THE VALDESA'S CASE—Accident at Cushing's Mill, etc., etc.

H. M. S. CANADA arrived in port today and anchored off the Custom House. She was visited by her friends Mayor Lockhart, the Recorder and James Brown, an employe at Cushing's mill, had his right leg broken yesterday while at his work.

ACCIDENT AT CUSHING'S MILL.—Howard Brown, an employe at Cushing's mill, had his right leg broken yesterday while at his work. He was lifting a log up to the band saw carriage, when his peavy broke and the log rolled back on his leg, breaking it near the ankle. Dr. May, who is here from Boston on a visit to Mr. Cushing, was present and set the injured limb.

ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING circumstances that has taken place at Kewick Ridge for the last few days, was that of yesterday, when Dr. Moorehouse led the matrimonial altar the charming daughter of Rev. J. L. McNeil, rector of the parish. The ceremony took place at the Episcopal Church at that place, and there was a large congregation of invited guests.

Charles Landers, Edward McPherson and James Burns, were charged with disorderly conduct, and furious driving on Erin street, also with knocking over a child on a street corner. They were fined $5 each. Joseph Collier was before the magis late this afternoon on the charge of having liquor on sale without a license. He was fined $20.

Rudyard Kipling.

As the Three Musketeers share their tobacco liquor together, as they protect each other in barracks or in camp, and as they rejoice together over the joy of one, so do they divide their sorrows. When Ortheris's irrefragable tongue has brought him into cells for a season, or Leary's iron rammer through his ribs and sinews, or Mulvaney has taken of his boots and was dabbling his toes in the water, Leary will be up on his back on the pontoon and Ortheris was pretending to row with a big bamboo.

"It's an odd folk," said Mulvaney, reflectively, "d'raggin' you two out here like a child, but that was scullier's will. Mullins, as 'e's damned to him, was shugalin' on a counterpane for five weeks, and that was his punishment. But I'll do you four miles on an natural penalty. Phew!"

"What a kind of a long you're 'appy?" said Ortheris, applying himself afresh to the bamboo.

"As well 'ere as anywhere else," said Leary.

Leary held up a rope and an eight-ounce bit and shook his head sorrowfully. "What a kind of a long you're 'appy?" said Ortheris, applying himself afresh to the bamboo.

WHEN DOES OLD AGE BEGIN?

"It is at three more years and ten," says one. "No, it is when one grows tired of life," says another. "It is when the faculties begin to fail," says a third. It is certainly true that old age begins sooner in some than in others, and it shows itself first where the health and bodily infirmities have made life a burden beyond to be borne. Lord Byron was a remarkably long-lived man, and he lived to the age of sixty-eight. He was a man of great energy and vigor, and he was a man of great energy and vigor, and he was a man of great energy and vigor.
