"Cascarets for Mother's Pets"

Careful mothers know that Cascarets in the home mean less sickness, less trouble, less worry, less cost. When one of the kiddies has a white tongue, feverish breath, sour stomach or a cold, a Cascaret quickly and harmlessly "works" the poisons from the liver and bowels and all is well again—only 10 cents a box.

TO MOTHERS! While all children detest castor oil, calomel, pills and laxatives, they really love to take Cascarets because they taste like candy. Cascarets "work" the nasty bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison from the child's tender stomach, liver and bowels without pain or griping. Cascarets never disappoint the worried mother. Each ten cent box contains directions for children aged one year old and upwards.

The Heir of Rosedene OR The Game-Keeper's Hut

CHAPTER XVI. COUNTY SOCIETY.

"What an idiot I am!" remarked his lordship, in a perfectly audible voice. "Any other fool would have guessed at once that it was she. Such a child, too."

"I have been out of my pinafore some time, too," said Edna. "Oh!" exclaimed Lord Mersey. "Did I say you were so young? Well, you are. I had no idea that the Miss Westons we have all been talking about—"

"Was so insignificant a person," said Edna, with a naive smile. "Pray forgive me for not being older. Mine is a fault that will mend every day."

Lord Mersey looked at her as he would have done at a very rare and beautiful plant, and shook his head. "I'd keep that fault as long as I could, Miss Weston," he said, and Edna bowed.

Fish that had been brought from the duke's stream in Scotland occupied his lordship's attention for some time, but every now and then he turned his lovely young face beside him with an expression of interest. It was the prettiest flower he had ever seen.

Edna listened to the talk going on around her, and amused herself by trying to fit each person with a character conjectured from their voice. Presently Lord Mersey looked round. "I took that very home with me, Miss Weston—very interesting under the microscope—showed an inner circle of petals and a wonderful germinating system. I should very much like to show it to you."

"Thank you!" said Edna; "I should like to see it."

"I'll show it to you some day, when you call on my mother. Perhaps you take an interest in butterflies and" moths? I think I have almost a complete collection, most of them procured, by the way, in Rosedene, a great many in More Park as well. Wonderful place for white moths. By the way, did you make a collection of the Alpine flowers while you were abroad?"

"I am ashamed to say I did not," said Edna. "My father was very fond of botany, and often tried to instill a love of it into me, but in vain. I love flowers, of course, but I like them better before they have been pulled to pieces and dissected. That is a piece of femininity, is it not?"

Lord Mersey accepted the challenge, and took up the argument with a will, and for the first time in her life Edna listened to a scholar, who added to his learning a rare and delicate fancy, expressed with an eloquence as natural as it was unusual, and a voice so full of modest dignity which is the acme of refinement. She forgot all about the gossip going on around her, was scarcely conscious of the ministrations of the noiseless and well-trained servants, and was sorry when the duchess rose as a signal that the gentlemen were to be left to the Chateau Lafitte and the castle ports.

Edna was compelled to wait for a moment while Lord Mersey finished a sentence—indeed, he laid his hand on her arm to keep her, in his strange, abstracted way, and, as she rose, she caught a glance from a pair of dark eyes that were fixed on her, the eyes in question belonging to a handsome young lady who sat at the lower end of the table. The glance was averted in an instant; but women are quick at reading the language of the eyes, and Edna knew that the owner of those flashing orbs was not too well pleased at seeing the friendly gesture of Lord Mersey.

The duchess led the way into a smaller and less brilliant salon, took her seat beside the fire, and proceeded to make tea in the homeliest of fashions. "I'm fond of a cup of tea," she said to Aunt Martha, who was seated near her, "and I don't call the lukewarm mixture the servants bring round on their trays a cup of tea; it is more like medicine. Tea, to be in perfection, must be made by one's self, and drank hot. I hope you know how to make tea, my dear," she said to Edna. Edna laughingly confessed her ignorance.

"We rarely had tea in Switzerland. Holland is the only place on the continent in which one can get anything like pure tea."

"Come and see me make it," said the duchess, and Edna seated herself on a footstool, and watched the operation. "There!" cried the duchess, pouring out a cup. "That is tea—properly made. Lady Jane, you take sugar, I know; Grace you do not," and she smiled across at the tall, dark girl, whose glance Edna had caught, and whom she remembered to have been introduced as Miss Bromley.

The ladies all gathered round the fire and the tea table—the duchess would not let Edna move—and a friendly chat immediately commenced in which Edna was the principal listener. Presently the duchess said:

"Grace, will you give us some music?"

Grace Bromley looked at her tea-cup—it was not yet empty, and the duchess, respecting the cause of her refusal, turned to Edna.

"Come, my dear," she said, "some little Swiss ballad."

Edna felt nervous, but with true tact at once complied, singing a little Swiss song prettily, and returning to her place when she had finished.

Scarcely had she done it when the duke's clear, high-bred voice was heard, and the gentlemen entered.

Lord Mersey came up to the table, and got his cup of tea from the duchess' own hands. Edna noticed that her grace looked up at him and treated him as if he were some great schoolboy to be humored and petted. He scarcely said thank you, but took his cup and made for a distant part of the room, where he sat, his whole expression that of a man whose thoughts were far away. The footman wheeled out the card table, cards were produced, and the duke, Lord Portfield, Aunt Martha and Lady Bromley sat down to whist. Edna found a great album of views upon a side table, and was lost in that when suddenly Lord Mersey's voice sounded beside her.

"Cologne Cathedral, isn't it? Yes—ah, wonderful place! But I remember being disappointed at first sight; it was not until I had walked round it two or three times, or two or three days, that I got an idea of its magnitude and beauty. Inside it is as wonderful; the roof seems to hold up the columns, instead of the columns supporting the roof."

Edna asked him if he had seen the one at Milan; and Lord Mersey, who had seen pretty nearly everything that was curious and worth seeing on the habitable globe, was off again, when suddenly Edna was conscious, as one is conscious without actually seeing, of some one looking at her. She turned her eyes in the direction in which she felt the attention, and again caught Grace Bromley's dark eyes fixed on her.

This time the gaze was not withdrawn, but changed into one that was almost one of defiance; and still keeping her eyes fixed on Edna, she rose and glided to the piano.

Lord Mersey went on talking, his head bent forward, his dark, dreamy eyes fixed on Edna in his impressive way. Suddenly a chord of music rose in the room—a true musician's fingers glided along the keys, playing the prelude to a song, and presently a voice, low, but exquisitely musical, commenced singing.

Lord Mersey fidgeted with his hands, and evidently strove to be deaf to the music and continue his conversation, but the charm was one he of all men could not resist; gradually but surely it told upon him, his talk grew loose and disjointed; he looked abstractedly in Edna's face for a minute or two, then rose slowly and walked straight toward the piano, as if he were drawn thereto by some subtle sorcery.

Edna comprehended the meaning of those dark eyes then and knew that Grace Bromley had deliberately and of malice prepense drawn Lord Mersey from her side. For a moment the color rose to the pale cheeks, and a light shot into the clear eyes, but both died away as suddenly, and Edna Weston bent her head over the album as the thought came flashing down upon her:

"If she knew how little cause she had to fear me!" This thought was followed by another: "What right have I to be sitting here among these people—a living falsehood? I am not Miss Weston; every time I answer to that name, every hour I sit here concealing the truth, I am acting a lie."

The duchess' voice made her start. "Come and sit here, my dear," she said. "Why, you are all alone!"

"I met him in the woods," said Edna. The duchess smiled, and taking up Edna's hand, turned it palm upward. "I am an old witch, my dear, and am particularly clever at reading the past lives of people. Let me see—" and she began tracing the delicate lines on the soft little palm. "What do I read there—"

Edna drew her hand away suddenly, with a look almost of fear. The duchess stared at her with an amused smile.

WHILE stooping near the stove I caught the handle of a pan of boiling water and upset it," writes Mrs. Albert Smart, of 279 Fairbairn Ave., Winnipeg. "The entire contents of the pan poured partly down my arm, but mostly over my foot, and as I was wearing slippers at the time my foot was very badly scalded. A huge blister covered the whole top of my foot and the pain I suffered was intense. We had heard how good Zam-Buk is for such injuries, so my husband got some and applied it. The first application soon gave me wonderful relief from the burning pain, and continued applications completely cured the scald. After this demonstration of the value of Zam-Buk we are now never without a box in the house. We have proved it invaluable for the many little accidents which are of such frequent occurrence in every home. Zam-Buk is just as effective for skin diseases, such as eczema, salt rheum and ulcers, and is without equal for piles. In many cases where the disease or sore is of long standing and other remedies have been useless, Zam-Buk has worked a complete and permanent cure. Its absolute purity makes it suitable for the most tender skin (even the skin of a young baby) and mothers should always keep a box on hand for emergencies. Zam-Buk does not deteriorate with keeping. All dealers, 50c. a box.

All alone, indeed! thought Edna, bitterly—"Where is Lord Mersey? I saw him sitting there just now, lecturing in his usual style. Ah! I need not ask. Do you know that he is music mad, and subject to a hundred other madnesses? He cannot hear a musical instrument played without being drawn toward it. Grace sings well, does she not?"

"Exquisitely," said Edna, warmly. "Yes," said the duchess, looking across the room where Lord Mersey stood leaning both arms upon the piano, and staring down at his coat sleeves. "Yes, Grace is a favorite of mine; I hope you will like her, because I like you."

"Your grace is very kind to me," said Edna, simply. "I think I shall like Miss Bromley. We have not spoken as yet. Isn't she very beautiful?"

"Yes," said the duchess; "I think so. Look at Lord Mersey now! I suppose you are a botanist—no?" "I don't know the names of half the common flowers," said Edna.

"What is it—minerals, air currents, shells, or what, my dear? Something has attracted him."

Edna blushed under this cross-examination. "Then it must have been my supreme ignorance, your grace; no doubt that is it. He looked upon it as curious, quite phenomenal."

"Hem!" said the duchess. "He tells me you and he had a conversation in the Rosedene preserves the other day."

1. A Clothing Allowance on the following sliding scale:
 - For men discharged up to 1st April, 1917—$35.00.
 - For men discharged between 1st April, 1917, and 1st April, 1918—$45.00.
 - For men discharged on or after 1st April, 1918—$60.00.
2. A War Service Gratuity, in place of Post Discharge Pay, to be graduated up to six months Pay and Allowances, exclusive of subsistence or allowances in lieu of rations and quarters. For men who have served in an actual theatre of war, or were on the strength of some recognized overseas establishment on Nov. 11th, 1918, the Gratuity is graded as follows:—
 - For three years' service or over—188 days' pay and allowances.
 - For two years' service and under three years—153 days' pay and allowances.
 - For one year's service and under two years—122 days' pay and allowances.
 - For less than one year's service—92 days' pay and allowances.

For men who have served overseas, and were discharged prior to November 11th, 1918, without having been in actual theatre of war, and for men who have served in Newfoundland only, the Gratuity is graded as follows:—

- For three years' service or over—92 days' pay and allowances.
- For two years' service and under three years—61 days' pay and allowances.
- For one year's service and under two years—31 days' pay and allowances.

In the case of an Officer or man without dependents whose pay and allowances, as above described, are less than $70.00 for a 31 day period, a consolidated rate of $70.00 will be paid in lieu of every 31 or 30 days' pay and allowances to which he is entitled. In the case of an Officer or man, with dependents who are entitled or who, before his retirement or discharge, were entitled to Separation Allowances, whose pay and allowances including Separation Allowance is less than $100.00 for a 31-day period, a consolidated rate of $100.00 will be laid in lieu of every 31 or 30 days' pay and allowances to which he is entitled.

If part of, or all the gratuity under Post Discharge Pay Regulations has been paid to any officer or man, the amount so paid will be deducted from the Gratuity provided for by "War Service Gratuity" Regulations.

3. Separation Allowance to wives of members of the Regiment and to other dependents entitled thereto, shall be retroactive, making it effective from date of enlistment, or from the date when entitled to receive same under authorized Regulations.

The foregoing will necessitate a large amount of accounting and additional work, and it will not be possible for the Department of Militia to make payments before the 1st of March.

J. R. BENNETT, Minister of Militia.

Wilfrid Laurier yesterday—Monarch in Portugal Successors Accept New Conditions.

RESOLUTION SUPPRESSED. WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. The suppression of the revolution in Portugal has been announced by the government according to a despatch received here to-day at the State Department. Wire communications is maintained to Lisbon and wireless communication inaugurated.

"REAL REVOLUTION." WEIMAR, Feb. 15. The German revolution last November was an artificial one, and a "real revolution" is still to come, an independent Socialist assembly declared in the German assembly to-day. The form of constitution to come, he declared, depend upon the acts of the government. Haase attacked the government and aroused "outlets" from other members by his negative argument. Upwards were throughout his speech which was a repetition of old independent Socialist charges against the government. Haase assailed the name of Count von Brockdorff, the Foreign Minister, and declared that it lacked the slightest tinge of Socialism. He insisted that the former cabinet had decided on war nearly a year before the outbreak.

RENEWAL TERMS. TREVES, Feb. 17. The new terms for the renewal of the armistice, as presented by the Germans by Marshal Foch, must abandon all offensive operations against the Poles and must prohibit her troops from crossing the Russian frontier at a point. The line of debarcation between Germany and Poland is outlined as follows: East of Grosser-Uthrecht (south of Schodzien), south of Exin (southwest of Bromberg), south of Kreuz (west of Birmensdorf and Bentschen), (west of Posen) and those north of the line between Silesia and Poland. The line of demarcation gives to a considerable part of the German government of Posen. It provided by the Allied terms that armistice must be renewed for a definite period with a fixed delay of three days for the renunciation of the old terms of the armistice to be carried out completely by the German delegates.

Justice Agreement Signed. PARIS, Feb. 17. The agreement for the renewal of armistice with Germany has been signed. All the previous details relating to the signing of the armistice have come from German sources. The foregoing announcement is the first to be received from the allied side.

WILFRED LAURIER DEAD. OTTAWA, Feb. 17. Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Liberal Party of Canada for many years, died at his home on Laurier street at 2.30 this afternoon. Death was due to paralysis, the first attack of which he experienced at noon yesterday. Drs. Vain and Chevrier were called, but there was practically no hope of recovery after ten days of this morning. He was unconscious since early morning. The bodies of the Catholic Church were interred during the night by the Legion of the Sacred Heart. Many personal friends and great chiefs gathered at his home on Laurier Avenue after the death of his serious illness became known. Lady Laurier was at his bedside. At about noon a marked weakness of his pulse was noticed. The attending physicians declared that only his great vitality which kept him alive for so long after the attack which was in every way serious. The state dinner which was to have been held at usual at Governor's House on the occasion of the opening of Parliament has been cancelled.

Extending the Armistice.

The third prolongation of the armistice between the Allied Powers and Germany has taken place, this time the extension being for an indefinite period, certain extra conditions being added to the original text, which the Germans are required to carry out as well as the previous terms, which later they have evidently failed in doing.

It is notorious of the Germans that in no case have they in any way facilitated the completion of the terms of the armistice, signed on November 11th, 1918. Rather has their non-compliance been so allied to passive resistance, that the newspapers of Britain, in all shades of opinion, are devoting serious attention to the attitude adopted by the German Government towards the laid down conditions.

Bulgaria, Turkey, Austria, have all more or less fulfilled their armistice obligations and no request for extension came from the Governments, such as they were, of these countries. It has been left to Germany to place all kinds of obstructions, to invent all sorts of excuses and to delay by every means in her power (with some ulterior motive) the carrying out of the terms imposed upon her by the armistice, all of which her representatives accepted in apparent good faith, though since then their fidelity has been considerably impaired by evil communications.

The French seem to think that the menace of a renewal of hostilities on the part of the late enemy is not yet past, and their press urge that, as a matter of foresight, suitable safeguards be established, especially as the Germans are not demobilizing their armies. The British press is also of that opinion, the Daily News publishing a lengthy despatch from its Paris correspondent on this subject, which says in part—"We also have the best reasons to believe that Germany is keeping her troops under arms on the pretext of economic necessity," and adds that "Germany is keeping up her military strength, so that she can send a delegation to the Peace Conference to discuss the peace conditions imposed, from which it may be implied that the true reason of Germany's failure to demobilize is due to her expectations, sided by a show of military strength, of having a say in the final terms of peace. The words of the Foreign Secretary as quoted above amplify this.

Quarantined at Sydney.

The Mid. members of the crew of the s.s. Wellington, homeward bound by rail from New York, have been placed under quarantine in a Sydney boarding house, a soldier staying there with them having developed smallpox. The following message was received by the Telegram at 2 o'clock this afternoon: "Crew of steamer Wellington quarantined at Sydney in boarding house on account of soldier having smallpox. Put names of Telegram to forward will now: Collins, Bishop, Callahan, Wiseman, Kelly, Mercer, Whitten, Robinson, Purcell; also three other passengers, Pte. Abbott, George Cole, Bernard Mooney." (Sgd.) COLLINS.

Fishery Prospects.

Later reports from Channel say that fishery prospects there are very good. About 40 boats are engaged in fishing, but only three schooners, the latter have about 2000 lbs. of fish on haul. The weather for the past week has been good and for five days the boats were on a very agreeable breeze. There is sufficient bait for use and consequently the fishers fared well.

Reids' Boats.

Ethle not reported. Glenoe left Grand Bank at 2.20 p.m. yesterday morning. Kyle - Marconigram yesterday: "Wind N.E., ice packed tight on land; impossible make North Sydney; proceeding to Lunenburg." Not reported since. Meigle in port. Sagons arrived at Port aux Basques at 2.10 a.m. to-day.

McMurdo's Store News.

Solid Iodine Clin-u-form Lozenges contain Cinnamon, Eucalyptus, Menthol, and Menthylol, all powerful germicides and antiseptics against influenza bacilli; and in this lozenge put up in a very agreeable form you have little to fear in that you use Clin-u-form Lozenges judiciously. Price 40c.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Owing to the non-arrival of suitable building material, nearly all the work on the Shipbuilding works are now laid off. It is hoped that the delay will not be long before work will be resumed. The funeral of the late Mr. John Sparks took place yesterday and was largely attended. A large number of men left for Bell Island by Mr. Stewart's motor boat and will now take work on the island.

Padre Lectures.

To a packed house Rev. (Capt.) Clayton lectured at the C. of E. School, Quidi Vidi, last evening, speaking of the occupation of the Rhine towns, the expulsion of undesirable Germans and the lack of railway transportation. It is notorious of the Germans that in no case have they in any way facilitated the completion of the terms of the armistice, signed on November 11th, 1918. Rather has their non-compliance been so allied to passive resistance, that the newspapers of Britain, in all shades of opinion, are devoting serious attention to the attitude adopted by the German Government towards the laid down conditions.

Uncertainty as to Prices.

The great problem now agitating the minds of all who supply for the fishery is what next year's fish prices will be. It would take a wise man now to tell. The price will likely be between $2 and $12, but just where the question that perplexes. It is necessary, however, for the suppliers to know this, before they can make their calculations as to where they are to come out. They will be very cautious, therefore, in issuing supplies, at the present high figures of pork, beef, flour, lines and twines, salt, and everything connected with the fishery. There is one feature this year, luckily, that is favorable, namely, a large number of fishermen and planters who will be able to supply themselves. Those number more than ever before.

New Comedy Co.

The many patrons of the stage and associated arts, will be pleased to hear that a new local comedy company has been organized. Some excellent talent will be included in the personnel and the company will render many good comedies during the season. A large stock of beautiful scenery, an extensive wardrobe and a splendid repertoire of sketches will undoubtedly win the Caribou Comedy Company many admirers. The company gives the first play to-morrow night in the Synod Building.

Willington on Fire.

We learn on good authority that the S.S. Wellington, which was expected here to load fish on or about the 20th inst. for the Mediterranean, has been on fire in New York harbour and was considerably damaged. In consequence the ship is not likely to leave port before March 1st for here.

Berths Scarce.

Berths in sealing steamers were never as scarce as this year, and outport men should be warned that due to the expense of coming on to St. John's in the hope of securing such is bound to end in failure and unnecessary expenditure of money.

Flying Men's Fears. When Aviators Get Cold Feet. A capable and daring air pilot confessed to me the other day that when he had occasion recently to cross a short plank laid between two parts of a building he was obliged to crawl across. Another man, who has done a good deal of flying, related to me how one day he started to walk across an uncompleted railway bridge where only the sleepers lay between him and the river below. As he stepped from one sleeper to the next, and watched while he put his foot at each step, the movement of the running water, the low so fascinated him that before he was a third of the distance across the bridge his legs seem to become paralyzed and he was unable to move another step forward. Yet these same men could do stunts in the air that would make an ordinary 'earth-man's' fish creep. The explanation seems to lie in the fact that the occupants of an aeroplane in flight do not experience any sensation of height, because by leaning over the edge they have no visual evidence of their position relative to the ground. Moreover, the objects which on the ground would give a feeling of distance, and produce fear of falling, appear so small and indistinct from the air that they fail to give such an effect to the aviator. When flying at a considerable height, if the engine cut off so as to leave the aeroplane in a helpless position, the pilot seems to be motionless, so far as the sensations of its occupants are concerned, for there are no land near at hand by which the motion can be judged. Another factor that prevents the effect of height-giddiness making itself felt in the air is that the sides of the fuselage surround the greater part of one's body, and so do away with any feeling of falling over the side. In just the same way the planes are not only the material supports of the machine, but they give the aviator a moral support seeing a broad expanse of canvas near him. A moment that tries the nerve of a novice is when the aeroplane is about to land, and the ground seems to be rushing up to meet the crash. Visions of anything that crash make one grip anything that is handy, but this feeling passes away after a few landings, and in fact some men do not experience it at all.

A Most Active Year. The President pointed with just pride to the increase of nearly $1,000,000 in Assets during the year, bringing the total amount now to $18,185,610.75. After liabilities have been fully provided for, there is a substantial net surplus of $2,751,999.60, establishing beyond a doubt the unexcelled financial position of the Company, which has entitled it to be known everywhere as the Company "Solid as the Continent". VIRGINIA S. SCHOOL. DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES. The annual distribution of S. S. prizes took place at Virginia on Friday night last. Quite a crowd were in attendance. Rev. Dr. Jones occupied the chair and was most entertaining in his remarks. Rev. Mr. Moulton sang and also gave a short address. Mr. H. Y. Mott, Supt. of St. Thomas's Sunday School, also gave a very interesting address. A couple of songs were nicely rendered by Miss Crocker. Mr. Henry Cook, the Supt. gave a very encouraging report of the past year's work, pointing out that although in some cases the children have to walk from one to three miles, yet there were 41 sessions during the year. The prizes were presented by Mrs. (Rev.) Jones, who also prefaced her presentation by the recital of a story which was very much enjoyed. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

GIVE US A TRIAL.

A Blessed Dispensation.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A group of us were looking at some samples of silk which a very charming elderly lady had sent for, with a view to selecting the material for a gown.

"I like that," said one of the younger women, indicating a black silk with a tiny white dot.

The owner of the samples bent over it. "Oh no," she said distastefully, "I don't like that. That's suitable for an elderly woman. It's too old ladyish. I shouldn't want it."

"Why, I thought it was just what I would like for myself," said the younger woman, with what I thought consummate tact.

A Smile Inside of Me. And I smiled a smile inside of me and paraphrased Pope's famous line, "Man never is, but always to be, old." (The "man" of course, means woman, too.)

What a blessing it is that this old age which most of us dread so (I'd like a dollar for every person whom I have heard say that he or she hopes never to live to be old—incidentally, I have noticed that all the people who utter that bromide are well under fifty) never, so far as our consciousness of it goes, really come to us.

She Thought Her About a Hundred. Old age is something always lying "just beyond the dim horizon's utmost bound." At five it is anything adult. A woman told me that her small niece asked her, when she was about twenty-five, how old she was.

"How old do you think?" she countered, and the small niece gravely responded, "Oh, about a hundred."

And a dressmaker told of a young girl sixteen who objected to some plans for a gown she was making her. "That," she declared scornfully, "would make me look like an old hag of twenty-three." That seems rather unusual for that particular age.

When I was sixteen, most girls of that age longed to look older. I have a fancy somehow that youth is more in style than it used to be, and perhaps the moving pictures with their exploitation of curls and youthfulness in general may have something to do with that.

She Didn't Want to Lunch With An Old Lady. To use one more illustration, another friend told me of inviting two elderly women of approximately the same age (so she thought) to lunch together. Where upon, the younger of the two, a very outspoken old lady, wished to know why she had been invited to lunch with "such an old woman as that."

I wonder, oh I wonder, if I shall ever know I'm old.

Flying and Fear.

It might be thought that any young man who was a good sportsman, and who had no idea what fear was, could be a pilot; but this is not the case. One of the most remarkable things the Air Force doctors have discovered is that the best pilots are those who know what fear is, though they may not show it.

Fear affects the blood pressure and circulation, two most important things in a pilot who must have a first-class circulation to withstand the sudden changes of temperature and to be able to breathe at the great heights to which his aeroplane rises.

The prospective pilot must be an extremely rapid thinker, and must be able to do the right thing almost in a flash, as it were.

The R.A.F. medical board has a special test to find out whether a man training for a pilot is suitable or not. He has in front of him an electric key and an electric lamp. The doctor examining him switches on the light, and the flying-candidate must press the key in front of him as soon as he sees the light.

A special apparatus registers to a thousandth of a second the interval between the lighting of the lamp and the pressing of the key, showing how fast the prospective pilot can think and act.

Queens and Tobacco.

Although many queens are hostile to smoking, the majority do not disdain the use of tobacco.

Ex-Queen Amelia of Portugal, for instance, is extraordinarily fond of tobacco. She undoubtedly inherits this passion from her mother, the Countess of Paris, who even smoked cigars, and oneday took to the pipe.

The Dowager Empress of Russia likewise enjoyed smoking, and her daughter-in-law, the unfortunate ex-Carina, when drinking tea consumed innumerable cigarettes.

Queen Nathalie of Serbia, the Queen of Roumania, and all Balkan princesses worship Turkish tobacco.

THE HAPPY DAYS OF LONG AGO.
The happy days of long ago,
That once were mine to live and know,
Come back on memory's wings and seem

The canvas of a glorious dream,
I never knew, when they were mine,
How fragrant was the smell of pine,
How beautiful the apple trees

That lured the honey-seeking bees;
As every careless boy, I heard
The music of the humming bird
And never understood back then
I'd yearn to know those joys again.

A carefree boy I trudged the lanes
And faced the summer suns and rains
And never knew my riches then,
For I was envying grown-up men.
I lived as one supremely blessed,
But as a boy I never guessed
The treasures that were mine to own.
But now that all those joys have flown,

It seems to me I never see
The blossoms on the apple tree
So pink and white as those that grew
And decked the orchards that I knew.

Back then I heard the robins sing
With every glad returning spring,
But paid no heed. They came and went;
As carelessly my days were spent.
But now I know my soul was thrilled
With every note they gayly trilled,
For not a robin sings to-day
To me in such a glorious way.

Life lavished splendours on me then,
And with her magic brush and pen
Drew pictures on the earth and sky,
But heedlessly I passed them by.

Now as I sit and yearn to know
The happy days of long ago,
I wonder if the girls and boys
Of now appreciate their joys,
Or do they live the same as I
And let their pleasures hurry by,
And will they, too, when they are grown
Recall the charms that they have known?

Their happiest hours they now possess,
But this, I fear, they'll never guess
Until, as I, they years to know
The glorious days of long ago.

Milady's Boudoir.

HOW TO HAVE PRETTY ANKLES. Pretty ankles are a rarity and not the rule. It is a pity too as nowadays a woman's ankle is quite prominent, because of the short skirts and low shoes mode of dressing.

If you want your ankles to be well shaped, don't stand on the sides of your feet. If you have any inclination to do so, your feet need more support than your shoes are giving them. Get a pair of arch supporters and wear them until the inclination no longer exists.

Just as harmful as standing on the sides of your feet is the habit of turning them sidewise when sitting down. Keep your feet firmly planted on the heel and sole all of the time. Such measures will help but will not wholly cure.

Further corrective treatment includes a twice daily foot bath. Bathe the feet in tepid water upon arising. Use a pure white soap, dry the feet quickly with a soft towel, and if there are any calloused spots on heel or sole rub them with a piece of pumice stone.

Follow the warm water bath with a plunge into cold water. Immerse the feet to a point well above the ankles and let them remain in the water for fully five minutes.

Dry them with a coarse towel, rubbing the ankles vigorously until the blood tingles. Finish with a generous application of alcohol, rubbing up and down until all the liquid has evaporated.

At bedtime sponge the feet with clear warm water to which a little powdered borax has been added. Then let them soak in cold water for from fifteen to twenty minutes. Rub briskly with a coarse towel and repeat the alcohol application.

Paper Clothing.

Though paper clothing was invented a hundred years ago, it was never made any real use of till the Hun found himself cut off from the world's supplies of cotton and wool.

In 1917 alone over 45,000 tons of paper in Germany was converted into fabrics of all kinds. This yarn is made from the best quality paper.

The paper is cut by special, revolving knives into strips a little less than half an inch wide. These strips are twisted, and then treated with a special mixture to preserve them from damp.

After this treatment this paper yarn can be woven into almost any kind of material, varying from coarse canvas to cloth used for making sheets, underlinen, tablecloths, and so on.

Every kind of material, in fact, usually made from cotton or wool has been manufactured by the Hun from his paper yarn. Blankets, dress materials, waterproofs, even towels and stockings, are made from the yarn, which stands sending to the laundry almost as well as ordinary cotton goods.

Last year a German paper estimated that paper yarns worth seventy-five million pounds were manufactured to replace the scarcity of cotton goods, due to the British blockade.

National Anthems.

After the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 the "Watch on the Rhine" became a duel as far as a national anthem for Germany was concerned. It was completely out-of-date, superseded, on the shelf. Now it must be taken down and refurbished for the Rhine will henceforth, for a considerable part of its course, be again the boundary between France and Germany.

Nevertheless, it is probable that the Germans for some time to come will taboo this once-popular song because, until the Hun has paid his debts, it is probable that the Allies will do much of the watching on the Rhine. In fact, the song may be said to have changed hands. That high and mighty song, too, "Deutschland über Alles," which, broadly translated, means "Germany Topdog" is also either dead or dying. It would certainly need a very optimistic vocalist to sing it as present. Possibly there are some Germans who sing it, but as a national Anthem it is quite out of date.

In fact, there is at present a slump in national anthems, seeing that most of them are laudatory of kings and emperors who no longer occupy their thrones. Seeing that at least a score of petty kniglets are out of work in Germany alone, that Russia and Austria have both lost their emperors, and that new racial combinations and permutations are being formed everywhere, it is no wonder that this is the case, and that the "Marseillaise" is taking its place as a sort of universal national anthem.

Sunken Millions.

Raising Three Thousand Ships. One of the greatest problems that is brought near by the end of hostilities is that of salvaging over 15,000,000 tons of shipping that lie on the ocean's floor.

This colossal tonnage, which is equivalent to something like 3,000 vessels of various size, includes more than one argosy that would have driven Captain Kidd and his confederates from the Spanish Main into insanities of greed.

In the depths of the Atlantic there lies one ship that went down with a large consignment of bullion; another sank with a large amount of paper money; while in the region of the Mediterranean lies a boat laden with pearls from the East, worth many thousands of pounds.

Before navigation and the fishing industry can be resumed with complete safety all these wrecks, especially those in the shallower waters around Britain, must be raised. Trawlers cannot work efficiently when their nets catch sunken vessels instead of fish; and the danger of these submerged wrecks to other vessels is obvious.

EATING TOO MUCH.

We eat too much, the doc in- s i t s ; we're chewing things all day; we must reform, he wots and wists, or there'll be Hank to pay. Some times I read him as I run, he throws in me a scare, and I re- mark, "I'll have to shun the sor- geous bill of fare. I doubt me not, the doc is right, his words are spiced with truth; and now, like some old anchorite, I'll live awhile, in sooth."

I cut out all the juicy steaks, the rich imported cheese, I sidestep luscious pies and cakes and live on bran and peas. My waist I measure every morn to see if I have shrunk; and then I laugh the doc to scorn, and call his wisdom bunk. For I am bigger than I was, my girt is simply great; the sickly mashes, soups and slaws have added to my weight. And I am feeling like an owl that's moulted out of time; I lean against the fence and howl, and call the doc a crone. It may be dieting is good for those it doesn't harm; but I am done with shredded wood and hayseed from the farm. I'll eat good grub and if I die the coroner will find my system full of cake and pie, not hay and pumpkin rind.

He offered an opinion that the Canadians had not found the Homeland such a back number as they might have fancied. Lord Bryce emphasized the wonderful wide influence of the Empire. In this great power, it was a great responsibility. Providence had given us, he said, in the privilege of directing the destiny of mankind, and Canadians therefore must help to see that the Empire never failed.

NOON.

MUST BE KEPT THERE. WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. Roger E. Simons, who recently returned from a mission to Russia for the Bureau of Commerce, to-day told the Senate Committee, investigating lawless agitation in this country, that if the Allied and American forces were withdrawn from Northern Russia, the Bolsheviks would engage in one of the bloodiest massacres the world had ever seen.

ERZBERGER HAD HARD TIME. LONDON, Feb. 18. Matthias Erzberger has returned to Weimar from Treves, according to a German wireless message picked up here. Following his return he appeared before the National Assembly, and read the text of the new armistice agreement. After he had finished the reading, Erzberger is reported to have said, "I do not wish any member of this house to ever have to live through such heavy hours as it was my fate to live at Treves. The German commission activity was kept to the narrowest limits, as Marshal Foch declined to extend the period, and declared he was unable to alter anything in the stipulations, since the conditions had been framed by the chiefs of the Allied Governments. Marshal Foch's interpreter stated that President Wilson had approved the conditions of the new armistice."

LATEST.

ONLY THEMSELVES TO BLAME. LONDON, Feb. 18. One of the notes, presented by Matthias Erzberger, one of the German Armistice Commissioners, to Marshal Foch, at Treves, on Friday, complained of the failure of the Entente Allies to commence negotiations at Spa for a financial treaty with Germany, according to a German wireless despatch picked up here. Erzberger pointed out, according to the message, that the arrangements made by the Entente called for a beginning of the negotiations on February 12, and that the German delegates were at Spa to commence work. Konstantine Fehrenbach, the President of the National Assembly, said that the members of that body were impressed with the painful nature of the negotiation at Treves, and added, the entire German nation is full of apprehension of this agreement and its results. A motion to adjourn debate on the armistice conditions was agreed upon.

LINER REFOLOATED. LONDON, Feb. 18. The American steamer Narragansett, which ran on the submerged rocks off the eastern end of the Isle of Wight, on the morning of Feb. 1, was refloated yesterday.

Willard and Dempsey.

Dempsey's victories over Fulton and Levinsky make it appear that, barring Willard, he has no equal in the heavyweight division. If Willard decides to fight and wants a side bet, several wealthy sporting men will provide Dempsey with substantial backing. Dempsey can obtain backing from $10,000 to $25,000 for a battle with Willard, providing the limit is not less than twenty rounds. A despatch says, "New Orleans could afford to hang up a $50,000 guarantee for the champion for a battle to be held in that city before the end of the winter racing season, which extends from Thanksgiving day to the middle of February. Thousands of sporting men soon will arrive in the Crescent City to follow the horses. A Willard-Dempsey scrap there in February would attract many more."

Thirteen Brothers in the War.

Few families in Canada can equal the record of that of Corp. T. J. Holbrook, a Kilmount blacksmith recently returned from overseas. There were thirteen brothers in the Holbrook brood and all were in the war as volunteer men, of whom six gave the supreme proof of citizenship. The Holbrook family record scipies that of Staff Sergeant W. F. Payne of the Australian Imperial Force, who had five brothers killed at Mons, one at Bullecourt, another in the South African war, and two in the South African war, his sole surviving brother having lost a leg at Mons. The father of this family of eleven fighting men is a lieutenant-colonel in charge of the Bisley rifle range, in his 79th year.

Press Briefs.

QUERY—How dry is a bone?—Baltimore Sun. THE FIGHT FOR TERRITORY—The earth would have to be expanded considerably to give each nation at the conference the territory it desires—and scientists tell us that it is shrinking.—New York Tribune. CALL IT ANYTHING—The Paris conference now eliminates the word "league" and calls it a society of nations. Better call it "heterogeneous and accidental juxtaposition of conciliatory governmental functions" and let it go at that.—Washington Post. AND WHAT WILL?—The Socialist conference are trying to discover who caused the war. They are meeting in Switzerland. There is another conference sitting in Paris which is about due to decide what will happen to those who caused it.—Montreal Herald. KNOWS HIS GERMAN—Marshal Foch, who knows his German well, does not want to take any chances on the armistice becoming another "scrap of paper." Evidently he believes that the Boche still needs a lot of watching, and that the best security is to make his toe the mark now.—Morning Chronicle.

Gold Galore. In the British Isles gold is found in small quantities. There are a few mines in North Wales where it is won from rock of poor quality. Where the Bulk Comes From. The greatest mines in the world are in Africa, the Rand mines, which are worked by large limited companies. Up country, in Rhodesia, and also in West Africa, there is plenty of gold. America is the next largest gold-producing country. Extensive operations are carried on in Alaska and California, and the metal is obtained in many other American States. Australia is one of our colonies whose reputation as a gold-producer is known to many. Gold was first discovered in 1861 in New South Wales and Victoria, and there are possibilities in gold-mining in Queensland and Western Australia. Canada has not only a name for farming, but its gold-mining industry is one of great importance. Last year gold won from its various mines was valued at over three million pounds. The greatest quantity is obtained from Ontario. In Manitoba gold is found in quartz veins, and the whole distribution of reefs assures well for future prospectors. India's production of gold is principally from Mysore. Russia is the oldest gold-mining country in the world. Mining is carried on principally in the Ural mountains, but climatic conditions impede progress. Mexico has many mines, but labor troubles have a restrictive influence on the industry. Other countries which produce gold in small quantities are China, Japan, Chili, Peru, Fozala, and Hungary.

Make your Motoring season an enjoyable one by owning the Car that all other motorists look upon with envy—the Buick Six is the most envied car in St. John's. The Buick is always ready to take you anywhere you desire to go—it never falters. When you press the starting pedal of the Buick, you are assured immediate response—the Deleo starter is always on the job to turn over your engine every time you require it. Buick Cars are luxuriously equipped, and upholstered in genuine black leather—no imitation. Strength of construction is an inherent quality of all Buicks. With the new Sixty Horsepower Valve in Head engine sixty miles an hour is easily accomplished, besides hills are made short work of. A new and valuable feature is the entirely enclosed valves and engine, thus keeping out all grit and dust and giving longer life to the car, consequently the Engine is noiseless. We shall be happy to let you look over our 1919 Buick Six which recently arrived—you will be convinced why it is the most envied car once you have examined it.
