R. 813, 6 W.V.R. 701.

RESTITUTIO IN INTEGRUM.

Rescission of a contract cannot be had where there can be no restitution in integrum.

HIRE OF WORK—CONSTRUCTION OF RAILWAY — CIVIL ENGINEER—C.C., ART. 1691.

An agreement with a railway contractor by which a civil engineer binds himself, for a commission, on the cost of the construction of a railway, to prepare the plans and specifications and act as a consulting engineer, is a contract of hire of personal services, which the contractors cannot set aside without paying the agreed commission.

Francis v. Dominion Timber & Minerals, 25 Rev. Leg. 436.

(S V C—400)—GROUNDS OF.

Where an appellant, the widow, had become, on the death of her husband, a life usufructuary of the husband with whom she had been in matrimonial community of property; and where, under a contract of mandate, she appointed the respondent as manager of the estate in question, stipulating to pay him for a period of ten years, to cover his work and expenses as such manager, a commission of five per cent annually on the net value of the entire estate to be by him administered during the ten-year period; and where part of the property consisted of bank stocks and loans which were not disturbed or realized upon; and where the respondent charged his commission annually on the total net value of the succession and of the appellant's share of the assets of the community; the appellant will be allowed the full five per cent without deduction as claimed, and the fact that such commission absorbs the bulk of the estate and that the bank stocks and investments were never disturbed or realized upon will not operate to defeat the terms of the mandate.

Genereaux v. Binet, 18 Rev. de Jur. 471.

SALE — LOAN — FALSE REPRESENTATIONS — MISTAKE — NULLITY — AGENCY — C.C. ARTS. 992, 1727.

When an agent, even in good faith represents to a purchaser that the land which he is selling him is situated on a certain street in the St. Louis quarter of Mille-End of Montreal, when it is on another street in part of the parish of St. Lawrence annexed to Montreal where the neighboring land is lower in value, and this mistake is repeated in the deed, the purchaser has an action to cancel the contract. The agent employed by a party to effect a loan and who finds a lender on the condition that the borrower will buy a lot from him, represents the vendor in the negotiations for the sale, just as he is the agent of the borrower in affecting the loan, and if he makes false representations to effect the sale, he binds his principal. For the cancellation of a contract matter the cause of the mistake does not matter; it does not matter whether it is the fault of the party who finds himself mistaken or of the other party who instigated the mistake. If a sale is made on the occasion, and conditionally, upon a loan, and then cancelled on the ground of mistake, the borrower is not bound to return the sum borrowed, the two contracts being distinct, and the nullity of the one not entering into the other.

Lafour v. Breux, 56 Que. S.C. 302.

The plaintiff in a former action against the appellant made a transfer, while that action was pending, to the respondents, his attorneys of record, of the sum for which judgment would be recovered. The former action having been decided in favour of the plaintiff, the respondents (transferees) thereupon served the transfer upon the appellant, who then took the present action to have the transfer set aside as having been made in violation of art. 1485. The respondents inscribed in law, alleging want of interest in the appellant to take the action and further setting forth that it appeared from the plaintiff's declaration that the transfer having been signified upon the debtor only after judgment, the respondents consequently became seized of the claim, only after it had ceased to be litigious.—Held, reversing the judgment whereby the inscription in law had been maintained, that the debtor of a claim transferred in violation of art. 1485 C.C. had an interest to attack the transfer by action, and is not restricted to pleading the ground of nullity in defence as in a case of retrait litigieux and that the illegality would affect a transfer made before the judgment in the former suit though served upon the debtor only after judgment.

Talbot v. Girouard, 18 Rev. de Jur. 93.

(§ V C—401)—RESCISSIION—STOCK SUBSCRIPTION—COMPANY'S REPRESENTATION OF INTEREST.

Where the plaintiff, a physician, made a contract with an insurance company to buy shares of its stock, on condition that within a certain fixed time, the company would be in active business in a certain city and plaintiff would be appointed its medical examiner for that city; upon breach by the company of a material part of the stated condition the agreement may be rescinded and any payments made may be recovered back at the instance of the plaintiff.

Can. Dig.—39.

(§ V C—402)—RESCISSIION—GROUNDS OF—FRAUD.

An agreement for the sale of land whereby the purchaser was to take the property at "its fair actual value" to be fixed by the vendor may be rescinded, where it appears that the vendor fraudulently made the purchase price of the property several hundred dollars in excess of "its fair actual value" the purchaser being a woman who lacked business experience and who was unable to form an opinion herself as to the real value of the property, notwithstanding that she went into possession and leased part of the land and sold another part, it appearing that she had not become aware of the fraud until the action.

RESCISSIION ON GROUND OF FRAUD—SALE OF TIMBER LANDS—INABILITY TO PLACE PARTIES IN ORIGINAL POSITION.

Notwithstanding the fact that a vendee was induced to purchase timber lands through the vendor's misrepresentations as to the number of acres thereof, rescission of the contract of purchase will be denied the former after he had entered into a contract with the vendor under which the latter had begun to carry on lumbering operations on the land for the vendee, on the ground that, as the parties could not be placed in their original positions, both contracts must stand.

FRAUD—EXECUTED CONTRACT—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION—TIMBER.

In an action to rescind upon a ground of misrepresentation an executed contract for the sale of timber business where the consideration therefor has been paid and the licenses transferred to the purchaser, there must be proven unless a case of fraud be made out, such a difference in substance between what was supposed to be taken under the contract and what was in fact so taken as to constitute a failure of consideration. [Kennedy v. Panama, etc., Royal Mail Co., L.R. 2 Q.B. 580, 36 L.J. Q.B. 260; Pope v. Cole, 29 Can. S.C.R. 291; Angel v. Jay, [1911] 1 K.B. 666, followed.] In the present case wherein the plaintiffs, who sued for rescission of such a contract, alleged a deficiency in the expected quantity of timber covered by the licenses, it was held that it was not a complete failure of consideration so as to entitle them to rescission.

In an action for rescission of a contract transferring timber licenses on the ground of misrepresentation as to title;—Held, that the contract was an executed one and fraud had not been proven and that, therefore, the plaintiff was not entitled to succeed. [Alberta North-West Lumber Co. v. Lewis, 38 D.L.R. 228, followed.]

Foulger v. Lewis, 24 B.C.R. 556, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1915.

RESCISSIION — MISREPRESENTATION — GOOD FAITH, EFFECT OF.

Rescission of a contract will be allowed for a material misrepresentation made by the other party, although the misrepresentation may have been made in good faith in a belief of its truth. [Derry v. Peck, 14 App. Cas. 337, applied.]

Eisler v. Canadian Fairbanks Co., 8 D.L.R. 390, 22 W.L.R. 888, 3 W.W.R. 753.

RESCISSIION — GROUNDS OF — FOR FRAUD OR MISREPRESENTATION — EXPRESSION OF OPINION AS TO FUTURE EARNINGS.

What purports to be a mere expression of opinion as to the future earnings of a company on the part of its authorized agent may be false and fraudulent so as to constitute a ground for rescission of a contract to subscribe for stock in the company made on the faith of such statements.

RESCISSIION OF CONTRACT — MISREPRESENTATION — ABSENCE OF FRAUD — EXECUTED OR EXECUTORY CONTRACT.

An executed contract induced by misrepresentation cannot be set aside unless the misrepresentation be fraudulent, but this rule does not extend to executory contracts. [Angel v. Jay, [1911] 1 K.B. 666; Abrey v. Victoria Printing Co., 2 D.L.R. 208, 3 O.W.N. 868; Reese River Co. v. Smith, L.R. 4 H.L. 64; Adam v. Newbigging, 13 App. Cas. 308, and Angus v. Clifford, [1891] 2 Ch. 449, specially referred to.]

Kinsman v. Kinsman, 5 D.L.R. 871, 3 O.W.N. 966, 22 O.W.R. 979.

RESCISSIION — AGENCY — FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP — DEALING AT ARM'S LENGTH.

A communication from a person representing a real estate agent made to an owner of land from whom he was trying to get a contract of option for the purchase of his property, that there were no other property transactions going on in the neighborhood in which this property was situated, although the person making the communication may have known that his principal had been buying other pieces of property in that neighbourhood, is not a misrepresentation dan causam contracti which would be ground for rescission, where the parties were dealing at arm's length and there was no duty of disclosure.

MISREPRESENTATION — IMPLIED CONDITION OF FITNESS.

The right to repudiate a contract for the purchase of goods on the ground of misrepresentation is a right to repudiate the contract as a whole. The purchaser cannot repudiate as to part and affirm as to part. But if through the agent of the manufacturer the purchaser makes known the purpose for which the goods are required, and if the purchaser relies on the skill of the manufacturer to furnish goods reasonably fit for that purpose, so that there is an implied condition that the goods shall be fit for the purpose, the purchaser is entitled to reject the goods if the condition is broken, and where the sale is of a number of articles each one of which must be of the kind and quality ordered, the purchaser may accept some and reject the others upon finding that they are not suitable for the purpose required. The fact that there was a breach of the condition in respect of those rejected will not support a claim for general damages. [Molling v. Dean, 18 T.L.R. 217, followed; Hopkins v. Jannison, 18 D.L.R. 88, 30 O.L.R. 305, referred to.]

Dominion Paper Box Co. v. Crown Tailoring Co., 43 D.L.R. 557, 42 O.L.R. 249. TIME.

Where there has been a false representation entitling a purchaser to repudiate a contract, the repudiation need not be immediate, and natural deterioration of the article while it is retained will not constitute rescission.

FRAUD — SUBSCRIPTION — DELAY IN ATTACKING.

A debtor who discovers that he has been deceived in buying the stock of a company, and who is desirous to have his contract set aside, as having been obtained by fraud and false representations, must act promptly; and a delay of three years, if not explained, is not a reasonable delay.

Anson v. Stark, 24 Rev. Leg. 292.

EXCHANGE OF LANDS — MISREPRESENTATION — RESCISSIION.

Hamilton v. Colloway (A.R.), 43 D.L.R. 768.

MISREPRESENTATIONS — MATERIALITY.

In order to succeed on a claim to rescind a contract for misrepresentation or to obtain damages as an alternative, it must be shown that the statement complained of was untrue and was made by the vendor with knowledge of its falsity or with such recklessness as to amount to moral guilt, and that the statement was in regard to a material fact and was an inducing cause leading the purchaser to enter into the contract.

Langley v. Hammond, 22 D.L.R. 42, 21 B.C.R. 175.

MISREPRESENTATION—WAIVER.

The right to set aside a contract for misrepresentation by the other party which was unintentional and did not amount to fraud, may be waived or released by payments made thereon after the untruth of the misrepresentation had been clearly revealed. [Re Bank of Hindustan, 42 L.J. Ch. 771, affirmed; Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 474, and Moxon v. Payne, L.R. 8 Ch. 881, distinguished.]

Franchise v. Lloyd, 21 D.L.R. 321, 8 A.L.R. 247, 30 W.L.R. 659, 7 W.W.R. 1343.

MISREPRESENTATION.

Both materiality and inducement are questions of fact on a claim to rescind a contract for misrepresentation. [Young v. McMillan, 40 N.S.R. 52, considered.]

RESCISSON — MISREPRESENTATION — GROUNDS — MANIFESTING "FIXED INTENTION" — "INTENTION" IS A FACT, WHEN.

Where the plaintiff was induced to buy shares of the capital stock of an insurance company upon its manifesting and expressing a "fixed intention, readiness and capacity to commence its regular insurance business in a certain city on a fixed date, the existence or nonexistence of that "intention" is a fact, and, if the plaintiff entered into the contract to buy and part of with the purchase price on the faith of the statements made in respect of such intention, and those statements were material, his right (if misled) to rescind the contract is the same as if he acted on and was misled by a representation of any other material fact. (Per Fitzpatrick, J.)

FOR FRAUD OR MISREPRESENTATION.

Misrepresentation by the director of an incorporated company inducing a contract between him and the company, gives the company the right, not merely to a future judicial rescission of the contract by a judgment of the court, but to repudiate the contract by its own act.

Meloche v. Trubus, 17 O.W.N. 35.

FRAUD—FALSE REPRESENTATIONS—NULLITY — C.C. ACTS, 1522, 1524.

Whatever may be the negligence of the buyer to render himself accountable for default of the thing sold, if the seller by fraudulent representation has induced him to buy, the contract is null.

Chevier v. Girard, 25 Rev. Leg. 169.

MISREPRESENTATIONS.

False representations are grounds for rescission of a contract, if they have led the other party into error as to the quality of the subject-matter which he had mainly in view while contracting and which determined his assent.

Talbot v. Parc Richelieu Co., 51 Que. S.C. 87.

CONTRACT FOR EXCAVATING — REPRESENTATIONS AS TO SOIL — REPRESENTATIONS IN WRITTEN CONTRACT—EVIDENCE OF VERBAL REPRESENTATIONS REJECTED IN VIEW OF WRITTEN REPRESENTATIONS AND TERMS OF CONTRACT—SOIL OF SUCH NATURE THAT CONTRACTOR BELIEVED FROM FURTHER WORK — PAYMENT ONLY AT CONTRACT-PRICE FOR WORK DONE.

Where plaintiff claimed that to induce him to make a contract for excavating with his digging machine the defendants verbally falsely represented that the material to be excavated was sandy loam or sandy loam and clay mixed and was soft and easily worked and free from rock, etc., and that plaintiff's machine was fitted to do the work, etc., the facts that the parties intended the agreement to be put into writing and the written contract contained what defendants proposed to be bound by, viz., the representation that the surface conditions were suitable for machine excavating and that the plaintiff was to excavate only loam, clay and gravel, and would not be bound to excavate rock, etc., or any material which could not reasonably be handled by his machine, led the court to refuse to give effect to evidence of such alleged verbal misrepresentations, as the terms of the contract were notice to him that rock, etc., might possibly be encountered and sufficient to warn him that he should not rely on any other or stronger verbal assurances. The court found that the surface conditions were suitable as represented in the written contract, but that the ground was not suitable and the work was too heavy for plaintiff's machine, for although fair progress was made the plaintiff was entitled to consider the effect on his machine; the plaintiff was therefore entitled to stop work and be paid for what he had done but only at the contract-price though the part done might not be any better than the part undone.

DeVal v. Archibald & Co., [1919] 2 W.W.R. 984.

(§ V C—403)—MUNICIPAL CONTRACT—EROR IN AWARDDING.

Unless the transaction is fraudulent or ultra vires, an error of judgment committed by a municipal body in the awarding of a contract does not give rise to an action at law to set it aside.

Warner-Quinlan Asphalt Co. v. Montreal, 27 D.L.R. 546, 25 Que. K.B. 147. [See also 26 D.L.R. 72, 24 Que. K.B. 499.]

EROR.

He who pleads error in a written contract should demand its rescission; if he does not do so he cannot be relieved from the consequences of his error.

Cyr v. Lecours, 47 Que. S.C. 86.

(§ V C—404)—INSANITY—KNOWLEDGE OF. QURE, as to how far the rule, that it is necessary for a party attacking a document on the ground of insanity to prove knowledge of such insanity on the part of the person supporting it, has been affected by Daily Telegraph Newspaper Co. v. McLaughlin, [1904] A.C. 776; Molyneux v. Natal Land Co., [1905] A.C. 555.

(§ V C—406)—VOLUNTARY CONVEYANCE—UNDUE INFLUENCE—LACHES.

A voluntary deed whereby a woman purports to release to the remainderman her contingent life interest in a farm "in the event of her marrying or leaving the property," procured under undue influence and executed by her without independent advice, will be set aside by the court; delay for twelve years in commencing the action will not disentitle her to relief.

Stonehouse v. Walton, 27 D.L.R. 662, 35 O.L.R. 485, reversing 35 O.L.R. 17.

UNDUE INFLUENCE, DURESS.

Plaintiff's husband purchased certain land from defendant, and caused it to be conveyed to plaintiff, paying a certain amount in cash and the balance by notes without security. Plaintiff's husband having been imprisoned, the defendant appears to have become anxious about his security, and approached the plaintiff in regard thereto, and ultimately procured a reconveyance of the land. It was found on contradictory evidence that this transfer was made by plaintiff without independent advice, for an inadequate consideration, and under the influence of threats by defendant to shoot her unless she reconveyed. In an action to set aside the reconveyance:—Held, that transfer having been made by an ignorant woman in distress, without independent advice, and under the influence of threats, should be set aside.

(§ V C—407)—BREACH—RIGHT TO TERMINATE—SPECIAL CLAUSE—COMPUTATION OF TIME.

Where a contract for the supply of electric current gives the purchaser the right to terminate such contract if the supply is interrupted for a certain period, interruptions caused by such purchaser's own fault or by the act of God are not to be included in computing the length of such interruptions.

Yukon Gold Co. v. Canadian Klondyke Power Co., 47 D.L.R. 146, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 814.

BREACH, REBUDIATION OR DELAY.

The absence of sills from doors, the faulty manner in which bricks are placed, a leaking roof, are not latent defects which can give rise to the redhibitory action in respect of the sale of real property thereon used as dwellings, latent defects being those which a buyer could not possibly have ascertained at the time of the purchase, either personally or by an expert's examination, and which are so inherent to the thing sold that they cannot possibly be remedied; it does not suffice even that they be not apparent if they could be easily ascertained.

Jacobsen v. Peltier, 3 D.L.R. 132, 42 Que. S.C. 35.

A sale of a gas producer, a gas engine, and an air compressor for starting it, will be cancelled by the court, where the vendor was unable, after fair trial, to get the engine to work without a larger fluctuation of speed than the limit of fluctuation warranted against by the contract. Where a contract for the sale of a gas producer, a gas engine, and an air compressor for starting it, provided that the vendor would furnish free of charge for a month, the services of a superintending engineer, also stipulated against liability for defects in design, material, or workmanship, and guaranteed that the engine should develop 50 horse power when operating under certain fuel conditions, and that its speed should not vary more than 2 per cent under changing load conditions, a contract relation in respect to the right of rescission, materially different from that existing in the ordinary sale of a chattel, is created, which will permit the vendee a reasonable time for experimentation and adjustment of the machinery before deciding whether he will rescind. Where the purchaser of a gas producer, a gas engine, and an air compressor for starting it, gave his notes for the purchase price, and after operating it for about two months, informed the vendor by letter that the machinery was working satisfactorily, although he stated the existence of what were then regarded as trifling defects, which were, however, of a more serious nature than they were then supposed to be, such conduct is not destructive of the right to rescind upon it subsequently becoming evident that the machinery would not comply with the written guaranty.

The Canada Producer & Gas Engine Co. v. The Hatley Dairy, Light & Power Co., 4 D.L.R. 399, 22 Que. K.B. 12.

NONPAYMENT—TRUST FUND—ESCROW.

Where under the terms of a contract a fund has been deposited in a bank, in escrow, to be paid by the bank to the defendant from time to time, upon receipt of a letter signed by the parties to the contract, the bank becomes a trustee for both parties, and after the plaintiff has directed payment out of the fund, but it has not been accepted by the defendant, the latter cannot cancel the contract under a provision therein for cancellation in case of nonpayment.

CANCELLATION BY PARTIES—CONTRACT UNDER SEAL—ABANDONMENT.

To successfully set up the cancellation of an agreement under seal, some definite act of cancellation must be proved; mere inaction under the agreement or the handing of the document over by one to the other without a mutual agreement to abandon it will not be considered sufficient, where in view of the surrounding circumstances such was not inconsistent with the continuance of the agreement as between a father and his adopted son.

RESCISSON—GROUNDS OF—BREACH BY DELAY.

Where a person lets a contract for excavation work on an irrigation ditch to a contractor with a stipulation for its completion within a specified time and the contractor knows it is vital to the contractor's interests to actively carry on and promptly complete the work within the stipulated period, the default of the contractor to actively prosecute the work is ground to cancel at the contractor's option.

RESCISSON OF CONTRACT—BREACH OF CONTRACT—DAMAGES.

Where a contract for the sale of an engine is rescinded for a false representation of a material character made by the defendant's representative as to the sufficiency of the engine to do a certain class of work, and the contract itself provided that if the engine was not of sufficient horse-power to do such work the sellers would forthwith supply him with a more powerful engine which would do the work, the plaintiff cannot, in addition to rescinding, obtain damages as for a breach of contract.

Eisler v. Canadian Fairbanks Co., 8 D.L.R. 390, 22 W.L.R. 888, 3 W.W.R. 753.

STIPULATION FOR RESCISSON ON BREACH—PENALTY CLAUSE.

Where there is a stipulation in an agreement that a forfeiture is incurred if on a certain day the agreement remains either wholly or in part unperformed, in which case the real damage, may be either very large or very trifling, such stipulation is to be treated as in the nature of a penalty and the court may relieve against it. [Re Dagenham (Thames) Dock Co., L.R. 8 Ch. 1022, approved.]

BREACH—PERFORMANCE.

The court will not decree the rescission of a contract for breach of an obligation therein, when upon mis-en-demeure and before any judicial action is taken the obligation is eventuated.

Levis v. Bienville, 49 Que. S.C. 156.

BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Where a party to a transaction does not fulfil the conditions of the contract, the other party has the right to demand the entire execution of the agreement and damages, but he cannot demand the cancellation of the transaction, if it be impossible to replace the parties in the same condition as they were before.

Burtner Coal Co. v. Gano Moore Co. & C.P.R., 24 Rev. Leg. 435.

TELEPHONE CONTRACT—BREACH—CANCELLATION.

A shareholder who subscribed to the capital stock of a telephone company upon the faith of a by-law guaranteeing a free telephone service "as long as the said company shall be in existence, to any shareholder owning ten shares to the amount of $500," is quite justified in demanding the cancellation of the contract and reimbursement of the amount of his subscription, when by reason of the disposal of a part of the system, it is impossible for the company to fulfil its agreement with him. The fact that the contract was partially fulfilled, and that the shareholder has, for 10 years, enjoyed the privilege granted, does not constitute a plea in bar in an action for cancellation of the contract.

La Compagnie de Téléphone de Kamouraska v. Houle, 27 Que. K.B. 409.
(§ V C—408)—OPTION—RESCISSON—FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

Defendant's right to avoid an option given plaintiffs to purchase land, because a cheque given by one of them for one-half the consideration of the option was dishonoured, is not affected because the other plaintiff, on receiving notice of cancellation of the option, offered defendant the amount of the cheque. In an action to specifically perform an agreement to convey, wherein defendant vendor asserted forfeiture of plaintiffs' option to purchase because a cheque given by one of them for one-half the consideration was dishonoured, the onus was on plaintiffs to show that the other plaintiff offered to pay the amount of the cheque before defendant declared the option cancelled because of the default.

(§ VI A—410)—SALE OF GOODS—REPRIVATION BY PURCHASER BEFORE PROPERTY IN GOODS HAS PASSED—ACTION FOR PRICE NOT MAINTAINABLE—ACTION FOR DAMAGES.

Where the purchaser of goods repudiates the contract before the property in the goods has passed to him, the vendor cannot maintain an action for the price of the goods sold, but must be content with such damages for nonacceptance as it can prove itself entitled to, based on the difference in value between the contract and the market price at the date of the breach.

Gold Medal Furniture Co. v. Homestead Art. Co., 45 D.L.R. 253.

MONEY PAID TO THE USE OF ANOTHER.

Where the defendant has taken upon himself, by agreement with the plaintiff, the duty of discharging a liability which would otherwise fall on the plaintiff, and by reason of the defendant's breach of such agreement the plaintiff has been compelled to pay, he may recover the amount as money paid to the defendant's use. FRAUD OF VENDOR — RESCISSION OF CONTRACT — RECOVERY OF DEPOSIT BY PURCHASER.

Where a land company was engaged in selling lots from land to which had been given a name similar to that of a town-site owned by a railway company and issued circulars carefully and designedly prepared to create the impression, without explicitly so stating, that they were selling lots from the railway company's town-site, a person is entitled to recover the deposit paid by him on a contract to buy one of the lots under a belief induced by the circulars that he was buying a lot in the railway company's town-site.

REPURCHASE OF STOCK SOLD — RECOVERY OF MONEY PAID.

Where the sales agent of the defendants, an incorporated company empowered to engage in the business of company promotion and of selling corporate shares, induced the plaintiff to buy shares of another company by representing that the defendants had power to repurchase this stock within a certain time if the plaintiff desired to sell, and the defendants received the purchase price therefor from the plaintiff and afterwards refused the purchaser's demand to repurchase the shares, the plaintiff is entitled, upon surrendering the stock to the defendants, to recover the sum paid thereon with interest from the time of his demand on them to repurchase, as the contract was unenforceable.

RECOVERING BACK MONEY PAID — SALE OF LAND — DEFAULT IN PAYMENT OF THE BALANCE OF THE PURCHASE PRICE.

Under an agreement of sale of lands on the small monthly instalment plan where the purchaser after a few monthly payments abandons the contract by omitting to make any further payment for four years, and where the vendors rescind the contract owing to the purchaser's persistent default, the purchaser by such default identifies himself to any return of the payments which he did make.

MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED — FAILURE OF CONSIDERATION.

When money has been received by one person which in justice and equity belongs to another, under circumstances which render the receipt of it a receipt by the defendant to the use of the plaintiff, the latter may recover as for money had and received to his use; and this principle extends to cases where the money has been paid for a consideration that has failed.

Royal Bank of Canada v. The King, 9 D.L.R. 337, [1913] A.C. 283, 49 C.L.J. 230, 33, 23 W.L.R. 315, 3 W.W.R. 994.

RECOVERY BACK OF MONEY PAID ON ACCOUNT OF PURCHASE-PRICE — VENDOR REFUSING TO CARRY OUT TERMS OF CONTRACT.

A purchaser, ready and willing to carry out the terms of an agreement for the purchase of an hotel property, at a stipulated price, who is prevented from carrying out the agreement, by the vendor insisting on payment being made, in addition to the stipulated price, for some goods and chattels, which were included in the subject matter of the agreement for sale, is entitled to a return of the money paid on account of the purchase-price together with such expenses as he may have been put to by reason of the vendor's refusal either to carry out the terms of the contract or to repay the amount paid on account.

B. DEFENCES.

(§ VI B-415)—ACTIONS — DEFENCES — FRAUD.

Fraud which vitiates a contract is a full defence to either an action for damages or for its specific performance. [Slater v. Canada Central R. Co., 25 Gr. 363; Watson v. Hawkins, 24 W.R. 884; and Phelps v. White, 7 L.R. Jr. 160, referred to.]

DEFENCES.

It is no defence to an action by a subcontractor, against the contractor on a bill of exchange and two promissory notes given by the contractor for work done by the subcontractor in connection with a portion of the contract, that the original contract with the Crown entered into by the contractor, contained a stipulation "that the parties of the first part shall not in any way dispose of, sublet, or relet any portion of the work embodied in this contract."

O'Toole v. Ferguson, 5 D.L.R. 808, 46 N.S.R. 165.

ORAL AGREEMENT OF VENDOR TO REPURCHASE — STATUTE OF FRAUDS AS A DEFENCE — ACTION BY VENDEE FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

An agreement of a vendor to repurchase land he had agreed to sell the plaintiff, although unenforceable because within the Statute of Frauds, will constitute a good defence to an action by the vendee for damages for the vendor's refusal to convey. [MacPherson v. Warner, 9 T.L.R. 397, specially referred to.]

Frith v. Alliance Investment Co., 5 D. L.R. 491, 4 A.L.R. 238, 20 W.L.R. 551, 1 W.W.R. 907.

ACTIONS — DEFENCES — CONSIDERATION — REAL PARTY CONTRACTED WITH — ESSENTIAL ELEMENT.

Whenever the consideration of the person with whom one is willing to contract enters as an element into the contract he is willing to make, error with regard to the person destroys the consent and is ground for annulment of the contract. A. IN GENERAL.

(§ VII A-420) — DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC PRINTING — SALE OF GOODS TO GOVERNMENT — AUTHORITY TO CONTRACT.

Where goods are ordered contrary to the formalities of s. 24 of the Public Printing Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 80, but which have been received by the proper officers of the Crown for the use and benefit of the Crown, the Crown, under special circumstances, may be held liable as upon an implied contract. Goods ordered for the Department of Public Printing and Stationery by the Superintendent of Stationery must be ordered in strict conformity with the first clause of s. 24 of R.S.C. 1906, c. 80, and all persons dealing with officers of the Crown must be taken to have knowledge of the statute governing such dealings.

Graham Blank Book Co. v. The King, 14 Can. Ex. 236.

PUBLIC CONTRACT — CONSTRUCTION OF — POWERS OF MUNICIPALITY — FRENCHISE TO SUPPLY ELECTRICITY — MUNICIPAL BY-LAWS — VALIDITY.

A contract in conformity with a by-law, by which a town corporation gives a party, for a period of 10 years, the exclusive privilege to supply electricity in the town for lighting, heating, motive power, electrolysis, metal-working, locomotion and generally for all the purposes for which electricity may be used, with a preference, at the end of that period, of renewal of the contract, over any competitor, for a further period of ten years, at the rates offered by such competitor, is a contract for a period, not of twenty years, but of ten only at the expiration of which it ceases and is determined. Lavergne & Gervais, J.J., dissentientibus. Per Cross, J., such a grant is ultra vires of a town municipality and the contract is therefore null and void.

Boiard v. Town of Grand'mere, 23 Que. K.B. 97.

AS TO ASPHALT FOR PAVING STREETS.

The undertaking to deliver to a municipal corporation all the asphalt which it shall need for the paving of its streets at a price fixed, and the obligation is assumed by the municipal corporation, constitutes a unilateral promise to sell without reciprocal promise to buy and the municipality incurs no liability by abstaining from purchasing. The obligation of the municipality not to allow the contractors for paving its streets to use any other asphalt than that of the plaintiff, is an undertaking on behalf of a third party over whom the defendant corporation has no control and the stipulation is void under the terms of arts. 1028 and 1062 C.C. Que. as impossible of performance.

ARCHITECT — ERECTION OF SCHOOL BUILDING — LIABILITY OF SCHOOL BOARD FOR PAYMENT — ABSENCE OF WRITING AND SEAL — ACCEPTANCE OF PLANS — MISUNDERSTANDING AS TO COST OF BUILDING.

Nicholson v. St. Catharines Collegiate Institute Board, 11 O.W.N. 236.

CROWN — ABSENCE OF ORDER IN COUNCIL AUTHORIZING CONTRACT — NO RECOVERY AGAINST CROWN — PAYMENT UNDER ORDER IN COUNCIL NOT CONSTITUTING RATIFICATION OF CONTRACT OR RECOGNITION OF OTHER WORK DONE.

The suppliers in an action against the Crown were held disentitled to recover payment for certain consulting engineering services in connection with the construction of public edifices on the ground that (although, where necessary, appropriations were made by statute for the construction of the buildings) there was no order in council authorizing the contract. Where one of the payments made to the suppliers in connection with their work was made under authority of an order in council, but the minister's recommendation to council did not, nor did the order in council, refer to a general contract or any contract, nor contained anything from which it could be inferred that the payment was a payment on account or that the services paid for formed a whole with other services, but the amount was simply paid as consultation fees "reheating, plumbing and ventilating, being $200 re Central Power House, Winnipeg, and $300 re the New Parliament Buildings," such payment could not constitute a ratification of the contract so as to entitle the supplier to recover in respect thereof; nor did such recognition of the services paid for extend by implication to other services claimed for and constitute an acceptance of all the work done and entitle the suppliers to payment on a basis of quantum meruit. [Reg. v. Lavory, 5 (Que.) Q.B. 310, distinguished on this point.] As the municipal commissioner has charge only of the maintenance, and not of construction, of the law courts and goals, the construction is a matter to be dealt with by order in council; notwithstanding the facts that the legislature does not make provision for maintenance and construction of law courts and goals, this being provided by the municipalities, and that the municipal commissioner is a body corporate. His department is declared to be a department of the civil service and all functions that are not expressly assigned to him can only be discharged by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. Recommendation made by the court that suppliers be paid a certain amount to which they were deemed equitably entitled, as a matter of grace and favour.

B. ADVERTISEMENTS AND BIDS; LETTING. (§ VII B-427) — PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS — PAVING — LOWEST BIDS — DISCRETION.

There is no clause either in the City Charter of Montreal (art. 21, s. 7), or in the statute 1909 (9 Edw. VII., c. 82), which prescribes as a necessary condition precedent, before awarding a contract for public works, that plans and specifications shall be prepared in all cases; they are only necessary for the construction of buildings, aqueducts, etc.; but a tender imparts sufficient data if it calls "to complete the asphaltic pavement by the penetration method." The word "shall" of art. 564 of the Montreal Charter, that the city shall tender for municipal works, and "when its tender is the lowest, it shall, if it deems expedient, have such work done," merely confers a discretionary and not imperative duty.

Warner-Quinlan Asphalt Co. v. Montreal, 27 D.L.R. 549, 25 Que. K.B. 147. [See also 26 D.L.R. 72; 24 Que. K.B. 499.]

ECCLESIASTIC PERSUASION TO STOP TRADING.

For a person to persuade another to refrain from doing something which the other may lawfully refrain from doing, such as the forbidding by an ecclesiastic of the members of his church from trading with the plaintiff, is not an actionable wrong, although the plaintiff's trade is injured thereby, if there is no allegation of threats, intimidation, molestation, conspiracy, or other unlawful means. [Allen v. Flood, [1898] A.C. 1; Lyon v. Wilkins, [1899] 1 Ch. 253, applied; Quinn v. Leatham, [1901] A.C. 495; Giblan v. Labourers' Union, [1903] 2 K.B. 690, distinguished.]

LOAN—AUTHENTIC DOCUMENT.

A note given to a lender in payment of part of a loan, evidenced by an authentic document in which the debtor acknowledges that he received the full amount lent, is only a contre-lettre and effective only between the contracting parties but cannot be set up against a third party.

Rivet v. Beauvais, 51 Que. S.C. 83.

CONTRIBUTION.

(§ I—1) — BETWEEN WRONGDOERS — COMPANY DIRECTORS—JUDGMENT AGAINST ONE FOR FALSE STATEMENTS IN PROSPECTUS—PRIMA FACIE CASE—WHAT NECESSARY TO ESTABLISH.

In an action by a director of a company against his co-directors for contribution in respect of a judgment against him obtained by one induced to subscribe for shares by misrepresentations contained in the prospectus, in order to recover under s. 92 (4) of the Companies Act, B.C. Stat. 1910, c. 7, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, s. 93, rendering all directors jointly and severally liable for any loss or damage sustained by those subscribing for shares on the faith of the prospectus, the plaintiff must establish such a case as the subscriber himself would be required to make were he the plaintiff in the action. [Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Co., [1900] 1 Q.B. 594, referred to.]

(§ I—3)—JOINT DEFENDANTS—JOINT ACT OF BOTH—LIABILITY.

Where two independent acts of negligence respectively committed by the two defendants caused the injury and each of such acts would have been innocuous but for the other of them, both defendants are liable for the damages and there is no right of contribution or indemnity between them, but the court has a discretion to direct contribution as to the costs awarded to the plaintiff against them.

JOINT DEFENDANTS—LIABILITY ESTABLISHED AGAINST ONE.

Where circumstances in a negligence action brought against two defendants are such that upon the face of the transaction or occurrence it was reasonable to join both and to seek to make each of them liable, and the plaintiff could not know which one was at fault, and, in the event, liability is established only against the one who had contended that the other was solely liable, the court may include in its judgment against the one so found to be liable the plaintiff's costs incurred against the codefendant and also the costs which the plaintiff is ordered to pay to the successful defendant. [Besterman v. British Motor Co., [1914] 3 K.R. 181, followed.]

(§ I—5)—BETWEEN CO-OBLIGORS ON MORTGAGE.

An obligor on a mortgage, or his assignee, who has not paid his share of the mortgage, is not entitled to sue a co-obligor for contribution.

(§ 1-1)—TITLE OR NAME OF BOOK—"PASSING OFF."

Generally the title or name of a book cannot from the subject of copyright, unless the title itself amounts to a literary, scientific, or artistic composition within the meaning of s. 4 of the Copyright Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 70; the words "The New Canadian Bird Book" or "The Canadian Bird Book" are merely descriptive, and unless public reputation of the title of the book is established, or a design of "passing off" is shown, there is no right to complain of marketing the book under a similar name. [Rose v. McLean Publishing Co., 27 O.R. 325, 24 A.R. (Ont.) 240, distinguished.]

WHAT SUBJECT OF.

Copyright does not extend to mere ideas or methods apart from their expression and there is no infringement unless the printed matter itself is copied; consequently a copyrighted "legal directory" in which a cross-reference is given to the names of the law agents of solicitors listed therein by allocating to each agent a special number and placing the same number opposite the name of the solicitor, is not infringed by another directory adopting the same plan, but using a distinct set of numbers, provided that the information is obtained from original sources. [Hollinrake v. Truswell, [1894] 3 Ch. 420, followed; see also MacGillivray on Copyright, 1st ed., p. 15.] It is an infringement of a copyright to make use of the copyrighted original matter of a professional directory as the basis for an opposition directory, although such use is made only after making substantial corrections and alterations due to changed conditions, the information for which was obtained from original sources by the publisher of the later book. [Compare Bain v. Henderson, 16 B.C.R. 318.]

(§ 1-2)—NOTICE OF COPYRIGHT IN BOOKS—STATUTORY FORM.

Since the amendment of the Copyright Act (Can.) in 1908, the notice required to be published in a book for Canadian copyright, i.e., the words "Copyright, Canada" with the name and year, is obligatory in place of the former notice form which was in the words "Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada," etc.; and a notice in the old form is no longer valid. (§ 1-8) INFRINGEMENT—FOREIGN AUTHORS—CONFLICT OF LAWS—BERNE CONVENTION.

The Berne Convention (1886, 49-50 Vict., c. 33) and the Imperial copyright statutes for the protection of the rights of foreign authors and playwrights are in force in Canada, and a foreign author has the right to sue here for the statutory penalties for any infringement of his rights and may bring the action in his own name though a member of a society of authors; an unauthorized representation of a play in a moving picture hall instead of a regular theatre constitutes an infringement.

Joubert v. Geracimo, 35 D.L.R. 683, 26 Que. K.R. 97. [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada quashed (not reported).]

(§ 1-20)—CRIMINAL OFFENCES—SUPPRESSING NAME OF FOREIGN AUTHOR.

The person who suppresses the name of the author of a theatrical play written by a foreigner but protected by the Imperial Statute (1886) 49-50 Vict., c. 33 (Berne Convention), without the consent of the author, and who has it represented in a theatre in Canada, renders himself guilty of a criminal offence falling under s. 508B of the Criminal Code.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS.

An offence committed by two school commissioners who declared themselves ready to accept a gift of $3,000 for obtaining the passing of a by-law, by the school commission of which they were members, for a claim of $9,630 due by the commission, does not come under s. 161 of the Criminal Code, seeing that this section only contemplates municipal councillors and not school commissioners. It falls under s. 69 of the same Code. It constitutes, also, an attempt to commit an offence such as is provided for in s. 72 of the same Code. It is likewise an offence under the common law, if it is proved that one who made the offer of gift had no intention of paying any sum of money, the school commissioners who accepted the offer so made are rendered no less guilty of a criminal offence.

COMPANY LIQUIDATION.

The attorney for the liquidator of an insolvent company has no recourse against the individual creditors for his costs when the assets of the company have been exhausted.

Beaulieu v. Corticelli Silk Co., 14 Que. P.R. 194.

UPON NONPRODUCTION OF DOCUMENT.

Where a defendant, in his defence, takes exception to the nonproduction of a note, and the plaintiff does not file the note in the record until the time of the filing of his answer, the plaintiff should bear the costs of his action up to the time of the filing of the answer.

National Breweries v. Guillemette, 50 Que. S.C. 329.

TRESPASS ACT—SMALL DEBTS COURT ACT.

Where an action under the Trespas Act, P.S.B. 1911, c. 230, is brought before a stipendiary magistrate, he can adjudicate thereon only by virtue of the powers conferred upon him by subs. 1 of s. 4 of the Small Debts Court Act, R.N.B.C. 1911, c. 57; the court in which he sits is the Small Debts Court and no fees or costs, other than disbursements, can be taxed against the unsuccessful party.

Farquharson v. Cortesi (B.C.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 193.

TRESPASS—PAYMENT INTO COURT—AMENDMENT OF DEFENCE.

Where in an action for trespass against a railway company the defendant made a payment into court after defence, to the knowledge of counsel for the plaintiff, although it did not amend the defence accordingly, but the Trial Judge stated that he had intended to allow the amendment, that he thought he had done so, that leave was given at the commencement of the trial, and the trial proceeded on that assumption, and the plaintiff took chances on a decision in his favour, held that an order giving the plaintiff costs up to the leave to amend the defence had been properly made.

Gentles v. Byrne, 14 O.W.N. 4.

ACTION FOR MONEY DEMAND—DEFENCE OF FRAUD—FAILURE TO ESTABLISH—ALLOWANCE OF FULL COSTS.

In an action, to recover a balance of the price of machinery sold by the plaintiffs to the defendant, the defendant set up fraud and misrepresentation, and at the trial failed to substantiate his allegations; the trial lasted four days, almost wholly taken up by the defence;—Held, that the plaintiffs should be allowed their full costs against the defendant, irrespective of the statutory limit of $300.

Case Threshing Machine Co. v. Godin, 29 W.L.R. 26.

DELAY OF DELIVERY OF DEFENCE—COSTS.

Where defendants file a demand for notice of proceedings and postpone a delivery of defence until after they have received notice of an application for judgment in default of defence they should bear the costs of that application so rendered abortive by their action.

Haggas v. Schickendanstz, 7 W.W.R. 996.

INTEREST ON.

A defendant, who pays costs prior to a successful appeal to the Supreme Court, is not upon their return entitled to interest upon such costs.

Royal Bank v. Whieldon (B.C.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 58.

APPLICATION OF COSTS R. 29.

Rule 29 of Rules as to costs applied, and although plaintiff recovered judgment on his claim for more than the defendants' judgment on their counterclaim, the defendants (the purchasers), being much the more successful in the action, were alone allowed to tax and recover costs.

Yeast v. Knight & Watson, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 467.

CLAIM MADE AT TRIAL—OPPOSED—GENERAL COSTS GIVEN.

Plaintiff's claim for recognition as a shareholder of defendant company was not made until the trial, but as the claim was opposed by defendant's counsel plaintiff was given his general costs of the action.

Lindsay v. Red Jacket Rural Telephone Co., [1919] 3 W.W.R. 31.

(§ 1—2)—INTERLOCUTORY MOTION—NEW POINT.

Costs should not be refused the successful party upon an interlocutory motion merely because the point of practice raised is new in that jurisdiction.

LIABILITY FOR—ON DISMISSAL—AMENDMENT OF PLEADINGS AT TRIAL.

A defendant cannot be required to pay the general costs of an action for damages which wholly fails. While the court may, on allowing the defendant to amend his pleading at the trial, by setting up the Statute of Frauds, impose terms for the payment of the costs so far incurred, and may relieve against such costs if it turns out that there was a good defence before the added plea, the court cannot impose costs on the defendant where such leave was granted unconditionally and the action was dismissed, particularly where there was a good defence apart from the Statute of Frauds.

REFUSAL OF, ON DISMISSAL—DEFENDANTS JOINED AND PLEADING WITHOUT SEVERING OF DEFENCE.

Where the owner of an automobile and the person who was running it at the time of an accident were joined as defendants and, without severing their defences, were represented at the trial by the same counsel, costs will not be granted either defendant where the damage action was dismissed as to the owner of the automobile because the person operating it was not his servant, and as to the latter because of the plaintiff's own negligence in the operation of his car.

The B. & R. Co., v. McLeod, 7 D.L.R. 579, 5 A.L.R. 176, 22 W.L.R. 274, 2 W.W.R. 1093.

DISMISSAL OF ACTION—PLAINTIFF MISLED BY DEFENDANT'S CONDUCT.

Upon the dismissal of an action for damages for the breach of an agreement to sell land, upon the ground that those who purported to act for the defendant had no authority to make such contract, costs will not be awarded against the plaintiff, who was misled by the defendant's conduct into the belief that he was dealing with a person who had the right to contract with him. Boland v. Philip, 5 D.L.R. 81, 3 O.W.N. 1562, 22 O.W.R. 819.

SUCCESSFUL DEFENDANT—SLANDER ACTION.

Costs of defence may be refused in an action for slander to a successful defendant who is found not to have used the alleged slanderous words, if by his pleading he has set up not only a denial of the use of the words but also a plea that if he had used them they were true, if the evidence shows that they were not true.

DISMISSAL OF ACTION—AMOUNT AWARDED DEFENDANTS.

Where an action is dismissed on the ground that the court is deprived of jurisdiction by a statute, the defendant may be allowed only such costs as he would have been entitled to, if he had specially pleaded the statute and then moved for judgment on the pleadings.

Sandwich Land Improvement Co. v. Windsor Board of Education, 3 D.L.R. 423, 3 O.W.N. 1150.

WHERE SUCCESS DIVIDED—PART OF ACTION DISMISSED.

In an action for various sums of money claimed to be due the plaintiff from the defendant, the defendant, among other defences, asserted that no demand was ever made for one of the sums claimed to be due, and also filed a statement of account between the parties shewing the balance due the plaintiff and paid the same into court and the statement was found to be correct, and the defences were upheld, except that the demand aforesaid was found to have been made, and there was judgment for the plaintiff for the amount paid into court, the plaintiff should have costs up to the trial and costs of trial as to the issue on the demand and the defendant his costs of trial on the issues in which he was successful.

RIGHT TO RECOVER—IRREGULAR LOCAL OPTION ELECTION—STATUS OF PROMOTERS AND MUNICIPALITY.

Where both the promoters of a by-law to repeal a local option by-law and the municipality were cognizant of gross irregularities in the submission and voting and did not protest, neither party is entitled to costs in an action for a declaration that the by-law was irregular.

Stoddard v. Town of Owen Sound, 8 D.L.R. 932, 27 O.L.R. 221.

UNSUCCESSFUL APPLICANT—IN LUNACY PROCEEDINGS.

The unsuccessful applicant for an order declaring lunacy may be ordered to pay the costs of an issue directed upon his application.

ON SETTLEMENT OR COMPROMISE.

A defendant who settles a case directly with the plaintiff prevents the fulfilment of the conditional right of plaintiff's attorney to payment of his costs, and the fulfilment of such condition being so prevented by the debtor the condition becomes absolute. (C.C. 1084.)

Scale v. Bowers, 1 D.L.R. 632.

COSTS OF ONE DEFENDANT UNPROVIDED FOR—REMEDY—PRACTICE.

Benedict v. Brandon, 3 D.L.R. 887, 3 O.W.N. 1508.

APPEAL FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION—QUASHING FOR NONPROOF OF NOTICE—HEARING AND DETERMINING—COSTS UNDER RECOURSE.

Although Cr. Code, s. 755 applies to authorize an order against the appellant for costs of an appeal not prosecuted or entered only in case a valid notice of appeal has been given from a summary conviction, the court has power under Code, s. 751 to award costs where the appeal is brought on for hearing, but the defendant (respondent) succeeds in having the same quashed or dismissed upon objection taken that notice of appeal had not been served upon him and that there was no sufficient proof of compliance with an alternative method of service available to the appellant, viz., service upon the trial justice. [R. v. Edelston, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 155, disapproved; Ex parte Seagoe, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 109, considered.] Where the appellant has filed his recognition in the statutory form on an appeal from a summary conviction he thereby submits to an award of costs against him on the quashing of the appeal for failure to prove compliance with the statutory prerequisites, and this apart from the power given under Cr. Code 751.

Pakkala v. Hammukela (No. 1), 8 D.L.R. 34, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, 2 W.W.R. 911.

ON ADJUDGEMENT.

Where immediately before the time set for the trial of an action the party who finally prevailed changed his solicitor and was therefore not ready to proceed to trial at that time, the other party will be entitled to the costs occasioned by the delay and the prevailing party will be entitled only to the same fees for the attendance of his witnesses as if the trial had proceeded on the day fixed for it.

MONEY PAID INTO COURT BY DEFENDANT—APPLICATION FOR COSTS UNDER R. 18 DISTRICT COURT RULES.

A defendant paid a certain sum of money into court with his defence and denied liability. Judgment was subsequently given to the plaintiff for this amount and costs. On motion to vary the judgment on appeal and have the costs of the action governed by r. 18 District Court Rules, costs were awarded to the defendant in the action subsequent to the delivery of the defence. ON DISMISSAL—ABSENCE OF OFFERING ANY EVIDENCE—PREFERENCE.

HIGHER SCALE—DEGREET OF DEFENDANT.

Flagrant deceit on the part of the defendant in the dealings complained of is a good ground for allowing the plaintiff costs on the higher scale, although the amount recovered is within the lower scale tariff.

ON DISMISSAL—TRADE-MARK REGISTRATION—PETITION AGAINST REFUSAL TO REGISTER.

Costs incurred by the trade-mark branch of the Department of Agriculture in successfully opposing a petition to the Exchequer Court for an order to register a trade-mark may be ordered to be taxed against the petitioner.

Re Noelle, 14 D.L.R. 385, 13 E.L.R. 366.

DISCRETION TO REFUSE ON DISMISSAL—JOINING UNWARRANTED DEFENCE.

Costs may be refused the ship owners on dismissal of an action for seamen's wages, if the owners, in addition to the defence upon which they succeeded, have pleaded other alleged grounds of defence not warranted by the facts, and thereby added to the expense of the trial.

ON DISMISSAL—SPECIAL POWER IN ALIMONY ACTIONS.

The court may in a proper case order the defendant husband to pay his wife's full costs of an alimony action where satisfied that his conduct has been reprehensible although insufficient to constitute legal cruelty so as to entitle her to a decree.

Moon v. Moon, 9 D.L.R. 679, 6 S.L.R. 41, 23 W.L.R. 153, 3 W.W.R. 836.

ON APPEAL—ON GRANTING RELIEF ON QUESTION FIRST RAISED ON APPEAL.

Costs will be refused on granting relief from a forfeiture where such relief was not claimed in the pleadings, and was raised for the first time in the appellate court.

ON APPEAL—CORRECTING ERROR WHICH MIGHT HAVE BEEN CORRECTED BELOW.

Costs of appeal will not be awarded an appellant who succeeds only in respect of an error which was a mere oversight in the judgment appealed from and which it could be assumed would have been corrected had application been made to the trial judge.

Gordon v. Gowling, 14 D.L.R. 517, 5 O.W.N. 269, 25 O.W.R. 276.

ON APPEAL—TO PRIVY COUNCIL—WHEN CHARGEABLE AGAINST UNSUCCESSFUL APPELLANT.

An appellant should be charged with the costs of an unsuccessful appeal to the Privy Council as of the date when the judgment therefor is made a judgment of the court in which it is to be enforced.

ON APPEAL—NEW TRIAL.

On the allowance of an appeal from a judgment granting a nonsuit, on the defendant's application, at the close of plaintiff's case, the costs of the appeal and of the abortive trial may be awarded against him as a term of granting a new trial to enable him to adduce evidence in answer.

APPEAL—PETITION TO REVISE—DELAY PENDING APPEAL—JUSTIFICATION.

The party ordered to pay costs under a judgment of the Court of King's Bench, Que. (appeal side), is justified in delaying his petition to revise the plaintiff's bill of costs in the Superior Court until an appeal from the King's Bench, Que., to the Privy Council on the merits has been disposed of, particularly where the plaintiffs had not tried to execute the judgment in their favour until after the Privy Council decision affirming same. TAXATION—COUNTERCLAIM.

Where the plaintiff fails in his action and the counterclaiming defendants succeed on their counterclaim, the rule is to allow the defendants their general costs in the action and additional costs so far as the costs have been increased by reason of the counterclaim. [Sabey v. Hilton, 11 Ch. D. 416, and Atlas Metal Co. v. Miller, [1898] 2 Q.B. 500, applied; Les Soeurs v. Forest, 29 Man. L.R. 301, applied.]

ON SET-OFF OR COUNTERCLAIM—SCALE OF.
The costs of a counterclaim should be on the scale of the court in which the action is brought, unless otherwise ordered by the court. [Foster v. Viegel, 13 P.R. 133, followed.]

Costs in an action under the War Relief Act, 8 Geo. V. 1918, Alta. c. 24, dismissed because of a technicality, should be awarded to the defendant, but as the plaintiff's right of action is unaffected, these costs should be set off against any costs which may be awarded him in a new action. Any claim by the defendant's solicitors to a lien for costs will not interfere with such set-off. [Pödephatt v. Leith (No. 2), [1916], 2 Ch. 108, followed; *Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. McLeod v. Sault Ste. Marie Public School Board, 29 D.L.R. 661, 36 O.L.R. 415.

ACTION FOR BREACH OF WARRANTY—COUNTERCLAIM.

A defendant counterclaiming for the price of goods in an action for breach of warranty of sale will not be allowed his costs where the counterclaim is undisputed and the plaintiff otherwise succeeds on all the issues of the action, notwithstanding that on appeal by the plaintiff and cross-appeal by defendant the amount of damages allowed for the breach had been reduced.

ACTION FOR BALANCE OF PRICE OF GOODS—DISPUTE AS TO QUANTITY SOLD—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE—FAILURE OF PLAINTIFF ON MAIN ISSUE—RECOVERY OF SMALL SUM—PLAINTIFF ORDERED TO PAY DEFENDANT'S COSTS—DISCRETION OF TRIAL JUDGE—JUDICATURE ACT, 8S. 24, 74, (1)—APPEAL.

The plaintiff sued the defendants for $1,432.65, the balance of the price of a stock of glue which he alleged he had sold to the defendants. There was a dispute between the parties as to the quantity of glue that had been sold. The glue was in two lots, one a small lot, upon the plaintiff's own premises, the other a larger lot, in a warehouse. Both lots were sent to the defendants; they refused to accept the larger lot, and endeavoured to return it, but the plaintiff would not receive it back. The trial judge (there was no jury) gave judgment for the plaintiff for the price of the small lot only, $162.85, and directed that the plaintiff should pay the defendants' costs of the action, less the $162.85.—Held, upon appeal, that the finding of the Trial Judge upon the evidence could not be disturbed, and the court could not interfere with his discretion as to the costs; ss. 24 and 74 (1) of the Judicature Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56. APPEAL INVOLVING SEVERAL ESTATES.

In an appeal asserted by defendant against several parties two estates were concerned, the position of the one being somewhat different from the other. There was but one appeal and one argument although a third counsel was permitted to be heard. The appeal was dismissed:—Held, that under the circumstances, two bills of costs should be allowed, but, as the brief and counsel fee would be the principal items, the aggregate of the two bills should not greatly exceed what would be allowed if there was but one bill against defendant.

(§ 1—6)—BORNAGE — CONTENTATION OF BOUNDARIES — AMENDMENT.

In an action on borinage the plaintiff who demands a boundary following his possession and his title, but who alleges that he holds land of a greater extent than that allowed him by the judgment, should not for that reason be condemned to pay the costs of the action. On the contrary, the defendant who contests the necessity of the borinage and asks that the action be dismissed, and who finally acquiesces in the borinage only during the hearing by an amendment to his defence, should be condemned to pay the costs of the action.

§ 1-8.—IN EXPROPRIATION MATTERS.

On information exhibited by the Attorney General of Canada in pursuance of s. 2 of the Expropriation Act (c. 143, R.S.C. 1906), to determine the amount of compensation for the expropriation of land for a public work of Canada, the court may allow the defendant the costs of the action notwithstanding that his claim is extravagant and is materially reduced by the court.

The King v. McLaughlin, 26 D.L.R. 373, 15 Can. En. 417.

IN EMINENT DOMAIN PROCEEDINGS.

The successful owner taxing costs against a railway company in expropriation proceedings under s. 199 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, must file an affidavit of increase as regards items of disbursement which he seeks to charge as reasonable expenses actually incurred, and it is not a valid objection to their allowance that the items do not correspond to any particular items of the tariff of costs promulgated by the court of superior jurisdiction in the province. Costs should be allowed for everything necessarily or reasonably done, and for every disbursement necessarily or reasonably made in order to properly present his case to the arbitrators, and the taxation should be on a solicitor and client basis rather than under the practice prevailing in party and party taxations. INTERPLEADER ISSUE.

In an interpleader issue in respect of an automobile seized by judgment creditors on execution which was found to be the property of the debtor's wife no costs should be taxed against the creditors where the wife permitted the machine to be registered in her husband's name.

Kelly v. Macklem, 3 D.L.R. 58, 3 O.W.N. 873.

EXPROPRIATION — ARBITRATORS' FEES.

The arbitrators' fees are not to be included in and made part of the award in an expropriation for railway purposes; such fees are governed by s. 199 of the Railway Act, Can., and are to be taxed if the parties do not agree upon the amount.

REQUIREMENTS OF STATUTORY NOTICE AS CONDITION PRECEDENT TO COSTS — EXPROPRIATION BY RAILWAY.

A railway company expropriating lands must give the notice contemplated by the statute, i.e., offering to pay "a certain sum or rent, as compensation," in order to be entitled to costs in the event of the arbitrators finding that the offer of the company was sufficient for compensation. The fact that a landowner has not appeared from or moved to set aside an award made in arbitration proceedings to ascertain the compensation to be paid for the taking of his lands by a railway, does not preclude him from objecting to the payment of the company's costs of arbitration with which the arbitrators assumed to deal although without jurisdiction to do so.

OF ARBITRATION — RAILWAY EXPROPRIATION AMOUNT OF AWARD.

The costs of an arbitration in expropriation proceedings under the Railway Act (Can.) are fixed and payable under the terms of that statute, and are not subject to variation in an action by the landowner for trespass and compensation in which the expropriation and award are set up in defence. The taxed costs of the arbitration are not to be added to the amount of the award in fixing the liability for costs of the arbitration under s. 199 of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, in expropriation proceedings.

INTERPLEADER PROCEEDINGS—FINAL OR INTERLOCUTORY—"ACTION."

Interpleader proceedings arising out of a seizure by the sheriff of goods under an execution against A., which goods are claimed by B., are interlocutory proceedings, and the costs of an interpleader order, made on the application of the sheriff, should be taxed and allowed according to item 9 of tariff "A" (Pr. of 1913). Rule 3 (b)—"Action" shall include proceedings for relief by interpleader—does not change the clearly established law that interpleader proceedings in an action are interlocutory; it affects merely the right of appeal.

Pike v. Laver, 12 S.L.R. 78, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 420.

MUNICIPAL EXPROPRIATION.

A municipality which expropriates land under the Cities and Towns Act is bound to pay the expropriated party the costs occasioned by the expropriation. [See Town of St. Lambert v. Boissy, 17 Que. P.R. 221.] Recovery of these costs may be by ordinary action. The acceptance by the expropriated party, of a sum awarded by the arbitrators, does not constitute an abandonment of his right to recover the costs.

Caron v. Town of Beauconsfield, 18 Que. P.R. 1, 50 Que. S.C. 325.

Where land is expropriated for public purposes the owner is entitled to all the costs and expenses reasonably incurred by him in prosecuting his cause to a finish so that the indemnity awarded to him shall not be diminished. In an expropriation under the Quebec law the court should tax not only the costs given by art. 79 of the tariff of attorneys but also the costs of the arbitration which comprise the disbursements and other costs reasonably incurred by the party expropriated. Therefore the advocates of the latter, although they may have been engaged in several expropriation cases at the same time, are entitled to the fees mentioned in arts. 24, 43 and 44 of the tariff and to the sum of $15 for preparing a factum for the arbitration. The arbitrators are entitled to $5 a day in each case even when they proceed with several cases on the same day if there was a prior agreement therefor between the parties. The prothonotary also, on the reply or defence of the owner being filed, is entitled to his fee as in ordinary causes.

Shawinigan Water & Power Co. v. Magnan, 13 Que. P.R. 365.

(1) By virtue of the law of Quebec concerning the expropriations by the railroad companies, the attorneys have the right to costs as between the parties only and not as between the attorney and client. (2) Article 79 of the tariff regulates the fees of the attorneys in the cases of expropriation, when there is no other special provision of the law which fixes such fees. (3) The railroad company which abandons the expropriation will be held to pay the stenographic fees if it has consented that the depositions should be thus taken. (4) The attorney for the party against whom the proceedings have been started, when the company abandons its expropriation, has no right to the fee of $80 provided by art. 24 of the tariff for litigation, neither to one of $25 provided by art. 43, for general fee of inquiry, neither to one of $30 for additional fee in an action exceeding $1000, such as provided by art. 5 of the tariff.

Lachme, Cartier & Maisonneuve R. Co. v. McArthur & Co., 13 Que. P.R. 254.

TAXATION OF COSTS—EXPROPRIATION FOR PROVINCIAL RAILWAYS—TARIFF.

Cases in expropriation for the construction of provincial railways should be taxed as cases taken to the Superior Court, and according to the amount granted by the arbitrators' award, because the plaintiff company only brings an action based on the rights given to it by law and public interest.

La Baie Ha Ha R. Co. v. Coulombe, 15 Que. P.R. 285.

INTERPLEADER ISSUE—LIABILITY OF EXECUTION CREDITORS.

Where an interpleader tried under r. 569 (Sask.) the execution creditors join on the issue as defendants and the claimant is successful and costs are given to the sheriff and claimant, the execution creditors are jointly and severally liable for those costs which may not be apportioned. [Carter v. Stewart, 7 P.R. 85, followed.] The Creditors' Relief Act, R.S.S. c. 63, s. 3, subs. (c), has not altered the above rule.

Macdonald v. Nicholson, 31 W.L.R. 510; 8 S.L.R. 187, 8 W.W.R. 963.

OFF MOTION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ARBITRATOR—VANCOUVER INCORPORATION ACT, s. 133 (9).

Matte v. City of Vancouver (B.C.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 53.

(§ 1-9)—LIABILITY OF EXECUTOR—DISCRETION OF COURT—REVIEW.

Where an action is defended by an executor and judgment rendered against him, the court has the discretion, where there is an insufficiency of assets in the estate, to award the costs against the executor personally, to be paid out of his own estate; such discretion is not subject to review.

Basley v. Hand, 48 D.L.R. 384, 45 O.L.R. 272, affirming 15 O.W.N. 170.

ACTION AGAINST EXECUTOR—APPORTIONMENT.

Where an action against an executor is not unreasonable, and the plaintiff failed in the main issues both in the action and on appeal, the costs will not be apportioned, but each party will be made to bear his own costs both of the action and appeal.

RIGHT TO ALLOWANCE—ACTION AGAINST EXECUTORS.

On judgment against executors on a note given by their testator, but not produced, costs should not be awarded where it is not their fault that the note has not been produced, and they had no knowledge, until after the close of the pleadings, of the existence of letters upon which the liability rests; but the executors are entitled to be paid their costs, as between solicitor and client, out of the estate.

Board of Governors of King's College, Windsor v. Poole, 11 D.L.R. 116, 24 O.W.R. 601, 4 O.W.N. 1293.

TRUSTEE'S COSTS.

A person appointed by the court as sequestrator to an immovable concerning the ownership of which two or more parties are litigating has a joint and several recourse for the costs of his administration against all the parties to the said litigation.

Maillet v. Fontaine, 2 D.L.R. 218, 21 Que. K.B. 426, 18 Rev. de Jur. 470.

EXECUTORS.

Where the defendants are sued in a special capacity and are condemned to pay costs, the condemnation cannot be construed to be personal against them, unless the judgment says so. If three testamentary executors are sued and contest the action together, two only cannot be condemned to costs, the three should be condemned jointly.

McDonald v. Saunderson, 50 Que. S.C. 422.

AGAINST SOLICITOR—ACTION IMPROPERLY INSTITUTED.

Where an action is begun by a solicitor on the instructions of a managing director not endowed with power to institute proceedings, the solicitor and not the managing director should be ordered to pay costs. The Standard Construction Co. v. Crabb, 7 S.L.R. 365, 30 W.L.R. 151, 7 W.W.R. 719.

(§ 1-10)—DISCRETION IN GIVING OR REFUSING—AWARDING AGAINST SUCCESSFUL PARTY—UNTRUE AND UNCALLED FOR ISSUES.

Where a plaintiff sets out various allegations and claims which at the trial are either found untrue or are not proceeded with, the general costs of the action will be given against him, although successful as to a portion of his claim, the principle being, that where matters in controversy are capable of being split into separate heads, each involving a different class of evidence, the maxim applies that he who loses shall pay, although they may not constitute "issues" in the pleader's sense. [Whitmore v. O'Reilly, [1906] 2 Ir. K.B. 357; Forster v. Farquhar, [1893] 1 K.B. 564, followed.]

ALBERTA RULES—TAXATION—DISCRETION OF JUDGE.

While the general purpose of r. 769 (Alta.) is to provide for a general cleaning up of all costs so that the parties may know exactly where they stand, the rules are merely rules of procedure and the rules generally and r. 769 in particular should not be considered to have so exceedingly stringent a force as to leave the defaulting party absolutely helpless where the delay has been slight. The court has power either under r. 556 or under the statute giving the court power to relieve against forfeitures to give relief and allow the costs to be taxed, the length of the delay is a question for the discretion of the judge.

Rowan & Cuthill v. Patison, 49 D.L.R. 111, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 516.

DISCRETION — LABEL ACTION — REFUSING COSTS TO SUCCESSFUL PLAINTIFF.

Pickels v. Lane, 16 D.L.R. 347, 47 N.S.R. 465.

DISCRETION OF COURT IN GIVING OR REFUSING.

Upon holding that the plaintiff who plowed and improved land under a contract which required it to be plowed to a certain depth, was not entitled to compensation, since the inspector, whose decision was, by the terms of the contract, to be final, refused to approve of the work, the court may exercise its discretion in refusing to award costs to the successful defendant where it appears that, notwithstanding the defective manner of carrying out the contract, the defendant would be able to raise a fair crop of the class for which the work was done.

DISCRETION OF TAXING OFFICER—INTERFERENCE WITH—ABSENCE OF ANY GOVERNING PRINCIPLE—RIGHT TO REVIEW.

The rule that, where a taxing officer has not made any mistake in principle, and the amount allowed by him as remuneration for a solicitor's services is not so grossly large or so extremely small as to be beyond all question improper, the court should not interfere with his discretion, is not applicable to services not governed by any authorized tariff, but in such cases the principle is that the solicitor is to be allowed the value of his services, and such value is a question of fact to be determined by proper evidence, and, while the taxing officer is at liberty freely to apply his own special knowledge and experience, his conclusion is just as much open to review as that of any other judicial officer dealing with a question of fact, e.g., the assessment of damages by a judge at a trial without a jury.

DISCRETION OF COURT—ABRIDGING THE EVENT.

It is only in exceptional cases for which the reasons should be given that the court may exercise its discretion, and avoid charging all costs to the losing party (C.P. 549). [C.P.R. Co. v. Couture, 2 Que. Q.B. 302, specially referred to.]

GIVING OR REFUSING—SET-OFF OF EXTRA COSTS—VERDICT FOR SUM WITHIN INTERIOR JURISDICTION.

Gross misconduct of the defendant causing the death for which damages are awarded against him under the Fatal Accidents Act (Ont.) constitutes a good ground for refusing a set-off in favour of defendant against the verdict of his extra costs of defending in the High Court when the verdict was for an amount within County Court jurisdiction.

Bartlett v. Bartlett Mines, 2 D.L.R. 904, 3 O.W.N. 1155.

DISCRETION—REFUSAL WHERE SUCCESS WHOLLY ON TECHNICAL GROUNDS.

That the respondent was protected from paying for extras under the building contract sued upon by reason of a condition requiring the written sanction of the architect, while only a verbal order of the latter could be shown, is a sufficient ground for exercising the discretion of the Appellate Court in refusing to award to the respondent the costs of successfully opposing an appeal upon which it was found that the appellant would be entitled to recover for the extras, but for the condition; but the Appellate Court may, in such case, give the successful respondent the option of taking his costs of the appeal on consenting to pay for the extras.

DISCRETION IN GIVING OR REFUSING—INDEMNITY RIGHT AGAINST CODEFENDANT AS TO COSTS—TRUSTEES FOR COMPANY BONDHOLDERS.

Where a claim for a mechanics' lien against the lands and building could not succeed because the registration of the lien claim was late, but judgment is given the plaintiff against the principal defendant (a company) with which the contract was made for the balance owing thereon, the court may properly refuse costs to the trustees for the bondholders joined as defendants in the action in respect of their title interest in the lands, where the trustees defended by the same solicitors as their codefendant and were entitled to be indemnified by their codefendant against their costs of defence.

DISCRETION—GIVING COSTS.

On dismissal of an action to compel defendant to carry out a purchase at an auction sale of land misdescribed in the advertisement of sale as being located at "No. 171 Chesley street," whereas the property was situated on an alley, defendant is entitled to costs, where the misleading character of the description resulted from the fault of plaintiff or his agent, for reliance upon which the defendant was not to blame.

SUCCESSFUL PARTY—APPLICATION TO STRIKE OUT PORTION OF DEFENCE—DISCRETION IN GRANTING.

Where a plaintiff comes to enforce a legal right and completely succeeds and has been guilty of no misconduct, there are no materials upon which the court can exercise a discretion, and the plaintiff is entitled to his costs. SURVEYS—WITNESSES EQUIPPING THEMSELVES TO TESTIFY.

Bogardus v. Hill, 25 W.W.L.R. 436.

UNNECESSARY PROCEEDINGS.

Plaintiff made a number of motions for delay of trial by reason of absence of one K., who he claimed was the agent of defendants and bound defendants by acceptance of an order and was a necessary witness. The evidence of K. was finally procured through interrogatories. The court found that whether or not the order bound the defendants, a contract was subsequently made by plaintiff with defendants on the basis of that order; so that it never was necessary to delay the trial on account of K.'s absence, or to take his evidence. The plaintiff was therefore not allowed costs of the interrogatories and the defendants were given costs for the motions for delay of trial.

ADDING MUNICIPALITY AS DEFENDANT.

Costs may properly be allowed a plaintiff where it appears reasonable and proper for him to add as a party defendant a municipality chargeable with negligence. [Till v. Town of Oakville, 21 D.L.R. 113; Besterman v. British Motor Cab Co., [1914] 3 K.B. 181, followed.]

Burrows v. G.T.R. Co., 23 D.L.R. 173, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 183, 34 O.L.R. 142.

MUNICIPAL ACTIONS.

Although the question of costs is a matter for the discretion of the Trial Judge, which will ordinarily not be interfered with on appeal unless there has been a misapprehension of fact or disregard of principle, the general guiding principle is that the party who succeeds is entitled to costs against the unsuccessful party; but a municipality, on whose behalf a ratepayer successfully contests the validity of an agreement with a company, cannot be properly taxed with the costs of the codefendant company. [Garipey v. Greene, 23 D.L.R. 797, referred to.]

MUNICIPAL MATTERS—BY-LAW.

A statute ratifying and validating a by-law illegally passed by a municipality as to the "pending causes in respect to the costs thereof" enables the court to impose upon the municipality the costs of an action then pending, if the nullities alleged in the action would have been sufficient to quash the by-law without the Remedial Act.

PUBLIC INVESTIGATION—COSTS—S. REF. [1909], ARTS. 5940, 5948.

A person who receives a notice from an Examining Judge, in pursuance of art. 5949, S. ref. [1909], of an investigation held at the request of a municipal corporation, which in the request names this person, may consider himself as a defendant in the action. When the judge in this report declares that the municipality asking for the enquiry should pay the costs, including the fees of the Examining Judge, the municipality ought also to pay the expenses of the defendant's solicitors at the enquiry.

City of Hull v. Couture, 28 Que. K.B. 135.

CROWN COSTS ACT—APPEAL UNDER SUCCESSION ACT.

In an appeal from a judge's decision on an application under s. 43 of the Succession Duty Act to fix the succession duty taxable on an estate the court has no power to order costs against the Crown, as the Crown costs Act applies.

Leve Van Horne Estate (No. 2), [1919] 3 W.W.R. 598. [See 47 D.L.R. 529.]

(1) 12—CERTIORARI—MOTION TO QUASH CONVICTION.

The fact that a defect in the first conviction was cured by an amended conviction made out and returned to a certiorari before the launching of the motion to quash, is not a ground for depriving the prosecutor of his costs of such motion. (R. v. McAnn, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 110, 4 B.C.R. 287, distinguished.)

R. v. Shatford, 38 D.L.R. 366, 51 N.S.R. 722, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 284.

PENAL CASES—SECURITY FOR—S. 750 CR. CODE—CONSTRUCTION.

Section 750 of the Code as amended by c. 9 of the Statutes of 1909 (Dom.) requiring security for costs to be given by the appellant, has in contemplation only an appeal on the part of the accused. Where the Crown is appellant no security is required.

CRIMINAL LIBEL.

The Trial Judge may himself tax the costs payable to defendant under Cr. Code, s. 1045, by the private prosecutor on dismissal of a criminal prosecution for defamatory libel.

R. v. Fournier; Martin v. Fournier, 28 D.L.R. 379, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 430, 25 Que. K.B. 356, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 443.

ON CERTIORARI.

It is a ground for granting costs to the successful applicant for a certiorari that a term is imposed that no action shall be brought for proceeding under the conviction which is set aside.

R. v. Hubley, 28 D.L.R. 376, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 102, 49 N.S.R. 281.

ON CONVICTION UPON SUMMARY TRIAL.

It is for the magistrate or other official holding a summary trial under Part 16 of the Code to fix the costs imposed upon a conviction, the tariff of costs provided for summary conviction proceedings under Part 15 being excluded from operation under Part 16, by virtue of Code s. 798; and the court will not interfere on certiorari with the amount awarded if they are fixed with-in reason and are not shewn to include anything which ought not to have been included.

R. v. Emery, 33 D.L.R. 556, 10 A.L.R. 139, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 337.

ON QUASHING SUMMARY CONVICTION.

Under the British Columbia practice, the court on quashing a summary conviction has jurisdiction to award costs against the prosecutor. [Re Narain Singh, 13 B.C.R. 477, applied; R. v. Bennett (1902), 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 456, 4 O.L.R. 205, not followed.]

R. v. Ferguson (B.C.), 33 D.L.R. 42, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 220.

CRIMINAL MATTERS—CERTIORARI PROCEEDINGS.

No power is conferred under N.W.T. Crown r. 39, in force in Alberta under the Act, 4-5 Edw. VII, (Can.) c. 3, s. 16, upon the court to order the Crown directly to pay the costs of the successful applicant in certiorari proceedings about a criminal matter, although the application was opposed by counsel instructed by the Attorney-General.

IN CRIMINAL CASES—VIOLATION OF NOVA SCOTIA TEMPERANCE ACT.

On conviction of a violation of the N.S. Temperance Act of 1910, costs may be imposed notwithstanding the act is silent with regard thereto, since the provisions of the Summary Convictions part of Cr. Code, R.S.C. 1906, c. 146, as to costs is, by reference, made a part of the former act.

IN CRIMINAL CASES—OF COMMITMENT—EXCESSIVENESS—PRESUMPTION OF REGULARITY.

In the absence of an affirmative shewing that the excess above the legal costs of commitment to gaol on two warrants, on both of which costs of commitment were endorsed, although there was but one conveyance to gaol, was not allowed by the magistrate for the expenses and disbursements of the trip, such costs will not be declared excessive.

CRIMINAL AND PENAL CASES.

Where an information was laid before a police magistrate for the publication of a defamatory libel and the accused was committed for trial but was discharged at the assizes because the prosecutor did not appear and an order was made in general terms by the court for the recovery by the accused from the prosecutor of his costs occasioned by the proceedings, the same to be taxed, such order was made under s. 689 of the Cr. Code, 1906, and therefore included the costs of the preliminary inquiry as provided in such section.

CRIMINAL CASE—APPEAL FROM SUMMARY CONVICTION.

Proceedings under the Alien Labour Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 97, being subject to the summary conviction procedure of the Cr. Code, 1906, no costs can be awarded to the successful party on the allowance of an appeal from a summary conviction thereunder, in excess of the costs taxable under the summary convictions clauses, Part 15 of the Cr. Code.

CERTIORARI PROCEEDINGS—OFFENCE AGAINST TOWN ORDINANCE—CRIMINAL MATTER—UNOPOSED MOTION.

Where a conviction under a municipal ordinance has been removed by a writ of certiorari and is quashed by the court for want of jurisdiction in the convicting justice, and terms are imposed that no action is to be brought against the prosecutor, the court has jurisdiction and discretion to give or withhold costs, and may do so even though the motions for the writ and to quash are unopposed.

R. v. Sullivan, 19 D.L.R. 112, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 22, 48 N.S.R. 38.

OF QUASHING SUMMARY CONVICTION—ORDERING AGAINST BOTH MAGISTRATE AND PROSECUTOR.

Where the prosecution was wholly inexcusable, unfounded and unlawful, and the summary conviction purported to be made under an order-in-council, which any reasonable man must see did not cover the case of the accused, the court, on quashing the conviction, will not only refuse an order of protection, but order costs against both the magistrate and the prosecutor.

R. v. Hackam, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 414, 44 O.L.R. 224.

APPEALS FROM SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

Where the conviction appealed from under Code, s. 754, awards imprisonment in default of paying a fine and costs, the defendant is subject to have the costs of the appeal included in a new order for conditional imprisonment, made by the District Court on the appeal on entering a substituted conviction against him. [R. v. Hawbolt, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 229, followed.]

R. v. Miller, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 151, 25 W.L.R. 296.

REASONABLENESS OF AMOUNT.

While Cr. Code, s. 751, gives the court hearing an appeal from a summary conviction a discretionary power to allow costs, this is to be interpreted as giving the power to allow only such costs as are strictly just and reasonable.

Ex parte Cronkhite: R. v. Wilson, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 224, 44 N.B.R. 69.

TO WHOM AWARDED.

Costs ordered under Cr. Code, s. 871, on a conviction for keeping a disorderly house, made under the summary trials clauses (Code, ss. 773 (f) and 774), are to be awarded to the prosecutor and not to the clerk of the police court where he is not the prosecutor.

R. v. Miller, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 151, 25 W.L.R. 296.

Costs will not be granted against the informant and the magistrate on quashing a summary conviction in certiorari proceedings, unless misconduct is proved against them.

CROWN—SUCCESSFUL APPEAL FROM CONVICTION—INFORMATION LAID BY CHIEF OF POLICE OF MUNICIPALITY—CROWN COSTS ACT, R.S.B.C., 1911, c. 61.

Where appeal is allowed from conviction the information leading to which was laid by the chief of police of a municipality, no costs should be allowed, as such chief of police is "an officer, servant or agent of and acting for the Crown" within the meaning of the Crown Costs Act.

A party who pleads in forma pauperis and selects an official stenographer without warning him of the fact, is bound to pay him his usual fees.

Gagnon v. Pilote, 14 Que. P.R. 175.

ON APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—ORDER FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL IN FORMA PAUPERIS—SCOPE AS TO DATE OF EFFECT.

An order for leave to appeal in forma pauperis to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council takes effect only from the date at which it is made, and has no effect whatever on costs incurred before that date; so where the appeal is allowed with costs the appellant's costs of the petition for special leave to appeal in forma pauperis are not limited to the pauper scale.

Levine v. Serling, 19 D.L.R. 111, [1914] A.C. 665, 111 L.T. 355, 29 W.L.R. 87.

(§ 1-14)—SECURITY—NONRESIDENT CO-PLAINTIFF.

Where one of several plaintiffs who are joined in a common action resides outside the jurisdiction, no order for security for costs in respect of that individual plaintiff should be granted. The Judicature Act has not altered the pre-Judicature Act practice in that respect.

Martin v. Dominion Trust Co., 32 D.L.R. 31, 27 Man. L.R. 91, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 445.

BONDS—LEAVE TO APPEAL—ACTION ON EXECUTION.

As a term of obtaining a stay of proceedings under a judgment, to permit applications for special leave to appeal being made to the Judicial Committee, the respondents filed bonds securing payment of the debt and costs, the obligation being void if such special leave should not be granted and the respondents should pay such damages and costs as awarded. The court held that it was not incumbent upon the applicants to shew that they had exhausted their remedies against the respondents by execution before taking any step towards recovery upon the bonds, the leave having been refused and the debt and costs being unpaid.

SECURITY—RESIDENT OUT OF PROVINCE—DISCRETION.

Rule 373 provides that security for costs may be ordered, (b) where the plaintiff is ordinarily resident out of Ontario, though he may be temporarily resident within Ontario:—Held, that when there is shewn an actual and bona fide change of residence from without Ontario to a place within Ontario, before the cause of action accrued, the case is not within the rule. [Kavanaugh v. Cassidy, 5 O.L.R. 614, distinguished.] If there was a discretion, as said in McTavish v. Lannin and Aitchison, 39 O.L.R. 445, it should be exercised, in this case, by refusing to order the plaintiff to give security.

Erickson v. McFarlane, 42 O.L.R. 32.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—PLAINTIFF OUT OF ONTARIO—COUNTERCLAIM—ONUS—DEFENDANT REGARDED AS ATTACKING PARTY.

SECURITY—TEMPORARILY RESIDENT.

Where on an application by defendant for security for costs on the ground that the plaintiff is only temporarily resident within the jurisdiction, the plaintiff's material satisfies the judge that the plaintiff will be present at the trial, security should be refused. [Michiels v. Empire Palace, 66 L.T. 132, followed.]

De Schelking v. Zurbrick (B.C.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 472.

SECURITY—RESIDENCE—DOMICILE.

Security for costs cannot be demanded from a plaintiff residing in the Province of Quebec about 12 months, at the time of the demand for such security, although he may have his domicile in the United States.

Mathews S.S. Co. v. McCarthy, 24 Rev. Leg. 325.

SECURITY—ALIEN LEAVING FOR ARMY.

An unmarried Russian subject, who leaves the province to take up his duties as a soldier in the Russian army, will be bound to give security for costs in the suits wherein he is plaintiff.

Gorochowsky v. Quebec Fire Ins. Co., 19 Que. P.R. 244.

SECURITY—FOREIGN PLAINTIFF—CHANGE OF RESIDENCE.

A foreign plaintiff who has been ordered to give security judicatum solvi cannot, at the expiration of the delays granted him to do so, relieve himself of his obligation by declaring that he now resides in the Province of Quebec.

Teney v. Marvill, 19 Que. P.R. 255.

SECURITY — FOREIGN PLAINTIFF — PLEADING — POWER OF ATTORNEY.

A defendant, who by way of motion required the plaintiff residing outside the province to furnish security judicatum solvi, may, within the delay fixed by law, after service of notice that such security has been furnished, plead to the merits of the action or urge preliminary exceptions, such as an application for a power of attorney. If the plaintiff, without reason, opposes such application, he should pay the costs of the dilatory exception.

Ingeniera Importadora, etc. Co. v. San Martin Mining Co., 19 Que. P.R. 436. [See 43 D.L.R. 322, 27 Que. K.B. 527.]

SECURITY—PROMPTNESS.

The duty of every party applying for security for costs is to apply promptly.

SECURITY—DELAY.

A motion for security for costs, not being a preliminary exception, need not be made within the delay fixed by art. 164, C.C.P.

Home Loan & Mtge. Co. v. Fishman, 19 Que. P.R. 220.

SECURITY — NONRESIDENT — DELAY IN APPLYING.

A defendant who learned long since that the plaintiff had ceased to reside in the Province of Quebec, and has continued the proceedings on the merits notwithstanding his departure, is deprived of the right to ask later for security judicatum solvi.

SECURITY—SHERIFF EXECUTING WRIT OF F. FA.—PUBLIC AUTHORITIES PROTECTION ACT.

A sheriff executing a writ of fi. fa. is not fulfilling a public duty; and is not entitled, under s. 16 of the Public Authorities Protection Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 89, to security for costs of an action brought against him for something done under a fi. fa.—although he is entitled to the protection of s. 13. [Creighton v. Sweetland, 18 P.R. 180, followed.] Section 3 of the Act passed in 1899, 62 Vict. (2) c. 7, while it declared that a sheriff should be deemed an officer, did not declare that in the execution of a fi. fa. he should be deemed to fulfil a public duty.

SECURITY — PUBLIC AUTHORITIES PROTECTION ACT.

In an action against peace officers for trespass and slander while making an arrest, the defendants are not entitled to security for costs under s. 16 of the Public Authorities Protection Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 89), if the alleged acts were not done in the execution of a public duty, and no good defence upon the merits has been shown nor that the action is trivial or vexatious.

SECURITY FOR—PAYMENT OUT OF SUCCESSFUL PLAINTIFF'S DEPOSIT—ON SUCCESS IN PROVINCIAL COURTS—FURTHER APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

A nonresident plaintiff who has given security for costs and has successfully appealed from a dismissal of his action and obtained judgment in his favour from the highest provincial court is entitled to payment out of his deposit, although the defendant has launched a further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, the latter not being a step in the cause in which the security was given within the Manitoba K.B. Rules. [Day v. Rutledge, 12 Man. L.R. 309, and Hamill v. Lilley, 56 L.T.(N.S.) 620, followed; Canadian Land v. Dysart, 11 P.R. (Ont.) 51, considered.]

SECURITY FOR COSTS — NONRESIDENT — ABSENCE WHETHER TEMPORARY OR NOT.

A motion to compel the plaintiff to give security for costs is an interlocutory proceeding, and accordingly may be supported by an affidavit of information and belief if reasonable grounds of belief are also stated; the onus may therefore be thrown upon the plaintiff, by proof of absence and of enquiries made which negative permanent residence, to prove that his recent return to the province was a bona fide resumption of residence therein.

SECURITY FOR BY NONRESIDENT — SUFFICIENCY OF INTEREST IN MINING CLAIMS AS EXCUSING BOND—TEST.

Registered ownership of a three-eighths interest in a group of mining claims in British Columbia will not be accepted as dispensing with the usual security for costs by a nonresident plaintiff, if the values of such claims upon which certain development work has been done is found by the court to still be speculative and problematic.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT (ALTA.) — PROCEDURE—FORMAL AND EXPENSIVE.

The general practice relating to security for costs in Alberta is not applicable to proceedings under the Workmen's Compensation Act, Alta., Stat. 1908, c. 12, the policy of the Act being to assist a supposed poor class of persons by a procedure less formal and expensive than is required in ordinary disputes. [As to a District Court Judge's power under the Act, see also Bodner v. West Canadian Collieries, 8 D.L.R. 492.]

Security for costs under the Libel Act, R.S.M. 1913, s. 10, will be refused the publishers of a newspaper sued for libel if the newspaper has failed to publish the complete data required by the Newspaper Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 143, so that any one aggrieved or injured by anything appearing in the newspaper may by referring to the newspaper itself ascertain who is legally responsible for what is published.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—FOREIGN CORPORATION AS PLAINTIFF—REGISTRATION IN PROVINCE.

The registration of a foreign company in a province and the appointment of an attorney upon whom process may be served does not give it any residential status, so as to absolve it from liability to give security for costs as a nonresident in an action brought by it in such province. Skil v. Longheed, 1 D.L.R. 899, 3 O.W.N. 647, 21 O.W.R. 167.

ORDERING SECURITY FOR COSTS—"SHEWING" GOOD DEFENCE.

On an application for security for costs made by a newspaper proprietor in respect of a Can. Dig.—41.

of an alleged libellous news item for which he is sued, his affidavit that he has a good defence on the merits is not a compliance with the Ontario statute, 9 Edw. VII, c. 12, s. 40, which enables the court to order security where the publication has been made in good faith and where it is "shown on affidavit" that the defendant has a good defence on the merits; the newspaper proprietor claiming the benefit of the statute must state the facts under oath and not merely his conclusion as to their legal effect which is a question to be decided by the court.

Duval v. O'Heirne, 1 D.L.R. 78, 3 O.W.N. 513, 20 O.W.R. 884.

SECURITY FOR. BY NONRESIDENT — FOREIGN CORPORATION WITH BRANCH IN JURISDICTION.

A foreign corporation with a branch office within the jurisdiction, will not be absolved from giving security for costs on bringing an action if its only asset immediately exigible under execution within the jurisdiction and apart from bills receivable, is the office furniture as to which the landlords' preferential lien might defeat any judgment which the defendant might secure for costs against it.

Miller v. Winn, 1 D.L.R. 35, 3 O.W.N. 496.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — NONRESIDENT — OWNERSHIP OF PROPERTY WITHIN THE JURISDICTION.

To relieve a nonresident plaintiff from giving security for costs on the ground that he is the owner of property of sufficient value within the jurisdiction, the property must be liable to seizure under the ordinary execution of the court. The plaintiff, therefore, although he was the owner in fee simple of a one-third interest in land held in the name of another in trust, was ordered to give security under r. 714. [Slack v. Malone, 4 W.L.R. 549; Clark v. Fawcett, 4 W.L.R. 529, and C.P.R. Co. v. Silzer, 3 S.L.R. 162, followed.]

SECURITY—DISCRETION OF COURT.

Where a counterclaim in respect of the same matter or transaction upon which the claim is founded the court will consider whether the counterclaim is not, in substance, put forward as a defence to the claim, whatever form in point of strict law and of pleading it may take, and where the counterclaim is in substance a defence, the court may in its discretion refuse to order security for costs against a nonresident plaintiff by counterclaim.

PRIOR ACTION BETWEEN SAME PARTIES — PROPERTY IN CONTROVERSY, ONLY RELIED ON—SUGGESTED CONSOLIDATION.
Moore v. Thrasher, 6 D.L.R. 910, 4 O.W.N. 392.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — RESIDENCE OUT OF JURISDICTION — PLAINTIFF CLAIMING FUND IN COURT.

A claimant in an issue to determine the right to a fund in court, if resident out of the jurisdiction, may be required to give security for costs. [Boyle v. McCabe, 24 O.L.R. 313, followed.]

Re Riddell, 3 D.L.R. 401, 3 O.W.N. 1232, 22 O.W.R. 40.

SECURITY — COUNTERCLAIM—NONRESIDENT.

Where a counterclaim is put forward in respect of a matter wholly distinct from the claim, and the person putting it forward is resident out of the jurisdiction, the case may be treated as if that person were a plaintiff and only a plaintiff, and the court may order security for costs to be given by him.

Cartwright v. Pratt, 3 D.L.R. 460, 3 O.W.N. 1279, 22 O.W.R. 92.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—DISMISSAL OF APPLICATION—ASSETS WITHIN JURISDICTION.

It is only in cases where an interlocutory motion by the defendant for security for costs was rendered necessary by the fault of the plaintiff that the latter should be called upon, on security being ordered, to pay the costs of the motion in any event; ordinarily the costs of a motion for security in which fault cannot be attributed to either party should be made costs in the cause. [Loek v. Snyder, 2 D.L.R. 414, 20 W.L.R. 466, distinguished.]

PLAINTIFFS RESIDING OUT OF ONTARIO — ACTION BY UNINCORPORATED ASSOCIATION AND MEMBERS—CLASS ACTION—ADDITION AS PLAINTIFF OF MEMBER RESIDING IN ONTARIO.

SECURITY FOR—TEMPORARY RESIDENTS.

Roberts v. Daniels, 25 D.L.R. 864, 49 N.S.R. 257.

SECURITY FOR ON APPEAL—DELAY IN ASKING.

Where it appears that the appellant is unable to pay the costs in the event of a dismissal of the appeal, an application for security of such costs must be made promptly, and where the application is delayed until after the appellant had prepared and filed his factum, the court will refuse to entertain same.

The King v. Gerow; Ex parte Gross, 24 D.L.R. 664, 43 N.B.R. 352.

SECURITY FOR — DISCOVERY — EXAMINATION FOR—NO DEFENCE SHOWN—JUDGES REPOSESSED—RIGHTS OF DEFENDANT.
Malotte Cream Separator Co. v. Graham, 21 D.L.R. 865.

SECURITY FOR—PAST AND FUTURE COSTS—PLAINTIFF'S ABSENCE FROM PROVINCE—INTERPRETATION OF CONTRACT — QUESTIONS OF LAW.

Crossman v. Purvis, 23 D.L.R. 883, 9 W.W.R. 2, 32 W.L.R. 215.

SECURITY FOR — DOUBLE ACTIONS AGAINST PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

A plaintiff who has taken action and recovered judgment against the maker of a promissory note given for the price of a chattel should not be ordered to give security for costs under Alberta r. 9 (c), in a future action against the undisclosed principals of the maker of the note for the price of the chattel, the second action not being one for the same cause as the first. [Caswell v. Murray, 18 C.L.J. 76; Brunson v. Humphrey, 14 Q.B.D. 141, referred to. Compare Ontario r. 373 (e), 1913.]

SECURITY FOR — NONRESIDENT — DISCRETION OF JUDGE.

The court may as an exercise of discretion, refuse to require a nonresident plaintiff to furnish security for costs where it is apparent that the defendant has no bona fide defence to the action.

W. E. Sanford Mfg. Co. v. McEwen, 11 D.L.R. 734, 12 E.L.R. 119.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—DELAY IN APPLYING.

A motion by defendant for security for costs is warranted at any stage of the proceedings under rr. 714 and 715 of the Sask. Practice Rules, 1911, and may be granted after the case has been placed on the trial list. [Lydney, etc., Co. v. Bird, 23 Ch.D. 358, and Re Smith, Bain v. Bain, 75 L.T. 46, applied.]

Dodd v. Mathieson, 9 D.L.R. 636, 23 W.L.R. 711, 4 W.W.R. 42.

PROPERTY IN JURISDICTION—ONUS.

Harrison v. Knowles, 1 D.L.R. 904, 3 O.W.N. 888.

SECURITY—ACTION REMOVED FROM SURROGATE COURT—"PLAINTIFF."

The lodging of a caveat is not the institution of proceedings in a Surrogate Court. The caveator who propounds the will institutes the proceedings, and the onus is upon him to prove it. In an action removed from a Surrogate Court into the Supreme Court of Ontario, a motion by the plaintiff, the caveator who propounded the will, for an order requiring the defendant, the caveator, who was resident out of Ontario, to give security for costs, was dismissed. Clauses (a) to (f) of r. 373 provide for the giving of security by a plaintiff; a "plaintiff" is defined by s. 2 (1) of the Judicature Act; clause (i) of r. 373 applies to a different use. [Ward v. Benson, 2 O.L.R. 366, and Moran v. Place, [1896] P. 214, followed.] Newcombe v. Evans, 40 O.L.R. 299.

Trowbridge v. Home Furniture & Carpet Co., 4 O.W.N. 910, 1149, 24 O.W.R. 181, 481.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—ON APPEAL.

If several defendants have filed separate appearances, and separate but identical pleas by the same attorneys, the plaintiff inscribing in review must make a deposit for each defendant, especially when it does appear that while the pleas were identical in language each one was broad enough to cover a defence peculiar and personal to the defendant on whose behalf it was filed.

Aaron v. Trudel, 14 Que. P.R. 272.

SECURITY FOR—INTERVENTION—C.P. 179.

A plaintiff cannot be forced twice to give security for costs and file power of attorney. An intervenant is bound by the proceedings made in the case previous to his intervention, and said intervention cannot have any retroactive effect so as to give him the right to call for security, if the delays are expired.

Martin v. Molsons Bank, 15 Que. P.R. 147.

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

The delay of putting in security in a contestation of a municipal election must be interpreted strictly, it is not in the power of the court to extend it, any more than to extend the delay to contest after the expiration of the 30 days given for the filing of the contestation.

Galbraith v. Shepherd, 14 Que. P.R. 294.

SECURITY FOR—COMPANIES OUTSIDE PROVINCE—POWER OF ATTORNEY—PROCURATION—POWER TO SUE.

A company which has its head office outside of the province, but does business within it, cannot be considered as a resident and must furnish security for costs on bringing an action. If a foreign plaintiff has, under the law, an absolute power to sue in the province, a special power of attorney will not be required.

Employers' Liability Ass'ce Corp. v. United Shoe Machinery Co., 15 Que. P.R. 84.

SECURITY—MUNICIPAL LIABILITY—DEPOSIT.

The deposit of $10 mentioned in art. 793 M.C. is required in actions for damages as in penal actions. The plaintiff who has not made this deposit at the institution of his action will be ordered to do so within 5 days on paying his adversary the costs of the exception.

Duval v. Cap de La Madeline, 15 Que. P.R. 88.

SECURITY FOR—SAISIE-ARRÊT AFTER JUDGMENT.

The saisie-arrêt after judgment is only a mode of execution; so long as there has been no contestation of the declaration of the tiers-saisi, there is no action, no instance, no process and consequently, a motion for an order to compel the judgment creditor to give security for costs cannot be granted.

Drouet v. Blanc, 15 Que. P.R. 122.

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Even if security for costs may be asked in habeas corpus proceedings (which is doubted), it must be asked in limine.

Woolven v. Aird, 14 Que. P.R. 165.

SECURITY FOR—ACTION IN REPRESENTATIVE CAPACITY.

Where another person is in fact proceeding with an action in the name of the party on the record, and that party is not insolvent, the court will compel him for whose benefit the action is proceeding to come in and give security for costs. [Andrews v. Morris, 7 Dowl. P.C. 712, applied].

Bruce v. Nova Scotia Fire Ins. Co., 25 Man. L.R. 724, 9 W.W.R. 342.

SECURITY FOR — BONDING COMPANY AS PLAINTIFF.

Security for costs will not be ordered against a plaintiff company where the company is one approved by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, to furnish security required by the court, under the Guarantee Companies Security Act (Sask.).

be dismissed if the conclusions of said motion are those of a dilatory exception. (2) Such motion will be dismissed without costs.

The Canadian General Electric Co. v. The Canadian Rubber Co., 13 Que. P.R. 334.

A demand of security for costs is a dilatory exception and, therefore, must be offered within the delay and with the formalities of preliminary exceptions. [Canada General Electric Co. v. Canadian Rubber Co., 13 Que. P.R. 324.]

After Lax v. Calgary Fire Ins. Co., 13 Que. P.R. 233.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — PLAINTIFF'S RESIDENCE OUT OF THE JURISDICTION — INSUFFICIENCY — PROPERTY IN JURISDICTION — AFFIDAVITS.
Patterson v. Allan, 6 O.W.N. 125.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — INCREASED SECURITY — ADMISSIONS — INCREASE OF COSTS OCCASIONED BY COUNTERCLAIM — ADMITTED BALANCE DUE ON PLAINTIFF'S CLAIM.
Reynolds v. Walsh, 6 O.W.N. 310.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — FOREIGN PLAINTIFF — QUE. C.P. 179.

The security "judicatum solvi" is due only by the foreign plaintiff and the defendant is not bound to furnish same.

Legabee v. Cooper, 16 Que. P.R. 173.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — DELAY — DILATORY EXCEPTION — QUE. C.P. 179.

When it appears from the writ that the plaintiff lives abroad, if the defendant demands security for costs he must do so within 3 days from the return of the writ, this demand being in the nature of a dilatory exception.

Wilcox & Frost Co. v. Lamarre, 15 Que. P.R. 278.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — MOTION TO FURNISH — DELAY — QUE. C.P. 165.

A motion for security for costs is not a preliminary exception subject to the formality of the deposit. [Ferrel & Saultry, 16 R.B. 369, followed.] A motion for security for costs, served within the 2 days after the judgment relieving the defendant from foreclosure to appear, and after payment by the defendant of the costs incurred by his default, is made in due time.

Major v. Seguin, 16 Que. P.R. 151.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — DEPOSIT MADE SUBSEQUENTLY — POWER OF ATTORNEY — QUE. C.P. 165, 179.

A defendant who applies for security for costs and a power of authority, may make his deposit later, and it may be confirmed upon his motion.

Bees v. Hannan, 16 Que. P.R. 50.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — TEMPORARY RESIDENCE OUT OF JURISDICTION.

Plaintiff, at the time of action brought, was resident at B. in Nova Scotia, where he had lived some 8 years before. At the time defendant applied for security for costs, the plaintiff was working at a place in New Brunswick, but his wife and family were then living at B. and supported by the plaintiff. Plaintiff also swore that his employment, at the time, was only temporary, that he had not removed permanently from Nova Scotia, and that he hoped to resume his residence there:—Held, that plaintiff was not residing out of the jurisdiction permanently, or under such conditions otherwise as would entitle defendant to an order for security against him.

White v. Lake, 11 E.L.R. 517.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — CAPIAS — GARNISHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

If a capias and a garnishment before judgment are quashed by way of a petition, there is then left only one action, and the foreign plaintiff will be bound to furnish in one supplementary security.

MacKenzie v. O'Connell, 16 Que. P.R. 301.

SECURITY FOR COSTS — EXPIRATION OF DELAYS TO FURNISH — NEW DELAY — QUE. C.P. 182.

The nonobservance of the delay to furnish security for costs does not imply the dismissal of the action, but the action might be declared not in order for the present time. The court has discretionary power to grant a new delay for security for costs.

Freeman v. Freeman, 15 Que. P.R. 421.

SECURITY — NON-RESIDENT PLAINTIFF.

The opposant to judgment has a right to demand pendente lite that the plaintiff who has ceased to reside in the province shall furnish security judicatum solvi. An uncontradicted allegation under oath of the departure of the plaintiff, of the sale of his house and office furniture and the transport of his menage to the United States, suffices to authorize the court to order him to furnish security for costs.

Chaput v. Goltman, 18 Que. P.R. 327.

SECURITY — NEW TRIAL — APPEAL.

Under r. of court 632, security for costs in the case of an application for a new trial should be awarded on the same principles as the case of an ordinary appeal. Where the material shewed that the respondents' costs of action had been taxed and were not paid; that there were no means of realizing these costs from the appellant, and that the appellant had no property out of which any costs ordered to be paid by her could be realized, the appellant was ordered to furnish security for the costs of her application for a new trial.

Peterson v. Davenport, 9 S.L.R. 118, 34 W.L.R. 64.

DEFAMATION — B.C. LIBEL AND SLANDER ACT — ACTION FOR LIBEL IN NEWSPAPER — SECURITY FOR COSTS — WHETHER ALLEGED LIBEL INVOLVING A CRIMINAL CHARGE AND SO WITHIN EXCEPTION IN S. 16 (A) — APPLICATION OF SECTION WHERE NO DIRECT CRIMINAL CHARGE MADE BUT INSUENDO NECESSARY.

In an action for libel contained in a newspaper where the words are alleged by the plaintiff to have been used in a sense which involves the making by the person using them of a criminal charge against the plaintiff, and may have that meaning, the case is brought within the exception, disentitling defendant to security for costs, contained in s. 16 (a) of the Libel and Slander Act, which exception is applicable to cases where an innuendo is necessary to give the words complained of a defamatory sense; and upon application for security there cannot be a trial of the action on the merits in order to determine whether the words used involve a criminal charge.

Wallace v. Lawson, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 408.
SECURITY FOR—PRIMA FACIE RIGHT AGAINST NONRESIDENTS.

Where upon the face of the proceedings it appears that the plaintiff is resident—or if a corporation has its chief place of business without the jurisdiction, the defendant is prima facie entitled to the costs of an application for security, although the application is dismissed upon the plaintiff showing assets within the jurisdiction.

Whitla v. Stoffel, 33 W.L.R. 109.

SECURITY FOR—CROSS-EXAMINATION ON AFFIDAVIT.

Where a defendant has moved for security for costs under Coster v. 10 (Alta.), and disclosed a prima facie defence in his affidavit and cross-examination thereon, the plaintiff should not be allowed to continue the cross-examination for the purpose of controverting that defence. [Scott v. Holmes, 6 W.W.R. 1190, considered.]

Victor v. Webb, 32 W.L.R. 887.

SECURITY FOR—BOND—SUFFICIENCY OF SURETIES—CASH DEPOSIT.

Imperial Elevator & Lumber Co. v. Hillman, 31 W.L.R. 546.

SECURITY—DISCLOSURE OF REAL PLAINTIFF.

Where on a motion for security for costs on the ground that the plaintiffs are nominal plaintiffs only, an officer of the alleged real plaintiff is examined, and having deposed that claim sued upon was assigned for the purposes of suit only, and that the proceeds of the action would be "applied on" the indebtedness of the nominal plaintiff to the real, refuses to answer questions as to the amount of that indebtedness, he may be compelled to answer the same. [Delaney v. McLellan, 13 P.R. (Ont.) 63; Pritchard v. Patterson, 19 P.R. (Ont.) 180, and Mayor v. McKenzie, 17 P.R. (Ont.) 18, considered.]

Annable Co. v. Younglove, 34 W.L.R. 214.

SECURITY FOR—ACTION AGAINST TRUSTEE FOR ACCOUNTING—DEFENCE THAT PLAINTIFF NOT OWNER—ALLEGED OWNER ADDED AS DEFENDANT—SECURITY FOR COSTS GIVEN ORIGINAL DEFENDANT—

RIGHT OF ADDED DEFENDANT TO SECURITY—COMPARISON WITH INTERPLEADER PROCEEDINGS.

In an action against a trustee for an accounting where the defendant set up that a person other than the plaintiff was really the owner of the property in respect to which the accounting was sought and such other person was then added as a party defendant and alleged that the property belonged to him, the principal issue to be decided being whether the plaintiff or the added party was the party to whom the defendant should account, and the original defendant had obtained an order for security for costs which the plaintiff had complied with, the added defendant was held not entitled to security for his costs, as he had not shown that he relied bona fide upon disputing the existence or execution of the trust acknowledgment alleged by the plaintiff. [McPhillips v. Wolf, 4 Man. L.R. 309 applied.]

Hamelin v. Newton, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 14.

RULE OF SECURITY—DISCRETION.

When a defendant has shown himself entitled to security for costs at all, he is entitled to ample security for all his costs, and the mere fact that he may not have made application until notice of trial was given does not, of necessity, deprive him of his rights to the order. The discretion given by r. 715 to the judge making the order is to enable him to do justice to the particular circumstances of different cases, but does not affect the defendant's right as just stated.

Reum v. Rutherford (Sask.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1104.

SECURITY FOR COSTS—EXAMINATION AS TO MERITS OF ACTION—R. 529.

On a motion for security for costs, the defendant may be compelled to answer questions relative to the merits of his defence.

Scott v. Holmes, 6 W.W.R. 1190.

SECURITY FOR—TIME FOR MAKING APPLICATION—REQUISITES OF AFFIDAVIT—RULES OF COURT.

An affidavit in support of an application for security for costs is sufficient if it states that defendant has a good defence upon the merits and that the deponent is informed and verily believes that plaintiff resides outside the province. [O.W. Kerr Co. v. Lowe, 3 W.L.R. 400; Balcovski v. Olsen, 3 W.L.R. 367, followed.] An application for security for costs may be made at any stage of the proceedings. [Lyndey and Wigpool Iron Ore Co. v. Bird, 23 Ch. D. 358; In re Smith, 75 L.T.R. 46, followed.]

COST OF ESTATE — SUCCESSFUL CONTEST OF CLAIM TO DECEDENT'S PROPERTY.

Where the plaintiff successfully contested the defendant's right to money belonging to a deceased person, and the defendant was the recipient of two-thirds of all the property of the former, the plaintiff's costs, as between solicitor and client, will be paid from the estate of the deceased; the defendant being left to pay his own costs. Vogler v. Campbell, 11 D.L.R. 405, 4 O.W.N. 489, 24 O.W.R. 680. [Reversed, 14 D.L.R. 480.]

COST OF FUND OR ESTATE.

Where, upon the payment into court, on the sale of land, charged with the payment of a legacy, of the amount thereof, costs will be deducted therefrom where no claim was made to the money and the whereabouts of the legatee, if living were unknown.

Re Gallagher, 3 D.L.R. 729, 3 O.W.N. 1302, 22 O.W.R. 226.

LEGACY PAYABLE OUT OF PERSONALTY — MOTION BY SPECIFIC LEGATEE — OPPOSITION BY RESIDUARY LEGATEE.

The residuary legatee should pay the costs upon the granting of an order declaring the construction of a will resulting in the legacy claimed by the mover of the order being given to him, where the residuary legatee and the executor of the estate made no reply to letters written them on behalf of the legatee requesting the payment of his legacy and on the argument of the motion his claim was strenuously resisted, though there was filed after the motion was launched a letter from a solicitor of the residuary legatee disclaiming any dispute as to the right of the legatee to his legacy. Re Craig, 3 D.L.R. 59, 3 O.W.N. 870.

COST OF FUND — PRIORITIES — FUND OF VARYING AMOUNT — SUCCESSIVE ATTACHING ORDERS.

Where garnishment proceedings are served on different dates by two attaching creditors in respect of the debtor's bank account, and the fund to the debtor's credit is increased between the dates of such services, the attaching creditor making the later service will have priority for his costs on a distribution under the Creditors' Relief Act (Alta.) as against such increase, while the first attaching creditor will have priority for his costs on the amount standing to the debtor's credit when the first garnishee summons was served.

EXECUTORS — ALLEGED WILL — PROBATE REFUSED — JUDGE — DISCRETION AS TO COSTS.

Where the parties named as executors propounded an alleged will which on its face is in regular form and probate is refused, the Trial Judge has a discretion also to refuse costs to such parties out of the estate, but on appeal the court may confirm an arrangement to pay a part of such costs.

ACTIONS RESPECTING WILLS.

Where an action for the revocation of the probate of a will raised the question of testamentary capacity and certain of the next of kin joined as codefendants with the executor filed pleas merely submitting their rights to the court, they will properly be refused their costs against the unsuccessful plaintiff if, notwithstanding their formal pleading, they made common cause with the plaintiff at the trial.

Toal v. Ryan, 4 D.L.R. 25, 3 O.W.N. 1267, 22 O.W.R. 127.

UNSUCCESSFUL PROPOUNDING OF WILL — COSTS OUT OF ESTATE.

Where an action to establish a will is dismissed as the statutory requirements as to the mode of execution required by the statute (Wills Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 241, s. 6) had not been fully complied with, but the plaintiff's conduct as regards the defective execution was held to be exemplary, the court may allow him his costs out of the estate.

Pelen v. Abraham, 8 D.L.R. 403, 3 W.W.R. 265.

RIGHT OF EXECUTOR TO COSTS AS BETWEEN SOLICITOR AND CLIENT — AMOUNT RECOVERED WITHIN COUNTY COURT JURISDICTION — HIGH COURT SCALE.

When an executor is justified in bringing an action in the High Court, having regard to the information in his hands before action, he is entitled as against the estate to costs out of the estate, as between solicitor and client, upon the High Court scale, though the amount recovered in the action is within the County Court jurisdiction.

GIVING EFFECT TO TERMS OF WILL—PARTY OPPOSING—LIABILITY FOR COSTS.

Where a daughter was the beneficiary of her father's will displaced as one of his universal legatees by her brother by her inheritance of land supposed to belong to her brother under their grandfather's will, it is their duty to give active effect to the terms of their father's will, and where she remained passive after the brother had served upon her a notarial notice to sign a deed establishing his rights upon replacing her as such legatee under their father's will, and had provided for the costs thereof, if it became necessary for him to resort to an action to establish such rights the sister must pay the costs incurred by him.

PARTNERSHIP ACTION—COST OUT OF ESTATE.

In a partnership action the defendant admitted the partnership, but alleged that he was not bound to account and that the plaintiff had abandoned his partnership rights before action brought (which defence he abandoned at the trial), and counter-claimed for a balance alleged to be due him on private account. A reference was ordered, and the Master found that only one asset of the partnership remained to be collected, and that the defendant was indebted to the plaintiff in a certain sum. Further directions and costs were reserved:—Held, that the plaintiff's costs of the action up to and including trial and examinations for discovery should be paid by the defendant personally. Held, also, that the costs of the reference and the hearing on further directions should come out of the estate. Semble, that as the costs directed to be paid out of the estate included the costs of both parties and were not costs which might be taxed and allowed to the successful party in an action as against any other party thereto, the r. 951 did not apply. Semble, that this was not such a case as would justify interfering with the statutory limit as to costs provided for by r. 951. Held, also, that the plaintiff should have his costs of the defendant's unsuccessful appeal from the Master's report, to be paid by the defendant personally.

Hawkshaw v. Peltier, 33 W.L.R. 43, (8-1-17)—TENDER—MUNICIPALITY.

In the absence of proof that tender of the amount recovered was made, a municipality is not entitled to the costs of an action under s. 525 of the City Act (Sask.).

Wilkes v. City of Saskatoon, 32 D.L.R. 42.

CONSENT TO—COSTS TO CERTAIN DATE.

A letter from defendant to a plaintiff in an action for damages for expulsion from a lodge should, in order to deprive the plaintiff, if successful, of costs, containing an express consent to payment of costs to that date, an express statement that no dues for the period of alleged expulsion would be expected from the plaintiff and that the defendant would pay nominal damages. But if, although the defendant's letter does not measure up to such requirements, the plaintiff continues the action on the belief that he is entitled to more than nominal damages, and recovers nominal damages only, he should, under the doctrine of Florence v. Mallinson, 65 L.T. (N.S.) 354, be deprived of costs from the date of the receipt of the letter.

(8-1-18)—AMOUNT OF RECOVERY AS AFFECTING.

Where, in an action in the High Court to recover weekly instalments under an accident insurance policy, the total amount of the instalments accrued at the date of the issue of the writ is a sum within the jurisdiction of the County Court, but the plaintiff has not, at that date, recovered from his injuries, and the judgment in his favour deals also with the instalments yet to accrue, costs may be awarded on the High Court scale.

WHEN REFUSED—APPEALS INVOLVING SMALL AMOUNTS.

Costs were refused to mark the intention of the court to discourage appeals involving small amounts in County Court actions from provinces which have established Courts of Appeal.

Hammond v. Daykin & Jackson, 8 W.W.R. 512.

AMOUNT OF RECOVERY AS AFFECTING—FORECLOSURE.

Rule 27, subs. of the rule as to costs, read in conjunction with subs. 1, must be interpreted to mean, that in all actions other than an action in which the only relief claimed is the payment of a stated sum of money, by way of damages or otherwise (which would seem to include liquidated demands), or for the payment with the added claim for foreclosure or sale of property mortgaged, etc., the costs in a District Court action should be taxed assuming that the amount claimed or recovered in the action is the sum of $400.

(§ 1—79)—SEPARATE AND DISTINCT ISSUES—APPORTIONMENT OF.

Where there are separate and distinct issues involved in an appeal, the general costs thereof go to the party who succeeds, but the costs of those issues upon which the other party succeeds must be given to that party. [Reid v. Joseph, [1918] A.C. 717, applied.]

CONSOLIDATION ACTION FOR SEAMEN'S WAGES.

Where a number of seamen, by consolidation, join in one action their individual claims for wages against the owner of one or more ships engaged in a common enterprise with resulting liens on different ships, each claimant is not thereby liable for costs consequent upon the failure of another claimant to establish a specific lien not set up by the former, but the costs in each case are awarded according to the discretion conferred by r. 132 (B.C.).

posal of the costs when the motion is allowed.

APPORTIONMENT—DIVISION OF SUCCESS—N.S. JUDICATURE ACT—DEFENCE SUCCEEDING IN PART.

Since the Nova Scotia Judicature Act, where the success is divided between the parties, the costs may be apportioned in accordance with the findings on the several issues. Where the defendant in an action of trespass defends as to the whole of the area in dispute and fails as to part, the plaintiff being successful in part should not be ordered to pay the whole of the defendant's costs as well as his own costs of action.

APPORTIONMENT—SUIT FOR PARTNERSHIP ACCOUNTING—ASCERTAINMENT OF ASSETS LIABLE.

In an action by a member of a partnership against other members of the firm asking for an accounting, the costs of the action from the commencement thereof are usually taxed against the partnership assets, that is, the assets remaining after payment of all the partnership debts including balances due to any of the partners. In an action by the plaintiff on a promissory note for part of the purchase price of an automobile with a counterclaim by the defendant for damages, where the success is divided the costs on appeal may be similarly apportioned.

RIGHT TO RECOVER — APPORTIONMENT BY COURT — SUCCESS DIVIDED.

In an action on a fire insurance policy where two issues are raised by the defence, one of fraud in overvaluation of the loss, as to which the plaintiff succeeds at the trial, and one of the quantum of damages as to which a reference is directed, the plaintiff is entitled to costs up to the hearing only so far as they have been incurred upon the issue in which he has succeeded; the costs of the other issue, and of the reference, should be reserved until after the Master shall have made his report. [See Calvert v. C.N.R. Co., 18 Man. L.R. 307.] Where the success is divided in an action by the plaintiff against an insurance company setting up a claim for a fire loss, the court will apportion the costs, each case being governed by its circumstances, under judicial discretion.

APPORTIONMENT WHERE SUCCESS DIVIDED — SAME SOLICITOR — SETTLEMENT BY TRIAL JUDGE.

Where an apportionment of costs becomes necessary because of divided success of two of the parties defendant represented by the same solicitor, the proportionate part of the costs of the joint defence to be awarded against the plaintiff in respect of the successful defence of one defendant should be settled by the Trial Judge in preference to its being left to be disposed of by the taxing officer.

OX STATED CASE.

Where a special case is stated in a pending action for the opinion of the court on a preliminary question of law arising therein, the practice is for the costs of the hearing of the special case to be disposed of by the judgment in the action and not at the hearing of the stated case unless the question of costs was also referred and ordered to be then disposed of. LAND TITLES PROCEDURE.

Where the application by the registered owners of land for an order vacating the registration of a caveat against it was denied and instead an order was made directing the caveat to bring an action to establish his claim against the land, the costs of the application will be costs in the cause if the action is brought, and, if, through the default of the caveator the action is not brought or is dismissed for his default in proceeding to trial as directed by the order, the costs of the application will be to the owners.

EFFECT OF SATISFACTION — APPORTIONMENT.

A plaintiff who receives satisfaction from a defendant upon a point on which he is right, but who nevertheless continues his action, and also a defendant who begins by contesting and then gives in to the plaintiff's demand, both contribute to useless litigation, and should bear equally the costs of the suit.

CROWN COSTS ACT, R.S.B.C., c. 61—COURT OF APPEAL ACT—COSTS TO FOLLOW THE "EVENT"—CROWN COSTS ACT APPLICABLE—DISTRICT REGISTRAR OF TITLES—OFFICER OF CROWN—NO COSTS AGAINST HIM ON APPEAL.

The Crown Costs Act, prohibiting the court from making any order or direction as to costs for or against the Crown or its officers, etc., applies even to cases where by statute, as under the Court of Appeal Act, costs are to follow the event; as to give effect to the right of the successful party in such case the court must make an order or direction. The district registrar of titles is an "officer, servant or agent" of the Crown within the meaning of the Crown Costs Act and costs should not be given against him on dismissal of an appeal by him to the Court of Appeal.

AGAINST INVESTIGATOR OF ACTION—CODEFENDANT—"CASE OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE OR DIFFICULTY."

A court has inherent jurisdiction to compel the real investigator or promotor of unfounded litigation, to pay the costs thereof, whether he is a party to the proceedings or not, and to award such costs against a codefendant; a case does not become one of "special importance or difficulty," as ground for awarding more than the usual costs, because negligence and fraud were charged.

AMBIGUOUS ORDER.

Where the words of a judge's order for costs are ambiguous, the proper course is to apply to the judge who made the order to correct the ambiguity, and the meaning which he intended should be adopted. Costs down to, and including the trial, should be taxed on the Supreme Court scale; costs subsequent to the trial should be taxed as provided for in r. 649.

An action brought in the Supreme Court of Ontario was dismissed at the first trial. Upon motion of the plaintiff, a new trial was granted by an Appellate Court, which ordered "that the costs of the former trial and of this motion be costs in the cause to the plaintiff." At the new trial there was judgment for the plaintiff for $400 and "costs to be taxed;"—Held—the amount of the judgment being within the proper competence of a County Court and no order to the contrary having been made (r. 649)—that the costs of the first trial, as well as of the second, should be taxed on the scale applicable to County Courts. TAXATION—APPEAL—ITEMS DISALLOWED BY LOCAL OFFICER—FEES PAID TO WITNESSES EXAMINED UPON FOREIGN COMMISSION—PREPARATION FOR TRIAL—COSTS THROWN AWAY BY REASON OF POSTPONEMENTS OF TRIAL—SPECIAL ORDER FOR PAYMENT—TARIFF "A," ITEM 6 —ALLOWANCE FOR CORRESPONDENCE—TARIFF ITEM 16—COSTS OF INTERLOCUTORY MOTIONS FOR POSTPONEMENTS—EXPERT WITNESSES—PREPARATION OF PHOTOGRAPHS—RULE OF DECEMBER 24, 1913—FEES PAID TO FOREIGN WITNESSES—REASONABLE AND NECESSARY PAYMENTS — EVIDENCE — RECONSIDERATION OF ITEMS BY PRINCIPAL TAXING OFFICER.

Upon appeal by the defendant from the taxation by a local officer of her costs of the trial of the action, it was held:—(1) That a prima facie case for the allowance of fees paid to witnesses examined upon commission in the state of Massachusetts was made by filing upon the taxation of an affidavit of an attorney practising in Massachusetts that the disbursements were necessarily made; and, in the absence of contradiction, if it appeared to the satisfaction of the officer that it was necessary or reasonable to examine the witnesses, the fees should have been allowed. This item should be reconsidered by the principal taxing officer, and upon the reconsideration either party should be at liberty to adduce further evidence of the law of Massachusetts. (2) The case was on the list for trial at each of the sittings held in Sept., 1916, Nov., 1916, and Jan., 1917, and was tried in May, 1917. A fee of $50 was allowed (upon the fiat of the principal taxing officer) for preparation for trial at the sittings of Sept., 1916. There is no indication in tariff "A" of an intention that, in the absence of special order, costs of preparation for trial wholly or partly thrown away by a postponement should be allowed; nor that, in the absence of special order, there should in any circumstances be more than one fee for preparation for trial (item 6 of tariff). In Jan., 1917, the order postponing the trial awarded to the defendant the costs thrown away by the postponement; and this entitled the defendant to payment for each of the services covered by item 6 as were performed specifically with reference to the expected trial, and were thrown away by the postponement. As to this there should be a reconsideration. There was no special order for costs in respect of the other postponements, and none authorizing the allowance of a fee for preparation for the trial in May, 1917. The one fee taxable in virtue of item 6 had been allowed; the tariff allowed it once once, and the taxing officer, having allowed it where it first appeared in the bill, had no authority to allow it again. (3) In addition to a $10 fee taxed under tariff item 16, the defendant claimed an allowance for correspondence necessitated by the postponements. This should not be allowed except under a special order. If any correspondence was thrown away by the postponement in Jan., 1917, the defendant was entitled to payment for it under the order then made, and there should be an extra allowance unless the $10 allowed fairly covered all the correspondence in the course of the action, including that necessitated by the postponement of Jan., 1917. This must be reconsidered. (4) The costs of contested interlocutory motions in court for the postponements of Nov., 1916, and Jan., 1917, were properly disallowed; there was no order for the payment of them, and the officer had no authority to tax them. (5) Expert evidence was given at the trial as to whether a disputed signature was genuine, and the expert witnesses prepared photographs of the disputed signature and other signatures proved to be ACTIONABILITY—"EXTRA COSTS"—TRAVELLING EXPENSES—LOSS OF TIME.

In an action for damages by reason of the defendant conspiring to injure the plaintiffs, it appeared that legal proceedings previously brought by one of the defendants against the plaintiffs were dismissed with costs, but no order had been taken out, or any attempt made, to collect the costs from the unsuccessful party. The jury found there was a conspiracy which was carried out by the taking of said legal proceedings, and the damages were particularly set out as "legal costs, fares and expenses to Vancouver and return, loss of time on farm." Held, on appeal, that although party and party costs of the former proceedings may be recovered in such an action, it must first be shown that the costs could not have been recovered from the unsuccessful party, and that as the damages particularized "fares and expenses to Vancouver and return, loss of time on farm," refer to losses caused by the former civil proceedings, they come within the term "extra costs" and are not recognized by law. INTERLOCUTORY PROCEEDINGS — DEFENDANT —PARTLY SUCCEEDING.

In the absence of evidence to shew what disposition was made as to the costs of an interlocutory application, a party cannot, upon the taxation of his general costs of the action, get any costs of such application, though he succeeded upon it. When the judgment gives the plaintiff the costs of the action less the costs occasioned by a controversy in which he failed and gives the defendant the costs occasioned by that controversy, the taxing officer should not tax to the defendant the general costs of his defence, but only those items in his bill which apply exclusively to the controversy referred to. [Sparrow v. Hill, 7 Q.B.D. 362, 8 Q.B.D. 479, and Davis v. Hunt, 4 O.L.R. 466, followed.] The taxation of the costs should not be affected by anything which took place subsequent to the judgment.

MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT.

When on a motion for summary judgment under r. 135 the defendant is found entitled to a trial, the plaintiff should, in the absence of special circumstances, pay the costs of the unsuccessful application. [McEwan v. Marks, 4 D.L.R. 309, followed.]

UNDERTAKING OF COUNSEL FOR RETURN OF COSTS—HOW ENFORCED.

Upon an application of a successful appellant to include in the minutes of the order for judgment a direction to return the costs of the trial paid upon counsel's undertaking to refund in case the appellant were successful:—Held, that it is not within the province of the court to make the order. After taxation has taken place the parties may then apply in the proper quarter to have an undertaking carried out according to its true intent and meaning.

Thompson v. Columbia Coast Mission, 20 B.C.R. 144.

The limitation of costs provided for by s. 1 of c. 12 of 7 and 8 Edw. VII., applies to all costs up to and inclusive of the final determination of the action in the Court of King's Bench, and, although there has been an expensive trial followed by a reference to the Master and a hearing on further directions, the costs of all of which were given to the plaintiff and, as ordinarily taxable, would largely exceed said limit, the taxing officer could not, without such a certificate from the Trial Judge as that section requires, allow the plaintiff in all more than $300 and disbursements.

DISTRESS FOR RENT.

If an attachment for rent is dismissed with costs, the landlord is justified in issuing a second attachment when another instalment becomes due, but the defendant is also justified in setting up such unpaid costs in compensation for such rent. In such a case the plaintiff will have costs against defendant up to after plea filed, subsequent costs being against plaintiff.

OF PART OF ACTION.

When a defendant sued on divers heads contests them all and is condemned upon some only, he is obliged to pay the costs of the action taxed according to the amount found against him without having a right to any costs in respect to the part of the action which is dismissed. It is the same when the plaintiff abandons a part of his conclusions after contestation.

HYPOTHECARY ACTION—THIRD PARTY.

Massé v. Bertrand, 26 Que. K.B. 335.

In the absence of a mention on the writ of execution and on the proceedings of notice to a sheriff of the consent of the solicitors that the party should distrain for their costs, such party has no right to a writ of execution permitting him to distrain for costs of such solicitors, unless such a consent should appear on the fiat to obtain such a writ.

Jetter v. G.T.R. Co. of Canada, 18 Rev. de Jur. 204.

The fee chargeable by the prothonotary on the return of an action is a single fee, no matter how many writs are issued and addressed to bailiffs of different districts.

DILATORY EXCEPTION—PAYMENT OF COSTS OF FORMER SUIT—QUE. C.P. 177.

Renaud, King & Patterson v. Montreal Public Service Corp., 18 Que. P.R. 174.

COMPULSORY WINDING-UP — UNSUCCESSFUL PETITION.

Unsuccessful petitioners for the compulsory winding-up of a company who know that their action is not approved by any of the creditors of the company should be ordered to pay the costs of the company (or its assignees), those of the creditors opposing the petition, and (semble) those of opposing contributories. [In re Stratby Wire Fence Co., 8 O.L.R. 186, and Re New Gas Co., 5 Ch.D. 703, applied.]

Re Olympia Co., 9 W.V.R. 405, 32 W.L.R. 628. [Affirmed in 25 D.L.R. 620, 26 Man. L.R. 73.]

PERSONAL LIABILITY OF LIQUIDATOR.

Following the case of Jackson v. Cannon, 10 B.C.R. 73, the Court of Appeal of British Columbia, held that where a liquidator's name appeared as a party to litigation an order would be made against him personally for payment of costs. (In this particular case the liquidator had won an action in the County Court, but had been defeated on appeal.)

APPEAL BOOKS—ADDITIONAL COST OF TYPE-WRITING—EXTRA COPY OF APPEAL BOOK AT COUNSEL'S REQUEST — EXTRA COPY OF TRANSCRIPT FOR DRAFT APPEAL BOOK — TARIFF OF COSTS, ITEM 130.

On appeal to the Court of Appeal an appellant may either print or type the appeal book, but if he adopt the more expensive method he will, on a party and party taxation, be allowed only for the least expensive mode of preparing the books. The taxing officer may, however, take into consideration difficulties in special cases of having the appeal book printed. The cost of an extra copy of the appeal book, supplied at the request of the unsuccessful party, will not be allowed on a party and party taxation. A copy of the transcript of evidence supplied by the reporter, made for incorporation in the draft appeal book will not be allowed on a party and party taxation where the transcript itself could have been used for that purpose.

Shelly Bros. v. Callopy, 26 B.C.R. 149.
(11-25)—COSTS OF COUNSEL APPOINTED BY COURT.

Where an order is made under Alberta r. 37, for the representation as defendant of the estate of a person presumed to be dead because he had not been heard from in seven years, the court may at the same time direct that the costs of such counsel in attending at the hearing and examining witnesses shall be paid by the plaintiff.

Wallace v. Potter, 7 D.L.R. 114, 22 W.L.P. 281, 2 W.W.R. 1085.

(11-26)—SOLICITOR SUING OR DEFENDING IN PERSON.

A solicitor, suing or defending an action in person, is entitled, if he obtains judgment, to tax his costs in the ordinary way, but is not entitled to tax unnecessary costs, such as instructions to himself and attendances upon himself. [London & Scottish Benefit Society v. Clorley, 13 Q.B.D. 872; King v. Moyer, 9 P.R. (Ont.), 344, referred to.]

FEES FOR SOLICITOR—PER DIEM ALLOWANCE—“DAY”—SEPARATE ACTIONS.

Item 11 of the tariff of costs provides that the fee allowed to a solicitor attending the trial of an action is $20, but, “if the trial lasts more than one day, then for each additional day $20;”—Held, that where the trial began at 3 p.m. on a Monday, was continued on Tuesday, and concluded before 2 p.m. on Wednesday, the allowance should be for two days only; the unit of “a day” begins at the hour when the trial begins and ends 24 hours thereafter. Held, also, that where two actions are tried together, the same solicitor appearing in both, the fee of $20 a day, fixed by the tariff, should be allowed in both actions.

Hendridge v. London Str. R. Co., 42 O.L.R. 41.

ACTION AGAINST BOARD OF HEALTH—SOLICITOR FOR MUNICIPALITY—PUBLIC HEALTH ACT—MUNICIPAL ACT.

In an action against the Local Board of Health and the Medical Officer of Health of a city, the defence was undertaken by the city council and conducted by the regular solicitor for the corporation. The action being dismissed with costs, it was held that the defence was in substance the defence of the corporation, the actual defendants being public officers representing the inhabitants and ratepayers of the city, and the costs of the defence were taxable against the plaintiffs. The Public Health Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 218, s. 26, gave the council the right to appoint the solicitor to conduct the defence and this carried with it the right to costs duly incurred in the conduct of the defence. [The City of Berlin & the County Judge of the County of Waterloo, 32 O.L.R. 73, and R. on the Prosecution of Colham v. Archbishop of Canterbury, [1903] 1 K.B. 289, followed.] The general rule laid down in Jarvis v. Great Western R. Co., 8 U.C.C.P. 280, 285, that, “if the client be not liable to pay costs to his attorney he cannot have judgment to recover those costs against the opposite party,” is undoubted, but inapplicable to this case. [The application of that rule in Walker v. Gurney-Tilden Co., 19 P.R. 12, commented on.] The Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 245 (5), removes all difficulty as to the payment of the corporation-solicitor by salary.

TABLE OF COSTS—DISCRETION OF REGISTRAR.

On a taxation of costs between party and party the registrar is not authorized to allow for services performed any amount in excess of the amount fixed by the table of costs, unless expressly authorized to do so. Sub-r. (20) of r. 27 of O. 65 only applies to costs, charges and expenses not provided for by the table of fees.

LAWYER'S TARIFF—ADDITIONAL FEE—ACTION ON LEASE.

In an action claiming arrears of rent amounting to $1,750, in virtue of a lease worth $52,500, and also claiming the cancellation of that lease, an Attorney is not entitled to the additional fee of $100 under s. 24 of the Lawyers Tariff, before the Court of King's Bench, as the principle of art. 1152, C.C.P., applies to the additional fee as to jurisdiction of the court and the class of action.

Duchess Amusement Co. v. De-martean, 27 Que. K.B. 552, 20 Que. P.R. 97.
ATTORNEY'S FEES—CLASS OF ACTION.

The class of an action to set a judgment aside depends on the net value of the estate of the de cuius. If two defendants appear and plead the same grounds separately, through the same Attorney, two complete bills of costs may be made. No fee is allowed Attorneys on the reinscribing of a case for hearing.

Brown v. Winterbottom, 19 Que. P.R. 162.
SOLICITOR'S FEES — INTEREST — EXPROPRIATION—RAILWAY ACT—APPEAL.

Interest upon the costs of advocates of parties in an arbitration does not run from the award, but from the service of the action brought to give effect to it, the award itself not being a judgment. An action brought by the advocates of one party to an arbitration award, by virtue of the Dominion Railway Act, for recovery of their costs, when another action, brought by the one whose land was expropriated to increase the amount of the award, but not including the costs of such advocates, is still pending in appeal, is not prematurely brought.

Pélissier v. Lachine, Jacques-Cartier & Maisonneuve R. Co., 53 Que. S.C. 172.
EXPROPRIATION—ATTORNEY'S TARIFF.

An expropriation, in which the compensation is contested, constitutes a real action, submitted to a real judicial tribunal, and the fees of attorneys who practice before it should be based after the tariff of their order. An attorney of one whose property is expropriated, who has succeeded in increasing the amount offered, has a right, in addition to the fees fixed by art. 79 of the tariff, to the fees of contestation, of enquete, and of hearing, as well as to an additional fee if the amount awarded justifies it. An attorney whose absence has been the cause of an adjournment of a sitting has no right to the fee provided by the tariff for an adjournment. There is a fee of $10 in each proceeding for the appointing or replacing of arbitrators, whether such replacement be by petition, motion or simple notice.

Provincial Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Latroville, 19 Que. P.R. 451.

ADVOCATE'S TARIFF—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

The plaintiff's attorney's bill of costs, in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act, in which the judgment grants the plaintiff a certain amount and an annual rent, must be taxed as of an action of second class, even if, after the judgment, plaintiff asks the capital of the rent, which amounts to over $1,000.

Spearman v. G.T.R., 19 Que. P.R. 136.
ATTORNEY'S FEES — DOMINION ELECTIONS ACT.

A demand for account following a Dominion election, withdrawn before the accounting has taken place, must be considered, as to the question of fees, as a second class action after discontinuance. If there is a discontinuance after the summoning of the returning officer and after the exhibiting of the ballot boxes, the respondent's attorney is entitled to the enquete and hearing fees. A returning officer is entitled to be reimbursed his traveling expenses and to be paid for his vacations, attendances and loss of time. The criers' and messengers' fees must be included in the taxation.

Blondin v. Tremblay, 20 Que. P.R. 15.

ATTORNEY'S FEES—WINDING-UP ACT.

The contestation of an application for the winding-up of a company need not necessarily be in writing; the production of documents by the company is a sufficient defence to give its attorney who succeeds the fees of a contested case. The company's attorney who obtained the dismissal of the application for liquidation has a right to the general fee of a contested action (first class), and to the hearing fee, but not to the fee on the petition if there were no witnesses heard but only documents produced. The supplementary fee provided by art. 5 of the attorney's tariff (S.A.C.), is not granted upon the contestation of an application for winding-up.

Durocher v. Le Club Champêtre Canadien, 20 Que. P.R. 58.

ATTORNEY'S TARIFF—RESALE.

If a petition for resale for false bidding is refused, the attorney for the purchaser has a right only to the fee under art. 339 of the advocate's tariff.

Waxman v. Girouard, 20 Que. P.R. 43.

ATTORNEY'S TARIFF—LIQUIDATION OF PARTNERSHIP.

The attorney's fees on a petition to appoint a sequestrator to a partnership are those mentioned in the tariff for the proceedings for appointment of sequestrators.
Vincent v. Hyde, 19 Que. P.R. 107.

ATTORNEY'S TARIFF—ACTION DISMISSED.

An action dismissed on a preliminary exception should be treated, as regards attorney's fees, as a contested action.

Duggan v. Howard, 20 Que. P.R. 146.

SOLICITOR'S COSTS—PRACTICE—RULE NISI.
When costs are distrained to an attorney ad litem, the latter is a creditor of the debtor for these costs, and his client cannot issue a rule nisi against the debtor under art. 590, C.C.P., without the consent of his attorney, unless he shows that he has paid the said costs to the latter.

Normandin v. Montreal Tramways Co., 24 Rev. Leg. 56.

ATTORNEY WITHDRAWING FROM CASE.

An attorney ad litem, who asks permission to discontinue acting as such, under art. 260, C.C.P. (Que.), and Practice Rule 43 of Superior Court, cannot require his client to pay his costs before the appointment of a new attorney in the case; such right only exists in the case of revocation of the attorney's powers by his client.

Chapman v. Petry, 20 Que. P.R. 254.

CONSOLIDATION OF ACTIONS — COSTS OF MOTION.

If several actions have been consolidated for the purpose of proof and hearing, the party who succeeds has the right to tax, in each case, a fee for supplementary proof. An attorney may make a motion to consolidate in each of the cases and may tax a fee in each case.
Gallagher v. La Cité de Montreal, 20 Que. P.R. 264.

QUESTIONS OF LAW—FACTUMS—FEES.

If a case is submitted on factums after a description ex parte, by consent, as only questions of law are raised, the facts being admitted, the fees shall be those of a contested action and a hearing fee will be allowed.

Re Dickie, De Beck & McTaggart & Sherman, 23 B.C.R. 583.

TARIFF OF ADVOCATES.

The special fee mentioned in par. 8 of art. 72 of the Tariff of Advocates is only allowed when an amount which justifies it is claimed by the conclusions. It is of no importance that in the resolutions of the defendant School Commission, of which the nullity is demanded, there may be a question of an outlay equal to the amount in question.

Desjardins v. Maisonneuve School Commission, 18 Que. P.R. 302, 51 Que. S.C. 450.

TARIFF OF ADVOCATES—ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS.

A demand for an assignment for benefit of creditors is now treated and considered, from the point of view of the fees of the advocates, as an ordinary action. If a demand of assignment is withdrawn after a preliminary pleading (with costs against the debtor) the advocate of the petitioning creditor will have a right to the fee allowed by art. 23 of the tariff, to the fee of $2 provided for by art. 76 (par. 5) on the filing of the claim, and to the fee of $6 for the petition, equivalent to the fee for judgment after withdrawal.

De Sales Mfg. Co. v. Budyk, 18 Que. P.R. 322.

TARIFF OF ADVOCATES — PARTITION — SEPARATE DEFENCES.

In actions for partition an attorney who appears separately for several defendants has a right to the fees allowed by the tariff for proceedings of the same nature made and filed in ordinary causes. On proceedings after judgment in ordinary actions he has a right to as much of the fees provided for by pars. 4 and 5 of art. 61 of the tariff as there are defendants for whom he appears separately. He has no right to any other fee upon proceedings taken after judgment, as for instance on a motion by the plaintiff to adjourn and continue the sale. If before judgment the defendants represented by the same attorney unite to take certain proceedings, the attorney of the defendants will have a right to a single fee only in the common proceedings. If an attorney appear after there is already an appearance on the docket for the same defendant, an appearance which is neither observed by the attorney appearing in the second place nor brought to his attention by the plaintiff's attorney, the attorney who has first appeared will have the sole right to the fees allowed the defendants' attorneys in actions for partition.

Tasse v. Tasse, 18 Que. P.R. 240.

WARRANTY—CONSOLIDATION—ATTORNEY'S FEES.

If the main action is maintained for part of the amount claimed, and an action in simple warranty is maintained, the costs of the action in warranty will be of the class of an action for the joint amount of the judgments and the costs of the main action and of the defence of the plaintiff in warranty of that of a main action for the amount of the judgment. Joinder of causes cannot prevent the attorneys of the parties from taxing the fee for enquete and hearing in each case, nor a fee for an additional day of enquete.

Major v. Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co., 18 Que. P.R. 256.

EXPROPRIATION—EXPERTS—ATTORNEY'S FEES.

The attorneys of the party who succeeds in expropriation proceedings are entitled to the fees for the enquete and hearing and to the additional fee according to the amount granted by the award. They have the right to enter in the bill of costs the attendances, proceedings, and fees of their expert witnesses.

City of Outremont v. Russell, 18 Que. P.R. 407.

EXPROPRIATION—FACTUM.

In an expropriation under the Railway Act the attorneys have the right to fees of contestation, enquete and hearing, as well as to an additional fee if there is reason to allow it. The accounts of arbitrators and of a notary in rendering the award cannot be entered in the bill of costs of the attorneys of the expropriated party. If a factum has been filed to replace the oral arguments no fee will be allowed for it. In the matter of expropriation the tariff allows nothing for the proceedings by the attorney of the expropriated party for the preparation of the cause.

Lachine, Jacques Cartier & Maisonneuve Railway Co. v. Charlebois, 18 Que. P.R. 373.

ATTORNEY'S FEES—REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT.

An attorney who registers a judgment has a right to his disbursements and to a fee determined by the class of action.

McGee v. Morrison, 18 Que. P.R. 38.

ATTORNEY'S FEES—WINDING UP.

The fee of an attorney on application for the appointment of liquidators is the same as in an ordinary action for a sum equal to the value of the assets. [See Henderson v. Harbec, 8 Que. P.R. 126.]

Re Westmount Plumbing & Heating Co. & Antill, 17 Que. P.R. 450.

IN EXPROPRIATION MATTERS.

An attorney, who represents a party whose land has been expropriated for hydraulic purposes, has a right to the fees provided by arts. 23, 43-4 of the tariff of attorneys in the Superior Court and not only to those provided by art. 79 of this tariff. [See Montreal v. Matley, 14 Que. P.R. 180.]

Cedars Rapids Mfg. & Power Co. v. Houle, 17 Que. P.R. 417.

Brisebois v. Semelhaack, 17 Que. P.R. 309.

APPRAISEMENT—EXPERTISE—SOLICITORS' TARIFF.

In a valuation of lands sold under execution the amount in litigation for each creditor who has recorded a lien or a mortgage is that which appears in his favour at the registry office. [Doutre v. Gosselin, 7 L.C.J. 290.] There are as many fees as there are creditors. Art. 78 of the Solicitors' Tariff in the Superior Court applies to matters before experts even for claims of less than $100.

Hyde & Sons v. Godin, 17 Que. P.R. 370.

SOLICITORS RETAINED ON SPECIAL APPLICATION—SALE OF COSTS.

When one who is not a solicitor on the record is retained to make or oppose a special application in the action, the amount involved in the motion of the client, if the same is ascertainable, might appropriately be considered in fixing the scale of his fees to his client. They should not necessarily be taxed upon the scale appropriate to the amount of the judgment in the action. The fees provided by the schedule constitute the maximum of the charges which a solicitor can tax, and it by no means follows that in every case such fees should be allowed.

Northern Crown Bank v. Woodcrafts; re Varley Taxation of Goods, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 917.

ATTORNEY'S FEES—AMOUNT OF BILL.

Where a solicitor-plaintiff who, on a motion for summary judgment, is ordered to have his bill taxed, brings in a bill for a much larger amount than he has sued for, he should pay the costs of the taxation, but he is entitled upon getting the major part of his original bill allowed to his costs of action.

Varley v. Commonwealth Trust Co., 33 W.L.R. 421.

DISCONTINUANCE OF ACTION—DISPUTE NOTE FILED.

Where in a small debt action the plaintiff files a notice of discontinuance after a dispute note had been entered, but before the action has been set down for trial, the defendant is entitled to tax a counsel fee in the same manner as if he had been successful at the trial. When an action has been brought in the Supreme Court of Ontario, which might properly have been brought in a county court by virtue of the County Courts Act, ss. 22 and 28, the costs will be taxed on the county court scale, and the usual set-off under r. 649 granted. [Martin v. Banister (1879), 4 Q.B.D. 491; Stiles v. Edestone (1903) 1 K.B. 544, referred to.]

Bragg v. Oram, 50 D.L.R. 623. SCALE—CLASS OF ACTION—DISTRICT COURT—“SMALL DEBT PROCEDURE.”

Where a counterclaim filed in a District Court (Sask.) is for a debt or liquidated amount and properly a matter of set-off, the dismissal of such counterclaim with costs carries costs to the plaintiff on the District Court scale and not under the small debt procedure if the excess claimed by the defendant over the admitted portion of the plaintiffs claim was over $100. [Amos v. Bohardt, 22 Q.B.D. 543, 58 L.J. Q.B. 219, applied.]

SCALE—CLASS OF ACTION—DAMAGES—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

A County Court in Manitoba would have no jurisdiction to entertain in the form of a simple action for a money demand an action by a purchaser of lands for damages in lieu of specific performance where the latter relief is beyond the competence of a County Court under the County Courts Act (Man.), and this although the relief of specific performance could not be had in the particular case because the vendor had re-sold the lands to another; therefore a judgment with costs in an action brought in the King's Bench for specific performance of a contract to sell for a price exceeding $500 carries costs on the King's Bench scale, although by reason of the resale the plaintiff took only a judgment for $141 damages. [Richards v. Trotter, 18 D.L.R. 508, 24 Man. L.R. 473, and Cornwall v. Henson, [1900] 2 Ch. 398, referred to.]

SLANDER ACTION—IMPERIAL STATUTE—21 JAC. C. 16.

The provisions of the Judicature Act and of the County Courts Act (N.B.) override the statute of 21 Jac. c. 16, s. 6, in respect of costs in actions for slander, and where the amount of damages awarded to the plaintiff is only one dollar, the costs are taxable on the County Court scale.

Rosenburg v. Rich, 35 D.L.R. 369, 45 N.B.R. 86.

SCALE OF COSTS.

Upon an arbitration in eminent domain proceedings in reference to damage occasioned to land by railway construction, the “costs of the arbitration” under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, to be allowed to the owner who succeeds in the arbitration are not to be restricted to costs upon the scale or tariff applicable to ordinary litigation in the province, although the latter may be accepted as a general guide. [C.N.R. Co. v. Robinson, 17 Man. L.R. 579, 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 244, applied.]

Re False Creek Flats Arbitration (No. 3), 8 D.L.R. 922, 17 B.C.R. 376.

SCALE OF—DEFENDANT'S COSTS ON DISMISSAL.

In taxing costs in the County Court on the dismissal of the action, the defendant is entitled to tax his costs upon the scale determined by the amount of the plaintiff's claim. [County Court Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 156, s. 78, considered.]

SCALE OF COSTS—SOLICITOR AND CLIENT—LIMITATION.

The common-law rule as to solicitor and client costs being payable to a successful party, out of the estate, is limited to the executor of trustee representing the estate and may not be extended to a successful beneficiary.

Re Mountain, 4 D.L.R. 737, 26 O.L.R. 163, 21 O.W.R. 866.

DISCRETION OF COURT AS TO SCALE OF COSTS—TRUSTEES AS LANDLORDS.

The Court of Chancery had and the High Court of Justice in Ontario now has, in matters of equitable jurisdiction, a general discretionary power to give costs as between solicitor and client; but even in equity did not do so, except in special cases such as suits affecting charity by funds, administration suits, actions as to trusts, etc., and an action by trustees, as landlords only, does not fall within such class of cases and the rule should not be extended.

SCALE OF COSTS—VERDICT FOR NOMINAL SUM—RULES OF COURT.

Where the jury has given a verdict for a nominal sum only, the court will not, under ordinary circumstances, interfere by special order to raise the scale of costs which would be applicable to such verdict under general rules of court.

Hastings v. Dunbar; Davies v. Dunbar, 4 D.L.R. 168, 20 W.L.R. 209.

SCALE—FORECLOSURE ACTION AGAINST PURCHASERS FOR VALUE WITHOUT NOTICE—ERROR IN FILING MORTGAGE IN LAND TITLES OFFICE.

Where an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage against the mortgagor and two purchasers from him who had each bought a third of the land, was dismissed as to the purchasers because they were bona fide purchasers for value and without notice of the mortgage, due to the fact that the mortgage had been recorded in the land titles office, by an oversight by someone therein, only as against the remaining third of the land and not against the two-thirds so bought, it is proper under such circumstances for the court to give such purchasers costs as against the plaintiff on the County Court scale and not on the High Court scale which ordinarily they would be entitled to claim.

Rausay v. Luck, 5 D.L.R. 416, 3 O.W.N. 1053.

HIGH COURT SCALE—DAMAGES WITHIN INFERIOR JURISDICTION.

In an action for damages for flooding lands where the ownership of the land is not admitted, the court properly ordered that costs be paid on the High Court scale, although the amount of damages recovered might have been within the jurisdiction of an inferior court. [McGrath v. Pearce Co., 2 O.W.N. 1496, 19 O.W.R. 904, affirmed on appeal.]

Cain v. Pearce Co., 5 D.L.R. 23, 3 O.W.N. 1321 affirming on appeal 2 O.W.N. 1496, 1498, 22 O.W.R. 174.

SCALE—SETTLEMENT OF ACTION.

Where a defendant to buy his peace pays to plaintiff a certain sum after suit brought, he will also be condemned to pay costs of an action of the amount paid, as such payment is equivalent for this purpose to a confession of judgment; and this, even if no judgment has been obtained by the action.

Scale v. Bowers, 1 D.L.R. 632.

COMMISSION IN LIEU OF COSTS—PARTITION ACTION—CON. RULE (ONT.) 1146.

The commission and disbursements allowed in lieu of taxed costs in partition actions (and administration suits) under Con. Rules (Ont.) 1897, r. 1146, include all future costs to the close of the case as well as the costs up to the date of the report whereby the amount is certified, the proper future disbursements being included therein and fixed in advance.

Welsh v. Harrison, 7 D.L.R. 116, 4 O.W.N. 139, 23 O.W.R. 120.

SCALE OF COSTS—JURISDICTION OF COUNTY COURTS—ACTION REMOVED INTO SUPREME COURT.

Murray v. Fitch, 17 O.W.N. 103.

ACTION REMOVED INTO SUPREME COURT FROM COUNTY COURT AT INSTANCE OF DEFENDANT—COSTS AWARDED TO DEFENDANT ON SUPREME COURT SCALE.

Pratt v. Toronto & York Radial R. Co., 9 O.W.N. 453.

TAXED COSTS—CLASS OF APPEAL—REDDITION OF ACCOUNT.

In an action in redemption of account where the balance claimed by the plaintiff is over $1,000, the bill of costs in appeal must be taxed as of first class. In an appeal from interlocutory judgment, the following item in the bill of costs, to wit: attendance in chambers, 85; factum, 85; copy for printer, 820; correcting proof sheets, 84; typing factum, 813; printing factum 810, will be allowed if the parties have produced and used voluntarily the factum with the approbation of the court.

SCALE—ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS—CONTINUATION OF CLAIM.

In the matter of an assignment, the continuation of a claim must be considered as an opposition for payment, and the class of action is determined by the amount of the contested claim and not by the amount of the reduction prayed for.

Boston Shoe Co. v. Montreal Star Publishing Co., 16 Que. P.R. 326.

TABLE FEES—JURY TRIAL—QUE. C. P. 559.

In a jury trial, if a motion for judgment according to the verdict has been put in writing and granted with costs, such costs must be included in the taxable costs. There is no fee on the demand to withdraw the case from the jury. The crier is entitled to a certain fee, according to custom and the rules of practice.

Brassard v. G.T.R. Co., 16 Que. P.R. 225.

ATTACHMENT—QUASHING.

No additional fee will be given to the party who has succeeded in having a conservatory attachment quashed upon petition, whatever the amount in issue may be.

Girard v. Gariépy, 17 Que. P.R. 406.
See 49 Que. S.C. 284, 17 Que. P.R. 396.]

TAXATION—EXEMPTION CONTROVERSY.

By a judgment the plaintiffs were given the costs of the action less the costs occasioned by controversy as to exemptions, and the defendants were given the costs occasioned by that controversy. Held, that under such an order defendants should only be given such items of their bill as related exclusively to the controversy as to exemptions.

Robin Hood Mills v. Maple Leaf Milling Co., [1917] 1 W.W.R. 796. [See also 20 Man. L.R. 238.]

SCALE—JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT.

Where a plaintiff, who has sued for a debt within the competence of the District Court, has taken out of court in satisfaction of his claim the amount paid in by the defendant, which amount would not be within the competence of the District Court, he is nevertheless entitled to tax his costs on the District Court scale. [Stephens v. Toronto R. Co., 13 O.L.R. 363, 9 O.W.R. 259, considered.]

§ II—29.—REVIEW OF TAXATION—SASK. R. 732.

The direction of r. 732 (Sask. Judicature Rules, 1911), that the dissatisfied party may "within ten days and on two days' notice" apply for a review of a taxation, implies that the return date of the notice must be within the ten days; and it is not sufficient that the notice should be served within the ten days if returnable after that period.

REVIEW OF TAXATION.

"A question of the scale of costs of the whole bill as distinguished from the separate consideration of items, is one of principle and may be brought up in a County Court case in Nova Scotia by a motion to review the taxation and an appeal from the refusal instead of by an appeal direct from the taxation itself. TAXATION — APPEAL — CONFLICT BETWEEN RULES AND STATUTE.

Jolicour v. Town of Cornwall, 5 O.W.N. 397.

TAXATION—INSTRUCTIONS ON EXAMINATION FOR DISCOVERY—REVIEW OF TAXATION.

It is as necessary for the party who is to be examined to give instructions upon examination for discovery, as it is for the party examining. The costs of instructions to consent to change of place of trial asked for by the other party should be allowed. The costs of separate letters to defendants not appearing at the trial to the effect that judgment has been reserved may be allowed. The costs of letters asking parties to call to swear affidavits of disbursements may be allowed.

REVIEW OF ITEMS OF TAXATION—SCALE—

SURROGATE COURT R. 52—"PROPERTY DEVELOPING" EXCEEDING $10,000 BUT VALUE OF PROPERTY IN RELATION TO WHICH APPLICATION MADE FOR ADVISE, IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE QUESTION OF COSTS AROSE, NOT EXCEEDING SAID SUM. Imperial Canadian Trust Co. v. Webster, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 876.

REVIEW OF TAXATION—ITEMS NOT OBJECTED TO BEFORE TAXING OFFICER—COUNSEL FEES—DISCRETION OF TAXING OFFICER—NONINTERFERENCE THEREWITH.

Items of costs to which no objection has been taken before the taxing officer should not be reviewed. The costs allowed for counsel fees for attending on examination for discovery are, under tariff item 78, discretionary with the taxing officer. Where an amount is discretionary with the taxing officer and no principle or rule of decision has been violated and there has been no plain error his discretion should not be interfered with.

Rural Municipality of South Qu'Appelle v. Kidd, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 1030.

§ II—30.—RECOVERY ON SECURITY BOND.

A judgment dismissing an action with costs grants an advocate distraction of his costs for defending the suit, and vests him with ownership of his bill of costs so as to permit him to maintain an action in his own name on a security bond given by the plaintiff in the former action notwithstanding it ran in favour of the defendant therein, under the laws of Quebec Province. [Millette v. Gibson, 17 R.L.R. 600, specially referred to.]

Rioux v. Proulx, 4 D.L.R. 162, 41 Que. S.C. 430.

TAXATION OF COSTS—NECESSITY OF FILING WRITTEN OBJECTIONS.

Where in an action to recover a liquidated sum of money, defendants do not deny the plaintiff's claim, but set up a counterclaim, and the plaintiff instead of entering judgment upon his claim and going to trial on the counterclaim alone, sets the action down for trial on both claims, and judgment is rendered allowing plaintiff's claim with costs and dismissing defendant's counterclaim with costs, the plaintiff is allowed to tax only the costs on the counterclaim, and where costs were taxed on both claims, they will be readjusted on review and sent back to the taxing officer for revision, so that the plaintiff will get only those items which he could properly have taxed in respect of his defence to the counterclaim. Under Manitoba K.B. r. 684, allowing "any party who may be dissatisfied with the certificate of a taxing officer, as to any item or part of an item which may have been objected to," to apply to a Judge in Chambers for an order to review the taxation, written objections are not a prerequisite to the right of appeal; oral objections being sufficient.

Cooney v. Jekling (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 728, 22 Man. L.R. 468, 3 W.W.R. 302.

The delay for applying for review of the taxation of a bill of costs in the Superior Court is suspended while the cause is before the Court of Review. The motion for dismissal of an opposition to judgment as frivolous is not a contestation but a preliminary exception giving the right, in an action of the third class, to a fee of $6 in addition to the same fee for appearance.

Conrohese v. Talbot, 13 Que. P.R. 197. (§ II—31)—BLOCK TARIFF.

The limitation of the amount of costs taxable upon an appeal under a statute (7 & 8 Edw. VII. (Man.) c. 12, s. 21, whereby no greater sum than $100 and disbursements shall be allowed for costs of appeal to the successful party in any appeal to the Court of Appeal, applies not only to costs ordered directly by the Court of Appeal, but to costs ordered in favour of the ultimately successful party upon the reversal of the judgment of the Court of Appeal upon a further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

(§ II—32)—TAXING OFFICER—POWERS—DISCRETION—APPEAL.

Rule 304, Rules of Court, Sask., contemplates that it is in his capacity as taxing officer, and upon a taxation that the taxing officer is to exercise the discretion vested in him by the rule; his jurisdiction is not concurrent with that of the Trial Judge, and an appeal to the local master is a proper appeal.

(§ II—37)—SEVERAL DEFENDANTS, SAME CONTESTATION.

The court may restrict the costs of the successful defendants to those of one contestation where each filed a separate defence in identical form instead of a single defence for all, when all of the defendants were in the same interest. [Hétu v. Humphrey, 32 Que. S.C. 169, and Van Felson v. Boudreau, 18 Rev. de Jur. 216, applied.]

Where one of two defendants sued in negligence for flooding lands is found solely responsible for the injury but had served a third party notice claiming indemnity against his codefendant and offered evidence at the trial to throw the blame on such codefendant, the costs of the codefendant may be ordered against the party so found responsible for the injury.

Nicholson v. G.T.R. Co., 19 D.L.R. 759, 7 O.W.N. 480.

APPORTIONMENT — DIVISION — TWO DEFENDANTS—SAME CONTEST.

Where defendant's wife was joined as a defendant after her husband's examination for discovery and was represented by the same counsel at the trial, a judgment against the husband with costs but dismissing the action as against the wife with such costs as she incurred in her own defence solely because plaintiff elected to proceed against the husband as having held himself out as principal instead of taking judgment against the wife as the real principal, is properly worked out by allowing in the wife's costs one-half only of the counsel fee which would be taxable to her had she been the sole defendant and had succeeded.

Stovel v. Detremaudan, 20 D.L.R. 465.

Only one bill of costs will be taxed on appeal to the Court of Review when the parties by tacit if not formal consent have treated two causes as one and the Court of Review, as well as the Superior Court, have pronounced one judgment only.

Beaudry v. Lavigne, 13 Que. P.R. 229.

TAKING EXECUTOR'S ACCOUNTS — PARTIES WITH SAME INTEREST REPRESENTED BY DIFFERENT SOLICITORS.

In taking executor's accounts parties with the same interest should not be represented by different solicitors at the expense of the estate. Where a solicitor appears for the official guardian and another for other parties with the same interest the latter should not get costs out of the estate. The proper course in such case is to get directions from the Surrogate Court Judge as to who shall have charge in opposing the executor's accounts.

(§ II—38)—ON ACCEPTING PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Where the plaintiff sets up two alternative claims, and the defendant pays money into court in satisfaction of one of them, the plaintiff on taking money out of court in satisfaction of that claim must abandon the other claim if he wishes to tax his costs of the action and sign judgment for such costs under r. 425 (Ont. C.R. 1897).

(§ II—40)—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS—TEST CASE—ABIDING RESULT—BENEFIT.

Where an action is stayed by order until the disposal of another independent action against the same defendant upon the same state of facts, with the result of which action the plaintiff in the stayed action was to be bound, but no stipulation was made in the order as to payment of the costs in the contested action, a summary order cannot be made, on the dismissal of the latter, for payment of defendant's costs by the plaintiff in the stayed act on the ground that the former had been carried on for his benefit.

(§ II—45)—SETTING OFF COSTS—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT (ALTA.).

Where the plaintiff, having failed in his common law action against his employer, subsequently proceeds under subs. 4 of s. 3 of the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Act, Statutes of 1908, the compensation assessed under that Act against the employer may be subject to a set-off for the defendant's costs of defending the common-law action so brought.

COLLECTION—SETTING OFF COSTS.

Munro v. DeBois, 12 D.L.R. 858, 13 E.L.R. 45.

SETTING OFF COSTS.

In an action for goods sold and delivered in which the plaintiff succeeded on his claim, the defendant also succeeded on a counterclaim for damages resulting from delay in delivery, though to an amount less than he claimed and judgment was ordered to be entered for the plaintiff for the difference between the amount of his claim and the damages allowed the defendant, together with interest from the issue of the writ, and both the plaintiff and defendant were allowed their costs, the one being set-off against the other, the difference to be set-off or added to the amount of the judgment and the costs of the trial, except the counsel fee which was allowed the plaintiff, was allowed to the defendant.

Desfonds v. Leclair, 16 Que. P.R. 380.

(§ II—50)—OF UNNECESSARY PROCEEDINGS—INSUFFICIENCY OF ISSUES SUBMITTED—COSTS ON GRANTING NEW TRIAL.

Where the plaintiffs on appeal seek a new trial and it appears that through their own inadvertence there was an insufficiency of issues submitted on the trial, the case may be sent back for retrial, but upon exemplary terms as to costs penalizing the plaintiffs for the unnecessary proceedings through their default.

OF UNNECESSARY PROCEEDINGS.

Money disbursed as expenses in the preparation of the owner's case to the arbitrators upon an arbitration under the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, may be disallowed if they appear to have been incurred through over-caution or unnecessarily.

Re False Creek Flats Arbitration (No. 3), 8 D.L.R. 922, 17 B.C.R. 376.

OF UNNECESSARY PROCEEDINGS—DEFECT OF PARTIES — UNNECESSARY DELAY OF SUCCESSFUL PARTY.

In an action by an inhabitant of a license district against a license commissioner praying for an injunction restraining the latter from acting on a requisition presented to him for a poll to determine whether licenses should be granted for the sale of liquor within his district, under s. 124 of the Liquor License Ordinance, C.O. 1898 (N.W.T.), c. 89, as amended by statutes 2 and 3 Geo. V. (Alta.) c. 8, s. 26, where it appears that the action, as originally brought, should have been dismissed, because the plaintiff had no status to maintain the action, but the action was saved by the adding of another person who was entitled to maintain the action, the new plaintiff, although successful, is not entitled to costs, since the defendant could have had the action dismissed before the new plaintiff was brought in, and the defendant is entitled to tax as costs, only such items as he could have taxed as the result of the motion to dismiss which he failed to make.

Cameron v. Carse, 20 D.L.R. 952.

§ 11—60)—SETTING CASE DOWN FOR TRIAL—NOTICE OF—RIGHT OF COUNSEL TO FEE AT TRIAL.

Where a defendant is justified in setting his case down for trial and giving notice of trial the solicitor becomes entitled to deliver briefs to counsel, and if intending to take his own brief as a barrister is entitled to counsel fee at trial. In a number of cases which are identical, where one solicitor counsel is retained for all the cases, he is entitled to counsel fee in each case. The general rule that the discretion of the taxing officer is not to be interfered with as to quantum does not preclude the Appellate Court from so interfering in very special circumstances.

DRAINAGE REFERENCE—POWER TO MAKE RULES REGARDING.

Subject to the general rules, as to costs under the Drainage Act, the drainage referee has power to make any order he may see fit, as to the payment of costs, and may make a general rule that in all drainage cases for the year 1915, each party must pay its own costs, unless in some special case the referee thinks such general rule would not be reasonable.

Tp. of Colchester North v. Tp. of Anderton, Tp. of Gasfield North v. Tp. of Anderton, 21 D.L.R. 277. [Reversed in 24 D.L.R. 143, 34 O.L.R. 437.]

PAYABLE IN QUEBEC.

The law costs for which there is a privilege on the movable and immovable property of the insolvent debtor are those only which are incurred in the common interest of all the creditors. It cannot be claimed against an hypothecary creditor for costs which have not benefited him. Therefore, the attorneys who prepared the demand for a cession de biens and had charge of the subsequent proceedings up to liquidation cannot be collocated for their costs in preference to the hypothecary creditors of the insolvent.

Langevin v. Girouard; Re Daigle, 43 Que. S.C. 341.

SCALE OF COSTS (QUE.).

The plaintiff who, in an action for alimony, succeeds to the extent of $60 only is not entitled to the cost of the depositions. The word dépens on frais includes disbursements as well as fees (art. 551, C.P. Que.).

Ascher v. Ascher, 14 Que. P.R. 437.

EXCEPTION.

The costs of the defendant's attorney on a declinatory exception which was maintained and an order made for transmission of the record to another district will be those of an action dismissed after contestation.

Biron v. Provost, 14 Que. P.R. 304.

REMEDY FOR, IN INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS.

Where an insolvent trader transfers all his assets to certain of his creditors to be realized and the proceeds distributed among the body of creditors the liquidators are only depositaries of the property and money they received, and, so long as they retain possession of it, can be compelled, by means of a writ of saisie-arrest, to pay, to the extent of the same, the amount directed by a judicial order. In these circumstances, when an action against the insolvent and his liquidators is defended by the insolvent alone but at the instigation of the liquidators and in the interest of the creditors generally, if the action is maintained with costs against the insolvent only the plaintiff has a right, by saisie-arrest, to compel payment of these costs out of moneys in the hands of the liquidators.

Hill v. Hudon, 43 Que. S.C. 481.

SCALE—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

When an action is brought to recover a sum exceeding $2,000 and the plaintiff, who has obtained judgment for $150 only, inscribes in review where the judgment is affirmed, the costs of the proceedings in review will be those of the first class.

Solomon v. Montreal St. R. Co., 14 Que. P.R. 371.

EXCEPTIONS—IN QUEBEC.

If two preliminary exceptions, e.g., a declinatory motion and a motion to the form, are embodied in the same document, the latter must be double-stamped and two deposits made.

Bernier v. Leboeuf, 15 Que. P.R. 22.

ANNULMENT OF SALE—QUEBEC.

The costs on a petition to annul a sheriff's sale of an immovable for taxes for an amount of over $200 when execution has been issued in said Circuit Court, will be those of a first-class Circuit Court action, and not the fees of a Superior Court action.

City of Westmount v. Evans, 15 Que. P.R. 110.

SCALE—QUEBEC.

Every step in a cause is governed as to the costs, by the tariff in force when the proceedings in the cause began.

Racine v. Dansereau, 14 Que. P.R. 395.

Article 72, par. 7 of the tariff for attorneys, in force since 1st Sept., 1912, allows a sum of $15 for traveling from any other district to Montreal or Quebec, made specially for the hearing of causes in review. This fee should be allowed to an attorney attending a hearing with the special object of watching the case even when it would have been argued by counsel. The additional fee to which the attorney is entitled in a cause involving more than $5,000 should be settled by the tariff in force at the time when the bill of costs was taxed and not that in force at the institution of the action.

Contant v. Ducharme, 14 Que. P.R. 414.

QUEBEC PRACTICE—MIXED AND PERSONAL ACTIONS.

An action by a purchaser to compel the vendor to fulfil the stipulations of a sale of real property is a mixed action; an action by the vendor is a personal action.
Giguere v. Boisjoli, 16 Que. P.R. 235.

IN CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

The application for the appointment of the third arbitrator is only part of the preliminary proceedings in an expropriation case and the costs are only those provided for by art. 79 of the tariff. [Mattey v. Montreal, 14 Que. P.R. 79, distinguished.]

Town of Outremont v. Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, 14 Que. P.R. 346.

EXPROPRIATION—QUEBEC.

There is no difference as to costs between an expropriation under a Federal or Provincial Railway Act or under an act relating to cities and towns so long as the quantum of the costs is alone in question and the tariff is the best guide in determining this quantum. In an expropriation under the provisions of the charter of Montreal the solicitors are entitled to costs, not only as between solicitor and party but also as between solicitor and client.

DEPOSIT IN BANK TO JOINT CREDIT—SURVIVORSHIP—WILL.

The plaintiff's father made a deposit of money in a bank, and he and the plaintiff signed a memorandum, addressed to the manager of the bank, saying that they thereby agreed jointly and severally with the bank and each with the other that any moneys which might from time to time be placed to the credit of their joint names and the interest thereon should be subject to withdrawal by either of them, and that the death of one should not affect the right of the survivor to withdraw such moneys and interest; and each of them irrevocably authorized the bank to pay any such moneys and interest to either of them and to the survivor. The money deposited was entirely that of the father, who died shortly afterwards. In an action against the executors and a legatee under the father's will for a declaration of the plaintiff's right to the money, evidence was adduced to the intention of the testator was admitted, and some of it showed an intention to benefit the plaintiff. The father, by his will, which was made two months after the signing of the memorandum, bequeathed $300 to the plaintiff, and made no mention of the deposit.

Smith v. Gosnell, 43 O.L.R. 123.

JOINT SAVINGS ACCOUNT—SURVIVORSHIP—WILL.

To create a voluntary bestowment in joint tenancy, as distinct from a gift inter vivos or mortis causa, there must be unity of interest, unity of title, arising at one and the same time, and unity of possession—both joint tenants being seized per mie et per tout, each has an undivided moiety of the whole. Where a man withdrew the money standing to his credit in a savings bank account, and re-deposited it to the credit of a new account opened in the names of himself and his wife, giving the bank a written declaration, signed by both, that "all moneys deposited and that may be deposited by us and each of us to the credit of this account are our joint property, but they may be withdrawn by cheques made by either of us or the survivor of us," it was held, after the death of the husband, that the money was the property of the wife by right of survivorship. The source of the money was immaterial, and after it became joint property it was not subject to being disposed of by the will of either party. [Re Ryan, 32 O.R. 224; Everly v. Dunkley, 8 D.L.R. 839, followed.]

One cotenant is not answerable to another cotenant for profits from the operation of a mill where the latter, who was not prevented from using the mill, to the same extent as the defendant had he so desired, would not contribute towards the cost of putting the mill in order so that it could be used. JOINT OPTION—ACCEPTANCE BY ONE—ACCOUNTING.

The relation of joint holders of an option on land is not that of partners, but of joint owners, and the exercise of it by one enures to the benefit of the other, and an account of the profits realized must be made.

Woodside v. Laude & Homes Co. (Man.), 36 D.L.R. 713, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1227.

ACCOUNTING—EXCLUSIVE POSSESSION.

Where one of joint owners of property has had during a period of time the exclusive possession and enjoyment thereof, his coproprietor cannot claim from him the incomes therefrom received during such enjoyment; his only recourse in this respect is by an action for an account. When such property consists of moveables, the coheirs may each demand his proportion thereof in kind; but neither of them can oblige the other coheir to purchase his part thereof nor to pay him its value.

The county seat of the county, by terms of the Municipal Code, is the place where the County Council holds its sessions and, in consequence, it is the business of the council to hold its sessions in an appropriate place to establish a county seat. Following the provisions of the Municipal Code, the county seat of the county, once established, may be changed only by a by-law passed by two-thirds of the members of the council in office, nevertheless, if it appears that such a by-law has been passed, without being adopted by the requisite majority, and which said by-law has been always followed so that all the sessions of County Council, during thirty years, were continually held in a place within the limits of the municipality which was defined by said by-law, such a place of holding sessions, by the force of circumstances, will be declared as determined legally, de facto.

La Corporation de Ste. Foye v. La Corporation Du Comte de Quebec, 18 Rev. de Jur. 99.

A County Council may cause to be homologated a procès-verbal for opening a road situate part in one and part in another municipality of the county, declaring it by the procès-verbal to be a county road. When the municipalities have passed by-laws, under the provisions of art. 535 M.C., for the maintenance of the road, the declaration in the procès-verbal that each of them will maintain the part situate in its territory is sufficient. The County Council can, by the procès-verbal, order that the expenses thereof shall be borne in equal proportions by the two municipalities.

Parish of Lotbinière v. County of Lotbinière, 42 Que. S.C. 148.

COUPONS.

(J-1) — DETACHED INTEREST COUPONS — RAILWAY BONDS—SALE OF RAILWAY—DISTRIBUTION OF PROCEEDS—CONFLICTING CLAIMS—PRIORITIES.

A holder of detached interest coupons clipped from mortgage bonds issued by a railway company can sue on them without being at the same time the holder of the bond. The coupon does not lose the benefit of the mortgage lien when detached. (McKenzie v. Montreal & Ottawa R. Co., 29 U.C.P. 333.) As against bondholders, who presented their coupons for payment and not for sale, and who had the right to assume that they were paid and extinguished, a person who advances the money to take them up under an undisclosed agreement with the company, that the coupons should be delivered to him unmodelled as security for his advances, is not entitled to an equal priority in the lien of the proceeds of the mortgage by which the coupons are secured. The question as to whether there was a payment in satisfaction or by way of purchase, lies in the knowledge and intention of both parties to that payment—which knowledge may be inferred from the circumstances and in case of doubt the scale will be turned against the idea of purchase either by the want of proof of mutual intent or by the fact that there is not enough in the security to pay the principal of the debt and the coupons as well; so that a purchase would be prejudicial to the bondholders. A. IN GENERAL; INHERENT POWERS.

Jurisdiction of Prize Court, see Prize Court.

Constitutional powers as to creation of inferior courts, justices of the peace, see Constitutional Law, I E-130.

Jurisdiction of Commissioners of Sewers, see Drains and Sewers, III-15.

(§ I A-1)—DISTRICT COURTS MARTIAL — INTERFERENCE OF CIVIL COURT—CIVIL RIGHTS AFFECTED.

A civil court will interfere only where the rights affected by the judgment of a district court martial of a person in military service are civil rights and the court is acting without jurisdiction.

Ex parte John Fogan, 48 D.L.R. 194, 46 N.B.R. 370.

JURISDICTION — INHERENT POWERS — RAILWAY BOARD — TAX APPEAL — REOPENING OF.

Where the assessment for school purposes of a power company was fixed on the company's appeal to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board on the consent of the company and the municipality in an unorganized district of Ontario, that Board had no jurisdiction after the passing and entry of such order, to reopen the appeal on the application of the town school board and a ratepayer, and to substitute a higher assessment for its previous order; the effect of subs. 5 of s. 4 of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, 6 Edw. VII. c. 31, providing that the Board shall have all the powers of a court of record, gave it such jurisdiction as is inherent in a court of record but not powers which are conferred on particular courts by statute or by rules of court passed under statutory authority.

Re Ontario & Minnesota Power Co. & Town of Fort Frances, 19 D.L.R. 429, 30 O.L.R. 373.

JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE'S COURT — CIVIL ACTION—FRAUD.

In an action in a magistrates' court (N. S.) on a promissory note given for the purchase price of a chattel, the defence of fraud connected with the sale may be set up as in any other court.

Wright v. Bentley, 11 D.L.R. 515, 46 N. S.R. 534, 12 E.L.R. 270.

SEAMAN—ACTION FOR WAGES—EXCHEQUER COURT.

An action by a seaman for the recovery of wages under $200 may be brought in the Exchequer Court under s. 191 of the Canada Shipping Act, where the owner of the ship is insolvent or where neither the owner nor the master resides within 20 miles of the place where the seaman is discharged or put ashore.

Young v. The Ship "Minnie A," (Ex.), 40 D.L.R. 408.

JURISDICTION — COMMISSIONERS' COURT — DISCONTINUANCE OF PART OF CLAIM — PROOF OF DISCONTINUANCE — QUE. C.P., 59, 275.

A court, in order to be validly seized of a case, ought to have had jurisdiction from the beginning, and if it then had jurisdiction the plaintiff cannot oust its jurisdiction by reducing his demand. If the court never had jurisdiction the plaintiff cannot confer it on the court by increasing his demand. The summons is the procedure which begins an action, and the jurisdiction of the court ought to be decided by the amount claimed in the writ. A plaintiff who sues in the Commissioners' Court for $29.50 and also for "half of a crop of potatoes," should amend his claim by specifying this value, or at least give proof of it, and not discontinue, verbally, this part of his claim. Proof, by affidavits that the plaintiff has thus discontinued verbally a part of his claim on the day of the trial is contrary to law, in the same way as proof of the defendant's agreement to proceed the very day of the return of the writ in court.

Pondin v. Raymond, 15 Que., P.R. 348.

REVIEW OF DISCRETIONARY POWER.

Municipal corporations have power by means of a process-verbal (arts. 796-813 M.C.) on application of one interested party and, in the absence of proof of injustice towards one or more of those opposing it, the Superior Court should not intervene to annul or modify what has been done in the exercise of a discretionary power recognized by law.

Charost v. Parish of Saint Donat, 43 Que. S.C. 539.

PLEADING — HEARING — LIST — POWERS OF JUDGE—C.C.P., ARTS. 293, 294.

The court has power to change the order of hearing of cases, and to order that two actions in which the counsel are the same shall be tried by the same judge, when the interests of justice seem to require it and when the legal rights of the parties are not jeopardized.

Raymond v. Graham, 56 Que. S.C. 454.

DOMESTIC AND ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS — BY-LAWS — JURISDICTION — RELIGIOUS OPINION.

When domestic or ecclesiastical tribunals are established, and the members of the society have expressly or tacitly accepted their rulings, they are deemed to submit to those rulings, and civil courts should not interfere with their by-laws unless the essential principles of justice have been violated. Nobody may be forced before a court of justice to disclose personal religious opinions unless the questions bear on the case or are necessary.

Wesleyan College v. Workman, 23 Que. K.R. 403.

JURISDICTION — DIVISION COURTS ACT — PLACE OF PAYMENT — AMOUNT — PROHIBITION.

Re American Standard Jewelry Co. v. Gerth, 5 O.W.N. 600.

INFERIOR COURT — WANT OF JURISDICTION — APPARENT ON FACE OF PROCEEDINGS — PROHIBITION — NOT DISCRETIONARY — WAIVER OR ACQUIESCENCE — LACHES.

Where the jurisdiction of an inferior court is not apparent on the face of the proceedings it should not be inferred. Where the want of jurisdiction is apparent on the face of the proceedings prohibition is not a matter of discretion but should be granted. In such case waiver or acquiescence unless there is a statutory provision of which advantage has been taken) cannot create jurisdiction; nor can laches operate to defeat the right to prohibition.

In re Nowell & Carlson, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 27.

[1] A-2]—REVIEW OF JUDGMENT—HABEAS CORPUS.

A court of superior criminal jurisdiction has inherent power of review over an order in habeas corpus proceedings made by a single judge sitting for the court and as its delegate; and a general order providing, as does Alberta Crown practice r. No. 20, for such review by way of appeal to the Appellate Division of the same court either by the accused or the prosecutor in a criminal matter is not ultra vires, although statutory authority would be necessary were the appeal to a separate court. INHERENT POWERS — INJUNCTION RESTRAINING LOCAL OPTION POLL.

The Alberta Supreme Court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining a license commissioner from acting on a requisition presented to him for a poll to determine whether licenses should be granted for the sale of liquor in his district under s. 124 of the Liquor License Ordinance, C.O. 1808 (N.W.T.) c. 89, as amended by statutes 2-3 Geo. V. (Alta.) c. 8, s. 26, where it appears that the commissioner had no jurisdiction because the requisition did not comply with the statute, notwithstanding subs. 11 of s. 124.

Gross v. Strong, Pinchebeck v. Strong, 10 D.L.R. 392, 5 A.L.R. 49, 23 W.L.R. 340, 362.

POWER OF COURT TO ORDER EXAMINATION.

The court will not order and has no power to enforce an order for any further examination of the plaintiff in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R. S.Q. arts. 7338-7346, where he has already submitted, at the request of the defendant, to an examination on the morning of the trial.

Martin v. Cape, 23 D.L.R. 869, 47 Que. S.C. 390.

On the sale of a moveable right for a fixed sum, as on the sale of the right to operate a mine, without any stipulation as to the time within which such right is to be exercised, i.e., within which the purchaser is to remove the balance of the mineral sold, the courts have no jurisdiction under Quebec law to fix a term or delay within which the purchaser shall be restricted in the exercise of the rights contracted for. [Begin v. Carrier, 33 Que. S.C. 1, specially referred to.]

Houle v. Quebec Bank & Vivier, 4 D.L.R. 614, 41 Que. S.C. 521.

The court has inherent power to grant relief against any manifest hardship in respect of proceedings taken upon default where the default was accidental and without blame on the part of the person seeking to set aside the adjudication made in his absence.

JURISDICTION OF JUDGE TO ENTERTAIN MOTION FOR A FOREIGN COMMISSION.

A judge has jurisdiction to entertain a motion for a foreign commission to take testimony, notwithstanding that the original summons had been made by the registrar of the court and that the application should therefore have been first made to the registrar.

JURISDICTION—INHERENT POWER—RIGHT TO GRANT INTERIM ALIMONY.

The Supreme Court of Alberta has inherent jurisdiction to grant interim alimony.

CONSOLIDATION OF ACTIONS — INHERENT JURISDICTION OF COURT — R.S.O. 1897, c. 51, s. 57, SUBS. 9, CON. RULE (ONT.) 1897, 435.

Con. Rule (Ont.) 1897, 435, providing that actions may be consolidated by order of the court or a judge in the manner in use in the Superior Courts of common law prior to the Judicature Act 1881, is intended to deal with the consolidation of actions in the strict sense of that term, that is, to stay absolutely all actions but erty) to supply the defect which has occurred, and this not at all as a matter of procedure but as going to the capacity of the court to effectuate justice in any given case. [Hamlyn v. Talisker Distillery, [1894] A.C. 292, at 211, applied.]

Cameron v. Cuddy, 13 D.L.R. 757, reversing 7 D.L.R. 296, 25 W.L.R. 236, 5 W.W.R. 56.

AGREEMENT CONFERRING JURISDICTION—CONTRACT FOR SALE OF GOODS.

Manitoba Windmill & Pump Co. v. McLeod, 4 S.L.R. 127, 16 W.L.R. 283.

§ 1 A-7)—LICENSE ACT — CITY OF LACHINE — COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION REQUESTING TO CONFIRM CERTIFICATE — GROUND FOR ATTACKING — SUPERIOR COURT JURISDICTION — QUE. C.P. 50 — CITIES AND TOWNS ACT, s. 937 — QUE. M.C. 100, 698, ET SEQ.

Conferring its jurisdiction, especially a statutory jurisdiction, the Superior Court is absolutely bound by the text, and cannot extend it even by taking advantage of Que. C.P. 50. The city of Lachine, by refusing certificates of licenses, acts within the powers conferred upon it by the License Act; and, in the present case, such a decision is subject to be quashed under Que. M.C. 100, 698, et seq. and not according to the terms of the new Cities and Towns Act, by which the respondent is governed. Preston v. Lachine (City), 15 Que. P.R. 408.

APPEAL FROM COUNTY COURT—JURISDICTION — PRIVATE DWELLING-HOUSE — SUITE OF ROOMS.

The Court of Appeal has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal by an accused from a judgment of a County Court Judge affirming a conviction by a police magistrate for an offence against the Prohibition Act, c. 49, 1916.

R. v. St. Quinn, 25 B.C.R. 362.

R. V. OTHER NONRESIDENTS: TERRITORIAL LIMITATIONS.

§ 1 B-10)—CLAIM AGAINST RECEIVER. A plaintiff who is asserting a claim to effects and property in the possession of a liquidator should apply by summary petition to the court of which such liquidator is an officer. No other court has any jurisdiction to try an action, suit, attachment or seizure against such liquidator in his capacity of liquidator.

Girard v. Duhamel & C.P.R., 42 D.L.R. 558, 54 Que. S.C. 367.

JURISDICTION — ATTACHMENT — SALARY OF NONRESIDENT — POWERS AS REGARDS CORPOREAL AND INCORPOREAL THINGS.

The courts of the Province of Quebec have jurisdiction to maintain an attachment of the salary owing to a nonresident, provided that the garnishee was served within the province and made no protest and that the debtor did not dispute the jurisdiction at any time. But the courts cannot order the sale or disposition of corporeal property, such as a moveable, situate wholly within another province.

Hobbs v. Gordon & Canadian Bank of Commerce, 50 D.L.R. 605.

NONRESIDENTS — FAILURE TO DISPUTE JURISDICTION WAIVER.

If a defendant, resident out of the territorial jurisdiction of the court and over whom the court would not otherwise have jurisdiction, appears and defends the action without raising any objection to the jurisdiction in his statement of defence as required by s. 29 of the District Courts Act (Alberta Stat. 1907, c. 4), such appearance is a waiver of any objection to the jurisdiction and cannot be raised later at the trial, and if the court has jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the action, a judgment thus recovered against him is binding upon him. [Reid v. Taber Trading Co., 7 D.L.R. 229, referred to.]

OVER NONRESIDENTS.

Where it appears that an action brought under s. 72 of the Division Courts Act (Ont.) should have been entered in some other court of the same or some other county, the provision of s. 79 of the Act that the action "shall not fail for want of jurisdiction," but may be transferred to "any court having jurisdiction in the premises," does not give the court in which the cause was improperly brought any jurisdiction to hear and determine the case, even where no objection is taken or if taken is wrongly passed upon or not tried.

Re Gibbons v. Cannell, 8 D.L.R. 232, 4 O.W.N. 270, 23 O.W.R. 401.

JURISDICTION — SERVICE OF PROCESS OUT OF JURISDICTION — ASSETS WITHIN.

Ont. C.R. 162 (h) (Ont. Practice Rules of 1897) permits the making of an order for the service of process outside of the province where the defendant has assets of the value of $200 within the jurisdiction of the court, although consisting wholly of debts due the defendant; and it is not necessary in order to support such order, that such assets should be available at the time judgment may be rendered.

CONCLUSIVENESS OF PROBATE IN QUEBEC OF HOLOGRAPH WILL—ONTARIO COURT.

The admission to probate by the Superior Court, Quebec, of a holograph will executed in accordance with the laws of that province is not a judicial act conclusive upon an Ontario Court in determining the question whether the testator had changed his domicile to Ontario after making such will, and by his subsequent marriage in Ontario revoked the holograph will at least as regards property in Ontario; a probate in the province of Quebec differs from the proof of a will in a Surrogate Court in Ontario, the probate in Quebec being issued as a matter of course upon the filing of a petition and an affidavit shewing the due execution of the will.

Seifert v. Seifert, 23 D.L.R. 440, 32 O.L.R. 433.

DIVISION COURTS — TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION — CAUSE OF ACTION, WHERE ARISING — CONTRACT BY — CORRESPONDENCE — TRANSFER OF CAUSE TO DEBTOR'S PLACE OF RESIDENCE.

DIVISION COURTS — TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION — CAUSE OF ACTION, WHERE ARISING — DEFENDANTS NOT APPEARING — PLACE OF CONTRACT.

Re Patterson v. Royal Wholesale Tailors, 10 O.W.N. 332.

JURISDICTION OF SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO — FOREIGN LANDS — ACTION BY JUDGMENT CREDITOR TO SET ASIDE CONVEYANCE OF, AS FRAUDULENT — PARTIES RESIDENT IN ONTARIO — PLEADING — STATEMENT OF CLAIM — CAUSE OF ACTION.

Canadian Land Investment Co. v. Phillips, 7 O.W.N. 652.

DISTRICTS — ELECTION OF DOMICILE.

An election of domicile signed by a farmer in the district of his domicile is of no effect.

Julien & Co. v. Veilleux, 18 Que. P.R. 8.

ELECTION OF DOMICILE — AMENDMENT — PLACE OF CONTRACT — LAND.

Where the jurisdiction of a court is questioned, the court may, nevertheless, take cognizance of an incidental pleading which is intended to render certain the jurisdiction which does not appear. When a declinatory exception has been filed the court may allow a motion to amend the declaration. A court has control of the cause which is submitted to it, and all incidents relating to jurisdiction may be entertained in order to permit it to decide upon the declinatory exception. Where an offer for the sale of property, dated at Montreal, is accepted at Gently, District of Nicolet, by an agent for several purchasers, and the deed of sale which contains an election of domicile at Montreal has been ratified by all the purchasers, the court in the District of Montreal is that which has jurisdiction in a cause relating to the performance of the contract.

Greater Montreal Land Invest. Co. v. Tourigny, 25 Que. K.B. 498.

DISTRICT COURTS — TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION OF.

The District Court of one judicial district has jurisdiction to deal with actions in which the cause of action does not arise and where the parties do not reside within such district.

Manitoba Engines v. Paisley, 7 W.W.R. 1097.

PRACTICE — COUNTERCLAIM AGAINST FOREIGN PLAINTIFF — COURT'S JURISDICTION.

The court has jurisdiction to entertain a counterclaim against a foreign plaintiff in an action instituted by him in it, even though it would not have jurisdiction to entertain an independent action brought by the defendant against the plaintiff upon the same cause of action; and the defendant should be allowed to set up such a counterclaim if there is nothing in the character of any of the subjects of counterclaim which would have made it venustious or embarrassing to have them disposed of in the action if the action were between parties both residing within the jurisdiction and the cause of action disclosed by the counterclaim arose within the jurisdiction.

Browns v. Browns, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 903, (§ 1 B—12) — JURISDICTION OVER NONRESIDENTS — CONTRACT IN OTHER PROVINCE.

A statement in a written contract of hiring that the parties elect domicile at a place located in another province of Canada should not be construed as an agreement not to sue in the courts of another province to which the plaintiff might otherwise resort.

Carveth v. Railway Asbestos Packing Co., 9 D.L.R. 631, 4 O.W.N. 872, 24 O.W.R. 151.

(§ 1 B—17) — TRANSITORY ACTIONS.

Where, in an action in its nature transitory, a writ is issued and served upon the defendant whilst he is within the territorial jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, that court has jurisdiction over the action. [Jackson v. Spittal, L.R. 5 (P. 542, followed.)]

(§ 1 B—24) — CRIMINAL LAW — ACCEPTING BRIBE — OFFENCE COMMITTED BEYOND COUNTY LIMITS — JURISDICTION OF COUNTY JUDGE TO TRY.

A County Court Judge of the County of Vancouver has jurisdiction under s. 577 of the Cr. Code to try a sleeping car conductor on a through train from Calgary to Vancouver for accepting a bribe from persons to permit them to ride free in his car, although the offence was committed prior to the arrival of the train within the boundaries of the County of Vancouver. The words "within the jurisdiction of said court to try" in the section have reference, not to the territorial limits of the court, but to any crime or offence within the competence of the court to try. [The King v. McKeown, 8 D.L.R. 611, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 492, followed.]

(§ I B—25)—SALE OF LAND — RESCISSION — POWERS OF MASTER.

Upon an application for cancellation of an agreement for sale of land, the applicant is entitled to such judgment as the material presented by him shows him to be entitled to. The Master has no authority to postpone or adjourn the application upon payment of a less sum than the applicant was legally entitled to.

Simmons v. Sheffield, 39 D.L.R. 454, 13 A.L.R. 351, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 633.

JURISDICTION — CIRCUIT COURT — CLAUSE IN A LEASE ALLOWING PROSPECTIVE LESSEES TO VISIT THE PREMISES—C.P. 50, 54, 171, 1126.

The Circuit Court has no jurisdiction to give an order to compel a lessee to conform to a clause of the lease requiring him to permit prospective lessees to visit the premises from 1st of February to the end of the lease.

Marois v. Miller, 15 Que. P.R. 402.

(§ I B—27) — REAL PROPERTY IN OTHER COUNTRY.

A Michigan Court of Chancery may empower the executors of a resident of that state to sell and execute the necessary conveyances to themselves of land of their testator situated in Ontario. [Penn v. Lord Baltimore, 1 Ves. Sr. 444, referred to.]

Re Mills, 3 D.L.R. 614, 21 O.W.R. 887.

(§ I B—28) — VACATION OF REGISTRATIONS.

A decree or judgment for rescission of a contract for the sale of land upon non-payment of the purchase money, may direct that all registered instruments depending thereon be vacated unless all arrearages are paid within a time limited by the judgment.

Southwell v. Williams & Schank, 4 D.L.R. 17 B.C.R. 209, 21 W.L.R. 771, 2 W.W.R. 697.

(§ I B—32) — SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT.

A contract to convey land will be enforced by the courts of one province where the parties are within its jurisdiction, notwithstanding that the land is located in a different province.

Smith v. Ernst, 3 D.L.R. 736, 22 Man. L.R. 363, 21 W.L.R. 483, 2 W.W.R. 498, affirming 2 D.L.R. 213.

(§ I B—33) — FORECLOSURE OF LAND CONTRACT — PROPERTY SITUATED OUT OF JURISDICTION.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to grant a decree in personam in foreclosure actions respecting lands situated out of the jurisdiction, providing the defendant resides within the jurisdiction. [Toller v. Carteret, 2 Vern. 494; Paget v. Edc, L.R. 18 Eq. 118, applied.]

Plainview Farming Co. v. Transcontinental Townsite Co., 25 D.L.R. 594, 25 Man. L.R. 677, 9 W.W.R. 247, 32 W.L.R. 499.

(§ I B—40) — FOREIGN CORPORATIONS — JURISDICTION — CONTRACT OF HIRING — SERVICE OF WRIT — SUFFICIENCY OF.

The Superior Court at Montreal has jurisdiction to entertain an action for salary under a contract for hiring of services entered into with a foreigner, the defendant being a company incorporated in France, but having an office in Montreal, where the services were performed. Service on a foreign company having an office in the province in which it does business is properly made on an employee of the company at such office.

Boulay v. The French Company of Alimentary Specialties, 44 Que. S.C. 532.

(§ I B—42) — ACTIONS AGAINST CORPORATIONS.

Ontario Courts have no jurisdiction to restrain by injunction acts of a foreign corporation in the country of their origin, although the foreign corporation may transact business within Ontario in such a way as to enable Ontario process to be served in conformity with the Consolidated Rules of Practice in respect of business transactions within the jurisdiction. [See Dicey on Conflict of Laws, 2nd ed., 160-163; 17 Hals. 204.]

Capital Mfg. Co. v. Buffalo Specialty Co., 1 D.L.R. 260, 3 O.W.N. 553, 20 O.W.R. 920.

(§ I B—43) — ACTION AGAINST INSURANCE COMPANY.

An insurance company that was registered in British Columbia cannot be sued therein on a cause of action which arose in the province of its organization, where it had its head office and principal place of business, notwithstanding the British Columbia Companies Act provides that for the purpose of s. 67 of c. 53 of R.S.B.C. 1911, a company registered therein shall be considered as carrying on business in such province.

Portman v. Great West Life Ass'ce. Co., 4 D.L.R. 154, 17 B.C.R. 417, 21 W.L.R. 557, 2 W.W.R. 563.

TORT — LAND — LEX LOCI.

The court will not entertain an action for tort committed in a foreign jurisdiction, in connection with land situated therein, unless it is alleged and proved that it is actionable by the laws of the place where committed. [Campbell v. McGregor, 29 N.B.R. 644, distinguished.]

Long v. Long, 36 D.L.R. 722, 44 N.B.R. 599.

LAND IN ANOTHER PROVINCE—APPEARANCE.

Where a half-owner of real estate, who is trustee for the other half-owner, is sued by the latter for his share of the proceeds of a sale of the property under an agreement binding on the plaintiff, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment notwithstanding the property is in another province and the defendant a resident thereof, if the defendant has submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the court by entering an unconditional appearance to the action.

Reynolds v. Jackson (Sask.), [1917] 3 W.W.R. 307.

C. RELATION TO OTHER DEPARTMENTS OF GOVERNMENT.

Powers of judiciary over Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, see Action, I B-5.

Judges' Orders Enforcement Act, County Court, municipal matters, see Costs, I-2c.

(§ I C-45) — PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSIONS.

The jurisdiction given to the Commission for services of public utilities is exclusive, and the Superior Court cannot take cognizance of matters within it. The manner of placing poles and attaching electric wires thereto by an electric company, the inconvenience, danger and damage which may result therefrom to another company of the same kind, as well as the remedies for the same, are matters within the exclusive jurisdiction of the commission.

(§ I C-46) — JURISDICTION OVER EXECUTIVE GOVERNMENT — DISTRIBUTION OF PUBLIC FUNDS.

The powers conferred by a statute on the executive government respecting the payments or disposition of certain funds are subject to the review of and construction by the judiciary, and does not extend to the disposition of money, the right to which is sub-judice inter partes and held in medio by the order of the court. (§ I C-47) — RAILWAY COMMISSIONS.

Where a municipality is entitled to relief by reason of the unauthorized act of a telephone company in proceeding with the erection of poles and wires on the highway without complying with the conditions imposed by the Railway Act of Canada, which act also provides that municipalities have the right to apply to the Board of Railway Commissioners in respect to matters arising in connection with the undertakings of telephone companies, this latter provision is not to be deemed the exclusive remedy and does not oust the jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice of Ontario to deal with the trespass thereby committed by the telephone company. RELATION TO OTHER DEPARTMENTS OF GOVERNMENT — DOMINION RAILWAY COMMISSION — FORFEITURE OF RAILWAY FRANCHISE — POWER OF COURT.

Since the Dominion Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, does not confer jurisdiction on the Railway Board to declare or relieve from a forfeiture, it being clothed only with such powers as are conferred by the act, or by some special act, or such as relate to the enforcement of orders, regulations and directions made thereunder, the courts are not deprived of jurisdiction to declare the forfeiture of a street railway franchise for substantial breaches of its terms. (§ I C-81) — PUBLIC PURPOSES, TAXES.

The provisions of the Assessment Act (Ont.), 4 Edw. VII. c. 23, s. 89, whereby a municipal corporation is declared to have a special lien on lands for tax arrears confers no jurisdiction upon the court to pronounce a decree declaratory of such lien unless consequential relief can be given in the case. (§ I C-82) — JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF — RELATION TO OTHER DEPARTMENTS OF GOVERNMENT — EMINENT DOMAIN — POWER TO DETERMINE NECESSITY FOR.

The question whether a necessity exists for the expropriation of land by a company is not one to be decided by a court in the first instance, but for the Governor-in-council, where the charter of the company, ss. 17 and 19 of c. 113 of N.S. Acts, 1911, provide that whenever it is necessary that the company should be vested with land, lakes or streams or land covered with water for the purposes of its business and no agreement can be made for the purchase thereof, the Governor-in-council may order its expropriation if satisfied that the property is actually required for the business of the company, and that it is not more than is reasonably necessary therefor, and that the expropriation is otherwise just and reasonable.

(§ 1 C—95)—JURISDICTION — MUNICIPAL MATTER — ERECTION OF VILLAGES — ANNULLING ADMINISTRATIVE MEASURES.

Where a portion of the territory of a parish municipality is erected into a village, and all prescribed formalities have been observed, the municipality has no recourse in the courts for the purpose of annulling this administrative measure on equitable grounds. An application must be made to the Lieutenant-Governor before he issues an order-in-council under art. 61 M.C.

(§ 1 C—104)—MUNICIPAL MATTERS — NECESSITY OF TAKING OR ACQUIRING PROPERTY.

The court has no jurisdiction to rescind a sale actually carried out to a municipal corporation at the suit of a ratepayer, or to compel the vendor to repay the price if the municipality had statutory power to purchase lands for the object specified, although the actual user of the lands for that object could only be carried out with the consent of another municipality which consent had not yet been obtained.

Vener v. Toronto, 1 D.L.R. 530, 3 O.W.N. 586, 21 O.W.R. 170.

(§ 1 C—106) — MUNICIPAL MATTERS — HIGHWAYS.

Where, on account of the refusal of the municipal council to exercise a power as to highways, by the adoption of a by-law, an injustice has resulted, the party who suffers has a right of appeal to the county council; but the Superior Court has no jurisdiction to interfere in such a case except where the injustice has been of so grave a character as to amount to oppression or might indicate manifest bad faith equivalent to fraud.

Parish of Caouana v. Thibault, 25 Que. K.B. 213.

(§ 1 C—108)—JURISDICTION OF — MUNICIPAL MATTERS — TAXATION.

Apart from any right to bring an action for money illegally exacted as and for taxes, the Ontario courts have no jurisdiction to grant a declaratory judgment or an injunction to restrain the enforcement of an assessment, since, under s. 31 of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, 6 Edw. VII, 3 and 4 Geo. V. c. 37, R.S.O. 1914, c. 186, the Railway and Municipal Board has exclusive jurisdiction over questions pertaining to taxation. Whether property is subject to taxation is, under ss. 17 (3) and 51 of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, 6 Edw. VII, c. 31, 3 and 4 Geo. V. c. 37, R.S.O. 1914, c. 186, and conferring authority on the Railway and Municipal Board, a question exclusively within its jurisdiction, which cannot be determined by the courts in the first instance, but only by way of appeal in the manner pointed out by the act.

New York & Ottawa R. Co. v. Tp. of Cornwall, 15 D.L.R. 433, 29 O.L.R. 522.

JURISDICTION OF SUPERIOR COURT — MUNICIPAL MATTERS — ILLEGAL TAX VALUATIONS.

A direct action taken by a ratepayer against the actions of a municipal council for illegal tax valuations will only be maintained when the result of these actions would be unjust, arbitrary and against the public interest, as the Superior Court should not interfere with the administration of municipal matters nor decide a question left to the approbation of the municipal council unless authorized thereby by a formal text of the law.

Rivard v. Parish of Wickham, 47 Que. S.C. 441.

(§ 1 C—110)—REVIEW OF MUNICIPAL BY-LAWS—QUASHING—DISCRETION.

Under s. 118 of the city charter of the city of Calgary (Alta.), providing that a judge may quash a by-law in whole or in part for illegality, the power to quash rests in the sound discretion of the court after an examination of extraneous evidence unless the by-law appears on its face to be illegal. POWER TO QUASH BY-LAWS PASSED BY POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

The power of the court to quash by-laws of municipal corporations conferred by s. 283 of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, does not include by-laws passed by Police Commissioners; the latter by-laws are not subject to the procedure of a summary motion to quash. JURISDICTION — RAILWAYS — OPERATION — STRUCTURE NEAR TRACKS — CLEARANCE.

Applications to the Board, under the provisions of general Order No. 65, which provides that "No structure over four feet high shall hereafter be placed within six feet from the gauge side of the nearest rail without first obtaining the approval of the Board," for the purpose of obtaining a limited clearance, affect a matter connected with the operation of the railway, and should be made by the railway company concerned and not by the individual or industry affected.

In re General Order No. 65, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 412.

(§ 1 D—124) — JURISDICTION — MATTERS UNDER JURISDICTION OF RAILWAY AND MUNICIPAL BOARD.

The courts will not entertain a suit for an accounting of profits from the operation of a railway by two municipalities under a formal agreement executed not voluntarily but in conformity to an order of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, since the matter was one exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Board.

"PERSONAL ACTION"—TRESPASS—TITLE TO LAND.

An action for trespass to land, in which no question of title is involved, is a "personal action" within the jurisdiction of a Division Court, under s. 62 (1) (a) of the Division Courts Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 63. [Harmston v. Woods, 39 O.L.R. 105, overruled.]

McConnell v. McGee, 37 D.L.R. 486, 39 O.L.R. 460.

An action for trespass to land is not within the jurisdiction of a Division Court. The words "personal actions" in s. 62 (1) of the Division Courts Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 63, do not include an action for trespass to land. [Neely v. Parry Sound River Improvement Co., 8 O.L.R. 128, followed.] Harmston v. Woods, 39 O.L.R. 105.

The ruling in Re Harmston v. Woods, 39 O.L.R. 105, that a Division Court had no jurisdiction (s. 62 (1) (a) of the Division Courts Act), in an action for trespass to land, having been overruled by an Appellate Court, in McConnell v. McGee, 37 D.L.R. 486, 39 O.L.R. 460, the plaintiff in the former case applied to the Appellate Division to extend the time for appealing from the order of Middleton, J., the time allowed having expired before the decision in the latter case; and it was held, that the application was unnecessary, at all events until after the judge in the Division Court had been asked and had refused to try the case; and that, if it became necessary to move again, the application should be to the High Court Division. The judge in the Division Court should, upon having his attention called to the fact that that court had jurisdiction, try the action if no right or title to land came in question in it; and, if it did, he should transfer the action to the Supreme Court of Ontario, under s. 69 of the Division Courts Act.

that the provisions of that section had not been complied with, since the court has no jurisdiction over matters pertaining to elections unless specially authorized by statute. [Re Dubuc, 3 W.L.R. 248, followed; McLeod v. Noble, 28 O.R. 528, referred to.]

JUDGE — COUNTY COURTS ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 58, ss. 4, 6.

Re Balder v. Ontario Cannery, 7 O.W. N. 839.

OF PROTHONOTARY — OPPOSITION TO JUDGMENT.

Under art. 33, C.C.P. (Que.), when a judge is unable for any reason to discharge his duties at the chief place of the district, the prothonotary may perform his duties in cases of evident necessity, or when, by reason of delay, a right might otherwise be lost or endangered. Art. 70, C.C.P., as amended by 1 Geo. V. c. 43, extends the jurisdiction of a judge to the prothonotary in the matters contained in the articles which it enumerates, although judgment is not included in the enumeration; nevertheless art. 70 gives the prothonotary jurisdiction concurrent with that of the judge in certain cases, but it does not take away from him what art. 33 gives him in all cases of urgent necessity when the judge is absent, ill, or otherwise prevented from performing his duties. This jurisdiction is not concurrent, as is that of art. 70. It can be exercised only in the absence of the judge and it extends to all matters which are within the jurisdiction of a Judge in Chambers.

Lemieux v. Croteau, 24 Rev. de Jur. 85.
HYPOTHECARY ACTION — SCHOOL TAXES.

In the chief place of each district, the Circuit Court has no jurisdiction to hear an action in declaration of hypothec in which the plaintiff prays for the abandonment of the property. It does not matter whether the amount originally due was due for school taxes and was less than $100. The Circuit Court of the district of Montreal has no jurisdiction to hear actions in declaration of hypothec which are appealable.

School Commissioners of Parish of La Prairie v. Westwark Realty Co., 19 Que. P.R. 164.

TITLE TO LAND — ELECTION — QUALIFICATIONS.

Although the Circuit Court has no jurisdiction to declare null the title to land so as to affect the rights of contracting parties, it can, in a controverted municipal election, take cognizance of a title to verify the qualification of the candidates and for this purpose to declare it insufficient, fictitious or simulated.

Lapointe v. Cauchon, 52 Que. S.C. 393.
EVOCATION — PENAL ACTION — FUTURE RIGHTS — MONEY PAYABLE TO CROWN.

The object of evocation is to make appealable judgments which can be relied on as those jugée in future judicial proceedings. A judgment rendered in a penal action for contravention of a statute does not constitute chose jugée as to future contraventions except by way of precedent. Therefore there can be no evocation from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court in an action of this kind on the ground that it affects the future rights of the delinquent. The Circuit Court has no jurisdiction in an action to recover the amount of the penalty imposed under art. 1682d C.C. Que. Actions to recover money payable to the Crown are not in all cases subjects of evocation, but only in cases which deal with matters which may affect future rights. In setting aside the evocation of a cause from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court, the latter should not dismiss the action on the ground that the Circuit Court was without jurisdiction. It should remit the record to the Circuit Court, which is the tribunal to decide the question of jurisdiction.

Trudel v. C.N.R., 52 Que. S.C. 502.

QUEBEC COURTS — HYPOTHECARY ACTION — SCHOOL TAXES.

Under the School Act (Que.), the jurisdiction of the Superior Court in an hypothecary action is taken away except it be invoked by the defendant upon an opposition to a seizure or be resorted to after the other means of collection provided by the School Act have been adopted without success.

School Com. of St. Joseph-de-Bordeaux v. Gagnon, 51 Que. S.C. 175.

Hypothecary actions are within the jurisdiction of the Superior Court, but in order that an order may be hypothecary it should demand the abandonment of the immovable. The conclusion that the immovable may be declared affected by a hypothec does not prevent the action from being purely personal. When an action for the recovery of school taxes is brought before the Superior Court for a sum exceeding $100, the court should not dismiss it but should refer it to the Circuit Court.

School Commissioners of St. Paul v. Compagnie de Placement de la Cité, 51 Que. S.C. 185.

An action for school taxes personally against the debtors liable is always within the competence of the Circuit Court although the conclusions ask that an immovable be declared to be affected and hypothecated for payment of the tax.

School Commissioners of Coteau St. Pierre v. Bernard, 18 Que. P.R. 201.

SAISIE-GAGERIE — RENT.

In an action accompanied by seizure claiming a month's rent of $15 with the conclusion "that this saisie-gagerie, by the right to follow all the movables and effects found in the house described in the present writ, be declared good and valid; that it be also declared that the said movables are affected by the privilege of the plaintiff until payment of the sum of $120, the amount of the rent due and to become due; that the said mis en cause be summoned to admit and state that the said saisie-gagerie is good and valid; and that the defendant be condemned to pay the said sum of $15 to the plaintiff, reserving to himself the right to take such other conclusions as to the right to the rent to become due," the Circuit Court and not the Superior Court has jurisdiction.

Beaudoin v. Humphreys, 18 Que. P.R. 173.

When an order of estreat of a recognizance is made by the Court of Queen's Bench, Crown side, for a breach of its condition, the subsequent entering up of a judgment by the prothonotary of the Superior Court, under article 1115 Cr. C., is not a judicial, but a purely ministerial, act of that officer, and does not vest the Superior Court with jurisdiction to inquire into, or in any wise to deal with, the order of estreat.

The King v. Hogue, 21 Que. K.B. 24.

The civil liability, in a matter of delit or quasi-delit, is subject to the rule lex loci regit actum. Therefore, workmen engaged in Quebec to work in Quebec and Ontario, who are injured through the act or fault of their employers in Ontario, have only the remedy given by the laws of that province. When the evidence shows that the foreign law does not recognize the right to the proceedings taken by the plaintiff, and upon which a verdict was found in his favour, his action should be dismissed non obstante veredicto, a new trial being useless.

(§ II A—151)—JURISDICTION OF DISTRICT COURT—AMOUNT.

A contract to pay whatever price is being paid at a certain place or to pay the market price for goods sold furnishes the means of ascertaining the amount due and an action for that price is an action for debt. If the amount does not exceed $100, the action may be tried in the District Court under r. 4 of the District Court Rules (Sask.).

If the answer of the jury to a question in a negligence action requiring them to state in what the negligence consisted is that there was "negligence on the part of the foreman," and is open to the objection that the answers do not further indicate wherein the negligence of the foreman consisted, the Appellate Court may, under the Judicature Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, s. 27 (2), make the omitted finding on the evidence instead of sending the case back for a new trial. ORIGINAL JURISDICTION OF APPELLATE COURT—SUPERINTENDING CONTROL.

The High Court of Justice, exercising the powers of the Traditional Court of King's Bench, may by mandamus command an inferior court to hear a case within the jurisdiction of that court. Mandamus does not lie to compel an inferior court to reconsider a decision where the matter decided was within the jurisdiction of the inferior court, notwithstanding that the decision of the lower court may have been erroneous. SUPERIOR COURT—INFUNCTION—DAMAGES—REVIEW.

The Superior Court is the common-law tribunal and has the sole jurisdiction to entertain an action asking that the defendant be restrained from furnishing the service of an aqueduct notwithstanding subsidiary conclusions for $50 damages. When the Superior Court instead of deciding on the merits of an action declares itself incompetent to entertain it, the Court of Review having decided that the Superior Court had jurisdiction, cannot itself give judgment on the merits but must remit the cause to the court of first instance.

Garand v. Lacroix, 50 Que. S.C. 456.

JURISDICTION—SUPERIOR COURT—EXPROPRIATION BY RAILWAY—PLANS—APPEAL.

The Superior Court has no jurisdiction to rule that a railway company cannot expropriate because by its charter it should enter the city by the northeast or by the southwest while under the plans it enters it by the west side. The respondent's recourse would have been an appeal to the supreme Court from the decision of the Board of Railway Commissioners approving the plans of the company petitioner, or an application to the same Board to revise its own decision.

C.N.O.R. Co. v. The Daniel J. M. McNulty Realty Co., 15 Que. P.R. 168.

(§ II A—160)—AS DEPENDENT ON AMOUNT.

The amount of the claim of a mortgagee upon the covenant for payment in the mortgage is ascertained by the signature of the defendant within the meaning of s. 62 of the Division Courts Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 32, in spite of the fact that, in order to establish his right to sue in his own name, the plaintiff must establish by evidence other than documentary that an alleged assignment of the mortgage, though absolute in form, was only by way of collateral security. Clause (4) of subs. 1 of s. 62 of the Division Courts Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 32, has reference to cases where, after production of the document and proof of the signature, something further is necessary to show the liability of the defendant thereunder, such as proof of the fulfilment of a condition on which the document was to take effect, and does not apply to a case in which evidence is necessary to establish the plaintiff's status with reference to the document.

DIVISION COURTS ACT — JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — EVIDENCE OF — GUARANTY.

In an action on a guarantee the amount due cannot be proven by the production of the guarantee solely, but "other and extrinsic evidence" must be given; therefore a Division Court has not jurisdiction in such an action under s. 62, Division Courts Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 63.

Williams v. Government Railway Managing Board, 11 E.L.R. 10.

JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — EXPROPRIATION AWARD — ACTION TO SET ASIDE.

An action for setting aside a decision of assessors awarding a certain indemnity for land expropriated for the purpose of building a county road, as also a third party's opposition against the judgment maintaining such an action, is governed, as far as its class is concerned, by the amount awarded by the decision attacked.

Cournoyer v. L. Corp. du Comté de Richelieu, 19 Que. P.R. 165.

JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT — CANCELLATION OF LEASE—DAMAGES.

An action to have a lease for $624 cancelled, and for $50 damages, is not within the jurisdiction of the Superior Court, and will be referred by the court, of its own motion, to the Circuit Court.

Saba v. Duchow, 54 Que. S.C. 53.

COUNTY COURT—JURISDICTION— COUNTERCLAIM FOR CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT —R.S.M. 1913, c. 44, s. 57 (b)—JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT.

The jurisdiction of the County Court to entertain counterclaims for the cancellation of contracts on the ground of fraud or misrepresentation is limited to cases where the subject-matter of the contract does not exceed $500 in value. In an action for $420, being a call on shares of the par value of $600, the defendant counterclaimed for the cancellation of the allotment on the ground of fraud and misrepresentation. Dawson, Co., Ct. J., held that he had no jurisdiction to try the counterclaim, and on the application of the defendant transferred the whole proceeding to the Court of the King's Bench, under s. 125 of the County Courts Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 44). From this decision the plaintiff appealed. The Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal, holding that the counterclaim was, in effect, a cross-action, and that the jurisdiction of the County Court as to cancellation of contracts must be limited to cases where the subject-matter of the contract does not exceed $500 in value.

In an action between lessor and lessee the value of the amount of the rent claimed determines the competence of the court. An action by the purchaser of lands against the vendor for a return of money paid amounting to less than $500 upon a contract for a price exceeding that sum, and further asking that the agreement of sale be cancelled and declared void, is beyond the competence of a County Court under the County Courts Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 44, s. 57, such an action not being within the general terms of that section, viz., "all actions for legal or equitable claims and demands of debt, account or breach of contract, or covenant or money demand."

The jurisdiction of a court as to the amount sued on is not affected by a reduction of the amount by set-off.

Canadian Oil Companies v. Margeson, 35 D.L.R. 298, 51 N.S.R. 331.

JURISDICTION AS DEPENDENT ON AMOUNT—SET-OFF OR COUNTERCLAIM.

A plaintiff cannot, by voluntarily admitting the right of the defendant to a set-off so as to reduce the balance of his claim to an amount within the competency of an inferior court, confer jurisdiction on the inferior court; and if the plaintiff has a claim not within the jurisdiction of the County Court, but against which the defendant may set up a set-off not agreed to by both parties, so as to constitute a payment in effect, the plaintiff must sue in the Superior Court, as he is not entitled to compel the defendant to plead the set-off or counterclaim. COUNTY COURT—PLEA OF SET-OFF EXCEEDING JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT.

The County Court of New Brunswick has no jurisdiction to entertain a set-off where the amount claimed by the defendant is in excess of the jurisdiction of the court, unless part of the claim is abandoned so as to bring the claim within the jurisdictional amount.

Windsor v. Young, 24 D.L.R. 652, 43 N.B.R. 313.

JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT—COUNTERCLAIM.

(§ II A—172)—ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

In the administration of estates the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia is concurrent with that of the Probate Court, and, in matters of difficulty or importance, it is desirable that questions should be dealt with in a summary way under the procedure in the Supreme Court, but where, in the opinion of the court, the application is needless in view of the questions at issue or the smallness of the amount involved, costs will be refused.

CONSTRUCTION OF WILL — HYPOTHETICAL QUESTIONS.

It is against the policy of the court to attempt to answer hypothetical questions based upon conditions which may never arise, and, therefore, the court will not, either upon an originating notice under Ont. Con. R. 938, or in an action, deal with questions as to the construction of a will relating to the devolution of the estate in events which have not yet happened.

The widow applied for relief under the provisions of the Devolution of Estates Act as amended by c. 13 of the Statutes of 1910-11. The application was made by notice of motion to a Judge in Chambers, and came before Newlands, J., who held, following Re Independent Order of Foresters, 13 W.L.R.

Belanger v. Emard, 14 Que. P.R. 84.

(§ II A—177)—JURISDICTION—CRIMINAL COURTS—STATUS OF POLICE MAGISTRATE—"SESSIONS" COURTS AT MONTREAL.

The Court of General Sessions of the Peace at Montreal, sometimes called the Court of Quarter Sessions, has power to hear and determine all matters relating to the preservation of the peace, and its jurisdiction may be exercised by the other court known as the "Court of the Sessions of the Peace" established by art. 3259 R.S.Q.; there is in strictness no "police magistrate's court," the acts of the magistrate are not acts of "a court," although the place of hearing is by Code, s. 714 to be deemed an open court.

R. v. Walker, 18 D.L.R. 541, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 179.

CRIMINAL JURISDICTION—YUKON TERRITORY —R.N.W. MOUNTED POLICE.

The extended jurisdiction given by s. 777 of the Cr. Code (amendment of 1909), to city and town magistrates, does not apply to give jurisdiction in the Yukon Territory to an officer of the R.N.W. Mounted Police, although possessing all the powers of two justices by virtue of the Yukon Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 63. [R. v. Alexander, 13 D.L.R. 385, 21 Can. Cas. 473, followed.]

RECOGNIZANCE OF BAIL IN CRIMINAL COURTS —JURISDICTION ON ESTREATING.

In the Province of Quebec the bail against whom an ex parte judgment has been entered in the Superior Court on the removal thereto of the original recognizance and certificate of default (Cr. Code, s. 1113) from a Criminal Court has no remedy in revocation of such certificate in the court from which it issued; the sole jurisdiction in that regard is in the Superior Court after such removal, and may be exercised either before or after a writ of fieri facias and capias has been issued thereon. [R. v. Hogue, 21 Que. K.B. 24, dissented from.]

R. v. Edwards, 19 D.L.R. 297, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 296.

JURISDICTION OF POLICE MAGISTRATE — BIGAMY—SUMMARY TRIAL FOR.

As bigamy is one of the offences that may, under ss. 822-842 of the Criminal Code relating to speedy trials, be tried by a Court of General Sessions of the Peace, a police magistrate of a city having not less than 2,500 population may also, under s. 777 of the Criminal Code, with the consent of an accused person, try him summarily for such offence.

The King v. Davis, 13 D.L.R. 612, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 34.

CRIMINAL JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATES— SUMMARY TRIAL.

The extended jurisdiction given by Cr. Code, s. 777 (2) to "police and stipendiary magistrates of cities and incorporated towns" to try, with the consent of the accused under the Summary Trial Clauses, indictable offences other than those triable by a "magistrate" under Cr. Code, s. 773 is intended to apply only to a special kind of police or stipendiary magistrate whose official capacity is designated in terms conforming to the statute, and not to magistrates for a whole province or judicial district with merely consequent jurisdiction for a city or incorporated town within the territorial limits.

CRIMINAL LAW—SUMMARY TRIAL BY CON- SENT—CR. CODE, s. 778.

A defendant's consent to summary trial by a magistrate as an alternative to a jury trial should be a specific consent in the statutory form and not a mere consent to the "jurisdiction" of the magistrate which might have reference only to the territorial jurisdiction of the magistrate as to summary convictions for minor offences apart from his special jurisdiction to try certain indictable offences with the consent of the accused. [R. v. Crooks, 17 W.L.R. 560, explained. See also Tremear's Criminal Code, 2nd ed., p. 635.]

SUMMARY TRIAL BY CONSENT.

In determining whether ss. 777 and 778 of the Cr. Code, as to conferring jurisdiction of summary trial by consent on a magistrate, has been complied with in a case in which the record does not state that the consent was given, and the consent is denied by the accused under oath, affidavits will not be received on the part of the prosecution to supplement the omission from the formal record by shewing, in contradiction of the accused, that he did in fact consent. A conviction upon summary trial for an indictable offence before a magistrate under ss. 777 and 778 of the Cr. Code, 1909, as amended, under which jurisdiction is acquired only by consent of the accused, will be quashed, with leave to the Crown to begin de novo, where the magistrate's record shews only that the accused "consented to jurisdiction" and pleaded guilty, that not being a substantial compliance with the provisions of the Criminal Code, which require that, in such respect, the record shall shew what actually transpired before the magistrate.

A County Court Judge hearing an appeal from a summary conviction under the Liquor License Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 100, s. 149, is a statutory officer and, as such, is strictly limited to the authority which the statute confers.

(§ II B-181)—ADJOURNED SITTINGS.

The dates fixed by the Surrogate Courts Act, 10 Edw. VII, (Ont.) c. 31, s. 29 (1), for the commencement of the four annual sittings of the court for the hearing of contentious business must be adhered to; but there is no provision that these sittings shall end on any fixed dates, and it is, therefore, not improper for the Surrogate Judge to appoint for the trial of a contentious case a day subsequent to the statutory date for the commencement of a sittings, as part of the sittings commencing on that date.

Eyers v. Rhora, 3 D.L.R. 637, 3 O.W.N. 1130.

(§ II B-183)—RECORDER'S COURT—PLACE OF SITTING—QUE. C.P. 1293.

The parties cannot suffer any prejudice by the Recorder's Court being called "of the town of Fraserville;" or "of the city of Fraserville" the words "town" and "city" being used only to indicate the place where the court sits.

National Telephone Co. v. Fraserville (City), 16 Que. P.R. 192.

C. TRANSFER OF CAUSE.

(§ II C-185)—TRANSFER OF CAUSE FROM COUNTY COURT TO SUPREME COURT.

In order to justify the removal of an action from a County Court to the Supreme Court under s. 29 of the Ontario Act, 10 Edw. VII, c. 30, it must appear that the action is one that ought to be tried in the High Court rather than in the County Court. [Re Aaron Erb (No. 2), 16 O.L.R. 597, specially referred to.]

Where property of the deceased exceeds $2,000 in value, and there is a fair case of difficulty made out, so that there will be a real contest, a cause should be removed from the Surrogate Court into the High Court.

Re Pattison v. Elliott, 4 D.L.R. 330, 3 O.W.N. 1327, 22 O.W.R. 232.

SURROGATE—REMOVAL OF CAUSE—JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT.

The amount fixed by statute (R.S.O. 1914, c. 62, s. 33) as the inferior limit for the removal of a testamentary cause from a Surrogate Court into the Supreme Court of Ontario, does not only include the value of property in Ontario, but of all property of the deceased, wherever situate, which may be affected by the result of the action.

Re Newcombe v. Evans, 31 D.L.R. 315, 37 O.L.R. 354.

DRAINAGE CASES—TRANSFER OF ACTION—REFERENCE TO DRAINAGE REFEREE.

It is not a valid objection to the jurisdiction of a drainage referee in Ontario to whom an Assize Judge had ordered a transfer of the action for trial, that no question of drainage arose in the case, as by the Municipal Drainage Act, 10 Edw. VII, (Ont.) c. 90, s. 59, the court has the power, where the action is brought within two years from the occurrences of the damage, to so refer for trial, not only where proceedings for the relief sought might properly have been taken before the drainage referee but also in cases where the court is of opinion that the action might more conveniently be tried by him.

Wigle v. Tp. of Gosfield South, 2 D.L.R. 619, 25 O.L.R. 646, 21 O.W.R. 483.

APPLICATION—GROUNDS—JURISDICTIONAL AMOUNT—COUNTERCLAIM.

An application for an order transferring a County Court action to the Supreme Court on the ground that the counterclaim exceeds the jurisdiction of the County Court should be made under s. 23 of the County Court Act before the Supreme Court or a judge thereof or a County Court Judge sitting as a Local Judge of the Supreme Court. The order cannot be made upon such a ground under s. 72 by a County Court Judge sitting as such. The terms imposed on a transfer of an action from a County Court to the Supreme Court disapproved. Nelson v. Keen, 24 B.C.R. 238, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 342.

PRACTICE—DISTRICT COURT—JURISDICTION—TRANSFER OF ACTION TO KING'S BENCH.

Powers v. Terwilliger, 15 O.W.N. 430. COUNTY COURTS ACT—APPEAL—"IF IT APPEAR TO JUDGE."

In s. 72 of the County Courts Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 53, which provides that "if during the progress of any action, cause or matter it shall be made to appear to the judge that the subject-matter exceeds in amount the limit of the jurisdiction of the County Court, he shall direct the said action, cause or matter to be transferred to the Supreme Court" the words "if . . ." it shall be made to appear to the judge" mean "if it appears to the judge" or "if it appears." Therefore, the lack of jurisdiction may "appear" so as to necessitate the transfer to the Supreme Court, even though the absence of jurisdiction escapes at the time the attention of the judge and counsel. Where on an appeal from a County Court Judge it appears that the case is one which should have been transferred, under s. 72 of the County Courts Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 53, to the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeal should order the transfer, rather than dismiss the action.

Gianini v. Cooper (B.C.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 642.

ACTION — COUNTERCLAIM — TRANSFER TO SUPREME COURT — COSTS — "GOOD CAUSE."

An action for damages brought in the County Court in which the defendant coun-terclaimed, was, at the instance of the defendant, transferred to the Supreme Court under s. 34 of the County Court Act. The Trial Judge gave judgment for the plaintiff for $40 and dismissed the counterclaim, allowing the plaintiff costs on the County Court scale in the action but no costs on the counterclaim. Held, on appeal, that in a case of both claim and counterclaim the Trial Judge must decide the question of "good cause" in each. In the case of the action there was jurisdiction, and the exercise of his discretion is not subject to review, but on the counterclaim there were no facts upon which he could found a decision that there was "good cause" for depriving the plaintiff of his costs to which he is entitled on the Supreme Court scale.

SUBSTITUTION OF PARTIES—EVOCATION.

The Circuit Court, seized of an action directed against school corporations, is competent to decide if the action commenced against them may be continued by a third corporation, praying to be substituted in their place. The case may be carried to the Superior Court, if the judgment touches the existence of the defendants and future rights which may arise.

ACTION ON NOTE.

In an action upon a note, brought in the Circuit Court, where the defendant pleads that the note was given in partial execution of a promise to purchase, which he seeks to avoid, as well as the note itself, the plaintiff may transfer the action to the Superior Court.

Economic Realty Co. v. Ellis, 19 Que. P.R. 28.

JURISDICTION OF CIRCUIT COURT—TRANSFER OF CAUSE FROM SUPERIOR COURT.

An action within the exclusive competence of the Circuit Court, but which is brought in the Superior Court, will be referred on declinatory exception to the Circuit Court, and the plaintiff cannot by amendment change the nature of the action and thus give jurisdiction to the Superior Court which from the time of the origin of the action was incompetent ratione materiae. In such case the Superior Court has only jurisdiction over the declinatory exception, and if it finds the latter well founded it should refer the case to the Circuit Court without pronouncing upon the amendment filed by the plaintiff.

B. INTERFERENCE WITH OTHER COURTS; INJUNCTION.

(§ IV B—260)—CO-ORDINATE JURISDICTION—USURPATION.

Where a court of co-ordinate jurisdiction usurps the jurisdiction of another court, by interfering with proceedings therein begun, the latter may treat the usurping order void ab initio and proceed with the matter until prohibited by a higher court. A court or judge of co-ordinate jurisdiction has no authority to interfere with the hearing of a motion or trial pending before another court or judge of the same jurisdiction, for the latter has exclusive cognizance of the matter, and if an order of interference is made it may be ignored by the tribunal interfered with as a document made wholly without jurisdiction and therefore absolutely null and void. It is not necessary to appeal from such an order, and the court whose jurisdiction is so invaded has inherent jurisdiction to protect itself and its suitors from such an attempted usurpation of its jurisdiction. Where a counsel gives an undertaking to a court he will not be allowed to obtain an advantage over his adversary by a breach thereof. The Leonor, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 861.

Such clause can only be enforced by granting a stay of proceedings, where an action is brought in the courts of another province than that specified, but, in order to succeed, the application must be made within the time specified by the Act.

(b), of the Supreme Court Act, in an appeal from the Provincial Court of Appeal where the case did not originate in a Superior Court, it is not sufficient that in respect to some part of the action, some claim made in it or some relief which may be accorded, there is concurrent jurisdiction in both the Superior and Inferior Courts; the jurisdiction to enable such appeal must be concurrent over the action as a whole.

(§ IV D—274)—JURISDICTION—ADMIRALTY—INLAND WATER—PROVINCIAL SUPREME COURT.

The Supreme Court of Ontario has jurisdiction to entertain a personal action by the owner of a ship against the owner of a scow with which his own came into collision for damages for the negligent navigation of defendant's scow and of a tugboat employed by the defendant to tow the same, where the collision occurred in the inland waters of Ontario; the jurisdiction in this respect is concurrent with that of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

Shipman v. Phinn, 20 D.L.R. 596, 32 O.L.R. 329, reversing 19 D.L.R. 395, 31 O.L.R. 113.

ADMIRALTY—CONSERVATORY ATTACHMENT OF BARGE.

The Superior Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Admiralty to adjudicate on a conservatory attachment of a barge on the waters of the St. Lawrence River.

Girard v. Gariépy, 49 Que. S.C. 284; 17 Que. P.R. 396. [See also Beaudette v. Steamer "Ethel", 30 D.L.R. 529, 22 Rev. de Jur. 450.]

JURISDICTION—SALVAGE—PROCEEDINGS IN REM.

The Supreme Court of Nova Scotia had no admiralty jurisdiction, it being excluded by s. 15 of the Judicature Act. A claim for salvage of a boat can be entertained only where there is a contract of employment, express or implied.

B. STARE DECISIS: PREVIOUS DECISIONS OF SAME COURT.

(§ V B—295)—STARE DECISIS—PREVIOUS OPINION ON THE MERITS BY SAME COURT.
R. v. Graves (No. 4), 9 D.L.R. 589, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 438, 47 Can. S.C.R. 568, 12 E.L.R. 332, reversing 9 D.L.R. 175, 46 N.S.R. 395.

STARE DECISIS—CONCLUSIVENESS OF JUDGMENT.

The Court of Appeal of British Columbia will not follow decisions as to practice in habeas corpus appeals of the former full Supreme Court of British Columbia to whose appellate jurisdiction such Court of Appeal succeeded, if to do so would establish in the Province of British Columbia a practice in conflict with the practice in England and would prejudicially affect the liberty of the subject.

Re Hoessan Rahim, 4 D.L.R. 701, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 94, 17 B.C.R. 276, 2 W.W.R. 580.

FINDINGS OF FACT.

A finding of fact in one case cannot have any binding effect in any other case, except by way of estoppel.

STARE DECISIS—DICTA.

Dicta are not of binding authority unless they can be shewn to express a legal proposition which is a necessary step to the judgment pronounced by the court in the case wherein the dicta are found (per McPhillips, J.A., quoting Davidson & Co. v. Olfert, [1918] A.C. 394).

- ATTORNEY OR PROSECUTOR OR SUPERVISOR OF CANADA.
- The Supreme Court of Canada primarily settles the law of Canada, being only subject to review even if contrary to the motion and application have been entertained by the Superior Court without the issue of any writ or institution of action upon counsel undertaking to do so, the Exchequer Court will refuse a similar motion on the ground of comity, although the matter is not, strictly speaking, res judicata. Comity, as applied to judicial proceedings, means nothing more than the observance of a rule of etiquette or conventional decorum between courts of co-ordinate jurisdiction. It is not a rule of law, because it is not imperative. It is a useful ultra-legal adjunct to the judicial doctrine of stare decisis. [Plimpton v. Spiller, L.R. 4 Ch. II. Construction; validity; effect.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A—5)—CONSTRUCTION—VALIDITY—EFFECT.

In order to ascertain the scope and effect of covenants, regard must be had to the object which they were designed to accomplish. The language of a covenant is to be read in an ordinary or popular and not in a legal or technical sense.

Pearson v. Adams (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 139, 27 O.L.R. 87. [Affirmed, 50 Can. S.C.R. 204, 50 Can. L.J. 586.]

CONSTRUCTION OF — WORK PRELIMINARY TO ACTUAL USE AS FOUNDATION OF BUILDING.

Piling, capping or woodwork, as well as the filling in thereof with earth or stone, placed by the lessee upon demised premises with intention of using it at some future time, but not in actual use as a foundation of a building at the expiration of the lease, does not fall within the terms of a covenant that the lessor should compensate the lessee, at the expiration of the lease, for "building and erections placed on the premises by the lessee for manufacturing purposes."

City of St. John v. Gordon, 3 D.L.R. 1, 46 Can. S.C.R. 101, 11 E.L.R. 177.

CONSTRUCTION — VALIDITY — EFFECT — CONFLICTING "PROVISO," HOW INTERPRETED.

A proviso wholly inconsistent with a covenant is void and may be rejected where such interpretation will give effect to all the clauses of the contract. [Furnivall v. Coombs, 5 M. & G. 736; Walling v. Lewis, [1911] 1 Ch. 414, referred to.]

Hamilton v. Penner, 20 D.L.R. 429, 29 W.L.R. 552, 7 W.W.R. 242, 7 S.L.R. 273.

(§ II A-4) — COVENANT OR CONDITION.

No particular form of words is necessary to create a covenant, but it is sufficient if, from the construction of the whole deed, it appear that the party meant to bind himself, and, if that appear, it does not matter whether the words relied upon are in the recital or in any other part of the deed. If it be doubtful whether a clause in a deed be a covenant or a condition, the court will always incline to construe it as a covenant. [Rawson v. Inhabitants of School District, 89 Mass. 125, referred to and approved.]

LEASE — COVENANT FOR QUIET ENJOYMENT — RESERVATION OF RIGHT TO SELL DEMISED PREMISES.

A covenant for quiet enjoyment of demised premises is to be construed as subject to the termination of the tenancy on a sale of the premises where the right of cancellation in such event is reserved in the lease. Where a sale of demised premises is made under a right reserved in a lease for a term of years to terminate the lease on a sale being made, it is unnecessary that the lessor should give three months' notice of intention to terminate it as provided in such lease at the expiration of any year, such two provisions being separate and distinct and not inconsistent.

Wood v. Saunders, 3 D.L.R. 342, 21 W. L.R. 195.

LEASE OF APARTMENTS — QUIET ENJOYMENT — BREACH — RUNNING SEWING MACHINES AND NOISILY USING PRESSING IRONS IN ROOMS OVERHEAD — VACATION OF PREMISES — LIABILITY FOR RENT OF UNEXPIRED PORTION OF TERM.

DEFAULT — NOTICE OF CANCELLATION — INEFFECTIVENESS.

Hicks v. Laidlaw, 19 W.L.R. 525 (Man.).

B. ENCUMBRANCES; ASSESSMENTS.

(§ II B-10) — DUTY TO DISCLOSE SERVITUDES.

Where there is a clause in a deed of sale "free from incumbrances" (franc et quitte), the vendor is bound to disclose to the purchaser the existence of a nonapparent servitude, and cannot claim that the purchaser should have searched the records and so informed himself, but he will be excused by shewing that the purchaser knew of the servitude at the time of sale.

Marcel v. Legault, 23 D.L.R. 756, 24 Que. K.B. 1.

C. WARRANTY.

(§ II C-15) — CONTRACT — WARRANTY — IMPERVIOUS TO ENTRY OF WATER — INFILTRATION OF WATER — DRAINAGE — KNOWLEDGE OF DEFECT — COST OF REPAIRS — RECOVERY OF.

Where a parcel of land and a store building in course of construction thereon in a city is the subject of an agreement of sale to be carried out on the completion of the building and the deed of sale then made contains a clause that the purchaser "reserves all legal rights he may have if the cellar be found not to be impervious to the entrance of water from without, the vendor not admitting any such rights," the purchaser may recover for the cost of repair because of the infiltration of water into the cellar due to lack of proper drainage which the vendor constructing the building should have provided in connection with the drainage system there existent where the defect remained latent until ten days after the purchaser's entry into possession; the reservation in the deed of sale did not enlarge the buyer's rights but it did not commit him to the position of a buyer who has bought with knowledge of existence of a defect and is a protestation of absence of knowledge thereof at a time when it could not be known whether the work of the vendor who had represented that he would make the cellar dry would have that effect or not.

Massé v. Fraser, 20 D.L.R. 866, 23 Que. K.B. 247.

WARRANTY — AS TO SERVITUDE.

The seller of an immovable, "as shewn on a plan" referred to, warrants the legal existence of any servitude indicated thereon.

Dawes v. Ward, 43 Que. S.C. 456.

D. RESTRICTING USE OR DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY.

(§ II D-22) — RESTRICTIONS ON USE OF PROPERTY — HOTEL SUBJECT TO "TIED HOUSE" CLAUSE IN FAVOUR OF MORTGAGEE.

A covenant given to a mortgagee of an hotel property as collateral security to a mortgage loan, whereby the mortgagor agreed not to sell beer on the mortgaged premises other than that manufactured or sold by the mortgagee for a period of three years will be limited, as regards its enforcement by injunction, so as to terminate with the payment of the mortgage, if paid off within the specified time. [Noakes v. Rice, [1902] A.C. 24, referred to.]

Rudd v. Manahan, 11 D.L.R. 37, 5 A.L.R. 19, 24 W.L.R. 246, 4 W.W.R. 350.

(§ II D—23)—LAND PURCHASE CONTRACT—RESTRAINT UPON ALIENATION.

A vendor may, in order to obtain the removal of a caveat and his pendens filed by one claiming under an assignment from a vendee, invoke a condition of a contract of sale prohibiting its assignment without the approval of and countersigning by the vendor, and providing that in the absence of such approval, no agreement, condition or relations between the vendee and his assignee, or other person acquiring title or interests from or through the vendee, should preclude the vendor from conveying the land to the vendee on the surrender of the agreement and payment of the unpaid purchase money. [McKillop v. Alexander, 1 D.L.R. 586, 45 Can. S.C.R. 551, affirming 4 S.L.R. 111; and Shaw v. Foster, L.R. 5 H.L. 321, applied.]

Atlantic Realty Co. v. Jackson, 14 D.L.R. 552, 18 B.C.R. 657, 26 W.L.R. 15, 5 W.V.R. 335.

III. Performance; breach; enforcement; who liable.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—25)—MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT—CONDITION SUBSEQUENT—AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY—WHAT CONSTITUTES.

A covenant by a woman in her marriage settlement to do all things necessary for transferring and vesting in the trustees thereof all property she may become entitled to under the will, or as one of the heirs or next of kin, of her father will bind her interest in the residue of her father's estate where no contrary direction appears, yet directions contained in the will, as to the application and investment of her interest, may override such covenant. [The Bankers, [1902] 2 Ch. 333, followed; see also Re Nordheimer, 14 D.L.R. 658, construing same instrument-].

Re Nordheimer, 18 D.L.R. 591, 30 O.L.R. 327.

(§ III A—27)—WAIVER OF BREACH—LOSS OF RIGHT TO ENFORCE.

Where an opening had been made in a party wall of part of the demised premises by a lessee in breach of a condition in the lease, without the knowledge of the lessor, although the latter was aware that extensive alterations were contemplated, the receipt of rent eleven days subsequent to the date of making the opening, but prior to the lessor's knowledge of such fact, does not operate as a waiver of the breach of the condition or covenant of the lease. Receipt of rent with knowledge of a breach of condition in the lease by the lessee will not operate as a waiver of the breach when received under a special agreement, that such rent should be received without prejudice to the respective contentions and rights of the parties.

Holman v. Knos, 3 D.L.R. 207, 25 O.L.R. 588, 21 O.W.R. 325.

(§ III A—28)—CONTINUANCE OF BREACH.

The cause for the rescission of a lease for breach of a covenant to repair, claimed under art. 1641 of the Civil Code (Que.), must exist at the moment when rescission is pronounced. (Per Brodeur, J.)

Consumers Cordage Co. v. Bannerman, 2 D.L.R. 419.

B. WHAT CONSTITUTES A BREACH; EFFECT.

(§ III B—30)—CONVEYANCE OF LAND—

—GRANT OF RIGHT-OF-WAY OVER ROAD—COVENANT TO KEEP ROAD IN REPAIR—EXCUSE FOR NONPERFORMANCE—IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE—ACT OF GOD—EROSION BY WATERS OF LAKE—COVENANT CONSTRUED AS INDEMNIFYING GRANTEE AGAINST IMPOSSIBILITY OF REPAIRING—MANDATORY INJUNCTION—DAMAGES.

Kerrigan v. Harrison, 17 O.W.N. 141.

(§ III B—32)—RESTRICTIONS AS TO USE OF PROPERTY.

The words "to be used only as a site for a detached brick or stone dwelling house" between the description and the habendum in a deed of land constitute a covenant by the grantor to erect no building other than a building of the kind mentioned, a breach of which will be restrained by injunction.

Pearson v. Adams (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 139, 27 O.L.R. 87. [Affirmed, 50 Can. S.C.R. 204, 50 C.L.J. 586.]

C. WHO MAY ENFORCE.

(§ III C—35)—PARTY TO DEED NOT SIGNING—RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES.

A party to a deed who has not executed it cannot enforce the provisions of the deed by action without performing or observing all the covenants and stipulations on his part; but, on the other hand, he is not liable to an action of covenant by the other party to the deed.

Hart v. Great West Securities & Trust Co., 42 D.L.R. 185, 11 S.L.R. 336, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1061.

WHO MAY ENFORCE.

Where a lessor has made an agreement with a tenant, giving him the exclusive privilege of selling refreshments, etc., in a theatre for a fixed period, and such agreement stipulates that in case of sale, lease or transfer of the said theatre, the rights and privileges of the lessee will be protected, and the theatre is transferred by the lessor and the assigns undertake to respect all the obligations entered into by the lessor, and the assigns transfer their rights, the lessee has a direct action against the assigns first mentioned to compel the fulfilment of obligations entered into in his favour by the lessor, and need not direct his suit against such lessor. Aulhier v. Driscoll, 3 D.L.R. 797.

(§ III C—36)—RESTRICTION AS TO USE OF PROPERTY—FUTURE SUBDIVISION—LOCATION OF NEW STREET WHEN LAND PLOTTED.

A covenant, entered into by the grantor in a deed of lands that upon any plotting of the remainder of the grantor's lands adjoining the land conveyed, a street shall be laid out in a specified way, but not declaring that the benefit of the covenant shall apply for the benefit of other portions of the lands abutting upon the strip so designated for a street, will confer a right to its benefit only upon the grantee and his successors in title. [Reid v. Bickerstaff, [1909] 2 Ch. 395, 78 L.J. Ch. 753, referred to.]

Peters v. Sinclair, 13 D.L.R. 468, 48 Can. S.C.R. 57.

LANDLORD—RESTRICTIONS AS TO USE OF DEMISED PROPERTY—BREACH—INJUNCTION.

An action by a lessor for an injunction restraining a lessee from building upon the land demised in breach of the terms of the lease may be maintained without proof of damage to the lessor.

Audet v. Jolicœur, 5 D.L.R. 68, 22 Que. K.B. 35.

(§ III C—37)—PARTY PREVENTING PERFORMANCE.

A party to a contract cannot take advantage of the nonfulfilment of a condition the performance of which has been hindered by himself. [See also Roberts v. Bury Commissioners, L.R. 5 C.P. 310.]

Brown v. Brown, 1 D.L.R. 228, 3 O.W.N. 545, 20 O.W.R. 986.

(§ III C—38)—PERSONAL COVENANTS.

A second mortgagee, releasing his security to a first mortgagee claiming for default in payments due under the first mortgage, but reserving his rights under the covenant to pay the mortgage money, has a good cause of action upon the covenant against the mortgagor. [In re Richardson, L.R. 12 Eq. 398; Bell v. Rowe, 26 Viet. L.R. 511, followed.]

Beatty v. Bailey, 3 D.L.R. 831, 26 O.L.R. 145.

PERSONAL COVENANT—LAND CONTRACT.

A covenant to pay the purchase money in a contract for the sale of land is a personal covenant and not a covenant running with the land. [Haywood v. Brunswick Building Society, L.R. 8 Q.B.D. 403, and Eggers v. Hoosegood, [1900] 2 Ch. 388, specially referred to.]

Côté v. Olson, 2 D.L.R. 392, 5 S.L.R. 235, 20 W.L.R. 690, 2 W.W.R. 54.

(§ III C—42)—ASSIGNEES.

The assignee of a lessee, as well as the sublessee, has a right of action against the lessor for nonperformance of his obligations under the lease or agreements attached thereto.

Smith v. Rosenberg, 41 Que. S.C. 165.

D. WHO LIABLE OR BOUND.

(§ III D—46)—ON IMPLIED COVENANT.

Inability of a mortgagee to recover the mortgaged premises will not bar the mortgagee's rights of action upon the covenant if such inability arises from any default of the mortgagor. [See Cootes's Law of Mortgages, 7th ed., vol. 2, page 982; and in re Burrell, Burrell v. Smith, L.R. 7 Eq. 399-466.]

Beatty v. Bailey, 3 D.L.R. 831, 26 O.L.R. 145.

(§ III D—50)—COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND.

Covenants in a lease which touch or concern the land run with the land and are binding upon the assignee of the term demised.

Rudd v. Manahan, 5 D.L.R. 565, 5 A.L.R. 19, 21 W.L.R. 929, 2 W.W.R. 798. [Affirmed, 11 D.L.R. 37, 24 W.L.R. 246, 4 W.W.R. 350.]

LIABILITY OF GRANTEE FOR OBSERVANCE OF EVERY CONDITION AS WELL AS COVENANT TO PAY PURCHASE PRICE.

Where a transferee of rights under a promise of sale acquired these rights under a promise of sale and the transfer stipulates that the transferee shall fulfil all the charges, clauses and conditions imposed on the transferor, the transferee will not be entitled to obtain a deed of sale before he has fulfilled every condition mentioned, even though he have paid the entire purchase price; nor can he compel the vendor to sign him a complete deed of a sale unless such deed contains every clause and obligation mentioned in the promise of sale. If a transferee of rights under a promise of sale of lands has built a portion of a house on territory which was to be left free from building, such transferee is not entitled to a deed formally transferring the ownership of the immoveable, and the original vendor is entitled to have that portion of the building encroaching on the prohibited territory demolished, and this by direct action against the transferee if he so choose. IV. Running with the land.

(§ IV—55)—COVENANTS RUNNING WITH THE LAND—ASSIGNEE OF COVENANTOR.

Where two adjoining parcels of land were bought by the same purchaser and similar building restrictions were imposed by the separate deeds of conveyance under the purchaser's covenant for himself and his assigns, a subpurchaser of one of the parcels from such covenantor has no status to enforce against the subpurchaser of the adjoining parcel the covenant entered into by their common grantor in favour of a prior owner, and his assigns, particularly where the defendant had bought without knowledge of the covenant. [Compare Rogers v. Hosegood, [1909] 2 Ch. 388, 69 L.J. Ch. 652, and Formby v. Barker, [1903] 2 Ch. 539.]

Hoodless v. Smith, 9 D.L.R. 456, 4 O.W.N. 816, 24 O.V.R. 67.

V. Extinguishment of, or discharge from covenant.

(§ V—60)—BUILDING RESTRICTION—GENERAL CHANGE IN CHARACTER OF NEIGHBOURHOOD—EXTINGUISHMENT.

Where after the entering into of a covenant restricting the use to which the land comprised in a building scheme may be put, there has been a general change in the character of the neighbourhood, the court will not enforce the covenant. [Soley v. Sainsbury, [1913] 2 Ch. 513, referred to.]

Cowan v. Ferguson, 48 D.L.R. 616, 45 O.L.R. 161.

ASSIGNMENT OF COVENANT CONTAINED IN DEED—COVENANTORS NOT EXCLUDING DEED—EXCHANGE OF PROPERTIES SUBJECT TO MORTGAGES—ACTION BY ASSIGNEE TO ENFORCE COVENANT.

EXCESS AFTER PAYMENT OF PREFERRED CLAIMS.

Where a debtor gave certain creditors an agreement for an absolute sale of his property as security with the necessary result of hindering and delaying his other creditors under circumstances which would support the preference, the judgment creditors are entitled to such order and directions from the court as will enable them to reach in the preferred creditors' hands all the property of the debtor that remains after the preferred claims are satisfied.

Beliveau v. Miller, 1 D.L.R. 819, 4 A.L.R. 108, 20 W.L.R. 96, 1 W.V.R. 588.

WHAT PROPERTY MAY BE REACHED.

Where the creditors of an insolvent debtor attack a transfer of certain personal property as fraudulent and as hindering and delaying the creditors, and where some of the property in question could never have become exigible to answer the claims of the creditors, the attack fails as to the nonexigible property.

Stecher Lithographic Co. v. Ontario Seed Co., 7 D.L.R. 148, 46 Can. S.C.R. 540.

PROCEDURE.

Under the Alberta Judicature Act it is no longer necessary for a nonjudgment creditor in order to maintain an action against the debtor to sue on behalf of all creditors. [Scane v. Duckett, 3 O.R. 370, and Pacific Investment Co. v. Swan, 3 Terr. L.R. 125, specially referred to.]

CRIMINAL CONVERSATION.

ESSENTIALS TO BE PROVED.

In an action for criminal conversation the marriage in question must be strictly proved. Evidence of marriage held insufficient. [Zdravak v. Shatney, 7 D.L.R. 554, 22 Man. L.R. 521, distinguished.]

Monahuk v. Elashuk (Sask.), [1917] 2 W.V.R. 994.

In an action for criminal conversation the plaintiff must establish a marriage binding upon both him and his wife and prove adultery during the continuance of the marriage. [Catherwood v. Caston, 13 M. & W. 261, followed.] A valid marriage between the plaintiff and his wife and improper relations between the wife and the defendant held to have been proven. Pepin v. Lamoureux, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 217.

(§ 1 A—1)—"CRIMINAL OFFENCE"—PROVINCIAL OFFENCE.

The word "offence" in s. 35 of the Criminal Code, and the words "criminal offence" in s. 648 thereof, do not include a violation of a provincial statute for which a penalty is provided by that statute. THEFT.

To be guilty of theft under s. 355 of the Criminal Code, the accused must have received money or valuable security or other things on terms requiring him to hand over the thing received or the proceeds thereof to some person other than the person from whom he received it, and have fraudulently converted it to his own use.

MILITARY STORES—FRAUD UPON HIS MAJESTY—DEFECTIVE ARTICLES—CR. CODE, ART. 436.

It is an offence, under the Cr. Code, art. 436a, to sell to His Majesty defective military stores; and it is another distinct offence, under the second part of the same article, to commit any act of dishonesty, fraud or deception upon His Majesty in the manufacture and sales of military stores. Therefore, a person may be found guilty of the second offence without any evidence being adduced, than that the furnished articles were defective.

The King v. Rollings, 28 Que. K.R. 75.

(§ I A—3)—INTENT—MENS REA—REVENUE LAWS.

Criminal intent is not an essential element in the offence of vending a patent medicine without affixing the revenue stamp required under the War Tax Act 1915 (Can.); and the dealer is liable to conviction in respect of the failure of his salesman to affix and cancel the stamps at the time of sale as the law required and as he had been instructed to do by the defendant. Patenaude v. Thivierge, 30 D.L.R. 755, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 138.

EMPLOYEE RECEIVING SECRET COMMISSION—RAILWAY FREIGHT CONDUCTOR SIPPING CARS—INTENT—MOTIVE—PROOF.

Where a railway conductor was charged under the Secret Commissions Act, Can., 1909, for taking money for his own use from a farmer for "spotting" cars required under the Grain Act, Can., and which it was the conductor's duty to place at a station where there was no agent, and the defence developed on cross-examination of the Crown witnesses was that the amounts paid to him by the farmer at various times were tips of gratuities made after the location of the cars and not sums bargained for, it is competent for the Crown to adduce evidence in rebuttal of the suggested defence by calling other farmers who had at approximately the same time made similar payments to him for the allocation of cars to them for an agreed consideration; such evidence, although not admissible to prove the main facts of the case, was admissible to rebut by anticipation the indicated defence of innocent motive and want of design and to shew the state of mind of the parties with regard to the facts proved, although no witnesses were called for the defence. [Markin v. A.G. for New South Wales, [1894] A.C. 57, applied; R. v. McBerny, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 339; R. v. Collyns, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 572; R. v. Pollard, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 74; R. v. Wilson, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 165, cited.]

LIABILITY—INTENT—MENS REA.

In construing a statute creating an offence against public order and punishable as a crime there is a presumption that mens rea, an evil intention, or a knowledge of the wrongfulness of the act, is an essential ingredient until met by clear and definite enactment overriding such presumption. [Sherras v. De Rutzen, [1895] 1 Q.B. 918, 921 Chisholm v. Doulton, L.R. 22 Q.B.D. 736, applied.]

R. v. McAllister, 14 D.L.R. 430, 22 Can. Crim. Cas. 166.

INTENT TO DEFRAUD—INFERENCE.

Intent to defraud may be predicated from obtaining securities in a cash transaction between brokers in return for a worthless cheque on a bank in which the accused had previously closed his account; a false representation may be by conduct alone and without any oral representation as to the value of the cheque.

State of New York v. Israelowitz, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 323, 25 B.C.R. 143.

MENS REA.

In cases of doubt the existence or absence of mens rea is a question of fact for the jury, whose decision shall not be reversed unless clearly unreasonable.

R. v. Morisset, 26 Que. K.B. 481.

B. CAPACITY TO COMMIT; IRRESPONSIBILITY; INTENT; KNOWLEDGE; INSANITY.

(§ I B—5)—TEMPORARY INSANITY—INDUCING CAUSE—EXPORT TESTIMONY ON MENTAL CONDITION.

On a charge of murder and a defence of insanity at the time of the commission of the offence, the onus is upon the accused of proving that she was at the time she committed the act in such a state of mind that she was incapable of appreciating the nature and quality of her act and of knowing that it was wrong; and whether statements made to the accused by her husband as to his acts of infidelity with the deceased and other women would have a tendency to make her temporarily insane is a question of fact as to which expert testimony must first be offered before proof of any such statements by the husband becomes relevant. [R. v. Tuckett, 1 Cox C.C. 103, applied.]

R. v. Jennie Hawkes, 25 D.L.R. 631, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 29, 9 A.L.R. 182, 9 W.W.R. 445, 32 W.L.R. 720.

(§ 1 B-6)—INSANITY THROUGH DRINK—MANSLAUGHTER.

Homicide by shooting a person unknown to the accused, done without premeditation when the latter was temporarily insane from excessive drinking is not murder but manslaughter; a sentence of fifteen years was imposed because the jury made a recommendation to mercy, but without that recommendation life imprisonment would have been the appropriate punishment. [See also R. v. Wilson, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 418, 46 N.S.R. 59.]

R. v. Kane, 28 D.L.R. 380, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 443.

INSANITY AS A DEFENCE—DEGREE OF PROOF.

It is a misdirection to instruct the jury in a murder trial in which the defence is insanity, that such defence must be made out so as to satisfy the jury "beyond a reasonable doubt"; the latter expression having, by long judicial usage, become associated with the idea that more is required than merely being "satisfied" that the fact of insanity is proved. [McNaghten's Case, 10 C.L. & F. 200, considered; R. v. Myhrall, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 474, referred to.]

R. v. Anderson, 16 D.L.R. 203, 7 A.L.R. 102, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 455, 26 W.L.R. 783, 5 W.W.R. 1052.

INSANITY—IRRESISTIBLE IMPULSE.

A person is not to be acquitted of a criminal charge on the ground of his insanity unless his mind is so affected by that insanity as that he is not capable of appreciating the nature and quality of his act and of knowing that such act was forbidden by law; it is not a sufficient defence that it may be proved that, notwithstanding the existence of such appreciation and knowledge on the part of the accused, he had at the time of the offence lost the power of inhibition and had an impulse which he could not resist to commit the crime.

The King v. Jessamine, 1 D.L.R. 285, 3 O.W.N. 753, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 21 O.W.R. 292.

(§ 1 B-7)—INTOXICATION.

The prisoner was indicted, tried and convicted on an indictment charging him with the crime of murder. The evidence on trial showed that at the time of the commission of the act, the prisoner was under the influence of intoxicating liquor. After the jury had been charged and had retired, counsel for the prisoner requested the learned Trial Judge to recall them and instruct them that under the evidence they might find a verdict of manslaughter. This he declined to do. On a reserved case:—Held, that the question whether the accused was incapable, because of drunkenness, of forming an intention as to the nature and consequences of his act, was one that should have been submitted to the jury, and that the question whether the crime amounted to manslaughter only having been entirely withdrawn from the consideration of the jury, the conviction must be set aside and a new trial ordered.

The King v. Harry Wilson, 46 N.S.R. 59.

C. ATTEMPTS.

(§ 1 C-10)—DEFINITION OF.

An attempt to commit a crime is an act done with intent to commit that crime, and forming part of a series of acts which would constitute its actual commission if it were not interrupted.

R. v. Snyder, 25 D.L.R. 1, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 101, 34 O.L.R. 318.

BODILY HARM—INTENT.

An attempt to do grievous bodily harm to the other occupants of an automobile may be found from evidence of reckless driving, the question of intent or no intent being one for the jury.

D. SOLICITATION.

(§ 1 D-15)—COUNSELLING OR PROCURING.

A person who counsels or procures another to commit an offence is guilty of a specific offence under s. 69 of the Criminal Code, whether the person so counselled actually commits the offence or not.

Brousseau v. The King, 39 D.L.R. 114, 56 Can. S.C.R. 22, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 207, affirming 26 Que. K.B. 164.

A person may make himself a party to an offence, by doing or omitting an act for the purpose of aiding any person to commit it, or by abetting or cancelling or procuring commission of it. Therefore, a person, who can neither read nor write, who might even be blind, can be guilty of falsifying books or making a false entry, but he must be shown to have identified himself in some way with the act which the Code makes a penal offence.

INFANTS—THE JUVENILE DELINQUENTS ACT 1908, c. 40 (CAN.)—SECTION 29—CONTRIBUTING TO DELINQUENCY OF CHILD—“JUVENILE DELINQUENT” AS DEFINED IN S. 2 (C)—“THE CHILDREN’S PROTECTION ACT 1917 (SASK.)—“NEGLECTED CHILD”—SECTIONS 8, 9, 10—INFORMATION AND COMPLAINT NOT ALLEGING ACT DONE “KNOWINGLY OR WILFULLY” AS REQUIRED UNDER SAID S. 29.

Appeal allowed from conviction for unlawfully contributing to the delinquency of a child contrary to s. 29 of the Juvenile Delinquents Act, 1908, c. 40 (Can.), on the ground that at the time the offence charged was alleged to have been committed, the child was not a “juvenile delinquent” as defined in s. 2 (c) of said act. Said definition and definition of “neglected child” under the Children’s Protection Act 1917 (Sask.) and ss. 8, 9, and 10 of the latter act, considered. Information and complaint held bad as not setting forth any offence, it not containing any allegation that the act charged was done “knowingly or wilfully,” as required under said s. 29.

R. v. Huffman, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 625.

(§ 1 E—23)—PARTIES TO OFFENCES—PRINCIPAL—LIABILITY OF—SALE OF WOOD ALCOHOL BY EMPLOYEE IN VIOLATION OF LAW.

A sale of wood alcohol in a vessel not labelled “Wood Alcohol Poison,” as required by s. 372, of the Dominion Inland Revenue Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 51, 7-8 Edw. VII, c. 34, s. 27, by a clerk in the absence of and without the knowledge of his employer, renders the latter liable for the penalty imposed by the Act; since the statute prohibits absolutely the sale of wood alcohol except in compliance with its terms. (Caldwell v. Bethell, [1913] 1 K.B. 119; Brooks v. Mason, [1902] 2 K.B. 743; Strutt v. Clift, [1911] 1 K.B. 1; Coppen v. Moore, [1898] 2 Q.B. 306, considered.)

R. v. Russell, 14 D.L.R. 792, 29 O.L.R. 367, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 131.

PARTIES TO OFFENCES—PRINCIPAL—LIABILITY OF—SALES OF WOOD ALCOHOL BY EMPLOYEE IN VIOLATION OF LAW.

The fact that s. 111 of Part II of the Inland Revenue Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 51, expressly declares an employer liable for the failure of his employees to comply with the provisions of the Act with respect to keeping records of sales, which, by s. 368 of the act, as amended by 7-8 Edw. VII, c. 34, s. 27, is extended to sales of wood alcohol, while the provisions of the latter Act are silent as to the responsibility of an employer for sales of such liquid made by his employees in violation of the Act, does not shew a legislative intention to relieve the employer from liability for such illegal sales, since the two sections deal with entirely different offences. (Paul v. Hargroaves, [1908] 2 K.R. 289, distinguished.)
R. v. Russell, 14 D.L.R. 792, 29 O.L.R. 367, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 131.

F. INSTIGATION OR CONSENT, AS DEFENCE. (§ 1 F—25)—CONDONATION.

A private party cannot by condoning or forgiving a personal injury done to himself in the commission of crime, thereby condone or pardon the offence against the King so as to enable the wrongdoer to defend on that ground an indictment preferred against him by the Crown.

R. v. Strong, 26 D.L.R. 122, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 430, 43 N.B.R. 190.

(§ 1 F—28)—COMPULSION AS DEFENCE.

Compulsion is not a defence when the crime is of a heinous character unless the compulsory act is such as to make the accused person a mere inert physical instrument; the making of threats of immediate death or grievous bodily harm to be inflicted upon the accused should he fail to immediately comply with the directions to commit or participate in committing a heinous crime, ex. gr. murder, does not constitute an excuse in law.

§ II A-30)—PROCEDURE.

Where a prosecution for a criminal offence was instituted by a private prosecutor and he is still in charge of the prosecution, he has the same right to be heard on the trial, both as to the question of guilt and the quantum of punishment as the Attorney General would have on a Crown prosecution. [Stephen's History of the Criminal Law, 419, 495, referred to.]

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION—OPPORTUNITY OF ACCUSED TO MAKE FORMAL STATEMENT.

The omission of the justice of the peace on a preliminary examination to put the usual question inviting a statement by the accused under s. 684 of the Cr. Code, 1906, does not invalidate a commitment for trial.

The King v. Lantz, 15 D.L.R. 651, 47 N.S.R. 495, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 212.

RIGHT OF CROWN TO STAND JURORS ASIDE. The provisions of the Cr. Code relating to the right of the Crown to have jurors stand aside are in force in the province of Alberta.

PROCEDURE—STATUTORY OFFENSE—PROCEDURE NOT INDICATED—INDICTMENT—EFFECT OF CRIMINAL CODE, 1906, s. 164.

A proceeding by indictment at common law for the violation of a statute providing a penalty, but not pointing out the method of its enforcement, is not precluded by s. 164 of the Cr. Code, 1906, which declares in general terms that wilful disobedience of a statute shall be indictable, unless some penalty or other mode of punishment is expressly provided by law; the section of the Code does not go so far as the common law, and the latter remains operative in cases to which the Code does not extend.

R. v. Durocher, 13 D.L.R. 243, 28 O.L.R. 499, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 382.

KEEPING BAWDY HOUSE—POLICE COMMISSIONER—JURISDICTION—PROCEDURE.

A commissioner of police appointed under R.S.C. c. 92, and thereby invested with the like powers of summary trial as a city police magistrate in the province to which he is appointed, has in Alberta, under ss. 771 and 77 of the Cr. Code 1906 (Can.), as amended 1909, and the Alberta Act respecting police magistrates, absolute jurisdiction to hear and determine an information for keeping a common bawdy house in contravention of s. 228 of the Code. [R. v. Alexander, 13 D.L.R. 385, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 473, referred to.]

PROSECUTION FOR ADULTERY.

The repeal in 1886 by the Dominion Parliament of parts of certain pre-Confederation statutes of New Brunswick, which regulated procedure in prosecutions for adultery under R.S.N.B. 1854, c. 145, leaves that offence punishable in New Brunswick under the procedure applicable to indictable offences generally under the Criminal Code of Canada. R. v. Duncan, 15 O.W.N. 163.

QUASHING CONVICTION — MAGISTRATE "HEARD" EVIDENCE.

A conviction should be quashed when it is shewn that the magistrate heard evidence bearing on the charge, otherwise than in open court or under oath; in such a case the accused is not permitted an opportunity to make a full defence nor has the Supreme Court an opportunity, on certiorari, to peruse and consider the effect of the evidence.

R. v. Calvin, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1039.

PROCEEDINGS NOT MADE CLEAR—QUASHING CONVICTION—COSTS.

An accused has the right to have the proceedings made clear to him, and if this rule be not observed and the accused be convicted, the conviction should be quashed. Where a trial before a justice of the peace has not been fairly conducted and the conviction is therefore quashed, the justice may be ordered to pay the costs of the application to quash.

R. v. Lee Kee (Alta.), [1918] 3 W.W.R. 767.

STATEMENT AS TO TRIAL.

Section 827, Criminal Code, must be repeated to the accused word for word; a statement by his attorney that the accused agrees to submit to trial before the Court of Sessions is not sufficient.

Miller v. Malepart, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 203, 20 Que. P.R. 184.

EVIDENCE — TRIAL FOR MURDER — EVIDENCE OF SUBSEQUENT MURDER WHILE TRYING TO ESCAPE ARREST — EVIDENCE OF PREVIOUS SHOOTING — SUFFICIENT IDENTIFICATION OF BULLETS — ACCUSED MAKING UNSWORN STATEMENT AT TRIAL — JUDGE SHOWING TO JURY HIS OPINION AS TO EFFECT OF THE EVIDENCE.

On a trial for murder, evidence that the subsequent killing by accused, while trying to escape arrest, of another person, was murder, is admissible in evidence as evidence of conduct from which an inference as to a state of mind may be drawn of value in determining the guilt of the accused. On a trial for murder evidence of previous shooting of a person by accused (done shortly before, and arrest for which he was trying to escape when he did the act complained of) is admissible as evidence of motive. Evidence by doctors identifying receptacles in which were certain bullets as those in which had been placed bullets similar to these and taken from the body of the one for whose murder accused was on trial, was held to have been properly admissible without better proof of identity, the jury having been carefully directed with regard to their being satisfied as to these being the original bullets. A prisoner defended by counsel has no right to make an unsworn statement. [R. v. Krafchenko, 24 Man. L.R. 652, 6 W.W.R. 836, approved.] While it is the duty of the judge to explain the law affecting the case to the jury so far as is necessary for its application and it is their duty to accept his opinion without question, it is also his duty to assist them so far as he can to arrive at a correct conclusion of fact on the evidence while making it clear to them as part of the law that that conclusion is within their province and not his. It must necessarily be a matter of discretion on the part of the judge to what extent he may allow the jury to know his own view of the effect of the evidence if he has formed one.

R. v. Campbell, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 1076.

(§ II A—31)—PRELIMINARY INQUIRY—DEFECTIVE DEPOSITIONS—STENOGRAPHER'S OATH.

In cases in which s. 683 of the Cr. Code apply the fact that the evidence is taken in shorthand by a stenographer who is not a duly sworn court stenographer and who did not before acting make oath that he would truly and faithfully report the evidence, is fatal to the conviction. [Dierkes v. Altmatt, 39 D.L.R. 509; R. v. L'Heureux, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 100; R. v. Johnson, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 203; R. v. Limerick, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 309, applied.] In a summary trial under s. 774 of the Code for an indictable offence under s. 228, it is not necessary that the stenographer who takes the evidence in shorthand should be sworn before acting. [R. v. Emery, 33 D.L.R. 556, applied.]

R. v. Knight, 48 D.L.R. 577, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 529.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY — REPLACEMENT OF MAGISTRATE.

The justice of the peace who issues a warrant of arrest to bring the accused in custody for a preliminary enquiry has the right to order him to appear before himself or any other justice or magistrate having jurisdiction in the district, and the enquiry may, therefore, be taken in such case before another magistrate who replaces the first.

R. v. Daigle, 18 D.L.R. 56, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 92.

PRELIMINARY INQUIRY — CAPTION TO DEPOSITION.

It is not an objection that depositions taken in a preliminary inquiry have no formal caption to indicate the case in which they were taken if such depositions returned into the Superior Court are physically attached to a document called the "statement of accused," which sets forth the charge and date of hearing and that the charge was read to the accused, and that on being given the statutory warning he made no statement, and it further appears from the depositions themselves that they refer to the charge so recited in the "statement of accused."

R. v. McClain, 23 D.L.R. 312, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 488, 8 A.L.R. 73, 7 W.W.R. 1134, 30 W.L.R. 388.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRIES — REGULARITY OF ARREST — CHARGES OTHER THAN THAT FOR WHICH WARRANT ISSUED.

Where a conviction made on summary trial by a magistrate for the principal offence was quashed, but an information was afterwards laid against the same defendant for an attempt to commit the principal offence, and the defendant was brought before the magistrate in pursuance of a warrant of arrest for the attempt, the magistrate's duty was to dismiss the charge for the attempt, but he was not bound to discharge the accused from custody and await his rearrest before proceeding with preliminary enquiries upon charges of other distinct offences for which informations had been laid before him. [Re Baptist Paul (No. 1), 7 D.L.R. 24, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 159; Re Baptiste Paul (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 25, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 161, and R. v. Davis, 7 D.L.R. 608, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 293, distinguished.] Where several informations for various offences are laid against the same person, the magistrate will have jurisdiction under Cr. Code (1906), s. 668, to proceed with preliminary enquiries as to all of such charges although the accused was arrested and brought before him by virtue of a warrant of arrest issued upon one information only, subject to the right of the accused to a reasonable adjournment.

R. v. Weiss, R. v. Williams, 13 D.L.R. 63, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 42, 6 A.L.R. 262, 25 W.L.R. 351, 5 W.W.R. 48.

PROCEDURE — PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION — MUNICIPAL CORPORATION AS DEFENDANT — LEAVE TO PREFER INDICTMENT.

A private prosecutor seeking to criminally charge a municipal corporation with maintaining a nuisance in respect of a part of the municipality's sewage system should ordinarily initiate the proceedings before a magistrate and not be granted leave by a Superior Court to prefer an indictment against the municipal corporation where no preliminary enquiry had been held by a magistrate.

Re Schofield & Toronto, 14 D.L.R. 232, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 93, 5 O.W.N. 109, 25 O.W.R. 331.

RIGHT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO REPLY — EVIDENCE OF INSANITY.

Section 944 (3) of the Cr. Code preserves to the Attorney-General the right to reply, and whether he chooses to exercise such right or not, he is not bound to sum up for the Crown at the conclusion of the evidence, before the prisoner's counsel addresses the jury. It is not proper for the Crown to call evidence of insanity, but any evidence in possession of the Crown should be placed at the disposal of the prisoner's counsel, to be used by him if he thinks fit.

The King v. Keirstead, 42 D.L.R. 193, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 175, 5 N.B.R. 553.

PRELIMINARY INQUIRY — STENOGRAPHER'S OATH.

The omission to swear the stenographer appointed to take the evidence on a preliminary inquiry before a magistrate, as required by Criminal Code, s. 683, as amended in 1913, is a matter of jurisdiction and not a mere defect of form, and convictions made by the magistrate on such evidence will be quashed. [The King v. L'Heureux, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 100; The King v. Johnson, 1 D.L.R. 547, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 263, followed. See also McDonald v. The King, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 175, 30 D.L.R. 738.]

R. v. Limerick, Ex parte Dewar, 31 D.L.R. 226, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 309, 44 N.B.R. 233.

DEPOSITIONS IN WRITING — STENOGRAPHER SWORN.

A justice may cause the depositions of witnesses to be written down by a person other than himself, and it is only where the depositions are taken in shorthand by a stenographer that the person taking them is required to be sworn.

R. v. McKinley (Alta.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1969, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 294.

JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE.

Where a prisoner has been illegally arrested the magistrate before whom he is brought for trial has no jurisdiction to try him, if he objects to the magistrate's jurisdiction on appearing before such magistrate. [Re Paul (No. 2), 7 D.L.R. 25, 5 A.L.R. 442; R. v. Davis, 7 D.L.R. 608, 5 A.L.R.

R. v. Pollard, 39 D.L.R. 111, 13 A.L.R. 157, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 35, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 754.

APPEAL—RESERVE CASE—DISCHARGE.

Where a judge has discharged the accused on account of the insufficiency of the evidence, the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to grant reserved cases.

The King v. Jacobs, 26 Que. K.B. 382.

PRELIMINARY INQUIRY — IRREGULARITY — QUASHING.

The provision of s. 684 Criminal Code, that the magistrate presiding at a preliminary inquiry shall ask the accused after the witnesses have been heard if he desires that the depositions shall be read over to him, is imperative and should be followed on pain of nullity. An omission to do so renders the preliminary inquiry illegal. The accused may take advantage of this omission at the Assizes if moving to quash the indictment against him based on such inquiry.

R. v. Murray (2), [1917] 1 W.W.R. 404, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 9 A.L.R. 319.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION.

As a justice of the peace of Saskatchewan is an officer of the whole province he may hold a preliminary examination and commit an accused person for trial, notwithstanding the offence with which he is charged was supposed to have been committed in another judicial district in which there was no gaol to which the accused could be remanded to custody.

Where there is no gaol in the judicial district in which an offence was supposed to have been committed, a justice of the peace of another district may, under s. 577 of the Criminal Code, commit an accused person to custody for trial in the latter district without an order under s. 884 of the Criminal Code from a court or judge directing trial to be held in such district. [Reg. v. Ponton, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 192; Mallet v. The Queen, 1 B.C.R. (Part LL) 212; R. v. Smith, 1 F. & F. 36; R. v. James, 7 C. & P. 553, and Queen v. Burke, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 29, referred to.]

The King v. Lynn (No. 2), 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 129, 4 S.L.R. 324.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRIES — REMAND FOR MORE THAN THREE CLEAR DAYS.

Where a preliminary enquiry is being held and the prisoner is orally remanded for a time exceeding three clear days, the justice exceeds his jurisdiction, as a warrant of remand is required under Cr. Code s. 679, where the remand is for more than three days. [The Queen v. Halley, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 510; Re Sarault, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 418, referred to.]

The King v. Goulet, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 191. PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY — PRIMA FACIE CASE.

The magistrate holding a preliminary enquiry into a charge of an indictable offence has only to find evidence of a probable case of guilt to justify a committal for trial, and has not to deal with the preponderance of testimony.

R. v. Odell, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 39.

(§ II A—32) — DEFENCE WITNESSES ON PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY—RIGHT TO MAKE FULL ANSWER AND DEFENCE — REMAND FOR FURTHER PROCEEDINGS UNDER HABEAS CORPUS—CR. CODE, SS. 684, 686, 1120.

An opportunity must be given to the accused at a preliminary enquiry to call witnesses on his own behalf although when interrogated prior to the statutory warning (Code, s. 684) the accused told the magistrate he did not wish to call any witnesses. The refusal to hear his witnesses is a denial of the right to make full defence and not a mere irregularity, but the court on habeas corpus may exercise its discretion under Code s. 1120 by remanding the accused to appear again before the committing magistrate, and giving a direction to the latter to reopen the enquiry, hear the defendant's witnesses and make report to the court after which the habeas corpus motion will be disposed of. [Ex parte Burke, 2 Rev. de Jur. 151, overruled.] R. v. Payne, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 382.

(II A—33)—LEAVE TO FILE INFORMATION.

It is within the discretion of the Manitoba Court of Appeal to order a criminal information to be exhibited against a magistrate for alleged unlawful conduct in the discharge of his duties. [As to proceedings by criminal information generally, see annotation to this case.] Though it appears that a magistrate was guilty of illegal acts in the performance of his duties, a criminal information will not be ordered to be exhibited against him unless it is made to appear that he did such acts from corrupt motives.

CONSENT TO PROSECUTE — FIAT GRANTED BY "ACTING ATTORNEY-GENERAL" — LORD'S DAY ACT.

A fiat for the commencement of a prosecution for a violation of the Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, signed by a member of a Provincial Executive Council as "Acting Attorney-General" is valid, and his authority need not be shown; since it will be presumed that he was properly appointed to act in such capacity.

R. v. Thompson, R. v. Hammond, R. v. Churchill, R. v. Aherns, 14 D.L.R. 175, 22

RECOGNIZANCE TO PREFER INDICTMENT — PROSECUTION ASSUMED BY CROWN — PRIVATE PROSECUTOR.

Where a private prosecutor institutes the proceedings on a criminal charge and has himself bound over to prefer an indictment at the Court of General Sessions, the Crown Attorney for the county has the statutory right in Ontario under the Crown Attorney's Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 91, s. 8, to "assume wholly the conduct of the case where justice towards the accused seems to demand his interposition," and upon his taking charge of the prosecution after a true bill has been found, the private prosecutor has no right to take part in the proceedings at the trial, at least where the case does not present more of the features of a private injury than of a public offence. (Crown Attorney's Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 91, s. 8 (e).) R. v. Fraser, 19 D.L.R. 470, 30 O.L.R. 598, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 140.

CONSENT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO PROSECUTION — SUFFICIENCY OF — DUPLICITY.

Notwithstanding the fact that the fiat or consent of the Attorney General to prosecute for a violation of the Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 153, a person, upon a charge that he "provided, engaged in, or was present at" a forbidden performance on Sunday, states three separate offences, it is not bad on that account, and a prosecution may be maintained thereunder for any one of the offences mentioned.

R. v. Thompson, R. v. Hammond, R. v. Churchill, R. v. Aherns, 14 D.L.R. 175, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 78, 25 W.L.R. 576, 7 A.L.R. 40, 5 W.W.R. 157.

(§ II A—34) — ENACTMENT PROVIDING HEAVIER PUNISHMENT FOR SECOND OFFENCE — SETTING OUT PREVIOUS CONVICTION IN INFORMATION — CONVICTION FOR FIRST OFFENCE ONLY IF NOT BONA FIDE.

Where an enactment provides that an accused shall be subject to a heavier punishment for a second or subsequent infraction of the law, the accused is entitled to know that he is being tried for a second offence and the previous conviction should be set out in the information and summons, and if this is not done the accused can only be convicted for a first offence.

R. v. Harry, 48 D.L.R. 265, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 288, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 298.

SECOND INDICTMENT.

Notwithstanding the use of the disjunctive word "or" in s. 872 Criminal Code, counsel acting for the Crown are not, by preferring an indictment for the charge on which the accused has been committed, precluded from at the same time preferring another indictment against him for any other charge founded on the facts disclosed in the depositions.

King v. Montminy, 18 Rev. de Jur. 309.

CRIMINAL LAW — POWER OF JUSTICES TO ISSUE CERTIFICATE OF DISMISSAL — NECESSITY FOR HEARING ON THE MERITS — PRIVATE PROSECUTOR.

Held, that a private prosecutor applying for a writ of certiorari is entitled to the same privileges as the Attorney-General. That justices of the peace have no jurisdiction under s. 790 of the Cr. Code to issue a certificate of dismissal of a charge of assault unless there has first been a hearing on the merits, and that a certificate issued without such hearing is not a bar to further proceedings. [Reed v. Nutt, 24 Q. B.D. 609, 59 L.J.Q.B. 311, applied.]

R. ex rel. Vancampenhout v. Mann, 12 S.L.R. 121, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 917.

CODE SS. 873a, 962 — ATTORNEY-GENERAL DECLINING TO LAY CHARGE AGAINST ACCUSED AND OPPOSING APPLICATION OF PRIVATE PROSECUTOR FOR CONSENT TO LAY CHARGE — IF COURT'S CONSENT GIVEN STILL IN POWER OF CROWN TO STOP PROCEEDINGS — COURT THEREFORE REFUSING CONSENT — CRIMINAL LIBEL NOT EXCLUDED FROM OPERATION OF 962.

Since in Alberta a simple charge under code 873a laid by any of the persons there specified is obviously substituted for a true bill by a grand jury, the expression "after an indictment has been found" as used in code 962 must be interpreted as covering in Alberta such a charge code 873a; so that under said s. 962 the Attorney-General, after such a charge is laid under s. 873a, could direct a stay of proceedings. There is nothing to exclude the charge of criminal libel from the operation of s. 962. Where therefore the Crown declined to lay any charge against one committed for trial upon an information for criminal libel and also opposed an application by the private prosecutor for consent of the court under said s. 873a to lay a charge the court refused its consent as the Crown could, notwithstanding such consent and laying of the charge, stop all proceedings. No adjournment could be granted as, there being no indictment or charge on the record, there was nothing before the court to adjourn. If no charge were laid against the accused before the end of the sittings he would have fulfilled his recognizance and be free to go as far as his present committal was concerned.

R. v. Edwards, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 600.

(§ II A—37)—SUFFICIENCY OF INDICTMENT — SEDITION'S LIBEL.

Section 852 of the Criminal Code provides that every count of an indictment shall contain, and shall be sufficient if it contain, a statement that the accused has committed some indictable offense therein specified; but this does not mean merely naming an offense as "murder" or "theft"—the offence itself must be described with reasonable certainty. So also s. 861, which declares that no count for publishing a seditious libel shall be deemed insufficient on the ground that it does not set out the words thereof, dispenses only with the ipsisima verba—there must be substantial references to identify the words or locate the objectionable parts.

R. v. Bainbridge, 42 D.L.R. 493, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 42 O.L.R. 203.

REGULARITY OF SUMMONS OR WARRANT.

It is only when the allegations of the complainant do not convince the magistrate that a summons should issue, that there is any need of witnesses for the complainant, and until that time there are no persons who can be termed "his witnesses" under Cr. Code (1906) s. 635, as amended in 1909, which directs the justice to hear and consider the allegations of the complainant "and the evidence of his witnesses if any," and, on a case for same being made out, to issue a summons or warrant. (§ II A—38)—READING OVER TO, AND HAVING WITNESS SIGN DEPOSITION.

The requirement of subs. 4 of s. 682 of the Cr. Code, R.S.C. 1906, c. 146, that the depositions of a witness shall be read over to him by the magistrate, and signed by him, is directory only, and the omission to comply with this requirement does not involve loss of jurisdiction.

R. v. Woodroof, 6 D.L.R. 300, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 17, 11 E.L.R. 373.

FAILURE OF MAGISTRATE TO SIGN DEPOSITIONS — COMMITTAL FOR TRIAL — ELECTION — TRIAL BY DISTRICT COURT JUDGE — VALIDITY.

The failure of the magistrate committing an accused for trial for an indictable offence to sign the depositions does not affect the validity of the trial; the accused being admitted to bail by the district court judge, and subsequently appearing before him and electing to be tried by him.

The King v. Treflak, 47 D.L.R. 497, 12 S.L.R. 312, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 794.

PROCEEDINGS BEFORE JUSTICE OF PEACE — SUFFICIENCY OF SIGNATURE OF JUSTICE TO DEPOSITIONS.

Where the proceedings before a justice, including the depositions appear on a number of successive pages which are fastened together, the evidence of each witness being signed by the witness, and following the signature of the last witness the following statement appears: "Having considered the above evidence I remand the accused for trial at the next court, etc.," and such statement is signed by the justice, it is a sufficient authentication of all the depositions returned into court by the justice.

The King v. Kostink, 47 D.L.R. 299, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 285, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 852.

(§ II A—39)—TRIAL JUDGE — NO JURISDICTION TO GRANT NEW TRIAL — PROCEDURE.

The Trial Judge, in a criminal trial, has no power to grant a new trial. Leave to move the Court of Appeal for a new trial is given by s. 1021 of the Cr. Code, but only on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence.

B. PROTECTION AND RIGHTS OF ACCUSED GENERALLY; ELECTING MODE OF TRIAL.

(§ II B—10)—EVIDENCE — ADMISSION BY ACCUSED — VOLUNTARY PROMISE NOT ILLEGAL — NO THREATS OR INDUCEMENTS — ADMISSIBILITY.

A voluntary admission by the accused in a criminal case which has not been extracted by threats or illegal promises may be admitted as evidence in his trial.

Gravel v. The King, 30 D.L.R. 648.

ELECTING MODE OF TRIAL.

The recital of consent contained in Code form 55 is the method prescribed by law of shewing a magistrate's jurisdiction to summarily try for an indictable offence under Part 16, of the Criminal Code 1900, and where such a recital is contained in the conviction there is, in the absence of anything to impeach such record, a necessary implication that conditions precedent were observed. When the prisoner consents to be tried summarily by a magistrate under the summary trials clauses of the Cr. Code and an entry of this appears on the record it will be presumed on a habeas corpus motion, unless the contrary is shewn, that the consent of the prisoner to be tried summarily was regularly obtained and that his option to elect summary trial was exercised only after the magistrate had stated his right of election in the manner prescribed by Cr. Code, s. 778, and it is not essential that the magistrate's statement to the accused of the option in the statutory form should also be recited in the conviction or in the commitment. [R. v. Howell, 19 Man. L.R. 317; R. v. Walsh, 7 O.L.R. 149; R. v. Crooks, 17 W.L.R. 569, distinguished.]

The King v. Mall, 1 D.L.R. 256, 22 Man. L.R. 29, 20 W.L.R. 217, 1 W.W.R. 766.

CRIM. CODE — TRIAL OF ACCUSED ON CHARGE OTHER THAN SET OUT IN WARRANT — CONSENT NECESSARY.

Under s. 834 Cr. Code (amendment 8-9 Edw. VII. c. 9, s. 2) an accused cannot without his consent be tried on a charge other than that specifically described in the warrant for commitment and for which the accused was committed for trial.

The King v. Trellack, 47 D.L.R. 497, 12 S.L.R. 312, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 794.

ELECTING MODE OF TRIAL — RE-ELECTION — "PROSECUTING OFFICER" — MEANING IN QUEBEC — CRIM. CODE, SS. 828, 823.

Though, in general, a re-election by a prisoner may be validly exercised at any time before commencement of trial, and even after an indictment has been preferred (s.

828 (2) Cr. C.) (saving the cases provided for in s. 830, where re-election must be made before the regular term of the jury court and saving the qualification indicated in The King v. Everson, 4 D.L.R. 356, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 163), it is now a requisite, in view of 8-9 Edw. VII. c. 9, that "if an indictment has been preferred against the prisoner, the consent of the prosecuting officer shall be necessary to a re-election, and in such case the sheriff shall take no action upon being notified of the prisoner's desire to re-elect unless such consent is given in writing." In Quebec the expression "prosecuting officer" is to be given wide construction, and before indictment the notice may be given to the person to whom the name most nearly applies, viz.: the clerk of the peace, or even a high constable or counsel or a chief of police, but in prosecution after indictments have been found, there is always the Crown prosecutor, and he is the prosecuting officer whose consent to re-election is necessary. [In view of ss. 828 and 823 Cr. C. not mentioning any "prosecuting officer" for the Province of Quebec, as to the speedy trial of indictable offences the decision in this case is considered important.]

R. v. Bissonnette, 47 D.L.R. 414.

MIXED JURY — PROCEEDINGS IN ONE LANGUAGE ONLY — SUBSTANTIAL WRONG — CR. CODE, S. 1019 — COMMENT BY JUDGE ON PRISONER'S EVIDENCE.

A prisoner on trial on an indictment for murder elected to be tried by a mixed jury and after the impanelling of such a mixed jury the trial proceedings were conducted in the English language and the Trial Judge summed up the case to the jury in English but not in French. The Trial Judge also had commented upon the failure of the prisoner (who was a witness on his own behalf) to testify that he had not actually committed the murder. Held, that assuming that the failure of the Trial Judge to charge the jury in both languages, French and English, brought the case within s. 1019 of the Cr. Code as "something not according to law done at the trial," the court should not interfere being of the opinion that no substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned thereby; also that the prisoner having testified on his own behalf, his evidence was open to comment and observation by the trial judge, in addressing the jury, the same as that of any other witness.

Veuillette v. The King, 48 D.L.R. 158, 58 Can. S.C.R. 414, affirming 32 Can. Cr. Cas., — 28 Que. K.B. 364.

ELECTING SPEEDY TRIAL — DISTRICT.

An accused person committed for trial, and who, on arraignment before a District Judge under the Speedy Trials Part of the Cr. Code, has elected to take jury trial, may be permitted to re-elect to be tried without a jury by the District Judge's Criminal Court holding speedy trials in the district in which the gaol is situated to which he was committed and is in custody, although that is a different judicial district from that in which the alleged offence was committed.

R. v. Harrison, 41 D.L.R. 381, 10 S.L.R. 434, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 159, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 12.

Where the offence was committed in an other judicial district and the accused was there committed for trial, the judge of another District Judge's Criminal Court taking the election of the accused to be tried without a jury may properly remand the accused for trial before the District Judge's Criminal Court of the place of the offence. [R. v. Harrison, 41 D.L.R. 381, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 159, applied.]

R. v. Anderson & Sparks, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 176, 10 S.L.R. 434, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 14.

TRIAL — DUTY OF CROWN PROSECUTOR — FAIRNESS TO THE DEFENCE.

Where the Crown prosecutes in a Magistrate's Court, counsel for the Crown owes a special duty both to the court and to the defence to guide the proceedings upon principles of fairness. (Per Stuart, J.)

R. v. Dominion Drug Stores (No. 2), 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 86, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 413.

A person charged with a capital offence is not entitled to examine the register of notes in the possession of the sheriff, since such list is to be kept secret and not disclosed to anyone except under an order of a judge, granted on cause justifying it.

Trapanier v. The King, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 290.

EVIDENCE — RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS — RECENT POSSESSION AS EVIDENCE — ONUS OF PROOF IN CRIMINAL CASES — EXTENT OF BURDEN ON ACCUSED — EXPLANATION BY ACCUSED — REASONABLENESS OF AN QUESTION OF FACT — TESTS OF REASONABLENESS — EFFECT OF FAILURE OF ACCUSED TO GO ON STAND.

Recent possession of stolen goods is evidence of receiving as well as of stealing them. [Reg. v. Langmead, 9 Cox C.C. 464 L. & C. 427, 10 L.T. 350, followed; R. v. Thornton, 2 Cr. App. R. 284, and R. v. Lum Man How, 15 B.C.R. 22, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 274, 13 W.L.R. 343, referred to.] Since the earlier cases on the sufficiency of an explanation of the possession of stolen goods were decided when the accused had no right to give evidence they must be considered now in the light of the present conditions, and, perhaps, subject to some qualification. It should, however, still be a matter on consideration for a judge or jury that the Crown, with full knowledge of and opportunity for the investigation of an explanation reasonable on its face, has failed to make such investigation and bring the result of it before the court. [R. v. McKay, 24 N.S.R. 340, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 151, referred to on the latter point.] While the onus of proof in criminal cases is always on the Crown, yet where the Crown has established such facts as without more will justify the jury in finding the accused guilty he is not entitled to an acquittal unless he satisfies the burden which is then cast upon him of raising in the minds of the jurors a reasonable doubt of his guilt. The reasonableness of the explanation is generally more a question of fact for the jury or the judge trying the charge than one of law open to the consideration of a Court of Appeal, and depends, not merely on the accused's statement, but also upon the time and manner of its making and the question whether his conduct was consistent with it, and a judge or jury would in most cases be properly affected by the accused's failure to support by his sworn testimony an explanation previously given, though there may be circumstances where under too much importance should not be attached to such failure.

R. v. Scott, 14 A.L.R. 439, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 227.

(§ II B—42)—ELECTION TO SPEEDY TRIAL — JURISDICTION.

A bill of indictment having been preferred to the grand jury under s. 873 of the Cr. Code, a true bill found, and the accused having pleaded, and a day for trial fixed, an accused may on that day elect speedy trial before the Court of Sessions of the Peace, under Part 18 of the Code.

Giroux v. The King, 39 D.L.R. 190, 56 Can. S.C.R. 63, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 258, affirming 26 Que. K.B. 323.

(§ II B—44)—PRISONER'S STATEMENT IN COURT — INSTRUCTION TO JURY.

Where the accused person in addressing the jury on his own behalf has made statements of alleged facts outside of the sworn testimony, the Trial Judge should warn the jury against treating the statement as the equivalent of sworn testimony; such warning is not an infraction of s. 4 of the Canada Evidence Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 145, under which the failure of the accused to testify is not to be made the subject of comment by the judge or by counsel for the prosecution.

R. v. Kelly, 34 D.L.R. 311, 54 Can. S.C.R. 220, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 282, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 463, affirming 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 94, 149, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 46.

PRISONER MAKING UNSWORN STATEMENT IN DEFENCE BEFORE JURY.

The former right of a prisoner who is defended by counsel to make an unsworn statement from the dock is displaced by the Canada Evidence Act, under which he may offer his own sworn testimony as evidence on his own behalf. [R. v. Aho, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 453, considered.]

R. v. Kratchenko, 17 D.L.R. 244, 24 Man. L.R. 652, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 277, 28 W.L.R. 76, 6 W.W.R. 836.

RIGHTS OF ACCUSED — FORMAL PROCEEDINGS — ANSWER AND DEFENCE TO SPECIFIC CHARGE.

A person upon trial for a crime has a right to hear all the evidence adduced against him, and to insist, as a matter of right, that the formalities of the law as to criminal trials are complied with; and when formal proceedings are in strict law required, ex. gr., an arraignment upon a specific charge made known to the prisoner at the hearing before a magistrate, the absence of the required proceedings is a ground for setting aside the conviction without regard to the question whether or not any substantial injustice had resulted to the accused. [Martin v. Mackonachie, 3 Q.B.D. 730, 770, applied.]

R. v. Rouch, 19 D.L.R. 362, 6 O.W.N. 630, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 28.

RIGHT TO HAVE EVIDENCE TRANSLATED AND TO MEET WITNESSES.

A prisoner who is ignorant of the language in which the trial proceedings are conducted has no inherent right to be furnished with a literal translation of all that takes place at the trial; where the substance of the evidence in chief of a witness called on behalf of the prisoner is explained to him, the omission to explain to him in like manner what the witness said on cross-examination is not a ground for quashing a conviction, the prisoner having been represented by counsel and having suffered no prejudice by the omission. [The King v. Meecklette, 18 O.L.R. 408, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 17, followed.]

The King v. Sylvester, 1 D.L.R. 186, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 302, 45 N.S.R. 525.

(§ 11 B—45) — TRIAL BEFORE MAGISTRATE — TWO SEPARATE CHARGES — INTERJECTION OF ONE TRIAL INTO THE OTHER.

Where an accused is being tried before the same magistrate on two separate charges, the interjecting of one trial into the other so prejudices the defence as to entitle the accused to have the conviction quashed. [R. v. McBerry, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 339; R. v. Bullock, 60 L.R. 663; R. v. Imran Din, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 82; R. v. McManus, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 122, referred to.]

R. v. King (2 cases), 47 D.L.R. 410, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 297, 14 A.L.R. 481, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 877.

(§ 11 B—46) — STATEMENTS BY ACCUSED — ADMISSIBILITY.

Statements made by an accused are admissible in evidence against him although the usual warning or caution was not given, if it is shown that such statements were voluntarily made, and were not obtained either by fear of prejudice or hope of advantage exercised or held out by a person in authority.

R. v. Rodney, 43 D.L.R. 404, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 259, 42 O.L.R. 645.

CONFESSION — VOLUNTARY — ONSUS.

A confession in a criminal case must not be extracted by any sort of threat or promise, or by fear of any direct or implied promise. It must be entirely free and voluntary and the onus of establishing this rests on the prosecution.

The King v. Benjamin, 41 D.L.R. 388, 32 Can. Cr. Cas. —, 53 Que. S.C. 160.

(§ 11 B—47) — DISCLOSING NAMES OF WITNESSES AGAINST HIM.

While no definite rule is laid down in the Criminal Code to compel the endorsing of the names of witnesses for the prosecution on a formal charge laid by the agent of the Attorney-General under Cr. Code s. 873A (applicable in Alta. and Sask.), the presiding judge may give all necessary protection to the accused so that he may have a fair opportunity to defend himself; the name of any additional Crown witness not examined at the preliminary inquiry ought, as a matter of fairness, to be disclosed to the accused—at any rate if he asks for the information. [R. v. Greenslade, 11 Cox C.C. 412, referred to.]

R. v. McClain, 23 D.L.R. 312, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 488, 8 A.L.R. 73, 7 W.W.R. 1134, 30 W.L.R. 388.

NAME OF CROWN WITNESSES.

The context of ss. 874 to 876 of the Cr. Code makes s. 876 (endorsing names of witnesses on bill of indictment) inapplicable to proceedings by formal charge in a province where there is no grand jury system, notwithstanding the extended meaning given to the word "indictment" by Cr. Code s. 2 (16); effect is to be given to the latter only in the event of the context being consistent therewith.

R. v. McClain, 23 D.L.R. 312, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 488, 8 A.L.R. 73, 7 W.W.R. 1134, 30 W.L.R. 388.

(§ 11 B—48) — PROCEDURE — THEFT PROPERTY OVER $10 — ACCUSED CHARGED BEFORE MAGISTRATE — PLEA OF "GUILTY" — NO ELECTION — JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE — CR. CODE, SS. 773, 778, 782, 783 — NEW TRIAL.

A magistrate cannot accept a plea of "guilty" from accused persons brought before him charged with theft of goods over $10 in value, unless such persons have elected to be tried by him. Cr. Code ss. 773, 778, 782, and 783.

R. v. Collier, 50 D.L.R. 735, 46 O.L.R. 351.

PROCEDURE — WAIVER OR LOSS OF RIGHT — CR. CODE, 1906, S. 1010.

Section 1010 of the Cr. Code 1906, forbidding the reversal of a verdict for certain irregularities not objected to before verdict in criminal cases, is taken from the Imperial statute 7 Geo. IV, c. 64, and not from 21 James I, c. 13. [R. v. Feore, 3 Q.L.R. 219, corrected.]

R. v. Battista, 9 D.L.R. 138, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 1.

RIGHTS OF ACCUSED — WAIVER — CONSENT TO ADMIT DEPOSITIONS IN TRIALS OF OTHERS SIMILARLY CONCERNED.

The accused may make a minor confession while not fully confessing his guilt, and in view of this and of Cr. Code 978, it is not error to admit either at the preliminary inquiry or at the trial depositions in similar concurrent prosecutions of others for fraudulent stock subscriptions in the same company where the same counsel acting for all of the accused signed a consent by which the evidence at the preliminary inquiry against any one of them might be used as against any other both at the several preliminary enquiries and upon the trials. [See also R. v. Brooks, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 188, 11 O.L.R. 525.]

R. v. Daigle, 18 D.L.R. 56, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 92.

(§ 11 B—49)—SPEEDY TRIAL WITHOUT JURY — CHANGING OPTION — CR. CODE, s. 826.

If the accused has regularly consented to a "speedy trial" without a jury under Part 18 of the Code, he has no right afterwards to change his option by re-electing for a jury trial. [R. v. Koefer, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 132, referred to; and see R. v. Hebert, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 290.]

R. v. Guay, 19 D.L.R. 820, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 243, 21 Rev. de Jur. 253.

TRIAL ON CONSENT — SUMMARY OR SPEEDY TRIAL.

Where the depositions and the commitment for trial were both ignored by the prosecution, and instead, the County Crown Attorney, under Cr. Code, s. 873, obtained the written consent of the judge to prefer the indictment on which a true bill was returned by the grand jury, and on which the petty jury returned a verdict of "guilty" and the depositions taken before the magistrate were not made a part of the case reserved for the opinion of the Court of Appeal in respect of the regularity of a refusal of a claim by the accused to be tried without a jury under the speedy trials clauses, the Court of Appeal may properly assume that the charge in the indictment is not the same as that for which the prisoner was committed, or any other charge appearing in the evidence before the magistrate, as, in either of these events, the County Crown Attorney would not, under s. 871, have needed the consent of the judge to prefer the indictment.

R. v. Sovereign, 4 D.L.R. 356, 26 O.L.R. 16, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 163, 21 O.W.R. 618.

SUMMARY TRIAL — POWER OF JUSTICES TO COMMIT FOR TRIAL.

Under the Cr. Code it is not competent for a magistrate who is holding a summary trial after hearing all the evidence on both sides to decide to commit for trial instead of disposing of the case himself; the right to commit for trial being limited as to time by the terms of Cr. Code, s. 786, directing that the magistrate may "before the accused person has made his defence" decide not to adjudicate summarily upon the case.

R. v. Roger Hicks, 7 D.L.R. 171, 5 A.L.R. 371, 22 W.L.R. 236, 2 W.W.R. 1100.

SUMMARY TRIAL — ABSOLUTE JURISDICTION.

A person charged under ss. 227 and 228 Cr. Code, 1906, c. 146, with keeping a common letting house, may without his consent, under ss. 641, 773 and 774 of the Code, as amended by 8-9 Edw. VII., be summarily tried by a police magistrate, absolute jurisdiction to try such offence without a jury having been conferred upon such official by ss. 641, 673 and 674 of the Cr. Code, 1906. [R. v. Lee Guey, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 80, 15 O.L.R. 235, specially referred to.]

R. v. Honan, 6 D.L.R. 276, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 10, 26 O.L.R. 484, 20 O.W.R. 527.

SPEEDY TRIALS CLAUSES — OPTION OF NON-JURY TRIAL — CR. CODE s. 826.

An election of speedy trial without a jury under Part 18, of the Cr. Code must be a general one so as to include any judge or official who may legally preside under Cr. Code, s. 823, and must not be limited by making it a consent to be tried only by the particular judge before whom the accused is arraigned. [R. v. McDougall, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 234; R. v. Stewart, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 331, referred to.]

R. v. Guay, 19 D.L.R. 820, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 243, 21 Rev. de Jur. 253.

SUMMARY TRIAL — POWERS OF TWO JUSTICES — THEFT UNDER $10 — PART OF LARGER THEFT.

The theft of a bundle of tied letters by one act is a single offence, and where it appears by the evidence on the summary trial before two justices exercising the limited jurisdiction of s. 773 of the Cr. Code, 1906, as the theft not exceeding $10, that the cheque for $10, as to which alone the charge was laid before the magistrates, was the enclosure in one letter of the bundle stolen by the one act and that the value of the enclosure in the entire bundle of registered letters was more than $10, the justices have no jurisdiction to proceed further with a summary trial, but should proceed only with a preliminary inquiry and committal of the accused for trial before a court of competent jurisdiction.

R. v. Pope, 15 D.L.R. 664, 7 A.L.R. 169, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 327, 26 W.L.R. 650, 5 W.W.R. 1070.

JURISDICTION OF SUMMARY TRIAL — ABSENCE OF SWORN INFORMATION.

The absolute jurisdiction conferred upon a police magistrate to try certain indictable offences upon summary trial without the consent of the accused is exercisable where the accused is present, whether or not an information has been sworn in respect of the offence which is the subject of the trial, if the "charge" is reduced to writing and is read to the accused and view of lands which are the subject-matter of the offence charged.

R. v. Crawford, 10 D.L.R. 96, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 70, 18 B.C.R. 20, 22 W.L.R. 969, 3 W.W.R. 731.

SUMMARY TRIAL — POLICE MAGISTRATE — JURISDICTION TO TRY WITHOUT JURY — KEEPING COMMON GAMING HOUSE.

A police magistrate has jurisdiction under ss. 641, 773 and 774 of the Cr. Code (1906), as amended 1909, and a charge of keeping a common gaming house in violation of s. 228 of the Code, to summarily try the accused without permitting him to elect whether he will go before a jury. [R. v. Honan, 6 D.L.R. 276, 26 O.L.R. 484, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 10, followed.]

R. v. Jung Lee, 13 D.L.R. 896, 5 O.W.N. 80, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 63, 25 O.W.R. 63.

SUMMARY TRIAL BY CONSENT — FAILURE TO INFORM PRISONER AS TO RIGHT MODE OF TRIAL—EFFECT.

The failure of a police magistrate on taking an election of a summary trial, to state to the accused conformably to s. 778 (b) of the Cr. Code, as amended by 8-9 Edw. VII. c. 9, that he has the option to be tried forthwith, or to remain in custody, or under bail as the court shall decide, to be tried in the ordinary manner by a court having criminal jurisdiction, will vitiate a conviction on the summary trial. [R. v. Howell, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 178, 19 Man. L.R. 325, followed and applied. See also The King v. Davis, 13 D.L.R. 612.]

The King v. Fuerst, 15 D.L.R. 214, 26 W.L.R. 445, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 183.

SUMMARY TRIAL BY CONSENT — FAILURE TO INFORM PRISONER AS TO RIGHTS OF SPEEDY TRIAL—EFFECT.

The failure of a magistrate on taking an election of a summary trial to state to the accused conformably to the provisions of s. 778 of the Cr. Code that he has the option of being tried forthwith by the magistrate without a jury, or to remain in custody or under bail as the court decides, to be tried in the ordinary way by a court having criminal jurisdiction, renders void a conviction on a plea of guilty. [R. v. Howell, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 178, 19 Man. L.R. 326; The King v. Walsh and Lamont, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 101, 7 O.L.R. 149; The King v. Harris, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 392, 4 S.L.R. 31, and The King v. Crooks, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 150, 4 S.L.R. 335, followed.]

The King v. Davis, 13 D.L.R. 612, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 34.

SUMMARY TRIAL—CHARGE IN WRITING.

Where there is already a written information in respect of the charge of an indictable offence, which a magistrate is about to try under Part 16 of the Cr. Code, such information may be adopted as a "charge in writing," which he shall read to the accused, and it is not in such case necessary for the magistrate to again reduce the charge to writing; but if the accused were before the magistrate without any preliminary information having been laid for the offence which is to be the subject of the summary trial, it would then be the magistrate's duty to write out the charge.

R. v. Myers, 25 D.L.R. 476, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 23, 9 A.L.R. 66, 9 W.W.R. 235, 32 W.L.R. 528.

SUMMARY TRIAL WITHOUT CONSENT.

The absolute jurisdiction of a police magistrate in Saskatchewan of a city having a population of over 2,500 is retained under Code, ss. 776 and 777, as to the offences specified in Code, s. 773 (including that of unlawful wounding), and the consent of the accused to summary trial is required by Code, ss. 777 and 778, only in such cases in which there is additional jurisdiction under s. 777. [R. v. Hayward, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 399, 5 O.L.R. 65, applied.]

Re Worrell, 21 D.L.R. 519, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 88, 8 S.L.R. 149, 8 W.W.R. 231. [Affirmed in 21 D.L.R. 522, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 92, 8 S.L.R. 140.]

ACCUSED COMMITTED TO GAOL — REMOVED TO POLICE CELLS — ELECTION BEFORE DISTRICT JUDGE—CONSENT TO BE TRIED BY HIM — TRIAL—JURISDICTION OF COURT.

An accused who, at the preliminary hearing on an indictable offence, has been ordered to be committed to gaol for trial and has been removed to the police cells preparatory to being taken to the gaol, which is situated in another district, is "committed to gaol" and may be brought before the District Judge of the district where the offence was committed for election, and having voluntarily appeared before such judge and with his own consent and the consent of the Crown prosecutor having been tried by such District Judge, on a charge within the jurisdiction of the court, such court has jurisdiction to try the accused. It is not necessary that the accused be actually transferred to the gaol or that the election be made before the District Judge where such gaol is situated. [Giroux v. The King, 39 D.L.R. 190, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 258, followed.]

The King v. Meyers, 47 D.L.R. 542, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 361, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 187.

ELECTION TO SUMMARY TRIAL.

The procedure of taking the election of the accused for summary trial as enacted by Cr. Code, s. 778, applies to the offence of theft by a servant or agent under Cr. Code, s. 359, although the value is alleged to be under $10; it is not enough that the accused pleaded not guilty where his consent to summary trial was not asked in conformity with s. 778.

R. v. De la Durantaye, 34 D.L.R. 689, 18 Que. P.R. 251, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 395.

SUMMARY TRIAL—EXTENDED JURISDICTION —CR. CODE, S. 777.

Section 777 of the Cr. Code, giving extended jurisdiction of summary trial by consent before certain magistrates, applies only to cases which in Ontario would be triable at General Sessions other than cases listed in s. 773. [R. v. Hayward, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 309, 5 O.L.R. 45; Ex parte McDonald, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 368, followed. But see R. v. Archibald, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 159; R. v. Crawford, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 53, 6 D.L.R. 380.]

ACCUSED COMMITTED FOR TRIAL — ONE CHARGE—AT TRIAL FOUR COUNTS SUBMITTED BY CROWN—GENERAL VERDICT OF GUILTY—STATED CASE—APPEAL.

Under the Criminal Code, s. 834, as amended by 8-9 Ed. VII, c. 9, s. 2, the consent of the judge and the prisoner is necessary before the latter can be tried upon a charge other than the charge upon which he has been committed to jail for trial.

The King v. Bobyck, 49 D.L.R. 678.

ELECTION—PRESUMPTION—PLEA GUILTY.

A conviction on a "speedy trial" (Part 18 of the Cr. Code), need not recite that the presiding judge on taking the prisoner's election of trial without a jury had stated to him that he had the alternative of remaining in gaol until the jury court or being admitted to bail as the court might decide; in the absence of any proof appearing in the record that this statutory statement had been made to the prisoner in conformity with Cr. Code, s. 827 (amendment of 1909), the presumption is that the statement was regularly made, A District Judge or other official, qualified under Cr. Code, s. 823, to hold a "speedy trial" under Part 18 of the Cr. Code after a committal for trial, acquires jurisdiction to hear and determine the case if the accused has given his consent under Code, s. 827, notwithstanding that the accused had, when arraigned before a city magistrate with jurisdiction of "summary trial" under Code, s. 777, offered a plea of guilty without being put to his election under Cr. Code, s. 778 of trial before the magistrate.

R. v. Therrien; Therrien v. Malepart, (2), 28 D.L.R. 462, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 309, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 127, 10 O.L.R. 107.

TRIAL WITHOUT JURY—SPEEDY TRIAL.

On taking the prisoner's election to be tried before a judge, without a jury, under the "speedy trials," part of the Cr. Code, it is essential under Cr. Code, s. 827, that the prisoner should be informed that he may remain in gaol or under bail if the court should so decide, in the event of his electing a jury trial, but if the conviction returned to a writ of habeas corpus recites in conformity with Code, form 60, that the prisoner, "on being brought before the judge and asked if he consented to be tried before such judge without the intervention of a jury, consented to be so tried," and the conviction further shows that the prisoner pleaded guilty of an offence, which was properly triable under Part 18 (speedy trials), it is not an objection to same on habeas corpus, that it did not further recite the giving of the statutory information; the effect of Code, form 60, and of Cr. Code, s. 1152, as to forms is to make the conviction sufficient in that respect to show jurisdiction, without reciting therein all of the requisites of jurisdiction under Code 827; the prisoner's remedy is he desired to show that the statutory information under Code, s. 827, was not given is to appeal by way of reserved or stated case under Cr. Code, s. 1014, etc. [R. v. Mali (No. 1), 1 D.L.R. 256, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 184; R. v. Mali (No. 2), 1 D.L.R. 484, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 188, followed; R. v. Howell, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 178, 19 Man. R. v. Therrien (1), 28 D.L.R. 57, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 275, 17 Que. P.R. 285.

TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE.

Cr. Code, s. 877, applies to give jurisdiction to a city police magistrate to try with the consent of the accused, under s. 777 (2) an offence committed outside of his territorial jurisdiction but within the same province, as to which the accused is found or apprehended within such territorial jurisdiction. [Re Seeley, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 270, 41 Can. S.C.R. 5, referred to.]

R. v. Thornton, 30 D.L.R. 441, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 120, 9 A.L.R. 163, 24 W.L.R. 178, 308, 9 W.W.R. 825, 968.

SPEEDY TRIAL ON CONSENT—JURISDICTION.

The validity of a speedy trial at a County Court Judge's Criminal Court at which counsel professed to act for the Crown is not affected by the lack of proof that he had been appointed "prosecuting officer" and was therefore entrusted with the statutory duty under Cr. Code, s. 827 (amendment of 1909), of preferring the charge on which the accused had been committed for trial; the maxim omnia presumuntur, etc., applies where the contrary does not appear; and, it is to be assumed notwithstanding the unnecessary signature of a Crown counsel to the written charge that the same is being prosecuted by the duly appointed clerk of the peace for the county whose duty it is under the provincial statute constituting the court, "to issue all process, arraign prisoners, record verdicts," etc. The jurisdiction of speedy trial under Part 18 at a County Judge's Criminal Court attaches where the defendant had been committed to gaol for trial but was subsequently released on bail to appear at the County Judge's Criminal Court, if he attends and elects speedy trial under Part 18, although he may not have been formally taken into custody by the sheriff before the trial commenced. [R. v. Lawrence, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 295, 5 B.C.R. 160; R. v. Cameron, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 169;

R. v. Komiensky, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 27; R. v. Day, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 325, 16 B.C.R. 323, referred to.]

R. v. Jun Goon, 28 D.L.R. 374, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 415, 22 B.C.R. 381, 33 W.L.R. 761, 10 W.A.R. 24.

A summary conviction by a police magistrate is not invalid where it appears that the prisoner, on being arraigned, was informed by the magistrate's clerk in the words of the statute that he might at his option be tried forthwith by such magistrate without a jury or remain in custody or under bail as the court directed, to be tried in the ordinary way by the court having criminal jurisdiction, although the date of the sitting of the latter court was not specified. A summary conviction by a police magistrate will be sustained where the prisoner was not, on the day of trial, informed in the words of the statute that he could elect to be tried forthwith by such magistrate or be held for trial in the ordinary way by the court having criminal jurisdiction if the prisoner had been duly notified of such privilege upon his arraignment on a previous date. A conviction before a police magistrate upon a summary trial is not vitiated by the fact that the clerk of the court and not the magistrate, informed the accused in the words of the statute that he might elect whether he would be forthwith tried by the magistrate or be held for trial in the ordinary way by the court having criminal jurisdiction. [R. v. Ridebaugh, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 340, referred to.]

The King v. Barnes, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 463, 21 Man. L.R. 357, 18 W.L.R. 630.

Where a statute expressly requires certain things to be done before a magistrate acquires the jurisdiction of summary trial, the record must shew that such things were actually done, or that the statute was substantially complied with, otherwise the conviction cannot stand.

The King v. Crooks, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 130, 4 S.L.R. 335.

It is not necessary that a police magistrate should, when informing a prisoner that he may elect whether he will be tried summarily by the magistrate or held in custody for trial in the ordinary way by the court having criminal jurisdiction, personally address the prisoner in the words of s. 778 of the Criminal Code, 1906 (amendment of 1909); it is sufficient that the statutory words were addressed to the prisoner by the magistrate's clerk on the magistrate's behalf in open court.

The King v. Barnes, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 463, 21 Man. L.R. 357, 18 W.L.R. 630.

JURISDICTION — SUMMARY TRIAL — THEFT UNDER $10.

The consent of the accused is essential for the summary trial by a magistrate under Cr. Code, s. 773 (a) of a charge under s. 379 of the Cr. Code (1906), of theft from the person of less than $10.

[The King v. Conway, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 129, referred to.]

The King v. Bonin, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 180. SUMMARY TRIALS CLAUSES—THEFT.

An information for theft of property of less value than $10 may be laid and preliminary inquiry held before a Justice of the Peace in New Brunswick in his capacity as such, although he was also a county stipendiary magistrate with power of summary trial under Part 16 of the Cr. Code (Code, s. 773), without any obligation to give the accused an opportunity to elect for a summary trial before such county stipendiary magistrate. [R. v. Wener, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 406, cited.]

R. v. Howe, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 215, 42 N.B.R. 378.

ACCUSED TO BE PERSONALLY PRESENT—FULL ANSWER AND DEFENCE.

For the purpose of the summary trials clauses of the Cr. Code, the accused must be personally present; and it is not competent for a magistrate to proceed with a summary trial as for an indictable offence in the absence of the accused, although his counsel is present on his behalf prepared to make option under Code, s. 778, as to mode of trial, and although the latter produces a written authority in that behalf signed and sworn to by the absent defendant. The word "answer" as used in Code, s. 786, in the phrase "full answer and defence" has no special reference to the question to be put by the magistrate to the accused in certain cases on taking an election for or against summary trial, but applies alike to summary trial cases in which there is no right of election by the accused. The words "full answer and defence" used in Code, ss. 715, 786 and 942, mean that the accused can invoke every means both in law and in fact to meet the charge; the word "answer" being specially applicable to a defence on the facts and the word "defence" applying both to matters of testimony and matters of law. Where a magistrate has jurisdiction over the particular offence either as one for which a summary conviction may be made or as one for which he has power of summary trial as for an indictable offence without the consent of the accused, it is essential to the exercise of the latter jurisdiction that the magistrate should expressly declare on commencing the trial that he will proceed under the "summary trials" clauses of the Code. [R. v. Belmont, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 89, followed.]

R. v. Romer; R. v. Johnson; R. v. Farrell, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 235.

SUMMARY TRIAL OF INDICTABLE OFFENCE.

A magistrate holding a summary trial for an indictable offence under Part 16 of the Code is not authorized, after hearing both sides, to adjourn the trial and to remand the accused for trial "until called on," where the evidence does not satisfy the magistrate either of the guilt or innocence of the accused; the prisoner is in such case entitled to the benefit of the doubt and to an acquittal, and prohibition will be granted to restrain the magistrate from proceeding to hear further evidence alleged to have been discovered by the Crown, and in respect whereof the accused was again summoned to receive judgment upon the original charge.

R. v. White, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 277, 34 O.L.R. 370.

SUMMARY TRIAL—ELECTION—HABEAS CORPUS.

Where a committal for trial for an offence alleged to have been committed in a city to which subs. 2 of s. 777 applies has been made by a county stipendiary not authorized to hold a summary trial in Nova Scotia under s. 777, subs. 2, the Superior Court may enable the prisoner to elect trial before the city stipendiary magistrate having the extended jurisdiction of s. 777 by granting his application for writs of habeas corpus and recipias corpus to transfer him from the goal to the city magistrate's court.

R. v. Foley, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 150.

RE-ELECTION FOR JURY TRIAL.

A prisoner who has duly elected in favour of a speedy trial before a County Judge without a jury has no right thereafter to re-elect in favour of a jury trial. [R. v. Keefer, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 122, 2 O.L.R. 572, followed; R. v. Fallard, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 96, 28 O.R. 489, and R. v. Prevost, 4 B.C.R. 326, referred to.]

R. v. Howe, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 215, 42 N.B.R. 378.

SUMMARY TRIAL—DEPOSITIONS AND NOTES OF EVIDENCE.

Where a magistrate holds a summary trial under Part 16 of the Cr. Code for an indictable offence, and the accused pleads not guilty, it is obligatory that the depositions should be taken down in writing, and where there are no notes of the evidence the conviction will be set aside on certiorari; the absence of any notes of evidence is irreconcilable with ss. 793 and 1124, which latter section is made applicable by Cr. Code, s. 797 (2). [R. v. Harris, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 362; Re Lacroix, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 297, and R. v. Jung Lee, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 63, followed.]

Perron v. Senechal, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 358, 17 Que. P.R. 134.

SUMMARY TRIAL—CR. CODE, S. 773—LESSER OFFENCE THAN THAT CHARGED.

On an information for inflicting grievous bodily harm by an assault, a magistrate exercising the power of summary trial under Code s. 773 (c) may convict for the lesser offence of assault occasioning actual bodily harm. In provinces where the jurisdiction under s. 773 is absolute, there is also jurisdiction under s. 951 to convict for the lesser offence without taking the consent of the accused.

R. v. Adonchuk, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 301, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 987.

OPTION OF SUMMARY TRIAL—WAIVER BY PLEA IN JURY COURT WITHOUT CLAIM TO NON-JURY TRIAL—RE-ELECTION ONLY WITH CONSENT OF PROSECUTING OFFICER—CR. CODE, R.S.C. 1906, c. 146, ss. 823, 828.

After the accused has pleaded to an indictment and a date has been fixed for his trial in the jury court, the accused cannot, without the consent of the prosecuting officer, make option for trial without a jury under the Speedy Trials Clauses of the Cr. Code (Part XVIII.). The speedy trial court at that stage of the proceedings has no jurisdiction in the absence of the consent of the officer prosecuting in the Jury Court and it is not enough in the case of a prosecution in the Court of King's Bench, Crown side, at Montreal, that a consent was given by the clerk of the Court of Sessions of the Peace, the judge of which Court would have had the tribunal for trial without jury, had the right to such mode of trial still subsisted.

R. v. Bissonnette, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 388.

SUMMARY TRIAL—WAIVER OF ILLEGAL ARREST—RECOGNIZANCE AND PLEA.

Where a person illegally arrested on a charge triable summarily without his consent, gives a recognizance for his appearance and pleads to the charge without protest as to the illegal arrest, he thereby waives his right to object to the magistrate's jurisdiction on that ground; and such waiver is effective although the information was afterwards amended and re-sworn.

R. v. Kostich, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 407, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 378.

ELECTION OF SUMMARY TRIAL—PLACE OTHER THAN THAT WHERE ALLEGED OFFENCE COMMITTED—JURISDICTION—ATTEMPTED TRANSFER TO ANOTHER MAGISTRATE—MANDAMUS.

Where an election of summary trial for an indictable offence has been taken and plea made to the charge under Code, ss. 777 and 778, the magistrate who has accepted such election has no jurisdiction to transfer the case for trial before the magistrate of another city of the same province by reason of the fact that the offence is charged to have taken place in such other city. Mandamus will lie to compel the magistrate before whom the option was made to appoint a time for the trial and to proceed therewith.

Re Bain, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 206, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 709.

SUMMARY TRIAL—DEPOSITIONS IN WRITING—HABEAS CORPUS.

When a person charged with theft demands a summary trial before a magistrate of the district, and is found guilty, he cannot afterwards obtain a discharge from custody through a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the depositions of the witnesses were not reduced into writing, as s. 682 of the Cr. Code requiring these depositions to be taken in writing does not apply to summary trials.

Re Britt, 32 Can. Cr. Cas. —, 31 Que. 83, 448, 18 Que. P.R. 388.

SUMMARY TRIAL—CONSENT TO.

If the accused has been illegally arrested without a warrant on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, and on being brought before the magistrate for summary trial takes objection to his jurisdiction, he will have no authority to proceed with the trial notwithstanding Cr. Code, s. 774, declaring the jurisdiction of the magistrate to be absolute for that offence and not dependent on the consent of the accused to summary trial.

R. v. Wilson, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 370, 32 W.L.R. 264, 9 W.W.R. 47.

ELECTION OF SPEEDY TRIAL.

A person under an indictment preferred by leave of the judge and against whom there has been no preliminary committal for trial may even after pleading to the indictment and obtaining a continuance be permitted, with the consent of the Crown, to elect for a speedy trial without a jury (Cr. Code, s. 828); and if he does so he cannot attack the conviction in the Speedy Trial Court for want of jurisdiction. The preliminary conditions to jurisdiction is that the accused shall have consented to be tried and that an entry of such consent shall have been made (Cr. Code, s. 827). The procedure of committal and preliminary enquiry (Code, s. 825) does not go to the jurisdiction. [R. v. Walsh (H. v. County Judges Criminal Court), 16 D.L.R. 500, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 7, referred to.]

R. v. Giroux, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 101, 26 Que. K.R. 323. [Affirmed in 39 D.L.R. 190, 56 Can. S.C.R. 63.]

SUMMARY TRIAL—ELECTION FOR—STATEMENT OF CHARGE.

On the arraignment of an accused on a charge which cannot be tried summarily without his consent, it is imperatively essential that every word of the statement which s. 778 (2) of the Cr. Code requires the magistrate to make shall be read to the accused before his election.

R. ex. rel. Johnson v. James (Sask.), 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 4, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 994.

SUMMARY TRIAL—ASSAULT—JUSTICES.

Two justices having jurisdiction under Cr. Code, c. 773 (c), to summarily try, with the consent of the accused, a charge of unlawful wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm (Cr. Code, s. 274), are without jurisdiction to proceed with a summary trial under Part 16, if the charge is laid for an "assault occasioning actual bodily harm" (Cr. Code, s. 295), and a conviction made by them for the lesser offence of common assault upon a charge
Can. Dig.—46.

so laid will be set aside. [R. v. Sharpe, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 132, followed; R. v. Hostetter, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 221, doubted.]

R. v. Law, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 251, 33 W.L.R. 569, 7 W.W.R. 1101.

SUMMARY TRIAL—BAIL.

Where the magistrate or judge, taking the election of the prisoner for summary trial under the "Summary Trials" procedure, Part 16, of the Cr. Code, places before the accused only the option of remaining in custody until the sittings of the Jury Court and omits to inform him that he would be at liberty, in case he did not choose a summary trial, to apply for release on bail to answer the charge at the Jury Court, such omission goes to the jurisdiction of summary trial, and the subsequent proceedings and sentence, although upon a plea of guilty, will be set aside. C. WARRANT; COMMITMENT.
(§ II C—50)—WARRANT OF COMMITMENT—SUFFICIENCY.

After conviction under s. 238 (i) of the Cr. Code, it is not necessary that the warrant of commitment should set out the fact that the accused was first asked to give a satisfactory account of herself; if the order sets out all the ingredients of the offence, it is within s. 723 (3) of the Code. PRISONER IN GAOL ON CHARGE HEARD BY MAGISTRATE—ELECTION TO BE TRIED BY JUDGE—SUBSEQUENT TRIAL—NO WARRANT OF COMMITMENT—OBJECTIONS.

The accused "being a prisoner in the gaol" upon the charge heard by a justice, and appearing before the District Judge and electing to be tried on the said charge, which is the same as that contained in one of the counts of the charge upon which he was subsequently tried, the fact that there is no warrant of commitment on file cannot be an objection to the trial.

The King v. Kostink, 47 D.L.R. 299, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 285, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 852.

COMMITMENT FOR TRIAL—SUMMARY TRIAL.

Where a person is charged before a magistrate authorized to hold a summary trial and elects to be summarily tried by such magistrate for an indictable offence, a preliminary commitment for trial is unnecessary to give the magistrate jurisdiction under Cr. Code, s. 777 (amendment of 1909).

The King v. Davis, 13 D.L.R. 612, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 34.

EVIDENCE TO WARRANT A COMMITTAL FOR TRIAL—HABEAS CORPUS.—REVIEW.

A committal for trial may be made by the justice holding a preliminary inquiry if there was some evidence from which the magistrate could infer that probable cause existed for believing the accused guilty of the crime. Only in extreme cases will his decision in that respect be reviewed on habeas corpus. [R. v. Gillespie, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 551, and R. v. Delisle, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 223, referred to.]

R. v. Payne, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 382.

WARRANT—SERVICE—PROHIBITION.

The omission to serve the accused with a copy of the warrant on which he was arrested does not constitute an illegality which would justify the issue of a writ of prohibition.

DISORDERLY HOUSE—GAMING—WARRANT—UNNECESSARY WORDS IN—NOT THEREBY DEFECTIVE—Cr. Code, s. 641.

If a warrant issued under s. 641 of the Cr. R. v. Wong Joe, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 672.
(§ II C—51)—SUFFICIENCY OF WARRANT OF COMMITMENT—COSTS OF CONVEYING TO GAOL.

A warrant of commitment in default of paying a fine for an offence under the Nova Scotia Liquor License Act, and which requires as a condition of release that the prisoner should pay also the costs of conveying him to gaol, should show by endorsement or otherwise the amount of the latter costs; but, where no bona fide effort has been made to pay the fine, the omission may be cured on a habeas corpus application by giving leave to return an amended warrant. [The King v. McDonald, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 121, applied; The Queen v. Corbett, 2 Can. Cr. Cas. 499, distinguished.]

Re Leblanc, 15 D.L.R. 572, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 208.

COMMITMENT FOR TRIAL—ORDER FOR FURTHER DETENTION.

Where a magistrate has proceeded to convict in a case in which he had jurisdiction only to hold a preliminary inquiry and commit for trial, the court on quashing the conviction may, if the ends of justice require it, direct the further detention of the accused in custody until he can be brought up for the preliminary inquiry, although there was no habeas corpus application. [R. v. Frejd, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 110, 22 O.L.R. 566, applied.]

R. v. Manzi, 25 D.L.R. 648, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 359, 8 O.W.N. 533.

SUFFICIENCY OF WARRANT OF COMMITMENT.

A warrant of commitment issued under s. 690 of the Cr. Code 1906, remanding the accused to prison to stand his trial before the King's Bench, is not invalid merely on the ground that the elements of the offence are not recited in the warrant, if an indictable offence be disclosed in the depositions. [R. v. Phillips, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 89, and R. v. Brown, [1895] 1 Q.B. 119, followed.]

R. v. Beaudoin, 17 D.L.R. 273, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 319.

SUFFICIENCY OF—SUMMARY TRIAL.

Where there is a good and valid conviction by two justices sitting together as a summary trial court under Part 16 of the Cr. Code, a warrant of commitment thereunder is validated under Cr. Code, s. 1130, although signed and sealed by one of such justices only and although it recites that the accused was convicted before the signing justice and makes no mention of the other having participated in the trial.

R. v. James, 25 D.L.R. 476, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 23, 9 A.L.R. 66, 9 W.W.R. 235, 32 W.L.R. 528.

WARRANT OF COMMITMENT—POLICE MAGISTRATE SIGNING AS "P.M."

It is not a valid objection to a warrant of commitment that the committing magistrate in signing and sealing the warrant wrote after his name merely the letters "P.M." instead of spelling out his official designation of "police magistrate," where his official capacity was recited in full in the body of the warrant.

Re Eddie Brady, 10 D.L.R. 424, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 123, 5 A.L.R. 400, 23 W.L.R. 333.

CONVICTION—SUFFICIENCY OF.

A conviction which accurately relates the facts should not be held to be bad simply because the description of the offence varies slightly from the language of the enactment creating it if the offence as described is really one within the meaning of such enactment.

R. v. Harry, 48 D.L.R. 265, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 288, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 298.

SUFFICIENCY OF WARRANT OF COMMITMENT.

A warrant of commitment is not void because it does not show that the prisoner consented to be tried summarily for an indictable offence and where the conviction, which was before the court on an application by the prisoner for his discharge from custody on habeas corpus, showed that he consented to be so tried, the commitment is validated under s. 1121, Cr. Code, 1906, which provides that no warrant or commitment shall be held void by reason of any defect therein, if it is therein alleged that the defendant has been convicted and there is a good and valid conviction to sustain the same. CHAPTER 16 OF 8-9 GEO. V. (CAN.) S. 1 (4).

Where on motion to quash conviction it appeared that complainant was described in the information as "of Edmonton, Juvenile Court Probation Officer" and in the conviction (directing payment of his costs) as "Juvenile Court Probation Officer"; held sufficient to raise presumption that the prosecution (under s. 1 of c. 16 of 8-9 Geo. V. [Can.]) was set on foot by one who then was, and who was known by the magistrate to be, an officer of a Juvenile Court, fulfilling requirement of subs. 4 of said section.

(§ II C—52)—EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES PRIOR TO ISSUING WARRANT.

The magistrate may, under Cr. Code, s. 655, hear witnesses for his own information upon the application for a warrant. [Ex parte Coffin, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 48, specially referred to.]

D. NECESSITY OF INDICTMENT; PRESENTMENT OR INFORMATION.

(§ II D—56)—CRIMINAL INFORMATION FOR LIBEL—LEAVE TO FILE.

Leave to file a criminal information for libel can only be granted by the Full Court in Nova Scotia, i.e., the provincial

Supreme Court, sitting en banc; a single judge, although presiding over a court for the disposal of criminal business in a county, has no jurisdiction to grant the leave. [R. v. Beale, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 255, 11 Man. L.R. 448, and R. v. Labouchere, 12 Q.B.D. 320, 15 Cox C.C. 415 referred to.]

R. v. Burgess, 21 D.L.R. 333, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 424, 48 N.S.R. 241.

(§ II D—58)—CHARGE ON SPEEDY TRIAL.

It is not necessary that the consent of the judge should be required by s. 834 of the Cr. Code as amended by c. 9 of 8-9 Edw. VII. (Can. 1909), should be formally expressed, either verbally or in writing before proceeding with the trial of the prisoner on a substituted charge; such consent may be inferred from the fact that the judge himself drew attention to the new charge, put the prisoner to his election, and proceeded with the trial. [The King v. Cohn, 36 N.S.R. 240; The King v. Cohn, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 386, distinguished.]

SUMMARY TRIAL—POWER OF MAGISTRATE AS TO AMENDMENT—CR. CODE, 1906, PART 16.

The probable effect of Part 16 of the Cr. Code, R.S.C. c. 146, dealing with summary trials of indictable offences, is to give to the magistrate trying such offence without indictment the same powers of amendment as are given to the courts upon the trial of the same offence under an indictment.

R. v. Crawford, 6 D.L.R. 380, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 49, 5 A.L.R. 204, 22 W.L.R. 107, 2 W.W.R. 952.

E. CONCURRENT PROCEEDINGS.

(§ II E—60)—CONCURRENT PROCEEDINGS, HOW DESTRAINED—PRIORITY—POLICE COMMISSIONER.

The Alberta statute, c. 13, of 1906, respecting magistrates, as amended by s. 9 of c. 5 of 1907, which vests exclusive jurisdiction in the justices first having cognizance of the fact in criminal cases triable by them, applies to an officer (for example, a commissioner of police) exercising the jurisdiction of two justices of the peace.

R. v. Bloom, 15 D.L.R. 484, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 205, 7 A.L.R. 1, 20 W.L.R. 459, 5 W.W.R. 897.

ALTERNATIVE MODES OF PROSECUTION.

Where the statutory direction is that a penalty may be recovered or enforced either by indictment or by summary proceedings under Part XV. of the Cr. Code, the choice of tribunals rests with the prosecution; the defendant is not entitled to demand that the proceedings shall be by way of indictment under which alone he could obtain a jury trial.

F. PLEADING; MOTIONS; DEMURRER.

(§ II F-65)—"PLEA OF 'GUILTY'—JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE.

Although an accused has pleaded "guilty," yet, if before the case is closed, it clearly appears that the accused never intended to admit the truth of a fact which is an essential ingredient in his guilt and, therefore, pleaded "guilty" under a misapprehension of what constitutes guilt, it is the duty of the presiding judge or magistrate to offer to allow him to withdraw his plea, if he wishes to do so, and to enter a plea of "not guilty." If, however, the magistrate nevertheless forthwith enters a conviction he exceeds the jurisdiction to do so given him by s. 721 (2), Cr. Code.

R. v. Richmond, 39 D.L.R. 117, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 89, 12 A.L.R. 133, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1200.

SUMMARY CONVICTION—RIGHT TO CHANGE PLEA—GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY.

If the same principles apply to a trial under Part 15 of the Cr. Code as to a trial of an indictable offence before a judge and jury in a Superior Court, it is clear that, after judgment, it is too late to apply to change a plea of "guilty" to one of "not guilty"; [R. v. Selbie, 9 Car. & P. 346]; and even before judgment the court has a discretion in the matter; [R. v. Plummer, [1902] 2 K.B. 339, at p. 349.] If such principles do not apply, the applicant is in no better position, for there is no provision in Part 15 allowing an accused to withdraw an admission as to the truth of an information and as to the absence of sufficient cause why he should not be convicted.

R. v. O'Brien, 11 S.L.R. 484, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 848.

(§ II F-68)—MOTION TO QUASH CONVICTION—CHARGE TO JURY.

In a criminal trial where insanity is pleaded as a defense the jury should be told by the Trial Judge in his charge that every man is presumed to be sane and to possess a sufficient degree of reason to be responsible for his crimes, until the contrary is proved to their satisfaction; and that to establish a defence on the ground of insanity it must be clearly proved that at the time of the committing of the act the party accused was labouring under such a defect of reason from disease of mind as not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing, or if he did know it, that he did not know he was doing what was wrong. In considering a portion of the Trial Judge's charge objected to, such portion must be taken and construed in conjunction with the charge as a whole and will not be a ground for quashing the conviction if it is evident that the jury could not have understood otherwise than that the prisoner was entitled to an acquittal, if they were satisfied that he did not know the nature and quality of the act he was charged with committing and that it was wrong.

The King v. Keirstead, 42 D.L.R. 193, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 175, 45 N.B.R. 553.

INDICTMENT—GRAND JURY—DELIBERATION—SIGNATURE—CR. CODE, S. 872.

There are no illegalities to justify the quashing, on motion, of an indictment for incest, for indecent assault, and for assault with bodily wounds, because (a) the Deputy Crown Attorney remained in the grand jury room during the proceedings and the grand jury's deliberations, and helped in the conduct of the inquest; (b) there was at the same time present in the room two constables sworn in to accompany the grand jurors, and also one interpreter; (c) the indictment was signed only by a deputy, no mention being made that he is the deputy of the Crown Attorney.

G. FORMER JEOPARDY.

(§ II G-70)—FORMER JEOPARDY—EFFECT OF A NOLLE PROSEQUI IN FORMER PROSECUTION FOR SAME OFFENCE.

A stay of proceedings by the Attorney-General entered of record under Cr. Code, s. 962 is in effect a nolle prosequi, and, while it puts an end to the prosecution under the indictment then before the court it is not a bar to a fresh prosecution for the same cause if the nolle prosequi was entered before the impannelling of the jury or other proceedings amounting in law to a plying of the accused in jeopardy. (Per Sutherland, J., in court below.)

R. v. Spence, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 365.

FORMER JEOPARDY—DIFFERENT COUNTS.

In a criminal case where the formal charge contains more than one count, the accused who has pleaded not guilty may be refused leave to plead guilty to the count for the minor offence in order to base thereon a plea of autrefois convict as a defence against the other and more serious counts based on the same state of facts. IV. Sentence and imprisonment.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ IV A—95)—SENTENCE AND IMPRISONMENT.

A sentence to a penitentiary imposed by a magistrate acting under the summary trials clauses of the Cr. Code is subject to the provisions of s. 44 of the Penitentiary Act and a duly certified copy of the sentence is a sufficient warrant of commitment, without a recital of the preliminaries of the trial. SENTENCE FOR SEVERAL OFFENCES.

In view of Cr. Code, s. 1905, it would be no objection that one sentence has been pronounced upon a charge tried under the "summary trials" procedure, Part 16 of the Cr. Code (ss. 777 and 778), for two distinct offences disclosed in the written charge on which the accused elected a summary trial and pleaded guilty, provided the sentence was warranted for one of such offences.

PENITENTIARY SENTENCE—FORMALITIES OF CERTIFIED COPY USED AS WARRANT OF COMMITMENT.

A certified copy of the sentence to a penitentiary is a sufficient warrant for detention of the convict and such certified copy, signed by the deputy clerk of the Crown when acting as clerk of the court, is sufficient under the Penitentiaries Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 147, s. 44. It is not a ground for habeas corpus that such certificate taken from the minutes of the court which passed the sentence does not purport to include the judge's signature to the memorandum of sentence. (§ IV A—99)—SENTENCE—IMPRISONMENT AND WHIPPING—ILLEGALITY OF DIRECTION AS TO TIME OF WHIPPING.

The fixing of the time or times for punishment by whipping ordered to take place during the convict's term of imprisonment is left by Cr. Code, s. 1060 in the discretion of the prison surgeon under whose supervision the whipping is to be done; and it is an excess of jurisdiction on the part of a magistrate holding a summary trial to order in the sentence that ten lashes be imposed 6 weeks after imprisonment and 10 lashes 6 weeks before expiration of the term of 6 months' imprisonment imposed; but the court hearing a habeas corpus application may amend the conviction under Cr. Code, s. 1124 by imposing the proper sentence where satisfied of the offence.

R. v. Boardman, 18 D.L.R. 698, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 191, 9 A.L.R. 83, 29 W.L.R. 176, 6 W.W.R. 1304.

CORRECTION OF JUDGMENT—EXCESSIVE IMPRISONMENT IMPOSED ON SUMMARY TRIAL.

Where an excessive term of imprisonment has been imposed upon a plea of guilty at a summary trial of an indictable offence, the plea is not equivalent to a "deposition" for the purposes of reducing the sentence in certiorari proceedings by an amendment of the conviction; the latter must, therefore, be quashed where the punishment is excessive and there are no depositions from which the court may, in the terms of Cr. Code, s. 1124, satisfy itself that an offence of the nature described has been committed.

SENTENCE AND IMPRISONMENT—HARD LABOUR.

Where both fine and imprisonment are imposed on a summary trial for an offence within Cr. Code, s. 781 (amendment of 1913), hard labour may be imposed at the discretion of the justices as an incident to the imprisonment. [R. v. Burtress, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 536, referred to.]

IMPRISONMENT AT HARD LABOUR—SUMMARY CONVICTION UNDER INDIAN ACT (CAN.).

The Indian Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 81, does not empower an Indian agent to include hard labour in a sentence of imprisonment imposed on summary conviction under s. 139 of the Act for being drunk on an Indian reserve.

R. v. Atkinson, 18 D.L.R. 462, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 149, 24 Man. L.R. 308, 28 W.L.R. 412, 6 W.W.R. 1055.

C. EXTENT OF PUNISHMENT GENERALLY; EXCESSIVE FINES.

(§ IV C—115)—DISORDERLY HOUSE CASES—PUNISHMENT ON SUMMARY TRIAL.

It is not necessary to impose imprisonment as well as a fine to make subs. (2) of Code, s. 781 applicable; the words "in addition to" and "a further term" in that subsection are intended to make it clear that even where imprisonment in the first instance, as well as a fine, is imposed, then further imprisonment in default of payment of the fine can be given up to 6 months.

R. v. Davidson, 35 D.L.R. 82, 28 Can. Crim. Cas. 44, 11 A.L.R. 9, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 160.

EXCESSIVE IMPRISONMENT—COMMON ASSAULT—AMENDMENT OF CONVICTION—CR. CODE, SS. 738, 1124.

R. v. Daignault (Man.), 10 W.W.R. 374.

(§ IV C—116)—IMPRISONMENT IN DEFAULT OF FINE—SUMMARY TRIAL.

The restriction of Code, ss. 739 (b), by which imprisonment "not exceeding three months" may be ordered in default of payment of a fine on summary conviction under Part XV., do not apply to a conviction made on a "summary trial" under Part XVI. for an indictable offence; the imposition of imprisonment in default is a "proceeding" within Code, s. 798, and the effect of s. 798 is, therefore, to exclude the operation of s. 739 to such a case.

R. v. Davidson (No. 1), 35 D.L.R. 82, 11 A.L.R. 9, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 44, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 160.

IMPRISONMENT IN DEFAULT OF FINE—SUMMARY TRIAL.

Subsection 2 of Cr. Code, s. 781 (Amendment of 1913), applies to authorize a commitment in default of paying the fine imposed on a summary trial under Cr. Code, s. 773 (c) for aggravated assault, where the sole penalty in the first instance was a fine, as well as to cases where both fine and imprisonment were imposed in the first instance; and this although the imprisonment on default of paying the fine is referred to in the subs. as being for a "further term" not exceeding six months.

R. v. Nelson, 17 D.L.R. 305, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 301, 7 S.L.R. 92, 28 W.L.R. 102, 6 W.W.R. 706.

(§ IV C—117)—EXCESSIVE FINE—MAGISTRATE'S CONSIDERATION OF EVIDENCE.

In sentencing a defendant found guilty of an offence the magistrate should not increase the severity of the sentence because he considers the defendant guilty of another offence with which he has not been charged.

R. v. Harris, 40 D.L.R. 684, 41 O.L.R. 366, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 13.

SPECIAL STATUTORY CASES OF THEFT AND RECEIVING—PUNISHMENT ON SUMMARY CONVICTION.

Where the subject-matter of a theft is of any of the special classes for which the procedure of summary conviction is applicable ex. gr., stealing a dog worth less than $20), the punishment on a summary conviction for receiving is limited in like manner as for the principal offence by virtue of Cr. Code, s. 401.

R. v. Frizell, 15 D.L.R. 674, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 5 O.W.N. 801.

EXCESSIVE FINE—STATUTORY LIMITATION OF FINE.

R. v. Johnson, 10 D.L.R. 822, 24 W.L.R. 468.

EXCESSIVE FINE.

The costs imposed on a summary trial are a part of the fine and a fine of $100 without costs is not authorized under Code, s. 781, which in effect declares that the money penalty in cases to which it applies shall not exceed "with the costs $100," but if a fine of $100 is imposed without any mention of costs it will be presumed that the costs formed a part of the sum of $100 and the conviction will be upheld. The King v. Stark, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 67, 18 W.L.R. 419.

SENTENCE—EXCESSIVE FINE ON SUMMARY TRIAL—CR. CODE, s. 781.

Where a penalty in excess of the statutory limit of Cr. Code, s. 781 (amendment of 1913) is imposed on a summary trial without consent (Code, ss. 773 and 774) on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, the remedy is by certiorari (Cr. Code, ss. 599, 797 (2), amendment of 1913, 1124 and 1126), and not by a motion under Cr. Code, s. 1016 (2) to the Court of Criminal Appeal to pass the proper sentence; the latter clause applied only where an appeal may be taken to the Court of Appeal under s. 1013.

R. v. Booth, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 224, 31 O.L.R. 539.

ONE CONVICTION OF TWO SEPARATE OFFENCES—PENALTIES BULKED IN ONE SUM—SUM EXCESSIVE—THE LIQUOR ACT—POWER TO AMEND CONVICTION, SS. 62, 73—COSTS FIXED IN ONE SUM UNDER CONVICTIONS—NOTHING TO INDICATE AMOUNT OF COSTS IN EACH CASE—INABILITY TO AMEND.

Where defendant was convicted by justices of two separate and distinct offences (charged in the same information) of unlawfully giving liquor contrary to s. 24 of the Liquor Act in one conviction and was fined a penalty (with alternative of imprisonment) for the two offences bulked in one sum exceeding twice the maximum provided for such an offence, and a sum for costs, there being nothing in the conviction or otherwise before the judge hearing the appeal showing what the costs were in respect of each offence: An application (made on the hearing of appeal from conviction) to amend the conviction (under ss. 62 and 63 of the said act as enacted by subs. 16 and 17 of s. 55 of c. 4 of 1918) was refused and the conviction was quashed, because, even if the judge, being satisfied on the depositions that there was evidence sufficient on which to conclude that an offence against a provision of the Act had been committed, had otherwise the right to amend so as to make two good convictions and adjudge a proper penalty for each offence, he could not so amend in the absence of proper information enabling him to adjudge the proper amount of costs payable in each case. Doubt expressed of power of magistrate to make one conviction for two offences (either generally or under the Liquor Act).

R. v. Scott, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 1064.

(§ IV C—118)—CORRECTION ON APPEAL.

Where the sentence passed by the court below is declared erroneous, the court hearing the appeal under Cr. Code, s. 1018, may, on setting it aside, declare what the proper sentence should be, and remit the case with directions to pronounce the specific sentence declared by the Appellate Court.

R. v. Spedakes, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 210, 40 N.B.R. 428.

(§ IV C—119)—REDUCING PUNISHMENT—DISORDERLY HOUSE OFFENCE.

The rehearing on an appeal under s. 754 (summary convictions clauses), is to be "upon the merits," and this permits the District Court by which the appeal is heard to reduce the punishment if it sees fit to do so. [By the Cr. Code amendments, 1913, c. 13, appeals by way of rehearing in disorderly houses cases under Code, s. 773 (f), are now limited to trials before two justices of the peace, sitting together.]

R. v. Miller, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 151, 25 W.L.R. 296.

D. TIME OF IMPRISONMENT; CUMULATIVE AND INDETERMINATE SENTENCES.

(§ IV D—122)—SENTENCE AND IMPRISONMENT—WHEN TIME BEGINS TO RUN.

Where a defendant on summary conviction is sentenced to imprisonment for a certain term by a magistrate, the period of imprisonment is to be calculated from the time the actual imprisonment commences. [Bowlster's Case, 17 L.J.Q.B. 243; Ex parte Foulkes, 15 M. & W. 612; Braham v. Joyce, 4 Exch. 487, followed.]

IMPRISONMENT—WHEN NINETY DAYS EXCEEDS THREE MONTHS' LIMIT.

Where the imprisonment has commenced under a sentence for ninety days and at a time of the year which would not include the month of February, and, consequently, the sentence would not in the ordinary course exceed three months which was the maximum penalty allowed for the offence, it is not a ground for discharge on habeas corpus that a ninety-day sentence may under certain contingencies exceed the statutory limit of three months. [R. v. Gabine, 1 Can. Cr. Cas. 59, distinguished.]

 PRISONMENT FOR FOUR MONTHS, the defendant who had been allowed at the time of sentence to go at large upon his recognizance to appear when called upon, is not entitled to have the period for which he was so at large prior to arrest upon a warrant of

SENTENCE AND IMPRISONMENT—REVISION OF SENTENCE—CONVICT ALLOWED AT LIBERTY ON BAIL PENDING APPEAL.—

When a person under sentence for an indefinite offence was imprudently given his liberty by making bail for an appeal where the time during which the appeal was pending was not counted as part of the term of the offence, the period of the appeal does not run in his favour, although he had served a part of the sentence before he had been accepted for bail in such a case is within s. 3 of the Prisons and Reformatory Act, R.S.A., 1906, c. 118, enacting that the time during which a convict is "out on bail" shall not be reckoned as part of his sentence; and his continued attention after the granting of the appeal constitutes an "escape" under Cr. Code, s.

 196, and on being recaptured he must serve the remainder of the time for which his sentence was to run. [Robinson v. Morris, 23
 Can. Ct. Rep. 209, 19 O.L.R. 633, applied.]

SENTENCE AND IMPRISONMENT—LIMIT FOR THE REVISION OF OFFENCES.—

The restriction of Cr. Code, s. 789, by which the imprisonment must not exceed a term of six months where a charge of that term or less is tried summarily, under
 s. 779, by a magistrate, is not applicable where the class having jurisdiction is not the class having jurisdiction, and only where the accused pleads "not guilty" (Cr. Code,
 s. 780), but also where he pleads "guilty" and is under s. 778 liable to such sentence as by law may be passed in respect to such offence, etc.]

 sought for the purpose of appealing to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on a point of a purely technical character, quite apart from the merits of the conviction, and after a decision by the provincial Court of Appeal against the prisoner, a reprieve will be refused if in the judge's opinion the further appeal which could be had only by an application to the Privy Council for special leave would be a frivolous one.

(§ IV H-153)—PARTIAL REMISSION OF SENTENCE FOR GOOD CONDUCT IN PRISON—POWER TO REVOKE OR FORFEIT.

A convict in a penitentiary may provisionally earn a remission of part of his sentence by good conduct duly certified in pursuance of the Penitentiary Regulations of November, 1898; but remissions so earned are subject to forfeiture under such rules and this without any hearing in the nature of a trial or any right of the convict to be heard.

In 1904, pursuant to an order-in-council recommending the granting of a lease for 21 years to the suppliant of certain fishery privileges in waters described in the order-in-council, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries executed a lease to the suppliant for the said term. The lease contained a provision that upon complying with certain terms and conditions that the suppliant would be entitled to have the option of renewing the lease for a future period of 21 years. In 1913, the deputy minister notified the suplicants that the lease was ultra vires as not being in virtue of any statute of Canada, and as being repugnant to the common law, and that the lease was ab initio void. Held, on a stated case to determine the rights of the suplicants under said lease, that the provision for the renewal of the lease was void and inoperative, and beyond the power of the minister under said order-in-council, but that the clause as to the renewal could be severed, and while that clause was void the lease itself for the term of 21 years was valid and binding. The suppliant's husband was an employee of the Crown working on a stonelifter, the property of the Crown, in the deepening of the ship-channel in the harbour at Montreal, and while so engaged in lifting a boulder from the channel was thrown overboard and drowned. Held, that the action was, in its very essence, one of tort, and apart from special statutory authority, no such action would lie against the Crown, and that the suppliant, to succeed, must bring her action within subs. (c) of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act before the amendment of 1917, and that the injury complained of must have occurred on a public work, and was the result of some negligence of an officer or servant of the Crown acting within the scope of his duties or employment. Held, further, following Paul v. The King, 38 Can. S.C.R. 126, that the death of the deceased did not occur on a public work within the meaning of the act, and further on the facts, even assuming that the stonelifter was a public work, that the death of suppliant was an unforeseen event which was not the result of any negligence or misconduct of an officer or servant of the Crown.

NEGLIGENCE—"PUBLIC WORK"—TUG.

A steaming tug engaged in serving government dredges employed in improving a ship channel is not a "public work" within the meaning of the Exchequer Court Act (R.S.C. c. 140, s. 20 (c)), to charge the Crown with liability for injuries resulting therefrom. [Paul v. The King, 38 Can. S.C.R. 126, followed; Chamberlin v. The King, 42 Can. S.C.R. 350; Hamburg American Packet Co. v. The King, 39 Can. S.C.R. 621; Olmstead v. The King, 30 D.L.R. 345; Piggott v. The King, 32 D.L.R. 461, referred to.]

Despins v. The King, 32 D.L.R. 448, 16 Can. Ex. 256.

NEGLIGENCE—UNCOVERED BASIN—PUBLIC BUILDING—TRESPASSER.

A pedestrian falling into an uncovered catch-basin constructed by the Crown, on property not owned by it, to protect a post office building against accumulation of surface water, at a place not used for public travel, is a trespasser, and has no redress against the Crown for injuries sustained thereby.

Northrup v. The King, 37 D.L.R. 483, 16 Can. Ex. 361.

LOSS OF GOODS IN CUSTOMS.

The Crown is not liable for the loss of goods while in the custody of customs officers.

Hodgson, Sumner & Co. v. The King, 33 D.L.R. 734, 15 Can. Ex. 487.

LIABILITY FOR NONAPPROVAL OF PLANS REQUIRED BY CHARTER.

Where the Act incorporating a company, for the purpose of constructing and operating a canal, provided that before the work of construction commenced, the plans, etc., were to be approved by the Governor-in-Council, the refusal of the Governor-in-Council to approve plans submitted does not give the company a claim for damages which could be enforced against the Crown.

Lake Champlain & St. Lawrence Ship Canal Co. v. The King, 35 D.L.R. 670, 54 Can. S.C.R. 461, affirming 16 Can. Ex. 125.

BUILDING CONTRACT—SUBCONTRACTOR—ASSIGNMENT—PRIVITY.

Under a building or construction contract the Crown is not bound to pay any claim asserted by a mere subcontractor, although the Crown has consented to the contract being sublet. Where the Crown declines to assent to any assignment, there can be no implied assignment raised upon a consent to sublet, so as to establish privity between the Crown and a third person to whom the original contractor has sublet the execution of the contract.

Pearson v. The King, 32 D.L.R. 574, 16 Can. Ex. 225.

NEGLIGENCE—PUBLIC WORK.

An action in tort does not lie against the Crown, except under special statutory authority, and the suppliant to succeed must bring the facts of his case within the ambit of subs. (c) of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act. (R.S.C. 1906, c. 140.)

Theriault v. The King, 38 D.L.R. 705, 16 Can. Ex. 253.

NEGLIGENCE — PUBLIC WORK — POST OFFICE — ELEVATOR.

An injury sustained in the course of repairing an elevator switch in a post office building, the elevator not being for the use of the public, is one happening on a "public work," and having been occasioned by the negligence of a servant of the Crown acting within the scope of his employment, becomes a claim under s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act, for which the Crown is liable.

Keegan v. The King, 39 D.L.R. 27, 16 Can. Ex. 412.

NEGLIGENCE — PUBLIC WORK — CANAL — FLOODING — RELEASE.

An action does not lie against the Crown for an injury to land from the overflow of a government canal, "occasioned by spring floods and freshets" within the terms of a deed releasing the Crown from liability upon such contingencies; nor does it come under s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 140), subs. (a) and (b), which deals with compensation for a compulsory taking or injurious affection of land, nor under subs. (c) thereof, as an injury on a "public work," the property being situated about 25 miles from the canal route, and the injury not being shewn to have resulted from the negligence of an officer or servant of the Crown acting within the scope of his duties or employment.

Hopwood v. The King, 39 D.L.R. 95, 16 Can. Ex. 419.

INJURY — PRESCRIPTION — PUBLIC WORK — VESSEL ON LAUNCHWAYS — NEGLIGENCE.

The prescription for filing a petition of right is interrupted by the deposit of the petition with the Secretary of State. An injury to an employee of the Crown, while taking a Crown vessel on launchways owned and operated by a company on lands leased from the Crown, is not an injury happening "on a public work" within the meaning of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act, and therefore is not actionable against the Crown; the mere fact of a chain breaking is not prima facie negligence of the Crown.

Courteau v. The King, 41 D.L.R. 415, 17 Can. Ex. 352.

RAILWAYS—OPEN SWITCH—AIR BRAKES—FELLOW SERVANT — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE — PRESCRIPTION — INTERRUPTION.

An injury to a brakeman on a train of the Intercolonial Railway, resulting from the negligence of the employees of the railway in leaving a switch open without warning, is actionable against the Crown under s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act. The suppliant having himself been guilty of contributory negligence in failing to have on the air brakes, as required by the rules, the doctrine of faute commune was applied and the damages assessed accordingly. The doctrine of fellow servant is not in force in the Province of Quebec. The prescription for the filing of a petition of right is interrupted by the deposit of the petition with the Secretary of State.

Dionne v. The King, 18 Can. Ex. 88.

RAILWAYS — YARD — INJURY TO TRACKMAN — SHUNTING — APPLIANCES — SIGNALS—LOOKOUT.

The Crown is not responsible for the death of a trackman run over by an engine carefully backing into a yard of the Intercolonial Railway, not occasioned by the negligence of any officer or servant of the Crown in or about the operation of the railway, within the meaning of s. 20 (1) of the Exchequer Court Act, but brought about by the negligence of the deceased in having failed to keep an especially good look-out for train signals as required by the rules. Section 35 of the Government Railway Act, requiring the stationing of a person in the rear of a train moving reversely, and the rules governing the running of trains, do not apply to shunting engines in a railway yard. The fact that the engine attending to the shunting had no sloping tender and no footboard and railing was immaterial under the circumstances.

Cantin v. The King, 18 Can. Ex. 95.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE—TORTS.

The court will not decree against the Crown specific performance of its contract entered into with its subjects. Observations upon the effect of s. 10 of the Interpretation Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 1, in applying the law of the province, as it exists at the time of action brought in cases of tort. [The King v. Desrosiers, 41 Can. S.C.R. 75, referred to.]

MORTGAGE—RAILWAY BRIDGE—WORK FOR GENERAL ADVANTAGE OF CANADA—SURPLUS LAND.

The F. & St. J. Bridge Co., operating a work for the general advantage of Canada, and to which the general Railway Act applies, obtained under a special Act a loan of $300,000 from the Crown, for which a mortgage was duly created under the provisions of the said Act. Subsequently the company, under the pretence of disposing of surplus land, sold some of the land so mortgaged to one of the directors of the company. Held, that nothing passed under the said conveyance.

Hilyard & Grosvenor v. The King, 16 Can. Ex. 36.

RAILWAYS—INJURY TO BRAKEMAN.

A brakeman on the Intercolonial Railway has no recourse against the Crown for injuries sustained in the course of his employment in the absence of proof of any negligence on behalf of any officer or servant of the Crown giving rise to the accident.

McNeil v. The King, 16 Can. Ex. 355.

ACTIONS AGAINST CROWN MINISTER—NULLITY.

The Sovereign cannot be summoned before the tribunals except in cases and manner provided for by arts. 1011 et seq. C.P.Q. Therefore, the summons to a Minister of the Crown, through an ordinary writ, even in the absence of direct conclusions against him, is illegal and null. The exception in such case can be invoked by a motion against the form or by an "inscription en droit."

Fries Bros. v. Shives Lumber Co., 49 Que. S.C. 97. [See 44 D.L.R. 390, also 58 Can. S.C.R. 142.]

(11-25)—RAILWAYS—LEVEL CROSSING— NEGLIGENCE—LIABILITY.

The condition of a crossing whereby tracks are allowed to project above a highway level in violation of the Government Railways Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 36, s. 16) is negligence which will render the Crown liable for an accident caused by round sticks placed between the rails by an unknown person to assist vehicles across the tracks.

Belanger v. The King, 34 D.L.R. 221, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 343, 25 Que. K.B. 376.

RAILWAYS SMALL CLAIMS ACT—CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION.

The Government Railways Small Claims Act, 1910, c. 26 (Can.), as amended by Acts 1913, c. 20, 1914, c. 9, does not confer jurisdiction to hear and determine claims for damages arising out of the construction of a railway, but merely those "arising out of operation," although the damages resulting from the construction were caused during the operation of the railway.

Lewis v. General Manager of Government Rys., 33 D.L.R. 20, 50 N.S.R. 326.
Can. Dig.—47.

GOVERNMENTAL RAILWAYS.

Where an engine driver of a train on a Government railway in the manner of moving his train at a station transgressed the regulations of the railway, and a passenger was injured in alighting from the train by reason of the wrongful conduct of the engine driver, a case of negligence was established for which the Crown was liable under the provisions of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act, R.S. 1906, c. 140. (2) The rule as to the preponderance of affirmative evidence over evidence of a merely negative character as laid down in Lefebvre v. Beaudoin, 28 Can. S.C.R. 89, applied.

Hamilton v. The King, 14 Can. Ex. 1.

LIABILITY—NEGLECTANCE ON GOVERNMENT RAILWAY.

To render the Crown liable upon a petition of right for acts of negligence of servants of the Crown in the operation of a government railway within the provisions of the Exchequer Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 140, s. 20 (1) (amendment of 1910), such negligent acts must be the proximate, determining and decisive cause of the injury.

Charlton v. The King, 8 D.L.R. 911, 14 Can. Ex. 41.

LIABILITY OF—MISPAYMENT OF MONEY BY TREASURER—RIGHT OF TRUE PAYEE TO DECLARATION.

Where, after the appointment of a receiver for and the dissolution of a partnership, a provincial treasurer made payments of money to one of the partners on behalf of a contractor who was building a railway under a contract with the province; the former is entitled to an action in which the provincial treasurer is joined as a defendant in his official capacity, to a declaration that the money was paid by the provincial government in its own wrong, and that the contractor should be reimbursed therefore, although he cannot recover a judgment against the Crown in such action. [Dyson v. Attorney-General, [1911] 1 K.B. 419, and Burghes v. Attorney-General, [1912] 81 L.J. 195, followed.]

Irvine v. Hervey, 13 D.L.R. 868, 47 N.S.R. 310, 13 E.L.R. 297.

The Crown in its operation of the Intercolonial Railway is not a common carrier, and apart from its statutory duties is not subject to the duties imposed by the common law upon common carriers. [The Queen v. McLeod, 8 Can. S.C.R. 1; The Queen v. McFarland, 7 Can. S.C.R. 216, referred to.]

CURTESY.TENANCY BY THE CURTESY—STATUTES—DEED.

Section 22 of c. 97, R.S.B.C. 1897, is repealed by subs. 5 of s. 5 of that statute, as enacted by c. 40 of the B.C. statute of 1898, first schedule; the two provisions are repugnant. Under the later enactment, a husband entitled, upon the death of his wife, to tenancy by the curtesy in her lands, takes one-third for his life; and this was the estate which the defendants acquired by a conveyance from a husband, in the circumstances of the case.

CUSTOMS.

(§ I—5)—PRISON-MADE GOODS.

Item 1206, Schedule C, of the Customs tariff (Can. Stat. 1907, c. 11), prohibiting the importation of "Goods manufactured in whole or in part by prison labour," applies to goods similar in character to the prison-made goods, if sought to be imported by one having at any time a contract to purchase prison-made goods.

Greendyke Co. v. The King, 35 D.L.R. 404, 16 Can. Ex. 465.

(§ I—10)—CUSTOMS AND USAGES OF A GRAIN EXCHANGE.

In option deals by a customer on a stock exchange, which, under its customs and usages employs a clearing association, between which and the customer's broker (as nominal principal) the contract stands, such customs and usages are binding on the customer unless unreasonable and beyond his knowledge. In purchases and sales of options on a grain exchange employing a clearing-house association, the usage under which the clearing-house becomes, in the ordinary course, the opposite party in each contract, is reasonable. [Murphy v. Butler, 18 Man. L.R. 111, in appeal sub nom. Butler v. Murphy, 41 Can. S.C.R. 618, specially referred to.]

Richardson v. Beamish, 13 D.L.R. 400, 23 Man. L.R. 306, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 487, 24 W.L.R. 514, 4 W.W.R. 815.

(§ I—13)—RIGHT TO PUT MAKER'S NAME ON SIGN BOARD.

Pursuant to a custom admitted by the parties, the maker of a sign board has the right to make himself known by putting his name upon the board to indicate that he is the painter. There is no custom which permits a man who repairs a sign board to efface the name of the person who originally made it and substitute his own, even with the consent of the owner. Such original maker has an interest to see that use of his work is not made to advertise another business house, and it is acting in a disloyal manner for one to put his name upon an electric sign made by another person.

(§ I A—1)—SALE OF LAND—DELAY—DELIVERY — DAMAGES SUBSEQUENT TO THE BRINGING OF THE ACTION—C.C. s. 1073.

In France the doctrines of jurisprudence admit that the courts can allow future damages, and in a final manner, for delay in the execution of an obligation, on the condition that these damages have no punitive or coercive character. But it is doubtful if this doctrine is compatible with our system of procedure. Be that as it may, when once the defendant has put in a defence on the quantum of future and eventual damages, instead of denying the right to recover them, and the evidence permits the exact amount to be determined, the court has the power to allow them.

Langelier v. Cloutier, 55 Que. S.C. 119.
REMOVENESS OF DAMAGE—CROPS DAMAGED BY FIRE AND ANIMALS AFTER FAILURE TO THRESH.

Loss of crop subsequently damaged by fire and animals held too remote as damage for breach of agreement to thresh same.

Hill v. Howie, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 392.

(§ I A—3)—NOMINAL DAMAGES — ENCROACHMENT AND TRESPASS.

The right of action of a riparian owner for an authorized encroachment on his lands by the increasing of the level of a river for the purpose of facilitating the driving of saw logs and for trespass on his lands in connection with the driving operations, will be maintained against the lumber company although the quantum of damages is merely nominal.

Treson v. Holt Timber Co., 11 D.L.R. 45, 4 O.W.N. 1106, 24 O.W.R. 133.

NOMINAL DAMAGES—FAILURE TO PROVE SUBSTANTIAL DAMAGES.

Nominal damages only will be awarded for breach of a contract to transfer and deliver within a limited period, shares in a company thereafter to be organized and which was never organized, if no evidence is adduced to prove what the value of the shares would be if the organization were completed, having regard to issues of bonds or of preferred stock taking priority over the common stock in question.

Johnson v. Roche, 17 D.L.R. 74, 14 E.L.R. 374.

NOMINAL DAMAGES—FAILURE TO INSTALL DENTIST'S SIGN.

For every breach of contract which necessarily causes damage, the party breaking his contract can be condemned in nominal damages to be fixed by the court; this warrants a judgment in favour of a dentist for failure of an electric company to instal and light an electric sign advertising his business, although special damage could not be proved.

Creed v. McCammon, 17 O.W.N. 288.

(§ I A—3a)—SUBSTANTIAL DAMAGES, DIFFICULTY IN ASSESSING — DELIBERATE WRONGFUL ACT—EFFECT.

The law presumes damage where there is an invasion of a legal right; and a difficulty in determining with precision the amount of damage will not disentitle a plaintiff to substantial damages where the wrongful act of defendant was deliberate, persistent and highhanded, and productive of substantial inconvenience to the plaintiff. [Rainy River Nav. Co. v. Ont. & Minnesota Power Co., 12 D.L.R. 611, 4 O.W.N. 1591, followed; Chaplin v. Hicks, [1911] 2 K.B. 786, and Bell v. Midland R. Co., 10 C.B.N.S. 287, applied.]

Rainy River Navigation Co. v. Watrous Island Boom Co., 6 O.W.N. 537, reversing 12 D.L.R. 580, 4 O.W.N. 1593.

SUBSTANTIAL DAMAGES—DIFFICULTY IN ASSESSING.

Substantial damages may be awarded in spite of the fact that some speculation and uncertainty is necessarily involved in the assessment thereof. [Chaplin v. Hicks, [1911] 2 K.B. 786, followed.]

Wood v. Grand Valley R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 428, 26 O.L.R. 441, 22 O.W.R. 269. [Varied, 4 O.W.N. 556.]

(§ I A—4)—DAMAGES IN LIEU OF INJUNCTION—INJURY NOT COMMITTED.

Where an injury has not been actually committed, but is threatened, it is still a matter of doubt whether the court which might grant an injunction to restrain the threatened injury has any jurisdiction to award damages in lieu of an injunction which would have been preventive only and not mandatory. [Martin v. Price, [1894] 1 Ch. 276, considered.]

(§ II A—5)—TRESPASS TO LAND.

Trespass to land, without malice and unaccompanied by any violence or aggravation, does not entitle the injured person to claim exemplary or punitive damages.

Bell v. Foley Bros., 34 D.L.R. 391, 5 N.S.R. 1.

(§ II A—6)—TORTS OR NEGLIGENCE GENERALLY.

Punitive damages will not be awarded a tenant for an eviction by his lessor from demised premises, where all loss might have been avoided if the tenant had acted diligently.

(§ III A-40)—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION ON CONTRACTS GENERALLY.

Damages that may be recovered by an injured party, are only those which have been or might have been foreseen when the obligation is contracted, provided the breach is not tainted with fraud.

Belanger v. St. Louis, 8 D.L.R. 601.

BREACH OF CONTRACT—FAILURE TO INSTALL ELEVATOR ON TIME—COST OF CARRYING FREIGHT BY HAND—CONTRACTOR'S KNOWLEDGE OF INTENDED USE.

The cost of conveying merchandise by hand, or for hiring a hoist therefor, cannot be recovered as damages for the delay in installing an elevator within the agreed time, where the contractor was not aware that the elevator was intended for uses other than for carriage of passengers.

MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—ON CONTRACTS GENERALLY—CONTEMPLATION OF PARTIES.

The measure of damages for breach of contract where no special circumstances were communicated or known to the defaulting party which would enhance the loss ordinarily resulting from the breach, is the amount of injury which would arise generally, that is such as would arise according to the usual course of things from such breach itself or such as may reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of both parties at the time they made the contract as the probable result of the breach of it. [Hadley v. Baxendale, 23 L.J. Ex. 179, applied.]

Walton v. Ferguson, 19 D.L.R. 816, 29 W.L.R. 949, 7 W.W.R. 611. [See also 16 D.L.R. 533.]

SALE OF BEVERAGES FOR RESALE—WARRANTY AS NONINTOXICATING—FINE ON RESALE UNDER LIQUOR LAW.

Where a wholesale bottler and seller of table waters sells a beverage termed a non-intoxicating ale to a restaurant keeper in a local option town with warranty that it is not within the inhibition of the Liquor License Act (Ont.), a loss sustained by the buyer by his conviction and fine for infraction of the act in keeping the commodity for sale in his business is within the measure of damages recoverable as a natural consequence of the breach of warranty, but reimbursement of a similar fine imposed on a subpurchaser buying a quantity for resale is too remote as a basis for damages where such resale was not within the contemplation of the original parties.

Stephenson v. Sanitaris, 16 D.L.R. 695, 30 O.L.R. 60.

CONTRACT—INSURANCE AGENT—TRANSFER OF PROPERTY—LIABILITY FOR PREMIUMS GUARANTEED.

Building owners who contract for value with a fire insurance agent that he shall be entitled for 5 years to place the insurance on the building in companies he represents, are liable to him for the insurance premiums on policies renewed in the regular course, although in the meantime the property has been transferred to a trust company acting in the interests of the transferors; and, semble, the owners would have been bound to protect the insurance agent by making it a term of any sale of the property that the agent should have the insurance renewals for the period which they had guaranteed.

Kerr v. Saskatchewan Realty, 20 D.L.R. 925, 28 W.L.R. 561, 6 W.W.R. 1094.

BREACH—NONDELIVERY.

The measure of damages for non-delivery of goods is the difference between the contract price and the full price in open market, at the date of contract, but damages for reduced output and disorganization of business on account of such non-delivery are too remote to be considered.

Dom. Textile Co. v. Diamond Whiteheat Co., 25 D.L.R. 241, 24 Que. K.B. 489.

SALE OF GASOLINE ENGINE.—FRAUD.

Although the buyer of a gasoline engine may have lost his right to rescind by keeping the engine after knowledge of the fraud of the seller's agent in misrepresenting the engine's capacity, he retains his right to counterclaim against the seller suing for the price, in respect of the loss he (the buyer) had sustained by relying upon the agent's statements; the measure of damages is the difference in price between the engine he got and an engine such as was represented.

Ont. Wind Engine v. Bunn, 21 D.L.R. 420, 8 S.L.R. 58, 8 W.W.R. 450, 31 W.L.R. 20.

LOSS TO BUSINESS.—REMOVEDNESS.

Damages for nonperformance of the contract should comprise only what follows immediately and directly from such nonperformance; they cannot extend to the loss of the advantages which might result to the industrial establishment from the execution of a public enterprise.

Browning v. Masson Co., 24 Que. K.B. 389. [Reversed, 27 D.L.R. 360, 52 Can. S. C.R. 379.]

BREACH OF THRESHING AGREEMENT.

The measure of damages for a breach of contract to thresh wheat which causes an inferior grade is not the difference in the price of the grades at the time the wheat would have been sold except for the breach, but the difference in the price actually obtained for the inferior grade, and the price which the wheat would have brought if the breach had not occurred; the injured party is only entitled to be placed in the same position as if the breach had not occurred.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO SINK WELL.—COMPANY.—LIABILITY.

Certain officers of the defendant, a joint stock company, employed the plaintiff on behalf of the company to sink a well on terms that if water were obtained at a certain maximum or a lesser depth his remuneration would be higher than if no water were obtained. The plaintiff entered upon his employment and proceeded to a certain depth when, owing to the default of the defendant, he was compelled to discontinue. Held, that as the sinking of the well was within the powers of the defendant company, and as its articles of association did not put it out of the power of the officers in question to enter into such a contract, the contract was binding upon the defendant. That the damages should be assessed upon the assumption that water would have been obtained at, but not before, the specified maximum depth.

McGee v. Rosetown Elec. Light & Power Co., 11 S.L.R. 68, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 552.

BUILDING CONTRACT — BREACH — ENCAVATION OF TUNNEL.

In an action by a contractor who was wrongfully prevented by the other party to the contract from completing the excavation of a tunnel, the work being completed by the other party, it was held the contractor was entitled to the difference between the amount he would have received had he completed the contract and the amount it would have cost him to complete. On the assessment of damages the defendants submitted as evidence of what it would have cost the plaintiff to complete the work, the actual cost incurred by them in so completing. Held, that it was not the actual cost incurred by the defendants in so completing the work, but the amount the plaintiffs would have expended in carrying out the work which was the proper basis from which to ascertain the difference between the contract price and the cost of the work.

Mellwee v. Foley, 24 B.C.R. 532, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 222, referred back for further enquiry by Privy Council, 44 D.L.R. 5.

QUANTUM—SALES OF SHARES.—COMPANY'S REFUSAL TO PERMIT TRANSFER.

The Coalinga Syndicate was composed of three directors of the company and the wife of one of them. The Syndicate owned a fund of 250,000 shares of $1 each in the company out of which 10,000 shares were issued to plaintiff in consideration of his agreeing to become a director, and returned the 10,000 to Buck, one of the Syndicate, who handed him 2,000 shares back in consideration of services. Plaintiff subsequently had a purchaser for 1,000 of these shares. The company then demanded the 2,000 back and instructed their agents, The Trusts & Guarantee Co., not to register the transfer of any of the 2,000 shares on the ground that he had obtained them by fraud, i.e., on the representation that he would become a director of the company. The company alleged that the shares belonged to the Coalinga Syndicate. Action for a declaration as to the ownership of the shares and for damages:—Held, on the evidence that the shares were the property of plaintiff:—Held, that he was entitled to damages against the company for its refusal to permit the transfer to the extent of $1,350, being the difference between the purchase price of the sale thus blocked and the price of the shares at the date of the action:—Held, that it was immaterial that there was no binding contract between plaintiff and purchaser. Where added defendants actively defended an action costs were given against them as well as against the defendant.

Wolverton v. Black Diamond Oil Fields, and the Coalinga Syndicate, 30 W.L.R. 142.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO REPAIR FARM MA-CHINERY.

The measure of damages for breach of a contract to repair farming machinery is, with respect to the owner's inability to use it on his own land, the extra cost he was put to in having done by others or with another engine or otherwise the work which he would have done with the farming machinery in question had the contract been performed; when no work is done on his own land at all no special damages are recoverable in respect thereto. [Walton v. Ferguson, 19 D.L.R. 816, followed.] Where, however, as a result of the breach of such a contract to repair the owner is unable to perform a contract to use the machinery on another's land the loss of the profit he would have made on such contract is recoverable. The wages which the owner would have earned or saved by acting as his own engineer cannot, however, be included in part of such loss.

Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Co. v. Jensen (Alta.), [1917] 2 W.W.R. 732.

ANIMALS—BREEDING.

Breach of a contract to breed mares to a stallion is not a ground for damages, at least in the absence of evidence upon which such damages may be estimated with reasonable certainty.

Sinclair v. Walker, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 321.

(III A—42a)—BUILDING CONTRACT.

Where a tender for the construction of work accompanied by plans and specifications has been accepted and a contract made accordingly, but the contract is not carried out through the fault of the party calling for tenders, the contractor is entitled to recover the value of the plans and specifications, especially when the opposite party has retained them and made no offer to return them.

Pontres v. Siegwart v. Deschambault, 5 D.L.R. 395, 41 Que. S.C. 453.

CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING CONTRACTS —DELAY IN SUPPLYING MATERIALS TO CONTRACTOR.

If a municipal corporation causes the work to be done by a contractor, under a contract for an improvement, to be more expensive than it otherwise would have been under the terms of the original contract, it is liable to him, in the absence of stipulations to the contrary, for the increased cost.

MacDougall v. Penticton, 16 D.L.R. 436, 20 B.C.R. 401, 6 W.W.R. 478, 27 W.L.R. 713.

BUILDING CONTRACT—FAULTY CONSTRUCTION OF SILO—LOSS OF CROP GROWN FOR STORAGE—LIABILITY OF CONTRACTOR.

A contractor who builds a silo in so faulty a manner as to render it useless, is answerable for the loss sustained by the owner in not being able to use it for storing a crop of corn which it was in the contemplation of both parties that the silo should protect when harvested, regard being had to the means whereby the loss was or could have been minimized by the owner.

Rice v. Sockett, 12 D.L.R. 596, 4 O.W.N. 1570, 24 O.W.R. 828.

One for whom a building is constructed by a contractor, cannot recover damages for delay in completing it within the time limited by the contract, where the delay was due to changes for extra work ordered by the owner, as, under such circumstances, the contractor is required only to complete the building within a reasonable time. Money paid by a school district for teachers' salaries for the time they were unable to teach, because of the noncompletion of a schoolhouse within the time stipulated in the contract for its erection, cannot be recovered by the district, as nonliquidated damages for delay in the completion of the building, where, at the time the teachers were engaged, the school officers knew that the building would not be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the school term.

CONTRACT—MUNICIPALITY—FAULTY PLANS —INSPECTION BY ENGINEER—FAULTY
CONSTRUCTION—USURP. OF PROF.

Where the plans furnished by a municipality for certain works done under contract were faulty, and the structure was built by the contractor under them, subject to an inspection of his work and materials by the municipal engineer made, by the contract, a referee whose decision was binding on both parties, the onus is upon the municipality to satisfy the court that the structure fell down through the contractor's fault and not because of the faulty design shown on the plans, and should furnish the engineer's certificate to that effect on counterclaiming for damages.

in default to pay a liquidated amount as damages for each day's delay, will be held liable under the penal clause for this amount, even although the owner has suffered no prejudice on account of the delay, and has given supplementary contracts, which have caused the work to be delayed as the contractor, although free to accept such supplementary contracts was not bound to do so. [McDonald v. Hutchins, 12 Que. K.B. 499, followed.]

Dampousse v. Valiquette, 24 D.L.R. 219, 24 Que. K.B. 62.

DELAY OF PERFORMING BUILDING CONTRACT—WAGES.

A delay in the performance of a building contract does not involve a liability for wages paid to men engaged in the installation of the plant, who have come to the buildings for that purpose before the buildings were ready for them.

Canada Foundry Co. v. Edmonton Portland Cement Co., 25 D.L.R. 683, 9 W.W.R. 395, 32 W.L.R. 684. [Affirmed in 32 D.L.R. 114, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 382.]

BREACH OF DRILLING CONTRACT—COUNTER-CLAIM.

The proper measure of damages, in case of an abandonment of drilling operations in breach of a contract, is the cost of completing the contract over and above the contract price; but where the plaintiff fails to complete the contract as required by the terms thereof, and adduces no evidence as to the probable cost of completion, and of his intention to complete, no damage is proven, to form any proper basis to reckon compensation for the breach.

BREACH OF CONTRACT FOR TUNNEL CONSTRUCTION.

In the event of a contractor treating a contract for the construction of a tunnel as broken, and suing at once for the breach of it, he will be entitled to such damages as would have arisen from the nonperformance of the contract at the appointed time, taking into consideration what the plaintiff has done, or had the means of doing, and, as a prudent man, ought in reason to have done, whereby his loss has been, or would have been, diminished.

Foley v. McIlwee, 27 D.L.R. 196, 33 W.L.R. 928, 10 W.W.R. 5, affirming 22 B.C.R. 38, 33 W.L.R. 278. [See P.C. decision No. 2 on appeal from 24 B.C.R. 532, 44 D.L.R. 5.]

HIRE OF WORK—RESPONSIBILITY OF CONTRACTOR—CEMENT SOLAGE—DRAIN CANALS—WORK OF THE MUNICIPALITY—C.C. ART. 1688.

A contractor who builds a cement "solage" according to technical rules of the art is not responsible for damages which result from an act of the municipal employees, who working at the request of the owner, in joining the drain canal from the street to the house in order to drain the cellar drilled the solage, with the result that the cement, not being sufficiently dried, was washed away by the water and seriously damaged.

Lacroix v. Rolland, 25 Rev. Leg. 236.

BUILDING CONTRACT—MITIGATION.

When a party to a building contract is liable in damages for the nonperformance of his obligations, the other party is bound to act so as to diminish these damages as far as possible. When the work of construction is stopped indefinitely by order of the owner, and the contractor proposes to demand the cancellation of his contract on account of such suspension, he should notify his subcontractors not to continue the work so as to diminish the damages which might result.

Tessier v. Notre Dame-du-Perpetual-Se-cours, 32 Que. S.C. 510.

HIRE OF WORK—CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT—EVIDENCE—C.C., ARTS. 1073, 1203, 1691.

Where a judgment, in granting damages, recited that the evidence was vague, indefinite and lacked precision as to detail, and did not give sufficient information to enable the court to determine, with any fair degree of certitude, the constituent elements of the loss claimed, and that the profits which the plaintiff might have made were problematical. Such judgment is founded on a wrong principle. The amount of the damages to be granted must be ascertained by the evidence.

Mills v. Smith, 28 Que. K.B. 437.

CONTRACT—BUILDING OF HOUSES—PROVISION FOR TERMINATION UPON NOTICE—RIGHT EXERCISED IN GOOD FAITH AND ON REASONABLE GROUNDS—ESTOPPEL—RES JUDICATA—CLAIM WHICH MIGHT AND SHOULD HAVE BEEN ASSERTED IN FORMER ACTION.

Boyer Bros. v. Doran & Devlin, 16 O.W.N. 373.

HIRE OF WORK—RESPONSIBILITY OF CONTRACTOR—CEMENT SOLAGE—DRAIN CANALS—WORK OF THE MUNICIPALITY—C.C. ART. 1688.

The contractor who has built a cement solage according to rules of the art is not responsible for damages which result from the fact that, at the request of the owner, the town employees, in hooping the drain canal from the street to the house have pierced the solage to drain the cellar and that the cement not being still sufficiently dried was washed away by the water and seriously damaged.

Lacroix v. Rolland, 25 Rev. Leg. 236.

(§ III A—44)—TO CONSTRUCT RAILROAD OR SIDETRACK.

Where a railway company was unable to definitely award the plaintiff a contract for constructing a portion of its road, but agreed with him, that in order to keep his teams employed during the winter, he might put in supplies necessary for the construction of so much road as he could complete during the working portion of the following summer, and that the company would guarantee him, in the event of its being unable to award such contract, the cost of such supplies, together with 10 per cent advance thereon, the company, upon not being able to award the plaintiff such contract, is liable to him for such advance upon the total cost of the supplies, and also for the loss sustained by him on a sale thereof, after due notice to the company.

FAILURE TO COMPLETE BRANCH LINE — LIABILITY TO BOND PURCHASERS.

Substantial damages, in an amount determinable from the evidence as to the loss sustained, may be awarded to purchasers of railway bonds, for the breach of an agreement by a railway company to build a branch line which, if completed, would secure their township better freight facilities, and on the strength of which agreement the bonds were purchased.

Wood v. Grand Valley R. Co., 22 D.L.R. 614, 51 Can. S.C.R. 283, affirming 16 D.L.R. 361, 30 O.L.R. 44.

(§ III A—45)—ADVERTISING CONTRACTS.

Where a written contract between the plaintiffs and defendants, by which the former were to place the latter's advertising, contained nothing as to the time it was to run, though there was a verbal contract that it should continue for a year, was unjustifiably cancelled by the defendants, the plaintiffs are not entitled to the commission which would have been earned on a year's business, but may recover a reasonable allowance for the services rendered by them.

McConnell v. Vanderhoff, 2 D.L.R. 841, 3 O.W.N. 800, 21 O.W.R. 653.

While the policy of the law is against making actionable certain classes of slight omissions, yet where a publishing firm contracts to publish, in a city directory issued by it from year to year, the name and calling and office address of a business man in the city, the publishing firm will be answerable in damages for the omission, although it was entirely unintentional and furthermore was against the firm's own general business interests, where the omission by its very nature must have caused loss to the other party to the contract, and that without proof of specific damages.

Archambault v. Lovell, 8 D.L.R. 611, 42 Que. S.C. 344.

(§ III A—47)—SUPPLY OF GAS PREVENTED BY PURCHASER.

The supply of gas at an agreed pressure, which is prevented by the wrongful placing and use of a regulator by the purchaser, entitles the vendor to be compensated for the amount he would have received but for such interference. [Mackay v. Dick, 6 App. Cas. 251; Burchell v. Gowrie Collieries, [1910] A.C. 614; Wilson v. Northampton R. Co., 9 Ch. App. 279, applied.]

Kohler v. Thorold Natural Gas Co., 27 D.L.R. 319, 52 Can. S.C.R. 514, reversing 16 D.L.R. 862. [Leave to appeal to P.C. refused, 52 Can. S.C.R. memo.]

(§ III A—51)—BY AGENT.

The damages recoverable for the breach of an agreement by which an exclusive right of sale of property was given for 30 days, cannot be based upon the conjecture that the agent would have made a sale within that time; and the fact that he had money of a client in his hands and that he might have induced him to purchase the property, will not change the rule.

Cadwell v. Stephenson, 3 D.L.R. 759, 5 S.L.R. 308, 21 W.L.R. 199, 2 W.W.R. 291.

BREACH OF CONTRACT — EXCLUSIVE SALES AGENCY—MEASURE.

Nominal damages only can be recovered for the breach of an agreement for the exclusive sale of automobiles within a county, which did not entitle the agent to commissions on sales made by his principal, where the former in no way promoted the sales made by the principal; and it was not shown that the agent would have made such sales if the defendant had not done so. [Roberts v. Minneapolis Threshing Machine Co., 8 South Dakota 579, followed.]

Cutty v. E.M.F. Co. of Canada, 12 D.L.R. 613, 28 O.L.R. 427.

WRONGFUL CLOSING OF MARGINS — STOCK-BROKER.

Damages for the wrongful closing out of a margin account with grain brokers need not be fixed at the highest or "peak" price on exchange at which the plaintiff on a bought order might have sold during the period for which the transaction should have run.

Nelson v. Baird, 22 D.L.R. 132, 25 Man. L.R. 244, 8 W.W.R. 144, 30 W.L.R. 822.

MEASURE OF DAMAGES—ON CONTRACTS BY AGENTS—REAL ESTATE BROKER—WARRANTY OF FUTURE SALES.

Under an exclusive agency contract for the subdividing and sale, by a real estate agent, of a tract of suburban land, under which the agent stipulates to sell quarterly at a fixed price, a fixed number of lots, the principal may recover damages measured by the agreed price and terms provided the agent's sales fall short of the stipulated minimum, regard being had to the probable number of lapsations which would have occurred had sales actually been made up to the number contemplated by the contract.

AGENT ISSUING POLICY UNDER UNAUTHORIZED RATE—LIABILITY FOR LOSS.

In an action by an insurance company against its agent for issuing a policy under an unauthorized rate, the proper measure of damages is the loss the company is obliged to pay and not the difference between the premiums at which the policy was issued and the rate at which the risk would have been accepted.

Globe & Rutgers Fire Ins. Co. v. Wetmore, 23 D.L.R. 33, 49 N.S.R. 55.

(§ III A—55)—SALE—BONDS.

Where the seller of bonds does not deliver them as agreed, the buyer who had resold them to a third party, and is threatened with legal proceedings, is entitled to claim, from the seller, the difference between the contract price and the market price of the bonds at the date of the breach.

Thompson v. Provincial Trust Co., 54 Que. S.C. 218.

(§ III A—60)—SALE OF LAND—AGENT'S AUTHORITY.

A memorandum of agreement for the sale of land, drawn up and executed in Alberta will, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be presumed to refer to land in that province, although the number of the meridian is omitted from the description, especially where the vendor owns lands which answer the description. A clause in the memorandum that, "In the event of your disposing of the said land at the price above stated, I agree to pay you 81 per acre commission," is sufficient consideration. The agent must not go beyond the authority given him, but the vendor must not unreasonably entirely refuse to negotiate.

McIntyre v. Law, 40 D.L.R. 231, 13 A.L.R. 273, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 358.

SALE OF LANDS—DEFECT IN TITLE.

In the absence of fraud, damages are not recoverable where the contract for sale of lands goes off for defect in title which the vendor cannot remove.

Lobel v. Williams, 22 D.L.R. 127, 25 Man. L.R. 161, 7 W.W.R. 1042, 30 W.L.R. 332.

AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—REFUSAL TO EXECUTE—DAMAGES—FORMAL DEMAND—ACTUAL TENDER—QUE. C.C. 1067, 1162.

Where one party to an agreement for sale of land refuses to execute his contract, if the other party asks for its execution he ought to have previously made a formal demand and an actual tender, but if he asks only damages it is not necessary for him to make either a formal demand or an actual tender.

Versailles v. Paquin, 23 Que. K.B. 432.

ARBITRATION—VALUATION OF HOTEL PROPERTY—"OPEN MARKET"—CONCLUSIVENESS OF FINDINGS.

C. P. R. Co. v. Windebank (Can.), [1917] 3 W.W.R. 99, reversing 31 D.L.R. 568,

(§ III A—61)—WARRANTY OF AUTHORITY—BREACH OF—PERSONAL LIABILITY OF AGENT—PURCHASER IN GOOD FAITH.

If a person purporting to make a contract as agent for another has in fact no such authority, he renders himself personally liable to one who contracts with him in good faith in reliance upon the warranty of authority, and who by so contracting has suffered loss in consequence of the absence of authority. [Oliver v. Bank of England, [1902] 1 Ch. 419 applied.]

Duncan v. Beck, 20 D.L.R. 682, 7 S.L.R. 163, 28 W.L.R. 571, 6 W.W.R. 1149.

(§ III A—62)—BREACH OF CONTRACT TO CONVEY.

A vendor who, after making a valid contract for the sale of land and receiving part payment, sells the land to a third person, is liable to the original vendee for the amount paid on account with interest, and in addition thereto damages for the breach of the contract.

Smart v. McIntosh, 8 D.L.R. 871, 22 W.L.R. 883, 3 W.W.R. 609.

MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—BREACH OF CONTRACT TO PURCHASE LANDS.

In awarding damages on a breach of contract to purchase realty, the quantum is the difference between the contract price and the value of the land at the time of the breach.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO SELL LAND.

For breach of a contract to sell land, a purchaser is not entitled to damages based upon the difference between the contract price and the value at the time of the breach, but the damages are limited to the return of the purchase money, if any, and interest and expenses to which he has been put in connection with the making of the contract or incurred upon the strength of it, unless he has been guilty of fraud or like improper conduct, or unless having it in his power to obtain title, he does not do his best to do so; he is obliged to take and incur all reasonable trouble and expense in that behalf, but is not obliged to purchase any outstanding interest at an outlay of any substantial sum.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO SELL LAND—OUTSTANDING TAX LIENS—LOSS OF BARGAIN.

Where the vendor of land held under a contract of purchase from another at a tax sale allowed the tax title to lapse by failure to register the transfer within 2 months from the order confirming the tax sale, as required by the Land Titles Act, Alta., 1906, c. 24, s. 60, the right of the purchaser will not, in the absence of any stipulation to the contrary, extend to the recovery of substantial damages for the loss of the bargain, but will be limited to the recovery of the amount he has paid and interest and his costs and expenses in connection with the agreement. [Bain v. Fothergill, L.R. 7 H.L. 158, applied.]

Maitland v. Matthews, 23 D.L.R. 19, 8 A.L.R. 269, 8 W.W.R. 274, 31 W.L.R. 163. BREACH OF CONTRACT TO CONVEY—LOSS OF PROFITS.

The inability of a vendor to perform a contract for the sale of land because of the objections by one who conveyed the land as security for a debt entitles the purchaser to a refund of the money paid thereon, but not to any loss of profit by reason of the increase of value since the purchase.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO CONVEY—OPTION BY HUSBAND ON WIFE'S PROPERTY—NOMINAL DAMAGES.

An option to purchase inserted in a lease executed by the husband on land owned by the wife, which cannot be carried out because of the wife's disapproval, entitles the lessee, who had knowledge of the wife's ownership, to nominal damages as against the husband only, and not the ordinary damages such as the expense incurred in searching the title or for loss of profit on a resale.

McCune v. Good, 23 D.L.R. 662, 34 O.L.R. 51.

EXPENSES OF RE-SALE OF LAND.

Where vendor and purchaser of property have come to an agreement that the vendor shall resell the property on the purchaser's account, the rights of the parties to be adjusted on the basis of the first agreement, the vendor is entitled upon such resale, in addition to his loss in price, to claim the expenses of the resale, insurance, tax and mortgage interest adjustments, and a proper allowance for interim interest on the unpaid purchase money over the amount of the mortgages.

Evans v. Farah, 31 D.L.R. 470, 37 O.L.R. 70.

AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND—PREVIOUS OPTION TO THIRD PARTY—EXERCISED BY HIM—EFFECT OF DOWER ACT, 7 GEO. V. (ALTA.) 1917, c. 14—NO CONSENT OF WIFE—DAMAGES.

Actual damages will be awarded to a purchaser of land under an agreement for purchase who is unable to complete his purchase because of the owner having given a previous option to a third party which he might have cancelled by notice, but did not do so, the option being exercised by the party holding it. The wife of the owner did not consent to the agreement with the purchaser, but as the land in question was not the "residence" or "homestead" of the owner, the Dower Act, 7 Geo. V. Alta., 1917, c. 14, had no application. [Bain v. Fothergill, 31 L.T. 387, distinguished.]

Morrow v. Langton, 49 D.L.R. 513, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 897.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO CONVEY LAND.

The measure of damages for breach of contract to convey land is the difference between the price agreed on and the actual value of the land at the time when the conveyance should have been made.

LESSEE'S OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND—INABILITY TO MAKE TITLE.

Where under a lease the lessee is given an option to purchase the land in fee at the end of the term, and the lessor in good faith and without fault is unable to give title to the fee by reason of having only a life estate in the property, the lessee, in an action for specific performance of the option, is entitled only to an abatement in the purchase price based upon the value of the interest in the lands which could be conveyed, but not for money expended on improvements or any other kind of damages resulting from the breach. [Bain v. Fothergill, L.R. 7 H.L. 158, applied; Day v. Singleton, [1899] 2 Ch. 320, distinguished; Ontario Asphalt Block Co. v. Montreuil, 27 D.L.R. 514, 52 Can. S.C.R. 541, affirming 15 D.L.R. 703, 19 D.L.R. 518, 29 O.L.R. 534, 32 O.L.R. 243, which varied 12 D.L.R. 223, 29 O.L.R. 534. [Leave to appeal to P.C. refused, 52 Can. S.C.R. memo.]

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO CONVEY—MUTUAL MISTAKE—LARGE DEFICIENCY IN QUANTITY.

Jackson v. Irwin (No. 2), 12 D.L.R. 573, reversing 11 D.L.R. 188, 18 B.C.R. 225.

BREACH OF CONTRACT TO PURCHASE.

The damages which a vendor can claim from a purchaser who refuses to execute the sale, is the difference between what the plaintiff could get for the property on the market at the time when the purchaser refused to buy, and the sum which he offered to give; and not the difference between what the vendor paid for the property and the actual price of sale.

Canadian European Land Co. v. Lalanne, 49 Que. S.C. 37.

There is no understanding that a contract for the sale of real estate may fail because the vendor does not choose to go to the trouble or expense of obtaining title, and in such case the usual rule as to the measure of damages does not apply. [See Bain v. Fothergill, 7 H.L. 158.] And if the purchaser has entered into an agreement to resell he may recover the loss of profit on such resale and the reasonable costs of defending his purchaser's action for rescission. [Maitland v. Matthews, 23 D.L.R. 19, and Lobel v. Williams, 22 D.L.R. 127, approved.]

recover damages in respect of the loss of time of men employed by him and the extra cost of attempting to heat the leased premises, and also damages for the general loss and inconvenience resulting from the breach.

Brymer v. Thompson, 23 D.L.R. 840, 34 O.L.R. 194. [Affirmed in 25 D.L.R. 831, 34 O.L.R. 543.]

BREACH OF COVENANTS.

Where a conveyance of land is made in part consideration for the support for life of the grantor by the grantee at the latter's place of residence, and the grantee, by his conduct, makes it impossible for the parties to live in the same house, the grantor is entitled to such damages as will compensate him once for all, that is for the future as well as for the past, for the breach of the contract. [Schell v. Plumb, 55 N.Y. 292; Amos v. Oakley, 131 Mass. 413; Parker v. Russell, 133 Mass. 74, applied.]

BREACH OF COVENANT FOR RAILWAY STATION

—COSTS OF SURVEY—LOSS OF PROFITS.

In an action for breach of covenant to establish a railway station in furtherance of an arrangement to subdivide lands as a townsite, a claim for half the costs of the survey and the increased amount of taxes paid as a result of the subdivision, also the loss of profit on a sale of lots therein as ascertained from the evidence, may be properly allowed in the assessment of damages.

DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF COVENANT FOR TITLE.

A judgment should not be given which is not supported by the pleadings, even though leave were given to amend pleadings, the case would have to go back for rehearing, as the damages should have been assessed for breach of the covenant for title in the conveyance, and not on the ground of breach of contract, and the measure of damages is the difference, if any, between the value of the land at the time of the exchange, and its value at the time that the title was put in order by the delivery of the reconveyance.

Ellam v. Acadia Trust Co., 6 W.W.R. 1083.

(§ III A—64)—BREACH OF LESSOR'S CONTRACT.

Upon the refusal of a lessor to deliver possession of demised premises at the commencement of a term that was subsequently terminated, under a power reserved in the lease, by a sale of the premises, the lessee can recover damages for deprivation of possession from the commencement of the term to the date of such sale only, and not for the whole term.

Wood v. Saunders, 3 D.L.R. 342, 21 W. L.R. 195.

Where the plaintiff in an action for breach of an agreement to lease a hotel and sell its furniture and fixtures does not shew that his bargain was a good one, or the amount he lost by the defendant's refusal to fulfil his agreement, $75 damages only was awarded.

Dulmage v. Lepard, 3 D.L.R. 542, 3 O.W. N. 986.

A lessor is not liable in damages for failing to supply a tenant with a team for working demised premises, where the lessor required them for working other land, which use was justified by an exception or reservation for that purpose provided by the terms of the lease. The measure of damages for the breach of a lessor's covenant to furnish a lessee with a horse for working demised premises, is the cost of supplying another, and not the value of crops lost by reason of such default.

Shepherd v. Ross, 4 D.L.R. 432, 21 W.L. R. 259.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—RE-ENTRY BY LANDLORD—CONVERSION OF CROPS.

Where, after a tenant removed from demised premises before the expiration of his term, under a crop-sharing lease, leaving a servant in possession to work the land, the landlord re-entered and took possession of, harvested and threshed the growing grain, he is answerable to the tenant for the conversion of his share of the crop, including grain killed by the frost and not harvested, which had some value for feed, less the damages suffered by the landlord for the tenant's failure to summer fallow in the manner required by his lease.

Lamb v. Thompson, 11 D.L.R. 612, 24 W. L.R. 404.

BREACH OF COVENANT BY LESSOR TO ERECT SUITABLE BUILDING.

The proper measure of damages for breach of covenant by a lessor to erect a building suitable for the lessee's purposes is the actual damage sustained as the consequence of defects arising before the time when the defects, if discovered, could have been remedied, and in addition, if any damage was sustained after that time, either what it would have cost the lessee to have repaired the defects, or the amount of his actual damages, whichever is the least.

LEASE OF SHOP—DEFECT IN TITLE OF LESSORS—REFUSAL TO GIVE LESSEE POSSESSION — ACTUAL EXPENSE — NOMINAL SUM AWARDED—COSTS.

Johnson v. Stephens, 12 O.W.N. 206, [Reversed in 13 O.W.N. 30.]

(§ III A—70)—SELLER'S FAILURE TO DELIVER.

The measure of damages for the unwarranted refusal of a vendor to carry out the terms of an agreement to sell a hotel property, includes the expenses to which the purchaser was put in endeavoring to induce the vendor to carry out his contract or to refund the money paid on account of the purchase-price and the purchaser may be allowed his traveling expenses from his place of residence to the place where the property was situate in the same province.

MEASURE—FAILURE TO DELIVER CHATTELS SOLD—MISTAKE AS TO LOCATION.

Where a purchaser failed to promptly notify the seller of the whereabouts of the chattels sold, as to the location of which both he and the seller were mutually mistaken, and of his inability to obtain possession because of their wrongful removal by a third person, from whom the purchaser refused to attempt to recover them or to aid the seller in doing so, the former cannot recover damages for nondelivery of the chattels; his remedy, in the absence of an express agreement by the seller to make delivery, being limited to the recovery of the purchase money paid.

Hamilton v. Smyth, 13 D.L.R. 55, 4 O.W.N. 1572, 24 O.W.N. 809.

QUANTUM—SALES OF PERSONALTY—SELLER'S FAILURE TO DELIVER—NATURAL CONSEQUENCES OF BREACH—CONTEMPLATION OF PARTIES—REMOVEDNESS.

For delay in delivery of goods under a contract only such damages as were the natural consequences of the breach, or such as might reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of both parties at the time the contract was made, can be awarded, unless the special circumstances which would enhance the damages were communicated to or known to the other party. [Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341, 23 L.J. Ex. 179, applied.]

Vancouver Machinery Co. v. Vancouver Timber & Trading Co., 18 D.L.R. 491, 29 W.L.R. 93, 6 W.W.R. 1523, reversing 17 D.L.R. 575.

SALE OF LOGS—FAILURE TO DELIVER.

In assessing damages for breach of contract to deliver logs, the resort to market value, though one of the commonest, is not a conclusive test, but merely an aid; and where there is no market value the buyer is entitled to estimate the loss as that which is directly and naturally resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach of contract; nor is it necessary that the buyer purchase other logs elsewhere and thus establish his loss. [Graham v. Bigelow, 3 D.L.R. 404, 46 N.S.R. 116, affirmed in 15 D.L.R. 294, 48 Can. S.C.R. 512, applied.]

SALE—DEFAULT OF DELIVERY—DAMAGES—MARKET-PRICE—C.C. ARTS. 1065, 1073, 1074.

The damages which a buyer has the right of claiming in default of execution of a contract, if the case in question is one of salable articles for which there is a commercial and current price, will be the value which the article would have had for the purchaser at the time and place where the delivery should have been made—less purchase price and incidental expenses of transportation and others.

Corteau v. Metal Shingle & Siding Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 201.

SALE OF GOODS—BREACH.

The measure of damages for breach of a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered on a day certain is the difference between the contract price and the market price on that day.

Taintor v. McKinnon, 39 D.L.R. 483, 13 A.L.R. 54, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 776.

SALE OF GOODS—DAMAGES—ASCERTAINMENT—DIFFERENCE BETWEEN CONTRACT PRICE AND ACTUAL VALUE OF GOODS, WITHOUT REGARD TO WHETHER WHOLE PRICE ACTUALLY PAID—CHATTEL MORTGAGE—ACCOUNT—METHOD OF TAKING—"PROTRACTED AND VEXATIOUS LITIGATION."

Peppiatt v. Reeder, 14 O.W.N. 278.

SALE.

The damages recoverable for breach of contract of sale are the difference between the price fixed by the contract and that of the open market, the duty of the buyer, in such case, being to act prudently and to pay the lowest price possible.

Hankin v. John Morrow Serew & Nut Co., 54 Que. S.C. 298. [Affirmed, 45 D.L.R. 655, 58 Can. S.C.R. 74.]

(§ III A-71)—MANUFACTURED ARTICLE.

Where a dredge was not delivered within the time specified in a contract of sale the net earnings thereof for the time delivery was delayed may be awarded the purchaser as general damages, notwithstanding that the plaintiff's pleading claimed only special damage, if such loss was included in the items of special damage claimed, although not allowed under that heading. The non-delivery of a dredge within the time stipulated therefor does not entitle the purchaser to recover as damages a sum of money paid by him as a bonus to ensure the completion of scows, necessary for use with the dredge, before the date fixed for delivery of the dredge, as such loss was not within the contemplation of the parties at the time the contract of purchase was entered into.

Brown v. Hope, 2 D.L.R. 615, 17 B.C.R. 220, 20 W.L.R. 907, 2 W.W.R. 153.

SALE OF GOODS—MANUFACTURED ARTICLES—REFUSAL OF PURCHASER TO ACCEPT—ABSENCE OF GENERAL MARKET—PROFITS.

Brunswick Balke Collender Co. v. Falsetto, 25 D.L.R. 818, 34 O.L.R. 386.

exact calculation, or (2) are such that proof of them is extremely complex, difficult, and expensive, or (3) are such that the very thing intended to be provided against by the stipulation is to preclude the necessity of the minute, difficult, and complex proof. [McManus v. Rothschild, 25 O.L.R. 138, applied.]

Kennedy v. Harris, 7 D.L.R. 291, 4 O.W.N. 182, 23 O.W.R. 179.

SALE—FUTURE DELIVERY—NONACCEPTANCE—BUYER'S FAILURE TO COMPLETE PURCHASE—QUANTUM.

The damages for nonacceptance of steers on a sale contract for future delivery and under which the seller was meanwhile to feed the steers, is properly estimated on the basis of the difference in the price fixed by the bargain and the market price at the time of the breach.

Gadzow v. Fraser, 18 D.L.R. 489.

SALE OF GOODS—SHIPPED BY BOAT—NON-DELIVERY—BILL OF LADING TO BE SIGNED.

In an action by the buyer against the seller for nondelivery of goods which were to have been shipped by boat, it is incumbent upon the seller to show that there was a signed bill of lading, or to prove the delivery itself to the carrier; an unsigned bill of lading is not enough.

Peter v. Laha, 20 D.L.R. 786, 48 N.S.R. 202.

SALE OF GOODS—CONTRACT—CANCELLATION—REPUDIATION—OPTION—CORRESPONDENCE—DAMAGES FOR NONACCEPTANCE.

Geddes Bros. v. American National Red Cross, 17 O.W.N. 43.

SALE OF FUTURE CROP—FAILURE TO ACCEPT.

A potato factor contracted to purchase for himself or his nominees the whole of a farmer's crop at a certain price (i.e., September prices), the future yield being estimated by the farmer at 600 tons more or less. The factor disposed of 1140 tons out of an actual crop slightly in excess of 1200 tons, and then notified the farmer to cease shipping potatoes. Held, that (in consideration of the fact that the farmer might have disposed of the potatoes left on his hands at a certain price and was bound to take advantage of any reasonable opportunity to minimize his loss) the proper measure of damages was the contract price less the amount that would have been received upon the acceptance of such offer, no evidence having been adduced to shew the market price at the date of the breach of contract.

Hammond v. Daykin et al., 8 W.W.R. 512.

(§ III A—76)—MANUFACTURED ARTICLE—BREACH BY BUYER—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—ATTEMPTED CANCELLATION. Somervell v. Trotter, 7 D.L.R. 813, 21 W.L.R. 143.

Where the seller under a conditional sale lien for the balance of the purchase price of personal property retakes and resells the goods, and on the trial of his action for damages against the original purchaser for neglect and refusal to accept and pay for the goods, introduces no evidence as to the amount of the purchase price upon the resale, it will be presumed against him that they brought the same price on resale as at the original sale. In an action by the seller under a conditional sale contract, after the retaking and resale of the goods, the measure of damages for which the conditional purchaser is liable in respect of his breach of contract where there is an available market for the goods, is, prima facie, the difference between the contract price and the price realized on the resale.

Corey v. American-Abell Co., 6 D.L.R. 103, 21 W.L.R. 940.

Under a contract for the sale of goods giving the purchasers no right to cancel the same, an attempt at cancellation by them before the date fixed for shipping the goods, does not deprive the vendors of the right to carry out their part of the contract and, if they afterwards shipped the goods, they are entitled to recover damages for their nonacceptance.

(§ III A—80)—BREACH OF WARRANTY.

The measure of damages for the breach of warranty on the sale of a stallion that he was a 60 per cent foal-getter, is the service charges the purchaser lost by reason of a large number of mares served by the horse not proving to be in foal.

Braithwaite v. Bayham, 4 D.L.R. 498, 21 W.L.R. 839.

Where the evidence showed that the buyer of fruit could have realized a higher price at the time he discovered the fraudulent packing and labelling of grades and in consequence had to repack and grade the fruit, the loss necessarily caused by the delay is properly taken into consideration in assessing damages.

Graham v. Bigelow, 3 D.L.R. 404, 46 N.S.R. 116, 11 E.L.R. 114 [Affirmed 15 D.L.R. 294, 48 Can. S.C.R. 512.]

In awarding damages for breach of warranty as to fitness of an engine for certain work a loss of additional profits which the plaintiff anticipates he would have made had the engine been available for his work by reason of certain competing firms going out of business subsequent to the date of the contract of sale, will not be presumed to have been in the contemplation of the parties and will not be allowed.

BREACH OF IMPLIED WARRANTY—MERCHANTABLE GOODS.

The measure of damages for breach of implied warranty that the perishable goods sold were merchantable, whereas by deter-oration they had become valueless, is the return of the money paid the seller and the excess which the buyer had to pay to replace the shipment.

White v. Donkin, 16 D.L.R. 446, 19 B.C.R. 565, 6 W.W.R. 508, 27 W.L.R. 789.

BREACH OF WARRANTY—FITNESS FOR BREEDING.

The buyer suing for damages for breach of warranty that a stallion was fit for breeding purposes may recover as damages a sum made up of the price and interest, transportation expenses, and cost of keeping the horse a reasonable time until he could be sold, where there had been an offer to return him, but less the actual value of the horse.

Wood v. Anderson, 21 D.L.R. 247, 33 O.L.R. 143.

BREACH OF WARRANTY—TONNAGE CAPACITY.

In an action for breach of warranty as to the tonnage capacity of a motor truck, the true measure of damages is not the difference in price between the truck sold and the standard of one it warranted to be, but the difference between the price paid for and its market value at the date of sale, together with the costs of repairs incurred in its consequent overloading under the mistaken belief as to its true capacity.

Victoria Sanich Co. v. Wood Motor Co., 23 D.L.R. 79, 21 B.C.R. 515, 8 W.W.R. 1124, 31 W.L.R. 853.

DAMAGES OF WARRANTY—DECEIT.

Damages awarded by a jury in an action for breach of warranty cannot be sustained on the mere ground that the jury might have been justified in assessing that amount had the action been based on fraud and deceit.

Gallant v. Lonsbury Co., 31 D.L.R. 145, 41 N.B.R. 225.

AS TO FITNESS FOR BREEDING.

The measure of damages for breach of warranty as to fitness for breeding, sought as a set-off against the purchase price, is not only the loss of service fees the purchaser would have received, but in addition, if claimed, under s. 51 of the Sale of Goods Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 147), the difference between what the animal would have been worth had the warranty been fulfilled and the actual value of the animal at the time it was purchased. [Braithwaite v. Bayham, 4 D.L.R. 498, distinguished.]

McPhail v. Abbott, 27 D.L.R. 71, 9 S.L.R. 130, 34 W.L.R. 134, 10 W.W.R. 347.

CONTRACT—WARRANTY—BREACH—MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

The measure of damages for breach of warranty is determined by the knowledge, actual or constructive, which the parties had of the probable consequences of the breach. Knowledge of the circumstances under which the contract was made is the decisive consideration. If the parties contemplated or ought to have contemplated loss of profits as a proximate consequence of the breach, damages may be recovered accordingly. [Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341, 156 E.R. 145, applied.]

Rivers v. George White & Sons Co., 46 D.L.R. 145, 12 S.L.R. 366, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 189, affirming [1918] 7 W.W.R. 61.

BREACH OF IMPLIED CONDITION OR WARRANTY — PLEADING — JUDGMENT — SCOPE OF REFERENCE—MASTER'S REPORT—APPEAL.

Maple Leaf Portland Cement Co. v. Owen Sound Iron Works Co., 9 O.W.N. 269.

(§ III A—82)—FAILURE OF SEED TO GROW. The damages recoverable for breach of warranty where grain is sold as "seed flax" and it was at the time of sale contaminated with noxious mustard seed, and was in consequence not reasonably fit for the purpose for which it was intended, include deterioration of the lands in which the seed was sown, as well as the wages of the help employed in pulling out the wild mustard.

(§ III A—83)—DEFECTS CAUSING LOSS OF USE OF PROPERTY.

A stipulation in a contract for the sale of machinery that the vendor should not be liable for damages on account of delays or defects of design, material, or workmanship, other than to furnish, without charge, repairs or new parts therefor, does not preclude the recovering of damages by the vendee for delay in operating a mill, due to the vendor's failure to install an engine complying with a guaranty that its speed should not vary more than 2 per cent under varying load conditions.

Canada Producer & Gas Engine Co. v. Hatley Dairy, Light & Power Co., 4 D.L.R. 599, 22 Que. K.B. 12.

BREACH OF WARRANTY—DEFECTIVE TRACTION ENGINE—COSTS—REPAIRS.

Amounts paid to experts in an endeavour to make a traction engine work properly and for extra oil and gasoline consumed by the engine above the normal consumption, as well as the cost of securing the ploughing to be done by some one else owing to its defective working, are recoverable by way of damages for a breach of warranty of the fitness of the engine. [Walton v. Ferguson, 19 D.L.R. 816, followed; Hadley v. Baxendale, 23 L.J. Ex. 170, applied.]

Chapin v. Matthews, 24 D.L.R. 457, 9 A.L.R. 299, 9 W.W.R. 391, 32 W.L.R. 663, reversing 22 D.L.R. 95.

Damages may be recovered upon a vendor's agreement made after the completion of a contract of sale upon the discovery that a portion of the goods sold were defective, to compensate the vendee for any loss resulting therefrom.

Schrader Mitchell & Weir v. Robson Leather Co., 3 D.L.R. 838, 3 O.W.N. 962.

OF EMPLOYMENT.

The plaintiff, who was employed "as a draughtsman and generally in survey work for three months or until the drafting and survey work in connection with a certain contract" was completed, at $165 per month and thereafter at $125 per month, on being told by his employer that the contract was completed and that thereafter he would receive compensation at the latter rate, refused to complete the drafting at the new rate and was discharged.—Held, that he could recover $165 per month from the date of his discharge until the time of his new employment.

Pos v. Johnston, 14 D.L.R. 447, 18 B.C.R. 159.

FOR WRONGFUL DISCHARGE.

In estimating the damages for wrongful discharge from employment regard must be had to the life of the servant and the reasonable probabilities of securing other employment for the unexpired term.

Goldie v. Cross Fertilizer Co., 37 D.L.R. 16, reversing 28 D.L.R. 477, 49 N.S.R. 540.

HIRE SERVICE—UNJUST DISMISSAL—DAMAGES—NULLITY OF CONTRACT—C.C. ARTS. 1624, 1670.

When an employer unjustly discharges an employee from his service he puts an end to the contract which exists between the two; and the employee can sue him for damages without asking to nullify the contract.

Fortier v. Felson Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 14.

OF EMPLOYMENT—EXCLUSIVE AGENCY FOR SALE OF GOODS FOR DEFINITE PERIOD—BREACH OF AGREEMENT—DAMAGES—NET PROFITS.

Rogers v. National Portland Cement Co., 5 O.W.N. 349, 25 O.W.R. 298.

CONTRACTS—MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—EMPLOYMENT OF SERVANT—DAMAGES FOR BREACH.

Cyr v. Fort Frances, 9 O.W.N. 7.

(§ III A—87)—WRONGFUL DISMISSAL—SEEKING OTHER EMPLOYMENT.

An engineer who is engaged to superintend a mine and who is also as incidental to his employment housed by the company employing him, is also entitled to damages in lieu of housing expenses for the balance of such contract. A professional man (e.g., an engineer with managerial functions) is not obliged to seek for menial work if he cannot find a position equal in importance to that from which he has been dismissed unjustly, and the employer in that event is responsible for the payment of the salary for the entire period of the contract up to the date of its expiry.

Silver v. Standard Gold Mines, 3 D.L.R. 103.

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL—FAILURE TO SEEK OTHER EMPLOYMENT—MITIGATION.

The failure of a servant to seek other employment may be set up in mitigation of damages against a claim for wages for the unexpired term. [Andrews v. Pac. Coast Coal Mines, 15 B.C.R. 56, applied.]

Pratt v. Isard, 23 D.L.R. 257, 21 B.C.R. 497, 31 W.L.R. 541.

(§ III A—95)—LIQUIDATED DAMAGES.

Where a contract contains a provision that either party to it may terminate it on payment of $500 to the other party, said amount may be either a penalty or liquidated damages; such question is one of law to be determined by taking into consideration the intention of the parties from the language used and the circumstances of the case taken as a whole as at the time the contract was made.

Ellis v. Frughtman, 8 D.L.R. 353, 5 A.L.R. 456, 22 W.L.R. 776, 3 W.W.R. 558.

LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—TESTED BY THE PURPOSES CONTEMPLATED IN THE CONTRACT.

Where a sum is stipulated to be paid as liquidated damages and is payable not on one single event but on a number of events some of which might result in inconsiderable damages, the court may decline to construe the words according to their ordinary effect and may treat the sum as a penalty, but alter when it is made payable upon only one event; and the clearing away of a number of old buildings from land in furtherance of a suburban subdivision scheme involving the landscape appearance for purposes of sale and contemplated by both parties to the contract may be a single event so as to justify the enforcement of the clause where the buildings were only partly pulled down within the time.

St. Catharines Improvement Co. v. Rutherford, 19 D.L.R. 662, 31 O.L.R. 574.

(§ III A—96)—LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—FOR QUITTING SERVICE.

A stipulation in a contract of employment for the payment of liquidated damages if a servant quits before the expiration of his term of service, is enforceable.

Ashmore v. Bank of B.N.A., 13 D.L.R. 73, 18 B.C.R. 257, 24 W.L.R. 840, 4 W.W.R. 1014.

(§ III A—97)—LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—DELAY IN COMPLETING BUILDING CONTRACT.

A stipulation in a building contract for the payment by the builder to the property owner of a fixed sum per day as liquidated damages for delay in completion of the building after the time limited for completing the work will be presumed to apply only where the work of building has been entered upon, not where there has been a total failure to perform the contract.

Lembke v. Chin Wing, 4 D.L.R. 431, 17 B.C.R. 218, 21 W.L.R. 895, 2 W.W.R. 897.

DELAY—PENALTY OR LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—INTENTION.

The words "liquidated damages" and "forfeit or penalty" have a like understood meaning in English and French law, and the effect of a proviso in a contract, that in case of failure to deliver various parts of the machinery as therein provided the sum of $25 should be deducted from the contract price as liquidated damages and not as forfeit for every day's delay, is that the parties intended to so pre-estimate a reasonable indemnity as liquidated damages for the delay in the performance of the contract, which need not be specially pleaded as a cross-demand to the action for the contract price, nor actual damages sustained in consequence of the delay alleged or proved. [ARTS. 1013, 1076, 1131, C.C. (Que.); Art. 217, C.C.P.; Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Co. v. New Garage & Motor Co., [1915] A.C. 79; Clydebank Engineering Co. v. Yuzierda, [1905] A.C. 6; Welster v. Bosanquet, [1912] A.C. 334; Hamlyn v. Talisker Distillery Co., [1894] A.C. 202; Sainter v. Ferguson, 7 C.B. 716 at 730; The "Industrie," [1894] P. 38; Ottawa North & West. R. Co. v. Dom. Bridge Co., 36 Can. S.C.R. 347, applied.]

Can. General Electric Co. v. Can. Rubber Co., 27 D.L.R. 294, 52 Can. S.C.R. 349, affirming 47 Que. S.C. 24.

A contract for the construction of a work cannot be held liable under a contract for a penalty thereby provided for delay in finishing the work, if a settlement has already been made with him in full for the work as far as it has proceeded, without deduction for the delay, as the failure to deduct this penalty operates as a waiver of the right to the same.

Municipal Construction Co. v. Regina, 2 D.L.R. 690, 5 S.L.R. 78, 20 W.L.R. 405, 1 W.W.R. 958.

A stipulation for liquidated damages for delay in the completion of a schoolhouse by a contractor, applies only to the completion of the building as a whole and not to the finishing of 2 rooms therein, as required by the contract, at a date earlier than that fixed for the completion of the entire building. Liquidated damages stipulated for in a contract for the building of a schoolhouse, for delay in completing it, cannot be awarded where the school district secured the use of rooms therein sufficient to accommodate all of the pupils of the district, which were finished before the time fixed by the contract for the completion of the entire building.

Brown v. Bannatyne School District, 5 D.L.R. 623, 21 W.L.R. 827, 2 W.W.R. 742.

A stipulation in a construction contract for liquidated damages for delay beyond a certain day, is not applicable where the delay was caused by the performance of extra work ordered by the owner of the building.

Hamilton v. Vinberg (No. 2), 4 D.L.R. 827, 3 O.W.N. 1337, 22 O.W.R. 238.

LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—FOR DELAY IN COMPLETING CONTRACT — AMOUNT STIPULATED OWING TO "DIFFICULTY OF PROVING SPECIAL DAMAGE."

An agreement by the contractor to pay a fixed sum per diem as liquidated damages for delay in completion beyond the stipulated date may be enforceable although special damages were not proved, if the fixing of the amount can be taken as due to the difficulty of proving special damage foreseen as incident to the circumstances when the contract was made.

St. Catharines Improvement Co. v. Rutheford, 19 D.L.R. 662, 31 O.L.R. 574.

A provision in a contract fixing a per diem amount of $20 as liquidated damages, in the event of a failure to erect a building and to lease same when completed, is reasonable and cannot be considered a penalty. Canadian Fairbanks Morse v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty, 26 D.L.R. 12, 22 B.C.R. 157, 32 W.L.R. 316, 9 W.W.R. 48.

A provision in a contract, which gives a party thereto the right to retain 10 per cent of the contract price of the ties supplied, by reason of noncompletion of the contract to supply them, is not to be treated in the nature of a penalty, but as security for any damages sustainable by reason of the nonperformance of the contract.

HYPOTHEC.

A stipulation in an hypothecary obligation "that in the event of the borrower failing to pay the sum within 30 days from June next, together with all interest due thereon, the property shall immediately be vested in and become the absolute property of the lenders without any notice, mise en demeure, or any formality whatsoever, and all sums paid on account thereof shall be forfeited and held as liquidated damages by the lenders," is penal.

D. IN RESPECT TO FREIGHT OR BAGGAGE.

(§ III D—126)—FAILURE TO FURNISH CARS—HORSE SHOW—LOSS OF PRIZES.

Where the plaintiff, on discovering the lack of efficient action in supplying a car to carry horses for exhibition at a winter fair, he was justified in treating it as a breach of contract sufficient to relieve him from bringing the horses forward for shipment, and is entitled to damages for entry fees paid to enter the horses for exhibition; extra labour in fitting horses for exhibition; extra blacksmithing; extra feed, grain and hay; loss of profits in selling horses after exhibition; extra expenses of carrying the horses until the following spring; but not for prospective prizes which might have been won at the Fair, or for loss of advertising through not being shewn thereat.

E. TORTS GENERALLY; BREACH OF PROMISE.

Compensation by way of damages for filing or continuing caveat without cause, see Land Titles, IV—40.

(§ III E—135)—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—TORTS—FALSE STATEMENTS IN COMPANY PROSPECTUS—CONTRIBUTION BETWEEN JOINT TORTFEASORS.

In an action by a director of a company in respect of a judgment obtained against him (which he paid) by one induced to subscribe for shares by reason of false statements in the prospectus, against his co-directors for contribution under s. 92 (4) of the Companies Act, B.C. Stats. 1910, c. 7, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 39, s. 93, rendering all directors jointly and severally liable to those subscribing for shares in reliance on false statements in the prospectus for all damages sustained therefrom, the measure of damages, where the subscriber does not retain his shares, is the amount he paid for them. [Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Co., [1900] 1 Q.B. 504, followed; McConnell v. Wright, [1903] 1 Ch. 546, and Shephard v. Broome, [1904] A.C. 342, distinguished.]

AUTOMOBILE OPERATION.

Where a motor collides with a wagon and in the jury assess damages against the motorist, the jury assess damages against him taking into consideration upon the evidence (1) repairs to the wagon; (2) necessary painting and that it would still be a patched-up wagon; (3) a valuable horse made lame and still lame; a verdict of $100 will not be disturbed as excessive. [See Vanhorn v. Verral, 4 D.L.R. 624, upon the quantum and increasing of damages.]

Campbell v. Pugsley, 7 D.L.R. 177, 11 E. L.R. 561.

MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—WRONGFUL SALE OF SHARES BY BROKER.

The liability of a stock broker who wrongfully sells shares of stock purchased for a client on the refusal of the latter to pay for them, is limited to the market value of the stock when sold, although such Can. Dig.—48.

was less than their value at the time of purchase.

Buchan v. Newell, 15 D.L.R. 437, 29 O.L.R. 308.

ALIENATION OF WIFE'S AFFECTIONS—ESTIMATE—MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

Where separate claims were submitted to the jury, firstly as to enticing away the plaintiff's wife and, secondly, as to alienating her affections, and damages were awarded separately for each, the verdict will stand only as to the larger sum awarded on the second claim if the whole damages were included in its submission and there was nothing to justify a further damage award on the first claim.

Bannister v. Thomson, 20 D.L.R. 512, 32 O.L.R. 34.

TORTS—RIPARIAN OWNER—DAM ABOVE—ACCUMULATED WATER—FLOODING LAND.

A lower riparian proprietor may recover damages against the upper proprietor who dams up the water of the river and then releases the accumulated water in large volumes whereby the plaintiff's land is overflowed and crops damaged. DAMAGES CLAIMED BY WORKMAN, UNDER COMMON LAW—ENGAGEMENT IN MONTREAL—ACCIDENT IN AMHERSTBERG, ONTARIO—C.C. (QUE.) 1055.

Where an action is a claim for damages based purely and simply on a tort; and that tort was wholly committed within the limits of the Province of Ontario, a foreign jurisdiction, the law of the Province of Ontario must govern. By the law of the Province of Ontario in such matters no common-law action lies.

(§ III E—140)—NEGLIGENCE IN BUILDING.

A contractor who negligently misplaces a window in the building of a house is liable in damages therefor.

(§ III E—142)—BREACH OF PROMISE.

Where the judge trying an action for breach of promise of marriage without a jury finds in favour of plaintiff, but also finds that the defendant's refusal to marry the plaintiff caused her no anxiety or suffering, the damages will on that account be assessed at a lower figure than otherwise.

SEDUCTION—MEASURE OF DAMAGES FOR.

A new trial will not be granted where the trial jury awarded $5,000 damages to the plaintiff in an action for damages for assaulting and ravishing plaintiff without her consent, on the ground of excessive damages, where, by reason of the outrage, plaintiff became pregnant. Where, in such action the plaintiff's counsel, without objection, was allowed to urge upon the jury large damages on account of the expense plaintiff would be put to for the bringing up of a then unborn infant, while as a matter of fact the infant when born lived only a day, a new trial will not be granted, since the jury must have had in mind the possible contingency of an early death.

Dunn v. Gibson, 8 D.L.R. 297, 4 O.W.N. 329, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 195, 23 O.W.R. 356.

BREACH OF PROMISE.

The damages for a breach of promise to marry should bear relation to the social standing and fortune of the parties and should cover moral suffering, the humiliation to the person and the depressing effect that it has had upon her health and energy.

Poirier v. Trudeau, 52 Que. S.C. 405.

(§ III E-143)—MARINE TORTS—OBSTRUCTING NAVIGATION—DISCREDIT TO BOAT LINE—INABILITY TO MAKE TRIPS—REPUTATION.

Damages for discredit to the reputation of a boat line because of interference with the regular operation of boats, is too remote to be considered in an action for damages resulting from the diminution of the natural flow of the waters of a stream as the result of the building of a dam.

Where the lien note of a buyer of horses was transferred to a bank by the payee thereof as security for money borrowed for him from the bank endorsing thereon an assignment of all his interest in the horses which was invalid and an agent of the bank seized an old crippled team for the horses covered by the note and the plaintiff admitted that he was willing that the bank should take such team in place of the one covered by the note, he is not entitled to damages for the illegal detention of that team.

Thien v. Bank of B.N.A., 4 D.L.R. 388, 4 A.L.R. 228, 21 W.L.R. 192, 1 W.V.R. 795.

WRONGFUL EVICTION.

A tenant who was wrongfully evicted by his landlord, and suing for damages must prove the value of the unexpired portion of his term, if damage is claimed in respect of the latter for the excess in the value thereof over the share of rent from payment of which the tenant was absolved by the eviction.

F. FRAUD.

(§ III F-145)—SALE OF LAND—DECEIT—MISREPRESENTATION—RECKLESS STATEMENTS—INTENTION.

Where the claim is not for rescission of a sale of land, but for damages for deceit, brought after conveyance has been made, based on misrepresentations as to quantity and yield of the land sold, it must be shown that the defendant knew his representation was false or that the defendant made the statements recklessly and without any belief, knowledge or care as to its truth or falsity, with the intention that the purchaser should act on them.

Banks v. Pearson, 20 D.L.R. 731.

ACTION FOR DECEIT.

In an action for deceit on the sale of lands, a proper measure of damages is the amount paid over by the plaintiff in consequence of his dealings with the defendant with interest and a reasonable sum for time, labour and wages expended by the plaintiff on the property which was practically worthless for the purpose for which it was sold.

(§ III F-146)—ON RESCINDING SALE OF LAND FOR FRAUD—PROMISED EQUIVALENT OF PRIOR INCOME.

On assessing damages for fraud and deceit in inducing the plaintiff to withdraw money from an investment where it earned 10 per cent in order to make the land purchase which was set aside, the court may award, in addition to the return of the purchase money and the statutory interest thereon, the additional income which the plaintiff had previously obtained on it, where the defendant is shown to have misrepresented that as large a return would be yielded by the land purchase as the plaintiff was previously receiving.

SALE OF FARM—ACTION FOR DECEIT—DAMAGES.

Webster v. Henderson, 5 O.W.N. 373.

(§ III F-147)—IN EXCHANGE OF PROPERTY.

Where a plaintiff has entered into an exchange of property by reason of fraudulent misrepresentations, the measure of his damages is the value of the property he parted with on the strength of such representations, less the value of the equivalent he got for it.

Kelly v. Bradley, 33 W.L.R. 747.

(§ III F—148)—SALE OF SHARES.

The measure of damages, in an action to set aside a sale of shares, on the ground of fraud, is the difference in value of the shares with all their incidents, at the time of discovery of the deceit, and what was paid for them.

Allan v. McLennan, 31 D.L.R. 617, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 513, reversing 23 B.C.R. 515, 10 W.W.R. 941.

G. ASSAULT; FALSE IMPRISONMENT; MALICIOUS PROSECUTION; ABUSE OF PROCESS.

(§ III G—150)—CIVIL ACTION—MITIGATION OR AGGRAVATION OF.

Slater v. Watts, 16 B.C.R. 36, 16 W.L.R. 234.

(§ III G—152) — FALSE IMPRISONMENT; MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.

Upon the quantum of damages, in an action for false imprisonment, where the person and character are injured, it is difficult to fix the limit, and a new trial will only be granted on the ground of excessive damages where the verdict of a jury is so large as to be perverse and the result of gross error or there were undue motives or misconception. The jury may take into consideration as to the quantum of damages, the following elements: time lost, business interrupted, physical and mental suffering, the indignity, circumstances of family, and condition of gaol, cost of release as well as the illegal restraint itself as distinct from all else.

When it is proven that the defendant acted under an improper motive and with a spirit of revenge in causing plaintiff's arrest, the plaintiff suing for false arrest in the Province of Quebec should be awarded an amount sufficient to carry costs on the scale of the Superior Court of that province and not merely the costs on the scale of the Circuit Court.

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION — RIVAL CANDIDATES AT ELECTION.

An award of $1,200 damages in an action for malicious prosecution of a candidate for election to the legislature, on a charge of forgery, prosecuted by a rival candidate, is not excessive.

H. LIBEL OR SLANDER.

(§ III H—135)—EXCESSIVENESS.

An award by a jury of $500 damages, for libelling a legislative officer, will not be interfered with on the grounds of excessiveness.

Culligan v. The Graphic, 37 D.L.R. 134, 44 N.B.R. 481.

CONCLUSIVENESS AS TO AMOUNT—APPEAL.

Damages of $11,500 awarded in an action for libel held not excessive. Even in an action for libel where the damages awarded exceed what any jury could reasonably have given under the circumstances, a Court of Appeal has jurisdiction to set aside the verdict, but such jurisdiction must be exercised with the greatest caution and only in exceptional cases and keeping in mind that in libel the assessment of damages does not depend upon any definite rule.

Knott v. Telegram Printing Co., 39 D.L.R. 762, 55 Can. S.C.R. 631, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 335, affirming 32 D.L.R. 499, 27 Man. L.R. 336, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 974.

LIBEL OR SLANDER.

Where an elector, during a municipal election, enters a polling booth on two occasions and publicly in a loud voice reproaches the returning officer for allowing his name as a voter to be entered in the roll of voters as having voted the previous day in favour of a certain candidate, and alleges that he did not so vote; such conduct constitutes a wrongful act and is intended to convey to persons then present the charge that the returning officer had failed in his duty as such, and in the circumstances, without proof of special damage, the court will grant exemplary damages.

Avon v. Hamelin, 18 Rev. de Jur. 510.

(§ III H—162)—SUBSEQUENT ACTION.

Apart from statements advanced maliciously or with knowledge of their falsity, the only penalty which the court may impose on a party for making unfounded allegations in his pleading is the payment of costs of the suit which is dismissed as a result of the allegations being unproven; and a subsequent suit in damages for defamation and libel resulting from such allegations should be dismissed with costs, as otherwise the party who had a right to allege such facts would be twice punished therefore.

Martin v. Madore, 3 D.L.R. 441, 731, 18 Rev. de Jur. 781.

I. PERSONAL INJURIES; DEATH.

(§ III I—165)—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION —PERSONAL INJURY—STATUTORY INFRACTION.

Where a statute prohibits unsafe scaffolding on buildings in course of erection or repair, for the benefit of workmen thereon, such provision entitles a workman who suffers special damage from its contravention to an action to recover such damages. [Watkins v. Naval Colliery Co., [1912] A.C. 699, applied.]

Hunt v. Webb, 13 D.L.R. 235, 28 O.L.R. 589.

ELEMENTS—FATAL ACCIDENTS ACT—FUNERAL EXPENSES.

The amount paid for the funeral expenses of a child cannot be taken into consideration as an element of damage in an action by his parents, for his death, under the Ontario Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. c. 3. Beuhan v. Nevin, 11 D.L.R. 679, 4 O.W.N. 1399, 24 O.W.R. 712.

MEASURE—TORTS—PERSONAL INJURY—AMOUNT RECOVERABLE.

$300 is reasonable compensation for negligent injury to a taxicab passenger, sustained by being thrown against the glass separating the driver from the passenger's compartment, where his pecuniary loss aggregated $173, though he was permanently scarred to a slight extent, measuring on the basis of the substantial injury suffered.

Hughes v. Enechang Taxicab & Auto Livery, 11 D.L.R. 314, 24 W.L.R. 174, 4 W.W.R. 556.

PERSONAL INJURIES—DEATH.

A jury should not be asked to assess separately damages resulting from shock caused by blows and those resulting from bodily injury independently of nervous shock. Remarks as to cases in which the damages were so assessed. In this case a new trial was ordered on the ground that the damages awarded were excessive. [Victorian Railways (Commissioners v. Coultas (1888), 13 App. Cas. 222, followed.]

Taylor v. B.C.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 400, 16 B.C.R. 109.

The plaintiff's damages for personal injury by the negligence of the defendants having been assessed by a judge at $10,000, the Court of Appeal reduced the amount to $7,000, evidence having been received by the court to show that a large sum paid to the plaintiff, and said by her to be part of her earnings, was in fact paid upon another account. In estimating damages recoverable for personal injury by negligence, the jury must not attempt to award the full amount of a perfect compensation for the pecuniary injury, but must take a reasonable view of the case and give what they consider, in all the circumstances, a fair compensation; and the same rule applies to a judge.

Sheahan v. Toronto R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 279, 25 O.L.R. 310.

NEGLECTANCE—PERSONAL INJURY TO PLAINTIFF.

FATAL ACCIDENTS ACTS, R.S. SASK. c. 135—EXPECTATION OF PECUNIARY BENEFIT—MOTHER AND SISTER OF DECEASED—MEASURE OF DAMAGES—ASSESSMENT.

In an action under the Fatal Accidents Act, R.S.S. c. 135, which provides that "the judge or jury may give such damages as he or they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death to the parties respectively for whom and for whose benefit such action had been brought" it is not necessary that such "parties" should have actually received aid from the deceased, but they must have had a well-founded expectation of benefit from the continuance of his life. [McKeown v. Toronto Ry. Co., 19 O.L.R. 361, and Moffitt v. C.P.

R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 244, followed.] The court should not award a sum which would purchase an annuity on the lives of those entitled equal to the income which they had received or had reasonable expectation of receiving but should take into consideration the probable duration of the life of the deceased and that of each of the beneficiaries, estimating the pecuniary benefit received or likely to be received by each. [Rowley v. London and North Western R. Co., L.R. 8 Ex. 221, followed.] In this case, where the death of a young man was caused by the negligence of the defendant company's servants, it was considered that his mother and elder sister had a well-founded expectation of pecuniary benefit from the continuance of his life, and damages for the mother were assessed at $1,000, and for the sister at $1,500.

IMPAIRING HEALTH—CATARRH—PROXIMATE CAUSE.

Where a plaintiff in an action for damages alleges that, as a result of the accident, his health had been impaired and that he had lost the sense of smell, it is proper and legal for him to prove that he had since the accident, and was still, suffering from catarrh, and that such impairment was due to the accident.

Mellinhatay v. Toronto & York Radial R. Co., 15 O.W.N. 55.

PERSONAL INJURIES—PRINCIPLES OF ASSESSMENT—PROBABLE EARNING CAPACITY.

An injured workman may shew that if he had not been injured he might, at the time of action, be in receipt of larger wages than he was then getting, and should be allowed a fair amount of compensation for being deprived of the reasonable prospects he had of improving his condition in life. In an action for damages for personal injuries a jury should not award punitive or vindictive damages, and should take into account the accidents of life and other matters, including the fact that the plaintiff has not been completely disabled. They should not give the plaintiff the full amount of a perfect compensation for the pecuniary injury he has suffered, but only what they consider, under the circumstances, a fair compensation for his loss.

Anderson v. Forrester, 7 W.W.R. 1039.

EXPENSES—LOSS OF TIME—FUTURE EARNINGS—SUFFERING.

in whole or in part up to the time of his trial; (3) a fair compensation for the reduction of his probable future earnings, having regard to his health, habits, occupation, to the fact that they will not be as great in later years, to the fact that he may voluntarily retire from his profession, or may be overtaken by sickness or other inevitable accident; (4) a reasonable sum by way of compensation for his bodily or mental sufferings.

Morgan v. Edmonton, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 391.

PERSONAL INJURIES—REFUSAL TO SUBMIT TO OPERATION — REASONABLENESS — NEURASTHENIA.

Bateman v. County of Middlesex, 24 O.L.R. 84, 19 O.W.R. 442.

PERSONAL INJURY BY NEGLIGENCE—ASSESSMENT BY JUDGE—NEW EVIDENCE ON APPEAL—REDUCTION OF DAMAGES—PRINCIPLE OF ASSESSMENT.

Sheahan v. Toronto R. Co., 25 O.L.R. 310.

(§ III I—166)—LOSS OF BUSINESS.

Where damages are allowed for personal injury the following are among the proper tests as to the quantum: (a) Was the business interrupted thereby a paying or a losing concern; (b) amount of doctor and hospital bills; (c) amount of personal inconvenience, pain, and suffering.

MEDICAL SERVICES—NURSES—LOSS OF TIME —EXPENSES OF CURE.

Damages to the amount of $1,750 are not excessive in an action under the Employers' Liability Act (B.C.) where the plaintiff, a stevedore, was struck between the shoulders by the fall of a "sling board" and traumatic neurasthenia resulted, the medical treatment of which is particularly expensive.

Snell v. Victoria & Vancouver Stevedoring Co., 8 D.L.R. 32, 1 W.W.R. 985.

In an action by an employee against his employer for personal injury resulting from an accident in the course of his employment and constituting partial permanent disability to the plaintiff, he is entitled to a yearly allowance by way of compensation equal to half of the abatement of his wages resulting from the accident; and in the case of an employee having worked less than 12 months before the accident, at piece work, his yearly wages should be based on the mean yearly wages of fellow workmen of the same category receiving the smallest remuneration from the defendant company, and such wages, in the present case, are 50 cents per day; and the fact that such employee may since such accident occasionally have earned wages in excess of 50 cents per day at employment with another company does not estop him from claiming his inderanty according to the impairment of his ability to work.

Carrier v. Standard Bedstead Co., 18 Rev. de Jur. 374.

(§ III I—168)—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—DEATH—CLAIM BY PARENT—REMOTE BENEFITS.

The basis for the recovery of damages under Lord Campbell's Act for death caused by negligence is not for injured feelings or on the ground of sentiment but compensation for a pecuniary loss; the parent's claim in respect of the death of a child of tender years must be based upon a reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit.

Pedlar v. Toronto Power Co., 15 D.L.R. 684, 29 O.L.R. 527.

(§ III I—169)—PERSONAL INJURIES—RECOVERY BY INFANT—INCOME—ACCIDENTS OF LIFE.

In awarding damages for injuries sustained by a child eight and one-half years old by reason of a collision with a street railway car, whereby the child's right arm had to be amputated below the elbow, the jury ought not to give the plaintiff such a sum as, if invested, would produce the full amount of income which he might be expected to earn if he had not been injured, but they should take into account the accidents of life and other matters, and give to the plaintiff what they consider, under all the circumstances, a fair compensation for the loss.

Schwartz v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., 12 D.L.R. 56, 23 Man. L.R. 483, 24 W.L.R. 5, 4 W.W.R. 319.

(§ III I—171)—PERSONAL INJURIES —WRONG MEDICAL TREATMENT, HOW NEGATIVELY—ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES—EXPERT EVIDENCE.

Sawyer v. C.P.R. Co., 18 D.L.R. 799, 7 O.W.N. 166.

(§ III I—173)—IMPAIRMENT OF EARNING CAPACITY—MISDIRECTION.

In a negligence action for damages for permanent personal injury to the plaintiff, a railroad man, impairing his earning capacity, it is misdirection for the Trial Judge to charge the jury by suggesting that the jurymen put themselves in the plaintiff's place and consider for themselves whether, in similar circumstances, any of them would be willing to undergo such suffering and loss, and to seek employment in industrial fields other than railroading.

LOSS OF EYE.

A workman who has met with an accident in the course of his employment is deemed to have been subjected to an incapacity, not temporary, but partial and permanent, within the terms of the Workmen's Compensation Act, when the accident, while leaving him capable of labour, has resulted in diminishing his capacity for the future. The loss of an eye must be considered to be a partial incapacity which is permanent. In this case the plaintiff, who usually worked as a ship labourer and made $300 a year was given an annuity of $100 for loss of an eye.

Gagné v. Metallurgical Co., 14 Que. P.R. 274.

DIMINUTION OF EARNING CAPACITY.

In estimating the damages in a case within par. 2. of art. 7328 R.S.Q. 1909, the court should base them on the actual remuneration received from the employment at the time of the accident. It should not take into account a more lucrative employment which the victim had formerly had during the year nor the times during the period of his engagement when he was not at work. The workman who absents himself is presumed to do so voluntarily and it is for him to prove the contrary.

Ledoux v. Lucas, 43 Que. S.C. 427.

(§ III 1—180)—FOR CAUSING DEATH—DESTRUCTION OF MONEY PAID BEFORE DEATH.

In an action brought by the widow and children of a decedent under the Families Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. c. 82, for damages for injuries sustained through the alleged negligence of the defendants resulting in the death of the decedent, where it appears that prior to the death of the deceased the latter received a sum of money for the injuries sustained and executed a release of the cause of action to the defendants, it is not necessary for the plaintiffs to return the sum of money received by the deceased, or to offer to return it, as a condition precedent to their right to have the release set aside on the ground that it was obtained from the deceased by fraud, but such money is to be taken into consideration on the assessment of damages and the amount treated as a payment on account. [Lee v. Laneshire, L.R. 6 Ch. 527, distinguished.]

Trawford v. B.C. Electric R. Co. (No. 2), 9 D.L.R. 817, 18 B.C.R. 132, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 39, 23 W.L.R. 175, 4 W.W.R. 150, reversing 8 D.L.R. 1026.

FOR DEATH.

In an action to recover for death by negligent act, the plaintiffs are entitled to such damages as will compensate them for the pecuniary loss sustained thereby, together with the pecuniary benefits reasonably expectant from the continuation of life, taking into account the age of the deceased, his state of health, his expectation of life, his earnings and his future prospects. Insurance money received or about to be received by plaintiffs should also be taken into consideration when making the assessment.

Jacob-Begin v. The King, 33 D.L.R. 203, 16 Can. Ex. 349.

ACTION UNDER LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT—EFFECT OF INSURANCE.

In assessing damages the moneys paid to the suppliant under the sick allowance insurance should be taken into consideration, but the moneys paid under the provident fund should not be so considered in view of s. 20 of 6-7 Edw. VII. c. 22. In general, in considering the question as to whether insurance money should be taken in account in assessing compensation in cases of accident, a distinction must be made between the case where a party himself is suing for injury either to his person or his property, and the case under Lord Campbell's Act and art. 1056, C.C.P., where the action is for the pecuniary loss caused by the death to the survivors. In the former case he has two distinct causes of action, one on contract with the insurance company and the other in tort against the wrongdoer. In the latter case it is the pecuniary loss caused by the death which forms the basis of the action and the measure of damages, and in this case alone the insurance money is to be taken into consideration.

Saundon v. The King, 15 Can. Ex. 305.
RESPONSIBILITY UNDER ART. 1056 C.C. (Que.)—DEATH—JURY TRIAL—ASSIGNMENT OF FACTS—C.C.P. ARTS. 424, 427.

In an action under art. 1056 C.C. (Que.), the defendant's suggestion of facts submitted to the jury, to wit: "Did the plaintiff suffer damages as the result of the said accident, and if so, in what amount?" adopted by the judge, is preferable to that of the plaintiff, which reads as follows: "At what sum do you fix the damages occasioned by the death of the said Robert Young?"

Miller v. Canadian Vickers, 25 Rev. Leg. 25.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES FOR DEATH OF WIFE AND CHILD—NECESSITY OF SHOWING PECUNIARY LOSS.

A husband suing for damages for the death of his wife and child must show by actual evidence some pecuniary interest in their lives.

Walker v. Portage la Prairie et al., [1919] 2 W.W.R. 888.

(§ III 1—186)—DEATH—PAIN AND SUFFERING—ACCIDENTAL DEATH—RECOVERY BY DECEDENT'S FAMILY—ELEMENTS.

In an action by the widow and administratrix of the deceased for damages under the Manitoba Act, for compensation to families of persons killed by accident (R.S. M. 1902, c. 31), the measure should be for the widow's pecuniary loss sustained because of the death, in a sum that will give her the physical comfort which she had at the time of her husband's death out of his labour and earnings to be continued during the expectancy of life, subject to the accidents of health and employment; but not covering the physical nor mental suffering of the deceased nor the mental sufferings of the plaintiff for the loss of her husband.

(§ III I—187)—LOSS OF SERVICES—EARNING POWER—PROBABLE ACCUMULATIONS.

In an action for the death of a minor servant due to the negligence of the master, his father's and mother's right to recover must be limited in amount to the pecuniary loss which it could be fairly and reasonably found they had suffered by their son's death. [Stephen v. Toronto R. Co., 11 O.L.R. 19; London & Western Trust Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 22 O.L.R. 262, applied.]

Delyea v. White Pine Lumber Co., 2 D.L.R. 863, 3 O.W.N. 823, 21 O.W.R. 665.

DEATH—LOSS OF SERVICES—ACCIDENTAL DEATH—RECOVERY BY DECEDENT'S FAMILY—EXCESSIVENESS.

$5,000 is an excessive recovery by a surviving wife, 57 years old, under the Manitoba Act (R.S.M. c. 31) for accidental death of her husband, and the recovery should be reduced to $3,000, where he was 65 years old and earned only $45 monthly, though he was apparently a strong, healthy man.

Pettit v. C.N.R. Co., 11 D.L.R. 316, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 272, 23 Man. L.R. 213, 24 W.L.R. 196, 4 W.W.R. 566, varying 7 D.L.R. 645.

The assessment of damages for negligence causing death must be confined to the pecuniary loss based on the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage to the beneficiaries under the statute known as Lord Campbell's Act.

McDonald v. Sydney, 8 D.L.R. 99, 46 N.S.R. 438.

MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—DEATH OF PARENT—PROBABLE ACCUMULATIONS—PRESENT VALUE.

The measure of damages under the Fatal Injuries Act, 1 Geo. V. c. 33, R.S.O. 1914, c. 151, where it appears that the deceased would have saved the annual income from his property for the remainder of his life for the benefit of his children, is not the full amount thereof for the probable duration of his life, but the present value of the annual payments thereof capitalized at 5 per cent.

Goodwin v. Michigan Central R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 411, 29 O.L.R. 422, 25 O.W.R. 182.

UNDER LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT.

An award of $3,500 for the death of a son 16 years old and earning $45 a month, upon whom the plaintiffs were dependent for support, is not excessive.

Armstrong v. C.N.R. Co., 35 D.L.R. 568, 28 Man. L.R. 147, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 219.

ACTION BY PARENTS FOR DEATH OF CHILD—LOSS OF SERVICES—EFFECT OF INSURANCE.

In an action for damages by a father under art. 1054 C.C. (Que.), for the death of his son, when it is proved that the son, 20 years of age, lived with his father, and was to live there for at least 5 years further, and that he earned $600, which he gave to his father to assist him, the court fixed the damages suffered by the father at $1,200. A defendant sued under art. 1054 C.C. (Que.) cannot have the damages awarded by the court reduced by the amount of an insurance policy received by the plaintiff without special allegation in his defence.

Laflamme v. Levis Ferry, 47 Que. S.C. 291.

DEATH—DAMAGES—PARENTS ENTITLED—WIDOW—INFANT—MEASURE—EXCESSIVENESS—REDUCTION.

Where the defendants were held liable for causing death because of a contractor's negligence in not perfectly sealing up an opening in the floor through which, in all probability, poisonous gas escaped into a basement, the Trial Judge, who tried the action without a jury, awarded the adult plaintiff, the widow of the deceased, $5,000 damages and the infant plaintiff, his daughter, $1,000; but the Court of Appeal thought the amount awarded to the adult plaintiff excessive and ordered that it should be reduced to $3,500.

(§ III I—188)—FOR DEATH OF EMPLOYEE—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT (SASK.)—ASSESSMENT.

In estimating the compensation recoverable under s. 15 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, Sask., 1910-1911, c. 9, of such sum as is found to be equivalent to the estimated earnings during the 3 years preceding the injury in like employment, a shewing of $182 for one and three-quarter months is not of itself under the principle of the Act, sufficient to base a finding in excess of $1,800 for the 3 years. [Uhlenburgh v. Prince Albert Lumber Co., 9 D.L.R. 639, applied.]

Kennedy v. G.T.P.R. Co., 15 D.L.R. 172, 6 S.L.R. 286, 26 W.L.R. 120, 5 W.W.R. 733, 747.

DEATH OF PLAINTIFF'S SON—POWER OF APPELLATE COURT TO ASSESS DAMAGES.

There is no reason why an application should not be made to the Trial Court to assess damages for negligently causing death, under s. 6 of the subs. 4 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (B.C.), after the Court of Appeal has reversed a judgment in favour of the plaintiff based upon Lord Campbell's Act and the Employers' Liability Act as well, on the ground that the negligence of the employer had not been shown.

McCormick v. Kellher, 9 D.L.R. 392, 18 B.C.R. 57, 23 W.L.R. 10, 3 W.W.R. 722, affirming 7 D.L.R. 732.

(§ III I—190)—INSTANCE OF AMOUNT—PERSONAL INJURIES—ACTUAL SUFFERING—LOSS OF EARNINGS.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act, Quebec, an employer is responsible for a larger indemnity than the maximum of $2,000 when the accident is due to inexcusable fault, whether such inexcusable fault is that of the employer personally or that of his foreman or other representatives.

Houle v. Asbestos & Asbestic Co., 3 D.L.R. 466, 42 Que. S.C. 176.

AMOUNT—SPINAL INJURY—MECHANIC.

Damages of $4,500, and an extra allowance for medical expenses, may be fairly allowed for a spinal injury to an electrician, incapacitating him, at the age of 27, from pursuing his avocation.

Keegan v. The King, 39 D.L.R. 27, 16 Can. Ex. 412.

AMOUNT—SCHOOL GIRL.

Because of the nonrepair of a sidewalk, a school girl, 16 years old, fell and broke her wrist. She was earning little, if anything, and was prevented from attending school for a few days at the most. The damages were reduced from $325 to $175.

Johnstone v. Medicine Hat, 11 A.L.R. 22, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1068.

AGGRAVATION OF DISEASE.

The aggravation of a disease caused by an accident from a tramcar is a question of fact to be decided by a jury in determining the amount of damages to be awarded to the plaintiff.

Schiller v. Tramways Co. of Montreal, 52 Que. S.C. 385.

PERSONAL INJURIES IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT — NEGLIGENCE OF DEFENDANT — ASSESSMENT OF PLAINTIFF'S DAMAGES — LOSS OF PROFITS OF BUSINESS — OTHER ELEMENTS OF DAMAGE.

Brigman v. Rubin, 16 O.W.N. 118.

(§ III 1—192)—PERMANENT INJURY.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained in being struck by an automobile, a judgment of a Trial Court for $300 was, on appeal, increased to $700, $200 being awarded for loss of time, $400 for physical suffering, and $100 for expense incurred, where the plaintiff, a strong, healthy man, 62 years of age, was, as the result of his injuries, confined to his bed for 4 weeks, underwent severe physical suffering, sustained displacement and impaired action of the heart, serious injury to his nervous system, great weakness and inability to do heavy work for a long time after the accident, and was thus prevented from superintending his farm work at a season when his services were greatly needed.

Vanhorn v. Verral, 4 D.L.R. 624, 3 O.W.N. 1567, 22 O.W.R. 860.

$5,500, as general and special damages, is fair and reasonable for injuries sustained through a master's negligence by a bricklayer 27 years of age, capable of earning $1,200 to $1,500 per annum, where his injuries would undoubtedly prevent him ever again following his trade, as one foot was injured, his head cut, nose broken, two teeth knocked out, and his back hurt so as to prevent his doing any working involving stooping or lifting.

Where a young man, 27 years old, in good health, and capable of earning $3.50 a day, is so injured that the hearing in one ear is seriously affected, and his eyesight is injured so as to cause him to see double, and it seems probable that the injury will be permanent, and his occupation requires the use of his natural sight, so that his earning power is seriously depreciated and probably will remain so during his life, $1,100 is a reasonable sum to be awarded to him as damages.

Magnussen v. L'Abbe, 4 D.L.R. 857, 23 O.W.R. 376.

A verdict for $4,000 damages is not excessive for injuries received by a bricklayer 25 years of age, who was capable of earning $1,200 to $1,500 per year, where his injuries resulted in a weak back and neurasthenia, and he had been unable to do much work since receiving such injuries, except some at his trade, which he did with great difficulty and limitations, and, while the chances for complete recovery were not very hopeful, yet it seemed probable that in a reasonable time he would be able to resume work at his trade and to earn a fair livelihood. [Scotney v. Smith Bros. & Wilson, 4 D.L.R. 134, followed and applied.]

Lloyd v. Smith Bros. et al., 4 D.L.R. 143, 21 W.L.R. 298.

A workman entitled to a permanent disability claim under the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act has the option of accepting the annual income specified in the said Act or of demanding that the capitalization thereof be handed over to an insurance company in order to purchase an annuity therewith, but such capitalization may never exceed $2,000. Under the said act the annual payment for permanent disability is one-half of the average yearly wage of which the injured party is deprived by reason of such incapacity.

G.T.R. Co. v. McDonnell, 5 D.L.R. 65, 18 Rev. de Jur. 369, 21 Que. K.B. 532.

A workman entitled to a permanent disability claim under the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act has the option of accepting the annual income specified in the said Act, or of demanding that the capitalization thereof (not exceeding $2,000) be handed over to an insurance company in order to purchase an annuity therewith, but no similar option is available to the employer to confess judgment for $2,000 or for the annuity which that sum would purchase, as in satisfaction of his liability. [G.T.R. Co. v. McDonnell, 5 D.L.R. 65, followed.] Under the said Act the annual payment to be made for permanent disability is one-half of the average yearly wage of which the injured party is deprived by reason of such incapacity.

McDonnell v. C.P.R. Co., 7 D.L.R. 138, 22 Que. K.B. 207.

PERMANENT INCAPACITY — AMOUNT — REVIEW.

A verdict in the sum of $27,000 awarded to a railway engineer aged 32, whose yearly

ASSESSMENT OF—INSTANCES OF AMOUNT—PERMANENT PERSONAL INJURY.

A verdict for $5,000 damages is not excessive for permanent personal injury resulting from the defendant's negligence, whereby the plaintiff, a young labouring man, was so seriously injured that he would be a cripple for life.

Smith v. Alberta Clay Products Co., 14 D.L.R. 296, 5 W.W.R. 405.

PERMANENT PERSONAL INJURIES—EXCESSIVENESS.

$6,532 damages for injuries resulting from negligence, is not excessive for a man 34 years of age, capable of earning $700 a year, where his injuries were found to have resulted in a life-long loss of earning power.

C.P.R. Co. v. Quinn, 11 D.L.R. 600, 22 Que. K.B. 428, 19 Rev. de Jur. 343.

(§ III 1—193)—IMPAIRMENT OF SIGHT.

An award of $5,200 damages to a man 29 years old for the loss of an eye and the impairment of sight in the other, caused by explosion in a mine, while liberal, is not excessive.

Doyle v. Foley-O'Brien, 22 D.L.R. 872, 34 O.L.R. 42. [Affirmed by Canada Supreme Court, 9 O.W.N. 494.]

(§ III 1—195)—DEATH.

In an action under the Fatal Accidents Act (Ont.), 1 George V. c. 33, for damages for the death of a son the following are proper matters of consideration upon the quantum of damages: (a) The age of deceased; (b) his length of absence from home; (c) what help he had given his parents during that absence; (d) what interest he had shewn in his parents; (e) his wages and habits as to economy.

Johnston v. Clark & Son, 7 D.L.R. 361, 4 O.W.N. 292, 23 O.W.R. 196.

(§ III 1—196)—MEASURE OF—DEATH OF CHILD—RECOVERY BY PARENTS.

$300 to the father and $230 to the mother was awarded as damages under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 33, for the death of a bright, clever boy 7 years of age, as the result of the negligent operation of a motorcycle.

Beahan v. Nevin, 11 D.L.R. 679, 4 O.W.N. 1399, 24 O.W.R. 712.

DEATH OF CHILD CAUSED BY FLOODING CELLAR—REMOTENESS.

Even where a city may be responsible for the flooding of a cellar, it is only liable for damages which are the direct and necessary consequence of the break in the pipe.

It cannot be held liable for the remote and indirect damages such as those resulting in the death of the plaintiff's child caused by the neglect of defendants to close the opening of their cellar.

Darragh v. Coté, 48 Que. S.C. 478.

J. INJURY; TAKING OR DETENTION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Measure of damages in action against sheriff for negligence and breach of duty, see Levy and Seizure, III A—40.

(§ III J—200)—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—TAKING OR DETENTION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—NOMINAL DAMAGES.

An administrator is entitled to nominal damages for the deprivation from and after his appointment, of the use and possession of goods belonging to his intestate which had been wrongfully taken from her during her life time, but which had been returned in good condition to the administrator, where no special damage had been sustained by the deceased in her lifetime or afterwards by her estate by reason of the wrongful detention.

Day v. Horton, 14 D.L.R. 763, 23 Man. L.R. 623, 26 W.L.R. 72, 5 W.W.R. 731.

DETENTION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—VINDICTIVE AND SPECIAL DAMAGES—RIGHT TO.

In an action of detinue the plaintiff, though successful on the main issue, is not entitled to vindictive damages; nor can he recover special damages unless claimed by his pleadings.

Campbell v. Northern Crown Bank, 18 D.L.R. 187, 24 Man. L.R. 725, 29 W.L.R. 551, 7 W.W.R. 321.

CLAIM FOR USE AND OCCUPATION.

A claim for compensation for use and occupation, not under a contract affording a basis of compensation, is not for a debt, within the meaning of the rules of the District Courts as to costs, but sounds in damages.

Noble v. Lashbrook, 40 D.L.R. 93, 11 S.L.R. 98, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 918.

ACTION TO RECOVER POSSESSION OR VALUE OF CHATTELS—ASCERTAINMENT OF VALUE—JUDGMENT FOR SMALL SUM—COSTS—COUNTERCLAIM—MALICIOUS PROSECUTION—ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES—SET-OFF—COSTS.

Reid v. Miller, 14 O.W.N. 91, [Varied 15 O.W.N. 346.]

TRESPASS.

In an action for trespass to goods the fact that they cannot be made as good as they were before the trespass is not a ground for holding them worthless; in such a case, if the goods still exist, the damages to which the plaintiff is entitled are measured by the extent to which the goods have been depreciated. [Dick v. East Coast R. Co., 3 Dig. Eng. Case Law, p. 2213, distinguished.]

Smith v. Standard Trusts Co., [1918] 3 W.W.R. 762.

INJURY TO AUTOMOBILE.

The damages recoverable for injury to an automobile is not limited to repairs that are apparent, but include also the expense of a thorough examination of the car.

Sears v. Gourre, 32 Que. S.C. 189.

(§ III J-201)—QUANTUM—INJURY OR DESTRUCTION OF ARCHITECT'S BUILDING PLANS—TEST.

The damages which an architect should receive for the wrongful destruction of building plans he had prepared in a competition but which had been rejected are properly allowed at what they would be worth to display as an illustration of the architect's professional skill, and not the entire cost of reproduction, where they would not be available for another building because of the peculiar shape of the parcel of land for which they were designed.

Nicolas v. Dom. Express Co., 18 D.L.R. 464, 20 B.C.R. 8, 28 W.L.R. 754, 6 W.W.R. 1292, varying 6 W.W.R. 1.

NEGLIGENCE OF STREET RAILWAY—INJURY TO PROPERTY—MONEY RECEIVED FROM INSURANCE COMPANY—EFFECT ON MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

At the trial of an action for damages for injury to the plaintiff's vehicle by a collision with a car of the defendants, the plaintiff, testifying on his own behalf, was asked by the defendants' counsel, on cross-examination, in regard to the quantum of damages, whether he had received money from an insurance company for the damage to his vehicle.—Held, that the Trial Judge properly refused to allow the question to be answered; the wrongdoers (the defendants) were not entitled to have any advantage from an insurance effected by the plaintiff; with the rights of the plaintiff and the insurance company inter se the defendants had no concern. Aliter, in cases under the Fatal Accidents Act, where the amount to be recovered is the actual pecuniary loss sustained by those entitled under the statute. Review of the authorities.

INJURY OR DESTRUCTION—QUANTUM—INJURY TO MOTOR CAR IN COLLISION.

Masonald v. Toronto R. Co., 4 O.W.N. 947, 24 O.W.R. 281.

INJURY TO MOTOR CAR—QUANTUM OF DAMAGES—EVIDENCE—ESTIMATE OF COST OF REPAIRS—ASSESSMENT BY JURY—APPEAL—OPTION GIVEN TO DEFENDANT TO TAKE PLAINTIFF'S INJURED CAR—PAYMENT OF INCREASED AMOUNT—COSTS.

Laird v. Taxieabs, 7 O.W.N. 736.

(§ III J-202)—DETENTION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—RENTAL VALUE.

In fixing damages for the mere detention or nonredelivery to the owner of an engine which the defendant did not use, the full rental value which the owner could have obtained for its use may properly be reduced by an allowance for wear and tear.

Vancouver Machinery Co. v. Vancouver Timber & Trading Co., 17 D.L.R. 575, 27 W.L.R. 883. [Reversed 18 D.L.R. 491.]

TAKING OR DETENTION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

Where the seller of a piano on deferred payments unlawfully seized and retook possession of the piano under the mistaken impression that the contract of sale authorized aim so to do on default, the measure of damages for the wrongful detention of same for some months under such seizure and until the return of the piano to the purchaser, is the amount for which the plaintiff could have rented another piano of the kind during the period, and a claim for "damage to credit and reputation" because of the seizure cannot be allowed.

NEGOTIUM GESTOR—RUNAWAY HORSE—

QUE. C.C. 1043, 1046, 1053, 1265.

When a person, by his free and voluntary act, acting as a negotiorum gestor, takes care of something belonging to another in his absence and without his knowledge, but for his benefit, such person can recover losses he has sustained in looking after the other's interest; e.g. one who sees a runaway horse coming, throws himself in the way and stops it, is entitled, if he be hurt, to claim from the owner of the horse the damages he suffers.

Lortie v. Adelstein, 46 Que. S.C. 543.

(§ III J-203)—CONVERSION.

Where an automobile was delivered to the defendants with authority to make all repairs thereon at a cost not to exceed a specified sum and they put a greater amount of repairs on it and then converted it to their own use they must answer for its value at the time of its conversion and cannot reduce their liability by any increased selling value attributable to the unauthorized repair. [Greer v. Faulkner, 40 Can. S.C.R. 399, applied.]

Gallagher v. Ketchum & Co., 2 D.L.R. 871, 3 O.W.N. 843, 21 O.W.R. 696.

Where the plaintiff in an action for trover, has repossessed himself of the goods and chattels alleged to have been converted, without it appearing that he had suffered any appreciable damages, he is entitled to nominal damages only.

MEASURE OF—TROVER AND CONVERSION—GOOD FAITH—DEALING AS OWNER WITH GOODS OF ANOTHER.

Nominal damages only will be awarded for a conversion where one deals as owner with goods of another under a mistaken but honest and reasonable supposition of being lawfully entitled thereto.

that they were taken by mistake, but their return, on discovery of the mistake, will minimize the damages to be awarded, if the owner is placed in such a position that he can use the goods.

Campbell v. McMillan, 22 D.L.R. 608.

CONVERSION—SET-OFF.

The measure of damages in an action for conversion is the value of the thing converted and any special damages which the plaintiff can prove; in such assessment the unpaid purchase money due the defendant on the article converted cannot be considered, but the same may be claimed by way of counterclaim or set-off.

Mellis v. Blair, 27 D.L.R. 165, 22 B.C.R. 150, 10 W.W.R. 241.

MISAPPLICATION OF BANK FUNDS.

Where the plaintiff's agent and the defendant bank have, by collusion, deflected money deposited by the plaintiff to be used for a particular purpose, the measure of damages is the actual amount of the loss sustained because of the wrongful deflection, and if none is proved then merely nominal damages.

Silverman v. White, 9 O.W.N. 110.

RELIEF AGAINST DAMAGES ON RETURNING GOODS.

Notwithstanding that there may have been a technical conversion of the plaintiff's goods by the defendant, the court has power to relieve the defendant from payment of damages for the conversion on terms whereby the goods are returned.

Duryea v. Kaufman, 2 D.L.R. 468, 3 O.W.N. 651, 21 O.W.R. 141.

REPLEVIN—NOMINAL DAMAGES.

If, in an action for the replevin of goods wrongfully seized, it appears that the plaintiff has suffered no special damage he is entitled to recover nominal damages.

(§ III J—204) — DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY—KILLING DOGS.

The sum of $125 is not an excessive sum to award as damages for the loss of a half-bred collie dog, which is shewn to have been of more than ordinary intelligence, kind and affectionate, a good watchdog, useful about the farm, and well trained to herd and attend to cattle.

K. INJURY TO REAL PROPERTY; NUISANCE. Negligence causing fires, see Negligence, I B—16.

(§ III K—205)—MEASURE OF — INJURY TO REAL PROPERTY — ABANDONMENT OF EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDINGS — DERIVATION OF USE OF LAND — LOSS OF RENTALS — INJURY TO PROPERTY DURING VACANCY BY THIEVES.

A city, which was required by s. 52 (20) of 3 Edw. VII. (Que.) c. 62, to appropriate land for public use, on the abandonment of the proceedings after notice to the landowner, the appointment of commissioners and the hearing of evidence, is answerable to the landowner for the expenses of his useless removal from the property; and also, under s. 428 of the Montreal Incorporation Act, 62 Vict. c. 58, for the loss of the rental from his property as the result of the imminence of the expropriation, subject to the limitations thereby provided, had the expropriation been carried out. On the abandonment by a city of a proceeding to expropriate land, although it is liable to the landowner for the loss of rentals while his property by reason of the imminence of the expropriation was lying idle, it is not answerable for injuries caused to the property by the acts of thieves or criminals.

Robillard v. Montreal, 13 D.L.R. 680.

DRAINAGE WORKS — CONSTRUCTION — NEGLIGENCE — COMPENSATION — REASONABLE EXERCISE OF POWERS — ADJOINING LANDOWNER — RAILWAY ACT, s. 250 (1).

Where no negligence has been shewn on the part of the railway company in carrying out the construction of drainage works, and the damage, if any, is due solely to reasonable exercise by the company of the powers conferred upon it, the owner of adjoining lands cannot recover compensation. Such an injury should have been foreseen and compensation claimed for it under the statute at the time the railway was constructed. Under the circumstances, the cost of lowering a railway culvert after construction to provide better drainage should be borne by the adjoining landowner. [Wallace v. G.T.R. Co., 16 U.C.R. 551; Knapp v. Great Western R. Co., 6 U.C.C.P. 187; Nicol v. Canada Southern R. Co., 40 U.C.R. 583; L'Esperance v. Great Western R., 14 U.C.R. 173, followed; Denholm v. TRESPASS.

Where an act of trespass is not accompanied by circumstances of aggravation and where there has been a pecuniary loss in consequence of the trespass, the proper measure of damages is the actual pecuniary loss sustained.

Nagy v. Venne, 9 S.L.R. 186, 34 W.L.R. 413.

RIGHTS UNDER POSSESSORY TITLE — FLOODING FROM DRAINS.

A person holding a lot under a possessory title is entitled to damages from persons who permit water to escape from their drains on to and to the injury of the lot. Kilby v. Point Grey, 24 B.C.R. 107, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 206.

OVERHOLDING TENANT — USE AND OCCUPATION — VALUE — COSTS — RECOVERY.

Although, in principle, the punishment of a presumptuous litigant by the payment of the costs, yet a tenant who contests a legitimate demand of expulsion of the premises he occupies against the will of the landlord, must, besides paying the costs, also pay the damages resulting from such an illegal occupation; but if there be no deceit nor malice on the part of the tenant, the damages can include only that which may have been foreseen when sustained, and which directly and immediately follow the cause which has produced them, that is, the value of occupation of the premises. The Court of King's Bench will not interfere with the judgment of the trial court as to evidence fixing the value of the occupation of the premises, claimed as damages, unless a gross error or a serious injustice is evident.

Friedman v. St. Charles, 27 Que. K.B. 563.

RESPONSIBILITY — CHANGING LEVEL — CITY OF MONTREAL — DAMAGES — C.C. ART. 1053.

If a municipality changes the level of a street, it should indemnify the owner of a house situated in the street, if the value of the house is depreciated. The indemnity should be founded on the following principles: If after the work is done the house has no real value whatever, the municipality should pay the total value; if the property can still be used, but to a less degree, the municipality should pay the difference between its value before the work and that which it has after the work. It is a wrong principle to pretend that the owner in this case has the right to pull down his house, to raise his land to the new level of the street, and to rebuild his house as it was in the first place. It is more practical to build a house with a basement. However if the owner has not the necessary means to build according to the exigencies of the new land, he necessarily suffers a diminution in the enjoyment of his property and the property is decreased in value, for which he should be indemnified.

Gallagher v. Montreal, 56 Que. S.C. 139, [See 20 Que. P.R. 264.]

WATERCOURSE — WORKING — VALUATION — REPORT OF VALUATORS — COST — DENIAL — ACQUESCENCE — FORMALITIES — S. REF. [1909] ARTS. 7295, 7296.

The valutors named to value the damages caused by the owner of a mill situated on a water course, by virtue of R.S.Q.

[1909] arts. 7295-7296, are not bound to limit themselves to damages suffered at the date of the valuation; they can allow a fixed sum, as much for the past as for the future, or an annual sum. These valutors have the right to determine who should pay the cost. In any case even if they have not this right, their report is not void for this reason. If one of the valutors is subject to challenge, the complaining party should repudiate him "in limine litis," and not after their report is made, and he has acquiesced in it. The valutors have not the right, under the Act, to examine witnesses under oath; they are not even obliged to hear the parties; no rule is fixed by the Act for their valuation.

(§ III K-206)—FORBIDABLE ENTRY OR POSSESSION—TRESPASS.

The extension by the owner of a landlord of an existing pig corral is not such a peculiar and unusual use of the land as will relieve a trespasser from the duty of anticipating the probability of it, and being charged in damages for the interference with the owner's intended exercise of his right in that respect. The rental value of land is not to be adopted as the measure of damages for a trespass thereon if special damage is alleged and proved, and the trespasser will be liable for loss shewn to have been suffered by the owner by reason of his being deprived of an actually intended and natural and probable use of his land. [France v. Gaudet, L.R. 6 Q.B. 199, followed.]

Where several animals, belonging to different owners, have at various times trespassed upon the plaintiff's land, and the whole damage done by all of them can be ascertained, but the defendant's animal has sometimes been among those trespassing and sometimes not, and there is no proof that any particular damage was done by any particular one of the animals, the court will, nevertheless, assess the damages against the defendant as best it can.

Broderick v. Forbes, 5 D.L.R. 508.

MEASURE OF — INJURY TO REAL PROPERTY — TRESPASS TO LAND — CUTTING TIMBER — MISTAKE AS TO BOUNDARY — EFFECT.

The damages for cutting timber over the boundary of defendant's timber limit will be assessed on the basis of the value of same as standing timber, where the defendant acted under a bona fide supposition of right and without intending to commit a deliberate trespass.

Chew Lumber Co. v. Howe Sound Co., 13 D.L.R. 735, 18 B.C.R. 312, 25 W.L.R. 105, 4 W.W.R. 1308.

TRESPASS TO LAND — ENTRY "UNDER CLAIM OF RIGHT" — QUANTUM.

If a trespasser enters on another's land "under a claim of right" the damages should be moderate, especially where coupled with an injunction and where the actual damages are trifling and this, although the entry was made with a high hand.

McMenemy v. Grant, 9 D.L.R. 319, 4 O.W.N. 802, 24 O.W.R. 100.

ANIMALS TRESPASSING.

Where several animals belonging to different owners have at various times trespassed on plaintiff's land, but where the evidence does not establish that animals belonging to any other owner than the defendant did any damage to the plaintiff's grain, the court is justified in assessing the full amount of the damages against the defendant.

Pixley v. Bedford, 42 D.L.R. 560, 11 S.L.R. 345, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1055.

MINING LAW — COAL — TRESPASS — REMOVAL OF COAL — SINISTER INTENTION — MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

Where a company in working its mine enters upon and works the coal on adjoining property without the consent or knowledge of the owners, and takes it for the purposes of sale, the proper estimate of damages is the value of the coal without deducting any of the necessary expenses of working and taking it out.

Wellington (colliery Co.), 26 B.C.R. 315.

(§ III K—207) — SUBWAY — CONSTRUCTION — REMOVAL OF APPROACH TO PROPERTY — INJURY — COMPENSATION — BUSINESS PROFITS.

Where land is injuriously affected by the removal of the approach to the premises by the construction of a subway by a railway company, the owner is not entitled to compensation for loss of business profits resulting therefrom where no part of the land is taken. Section 155 of the Canadian R. Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 37) is taken from s. 16 of the English Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and the English decisions are applicable thereto.

(§ III K—210) — ILLEGAL DISTRESS.

The measure of damages for illegal seizure is not only the value of the goods distrained and sold, but also damages for being deprived of the use of them, if thereby the tenant is thrown out of employment or is prevented from engaging in his ordinary business; the value of the goods is the "fair value to the tenant."

Jarvis v. Hall, 8 D.L.R. 412, 4 O.W.N. 232, 23 O.W.R. 282.

ILLEGAL DISTRESS — QUANTUM.

The damages assessable to a debtor whose chattels are wrongfully seized and sold are based, not upon the price obtained at the forced sale, but upon the actual value of the property so taken.

(§ III K—211) — SERVITUDE — AGRICULTURE — DRAINAGE — FURROWS — QUARRY — QUE. C.C. 501, 558.

Although in the interest of agriculture an owner may plough in his field the necessary furrows to cultivate his land, even if such furrows increase the servitude of the draining of the higher lands into the lower ones, yet such is not the case where a person operates a quarry and, as a consequence of such works, concentrates all the water and then drains it off into the servient land. He thereby aggravates the servitude which that land owes, and he must therefore compensate the owner.

Laehance v. Gravel, 23 Que. K.B. 442.

(§ III K—212) — WRONGFUL REMOVAL OF CORPSE FROM BURIAL LOT — PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

Punitive damages will be awarded in an action for the wrongful removal of a human body from a burial lot, where the boxes containing two bodies were enclosed in rough lumber boxes and reentered elsewhere, one above the other, in a common grave, and the place of reburial of the body of a child is left uncertain.

O'Connor v. Victoria, 11 D.L.R. 577, 4 W.W.R. 4.

(§ III K—214) — OPENING UP DITCH.

A municipality is answerable in damages for its wrongful act in casting water into a ravine on the land of the plaintiff, the result of which was to cause a more rapid erosion of the land at the mouth of the ravine, and to keep the land about it wet and impassible for a longer period than formerly.

Lamontagne v. Woodlands, 5 D.L.R. 524, 22 Man. L.R. 495, 21 W.L.R. 881.

WASTEFUL METHOD OF WORKING LAND.

Upon denying a vendee rescission of a contract for the purchase of timber lands where the price to be paid was based upon the number of feet of lumber cut, the vendor's counterclaim for loss occasioned by the wasteful method adopted by the vendee for working the lands, will also be denied in the absence of some obligation on the part of the latter as to the method of operation, since, in any event, under the contract of purchase, the land belonged to the vendee.

Eaton v. Dunn, 5 D.L.R. 604, 46 N.S.R. 156, 11 E.L.R. 52. [Affirmed, 9 D.L.R. 303, 47 Can. S.C.R. 205.]

LIABILITY — DAMAGES — RAILWAY — PRESCRIPTION — LEGAL CONNECTION — CITY OF MONTREAL.

A claim for damages against the city of Montreal and a railway company for damages to property, owing to the construction of a tunnel under a public street for the advantage of the railway company, and even authorized to that effect by the Railway Board, cannot be prescribed under s. 537 of the city's charter, or under s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, because such an action is not the result of an offence, a quasi-offence, or an illegality, mentioned in those sections, but is rather the result of a statutory obligation forcing those who exercise rights conferred by statute to pay a compensation to those who suffer some harm through the exercise of such rights. In the present case the railway company (C.P.R. Co.) having itself done the works for its own advantage and under the operation of the Railway Act, there was a legal connection between the said company and the plaintiff.

Daoust v. Montreal, 46 Que. S.C. 252, affirmed in 51 Que. S.C. 241.

(§ III K—215)—INJURY TO TIMBER—FIRE SPREADING FROM RAILWAY.

The persistent failure of a railway company to remove from its right-of-way, as required by statute, growing combustible material likely to catch fire from sparks from the locomotives and to spread to adjoining owners' property is an element to be considered in favour of awarding liberal damages in that contingency.

INJURY TO CROPS — FIRE — MEASURE OF DAMAGES — GENERAL DAMAGES.

Where the negligence of the defendant in spreading fire contrary to the Prairie Fires Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 129, destroyed a certain acreage of wheat which would have yielded a certain quantity of which the value is proved, the special damages allowable therefor should not be supplemented by an additional sum as general damages.

REMOVING PROPERTY — INJURY TO POSSESSION.

The plaintiff in a possessory action cannot demand damages as compensation for the value of the things which have been taken away; he can obtain only such damages as may have resulted from disturbing his possession, if any such there may have been.

(§ III K—216)—CUTTING TIMBER.

The measure of damages in an action by a patentee of mining lands in Ontario for trespass in cutting and removing pine timber is the full value of the timber so cut and removed.

National Trust Co. v. Miller; Schmidt v. Miller, 3 D.L.R. 69, 46 Can. S.C.R. 45. [Reversed on different points, 15 D.L.R. 753, [1914] A.C. 197.]

The measure of damages for a wilful and deliberate trespass in cutting and removing timber from the timber limits of another, where the evidence does not warrant the application of any other rule, is the value of the timber after it was severed and manufactured while on the plaintiff's land.

CUTTING TIMBER — STUMPAGE.

As against the unsuccessful claimant of woodlands who had entered and cut down growing trees after notice of plaintiff's superior title, the damages for trespass need not be restricted to a recovery upon a stumpage basis.

CUTTING TIMBER — TRESPASS OVER MARKED BOUNDARY.

The quantum of damages for trespass in cutting and removing timber from the plaintiff's limits where the boundary line was clearly marked and deliberately crossed, will be the value of the cut timber less only the cost of felling the trees and fitting them for removal, and without any reduction in respect of the cost of moving the logs. (Last Chance v. American Boy, 2 Martin's Mining Cases (B.C.), 151, applied.)

Adams Powell River Co. v. Canadian Pigeon Sound Co., 17 D.L.R. 691, 19 B.C.R. 575, 28 W.L.R. 13.

CUTTING TIMBER.

In assessing damages against a lumber company for entering and cutting timber on lands of another company there may be allowed, in addition to the stumpage valuation, damages for the occupation of the land while the lumbering operations were going on, the consequent construction of roads through the woods and the felling of trees for that purpose, and damages because of the trees having been young and unmaturing, which would have been of more value to the landowner had they been left standing.

TRESPASS — CUTTING OF TIMBER — PLAN OF LEAVE AND LICENSE — NOT PROVEN — EXEMPLARY DAMAGES NOT NECESSARILY JUSTIFIED.

In an action for damages for trespass on lands, for the taking of timber and injury to the soil, where the defendants are unable to substantiate a plea of leave and license, they may not necessarily be assessed in exemplary damages.

(III K-218)—FALL OF WATER TANK.

A subcontractor who constructed a steel support for a water tank that was erected on the roof of a building, which fell, by reason of the defective construction of the supports, must indemnify the principal contractor to whom he supplied it for all damages the latter may be condemned to pay by reason of the fall of the tank.

(§ III K-221)—OBSTRUCTION OF NAVIGATION—DIRECT AND REMOTE LOSSES.

In an action for unlawfully obstructing a private right of navigation, the losses in respect of a warehouse and wharf and the wood piled thereon for steamer use, as well as the loss of business and profits are recoverable as elements of damage; but a depreciation in the value of the steamer is too remote and not a special damage as distinguished from the damage occurring to the others of the public plying on such waters. OBSTRUCTION OF ACCESS TO SEA — RAILWAY ACT.

The obstruction of a right of access to the sea by reason of the construction of a railway is within the meaning of s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, and an action for damages occasioned thereby must be brought within one year of the placing of the obstruction.

INUNDATION OF LANDS — VALUE — PERMANENCY OF LOSS.

In an action claiming damages for inundation of land, the court cannot award the total value of the land inundated if this inundation is not permanent. It should, if the evidence justifies it, admit only the loss suffered from being deprived of the enjoyment of the property. In default of such evidence, the Court of Review will remit the cause to the Superior Court to allow the parties to complete the proof.

(§ III L-232) — EXPROPRIATION — COMPENSATION OR DEPRECIATION IN VALUE — INJURY TO BUSINESS — COMPENSATION — BASED ON CAPITALIZATION OF PROFITS — GOODWILL — MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

On the expropriation of lands and buildings by a city for park purposes, the owner who has carried on a profitable restaurant, and boat house business there which, because of the peculiar situation of the property, is not capable of being transferred to other premises in the neighbourhood, is not entitled to demand that compensation for the land value shall be fixed by capitalization at 4 per cent the net annual revenue, as on the loss of a definite and fixed income; the business being one in which the absolute continuity of the profits is doubtful, an award is properly based upon three factors: (1) the value of the land (2) the buildings, plant and stock in trade (3) damages for disturbance; and where the land value had been fixed with regard to its special adaptability for the business, an allowance of 3 years' profits for disturbance amounting to an extinguishment of the good will pertaining to the location was affirmed.

Re Meyer & Toronto, 19 D.L.R. 785, 30 O.L.R. 426.

INJURY TO BUSINESS—LOGGING.

The suppliants alleged that their business of driving logs on the La Croche river was interfered with by the piers of a bridge constructed across the river by the National Transcontinental Railway, and they asked to be reimbursed a sum which they claimed they had been obliged to pay to break a jamb of logs caused by the alleged faulty construction of the piers, as regards using the river for driving logs. The court having found that the railway had statutory authority for the construction of the bridge, held, that the suppliants were not entitled to compensation. While, under art. 7298, R.S.Q., 1909, any person, firm or company has the privilege of floating and driving timber down rivers, such privilege is not a predial servitude, as it is shared in common with the rest of the public, and is not derived from any title or fee in the land.

(§ III L-237) — EXPROPRIATION OF LAND — COMPENSATION — DAMAGES IN LIEU OF INTEREST.

Interest on the amount awarded dates only from the making of the award, but the arbitrators can award an indemnity for the use and occupation of the land during the expropriation proceedings.

Baril v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 46 Que. S.C. 295.

(§ III L-240) — MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—VALUATION.

The principle upon which compensation and damages should be awarded upon an expropriation of land is the market value, including the potential value of the land taken, at the time of the filing of the plans, without taking into consideration the values and elements of compensation incident to the property at the time of the award.

St. John & Quebec R. Co. v. Fraser, 24 D.L.R. 339, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 177, 43 N.B.R. 388.

The value of lands expropriated for a public work is to be determined prima facie upon the basis of the market price, but the prospective capabilities of the property have to be taken into account in ascertaining the market price, and an additional allowance made for compulsory expropriation.

The King v. Moncton Land Co., 1 D.L.R. 279, 13 Can. Ex. 521.

ESTIMATION OF VALUE — RECONVEYANCE OF PART TAKEN.

Though an owner cannot be compelled to take back land after it has been found unsuitable for the purposes for which it was taken by a railway company, the fact that, by accepting a reconveyance, the value of the remaining land would be materially increased, should be taken into consideration when awarding compensation therefor.

Re Hannah & Campbellford L.O. & W.R. Co., 25 D.L.R. 234, 34 O.L.R. 615, 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 326.

COMPENSATION—VALUES.

In expropriation proceedings the arbitrators should take into consideration any special advantages, such as position or location, and should award the value of the land with all its present or future advantages, but must consider the actual and not any uncertain or hypothetical values.

C.N.O. R. Co. v. Perrault, 24 D.L.R. 295, 24 Que. K.B. 78.

LAND FOR MILITARY CAMP—COMPENSATION—VALUES.

Where land is expropriated by the Crown for a military camp, the proper compensation to be paid is the market value of the land as a whole, as it stood at the date of the expropriation, the compensation not to be assessed at the bare market value, but on a liberal basis.

The King v. McLaughlin, 26 D.L.R. 373, 15 Can. Ex. 417.

MARKET PLACE—LOSS OF VALUE BY ABANDONMENT OF WORK.

An expropriation by the Crown of property which is subsequently returned to the owner, does not entitle the latter to damages for depreciation in the value of the property arising from the destruction of a market place suffered in common by all property owners in the neighborhood, nor for the loss of enhanced value by reason of the subsequent abandonment of the projected public work by the government.

Gibb v. The King, 27 D.L.R. 262, 52 Can. S.C.R. 402, affirming 15 Can. 157.

TRAINING CAMP — COMPENSATION — FARM — TIMBER — VALUATION — OFFSET — USE AND OCCUPATION.

The basis of compensation for the expropriation of farm or timber lands by the Crown for training camp purposes is the market value of the property as a whole, at the date of expropriation, as shown by the prices other farms had brought in the neighborhood when acquired for similar purposes, the benefits derived by the owner from the use and occupation of the land after the expropriation to go as an offset against his claim for damages.

The King v. King, 41 D.L.R. 374, 17 Can. Ex. 471. [Affirmed by Supreme Court of Canada, Dec. 11, 1916.]

COMPENSATION FOR LANDS COMPULSORILY TAKEN.

The possibility of an added utility for an expropriated property due to existing possibilities of development is, subject to limits, a right and proper subject for consideration in awarding compensation on expropriation; the value to be ascertained is the value to the seller of the property at the time of the expropriation, with all its existing advantages and all its possibilities, excluding any advantage due to the carrying out of the scheme for which the property is compulsorily acquired. [Cedars Rapids Mfg. Co. v. Lacoste, 16 D.L.R. 168, [1914] A.C. 569; Sidney v. North Eastern R. Co., [1914] 3 K.B. 629; Lucas v. Chesterfield Gas, [1909] 1 K.B. 16, followed.]

Fraser v. Fraserville, 34 D.L.R. 211, [1917] A.C. 187, 23 Rev. de Jur. 446, affirming 25 Que. K.B. 106.

VALUATION OF PROPERTY—INTEREST—COSTS.

In fixing compensation for land taken, the value of the property must be assessed as of the date of expropriation, at its market value, in respect of the best uses to which it can be put, taking into consideration any prospective capabilities that the property may have for utilization in a reasonably near future; the "quantity survey method," while disclosing the intrinsic value, does not necessarily establish the market value. Intrinsic value is that which does not depend upon any exterior or surrounding circumstances. Where there has been no tender of compensation, interest and costs will be allowed in addition.

The King v. Carslake Hotel Co., 34 D.L.R. 273, 16 Can. Ex. 24.

VALUE—10 PER CENT ALLOWANCE.

In fixing the compensation to be paid for property expropriated under statutory powers, it is proper and customary in ordinary cases to add 10 per cent to the fair market value in order to fully compensate the owner for contingent losses and inconveniences caused by the compulsory taking.

The King v. Hunting, Barrow and Bell, 32 D.L.R. 331. [See 18 Can. Ex. 442.]

VALUE OF LAND—SPECIAL ADAPTABILITY.

The compensation awarded for expropriated lands should in no case exceed the price that legitimate competition of purchasers would force it up to. Special adaptability for any purpose is an element in considering the true market value.

The King v. Roy, 33 D.L.R. 52, 15 Can. Ex. 472.

VALUE OF BUILDING.

Where the expropriation of land results in the demolition of a substantial portion of a building on the land the remaining portion of that building is worth nothing, as such, and the full market value, estimated at what it would cost to put up new buildings, should be paid.

The King v. Peters, 32 D.L.R. 692, 15 Can. Ex. 462.

VALUE OF FARM.

In fixing the amount of compensation for a farm expropriated for public purposes, all elements which tend to make it especially valuable to the owner as a farm should be taken into consideration.

The King v. Woodlock, 32 D.L.R. 664, 15 Can. Ex. 429. [See also The King v. McLaughlin, 26 D.L.R. 373.]

RAILWAY EXPROPRIATION.

A railway company ran its line of railway diagonally through the claimant's half section of land, taking 12.5 acres for the right-of-way. The claimant and an agent of the company made an agreement, on a Sunday, whereby the company was to pay the claimant and the claimant agreed to accept $130 per acre for the land actually taken and $13 per acre as damages for the loss of crop. This agreement was put in writing and was tendered in evidence upon an arbitration to fix the claimant's compensation.—Held, that it was admissible as evidence tending to show what amount was claimed as damages before any proceedings were taken. The agreement was silent as to how much, if any, of the $130 per acre was intended to cover damage for the land injuriously affected by the construction of the railway. Held, that the value of the land to be estimated is the value it has in the hands of the owner, at the time of the expropriation, subject to such restrictions upon its use as may exist. RAILWAY EXPROPRIATION — REDUCTION OF AMOUNT ALLOWED FOR SEVERANCE OF LAND — COSTS.

Re Lee and Lake Erie and North. R. Co., 10 O.W.N. 31.

ARBITRATION — BASIS OF AWARD.

In an expropriation under the Railway Act of Canada, the arbitrators, in giving their award, may grant a total sum for the value of the land and for all damages without giving the grounds upon which they base it. In giving their award, the arbitrators should consider the value of the land expropriated not at the time of the hearing, but at the date of the deposit of the plan in the Registry Office and of the offer by the expropriating party. Nevertheless, at the hearing before the arbitrators, it is permissible to prove the value of the immovable at the time of the enquiry by witnesses, but this value can only be considered as a circumstance aiding to establish the value of the property at the time of the deposit of the plan and of the offer. The law of Canada, in matter of expropriation, as regards the principles upon which compensation for the land taken is to be awarded, is the same as the law of England. The indemnity to be paid for land is the value to the owner as it existed at the date of the taking, not the value to the taker. The value to the owner consists of all advantages which the land possesses, present or future, but it is the present value, along with such advantages that fall to be determined. When there is a special value over the bare value of the ground, consisting in a prospective value on account of certain undertaking, the value is not a proportional part of the assessed value of the whole undertaking, but is merely the price enhanced above the bare value of the ground which possible intending undertakers would give. The price must be tested by the imaginary market which would have ruled had the land been exposed for sale before any undertakers had secured the powers, or acquired the other subjects, which made the undertaking, as a whole, a realized possibility.

VALUE — ESTIMATE OF.

The expenses incurred in an expropriation of land for the purposes of public utility form part of the proper indemnity payable to the owner.

Saint-Ones v. Marchessault, 42 Que. S.C. 375.

WOOD AND AGRICULTURAL LANDS — WATER ADVANTAGES.

Compensation for the expropriation of a woodlot is to be arrived at by seeking the market value of the same as a whole and as it stood at the date of the expropriation; not by calculating the profits which might be realized out of the sale of the timber upon the land. In assessing compensation in the case of agricultural land, the fact that there is a small lake on the property, suitable for watering cattle and other general purposes, will be taken into consideration as an additional element of value in respect of its use for agriculture.

The King v. Woodlock, 15 Can. Ex. 429. (§ III 1.—241) — ESTIMATED AS OF WHAT TIME.

Compensation for the expropriation of lands for the purpose of a public work is to be measured by the market value of the lands as a whole at the time of expropriation, in respect of the best uses to which it can be put, taking into consideration any prospective capabilities and any inherent value it may have, and the damage to the remainder of the property held in unity therewith.

The King v. Kendall, 8 D.L.R. 900, 14 Can. Ex. 71.

EMINENT DOMAIN — ESTIMATE AS OF WHAT TIME — LAND TAKEN BY RAILWAY TO OBTAIN GRAVEL.

Compensation for land taken by a railway company under s. 180 of the Railway Act, 1906, to obtain a supply of material for the construction, maintenance or operation of a railway is to be made as of the time when the company takes possession of the land.

Sask. Land & Homestead Co. v. Calgary & Edmonton R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 193, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 114, 6 A.L.R. 471, 25 W.L.R. 925, 5 W.W.R. 268.

EMINENT DOMAIN — VALUE AT DATE OF TAKING — RAILWAY ACT.

In expropriation for railway purposes under the Railway Act, 1906, the landowner's compensation is to be fixed according to the value at the date of expropriation taking into account the future potentialities of the property, only as they affect the present market value. [Cedars Rapids v. Lacoste, 16 D.L.R. 168, 30 T.L.R. 293; Re Lucas & Chesterfield, [1909] 1 K. B. 16, followed.]

The King v. Trudel et al., 19 D.L.R. 270, 49 Can. S.C.R. 501.

EMINENT DOMAIN—VALUE TO OWNER AT DATE OF TAKING.

The value to be paid for on the compulsory expropriation is the value to the owner as it existed at the date of the taking, not the value to the taker.

Cedars Rapids Mfg. & Power Co. v. Lacoste, 16 D.L.R. 168, 110 L.T. 873, 6 W.W.R. 92, 30 T.L.R. 293, [1914] A.C. 569, reversing 43 Que. S.C. 410.

ESTIMATION OF VALUE—TIME.

The intention of the Railway Act, Alta., 1907, c. 8, is to fix the last convenient date as that in reference to which the value of property expropriated shall be determined; if there is an agreement of sale the date of that agreement is taken or if there is a judge's order appointing an arbitrator, the date of that order is taken, but if no such order is required by reason of the parties agreeing on the third arbitrator, the value is fixed as of the date of the service of the notice to treat under s. 101.

AS TO ENHANCED VALUE—TIME.

Where land was taken for the purpose of a gravel pit for a government railway, the price paid on the sale of the land some three years after the expropriation of the right-of-way when the land had been enhanced in value by the operation of the railway, was held to be the best test and starting-point for ascertaining the market value of the land.

Demers v. The King, 15 Can. Ex. 492.

(§ III L—243)—EXPROPRIATION BY—INJURIES TO BUSINESS—COMPENSATION—MEASURE OF.

In enacting that compensation be paid to persons whose lands are injuriously affected by the construction of a railway, Parliament must be taken to have contemplated not only such damages as result from the actual construction of the embankments, tracks and buildings of the railway, but also damages arising from the maintenance and operation of the railway when completed. In assessing compensation for real property expropriated by the Crown primarily only such damages may be allowed as were referable to the land itself and not such as purely and simply affect the person or business of the owner; but where the whole of the owner's property upon which he has been carrying on business, is taken and the property has a special value for the purposes of his business, then its special value as a business site becomes an element in the market value of the land and must be considered in assessing the value.

The King v. Richards, 14 Can. Ex. 365.

(§ III L—244)—CUTTING OFF TERMINAL FACILITIES.

The measure of damages for the wrongful removal by a railway company of a spur track adjacent to a coal and lumber yard, from which track, at small expense, coal and lumber could be unloaded from cars directly into such yard, is the additional cost of handling and hauling of such commodities from the freight yards of the company to the coal and lumber yard.

Robinson v. C.N.R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 716, 21 W.L.R. 916, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 281.

DISCUSSED SHIPYARD—BASIS OF COMPENSATION.

Where an old shipyard, not used as such at the time of expropriation, has been taken for the purposes of a public work, compensation should not be assessed on the basis of separating the various factors or component parts of the shipyard and estimating their several values, but the yard must be regarded as a whole and its market value as such assessed as of the time of the expropriation.

The King v. Loggie, 15 Can. Ex. 80.

(§ III L—250)—VALUE FOR SPECIAL USE.

The market price of lands expropriated by the Crown for public works is prima facie the basis of valuation in eminent domain proceedings, but where a use for a special purpose is shown on the part of the owner a reasonable allowance must be added in respect thereof. [Dodge v. The Queen, 38 Can. S.C.R. 149, applied.]

The King v. Rivers, 1 D.L.R. 505.

MARKET AND INTRINSIC VALUES.

Under s. 3 of the Expropriation Act, R.S.C., 1906, c. 143, when land is expropriated for the purposes of the government, the owner is entitled to have it assessed as of the date of expropriation, at its market value, taking into consideration the best uses to which it can be put, and not on the basis of its intrinsic value.

The King v. Manuel, 25 D.L.R. 626, 15 Can. Ex. 381. [Affirmed, 18 Can. Ex. 53.]

LAND—SPECIAL VALUE—ADAPTABILITY FOR BUSINESS.

Where its location and adaptability make land worth more to the owner than its intrinsic value, those circumstances should not be taken into consideration in fixing the compensation after expropriation; what a prudent man in the owner's place would pay is the proper measure of value.

Lake Erie & Northern R. v. Schooley, 30 D.L.R. 289, 53 Can. S.C.R. 416, varying 25 D.L.R. 537.

ABANDONED INDUSTRIAL SITE—COMMERCIAL ADAPTABILITY.

Certain land taken for a public work was the site of a discarded industrial enterprise with no hope of revival at the time of the taking. The unused building and plant connected with the enterprise gave no added value, but on the other hand the land had potential capabilities in a general way for commercial purposes by reason of its proximity to rail and water-side. Held, that damages ought not to be assessed on the basis of the former use of the property being restored, but in view of the general adaptability of the property for commercial purposes.

The King v. Peters, 15 Can. Ex. 462.

SPECIAL ADAPTABILITY—PRIOR EXPROPRIATION.

Special adaptability for railway purposes is nothing more than an element in the general market value of the property. The owner of property over which one railway has already obtained a right-of-way is entitled to other and different damages for a second railway expropriating lands alongside the first, the property having already adjusted itself to the first expropriation.

The King v. Roy, 15 Can. Ex. 472.

EXPROPRIATION BY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—SPECIAL ADAPTABILITY—ALLOWANCE FOR.

Meyer v. Toronto, 25 O.W.R. 1.

EMINENT DOMAIN—POSSIBILITIES OF SPECIAL USE.

The value to the owner which the taker must pay on a compulsory expropriation consists in all advantages which the land possesses, present or future, but it is the present value alone of such advantages that falls to be determined. Of a compulsory expropriation under statutory powers, if the element of value over and above the bare value of the ground itself commonly spoken of as the agricultural value consists in its adaptability for a certain undertaking which necessarily would include other properties, the value to be assessed by the arbitrators is not a proportional part of the assumed value of the whole undertaking, but is merely the price, enhanced above the bare value of the ground which possible intending undertakers would give, and that price must be tested by the imaginary market which would have ruled had the land been exposed for sale before any undertakers had secured the powers, or acquired the other subjects which made the undertaking as a whole a realized possibility.

Cedars Rapids Mfg. & Power Co. v. LaCoste, 16 D.L.R. 168, 110 L.T. 873, 6 W.V.R. 62, 30 Times L.K. 293, [1914] A.C. 369, reversing 43 Que. S.C. 410.

(§ III L.—251)—WATER LOTS—ABANDONMENT—RIPARIAN RIGHTS—SAW MILL.

The value of a water lot, expropriated for the purpose of a public work, must be assessed in view of such riparian rights as are actually enjoyed by the owner at the time of the taking; and where property used in connection with a saw mill, is taken by the Crown and subsequently abandoned under s. 23 of the Expropriation Act, the owner is entitled to be compensated for what the property would have been worth to him if used for that business during the time he was ousted from its possession by the Crown.

The King v. C.P. Lumber, 26 D.L.R. 80, 15 Can. Ex. 350.

LEASEHOLD—ADVANTAGE AND OFFSETS.

Where a municipality expropriates the unexpired term of a lease it had made, with the water rights in connection therewith, it cannot set off the probable losses of the lessee, nor can the lessee claim the expected profits, if the lease were continued; the proper basis of compensation is the value of the water power and of the use and occupation for the unexpired term, and reasonable expenses for removing the business to another location.

Re Pettam and Hanover, 31 D.L.R. 142, 36 O.L.R. 582.

(§ III L.—255)—CONSEQUENTIAL INJURIES.

In fixing compensation for lands expropriated under the Ontario Railway Act, the date for valuation is that of the service of notice to the owner under s. 68. Benefit to other lands not taken should not be considered when fixing compensation for the land taken. Where the land expropriated forms an important part of one holding, as in the case of subdivision lands, compensation must be made for consequential injuries resulting from severance, and of loss of access hampering the use and disposal of the remainder.

Toronto Suburban R. Co. v. Everson, 34 D.L.R. 421, 54 Can. S.C.R. 395.

COMPENSATION FOR INJURIOUS AFFECTIO—CITY ACT, SASK.

The owner of property injuriously affected by the building of a subway is entitled to damages under s. 247 of the City Act (R.N.S. 1909, c. 84) although no land has been actually taken. The compensation to be awarded is to be determined by the depreciation in value of the property as of the date of publication of the notice of completion of the work. The fact that during the construction of the works the claimant recovered some insurance for injury to his buildings by fire, and with the insurance money recovered, built other buildings, does not affect the issue.

INJURY FROM CONSTRUCTION OF RAILWAY BRIDGE—WORK AUTHORIZED BY STATUTE—INTERFERENCE WITH LOGGING.

Where any right of property is injuriously affected by a railway company in the exercise of powers conferred upon it by Act of Parliament, the company is not liable in damages for such injury unless Parliament has made provision therefor. 2. The suppliants alleged that their business of driving logs on the La Croche river was interfered with by the piers of a bridge constructed across the river by the National Transcontinental Railway and they asked to be reimbursed a sum which they claimed they had been obliged to pay to break a jam of logs caused by the alleged faulty construction of the piers as regards using the river for driving logs. The court having found that the railway had statutory authority for the construction of the bridge:—Held, that the suppliants were not entitled to compensation. 3. While, under the provisions of art. 7298, R.S.Q., 1909, any person, firm or company has the privilege of floating and driving timber down rivers, such privilege is not a predial servitude, as it is shared in common with the rest of the public, and is not derived from any title of fee in the land.

(§ 111 L—258)—EMINENT DOMAIN PROCEEDINGS—RAILWAY RIGHT-OF-WAY ACROSS FARM.

The loss of time and inconvenience of transporting the crop from the part of the farm separated from the buildings by the construction of the railway on a compulsory taking of a strip of land for the right-of-way, is proper to be considered in estimating the damages only in so far as it effects a depreciation of the market value of the land not taken. (§ 111 L—259)—EMINENT DOMAIN—INCONVENIENCE AND ADDITIONAL COST OF CULTIVATING FARM CROSSED BY RAILWAY.

In awarding damages against a railway company in eminent domain proceedings in respect of its right-of-way across a farm, the inconvenience of transferring machinery and farm implements, and the like, from one part of the farm to another and the inconvenience in farming and cultivating the land, occasioned by the construction of the railway, are not separate items to be capitalized on an ascertainment of a prospective annual loss to the owner whose farm is divided, but are to be considered only as factors in fixing the depreciation of the market value of the remaining parts of the farm.

(§ 111 L—260)—ABUTTING OWNERS—RIGHTS IN FORESHORE.

The contingency that owners of lots abutting a river might acquire from the municipality additional ground in the foreshore to extend the depth of those lots in lieu of what had been taken from them in front in a street widening operation, or the owners' chances of getting leave from the Crown to extend some works or pier-head over the foreshore not belonging to the Crown, are too remote and speculative as elements of compensation for the taking of the foreshore for reclamation purposes, and an award based on such valuation is invalid and will be set aside.

LAND ABUTTING ON RAILWAY—COMPENSATION—RAILWAY ACT (CAN.).

The owner of land adjacent to or abutting upon the street over which a railway subject to the Railway Act (Can.), is to be constructed may be awarded compensation by the Railway Board under 1 & 2 Geo. V., c. 22, s. 6, for consequent injury to such land, although damages of that character cannot be awarded in an arbitration under the Railway Act.

(§ III L.—275) — INJURIOUS AFFECTION — IN HIGHWAY CASES.

The Crown, having substituted for a level crossing a permanent subway resulting in a material change in the level of the street, is liable to an owner for special damage to his property, but not for personal damage or loss of business.

Loss of direct access to one's house or land, occasioned by the closing of a highway, under s. 509 of the City Act (Sask.), entitles the owner to compensation under the statute.

(§ III L.—276) — ESTABLISHMENT OF STREETS.

The fact that upon the opening of a public street across the plaintiff's property, a small triangular piece of land, left on one side of the street, was reduced in value, does not entitle him to special compensation over and above the general damage awarded for the injury sustained by the whole tract of land. In a proceeding to take land for a public street, special damages cannot be awarded for shortening the remaining land between the street and a river bank, thereby injuring it for subdivision into city lots, where the street was laid out in the best possible manner in view of the topographical surroundings of the land. Where it was impossible to open a public street across a tract of land without leaving a small triangular piece separated from the remainder, or without the street crossing diagonally on one side of the land so as to leave it in bad shape to be divided into city lots, substantial damages cannot be awarded in addition to the general damages awarded for injury to the entire tract of land. A provision of a city charter that arbitrators in awarding damages for land taken for public streets should determine "(1) the intrinsic value of the property taken; (2) the increased value of the residue, and (3) the damage to the residue; and (that) the difference between (1) and (2) or (1) and (3) shall constitute the compensation" to which the landowner shall be entitled, amounts to a limitation as to the damages that may be awarded, and there cannot be included in an award the portion of the cost of opening a public street which would be assessed against the landowner. ASSESSMENT BY ARBITRATOR—WRONG PRINCIPLE—MATTER REMITTED BACK TO ARBITRATOR.

In assessing damages to property by reason of the construction of a concrete sidewalk lower than the property in question—the principle to follow in estimating these damages is how much (if any) has the property decreased in value by reason of the lowering of the sidewalk. EXPROPRIATION—TIMBER LIMITS—COMPENSATION—SET-OFF AS REGARDS ADVANTAGE.

For the purposes of the National Transcontinental Railway a portion of certain lands consisting of timber limits was expropriated. Owing to the railway the remaining portion of the limits was enhanced in value by reason of the following facts:

—The lumber could be taken from the limits at all seasons and in summer more expeditiously than by water; less capital was required in working the limits; the loss of logs incidental to the practice of driving was saved; if desired the logs could be shipped by rail to distant mills without being cut, while portable mills could be used on the limits; and lastly, lumbering supplies could be taken to the limits more cheaply by reason of the easier and quicker means of access provided by the railway. Held, that under s. 50 of the Exchequer Court Act these advantages should be set-off against the damages to the owner of the limits arising from the interference by the railway with the logging roads and landings on the river front, the possible interference of the railway culvert with the work of driving in the spring, and the additional risks of fire arising from the operation of the railway.

The King v. New Brunswick R. Co., 14 Can. Ex. 491.

EXPROPRIATION—PUBLIC HARBOUR—WATER LOTS—INCREASED VALUE OF REMAINING LANDS BY REASON OF PUBLIC WORK.

Proceedings by the Crown for the expropriation of certain lands bordering on the Kaministiquia River at Fort William, Ont., were taken with a view to the widening of the channel of the river. In carrying out the works, a road allowance which intervened between the lands taken and the water of the river was expropriated leaving the lands with a frontage on the river subsequently widened.—Held, that the advantage to the balance of the lands equalized any damage to the land owners over and above the amounts offered as compensation by the government. Water lots had been granted after Confederation in the river by the province of Ontario. The question arose as to the compensation to be paid for these water lots.—Held, that the waters of the river were navigable waters within the statute, R.S.C. 1906, c. 115, from bank to bank, and that these water lots could not be built upon by the owners thereof without the assent of the Dominion authorities. The waters in question do not form part of a public harbour as defined by the B.N.A. Act.

R. v. Bradburn & Webb, 14 Can. Ex. 419.

SETTING-OFF OF INCREASED VALUE.

Upon expropriation by a railway company, notwithstanding the vagueness of the words "inconvenience, loss, or damage" in s. 57 of the Railway Act, the general rule of damages covering the part taken and the injury to the remaining land is that the owner is entitled to the difference between the market value of the whole lot or tract before the taking and the market value of what remains to him after such taking. The effect of s. 57 is to direct a setting off of the increased value to the remainder of the land not taken by the railway company as against damages that may be allowed through severance.

RAILWAYS—COMPENSATION—SET-OFF—USE AND OCCUPATION.

An application for payment out of court of moneys paid in by a railway company for lands taken by it, held that the applicant was entitled to the sum unpaid of the amount awarded by the arbitrators with interest at 5 per cent. [Green v. C.N.R., 33 D.L.R. 609, followed;] and that the company was not entitled on such application to a set-off for the value of the use and occupation of the land by the applicant.

(§ III L.—284)—CONSTRUCTION OF RAILROAD.

Upon an arbitration in eminent domain proceedings in reference to damage to land by railway construction, in cases in which s. 198 of the Railway Act (Can.) requires the amount of benefit to be "set-off" against the amount of damage, it is necessary that the arbitrators should specify the amount of each in their award.

(§ III L.—288)—CHANGE OF STREET GRADE.

The increased value acquired by property by the change of level of a street or sidewalk under municipal authority conferred on consideration that those injured shall be indemnified, cannot be set-off against claims of riparian proprietors for actual loss sustained from suspension of, or greater dil-culity in carrying on their business during the progress of the work, and the cost of restoring their property to its previous use. Dennis v. Quebec, 43 Que. S.C. 1.

M. IN INJUNCTION CASES.

(§ III M—200)—IN INJUNCTION CASES.

Where, in an action for specific performance there is a counterclaim for damages caused by the plaintiff's injunction restraining the defendant from using the land during the pendency of the action, and the plaintiff's action is dismissed, the proper practice is to apply in chambers for a determination of damages on the counterclaim.

Where, as a result of a collision between a railway train and a street car due to negligent operation of the train, a passenger on the street car was thrown into a subway, a verdict for substantial damages may be given against the railway company whose negligence caused the injury, although the only substantial injury proved was that the plaintiff had in consequence suffered from traumatic neuroasthenia and caused the plaintiff to be subject to insomnia and nerve troubles incapacitating him for his usual occupation, although such result is attributable to the mental shock as well as to the physical.

Where excavations and other trespasses by a railway company prevented the land owner from extending his pig corral so as to keep the increase of the pigs and the corral thereby became crowded and unhealthy, resulting in the death of some of the pigs and the depreciation of others in value, the owner will be limited to such damages as would have resulted had he reduced the number of his pigs to what he had theretofore safely kept, and he cannot recover as special damage more than the difference in the selling value, at the time of the trespass of the pigs he should have removed and sold for lack of accommodation to keep them and their value at the time when they would have been the most fit to sell less the saving in feed and labour by reason of the reduced number.

§ III P.—340)—FROM BREACH OF CONTRACT.

FROM BREACH OF CONTRACT—GENERAL RULE—CONTEMPLATION OF PARTIES.

The general rule as to damages recoverable by one party against the other for breach of contract imposes such damages as might arise naturally from such breach of contract itself or from such breach committed under circumstances in the contemplation of both parties at the time of the contract.

Inland Investment Co. v. Campbell, 18 D.L.R. 177, 24 Man. L.R. 763, affirming on this principal, 16 D.L.R. 419, 29 W.L.R. 561, 7 W.W.R. 375.

BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Ordinarily the measure of damages for breach of contract is the loss of profits that would have been made if the contract had been carried out; the party damaged must, however, do what is practicable to minimize the loss.

Consolidated Plate Glass Co. v. McKinnon Dash Co., 40 D.L.R. 47, 41 O.L.R. 188.

BUILDING CONTRACT—DELAY—CONCLUSIVE-NESS OF AWARD.

For delay in completion of a contract for the construction of a building plant, beyond what would be considered a reasonable time for performance (no time of completion being stipulated clearly in the contract) the owners of the building are entitled to claim from the contractors damages for the delay resulting in loss of profits, it being established that it was clearly within the contemplation of both parties that loss of profits would result from such delay. CONTRACT—BREACH—FUTURE PROFITS—ESTIMATION OF PRESENT LOSS OF.

The measure of damages for loss of future profits arising out of breach of contract must be assessed as being the loss or injury sustained at the date of the breach. But for the purpose of estimating the present loss, probable future events must be considered, and if the bringing of the action be delayed evidence as to actual subsequent consequential damage or subsequent relevant facts in mitigation of damage may be given. BREACH OF CONTRACT—SALE OF GOODS—PREVIOUS ARRANGEMENT THROUGH AN AGENT—PLAINIFFS READY AND WILLING TO COMPLETE—GOODS TAKEN BY THIRD PARTY—REPUTATION.

Where one party to a contract is ready and willing to fulfil his part, and the other party is unable to do his part owing to a previous arrangement, the former is entitled to damages for breach of the contract. The measure of damages will be the difference between the price under the contract, and the price which has to be paid for other goods in a similar condition.

CONTRACT — REPUTATION — BREACH — MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

Where there has been a repudiation of a contract for the sale and purchase of goods, which has been treated as a breach, the measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and the market price, on the date of the breach. Where, however, the breach occurs before the date of delivery, the party treating the repudiation as a breach is not required to take the risk of purchasing other goods before the date of delivery at a higher price than that named in the contract and so exposing himself to loss should the price decline before the date of delivery, although he must do what is reasonable to decrease the damage.

MEASURE OF—PLOUGHING—LOSS OF CROP—REMOVEDNESS.

Loss of an alleged crop is too remote to be the basis of an action for damages for breach of an agreement to plough land.

Patton v. Forrest, 12 S.L.R. 347, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 275.

CONTRACT—SAWING TIMBER—TERMINATION OF AGREEMENT BY OWNER OF TIMBER—RECOVERY BY SAW-MILL OWNER FOR WORK DONE AND MONEYS EXPENDED—DAMAGES FOR WRONGFUL TERMINATION—COUNTERCLAIM.

Bigras v. O'Connor, 17 O.W.N. 113.

MUNICIPAL WORK.

In an action brought by an owner against the City of Montreal, claiming damages for injury caused to his property in the construction of public works, the Superior Court, in estimating the damages according to the evidence, acts as an arbitrator in an expropriation case; a Court of Appeal will not interfere with the amount of the damages awarded. The court has no right to award damages for loss in the future caused by the diminution of business which these public works may have occasioned to the plaintiff. [Appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.]

Montreal v. Bermen, 26 Que. K.B. 423.
NONFULFILMENT OF CONTRACT—DAMAGES—LOSS OF CLIENTELE—SPECIAL OBLIGATION—CONCLUSIONS.

Any nonfulfilment of contract gives rise to an action in damages. In such an action the special allegation of a fixed amount of damages for the loss of future clientele, with a general conclusion praying for that sum, is sufficient to allow the court to grant nominal damages according to its finding.

Audet v. Saraguay Electric & Water Co., 46 Que. S.C. 248.

(§ III P.—342)—BREACH OF CONTRACT—SALE OF GOODS—DELAY IN DELIVERY—PURPOSE OF PURCHASE KNOWN.

Where the seller of a boiler and attachments agrees to deliver at a certain time, and at the time of the agreement of sale knows the purpose for which the buyer is purchasing and that prompt delivery is essential and subsequently before the date for delivery is warned by the buyer of the necessity for prompt delivery, and where the goods are shipped 20 days later than the date agreed upon and there is additional delay because one of the essential attachments had not been shipped at all and another of them was a misfit, the seller is liable in damages, but such damages must not exceed a reasonable assessment.

Leonard v. Kremer (No. 2), 11 D.L.R. 491, 48 Can. S.C.R. 518, 26 W.L.R. 568, 4 W.W.R. 332, varying 7 D.L.R. 244.

SALE—REPUTATION—REASONABLE TIME.

The measure of damages for breach of a contract to deliver goods, by repudiating the contract before a reasonable time has elapsed, on the ground of impossibility of delivery, is the difference between the contract price and the market price at the place of delivery at the time the breach occurred.

BY SELLER.

Where one agrees for good consideration with the owner of securities to sell the securities for him within a limited time for a certain price, and fails to fulfil his agreement, the owner of the securities is entitled to recover the agreed price less the amount for which the securities can be sold, and a statement of the last mentioned amount in a letter from the owner's solicitor to the registrar of the court may be accepted as sufficient evidence thereof.

Martin v. Munns, 3 D.L.R. 435, 3 O.W.N. 1055.

PROFITS OF LAND OPTIONS—REMOVEDNESS.

The holder of an option to land has no recourse against a purchaser for loss of his profits, such damages being too remote and not being those that the parties could have foreseen.

Rivet v. Anctil, 47 Que. S.C. 240.

(§ III P-343)—BY PURCHASER.

Loss of probable rentals from houses in course of construction because of the contractor's delay in completing can be allowed to the owner in abatement of the price only when a time has been specified for doing the work or after the owner has given notice to proceed with it.

SALE OF GOODS TO BE MANUFACTURED—LOSS OF PROFITS—SPECIAL ORDER FOR UNMARKETABLE GOODS—CONDITIONAL SALE OR RENTAL AGREEMENT.

On the refusal to accept goods manufactured to order and not of a marketable class, the damages may be assessed at the amount of profit which the manufacturer would have made on the order, although the goods were by the terms of the order to remain after delivery the property of the manufacturer on a rental to be applied on the purchase price under the conditional sale contract. [Re Vic Mill, [1913] 1 Ch. 183, [1913] 1 Ch. 465, applied; Sawyer v. Pringle, 18 A.R. (Ont.) 218, and Arnold v. Playter, 22 O.R. 608, distinguished.]

Union Machinery Co. v. Thompson River Lumber Co., 16 D.L.R. 849, 6 W.W.R. 485.

LOSS OF PROFITS—BREACH OF CONTRACT—

FAILURE TO INSTALL ELEVATOR ON TIME. Contingent and speculative damages may be recovered when arising from loss of business resulting from the failure of a contractor to install a passenger elevator within the time stipulated by contract.

Steven v. Price-Jones, 13 D.L.R. 746, 25 W.L.R. 172.

Supposed or estimated profits that might have been made had the defendant performed his agreement to lease a hotel and sell its furniture and fixtures, are too uncertain to be made the basis for a recovery of damages for the breach of the agreement.

Dufrenoy v. Lepard, 3 D.L.R. 542, 3 O.W.N. 986.

Where it would have been necessary for the plaintiff to have sent a man from Scotland to Canada in order to have purchased goods similar to those the defendant failed to deliver under a contract of sale, the expenses of such trip will be awarded as damages in an action for breach of the contract. The damages for breach of warranty on the sale of goods which were not returned, is the difference between their value and the value which they would have borne without the defect warranted against; and it is no answer to show that by reason of advantageous resales the purchaser made a profit on the transaction, notwithstanding the defect. Damages for the failure to deliver goods sold in Canada for shipment to Scotland, the purchasers paying the transportation charges, will be based on the Canadian market price, and not on the prices ruling in Scotland.

Schrader Mitchell et al. v. Robson Leather Co., 3 D.L.R. 838, 3 O.W.N. 962.

The measure of damages for misinformation contained in a list of property listed for sale with a real estate exchange, which was sold by it to the plaintiff, a real estate broker, who secured a purchaser for property improperly listed by the defendant, is the commissions the latter would have earned had the sale been completed. [Spedding v. Nevell, L.R. 4 C.P. 212; Meek v. Wendt & Co., 21 Q.B.D. 126, followed.]

Austin v. Real Estate Exchange, 2 D.L.R. 324, 17 B.C.R. 177, 20 W.L.R. 921, 2 W.W.R. 88.

(§ III P-344)—BY CONTRACTOR FOR WORK OR DISMISSAL.

Where a contractor claims damages for being prevented from completing his contract where time is not of the essence, after being in default for not completing within the contract time, and without being allowed a reasonable time within which to complete subsequent to notice fixing a fresh date for completion, the measure of damages is the difference between the contract price of the unfinished portion of the work, and the cost of completing it within the period of time which would have been a reasonable time for completion after default.

Q. TIME FOR WHICH RECOVERABLE; PROSPECTIVE.

(§ III Q-345)—PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

An owner is not entitled to claim an amount, en bloc, for damages past, present and future; he can only recover damages which have been actually sustained and are ascertained, direct and immediate.

Sevigny v. St. David, 50 Que. S.C. 291.

S. MITIGATION; REDUCTION.

(§ III S-355)—INJURY TO MILL FROM FLOATAGE OF LOGS—PARTIAL OBSTRUCTION OF STREAM BY MILL.

Full damages will not be awarded for injuries to a mill as the result of the defendant's negligence in permitting a log jam to form in a stream above it where the mill itself partly obstructed the stream.

Pepin v. Villeneuve, 12 D.L.R. 327, 22 Que. K.B. 529.

EXCESSIVENESS—REDUCTION ON APPEAL.

Where the amount of damages awarded appears excessive the Court of Appeal will reduce the amount even where there is no cross-appeal.

Chimney v. Begin, 24 D.L.R. 687, 24 Que. K.R. 294, reversing 20 D.L.R. 347 and varying 7 D.L.R. 65.

EXCESSIVENESS.

The rule of art. 503, C.C.P., permitting the court to reduce the amount granted by the verdict when there is no other reason for sending the case back to the jury, should only be applied when the amount is greatly excessive. In this case the amount awarded was reduced from $12,000 to $6,000.

Montreal Street R. Co. v. Normandin, 26 Que. K.B. 467.

SPECIAL DAMAGES—REDUCTION—POWER OF COURT EX BANC.

The court en banc has the right to reduce special damages if the amount proved at the trial. [Staats v. C.P.R., 17 D.L.R. 309 followed.]

Brown v. Moose Jaw Electric Ry. Co., 7 S.L.R. 355, 7 W.W.R. 695.

TRESPASS—EXCESSIVE DAMAGES.

In an action for trespass to land where the court is of the opinion that the Trial Judge exceeded the limit in assessing damages, the judgment with respect to the trespass complained of will be affirmed, but the damages awarded will be reduced to such amount as will, in the opinion of the court, do full justice to the plaintiffs.

Trowell v. Nickerson, 52 N.S.R. 54.

NEGLIGENCE—EXCESSIVE VERDICT—APPEAL.

Where the plaintiff has obtained a verdict in an action for damages by reason of the defendant's negligence the Court of Appeal will not interfere on the ground of excessive damages, unless they think that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the damages are so large that no jury could reasonably have given them.

Panetta v. C.P.R. Co., 24 B.C.R. 249.

REDUCTION OF APPEAL.

A Court of Appeal will not reduce the amount of damages granted by the Trial Court when nothing indicates that the judgment was rendered through improper motives or by error.

Larivière v. Lachapelle, 53 Que. S.C. 374.

AMOUNT—EXCESSIVENESS—ITEM WRONGFULLY EXCLUDED BY JURY—DEDUCTED ON APPEAL.

$16,000 damages awarded by a jury for injury to a boy run over by a wagon and very seriously hurt was held not excessive. The total amount awarded by the jury was $18,000, from which the Court of Appeal deducted $2,000 allowed for doctor's and hospital fees incurred by plaintiff's father who was not a party to the action, except as next friend of plaintiff. As such sum was separable from the rest it could be deleted without affecting the judgment for the balance. The amounts awarded for damages for injuries in some former cases are no longer a safe guide owing to the unprecedented advance in the high cost of living, and juries must deal with the state of the times in which they are called upon to act, taking such a reasonable view of future prospects as is humanely possible.

Ward v. Mainland Transfer Co., [1919] 3 W.W.R. 193.

PERSONAL INJURIES TO SERVANT—MEASURE OF DAMAGES—REDUCTION OF DAMAGES ON APPEAL.

Hyde v. G.T.P.R., 34 W.L.R. 176.

(§ III S—357)—EFFECT OF INSURANCE.

Where the widow or heirs of a person killed as the result of an accident sue the person responsible for such death in damages the defendant is entitled to have the amount of damages suffered diminished by whatever sums the heirs may have received under the terms of accident policies carried by the deceased.

Can. Northern Quebec R. Co. v. Johnston, 7 D.L.R. 243, 22 Que. K.B. 19.

(§ III S—358)—MITIGATION OR REDUCTION OF DAMAGES—MINIMIZING LOSS OF PROFITS.

A tenant sustaining damage by the landlord's failure to give him the water supply needed for his business as a photographer, in accordance with the lease, must do whatever he reasonably can to minimize the damages, as by installing a tank system at slight expense to keep his business going, and so claiming the expense of such installation instead of the much larger loss of profits through the practical suspension of the business.

Howell v. Armour & Co., 9 D.L.R. 125, 6 S.L.R. 25, 23 W.L.R. 68, 3 W.W.R. 832.

T. AGGRAVATION.

(§ III T—360)—WRONGFUL REMOVAL OF CORSE FROM BURIAL LOT—AGGRAVATION OF DAMAGES—TENDER OF SMALL SUM.

The tender into court of $40 as satisfaction for the unlawful removal of human remains from a burial lot, where the liability of the defendant is unquestionable, amounts to an aggravation of the wrongful act.

O'Connor v. Victoria, 11 D.L.R. 577, 4 W.W.R. 4.

E. APPORTIONMENT.

See Negligence, II. A-75.

(§ III U—365)—APPORTIONMENT.

Where a municipality and a power company have been jointly condemned to pay damages to the heirs of a person who was drowned in a river owing to a defective guard rail, the court will, as between the codefendants, condemn the company to pay the entire amount so found to the corporation, plaintiff in warranty, when it is established that the municipality has for years been protesting that the company failed to take proper precautionary measures to ensure the safety of the highway and of banks of the river, and where the power company was under a legal duty in that regard the neglect of which was the cause of the death.

Richelieu v. Montreal & St. Lawrence Light & Power Co., 3 D.L.R. 145.

APPORTIONMENT—BREACH OF PROMISE AND SEDUCTION.

In an action for breach of promise of marriage and for seduction under promise of marriage the jury in finding for the plaintiff need not apportion damages between the two causes of action.

RIGHT OF ACTION FOR CAUSING—FAMILIES COMPENSATION ACT—TOTALLY NEW ACTION ARISING FROM—ACTION ARISES WHEN—PUNCTUM TEMPORIS.

A suit brought under the Families Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 911, c. 82, is not an ordinary action of indemnity for negligence but a totally new action under the Act although conditions precedent are (a) the death was caused by the wrongful act, neglect or default of the defendant and (b) that the default was such "as would if death had not ensued have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof." In determining when the right of action arises under Families Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 82, the punctum temporis at which the test is to be taken is at the moment of death, so that if the deceased could, had he survived that moment, have maintained his action, then the action under the act may arise.

(S. H. A.—6)—DEATH RESULTING FROM EMPLOYMENT WORK (WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION).

The death of a servant is due to the negligence of the Master where, for the purpose of lumbering operations, the servant is furnished with a pole and a fellow-servant with an inch board for the purpose of supporting a derrick which the servants were engaged in raising, during the construction of a "log jammer," of which the derrick was a part, and which, in the course of the operation, it was necessary to support for a time by placing the pole and the board under it upon frozen ground, snow and ice, if the superintendent in charge of the work should have known that the board and pole were insufficient supports without proper spikes to prevent slipping, and by reason of their insufficiency the derrick fell when it came on the supports and fatally injured the servant while holding the pole.

ly, and after the operations had been apparently successfully performed blood poisoning was found in both wounds and a delayed death a few days later and there was nothing to shew where the infection originated, the operating surgeon being of the opinion that it began in both at the same time, a finding of the Trial Judge under a Workmen's Compensation statute, that the death resulted from the injury received in the "course of employment," will not be disturbed. DEATH WHILE OPERATING ELEVATOR—RIGHT TO WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—OFFICE BUILDING—"FACTORY."

The representative of an elevator operator who was killed in the course of his employment is entitled to recover compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, Sask., although the building in which the electric elevator was operated was not used for manufacturing purposes, but for offices and apartments, such building being within the statutory definition given in that Act to the word "factory."

DEATH RESULTING FROM EMPLOYMENT (WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION).

The Workmen's Compensation Act, where it may be said to apply, has supplanted the common law as between the employer and the employee and his representatives and done away entirely with the common law recourse under the provisions of C.C. art. 1053 et seq.

ACTION FOR CAUSING—RIGHT OF DEPENDENTS.

The widow and children of a deceased person, who, it is alleged, died of injuries caused by the defendant's negligence, bringing an action under the Families Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 82, which provides that, where there is no executor or administrator, such action may be brought

WHO MAY MAINTAIN ACTION — APPORTIONING CLAIMANTS' LOSS.

In apportioning money recovered under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 33, and under the Ontario Workmen's Compensation for Injuries enactments, the true guide must be the actual pecuniary loss of each of the claimants, and the statute as to distribution of decedents' estates furnishes no satisfactory guide. Money recovered under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 33, or the Ontario Workmen's Compensation for Injuries enactments, may properly be apportioned by the court in one of two ways: (1) By finding the amount of pecuniary damages which each of the claimants has really sustained, and if the whole be more or less than the fixed sums, awarding to each his proper proportion; or (2) by finding the proportion which the right of each bears to the others, and dividing the amount available accordingly.

The basis of apportionment, on an application by a widow of a deceased person, under ss. 4 and 9 of the Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 33, for apportionment between her and the mother of the deceased of a sum of money paid over as damages for the death of the deceased, is not affected by the fact that the widow was separated from her husband, inasmuch as he still continued to be liable for her support, and the amount the husband contributed to his mother's support is immaterial, the only question being, on such an application, what the wife and mother would relatively have had a right to expect if the deceased had continued to live.

Where the parent of a deceased child, whose death was alleged to have been caused by certain wrongful acts (which would not be grounds for an action at common law) is given a certain right of action therefor by statute, and where the statutory provision requires any such action to be brought by and in the name of the executor or administrator of the deceased child, an action of that class instituted by the parent as such, instead of as such executor or administrator, cannot be maintained. An employer is liable for the death of an employee, caused by the negligence of another employee, where it appears that it being the duty of an electrical expert engineer in the employ of an electric company to make a test of an electric generator, which had been just set up by the workmen of the company's mechanical department, and he, before making the test, informed the foreman of the mechanical department that he did not think the generator was properly secured to the floor, and such foreman ordered two of the men in his department to be present at the time the test was made for the purpose of doing all necessary mechanical work to the machine, and the workmen were of the same opinion as the expert as to the insecurity of the generator and suggested to him that they would tighten up certain bolts, fastening the machine to the floor, to which he assented and they proceeded to do so without any further orders from him, and shortly after the electrical expert saw one of the servants standing up near the machine as if through with the work he had undertaken to do, and, taking it for granted that all was clear, turned on the power, causing the death of the other servant who was still working at the bolts.

DEFENCES — RELEASE BY CONTRIBUTING TO EMPLOYEES' RELIEF ASSOCIATION — ACCORD AND SATISFACTION — ACTION BY WIDOW.

Where the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect or default of another an action for damages does not lie under Lord Campbell's Act unless the deceased could have maintained an action if death had not ensued. C. was a temporary employee on the Intercolonial Railway and, as such, a member of the "Employees Relief and Insurance Association." By the rules of the association the object of the Temporary Employees Accident Fund was to provide for members suffering from bodily injury and for the family or relatives of deceased members. Each member had to contribute to the fund and the Railway Department gave the annual sum of $8,000 in consideration of which it was to be "relieved of all claims for compensation for injury or death of any member." C. was killed by a railway train and his widow was paid $250 out of this fund. She then brought an action under Lord Campbell's Act:—Held, that as by his contract with the Association C. could not have maintained an action had he lived, the widow's right of action was barred.

(§ IV—29) — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT (ALTA.)

An award of $1,000 as damages for the death of a workman, cannot be based by an arbitrator under the Workman's Compensation Act (Alta.) 1908, upon the fact that the manager of the company informed the claimant that her claim would be settled, and that the solicitors for the company wrote the solicitors for the claimant that they thought the matter should be settled, and that an assurance company, which was liable to indemnify the company in respect of such claim, sent a letter to the claimant making her an offer of one thousand dollars, in settlement of her claim, which did not appear to have been authorized by the company with whom the workman had been employed and against which the award was made.

V. Authority to compromise claim for.

(§ V—30) — DEATH ON GOVERNMENT RAILWAY — RELEASE TO BENEFIT ASSOCIATION — LIABILITY OF CROWN.

The suppliant, having been injured on a government railway, was paid sick allowances by an insurance association for nearly 26 weeks, and when the sick and accident pay-rolls were presented to him for signature, and when he signed them, there was in small print at the head of the column to which he affixed his signature as a receipt for such moneys, the following: "In consideration of the receipt by us of the sums set opposite our respective names, we do hereby release and discharge the Intercolonial Railway, etc., from all claims for damages, indemnity or other forms of compensation on account of said disablement." Held, that, as no notice was given to the suppliant of such condition, and as his attention was never called to it, and that he signed the receipt without being aware of the same, it could not now be set up as a bar to his recovering. Under a by-law (113) of such association, by the payment of $10,000 annually by the Railway Department to the association, it was provided that the Railway Department "shall be relieved of all claims for compensation for injuring or death of any member." But in the case of death or total disablement the Crown did not, under the rules of the association, contribute to the amount paid in respect thereof, such fund being made up by special assessment among the members. Held, that, as the Crown did not contribute to the indemnity in the case of death or total disablement, it could not avail itself of the immunity provided by the by-law in question.

Saundon v. The King, 15 Can. Ex. 305.

DEATH OF GOVERNMENT RAILWAY — RELEASE BY WIDOW — ERROR — RIGHT TO INDEPENDENT ACTION.

Suppliant's husband was killed in an accident on the Intercolonial Railway. Suppliant gave a receipt for the insurance money payable on his death to the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railway Employees' Relief and Insurance Association and in full satisfaction and discharge of all her claims against the said association and against His Majesty the King, arising out of the death of her husband. Her attention was not called to this discharge embodied in the receipt, and the letter transmitting the form of receipt for signature did not mention it. Moreover, it was in the English language, which she did not understand and could not read when signing it. Held, that suppliant could not be taken to have assented to such condition; and it could not be set up as a bar to her recovery. Held, that suppliant's right of action in this case under art. 1056 C.C.P.Q. was a personal one and independent from that of her husband; and that any immunity from damages or condition that might have been available as a defence to an action by her husband because of his being a member of an insurance and provident society, was no bar to the suppliant's action after his death. I. Mode and effect.A. IN GENERAL.*(§ I A—3)—HIGHWAYS — MAINTENANCE OF GATES—EFFECT.

Proof of maintenance of gates across a road is not controlling on the question as to whether it was dedicated as a public highway, where the evidence of intent to dedicate is clear, and it does not appear that the dedicating owner or his grantee maintained or sanctioned the gates, while it is shown that there was never any interruption of user of the road, since time does not run and obstructions do not count against the Crown. An owner of land is bound by his acts, both before and after issuance of a patent, shewing an intent to dedicate it as a public highway. That a patentee of land, in subdividing it, agreed to open a public road along a given line, that a road was opened and its limits defined by a fence, and that the patentee and his grantee performed statute labour on the road for several years, shews an intention to dedicate the road as a public highway.

Larcher v. Town of Sudbury, 11 D.L.R. 111, 24 O.W.R. 659, 4 O.W.N. 1289.

SHOWN BY USE—INTENTION.

A dedication of land to public purposes must be made with the intention to dedicate, and the mere acting so as to lead persons into the supposition that a way was dedicated to the public does not of itself amount to dedication. [Simpson v. Attorney General, [1904] A.C. 476, at p. 493, followed.]

C.N.R. Co. v. Billings, 5 D.L.R. 455, 3 O.W.N. 1504, 22 O.W.R. 659.

HIGHWAYS—INTENTION.

Dedication of land for a highway cannot be inferred from user where it clearly appears that such was not the intention of the landowner.

ANIMUS DEDICANDI—PUBLIC USER.

In order to constitute a valid dedication to the public of a highway by the owner of the soil there must be an animus dedicandi of which the use by the public is merely some evidence; public user does not create a presumption of grant or dedication. [Mann v. Brodie, 10 App. Cas. 378, 386, applied.]

Rowland v. Edmonton, 21 D.L.R. 33, 50 Can. S.C.R. 520, 31 W.L.R. 33, 8 W.W.R. 20, reversing 20 D.L.R. 36.

PUBLIC STREET — INTENTION OF OWNER.

There is no donation of streets to the public, unless it is expressly formulated or unless certain actions indicate the intention of the owner to destine them to the use of the public.

Chart's Urbains v. Commissaires du Havre, 24 Que. K.R. 503.

B. BY MAP OR PLAT.(§ I B—10)—BY MAP OR PLAN.

The registration with a deed of land of a sketch of the land attached to the deed, without the formalities required by the Registry Act in the registration of a plan, does not constitute a dedication as public highways of those parts of the land which are shown in the sketch as streets or roads. Sinclair v. Peters, 8 D.L.R. 575, 4 O.W.N. 338, 23 O.W.R. 441, affirming 3 D.L.R. 664.

(§ I B—12)—SELLING LOTS WITH RESPECT TO PLAT OR MAP — RIGHT OF COMMON — COVENANT FOR ACCESS TO — EFFECT.

A conveyance of a lot by number to a registered plan of a summer resort park, with a covenant that the grantee, his heirs, administrators and assigns, shall have free access to all streets, terraces and commons of the park, confers on the latter the right to have an open space in the centre of the park as shown on the registered plan, kept open for use as a common.

Re Lorne Park, 18 D.L.R. 595, 30 O.L.R. 289.

SELLING LOTS WITH RESPECT TO — SUBDIVISIONS.

The vendor of six acres of land sold en bloc has no right afterwards to register a subdivision of the land with its incidental concession of lanes and streets through it against the will of the purchaser, although the contract contained a clause "plan to be similar to City View addition adjoining."

Magrath-Holgate v. Countryman, 22 D.L.R. 684.

C. WHO MAY DEDICATE.(§ I C—15) — MUNICIPALITY — PRESUMPTIONS—HIGHWAY.

The spending of a sum of money by the government and the municipality on the plaintiff's land by building a highway wider than the authorized or reserved width and so encroaching on the plaintiff's land does not create a presumption juris et de jure in favour of dedication, even if acquiesced in by the owner.

Rowland v. Edmonton, 21 D.L.R. 33, 50 Can. S.C.R. 520, 8 W.W.R. 20, 31 W.L.R. 33, reversing 20 D.L.R. 36.

II. Acceptance.

(§ II-20)—WIDENING STREET — CONDI-TIONAL ACCEPTANCE — DEATH OF DONOR — EFFECT.

A conditional offer by an owner to donate a strip of land to a corporation for the purpose of enabling a street to be widened must be accepted (with the condition attached) during the lifetime of the person making the offer; if not accepted before his death, the offer cannot be given effect to and the estate is under no obligation to the corporation.

Montreal v. O'Flaherty, 28 D.L.R. 713, 49 Que. S.C. 521.

HIGHWAY — INTENTION OF OWNER — PUBLIC USER — ABSENCE OF MUNICIPAL ACTION — EASEMENT — LOST GRANT — LIMITATIONS ACT.

A lane 12 feet wide, between buildings on the north side of King St. Toronto, running from King St. north to Pearl St. was held, not to be a public highway, the defendants failing to establish a dedication of it by the owner of the land of which it formed part; and, if dedication were shown, the evidence of acceptance thereof being insufficient. The onus of proving dedication and acceptance was on the defendants; proof of the owner's intention to dedicate was essential, and was entirely lacking; and such user of the lane by the public as was shown must be ascribed to tolerance rather than to right. There was no municipal action in regard to the paving, repairing, lighting, etc., of the lane, such as might constitute an acceptance by the municipal corporation. The effect of a judgment, pronounced in 1877, in an action between two tenants for years, finding the lane in question to be a public lane, dismissed. The judgment was regarded as evidence in the defendants' favour, but not as an estoppel in whole or in part. [Neill v. Duke of Devonshire, 8 App. Cas. 155, distinguished.] Judgment of Middleton, J., finding that there was a dedication before the year 1834, reversed. Held, also, that the alternative claim of the defendants to a right-of-way over the lane with access to their land, under a devise, or a lost grant, or by virtue of s. 35 of the Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, was not maintainable.

Baldwin v. O'Brien, 40 O.L.R. 24, reversing 19 O.W.N. 304.

INTENTION — "PARK FOR ATHLETIC SPORTS" — ACCEPTANCE.

Before an owner of land can be deprived of it on the ground of a dedication by him to a public use there must be clear and satisfactory evidence of an intention to dedicate. Where the owner of land leases it for a long term of years, before any user by the public has been established amounting to an acceptance of an alleged dedication, he evinces an intention against dedication sufficiently strong to override any intent to be inferred in favour of dedication from the use of words such as "park for athletic sports" on a registered plan. It is doubtful also, whether from the use of the particular words in question dedication to the public generally should be presumed to have been intended.

Jackson v. Town of Stonewall, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1.

(§ II-23) — WHAT CONSTITUTES ACCEPTANCE OF.

Where a strip of land used as a street but privately owned was treated by the assessor of the municipality as a street and was not assessed for nine years, but there was no direct assertion by the municipality of any claim to dedication of the land, nor were any municipal improvements made thereon, such facts do not establish a dedication thereof as a highway.

Sinclair v. Peters, 8 D.L.R. 575, 4 O.W.N. 338, 23 O.W.R. 441, affirming 3 D.L.R. 664.

HIGHWAY — ACCEPTANCE — WHAT CONSTITUTES.

Open and unobstructed user of a way by the public for a substantial time is evidence from which a jury may infer both dedication and acceptance; and where there has been established, for a number of years a traveled track with a fence on one side and a gutter on the other, passing over the lands of others, over which statute labour is performed under municipal supervision and is otherwise used for municipal purposes, dedication and acceptance of a public highway is thereby established. [R. v. United Kingdom Elec. Tel. Co., 3 F. & F. 73, applied.] De Young v. Giles, 26 D.L.R. 5, 49 N.S.R. 398.

A. IN GENERAL; EXECUTION.

(§ I A—1)—CORPORATION—DUTY OF REGISTRAR.

Parties dealing with a company must be taken to have read the general Act under which the company is incorporated and also to have read the articles of association, so if the articles have not been complied with and such noncompliance appears on the face of the instrument, the registrar examining the title is bound to consider its effect.

Re Land Registry Act, 28 D.L.R. 354, 22 B.C.R. 507, 34 W.L.R. 466, 10 W.W.R. 634.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT—NOTARY OFFICER OF PURCHASING COMPANY.

The execution of a deed before a notary who at the time of its execution is the president of the company assuming to purchase the lands, renders the deed invalid as an authentic conveyance.

IN GENERAL—EXECUTION.

A deed of land made by the grantor to a daughter and son-in-law in consideration of an agreement on their part to support the grantor during his lifetime will not be set aside on the grounds of improvidence, mental incapacity, etc., where it appears that the grantor although of a peculiar and excitable disposition had sufficient mental capacity to understand what he was doing, and that no undue influence was exercised and that there was sufficient consideration.

Madden v. McNeil, 45 N.S.R. 407.

NOTARIAL FORM IN QUEBEC.

A transfer and assignment of all rights in an immovable and which is really a donation must, on pain of nullity, be executed in notarial form, and not in a writing signed privé, even if this writing is afterwards deposited with a notary by one of the witnesses to the deed.

Westmount v. Evans, 15 Que. P.R. 96.

EXECUTION OF—ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF—TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION OF JUSTICE TAKEN.

An acknowledgment of a deed of land in the county of Restigouche, headed "Restigouche S.S.," and purporting to have been taken before Donald McAllister, Esq., one of her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, in and for the county of Restigouche, and subscribed "Dond. McAllister, J.P.," is a good acknowledgment under the statute and the deed was properly received in evidence as a registered conveyance.

Gooden v. Doyle, 42 N.B.R. 435.

ESSENTIAL FORMALITIES FOR REGISTRATION.

The memorial for registration of a deed which transfers ownership must, under penalty of being void, always mention each of the following circumstances: the date and nature of the deed, the place where it was passed, the quality and rights of the parties, the object of the sale, the essential allegations of the transfer of ownership, and also the signatures of the parties and of the public or official witnesses appearing thereon.

Bercovitz v. Pearson, 23 Que. K.B. 323.

SALE—FOREIGN DEED—REGISTRATION.

Where a deed of sale is made and signed in another province than Quebec, without the legal formalities required in the latter, which for that reason cannot be registered in Quebec, the sale between the parties will be valid, and it is the purchaser's duty to prepare a deed in accordance with the agreement, in a form which conforms with the law.

Lamothe v. Hebert, 24 Rev. Leg. 182.

AUTHENTIC DEED—NOTARY—SIGNATURE

—FALSITY—RATIFICATION—EVIDENCE.

A deed, to be authentic, must be signed by all the parties before the acting notary; and if the words "have appeared before us," written in the deed by the notary, are untruthful, the deed is false and any interested party may have it declared unauthentic. A deed of ratification which does not mention the cause of nullity which it purports to rectify, and does not shew the intention of correcting that nullity, is not evidence.

Fyfe v. Birchenough, 53 Que. S.C. 466.

FALSE ENTRY—NOTARIAL DEED—LOST MIXTURE—PRESUMPTION—C.C., ART. 1211 C. C.P., ART. 230.

A copy of an notarial deed cannot be declared false and set aside when a false entry is entered by a pretended signature of the deed. It has been held that the copy of the deed which bears the same number as another deed on the notary's list cannot be recovered. The falsity of a notarial act is not readily presumed, but should be clearly established.

Sylvestre v. Boucher, 25 Rev. Leg. 220.

(§ I A—2)—WITNESSES.

The rule of law that in establishing a gift during a decedent's lifetime to the recipient, the gift must be established by separate and independent evidence without taking into account the evidence of the recipient himself, is satisfied, where in an action by an administrator to set aside a conveyance as invalid it appears that the deceased donor and recipient were mother and daughter, respectively, that the mother had lived with the daughter some years before the deed in question was made, that the mother had sent for a solicitor to draw up the conveyance which was done without the recipient being present and without the recipient taking part herein, that the instructions were given to the solicitor by the mother herself, and it is obvious from the evidence that the mother intended to compensate the daughter for her trouble and care and the amount which the daughter received was no more than a reasonable compensation. [Walker v. Smith, 29 Beav. 396, distinguished.]

Taylor v. Yeandle, 8 D.L.R. 733, 27 O.L.R. 531.

(§ I A-3)—NOTARIAL DEED—SIGNATURE BY PARTIES ON DIFFERENT DAYS—DATE OF DEED—WITNESS UNDER AGE.

It is not necessary, as a condition of the authenticity of a notarial deed in which there are two parties who agree thereto and sign it on different days, that the dates of their signing should be stated; and the deed may be validly terminated and signed by the notary after the latter of the two dates. The ground of an attack upon a notarial deed, that the witness to the instrument was not 21 years of age, ought to be established according to the usual rules of evidence. It is not sufficient that the description of such person, in the heading of his deposition as a witness in the cause, gives his age as 16 years.

Cauchon v. Cauchon, 23 Que. K.B. 365.

(§ I A-4)—REQUISITES OF FOR REGISTRATION.

All contracts are not susceptible of registration but only those which transfer, especially the ownership of real estate, always in view of protecting third parties but not the parties themselves. A promise of sale which does not transfer the ownership in connection with third parties, need not therefore be published in the registry office.

ILLITERATE PERSON—GRANT OF MINING RIGHTS—BURDEN UPON GRANTEE TO PROVE GOOD FAITH.

McKinnon v. McPherson, 42 N.S.R. 402.

B. DELIVERY.

(§ I B-6)—NECESSITY—DEATH OF GRANTEE.

The mere fact of the grantor retaining possession of the deed does not render the grant inoperative, particularly where the grant contained a reservation of a life estate to the grantor. The efficacy of a deed depends on its being sealed and delivered, and delivery may be inferred of a deed of gift notwithstanding the retention of possession of the document by the grantor, if it appears that it was executed in the presence of the grantor's legal adviser as an attesting witness with a full knowledge of its contents after the whole deed including the attestation clause had been read over to the grantor and that the deed was drawn at the grantor's request in furtherance of a previously expressed intention to make the gift evidenced by it. [Zwickler v. Zwickler, 29 Can. S.C.R. 527, applied.]

(§ I B-7)—DELIVERY—NOTARIES ACT—R.S.Q. 4588, 4637, 4638—QUE. C.P. 1320.

The filing of a copy of a deed in the registry office is delivery within the meaning of 4588, R.S.Q., and the notary may be required to furnish any subsequent copy.

II. Construction; effect; validity.

A. IN GENERAL.

Tax sale deeds, see TAXES.

(§ II A-15)—COVENANT—"COMMONS"—RECREATION GROUNDS.

The ball grounds, the reservoir, and the picnic grounds of a summer resort, used for general recreation, are "commons" within the meaning of a covenant in a deed entitling the lot owners to free access to the "commons" of the park, and are appurtenances running with the land that cannot be encroached upon by subsequent purchasers or assigns of the vendors of the grounds.

Re Lorne Park, 22 D.L.R. 350, 33 O.L.R. 51.

"CEDE"—"TRANSFER."

All the language in a deed must be taken into consideration for the purpose of discovering the intention of the parties, and words are to be given their natural meaning unless inconsistent with other provisions in the deed; the words "cede" and "transfer" may be perfectly consistent with the intention of giving the property as a pledge and not a complete transfer.

INSCRIPTION EN FAUX—DEED TO PROPERTY OF ANOTHER—RIGHTS OF THIRD PARTY IN GOOD FAITH.

A deed of sale or of exchange of an immovable which does not belong to the vendor is absolutely void. This nullity, as well as that which results from a deed of sale declared false and radically null, can be set up by third parties in good faith as affecting their rights. In an action for a decree of nullity of a deed of sale, it is not necessary to make a tender; such is only required in the demand to be restored to possession.

A father devised to his son E. the east half of his farm (subject to the payment of legacies to daughters) and to his son J. the west half (subject to the payment of legacies to daughters)—“And if either of my two sons E. and J. should die without heirs direct then his portion shall go to the other his heirs and assigns.” These devises were also subject to a life estate devised to the testator's wife. The testator died in 1866; his wife died in 1884. In 1873 J. by deed quitclaimed to E. all his (J.'s) right, title, interest, claim and demand in and to the west half. By a conveyance, made in pursuance of the Short Forms of Conveyances Act, C.S.U.C. c. 92, E., in 1877, conveyed the west half back to J., for an expressed consideration of $2,000.

This conveyance contained the usual release clause, and the following special proviso: “Subject also to the terms, conditions, and charges and legacies concerning the same expressed in the will”—that is, the will of the father. In 1885 the legacies were paid and the lands released therefrom. J. died in 1918, unmarried, and by his will devised the west half to the defendant. Two days after J.'s death, E., claiming to be entitled under the devise over to him in the will of his father, assumed to convey the west half to the plaintiff.—Held, that the words of the release clause in the conveyance of 1877, as expanded in the Short Forms Act, were ample to release to J. all and every interest which E. then had or might thereafter attain in the west half, and that the words of the special proviso should be treated as applicable to the life-estate of the widow (she being then still alive) and to the charges and legacies in favour of the daughters, which were then in force and unpaid; and therefore J. acquired, by virtue of the deed from E., a fee simple in the west half, free from the effect of the devise over to E. in the event of the death of J. “without heirs direct,” and the defendant, under the devise from J., was entitled to possession of the west half. The Statute of Frauds precluded the establishment of a trust in E. and a mere reconveyance from him to J.; and, if oral evidence was admissible for such a purpose, the evidence adduced failed to prove a trust.

(§ II A—16)—DEED OR BILL OF SALE.

A so-called deed of lease made for a period of 6 years whereby the so-called lessee binds himself to pay to the so-called lessor $100 a year, with interest on a named capital sum, containing a stipulation that the lessee may at any time purchase the property for a fixed sum (e.g., $610) or the balance of such sum, credit being given for the instalments of $100 paid in, is a deed of sale and not a contract of lease, and failure to pay one or more of the annual instalments does not give the creditors the right to take an action in cancellation of contract before the expiry of the term (e.g., 6 years), and in no case may such action be accompanied by a saisie-gagerie to seize the furniture or the crops.

(§ II A—19)—“MAINTAIN.”

A provision in a deed of gift that the donee municipality was to “maintain” a city hall on the site does not mean “maintain for all time.”

Powell v. Vancouver, 8 D.L.R. 24, 17 B.C. R. 379, 23 W.L.R. 104, 8 W.W.R. 108, 161.

In arriving at the construction which is to be placed on the words of a deed relied upon as creating a trust the same rule of interpretation applies upon the deed of intention to be gathered from the deed and the circumstances surrounding the making of such deed, as would apply in the case of a will.

Wolfe v. Croft, 6 D.L.R. 61, 46 N.S.R. 106.

Where there is no rent mentioned but only a fixed and determinate price, the sale will be held to be that of the immovable property, especially if there be no restriction as to time and duration. All the terms of a deed of sale must be examined in order to arrive at the true import thereof, and such words as "from now on and forever" will not be held to be mere surplusage.

Houle v. Quebec Bank et al., 4 D.L.R. 614, 41 Que. S.C. 521.

Where a penal clause in a deed of sale is ambiguous, such clause will be interpreted restrictively and against the creditor of the obligation.

NOTARIAL ACT—FALSE—SALE—GIFT INTER VIVOS—FORAGEY—MISTAKE—C.C., ARTS. 944, 949, 992, 1065, 1211, 1535.

We must distinguish in a notarial deed, between the proving force of writing and the judicial operation which it carries out, just as there is a distinction between the form and the substance of a deed. Thus a false inscription does not arise when the deed recites exactly that which the parties have wished and have declared, whatever be the truth, regularity and legality of the judicial operation which the parties have had in view and have desired to do. A pretended deed of a gift inter vivos of land, made by the donor to his brother to avoid the estate tail which burdened the land and in order to effect a sale to a third party, is void, even when the third party knows of the existence of the estate tail, if the person who has created the estate tail has not named in this latter the brothers and sisters of the encumbrancer who will take in default of children of the latter. There is then an error in the substance of the thing sold.

BOUNDARIES—ROAD RESERVATION.

Where the descriptions in the plaintiff's chain of deeds prior to the defendant's title from the common grantor clearly pointed to a road reservation 50 feet in width as a boundary, such may be shown to be the true boundary rather than another and intermediate road reserve not corresponding to same in width, although in one of the deeds in the plaintiff's chain of title the two road allowances were erroneously treated as identical, particularly where neither of them were in actual use as roads.

licable to the Great Lakes of Ontario, and the presumption of the common law that lands bordering on an inland lake extend to the middle of the lake if there be any such presumption is, in the case of the Great Lakes, rebutted. Any doubt that there might have been on the point is removed by the Bed of Navigable Waters Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 31. The bed of Lake Erie extends only to low water mark. The south boundary of a lot, described as "the bank of Lake Erie," held to be the water's edge or low water mark. [Williams v. Pickard, 17 O.L.R. 547, followed.]

Carroll v. Empire Limestone Co., 48 D.L.R. 44, 45 O.L.R. 121. [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada pending.]

OMISSION OF LOT FROM DEED PURPORTING TO CONVEY WHOLE PROPERTY—PRESCRIPTIVE TITLE.

A deed of gift of a farm consisting of the two registered lots 649 and 651, but described in the deed as consisting of one only (viz., 651), no matter what may be the defect, or even the nullity, of the registration respecting the lot which has been omitted (viz., 649), constitutes, nevertheless, a title to the whole property, and the donee who has had possession for 10 years acquires the ownership by prescription under art. 2251 C.C. (Que.).

Gravel v. Paré, 45 Que. S.C. 173. [Varied in 51 Que. S.C. 430.]

SALE OF LAND — AREA OR MEASUREMENT — SALE EN BLOC—QUE. C.C. 1000, 1106, 1501, 1503.

A sale of land described in the deed of sale as containing 39 arpents, "according to the vendor's title," when the latter declares before the notary at the signing of the deed that he sells en bloc, without regard to the quantity, is not a sale by measurement; it is a sale en bloc, which does not come under art. 1501, C.C. (Que.), and is subject rather to the application of art. 1503.

Stuart v. Rheauims, 23 Que. K.B. 518.

MISDESCRIPTION BY NOTARY—EFFECT.

A notary who received instructions from the parties to a deed of sale, to procure from the previous title deeds and certificate of search the exact description of the property sold, and who puts in the deed another description of a larger area, does not execute his mandate and the deed of sale so signed by the parties and by himself is subject to improbation.

Crow v. Crow, 16 O.W.N. 129.

(§ II C—31)—DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY CONVEYED—INACCURACY IN PLAN.

An inaccuracy in a plan does not control the dimensions of the parcels as set out in a conveyance of land.

Ettinger v. Atlantic Lumber Co., 36 D.L.R. 788, 51 N.S.R. 523. [Affirmed by Supreme Court of Canada, 59 Can. S.C.R. 649.]

REFERENCE TO PLAN.

The description in the conveyance for some time after the original allotment was by number, which would only be ascertained and located by reference to the plan of allotment, the only evidence of which at the time of action was the township plan. Held, that such plan, which was the foundation of the allotment, must be resorted to and regarded; also, that the finding of the Trial Judge in favour of the line as run by a surveyor who followed the township plan as against the line as run by a surveyor who did not regard such plan, must be supported.

Gibson v. Clinkworth, 51 N.S.R. 341.

ERROR.

Notwithstanding the fact that a deed of donation inter vivos from a father to his son contains the mention of one lot of land only, No. 651 of the cadastre, as the object of the donation, the court taking into consideration the statements in the deed, the possession of the parties, the interpretation that the interested parties have themselves given to the deed and all the other circumstances, may decide that the donation comprises also another lot, No. 649 of the cadastre, and that it was by error that the notary had omitted to mention this last lot in the deed.

Gravel v. Paré, 51 Que. S.C. 430, varying 45 Que. S.C. 173.

(§ II C—33)—AMBIGUITY AND VAGUENESS.

Where a deed of conveyance is made of the "west half" of a lot on a registered plan without further description thereof and the plan shews that the whole lot has a uniform width for a part only of its depth from the street on which it fronts and that the west boundary line of the lot is much longer than the east boundary and that the northerly boundary thereof runs diagonally in a south-easterly direction, the conveyance of the "west half" carries with it only one half of the superficial area of the whole lot; the rectangular area is to be first divided equally from a point in the centre of the frontage and the triangular portion in rear is to be divided by a straight line running diagonally from the termination of the division line of the rectangular portion so as to give an equal area thereof to each. [Skull v. Glenister, 16 C.B.N.S. 81; Herriek v. Sixby, L.R. 1 P.C. 436, applied.] Where a lot of irregular shape has its principal frontage on the north side of a street, and a conveyance is made of the "west half" thereof without further description, the grantee is entitled to the west half of the frontage on that street upon which the lot fronts but not necessarily to one half of another frontage which it has upon another street shown on the registered plan (in this case at the north easterly side of the lot). Hoovey v. Tripp, 2 D.L.R. 136, 25 O.L.R. 578, 21 O.W.R. 493.

In construing a deed purporting to assure a property, if there be a description of the property sufficient to render certain what is intended, the addition of a wrong name, or erroneous statement as to quantity, occupancy, locality, or an erroneous enumeration of particulars, will have no effect. (§ II D-35)—EASEMENTS OR PRIVILEGES—“WAY.”

A deed which specifically and reasonably describes the lot, together with the buildings and all easements or privileges appertaining thereto, includes a way in the rear of the house which need not be specifically described.

Ennis v. Bell, 40 D.L.R. 3, 52 N.S.R. 31. (§ II D-36)—APPURTENANCES—RESERVATION OF BARN.

A sale of land with messages and appurtenances transfers the ownership of buildings erected upon the land, which, being used in working it, are its appurtenances. Reservation by the vendor of part of a building, such as a barn, erected upon the land that he conveys “for his use of the other part of the lot” preserves to him only an active servitude on the immovable sold, and not a right of property in it. Nor do such terms constitute a commencement of proof in writing permitting the vendor to establish by evidence that he had effectively reserved the property in the whole barn.

Doyle v. Couture, 48 Que. S.C. 124.

(§ II D-37)—WHAT PASSES UNDER—AMOUNT OF LAND—CONVEYANCE OF LAND BUILDING STANDS ON—WIDTH AT EAVES OR AT FOUNDATION.

The extreme dimensions of the building at the eaves or other projection, such as an outside stairway, will constitute the boundary under a conveyance expressed to be of “that piece of land on which the present house now stands, 12 or 30 feet . . . or the size of the present building as it now stands” although the distances so expressed in feet were approximately those of the foundation walls only, the rule being that monuments control courses and distances.

Cox v. Day, 13 D.L.R. 290, 12 E.L.R. 524.

(§ II D-38)—WHAT PROPERTY PASSES—RIPARIAN RIGHTS ON NON-NAVIGABLE AND NONFLOATABLE RIVER.

In construing a grant of land, the law treats the parties as describing the land of which the full use and enjoyment is to pass to the grantee, and in cases where the possession of the parcel so described would raise a presumption of ownership of the land in front of it ad medium filum aquosum via, it is the exclusion of the latter and not its inclusion which must be evidenced by the terms of the grant where the grantor had power to include it; and such exclusion is not shown merely by a verbal or graphic description specifying only the land that abuts on the stream or highway without indicating in any way that it includes the land underneath. CONVEYANCE BY PARENTS IN CONSIDERATION OF SUPPORT FOR LIFE—RESERVATIONS AND EXCEPTIONS — HOUSEHOLD AND FARMING EFFECTS.

Clarke v. Clarke, 25 D.L.R. 737, 50 N. S.R. 293.

RESERVATIONS AND EXCEPTIONS — EASEMENTS—REGISTRATION.

Reservations in a conveyance of land of "all coal, coal oil, petroleum, etc., within upon or under the same" are exceptions and reservations from the grant and not easements, and should not be registered as charges, a certificate of indefeasible title may issue subject to these reservations a memorandum of which should be endorsed on the certificate. The incorporeal rights, such as rights of entry and rights of way, are easements, and not subject to reservation, but if they are easements of necessity incidental to the getting of the minerals there is no need to register them as a charge.

Albani Land Co. v. Registrar-General of Titles, 40 D.L.R. 142, 25 B.C.R. 273, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 537.

RESERVATIONS—OWNERSHIP.

A gift of real estate made in a marriage contract, with reservations, not fixing the time, by the donor, "of half of the maple syrup and maple sugar; of half of the apples; all the firewood," must be construed as unlimited, and the things therein mentioned as having remained among the donor's assets.

Legault v. Brisson, 53 Que. S.C. 251.

SETTLEMENT ACT B.C.—(CROWN GRANT—INDIAN RESERVES EXCEPTED—WHAT INCLUDED IN TERM.

By the Settlement Act, 47 Vict., c. 14, the Province of British Columbia granted to the Dominion a tract of land in Vancouver Island to aid in the construction of a railway. The plaintiffs undertook to build the railway, and the Dominion in consideration thereof granted the lands to them by way of subsidy. The grant did not include Indian Reserves or settlements, nor Naval or Military Reserves. The court held that only de facto Indian Reserves assigned to the Crown in right of the Dominion for the use of the Indians were excepted; the fact that lands were available or suitable for Indian Reserves did not make them reserves within the meaning of the grant.

E. and N.R. Co. v. McLellan, 44 D.L.R. 697, 26 B.C.R. 104, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 645, affirming 37 D.L.R. 803.

"EXCEPT PART EXPROPRIATED FOR STREET."

When a donor declares that he donates a lot of land "except the part expropriated for the widening of a street" and such expropriation has not yet taken place, this clause is void and the whole lot passes to the donee. The words should be taken in their grammatical sense, i.e., as relating to the past, and not to the future in the sense of "to be expropriated."

Vautelet v. Montreal, 49 Que. S.C. 160.

RESERVATION—DISSEISIN.

A donation of a sum of money to be taken from the property which the testator shall leave at his death, should be considered as a donation inter vivos of present property, if it appears from the terms of the deed or from the circumstances that the donation had been accompanied with actual disseisin. A hypothec given as security for payment of the sum donated, the donor undertaking to use it in the interests of the donee or the reserve of the usufruct or the right to receive it back, are circumstances indicating disseisin.

Bank of Montreal v. Roy, 26 Que. K.B. 549.

RESERVATION—RIGHT-OF-WAY—RAILWAY.

A reservation by a vendor in a deed of sale of land for a race track of "the right in respect of the remainder of said lots if he decides to make use of such remainder to use the railway line that the purchaser may establish upon the lot sold, for the purposes of such use of the land only, without other charge than that of contributing to the maintenance of the line, all such maintenance being at his exclusive charge if the purchaser does not himself operate the line of railway," confers on the vendor the right to use the whole line of railway constructed by the purchaser, outside of as well as upon the land sold up to the intersection of the main line, and not only that portion which is upon the lot sold.

La Belle v. Bellefleur, 26 Que. K. B. 70.

(§ II D—41)—OF MINERAL.

In the case of reprise d'instance by the heir of the deceased plaintiff his incapacity, due to nonpayment of succession duties under par. 6 of art. 1380, R.S.Q. 1909, should be set up in answer to his demand for reprise and the defendant cannot proceed to a hearing on the merits. The service of an action brought by the assignee of a debt against the debtor takes the place of signification of the transfer provided for by art. 1571 C.C. (Que.). When the vendor of an immovable reserves the right to make excavations in prospecting for mines on condition of paying the damages thereby caused a clause in the deed in these words, "such damage to be fixed by experts in case of disagreement" is an arbitration clause and, therefore, void.

Robertson Asbestos Mining Co. v. Houle, 21 Que. K.B. 176.

(§ II D—42)—OF RIGHT TO BUILD DAM OR FLOOD LANDS.

Natural gas is not within the exception of a deed reserving to the grantor all mines and quarries of metals and minerals, as well as all springs of oil discovered, or undiscovered, on the land conveyed, together with the right to search for, work, win, and carry the same away, where such deed was executed at a time when natural gas was regarded as a dangerous nuisance and long before it became a commercial product, since it was the clear intent of the parties to reserve only the products expressly mentioned in the deed.

Barnard-Argue, etc., Gas Cos. v. Farquharson, 5 D.L.R. 297, 23 O.W.R. 90, [1912] A. C. 864, affirming 25 O.L.R. 93.

CONVEYANCE OF HALF INTEREST IN LAND—COVENANT TO CONVEY OTHER LAND.
Snider v. Webster, 16 W.L.R. 397.

E. ESTATE OR INTEREST CREATED.

(§ II E—45)—ESTATE OR INTEREST CREATED—WANT OF EXPRESSION "HIS HEIRS"—MORTGAGE.

Apart from any question of rectification, a mortgage by way of grant containing the words "has sold and by these presents doth grant and convey," and further stating that such grant is intended as security for a specified payment which "if duly made will render this conveyance void," passes only an estate for the life of the grantee for want of the expression "and his heirs."

ESTATE CREATED—"IN FEE SIMPLE" WITHOUT USE OF WORD "HEIRS," EFFECT OF—REAL PROPERTY—CONSTRUCTION.

The mere use of the words "in fee simple" without the use of the words "heirs" in some part of the deed by a tenant in tail is ineffective to bar the entail and pass the fee. A deed of land by a person having an estate tail purporting to convey the fee simple and aided by an habendum clause in the following form, "to have and to hold unto the said party of the second part, her heirs and assigns, to and for her and their sole and only use forever," is sufficient to bar the entail.

A widow who is protector of a settlement must give her consent to a deed of the lands in which she has a life estate in order to give this deed a disentailing effect. If her consent is not given the estate tail "quod" remains and reversions is not destroyed. But the issue in tail being barred and there remaining over only the estate to one person in default of issue to another, the latter had the whole fee; and his conveyance to a third party conveyed the fee which he took which was a fee simple.

Re Bayliss & Balfe, 35 D.L.R. 350, 38 O.L.R. 437.

CONVEYANCE OF LAND—COVENANT TO MAINTAIN GRANTEE—CONDITION—BREACH—FORFEITURE—RELIEF AGAINST—WAIVER.

An aged widow, owning land with a house upon it, made an arrangement with the plaintiff to convey the land to him, subject to a life estate in her; he and his wife to live with the widow in the house and maintain her for her life. She conveyed the land to him in fee, subject to a life estate in herself; and, by a concurrent instrument under seal, he covenanted for her maintenance, payment of debts, and other things, and further that, if any default should be made in any of the covenants contained in that instrument, the conveyance of the land should become null and void and the property should revert to the grantor. What was proposed was carried out, and all went well for some time; but, circumstances changing, the widow went in to a home, the plaintiff and his wife left the house, which was rented, the widow receiving the rents; and the widow died in the home, after conveying her house and land to the defendant, but without having intimated that she intended to exercise the right of forfeiture conferred by the instrument: Held, in an action to set aside the conveyance to the defendant, that the plaintiff had failed to comply with the terms of his covenant for maintenance, but that the widow had waived performance of it, and there was no forfeiture during her life, and no entry by her, because her possession was by virtue of her life estate. On the death of the widow, the defendant, by virtue of her deed, took possession; the deed operated upon the possibility of reverter and the right of entry; and the taking of possession afforded an excuse for the nonpayment by the plaintiff of the debts of the widow, which he had covenanted to pay at her decease. And held, that the defendant's covenant as to default was not a condition in the strict sense of the term; and, if a condition, was dependent upon a breach of covenant; if there was any technical breach, the court could relieve against the forfeiture resulting therefrom. The breach (if any) did not ipso facto avoid the estate, but only made it liable to be avoided by the entry of the person entitled to the possibility of reverter. And in the result, the plaintiff's title prevailed.

Burdick v. Statham, 38 O.L.R. 227, 11 O.W.N. 213, affirmed in 11 O.W.N. 369.

(8) II E-551—ESTATES TAIL—USE OF WORD "IN FEE SIMPLE" READ WITH HABENDUM CLAUSE—CONSTRUCTION—BAR OF ENTAIL.

The use of the words "in fee simple" in a deed by a tenant in tail though ineffective to convey a fee absolute under R.S.O. 1897, c. 122, s. 29, is, however, suggestive of the estate intended to be conveyed, and where the habendum clause contains sufficient words to satisfy the statute shows that the intention of the grantor was to grant an estate in fee simple absolute, the two together will be held to bar the entail.

VOLUNTARY CONVEYANCE—UNDUE INFLUENCE—ONS.

If a gift be made by one who is aged and infirm, and dependent on the one to whom the gift is made, equity casts upon the donee the burden of proving that the transaction was fairly conducted as though between strangers, and that the weaker was not unduly influenced by the stronger.

THIRD PARTY—TITLE—HEIRS—HYPOTHEC—MISREPRESENTATION.

A private writing cannot be opposed to a third party in good faith if the latter is the heir by particular title of one of the signatories of the deed. One who has bought and paid for, in good faith, a claim resulting from an hypothecary loan, cannot be affected by an action to set aside taken by the borrower and attacking the deed of obligation as null on the ground of false representations, when that borrower has voluntarily signed the deed.

Limoges v. Jones, 53 Que. S.C. 70.

RECTIFICATION OF—MUTUAL MISTAKE—CANNOT BE RECTIFIED AGAINST THE PROTEST OF ONE OF THE PARTIES.

The principle of rectifying or reforming a conveyance rests upon the idea that the document as written is not evidential of the contract as made, and if both parties agree upon that point the court will proceed to reform the deed or writing in accordance with the common intent, but a deed or writ-

Can. Dig.—51.

Annotation.

Meaning of "half" of a lot: 2 D.L.R. 143.

OF "VERDICT."

The word "verdict" in s. 1021 of the Cr. Code is confined to the findings of a jury.
R. v. Murray and Fairbairn, 8 D.L.R. 208, 4 O.W.N. 368, 23 O.W.R. 492.

OF "FAMILY."

The word "family" as used in a deed of settlement to the effect that upon the death of the beneficiary the principal should go to such persons who might be members of the settlor's family, as he should by will appoint, is elastic enough and the context broad enough to include grandchildren who, at the death of the beneficiary, resided with and were a part of the settlor's recognized family.
Re Irwin, 4 D.L.R. 803, 3 O.W.N. 936, 21 O.W.R. 562.

OF "UNPATENTED LANDS."

The term "unpatented lands" in s. 31 of the Municipal Assessment Act, is used in the special sense of lands vested in the Crown, in which a purchaser takes merely such interest as the Crown or its officers may be willing to recognize in the particular case.

Minto v. Morrice, 4 D.L.R. 435, 22 Man. L.R. 391, 21 W.L.R. 255, 617, 2 W.W.R. 374.

OF "NECESSARIES."

"Necessaries" for failing to provide which for his wife or children, a husband is liable under s. 242 of the Cr. Code, are such things as are essential to preserve life, since such word is not used in its ordinary legal sense, and what will constitute necessities must be determined in view of the circumstances of each particular case. [R. v. Brooks, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 372, approved.]

The King v. Sidney, 5 D.L.R. 256, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 376, 5 S.L.R. 392, 21 W.L.R. 853, 2 W.W.R. 761.

OF WORD "SCAB."

The term "scab" as applied to one who takes the place of a striking workman, is one of opprobrium, meaning a very mean, low man, or one to be despised. For a sympathizer with a body of striking workmen, while on a public street during the progress of a strike wherein it had been necessary to call troops to maintain peace and order, to call one who takes the place of a striker a "scab" or "a born scab" is a violation of a municipal by-law imposing a fine upon one who shall, while on a public street, use abusive, insulting and provoking language to any person thereon, since such language tended to incite disorder and public disturbance.

The King v. Elderman, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 445.

WORDS AND PHRASES.—MAINTENANCE—NECESSARY FURNITURE—QUE. C.C. ARTS. 165, 166, 169; QUE. C.P. ART. 549.

The word "maintenance" (aliment) comprises personal property (meubles) necessary for furnishing a residence, but does not extend to that which is used to ornament the house.

Labbe v. Donohue, 46 Que. S.C. 390.

OF "PREJUDICE"—"ON PAIN OF FORFEITURE."

Prejudice is a question of law; there is necessarily prejudice when a party does not do something which the law directs him to do "on pain of forfeiture." The words "on pain of forfeiture" in art. 4278 R.S.Q. 1888, requiring a copy of the petition against the return at a municipal election, mean "on pain of nullity."

RIGHT TO PRACTICE—ADMISSION TO DENTAL COLLEGE—REQUIREMENTS OF COUNCIL—VALIDITY.

The fact that subs. (d) of s. 3 of the Dental Profession Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 108, relating to the admission to the College of Dental Surgeons of graduates of recognized dental colleges of the United States, prescribes that applicants shall satisfy the college council as to their qualifications and pass the final examination prescribed by the college for registration under the act, does not prevent the council from adopting a by-law requiring such applicants to submit, as part of the final examination, a certificate showing an educational standing equal to the junior matriculation, or to pass an examination before the president of the University of Saskatchewan in respect thereto.

Hodgson v. Cowan, 15 D.L.R. 236, 6 S. L.R. 377, 26 W.L.R. 407, 5 W.W.R. 907.

PRACTISING WITHOUT LICENCE—HABITUAL ACTS.

College of Dental Surgeons v. Gagnon, 14 D.L.R. 398, 44 Que. S.C. 216.

PRACTISING WITHOUT LICENCE.

That an unqualified person is doing dental practice and is seemingly in full charge of the business carried on under the name of another person resident in a distant city for his own benefit may constitute a prima facie case of practising in contravention of the Dental Profession Act, R.S.S. c. 108.

R. v. Schilling; Cowan v. Schilling, 21 D.L.R. 60, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 380, 8 S.L.R. 70, 7 W.W.R. 1112.

UNLAWFUL PRACTICE—FEES NOT RECOVERABLE, WHEN.

Dental work done in violation of the Dentistry Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 64, cannot constitute ground for an action for fees for such work, and moneys already paid in relation thereto may be recovered back.

Burgess v. Zimmerli, 17 D.L.R. 708, 19 B.C.L.R. 428, 27 W.L.R. 875, 6 W.W.R. 908.

UNLAWFUL PRACTICE — MECHANICAL DENTISTRY—LICENSE.

Taking impressions of the gums and filling teeth as a business, constitutes a practice of dentistry which, in Alberta, can be done for hire and gain only by a licentiate under the Dental Association Act, Alta., 1906, c. 22.

R. v. Cruikshanks, 16 D.L.R. 536, 7 A.L.R. 92, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 23, 27 W.L.R. 759, 6 W.W.R. 524.

UNLAWFUL PRACTICE — SEVERAL ATTENDANCES ON ONE PERSON.

While a single act does not constitute a "practising" of a profession of trade, the practice of the profession of dentistry is shown by services for only one customer on different dates, ex. gr. the taking impressions of the gums and fitting the plates for artificial teeth. [As to proving more than a single act in infringement of licensing statutes against "practising" a profession, see also R. v. Lee, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 416; R. v. Whelan, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 277; R. v. Raffenberg, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 297; R. v. Armstrong, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 72.]

UNLAWFUL PRACTICE — MECHANICAL DENTISTRY.

Taking an impression of the gums and fitting a dental plate constitutes the practice of dentistry, and if done for gain the person doing such work must be registered under the Dental Association Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 53, and in default may be summarily convicted under that Act. [See R. v. Cruikshanks, 16 D.L.R. 536, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 23, 7 A.L.R. 92.]

EMPLOYEE OF REGISTERED DENTIST.

A salaried employee of a licensed dentist is liable, if not himself registered as a student of dentistry, to summary conviction under the Dental Profession Act, R.S.S. c. 108, s. 50, for illegally practising dentistry in doing general dentistry work for his employer's customers although his personal gain is limited to his salary.

R. v. Manning, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 227, 8 S.L.R. 333.

PRACTICE OF DENTISTRY—LICENSE.

A medical surgeon who does not publicly advertise himself as a surgeon dentist may, nevertheless, in his medical practice exercise the art of dentistry even in its mechanical and operative features, such as the extraction of teeth, lead work, plates, bridges and crowns. He is not obliged in such case to first obtain a licence from the college of surgeon dentists of the province.

Exclusion from Canada of British subjects of Oriental origin: 15 D.L.R. 191.

(§ I—2)—IMMIGRANT FROM UNITED KINGDOM — LACK OF FUNDS — MONEY ADVANCED BY EMPLOYER.

Money advanced to an immigrant by a person for whom he had contracted to labour and which is to be deducted from his wages, is possessed "in his own right" within the meaning of the Immigration Act, 9-10 Edw. VII. (Can.) c. 27, and the order-in-council made thereunder.

(§ I—4) — JURISDICTION — ORDER MADE WITHOUT JURISDICTION — POWER OF COURT TO REVIEW.

An order for the deportation of an immigrant from the United Kingdom when made without jurisdiction, or not in accordance with the provisions of the Immigration Act, 9-10 Edw. VII. (Can.) c. 27, may be reviewed by the court, notwithstanding s. 23 of the Act, restricting the power of the court to review, quash, restrain or otherwise interfere with the enforcement of orders made by the immigration authorities; such restriction does not apply where the order made was outside of the authority conferred by the statute.

IMMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS—ASIATICS FROM BRITISH TERRITORY—ASIATIC "ORIGIN" OR ASIATIC "RACE."

Where a statute authorizes the regulation of the immigration of persons of the "Asiatic race" by orders-in-council, an order-in-council purporting to regulate the immigration of persons of "Asiatic origin" is ultra vires as exceeding the statutory authority, the word "Asiatic origin" being wide enough to include persons of the British race born in Asia who would not be within the words "Asiatic race" used in the statute.

(§ 1—5)—JURISDICTION—ORDER TO SWEAR GROUND OF EXCLUSION—IMMIGRATION LAW—FINED SUM OF MONEY TO BE POSSESSED BY IMMIGRANT AT TIME OF ENTRY.

When a person is ordered to be deported out of the country, the reason for the deportation should be clearly stated in the order, and it is not a compliance merely to refer, under the heading of "reasons," to the section number of the statute under which the order purported to be made. A requirement under an immigration law that the immigrant shall have, on arrival, a stated sum in his own right, does not alone demand that the money shall be in his actual and personal possession, and would be satisfied by his having the money on deposit in a Canadian bank.

The enquête in an action for separation should be held outside of court by means of depositions before the judge or prothonotary who alone can swear the witnesses pursuant to the provisions of art. 418, C. C.P. A commissioner of the Superior Court has no authority to swear witnesses in such

(§ 1—2)—RIGHT TO TAKE—PRELIMINARIES.
On a reference to determine who is entitled to the property of a deceased intestate, a claimant may have a commission issued to take evidence abroad, unless it be perfectly plain that the alleged evidence will not be available, or, if it be available, will be wholly useless, and unless the rights of some other party would suffer, but he will be required to pay into court a sum sufficient to cover the costs of the commission in case he fails to prove his claim.

APPLICATION FOR FOREIGN COMMISSION—HOW MADE.

Motion for a foreign commission to take testimony must, under order 30, r. 5, be brought up on notice of motion under the summons for directions; such a motion is irregular if brought up on an ordinary summons for an interlocutory application. [Chuff v. Brown, 7 D.L.R. 688, followed.]

The same particularity is not required as to the proof to be adduced on an application for a foreign commission in a criminal case under Cr. Code, s. 716, which authorizes the making of the order in aid of a preliminary inquiry to take the deposition of a witness out of Canada who is "stated to be" able to give material information relating to the offence as would be required upon an application under Cr. Code, s. 997, to take evi-the effect that such reports were made for the information of the company's solicitor and his advice thereon.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION OF PARTY—EX PARTE ORDER.

FOREIGN COMMISSION — PRELIMINARIES — AFFIDAVIT.

A commission to take testimony under commission out of the jurisdiction, may be ordered on an affidavit swearing positively that a nonresident physician (whom the deponent employed to attend his wife in respect to the injuries sustained in respect of which the action was brought), was a necessary and material witness, and that the physician was unwilling to come into the province to attend the trial of the action.

Brown v. Bartlett, 13 D.L.R. 355, 42 N.B.R. 222.

OF PARTY RESIDING ABROAD—GIVING SECURITY FOR COSTS AS GROUND FOR ISSUING COMMISSION—SAVING EXPENSES.

That a nonresident plaintiff has given security for the costs in the action is not a ground for granting a foreign commission to take his testimony abroad. The mere fact that it would be cheaper to take the testimony of a nonresident plaintiff at his place of residence abroad than for him to attend the trial is not sufficient to justify the granting of a foreign commission.

PARTY RESIDING ABROAD—WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION CLAIM.

An applicant claiming as "a dependent wholly dependent upon the earnings of the deceased," under the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Act, 1908, c. 12, should be granted a commission for the taking in Italy of his own evidence and that of his witnesses as to who are dependents where it appears (a) that such evidence is material and necessary to establish the fact and extent of the dependency, and (b) that the expense of bringing the witnesses from Italy to Alberta would be prohibitory and unnecessary.

DE BENE ESSE IN CRIMINAL CASE.

It is the duty of the Trial Judge at a criminal trial to allow only admissible evidence to go to the jury, and he may exclude testimony taken de bene esse before a commissioner for use at the trial subject to all proper exceptions, if the testimony be not properly admissible although no exception was taken before the commissioner and the objection was first raised on the tender of the depositions at the trial.

COMMISSION—OFFICERS OF COMPANIES.

An order to take evidence of officers of the applicant company ex juris upon commission should not be made without proof of facts shewing that the taking of the evidence in that way is "necessary for the purposes of justice" (Alta., r. 395); and where it is sought on a motion for direction, leave should be given to both parties to file affidavits. FOREIGN COMMISSIONS — ABSENCE BECAUSE OF WAR.

In an action for the cancellation of shares on the ground of misrepresentations, the evidence of plaintiffs unable to be present at the trial because engaged in the country's war may be taken on commission, particularly where the proposed evidence is within the defendant's knowledge and which may be met by his fullest preparation. Kaye v. Burnsland Addition, 24 D.L.R. 232, 8 W.W.R. 1064, 31 W.L.R. 689.

MATERIAL WITNESSES IN OTHER PROVINCE.

Where material witnesses are resident in another province and cannot be compelled to leave that province to give testimony at the trial, the fact that such witnesses are in the employ of the plaintiff company on whose behalf the application is being made to take their evidence under commission will not disentitle the company to an order to take the evidence where the court is satisfied that the application is bona fide, that the witnesses can give material evidence, and that the examination will be effectual. DE BENE ESSE—CREDIBILITY—REVIEW ON APPEAL.

The Court of Appeal stands in as good position as the Trial Judge to weigh the value of evidence taken de bene esse and estimate the credibility to be attached to it.

DE BENE ESSE—SUFFICIENCY OF GROUNDS.

Where a plaintiff has selected British Columbia as the place where the action should be brought, it is his duty prima facie to bring his witnesses to this province or to show that it would not be in the interest of justice that he should be compelled to do so. Where a plaintiff seeks to have a material witness examined abroad and the nature of the case is such that it is important he should be examined here, the party asking must show that he cannot bring him to this province to be examined on the trial. The principal officer of the plaintiff company, who is a material witness, cannot be examined on the plaintiff's behalf under cover of a general leave given by an order for a commission to examine "other persons."

Stewart Iron Works Co. v. B.C. Iron, Wire & Fence Co., 29 B.C.R. 513.

FOREIGN COMMISSION—PARTY RESIDING ABROAD—SUFFICIENCY OF CERTIFICATE.

It will be presumed that a witness whose evidence was taken abroad under a commission is out of the province at the time of the trial and such deposition may be given in evidence under O. XXXVII, r. 18, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1909, without proof that the deponent is dead, or beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or unable from sickness or other infirmity to attend the trial. [Burpee v. Carville, 16 N.B.R. 141, followed.] A certificate of a stenographer, signed and dated and attached to the depositions, certifying that he took faithful and accurate notes of the examination of the witnesses, and that the writing on the sheets of paper annexed is a faithful and accurate transcript made by him of his notes, is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the order that the stenographer shall certify the transcript as correct. A certificate signed by a commissioner, certifying that the sheets of paper annexed were furnished to him by the stenographer as containing a transcript of his notes of evidence, followed by the type-written evidence, is a sufficient compliance with r. 16, requiring the deposition to be authenticated by the signature of the commissioner and with the commission requiring the depositions to be signed by the commissioner.

Moore v. Gagnon, 15 Que. P.R. 394.

WITNESS RESIDING ABROAD—REFUSAL TO ANSWER QUESTIONS OF COMMISSION—LETTER OF INQUIRY (LETTRE ROGATOIRE) TO FOREIGN TRIBUNAL.

When a witness residing abroad refuses to answer interrogations annexed to a judicial commission in the ordinary course, the Superior Court, on application by the interested party, can issue a request or letter of enquiry (lettre rogatoire), addressed to the proper tribunal of the place, praying it to force the refractory witness to answer. This request or letter of enquiry is transmitted to its destination through diplomatic channels, at the suit of the party who has obtained its issue.

Edwards v. Petit Seminaire de Sainte-Marie de Monnoir, 45 Que. S.C. 178.

FOREIGN COMMISSIONS—CROSS-EXAMINATION—GOVERNMENTAL DOCUMENTS—COPIES.

Even where there is likely to be a conflict of evidence between a witness for the plaintiff and an officer of the defendant company whose evidence is sought to be taken on commission in the United States, the desirability of examining such witnesses before the court is not a sufficient reason to compel the defendants to bring their witness, at great expense, to a forum not chosen by them, and a commission should issue. The fact that certain documents written by the defendant to the Provincial Government are said to be necessary for use in cross-examining and cannot be removed from the province, is not an objection, as copies can be obtained and used.

Western Iron Co. v. Reedy Co., 33 W.L.R. 915.

WITNESS OUT OF JURISDICTION—WHEN DEPOSITION SET ASIDE.

Where the defendant obtained an order for the examination of a witness out of the jurisdiction on the day following the date of the order, leave was granted to the plaintiffs by the order to apply in Chambers to set aside the depositions upon proof that it was impossible for the plaintiffs to prepare for such examination, and that they would in consequence be seriously prejudiced if the depositions were admitted at the trial.

Gowans Kent v. Assiniboia Club, 31 W.L.R. 196.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESS OUTSIDE JURISDICTION.

An order to examine a witness outside the jurisdiction may issue when to a court or judge "it shall appear necessary for the purposes of justice." There must be some good reason shown why the witness cannot be examined before the court, or that he cannot be brought or will not come. Consequently an affidavit by a solicitor in the words, "I am not sure that he will be present," is insufficient to found an order upon. In Lawson v. Vacuum Brake Co., 27 Ch. D. 137, at 143, 54 L.J. Ch. 16, Cotton, L.J., says: "A heavy burden lies on the party who wishes to examine a witness abroad to shew clearly that he cannot be brought here or that he will not come." In Armour v. Walker, 25 Ch. D. 673, 53 L.J. Ch. 413, it was necessary to take the evidence of four witnesses in addition to that of several experts to prove foreign law, all of whom were living abroad. In Coch v. Alcock, 21 Q.B.D. 178, 57 L.J.Q.B. 489, there were several witnesses to be examined abroad also, and the question of expenses in bringing the witnesses to court was considered. In this case, Lord Esher, M.R., at 181, says: "It is clear that according to the established practice, it is a matter of judicial discretion and the commission ought only to be granted on reasonable grounds being shewn for its issue. The matter being one of discretion it is absolutely impossible to lay down any general rules as to when a commission will be granted, it must depend on the circumstances of the particular case."

Jamieson v. Ety, 7 W.W.R. 99.

(§ II—6)—TIME TO TAKE—FOREIGN COMMISSION.

To obtain a commission to take the depositions of foreign witnesses to be used as evidence, it is not necessary to set out explicitly the nature of the evidence nor the facts intended to be proved by the witnesses sought to be examined, if the court is satisfied that the application is bona fide and that the evidence is material and cannot be obtained within the jurisdiction.

Smith v. Murray, 1 D.L.R. 303, 20 W.L.R. 9, 1 W.W.R. 764.

Where the court is not satisfied that a foreign commission is necessary, the applicant may be ordered to elect between giving security for the costs of the commission, and a refusal of the commission with liberty to obtain a commission at the trial if it appears necessary to the Trial Judge, the party opposing the commission to be bound in that event to consent to a postponement of the trial for that purpose. Macdonald v. Sovereign Bank, 3 O.W.N. 1006, followed.]

(§ II—8)—INTERROGATORIES.

An order may be made under Ont. Con. r. 472 to withhold the right of discovery upon oath from the opposite party in respect of matters which relate only to consequential relief to be given in the event of the plaintiff succeeding on the main issue if the enforcement of discovery before the trial of that issue would be of an oppressive character.

Patterson v. Neill, 1 D.L.R. 22, 3 O.W.N. 516, 20 O.W.R. 887.

An open commission under art. 385a, C. C.P., will issue to take the depositions of witnesses in a foreign country for use in a summary proceeding under Part XV., Crim. Code, where the parties to the application agreed there should be but one commissioner appointed, but did not agree in the first instance that they would not furnish interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, and it was alleged that the petitioner had caused the departure of the witnesses from Canada in order to prevent their testifying.
