THE JURY IN SIFTON CASE DISAGREED!

After Being Out Nearly Six Hours, the Jury Reported They Were Unable to Agree on a Verdict.

It was exactly three minutes to five yesterday when the jury filed in and took their places. The judge entered and seated himself.

The only sign of nervousness displayed by the prisoner was the nervous twitching of his hands, which he wiped with a handkerchief.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

Foreman Martin O'Sullivan answered in a scarcely audible voice:

"No, my lord."

"Is there any likelihood of your doing so?"

"I do not think so, my lord."

"The conscience of any juryman ought to be respected, and is respected," said his lordship, "and if you find that any of your consciences will not permit you to reach a conclusion, I will not detain you any longer for further consideration of the case."

Mrs. Gerald Sifton, seated by the dock, sobbed convulsively as she heard the words spoken which sent her husband back to his cell for half a year more.

The prisoner was immediately removed, followed by his weeping wife. As the party reached the hallway leading into the jail, Mrs. Sifton's grief found vent in a despairing cry.

Mr. Magee asked for a reserved case in King's bench, on the exclusion of evidence of Joseph Sifton being warned on the previous night, and exclusion of evidence showing financial embarrassment on Gerald Sifton's part. His lordship refused the application.

Nine jurymen were in favor of conviction, but three men held out against it. The first ballot gave four votes for acquittal. Then began a long argument. One of the four was carried over to the side of the majority, but the other three were firm and there was no possibility of an agreement.

This concluded the assizes.

A GOOD SHOWING

Made by the Canadian Pacific for the Past Year---Other Railway News.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was held on Wednesday, and the old board was re-elected unanimously. In moving the adoption of the report, President Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy directed attention to the excellent result of the operations of the past fiscal year, notwithstanding the loss of revenue resulting from the serious shrinkage of grain crops in Northwestern Canada last autumn by unfavorable weather. The grain tonnage of Manitoba and the Northwest was only about one-third less than in 1899, and, according to authentic reports, less than one-fifth the tonnage of the crop just harvested. A few years ago such serious injury to crops would have had a disastrous effect on the company's revenue, therefore the development of other traffic in sufficient volume to materially reduce the comparative importance of the grain business as a factor in gross earnings is most gratifying. As indicated in the general report land grant bonds amounting to $428,500 have been redeemed, canceled since last meeting. The directors expect to reduce outstanding bonds a still larger amount the current year, land sale the past three months being 75 per cent in excess of the corresponding period. None of these sales were in large blocks.

PENSIONING EMPLOYES.

The desirability of making provision for pensioning officers and employes who, after long service, become incapacitated by reason of advanced age, has suggested the propriety of asking consent that $250,000 be set aside as the nucleus of a pension fund as soon as the directors succeeded in formulating a feasible plan of administration. It is hoped that this will be accomplished shortly, but the large number of employes and the varied conditions of the service make it necessary that the details of the scheme receive the gravest consideration before being put into operation. The president expressed for the directors appreciation of the zeal and fidelity of the officers and employes in the performance of their duties during, in some respects, a most trying year.

The leases of the Kootenay and Arrow Head Railway, the Vancouver, Lulu Island Railway, and the British Columbia Southern Railway were approved; also the traffic agreement between the Canadian Pacific, Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic and the Mineral Range Railroad. The issue of debenture stock on account of 30 miles of branch lines in Manitoba was authorized, not to exceed $15,000 a mile, and $250,000 was set aside for a pension fund.

The meeting passed a resolution, authorizing the issue of steamship bonds not exceeding £480,000.

At a meeting of the new board Sir William C. Van Horne was re-elected chairman of the board, and Sir Thos. Shaughnessy president of the company.

IRRIGATION SCHEME.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—The C. P. R. authorities have at present under consideration an immense scheme of irrigation for the Northwest, by which it is proposed to make a good farming and grazing country out of the millions of acres which now lie dry and arid. The barren lands lie between Calgary and Medicine Hat, on the north of the railway line. James Anderson, the irrigation engineer, who has done much work in California, Egypt and other places, has recently been over this area, and reports that there is nothing to prevent the great work being successfully carried out. His report is now before the executive in Montreal, and it is understood that as an experiment 300,000 acres of the three million barren acres will be put under irrigation.

ROCK ISLAND REACHING OUT.

The Rock Island Railroad has already extended its lines 400 miles southwest of Liberal, Kansas, and it has also reconstructed and extended northward the El Paso and Northwestern road, which it controls. Some 200 miles more of track will unite the two extensions, and the work is being rapidly pushed. It has been recently announced in San Francisco that important passenger traffic agreements are pending between the Rock Island and the Southern Pacific roads, which is taken to mean that when the gap is closed the Rock Island will run through trains to Los Angeles. The new route will be by far the shortest one between Chicago and that point.

W. B. Russell, engineer in charge of the Temiscamingue Railway Survey, has reported to the department of public works that he has located the line 25 miles north from North Bay, and made a preliminary survey for four miles further. He reports that he is finding a very good route for the line.

Uncle Sam May Send a Fleet Through the Dardanelles---Scare Stories Regarding King Edward's Health.

London, Oct. 4.—"The United States Government is determined to exact full revenge upon everyone connected," says the Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch regarding the abduction of Miss Stone, the American missionary, "and if anything happens to Miss Stone it will not hesitate to ask permission to bring a fleet through the Dardanelles to get at Bulgarian ports on the Black Sea and to force the Bulgarian Government to act against the Macedonian committee."

KING EDWARD'S HEALTH.

London, Oct. 4.—The coincidence of the announcement of King Edward's indisposition with the revived rumors regarding cancer, published in Copenhagen, from which city his majesty has just returned, and where secrets of the British court are more likely to break out than elsewhere, is causing some commotion here. The fact that the customary court circular does not appear in this morning's papers, adds to the uneasy feeling, which is not allayed by the explanation of the King's indisposition given by Sir Francis Luking, his majesty's physician.

London, Oct. 4.—Sir Francis Luking, King Edward's physician, went to Balmoral yesterday. His majesty seems to be suffering from an attack of rheumatism, but he went for a drive in the afternoon.

Copenhagen, Oct. 3.—The newspapers have today revived the rumors that King Edward is in a serious condition from cancer of the tongue, without adducing any evidence to that effect.

London, Oct. 4.—A story is in circulation among the clubs, purporting to come from a titled member of the late Queen Victoria's household, giving credit to the cancer story and saying that court circles are discussing the possibility of no coronation taking place next year. It is impossible, however, to obtain tangible corroborative evidence of this report.

THE ASIATIC PORTS.

United States Senator Beveridge, who arrived from Japan on the Kaga Maru, after journeying across the Pacific with the Marquis Ito, declined to speak at any length on the Orient, where he had spent the better portion of a six months' trip around the world, beyond stating that the keeping open of the Asiatic ports was America's problem.

KAISER PAID CHUN'S BILLS.

COAL DISCOVERY.

Prolonged boring operations at Dover resulted this evening in the discovery of a seam of good bituminous coal. It is believed that this seam is the beginning of the long-sought-for and supposedly valuable coal field which geologists held, ran under that part of England, as a continuation of the Pis de Calais field. English and French experts regard the discovery as most important, and anticipate further important discoveries today. There is much excitement in the district. Previous borings revealed thin seams of coal in the higher levels.

MICHIGAN DIVORCES NOT GOOD IN CANADA

Toronto Grand Jury Found Minnie Woods Guilty of Bigamy—Judge McDougall's Ruling.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—An important verdict touching the divorce law was given in the criminal sessions here, when a jury found Minnie G. Woods guilty of bigamy. The accused was legally divorced according to the law of the State of Michigan, and the separation would have been considered legal in all parts of the United States. The judge charged against the prisoner, and told the jury that American divorces for causes not recognized here did not hold good in Canada.

Mr. Robinette, the prisoner's counsel, admitted that his client had been three times married. At the time of the third marriage the second husband was living. Her first husband was a well-known commercial traveler of Detroit. Dr. Barnhardt was their physician, and when husband No. 1 died, she wedded the physician. The marriage was celebrated in Windsor, July 5, 1897.

John Pendril testified that he had gone through a form of marriage with the accused in Toronto, on Nov. 7, 1900, while Barnhardt was still alive.

Under cross-examination the witness—husband No. 2—denied that he had said "The angels will hurt you before I do." He also denied having abused her.

Pendril swore that the lady had told him of having had offers of marriage from no fewer than five men.

Mr. John Drummond, an attorney from Detroit, gave the court the particulars of the divorce of Dr. Barnhardt and his wife. It was granted to the physician in Detroit in April, 1900, on the grounds of "cruelty, personal pain, and inconvenience." The doctor claimed that the woman's jealousy and uncontrollable temper prevented him from properly practicing his profession. Mrs. Barnhardt counter-claimed that her husband beat and abused her, and refused to support her.

Judge McDougall, in emphasizing the fact that the divorce was not valid in Canada, remarked: "If it were, there would be a tremendous exodus from Canada to the United States of young couples with petty differences."

The jury was out only a short time.

The woman was allowed out on bail, pending argument before a superior court on the judge's ruling respecting the validity of the Michigan divorce.

FALL FAIRS THAT WERE SUCCESSES

Exhibitions That Reflected the Districts' Prosperity.

Gratifying Attendance and Entries at Watford, Dorchester and Other Places.

WATFORD FAIR.

The directors of the East Lambton and Warwick Fall Fair were favored Wednesday with fine weather, though at times when the sun was obscured it turned a trifle cold, for which the crowd did not seem to care in the least, as everyone was provided with protection of various kinds, and looked comfortable. Without much delay the judges completed their labors, giving general satisfaction in every case, and when the visitors arrived in the afternoon the main hall exhibits were all ready for inspection. There was a nice display of ladies' work, which had a constant crowd of admirers, and its arrangement was a credit to those in charge. The cooking and preserving sections were also fully represented. This county does not promise to hold up its reputation in yielding a bountiful supply of fruit, and the exhibit was not as good as in many previous years, but nobody feels bad over the matter, as the good sections are similarly affected. Roots and vegetables were shown in good variety and sample. There were a few pumpkins, but the huge old-timer so often admired at these fairs was absent. Corn was a good exhibit, some specimens being very large and well-formed. Grain and seeds made a good show, though the general failure in this crop throughout the country made itself noticeable in the exhibit. There was a fair exhibit in the poultry department, fully up to that of previous years. In a county where so many horses and cattle are raised it is only natural to expect a big display in these classes, and in this the directors are seldom disappointed. These two sections were perhaps never better filled than Tuesday, and the nature of the stock seemed to indicate that perfection is the goal of the majority of those in the business. In hogs and sheep also the entries were fully abreast of previous years. The show of horses was big and seemed to emphasize the fact that the raising of suitable animals for both the home and foreign market has come to be regarded as an important branch in successful farming. This class was fully represented, and those in a position to know said the collection all through was exceedingly hard to excel.

The attendance showed a big increase this year, while the entries are slightly in advance of last show day, two facts which seem to indicate that the popularity of the fair is not on the wane. The gate receipts amounted to about $500. The entries numbered 2,800. The busy officers who looked after things this year deserve to be commended for the success that crowned their efforts. Their names are: East Lambton Officers—President, John Farrell, Forest; first vice-president, E. McGillicuddy, Watford; second vice-president, S. Bailey, Uttoxeter; secretary-treasurer, F. Kenward, Watford; auditors, Dr. Auld and T. B. Taylor, Watford; assistant secretary, S. Saunders, Directors—J. F. Elliot, Watford; J. S. Williams, Watford; John Lambert, Watford; N. McPhedran, Wanstead; G. Brent, Warwick; A. Saunders, Watford; W. Annett, Watford; Jas. Beattie, Watford; G. Munroe, Arkona.

Warwick Officers—President, John McCormick, Watford; vice-president, T. Howden, Watford; secretary-treasurer, Dr. Auld, Watford. Directors—H. F. McKenzie, Watford; W. H. Sturgeon, Watford; A. Cundick, Warwick; W. Leach, Watford.

The Watford Brass Band furnished a programme of selections that kept the big crowd in good humor during the afternoon.

In the evening a concert was held under the auspices of Watford Tent, No. 33, K. O. T. M., at which a big crowd was present, and the following took part: Miss Mamie Apted, Susie McGill, Miss Agnes Templeton, R. E. Prentis and Will J. White. They provided a varied programme that was accorded a hearty reception by the audience and was thoroughly enjoyable.

DORCHESTER FAIR.

"Dorchester Fair," the Donnybrook of Ontario, was successful this year, above all others in its history. Never before has a larger crowd of happy, well-contented people crowded the village streets, and the show grounds, nor at any previous time have the entries been larger or of a better class.

Hundreds of people went from the city, because "Donnybrook" always has some fun-making features, and thousands also from all the surrounding country, making the fair, in point of attendance, the best yet held.

The speeding events included a free-for-all, running race and farmers' trot, and was productive of some good racing.

In the free-for-all Polly Stanton, a horse belonging to J. H. Brooks, of this city, beat George Neely's (Dorchester) horse Monta. Four heats were required, both horses crossing the wire nose to nose in the second.

In the running race Belmont won the first heat, but in the next two were beaten by Payrock, which won the race. Payrock is the property of F. E. Sage, liveryman, of this city.

The farmers' trot was won in three straight heats by a chestnut horse belonging to Mr. Kilbourne. The judges were Messrs. H. Dreaney and R. Carrothers, city, and H. McCarty, of Ingersoll. Mr. H. Dreaney also acted as starter.

The bicycle race had seven starters, and the result was doubtful until the finish. It was won by Mann, of Lambeth, with two Parker brothers in second and third places respectively.

MOORE FAIR.

The Moore township fair, held at Brigden, was fully up to the average of former years and excelled in some parts of the exhibits, the live stock especially. The fine weather made it agreeable, and a very large crowd turned out. The special attractions were varied and numerous, and the horse races during the afternoon were well contested. Although the crowd was large and many were out for a good time good order was maintained throughout the day. In the evening the Maccabees gave an entertainment in the hall to a crowded house. The sale of tickets was stopped before the programme started, and standing-room was at a premium. A. E. Parker, of Toronto, greatly pleased the large crowd with his humorous selections. A. S. Harkness, of Alvinston, took the part of chairman in his usual able manner, and his many friends here were glad to welcome him. The citizens of the village did not lack in enterprise in trying to make this event a success. Every effort was made by business places, and the town was gaily decorated.

SOUTH PERTH.

The annual fall exhibition of South Perth was held at St. Marys Wednesday. The gate receipts were the largest for a number of years, over 2,000 admission tickets being sold. The show was the most successful one in the history of the society. Mr. Carman, the secretary for the past two years, seemed to have inspired the management, and all departments were better than usual.

THE NORTHWESTERN.

The Northwestern Exhibition closed at Goderich Wednesday, with clear but rather cool weather for personal comfort. The attendance was satisfactory and the exhibits were fully up to that of former years, in both quantity and quality, notwithstanding the dry weather in the early part of the fall. The stock was the finest ever seen here, and the races were good. The management are to be congratulated on the way each and every department was managed and the success of the exhibition.

LISTOWEL FAIR.

The fall exhibition held at Listowel Tuesday and Wednesday proved a success. The fair was the most successful held by the society, both in attendance and excellence of exhibits. A great number of prominent Conservatives from different parts of the riding came to meet Mr. J. R. Whitney, who was well received by both Reformers and Conservatives.

WALLACETOWN FAIR.

Tuesday and Wednesday of this week will be reembered as gala days by the citizens of Wallacetown and the thousands of visitors who attended the 41st exhibition of the West Elgin Agricultural Society, the holding of which at the above village being the occasion of great rejoicing and a good time generally. Everyone was on their best behavior, and there was nothing seemingly too good that could be done by the residents of the classic little burg for the multitudes, who were, for the time being, their honored and welcome guests. The officers, members, and all who were connected with the getting up and carrying to so successful an issue the exhibition of 1901 can have nothing but the pleasantest reflections on the result of their efforts and work done by them in offering a presentable and interesting programme. Every event was well timed, and went off without a hitch, for which fact the management are deserving of the sincerest thanks of the pubic at large. The entries were more numerous than in any previous year which, together with the receipts at the gate and members' tickets, were very material factors in swelling the finances of the society.

DOCTOR'S BILL $5,243

He Kept a Man Alive at $100 a Day So He Could Make a Million.

Pittsburg, Oct. 4.—One hundred dollars a day is a moderate physician's charge when attending a millionaire, according to witnesses in the Orphans' Court. Judge Over held a hearing in the suit against the estate of the late H. M. Curry. Dr. J. G. Flower asks for $5,243 25 for professional services rendered the decedent. The executor of the estate claims that the bill is exorbitant and refuses to pay it.

Mr. Curry was one of the Carnegie Steel Company partners and died two years ago. Dr. Flower's services covered a period of five months and a trip to Atlantic City of 21 days, at which resort Mr. Carry died. Dr. Flower claimed that he treated the patient so successfully that his life was prolonged sufficiently to enable him to add at least $1,000,000 to his fortune, the estate being worth about $6,000,000 when he died, which was during the Carnegie partnership trouble.

Dr. Flower's bill is made up of a large number of visits to Mr. Curry's home and the cost of the trip to Atlantic City. For his visits to his residence he charges $25 a visit, and $100 a day for services while attending him at Atlantic City.

All the experts agreed that this was not exorbitant. Dr. Edmund Fisher testified that his charge would depend largely on the patient and his ability to pay.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT

To Keep Healthy and Strong?

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats is undoubtedly the best, in spite of the claims made by vegetarians and food cranks generally.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Remusson on this subject says: Nervous persons, people run down in health and of low vitality, should eat plenty of meat. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods, like potatoes, bread, etc., and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to perfect digestion, and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use.

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspansia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stomach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures are useless for relief or cure of indigestion, because they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe preparation which is indorsed by the medical profession and known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All druggists throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain sell them at the uniform price of fifty cents for full treatment.

IMPORTATION OF LIVE STOCK.

Stock Secured for the Dominion Experimental Farms.

Shorthorn Ayrshire and Guernsey Cattle, Shropshire Sheep, Tamworth and Yorkshire Hogs, Poultry.

During the past summer the Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture, accompanied by F. W. Dodson, live stock commissioner, and J. H. Grisdale, agriculturist at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, visited Great Britain, one of the chief purposes of the visit being to secure some pure-bred stock for the experimental farms, where more and more attention is being paid to such matters.

The importation, secured in various parts of Great Britain and the Channel Islands, consists of 6 Shorthorns, 10 Ayrshires, 7 Guernseys, 10 Shropshire sheep, 2 Berkshire pigs, 1 Tamworth gilt, 1 large Yorkshire gilt, 4 large black pigs, 2 trios of Buff Orpington fowls, and two trios Salmon Faverolles.

SHORTHORNS.

The Shorthorn cattle were selected for their milk and beef points. Cattle of some of the most famous milking strains were secured. A bull calf, "Lord Dinsdale," roan, calved 20th June, 1901, bred by the Right Hon. Lord Fitzhardinge, Berkeley Castle, Gloucester; sire, "Baron Blanche," 76,089; dam, "Darlington, 65th," a cow of magnificent proportions and great worth as a milk producer, having given with her first calf in 1900 over 6,000 pounds of milk.

Cow, "Lunesdale Marchioness," roan, calved Nov. 7, 1896, bred by Edmund Potter, Lowfields, Kirkby, Lonsdale, Westmoreland; sire, "His Excellency," 67,193, dam, "Marchioness of Kirklevington 7th." This animal combines milk with beef, and is of superior quality and beautiful Shorthorn character. She has given birth to two as beautiful heifers as can be found in England, and Mr. Potter considers them the gems of his herd. Mr. Potter's herd is one remarkable for combining milking and beefing properties, and there may be found many beautiful animals of the old Bates strains. Another female has been more recently secured from Mr. Potter about which full particulars are not yet available.

Cow, "Darlington Lass," red and little white, calved April 15, 1893, bred by Mr. Henry Webb (bought from Mr. Scott Murray, Hembleden, Henley-on-Thames); sire "Shoreham Gwynne," 59,916; dam, "Darlington Duchess." This cow has left some good stock, and is a very exceptional milker, giving last year about 9,000 pounds.

Cow calf, "Jessica Elmhurst 2nd," red and white, calved July 25, 1901, bred by Mr. Scott Murray, Hambleden, Henley-on-Thames; sire, "Hopeful Fred;" dam, "Jessie Elmhurst 24th." A cow of magnificent proportions, good Shorthorn character, and a heavy milker, giving last year over 9,000 pounds of milk.

Cow calf, "Janet," roan, calved Oct. 4, 1900, bred by Richard Stratton, of The Duffryn, Newport, Mon.; sire, "Union Jack," 75,801; dam, "Jubilee." The heifer is a model Shorthorn, and was the mate of, and in every way equal to, Mr. Stratton's yearling, which won the first at "The Royal," Cardiff, this year. "Janet's" dam, "Jubilee," is probably the most remarkable milking Shorthorn in England today, in ten months, from Oct. 10, 1900, to Aug. 10, 1901, she gave 11,000 pounds of milk of good quality. Mr. Stratton's herd is probably the oldest in the milk and beef business, and includes many excellent "dairy and beef" cattle.

Cow calf, "Duchess of Vittoria 39th," roan, calved Oct. 11, 1900, bred by Jas. E. Peter, Berkeley, Gloucester; sire, "North Star," 75,152; dam, "Duchess of Vittoria 34th." This heifer is of exceptionally fine quality and great beauty. She is from a cow of grand scale and good dairy form. She offers to make a rare good one.

AYRSHIRES.

The Ayrshires secured were selected on account of milking properties rather than for record in the ring.

Bull, "Twin Beauty," brown with some white, calved March 1, 1899, bred by Robert Wallace, Auchenbrain, Mauchline; sire, "Daniel of Auchenbrain"; dam, "Old Beauty's Last of Auchenbrain", was secured from Andrew Clement, Netherton Mearns, Renfrew county, Scotland. The dam of this bull is a cow of rare milking qualities, having given over 70 pounds of milk in one day on grass alone, while the dam of his sire has an equally remarkable record.

Two cows, "Jessie A. of Culcalgrie", white and brown, and "Maggie of Culcalgrie", red and white, 6 and 3 years old respectively, were secured from the breeder, William Stroyan, of Culcalgrie, Twynholm, Scotland. These two animals participated in the winning of the famous Queen's Hill cup in 1898 and 1901 respectively. This cup, now the property of Mr. Stroyan, has been for some years the goal of Galloway Ayrshire breeders' ambition. These animals are models of Ayrshire form, and combine showing qualities with milk production.

Three cows were secured from Robert Woodburn, of Holehouse, Golston, Ayrshire. They are:

"Trim Second of Holehouse", white and brown, 4 years old; "Soncy of Holehouse", mostly white, 6 years old; "Nora's Last of Holehouse", mostly white, 6 years old.

None of the above three cows has ever been in the show ring, but are quite worthy of honors.

From Mr. Robert Wallace, of Auchenbrain, Mauchline, Ayrshire, were secured four 2-year-old "queys," all by Daniel of Auchenbrain and from "Flecky 4th", "Denty 8th", "Kirsty 5th", and "Bloomer", all of Auchenbrain. They are a promising lot.

QUERNSEYS.

The Guernseys secured were as follows: From England: Bull, "Golden Rule", fawn and white, bred by H. M. Ozanne Castel, Guernsey, bought from Sir H. D. Tichborne, Bt., Alresford, Hants. Calved Aug. 18, 1899; an animal of splendid form and great apparent worth.

Three cows were secured from Sir H. D. Tichborne, in addition to the bull, viz., "Lily of the Gachere", 5 years old; "Itchen Lady", 3 years old, and "Clatford Spot", 6 years old. These three cows have never been in the show ring, but all are good, strong cattle with good records as milkers.

From Guernsey Island were secured two cows and a calf—"Deanie IX.", fawn with white markings, dropped July 2, 1898, bred by M. McCulloch, Castel; sire, "Loyal des Hunguets," 973 P. S., dam. "Deanie" 1869 P. S. The cow "Deanie" is a most remarkable producer, and the daughter, "Deanie IX.," promises to equal her. Cow, "Homeria VII.," fawn, with white markings, calved Feb. 14, 1897, bred by A. Lepatourel La Ramee, St. Peter Port, Guernsey; sire, "Masher II.," 558 P. S.; dam, "Honoria 2nd," 2,243 P. S. "Honoria VII.," did splendidly with her first calf and is offering well with her second, a fine bull by "Francis Masher II," dropped on ship board.

SHROPSHIRES.

A Shropshire shearling ram was secured at the annual sale of T. S. Minton, Montford Bridge, Salop. This is one of the most famous ram-breeding flocks in Shropshire, and the ram secured was one of four toppers.

Five shearling ewes and four ewe lambs were secured from the recently dispersed flock of A. E. Mansell, at the now historic sale at Harrington Hall, Shipnal, where an average of over $43 was secured for shearling ewes, and over $165 for rams, some of which sold as high as $210.

PIGS.

A Berkshire boar and a gilt in young were secured from P. L. Mills, Ruddington Manor, Notts.

A large Yorkshire gilt in young was bought from the famous herd of Sanders Spencer, St. Ives, Hunts.

A Tamworth gilt of exceptional merit from the sow winner at the Royal last year, and by the boar winner at the Royal two years ago, was also imported. She was in young.

Four pigs, two boars and two gilts, of the south of England breed, "Large Blacks," were brought over to test the value of this breed as bacon producers in Canada. This is supposed to be the first importation of the breed to America.

POULTRY.

The Salmon Faverolles, two trios of which were brought over, are a French breed said to be the result of crossing Dorkings on Houdans, and then crossing Light Brahmas on these cross-bred fowls. They are highly esteemed in France, and wherever tried in England for their superior fattening qualities and the excellent quality of their flesh.

The Buff Orpingtons are the favorite breed in the north of England, and appear to be one peculiarly well fitted to the needs of the Canadian farmer as a meat and flesh producing bird.

GOLDWIN SMITH ON ANARCHISM

Theories Put Forth Regarding Anarchy.

Advocates the Teaching of Music—Great Difficulties in the Way—Prince Kropotkin—Law Deals Only With Overt Acts, Not With Thoughts.

The tragedy at Buffalo has naturally led to a general discusion of Anarchism, about which and the proper mode of dealing with it, pretty wild things are being said in the pulpit as well as in the press.

Anarchism is neither so new nor so isolated a phenomenon as seems by some to be supposed. Equality of happiness is not, or has not hitherto been, the law of the world. The unhappy are always apt to take inequality for injustice, and they are not perfectly consoled by having it pointed out to them that there is a natural misdistribution of gifts, or by any of the philosophic anodynes which satisfy us who are full of bread. There are in truth a good many to whom life in their circumstances is hardly worth living. Hence form time to time there have been violent insurrections against the social system, such as the Jacquerie, the insurrection of Wat Tyler, the rising of the Anabaptists, the movement of the Levellers. For such disturbances we must look and either make the social state, if we can, more just, or strengthen the detective police. Popular education has increased the sensibility of the suffering classes, and the contrast between conditions has of late become strikingly sharp.

Again, Anarchism is only one of a number of movements at the present day the object of which is not merely the reform of particular abuses, but the fundamental reconstruction of society. Of these, Socialism in its various forms and with its various degrees of violence from the mild Fabian to the by no means mild Socialist of Italy, is one. Communism is another, and, as France knows to her cost, an extremely energetic species. A third is Anarchism, which, deeming the whole of our organization, political and social, desperately and irredeemably evil, seeks totally to destroy it, and madly invokes chaos. Nihilism is Russian Anarchism provoked by the corruption of that government and fed, it seems, from a multitude of students, sons, many of them of an ill-endowed clergy for whom there is no opening in life. Anarchism, however, is not merely a paroxysm. It has a theory. There are gentle and philosophic as well as desperate Anarchists. Kropotkin is gentle as a lamb. He sincerely believes that human nature is radically good, and to show its goodness only needs release from the unnatural restraints of laws and government. In his own case his theory may be true. His Anarchism is closely akin to the vision of Shelley embodied in "The Revolt of Islam."

A correspondent of the London Times, apparently, from the place of honor accorded him, a man of mark, thinks that Anarchism is to be ascribed to the loss of the restraining influence of religion, and hints that a theological reaction would be the cure. If his meaning is that the loss of the religious conscience and of the prospect of retribution in a future life is very serious, and that the moral world is going through a dangerous transition, undoubtedly he is right. If he would have us, without sincere belief in religion, set it up again for the purpose of police, he is only laying up for us wrath against the day of wrath, and we must tell him that there is no salvation for us but in truth, let the truth be as fraught with peril at the time as it may. If he thinks that superstition is an effectual cure for the tendency to political assassination, let him look into his Mariana or Suarez. Let him consider whether there is any lack of superstition in Jacques Clement, Balthazar Gerard, Ravaillac, or Guy Fawkes. The perpetrators of the massacre of St. Bartholomew were eminently devout.

Those people will surely be some day ashamed of themselves who, on account of a single murder, however detestable and deplorable, are crying out for curtailment of political liberty or restriction of freedom of speech and of the press. What Anarchism is more complete or worse than arbitrary power in the hands of an autocrat who sets at defiance the higher law of justice and humanity? What is it but Anarchism when one despot sends out an order to leave no Chinaman that can stand alive; and another allows his soldiers to down an innocent peasantry by thousands and split babies on their bayonets? What Anarchism can be worse than that of the Turkish Empire, with its Bulgarian atrocities and its Armenian massacres, which all these powers of order are conspiring to uphold?

The Yellow Press is not salutary or lovely. Perhaps its reign may not last very long. The greatest fool grows at length suspicious of reckless falsehood, the coarsest taste becomes tired at taste of garlic. But how are you to define "Yellow?" Where are you to draw the line? You must have freedom or a censorship; and one strong reason for perfering freedom is that, as experience has shown, under a censorship you are sure to have an illicit press exceeding the worst productions of freedom in malignity. Besides what had any section of the American press to do with the cosmopolitan conspiracy of which an Anarchist is a limb? How much had any press to do with Booth's revenge, or with the disappointment and acrimony of Guiteau?

Folly or worse than folly reached its height when the report, utterly unfounded, we may trust, that the assassin of the president had been tortured was received by some of the people, not only without abhorrence, but with glee. There was talk, too, of lynching. If lynching is to be countenanced, we ought not to be shocked beyond measure by political murder. Suppose a negro, after seeing his son or his brother burned alive, had shot somebody in authority whom he imagined to be responsible, he would be very properly arrested and hanged. But would it be easy to prove to him that he ought to repent?

Confinement of all Anarchists in an island under international guard is another of the proposals which bespeak the excitement of the time. Can you deport every man of dark and dangerous temperament who is caught brooding over the iniquities of the social state? More rational, and really about the most practical, as it seems to me, of all the extraordinary remedies that have been suggested, is an extension of the teaching of music in our schools. Music is moral education, as the Greek lawgivers knew. Shakespeare's judgment is too sweeping. Johnson, a first-class Tory, had no music in his soul, and Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, in character seraphic, owned that the only music which he could enjoy was that of a drum. But the converse is probably true with few exceptions. A man with music in his soul is not likely to play Ravaillac or Guy Fawkes.

RELIEF BEYOND DESCRIPTION

What Sergt. Ramage of the First Contingent Says About "Foot Elm."

There is wonderful unanimity of opinion among the soldiers returned from South Africa about the merits of "Foot Elm." It seems to be the best they ever discovered for sore, swollen, sweaty, scalded feet. Read what Sergt. Ramage says:

"I do not suppose that I can tell you anything about the merits of Foot Elm that you do not already know, but I would like you to know how much your remedy was appreciated by the troops in South Africa. All the boys were loud in their praises of it, and they well might be, for the relief it afforded was beyond description. I never knew anything to equal it for preventing scalding, swelling and chafing of the feet and keeping them cool, comfortable and free from odor.

Sweeping Liberal Victory in Nova Scotia.

The provincial general election for Nova Scotia took place on Wednesday.

The decisiveness of the Liberal victory may best be understood when we say that out of 38 seats in the Local Legislature of the Province, 36 have been carried by the Liberals!

Nearly all the Liberal candidates were elected by large majorities, and in at least five constituencies the Conservative candidates will lose their deposits.

The Liberal party at present is strongly in evidence, not alone in the Dominion Parliament, but in almost every Provincial Legislature. As for the Dominion, at the next House of Commons election the Ontario Liberals will go into it with the gerrymander that so long bound them hand and foot repealed and cast aside.

The Liberal victory in Nova Scotia is a sore blow to Mr. R. L. Borden, the Opposition leader in the Dominion Parliament, who organized and conducted the campaign against the Local Government. The result is a blow also to Mr. Borden's prestige as a Dominion leader in the Province of Ontario. It is well known that Mr. Clarke Wallace and Mr. W. F. MacLean vigorously protested against the theory that Mr. Borden as Dominion leader would be the right man in the right place. This result in Mr. Borden's own Province will be held to verify the adverse opinion as to Mr. Borden's suitability for the position.

The provincial general election next to be held is that of Ontario, which must take place, at the latest, by say June next. We do not expect, nor do we desire for Premier Ross a sweep of victory in the proportion of thirty-six to two, but we have no doubt the Liberal majority in this Province will be of a character so very substantial that Mr. Ross and his colleagues can go forward with firm footsteps in the development both of New and of Old Ontario.

In view of the result in Nova Scotia, we are inclined to think there will be fewer taunts against Premier Ross to the effect that he is afraid to bring on the provincial general election for this Province.

World Powers—Why Not World Brothers?

The Advertiser has always contended that a genuinely cordial relationship between Great Britain and the United States is a matter of the highest importance in the interests of mankind. The recent outburst of British sympathy, at once sincere and spontaneous, in connection with the death of President McKinley, has not been unnoted by the great newspapers of the United States. The following reference in the Chicago Tribune is not at all gushing, but none the less noteworthy. Our influential contemporary says:

"At the time of President McKinley's funeral, the cable dispatches from England commented upon the deep and widespread interest shown in the sad event by the daily and weekly press of Great Britain, but the recent arrival of these papers by mail brings a more thorough realization of the breadth of this kindly sympathy. The tributes paid to Mr. McKinley are remarkable for their extent and unfeigned sincerity. The London Times devoted more than twenty columns to the tragedy on the day after the President's death, and the tribute of black column rules was paid to him as to the death of an English statesman. The Spectator also had its first page in complete mourning, and it devoted its leading article to President McKinley and another long one to the new president. Both articles are noteworthy for their sane and intelligent appreciation of the men and their achievements. The Saturday Review devoted its leader to 'Mr. McKinley's Political Legacy,' in which it commented upon his Buffalo speech advocating reciprocity. This utterance plays a prominent part in all the English discussions of the change in American executives. London Truth devotes a column of its first page to a memorial poem on William McKinley, printed in black borders and written in excellent taste. In all the papers the political career and policy of the dead President are discussed with candid disapproval of our protective tariff, but with equally candid appreciation of the wisdom of Mr. McKinley's policy from the American viewpoint. Appreciation for the sterling qualities of President Roosevelt is exhibited with the same intelligent discernment. It is evident that in the last decade the British press has been studying American politics and public men with more interest and respect than ever before. Interest in the reciprocity programme outlined in the Buffalo speech is as keen in Great Britain as in America."

Life in the Yukon.

Writing in the Canadian Magazine, Henry J. Woodside says: "The administration of justice in Dawson is the admiration of foreigners. Canadians are naturally proud of it, but take it as a matter of course. * * * Life and property are as safe in this city as in any other city in Canada. It is a wonderful contrast to the condition of mining towns in the United States."

To the demand that aliens should be permitted to share the municipal government of the Yukon capital, the writer fittingly retorts:

"Inasmuch as British subjects are not allowed either to vote in any elections, or to stake mining property in the neighboring territory of Alaska, the plea does not come well. Moreover, British subjects who are to remain permanently in Canada are better qualified to say who are the best people to govern the city. The Americans can push a city best, but Canadians can govern it better than they, and we do not want any wide-open place here like those in Alaska, or even such a place as Seattle, where many of our miners are robbed of their gold dust in a manner that would not be tolerated in Dawson."

All of which is interesting reading in view of Sir C. H. Tupper's exploded charges, which, by the way, were inspired by those alien mischief-makers, who had no use for any government or government official who would not "work to their hands."

The Columbia is a good boat. So is the Shamrock. But the Columbia is a little the best.

Talks on Writing English.

"TALKS ON WRITING ENGLISH," by Arlo Bates; cloth; 260 pages. Publishers, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

This book is made up from material used in a course of lectures delivered on the subject of English composition. The author defines composition as the art of communicating ideas to others. Little need be said regarding the importance of such a subject. The ability to express oneself on paper in a forceful and unmistakable manner is not so common as to be little prized. Mr. Bates treats his subject under the following heads: The use of participles and gerunds, particles parallel construction; the topic sentence; paragraphs; the point of view; exposition, description and narration; dialogue; punctuation. The work contains also two very interesting chapters on letter-writing and the literary life.

The author handles his subject in a unique manner, quite different from the ordinary text-book on English composition. There is not a dull page in the book, and as for the customary rules that are conspicuous in a work of this nature, they are so few as to interfere in no way with the interest of the book.

Regarding literature, Arlo Bates speaks as follows: "Literature is a great creative art. The muse, however she may have been decried, and however many charlatans have injured her reputation by masking her garments is goddess-born. The real question is whether a writer serves the real goddess or is earning wages in the service of some pretender. Men who are the most mercenary hacks are angry if they are not regarded of the priesthood; and for these be neither tolerance nor respect. To those who look upon literature as a service and a high trust belongs the right to feel themselves apart from the servants of the material side of life; and they will recognize the reward lies not in praise, but in being; not in outer, but in inner gain."

The new work, notwithstanding the fact that there is no royal road to literary ability, will be found highly suggestive, and will doubtless prove a valuable correction to questionable habits already formed by many writers.

An Advantage.

[Boston Herald.]

We think Theodore Roosevelt will make a better president as the successor to William McKinley than he would have made if he had been chosen president by the people. This because the character of the one president may be expected to modify in operation that of the other. There is exactly the sobering effect upon Roosevelt that was needed in his entering the presidency in this way.

The Trailing Skirt.

[The Hospital.]

We lately watched the gradual conveyance, from the neighborhood of Regent street circus, Oxford street, to the door of the Langham Hotel, of an inexpressibly filthy piece of newspaper covered with grime and saturated with grease, which had probably been used to wrap up the broken victuals of some tramp, and had been discarded by him when that office had been fulfilled. No less than five skirts were required for the indicated journey, and we much regretted that a more important engagement prevented us from devoting an hour or so to the fuller travels of the derelict.

The Country Editor.

[Owen Sound Advertiser.]

In retiring from the editorship of the Richmond Guardian after 40 years of service, Mr. W. E. Jones has published a valedictory in which he states that he has carried the same conscience into his work that a clergyman uses in the ministry, and that often his policy has resulted in personal loss. There is probably no editor in the country who does not forfeit gain by refusing to comply with requests made of him. The press of the country would be a poor thing, indeed if editors went after money and cared for nothing else.

The Power of the Press.

[New York Tribune.]

It is not too much to say that journalism has been revolutionized since the birth of the Tribune and the Times, and, while some of its developments have been regrettable, its movement on the whole has been constantly upward and onward. It has, indeed, become the greatest single force in modern life, and in a sense it may be said to be the maker as well as the chronicler of history. It covers the whole field of human thought and activity, and either directly or indirectly does the thinking for a large segment of the human race. It enlists in its service men of intellectual light and leading, and in its mechanical equipment its progress has been little less than marvelous. Such being the case, the press, whether individually or in the aggregate, is a tremendous power either for good or evil.

The Noise Nuisance.

[Boston Herald.]

The streets had in 1801 no pavements, but now stone and asphalt, with the heavy teams which their presence makes possible, cause the air to be filled with a constant tremor of rough sounds. Our electric cars have a noisy jar in their progress, added to which is the more or less constant sound of loud gongs. The vehicles having a high rate of speed, such as the various types of automobiles, have disturbing noises to indicate their coming, and the same holds true of such special services as ambulance wagons and the pieces of apparatus of the fire department. The quiet of the central city during a Sunday, or at midnight on week days, was practically the normal condition three generations ago. The introduction of what are termed the methods and conveniences of civilization have produced noises, and the question may fairly be asked, under these conditions, how far noise can be penalized as something which the public should not tolerate.

The New York Times.

[Washington Star.]

On the 18th of last month the New York Times was 50 years old. It had prepared, in commemoration of that event, a handsome souvenir edition, the publication of which, however, was postponed in deference to the great grief of the nation, caused by the death of President McKinley. The issue has now been made, and the Times stands forth acknowledged of its years, and the recipient of many earnest congratulations. There are few newspapers in the United States so worthy of success as the New York Times. From the outset of its career it has stood for decent journalism. It has appealed always to the best impulses of the community and its influence has steadfastly been for good. Its editors and managers have held firmly to its high standards, even in the midst of metropolitan temptations toward "yellowism," and the Times today is a living rebuke to the sensationalism which has debauched so many exponents of the press. And it is the more notable of high-class journalism because of the fact that it has thrived in its virtue, and according to its announcement, "it has now a larger circulation, a larger income from advertising, and is more prosperous than at any time in the 50 years of its history." May the Times' motto, "All the news that's fit to print," never fade from its present conspicuous place in the American newspaper world.

STRIKE IMPENDING

Involving 6,000 Employes of the New York and Scranton Coal Co.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 3.—A strike of the men employed in all the mines of the New York and Scranton Coal Company, controlled by the New York, Ontario and Western Railway, is threatened today. By it 6,000 employes would be made idle. On Tuesday 700 men struck at the Pine Rock shaft against workingmen who could not show their union cards. When these men obtained cards the committee reported all ready for work, but General Superintendent Breedin kept the mine closed, locking the men out. The executive board of District No. 1, United Mine Workers, is in session considering the matter.

Nine Months' Failures.

IN THE UNITED STATES.

New York, Oct. 4.—Failures in the United States, reported by R. G. Dun & Co, for the nine months of 1901 number 8,144, with an aggregate indebtedness of $97,856,416. In the same month of 1900 the number was slightly smaller, 7,895, but the amount of liabilities was much heavier, $133,234,988. Subtracting the 61 failures of banking and other fiduciary institutions, with liabilities of $17,205,554, the defaults in strictly commercial channels were 6,083 in number and $80,560,862 in amount, against 7,851, in number and $101,867,446 in amount last year.

There were 1,906 failures of manufacturing concerns, with an indebtedness of $32,758,437, against 1,759 for $37,220,855 last year, and 5,842 traders suspended, owing $35,220,511, against 5,694 last year for $39,564,781. In other commercial lines, not properly included above, there were 435 failures for $11,481,914, against 398 in 1900, owing $25,079,812. Thus it appears that despite more numerous small failures in each of the four classes, the aggregate indebtedness was lighter in every case than in 1900.

IN CANADA.

The number of failures in Canada for the nine months were 1,000 against 1,024 last year and $8,137,327 in amount, against $9,929,251 in 1900. The small decrease in number was mainly in manufacturing, although that class showed an increase in liabilities, while the better showing as to amount appeared in trading and miscellaneous commercial failures.

Mr. Goldwin Smith's Advice to Normal Students.

Some Defects in the System of State Education—Comparison of Novels Past and Present—An Address by Hon. Mr. Harcourt.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—The feature of the opening session of the Normal School Tuesday morning was the address by Mr. Goldwin Smith. The eminent scholar, who spoke without notes, in a delightfully reminiscent strain, touched upon his earlier connection with Oxford University, referred to the system of popular education, and discussed briefly the literature of the past and present. Principal Scott presided, and on the platform with him were Hon. Mr. Harcourt, Mr. John Miller, Vice-Principal Elliott and Mr. Smith.

After a few remarks from the principal, Mr. Harcourt addressed the students. He welcomed them to the class room of the Normal School, and hoped that they would avail themselves most earnestly of the opportunities found there. The profession of which they were about to become members was a most important and honorable one, having a direct bearing on the well-being of the whole community. The problem was, how should they equip themselves for the work appertaining to it? He would follow only one line of thought in discussing this question. It was certainly now the case, whatever it might have been in the past, that no teacher could afford to be without his or her own library, however small, of well-selected books. There were several books which he would like to call to their attention, and which he had found of great value and interest; books which he had read more than once, and to which he still turned in moments of leisure, with keen pleasure. First of these was "The Life of Lord Garrison"; the second, "The Political History of the United States"; the third, "The United Kingdom," and, lastly, "Oxford and Her Colleges." No teacher should be without these. They were masterpieces of the English language, and their author, Mr. Goldwin Smith, was present today.

A ROYAL PUPIL.

Mr. Smith, in his opening remarks, said he had come to that time of life, when lecturing, addresses and speech-making were all laid aside, and he was afraid he had nothing but his sympathy to offer them. He could not offer them any advice or instruction; those they had in full measure, and the responsibility of acceptance rested upon themselves. Men, he continued, were never tired of speaking of the immense progress of this age, which had been called, perhaps not very historically, "the Victorian era." Education, he thought, had kept full pace with every other branch of knowledge and effort, and had become almost a science, though, of course, neither teaching nor training, nor the most excellent apparatus could convey to them (the students) those moral qualities so essential for successful teachers. Mr. Harcourt had referred to his (the speaker's) connection with Oxford University. "As professor of history there," said Mr. Smith, "I had one interesting and delightful pupil, our present King. (Applause.) While he was at Oxford I used to lecture to him privately, on history, and afterwards had to go and examine him. He never allowed me to see that he was bored, and the King who could be bored by a professor without showing that he was bored—(laughter)—should be quite able to listen to a municipal address." (Renewed laughter.)

POPULAR EDUCATION.

It was idle, he continued, for him to dwell upon the importance of the calling of the students before him. In a country like Canada, virtually a republic, it was absolutely indispensable. Absolute monarchy might dispense with popular education, but no self-governing country could escape anarchy without it. He was once a member of the commission appointed by the British Government to take up and report upon the scheme of popular education, and remembered quite well Mr. Lowe's cynical remark: "We are educating our masters." He (Mr. Smith) confessed, however, that the thing which reconciled him to a system of state education was his confidence in the family rather than in the state. The day might come when the state would be a power entirely wise and magnificent, raised above all factions of people, and more like a divine being. But at present political interests were paramount and could not be denied. Of course it was extremely difficult to make the public school a center of moral training, and people are beginning to complain because of that, and he was not surprised to note a tendency to claim state aid for private schools provided they attain a certain standard. He was afraid that the tendency of the present system was to diminish the interest of parents in their children. "What is quite certain, however," he concluded on this point, "is that we have the system and must keep it."

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

Mr. Harcourt's remarks on private libraries had, he continued, pleased him greatly. In looking after the training of their pupils, teachers had to be careful in keeping up their own culture, hence the need of a careful selection of good books. A thorough knowledge of one good book of real importance was worth a great deal more than a superficial knowledge of twenty great authors. (Applause.) Those who lived in Toronto and other cities, and in some of the larger towns, had easy access through the libraries to a great number of books, but there was nothing to approach the pleasure of a library of their own selection. It was easy to form such a library in these days, when books were so cheap and the classics could be purchased for so small a sum. Philosophy sounded somewhat severe, but he would advise them to read Bacon. In history they should read Macaulay, who was almost unapproached in brilliancy of style. Only, in reading him, it was well to remember that he was a little too cocksure. (Laughter.) Lord Kelvin had once remarked: "I wish I was as cocksure of anything as Macaulay is of everything." (Renewed laughter.) Knight's History of England was recommended by Mr. Smith as a trustworthy, impartial and well-written work. Of course, there were histories of a higher school: Freeman, most learned and most accurate: Froude, more picturesque and less accurate. There was Gardner, who dealt well with the period of Charles I., and Lecky's admirable works.

THE POETS.

Of the poets, Chaucer, who began the line of English poets and saw the dawn of English poetry, should be read, though more as a matter of study.

Then there was Shakespeare. "Read him and re-read him, over and over again," said Mr. Smith; "you can never waste an hour devoted to the reading of Shakespeare." Two men towered above all others as poets, Shakespeare and Homer. On the whole he thought Homer ranked above his great rival. He wished he could give them real access to Homer, but unless they knew Greek that was impossible. The nearest approach they could get in the English language to Homer was Scott's Marmion. Pope and Grey were also referred to.

He had lately been reading again from Burns, Wordsworth and Shelley. The former, he thought, was on the whole too careless in his writing to class with the other two. Wordsworth published a great deal that was not more than ordinary. Shelley was a classic now, but he was a revolutionist, and had he lived in these days would probably have been ranked as an Anarchist, not of the class that resorted to murder, but of the class that protested against the restraints of law and order. Tennyson, of course, was a remarkable poet, not only because of his mastery of the art, but also because of his standing in science and philosophy.

NOVELS PAST AND PRESENT.

The world, continued Mr. Smith, was full of novels. They came out in numbers every two or three days. He could not tell them much about the modern novels, though he ranked "Treasure Island" and "King Solomon's Mines" among the good ones. The works of Fielding and men of that class, though good, had a robust and coarse morality. He had greatly enjoyed the works of Jane Austen. She was a female Shakespeare, possessing to a remarkable regree the power of giving life to the fictitious characters in her works, and perfect dramatic art. Her creation, "Emma," was a perfect portrait of the English lady in the days when her novels were popular. Mr. Smith was afraid that Scott was not read now, but "The Antiquary," "The Bride of Lammermoor" and "Old Mortality" were well worth reading. The historical novels of Scott were more or less inaccurate. Historical novels generally falsified history, and Scott falsified hardly less than others. His best novels were those dealing with his own time, and he (Mr. Smith) had read them with great delight. Scott, he added, was a real nobleman, a perfect gentleman.

Of Thackeray, Mr. Smith said: "I used to see him, we were together often. He is supposed to be cynical, and I do not suppose he is entirely free from it, but at the bottom he is a very good fellow."

For Dickens, he continued, he had a great regard. He had given the world a thorough laugh and sweetened the breath of society. His characters were more or less caricatures, with life at the bottom of them. "I do not think," he said, "of a better religious exercise than the reading of Dickens' 'Christmas Carols.'" He warned his hearers, however, against promiscuous and continuous novel reading. The selections should be carefully made, and novel reading should not be too freely indulged in. It was pernicious, seductive at the time, no doubt, but was sure to impair the mental abilities.

"You ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Smith in conclusion, "are setting forth in the bright hopeful morning of life. I have come near its close and am looking back upon it. You are gazing, no doubt, with inquiring and wistful eyes into the veil beyond which is the future. It is my hope that when the veil rises it will disclose a future of happiness." (Applause.)

Principal Scott expressed hearty appreciation of Mr. Smith's kindness in attending the opening session and delivering so interesting an address, and the proceedings closed.

THE UNIVERSITY AND BUSINESS

Our Canadian Universities Should Aim To Be Practical.

The Example of the German Universities — Oxford and Cambridge— No Great Change in Academic Work Required.

[Dr. Wickett in Canadian Magazine.]

The introduction of commercial teachings at universities is a recognition of the growing claims of business upon trained ability. That the professions alone called for a liberal education is an old view rapidly giving ground. The exigencies of commerce, especially of international commerce, in the wonderful proportions it has assumed during the last twenty years, and the universal interest with which its course is followed have raised a commercial career to a new plane of dignity and responsibility. This result is certainly in no small measure an outcome of the ethical view of business whose moderating influence is happily beginning more and more to tell.

I do not refer here so much to technical education popularly so-called, as to something broader and more advanced in which one studies not merely the laws of prduction, but the manifold laws of distribution as well: commercial geography and industrial history; wages and prices; tariffs and transportation; banking; modern languages and commercial law, besides some of the natural sciences. The phrases commercial course and business course have too long been synonymous with something good as far as it goes and extremely useful, but something not at all suggestive of a liberal education. We shall have to revise our phrases.

University instruction on theoretical business subjects, it must not be forgotten, does not imply necessarily a great change in academic work. For business men can already find much work of interest to them in the curricula of our larger universities. It means in most cases chiefly the grouping of selected lectures into a definite course of study, along with some slight modification of detailed work, with perhaps an additional topic or two to be lectured upon. We have here, in the main, merely a change of attitude between universities and public, and public and universities.

Commercial education seeks to train the mental faculties and to impart certain kinds of knowledge most serviceable in business. The habit "of using one's head," of observing quickly, keenly and accurately, and of reflecting on facts observed, of putting facts together, and asking the reason for them, is something precious in all walks of life. In the shifting conditions of commerce this means a faculty and habit quite as valuable as in any profession. Some people too readily imagine, as already observed that business is an easier sort of occupation than a profession and demands less active minds. Moreover, in this social age it is not to be forgotten that the well-educated, able and alert business man has open to him exceptional possibilities, not alone for commercial success, but also for exerting a helping influence within his sphere.

This question of higher commercial training leads us to ask as to the relation of universities to the general intellectual life round about them. A peculiarity of German universities, for example, is the fact that they form the active centers of German scientific thought. Oxford and Cambridge, on the other hand, constitute a life almost apart from the main current ebbing and flowing near them. The two great English universities have indeed their work to perform, and they are performing it. It is being left to the other universities, such as Glasgow and Victoria and Birmingham, and others, to come more directly in touch withe everyday life. As for a young country like Canada, it seems as if the mission of a university can, for a considerable time to come at least, be none other than to provide for the teaching of all the main departments of knowledge and skill in a philosophic spirit and upon scientific methods.

In providing such a training the influence of universities will be extended in an important respect. For, as is clear to all, the world is coming to look more and more to the trained commonsense and broad social sympathy of its business men. As for Canada, whose export trade is now rapidly developing, it remains to be seen to what extent those equipping themselves for a commercial life will take advantage of the increased and increasing facilities for a business education.

Remarks About Women.

I believe the Creator called together all the omnipotent powers when he made woman! I believe she is the crowning masterpiece of all nature. I love woman because she is a woman. Behind every great accomplishment of man, you will find the prompting influence of a woman. All women would be good if the corrupting hand of man had not made some of them bad. The man who belittles all women condemns his own sex. It is the man who, somewhere in past generations, has planted the seeds of wickedness, or else he planted them in his own time. Show me a human being who wears trousers, and hates all women, and I'll show you a male monster who is not a man.

Women are the great comforters in the time of pain and sickness. They are more practical as well as more gentle than men. Women investigate while men scoff. Women try things and see for themselves. More Hutch is bought by women than men; but I notice after a wife gets a bottle of it in the house, it doesn't take the husband long to put it to use. If he has a headache, heartburn, dizziness, pains in the stomach caused by indigestion or dyspepsia, or if he feels bad in any way, many a man can thank his lucky stars that his wife had the good sense to investigate Hutch, and then keep it in the house.—The Man From Indiana.

Amusements.

"A LION'S HEART" TOMORROW.

"A Lion's Heart," which was so favorably received on its former presentation in this city, is said to possess more literary merit and dramatic worth than any similar piece. Carl A. Haswin, probably the strongest and most capable romantic actor that has appeared in melodrama for years, plays the leading role. The prologue shows the dressing tent of a circus, a scene never before attempted on the stage, and as the four succeeding acts are laid in France and New Caledonia, there is ample opportunity for picturesque settings, which is well taken advantage of by the management. "A Lion's Heart" will be at the New Grand tomorrow (Saturday) for matinee and night performances.

MORRISON AS MEPHISTO.

Sir Henry Irving's production of "Faust" was considered the acme of stage realism until Lewis Morrison decided to return to the stage in his creation of Mephisto, with a production that surpasses all previous efforts. Morrison put out money freely, and the result can be seen at the New Grand on Wednesday, Oct. 9, with Lewis Morrison himself as Mephisto. The production has called forth approval and admiration from the most prominent critics of the country.

THREE TUNEFUL DITTIES.

There are three songs in the new comic opera, "Dolly Varden," which will be produced at the New Grand on Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, that are pretty sure to set London pople whistling and humming for weeks. They are "The Cannibal Maid," "The Lay of the Jay," (both of which will be sung by Miss Glaser), and "Run About the Town a Bit," (to be sung by Miss Glaser and Mr. Van Rensselaer Wheeler. There are several concerted numbers in "Dolly Varden" that are just as sure to tickle the ears of music-lovers as are the songs. Mr. F. C. Whitney, the manager, and Messrs. Stange and Edwards, respectively author and composer of "Dolly Varden," will accompany the party. "Dolly Varden" has made a complete conquest of both Toronto and Montreal, and it is quite sure that the music-lovers of London will not be able to resist her charms. A special matinee is announced for Saturday, Oct. 12 (Duke of Cornwall and York's Day).

THE ORPHEUM SHOW.

Lovers of high-class vaudeville are assured a special treat in the coming of the Orpheum Show, from Shea's Toronto and Buffalo theaters, to the New Grand Opera House, Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 7 and 8. This now famous organization brings to its patrons a choice and most select variety of talent. Heading the list are the favorite comedians, McIntyre and Heath, in a new skit, entitled "The Man from Montana;" Joe Welch, delineator of Hebrew characters, in a realistic sketch called "The Study From Life;" Elizabeth Murray, comedienne, in songs an stories; the Aglos Trio, one of the latest importations from Europe in equilibristic feats; Sturgeon and Engleton, the travesty stars, presenting the famous war scene from "Virginius;" Mr. W. C. Fields, the eccentric juggler and the Serenaders, in operatic selections.

A LONDON OPERA HOUSE.

Tonight an interesting and novel feature will be put on after the performance at the London Opera House, when an amateur contest will be held, and some twelve local persons will compete for a prize of $5 in gold, offered by the management. Those who witness the performance tonight are promised at least value, in variety and laughter, if not merit, for their money. A bargain matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon at 2:30, and on Saturday night "Kathleen Mavourneen" will be presented. The Burrill Company have made a hit in London, each performance being characterized by an artistic production, the plays being mounted and staged, complete in detail. Vaudeville specialties between each act make a big show for small money.

Work of Dodd's Kidney Pills Progressing Rapidly in the Territories.

Blairmore, Alberta, N. W. T., Sept. 30.—Special.—Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most useful and widely used medicine in the Northwest. They have produced more genuine results than any other remedy ever introduced here. They cure the common ailments, which can nearly all be traced to the kidneys, from a pimple to Bright's Disease.

Walter H. A. Noble, of this place, is an example. His face was covered with pimples. He, of course, tried all sorts of remedies, but until he took Dodd's Kidney Pills for Backache the pimples remained. His blood was impure. The kidneys were not straining it.

On using Dodd's Kidney Pills for Backache, as everybody does in this district, the Backache not only left him, but the Pimples disappeared also, proving the cause of both complaints was the same—Kidney Disease.

The electrical motor business is increasing $150,000,000 a year in the United States.

THERE IS ONLY ONE ECLECTRIC OIL.—When an article, be it medicine or anything else, becomes popular, imitations invariably spring up to derive advantages from the original, which they themselves could never win on their own merits. Imitations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil have been numerous, but never successful. Those who know the genuine are not put off with a substitute, but demand the real thing.

IN NATURE'S STOREHOUSE THERE ARE CURES.—Medical experiments have shown conclusively that there are medicinal virtues in even ordinary plants growing up around us, which give them a value that cannot be estimated. It is held by some that Nature provides a cure for every disease which neglect and ignorance have visited upon man. However this may be, it is well known that Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, distilled from roots and herbs, are a sovereign remedy in curing all disorders of the digestion.

Anyone troubled with boils, pimples, rashes, festering sores, or any chronic or malignant skin disease, should use Burdock Blood Bitters externally and take internally. It will cure where others fail.

AN INDIAN PRESENT FOR THE DUCHESS

Royal Visitors Had a Quiet Day at Victoria.

Superb Moving Castle in Which the Duke and Duchess Are Traversing Canada From Ocean to Ocean.

AN OFF DAY.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 3.—The duke and duchess have had an off day, the first since a week ago Sunday. They took a run in Admiral Bickford's launch down to the gorge, embarking from the Point Ellice Bridge, and were later driven home along the coast. The weather was glorious. A call was made on Mrs. Dunsmuir, wife of the premier, and in the afternoon the royal couple informally visited the Royal Victoria Jubilee Hospital, erected in honor of the late queen's golden jubilee of 1887, and opened by the Duke of Connaught, on his journey through Canada in 1890. The hospital is built on the pavilion plan, and is probably the finest institution of the kind that Canada boasts. The duke and duchess presented the hospital with their photographs, and signed their names on the visitors' book.

In the evening at 8:30 the royal party went on board the Empress of India, and after midnight sailed for Vancouver, accompanied by the warships stationed at Esquimalt. The celebration at Victoria must rank among the finest that the royal party has received in Canada.

UNIQUE GIFT FOR THE DUCHESS.

Vancouver, Oct. 3. — When the Empress of India arrives here the duke will meet the chiefs of the British Columbia coast Indians, and will reply to their address. Through a newspaper correspondent the Indians happened to hear that the duchess is very fond of Indian relics. The chiefs accordingly met, and, as they expressed it, decided to give "the daughter of the King the best we have got, the Kite-um-Shamorgat," or the "Hat of the Chiefs."

This head-dress belonging to Port Simpson Indians, is equivalent to the royal crown, and has been used by the chiefs for many generations, so long indeed that they have no record of its origin. It is very highly prized among Indians, and Rev. A. E. Green, interpreter, expressed surprise that they were willing to part with it, but they are so pleased at the duke's kindly reception of them and at his graciousness of meeting them again that they say, "We can only give the best we have to our King's daughter." The head-piece is worn as a crown, but is made of wood shaped after the style of a mask, with many quaint Indian carvings upon it.

A CONTRAST.

A contrast between the stage coach of our grandfathers and the superb royal train in which the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York are traveling Canada today is a timely illustration of the remarkable progress made in the last few years in the method and manner of transportation. This train, constructed for the royal party by the Canadian Pacific Railway, consists of nine coaches in all —a train seven hundred and thirty feet in length and weighing five hundred and ninety-five tons. It has been well pronounced by a magaine writer "a marvel of elegance"—the interior a revelation of the possibilities of luxury and comfort of modern railway travel." The car Cornwall shows the reception room, and is magnificently paneled in Circassian walnut, and carrying with it the look of extreme richness, and is all in admirable taste. Built specially for the duke and duchess, and in design and architecture to conform with the surroundings of the reception-room is a beautiful upright piano in Circassian walnut, made by the old firm of Heintzman & Co., a tribute to the enterprise and superior ability of this old and progressive firm of pianomakers. All the appointments of the reception room make it a picture of real elegance, and can be readily understood the intelligent curiosity of the Canadian people to see for themselves the royal train as it speeds its way from city to city.

OTTAWA'S DILEMMA.

Ottawa, Oct. 3. — A number of the aldermen and citizens may sign a note for $6,000 to pay for a part of the royal reception expenses in Ottawa. The city set aside $2,500 at the first of the year for the royal reception, and later on decided to add to this $7,500, making $10,000 in all. Ald. Lewis gave notice that he would issue a writ to prevent the city from spending the $7,500. Over $8,000 have been spent, and the city auditor will only credit audit accounts to the value of $2,500. If necessary to get the money at once without incurring an overdraft, a joint note may be issued by a number of the aldermen and members of the civic reception committee, and next year, when the legislature meets, that body will be asked to permit the city to take over the note. The proposal is being considered.

AT TORONTO.

The union station is being gaily decorated in honor of the royal party. Both the interior and exterior will be festooned with flags and bunting, and arranged with pictures, containing scenes emblematic of the industries of Canada. From the entrance on Front street through to the car platform a rich carpet will be laid. A permanent improvement has been added in the shape of a brand new carpet in the ladies' waiting room.

Plans were made by the Pan-American Exposion Company to show pictures of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York in the fireworks entertainment as one of the features of Toronto Day.

H. R. H. the Duchess of Cornwall and York has presented Lady Strathcona with a handsome gold bracelet, bearing her name, Victoria May, in diamonds.

THE DEPARTURE FROM VANCOUVER.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 3.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York bade farewell to Vancouver today. They came over from Victoria on the Empress of India this morning, escorted by five ships from the naval station at Esquimalt. The local militia turned out at the wharf as a guard of honor with a number of bands. By special direction of his royal highness, the Indian musicians were brought to him and he talked with them through an interpreter for half an hour, shaking hands with each, to the delight of the Indians, who wore animal skins, feathers, and had their faces painted. The party then entered their train.

An immense crowd gathered at the station to see the last of the royal party. The people pressed as near to the party as the ropes would permit, and cheered as the train moved out, all bands playing "God Save the King," the duke standing on the rear platform at salute, and the duchess bowing and smiling.

News Notes.

The industrial school at Joliette was completely destroyed by fire last night. The loss is estimated at about $80,000.

W. C. Hamilton, K.C., a prominent lawyer, and one of Regina's old timers, died Tuesday from an illness of a few days' duration.

The steamer M. M. Drake and her tow, the barge Michigan, succumbed to the fury of the northwest gale on Lake Superior, west of Vermillion Point. The crews were saved.

The Conservative Association tendered a banquet to J. P. Whitney, K.C., M.P.P., in George's Hall, Listowel, Wednesday evening. Upwards of 100 people sat down to the repast.

C. W. Duval, an Englishman, who has not long been in Canada, while groping around in his room in Toronto on Thursday, found what was apparently a whisky flask. He took a good drink before he discovered that he was swallowing carbolic acid. He may recover.

W. C. Edwards, M. P., and J. W. Cameron, of the W. C. Edwards Company, called on Mr. Robillard, Ottawa medical health officer, to get his advice as to what they should do to prevent smallpox getting a foothold in their shanties.

Just a Common Cold

Unpleasant, of course, but consider how many colds you have had within a short time, and you will find each attack is harder to dislodge than the last. That's the way catarrh begins, and very often catarrh is consumption's first bow to a future victim. You should have Catarrhozone on hand; in a few minutes the cold would be relieved, and in a few hours it would be entirely gone. Besides being the best remedy for catarrh, bronchitis and colds, Catarrhozone is the most pleasant and convenient to use. You inhale its balsamic vapor, which is carried by the air breathed into the throat, lungs and nasal passages, and it quickly cures. Druggists sell Catarrhozone in two sizes, 25 cents and $1. Try it. THE SLAUGHTER AT MOEDWILL!

Twenty-Six British Officers Put Out of Action.

Four Killed and Twenty-Two Wounded—Movements of the Boer Leader Smuts.

London, Oct. 4.—The latest South African casualty list shows that the fighting in the attack on Col. Kekewich's camp, at Moedwill, Sept. 29, put twenty-six British officers out of action. Four were killed outright or died of wounds, and twenty-two were wounded. Col. Kekewich was wounded severely, but he is doing well.

SMUT'S MOVEMENTS.

The Boer commandant, Smuts, is moving in the direction of Grahamstown, 106 miles from Port Elizabeth. Several British columns are in touch with him.

BULLER WON'T TALK.

London, Oct. 4.—The Yorkshire Post says that one of the corrrespondents called Gen. Sir Redvers Buller's attention to the persistent reports that after the battle of Colenso he (Buller) heliographed to Gen. White, the commander at Ladysmith, which was at that time besieged by the Boers, to destroy his stores and make the best terms possible for the surrender of the 12,000 British troops there. In reply to the correspondent, Gen. Bulller said he was unable to depart from his rule not to answer that charge.

SAFEGUARDING REFUGEES.

Bloemfontein, Oct. 3.—In order to safeguard returning refugees armored trains are patroling the lines of communication passing through the temporarily disturbed district. Telephonic communication with the blockhouses connecting Kimberley and Norvalspont has been completed and the construction of the lines is being continued through the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal. The Orange River Colony is now cleared of railway wreckage caused by the war. The damaged rolling stock is being repaired in workshops in the Transvaal, and as soon as it is in order it is dispatched to facilitate traffic.

BOERS IN KHAKI.

Small bands of Boers have lately been seen in the Hex Mountains. They were dressed in khaki, and some of them wore British officers' uniforms. Fifty-three Boer prisoners were brought here yesterday.

The constabulary have dispersed a band of Boers who were maurading among the natives north of Johannesburg. They recaptured a number of Kaffir cattle from the burghers. The Rand district is comparatively free of armed Boers. There is one band still west of Zauurfontein.

WOMEN WORKERS' SPLENDID WORK.

Gratifying Condition Revealed at Annual Meeting

Of Woman's Christian Association—Interesting Reports Submitted—Officers Elected.

The Woman's Christian Association held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon, and besides transacting the routine yearly business, received a number of interesting reports.

That of Mrs. M. M. Pattullo, secretary of the association, was quite encouraging. Many needed improvements and several necessary sanitary arrangements and comforts had been made to the house on Dundas street. Good work had been accomplished at the Refuge and Infants' Home among the young women. Several of them had found good places, where they would remain. On Oct. 1, 1900, in the Aged People's Home, there were 74 inmates; 28 had been admitted since, making a total of 102 cared for. Of these, 13 had died, or less than one-eighth of the number, which, considering the age of the people, was thought to be a low rate of mortality. In the Home for Incurables there had been 45 patients cared for; 22 of them had been admitted since Oct. 1, 1900, and 10 deaths had taken place, and, with transfers, 21 were in the institution at the present time. The relief committee had also done good work. Relief has been given only after careful investigation, and garments, blankets, etc., had been distributed to those who had been found in want and deserving of assistance. The association felt very grateful for the kind and considerate assistance accorded them in the past, and asking for a continuation of the same in the future.

The treasurer's report showed that during the year $18,639 18 had been spent, of which amount $453 59 was expended for relief of the city poor. The balance on hand is $3,139 96.

Reports of a satisfactory nature were received from the devotional committee, the improvement committee of the Home for Aged People and the relief committee.

During the year 10 adults and 19 children have been admitted to the Infants' Home, besides those in the home at that time; 7 adults and 10 children are in the home at the present time. The association felt grateful to all who have assisted in that branch of the work, but far more is needed, as that branch does not pay expenses. Donations in cash, food or clothing will be very acceptable.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Merchant; secretary, Mrs. Pattullo; treasurer, Mrs. Perrin; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Campbell.

KRUGER FAILING!

The Ex-President Growing Weaker Mentally and Physically---The Fight at Itala Lasted Nineteen Hours---Greatest Battle of the War.

The Hague, Oct. 4.—A. D. W. Wolmarans, of the Boer envoys, who has been visiting Mr. Kruger at Hilversum, found the mental condition of the former president of the Transvaal to be by no means satisfactory. Mr. Kruger is slowly growing weaker, physically and mentally. His slowness in reaching a decision on important questions is found to be a serious hindrance to those working in Europe in behalf of the Boer cause. At the slightest question regarding his health Mr. Kruger exhibits intense irritation and vehemently denies that anything is wrong. The approach of winter causes anxiety, as Mr. Kruger refuses to leave Holland.

According to a remark made by a prominent Boer, the former president's condition would long since been much worse if hatred of Great Britain did not nerve him to continue.

BOER'S 4,000 STRONG.

Durban, Oct. 3.—Later details show that Gen. Botha's full force of 4,000 men made the attack on Forts Prospect and Itala, in Zululand. The British fought magnificently against overwhelming odds for nineteen hours. The Boers were fearless, and fought desperately. They gained the summit of Itala repeatedly, but were repelled each time. It was probably the news that Gen. Bruce Hamilton was approaching that caused a cessation of the fighting. The Boers suffered heavily. Three hundred and thirty-two of their dead were found, and in addition they carried off a number of their killed. They admit having 300 wounded. In their rushes they were met with cold steel. Six hundred men under Emmet and Grobelaar attacked Fort Prospect. They also suffered heavily. Sixty of their dead were found where they had been mowed down by a Maxim gun. At Fort Itala the British guns were put out of action.

GREATEST BATTLE OF WAR.

London, Oct. 3.—All the accounts of the fighting at Fort Itala, including those from the South African correspondents of the Mail, show that it was one of the most striking offensive and defensive engagements of the war. The whole British garrison were numbered only 300 men, with two 15-pounders and a Maxim gun. An outpost of 80 men, under Lieuts. Kane and Lefroy, occupied the summit of the hill, out of sight of the main camp, which was on the slope of the hill. At about midnight 600 Boers rushed the outpost. Their onslaught was so sudden and fierce that for twenty minutes only bayonets were used. Overwhelming odds soon decided the possession of the outpost. Lieut. Kane died shouting

"NO SURRENDER!"

Lieut. Lefroy was severely wounded, and the whole force was disabled. The main camp was thus reduced to 220 men. The Boers assailed from all sides. From about 1 a.m. throughout the remainder of the night and all the following day the little garrison withstood them until seven in the evening, when the outlook seemed desperate. The British had been without water for many hours, the Boers having cut off their supply, and their ammunition was fast failing.

BOERS BEATEN.

Almost suddenly the Boer fire began to slacken, and soon after the attackers withdrew, either learning that Gen. Bruce Hamilton was approaching, as the Mail correspondent says, or, according to others, in sheer despair of succeeding. Their retirement opened the way for the wounded commander to withdraw his exhausted force, which reached N'Kandhla in the morning. Among the Boers killed were Gens. Opperman and Schultz and Commandant Potgieter.

According to a statement which reached N'Kandhla, a British military surgeon who ascended Itala in the morning to attend the wounded there was immediately made a prisoner by Boers, who compelled him to attend their wounded. Consequently the British wounded lay unsuccored during the day in the broiling sun without water.

THE ATTACK ON PROSPECT

seems to have been only disastrous to the Boers. The camp was well situated for defense, and although the garrison numbered only twenty men, with one Maxim, they withstood all attacks, notwithstanding the dashing bravery of the assailants. The latter withdrew without achieving their purpose, and their dead were piled around the fort. The British loss was one killed and twelve wounded.

The Boers have never hitherto displayed such reckless daring, and their defeat is the worst smash they have sustained. Major Chapman, commanding the British, seemed to bear a charmed life. Gen. Kitchener has congratulated him.

On Saturday the Boers captured a large British convoy. Gen. Hamilton pursued them and came into action with them, but no details of the fighting have been received, though it is reported that the Boers were again punished.

BOTHA LED IN PERSON.

Pretoria, Oct. 3.—The latest news from Zululand is to the effect that in the recent fighting at Prospect and Itala the Boers lost most heavily. The Boers admit that they had 200 killed in each fight. The Boers rushed the posts across the open ground, thinking that they were weakly held, whereas they had strong garrisons. The attacking force was the main body of Gen. Botha's army, with himself in command.

SUDDEN END OF WAR AT HAND.

London, Friday, Oct. 4.—The Chronicle says it learns from a very high authority that a complete and sudden collapse of the Boer resistance and the consequent speedy termination of the war are anticipated. It implies that this is the view entertained by the war office. It adds that Gen. Botha's and Gen. Delarey's coups are regarded as a last desperate effort of men who have at last grown weary of the struggle, and are tired of being hunted. It is confidently felt that the Boers are fighting their last fight and that the end, which will come with startling suddenness, is near. For this season it is not intended to dispatch further reinforcements.

A dispatch to the Standard from Cape Town recording the fact that there is much speculation over the visit to Pretoria of Sir Gordon Sprigg, prime minister of the Cape Colony, says it is generally assumed that the country is on the eve of developments of the highest importance.

ATTACKED ON BOTH FLANKS.

London, Oct. 3.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated yesterday, with further details of the attacks on the camp at Moedwill: "I have received particulars from Kekewich in regard to the attack on his camp. A Yeomanry patrol, which was sent out before dawn, met the enemy advancing. They gave warning, but it was too late to prevent the pickets being rushed, which enabled the Boers to occupy a position with good cover, from which they poured in a heavy fire at an effective range, while at the same time there was an attack on both flanks. The attack was repulsed after two hours' fighting. The enemy expended an enormous amount of ammunition."

Among the killed in the engagement was Commandant Boshoff, of the Johannesburg Police.

Col. Kekewich was prevented from pursuing Gen. Delarey, who attacked him a few days ago, owing to the fact that many of his horses were killed.

A CURE FOR COSTIVENESS.—Costiveness comes from the refusal of the excretory organs to perform their duties regularly from contributing causes usually disordered digestion. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, prepared on scientific principles, are so compounded that certain ingredients in them pass through the stomach and act upon the bowels so as to remove their torpor and arouse them to proper action. Many thousands are prepared to bear testimony to their power in this respect.

EPWORTH LEAGUE SOCIAL.

A very enjoyable social was given last evening by the Epworth League of Talbot Street Baptist Church. A luncheon was served during the evening, and a delightful programme of vocal and instrumental music was furnished, by the Misses Wilson, Miss Rowe, Mr. Newton Large, Messrs. Mountjoy and Noble, and the Misses McLeod. Miss Jeffrey also gave a clever exhibition of club swinging.

ROYAL PLANS FOR THE FUTURE.

It would be unsafe to speak of the programme on the return trip, writes the Globe correspondent with the ducal party in the west. All that is certain, humanly speaking, is that the duchess will stay over at Banff National Park for two days, and that those days the duke will spend at Poplar Point, near Portage La Prairie, shooting, occupying Senator Kirchhoffer's place. The probability of a visit to London and Western Ontario is being discussed, and after so many miles of the gloomy, savage and sublime in nature, a glimpse of the pastoral peninsula of Ontario would form a happy contrast. The party will arrive at Toronto on the 10th, at 2 p.m.

MISSION CIRCLES.

The quarterly union meeting of the Baptist Women's Mission Circles, held on Tuesday evening in the South London church, was interesting and profitable, and well worthy of a larger attendance. In the afternoon, papers on missionary subjects were read, and plans discussed for the better carrying on of the work done by the circles. Mrs. Caleb Wall presided, and the proceedings were varied by excellent vocal music, two ladies from the Talbot Street Church choir giving a duet, which they were specially asked to repeat in the evening. Miss Moorhouse also sang a solo that was much appreciated. At the close of the afternoon meeting a dainty spread of refreshments was made by the ladies of the South London church, to which the gentlemen friends of the members were cordially invited. In the evening an interesting and most instructive address on "The Women of India" was given by Foreign Mission Secretary Rev. J. G. Brown, B.A., of Toronto, returned missionary from India. Rev. Messrs. Dr. Sowerby, W. M. Walker, B.A., and Thomas S. Johnson, also took part. Mrs. Pocock favored the audience with a pleasing solo.

DETROIT OLD BOYS ARE ACTIVE AS EVER

Enthusiastic Meeting Was Recently Held and Officers for Year Appointed.

Mr. John S. Bell, the secretary of the Old Boys' Association, has received a letter from Mr. Arthur Lashbrook, now secretary of the association in Detroit, in which he says that one of the largest meetings of Old Boys in Detroit was held at Hotel Ronand on the night of Sept. 30. After the report of the treasurer was read, which showed a large balance on the right side, the election of officers for the next two years took place. Col. Charles Sullivan was elected president; J. W. Burriss, vice-president; Arthur Lashbrook, secretary; C. E. Wilson, treasurer, and J. A. Orr, John McPherson and Thomas Brown were elected for the executive committee. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the retiring officers and all joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne."

MR. McMECHAN PROVES HE IS RESOURCEFUL

Continues Contest With Engineer and Gets Another Largely Signed Petition.

Mr. J. H. McMechan continues his resourceful and indefatigable efforts to prevent the laying of a tar macadam pavement on King street. His latest move is the preparation of a petition, praying the council to defer passing the bylaw for the laying of the pavement, on the ground that it is too late for the work to be done, and the delay will give further opportunity to judge of the merits and demerits of the Queen's avenue pavement. It is understood that over 75 qualified ratepayers have attached their names to the petition.

ASSAULT CASES WERE PROMINENT IN COURT.

Individuals Who Slapped Faces and Other Law Offenders Dealt With at Court.

Assault cases occupied a large portion of the time at this morning's police court.

Arch. Baker, arrested on the market two weeks ago, was fined $5 or 20 days on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. The charge of assaulting P. C. Dalgleish was withdrawn. Baker's companion, E. Scrimshaw, who was a defense witness in the Sifton murder trial, was found guilty on a drunk and disorderly charge, and sentence was suspended.

Thomas W. Johnston charged Joseph Cameron with assault. Both are inmates of the Old Men's Home. The charge was dismissed.

John Foden slapped the face of W. T. Chadwick, a youth who was employed with him at Perrin's. Foden was fined $2.

John Lougheed was charged with trespass by his wife. Johnston had been ordered to keep away and not bother her. He will appear tomorrow.

Charles Hartford, charged with selling liquor at the fair grounds, failed to appear. A warrant was ordered to be issued.

COSTS IN CONNECTION WITH SIFTON TRIAL

Treasurer McEvoy, has, within the past couple of days, paid out $3,206 95, the cost to the county of the assizes just closed. Most of the account is directly on account of the Sifton trial. The crown witnesses in the murder case drew $1,424 05. This does not include the large fees which the medical witnesses will charge, of which the county pays no part, but which will be paid by the Ontario Government. The grand jury cost $209 20, while the petit jurors drew a total of $1,216 50. The pay of the court constables totalled $375 20.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—Prof. A. O. Coleman, the local mineralogist, who has been in the Yukon the greater part of the summer for the Dominion Government, has just paid a visit to the Sturgeon Lake district for the Ontario Bureau of Mines. He reported that the one mill working there was doing well. All the deposits examined by Prof. Coleman were found to be very satisfactory.

At present Mr. Barber says 200 men are developing 10,000 horse-power for the mills, and 200 more are wanted, but owing to the scarcity of labor in the north cannot be secured.

COOLLY PLANNED!

The Slaughter of Company "C," Ninth U. S. Cavalry, by 'Pinos.

Manila, Oct. 4.—The American publishes a telegram giving an account of the fight during which a majority of the men of Company C, of the 9th Regiment, were gilled near Balangiga, Sept. 28. The fight was long premeditated, and the Filipinos were called to commit the slaughter by the ringing of church bells at daylight. They got between the soldiers, who were breakfasting, and their quarters. The insurgents was mostly armed with bolos, but they had a few rifles with them.

The advices from the Island of Samar give harrowing details of the slaughter.

It seems that the president of the town, claiming to be friendly, led the assault in person. Hearing of the slaughter, Col. Isaac D. Derussy, of the 11th Infantry, started for the scene immediately with a battalion. The body of Capt. Connell had been tied by the heels, saturated with kerosene and partly burned. Forty-five bodies had been buried in a trench, leaving seven unaccounted for. The charred remains of many were recovered. In numerous instances the bodies had been badly mutilated. Three hundred Macabebees will also be dispatched to the scene of the massacre on board the Legaspi, which is delayed by a typhoon.

SHAMROCK COLUMBIA!

Start on Their Third Race for the "America" Mug

Favored With the Same Northwester That Carried the Yankee to Victory Yesterday.

Conditions Reversed—Columbia Leads at the Start and is Passed by the Irish Boat—Columbia Gets Ahead, But is Again Passed by the British Boat.

New York, Oct. 4.—The same strong northwester which yesterday blew the Columbia to victory prevailed this morning. It scurried across the lower bay and kicked up whitecaps in every direction. There was an added touch of frost in the air, but overhead a brilliant sun shone from a clear autumn sky, and wind and weather were absolutely perfect for the day's contest. Under the rules today's race was fifteen miles to windward or leeward and return, and it was a foregone conclusion that the course would be a dead run before the wind to the first mark, and if the wind held true a long beat back to the finish. As yet the Shamrock and Columbia have not met under good conditions in a run square before the wind. While Saturday's race was of this description, the wind was so light and uncertain that none of the sharps considered it as decisive.

For today's race the committee boat set the signal for a course 15 miles south southeast to leeward and a beat home. The warning gun was fired at 10:55 a.m.

THEY'RE OFF!

11 a.m. — They are off, Columbia in the lead. Shamrock crossed the line just 30 seconds after the handicap gun. Columbia crossed the starting line just 15 seconds after the handicap gun.

11:06—When the starting gun was fired both boats were well back of the line. Both broke out their spinnakers as they headed for it Shamrock being the quickest. Columbia crossed first. Apparently the handicap gun was fired before either boat crossed the line.

11:14—Columbia leads by about three lengths. The official time of the start given by the Marconi wireless telegraphy was: Columbia 11:02; Shamrock 11:02. They started on the handicap gun.

11:17 a.m.—Columbia continues to gain slowly.

11:27 a.m.—Shamrock seems to be overhauling Columbia.

SHAMROCK PASSED COLUMBIA.

11:30 a.m.—Shamrock has passed Columbia and seems to be pulling rapidly away from her.

11:47 a.m.—Shamrock is still leading by at least 100 yards.

11:55 a.m.—Shamrock has apparently pulled away a bit more, and at the present rate of sailing will turn the first mark well within the time allowance to Columbia.

12:03 p.m.—Shamrock is now fully a

12:09 p.m.—A favorable slant of wind has apparently enabled Columbia to close the gap a little. The boats are now within three miles of the outer mark.

12:12—Columbia gains slightly.

12:33 p.m.—The wind is now 10 knots. Shamrock 40 seconds ahead.

12:50 p.m. — Shamrock turned the outer mark at 12:48:57. Columbia turned at 12:49:45, unofficial time. The Marconi wireless telegraphy reports that the Shamrock turned the outer mark 48 seconds ahead, unofficial.

12:52—Shamrock has gone on starboard tack. Columbia luffed around the mark and went on the potr tack.

12:54 p.m.—Barr held the port tack, but an instant, and then went on the starboard tack. Both yachts are heading for the Jersey shore.

1:14 p.m.—Official time of turn, as given by Marconi wireless telegraph: Shamrock, 12:48:46; Columbia, 12:49:35.

COLUMBIA PASSES SHAMROCK.

1:21 p.m.—Columbia passed the Shamrock at 1:02.

1:45 p.m.—The wind holds true at 12 knots.

2:03 p.m.—Columbia still holds her lead.

2:04 p.m.—The Shamrock quickly followed around on the starboard tack.

2:16 p.m.—Columbia has gone on the port tack, closely followed by the Shamrock.

2:23 p.m.—The Shamrock is now apparently ahead as developed on the last tack.

2:26 p.m.—Shamrock is now on the port tack, heading well north, and may be able to fetch the lightship in the next tack, and the yachts are splitting tacks.

SHAMROCK AHEAD AGAIN!

2:34 p.m.—Both yachts are now on the starboard tack. Shamrock ahead. The wind is dropping.

A CLOSE RACE.

2:48 p.m.—Both boats now on the port tack, Shamrock apparently still slightly in the lead. It is a close race.

2:54 p.m.—Shamrock still slightly in the lead.

3:07 p.m.—The yachts are now three miles from the finish, Shamrock apparently still slightly in the lead.

New York, Oct. 3:18 p.m.—Shamrock has gone on the starboard tack about one and one-half miles from the lightship.

3:22 p.m.—Shamrck is still slightly ahead.

Shamrock crossed the line first.

Columbia probably wins on time allowance.

Columbia, 3:35:38; Shamrock, 3:35:35.

Columbia gets time allowance of 43 seconds.

MADE $55,000,000

Work of United States Steel Trust in the Last Six Months.

New York, Oct. 4.—The statement of the United States Steel Trust, just given out, shows net earnings for the last six months, with September estimated, near $55,000,000. The report shows, as was predicted recently by United States steel interests, that the losses suffered by the company through the recent strike were insignificant. The action of the company in making public a detailed statement of its financial condition called forth much favorable comment in the street, as it is in strong contrast with the policy of the majority of the big industrial corporations, which are operated virtually as "blind pools."

FRENCH DEFEATED

London, Oct. 3.—A dispatch from Jerba Island, Tunis, says a courier who has arrived there from Dameghu, reports that there has been a battle between the French troops and the Tauregs, with great loss of life. The Tauregs captured a Tripoli caravan of feathers and ivory valued at £90,000.

The French soldiers are pursuing the marauders.

Cologne, Oct. 3.—The Gazette says it understands from Constantinople that the Franco-Turkish dispute has taken an interesting turn. It is believed that M. Delcasse, the French minister of foreign affairs, will insist upon an acknowledgement by Turkey of French suzerainty over Tunis. The porte is not inclined to grant this concession.

ELSIE.

Pauline stood up, and threw out her arms; her nostrils dilated, her eyes flashed.

"Give me a fair field; let me get that girl utterly out of his sight for even a month, and I will win him back. I will make him marry me, secretly or openly, whichever he likes. Ten days ago I could have pushed him on to this; but I did not hurry matters; I thought it best to wait, and this girl steps in and spoils all. Oh, but your reign will be a very short one, my fine lady!"

Pauline nodded her head and addressed an imaginary Elsie in the corner.

"I am not going to kill you—that would be inconvenient; but I am going—oh, I am going to send you away—far, far, far away before a week is over our heads."

Lord Hammond went hunting the next day, for the frost broke, the wind veered round to the south, and as it was the appointed day for the meet, he set off dressed in pink, upon the back of his favorite black hunter Captain.

Lady Chase, looking through the window of the long dining-room, which commanded a view of the west front of the house, watched her idol ride down the drive, and raise his velvet cap to the ladies assembled in the great window place to see him and Mr. Manvers start, with all a mother's natural pride in so handsome and stalwart a son. Tears were not very far from her eyes, perhaps; she sighed gently, and she wished that the mind of her darling were as grand and noble as his physical proportions. Heaven send them back safely! was all she said.

Pauline Bracegirdle had learned to ride at a Paris riding school; at the same time she was a very timid horsewoman when mounted on an English horse; and when following an English fox through English lanes, copices, stubble fields and gorse commons, she had wisely declined to be of the hunting party.

Lady Marjorie did not ride after the hounds, in deference to her mother's prejudices, but she drove the earl to the meet in the park phaeton. One Miss Littlewood sat behind it, and Lady Rosewood went swiftly after the hounds on a tall, gray hunter.

Pauline had been writing letters late into the night; she started with them on foot for the village postoffice. No adventure befell her nor any of the ladies who remained at home that morning.

Elsie went for a walk and met Basil Byrne, who joined her and amused her with his gay anecdotes and lively talk. For her part, the attentions of Lord Hammond had not turned her head in the least; she did not indulge in one ambitious dream, for the simple reason that her heart was not touched and that she was not an ambitious girl. She was bitterly pained that the countess was estranged, and was now only polite and kind where she had been sympathetic and affectionate, and she wished with all her heart that she could prove to Lady Chase that she did not wish to marry her son; but how could she show her heart to the young noble's mother? Words and protestations availed her nothing.

That day of the hunt, however, brought about a strange chain of events. The first link in this chain was apparently an accident that befell Lord Hammond in the hunting field. By some mistake his foot got entangled in his stirrup and was pressed against the trunk of a tree in a copplce. When his young lordship returned he was quite unable to put his foot to the ground. The doctor was sent for and he sentenced Lord Arthur to a whole fortnight's rest for the injured foot. Bandages, slippers and a chair that ran on castors, in which his servant pushed him around through the wide suite of rooms at Charteris Court—these were the accompaniments of his daily life. But an odd thing had happened. It was his hated cousin Owen Hammond who had come to his rescue when his foot hung helpless in the stirrup; and when the countess heard this she insisted on sending an invitation to Mr. Stanly, whom irreverent young aristocrats called "Pickles Stanly," also to his daughter Rosa, and above all to her nephew Owen, then visiting at Bracebridge Hall, an invitation for the 2nd of January—the day of the private theatricals and the great ball at Charteris House. The invitation was accepted.

"I shall see him," said Elsie, looking at herself in the glass.

She was dressed for the ball in a charming pale pink crepe, trimmed with rosebuds. The countess, knowing that the young girl had no ball dress, had had Elsie measured, and had sent to London to her own dressmaker to make this dress "for a young friend in a hurry."

"Dear, generous countess!" said Elsie, looking at herself in the glass. She was lovely in pink.

"I wonder," she said to herself, "what he will say to me?"

"He" meant Owen Hammond—Owen, dark eyed, impassioned, quick brained, impulsive, who had somehow fired her young fancy more than all the gentlemen at Charteris put together.

But even while her hand was on the handle of her door, and before she could turn it to pass to the corridor, Pauline Bracegirdle's plot to get her out of Charteris House was working successfully and surely. Elsie might have counted the remainder of her stay in that hospitable mansion by minutes.

CHAPTER XVII.

Elsie passed through the corridor and on to the grand staircase. She held a boquet of pure white snowdrops in her hand; she herself, in her dress of rose tint, seemed like an embodiment of the divine spirit of Hope.

Rose tinted her future appeared to her just then, because she was in the heydey of youth—the May time of life—the "jocund spring" of early girlhood. If she ever gave herself time to think she woke to the consciousness that that same future of hers was wrapped in a mystery of uncertainty. But the gay ball night was not a time for thinking; it was a time of hope, of flowers, a time of song and dance, music and laughter.

The company were all gathered in the large ballroom of Charteris Court, an enormous room on the second floor. The walls were of marble; the floor was of dark, unpolished oak; the ceiling was of carven solid oak, polished and black with age. It was a splendid room, but a little severe in its tinting of black and white—the white polished walls—the black polished ceiling. Seats of dark crimson satin were arranged in tiers behind tiers in the center of the room, and there was a platform adorned with ferns and flowers; behind this the actors and the actresses who were to perform in the sparkling French piece, "Madamoiselle Renee," were to appear.

In one moment Elise Carew saw and recognized Owen Hammond.

The Stanly group was a remarkable one. Mr. Stanly was a very small man, he was very dark, he had close-cropped black hair, a little inquisitive nose and a pair of small, restless gray eyes. He was dressed as perfectly as a West End tailor could be expected to dress him, but the effect of his tout ensemble was somewhat mean, totally wanting in dignity. In reality he was a kind and generous man, and though not exactly a cultivated person, he seldom dropped an "h" and never picked one up in the wrong place.

Rosa, his daughter, had had governesses of all nations since her earliest childhood. She had paid to learn all things, but she did not quite know all things. She looked unutterably plain that night. It was a pity, but either she or her maid were totally wanting in taste.

Their combined efforts had resulted in a costume that most persons present condemned as simply hideous.

Rosa Stanly was 24—she would have been stout for a woman of 44—she was broad and short, with high shoulders and no neck to speak of; a very fat, swarthy face was lighted up by two small, twinkling black eyes. She had a wide mouth, but a pleasant smile and very beautiful teeth. For the rest, she had scanty black hair, very fat hands and a deep, guttural voice. Rosa wore a gown of the richest satin texture and deepest crimson tint; her fat throat was encircled with rows of pearls; she wore large rubies in her ears, and pearls were wound about her scanty plaits of hair. She looked something like a fat landlady on the wrong side of 50.

Close to her stood Owen Hammond. The contrast was almost apalling when one considered the fact that circumstances were combining to force the twain into that holy bond where they should become one flesh.

Elsie had never realized the grand masculine style of Owen until that moment. Seen now, standing erect and pale by the side of his betrothed, he riveted the attention of those who glanced in his direction. His features were, to use a hackneyed phrase, "as clearly cut as a cameo," his coloring was of that pale pure brownness that seems white by lamplight; he had bright eyes and brown curly hair, but there was more than this wax-head like beauty in his face—there was room for thought on the broad brow; the eyes were sad, now and anon they flashed as with anger or with shame, or with a restless, smouldering pride.

Owen Hammond despised himself and asked himself what he deserved for meanness, sloth and pleasure seeking, and an intense and detestable selfishness in one action of his life? Rosa Stanly loved him, trusted in him, was happy and content to leave her fate in his hands; and he—the very sight of her was obnoxious to him; the sound of her loud, cheerful voice made him shiver; and he promised to make this woman his wife.

Rosa Stanly saw Elsie, but did not recognize her until Owen spoke.

"There is Miss Carew," he said.

Rosa put up a gold eyeglass—she was near-sighted.

"Good gracious, how pretty she is! Ah, Owen, if I were as pretty as that how proud you would be of me!" poor Rosa chuckled. "Call her—do ask her to come here, for I feel quite strange; I don't know any of these people."

Somehow—Elsie hardly knew—but she found herself led up to Miss Stanly by Owen, introduced to "Pickles Stanly," and established in a chair close to the heiress.

"I thought perhaps you would have acted," began Rosa Stanly.

Elsie then remembered that the countess had promised her that she should act, but for some reason no offer had been made to her to take a part in the piece.

She talked soft nothings to Rosa. Owen stood by silent, but his lip quivered; now and then his eyes flashed.

This was the night when Owen Hammond and Elsie Carew first really discovered those mysterious elective affinities which attracted them towards each other.

"I never knew she was half as lovely," said Owen to himself.

And Elsie, without exchanging words with him, said to herself:

"How much there is in him! Why—why has he wasted his time riding, and shooting, and idling, and then to tie himself up to this good girl, whose natural intelligence seems about on a par with Jetty's? Only, of course, she has had good governesses, and speaks real English."

What was "Mademoiselle Renee" about? Elsie never knew. She saw Pauline sitting on the stage in the graceful costume of a countess of the Pompadour period; she saw Lady Rosewood approach her in the charming dress of a Norman peasant—sabots, high cap, short skirts; and then the peasant maid began to chatter to the great lady.

It was like the farce before the comedy, all this preliminary part. It seemed to Elsie that all the chattering was rubbish. She saw Lord Hammond seated in his wheelchair near to the stage. He saw her, and his fair face was clouded. Presently she knew that he would contrive to get nearer to her, but perhaps he would wait until the play was over.

All at once there was a slight stir and commotion among the audience; a whisper ran like a sudden blast of wind from tier to tier of the assembled guests, and Elsie felt it without knowing exactly why; felt it as she sat there in her rose-colored ball dress, with her bouquet of white snowdrops in her hand; felt it before somebody touched her shoulder. Looking up she saw Anderson, the confidential maid of Lady Chase.

"A telegram for Miss Carew, if you please."

Elsie seized it in hot haste, and tore it open without ceremony. With her heart in her mouth, she read these words:

"From Cornelius Carew, Rue Montmarte, Numero 70, Paris, to Elsie Carew, Coome Hill House, Surrey: Come to me at once. I am dying, and you must take charge of my papers—morning service, Charing Cross."

Elsie stared blankly before her. She knew little of late years of her father; but every two months or so he had written her a kind and loving letter. He often sent her money and presents; he had sent her the gold watch she carried—a kindly memory of his goodness to her in her childhood. She had always intended, when she was of age, to go to him in his exile's home and devote herself to him entirely.

Sometimes she had feared that he might marry again. She had never been afraid that he might die, and now all of a sudden this dreadful thing was about to happen. She stood up scared and bewildered. What time was it? when must she start? what must she do?

"I must go," she said, helplessly: "my father is dying. I must go to Paris at once."

Owen Hammond uttered a passionate exclamation. Rosa Stanly heard it and stared at him in amaze, yet not the faintest tinge of suspicion dyed her thoughts for a moment. Still, she remembered it afterwards.

"You can't go alone, can you?" she asked.

"I must—morning service, Charing Cross. What time is it now?"

Owen looked at his watch.

"A quarter to ten."

"Then you'll have to pack, and dress, and be off at once," said Rosa, briskly.

Owen bit his lip.

"Alone! impossible!" he muttered.

"But I must!" said Elsie.

Her rose-colored robe seemed to hang limp all at once, and the very glory and beauty of her bouquet of snowdrops appeared to droop. The color faded from her cheeks, the brightness from her eyes. She must have been spared some of the sharp pain that she would have felt had her life been passed within the sheltering warmth of her father's daily presence. She had almost forgotten what he was like. She would not lose a dear face or miss a loving voice in losing him; but all the same, the keen pang of bereavement and of loss smote keenly enough upon her affectionate heart and sensitive spirit.

"May I see the countess?" she asked of Anderson.

"Oh, yes, miss. If you will come now, her ladyship will talk to you, I know, and tell you what you had better do."

It all seemed unreal to Elsie, as the phantasmagoria of some unwholesome dream. Every moment she wished that she would awake from it and find it all a delusion; but, alas! it was a real, hard, cruel, palpable fact. There was the telegram, written in pencil in the sprawling hand of some hurrying clerk; a telegraph boy from Farley postoffice had been sent in a cab, the message was so urgent. The expense of this telegram was heavy, and Elsie's purse was very light. Anderson took her into a little warm anteroom and then summoned the countess.

Lady Chase looked more queenlike than ever in a dress of purple silk, brocaded with gold. She wore a cross of diamonds, and a headdress which seemed to crown her as with a diadem. Her eyes looked pityingly upon the weeping schoolgirl.

"Alone!" she said, when she had looked at the telegram. "How terrible it seems for you to travel alone, and you are quite unaccustomed to traveling."

The countess was very sorry; she was the more pained because she felt that she had been wishing that the little fascinating schoolgirl could in some chance go and spend the remainder of the vacation elsewhere; and now she was to go, but in how sad and painful a way!

"Of course," said Lady Chase, "somebody who knows how to take tickets and arrange matters shall go with you as far as Charing Cross, and see you get into the train for Newhaven. I see they have mentioned the service for that passage. Have you ever crossed the sea before?"

ENGLISHMEN WIN!

The International Cricket Match at Philadelphia---How the Columbia Beat the Shamrock---General Sporting News.

CRICKET.

ENGLISHMEN WIN AGAIN.

New York, Oct. 3.—The international cricket match between Bosanquet's English experts and twelve players from this city was completed today on the grounds of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, at Bergen Point, N. J., the Englishmen winning by seven wickets. When play was resumed this morning the visitors had lost five wickets for 86 runs. The wicket was in excellent condition, and runs came quickly. Bosanquet and Crawford did the best work, scoring 44 and 21 respectively, none of the remaining batsmen getting into double figures. The inning closed with a total of 168 runs, just 25 more than the score of the New Yorkers in their first inning. The home team went in for their second inning after luncheon, and if looked as if they would suffer a single-inning defeat, as the first four wickets fell for 12 runs. Kelly and Dalton just then made a stand, and were not separated until 27 runs had been put together. The only double figures made by the New York men were: Dalton 19, Forbes 16, and Kelly 13. The total of the second inning was 79, which included 11 extras. This made the grand total 222 for the home team.

YACHTING.

HOW THE COLUMBIA WON.

New York, Oct. 3.—Here is the official log of the second race between the Shamrock II. and the Columbia for the America's cup: Start—Shamrock, 11:00:13; Columbia, 11:01:47. First mark—Shamrock, 11:51:10; Columbia, 11:52:22. Second mark—Shamrock, 12:45:57; Columbia, 12:46:39. Finish—Shamrock, 2:15:23; Columbia, 2:15:05. Elapsed time—Shamrock, 3:16:10; Columbia, 3:13:18. Corrected time—Shamrock, 3:16:10; Columbia, 3:12:35. Course, triangular; first leg, east, half south, 10 miles; second leg, southwest, half south, 10 miles; third leg, north-northwest, 10 miles to finish. Weather, fresh breeze for north-northwest, which remained true and maintained its strength throughout the day.

In a glorious wholesale breeze, which heeled the big cup contestants down till their lee rails were awash in the foaming seas, Herreshoff's white wonder, the Columbia, today beat Watson's British creation over a triangular course of 30 miles by 2 minutes and 52 seconds actual time. With the 43 seconds which the Irish sloop must allow the American boat on account of her larger sail plan, the Columbia won the second race of the series by 3 minutes and 35 seconds, the fastest ever sailed in a cup contest. It was a royal struggle from a spectacular point of view.

From the time she crossed the starting line, 1 minute and 34 seconds behind the Shamrock, until she picked up and passed the Irish boat three miles after rounding the second mark, the Columbia's pace was faster and she behaved better than her rival. Reaching for the first mark, 10 miles down the Long Island shore with the wind abaft the beam, she gained 22 seconds. In the close reach for the second stake she gained 30 seconds, and in the thresh to windward on the leg home she gained exactly 2 minutes.

Not perhaps as thrilling as the remarkable contest of last Saturday, today's race was nevertheless stirring from start to finish, and as a marine spectacle it could hardly have been surpassed. For the first 15 miles no human eye could tell which boat, if either, was gaining, so closely were they matched. But gradually it became apparent that the Columbia was overhauling the flying challenger. Slowly, inch by inch, and foot by foot, the white boat gained. Both were going at a terrific pace. Everything in the fleet had to crowd on steam to keep the racers in sight, and the gait at which they were going left the turbo-boats and some of the steam yachts astern. The guide boat, which started 15 minutes before the racers, dug out at full speed, but she was hardly able to log off the distance and get the float out before the racers were on her.

Leaving the first mark on the starboard hand, the racers gybed over their big booms and went careening for the second mark, the Columbia gaining slowly but surely. They had covered the first ten miles in a little over 50 minutes. When they swung around the second stake both yachts heeled until their under bodies were lifted high over the water and their lee rails dipped a foot into the swirling billows.

The rush of the leviathians on the final tack was magnificent. The excursion boats, black with people from gunwale to pilot house, gathered about the finish in a great horseshoe. As the white flyer came on well in the lead, the patriotic skippers, with their hands on their whistle cords, could hardly restrain themselves.

UNIQUE CONCERT.

As she swept across the finish the din was terrible. Whistles split the ear and steam sirens wailed, drowning the crash of the bands and the cheers of the people. Until the gallant Shamrock, beaten but undismayed, crossed 1 minute and 18 seconds later, whistles and sirens were kept going. When they died away the bands could be heard playing patriotic airs. By this time all the skippers had had ample time to ransack their lockers, and within a minute every vessel in the fleet was alive with American flags.

Sir Thomas, on the Erin, did not approach within half a mile of the finish line. Like a game sportsman, afted the Columbia passed the line, he ran the American flag to the fore-peak and fired a salute in its honor. The rival crews cheered each other as they were hauled home by their tenders, escorted by the excursion fleet.

Within half an hour after the conclusion of the race, the committee boat, in accordance with the agreement to sail daily from now on, set the signal for a race today. Sir Thomas Lipton stood bravely at the gangway of the Erin and bid a cordial adieu to his guests. He also entertained a large party of yachtsmen who visited the Erin after the day's guests.

The official time of the finish was: Columbia, 3:13:18; Shamrock, 3:16:10.

WHAT SIR THOMAS SAID.

When asked what he thought of the race, Sir Thomas Lipton said: "I admit frankly that I got beat by the best boat in a fair and square race, and I maintain that I believe that there is not a better skipper than Capt. Sycamore nor a better crew than mine. I have as much esteem for my captain and crew as when I came to this side, but they can't do impossibilities. They took as much out of the boat as could be taken. I am very much disappointed at the result," continued Sir Thomas, "and the only consolation I have is that I have been licked by a good, honorable apponent. I know that the wind was true, and the Columbia won without any fluke." When asked by a visiting yachtsman if he felt despondent, Sir Thomas pluckily replied: "As long as the Shamrock flag flies there is just as much fight in me, and until I am beaten in the third race I am just as hopeful."

WEATHER FOR TODAY.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 3.—The weather bureau tonight issued the following special forecast of the weather for tomorrow's race off Sandy Hook: Present conditions indicate prevalence of 10 to 12 mile breeze off Sandy Hook, and fair weather Friday. Winds will hold from north to northwest.

MR. MORGAN'S COMMENT.

Edwin D. Morgan, the Columbia's manager, said: "We won against an excellent foe. Both boats were superbly handled. We have now two races against Shamrock, sailed in what was supposed to be Shamrock's weather. There was no reason why Shamrock should not win; therefore I believe the Columbia is the best racing yacht in the world."

TIRED OF IT.

London, Oct. 4.—For Britishers all real interest has now departed from the international yacht race. Their only desire is to get the matter ended. "If we are to be thrashed again," says the Daily Chronicle, "we had rather take our gruel at once, and with all the good humor at our command." The editorials published this morning make no attempt to explain the defeat. They frankly admit that the Shamrock II. was beaten in her own weather, and under conditions most favorable to her, and congratulate America on being in possession of the better boat. "As a matter of fact," remarks the Daily Graphic, "on none of the four occasions when the boats have met, has Shamrock II. even been so far in front of the Columbia as to have her time allowance in hand."

LESTER REIFF.

London, Oct. 3.—Lord Marcus Beresford, one of the stewards of the Jockey Club, who sentenced Lester Reiff, is very outspoken. He said today: "It is not customary for the Jockey Club to discuss the details of evidence. But in order that our American friends may not feel that Reiff has been harshly or unjustly treated, I may say that his riding of Delacy was as barefaced an instance of not trying to win as ever I saw in all my experience. With all respect for Mr. Huggins' opinion, we were not dealing with Reiff on what he did at the turn into the straight, but on what he did at the finish. Regard for Mr. Whitney would prevent the stewards of the Jockey Club from arriving at any decision not supported by the strongest evidence. Lester Reiff got a salary of $5,000 a year, yet he certainly did not try to win that little race for Mr. Whitney."

SALE OF BROOD MARES.

New York, Oct. 3.—The brood mares and stallions of the Mayfield stud were sold at auction yesterday at Sheepshead Bay. Saville was in great demand, and after some spirited bidding was knocked down to J. A. Hodge for $10,000. The others which brought $500 or over were as follows: Imp. Saville, ch. s. 17, J. A. Hodge, $10,000; Imp. Royal Stag, ch. h., R. H. McPatter, $2,700; Imp. Contract, ch. h., 10, R. H. Nevilles, $1,400; Sun Dial, ch. m., 10, Roncas Stock Farm, $1,050; Miss Pry, b. m., 4, J. E. THE NEWMARKET RACES.

London, Oct. 3.—J. E. Platt's bay colt Pietermaritzburg won the Jockey Club stakes of 10,000 sovereigns at Newmarket today. The conditions of the race were: The Jockey Club stakes of 10,000 sovereigns, the second horse to receive 1,500 sovereigns, and the third horse 1,000 sovereigns, for 3 and 4-year-olds, last mile and three-quarters of the Czarewich course. Lord Rosebery's Epsom was second; King Edward's Diamond Jubilee third. Eight horses ran.

LORILLARD'S HORSES.

London, Oct. 3.—Sixteen of the late Pierre Lorillard's horses, sold by auction at Newmarket this morning, fetched 9,081 guineas. The horses included Tantalus, which went for 2,900 guineas; Exod, 1,850 guineas; Amoret II., 1,100 guineas (these three to Col. Harry McCalmont); Hamilcar, 850 guineas; Parizee, 4100 guineas; Ali III., 660 guineas, and Palas II., 710 guineas.

CRESCEUS FAILED.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 3.—Cresceus, the champion trotter of the world, driven by his owner, George H. Ketcham, failed in an effort on the Pamlico track today to lower his record for a mile of 2:02¼. The best he could do was 2:06¼. The time by quarters was :30, 1:02, 1:34, 2:06¼. The track was in excellent condition, and the weather fine.

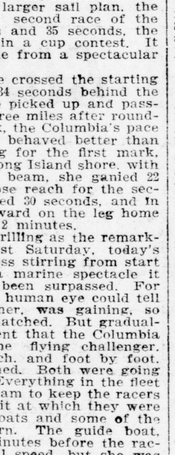

FOOTBALL.

PEEL AND SIPPI OUT.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—At the meeting of the Rugby Football Union tonight London's application to play Sippi, a former professional ball player, was rejected, and Peel, under suspension, remains out of the game. New schedules are being arranged in the intermediate and junior series, made necessary by the dropping out of Deseronto and St. Marys. Hamilton, a former Kingston player, will be allowed to play as soon as he furnishes a bona fide certificate of residence.

A Thing of the Past.

The town crier is a thing of the past, but medical methods as old and as obsolete as the town crier are still practiced in many a country town. Women suffering from womanly diseases shrink from the offensive examinations, indelicate questionings, and obnoxious local treatments, still in vogue with some local practitioners. Any sick woman is invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so avoid methods which are offensive to her modesty. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is peculiarly and particularly a medicine for the cure of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"You have my heart-felt thanks for the kind advice you sent me," writes Mrs. Florence Archer, of Eason, Macon Co., Tenn. "Words fail to express what I endured for about eight years with female trouble. The awful pain that I had to endure each month, no tongue can express. These bearing-down pains, backache, headache, distress in my stomach and sores in my breast, cramp in limbs—they have all left me and health has taken the place of these distressing troubles. What caused them to leave? It was the best medicine on earth—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In one week's time I began to feel better. After taking six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and using the local treatment you advised I felt like a new woman."

Lambton Fall Assizes.

The case of Nahmabin vs. the L. E. and D. R. R., for damages, was settled by the payment of $626 and costs by the railway. Hanna & McCarthy for plaintiff; J. H. Coburn for defendant.

The case of David and Ann Crawford vs. Thomas Doherty occupied the attention of the court all day. The suit was to collect damages of $1,000 for Mrs. Crawford and $500 for Mr. Crawford. The jury brought in a verdict awarding the damages against the defendant for $326 and costs, specifying that the same were awarded to Mrs. Crawford only.

The case of the King vs. Robert Thompson and Robert Shafer, theft, was disposed of in short order. The two men were accused of entering the summer house of Mr. McLaren at Woodrowe Beach, in the summer. The jury returned in fifteen minutes with a verdict of guilty, and at 7 o'clock p.m. sentence was imposed on each of ten years at hard labor in Kingston Penitentiary.

Henry vs. Varndale was settled between the parties, who are neighbors and adjoining farmers in the township of Sombra. The action was for slander. The defendant signed a written apology, admitting that his statements were without foundation and agreed to publish the retraction in two newspapers circulating in the neighborhood.

This concluded the civil business of the court.

THORNDALE

Thorndale, Oct. 4.—The meeting of the West Nissouri Sunday School Association, held at the Presbyterian Church, Thorndale, was largely attended and marked by much enthusiasm. Interesting addresses were given by Rev. R. L. Wilson, of Kintore; Miss B. Mossip, of Thorndale, and Rev. Chas. Segsworth, of Granthurst. Rev. W. M. Kay, of Dorchester, taught the previous quarter's lessons, and papers were given by Rev. M. D. Madden, Rev. A. J. Thomas, London, and Mr. R. W. Dillon, of St. Marys, and a question drawer was conducted by Mr. C. E. German, of London.

The officers elected were: Mr. S. H. Wood, Dorchester, president; Mr. K. M. Whitehead, Thorndale, secretary.

THRASHER VS. WHALE

A Desperate Battle Seen From the Decks of a Pacific Steamer.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

Officers of the steamer Nippon Maru tell of a great battle between a whale and a thrasher that took place near the Farallone Islands on Thursday morning, and was witnessed by nearly everybody on the steamer from a distance of a quarter of a mile. The first intimation that a fight was in progress was when a whale shot up out of the depths off the starboard quarter, going clear of the water by apparently eight feet, and making a great splash as she sank out of sight. Immediately there was a great commotion, and the tail of a thrasher could be distinctly seen as it rained terrific blows upon the whale's body.

Off to the south a short distance there were signs of two smaller whales, supposed to be calves that had been separated from their mother by the onslaught of the swiftly moving thrasher. Since a swordfish commonly has a part in the attack of a whale by a thrasher, one was believed to be participating in the fight, though the lumbering whale and the alert thrasher were the only combatants seen from the deck of the Nippon Maru. Sometimes half out of the water, again nearly clear of the foam-crested surface, the whale squirmed and twisted, delivering blows upon the surface with her huge tail that raised a flood of water, but so far as could be seen none of the blows reached the enemy. Over and under the bulk of the whale the thrasher lunged, deftly maintaining the fierce assault. The calves would appear to be following the fighters, and then retreating, but never going near.

As the Nippon Maru's officers and passengers watched the exciting combat, the steamer drew away, with the spray and foam still boiling where the thrasher was fast exhausting its enemy. But within the hour, it is likely, the thrasher had fed upon the whale's tongue, the huge bulk of the leviathian was still upon the surface, and the calves were aimlessly searching for their lost parent.

Six thousand flags will be required, and the tender of the London Printing and Lithographing Company was accepted.

LOST A LEG.

Alex. Barr, youngest son of Mr. David Barr, jeweler, Sarnia, was on a train at Strathroy yesterday morning, when he missed his hold and fell beneath the wheels. One of his legs was terribly crushed. The train was brought to a standstill, backed up and the unfortunate young man put aboard and brought to this city and removed to Victoria Hospital. Messrs. David and Joseph Barr, father and brother of the injured man, arrived here from Sarnia in response to a telegram. For some time past the young man had been employed on the Grand Trunk as a fireman. His leg was so badly crushed that it had to be amputated above the knee.

NOT HECTOR.

Rev. J. H. Hector, the negro lecturer, is at Winnipeg. A reporter asked him if the story which appeared in a Belleville paper was true, to the effect that he was the man who had first struck Czolgosz after he had shot President McKinley. Mr. Hector drew himself up to his full height, stretched out a burly chest, and doubled up a fist that looked capable of knocking sense into a cigarette fiend. Taking a deep breath, he said: "This," shaking his fist, "is the arm that did not do the act." Then in a more pacific tone of voice, "I was 200 miles away at the time, and never made any statement of that kind."

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Hon. R. W. Scott, secretary of state, replying to Mr. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., of Guelph, regarding the inconvenience which may arise out of the late date at which Thanksgiving Day has been set (Nov. 28), says: "I quite agree with you that a month earlier would suit the views of a considerable number of the people of Canada, but business men have always protested against having holidays in the month of October and November. As you know our canals close generally about the 24th November, and those engaged in shipping object strongly to an additional holiday during the months referred to. You are aware that the 9th of November will now be a holiday, and, therefore, it was considered reasonable to postpone Thanksgiving Day until after the close of the canals."

THE CITY IS NOT LIABLE FOR DAMAGES

Engineer Graydon Reports on the Kenneally Case—Other Matters Before the Board of Works.

At last night's regular meeting of the board of works, Engineer Graydon presented a report of the approaches to roadways or driveways that have been laid during the year, and on motion of Ald. Campbell, it was decided that no more approaches be laid unless in those places where the engineer deems them absolutely necessary.

Engineer Graydon recommended that a new walk be laid on the west side of Adelaide street, between King and York streets. The work will be advertised on the initiative, and another walk on Ridout street, between Craig and Bruce, for which the residents petitioned, will be advertised in the usual way.

Engineer Graydon reported that the city was not liable for damages in the case of Mrs. S. A. Kenneally, who was injured by falling on a sidewalk.

THE LIBRARY BOARD WAS NOT INTERESTED

Would Take No Action Regarding the Establishment of an Art School in London.

Librarian Blackwell reported to the public library board last night that Dr. May, of the Ontario Art Department, had called on him regarding the organization of an art school, but the board decided that it would take no steps towards obtaining a re-establishment of the school, and the two rooms on the second floor of the library building will be offered for rent to some suitable association. The question of decorating the library building on the occasion of the Duke of York's visit was discussed, and Messrs. Jeffrey and Gunn were appointed to call on the mayor in reference to the matter.

For the four weeks ending Sept. 28, Librarian Blackwell reported a total circulation of 5,435 volumes and magazines, fiction numbering 2,951 volumes, while the miscellaneous circulation amounted to only 1,086 volumes. The average daily circulation of books was 200, and of magazines 28. The receipts for the month were $26 66. The fines averaged 69 cents per day. The total cards issued to date were 8,849.

Messrs. J. C. Judd (chairman), T. Macbeth, G. C. Gunn, J. C. Hazard, James Egan, A. O. Jeffrey and Librarian Blackwell were present.

WAS STEALING A RIDE.

Boyne Falls, Mich., Oct. 3. — Five men were seriously injured, one fatally, in a wreck on the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway at McManus Siding, three miles north of Boyne Falls. Their names are: James Conlon, Canistoe, N. Y.; Jay Phillips, Buffalo; N. Y.; Ernest Baker, Cleveland; Urben man. Blood's chances of recovery are slight. The others will live.

BOTH DEAD IN BED.

New York, Oct. 4.—Otto Pulich and his wife Emeline were found dead in bed at their home. The dead man held a revolver in his hand. There were bullet holes in Mrs. Pulich's head and the husband had been shot in the mouth. The police believe the man shot his wife and then killed himself. Pulich was a real estate dealer, and it is believed business reverses caused his act.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 4. — Yesterday morning an accident occurred to two trains on the I. C. R., Nos. 2 and 15. The former left here at 7:10. The engineer of 15 had been given a mistaken order to cross No. 2 at Rosin, a mile and a half beyond Bedford Junction. They met the train on a deep curve, and so suddenly that there was no time to jump. Engineer Atto and Fireman Dean were buried beneath their engine and killed, and Mail Clerk Michael L. Roy was also killed. Another mail and an express messenger were injured. All the passengers escaped. The killed and injured were brought to this city.

DROWNED.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4. — The body of Moses A. Abbey, of Preston, Ont., was found floating in a slip at the foot of Granger street yesterday. A card found on the body bore the address of Mrs. C. M. Peters, No. 284 Elm street. Mr. Abbey was a license inspector of the south riding of Waterloo. At one time he had been worth $30,000, but lost it through speculation. His wife had been dead for the past eleven years. He had one adopted daughter, Mrs. Nettie Bulmer, of Toronto. Despondency over his business losses was probably the cause of suicide. On the dead man's person was found $22 81 in money and a gold watch.

KILLED BY A FALL.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—David Plewes, who was in business in Toronto for some years, was killed while putting up a windmill at Deer Park yesterday. He fell 42 feet, breaking his neck by the fall.

FATAL FALL.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Under particularly sad circumstances Ernest Argles, the 4-year-old son of Mr. Ernest Argles, of 22½ Davenport road, died at the Sick Children's Hospital as the result of a fall. Mrs. Argles took the child and her other three children, two boys and a girl, to spend the afternoon at Riverdale Park. Little Ernest climbed upon a low bench and had a short tumble to the ground. An examination showed that there was an internal hemorrhage from a ruptured artery. So serious did the case prove that the child was taken to the hospital, where he died on Tuesday.

Ernest Argles, the child's father, is lying in a ward in the General Hospital, having just passed the crisis of typhoid fever.
