An investigation required—The mother's name for her child—How the law proceeds (The Poor Woman).
A couple of years ago Mrs. McCarty gave her little daughter into the hands of Edith Brouseau and there was an understood agreement that Brouseau was not to keep a house of ill-fame or an improper house. If she did she was to give up the child to her mother. This agreement was drawn up by Brouseau's lawyer, Mr. Hagel, and now Mrs. McCarty finds that the promise is not in the agreement.

THE EDUCATIONAL CHANGES.

The general circular lately issued by the minister of education with a view to the improvement of the present school system contains many things which strongly commend it to those who are interested in the training of young men, and also many things which, though very plausible on paper, seem hardly, we think, to be reduced to practice so as to show successful results. There are few professions that are so well paid with beautiful theories as that of the school teacher while at the same time there are few that come so far short of the theories that have been brought down to the hard practicalities of ordinary school life. There never yet has been a school system which has not been a failure. It is by the most moderate and strict observance of what with the different grades of attainment and complex relations of society, a program which would be closely adhered to in one school is rejected in another; subjects which would be of the utmost importance to the farmer's son would be of no earthly use to a boy who expects to spend all his days in the city.

In order to neutralize as far as possible these evils the program set forth in the circular contains certain subjects that are not obligatory, but that are adopted at the discretion of school boards and trustees. By this method a number of unnecessary subjects will be replaced by others of more practical importance, such, for instance, as agriculture and the rudiments of chemistry. It will have a strong tendency to check a practice which is far too common among ambitious teachers of "pitchforking" quadratics, binomial theorems and crooked syntax into pupils, who are often ignorant of the simplest rules of business. It is by all means desirable that the youth in our districts should have easy access to a good sound education, but there seems to be something ridiculously incongruous in this cramming of subjects which are intended only for a professional career into a young man who, then, after attaining the natives with his garnishments of superficial lore, with all his "blushing honors" thick upon his vacant head, settles down to mowing thistles and chopping brushwood.

The primary object in education is not to impart knowledge, but to develop and cultivate the mind, and this can be done much more advantageously by the study of subjects which will be of practical benefit in after life.

Another prominent feature is the change in the standard of the intermediate examinations. What has heretofore been a pretty severe test in all subjects pertaining to a sound education, has been so remodelled as to present numerous loopholes through which a student of very meagre attainments may manage to work himself. There are far too many optional subjects for an examination which is presumably the test of efficiency for teachers who may have to instruct their pupils in those very branches which they themselves elect to discard. It may be questioned whether it will not flood the country with a host of ignorant teachers.

Another clause which provides that pupils in the upper school who desire to do so may take a special course of subjects is worthy of notice. Although it does not very materially change the present mode of upper school management it has, like the latter, too great a tendency to encourage CONTRADICTION DISPATCHES FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

The fact that the military authorities at Alexandria have established a censorship over the telegraphic dispatches from the seat of war, ought to lead us to expect if not for military reasons, a full account of the events, at least a clear and straightforward one. But in the case of the accounts of the repulse of certain British soldiers by the Egyptians, which were telegraphed on the morning of the 3rd inst., two distinct stories were told. The first telegram stated that the platoon surprised consisted of a company of the sixtieth rifles, who were suddenly attacked by Bedouins, threw away their rifles and ran away. Most of them were too much exhausted to run more than a mile, and they behind the first shelter they met. Four men, however, being good runners, never stopped till they reached the camp. A second telegram stated that the platoon consisted of but six men and a corporal, and that they repulsed the Egyptian army. These dispatches contradict each other, but no doubt a full explanation will be given of a matter so vital to the honor of the army.

REPUBLICAN CORRUPTION.

By his veto of the river and harbor bill, President Arthur has nobly disappointed those who expected him to be a passive tool in the hands of a party saturated with corruption. By his veto of one of the most gigantic frauds ever proposed even by the republican party, Mr. Arthur has earned a title to a second nomination. At Washington he was surrounded by an atmosphere of the worst political mismanagement. His veto was strong in favor of the river and harbor bill, as a huge job was on hand in the clause for improving the Potomac. Great as has been of late years the increase in the expenditure of the government, this river and harbor bill dwarfs all other schemes for grand larceny of the nation's money, since fraud came into power under the pseudo regime of republicanism. To the lover of free institutions the region of fraud in the States is a disheartening phenomenon, a reign of terror would be more healthy. In republican Rome, in France of the old regime, a like state of things existed, but never approached the colossal iniquities which are burning the candle of national prosperity at both ends. Congressional corruption are the authors of vast railway monopolies. In both respects the neighboring republic gives Canada the benefit of a "frightful example." Corruption like this has in all history been the given pretense to revolution. One thinks of Jugan that's words as he looked on the city whose senate had sold his country's honor: "Urbs Venalis sic cito perit in cinerem in verberis."

FRIDAY'S ARTIST.

On account of the renowned manner of his stepping into the highest position in his country's gift, the newly installed president of the United States has rather a hard row to hoe in contending against the people if not the actual disrespect of the assembly. This feeling is also attributable to a general proclivity among human beings, whenever one whom they have delighted to honor has passed away, to look upon his successor with aversion, judge his actions harshly, and seek by all possible means to undermine his capacity. Against this disposition, which he well knew were arrayed against him on his sudden accession to power, President Arthur has struggled bravely and not without success. Although he has been only about eight months in office, he has shown by the able and conscientious discharge of his duties especially within the last few days, that he is in more respects than one worthy of his high position. Notwithstanding the base character of the opposition which has been directed against him, of committing that system of corruption which his immortal honor has been only about eight months in office, he has shown by the able and conscientious discharge of his duties especially within the last few days, that he is in more respects than one worthy of his high position. THE SABBATH QUESTION.

Sir: That narrow-mindedness which characterized our puritan fathers is palpable in the writings of those men who today strenuously oppose any relaxation of our Sunday laws. There is neither logic in their arguments nor a grain of christian charity in their actions. Because they have from their youth up been accustomed to walk within the bounds of certain prescribed limits, and have felt no longing for a wider, more wholesome and invigorating sphere of life, they would compel all others to wade the Sunday in an atmosphere ungenial to their tastes and in such a manner which would altogether contrary to the dictates of reason and of a cultured mind. But there is little use in men striving to keep in force laws restricting the liberty of their fellowmen, all such efforts must prove utterly futile—so surely as we have in our upward and onward march eliminated from our statute books many absurd laws. So surely will our Sunday laws of restriction vanish before the growth of an irrefragable yearning for the freedom of freedom. We are told that people would misbehave themselves if allowed that which is their right. The liberty to spend Saturdays on the lake or in the country. But we certainly have no cause to predict that people would be guilty of bad conduct on that

WHY CALL THEM REFORMERS?

Sir: In all the American cities we call the head of each police precinct "Captain." Having some business with the police yesterday, I was told that the "captain" of that officer was the head of a division. I thought from his title that he was inspector of the whole force. BOSTON TRAVELER.

THE GLOBE AND THE NEW CITY.

Sir: Surely the day has passed when the wise men dwelt in the east—or at least when the newspaper men dwelt east of the Globe persistently opposing the erection of a new city hall to replace the present unbecomingly dilapidated building as a chief municipal edifice. The few thousand dollars the Globe would have expended to improve the present structure would go far towards paying interest on the sufficient sum to build a new structure worthy of the queen city of the west. The under part of the present building is far too late to be a landmark and the upper chamber let to the Globe printing company or the Mail to improve or sub let, if not required for home use, to the best advantage for the benefit of the city, and towards a new hall in a central site and one worthy of the liberal-conservative days in which we live. NESTOR.

THE ARCHAIC BILL.

DUBLIN, Aug. 3.—In the house of commons this afternoon Gladstone proposed not to take up the arrears bill until Monday, as he did not wish to do anything precipitate before arriving at what might be a momentous decision. The statement was received with cheer.

PARSON'S CIRCULAR AND ITS OBJECTS.

DUBLIN, Aug. 3.—The circular to be issued by the Rev. Mr. Parson to check the operations of the Dillon corporation company is also signed by Dillon, David, Egan, Gray and McCarthy. It will be after thorough deliberation to obtain signatures to a requisition asking the lord mayor of Dublin to convene a meeting during the exhibition week for the purpose of discussing the national fund for the relief of evicted tenants. The circular states that the organization is not to be political, but evictions will be increased if tenants are left defenceless in presence of a wealthy company.
