"Somewhere."
Within the last year or two the word "Somewhere" has come to have a new meaning. It has been lifted out of obscurity and put into a place of prominence and distinction. As the Christian Advocate's A dispatch appears in the daily papers from "Somewhere in France," a letter arrives from "Somewhere in Russia," a report leaks in from "Somewhere in the Balkans." One by one the leads from our homes have been slipping away, and have been going, as soldiers, surgeons, ambulance drivers, and in various other noble capacities to the aid of "Somewhere." And hosts of nurses and other women, with the eager desire to serve the need of humanity, have gone overseas, too, and are at work in the same distant "Somewhere-land."

Eyes dimmed by tears have tried to pierce through the veil that hides the country of "Somewhere"; and hearts that have a new ache are waiting with patience to learn how those they have loved long since and who awhile, are faring in that mysterious "Somewhere"—place of sacred service and sacrifice. Have they crossed safely the seas that are infested with the stealthy serpents of death? Have they set foot upon the land whose voice has been calling piteously for help in its extremity? Are they now ministering to the need of their brothers in distress? Are they standing shoulder to shoulder with their comrades in arms and doing their part in thrusting the invader from the devastated land? Have they paid the price of their devotion to humanity with the red blood of their sacrifice? O, what is the word from "Somewhere-land?"

It is a wonderful land, "Somewhere," that lies concealed behind the curtain of secrecy, for there are marvelous things going on there. The best thing that is in men and women is fighting with determination born of desperation against the worst that is in them; and the best is coming to the mastery. All the great virtues are finding untrammelled expression in "Somewhere-land" for it is a land where exchanges are being made, and men are bartering their brass for gold and their iron for silver and their wood for brass and their stones for iron. The higher values are coming to the supremacy, and many things are being discovered as worthless, while other things that were held in disdain are emerging into honor.

God is melting the people anew in "Somewhere-land" and out of the refining fires will come a better world, a truer brotherhood, a broader sympathy, a deeper devotion; for character is being tried in the crucible in the country of "Somewhere," and service is being coronated and sacrificed, is being sanctified, and humanity is seeing God in a new way "over there."

And hovering over "Somewhere-land" is the Spirit of that Great Soul who said that a man could show no greater love for his fellow man than to lay down his life for him; and that teaching is sinking into the consciousness of those who are now in the country of "Somewhere"; and they are doing what He did who came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give His life as a ransom God have all those who have gone to "Somewhere" in His protection and mercy, and bring them all back again in safety to the hearts of those that love them, and that yearn after them, and that hold them always before His throne!

Long Flights of Birds.
A thrush was caught at Southport lately with a ring on its leg marked "Inform Wetherby, High Holborn, London." Mr. H. F. Wetherby, who is the editor of "British Birds," has since 1910 had 75,000 birds so marked in the hope of learning something about their travels. A swallow, ringed at Lanchester was found seven months later at Grahamstown, South Africa, 6,000 miles away. A lesser black-backed gull, ringed at the Farne Islands, off Northumberland, was found eight months later at St. Louis Senegal; and a blackbird, ringed London, was found in Moscow a few weeks afterwards. It would seem that birds are greater travellers than most of us imagine.

A traveller who believed himself to be the sole survivor of a ship-wreck upon the cannibal isle, hid for three days, in terror of his life. Driven out by hunger, he discovered a thin wisp of smoke rising from a clump of bushes inland, and crawled carefully to study the type of savages about it. Just as he reached the clump, he heard a voice say: "Why in hell did you play that card?" He dropped in his knees and, devoutly raising his hands, cried: "Think God, they are Christians!"

Frequent Headaches.

People with thin blood are much more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons, and the form of anemia that afflicts growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbance of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this effectively, and the rich red blood made by these pills will once again restore the health.

Many disturbances to the health are caused by thin blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain or under-nourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition every symptom of the trouble will disappear. There are more people who are their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than to any other medicine, and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Harry Lauder at the Grave of his Only Child.

Harry Lauder, the famous Scottish comedian, known on this side of the Atlantic as well as in Britain, has been to the front. He delighted the soldiers with his singing and visited the grave of his only child who fell on the battlefield. Travelling in an auto little way to the Japanese the car stopped. Climbing a little ridge and his associates came to a cemetery and in the first row facing the battlefield the cross was seen on Lauder's boy's resting place and the following touching scene occurred:

"The father knelt down, and he lay upon the grave and clutched it while his body shook with the grief he felt. When the storm had spent itself he arose and prayed: 'O God, that I could have but one request, it would be that I might embrace my laddie just this once that went back to what he has done for his country and humanity.'

On the way down the hill I suggested gently that the stress of such an hour made further song that day impossible. But Lauder's heart is big and British. Turning to me with a flash in his eye he said: "George, I must be brave; my boy is watching and all the other boys are waiting. I will sing to them this afternoon though my heart break. Off we went again to another division of Scottish troops."

There within the hour he sang again the sweet old songs of love and home and country, bringing all very near and helping the men to realize the deeper what victory for the enemy would mean. Grim and determined were the men that went back to their dugouts and trenches, heartened by the task of war for human freedom by Harry Lauder. Harry's little laddie figure came and went from the war zone, but his influence remains, the influence of a heroic heart.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely. It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Atrocities in the German Retreat.

Watches from the French lines before St. Quentin have seen the great cathedral of that hapless town put to the torch and reduced to ruins. The Germans are getting ready to retreat once more, to abandon the town and its vicinities. The houses of the peaceful inhabitants are blown up or fired. The smoke of blazing villages rises from the surrounding plain. But it was with chief satisfaction that the B. crew set fire to the cathedral. They knew that no work of architecture in Germany could compare with it, and that in destroying it they were inflicting upon France an irreparable injury even though it had no military excuse. What they apparently did not appreciate was that the whole world shares the injury with France and will join in her resentment.

The devastation now being perpetrated at St. Quentin is in accordance with the fixed military policy of Germany. It is done merely with malignant purpose and without hope of military advantage. In March, 1917, the military correspondent of the Berlin L. K. Zeitschrift described with gusto the process:

"In the course of these last months great stretches of French territory have been turned by us into a dead country. It varies in width from ten to twelve or fifteen kilometers (six and a quarter to seven and a half miles), and extends along the whole of our new position, presenting a terrible barrier of desolation to any enemy hardy enough to advance against our new lines. No village or farm was left standing on this gloom, no road was left passable, no railroad and track or embankment was left in being. Where once were woods there are great rows of stumps, the wells have been blown up, wires, cables and pipe lines destroyed. In front of our new positions rows, like a gigantic ribbon, are strewn in rubble. No other things are left in the villages, churches and towers laid out in ruins about the roads."

All this was done in the territory which the French armies had to cross before reaching their present position before St. Quentin. It checked them not a bit. Across the desert waste they built highways and rebuilt roads. The wells were poisoned. The armies laid water pipes for their supply. Every farmhouse and peasant's hut was reduced to dust. They carried their own shelter. The terrible barrier of death was to them no barrier, only a reason why they must push forward with renewed strength and determination to hew down the vandals guilty of the barbarous destruction. Now in front of St. Quentin they see the Boches engaged in the same work preparatory to their next fight.

How in the face of this continued practice of frightfulness in retreat can the world receive respectfully the dictum that the honor of the armies of both sides is safe?

September Rod and Gun is out and shows the usual list of good things for sportsmen readers and lovers of the out of doors. This issue is a good one to put in the late summer vacationist's knapsack. Such stories as "The Hide Builders," "Boycott Dale," "Two Weeks Without a Care," "T. N. Hewitt," "Duck Hunting on the Small Sloughs," "George Belmont," "A Cruise in the Sloop Katarine," "Aunt Sam's," "The Time, The Place, The Game," "Archie McKintosh," and "Fishing Little Streams," Reginald Gourlay, make the vacationist glad he went and the stay-at-home man sorry he can't go and maybe determined to get away into the north woods when the hunting season comes on. Among the sports and pastimes that devoted to dog men's interests, The Kennel, contains this month a full report of the recent Reginald Dog Show. Rod and Gun is published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont.

There is this great pit in favor of dairying: It brings in revenue every month of the year, and in every month the dairyman knows just what his income from that source is going to be. There is another important point: Dairying is a safe line; there are fewer ups and downs and fewer exceptional losses in it than in any other branch of farming.—A. J. Reynolds, Siltva.

See the Big Show.

Come to the Big Show at Halifax this year; become boys and girls again and have a good old romp through the Exhibits, the Midway and the Races. What a laughing, jostling, good-humored crowd there will be at the Show to enjoy the headline attractions of the grand old Midway. There will be nothing to offend and nothing of a glibbing nature, but there will be oceans of fun in a round of the Monkey Speedway, the Water Sports, the Mechanical Coal Mine, the Ten-in-one, the Crazy House, the Girl in the Moon, the Zoo, the Trained Animals, the High Divers, the Ferris wheel and the joy of the kiddies—b' M rry-Go-Round.

It will be a whole circus in itself, with enough shows to furnish a week of laughs and funmaking. There is no bigger novelty in the circus business than the Monkey Speedway. This is a whole circus in itself, and a laugh all the way. Divers will be seen leaping from impossible heights into tiny tanks; mermaids will cavort with dashing, frolicking water sports. The Crazy House is the type of feature novelty found usually only at the big American seaside resorts. The Mechanical Coal Mine is a marvelous invention that will claim the attention of even the skilled coal operator.

Bigger, brighter, better and busier than ever, the Big Show at Halifax opens September 14th to September 20th.

Tired and Discouraged.

Mrs. Warren Randless, Rothney, Kings county, N. B., writes: "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter and when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I was all tired out and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and the result was most satisfactory. I feel fine now and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

The First Bird.

The oldest bird known is called the archeoptera. That is a Greek word which really means "ancient wing." It was an extraordinary bird. It had a long tail, but like a lizard's tail, long and thick with bones and flesh, and with feathers growing from it. It had two legs, with which it could walk or perch in the trees, but it had two other limbs like hands, which it probably used to climb about the trees instead of flying from branch to branch as birds now do. It had a curious eye fitted with a sort of armor shield, like the reptiles have, and its beak was armed with great strong teeth. There is no such bird as this now.

The new maid was untidy, and the mistress bore her patiently at first, but on the third day she placed a very nice nuclear dinner plate on the table and patience broke down.

"Really Harriet, you might at least see that the plates are clean."

"Well, myn, Harriet," rejoined, "I owns to hear thumb marks but that dried mustard was there afore I come."—London Tit Bits.

It is hard to believe that this world will go on just the same after one is dead, but it is the fact.

Weakened by Anaemia Doctors Gave No Hope

Said She Was Threatened With Consumption, and Gave Her Three Weeks to Live.

Anaemia is indicated by thin, watery blood. The gums and eyelids grow pale, there is great weakness and fatigue and digestion fails. Chase's Nerve Food, the Food former new, rich blood, it is naturally most suitable as a treatment for anaemia. This letter proves its effectiveness in the most severe cases.

Mrs. J. Adams, Fort Hope, Ontario, writes: "About six years ago I was taken with very weak spells and though I doctors pronounced me to be in a dangerous condition, threatened with consumption and other diseases and said I would not live for three weeks. One day I was looking through Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about the cure of anaemia by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I began the use of this treatment at once and an hour well on the way back to health, after having used the Nerve Food for six months. I want my friends to know that my cure was effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone and after my discouragement from the use of other treatments. I feel it my duty to let everybody know about this remarkable cure."

As a restorative for persons who are pale, weak and run down there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gradually and naturally the red corpuscles are increased in the blood, the color is restored to the cheeks and the strength comes back to wasted nerves and muscles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50¢ a box, 5 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., SEPT. 14, 1917.

Editorial Brevities.

Domestic economizing is a patriotic duty, but if not practised, the time might be approaching when it will become a grim necessity. Patriotic people will agree with every word of the Food Controller's advice to Canadian consumers, urging the necessity of strict economy and a reduction in the use of certain food commodities.

Says the Vancouver Sun: "People out here, however tender hearted, may eat potatoes without a qualm. Their production does not call for the sacrifice of the lives of millions of potato bugs as it does in the eastern provinces." Those westerners will keep on bragging till the potato bug hears about it. Then there will be an end to bragging.

By the end of November the first class of men enrolled under the Military Service Act will be in khaki unless there should be unexpected delay in the Government's plans. Executive officers of the Great War Veterans' association announce that at a conference with members of the Dominion Cabinet they were assured that within ninety days the first class release under the selective draft would be wearing uniform. The news was received with great enthusiasm by the returned men.

A despatch from Toronto dated September 5th foretold a well deserved increase in the pensions to Canadian soldiers. The statement is as follows:—

A sixty per cent. increase in the pensions to be paid members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force is to be granted by an order-in-council to be passed in Ottawa within the next few weeks. This Dominion Government announcement was made to local officers of the great War Veterans' Association by the Cabinet at Ottawa, according to their statement here.

Commenting on the high cost of meat, an exchange has for the butcher the following words:—"So the best that we can hope for is minimizing of the emergency. Waste should be eliminated in every kitchen. Meats should be purchased as sparingly as possible. And consideration for the retailer might well show itself in cash payments for that bought. The butcher who carries you along for a month in order to keep your trade pays his bills every week. He is under a big strain if he has a considerable business. Cash on delivery will help him immensely. He is not to blame for the rising prices."

London Daily Mail:—So far as the war is concerned this has been a war of silences. We have avoided all military pageants. Our men leave for the front and return home, and have done so since the first opening of the war, with little more fuss or notice than used to attend their daily pilgrimages to their offices and shops and works in the time of peace. If there was ever any pomp in war, we have effectually got rid of it. Cheers and crowds and the old military stage effects have hardly for one moment been allowed to intrude on the methodical discharge of an unpleasant but necessary task.

It is extreme to say that the submarine warfare is a complete failure, because it is not so, from a German viewpoint. It is a failure, however, in restricting or abolishing ocean commerce. During the forty-eight hours ending on Sunday, no less than 172 vessels from foreign countries arrived in United States ports on the Atlantic coast and the Gulf of Mexico, exclusive of Canadian ports. The number of British ships coming into American ports was within four of the number of American ships so coming, the figures standing, American 53, and British 49. These interesting figures show that despite the U-boat warfare, there is still considerable commerce being done on the seas between the Atlantic countries.

A Sudden Death.

A very sad and sudden death occurred at Billtown on Friday of last week. Mrs. Perry Foote had driven to a store to do some trading, etc., and when she returned home she alighted from the carriage apparently as well as usual. She expressed herself as well satisfied with the success she had met with and, referring to some purchase she had made for her little girl said, "I know you will be pleased with it." The sentence was never finished for at that moment she fell to the ground and expired immediately. The entire community was shocked and saddened.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon and after a short service at her late residence the remains were taken to the new cemetery in Billtown where a large number assembled to witness the last rites. The service at the grave was solemn and impressive. After reading and prayer by the pastor of the departed one the Society of "Rebecca's" took charge who lined the grave with twigs of evergreen. Then clearly and softly the ever beautiful hymn of "Shall We Gather at the River" floated in the air, followed by prayer and "Nearer My God to Thee," which was sung by the Society in kneeling position. The flowers were varied and lovely.

Deceased leaves a sorrowing husband, six children—the youngest five months old—a mother and several sisters to mourn their loss.

Wolfville High School at the Prov. Examination.

National Service Certificates were received by those who were excused from school work for the last four or five weeks of the school year (last week of May and all June) for the purpose of assisting in farm work. These pupils had to be certified in good standing at school and were required to present a certificate from their employers that they had actually been engaged for at least four weeks in farm work between May 1st and June 30th. Only such students are included in the foregoing list.

Allan Parker, of grade IX, made the highest average in the school. As usual, there is a generous showing of very high marks. The pupils winning them deserve special mention. Their names, marks and subjects are given in following table:

The principal wishes publicly to thank the kind friends who, in previous years, so generously gave money prizes for presentation to meritorious students. It is hoped that the High School has friends who will donate prizes this autumn for distribution at our annual public meeting. Any persons who feel so disposed are requested to communicate with Principal Ford at once.

All departments of the school are now settled down to work. Parents who have children five years old and over are urged to send them at once so as to get the beginnings of the new work. The number enrolled in all departments is 300, a large number for the opening week.

Liberal Tribute to Sir Robert Borden.

"The notable tribute of loyalty and affection which the conservative rank and file in parliament paid Sir Robert Borden was finely deserved. For quite apart from what the prime minister's leadership has done for the conservative party there is no figure upon the political landscape to-day whose achievements entitle him to rank higher than Sir Robert Borden in the esteem and confidence of the Canadian people. During the past three fateful years the prime minister has had to contend with issues and to labor under difficulties such as never before burdened a Canadian leader.

It would be foolish to say that in grappling with those manifold and increasingly difficult problems he has not made mistakes, for in the desperate confusion which followed upon the sudden outbreak of war, mistakes were inevitable. But weighing his mistakes against his achievements, it can be said of him that his leadership has been courageous and wise and self-restrained—that his policies have been the right policies, his impulses, his motives the right motives.

"Nothing succeeds like success, and nothing fails like failure. And some among us, inspired perhaps by unworthy motives or misled by extending ignorance, have been all too prone to minimize the achievements and to emphasize the defects; to set too little value upon the vastness of the problems encountered when appraising the manner in which they were met. Only those who have watched the prime minister's unflinching devotion to duty, who have some inside knowledge of the tremendous difficulties he has had to contend with, have as yet any adequate appreciation of what his leadership has

'Yes, it Came From Toronto'

The desire to say 'Yes, I bought it in Montreal or New York,' or some other larger city, is a perfectly human weakness.

But, does that person who thoughtlessly boasts of this fact realize just what an injustice has been done to the local merchant?

Suppose the majority of people of Wolfville bought out of town--what could our merchants do? Who then would pay the taxes that go to support every public institution of the town?

And, too, is that particular article any better or more stylish than could have been procured here from some local merchant?

Recently a certain business man of Wolfville, with his daughter, was in a nearby city. The daughter saw in a shop window an article she wanted.

"No," said the father, "I make my living in Wolfville and we'll wait and get it when we get home." "But Father, the stores there don't have it," said the daughter.

But the father would not let her make the purchase there. When they reached home the young lady tried to get that particular article from three different stores, but none of them had it. One merchant, however, suggested that he could order it, which he did.

As a consequence of the loyalty of this particular father and citizen of Wolfville, it was only a short time until other stores stocked the article in question, with the result that hundreds of dollars were kept in Wolfville.

How Much Better The Above Sounds Than, "Yes, It Came From Toronto."

Nothing tends more to make the motor car unpopular with the average man than to face a pair of glaring headlights approaching at an express train speed. In the interests of the business motor car manufacturers should use "safety first" lighting equipment which has been placed on the market in various forms. The manufacture of the lenses which do not afford protection on the highways should be forbidden by law and the country's authorities should see that the law is enforced.—London Advertiser.

New Vocal Teacher at Acadia Seminary.

The number of pupils seeking instruction in voice at Acadia Seminary is so large that it has become necessary to appoint another teacher to be associated with Miss Newey. Accordingly Miss Arlen McKenney has been appointed to this position. Miss McKenney has spent five years at the New England Conservatory, graduating in the class of 1912 under Sullivan Sargent, and has since spent one year in post graduate work in concert work and church work. One season was spent in singing the role of Katinka in the 'Mikado.' Mr. Sargent in speaking of Miss McKenney says, 'She was one of the most satisfactory pupils I had in ten years. She always arouses enthusiasm at her recitals. Another states, 'She is a thorough artist and enjoyed by every one.' Miss McKenney has accepted the appointment and will be in Wolfville and at work early next week. All those who desire to secure a place with Miss McKenney should apply to Principal D-Wolfe or Mr. McKee at once.

A Creditable Exhibition.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ACADIAN:

DEAR SIR,—I was privileged last Friday evening in being able to visit an exhibition of vegetables, flowers, canned goods, cooking and sewing by the school pupils of Port Williams, Greenwich and another school near 'The Port,' the name of which I am not sure about. I understood this was the first exhibition of the kind ever held by these schools and, if that be true, one finds it hard to speak of the whole display and gathering without falling into exaggeration, so splendid it was from every point of view. The products of the school garden plots exhibited were varied in kind and uniformly of a high standard. The bouquets of cut flowers were unusually fine, calling out the special mention of Mr. I. DeWolfe. I Truro, who acted as judge of most of the exhibits. As for the cooking, it would have done credit to the masters of the country, and the sewing and knitting were also high class. One very special and pleasing feature was the fine display of canned goods by several pupils, pointing the way to future progress in the valuable art of home-canning. In the wealth of display some features probably escaped close attention and go unmentioned in this letter, but the impression made upon the mind of one visitor at least was that great success had rewarded the efforts of the children and all associated with the enterprise.

Another striking and pleasing feature of the affair was the enthusiasm shown by parents and adults generally. At a meeting held in the evening the spacious room of the Institute was filled with interested spectators who listened to speeches, notable amongst which were those of Inspector Robinson and Professor L. DeWolfe. One could not help but dream of the day when such gatherings would be held in every town and village of the province, betokening a revitalized interest in the most important problem of the education of our young folk. In themselves, such exhibitions as this one, are a factor in education scarcely grasped, as yet.

The writer is closely interested in the Greenwich group of the showing made by the Greenwich exhibitors. No comparison with the other schools are possible, and are not in any way intended, but Greenwich pupils won many fine successes. Fourteen firsts, eleven seconds and eight thirds indicate the part played by these budding exhibitors. Well done, boys and girls of Greenwich!

It is to be hoped that next year a still larger and finer exhibition will be held at Port Williams. Every citizen who is interested in the future of our rural districts—and who is not—ought to support enthusiastically the work attempted by men like Mr. DeWolfe and Inspector Robinson.

Thanking you for this opportunity of giving publicity to a worthy enterprise, I am Yours truly, "WOLFVILIER"

Hudson Maxim Appears in Great Picture Play.

FAMOUS INVENTOR WILL BE SEEN IN "THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE" AT OPERA HOUSE. One of the most interesting characters in 'The Battle Cry of Peace,' which is to be shown at the Opera House, is that of Hudson Maxim, the famous inventor, who appears in the early part of the picture, and by means of small models, illustrates on the screen the crying need of preparedness.

He shows in a sort of prologue how the United States is fatally inferior to all other first-class powers in naval equipment, in army forces, in coast defence, and in possibilities for meeting a sudden conflict.

He shows how in his opinion the city of New York and its environs fall an inevitable victim to the bombardment of the enemy's ships and makes the point that all the ammunition manufacturing plants of the United States are within a two hundred mile radius of New York City.

The dramatic portion of 'The Battle Cry of Peace' is enacted by such distinguished stars as Charles Richman, Norma Talmside, Louis Berndt, Belle Bruce, Mary Maurice, L. Rogers Lytton, James Morrison, Joseph Kilgour and Hvert Overton. Not one of these renowned Motion Picture Stars is more impressive than the aged, kindly-faced inventor whose brain gave the world the most destructive death implement ever known—the machine gun.

A Popular Appointment.

Word has been received that Pte. Paul Davidson, who is now at the Military Orthopedic Hospital at Toronto, where he will receive his artificial leg, was on Sept. 4th, appointed Sub Collector of Customs at this port, to succeed the late C. R. Bill. Mr. Davidson was regularly sworn into office on Thursday of last week by the former major of his battalion, the 40th. He expects to return to Wolfville about the end of this month. In the meantime the office is in charge of Mr. McLatchy, relieving officer. The news of the appointment was received with very general satisfaction in Wolfville where the universal feeling prevails that the government has done well in acknowledging the first claim of a soldier. Mr. Davidson's grandfather, the late J. B. Davidson, filed the same position for many years.

"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant headaches, and had palpitation of the heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease.

I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. A pronouncement on the Movies.

Attention is called to the fact that the Teacher's Club of the city of Chatham has made a pronouncement on the movies to the effect that the children's attendance thereon should be restricted, the moving pictures having been found to have a bad effect on the youthful eyesight. Nor is that all of the indictment. The pictures in some cases are suggestive. This is putting it mildly.

Further, the movies have another bad effect. The children are at the movies when they should be in bed, and therefore their mental development is being retarded for lack of sleep at the vital moment for development.

The movies could be made a great blessing if used when and how they should be, and there is a justifiable suspicion that if they were so used they would lose much of their attractiveness for the mind that has been trained to demand the abnormal for entertainment.

Many parents are failing to realize that their children's ideals are being formed by the movies, and all too frequently these ideals are anything but wholesome.

How 'Abide With Me' Was Written.

At the age of fifty-four Lytle found himself doomed to die of consumption and in sorrow at having to leave his task unfinished he prayed that at least it might be granted to him to write something which would live to the glory of God when he was dead. Then on the last evening he ever spent at Brixham, after preaching his farewell sermon he took his pen and as the sun was setting over the ships that lay in the harbor, "Abide With Me" was written. Next morning he started for the River and there died a month later.—London Telegraph.

To a nation at war alcohol is a traitor; it lessens the physical fitness and power of effective work of the civil community, it blurs their judgment, lets loose their emotions, exposes them to great risk from epidemic disease, and it undermines their power to make good the most serious loss of the young adult male population.—Sir Alfred P. Gould.

DO YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do colds settle on your chest or in your bronchial tubes? Do coughs hang on, or are you subject to throat troubles? Such troubles should have immediate treatment with the rare curative powers of Scott's Emulsion to guard against consumption, which so easily follows.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil which peculiarly strengthens the respiratory tract and improves the quality of the blood; the glycerine in its formula and binds the tender membranes of the throat. Scott's is prescribed by the best specialists. You can get it at any drug store. Scott's Emulsion, Toronto, Ont.

Bankers Getting Their Eyes Opened.

What could be more surprising than a public statement from the American Bankers' Association, declaring poverty and distress to be due—not to any faults of the poor—but to conduct of others beyond their control? Yet such a statement has been made by the association, that in an advertisement to push the sale of war bonds, published in the New York American of June 14, the association said:

"Suppose that a lot of selfish, careless, thoughtless people in the nation, so conduct themselves that you cannot get enough food for your family, so that your wife fails and grows weak and shaken before your eyes, so that your children weaken, sicken and die. Suppose starvation looks at you through the hollow eyes of all you love best in the world. Wouldn't you be filled with loathing and contempt and bitter hatred for the careless, thoughtless people whose fault it was?"

The rest of the advertisement is devoted to showing that the persons responsible for such poverty and distress, are those who are in the habit of peeling potatoes before boiling them and also that by boiling potatoes with the skins on enough money can be saved for the purchase of liberty bonds, without sacrificing the pleasure of eating them. Let not the reader smile at the logic of these bankers. Having just woke up to one great truth, it would be unreasonable to expect them to be clear on all of the details, and it would be cruelly unjust to ridicule their errors, however absurd. These bankers have long been blind to the fact that most poverty is limited. They have held it to be due to laziness, incompetence, intemperance, depravity or other personal failings. They have now got their eyes sufficiently open to see that people suffer through the misdoings of others. When these bankers will grow more accustomed to the light, they will see that, however reprehensible may be the waste involved in peeling potatoes, it is as nothing compared with the waste in stealing them or their equivalent. When, for instance, a tenant farmer must give one-quarter or one-half of his potato crop to some one who has done no work, but happens to be his landlord, there is far more waste than if he had been allowed to keep his crop and sell every potato to persons in the habit of peeling them. If he had been allowed to keep his crop, the landlord would have had to go to work raising potatoes, or producing something of equal value, and there would have been more commodities on the market.

ANIMALS IN WOODLOTS

Permissible only in Rarest Cases—Ground Fire Damage

One of the most important steps to be taken in the care of the woodlot is its protection from fire and animals. Fire should never be allowed to run through a woodlot, for not only does it destroy seedling trees and injure large ones, but it also destroys the litter and vegetable matter that the ground and leaves the soil exposed to the drying influence of the sun and wind. Pasturing animals in the woodlot is a great hindrance to the proper development. Cattle, in addition to eating off the tops of small trees, destroy the undergrowth and thus allow the sun to act on the soil and grass and weeds to establish themselves. The result is the larger trees begin to slowly die at the top and decay sets in. In woodlots that have in the past been neglected and now contain many more or less open and grassy spots it may be advisable to pasture goats for a time in the fall. These animals by rooting about stir up the soil and put it in good condition to receive the seeds when they fall from the trees and thus a new growth of young trees is started.

IN SUNNY SPAIN

From Bombe North to Sunny South, Spain Shows a Wide Variety Both of Scenery and People

"Spain and Russia," says Hamilton Fyfe in the London Daily Mail, "are the two most interesting countries left in Europe for the traveller who enjoys the humour of life. They are so different from the rest of the world that I look out of my window on to one of the finest open squares in the city. I see among the moters and electric street cars carts drawn by huge, slow-moving oxen, strings of mules, boys and men riding on donkeys, flocks of little black sheep, herds of woolly red pigs. The oddest mingling of old and new. Spain is a country that offers so wide a variety of scenery, of people, of food, of everything. As you travel you see all kinds of landscape. In the north the prevailing note is one of somber reserve and the south all is color and gay, laughing sunshine. The same difference marks the character of the people, of the food, of the chattering, smiling, quick-tempered Andalusians, always ready to make friends.

Rice and Snails: Delicious "Then, if you are wise and eat the food of the people in preference to the imitation food which is served in hotels, you find that many districts have their own special dishes. There is the Valencian 'paella,' for example, a stew of rice with meat and snails and sardines, most appetizing mixture served in a wide pan taken straight off the fire. Malaga has its 'hoquerones,' fried anchovies, delicious. Cartagena smacks its lips over octopus. All through Spain the 'pucheros,' or national stews, is going with special favours in different parts. "All who meet on the roads of Spain offer a kindly greeting. 'Vaya Usted con Dios,' is the usual form ('God be with you'). If you pass people who are eating they will always invite you to share a formal courtesy, to share with them.

Lost! A Station Bell

The starting of Spanish trains, by the way, requires a vast effort. First a handbell is rung, then a large bell is tolled. Then a shrill whistle is blown, to which the engine replies with a hoarse blast. Finally, there combined waving and shouting by all the officials, amid which movement begins. Until the handbell has been rung no engine-driver may put on steam. At one junction, called Albacete, arrive a commercial traveller one day with half an hour's business to do in the town. The train was scheduled to stay only five minutes. He picked up the handbell, put it in his overcoat pocket, and went and did his business. At the station everyone was hunting for the train could not start. The traveller came back, slipped the bell into its place again, jumped into his compartment, and the journey was resumed. Nobody much minded. Nobody much minded anything in Spain. What would annoy one elsewhere under grey skies is turned to a joke by the radiance of blue and gold in the exhilarating air. In such a climate peevishness is impossible."

SHOTS FROM THE SKY

Earth is Steadily Subjected to Phenomenal Bombardment

Most persons have no comprehension of the actual bombardment to which the earth is continually subjected from the heavens. Millions of small meteors enter the atmosphere every twenty-four hours, and in addition to these it has been calculated that a single day there are about a hundred large meteors strike the earth somewhere every year. The small meteors are totally consumed by the heat and friction, and only their slowly settling dust ever touches the earth's surface, although any one of the big meteors, if it were to strike the earth, would be a disaster. The big meteors, on the contrary, which frequently consist of solid iron, often get through the air shield with enough of their original velocity left to burn themselves many feet in the hardest soil. They constitute a real peril. Although the chance of anyone being hit by a meteorite is almost infinitely small, yet the annals of mankind show that a few persons have actually been killed by these strange shots from the sky.

CANADA'S AREA COMPARED

Provinces that are Vaster Than Many a Kingdom

The total area of the Dominion of Canada is 3,729,955 square miles; the total area of Europe, including the British Isles, is 3,800,000 square miles, being about a third of that of Africa, a fourth of that of America, and a fifth of that of Asia. (17,225,590 square miles). Canada's area is as great as that of the whole continental Europe, plus the area of England proper. Ontario is nearly as large as the combined areas of France and Germany (416,230 square miles). The area of Quebec is almost as great as that of the combined areas of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Austria, and Italy (708,600 square miles). Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have each about the same area, which is more than double that of the United Kingdom (121,800 square miles). The area of England proper (50,251 square miles) is almost equal to that of the Maritime Provinces (51,897 square miles).

Gold and silver mines that have been worked for more than three centuries still form the greatest sources of the Mexican states of San Luis Potosi.

China, which is believed to have the greatest deposits of iron ore in the world, is beginning to export pig iron. Keep the hired man and keep the stock rather than sell the stock and sack the man.

"A wonderful man is my uncle," said little Binkie, "so very original and witty."

He says he called his dog 'Sausage' because it was half bred, his goat 'Nearly' because it was all butt and his prize cockerel 'Robinson' because it craned.

SCULLING WAS ONCE WORLD'S BIG SPORT

Boatbuilders and Oarsmen were King of the Craftsmen—Praise for the King of them All

Canada was once very prominent in the single sculling game and perhaps through one man, Edward H. Jones, who was the greatest sculler of his time. He was a sculler of record as being the only man who has yet equalled the achievements of "Edward Hanlan of the Island" and the game of rowing. They knew a finer oarsman, I never met a straighter man. He met his opponents without fear or favor, rowed under all conditions and in many countries. In the days when the sport produced the greatest men in the world he fought his way to the top and held the crown for four years. In short, he was the best ever. In all the time that he was rowing, between 1874 and 1884, he took part in over 250 races. It would be a hard task to tell of his victories, but he was the greatest sculler of his time. He was the first Canadian to win a regatta at Washington when he got a start in his side. His next defeat was the beginning of his downfall. In 1884, when he made the trip to Australia and was beaten by Beach. The climate was too much for him, the heat and he never again won a race. He was the first Canadian to row over again the race was technically swayed to Jimmie, who rowed under a regatta at Washington when he got a start in his side. His next defeat was the beginning of his downfall. In 1884, when he made the trip to Australia and was beaten by Beach. The climate was too much for him, the heat and he never again won a race. Those were great days for the rowing game. For many years were the races, and, though many changes and counterchanges of ownership were carried around, the Hanlan went through his entire career without a smirch on his character. At the time of his death (London Times said editorially that he was the straightest and greatest oarsman that ever lived in a shell. He was the first Canadian to really bring the world's supremacy in any one line to the Dominion. I know personally that he was offered $1000 to quit in a race for the world's championship. It was all he could do to get away from the man who made the attempt to bribe him.

THE GREAT PROFESSIONALS

It is well to remember that Hanlan fought his way to the front at the time when professional scullers were at their zenith. It was when such men as Wallace Ross, Jim Riley, Fred Philbrick, Charles Courtney, John Thomas, Erastus Rogers, Pat Luther, Hosmer, Teemer, Trickett, Lyceck, Lee, and other such scullers were in the front and the young Canadian dashed to the front and held his position for years. In those days scullers and boatbuilders knew things that have been long since forgotten or neglected. The boys used to test their shells with special knocking, and the shells which boats were the fastest under given conditions. They weighed them and balanced them and rigged them and boatbuilders knew things that have been long since forgotten or neglected. A MEMORY OF EARL GREY

The famous pass in the Puroell Mountain Range. Earl Grey in set.

An interesting point has never yet been decided as to the permanent name to be given to the pass which leads over the Purcell Range between Lake Windermere and Argenta on the Upper Kootenay Lake. The late Earl Grey, who had a hunting cabin half way up the pass on Toby Creek crossed the pass on one occasion, with the result that the geographers named it after him. The original discoverer of the pass, however, was a prospector named Wells, and Earl Grey, who was always a thorough sportsman, wrote saying that he thought it a hardship to deprive Wells of the right to the old name of 'Wells' Pass. Today, 'Pass' is still current, and remains in the name of the map. The British Columbia Government commenced to build a road over it, which, however, was badly damaged in the great washouts of 1915. This summer two venturesome tourists made the crossing through at considerable hardship, owing to the condition of the trail at Hammill Creek, on the western side. The following account of the trip appeared in the "Kootenian," of Kootenai, B.C.

"After a trip that they will not forget in a hurry, Dr. R. N. Carter of Roseland, and Henry Cody of this city arrived in town on Wednesday of last week, after a somewhat dangerous journey through the Puroell Mountains through Hammill Creek canyon. They had left Wilmer, in East Kootenay, about ten days before and made their way up the Toby Creek wagon road to the summit, and put in about one day exploring the huge Toby Creek Canyon. Mr. Cody was well acquainted with the country up there, having mineral claims on the East Kootenay side, upon which he has been doing assessment work for years. The ground was not new to him, but it was virgin territory to the doctor. The latter stated that he had never before seen such magnificent mountain scenery. Having traversed a good deal over the surface of the globe, he is in a pretty good position to judge as to what constitutes the real thing in the line of mountain scenery.

"He found the Toby Creek glacier a particular inspiring and wonderful spectacle. They spent a day on top of the huge lake of ice, and only had a look over one corner of it. They started out in the early morning to cross the canyon road where the trail to the St. Patrick group branches off, and the Argenta Mines compressor, all semblance of a road was wiped out entirely in places through the depths of the ferociously savage Hammill Creek canyon. Several times they had to improvise bridges to cross the roaring stream, said bridges being nothing but a convenient tree, which was felled with an axe. As Hammill Creek varies all the way from forty to eighty feet wide, as the fallen trees sometimes sagged down into the foaming torrent, the peril of such crossings can be better imagined than described.

"More particularly in view of the fact that both men had heavy packs on their backs, that of Cody's weighing some sixty-five pounds.

"At last, however, they gained the point on the canyon road where the trail branches off to the St. Patrick group, and from there, on comparatively speaking, the going was like unto that of a paved street. In due time they reached Argenta, and from that point were rowed over to Lardo, where they connected with the barge 'Impress' and came to town."

PR. COCUIOS BABY

Crocodiles One Hour Old Hunts Cleverly for Prey

The moment that a young crocodile breaks its shell it is to all intents and purposes as active as it is at any time during its life. It will make straight for the water, even if it be out of sight and a good distance off, and it will put its head in the water and swim and wiggle during the first hour of its free existence.

Bridge With No Water Under One of the most curious and ancient bridges in Europe is that at Croylund, in Scotland. It is supposed to date from the ninth century. No road now passes over and no water under it. It consists of three pointed arches, with the central one the highest and is so steep that only foot passengers can go over it.

Status on Ancient Bridge Upon an ancient bridge at Croylund, England, is a seated figure in stone of a robed Saxon king. The structure dates from the ninth century.

A British aviator in the neighborhood of the target for many a gunner, remarked: "I'll never shoot at another bird. I know now how they feel."

Sir George E. Foster said: "You are drawing the blood of a future generation in Canada when you misuse the forest resources of the country."
