BEWARE OF AMERICAN COUNTERFEITS

I most respectfully take leave to call the attention of the Public generally to the fact, that certain Houses in New York are sending to many parts of the globe SPURIOUS IMITATIONS of my Pills and Ointment. These frauds bear on their labels some address in New York.

I do not allow my medicines to be sold in any part of the United States, I have no Agents there. My Medicines are only made by me; at 533 Oxford Street London.

In the books of directions affixed to the spurious make is a caution, warning the Public against being deceived by counterfeits. Do not be misled by this audacious trick, as they are the counterfeits they pretend to denounce.

These counterfeits are purchased by unprincipled Vendors at one-half the price of my Pills and Ointment, and are sold to you as my genuine medicines.

I most earnestly appeal to that sense of justice which I feel sure I may ven-ure upon asking from all honorable persons, to assist me, and the Public, as as may lie in their power, in denouncing this shameful Fraud.

Each Pot and Box of the Genuine Medicines, bears the British Government Stamp, with the words "HOLLO-WAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, LONDON" engraved thereon. On the label is the address, 533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, where alone they are manufactured.
Holloway's Pills and Ointment bearing any other address are counterfeits.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

REVERIES OF A MAIDEN LIFE.

SIXTEEN YEARS OLD.—I wonder if every young lady forms as many plans for the future as I do, and such pleasant plans too. It seems to me one need live only to be happy. I shall soon leave school then I intend to read a great deal, and study housekeeping, so that when I am married I may make a pleasant home for my husband.

NINETEEN YEARS OLD.—Two winters in society! Well, I have learned one thing.
I find that the world views me as neither handsome, rich, nor entertaining; consequently I am not of much importance, which is not a very pleasant discovery; but I am sure I have a mind and a heart What am I to do with them?

TWENTY-THREE YEARS OLD.—I am no longer happy; the spirit of unrest has taken hold of me. How can I live this weary life of idleness? I try to neglect no household duty, but we have plenty of servants to do all the work. A woman's lot is a sad one; she is told "her nob est station is a retreat." O that I were a man, that I might be active, were it but in money-making! I am not good enough to live a wholly benevolent life; yet I want occupation. I have no desire to go to party after party, as many a young lady does, hoping to find a husband. The whole system of society is degrading to woman. It seems to me it would be better to offer proposals of marriage openly to gentlemen than to use the manoeuvres that are now practised—that is, if a woman must be married.
Must she, in order to be happy? I do not know.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS OLD.—How the years glide on, marked by many eventful experiences; but my mind is still uncertain about life. Many women in my place would have married M. B., for he loved me, plain and unattractive as I am, but though he was worthy of a better woman than myself, I surely did not love him as a wife would love her husband. The few men who have happened to care for me I have not forgot, and so I will be an old maid. But what shall I live for? What shall I do to be happy?

THIRTY FIVE YEARS OLD.—A faint gleam of light seems to shine upon path—a feeling of the truth that our life here is a probation; that "enjoyment, and not sorrow, is our destined end or way." I have all my life been seeking after happiness—earthly happiness; but now I feel a degree of willingness to receive every event, whether joyful or sad, as sent by an All-wise Creator. With the willingness comes a strange feeling of strange contentment. What matters a little more or less of a transitory earthly pleasure? The greatest amount of comfort in life is secured by being alive to the blessings that we receive day by day appreciating the blessing of our lot, not envying others. The education of girls is very cruel; they are obliged to learn wisdom by sad experience. Why cannot they be fitted, as far as possible, to bear life under any aspect? Instead of teaching them that the only happy state for woman is that of wife and mother, let them grow up with the idea that marriage is an accident in life, sometimes a sad one.

Either they should be educated in this way, or the opportunities of marriage should be free to woman as to man.
Why could not parents invite gentlemen to their houses with the avowed object selecting suitable husbands and daughters? Many a worthy man would gain a wife to whom he would never dare to aspire. Why should it be thought more immodest for a girl to show an innocent preference for the society of a gentleman such preference founded on true admiration and respect—than for her to love and marry a man merely out of gratitude for his fancying her? woman only felt the certainty that they could marry if they chose, half the follies of their character —such as vanity and jealousy—would be lessened. Their aims in life would be nobler; they would better daughters and sisters, and better members of society, and should they marry, better wives.

WRECKING IN ORKNEY.

Our Kirkwall correspondent writes:— In Orkney wrecking is still carried on to some extent, and the people living in outlying districts think that there is nothing illegal or immoral in plundering or stealing from a wreck any more than smuggling gin and tobacco, when the Customs officials are at a safe distance. According to information received at Kirkwall it appears that at the wreck of the barque Poolscar, of Liverpool, in the parish of Holm, about a dozen miles from the country town, these plundering operations have been conducted on a most extensive scale. Coils of rope, spars ship fittings, stores, and other materiae have been carried off wholesale. So thoroughly had the vessel been rifled, that at the sale there was not so much exposed as a tin of meat, pot of paint, the ship's compass, clock or any of the other small odds and ends generally sold on such occasion. This is the more remarkable when it is considered that the ship was only a few days out, and had therefore to be well provided with stores for a voyage to America. The legs of the cabin table have been sawn across close to the floor, and the table bodily carried away. Cases of wine formed part of the cargo, and several of these have been fished up by the wreckers and appropriated.

On Sunday a couple boats from a neighbouring island, were seen to arrive near the scene of the wreck, and after loading up cargoes of wood and material, set sail for home. At this time there were two men stationed at the wreck as watchmen, but the boats were not observed by them, and it is supposed that they had secured their cargoes from caves in which the wreckage had been previously concealed.
Even wreckers stole from wreckers. The barque's hold was full of water, and one man while engaged with a hook and line fishing for wine cases, picked up a box of German toys. These he did not consider valuable enough, and had to consider until something better was hooked; but on looking round shortly afterwards the box had vanished. Another took a burden of preserved meat home with him and deposited it for safe keeping on the top of a square wooden bed. A neighbour however, who had observed his movements, followed him into the house, and the bed standing between the kitchen and the door, he found no difficulty in appropriating the tin. Lots of the bottles of wine have been built in peat stacks fog concealment. Although the folks here were in this wholesale manner from the wreck and from each other of wrecked material, an ordinary case of theft is scarcely ever reported.
Apparent they still held by the old principle that a wreck is a gift from Providence and that each should fight for his own hand, the most effective cure would be a sharp punishment by the authorities.

THE LATE MR TOM TAYLOR.—Mr Tom Taylor, the editor of Punch who died suddenly on Monday, was author of nearly a hundred dramatic pieces, a tenth of them being adaptations from French plays or novels. He was born at Sunderland in 1817, was educated at the Grange School, and went through two sessions at Glasgow University, in the course of which he received three gold medals and several other prizes. He was called to the bar at the Inner Temple Nov., 1845, and went the Northern circuit until his appointment to the Assistant Secretaryship of the Board of Health in March 1850, and on the reconstruction of that Board in 1854 he was appointed secretary at a salary of £1000 per annum. When the Board was abolished and its functions were transferred to the Local Government Act Office, a department of the Home Office, Mr Taylor was made secretary of that department, which is charged with the execution of the important duties devolving on the Home Secretary under the Sanitary Act of 1866. In 1872 the functionary of the Local Government Board. Taylor's office was subsequently abolished, and he retired on a pension from public employments after 21 years services. He afterwards undertook the editorship of Punch. His last play, and one of the most successful, turns on the very dramatic story of Lord and Lady Clan-carty, as told by Macaulay. Amongst his most successful earlier comedies may be mentioned, "Still Waters run Deep," "Victims," "An Unequal Match," "The Contested Election," "The Overland Route," and the "Ticket-of-Leave Man."

A SCENE IN A CHURCH.

The New York Herald reports a case which ought to have a special interest for, and will, perhaps, carry a warning to, ministers who are in the habit of preaching "sensational sermons." The Rev.
Mr Harcourt, minister of the Methodist Trinity Church in Jersey City, is accustomed, it seems, to take up the current topics of the day, and make them the texts of his Sunday evening sermons.
The other day the Narragansett steamship, with three or four hundred souls on board came into collision with another steamer, and there was great loss of life.
This was a "current topic" after Mr Harcourt's own heart, and by way of improving the occasion he announced as his Sunday evening subject, "Lessons from the Narragansett Slaughter." He took for his text, "A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and better weeping; Rachel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not." It was a fertile passage and it might have been made the theme of a powerful sermon. The sermon, in fact, was powerful, if barrowing pictures of the awful agonies of death are proofs of power; but the effect of the highly-coloured discourse was slightly marred by the awkward interruption which came in at the most impressive portion. For, as it happened, the captain of the Narragansett had gone to the church to hear what reasons might be derived from the disaster, and as the preacher increased in fervour in his description of the scene, he who had been a chief actor in the scene naturally grew excited. Presently Mr Harcourt dropped his vivid word-painting to come to some conclusion. He could not halt the conclusion an accident, he said and probably he was right. It was, he went on to say, a slaughter caused by the carelessness or incompetence of one or both captains of the steamboats, and from all he had heard or "read in the papers" he pronounced the officers and the crew to be "the most cowardly set of men that ever manned a boat." This was too much for Captain Young of the Narragansett.

He, so the reports run, leaped forward in his pew, and said, "in a deep, sepulchral voice "You're a liar."
"Then, drawing back,"—we are still still quoting—"and pausing for a moment as if in doubt whether the preacher heard him, as he showed no sign of recognition, he leaped forward a second time and exclaimed again, "You're a liar." The peculiar tone of captain's voice, as it it were smothered by the deep sense of his indignation, prevented it from being heard by the congregation, generally, and the preacher went on as if nothing had occurred." But the preacher heard it clearly, for when he had finished his sermon he offered up a prayer, in which he prayed for the man who had so forgotten himself in the house of the Lord, and hoped that his heart might be changed by the Spirit to a better life. It was held, however, that it was not sufficient to commend Captain Young to the charge of the Spirit. At the close of the service he was taken away to the police court, and the next morning was brought before the magistrate. On his behalf it was contended that he had a right to resist the imputation made upon him from the pulpit, and with this view, while reprobating the language the captain had used, the justice was disposed to agree.
It was to be regretted, said the Jersey City Solon, that the captain should so far have forgotten himself as to make such a remark, but the provocation he received was enough to arouse him. He was admonished to keep better control over the unruly member, and was then discharged.

AMERICAN CATTLE AND MEAT IM- PORTS AT GLASGOW.

The landing per States and Canadian steamers during the past month have again been very extensive. Of live cattle there were 3444 oxen and 1091 sheep and increase as contrasted with the landings in June, 1879, of 2359 of the former, but a decrease of 1313 of the latter.
A so received dead fresh meats 8014 quarters, beef and 1874 carcasses mutton an increase of 3377 quarters (equal to 844 oxen) and 622 carcasses. The month's imports are thus about 150 per cent. greater in live and dead oxen, and 17 per cent. smaller in sheep and carcasses, than that of the corresponding month.
For the half-year the landings aggregated 9270 live oxen and 55 770 quarters fresh beef (equal to 13,942 oxen), while for the first half of last year the aggregates were 1993 and 38,800 quarters (equal to 9700 cattle). There has thus been an increase this six months of fully 100 per cent. on the joint imports of live and dead cattle. Of sheep there were received during the half-year 4656 live and 13 801 dead—an increase of 428 live; 5822 dead sheep, or jointly of fully 50 per cent. over that of 1879. Of preserved or tinned meats there were 1351 boxes on the month's landings but an increase of 3530 boxes on the half-year's. There were also received of cured meats 3800 boxes —bacon, a decrease of 1300 boxes; 228 barrels pork—an increase of 153 barrels; 1485 tierces salt beef—an increase of 464 tierces, as contrasted with receipts in June last year. On the half-year's landings there is a decrease of 24,000 boxes bacon, an increase of 1300 tierces pork, an increase of 8100 tierces beef, and a decrease of 17 hds. hams. The daily produce imports were much better than on any previous month this year, but still the aggregate is considerably under that of previous half-years. During the month there were 24,000 tubs butter, and 43108 boxes cheese—a decrease of 7500 tubs, but an increase of 42,200 boxes. On the six months, however, the aggregate of 68,000 tubs butter and 85,500 boxes cheese shows a decrease of 31,000 tubs and 48,000 boxes as contrasted with that of the corresponding six months in 1879.
The landings of lard and tallow aggregate 4640 tierces for the month, and 27 380 tierces for the six months—an increase of 900 and 10,770 tierces respectively.

THE CLAIMANT AND THE WRIT.

The day on which the judges' decision, on the claimant's writ of error because known to the authorities of her majesty's Conv. Ct Prison at Portsea, he was taken out of "orders." For several months previously he had been in "preparatory orders" for discharge, that is, he was allowed to grow his hair, beard, and moustache at pleasure, so as to be in readiness for discharge, should the legal proceedings terminate in his favour.
For the prison authorities, on the discharge of a prisoner, with commendation

How do all they do in the way of "extremes," to restore a man to society minus all traces of his late incarceration...

Whatever his situation may be, he should master it in all details, and perform all its details faithfully.

THE CARBONAR HERALD

Honest Labor—our noblest heritage.

CARBONAR, AUG. 5th.

Matters are wearing a gloomy aspect in the East. General Borrow's defeat with heavy loss, Ayoub Khan's growing strength, and increasing popularity with the native chiefs, and the fact that he is now besieging Candahar, show that we have yet to realize all horrors of an Eastern war, and may at any moment hear of fresh disasters.

LAUNCH OF THE CZAR'S YACHT.

The New yacht for the Czar, built by Messrs. John Elder & Co., launched at high water on Wednesday in presence of a specially invited company of guests...

WHY THEY OFTEN FAIL

Young men fail to get along in this world because they neglect small opportunities. Not being faithful in little things, they are not promoted in the course of greater things.

It appears that the Government (Messrs. Whitway, Sica & Co.) having bought up the Carbonar Herald and situated the Ledger, are now looting all in their power to nip up the Advocate and make "whitewashers" of every independent newspaper correspondent in the colony.

The Evening Telegram, appears to believe that all the newspapers in the colony not already in the pay of the Government are about to be speedily bought up, fearing that they may "go agin" the Government in Railway affairs.

party prejudice like the Telegram man but through a desire to conserve the rights and interests of our fellow subjects. We hope that this year's survey may not prove as barren as that of 1875, which cost more than three times the amount voted.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Carbonar Herald. St. John's, August 3rd.

Dear Sir,—The all absorbing question which now agitates our quiet little world is as all are aware the proposed Railway and its disputed ultimate effect upon the country in general.

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

Having now gratified their longings to a certain extent by the murder of the good and virtuous King Louis XVI, they were determined that their nefarious work should not stop here.

Before this time massacres of priests and other innocent persons had taken place in various quarters of Paris. The death of the King seemed to be a fresh signal for the renewal of those atrocities.

a sickly smile short the y all look upon the dark faces before them and feel convinced darkness is theirs for ever more. Poor fellows a woman a foxy haired woman comes to the front. Her fist is closed and that tightly over a rock.

To the Editor of the Carbonar Herald CARBONAR, August 4th.

I understand that, by the Act relating to the Coast Fisheries, no person is allowed, at any time, to haul, catch, or take squid, with, in, or by means of any seine, bunt, or other such contrivance.

SQUID HOUND.

[With regard to the above, I can only say that, slippery though the question may be, any squids taken in the above named manner will not be found too slippery for the grasp of our Sergeant, and I can also assure Squid Hound that should he have slipped through the hands of the law, it will be after a good oiling.

French people flowed in torrents throughout the land. Nor was this enough to satisfy the cravings of the demagogues now in possession of the Sovereign power in France.

THE FOX TRAP DISTURBANCES

Judge Prowse and Inspector Carby returned to town last night, having been engaged since Tuesday night last, with a police force, in protecting a party of railway surveyors who had been prevented from carrying on their operations by the threats and violence of the people of Fox trap and its neighbourhood.

attacked the leveller and seized his instruments. Attempts at a rescue were speedily quelled; and the crowd now drew off terror-stricken. The police proceeded to search the houses for the instruments, and were met by the foulest abuse, from the women by a desperate resistance. Information was obtained which led to the capture of the principal persons concerned in seizing instruments; before the daylight on Tuesday morning they were in custody and the instruments were all recovered. At 11 o'clock the survey proceeded, and was completed without further trouble except torrents of abusive language. The police were at hand in case any one but the owner went on the ground under survey. The care exercised may be judged of from the fact that the only injury done was the lopping off the branches of a plum tree, which could not be avoided, and for this the sum of four dollars was claimed and promptly paid. Besides it was found necessary to cut down three small firtrees for which a dollar was claimed and paid. Messrs Temple and Forbes, the gentlemen in charge of the surveying party, behaved with the greatest good temper and kindness to the poor infatuated people throughout the whole affair. It was very humiliating to find Newfoundlanders presenting to strangers such a spectacle of ignorant, violent barbarism, and it is to be hoped a similar scene will never again occur. It is a disgrace to the country we live in. A few police are left on the spot in case of any further trouble, but the whole affair is now believed to be at an end. When the poor people sit down to think over it, it is to be hoped they will see the folly and madness of their conduct.—Chronicle.

Local and other Items.

The Very Rev. E. F. Walsh, P. P. Administrator, Brigus, accompanied by the Rev. R. M. Shean visited this town on Monday last, and spent a few hours with our resident Priest. The Rev. R. M. Shean has just returned from France, where he has been for the past 5 years; we are informed that the rev. gentleman will spend a time in Brigus, his native town.

A report reached here yesterday by the north shore mail man that the reflection of a heavy fire could be seen from Small Point, and was supposed to be in the vicinity of Bay-Je-Verde.

Mr. T. Malone, Jr., arrived in town on Saturday last after visiting Halifax, Boston and Montreal, the poor fellow is as thin as ever.

The Right Rev. Dr. Power and His Honor Judge Conroy, it is stated, are passengers by the Allan Steamer, which left Queenstons for St. John's Tuesday last.

The Right Rev. Dr. Cameron, Bishop of Archaht, has been appointed Delegate Apostolic to represent His Holiness the Pope.

The S. S. Seine having on board a portion of the new Cable, is now in Hearts Content awaiting the arrival of the other ships of the expedition now expected from England. Commodore, Mastiff, and Vanguard, with the sailing vessels Kestrel, Acota and Atlanta, belonging to Messrs John Munn & Co. are also in Hearts Content with coal from Sydney for the Telegraph fleet.

There is still a large number of bankers and baiters in port, of the fleet in our last weeks issue, one only the Regine of St. Perre, succeeded in securing any quantity of bait, this vessel left yesterday for the banks with about 17000 squid, being the total so far taken here and which was made up of the small lots jigg'd by the shoremen and of the crews of the other bankers who sold their small catches, considering the lots not worth icing up.

The Western Maid Capt. Corkill sailed Tuesday for Labrador to load dry fish for market by Hon'ble John Korke.

About 2 o'clock Tuesday last, a fire originated in a house owned by Mark Walsh, situated in the West End, of Harbor Grace, a house owned by a man named Staple, was also consumed and the house adjoining was torn down. The Carbonar Fire Brigade, with their long looked for fire engine of course were not present.

Which is Love.

My parents they wish me to marry, And bid me my choice soon to make; They say Capt. Brown and Sir Harry Would anything do for my sake, But as for the Captain I hate him,— A great foppish thing like a bear! With his cane and his eye-glass and whiskers,— His sense surely lies in his hair! Then Sir Harry is wealthy and ancient, Though indulgent I think he would prove; He has won my respects by his kindness, But it cannot be turned into love.

The Stolen Interview OR HOW WILL IT END

In this frame of mind we went on our daily walk on the following morning, and guess how our little hearts began to beat when we saw the 'dark night,' as we called him, advancing towards us. He joined us and very pleasant he made our walk, for he was a thorough man of the world, and we mistook his rattling conversation for brilliant wit, and his superficial worldly knowledge for profound learning.

the consequences of our disobedient folly. It was too late, however, for repentance, so we consoled each other with the idea that when Mr. Morton knew that they were irrevocably joined together he could summon courage to confess what had occurred, and the husband and wife met only clandestinely and through my instrumentality.
