CHAPTER XX.
A STRUGGLE FOR DEAR LIFE.

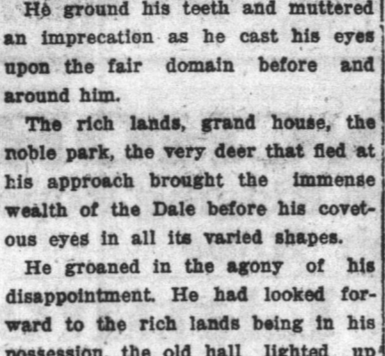

"You look astonished," she said, vehemently. "You think I hadn't the strength to tell you how you've wronged both them and me! But I have—I have; my poor Grace's fate has lent me strength. I'll tell you to-night the whole secret of the misery that haunts the Dale. You are the cause of it. No one dare say nay to the Squire of Dale. He's king in this land, and he thought to bend and break his own son as he did every one else. You wanted him to marry me—" Her face crimsoned, but she seemed forgetful of everything, more especially of herself. "You wanted him to marry the Warren and the Warren gold, you did—and you would have forced the poor boy to come to me with a falsehood in his mouth, which you thought I would be foolish enough to believe. You were wrong, squire, wrong, a thousand times wrong! I would not have bought the dear lad—no, though I loved him better even than you did. I would not wrong him as you did him—and me. He went—he would not play the cheat and the thief—for is he not a thief who cheats a woman for her money and her dirty land? He would rather leave his old home and the bad, evil-tempered man whom he called father and wander an outcast on the face of the earth."

Here, broken down by the reflection, she sank into the chair and hid her face in her hands.
The squire, white as death, opened his mouth, but before he could speak she went on:
"Not a word—not a word! I will not hear a word until I have cleared my mind. Hugh gone! What next? This girl—my poor, darling Grace, for I loved her almost as I loved him—came. She was rough but true; not smooth enough and lady enough for the Dale, forsooth! She must be broken to harness and taught fine ways—nay, more, she must be sold, ay, sold, poor child, to a fine London gentleman with a smooth tongue, and a false face for ought you or I know! Ay, sold, whether she would or she would not! Sold, because the squire of Dale had been talked over and cozened by the silky tongue of a serpent-faced fortune-hunter."
"Fortune-hunter?" the squire breathed.
"Ay, fortune-hunter," repeated Rebecca. "You know I am right. How often did Captain Dartmouth come to the Dale while Hugh Darrell was alive and in favor? But he came fast enough when a poor, weak, innocent child is to be sold—comes with his smooth face and double smile to cheat you and snare her! She read him, poor girl; she read his cunning, money-hunting heart, and here, here on her knees, beside this chair, she sobbed her heart out and told me she hated and feared him!"
Breathless and exhausted the brave little woman said into the chair and hid her face in her hands.
The squire, trembling like a leaf, either with passion or emotion, made a step toward the door; then, leaning heavily upon his stick, he turned and looked at the woman who had told him such bitter truths and limped out.

WOMEN FROM NORTH, SOUTH, EAST, WEST

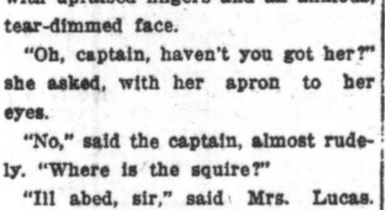

Recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Reliable Remedy for Women's Ills.
Spokane, Wash.—"I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for women's ailments as it helped me so much during middle age."
—Mrs. MARTHA CONNOR, 1027 Mansfield Avenue.
Abilene, Texas.—"For almost a year I was unfit to do my work as I suffered so from female ill. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health after my physician had failed."
—Mrs. E. E. OWENS.
Rockville, Conn.—"I suffered so long from female ill I was blue and melancholy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health after everything else had failed."
—MARY WIZZ, 8 Chamberlain St.
Oakland, Cal.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me such relief during Change of Life, I wish every woman could know about it. I surely praise this great remedy for women's ill."
—Mrs. MARY S. ASHLEY, 5709 Dover Street.
The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act directly on the female organism.

that dusky light to see it, his face for once was the true index of his soul. He had not found Grace, and all his plots and schemes were torn to shreds and given to the winds.
He ground his teeth and muttered an imprecation as he cast his eyes upon the fair domain before and around him.
The rich lands, grand house, the noble park, the very deer that fed at his approach brought the immense wealth of the Dale before his covetous eyes in all its varied shapes.
He groaned in the agony of his disappointment. He had looked forward to the rich lands being in his possession, the old hall lighted up and ringing with the joyous laughter of fashion and beauty. He would keep a pack of hounds, improve the preserves, enlarge the stables, and make the dull old hall a living habitation for Captain Reginald Dartmouth and his friends.
His debts all paid, the Dale lands and money in his grasp, his name a synonym for wealth, power, and princely ostentation, he would be happy, he assured himself, notwithstanding the drawback of a rough, uncultivated wife, who was necessary to the possession of it all.
These were the pictures his scheming mind had painted in such bright colors.
And now the old house, looming darkly in the twilight, seemed to mock him and point at him, croaking, "Ha, ha! All past and gone in the never-to-be!"
Unable to bear the bitter sting of his own thoughts, he put spurs to his weary horse and dashed up the carriage-way.
Mrs. Lucas met him at the door with upraised fingers and an anxious, tear-dimmed face.
"Oh, captain, haven't you got her?" she asked, with her apron to her eyes.
"No," said the captain, almost rudely. "Where is the squire?"
"I'll abide, sir," said Mrs. Lucas. "He's been dreadful bad ever since you went. Something upset him at Miss Rebecca's, or else it was the cold night air, for he was took ill directly he came home and has been upstairs ever since."
The captain looked thoughtful and walked into the drawing-room.
"What does the doctor say?" he asked, wearily, throwing his gloves on the table and tapping his forehead.
"He ain't seen him, sir," said Mrs. Lucas; "the squire wouldn't let us send for him. He swore dreadful when I said I'd send James for Mr. Toddy, and—and—I thought I'd best wait until you come back."
The captain sat with his head bent down and his hands folded, looking at the carpet with a dark frown.
Suddenly he rose.
"I will go to him at once," he said.
Mrs. Lucas led the way with the candle, and the captain, splashed and travel-stained as he was, went into the squire's room. When he came to the bed and looked down at the wan, wrinkled face he almost started. It was not only wan, but drawn and hollow, with that faded look which is the faint shadow thrown by the wings of the angel of death.
"Well, Reginald," said the squire, looking up with a deadened, hopeless look, as if knowing that the search had been futile, "you've come back?"

"Yes, sir," said the captain, sinking into a chair beside the bed and looking at the old man's face keenly. "Yes, sir; and I am sorry to find you so unwell."
"Ay, ay!" said the old man, monotonously. "And it were all no good, lad? You haven't brought her back?"
"No, sir," said the captain, with a heavy sigh and a strange light in his eyes that the squire could not see. "No, sir. I have hunted far and near and left no stone unturned; but all in vain. She has gone—gone!"
The squire groaned.
"My poor lass, my poor lass!" he said, faintly. "And you, Reg—you feel it, I don't doubt, lad?"
"I do, sir; I do, sir; more than I can say," and he sighed again.
"Poor lad!" said the squire. "And there was no trace of her, Reg—no sign?"
The captain shook his head.
"No, sir," he replied, moodily. "It's all a mystery to me. First, why she ran away; and secondly, where she can have flown to. I caused inquiries to be made everywhere—on all roads and at all ports and docks; but all in vain. Once I thought I had got a cent and followed it up; but it turned out to be a boy instead of a girl—a boy, something like Grace in appearance, but a boy."
The squire closed his eyes. He seemed very weak and only half-conscious, as if the blow had been followed by some sort of paralytic fit in a mild form.
"Ay, ay!" he said; "poor lass! I've seen her for the last time, Reg; for the last time!"
The captain roused himself.
"Don't say that, sir," he said. "We can still try. You are ill at present. I am going to send for the doctor; he ought to have been here before."
"No, no," said the squire; "I want no doctor, Reg. I'll be better in a day or two. It's been a bitter blow for me; but I'll get over it, I suppose."
"You must see the doctor, squire," said the captain, and he left the room.
He was worn out and sick at heart. He felt desperate as he walked the floor of his room.
The old man was ill—might die. Where would the Dale go? To Hugh, if he will stand as it did in the old time—or to Grace, if it had been altered. No doubt either or both would appear when the old man was dead; return and take their own, and he would be left out in the cold. He stopped suddenly and clinched his hands.
Reginald was not a very bad man, as we have said, and when a great temptation assailed him, as it had done when he saw Grace risking her life at the five-foot gate, he received it with a shock, a natural fear. A great temptation assailed him now.
He sat down and covered his face with his hands. The good and the bad was battling within him. It was a short struggle, and his face, as his hands fell from it, told which had won—the bad.
In half an hour he was beside the squire's bed again, waiting for the doctor.
Even in that little time there had been a slight change for the worse, and the squire looked more wan and spiritless.
Presently the doctor came. He was a short, fussy little man—a true type of the country physician of those days.
With quiet, yet restless, fidgety steps he approached the bed and looked at the squire, then turned to the captain.
"Captain Dartmouth, I believe?" he asked, in a whisper.
Reginald Dartmouth bowed.
"How long has the squire been asleep?" asked Mr. Toddy.
"Half an hour," answered Reginald.

FRANCE TO AID POLAND IS REPORTED.

LONDON, June 3. France is planning to send one hundred thousand troops of her Colonial forces to help Poland against Russia, the Daily Graphic's Berlin correspondent has learned in diplomatic circles. No official confirmation of the report could be obtained here to-day. The Paris Matin to-day published reports from Warsaw that the Polish Diet has decided to sever diplomatic relations with Czechoslovakia. Dr. Benz, the Czechs Foreign Minister, who is in London, has presented a formal protest to the League of Nations against the Polish attitude against Tachin. He has asked that the League make an independent investigation. Both Czechoslovakia and Poland accuse the other of terrorism and anarchy in Tachin. Dr. Benz declares that disorders were increasing and that the Czechs do not want war with Poland, but that they intend to defend their rights.

It also publishes a rumor that the authorities intended on Sunday to arrest all Pacifists and a number of prominent Leftists.

MILITARY SERVICE AUTOMATICALLY RESCINDED.

BERLIN, June 3. It is semi-officially announced that no law will be enacted abolishing compulsory military service, which is demanded by the Peace Treaty, because the National Assembly's acceptance of the Treaty automatically rescinds former compulsory regulations. This explanation has been issued in view of the allegations that Germany is not carrying out the provisions of the Peace Treaty. It is also announced that the Minister of Defence will issue a decree forbidding discharged soldiers to carry service arms and hand grenades.

WRECKED ON MAINE CENTRAL.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 3. A wreck occurred on the Maine Central railroad to-day when express No. eight on the Maine Central, which left St. John for Boston Tuesday evening, was piled up. The wreck occurred at a point in the Penobscott Valley, between Lincoln centre and north Lincoln Station on the Maine Central railway. Traffic was seriously shaken up, but none were seriously injured. Traffic was blocked all the morning and it was necessary for the night express from Boston to St. John to go over the Bangor and Aroville railroad from Bangor to Greenville Junction.

Message From An Outport.

The following message received on Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Dugald Munn has been handed into this office for publication:—
Dugald Munn,
St. John's.

Outport people indignantly asking that if the eminent school experts visiting St. John's say what they do of the woeful disgraceful way in which the present separate school system is keeping the people, especially the poorer people in ignorance and poverty from filling that position as individuals, families, citizens, and Newfoundlanders at home and abroad that their acknowledge natural abilities entitle them to reach, what they visited the outports and seen the way the system is handicapping the outport people from harmoniously co-operating for the good of themselves, their families, the place they live in, their home, Christianity, the world at large, demanding their heartiest, most efficient help? The outport cry may be low, but it is terribly, bitterly deep. Hope our leaders in Church and State, whose past endeavours are appreciated, realise that the present situation demands an immediate change.

Hearty co-operation with laymen in inaugurating without delay a united protestant school system, to save money, promote efficiency, a better educational feeling, true Christianity, general prosperity and happiness.

Motto—God Bless Newfoundland!—the best education possible for every boy and girl, rich and poor. If desirable supply press with message prompt.

St. Joseph's Comedy.

On Monday, June 7th, and Tuesday, June 8th, St. Joseph's Dramatic Club will present "Kieley's Election." For some weeks the Club, under the admirable direction of Mr. Thomas Rolfe, have been studying their respective parts, and they are now qualified to render perfectly this original and rollicking local comedy. The main feature of the play is its fidelity to life. It pictures the scenes we know; it sets forth the conventions, prejudices and traditions that shape and color our existence. The author is a realist, who holds that we need only put down in black and white the doings and emotions of every day to make excellent drama, story, dialogue or character-sketch. To transcribe successfully into the realm of literature the humdrum episodes of life is of course most difficult, and requires infinite tact and deftness. But eyewitnesses maintain the present piece does not fall in this endeavour. The laughable aspect of things is stressed throughout, and the comic songs are full of telling local hits. The play will be preceded by a charming children's pantomime, and several vocal numbers contributed by our leading artistes.

"Decency" Censures the "Daily Star."

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The Bay de Verde bye-election approaching, the Daily Star is again endeavouring to stir up sectarianism. Tuesday's edition of that paper contained an editorial ridiculously idiotic, but at the same time, spiteful in the extreme. 'Tis high time that Catholics and Protestants discontinued such despicable conduct and showed those penny liners that their cheap tricky politics are easily seen through. For three years and nine months preceding a general election, Catholics and Protestants work along in perfect harmony, but for the three months preceding the election politicians work night and day to split us asunder, simply because they want to use us. There are Catholics on the Star Staff that have no more manliness or pluck than a crackie, or they would not put up with such conduct. One thing I want to tell the Star, and that is, that the sectarian game has been played in the past in this country by more brainy men, and they have lived long enough to realize that it benefits little in the end. Let Catholics and Protestants show their detestation of such contemptible work and make those frebags realize that they are playing a miserably low game.
Yours truly,
DECENCY.

St. John Woman Was Afraid to Go on Street Alone

Mrs. Allen Feared A Complete Collapse But Has Regained Her Health, Now.

"I feel so deeply grateful for the wonderful way Tanlac has overcome my nervous troubles, that I feel I ought to tell of my experience for the benefit of others," said Mrs. Julia Allen, who lives at 140 City Road, St. John, N.B., recently, when giving the Tanlac representative particulars of her case.
"Ever since I was a child I have been extremely nervous, and this condition became so much worse as I got older, that at last I had spells of such awful nervousness about every two weeks that they completely prostrated me. Then for hours afterwards I would have a dull throbbing pain in my head that nearly drove me out of my mind. The least bit of a noise would make me jump, so that I let fall anything that I happened to have in my hand at the moment. My nerves seemed to be much worse at night and I would wake up with a start, and then get into such a nervous state I could hear my heart go thump-thump, and I would be driven out into a cold sweat. At last I became so weak and timid that I was afraid to go out on the street by myself for fear I should collapse altogether."
"I started to take Tanlac last summer, and the result was most gratifying. My nerves have so greatly improved that I have only had two slight spells last nervous trouble since, and those were nothing like as severe as the terrible attacks I used to have every other week. In fact I feel quite sure that in a short time I shall be entirely free of this trouble which has been like a nightmare to me for so many years. I have been entirely free of headaches ever since I started taking Tanlac, and never have any bother with my heart now. I sleep like a child all night, and can work every day and go about just as well as any strong healthy person. I certainly believe Tanlac has relieved me of all my troubles and I am glad to add my name to the thousands who have told what a wonderful medicine Tanlac is."

Women's Missionary Society.

A continuation of the branch meeting was held in the usual place on Wednesday afternoon at 2.45 o'clock with devotional services led by the District Superintendent, after which the President took the chair. Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. Interesting and instructive reports were given by the Superintendents of the several districts. Mrs. John Maddock, Carbonear District, Mrs. A. Barbour, Northern District, Mrs. Barnes, St. John's District, Mrs. Lockyer, Western District, and Mrs. W. Currie on Literature. Neither time nor space will permit us to enlarge upon these reports, much as we should like to do so. Miss Lindsay then favoured us with a very pleasing solo. Miss Hudson, of Lower Island Cove, read a paper entitled, "The Unemployed," which was a strong appeal to all those persons who are engaged in Missionary work. This was followed by an interesting duet, representing China and Japan. We were pleased to have Mrs. Story and Miss Marjorie Thompson with us again and they both expressed themselves as being glad to be home. We listened with pleasure to the accounts they both gave of their time spent away. Feeling that, although we were being fed spiritually, physically we needed food, so we retired to the Church parlour and partook of the banquet provided by the Cresco and Band of St. John's. During the interval between afternoon and night service, Rev. Dr. Bond took us away to China, and we imagined ourselves there for the time being. At 4.45 the service commenced, Mrs. Hunter, our President, presiding. After the devotional exercises were gone through, the President gave us a message—illustrated in such a manner that those of us who heard it will not easily forget. Miss Gertie Penney of Carbonear, favoured us with a well rendered solo entitled, "Beautiful Japan." A paper was read by Mrs. (Rev.) Pickering of Lower Island Cove, entitled, "Glimpses from the home fields." This paper was descriptive of the work of the W. M. S. Mrs. Gordon Christian's enjoyable solo was the next item, this was up to Mrs. Christian's usual high standard. Then came a paper by Miss Ada Horwood. Every one enjoyed this beautifully rendered reading, it was a real intellectual treat. A duet by the Misses Christian was next in order, this was rendered in a manner that captivated the attention of all present. Following this came an exercise by four girls of the "Earnest Workers' Band," that also proved interesting. Distribution of prizes to the best Circles and Bands then took place. Hymn and Benediction closed the days exercises. Our best thanks are due, and I heartily tender it to the friends who so kindly and thoughtfully provided the motor outing. The owners of the cars will also please accept our very best thanks.

The Church Lads Brigade Cadets paraded in full strength on Tuesday, June 2nd, at 8.15 o'clock, instead of the regular Thursday nights routine, as the King's Birthday, June 3, was a regular holiday. Lt.-Col. Goodridge O.C., Major Raley, Major W. Williams, Captain A. V. Goodridge, Lieut. Rev. E. H. Fletcher, Hubert and Phil B. Rendell, Harold Hayward, C.K. W. R. Mott, and Regt. Sergt. Major Williams. Companies were marched out on the parade ground for company drill. Bugle Band in charge of Lieut. Hubert Rendell, also paraded for practice. The weeks orders contain the promotion of No. 5429 R. Lance Corporal Pte. G. Lemessurier, A. Rendell and R. Withers. The next church parade will be to St. Thomas's Church, on June 13th. The Officer Commanding also wishes to place on record his appreciation of the great work recently performed by the C.L.B. Sports Committee. Congratulations to Sergt. Major Bert Colton on his wonderful work in looking after the details of the programme. The N. C. O's Mess Monday night had quite an interesting dancing line, by having an "Overall Dance"—all the gentlemen were refused admission, practically unless they wore overalls, and all the ladies wore cottons or ginghams. The dancers looked pretty in their novel dresses and the men were very workmanlike. We hear the shops had a great rush for overalls. The Battalion Band, Tuesday, June 2nd, at 8.15 o'clock. The Outbridge Shield will be presented to the winning squad at the Armoury at 8 p.m. The winning N.C.O. will be presented with a splendid medal and the lads red shields. A small admission fee of ten and twenty cents will be charged. A big exhibition of gymnastics has been prepared under Sergt. Major Rendell's superintendence, and promises to be most interesting, on account of Lieut. Miles acting as the concrete base of the pyramids. Another feature will be the gymnastic marching by Major Raley's Veterans of C. Company, who are experts in this art. Lieut. Emerson and Ash were on duty in the Brigade College, instructing lads whose education has been neglected. These officers are doing fine work. Camp time will soon be here. The Quartermaster has clothed for twelve new tents, and expects squads from Bay Roberts, Heart's Content, Bell Island, Bonavista, and Trinity East. Officers commanding these Companies are asked to communicate with Headquarters as to the number of lads they are sending to this year's Camp, about the end of July.—Q.

Mr. Mayor and members of the Municipal board, the public are watching your action keenly. If you thwart our outraged feelings, forty thousand people will demand the reason why.

WHY FATHERS-IN-LAW AND SONS-IN-LAW DON'T QUARREL.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend wants to know why it is that though one hears so much of the trouble that mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law, and mothers-in-law and sons-in-law have in getting along together, one seldom hears of fathers-in-law and sons-in-law, or of fathers-in-law and daughters-in-law disagreeing.

He (at least I suppose it was he) from the content of the letter, which was signed "Humble Inquirer" wanted to know if I didn't think that the lack of a father-in-law problem showed that men have much better dispositions than women.

What do you think? Here's the way I look at it:

They Are Not Business Rivals.

The first and foremost cause of tension between feminine in-laws that they are either in business together in one house or rivals in the same business in two houses. Looking after a home, looking after their own charms, and looking after their children, constitute the average woman's business. Men, on the other hand, have infinitely varied business interests and there is less likelihood of clash or rivalry. If, for every family in which there is a mother-in-law and daughter-in-law living together, there were a father-in-law and son-in-law in business together, I suspect "Humble Inquirer" would have less reason to be complacent about the latter disposition possessed by his sex.

Course They Get Along All Right.

As to fathers and their daughters-in-law, well, isn't there a reason in the nature of things why they should get on well together? An older man always has a certain charm for a young woman, and is it not natural that she will put her best foot forward in her relations with her father-in-law? And as for men of 50 upwards presumably the age of the average father-in-law did you ever see one who wasn't always ready to like a young woman?

And now, having told Humble Inquirer why I dispute his complacent assumption, I am going to tell him that, after all, I do agree with it to a certain extent.

I think another reason why sons-in-law and fathers-in-law do get on together better than their respective wives, is that men do have better dispositions than women do so far as concerns getting along equably with members of their own sex.

They Have So Many Outside Interests

Men are not so critical and exacting with each other as women. They are not so jealous (in their relations with their own sex) and their interests are so much broader that they do not put the same strain on friendship and the family relations that women do.

There, I hope "Humble Inquirer" (somehow I seem to doubt the quality of his humility) is satisfied.

WHAT CAN I DO FOR MY COUNTRY.

What can I do for my country—I that have little of skill, I that am one of the common run, with the humblest of places to fill? Faith, I can bring up my children to love the old flag and be true. I can teach them to reverence the land of their birth, and that I will patiently do.

What can I do for my country—I that know nothing of faith, I that must stand by the work of my hand, how can I honor her name? Faith, I can talk of her splendor, I can rejoice through and through that mine is a country of freedom, and that I cheerfully do.

What can I do for my country—I that have little to give, I that must fare with a burden of care, how can I serve while I live? Faith, I can honestly labor, loving the red, white and blue, worthy the freedom she gives me, and that I will earnestly do.

What can I do for my country? Neither sailor nor soldier am I. Mine is to wait when the dangers are great, while younger men march out to die. Faith, I can cherish her teachings and be dear to the alien crew. Who would poison the love that I bear her, and that to the end I will do.

A smart sports hat is made of jade green and navy blue straw and has for ornament a braided band of straw. A triangle of silk, its corners weighted with beads and an appliqued design across one side, makes the latest bathing cap.

Fads and Fashions.

A white organdie muslin frock is embroidered in black celluloid tubes. Tweed and striped flannel scarfs go well with the new tweed sports suits.

The latest rompers are wide Dutch bloomers buttoned on a plain waist. A sports jacket of white leather is embroidered with high chenille fruits. Bright little corsages of crocheted posies are worn with the sweater blouse.

The plainest, most correct suit may be guilty of a lining of astonishing hue.

The gingham frock sometimes uses bias folds of the material for trimming.

A red taffeta sports hat has narrow pleatings of white organdie as trimming.

On gowns of every material little bunches of red cherries are worn at the waist.

A flesh-colored charmeuse gown is embroidered all over in black and white pearls.

A somber costume was brightened by a vivid tam made entirely of velvet poppies.

Chiffon and soft, creamy lace make a good combination for the informal evening frock.

Charming little handbags are made of painted Japanese silk lined with some brilliant satin.

Mummy cloth embroidered in Egyptian reds, yellows and blues is used for enchanting Egyptian frocks.

Serge dresses are being made of an accordion-pleated skirt and a smart little braided jacket with a satin vest.

Ecru net embroidered with softened silks and patterned with loops of brown charmeuse makes one afternoon frock.

Don't Bite Your Penholder.

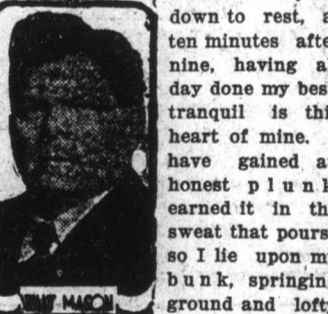

Penholders, such as most of us frequently use in post offices, banks and other public places, may be as deadly carriers of disease germs as public towels, and so on. The next time you use one of these public penholders, look at the wooden handle and notice how it is covered with little dents. These dents are the imprints of the teeth of persons who have used the pen before you; and as the mouth is the favourite port of entry for disease, each dent is usually full of microbes.

To run the risk of sickness and death, therefore, all you need to do is to bite on the penholder. Every time you do this—and it a habit that grows—you take into your mouth the germs which scores of other persons have left by similar bites. Health authorities have time and time again suggested abolishing the public penholder altogether.

His Not to Reason Why.

(From Tit-Bits.) A dear old gentleman noticed a laborer walking along a railway track and diligently tapping the wheels. Having nothing better to do, the old gentleman approached and asked: "How many years have you been working for this railway, my man?" "Thirty-eight, sir," replied the laborer, still continuing his work. "I suppose you have had many varied experiences in your time—plenty of change of occupation, I expect?" "No, sir, I've always 'ad this same job. I've tapped the wheels of trains for eight-and-thirty years, sir." "A long time, my man, a very long time; and if I may say so, it shows a steady character. An, by the way—what is the reason for tapping the wheels? Why do you do it?" The man stood up, scratched his head, and said, "I'm darned if I know."

AT NIGHT.

When I lay me down to rest, at ten minutes after nine, having all day done my best, tranquil is this heart of mine. I have gained an honest plunk, earned it in the sweat that pours; so I lie upon my bunk, springing ground and lofty snores. I have done no evil trick, I have fished no trusting hick, I have jumped no merchant's bill. If I've injured any gent, if I've caused the least distress, 'twas not done with full intent—'twas pure awkwardness, I guess. So I seek my humble cot, and in dreams my spirit soars; and the neighbors hear, I wot, all my plain and fancy snores. Oh, the long and dragging nights that the crooked people know! Then it is that Conscience smites with a solar plexis blow. In the day the sinful guys may proceed with haughty tread; in the night the ghosts arise, and stand grinning round the bed. If you'd know a sleep profound, if you'd know what sweet dreams mean, if you'd have no ghosts around, you must have a mind serene. There is sorrow in the night, there are phantoms breathing woe, if your conscience isn't white as the well known driven snow.

From The Official Log

When the Cunard liner Lusitania was sent to bottom by a German torpedo off the Irish coast, on May 7th, 1915, the Hun newspaper comments were unanimous that the fate of the ship and passengers was righteous, because by the carrying of munitions of war the vessel was liable to an unwarned attack, and being inspired by the German Admiralty all their published reports did not vary from the official statement that following the explosion of the torpedo after striking, a second explosion occurred, which could only have come from the blowing up of ammunition amongst the cargo. It was subsequently proved by experts and the United States Customs and port authorities of New York that there were no war materials on the Lusitania. Whether or not the Huns were satisfied and accepted the verdict of the committee of enquiry was never made known from Hunland. They had committed the deed of horror and the munitions pretext was as good as any for them. Even the official log of the U.boat commander, who sank the ship, lays down that the second explosion might have been caused by powder, though he suggests two other causes which may have been responsible. An interesting document, the page of the log book of Lieutenant-Captain Schweiger, "who wrought the deed of shame," has been made public, a facsimile of the original entry having been photographed, and the record for May 7th, 1915, translated into English. Capt. Schweiger, it will be remembered, was afterwards reported drowned, with his crew of fell pirates, fitting fate indeed for such desperadoes, whose one horrible act cost the lives of eleven hundred and ninety-five persons, deliberately murdered. The exact translation of the log book entries referred to on that day are given:

"Right ahead appear four funnels and two masts of a steamer with course vertical to us. (The Lusitania was steering S.S.W. going towards Galley Head). Ship is made out to be a large passenger steamer.

"2.05. Submerged to 11 meters and travelled at high speed on course converging toward steamer, hoping she would change course to starboard along Irish coast.

"2.50. The steamer turns starboard, directs her course towards Queenstown, and makes possible an approach for a shot. Ran at high speed until 3 p.m. in order to gain position directly ahead.

"3.10. Clear bow shot from 700 meters range (G torpedo, 3 meters depth adjustment) cutting angle 90 degrees. Estimated speed twenty-two sea miles. Shot hits starboard side right behind bridge. An unusually heavy detonation follows with a very strong explosion cloud (High in air over first smokestack). Added to the explosion of the torpedo there must have been a second explosion, boiler or coal or powder. The super-structure over point struck and the high bridge are rent asunder, fire breaks out and smoke envelopes the high bridge. The ship stops immediately and quickly heels to starboard, at the same time diving deeper at the bow. She has the appearance of being about to capsize. Great confusion on board, boats being cleared and part being lowered to water. Many boats crowded come down bow first or stern first and immediately fill and sink. Fewer lifeboats can be made clear on the port side owing to the slant of the ship. The smoke blows off. On the stern appears the name LUSITANIA in gold letters. The stacks were painted black. No stern flag was up. She was running at a speed of twenty sea miles.

"3.25. It seems as if vessel will only be afloat a short time. Submerge to 24 meters and go to sea. I could not have fired a second torpedo into this throng of humanity attempting to save themselves. (What Hunnish magnanimity).

"4.15. Go to 11 meters and take a look around. In the distance astern are drifting a number of lifeboats. Of the Lusitania nothing is to be seen. The wreck must lie off Old Head of Kinsale Lighthouse, in 558 degrees, R.W., fourteen sea miles off in 90 meters of water. (27 miles from Queenstown.) 51 degrees, 22.6 North and 8.22 West. The shore and lighthouse are clearly seen."

Forest Fire Destroyed Twelve Houses.

Advices received from Bay Bulls' Arm, T.B., states that a forest fire, beginning near the railway line on Monday, spread rapidly and on Tuesday, the wind veering to the N.E., swept down with irresistible speed and destructive force on the village. The flames descended so quickly and suddenly that the people had no time to save any effects, and in fact barely escaped with their lives. Twelve houses and barns and all their contents were destroyed, while the Anglican Church and the Salvation Army Barracks, also were burnt. One man, whose house was lost in the flames, lost a mill also. Cattle were burned, while hens and other poultry were burned alive. One man, an invalid named Snooks, could not move himself and, as there was not sufficient time in which to take him along, he was put in a cellar, for safety. The rest of the people fled to vessels and boats in the harbor. The people there are in dire straits and badly need assistance. The loss, in money value is not exactly known, but it runs over $50,000. Fortunately, people managed to save what cash they had in their houses.

Legislative Council.

—June 2, 1920.
The Council met at 4.30.
The Bill concerning Masters and Mates certificates was opposed by Mr. Templeman who hoped the House would put the Bill where it belonged. Mr. Shea asked for second reading and promised details in Committee. This was agreed to. The "Exportation of Salt Codfish" Bill was strongly opposed by Hon. D. A. Ryan, who spoke on the matter in part as follows:—
Mr. President, I wish to say a few words on the Fishery Regulations which were put in force last October and November. I have just returned from London, and while there I had several interviews with Messrs. Hawes & Co., and got from them some figures as to the quantity of Newfoundland fish held in Spain by them up to the 28th of April.
Mr. Hawes then had his stores filled, and his sales were very small, which no doubt was caused by the regulation prices then in force, viz:—$5- for Labrador and 90¢ for Shore, while our competitors, the Norwegians and French, were supplying the market and selling freely at from 10- to 15- per quintal under our

making a total of	26,675
Shore fish in store same date	Qnts.
and on passage about	40,000
and on passage about	17,000
making a total of	57,000

The figures will show you the quantity of fish held in Spain by Hawes and Co., but had Mr. Hawes reduced his prices to 75- or 78- no doubt he would not have his stores blocked as they were. He had to meet competition, and he should have given a free hand to sell the fish at his own discretion and let it go into consumption, instead of piling it into his store at the expense of the shipper.

At the wind up of this fish business the shippers will have to pay storage, fire insurance, handling, etc., and loss in interest, and no doubt the deterioration in weight of from fifteen to twenty per cent. This was always about the shrinkage, (it may be more or less). I am of opinion, sir, that of the fish shipped from Newfoundland since the 1st of January, that when the shippers get their account sales for this fish next November and December that many of us will have cold feet. I am glad to learn that many shippers have changed their opinions now about the Fishery Regulations from what they were last fall. Fixed regulation prices for fish or any other produce will not work when you have competition to face, and we have more competition in the fish trade now than ever known before.
It was always the custom with the London brokers to advance seventy five per cent. (75%) cash against shipments of fish on receipt of bills of lading to any person who wanted money. Mr. Hawes did the same last fall and early winter, but whatever has happened now he will not advance a cent on any shipment, cargo or parcel.

Mr. President, we all know the cost by sad experience of storing fish in foreign countries to be retailed as against an outright sale. No man of experience will consign if he can make an outright sale, but if a company enters into building stores for that purpose, why surely they don't want to make outright sales, because it may pay them better to store and retail their goods.
The result of consigning fish has always been bad, and my experience is never do it if you can sell outright even at a loss. I hope the Government will abandon any regulation of prices for sale of codfish abroad, but enforce a strict cull this year so that the man who makes good fish will get paid for it, and the fellow who makes bad fish will get paid accordingly. In the past there was no encouragement for the making of good fish, because the talqual system killed it, and the bad fish sold at about the same price as the good. The war is over, and every country is now catching codfish. We must compete with them as to prices in the foreign markets, or our fish will not sell. We cannot afford to put our fish in store now in Spain, Italy, Greece or Portugal, and keep a fixed price on it. We should sell it outright, and let every man sell his own goods, and not be muzzled with regulation prices, it will never work.
The House adjourned until to-day at 4 o'clock.

America's Cup Races.

Elimination Series to Begin Soon.

New York, May 26.—(By Associated Press.)—The first official activity in connection with the America's Cup races off Sandy Hook, July 15, will begin Friday on Long Island Sound when the prospective cup defending yachts Resolute and Vanitie meet in the opening race of the 1920 elimination series. Weather permitting six races will be held off New Haven, Conn., between May 21 and 27, after which the yachts will proceed to Newport for a more extended series of races under open sea conditions. The Newport races are set for June 3 to 19 inclusive, barring Sundays. The contests off New Haven are to be short practice events, probably twice around a short course and will not count materially in the selection of a defender. Their chief purpose will be to afford the crews practice and to stretch sails and rigging.

The real trial races will be the ones off Newport. There will probably be twelve or fourteen of the races. The cup committee then will announce the defender. These races will be "for blood." The two crews will be forgotten, each friendship that exists between the defender is picked the "brains" of the two yachts will again get together to plan the defense of the America's Cup.

The regatta committee of the New York Yacht Club will have full charge of all the trial races. It is headed up by H. de Parson, Chairman; Joseph M. Macdonough and Frederic D. Spedden.

With Resolute and Vanitie in the water again, yachtsmen are once more beginning to take an interest in the international series for the classic yachting trophy. The race will put Resolute and Vanitie into the water first was watched with interest throughout the country. The honors went to Vanitie. Not only was she launched a day ahead of Resolute, but she also was under sail 24 hours ahead of the Herreshoff designed craft. This, of course, means nothing to the selection of the defender of the cup. Still the race to put the yachts into commission was interesting, as it showed the keen rivalry that exists between the managing directors of the craft.

Vanitie, designed by William Gardner for Alexander Smith Cochran, a member of the New York Yacht Club, originally built by George Lawley & Son, at Neponset, Mass., in 1914. Her general dimensions are 118 feet overall; 75 feet on the waterline; 22 feet, 6 inches extreme breadth and a draft of about 14 feet. Since 1916, the craft has been at Robert Jacob's yard, City Island. Last winter Mr. Cochran gave the yacht to the Cup Committee of the New York Club and the committee, in turn, placed Vanitie in the hands of Rear Commodore George Nichols, one of the best amateur sailors in the country.

Throughout the winter, Rear Commodore Nichols has been experimenting with the vessel. In the trial races of 1914, Vanitie had to allow Resolute time. The junior flag officer of the New York Club tried to find a method of eliminating the handicap. With this idea in view changes have been made in the rig and the centreboard and the yacht generally lightened. Naturally, there has been considerable secrecy regarding the changes. Whether Rear Commodore Nichols has gained his point, will not be known until the defending yachts are officially measured.

The changes in Vanitie were made at Robert Jacob's yard. It is said that Starling Burgess, a Boston yachtsman, a member of the afterguard of the Gardner boat, principally is responsible for the changes. One is a new hollow topmast. The yacht also has new hollow spruce spreaders, about thirty-five feet from tip to tip. These changes have been made to lighten the craft.

Regardless of the fact that it has been frequently reported that Vanities stern was to be shortened materially and her rail, which is really the continuation of her sides above the deck, was to be removed, these changes have not been made. The rail has been cut away, from about two-thirds way aft, so as to enable the decks to clear themselves of seas, that may come on board, more rapidly than if the waters had to get away by the small scuppers. The angle, at which the centreboard of the Vanities extends, has been altered so as to throw the weight forward. This is hoped to increase her windward qualities.

Vanitie will be raced by Rear Commodore George Nichols, in addition to the flag officer and Mr. Burgess, there will be on the quarter-deck in the majority of the races, C. J. Nourse and C. Sherman Hoyt. Both are well known New York yachtsmen, the former being prominent in the weekly racing of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club of Oyster Bay, and the latter has been interested in yachting for years.

G. A. Gautesen is the professional skipper of Vanitie. In former races for the America's Cup, the professional skipper has been the all important personage on board a cup yacht. That is not so to-day. Both Shamrock IV, and the American defender will be sailed by an amateur. Still the professional skipper plays an important part on a cup boat, and although he is not as well known as some of the other pair racing men, Captain Gautesen is an excellent sailor, who has had many years of experience on board racing yachts.

This is not the first time that Captain Gautesen has shipped on Vanitie. Back in 1915, when Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt had the yacht under charter, he was her first mate. At that time, Vanitie was commanded by Captain Chris. Christiansen, Commodore Vanderbilt's sailing master, who is the professional skipper of Resolute. Later, Captain Gautesen was engaged by Rear Admiral Nichols as the sailing master of the latter's 80 foot Carolina. He did such excellent work on Carolina that it was only natural that he should be Rear Commodore Nichols' selection for the cup boat.

Like Vanitie, the other candidate for the honor of defending the America's Cup was built in 1914. She was designed by Nat Herreshoff and built by the Herreshoffs at their Bristol yards in 1914. Her general dimensions are 106 feet, 3 inches over all; 75 feet on the waterline; 21 feet, 2 inches extreme breadth and about 12 feet draft. Although the same length on the waterline, Resolute is smaller than Vanitie, and so during the trial races of 1914, received considerable trial.

Resolute was built by a syndicate of members of the New York Yacht Club. The syndicate was headed by Henry Walters, erstwhile commodore to the club; with Arthur Curtis James, Frederick G. Bourne, Cornelius Vanderbilt, G. F. Balger, Jr., and J. P. Morgan and the other members. All have flown the senior flag of the club. With the exception of Frederick G. Bourne, the members of the syndicate are all alive and deeply interested in the defense of the trophy.

The cup situation, insofar as the New York Yacht Club is concerned, is most unusual this year. The syndicate that built Resolute is practically the "cup committee," of the organization, which also is in control of the Vanitie. Again, Rear Commodore Nichols in 1914, was a member of the afterguard on Resolute and probably would be there to-day, had not Vanitie been turned over to the club.

The "interlocked directorate" explains why the new sails for Vanitie came from the Herreshoffs' sail loft, and why Rear Commodore Nichols and Captain Robert W. Emmons, 2nd of Boston, managing director of Resolute, have been in continual communication during the winter. Each has helped the other place his respective craft in commission. The reason is self evident. The New York Yacht Club is playing no favorites in its defense of the trophy. The "yachting brains" of the club are not trying to make Resolute beat Vanitie or Vanitie beat Resolute. They are out to make either Vanitie or Resolute beat Shamrock IV, and with that in mind, they have been working to get as much as possible out of each yacht.

With changes being made in Vanitie to lighten the craft, it was natural that Designer Herreshoff should make a few in the Bristol craft. These principally have been centered in the racing rig. Changes have been made in the top hamper of the craft, on the basis of reducing weight above deck, so as to bring the yacht to a new line of notation, in the hopes that a shorter waterline will draw more time from opponents. It is said that about 900 pounds have been removed from the top hamper of the craft. The new Resolute mast, with its aluminum gaff, is considered unmatched in strength and lightness. The changes have made the Resolute ride a little higher out of the water than in 1914. In her trials to do, she seems to have gained by the alterations in running before the wind.

In addition to Captain Emmons, there will be on board the Bristol yacht, Charles Frances Adams, 2nd, of Boston, who will hold the wheel, George A. Cormack, secretary of the New York Yacht Club, and John Parkinson. All served as members of the afterguard in 1914. No one has yet been selected to take the place of Rear Commodore Nichols. Captain Christiansen also served on the craft in 1914.

A Real Yankee Yarn.

Hiram K. Ruggers was discussing climate with Sandy McNab, and Sandy had great things to say about the intense cold experienced in the North of Scotland. "Shucks!" said the American. "Guess that's got nothing on us! Why, I remember one winter in Alaska when a sheep jumping about in a field was frozen stiff and stuck still in the air like a block of ice!" "Ah, mon, come awa!" said the incredulous Sandy. "That cannot be. The law o' gravities wouldn't allow that." "Sure thing!" countered Hiram. "But you don't get me right! It was so cold that this little old law o' gravities was frozen, too!"

Do You Want to Wear The World's Best Hat?

Do you want to wear the latest recognized style, not of one city but of the whole world?

Do you want to wear one of the world's two best Hats made by manufacturers whose products cover the heads of All the World and His Son?

Do you want to wear a Hat that will not fade its color; that will not lose its shape; that will wear as long as you would expect a Hat of Superior Quality to wear?

Three statements that would apply, any or all of them, to the World's Best Hat. Perhaps someone has told the same things to you when he sold you your last hat. If he sold you the World's Best Hat he naturally would be enthusiastic about it. But it's hard to tell who sells the World's Best Hat when everyone claims to have it.

We have the World's Best Hat and we have an original way to prove it.

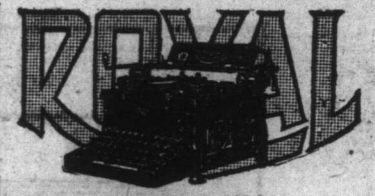

"If the hat fades its colour, if it loses any of the finely-blocked lines of its shape that the makers know so well how to put into it; if it does not give you greater value than any other hat made at ANY price—KEARNEY FIRST is willing to 'make good' your loss"—just to prove that we have the World's Best Hat.

AutoStrop Razor

-sharpens itself

ALL safety razors seem alike because of the similarity in size and appearance. As regards the AutoStrop Razor, however, the resemblance ends there. Its peculiar and additional advantage is, that without being larger than any other safety razor, it combines within itself a self-stropping feature that enables the user to keep the blade sharp without taking anything apart. It thus prevents dull blades and the expense of buying new ones.

You may not be interested in economy of blades, but surely you want a good shave and that is only possible with a stropped blade.

Any dealer will demonstrate the AutoStrop Razor to you, guarantee satisfaction or refund of purchase price. Only $5.00—complete with stropper and twelve blades in an attractive assortment of cases.

Irish Celebration at Rome.

LONDON, May 28.—Anglo-Irish relations will not be affected by the visit of many prominent Irishmen to Rome in connection with the beatification of Oliver Plunkett, first Bishop of Armagh, says the Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail. Sean O'Ceallaigh, president of the Irish Parliament, was asked whether the visit of prominent Irishmen in Rome would result in any improvements in relations between their country and England, O'Ceallaigh replied: "None whatever."

"While it would be wrong to say Pope Benedict has departed from his policy of non-interference in the national affairs of Europe," the correspondent writes, "information has been received that he has expressed his pain and displeasure over the continuance of crime in Ireland. If his words have been veiled in diplomatic language, they nevertheless, have revealed a definite state of mind—that no solution can ever be reached by one party murdering the other. The Pope is keenly desirous of peace everywhere, and if he can in any way bring his mortal support into play, he will do it. This was actually done in meeting Irish bishops and in receiving Irish civilian pilgrims."

Pontiff's Message. Pope Benedict yesterday received and bade farewell to Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland. The Pontiff requested the Cardinal to interpret his sentiments to the Cardinal's flock and to convey to them personally the apostolic benediction.

Replying to an address from Cardinal Logue, Pope Benedict referred to the timeliness of the beatification of Oliver Plunkett, the first Primate of Ireland, and expressed his gratification at having been the instrument of God in the Beatification. He wished the happiest future for Ireland and concluded by giving the benediction to Cardinal Logue, as the successor of Oliver Plunkett, to the Irish episcopacy and all those representing Ireland, "and particularly to my beloved Irish people."

Presidential Reception. Sean O'Ceallaigh, President of the Irish Parliament, and diplomatic delegate extraordinary of the government of the Irish Republic, gave a reception here on the occasion of the beatification of Oliver Plunkett, first Bishop of Armagh. Attending the function were Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland; Irish bishops, prominent citizens of that country, students of the Irish college here, Archbishop Hanna, of San Francisco, and Rev. Charles O'Hern, rector of the American College.

Cardinal Logue, in speaking, evoked prolonged cheering when he said it was the first time the Irish President had attended the gathering of the "Irish Republic."

Irish patriotic airs were sung during the reception.

Liquid or Plaster

They end corns now in this scientific way

People who know—millions of them—now end all corns in this way. They apply Blue-jay, either in liquid or in plaster form. It means but a touch and takes but a jiffy. The corn pain stops. Then the Blue-jay gently undermines the corn so it loosens and comes out. The modern way Blue-jay was invented by a chemist who studied corns. It is made by a laboratory of world-wide repute.

Old-time treatments were harsh and inefficient. Blue-jay is gentle, quick and sure. Now all corns are needless. All these pains can be avoided. To let corns remain while you pad and pad them is folly. You can stop a corn ache the moment it appears. You can end a corn completely before it can develop. Blue-jay has proved these facts to millions. It will prove them to you—and tonight—if you let it. Quit the old methods of dealing with corns and see what this new way means. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

A Notable Reign

On June 4, 1738, George the Third, King of Great Britain, was born, and on October 25, 1760, he succeeded George the second, his grandfather, in that sovereignty, because his father, Frederick, Prince of Wales, son of the previous king, had died in 1751. He was the first of the Hanoverian line of British sovereigns born in England, and he made it his boast that he was a true-born Englishman. George the First having been ruler of Hanover, called Elector, in Germany, before he succeeded to the British throne at the death of Queen Anne, in 1714, and George the Second came to England with him. George the First spent on the Continent a great part of the rest of his life; while George the Second could never learn much of the English language, so that he left ecclesiastical appointments very much to Queen Caroline, his wife, to whom Joseph Butler, so celebrated as the author of the "Analogy of Religion," was Clerk of the Closet, or private secretary, and through whom he became Bishop of first Bristol, and afterwards of Durham. George the Third was greatly indebted to his mother for the formation of his mind and character, and throughout his life, his reputation was unspotted. After nearly sixty years' reign, he died when eighty-one years of age. In 1764, the fourth year of his reign, he suffered for six weeks from weakness of mind, and again from 1789 for four months. From 1810 till his death in 1820, he experienced his last and long attack of insanity, his eldest son and successor, George the Fourth, having to be appointed Regent. This mental complaint was, it is thought, due to the war between Britain and its American Colonies, by which the present United States obtained their independence, and to that between the British and revolutionary France; besides this king's opposition to Roman Catholic emancipation in his dominions, and the death of Amelia, the youngest of his fifteen children. Towards the end of his life his favourite seaside resort was Weymouth, in Dorsetshire, to which he thus gave popularity, as his son, George the Fourth, did to Brighton. George the Third made such use of the land attached to Windsor Castle, and did so much in improving agriculture throughout the country, that he was called "Farmer George." But that title was no insult, and only fitted to the name. For George is only an abbreviated pronunciation of a Greek word of three syllables meaning "earth-worker," used in the Bible (John xvi, Matt. xx. 33, 2 Tim. ii, 6, James. 7), but translated in the English one "husbandman." The reign of George the Third is very notable. During its course England acquired Canada and lost the American Colonies; there were such domestic episodes as "Wilkes and Liberty," with its important bearing on freedom of election and the liberty of the subject and the Gordon Riots, to illustrate the evils of intolerance; the Union with Ireland; the commencement of the great struggle for Parliamentary Reform, and the full course of the yet greater struggle with Revolutionary and Napoleonic France. The list of his distinguished subjects includes Nelson, Wellington, the two Pitts, Fox, Warren Hastings, Dr. Johnson, Burke, Garrick, Goldsmith, Sheridan, Scott, Byron, Wordsworth and a host of others. But the portion of his reign most glorious to our arms, most brilliant in our literature, was the conclusion, throughout which the King was quite unconscious of the world without. Towards the close of 1810 the mental malady, from which already he had suffered, returned in an aggravated form, and thenceforward, until his death ten years later, he never knew more than a glimpse of sanity. Of complete victory abroad, and political dissension at home—of Waterloo and of Peterloo—he remained ignorant, and he died unaware that his wife, Queen Charlotte, had passed away more than a year before.

Cat and Dog Life.

Why does the dog, by nature, wage mortal warfare on the cat?

A writer gives the following reason: He is tolerant of other domestic animals. The cat is not a domestic animal. When man conquered the world, he gave beasts the choice of serving him or of being driven to the jungle and desert.

Such animals as refused to own man's away were either exterminated or else banished to the uttermost wilds. All except the cat. The cat refused to be driven into the wilderness. Also she refused to serve man, except by killing mice, which is her sport, not her labour.

Still unconquered, loyal only to herself and scornful of work or service, the cat chose the warmest corner of the hearth and proceeded to annex all the benefits of civilization without paying any of its penalties or taxes.

THE WALKER BILL.

Albany, N.Y., May 26.—Fifteen round bouts in New York State were legalized to-day by Governor Smith when he signed the Walker Bill creating a state boxing commission to control the sport.

The law will make it possible for New York State promoters, they hope, to place boxing on a plane nearly equal to that of twenty years ago when world's championships were decided, inasmuch as the measure permits the rendering of decisions by judges or by the referee in the event the judges cannot agree.

The Governor is authorized by the law to appoint a commission of three members at an annual salary of $5,000. Terms of the members of the first commission will vary, one commissioner retiring on January 1, 1922, another a year later and the third on January 1, 1924. The terms of their successors are fixed at two years.

The Governor also is given power to appoint a licensing committee of three members to serve without compensation. This feature was one of the principal objections on the part of those opposed to the bill because they insisted it would place boxing in the hands of a "certain class."

Rules of the Army and Navy Civilian Board of Boxing Control and the International Sporting Club of New York City will govern bouts, the law provides.

All corporations, physicians, referees, judges, timekeepers, professional boxers, their managers, trainers and seconds must be licensed. The annual license fees are fixed as follows:

Corporations in cities of the first class, $500; corporations in cities of the second class, $400; elsewhere, $200; physicians, $25; referees, $25; judges, $25; timekeepers, $3; professional boxers, $1; managers, $25; trainers, $3; seconds, $3.

A professional boxer, under the law, is "one who competes for a money prize or assists in the practice of boxing for a means of obtaining a livelihood or pecuniary gain."

While fifteen round bouts are permitted there is a section of the law empowering the commission to fix a lesser number of rounds for bouts between men in the lighter divisions if it is deemed necessary. The law also stipulates that five ounce gloves shall be used by contestants in the flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight and lightweight classes, and six ounce gloves in bouts between men in the heavier classes. It also prohibits contests in which the difference in weight of the respective contestants shall exceed eighteen pounds. This provision, however, does not apply to boxers in the light-heavyweight or heavyweight divisions.

The section regulating the conduct of bouts reads: "No boxing or sparring match or exhibition shall be of more than 15 rounds in length, such rounds to be not more than three minutes each, and no boxer shall be allowed to participate in more than fifteen rounds within twelve consecutive hours. At each boxing and sparring match or exhibition, there shall be in attendance a duly licensed referee, who shall direct and control the same. Before starting a contest the name of the chief second responsible for the conduct of his assistant seconds during the progress of the contest shall be announced. The referee shall have the power in his discretion to declare forfeited any prize, remuneration or purse, if in his judgment such contestant or contestants are not honestly competing. There shall also be in attendance two duly licensed judges who shall at the termination of each boxing or sparring match or exhibition render their decision. If they are unable to agree, the decision shall be rendered by the referee."

Boxing was placed under the jurisdiction of a state athletic commission by the Frawley Act in 1911 but the commission was abolished when the law was repealed in 1917. This law limited contests to ten rounds without decision. Before the Frawley Act became effective twenty round bouts were permitted under the Horton law.

Under the Horton law in 1899, at Coney Island, James J. Jeffries won the world's heavyweight championship from Bob Fitzsimmons and later defended it there against James J. Corbett and Tom Sharkey.

Only one heavyweight contest of note was held in New York under the Frawley law, Jess Willard, then champion, meeting Frank Moran. The day before the law was repealed Mike O'Dowd became the world's middleweight champion by knocking out Al McCoy, of Brooklyn. O'Dowd lost the title recently to Johnny Wilson.

Since the repeal of the Frawley law several upstate clubs have been holding bouts under a "membership" plan. In New York city, however, attempts to hold bouts under such a plan met with failure, the police interfering.

DEMPSEY TO FIGHT CARPENTIER AFTER TRIAL.

Los Angeles, May 25.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will be matched to defend his title against Georges Carpentier, Europe's champion, one month after the ending of Dempsey's trial for draft evasion, which begins June 17th. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, so announces. Kearns says there is little likelihood of the fight taking place in Europe.

MORAN WON BY KNOCK OUT.

London, May 25.—Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, last night knocked out Frank Goddard, the English heavyweight, in the second round of a scheduled 20-round bout.

CARPENTIER TO BOX LEVINSKY.

New York, May 27.—Georges Carpentier, heavyweight boxing champion of Europe, and Battling Levinsky, of New York, American light-heavyweight title holder, have agreed to meet in a 12 or 15-round bout at 175 pounds ringside on or before July 26, it was announced here tonight by Jack Curley, Carpentier's American representative. The time and place of the bout will be decided later. Under the terms of the agreement the two men are to be notified four weeks in advance of the choice, it was stated.

Whether a decision will be given depends on the place selected, Curley said. It is thought probable that New York city would be the scene of the contest now that Governor Smith has signed the Walker Bill, which provides for 15-round bouts to a decision.

Women Who Smile

Should end that film on teeth

All statements approved by high dental authorities

Most teeth are clouded more or less by film. Millions of teeth are ruined by it. It causes most tooth troubles.

There is now a way to combat that film, advised by dentists everywhere. And a ten-day test will be sent on your request.

How film dims teeth

A viscous film clings to your teeth, enters crevices and stays. You can feel it with your tongue. Then it forms a cloudy coat and may lead to endless damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people, under old methods, have escaped these troubles. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve film, so the tooth brush failed to end it. Dental science has for years been seeking a way to combat it.

Five years ago the way was found, and dental authorities have amply proved its efficiency. Now it is urged for daily use, and millions already employ it. It is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent—a tooth paste made to meet modern requirements.

Teeth quickly show

There are three ways in which Pepsodent brings results unique and beneficial, but its action on film is the chief one.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So this method long seemed barred. But science has found a harmless activating method, and now active pepsin can be daily applied.

You see the results of Pepsodent wherever you look today—teeth whiter, cleaner, safer. Now see the results on your own teeth.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days, then decide for yourself what is best for them. Cut out the coupon to avoid further delay. This test is most important.

Notes From Brigus.

On Thursday evening, the 27th ult., the s.s. Cabot arrived with a hundred hogsheads of salt from Crosbie & Co. This is to supply the needs of the fishermen of the place, who, other seasons were forced to obtain their supplies individually from wherever it could most conveniently be purchased.

Owing to great increases in the number of salmon caught, the price has declined to 12 cents per pound. During the past week a limited supply of codfish has been placed on the market at prices to suit the times.

Hons. R. A. Squires, Dr. Alex. Campbell, S. J. Foote and F. Angel, Esq., and friends, came here by motor on Sunday evening.

We are pleased to see Mr. J. C. Cousens once again in our midst. He returns, as has been his custom for years past, to spend the summer in his home here.

Capt. Harold Bartlett, in his sloop, Etta M. Morrisset, is on his way from Sydney with a cargo of coal.

Rev. Dr. Murphy went to the city on Monday evening on a brief visit. He returned again on Tuesday.

Rumor has it that the Maganese Ore claim at Southern Point, which has been lying dormant for some time, is sold to a Bell Island concern. We hope if such is the case that the "tinkering" is finished, and that work will begin in earnest.

During the past week several fishermen have placed their traps in the water, but up to the present they have not taken anything. The season is, of course, not far enough advanced to expect any trapping to be done.

Mr. E. J. Ryan, of Trinity, was in town on a brief visit on Tuesday.

Rev. Dr. Whelan, P.P., North River, motored through the town on Tuesday evening, on his way home, after a health trip spent in Canada and the U.S.A.

Last night a very enjoyable children's concert was given in the Academy Hall. The object was to procure some funds to assist in the work of saving the starving children of Central Europe.

The sitting was a short one. Several bills were given third reading and others deferred. The "Improvement of Roads" Bill was committed, but two or three sections held over until next sitting for alteration.

Mr. Sampson and Mr. Cheeseman opposed the bill, as did also Mr. Small, who moved an amendment to Section 6, which was defeated.

The House then adjourned until Monday next.

When You Cannot Sleep

What can be more distressing than sleepless nights? Morning finds you tired, depressed in spirits and perhaps ill-tempered. Sleep is nature's way of restoring the nervous energy wasted by the activities of the day. Without sleep you are spending nervous energy without replacing it. Your vitality is running lower and lower each day. Hence the tired feelings, the headaches, the failure of the digestive system and the general depression and discouragement. The question is how to build up the supply of nervous energy in the body and the problem is solved by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Perhaps the best way for you to satisfy yourself on this point is by reading these letters from persons who have proven the value of this food cure under such conditions.

Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. S. Topliffe, 64 Union St., Kingston, Ont. writes:

"A few months ago, I was suffering from nervousness, headaches, sleeplessness, and a general run down condition. While visiting my sister, who was using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, she persuaded me to try it, saying she was sure it would help me. I secured a box, took it, and continued the treatment until I found myself greatly benefited, and able to sleep quite well. From the benefit I have derived, I would recommend it to anyone suffering from nervous debility and run down system."

"I have also used some of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and find it a very good ointment to keep in the house."

Kempt, N.S.

Mr. Ambrose B. Dowling, Kempt, N.S. writes:

"My system was all run down, I was weak and very nervous. For nights at a time I could neither sleep nor rest, and finally had to give up work. I read in a newspaper of a cure made by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in a case similar to mine, so decided to give this treatment a trial. A few boxes made a great change for the better, and after using eight boxes I can say that I rest well at night, and get a good night's sleep. I can now do my work on the farm, and my nerves are much better. I can also say that Dr. Chase's Ointment freed me from a case of piles, from which I had suffered for some time."

Windsor, Ont.

Mrs. John Lawson, 21 London St. E., Windsor, Ont. writes:

"I was troubled for a long time with nervousness and sleeplessness. My system became run down, too. I never knew what it was to have a good night's rest for ever so long. I spent a lot of money doctoring, but never received much benefit from their treatments. One day I bought some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after using the first box, I found relief. I could sleep better, and did not feel so tired upon rising in the morning. I continued using the Nerve Food, however, until I had built my system up again. I am stronger now and feel more like myself."

"I can also say that Dr. Chase's Ointment freed me from a case of piles, from which I had suffered for some time."

Port Hope, Ont.

Miss Myrtle Broadbent, Bloomgrove Ave., Port Hope, Ont. writes:

"I became run down through overwork, was very nervous, restless and subject to headaches. I could not sleep well, became easily worried and took weak spells. My nerves or muscles used to twitch and I had pains through my back. Besides this I suffered from indigestion and my appetite was poor. The doctor told me my whole system was run down and I needed one year of perfect rest and quietness. I did not act upon these orders, but instead began a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This medicine has done me the world of good by curing these symptoms and building up my system in general."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

To be a nervous bankrupt is a serious condition. To be sleepless is one of the surest indications that your nervous system needs just such assistance as is best supplied by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Nerve Food from all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Be sure to see the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy.

Governor Made Presentations Yesterday.

Six presentations were made at Government House by His Excellency yesterday. The presentations and their nominees were:

La. H. M. Winter, Insignta of O.B.E. (Military Division.)

Seaman Chas. Penney, R.N., Board of Trade Silver Medal.

Const. Andrew Fahay, Silver Medal.

Mrs. Eliza Patton, Insignta of membership, O.B.E., Civil Division.

R.N.R. Leander Green, D.S.M., and Sgt. T. R. Ricketts, V.C., the G. W. B. Ayre Navy and Army Highest Honors Awards, $500 each.

Seaman's Penney's medal, (Board of Trade), was presented in recognition of heroic conduct at the time of the Florisel Disaster.

The Ayre Awards created some special interest. It will be remembered that, shortly after the war broke out, Mr. George W. B. Ayre generously offered $500 each to the sailor and soldier of the Regiment or Navy, who won the highest honors in their respective forces. With Sergt. Ricketts' deed, the Telegram has on a previous occasion dealt. That of Seaman Green, who hails from St. Jones' Without, T.B., is not so well known. The report follows: "A submarine torpedoed a steamer. The destroyer on which Green was ran the submarine down, but as destroyers carried no boats, escape appeared out off. Only one way, and a dangerous one, suggested itself. Someone must swim to the steamer with a coil of rope. Volunteers were called for, and Seaman Green was prompt to reply. Facing tremendous difficulties, he succeeded, and was thus the human instrument of saving many lives. It has been our privilege to congratulate both Ricketts and Green on many occasions, and once again we extend them both to the young heroes and to the parents and country which gave them birth. In again thanking Mr. George Ayre for his thoughtfulness and generosity, we voice the general sentiment. It was a graceful act, and one worthy of a royal citizen and sportsman."

Carbonear Boy Takes Degree.

Mr. Joseph G. Joyce of Carbonear, Newfoundland, who has had three years' training at Mt. Allison College, Sackville, New Brunswick, is a candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Education at the Boston University commencement, which will take place June 16th in Tremont Temple, Boston. Judge Wendell Phillips Stafford, LL.D., of Washington, D.C., Chief Justice of the District of Columbia, will deliver the commencement address. Judge Stafford is a graduate of the Boston University School of Law in the class of 1888.

Another special feature of Senior week will be Alumni Re-union Day, June 12th, at Lasell Seminary. Representatives of all the classes that have graduated for the last twenty-five years have signified their intention of being present at this time. The Senior play, "The Mollusk," which will be given at Jacob Sleeper Hall on the evening of June 11th, will be repeated for the benefit of the Alumni visitors at Lasell the afternoon of the 12th.

The annual Baccalaureate service will be held in Trinity Church, June 13th, and Dean Laurens J. Birney of Boston University, will deliver the Baccalaureate address. An academic procession in cap and gown of the University faculty, students, and graduates will be a feature of the occasion.

Annual Collection.

FOR BELVIDERE AND MOUNT CARMEL CEMETERIES.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Through the columns of the People's Paper, which at all times offers its assistance to meritorious undertakings, I would remind your Catholic readers of the annual collection to be taken up at the churches in aid of Belvidere and Mt. Carmel Cemeteries. There is a large amount of repairs needed to Belvidere Cemetery that will call for a big outlay of money to put it in first-class condition. The walks should be remodelled, because people are compelled to pass over plots in order to get from one section of the cemetery to the other, and this is very noticeable and not as it should be. Many plots appear to be unattended, and some of the headstones are in a drooping position. Presumably the owners of these plots and monuments have left the country or passed into the Great Beyond. The Committee, in order to do their work properly, must have the necessary funds, and as labor costs a great deal more than formerly, it is absolutely necessary that the collection on Sunday next should be a liberal one. Let us all contribute generously and do our best to help the Committee to carry on their work. We have a record to keep up, for we have in the past taken a pride out of the beauty of our cemeteries, and it is up to each and every Catholic to keep this commendable spirit active.

Yours sincerely,
CATHOLIC.
