CRAMPS.

Cause and Cure Are Re-Their viewed.

In this article we shall discuss only the local muscular spasms that affect most commonly the calves of the legs, but that sometimes occurs in the thighs, the arms or the wall of the abdomen. Internal cramps, or colic, abdomen. Internal cramps, or colic, swimmer's cramp and writer's cramp are affections of an entirely different nature.

A cramp, in this restricted sense, is traction of a small part of a muscle; it does not usually cause any move-ment in the affected limb, for to do that a contraction of nearly the entire muscle is necessary, and then we have what is called a spasm, or a convul-

This contraction is involuntary, al though persons who are subject to cramps sometimes brings them on by a voluntary movement, such as stretching. The early-morning cramp is often brought on by the stretching to which one is prone on awaking. Very commonly the cramp comes on during sleep, and the intense pain awakens steep, and the intense pain awakens the suffere with a start. The affected part of the muscle forms a hard knot, and if a large part of the muscle is involved the limb may be drawn up, often with cramps than do persons in middle life. In children the cause is usually violent exercise, such as type violent exercise, such as run ning and jumping, but in the elderly

Princess Pat's Children In Succession to Throne

For the most eminent jurists of the Ualted Kingdom and of Continental nations of Europe are united in their contents. of Europe are united in their conten-tion that parents have no power to sacrifice rights of their children, minors or as yet unborn.

This question was widely discussed at the time of the morganatic mar-riage of the ill-fated Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary to Countess Sophia Chotek. The union Countess Sophia Chotek. The union was only sanctioned by Emperor Francis Ferdinand, the heir presumptive to the Dual thrones, renounce all rights and claims to the two crowns, not for himself, but for any sons born to the union. This was made the subject of debate in the Hungarian Parliament, where it was established by the leading native and foreign jurists that the Archiduke, whose assassination, with his wife at Sarajevo, in June, 1914, precipitated whose assassingtion, with his wife at Sarajevo, in June, 1914, precipitated the great war, had no power to rob by any pledges or acts of his own, his handlary than the predicary oung sons, from their hereditary

TWO DAUGHTERS OF PRINCESS ROYAL.

Next in the line of succession to the five children of George V. comes his sister, the widowed Princess Royal, whose two children are the young Duchess of Fife and the still unmarried Princess Maud. The Duchess of Fife is married to the Duke of Con-naught's only son, Prince Arthur, and ried Princess Maud. If Lady Patricia Ramsay's marriage If Lady Patricia Ramsay's marriage to Lord Dalhousie's sailor brother, Capt. the Hon. Alexander Ramsay, of the royal navy, has been so readily sanctioned by King George and has been we.comed by the people of Great Britain, it is occause the union is of a nature to emphasize the emancipation of the reigning house of England from that foreign and more especially Gerthat foreign and more especially Ger-man doctrine, according to the terms Maximilian of Hohenberg, would stand a fair chance of being put forward as a candidate for the throne were it not that he is half Czcch, through his mother, and that his father, thanks to her influence, never neglected any opportunity of manifesting his aversion for the Magyars.

Of course the according to the terms or which royalty can only mate with royalty, and scions of sovereign dynastics are debarred from marrying any but members of other dynastic. objections.
Since there can be no question for many years to come of any matrimo-nial alliance on the part of English Princes of Princesses with German dynasties, the matrinonial market open to the English royal family is very small, and the natural alternative is for its members to seek their mates among their fellow countrymen and countrywomen.

Anternational agreements of this kind are, even in American jurisprulence, superior to any law. Otherwise

True, when in 1889 King George's eldest sister, the Princess Royal, was led to the altar by Lord Fife, created a Duke on his wedding day, objections were raised to the match by some of the older members of the British aristoracy. For the Princess Royal was then fourth in the line of the succession to the throne, with some prossion to the throne, with some then fourth in the line of the succession to the throne, with some prospects therefore of becoming Queen regnant owing to the fact that her two only brothers, the Duke of Clarcace and of York, were both unmarried, the elder of the two dying eighteen months later.

* Morganatic marriages have no place in English jurisprudence, and the idea thereof is repugnant to the English mind, being a thoroughly German institution. In fact, there is only one known instance thereof in modern English loyalty, namely, when Queen Victoria was led by her affection for Victoria was led by her affection for her kindly old fincle, the royal Duke of Sussex, to recognize his union with Lady Cecilia Gore (daughter of Lord Arran, and widow of Sir George Bug-gin), until then regarded as invalid, and to bestow upon her the title of Duchess of Inverness. It was a mar-riage which remained without issue.

Otherwise matrimonial alliances of British royalty with non-royal fellow citizens, have been numerous. Thus, when Princess Louise, sister of King Edward, married the late Duke of Argyll, one time Governor-General of Canada, he had not yet succeeded to his father's honors, and was a com-moner, though he bore the courtesy title of Marquis of Lorne.

At the Court of Berlin and else where on the Continent, he was made to feel keenly the difference of his to feel keenly the difference of his rank with that of his wife. This was all the more hard on him, since in Scotland his father as head of the historic and powerful clan of Camp-bell was regarded as a very grand personage.

King James II.'s first wife was commoner, Lady Anne Hyde, daughter of Edward Hyde, first Earl of Clarendon, of a former creation, and Lord High Chancellor of England. She died as Duchess of York, before James's succession to the throne. Yet Duchess "Nan" of York was recognized by her brother-in-law, Charles II., at his court, as a royal Princess.

Two of the Queen of Henry VIII., Jane, daughter of Sir John Seymour, and Mother of Edward VI., and Catherine Howard, a daughter of Lord Ed-mund Howard, were commoners when he ied them to the alte. Queen Eliza-beth's mother, the ill-fated Anne Boleyn, was a peeress as Marchioness of leyn, was a peeress as Marchioness of Pembroke, when Henry VIII. made her his Queen, while the sixth and last of this Bluebeard monarch's many wives, Catharine Parr, although daughter of a commoner, was, as widow of Lord Latimer, a peeress by marriage when called upon to share his throne.

HENRY IV. HAD COMMONER AS

QUEEN.

Henry IV. had as queen, a commoner, Lady Mary de Bonun, daughter of the Earl of Hereford, and she was the mother of Henry V., the hero of the battle of Agincourt. As for the Frinces and Princesses of the English reigning house, who have contracted recognized matrimonial alliances with non-royal persons, they are too numerous to find a place here. Perhaps the best known instances are are too numerous to find a place here. Perhaps the best known instances are those of Princess Amelia (youngest daugnter of George III.), who, when dying of consumption, was permitted by her father to crown the one to-mance of her life by marrying Gen. by her father to crown the one tomance of her life by marrying Gen.

An only daughter was born to this union, Princess Sophia Dorothea. She married, first of all, Prince Augustus of Wolfenbuttel, and subsequently Louis, sovereign Elector of Hanover, who afterward became King of Great, Britain and Ireland under the title of George I. Although the union was a most unhappy one and she died in the captivity to which she had been consigned after her tragic romance with Count Philip Koenigsmarck, she presented her husband a son, who followed him on the throne of Great Britain and of Hanover, as King George II., and a daughter who became the mother of Frederick the Great of Pryssia.

George V. of Great Britain, the ex-Kaiser, King Alexander of Greece, the Queen of Spain, the Queen of Norway, the future Queen of Sweden have therefore common forebears in the person of Baron Alexandre d'Olbreuse and of his wife Jacqueline Poussard.

LLOYD GEORGE SCORES AGAIN

End of Conscription in Germany a Big Point.

Makes World Peace Easier for League.

London, Cable.— In discussing events at the Peace Conference Paris, the Daily Chronicle says:

Paris, the Daily Chronicle says:

"There is no doubt that Premier Lloyd George scored a very important point in gaining the assent of his colleagues on the Council of Ten to the principle that conscription shall be abolished in Germany. The plan adopted will enable the powers on whose shoulders the chief responsibility for maintaining the League of Nations will rest to bear that burden with a much smaller military effort than would otherwise be needed.

"There will be no risk of perpetuating conscription in Great Britain and the United States, and we cannot suppose that France and Italy, having regard for their economic situation, will care to encumber themselves indefinitely with it. The disarmament of Germany, being compulsory, will have to be watched and enforced for many years by travelling commissions of the League of Nations.

"The abolition of compulsory ser-vice is the greatest practical step yet taken toward the discouragement of war," says the Daily Mail.
"There is one vital provision for the war," says the Daily Mail.

"There is one vital provision for the safety of the Allies that must accompany the abolition of conscription, however. This is the complete and effective disarmament of Germany."

To Take Part in Meeting With the Germans.

London, Cable.—A sitting of the Peace Congress is not contemplated before the final completion of the Czar's order. Before confection was made, Nicholas was deposed, and, according to generally accepted reports, slain.

before the final completion of the Germans, according to Reuter's Paris slain. correspondent. The explanation of this step as given by an authoritative British source, is that the question of peace with Germany is one that concerns only the powers that took part in the war against her, and that it is unnecessary to require the conference to permit the delegates of other countries to take part in deliberations in which they have no direct interest. The same authority is of the opinion that even at Versailles when the terms are presented, the meeting may be that even at Versailles when the terms are presented, the meeting may be confined to the German delegates and the representatives of the Entente allies and the powers associated with the minimum the wear. them in the war.

A. LETTER.

Dear Editor,-

Three weeks have passed since last l

And sent you down a little note; I've been so busy I'll be bound I've lacked the time to call around. But when I'm tinkering at a car, I often wonder how you are. I'd like to wander down some day, But, ghee! it's hard to get away. I wish you'd advertise and see If you could get a man for me; Unless you do, I greatly fear I'll get few holidays this year. If things keep on I'll pay my debts Repairing Fords and Chevrolets. The roads have been in such a state, And guys will drive at such a rate, That I have had a lot to do Straightening old parts and putting But when I'm tinkering at a car, Straightening old parts and putting in new.

I had a car come in to-day, (They brought it here via a sleigh), It looks to me as if he tried Down 'Echo Rock' to take a ride. He says he only hit a cow, ???? I'd like to see that Holstein now! The windshield's gone, the top is torn, One lamp's changed places with the horn; The right front wheel has lost a spoke, A door is bent and an axle's broke; The engine's got a little little little The engine's got a little kink,

The 'carb.' and 'mag.' are on the blink. And I'm supposed to take this wreck And make it good as new. By Heck! I tell you, Ed., it makes me grin \ To see a busted 'Liz.' come in. Those little cars are good, you know, They're light, and strong, and most times go, So when one does turn up its toes, Sighs once or twice, but never goes, And I am asked what I'd advise, I shake my head and just look wise; Suggest new 'valves' and a 'ring' or

A 'timer shell' and a 'spark plug' new; A timer shell and a spark plug new;
I boke around with a pair of pliers,
Advise the gent he needs new 'wires',
And 'way he goes a-running fine,
And another dollar bill is mine.
Next winter I expect to sail
To Florida to spend the 'kale',
That's come my way from fiving case. That's come my way from fixing cars That's had too many sudden jars.

So, Ed., that's how it is up here, It s been a mighty busy year, With lots of work and these dry times find it hard to write my rhymes, It's hard to lay aside a wrench, Pack up the tools, clean up the bench, Look up some ink and paper too, And write a verse that's half-ways true. You start a sonnet on the way To spend a summer holiday.

Just when an inspiration's caught,

Some guy comes in and spoils your thought thought

By asking prices on a tire,
"Will gasonne go any higher?"
And when he goes you sit and stare
At the scribbled page that's lying there;
Gene are your wond'rous thoughts and hope

Gone are your wond'rous thoughts and hope
Of writing really classy dope.
You planned to do the verse just right,
Becoming ramous over night;
Instead, you light a cigarette,
And wonder it a Chevrolet
Will use more 'gas' than a Buick 'six',
And which is the easiest 'bus' to fix.
I tell you, Ed., I never tire
Of sitting by my old grate fire,
Letting the precious moments fly. Letting the precious moments fly, As I ngure out the car I'd buy, If I had a hundred thousand 'bones' Locked up in good old Victory loans.

But say! I guess it's time I closed this little bit of rhyme. I've found that dreaming and writing verse

Verse
Don't put the dollars in your purse.
Hark! Did you hear that car puff in?
Another chance to coin some 'tin'!
Believe me, Ed., a monkey wrench,
A dirty smock, and a greasy bench,
Can give the pen a good hard go
When it comes to working for the 'dough'.

EX-KAISER MAY ESCAPE

His Fate Rests With Council of Ten.

Allies Cannot Agree Regarding His Crimes—The British and American Diplomats Contend That Wm. Hohenzollern Must Be Proved Guilty of Some Specific Hlegal Act During War.

PARIS, March 18 .- The preliminary report of the Commission on Responsibilities shows that an important question has developed respecting the personal legal responsibility of the ex-Kaiser from the point of view of British and American law. Both maintair that the former Kaiser cannot be under seally a seally and the point of the product of the not be made penally responsible for acts done in his capacity as a sove-reign, such as provoking the war or violating Belgium, for in effect, as already stated in despatches, war is recognized as a legal method for set-tling differences. To bring the former Kaiser to justice it will be necessary to prove some specific criminal act, such as inciting to the murder of prisoners, or, for instance, if he decorated the captain who sank the Lusitania, that would make him in British law an accessory to the murder after the

The commission proposed also to set up an international tribunal for the trial of criminals without regard to their rank.

The French make it no secret that The French make it no secret man their position is that to punish the former Kaiser is a matter of sentiment with them, with their 1,400,000 dead, and that legal niceries should not stand in the way. The question also arises whether the procedure proposed would be in accord with the American constitution as involving retroactive legislation. The whole matter goes to the Council of Ten for a decision.

The future of German-Austria is still troubling the conference, and as its union with Germany would make new German frontiers coterminus with the Italian, and on the south-west would extend along Swiss terri-tory, a condition that both of these countries and France desire to pre-vent, the latest suggestion is for the neutralization of the Tyrol, cutting off the Voralberg district from Austria, and its incorporation as a new canton in Switzerland. But the French and Italian cantons oppose this solution as it would in-corporate a large additional German population in Switzerland, giving the Germans a considerable preponder-ance, and therefore the conference seems to be thrown back on the scheme for neutralization of German Austria, as on the whole the surest safeguard against its joining forces with Germany.

In the meantime, as to precisely how the peace preliminaries are to be presented to Germany, there seems a distinct conflict of views between the British and French, I am informed. Andre Tardieu stated Saturday, that as we are still formally at war with Germany that these terms be handed Germany by a military delegation, under the same conditions as the armistice, whereas British information is that as the conditions are not merely military, but also financial and economic, the German delegates must be seen respecting them.

The lists are now being prepared covering the exports which Germany will be permitted to send out. They will consist chiefly of coal, dyestuffs, potash and timber.

The Germans first wanted the potash and timber.

The Germans first wanted the United States to advance money for the purchase of the food for Germany. When this was refused the German delegates agreed to turn over gold at the Belgian border at once. It is understod that $130,000,000 is available now. More will be furnished in a few days.

The German ships will start for America via England in a few days. It is not likely that they will carry a capacity load of American troops on their first voyage as alterations will have to be made when they reach America.

British and German committees

British and German committees have opened negotiations in Rotterdam, says a German Government wireless message, concerning the exportation from Germany of potash, timber, dyes and other products. Ships going to France and England immediately are cargo vessels in neutral ports in South and Central America and the Dutch East Indies. They will be permitted to leave with cargoes for Germany with German crews but under Allied flags. When the ships put out from German ports to be handed over they will be manner by Germans, but on arrival in Allied ports the crews will be replaced by Allied crews and the Germans returned.

There is available in England for

There is available in England for immediate movement to Germany approximately 30,000 tons of pork products, 5,000 tons of beans, 5,000 tons of rice, and 15,000 tons of cereals. The United States has in Rotterdam and on the way there approximately 75,000 tons of bread-

A summary of the agreement shows that payment by Germany will be made by freight hire accruing to the Germans for the use of the shipping and part from credits that Germany may continue to establish and maintain in neutral countries, part from German exports, part from the sale of German-owned for-eign securities, and part by the use of German gold.

Absentees Fined In Sherbrooke.

Maharg, Unionist member for Moose Jaw, and president of the Saskatch-ewan Grain Growers' Association, is not one of those who believe the present Government should proceed with the solution of post-war probwith the solution of post-war prob-lems before undertaking the task of tariff revision. On the contrary, during his speech in the House of Commons Monday, Mr. Maharg threatened the Government with the resignation of certain western mem-bers and with the prospect of by-elections, at an early date if prompt action was not taken to meet the demands of the western farmers' organizations. "Western Canada is watching this Government," said the Moose Jaw member, "is watching this watching this Government," said the Moose Jaw member, "is watching this House, and the members of this House, unless something is done at least to attempt to remedy conditions in so far as the west is concerned," he added, for the benefit of the Ministry, "you will have a number of by-elections on your hands before this House meets again at its next session." Mr. Maharg displayed very little of the speech of compromise, of which some members of the House have spoken, and certainly made no of which some members of the House have spoken, and certainly made no appeal to sentiment. On behalf of many, if not all grain growers in his own province, he put forward demands for what may be briefly summarized as substantial re briefly summarized as substantial reductions in the tariff protection afforded the products of the manufacturers of the Dominion and absolute protection in the form of a continuation of a fixed guaranteed price for wheat, the farmers' product. Furthermore, he asserted that the Dominion should confinue to provide credits, out of which foreign buyers might pay for wheat and agricultural might pay for wheat and agricultural products purchased in Canada.

Mr. Maharg informed the House Mr. Manarg informed the House that the Western farmers had no intention to ally themselves with one of the old political parties. "Neither, I think, will they tie themselves up to the Unionist party at this time," he added.

Gen. Maurice Makes Reply to Col. Peck, V.C.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 18.— Maj.-Gen. F. Maurice, K.C.M.G., C.B., was a passenger on the Carmania arriving here Monday. He has come out for the purpose of delivering a series of lectures at the invitation of a number of friends in New York. Gen. Maurice stated he was glad of the comportunity of coming out with Gen. Maurice stated he was glad of the opportunity of coming out with the Canadians, and especially with the Princess Patricas, which happened to be the first Canadian battalion with which he had anything to do. He saw them first at Winchester, and admired them greatly. On Jan. 8, 1918, when they went into line, it was he who had reconnoitred their position. They had impressed him as being an exceptionally pressed him as being an exceptionally fine body of men, and appearances were not deceptive. Discussing Col. Peck's statement in the House last week, Gen. Maurice said that he personally knew of no unit in the British army which had revolted during the period of the war. He thought the body of men Col. Peck had referred to were a collection of drafts stationed at Etaples in the autumn of 1917, and that he complete unit

BERLIN, March 18. — Although last week's Spartacan uprising was put down, the Government, so far from relaxing its vigilance, is already put down, the Government, so far from relaxing its vigilance, is already taking measures to prevent a repetition. The Prussian Minister of Education, Herr Haenisch, has issued an eloquent appeal to young collegians to join the volunteer corps "to save the Fatherland, against which Bolshevism threatens in the east, while the hydra of anarchy and ciwil warfare raises its head at home."

The Minister of Defence, Herr Noske, has issued a decree imposing penalties up to one year's imprisonment for interference with street car employes, or traffic, or sabotage of telegraph wires, cars or other material. This is plainly intended to make it impossible for the minority of the street car men to prevent the majority from working in case of another strike.

Lesson XII., March 23, 1919. Israel Warned Against Compromise Temperance Lesson-Joshua 23, 1-24; 28. Print 23: 1-13.

Commentary.—I. God's benefits to Israel (23.1-5). 1. A long time—It is thought that the farewell assembly took place about seven years after the allotment of Canaan to the several another to the several tribes of Israel Had given rest. from all their enemies—The enemies of Israel had either been subjugated or were not waging war against them. Joshua waxed old and stricken in age—"Joshua wax old and well stricken in years."—R. V. He must have been nearly or outte one hundred and been nearly or quite one hundred and ten years old at this time, as that was the age at which he died. 2. Called for all Israel-Joshua sent forth a call for all Israel—Josaua sent forth a call for Israel to come to him, probably at his home, Timnath-serah or at Shiloh, for we are not told where. And for their elders, etc.—The word "and" is not in the Hebrew, hence what follows it explains who were called. The assembly was made up of the leaders of the asyers! the leaders of the several tribes, the heads of families, the interpreters of the law and the officials of the na-tion. 3. All that the Lord your God hath done—In the beginning of his address he called Israel's attention to what Jehovah had done for them in giving them possession of Canaan, which was previously occupied by their enemics and the enemies of Jehovah. For the Lord, fought for you —Joshua was the leader of lerael in the occupation of the land, but he ascribes the success of the undertaking to Jehovah, who had given them the victory over their enemies. 4. I have divided unto you by lot—The entire territory of the land of Canaan had been envertient to the tribes of Ison been apportioned to the tribes of Israel, although parts of it had not yet been conquered. The armies of the Canaanites had been broken into pieces, yet the Israelites had not fully followed up their advantages. The Lord had given full directions regard-Lord had given full directions regarding the division of the land. From Jordan...unto the great sea—The eastern and western limits of Israel's possessions are given. The "great sea" is the Mcditerranean. 5. The Lord your God, He shall expel them—Joshua retained the faith in Jehovah that he had when he returned to Kadesh-barnea after spying out the land of Canaan more than sixty years before this and made his report in connec-tion with Caleb. He assured the Israel-ites that God would be their sufficient help in July ridding the land of his enemies and theirs enemies and theirs.

11. Exhortation to Faithfulness (23:6-13). 6, be ye therefore very courageous—In view of what Jehovah had already done for Israel and had promised to do, Joshua urged them to be strong of heart and faithful in doing his will. all that is written in the book of the law of Moses—This book contained the moral law and the ceremenials, in addition to many directions governing the ordinary affairs of life, and these were all to be carefully observed. 7. come not among you—The Israeiites would become familiar with them and the gods of the heathen would become less odious to them. nor bow yourselfves unto them —The sin to which the children of Israel were most liable was idolatry, hence Joshua warned them plainly against anything to do with the gods against anything to do with the gods of the heathen. S. cleave unto the Lord—Cling to the Lord and be not driven out. . . great nations—Joshua urges this as a reason why Isreal should "cleave unto the Lord" and not turn aside the idols. The gods of these "great nations" were helpless before Jehovah and his people. 10. one man of you shall chase a thousand-This is a strong expression showing how greatly superior Israel, with the help of God, would be to other peoples. 11. take good heed...that ye love the Lord—If the Israelites should fully

There would be danger of entering into marriage relations with the heathen nations, relations with the heathen nations, and that would result in a departure fro Jehovah. 13. know for a certainty—Joshua would make a deep impression upon the minds and hearts of his people. will no more drive out...these nations—By becoming closally asserted with the heathen people.

be faithful to him. III. Israel's promise to be faithful (21: 128). Joshua called an assembly of all the tribes of Israel, gathering the chief men of the nation for a second farewell meeting with, them. He rehearsed at some length the great things God had done for them from the call of Abraham to the settlement of the nation of Israel in Canaan, and exhorted the people to choose the Lord and serve him faithfully. They promised him not simply once, but four times over, that they would serve the Lord, and then Joshua wrote the convenant and set up a stone as a wit-ness that Israel had made this pro-

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic .- Compromising with evil-

1. Joshua's farewell.

Warning ar III. The evils of compromise.

1. Joshua's farewell. This plous solicitude of Joshua is worthy of imitation by all in authority. He set himself diligently to complete and perpetuate the work of his life in the fare-well appeal to the great people for whom he had so unselfishly labored. The desires of the godly do not decline with physical strength. The purposes of human lives like those of Job are often "broken off." The greatest lives are but ares longer or shorter, in the circle of divine pur-poses. Only the life of Jesus was complete. The great apostle declared, "I have finished my course." Looking into the face of the Father, Jesus said, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.' In the farewell address of the great leader there is no dea of self-concern nor effort to perpetuate his own fame.

II. Warning and promise. Both are II, Warning and promise. Both are inseparably associated in Joshua's address and in God's messages to all mankind, Men can not choose promises and reject precepts. God's faithfulness in fulfilling his promises is a guarantee concerning his threatenings. Divine hollness is equally concerned in both. The departing leader would accurate the future his producing would assure the future by piedging the nation anew to loyalty, and de-mands a personal and universal testi-mony to God's faithfulness. "Ye know in all your hearts and in all your couls, that not one thing hath failed." Obedience had made them invulner-able. The assembled people were reminded that their tenure of possession was still contingent thereon. "Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do." Their separation must be maintained.

maintained. III. The evils of compromise. term implies conflicting claims or in-terests, and means a settlement by mutual concessions. In the nature of mutual concessions. In the nature of things righteousness must be intelerant. It cannot make concessions nor accept compromises without self-destruction. To surrender its claims in the smallest particular destroys its character. It can not consent to discuss terms, for there are none; and even to consider it, is both damenous and degrading. To preserve a nation that shall correspond to a numer religious. and degrading. To preserve a nation that should perpetuate a pure religious faith and worship, provide a medium and custody for 'the oracles of God and custody for 'the oracles of God, and bring to the world its divinely-human Redeemer, God environed His peeple with absolute prohibitions, which were disregarded at their peril. which were disregarded at their peril. Civil or social contracts would tend to spiritual affinities, and hence were forbidden. So deadly were the lurking germs of moral contamination, that the utter extirpation of the degraded and idolatrous inhabitants was commanded. The underlying principle is perennial and of peculiar force at the present. In various and subtle forms present. In various and subtle forms the appeal is made. Spacious reason-ings founded on false premises mis-lead many. The first effect of compromise is a bewilderment of moral judg-ment. A "single eye" is essential to clear vision. A second evil is the weakening of moral resistance togeth er with a strengthening of the power of appeal. From the "counsel of the ungodly" 'to "the way of sinners" and "the seat of the scornful" is a direct path. The man who compromises. mortgages his temporal and eternal estate, and foreclosure is sure.-W

Unbearable Perfumes.

The perfume of flowers can make some people shiver. A member of the London Spiritualist Alliance tells of a woman who dreads the smell of hyacinths. Once at a party the hostess knowing her visitor's horror of the flowers, hid them behind a screen, yet although they were concealed from view the woman detected them and fainted shortly after entering the room. The Princess of Lamballe, friend of Marie Antoinette and a victim of the French revolution, would always turn pale at the sight of a vio let, and Vincent, the painter, swooned at the smell of roses.

Tubbs hesitated.

In common with the rest of the Signet company, he knew Gentleman Montague's failing, as it was called.

Mr. Montague was always spoken of by those who disliked him as Proud of by those who disliked him as Proud Montague; those who liked him, and they were many, always retained the complimentary prefix, and spoke of him as Gentleman Montague, or the Prince, or the Duke.

He had always been a reserved man, never talked of his affairs or of his family; but one night at a theatrical dinner, when the champagne was in and the wits out, he had let fall some half-dozen sentences, proud and haughty, spokeh of himself as a ruinhalf-dozen sentences, proud and haughty, spoken of himself as a ruined gentleman, the last stone of a fallen house, and winding up with what threatened to be a burst of tears, 'requested those nearest him to mark what punishment fell on those who disgraced their birth and lineage by descending to the level of stage play

Much of this had been taken as the maudlin nonsense of a man in his cups, but there were some who nodded their heads sagely and believed that there was some truth in the passion-there was some truth in the passionate outburst.

Montague's conduct had helped to strengthen these hints. He was reserved, as we have said, but, more than that, he was very particular in his bearing toward those about him, infused a dash of pride's humility when speaking with the manager, and treated his fellow actors and the men about the stage with a condescending stand-off, yet not offensive air.

This pride of his had received a fatal blow lately. Of these two children, the younger, Pattie, had been a cripple from the first moment of the life which her mother had killed herself in giving her. Upon the elder, he had managed, by dint of the strictest ecenomy, to bestow a decent education. ate outburst.

Mary grew up, a lady in education, manner, and—her father more than hinted—birth, also, when suddenly the blow came to his hope and pride.

Little Pattie grew weaker —more loving, gentle and sweet hearted, but werker.

These two loving hearts were wrung each day at sight of the failing strength in the body that enclosed their poor darling's soul.

Mary did more. She saw the doctor, pushed him with inquiries, and learned that the lamp might be kept burning in the frail body if it received more nourishment.

"Madeira, my dear Miss Montague, chickens, delicacies of that sort — above all, fine old Madeira—are the only things that will pull her around."

Had he prescribed fourteen ounces of melted diamonds each day, Montague could not have been more horand over "Where," he asked himself, "and how am I to get Madeira at a guinea a bottle?" Where, indeed? Mary soon tried to

"A treasure," repeated the manager; "that girl of yours is the most beautiful woman I ever saw, and has got the mellowest voice. Why, man, are you blind that you don't see it?"

The rough, honest, though somewhat politic words cheered the moody fallen gentleman's heart. He arose, stretched himself with a sad sort of stateliness, finished his cup of tea, and, clearing his throat, said:

"I'm glad to hear it, Mr. Tubbs; I'm glad to hear it. It has been a bitter blow to me, but that's neither here nor there. Will you hand me my coat?" he added, as Mary entered the room, warmly wrapped up and blush-ingly beautiful. "We will start now. It think, after I have brought Pattie in again."

ALL READY.

And now all was ready; the men in the submerged flat could no nothing more. Above their heads the great ship shook with the thudding roar of the discharged turrets; ever and anon the shock of striking shells told where the enemy was scoring hits. But none of these things affected the terreduced to the second ship of the seco fected the torpedo-men—their's was the waiting game, the hardest part

Up aloft in the conning tower, by the captain's side, stood the torpedo-lieutenant, his eye aligned along a brass bar which being set to the speed and course of his own ship, besides another little brass bar set to the course and speed of the ene my, and formed at the point of bisection the place at which his tubes

And, at long last, the range of the battle narrowed down to just 7,000 yards A questioning lift of an eye-brow, a nod from the captain; and the torpedo-lieu chant spoke softly down a voice pipe.
"Stand by!"

A Peculiar Plant. "Plants and animals," says Science, "both have developed spines as a means of protection against their ene-mies, but it is rare indeed to find a plant with spines below ground. The all too common sawbrier of the South-ern States and Mexico is one of the few plants thus provided. The stems above ground are spiny to keep off grazing animals, but the underground starchy tubers are armored densely with spines apparently developed as protection against peccaries—the wild pigs still found in the southwest. The sawbrier is now beyond the original range of the wiid pigs, but its under-ground armor comes into use as a protection against the domesticated

Gosh! How my back aches!

After influenza or colds the kidneys and bladder are often affected—called "aephritis," or inflammation of the kidneys.

This is the red-flag of danger—better be wise and check the further inroads of kidney disease by obtaining that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's known as "Anuric" (anti-uric), because "Anuric" expels the uric acid poison from the body and cures those pains, such as backache, rheumatism in muscles and joints.

Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

Dr. Pierce's Anuric is many times more potent than lithia and often eliminates uric acid as hot tea melts sugar. How my back aches!

Origin of Bread Unknown.

The origin of wheat is lost in hoary antiquity. Even the original home of the cereal plants of which bread is being made is not known, all the researches and hypotheses notwith-standing. Where wheat, speit, rye, barley, oats, buckwheat, etc. first of-fered man their grainy ears for food s an unsolved problem. But that originally bread was not But that originally bread was not roasted or baked as moderns prepare it, but eaten as dough or paste, may be inferred from its relation with the word "broth," both of these words being derived from the root "breowan," "bru," to brew. In all probability it was originally the boiled coarse meal with nothing added to it but salt. The leavening and baking of the bread was a later development. The origin of these processes is a matter of specwas a later development. The origin of these processes is a matter of speculation; but so much is certain; that baking preceded the leavening of the bread that causes it to rise; also that the original form of the bread was not the loaf, but a kind of thin, flat cake like the matzoths, or unleavened bread of the Jews or the tortillas of the Mexicans. Like these, it was probably roasted upon intensely heated fiat stones.

With the discovery of the leaven the flat cake increased in height until it assumed the form of our loof.
