ELECTION INQUIRY RESUMED;
LEWIS' CASE THIS AFTERNOON*Counsel May Apply to Judge for Bail if Not Granted by the Magistrate's Court.*LONDON WITNESS CLAIMS WAS UNFAIRLY TREATED

[From Our Own Reporter.]

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Another batch of nineteen witnesses arrived from London this morning to give evidence in the London election investigation. Some of these witnesses are present to testify at the preliminary trial of Thomas Lewis, who appears before Magistrate Kingsford at 1:30 this afternoon. The investigation will not be carried on simultaneously with the trial, as the former will be adjourned to allow Magistrate Kingsford to use the courtroom.

Lewis appeared in the dock this morning as did also John O'Meara, the London man who is wanted as a material witness.

James Corry, of Ottawa, the contractor, who, it is said, was in London during the Hyman-Gray bye-election, was also on hand.

Jerry Collins was again present in his appearance, and he was closeted with the prosecuting lawyers, who resumed the inquisition of witnesses in the back room.

Mr. R. M. C. Toth, barrister, of London, occupied a seat in the court room, Charles Tölmie is a witness in the Lewis case, having been subpoenaed by the prosecution.

Mr. Robinette stated to The Advertiser that if Lewis is committed for trial, he will at once make application for bail to a local judge.

At 11:40 the investigation was resumed. John Clarke, a London citizen, was the first witness examined. Joseph Hardy had seen him, he said, about his vote, and that a man wanted to see him at Hyman's committee rooms. He went there and saw Tom Lewis, who told him there was $10 in it if he voted right. The money was placed in an envelope and after the election witness went to Lewis' hotel and received $9.50 from Jerry Collins.

At this point the magistrate ordered John O'Meara to take a seat outside the prisoner's cage until he was called upon.

To Mr. Robinette Clark said he saw the money, a $10 bill, in Lewis' hand. He and Lewis were alone when the transaction took place. Witness had intended voting for Hyman anyway.

Isaac Schnepphorp, of London, said that the night before the election he was told he was wanted at the Liberal committee rooms. He saw Lewis there and the latter paid a $10 bill in an envelope for him. He was to get it after the election but he met Lewis, who told him that he had not voted right, and he did not get the money.

The witness told a story of how Alex. Malone, the returning officer, gave a signal to the Liberal scrutineer that witness had not voted right. The ballot had been torn, he alleged, in a way so that the deputy could see how he voted. The witness admitted to Mr. Robinette that he had told Lewis he could not vote for Hyman the night he met Lewis in the committee room, and that no agreement had been reached as to the purchase of his vote.

"So there was no bargain then?" Mr. Robinette asked.

"No," the witness replied.

"But you could have had the money if you voted right?" the magistrate asked.

"Yes."

Charles Talhurst got $5 from Collins in the general election of 1894. Witness was seen by two men about his vote before the election. George Ardy was one of them. But he did not know the other. He was told by the stranger if he voted right he would get $10. Ardy was to hold the money and Ardy paid him on the market after the election. The witness had voted Liberal for many years. In the Beck-Rumball election witness got no money.

Mr. Robinette asked the witness if he had ever voted in East Middlesex, and he replied that he had.

"You got money from the Conservatives for voting?"

"Yes, but that was a long time ago."

"When was it?"

"A few years ago. A man named R. Jones, a Conservative, came and gave me $3 to vote."

"Who for?"

"I don't know. I was sick."

"Did you send back the money?"

"No." (Laughter.)

"What does this Mr. Jones do?"

"He is a painter; he lives in West London; everybody knows him."

Frank Pickle swore he was seen by a stranger before the bye-election. He was told to go to the committee rooms and there he saw Collins and a man whom he did not know. Collins told him there would be $10 in it for him if he voted right.

"How much money did you get in the general election?"

"Five dollars."

"What was said to you?"

"Collins said that if I had not received anything, he told me they would know how I voted."

Witness said he was not sworn. He had voted right, and after the election he went to Lewis' hotel and received $9.50 from Jerry Collins and signed a receipt for the money.

He said Collins paid the money at the Queen's for the election.

"Did you receive anything in the Beck election?"

"No."

Mr. DuVernet here produced a book of Collins to show he had signed for $5 in the Beck election. Witness said he had been mistaken and that he was mixed as to whether it was in the Beck or general election that he had been paid. The book showed that in previous elections the witness had received money Collins had done all the financing. The witness stated to Mr. DuVernet that he had always voted Liberal.

Henry Clark said he was seen by a stranger about his vote in the bye-election. He was told $5 would be left with Tom Lewis for him if he voted right.

"You voted right?"

"Yes."

"You got your money?"

"Yes."

"Who paid you?"

"Tom Lewis."

"He says he did not pay you."

"Well, he did."

"Who paid you in the general election?"

"Jerry Collins."

"How much?"

"Five dollars."

"Who saw you about your vote?"

"Collins."

"Who else?"

"He was alone."

"What did he promise you the money for?"

"If I voted Grit, as I always did."

"Did you tell him that?"

"He knew it."

"Did Serviss or Sifton see you about your vote?"

"No."

"Who canvassed you before the Beck election?"

"Collins."

"Nobody but him?"

"No."

"Who wrote the receipt you signed?"

"Jerry Collins."

The receipt was read and it said "In full of account."

"You were bribed three times?"

"I didn't have to take it bribery. I would have voted Grit anyway."

The magistrate said the money appeared to have been paid as a reward. "They had been in the habit of receiving," he said.

"Was Lewis ever present when Collins paid you?"

"No."

This witness was relieved to be present at the prosecution of Lewis for perjury.

He Voted Right.

Wm. Clark, the baseball pitcher, of London, swore he was promised $10 by Thomas Lewis to put the money in an envelope and after the election the witness' brother went to Lewis' hotel and got it from Collins. Witness had voted right.

"Did you get any money in any other election?"

"No."

Liberated Pigeons

Windsor, Oct. 22.—As many as were alive of about 400 pigeons were liberated at the Canadian Express office in Windsor yesterday. The birds were shipped from Tavistock, Ont., to John Marcon, Sandwich, but the latter refused to accept the shipment, claiming the birds had been sent before they were ordered.

As the pigeons had been kept in crates for several days the express agent wired the shipper at Tavistock and was told to liberate the birds. When the cages were opened it was found that about 200 of the birds had died for want of food and water.

The others were so weak from hunger that they could not fly any distance, and the G. T. R. yards were filled with boys who formed a pigeon hunting party. Many of the birds were captured, while those who had sufficient strength circled around the tracks all day, alighting at intervals to pick up the grain which was dropped from the cars.

SAD BUT PUZZLING CASE

Helpless Old Lady Refuses To Be Cared For at Hospital.

The attention of Relief Officer McCallum was called on Saturday evening to the case of an old lady who resides alone in a cottage on York street, and is absolutely unable to take care of herself. The only lady has been sick for some time, and she is now helpless from paralysis in addition to being deranged mentally. Her medical attendant notified the relief officer of the condition of the woman, and advised that she be removed to the hospital, but Inspector McCallum did not care to undertake to compel her to go to the hospital. He called at her home with the ambulance, prepared to accompany her to Victoria, and was met with a stern refusal.

The matter was laid before Mayor Judd today, but he did not see that the city could do anything in the matter. The old lady has two houses, sufficient to keep her, and the mayor did not feel that the city was called upon to provide a nurse for her.

WORK NEARLY FINISHED

Court of Revision Has Little More to Do This Year.

The court of revision met at the city hall on Saturday evening and considered a number of appeals against assessments in number four ward for 1907. The majority of the appeals were against assessments for income and were easily disposed of. A half a dozen appeals remain to be dealt with before the court completes its work for the year. These will be taken up at an early date.

WAR OFFICE LIKES DEFENSE PLANS

Home Government Well Satisfied With Canadian Militia Affairs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Sir Frederick Borden, seen today by your correspondent, said that he had several interviews with Sir Edward Ward, permanent under secretary for war, when in England, and also met Mr. Haldane.

"I think," said Sir Frederick, "that they are well satisfied with the position taken by Canada, and also with the conditions and affairs here in regard to defense. They were not only well satisfied with the taking over of the Halifax and Esquimaux garrisons, but also as to the development of the militia system."

"What about the proposed new ordinance factory for Ottawa?"

"I saw some capitalists while in England, who intend going on with these works, or at any rate, who say that they intend doing so. Of course the Government or myself have no interest in the undertaking. It is to be carried on by a Canadian company. The idea is to establish ordinance works for the manufacture of field guns."

"Anything new to announce in connection with militia affairs?"

"No. I found the British Government was anxious to co-operate with Canada in regard to the exchange of officers or in any other way possible."

—Henry George, who it is alleged stole a bicycle from John Ireland, this morning appeared before Judge Elliott, and decided to stand trial by judge. His case comes up Monday.

HEAD OF BIG ENGLISH FIRM THROWS HIMSELF BEFORE TRAIN

A Sensational Suicide Follows
Crash of London Banking Institution.

London, Oct. 22.—P. McFayden, head of McFayden & Co., whose suspension was announced Saturday, committed suicide within an hour of posting the notice of the failure on the door of the bank by throwing himself before a train in a tunnel about half a mile away from his place of business.

Mr. McFayden appears to have gone from his bank to a station of the City and South London Railway, to have entered the tunnel unobserved, and to have deliberately laid down in front of an approaching train. The engineer reported having run over an obstruction in the tunnel, and a search revealed the shockingly-mutilated body, which later was identified as that of Mr. McFayden.

It is rumored that the failure of P. McFayden & Co., the London house of bank and finance, was connected with the cotton market, as Mr. McFayden was the sole partner in Europe, it is difficult to obtain information on the subject.

Peter Mandas, the proprietor of a Dundas street candy store, appeared to answer to a charge of breach of the Lord's Day Act. Mandas appeared about a week ago on the same charge, and the evidence was heard. The court was not then ready to give its verdict, and today the case was again adjourned for a week.

Albert Smith appeared to answer to a charge of nonpayment of wages laid by Joseph La France. Adjourned for one week.

Alexander Johnston, alias Furness, was fined $2 or five days in jail on a charge of drunkenness.

Piquet of "Dreyfus Trial Fame" May Be in Next French Ministry.

Paris, Oct. 22.—M. Clemenceau has begun the formation of a cabinet. He offered the foreign office to M. Poincaré, minister of finance in the Sarrien administration, who declined. M. Calix, who was finance minister in the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet, has accepted the portfolio of finance. It is regarded as certain that M. Briand, minister of public works; M. Barthe, minister of agriculture; M. Thomson, minister of marine, and M. Doumergue, minister of commerce, will remain, and that General Picquart will get the war portfolio. A new ministry of labor may be created with M. Viviani, the well-known socialist deputy, at its head.

TRAIN HITS TROLLEY

Two Killed and Two Fatally Injured in Outskirts of Toledo.

Toledo, O., Oct. 22.—Two persons were killed, and a dozen injured, two fatally, last night, when an incoming Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton passenger train collided with an outbound car on the Toledo and Indiana Traction Line at a crossing three miles west of here. The locomotive struck the rear end of the car, smashing it badly. The engine was thrown from the track.

The dead are: T. Howard, Chicago; Louise Kraus, Toledo.

Mrs. Sol Richter and Mrs. Wilson Cohn, of Archbold, were injured internally, and will probably die.

The train had the right of way. The conductor of the trolley car misjudged the distance, and thought he had plenty of time to cross the track ahead of the train. The motorman disappeared after the collision.

TEN IN USE NOW

New Mc ul Engines in Service on the Middle Division of G. T. R.

The Grand Trunk is now using no less than ten engines of what is known as the "Ten Hundred Class" on the middle division, between Toronto and the Sarnia Tunnel.

Some of the engines are used in the passenger service on the old main line between Toronto and the Tunnel, via Stratford, while the balance haul trains from Toronto to the Tunnel, via Stratford and London, and via Hamilton and London.

The new locomotives are very similar in appearance to those of the 900 Class, but they have an advantage in that they are capable of making better time, although they cannot haul as heavy a train. They are now used regularly on the Eastern Flyer and the International Limited.

—John Hall and Mary Currie (Indians) were arrested yesterday on the Caradoc reservation by Constable Hunt. They are charged with house-breaking, and will be given a hearing on Oct. 25 at Delaware, before Squire Sutherland, the Indian agent.

American Insults to Japs Rousing People of Nippon

Serious Situation Arising Over Treatment of Mikado's Subjects in the United States.

Tokio, Oct. 22.—All the newspapers have devoted leading editorial articles to the subject of anti-Japanese sentiment in the United States. The excitement, which has been growing for the last three days, centers upon the exclusion of Japanese children from the public schools of California, and the public schools of California cuts this child-loving nation to the quick.

There is evidence that the Government regards the situation as extremely serious. It has taken measures to calm the press and to discourage mass meetings that have been called to adopt retaliatory measures.

The Jiji Shimpu prints a long anonymous article, which, however, is known to emanate from a member of the Government, attempting to explain away the acts which have offended the Japanese. The Imperial Government recognizes that the opposition to the Japanese is now local, but it points out that the American authorities have taken no decisive steps to define the relations between the two countries. A prompt repudiation of the anti-Japanese sentiment by the United States is necessary to avert a crisis here that would result in the destruction of the friendly political, financial, and commercial relations between the two countries.

It would be hard to overestimate the gravity of the situation. During his nineteen years' residence in this country your correspondent has never seen the Japanese press so agitated against the Americans. At a dinner last night, attended by 150 prominent bankers and business men at the Imperial Hotel, deep feeling was expressed that the United States should regard with indifference acts that are tantamount to a declaration of a racial war. Little was said regarding the American protest against Japan's programme in Manchuria, the killing of Japanese soldiers, the murder of the Japanese bank president in San Francisco, the attacks by John D. Rockefeller on the Japanese commercial treaty, the Hawaiian exclusion policy, the public in-

Hamilton, Oct. 22.—At the request of the doctors interested in the case, Coroner Griffin, of this city, went to Caledonia to investigate the sickness resulting from the silver wedding of Haakon and Mrs. Foster, Ontario Township, at which occasion potted chickens were served, resulting in the deaths of Mrs. Rev. Ferguson and Mrs. Foster, mother of Haakon, and the illness of 83 guests.

The coroner found Haakon Foster breathing his last, and yesterday morning he died, making a total of three deaths.

The doctor who visited fourteen patients is of the opinion that there was ptomaine poisoning in the chickens, as on the same day of the anniversary all the guests became ill. This has developed into typhoid fever.

Coroner Griffin says that the illness and deaths were the result of ptomaine poisoning and typhoid germs, declaring that the moulds were washed with water apparently infected with typhoid germs.

He says a small quantity of either germs would infect all the guests.

What makes the affair all the more strange is that a generous portion of the chickens was later distributed to friends in Caledonia and the surrounding countryside. Those who ate the chicken were made ill, although not being near the wedding feast.

London, Oct. 22.—A dispatch received here from Vladivostok by Lloyd's agency says the Russian wooden coasting steamer Warjagin struck a floating mine and foundered on Oct. 20. A portion of her passengers and crew were saved, but the remainder, numbering 180 persons, were drowned.

Another message received by a news agency says 200 passengers perished on board the Warjagin, only one being saved.

HURRICANE IN HONDURAS

Immense Damage Done Crops and Many Craft Wrecked.

Mobile, Oct. 22.—The first news of a terrible hurricane that visited the towns of Ruatan, Tela, Utilia, Colorado and El Proveniente, Honduras, on Oct. 12, was brought here last night by the Norwegian fruit steamer Harold. A number of vessels were wrecked, several destroyed and buildings in each of the towns mentioned badly damaged.

The loss to the owners of the fruit plantations will, it is stated, reach almost a million dollars. The British schooner Southern Queen, was thrown on the beach at Ruatan, and went to pieces, and the Harold suffered somewhat and will have to be docked.

A tidal wave accompanied the hurricane, and swept everything before it. He left the beaches were strewn with vessels of all kinds, including three large sailing vessels. No lives were reported lost.

MORGAN'S NEPHEW JAILED.

London, Oct. 22.—The man styling himself as Gerald Morgan, and who claimed to be a member of the Harward Rowing Club, and a nephew of J. Pierpont Morgan, was today sentenced at the Old Bailey to 20 months' hard labor on the charge of obtaining money

A BOY'S REWARD FOR HIS HONESTY

He Gets 20 Cents for Returning a Purse Containing Over $300.

Strathroy, Oct. 21. — A young lad found a purse recently on the street, containing considerable cash and a check for $300. The boy promptly took it to his father, who soon found the owner, and the little fellow was rewarded for his honesty by the magnificent sum of 20 cents.

The annual harvest home services of St. John's Church on Sunday were well attended and much enjoyed by all. The old church looked better than ever with the fine decorations of flowers, fruit and vegetables, all evidencing the bountiful harvest of a most prosperous year. The music by the choir was of a very high order and reflected much credit on their organization. The rector, Rev. F. Robinson, preached at the services.

Mr. J. P. Sadler, G. T. R. agent, who has been holidaying in the Northwest the past month, returned home on Thursday and will resume his duties on Monday.

Mr. Alex. Diggins, of Toronto, was home for Thanksgiving. Miss Kate Cameron, Metcalfe street, is visiting in Toronto.

Mr. E. Wetherell, accountant at the Canadian Bank of Commerce here, severs his connection with that institution and will leave for Toronto next week to accept a position with the Union Bank.

A full house is looked for at the council meeting on Monday evening next. It is not yet known how many constables will be on hand.

Mrs. C. Woods, who has been ill for some time, died on Thursday morning last and broke her wrist.

Quite a number of sports went hunting on Thanksgiving Day. A large number of squirrels and rabbits were bagged around here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Scott spent Thanksgiving Day in Goderich.

The opening meeting of St. Andrew's Young Men's Club was held on Wednesday evening. There was a fairly good attendance in spite of the unfavorable weather. The president, Dr. Corrigan, gave a brief address and urged all members to work hard for the success of the club the coming term. Mr. C. S. Kirk, principal of the S. C. L., and Rev. W. J. Knox, gave instructive and interesting addresses, after which the meeting closed. The next meeting will be on the 24th inst.

ACTRESS KILLED BY HER FIANCE

Jealousy-Maddened Lover Shoots Fraulein Wolter and Suicides.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—Fraulein Rita Wolter, the leading lady at the Comic Opera House, was shot dead in Berlin by her lover, Herr Augustus Hesse, a young man of considerable private means.

Fraulein Wolter, who was the daughter of a wealthy manufacturer of Augsburg, South Germany, obtained her parents' consent to follow a theatrical career with great difficulty. Finally she came to Berlin to study for the stage, and last year secured obtaining a position at the Comic Opera House, where she soon became a leading lady.

During the period of study she became acquainted with Herr Hesse, and they became engaged. Their relations, however, cooled after a long conversation, in which he failed to persuade her to abandon her theatrical career, and he produced a revolver and shot her dead. Then he shot himself.

A few days ago Herr Hesse telegraphed to Ravenshoe, calling him a coward and a traitor, and challenging him to a duel, and Senator Ravenshoe, who was ill in bed, replied that he was willing to fight at any time.

ITS POWER GROWS WITH AGE.—How many medicines loudly boasted as panaceas for all human ills have come and gone since Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was first put upon the market? Yet it remains, doing more good to humanity than many a preparation more highly vaunted and extending its virtues wider and in a larger circle every year. It is the medicine of the masses.

HADLEY OPPOSES OWNERSHIP IDEAS

Yale President Says Public Utilities Are Safer With Private Parties.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—In view of the fact that Win. B. Hadley, the Democratic candidate for governor of New York, is making an out and out municipal ownership campaign, and that Bryan has declared for government ownership, the opinion of experts on the subject are being eagerly read.

No one perhaps has given closer study to the question than President Arthur Twining Hadley, of Yale, and he says:

"Private ownership of monopolies tends to rapid development and utilization of improvements. With all the talent that has been put into the public administration of industry, it is a salient fact that the important inventions have been made in countries enjoying private enterprise. The telegraph, telephone, electric light, the railroad track, the locomotive, the airplane, the block signal system, were all introduced by private companies. In most cases it took government experts from ten to twenty-five years to discover them after they had been in successful use on private lines. We also find that the efficiency and quantity of service is generally higher than we see it under government management."

Of government ownership here Prof. Hadley says: "We are in the greatest danger of sacrificing discipline and economy and of making subservience to the popular will a cloak to cover abuses of trust and violations of commercial honesty."

He also says: "If any government agency, local or national, is to be entrusted with the management of an industrial enterprise, a non-partisan civil service is absolutely essential for success. Only where the traditions of the civil service are such that the best men of the country seek and gain admission to it, independent of party, can we hope that the advantages from government management of these industries might outweigh the evils. With the conditions as they exist in the United States political reasons compel us to reduce government ownership of fixed capital to a minimum."

"So long as an administration is to any considerable degree swayed by partisan considerations instead of industrial ones, every extension of government activity to new fields must be regarded with grave apprehension."

OLD LONDON NOT THE WORST CITY

Searching Investigation Discovers It To Be Comparatively Good.

London, Oct. 22. — The outcry raised against the police some time ago when a Frenchwoman, named Mme. De Angely, was arrested in Regent street on a charge of accosting men, resulted in the appointment of a commission to inquire into the conduct and methods of the London police. Mme. De Angely received unusual sympathy at the time and convinced everyone that she was respectable, but when she failed to appear before the commission and the police proved that she was a well-known bad character, until last week, though the commissioners have been working steadily since their appointment.

Evidence was given last week, however, which has attracted general interest and comment. W. A. Combs, former secretary of the National Vigilance Association, which might be compared in some degree to Anthony Comstock's anti-vice society, testified that he had interviewed hundreds of women of questionable character, both foreign and English, regarding their treatment they received at the hands of the police. He had not found a single charge against the police, as a body or individually, of levying blackmail or exacting bribes. Many complained of harsh treatment, such as not being allowed to stand still and speak to men.

Combs said that he knew the continental cities intimately and believed that London compared favorably in regard to vice with the streets of Berlin and Paris, while as compared with 40 years ago, London was today an open air cathedral. It was commonly stated, Mr. Combs said, that there were between 60,000 and 80,000 street walkers in London. His society had taken a census and found that there were 8,000 English and foreign street walkers and the number was diminishing.

A bookmaker named Platt was the sensation of last week. He testified that he was making a book, principally on the streets, since 1886. Like all his fellow bookmakers, he had always bribed the police, giving them from a quarter to $5 and $10. He named four constables in one district to whom he had paid a pound sterling each week regularly, until one of them placed a bet of $10 with him. The horse won, but the witness found that the bet was made and refused to pay the $12 the constable claimed was due him, though the latter denied him repeatedly. The witness wrote letters to the home secretary and commissioner of police, but had not received any answer. The constables, however, were dismissed.

The witness admitted that he was now employing four men to collect bets in the street, through whom he was paying the police in their district $1,000 a year as "dry money" in addition to money spent for drinks. He gave the names of police he had bribed in the various districts where he had been allowed to take their bets on the street.

ANARCHIST BOMBS MADE IN LONDON

Scotland Yard Is Searching For a Secret Factory—Picric Acid the Explosive.

London, Oct. 21.—There are probably 10,000 Anarchists—resolute, uncompromising enemies of rule—in London today. No other capital in the world has such an aggregation of scoundrels. Continental nations, with the possible exception of Switzerland, will not tolerate them.

"An anarchist is a madman." That is the opinion of Mr. John Sweeney, who for tireless years waged war as the law permits in our tight little island upon bomb makers and bomb throwers.

There is nothing picturesque about the personality of the anarchist. He is not the raven-haired, melancholy-eyed, swarthy-skinned creature of the popular fancy, and the novelist's conceit. He is just simply a madman, and a madman of the most dangerous and revolting type.

There are few Englishmen who associate themselves with aggressive anarchism. The majority are Italian; some are French, Spanish, German and Armenian. It is a remarkable fact that the most eloquent and prolific speakers at anarchist councils are themselves excellent safety valves. The tongue is rarely in the hands of the anarchist. He is the gloomy, silent, morose man who strikes. He is the tool of the gibb-tongued orator.

Early in the September of 1901, a woman declared vehemently in New York against the sin of the times, and poured invectives upon royal heads. A mild-eyed youth listened with anger that was sharply fanned by the whirlwind of abuse into hotter and unquenchable fire. Leon Czolgosz went from the meeting with murder in his heart. A few days later he shot the President of the United States, was assassinated by this same Czolgosz.

"Silence these speakers," says Mr. Sweeney, "and you have dealt a staggering blow to anarchy. I would make it a penal offense for anyone to preach anarchy. I would make it a crime to claim anarchy. Till you do this, and till you do treat your anarchist as a dangerous and irresponsible fellow, no measure can insure the safety of royal and other highly placed personages."

The work of these madmen is constantly going on. Some of them are under the lynx eyes of a Scotland Yard man. Others have managed to keep their secret, and it will only be known when a terrible catastrophe starts the world.

Home of Sedition. In one of the by-streets of East London is a little stationer's shop, the look and name of which has been more than suspected. It is likely that a group of men, busy engaged in the manufacture of picric acid and fitting out of mercury detonators, will one day be surprised in the midst of their deadly work.

The police are active and untiring, but they are handicapped by the methods of the law. When they suspect that treasonable intrigue is on the way and wish to keep in touch with the men who are aggressive anarchists, they have to make irregular entry on a film and convenient place, by some means or other, to reach the wholesale manufacture of bombs at Walsall was discovered.

The raid on these surreptitious workers was made under the direction of Mr. Sweeney, who secured the conviction of several of the desperate men, who served long terms of penal servitude.

An expert in explosive work, that is, an expert in the manufacture of explosive works, they are thus able to secure entrance into the "dark" house, and there are able to see some of the processes of manufacture.

There are several methods of making bombs. One is nitro-glycerine, which is used exclusively as a charge. A mixture of nitric acid, sulphuric acid, and glycerine makes a strong explosive, and when combined with wood fiber it is fairly safe. But there is always the danger of concussion and of explosion at high temperature.

The high explosive generally used by anarchists is picric acid. This is the principal ingredient of the English lyddite and melinit. Picric acid is a very powerful explosive, and is a constituent of several dyes. It can easily be obtained, and carried in an ordinary bottle.

"There are also compounds of ammonia, which, however, are very volatile and difficult to keep in liquid form. In any case, a very small vessel is necessary for a bomb. Some are made of glass, but they are liable to break. Something will have to be done to subvert these madmen," said Mr. Sweeney, when discussing the matter the other day. "A declaration of war against the anarchist, regarded as a crime, and the propagation of anarchist doctrines should be punishable by law. When I first expressed this view I quite expected that my words would be quoted in Parliament. It would seem as though circumstances were hurrying matters on."

"Anarchists are a constant and deadly menace. What precaution, for instance, Mr. Sweeney walked over to the window of his office, and waved a hand in the direction of the street, could prevent a man who had made his way into the room from firing a bomb into the street?"

The public gatherings of anarchists in Hyde Park are responsible for much. The speakers inflame the listening crowds, and the result is a riot. It is also used as a means of raising money for the cause. The anarchist is not drawn from the better classes. Some of them are half-educated. The majority of the continent, they do not work; they do exact money from enthusiasts and refuse to do anything with the existing order of things. Will not something be done now?"

The salary of the United States President is $50,000, contingent expenses $25,000, secretary to the President $5,000, other employees in executive office $61,000, contingent expenses $20,000, care and repairs White House $35,000, fuel for White House $6,000, care of greenhouses $3,000, repairs to greenhouses $3,000, maintenance of White House grounds $4,000, policemen at White House $40,000, secret service men $4,000, naval yacht $150,000, naval yacht $25,000. Total $472,000.

A REAL CINDERELLA

How a Little Vancouver Servant Came Into a Big Fortune.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 21.—The following extraordinary story of an heiress held as a slave in New Zealand, lost track of for years, and finally rescued by her uncle, comes from San Francisco. An unfortunate orphan in a foreign land since 7 years old, reads the report, enslaved for almost a decade by an aged couple in New Zealand, today this woman is a fairly dream to her by reason of the sudden change for the better. The finding of the girl in New Zealand is a story of remarkable features. Her father, John Gilbert, was a daring young sea captain, who immediately after his marriage in Oregon went to Australia, and then to New Zealand. There Violet was born. Most of her mother's relatives have long lived in Oregon, and an aunt resides in Woodland, Cal. After his wife's death Gilbert seldom communicated with his relatives in America. When Violet was 7, he died, leaving her penniless. Nobody in New Zealand knew where her American relatives lived, so the girl fell into the hands of an aged couple, who treated her as a slave. Less than two years ago Mrs. Davidson of Portland, learned that her brother-in-law, Gilbert, had died in New Zealand, and she at once took steps to find if he left any family. After a good deal of correspondence she located the girl. Meanwhile, another aunt had died and left a large sum of money to the girl. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson thereupon determined to bring their orphaned niece from New Zealand to the United States. The girl who was thus suddenly taken from a home of poverty to become the owner of riches was brought over on the Pacific mail steamer Sonoma. She made many friends among the passengers, and everybody rejoiced at her good fortune.

A MOTOR CAR MYSTERY

Guardians of the Czar on the Trail of Vanishing Vehicle.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—The mysterious motor car which was driven with tremendous force through the palings of the park at Tsarskoe Selo is probably the same as a car for which the police have for some time been searching.

The car is a very powerful one, lacquered red. It appears at irregular intervals in St. Petersburg and then vanishes. It is generally occupied by three well-dressed men. Just before the attempt at the Stolypin villa it was seen several times driving along the avenue that leads past the "Nikolaevskiy" park. It was also seen several times during the summer in the districts where the St. Petersburg garrison was encamped, particularly on roads along which high officials used to drive.

The police have been able to take the number of the motor, but the motor so numbered does not answer to the description or power of the mysterious vehicle, so that the number has been illegally assumed.

Orders have been issued to arrest the car wherever it might be encountered. The police have been told to keep it on the road and called upon the men in it to stop. They had, however, no firearms, and the men in the car drew revolvers and threatened them, whereupon they were compelled to let go.

This is the last time that the car was seen. The police have since stopped several cars and detained the inmates of them. Among others, they stopped the physician-in-ordinary to the Czar, Dr. Pavloff, though he was wearing full uniform and all his medals. He was taken to the police station and his identity was clearly established.

It is believed that the dash of the car into Tsarskoe Selo was a rehearsal for an attempt to be made on the Czar when he returns to the winter palace from Peterhof, as Peterhof will be too strongly guarded while the Czar is in residence there to give any chance of success.

ENGLISH JUDGE ROBBED

Arrest of Man for Stealing Bicycle Leads to Location of Loot.

Paris, Oct. 21.—A man named Clavier was stopped by the police in the Rue Lafayette late last night for riding a bicycle without a name-plate. It was then discovered that the bicycle was not his and that he had stolen it. On being taken to the police station he gave an address in the Rue du Faubourg St. Denis, where the police found a valuable dressing case belonging to Lord Justice Fletcher Moulton, and bearing his initials. The man explained that he had stolen the bag from the Geneva express at the Gare de Lyon.

A reporter called this afternoon on Lord Justice Fletcher Moulton at his hotel in the Rue Castiglione. "It is perfectly true," he said, "that I lost a bag in the train from Geneva, but I had not lost it until we notified the railway company of the loss and quite expected that it would have found it."

It appears that the dressing case, with several other pieces of luggage, had been registered right through to Paris, and it was not until it was on the judge's arrival in Paris that he discovered that one of the articles was missing.

He presumes that as the luggage was changed from one train to another at Lausanne the thief must have got hold of the dressing case there. It is more probable, however, that Clavier, as he states, succeeded in obtaining possession of the dressing case at the Gare de Lyon.

A fool is a fellow who believes in something that you never heard of.

CHASED BY WIFE FROM THE RACES

Bookmaker Flees in Auto, But Is Overtaken After an Exciting Run.

New York, Oct. 21. — "There's the wretch! Get after him!"

With that exclamation from an angry wife who was in one automobile while her husband was in another, there began a remarkable chase yesterday of the second machine by the first.

Starting from Belmont Park the two automobiles sped away. They dodged in and out among other vehicles, up hill and down dale, now through narrow lanes, again through busy settlements, with other automobiles breaking here and there into the chase, until it found a melodramatic climax at the Long Island City ferry. On the ferryboat was the fleeing machine. The other was a second too late, but one of its occupants, Court Officer Glennon, had jumped from it, and with a flying leap across the water, he gained the ferryboat, and served court papers from which the husband in the first automobile had been fleeing.

Mrs. Lulu Eshner was the young woman who instigated the chase. Her husband is Frank Eshner, a bookmaker. Last August the wife swore out a warrant against him with threatening to abduct their 12-year-old daughter Vera. He was making a book at Saratoga at the time, and her effort to serve him on other tracks since his return proved unavailing. Finally she learned that he had an agent doing his work for him, while he himself was merely a spectator of the races.

Yesterday with Officer Glennon, of the west side court, she went in her automobile to the track and waited outside for the races to be over. Eshner saw his wife as quickly as she saw him, and instantly gave a command to his chauffeur, and the thrilling flight and pursuit was on. Through the town of Queens the two cars tore into Jamaica. Scores of other automobiles were bound away from the races. The lamps of several were smashed to smithereens.

In Jamaica's crowded streets people scrambled to get out of the way, and Eshner's car, in making a sudden turn to the right, narrowly missed a group of children. Up and down the many treacherous little hills that lead to Flushing it sped, leaving a trail of dust that choked and whitened the pursuers right behind. On Broadway, Flushing, policemen tried to bring the speeders to a standstill.

The chase then struck the route to College Point, Eshner apparently heading for the Ninety-ninth street ferry. Back toward Flushing, however, his machine suddenly turned, a good lead that it had gained being quickly lost. The two cars thundered across a wooden bridge over Flushing Creek with such speed and force as to almost tear the flooring planks asunder. They sandwiched a trolley car, each missing it by but a few inches as they crossed it in front and the other behind it, each dashing diagonally across the tracks.

The second machine was invisible in the cloud of dust raised by the first as they swung along the farmers' road through Corona. Through Elmhurst they went, leaving a swarm of impatient motorists from the drivers of farm wagons, and reached the Bushwick turnpike.

The two automobiles then switched into Borden street for the straight dash through Long Island City to the ferry. Other automobiles, bicycles and men and boys on foot started in pursuit along that thoroughfare.

As the first car reached the ferry landing the mob swarmed around the one behind. Glennon fought his way through fists and clubs to the Long Island City ferry. On the ferryboat was the fleeing machine. The other was a second too late, but one of its occupants, Court Officer Glennon, had jumped from it, and with a flying leap across the water, he gained the ferryboat, and served court papers from which the husband in the first automobile had been fleeing.

"All right," was the prisoner's comment, "I'll go with you with a warning." It was taken to the West Forty-seventh street station and locked up, pending bail.

THE CRETAN INSURGENTS
Attempt to Capture Prince George of Greece, High Commissioner.

Athens, Oct. 21. — A fight in which two persons were killed and a large number were wounded occurred at Canea before the departure from Crete of Prince George of Greece, the ex-high commissioner, who arrived here this evening.

About 500 of the Cretan Insurgents, who heard that Prince George was leaving Crete, marched on Monday night toward Suda Bay, and attempted to surround the palace yesterday morning, with the object of preventing the departure of the prince.

Meanwhile, a strong force of international troops had been posted round the palace, and these opened fire on the demonstrators. A conflict ensued in which one Cretan and a Russian soldier were killed, and many on both sides were wounded.

The British cruiser Barham, anchored in the bay, landed a detachment of sailors with machine guns. The Greek flag was flown from the Government buildings, but a body of French and Italian soldiers rehoisted the Cretan flag, and captured several insurgents.

Prince George begged the insurgents to depart, and they withdrew to the mountains.

In order to prove its power of discriminating between colors the scientist, Dahl, made some interesting tests on a monkey. He colored some sweets with a certain colored dye and some bitter substances with that of another color. After a few attempts the monkey learned to leave without even tasting those articles of food colored with the dye which indicated bitter-tasting substances and seized at once upon those which indicated sweets. Varying the experiments sufficiently he found that the monkey distinguished all the different colors readily, save only dark blue. Many savage tribes cannot distinguish dark blue from black, and even children distinguish this color later than all others.

MURDER AT WEDDING

Bride's Father Slain and His Assassin Almost Beaten to Death.

Geneva, Oct. 21.—The gallantry of a young Italian named Plaza led to a quarrel at a wedding breakfast, in which the father of the bride was murdered and Plaza was almost beaten to death.

Toward the end of the feast Plaza quarreled with the father of the bride, a Swiss named Crami, because the latter asserted that the bride was the prettiest and happiest woman at the table, whereas Plaza contended that his partner was the most beautiful member of the company.

Crami grew angry and struck Plaza, who thereupon drew a knife and stabbed his host. Crami fell back in his chair dead. A wild uproar followed, and when the police arrived to arrest Plaza they found him almost beaten to death by the guests.

Of Robert Louis Stevenson, a recent writer says: "With his dark eyes looking as if they had drunk in the sunshine in some southern land, his uncut hair, his odd, shabby clothes clinging to his attenuated frame, his elaborate manners and habit of gesticulating as he spoke, he was often mistaken for a starving musician or foreign mountebank. Continental officials doubted his passport's statement that he was a Briton. In France he was imprisoned, and Stevenson complained that he could not pass a frontier or visit a bank without suspicion."

Mrs. Part possesses an old doll called "Henrietta," which was given to her when she was 7 years old for singing nicely.

LONDON, MONDAY, OCT. 22.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION AND ITS CURE.

One of the difficulties in attaining a higher moral standard in political warfare is suggested by the hypocritical attitude of a number of Conservative papers, like the London Free Press. The Liberal journals of the country, without exception, have taken the view that the welfare of the Liberal party will be served by the exposure of corruption which may have been practiced in its supposed interests by partisans with more zeal than scruples. The weight of legal opinion is against the legality of the present inquiry at Toronto, but Liberals would prefer not to have this question raised so long as the prosecution can produce indubitable evidence of wrong-doing. What they have protested against is not the prosecution, but its methods. One phase of this is accurately described by the Winnipeg Free Press:

"The present case appears to have originated in the desire of the London Conservative Association to ascertain the irregularities of their adversaries at no risk to themselves. It is beginning to be apparent that the inspiration of the case is in London; and that it was begun at Toronto to hide this fact. It is stated that the London Conservative Association through certain of its officers rounds up the witnesses and puts them through a preliminary informal examination to determine whether it is desirable that they should be sent to Toronto. The character and nature of the examinations made by Mr. Du Vernet, the crown prosecutor, makes it as plain as daylight that he has no clear idea of what he is trying to prove, but is fishing for all he is worth in the hope of getting some."

"If these London election workers are guilty of the offenses charged against them, it is desirable that they should be punished; but when politics are mixed with a criminal prosecution the result is usually indecisive. When the crown prosecutor forgets his position and his oath of office, and becomes more the politician than the instrument of justice, it is not surprising that the jurymen should like to forget their obligations and give first consideration to the political side of the case. Prosecutions for political crimes should be entrusted to lawyers not identified with party politics, and should be carried out with the most scrupulous regard for the legal rights of the defendants; under such conditions justice would be done. The prevalent system, which is being followed in Ontario, usually determines nothing finally; and simply adds to the bitterness of politics."

The purely political nature of the proceedings is further shown by the gratuitous attempts to smirch the reputations of cabinet ministers and others high in the Liberal party. There is no evidence to connect these men with the present inquiry, but the purpose of the prosecution is served by parading their names before the country, and exhibiting them as objects of dark suspicion.

The Liberal press, despite all these provocations, has welcomed the present investigation in the hope that it will have a wholesome effect upon both parties. The Conservative papers, with very few exceptions, see in it only an opportunity to make party capital. They turn a blind eye to the shady dealings of Conservative members of the present Parliament, and the record of Conservative election inequity, and become the corruption of the Liberal party. The local Conservative organ even has the presumption to say that all the offenses against the purity of elections in this city smell to heaven from one side of the fence, a statement which insults the intelligence of its own readers. The Pecksniffs and Holy Willies of this stripe are among the worst enemies of reform, and will do much to neutralize any good results which might otherwise flow from the present inquiry at Toronto. Repentance must precede conversion and a change of life, and there will be no real or lasting improvement unless each party is willing to do its own housecleaning.

THE GROWTH OF THE MOTHER-LAND.

In a letter to the London Times, Mr. Sydney Webb exhaustively analyzes the extent and causes of the diminished birthrate in the British Isles. It is claimed that while the rate had been steadily increasing to its maximum period between 1871 and 1881, it has fallen during the last 20 years to an extent equivalent to 200,000 births per annum. Mr. Webb's researches confirm the conclusions others have reached, that this is not due to physical degeneracy, but to a volitional regulation of the marriage state, which is conspicuous not only in wealthy houses, but among thrifty artisans and in prosperous trades, notably in the textile districts. The fact remains, however, that the falling birthrate in Great Britain in recent years has made very little impression on the population.

It is found that by improved sanitary surroundings and better means and methods of combatting disease, many thousands of lives that under former conditions would have been annually sacrificed, are now saved to the community, so that though there are fewer births, those who are born have a much better chance to reach manhood and womanhood than was formerly the case. Counting out Ireland, the loss of population which is caused by emigration, the official returns of the population, as given in the past five censuses, do not show that the rate of increase has varied very much since 1861. We give the decennial rate of increase for the periods ending in 1861 and 1901, respectively:

England	12.9	12.1
Wales	10.5	12.3
Scotland	6.0	11.1
Ireland (decrease) ..	11.8	5.2
The islands	0.2	1.9

In 1861, the total population of the United Kingdom was 23,321,238 and today the British census officials estimate it to be over 43,000,000. In the interval, the motherland has contributed millions of her sons and daughters to other lands, including Canada, and every year continues to give of the best of her population to aid in the building up of the Dominion and other nations. The cry of the practical Britisher, indeed, in modern times has been not that the mothers are not doing their duty, but how shall they find sustenance for the ever-increasing population of the country.

It is understood that one or two of the legal gentlemen engaged in the Collins case are seeking Government positions, as Collins did.

The British postoffice authorities have followed the example of the Canadian postoffice, and now issues penny stamps in book form—24 for two shillings. The Canadian booklet contains 25c worth. It is a very handy way to carry stamps for purposes of emergency.

Interviewed in Victoria, B. C., Sir John Long, the veteran British newspaperman, said that when he left Sir Wilfrid Laurier last fall the Canadian Prime Minister said: "You can't send us too many good Scotchmen." "As a result of Sir Wilfrid's suggestion," said Sir John, "I wrote a series of articles and, as a result, over 2,000 Scotchmen left Dundee, my home, this year bound for Canada." This little incident demonstrates how much can be done by a "booster." Sir John Long was virtually enlisted by the Canadian Prime Minister as an immigration agent for the Dominion. He owns newspapers in Scotland having a weekly circulation of over a million copies, and what he champions he champions with his whole soul. A typical Englishman transplanted to Scotland, he has led in every progressive movement for 50 years.

The Ottawa Free Press thus scores the methods of the prosecution in the London election inquiry:

"Not satisfied with supplanting the courts, these gentlemen would now pervert the machinery of justice to the furtherance of their political purposes, they will hale as witnesses a member of the Federal Government coming from a distant province and the premier of another distant province, one of whom addressed only one meeting in London, arriving in the city in the evening and leaving the following morning. That they do so, remarks the Edmonton Bulletin, the newspaper of Hon. Mr. Oliver, is apparently intended to convey the impression that they doubt both the integrity and the prudence of these public men, for whether or not corrupt practices took place in London to accuse Messrs. Oliver and Scott of having knowledge of such offenses is not less a reflection on their common sense than on their common honesty. Under these circumstances the hailing of Mr. Oliver and Mr. Scott to the witness box can have no reasonable purpose, save as an attempt to cast aspersions on them in the hope to offset the stigma which the insurance inquiry has cast upon Mr. Foster and his associates. It is in the hope of attaching odium to two prominent Liberals as an antidote for the public disgust at the doings of this coterie of Conservative politicians that the machinery of justice is now to be misused."

EXPANSION.

[Judge.]

He—They say travel broadens a person.
She—Surely. The moment a man enters a car he spreads out over half a dozen seats.

HEARST'S VOCABULARY OF VERMIN.

[New York World.]

Mr. Hearst calls Judge Parker "cockroach," Charles A. Towne, "a rat" and William T. Jerome "a croton-bug." If Mr. Hearst's vocabulary holds out perhaps he will tell us some day what he thinks of Murphy, Finney Connors, and Max Ihmsen.

WHAT MAN SHOULD EAT.

[The Lancet.]

A study of anatomy suggests a fruit diet as the most suitable; further confirmation is given by the obvious predilection of nearly all children for such food. The best fruits for food are apples, bananas, grapes, nuts, dates, raisins and figs.

Nuts are especially valuable owing to the large amount of fat they contain; the old-fashioned idea that they are indigestible is due partly to the error in taking them at the end of an already more than ample meal, and partly to insufficient mastication. Chestnuts are the easiest to digest and make an excellent food. Many other fruits may be taken, always remembering that stone fruits sometimes disagree, and that acid fruits should be taken in moderation. Strawberries contain a considerable amount of purins and should be avoided by all with a gouty or rheumatic tendency. Among fruits we include those of the cereals, such as wheat and rice. White bread is free from purins, but brown contains a varying amount derived from the husk. The most wholesome form of bread is unleavened.

THE LAW OF AVERAGES.

[Philadelphia Bulletin.]

The average man is bald at 40.
The average minister marries 1,000 couples.
Glasses for old age are adopted on the average at 43.
The average cat mother blesses the world with 100 kittens.
The yearly sale of newspapers throughout the world averages 750,000 tons.
The world's gold mines yield on an average $500,000 or 28,000 ounces of gold a year.

IN OUR MIDST.

[New York Tribune.]

A country paper lays down this rule of etiquette: "When a lady and gentleman are walking in the street, the lady should walk inside of the gentleman."

INTELLIGENT EXPLANATION.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

"This paper says, 'Beef makes brawn and fish makes brain.' I wonder how these authorities figure out that fish makes brain."

THE VEGETARIAN'S DOG.

[Boston Record.]

Brighton has been infested by tramps recently, and this sign is on a well-known residence: "We are vegetarians, but our dog is not."

HER EXPERIENCES.

[Cleveland Press.]

"All my old friends tell me the first year is the trying one for married folk," remarked the bride. "They say that if you get through the first year you're all right."
"Yes, that's true," said the woman who had celebrated her silver wedding. "You don't mind it much after the first year."

A GENTLEMAN UNAPPRECIATED.

[Puck.]

The young man had risen promptly and was bowing the old lady to his seat. But the old lady hesitated. "Do I look eccentric to you?" she asked severely.
"Not at all," replied the young man. "Or worth $75,000?"
"Oh, no."
"Or as if I should go straight home and alter my will in your favor?"
"I assure you such a thought never entered my head."
"Thank you," she said. "I'm right glad of a chance to sit down, but I don't want any misunderstanding about it."

As for the young man, he went out on the platform, lit a cigarette, and talked about chivalry with the conductor, and they both agreed that it had had its day.

DISTRESSINGLY HARD LUCK.

COUNTRY HOUSE COSTS.

[The Tatler.]

It is extraordinary the number of charming people who refuse country-house visits because they cannot afford the host's bridge stakes or the servants' tips.

WOMANLY WOMAN.

[London Opinion.]

Women are more womanly today than ever they were. Their dress bills are twice as heavy, their vanity twice as insatiable, their personality twice as irresistible, their youth twice as elastic.

THE BANK NOTE.

[Toronto Mail and Empire.]

A Canadian bank note is practically indestructible. A bank may be so completely ruined that a second capital, wrung out of the shareholders under the double liability provision, may be swallowed up after the first, yet the notes of the annihilated institution will continue to circulate for their face value. The only situation in which the notes could lose their value would be that in which several important banks should be in trouble.

REVENGE.

[New York Sun.]

Stella—Did they throw rice over the bride?
Bella—Yes; that is why she invited them to her first biscuits.

MAY BE ANOTHER COBALT.

[Ottawa Free Press.]

Quebec Province may also have its cobalt mining camp. Prospector who have returned after a season's operations in the Chibougamou district, nearly 200 miles north from the terminus of the Lake St. John Railway at Roberval, report having obtained rich specimens of cobalt in addition to making good finds of copper and gold as well as locating an immense deposit of asbestos.

CLAIMS OF LIFE'S DERELICTS.

[Toronto Globe.]

The suicide of an aged and respectable couple in Hamilton, because they were too old to work, is a pathetic revelation of the heartlessness of organized society. The arguments of the advocates of old age pensions are certainly strong, and those who have given the world the products of a life of useful industry have claims that cannot be disregarded.

LONDON'S WORRY IS TRANSPORTATION

Daily Grows More Difficult to City's 7,000,000 Souls.

OLD BUSES STILL IN FAVOR

Correspondent Says Only Notable Improvement Ever Made Was Due to C. T. Yerkes.

London, Oct. 1.—Like other cities, London has its transportation problems, and they are the more serious than elsewhere because of the enormous area and population involved. Greater London now has nearly 7,000,000 people within its limits and includes a solid mass of buildings thirty miles in one direction and nineteen miles in the other. There has been great improvement in the local transportation facilities, due chiefly to American enterprise. The late Charles T. Yerkes re-organized the underground system of railways and brought it up to date, but the increase in population and the demand for transportation seems to be greater and greater every year as if it never would be satisfied.

The dark, dismal, sooty tunnels filled with smoke and smells which Mr. Yerkes found when he came to London are now well ventilated, cheerful passages, with plenty of air and light and lined with tiles, while the cars are brilliantly illuminated. They are finished in rattan and light mahogany and the motive power is electricity, so that they run silently, swiftly and smoothly and are as comfortable as an underground car can be. Electric surface cars run by storage batteries and underground and overhead trolleys have been introduced in several directions and extend to all the suburbs. They are even laying a track on the Thames embankment, which is desirable because that should have been retained as a promenade and a driveway. The county council, which is the municipal government of London, is laying the tracks, however, so that nobody can object, and will operate the cars as a belt line between two great systems on the south and the north sides of the Thames.

There is a good deal of municipal ownership in London. The county council operates a fleet of passenger boats on the Thames, a line of "buses" and half a dozen or more street railways and makes a profit out of every one of them by enterprising and prudent management. The manager of the steamboat service is so enterprising that he got up half a dozen excursions and carried thousands of people up the Thames to see the boat race between Cambridge and Harvard last month. The fares were low, the advantages were great, there was no crowding, everything was well ordered, a whole-lunch was served on board for a low price and a large profit was made. The city council, which is the common council of Chicago running excursion steamers to see a boat race, or the district commissioners of Washington organizing holiday trips down the Potomac as a matter of profit to the city government. But over here such things can be done without criticism, even in competition with private enterprise.

Notwithstanding the bright, new "tuppenny tubes" with their swift and frequent electric trains, the favorite means of transportation in London is still the old-fashioned omnibus, or, if you do not think it will ever be superseded, for a man who is not in a hurry, and especially for one who is fond of human nature and loves to observe the conduct of his fellow-men, from an elevated platform, and if you are getting about a crowded city like London than in a seat on the deck of one of these buses. You have a continuous panorama of human affairs passing before you, and can witness it from an elevated platform, and if you are so fortunate as to get a seat next to the driver, you can enjoy a continuous conversational monologue, and get a great deal of valuable information and philosophy. The London bus driver is a unique character. He is both an oracle and an encyclopedia; he knows every house along his route and all the history that has been enacted between the termini. He is also a philosopher; he is well posted as to current events, and his comments are only amusing but instructive. He is a wit and a bit of a cynic. He has his jokes and anecdotes and he repeats them daily, or perhaps several times a day, but 7,000 buses are on the streets of London, and you are not apt to get the same driver twice. I have never found one who was not willing or anxious to talk. I have never found one who was not entertaining, and all of them are particularly willing to furnish strangers with information as to the interesting localities during the ride. I have never found a more entertaining way of spending an afternoon than on the top of a London bus in the seat next to the driver.

There are, as I have said, more than 7,000 buses on the streets of London, running in every direction, to every part of the city, at an average fare of 1 cent per mile. There are five big companies and several smaller ones. The largest, the London General Omnibus Company, has 1,397 omnibuses on the road, and employs 3,500 men and 15,617 horses. In 1905 this company alone carried 215,000,000 passengers; during the first six months of 1906 it carried 108,341,520 and 15,652,150 miles. The receipts for 1905 were $2,002,702, and for the first six months of the current year $1,202,796, an average of $11.56 per omnibus per day. The routes vary from six to ten miles. Each omnibus is expected to make five trips daily, and to cover a distance of 15 miles. Those who start out at 6 o'clock in the morning lay off at 6 at night; those who start out at 10 in the morning lay off at 10 at night, and so on.

Richest Event for Jumpers in the East—Roseben Did Not Go For Record.

New York, Oct. 20.—The Belmont Park meeting closed today. Rain prevented the scheduled attempt by Roseben to lower Salvatore's long-standing record for a mile straightaway.

In a driving finish, Hylas won the $9,000 Champion steeplechase, defeating Roseben by a nose in the final stride. This is the richest stake for jumpers offered in the east and is over a trying course of 3½ miles. Hylas was always a 7 to 5 favorite, with Alfie and John M. P. the imported English jumper, second choice, at 7 to 2. Woolgatherer was backed down from 10 to 7 to 1, while the price on Coligny went up to 8. The race was run in a rainstorm, and the course was heavy. John M. P. went out to make the pace, but fencer, who led only for the first half mile, when he refused. Alfie then took the lead, but Stone finally sent John M. P. over the jump and again reached the level. He continued to show himself a winner, and the race was a close one, with Hylas and Coligny together, and in a terrific drive Hylas won by a nose. Coligny was twenty lengths ahead of Alfie.

Running Water, the 1 to 4 favorite, had to be ridden out to win the Belmont Park weight-for-age race 2½ miles. Nealon made the pace for two miles, then Miller brought Running Water up and in a drive won by a neck. Nealon was second, 50 lengths in front of The Cricket, the only other starter.

Okenite, backed down from 5 to 2 to 9 to 5, won the White Plains Handicap for 2-year-olds. Four favorites won.

New York, Oct. 20.—William F. Hoppe who retained the 18.1 billiard championship Wednesday night by defeating Jacob Schaeffer, the challenger for the title, is desirous of becoming champion at the 18.2 style of playing. He has challenged George Sutton, the Chicago billiardist, who was the 18.2 champion last night from George Slonson. Hoppe has posted a forfeit, which he has asked Sutton to cover. He has also asked Sutton to fix the time and place for the match.

THE TURP.

[JOCKEYS GO TO FATHER.]

Tommy Burns, the jockey, was yesterday dismissed from the guardianship of his two minor brothers, Guy and Willie, who have been riding at the race tracks, says the New York Telegraph. They were turned over to their father, John Burns, of Chatham, Ont., by Surrogate Church, of Kings County, who scored Mrs. Burns for taking them away from home. He also ordered Tommy to give a strict accounting of the earnings of the boys since they had been under his care, and to turn what was due them over to their new guardian. The elder Burns and his wife have been separated for some time, and he accuses her of being "money mad." He says she apprenticed the boys at Sheepshead Bay for the money there was in it.

SATURDAY'S WINNERS.

At Belmont Park—Valle 4 to 5, Hylas 7 to 5, Okenite 9 to 5, Beauclair 5 to 1, Running Water 1 to 4, Miss Crawford 16 to 5.

Garden City, L. I., Oct. 20.—W. E. Clow, Jun., of Yale, a Chicago boy, who was president of the Intercollegiate Association last year, is the holder of the championship title in this year's contest between Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Cornell, winning the title in the final round today from Dwight Partridge, also of Yale, one up. Cornell dropped out of the match in the preliminary round for the individual cup, and then Yale had such a commanding lead that the New Haven men duplicated their double turn of last year.

A MISSION FULFILLED

For one moment Geronimo remained hesitating; then, he rose to assist ungraciously enough. It was an unfortunate movement, for it came just too late. Keith had already caught a staple fixed upon the pier-side with one hand and held it fast while with the other he managed his oar, so as to keep the boat straight, and Margherita leaped on shore. The young fisherman's indecision was probably owing as much to a sly goulie as to the intentional ruse; but it was so manifest that it roused a rebuke even from Margherita's lips.

"For shame, Geronimo!" she said, as she turned a cold and disapproving glance toward him; while Keith, all his hot-tempered, expressed himself still more strongly.

"Get out of the way, you ill-conditioned loafer!" he exclaimed, "I hate the very sight of your gargoyle face!" He spoke in English; but the meaning of the words was clear enough; and involuntarily he pushed the young fisherman aside with no gentle manner.

In an instant Geronimo's features were transformed. Before, he had worn an expression of gloomy depression; now blackest passion leaped into his eyes, as with a stifled cry of fury, he flung himself upon the Englishman. The arm was raised, and there was a gleam of metal in the air. But the knife had no time to descend; for Keith, by a quick movement, caught it from his grasp, and almost at the same moment Margherita flung herself between them.

"Keep off, Margherita, it's all right," said her husband, coolly, as with one hand he kept a tight hold upon his assailant, and with the other flung the weapon far out to sea.

"So!" he continued, grimly, still grasping the young Italian, and looking him steadily in the face. "So, stabling is your game, is it? You have looked like it for some weeks. This is the second time you have tried to do for me, Mr. Geronimo, and it is once too often. I forgive you last time. This time you shall take your deserts." There was no answer. The young fisherman stood before him pale and panting, but defiant. His strength was not equal to that of his antagonist, and he appeared passive. As sometimes happened at this hour of the day, there was no one by to witness the unusual scene.

This is one of the newest models of the circular skirt, and the home sewer will find it an easy one to make. Any of the seasonable worsteds may be used to develop the suit. The medium size calls for one yard of 54-inch goods for the jacket and 5 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for the skirt.

Margherita's face was full of horror as she gazed at her old playmate. "Did you mean to murder him?" she asked, in a low tone, her eyes upon his.

"Yes," he said, his breath coming in quick, short gasps; "he insulted me!" But his expression changed as he looked at her, and his face softened.

Only for a moment, however; the next it grew harder and darker than ever, as he watched the abhorrence that swept over hers.

"Go!" she said, her eyes blazing with indignation, "you are a fiend—you deserve your fate! May I never see you again, Geronimo, Garro!"

"Now," said Keith, quietly, "come along with me to the prefect's."

But, even as he was about to grasp his companion more firmly by the arm, Geronimo's passivity suddenly departed, and with a violent, unexpected wrench, he released himself. In a moment he was off, like an arrow from a bow, a mocking laugh upon his lips, and out of sight upon the upward road almost before either of the two had time to realize that he was gone.

"He is mad," said Margherita.

"But steps not well escape," said Keith. "But steps not well escape; one must not leave a wild beast at large upon the island. You go on, Margherita; I will turn aside and call upon the prefect."

"Take care of yourself," she said, anxiously. "Ah, he is a maniac—how can I tell what he may not do?"

"Oh, I am safe enough now; he has had enough of me for the present," he laughed. "Go home to your bimbo, Margherita; don't worry about me."

She went on slowly, sadly; her brief anger already melting into a wondering compassion.

"Ah, Nino, Nino!" she sighed, "what can have changed you so—what has put the devil into your heart? You, Nino, who used to be so good and kind—so tender to your little cignia—and now—ah, Dio! wishing to kill her husband!"

She mumbled. "Yes, it must be so—your must be mad. God help you, poor Geronimo!"

CHAPTER XLV.

An Innocent Victim.

"I shall go across and have a smoke with Spencer," Keith said to his wife, a few hours later. "I shall return him his loan—I can do it now. Then," he added, with a smile, "we shall have every weight off our minds."

"Except Geronimo," she replied, half hesitating.

Keith shrugged his shoulders. "I wonder where he is, and whether they will find him? The prefect pretended to be very hot about it. Poor devil! my private opinion is that he is mad. I shouldn't be sorry if he gets away, though the prefect says that is impossible, if the two marines are watched. After all, I don't suppose he would injure one in cold blood. He is only a hot-headed young savage."

"Ah, he is dangerous," said Margherita. "I hope they will find him."

"You vindictive child!" laughed Keith, amused by her earnestness. "Who would have thought that you would have been the one to utter such a sentiment?"

"He is not safe," she repeated, anxiously. "He hates you, Keith."

"Well," he said, carelessly, "it's rather a distinction for me to be regularly hated by anyone, even a half-witted fisherman; I don't remember a similar experience in my life before."

"Let me go with you, Keith."

"Nonsense! What on earth is in your head? You have the child to look after. I will go for the money."

He bent and kissed her laughingly, and then left the room to run upstairs. With a sudden impulse, she opened the low window, and stepped out upon the grass. There was no moon, and the night was very dark. A shudder passed over her, perhaps it was the chill of the evening breeze. She had flung nothing over her shoulders; only a gray Scotch cap of Keith's was upon her head. Her baby was asleep upstairs; she would walk with her husband to Mr. Spencer's. Why did she feel so strange an objection to his going even those few yards alone to-night? She was not often nervous, but his encounter with Geronimo today had shaken her; and a few words dropped by Stefano, who had met her on the way homeward, had not served to modify her fears.

His voyage, and not long returned from his voyage, was he browner and more manly, but not less modest than before. One of the most determined of the rules taught him by his gentlemanly instincts was never to be seen in company with his sister in public, and though he came up at stated intervals, like the rest of his family, he avoided walking with his sister whenever they happened to meet upon the road, and usually passed her merely with the polite salute with which he would have greeted any other lady.

Today, however, Margherita had stopped him, and given him the history of Geronimo's attempt to injure her husband; and he had listened carefully, with an anxious face.

"I have noticed it," he said. "It was always so, more or less; but it has been growing worse since your signor marito returned this last time to Capri. He hates the signor; and Nino can be as a wild beast where he hates."

"What has my husband ever done that he should hate him?" she demanded, hotly. "He has been kind to everyone here; he has not been proud to anyone of my old friends or relations. How many would you find like him?"

"Not many," said Stefano, warmly. "He is a good man, a true gentleman, sorella mia; he despises no one. We all love him, because he has made you happy—all except Geronimo. And he—ah, he is different."

"Why should he be different?" she asked. "He is base, he is mean to seek the life of one who never did him harm!"

"Nay, sorella mia, Geronimo is wild; he is fierce and passionate as a wild beast, but he is not base—he was never so. Only last year, when our mother was ill, he spent the half of his earnings in bringing her dainty things to eat. He will even give away the very shirt upon his back to a neighbor in want—he is ever ready to do a kind action for those who need it. But he is very sad; he broods; and the Evil One then enters into his mind. Alas! I grieve for him; he will work his own ruin, I fear, sorella mia, some day."

"Why should he be unhappy?" she persisted, her voice unsoftened. "Why does he not marry Teresina, and settle down and be content?"

"Ah, he cannot marry Teresina!" said Stefano, sadly. "Glancing up for a moment into her face half dubiously he went on: 'Years ago, my sister, there were two little children that played together upon the rocky shingle here below. I often watched them both. The boy was three years older than the girl, and he was her protector and her guardian. He could not bear to see her even then, a sharp stone lying in the way of her baby feet, and if some childish treasure became his, it was valueless unless he could share it with his little companion, and worth double if she would accept it all. So they grew up together; and he, at least, never thought but one thought, never felt but one feeling. She was all the world to him, but he—was only a kind cousin, a good-natured playmate to her. Ah, it is often so in life!'

And Stefano's dark eyes for a moment dimmed, and his voice grew husky, as he continued:

"But he always hoped—he ever believed that it would end as he wished; till one day—it was a terrible day for him—when his eyes were opened, and he found her bound in heart and soul to another. He had to bear it—men and women must bear such things—and, Dio lo sa, with some it is but a moment's pang, the remembering of a few days; but with others, as with him, it is for years. They cannot forget, if they would—they cannot feel that it is wicked to be faithful; their hearts are bitter against the other man. Ah, my sister, it would have been better for poor Geronimo had you stayed in England. I fear me he is mad. I do not think—nay, I hope—that the signor Keith will have no harm from him; but I fear now he may harm himself, more likely—"

These words of Stefano's had echoed persistently in Margherita's ears, perhaps all the more persistently because feelings she could not have put into words restrained her from repeating them to her husband; and the sentiment they aroused in her breast was one of anxiety for Keith's safety rather than commiseration for Geronimo.

Indignation and annoyance, also, rather than compassion, filled her heart toward the latter. It seemed to her, perhaps unjustly, a monstrous thing that Geronimo should still venture to remember those far-off days—that he should consider himself the victim of an unlucky fate. The three years which had intervened since her departure from her native country were to her, by force of totally changed circumstances and surroundings of life, a far more deep and impassable gulf than they could be to one, the even tenor of whose existence, the current of whose thoughts, had remained unchanged.

Her brother's revelation wounded, angered her; far from raising an excuse for the conduct of the young fisherman, it seemed to her to lower it to the level of a tacit insult both to herself and her husband. She fancied, moreover, that Stefano judged her friend too leniently. Had he seen the murderous light in Geronimo's eyes that afternoon, he would, like her, have dreaded something more determined and dangerous than the temporary ebullition with which he seemed to credit him.

HE LET OUT THE CAT

Lodger Who Helped Landlady Escapes $81 Rent Bill.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 20.—That a lodger who uses his own blankets, runs errands for his landlady, and makes his own bed is entitled to compensation offsetting a portion of the rent.

was established in Justice Reed's court today when T. M. Keyes was given judgment for $81 to offset a demand made by Mrs. Elizabeth Wild, his landlady, for $125. The fact that Keyes had attended to putting out the family cat at night and saw that the doors were locked and the clocks would help his case.

The court allowed him 10 cents for 300 errands, 10 cents for each time he made his own bed on 166 mornings when the landlady was otherwise engaged, and admitted the fairness of his charge of 7 cents as nightly rental for the blankets he owned and which he used on his own couch.

The court further held that Mrs. Wild's charge of 10 cents for washing a patch on Keyes' trousers was valid, inasmuch as Keyes, during a period that otherwise must have been spent in solitude, availed himself of the Sunday trousers of Mr. Wild. The wear and tear on the trousers of the landlady's husband was adjudged to offset the charge made for the patch on Keyes' own garments.

Keyes claimed that he stayed in bed and did not wear the landlady's trousers, but failed to prove this fact.

CHICAGO CANAL LOWERING LEVELS

United States Declares Protest From Canada Has Come Too Late.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The International Waterways Commission, composed of three commissioners representing the United States Government, and a like number of representatives of the Government of Canada, which has been in session here, adjourned yesterday and the members returned to their homes.

The purpose for which the commission was formed was to endeavor to arrive at an amicable settlement to several questions upon which the two Governments and peoples represented have differed with regard to their respective rights upon the chain of great lakes, and the waterways connecting them.

The special object of the session in Chicago was to enable the commission to study, upon the spot, the situation in regard to the Chicago drainage canal.

At present the canal is drawing from Lake Michigan about 10,000 cubic feet per second, but the great necessities of the city and the canal require that in the near future this amount be doubled.

The Canadian commissioners are objecting to the increase, but it is hard for the United States representatives upon the commission to understand upon what grounds their Canadian counterparts base their objection.

The legislation authorizing the construction of the canal originally passed the Illinois State Legislature the Canadian Government was cognizant of the intention of the city of Chicago. Hon. John C. Costigan, minister of marine in the Canadian Government at the time appointed an engineer who investigated the matter and reported that the effect of the construction of the canal would be to materially reduce the level of the water in Lakes Huron and Erie.

It was not, however, deemed to be of sufficient importance when the report in question was made to the Canadian Government in 1892, to require any action on their part, and no protests or objections were offered by them to the United States authorities against the proposed canal.

Now that the canal has been in operation for some years the cry has been raised in Canada that the withdrawal of so large a body of water has resulted in lowering the ordinary level of the water in Lake Huron by eight inches and in Lake Erie by six inches.

Objection is offered to the deepening and enlarging of the Chicago canal on the ground that it will, by still further lowering the level of the water in the lakes, seriously interfere with navigation, and involve heavy expenditure in deepening the Canadian harbors along the lake and altering the channels. They further contend that the United States is abstracting from the lakes water which belongs to Canada.

The United States contention is that whatever merit there may have been, and they do not admit there was any, in the Canadian contention, had it been raised before the canal was constructed, the Government of Canada is barred by its own laches from raising it now.

Having by its inaction in 1892 allowed a vested interest to be created in the waters of the lakes as a feeder to the drainage canal, it is too late, they say, for objections either to the original proposition, or to the necessary enlargement, with its consequent increased draft upon the great lakes for the water necessary to carry the undertaking to its legitimate conclusion.

The Canadian commissioners are not by any means inclined to accept the contention of the United States, and it is expected that a vigorous effort will be made by the Canadian Government, when their report is received, to amend what they regard as an oversight in 1892 by strenuously objecting to the further abstraction of water from Lake Michigan beyond the quantity now taken.

MAN AND HIS DRESS.

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, a London Lady of Wide Renown, Discusses the Sterner Sex.

In an article on Men's Dress, Mrs. Besse O'Connor, wife of T. P. O'Connor, M.P., says that "Some men are vain enough to imagine that neither men nor women pay any attention to the clothes of a man. There never was a greater mistake than this. Surely women, who are constantly studying the cut, the lines and the fashion of their own dresses, necessarily observe the cut and the fashion of men's habits."

"It was rather the custom of man to associate the idea of a well-dressed man with an empty top," she forcibly writes, "but the modern man has an eye for beauty and appropriateness of attire, combined with great cleverness in other directions."

The Semi-ready idea in men's dress permits the wearer to see a suit as it will look when he wears it. He dons it at the Semi-ready Wardrobe just as it stands ready to finish up. Tailored superbly, designed in the smart and cultured style, the fabrics are the best from England's mills. The modern man knows that misfits and cheap materials are not economical, for one's success in both social and business life depends upon good tailoring. There is a Semi-ready tailoring shop in nearly all the chief towns of Canada.

It is a sin to deprive oneself of enjoyment in life and become a burden to others through indigestion.

The directions for taking MI-O-NA emphasize the difference between this remedy and the ordinary medicine that is given for indigestion. MI-O-NA is to be used before meals, strengthening the digestive system for the food which is to be eaten, while the ordinary remedy is taken after meals, and simply digests the food without strengthening the stomach.

SEIZED PAPERS OF GREAT DEAD

Royal and Diplomats' Memoirs Corralled by Govt.

BISMARCK'S IN EONDON BANK

Many Instances Where Private Documents Have Been Confiscated After Death of the Owner.

London, Oct. 21.—Prince Clovis Hohenzollern's eagerly read but universally condemned indiscretions will have the effect of rendering people henceforth less disposed than heretofore to criticise the high-handed and arbitrary methods adopted by the monarchs and governments of Europe in dealing with their correspondents and papers of great statesmen and court dignitaries at their death.

When the late Sir William White, who was for so many years British ambassador at Constantinople, died suddenly at a hotel at Berlin while on his way home to England on leave of absence, his papers were at once seized by Sir Edward Malet, the English ambassador at Berlin, in spite of the opposition of his widow. The latter was by birth a German, whose mother had been a Russian, and spent all the years of her widowhood in Germany among her relatives.

There were manifest objections to leaving all the confidential English foreign office documents, the secret ciphers, etc., that Sir William happened to have with him at his death in the possession of his widow. It was not much the danger that she herself would make any indiscreet use thereof. But it was the possibility of their falling into the hands of others, either through her own death, through her carelessness or through the dishonesty of those around her.

These were eventualities which the English government could not afford to risk, and that was why Sir Edward Malet, within an hour or so after the death of his colleague, confiscated his papers, being accompanied by members of his staff, and by a German official, owing to the opposition of the widow. It was about the most disagreeable job that ever fell to the lot of Sir Edward Malet during his long diplomatic career.

Then there was the old Countess Hacke, who for fifty years had been the principal lady for many years of the life of the late Emperor Augusta of Germany, and who prided herself on keeping a record of everything that came within her ken. Within an hour after her death, at Coblenz, the Kaiser caused her entire correspondence and papers, as well as her diaries, to be confiscated, and none of them has been returned to her family.

The present King of Italy and his government adopted an identically similar course with the enormous collection of papers and diaries of Sig. Crispi, who was for so many years the prime minister, and it was not until the papers had been carefully sorted by trusted agents of the king, and everything calculated to embarrass the reigning family, the government, and friendly powers had been eliminated, that what was left was restored to his widowed daughter. A generous person. But the daughter, Princess Linguaglossa, was loud and vigorous in her protests. She had been her father's devoted companion and trusted confidante, and had been bent on clearing his memory by the publication of his papers, which she had, so she declared, demonstrated the mendacity and the ingratitude of his detractors. The action of the king prevented her from accomplishing this labor of love.

The late Prince Bismarck was in dread throughout the latter years of his life of the confiscation of his papers, and caused all the originals to be taken out of the country by his son, Prince Herbert, who deposited them in the Bank of England. Having frequently himself ordered the confiscation of the papers of government officials who had ceased to please, the old chancellor dreaded a similar fate. And in spite of the bitterness of the Bismarck family toward the Kaiser, a sense of loyalty to the crown and of the fitness of things

PALE FACED GIRLS

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anemia.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested. At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of mandrake and butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Etta McEwen, of Haliburton, speaks for itself:

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed."

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head."

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box or five boxes for $1. by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

MAY BUILD LINE OF SHIPS TO ITALY

Country Presents Fine Market for Canadian Wheat, Coal and Fish.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 19.—Opportunity exists for a much larger reciprocal trade between Canada and Italy than the hitherto $685,162, which represented the total value of the interchange in 1905.

The greater part of this insignificant volume of trade consisted of Italian exports to Canada; the imports to Italy from Canada amounted to only about one-third of the total trade. Canadian products are still reaching the Italian market, but they go by way of foreign countries and are credited to them; this is particularly true of Canadian food products and minerals. Canada, for instance, sends out little wheat to Italy (only $38,755 worth in 1905); while the United States exports amount to several hundred thousand dollars' worth yearly. But it is Canadian asbestos which goes there from the United States. Canada sells to the United States which resells to Italy, a considerable quantity of Canadian nickel also used every year in Italy, but the entire importation is credited to the United States, Great Britain or Germany. This is due to the fact that the refineries for this metal are located in those countries.

One of Italy's chief imports is wheat. The official calculation of the Italian Government is that 35,000,000 bushels of foreign wheat will come into Italy this year, and the prospects are that not one bushel of this will come from Canada. Between 25 and 30 million bushels of hard wheat will come from Odessa, on the Black Sea; some 5,000,000 bushels from the Argentine Republic; possibly 1,000,000 bushels of durum wheat from the United States, and the rest from the wheat-growing regions in southern Europe and northern Africa.

Then there is coal. Italy is becoming a great manufacturing country; and her consumption of coal is increasing year by year. There are no coal mines in Italy; nor in any of the countries adjacent; and all that is used has to be brought by ship to the seaports of the country. Hydro-electric power is being developed to the capacity of the water powers, and there are considerable installations throughout northern Italy. In the neighborhood of Milan there has been a development of some 40,000-horsepower which is all absorbed in the industrial enterprises of Lombardy, and many small mills and factories placed along the streams are operated by water power direct. Last year Italy's coal bill amounted to $30,000,000. Ninety per cent of this was from Great Britain. Austria supplied about one-sixth, the demand and Germany a lesser amount. A certain amount of United States soft coal reaches Italy every year. In the last year for which detailed government figures are available, the United States coal imported was valued at $1,000,000. There seems to be a considerable market in Italy for coal, and the mines of the maritime American provinces, considering their nearness to the sea, should be able to put coal into Genoa harbor as cheaply as their Pennsylvania competitors.

Italy buys $10,000,000 worth of fish yearly. Most of this is dried fish and Canada could supply a much larger quantity than the $12,000,000 worth of codfish and the $1,600,000 worth of pickled herring which were sent to that country from Canada last year. It is likely that this considerable quantity of Canadian dried fish reach Italy through other markets, and if these were placed direct the extra profits would go to the Canadian fish merchants in place of the foreign middleman. Canada's fish exports last year ran over $11,000,000. Italy's imports were $1,000,000 less than this amount. The figures suggest that Canada should be able to increase her fish exports to Italy from their present modest total of $13,743.

RUSH FOR STANFORD GEMS

Connoisseurs From All Over the World Anxious to Bid.

San Francisco, Oct. 19.—Connoisseurs in gems from all corners of the civilized world are crowding one another for a chance to bid on the magnificent collection of jewels left by Jane Lathrop Stanford.

The rare and precious stones are to be sold to aid in defraying the expense of rebuilding the new Stanford University library which was destroyed by the earthquake. The matter came up at yesterday's meeting of the board of trustees.

Though it was known that Mrs. Stanford in her many years of gathering, which embraced out-of-the-way shops from the Indus to the Nile, had accumulated a collection worthy to grace the fabric casquets of a Roman empress, it was not realized that the final distribution back through the channels of trade would excite such anxious competition.

Pills and Piles. A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature, which is always followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure to satisfaction.

It is an internal remedy that removes the causes of Itching, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles. A guarantee goes with each package containing a month's treatment. It can be obtained for $1.00 at drugists, or The Wilson-Frye Company, Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

"When goods are shipped into the country by express, it is the duty of the press companies, and not of the customs officials, to notify the parties to whom they are sent," said Dr. Smith, collector of customs. REVIEW OF THE PAST WEEK

The past week has been productive of many interesting events in the athletic arena. On Wednesday evening the two old ring rivals, Young Corbett and Terry McGovern met in a Philadelphia squared circle and tried to punch holes in one another. On past performances Young Corbett should have defeated the Brooklyn scrapper. Taking the conditions of the two men into consideration, McGovern should have performed the trick in the last battle, he being a 10 to 8 favorite. There being no referee decisions given in Philadelphia, the press decided that the go was a good draw. The bout proved one thing conclusively, and that was that both men have entered the "used-to-be" class in the world of pugdom.

Harry Lewis proved that he is in line for a bout with Joe Gans, when he whipped Willie Fitzgerald and Jack Dougherty within the week.

The prizes in the Tecumseh Club whist tournament, which ran two days, Wednesday and Thursday, went to London players. The Forest City crowd won the Tecumseh Cup and all the medals which were offered in addition to the trophy. The tournament furnished several surprises, the prizes, with one or two exceptions, going to the younger competitors.

On Thursday (Turkey Day) the Dundas Rugby team came up from their valley retreat and slaughtered our local football prides by the score of 15 to 2.

The annual shoot of the Seventh Regiment was also held on Thursday. Private King won the Beck cup; Sgt. Robson, the Denison cup; F. N. Allen, the Shanley medal and the London Corporation medal; Capt. Murphy, the rapid fire prize; F. N. Allen, the Rumball cup; Company A, the Carling cup and the $10 prize in the skirmishing match; Major Hayes, the extra series No. 2; Capt. Murphy, the extra series No. 1, and a special prize; Major Hayes, the extra series aggregate silver cup; and Pte. F. N. Allen, the special high score prize.

The Y. M. C. A. team won the 5-mile race for the Canadian Club trophy, against the strong Seventh Regiment team, by a score of 23 to 17. Amos, of the latter team, finished first, and Kingsmill and Ruddy, of the Y. M. C. A., second and third respectively. The race was run off in a torrent of rain and the going was heavy. Tennyson Brill finished first in the race for schools, which was won by Lorne Avenue.

Several members of the Forest City Quilting Club journeyed to Exeter the same day and trimmed everything in sight, winding up by cleaning up the chief of police by a score of 21 to 8.

The City Tenpin League clubs have been active this week and the Lotos still retain their lead by a comfortable margin.

The Capitals of Ottawa scalped the Toronto Tecumseh Indians Saturday to the tune of 10 to 2. The Minto cup will now go from Montreal to Ottawa, to nestle in the bosom of the Capitals for a year at least. The tinware has been held by the Shamrocks ever since it was donated, but that once mighty aggregation of stick handlers made a very poor showing in the race this year. 'Tis well that Toronto did not get the mug, else the sporting writers there might never have ceased dwelling on the fact.

Dan McLeod, the Canadian wrestler, lost at catch-as-catch-can to Fred Beel, the Wisconsin terror, Saturday night. Beel is a wonder at his weight. Two years ago he was matched to meet "Americus," a Baltimore wrestler of great local repute, in the monumental city. Beel never showed his face outside of his training quarters until the night of the match, and the Baltimore papers roasted him to a frazzle, and predicted an easy victory for the champion "Americus." The night of the bout came, and the Baltimore crowd beat their heads off on "Americus." Harvey Parker, the great middleweight wrestler, who was handling the Wisconsin boy at the time, covered every cent that was offered. What Beel did to that Southern wrestling article was a downright shame. He won the match in jig time, and "Americus" was laid up for two weeks from the mauling he received.

Buck Ewing, the veteran baseball player, passed away on Saturday at Cincinnati. Ewing played last with the National League Club in that city.

The McClary and Wolsey Barracks soccer teams played a draw on the last day of the week, the score being 3-3.

The Forest City football team was handled none too gently when they met their fate at the hands of the Tigers II. at Hamilton Saturday, and lost by the score of 29-0. The game was closer than the score indicates, and London had the ball over Hamilton's line several times, but failed to tackle the Hamilton runners.

GALT EXCELLED CHICAGO IN SPEED

Soccer Boys Staved Off What Appeared To Be Impending Defeat Saturday.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Playing fast and determined football, the Galt soccer team yesterday staved off what appeared to be impending defeat and won from the Chicago team at the south side ball park by 4 goals to 2.

It was a hard game for the local men to lose, as one of the four goals scored by the visitors came from a penalty kick on an infringement of the rules by Dixon.

Neither side settled down to good combination in the first half, in which Chicago defended the north goal, and had the benefit of the cross breeze. In the second period both teams improved, the Chicago attacking line getting in some clever combination and having the better of the play as far as actual shots on goal were taken.

The superiority of the Galt men showed in their speed, while their well bunched defense when their citadel was threatened was the main factor in their victory. The Chicago front men sent in some great shots, only to have them stopped by the giant Schieler or intercepted by McLean and Fraser. The Galt attack, while not so persistent, was speedy and incisive, and two of their goals came by John Brady, the speedy outside right, breaking through the spread out defense of the home backs. Getting the ball down to the Chicago goal as fast as possible was the main object of the visitors, and in this they gave the Chicago men an object lesson, as several of the home players were inclined to dally too long with the leather.

Taken as a whole, the game was keenly fought from start to finish, and while neither side showed any scientific ball as they might have been against weaker opponents, they both played hard.

PLAYED SOCCER GAME TO A TIE

McClarys and Barracks Each Scored Three Goals on Saturday.

The Wolsey Barracks and the McClarys soccer football teams played a hard game on the Military grounds on Saturday, the result being a tie 3-3. The teams lined up as follows:

BUCK EWING, CELEBRATED BALL PLAYER, IS DEAD

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 20.—William Buckingham Ewing, known to the sporting world as Buck Ewing, and considered by many as the greatest of all ball-players, died at his home in this city this afternoon of a complication of ailments. He was 45 years old. He had been in poor health for two years, diabetes and liver trouble being the direct cause of his death. His wife, son and daughter were at his bedside when he died. He passed peacefully away.

Ewing managed and caught for the New Yorks in 1888 and 1889, when the team won the pennant. He had no superior as a backstop and was a terrific hitter. He was a daring baserunner and was all alone in his class in judging men from his place behind the bat. He was with the New Yorks when Roger Connor, Jim O'Rourke, Mike Tiernan, Time Keefe and Mickey Welsh were stars, and he was rated the best of them. He quit baseball many years ago because of continued ill health.

THE WEEK IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS.

London Failed to Score a Point Against Tigers

While the Hamilton Boys Roll Up the Big Total of Twenty-Nine.

It is almost a shame to even attempt to describe the drubbing that the Hamilton Intermediate Tigers administered to the Forest City Rugby team in Saturday's game at Hamilton. The London boys were outplayed at nearly every stage.

Tigers II. are evidently close relations to the Senior Tigers, judging by the way they hand out artistic football beatings. However, it was not the same London team which lined up against Dundas last Thursday that faced the Hamilton bunch on Saturday. The personnel was, with a few exceptions, the same, but the ginger was not there. The London players were willing, and anxious to do their level best, but the snap had been taken out of them in the Thanksgiving Day game.

Three of London's best men were out of the game. Cy Eddy, the big center, was unable to play, owing to business engagements, and Spry and Dick Wheeler were out of it on account of injuries received in former games. Two men who played in the Hamilton game last London had never practiced with the team, and Saturday's game was their first since that time.

Replete With Misplays. The game was replete with misplays, tumbles and poor passing being the order of the day. Much of this was due, however, to the sloppy condition of the ground. The field was very slippery, and in places pools of water had gathered, the rain of the day before having put the ground in bad shape. Running was almost an impossibility, and Harrison, the Tigers' half-center, out-footed Thomson, of the local team, in justice to Thomson, however, it must be said that he was not in the best of shape. Harrison is one of the prettiest London players that ever faced a gridiron. His punts were well placed, and traveled a good distance.

The London boys are very deficient on tackling and in passing the ball. Time after time, the locals would attempt to tackle a Hamilton player, and although they generally managed to touch him with their hands, they would fail to hold him.

A peculiar feature of the game was that, while the Hamilton players wore no headgear of any kind, and very few of them wore jackets, it was always a London man who was injured in a scrimmage or after a hard tackle.

Played All Around London. The Tigers played all around the local team, and how Dundas ever managed to defeat the Hamilton team, they did two weeks ago, by the score of 17 to 6, is a mystery. Judging by the Dundas-London game the Tigers should have mopped the gridiron with the Valley City bunch.

Hall, an Englishman, who has only been over from the old sod about a week, and who had not had a minute's practice with the local team, was the bright particular star of the Forest City crowd. He is a ground gainer from the word "go," and with some practice, and a greater knowledge of the Canadian game, he will undoubtedly become a great player.

Several of the London boys were severely injured. Bobby Hague, the game little captain, is said to have sustained a broken nose; Sage and Thomson were badly used up, and McCall at one time was thought to have sustained a broken shoulder.

Harrison put up the best game for Hamilton, and his great kicking helped to score many of the points earned. Tigers Kick With Wind. Hamilton won the toss, and kicked with the wind. Almost from the start the Tigers played a kicking game, and they soon had London's goal in danger. After two downs, on London's 29-yard line, Harrison kicked, Hague caught the ball, and was immediately tackled by Ecclesstone. A few minutes later Harrison kicked the pignose over the line, and was caught by the ball, was brought down for another rouge.

London was fumbling badly, and a Hamilton player always seemed to beat the local boys to the ball when it dropped. Harrison kicked from London's 30-yard line, and Hague was tackled for the third rouge for Hamilton. On the next line-up, London got the ball, and by some great line plunging and a fake kick by Thomson, who passed to Hague, they advanced the ball to Hamilton's 20-yard line, and it looked as though the locals would score. On the next play, however, they were penalized 10 yards for offside. Thomson later set back 10 yards more for a fumble after a Hamilton player had made his mark on a catch. Score at the end of first quarter: Hamilton 3, London 0.

London Improves. In the second quarter, with the wind with them, the London boys put up a better game. Hall made a run of about 40 yards, and then Thomson kicked the ball over the Hamilton line. It looked good for a rouge, but Harrison managed to carry the pignose back to Hamilton's 20-yard line before being tackled. London soon lost the ball on a fumble, and another opportunity to score had passed away.

Hamilton advanced the ball to London's 20-yard line by some fine runs around the end, and Loftus scored a touchdown from that point. Thomson tackled the flying Tiger, and although he was knocked out himself, necessitating a doctor's assistance, he failed to stop the runner. Harrison converted. Several times during the quarter London players would come to a full stop, as if deciding which way to run, after the ball was passed to them. Hamilton would break through the line and carry them back for 5 and 8 yards.

Harrison kicked the ball from London's 30-yard line, and Hague was half-time: Hamilton 10, London 0. Hamilton scored a touchdown shortly after the whistle blew for the third quarter by some great running. Parker made one sprint of 35 yards. Loftus ran around the end from London's 10-yard line, and performed the trick. Harrison converted.

Loftus' Great Run. When Hamilton again got the ball, Parker passed to Loftus, who made a 40-yard run clean through the London team. At least five men tried to bring him down but failed. Hall finally tackled Hamilton then scored a rouge on a kick by Harrison. Pottery scored a touchdown, and Harrison converted. The ball apparently went a few inches outside of the post, but the referee decided otherwise.

Canfield made a good run for a gain of 30 yards in the second quarter, and Hall gained several yards on runs. Score at the end of the third quarter: Hamilton 24, London 0.

London lost two chances to score in the last quarter. Thomson kicked over the line twice, and Hamilton managed to bring the leather back to safety both times. Hamilton advanced the ball to London's 25-yard line, and then lost the pig-skin on a fumble. Hall missed a high pass over his head and the leather rolled over London's goal line, between the posts. Ecclesstone fell on the ball for a touchdown. Harrison failed to convert, the ball going five yards out of the way. Final score: Hamilton 29, London 0.

Referee—J. B. McArthur, Toronto. Umpire—G. H. Wallace, Toronto. Goal judges—Mr. Taylor, London; Fred Murphy, Hamilton.

GOLE. HAMILTON LOSES. Toronto, Oct. 21.—In a friendly game between Hamilton and Lambton Golfers on the latter links yesterday the home club were victorious by 10 to 7 match proceeded.

RUNAWAY GAME FOR THE TIGERS

Seniors Got Away With the Toronto Victorias in Easy Fashion.

Toronto, Oct. 20.—As was predicted, Hamilton Tigers made a runaway game of it at Varsity athletic field Saturday, when they played the Victorias a senior O. R. P. game. At half time the score stood 25-1, and at the conclusion of the match 48-1.

It was a delightful day for football and the 1,500 spectators present were able to get a line on the Tigers for the first time this season. Hamilton pre-empted their usual lineup, and as in former games, Moore was the dangerous man, going over for three tries and converting six out of the team's eight.

For the Victorias Murray at center half was the best, although Keating was not far behind him. The best tackler on the team was Stoller. Torontonians will now have to pin their hopes to the Argonauts, to break up the Tigers' winning streak. The Tigers are getting out all their old men for the scrimmage game, so as to be ready to play the winner of the Quebec Union. However, they should not be so sure about it, as there is many a slip.

Referees Hayes and Robbins, of Hamilton, handled the game in an impartial manner. A few were sent off for minor offenses, but on the whole the best of good feeling prevailed between the teams.

ARGO INTERMEDIATES LOSE. Toronto, Oct. 20.—In one of the most exciting games ever played in the Ketchum Park the Victorias II. defeated Argo II. today by 12 to 9. The north-enders played Argo off their feet in the last quarter, Love going across for the only try.

NEARLY BLANKED. Toronto, Oct. 20.—Varsity II. defeated McMaster Saturday morning on McMaster field in an intermediate inter-collegiate Rugby game, by 10-4, half-time score being 1-0 in favor of McMaster.

RIDLEY BEATS T. C. S. Toronto, Oct. 20.—The annual school Rugby game between Bishop Ridley and T. C. S., Port Hope, played on Varsity athletic field this morning, resulted in a win for Ridley by the one-sided score of 42-1; half-time score was 20-0.

BUFFALO MARKSMEN TOO MUCH FOR Q. O.

Toronto, Oct. 20.—The crack rifle team of the Seventy-fourth Regiment of Buffalo, champions of New York State, proved too strong for the picked marksmen of the Queen's Own Rifles in the friendly inter-regimental match at Long Branch ranges this afternoon, winning by 98 points.

There was very little breeze to interfere with the aim of the marksmen, what there was being from the south-west quarter. A slight haze proved rather disconcerting to the Q. O. R. shots, who were placed under somewhat of a disadvantage, as compared with the Buffalonians, whose Krag-Jorgensen rifles were equipped with more finely adjusted sights.

Capt. Allan, of the Q. O. R., who was chief range officer, remarked after the match that the showing of the visitors, whose total was 937, an average of 93½, was a splendid one. The consistent all-round scoring of the team was the most outstanding feature of their work. In his opinion, Ordnance-Sgt. Leush, of the Seventy-fourth Regiment, topped the winners' list with an excellent 99, he obtaining a possible at the 500 yards mark.

The Q. O. R. team had a total of 337 points and an average of 84, Sgt. White being the premier scorer with 97. Sgt. Whiteley also did well, rolling up 85.

The visitors adopted an expedient that probably proved a material aid in compiling their high total. Their best shots were sent in first, each taking a sighting shot and a couple of shots on the score, after which, having posted the remaining members of the team on the conditions as they found them, the match proceeded.

HAD TO PLAY NEARLY AN HOUR BEFORE FIRST SCORE WAS MADE

Michigan's Hard-Earned Victory Over Ohio—Penn, Yale, Harvard, Princeton Won.

Columbus, Oct. 20.—Michigan defeated Ohio State by the score of 6 to 0. That makes a noise like a touchdown, but that is not the way the thing was accomplished. After fifty-six minutes of actual playing, with no score for either side, and after Johnny Garrels had tried three times for goals from placement, his fourth opportunity came, and he landed the leather over the bar and between the goal posts for four of the points. It was his most difficult try for a field goal of the four attempts. Then, with only four minutes to play, Quarterback Barrington made Michigan a present of two more points by a foolish safety. Garrels had punted 50 yards and a penalization on Ohio brought the ball to the Buckeye ten-yard line and in possession of the Columbus men. Claggett had just a moment before gone into center to replace Lawrence, who was forced out of the game with a broken left arm. Claggett passed the ball high to Barrington for an on-side kick play. Barrington jumped into the air for it, behind his own goal line, and then, noticing that the Michigan chargers were coming down on him, foolishly touched the ball down, evidently thinking he was making a touch-back, whereas he counted a safety of two points against his team, or rather for Michigan.

PENN WINS FROM BROWN. Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20.—In what was by far the best game of the season, the University of Pennsylvania football team today defeated the strong Brown eleven by the score of 14 to 0.

A MONSTER SCORE. Ithaca, Oct. 20.—Cornell defeated Bowdoin in their football game today by the score of 72 to 0. The features were the long runs of the Cornell half-backs, Gibson and Barie, which often carried the ball over the goal line in five plays and less from the kickoff.

YALE HAD TO FIGHT. New Haven, Ct., Oct. 20.—For the first time this fall Yale's football eleven was forced to fight back to its last ditch today, when Penn State made its way within fifteen yards three times and once only five yards from the Ell goal. Yale finally won by a score of 10 to 0.

SCORED ON PRINCETON. Princeton, N. J., Oct. 20.—For the first time this year the Princeton football team was scored on, when Capt. Lenahan, of the Bucknell eleven, sent a place kick, after a fair catch, over the crossbar. The Tigers were victorious 82 to 4. Had it not been for the fair catch by Clark, of Bucknell, the Tigers would have rained away with the victory by a shutout.

PURDUE SWAMPED. Chicago, Oct. 20.—Chicago swamped Purdue today, at Marshall field, the final count being 39 to 0. Stagg's unknown proved wonders in the new style of football and ran over, around and through the rather clumsy eleven from Lafayette. The Chicagoans were entirely too shifty and fast and went through the contest as though the new rules had been built to their measure. Capt. Eckersall, Walter Steffen, Fred Walker, Harold Indings and big Ed. Parry were in evidence all the time.

BATTERED UP, BUT WON. Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—Ripped up, torn to pieces, but favored by a fortunate run by Soukup and hard luck that befell North Dakota, the Badgers defeated the North Dakota men this afternoon at Camp Randall, 10 to 0. It was a spectacular game throughout, full of kicking, clever tricks, trials for field goals, and also many impositions of penalties, which, however, merited the sport but little. It was a battle from whistle to whistle.

A CINCH FOR THE INDIANS. Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—Carlisle's Indian football players inaugurated the season in Western Pennsylvania today when they met the team from the Western University of Pennsylvania at Exposition Park in this city. Halves of twenty-five minutes were played, the final score being 22 to 0 in favor of the Indians.

EASY ONE FOR HARVARD. Cambridge, Oct. 20.—Harvard defeated the Springfield training school today 44 to 0. The Crimson team had its own way from the start and the only good play by the Springfield team was displayed when they gained first down three times and held the Harvard line twice when a score was imminent.

MINTO CUP GOES TO THE CAPITALS

Have a Walk-Over in Final Game of the Round With Tecumsehs.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The Minto cup comes to Ottawa by the decisive score of 11 to 2. The Capitals trounced the Tecumsehs yesterday, winning out the championship by 15 to 3.

It was a sorry exhibition of lacrosse which ended the season of 1906. The Tecumsehs put up a miserable quality of the national game, and the Caps have often done better. The Tecumseh home was simply no use. They made no attempt to keep the Caps out, backing in on the nets everytime the Caps approached.

The game was not of the gentlest kind either. True there was no one hurt off in the first half, but Referee Tom Carlin—made a lot of nasty rib digging and slashing. In the second half the roughness became more open, and in the third quarter a free fight occurred, which resulted in Messrs. Murton and Querre, of the Tecumsehs, and Shea and Brennan, of the Capitals, going off for 20 minutes, leaving the quartet but four minutes to play the season with. Sea and Murton got in a mix-up and before it ended about a hundred were on the field headfirst into the turmoil.

When the row was over, it seemed difficult to place the blame, but the correct version seems to be that Shea made a slash at Murton's head, and quick as a flash the Indian dropped his stick and grabbed the Capital. Of course, other players closed in and Querre mixed it up. Then the crowd rushed onto the field, and was some minutes before play resumed. Roddy Pringle went to the fence for a trip and Ralph also adorned the roost for cross-checking.

In the dying minutes of the game, Bones Allen sullied an otherwise spotless game so far as he was concerned by giving the Indians an ugly cross-check. The Tecumseh man had to be assisted from the field, and Allen went off for the rest of the game.

The summary would be perplexing; it was a long series of successful shots at the Tecumseh goal, relieved only by the two goals scored by the Indians.

The work of the Tecumsehs is best summed up in the words of Charles Querre, manager and captain: "If the Tecumsehs can't play better lacrosse than this, they don't deserve to win."

The crowd numbered between 3,000 and 4,000 people. The weather was ideal. The teams lined up as follows: Capitals—Goal, Hutton; point, Brennan; cover, Ralph; defense, Shea, Pringle and Butterworth; center, Ashford; home, Statters, Allan and Powers; outside, Murphy; inside, Gaul. Tecumsehs—Goal, "Clack"; point, Pitcher; cover, Davidson; defense, Stuart, Pickering and Rountree; center, Felkir; home, Querre, Murton and Durkin; outside, Murray; inside, Adamson.

HOKEY. MAY JOIN SOO TEAM. Belleville, Oct. 21.—Harry Brown, of this city, who last winter played cover point with the Smith's Falls hockey team, champions of the Federal League, has been offered $25 a week to play this winter with the Canadian Soo team. He will probably accept.

STAND COLLAPSED; 100 BADLY HURT

500 Persons Go Down in Crash While Watching Football Game.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 20.—One of the bleacher stands collapsed at the New Star Park football grounds here today during the game between Syracuse and Colgate. The stand was densely packed and some 500 persons were thrown to the ground by the accident. More than 100 persons were badly injured.

It is a miracle that none were killed. Of the 30 or more injured the death of three is expected. The Rev. Christopher J. Donigan, assistant pastor of St. John the Evangelist's Church, sustained an injury to his spine which may prove fatal. Professor William Lusk, principal of the Union Free School, Hamilton, also sustained a serious injury to his spine and he is in a precarious condition at a hospital. John West, of Rome, is injured internally and may die.

The accident occurred just after the resumption of play in the second half. The intense rivalry between the two teams brought out the largest crowd that has ever attended a football game in Syracuse. There were 800 persons in the stands and bleachers and on the side lines, and the excitement all through was at fever heat.

Suddenly there arose the sound of a crash, and 50 feet of the bleachers gave way. The occupants were thrown in one mass into the inclosure. People rushed from the stands and other parts of the bleachers to the scene of the accident. Amid a tumult of disorder a dozen men blocked the gate that led to the rear of the collapsed stands, and prevented a rush of the panic-stricken people on to those buried under the debris.

EAST MAY HAVE PRO HOCKEY THIS WINTER

Montreal, Oct. 20.—A reorganization of the existing Hockey Union is in sight. From what can be ascertained it is to consist of the Shamrocks, the Nationals, the Montreal Wanderers, the Ottawas, the Grand Trunks or the Smith's Falls.

Only two clubs have thus far made application to the Arena for ice, and those are the Wanderers and the Nationals. The reorganization of the Hockey Union will be brought about by the introduction of professionalism in the same as in lacrosse.

First the action of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union will be awaited, and if that body does not make any provision for professionalism in connection with amateurism, it is more than likely that the Hockey Union at an early meeting will adopt that principle itself. If this is done the Victorias will drop out, as their raison d'être vanishes. The historic old Victoria rink, while the members state that they will not play professionals.

QUERIES ANSWERED

READER—Can a person collect wages when he came and offered to help, and I did not agree to pay him?

AS—Not upon the facts stated.

Whether wages could be claimed when services were offered depends upon the particular circumstances, such as the nature of the help and its duration, and whether it could not have been dis-pensated with, from which a promise to pay may be implied. The offer to help and helping is not necessarily inconsistent with a right to be paid for work and labor what it is worth, when no wages is agreed upon or mentioned.

A MEDICINE FOR THE MINER'S

PACK—Prospectors and others going into few and drug stores not at all, should

Thomas' Electric Oil. It will offset the when taken internally will prevent and lubricant will keep the muscles in good condition.

Animal trainers of the old days led adventurous lives. In 1860 all London was talking of a man named Banks, servant to the Earl of Essex, who had taught his horse to count and perform a number of feats, including mounting to the top of St. Paul's Cathedral, while

"a number of asses," as the historian puts it, "brayed below." Sir

Walter Raleigh, in his history, says of Banks that he "would have shamed all of the enchanters of the world; for whatsoever was most famous or instruct any beast as he did his horse." When

Banks took his horse to Rome both were burnt for witchcraft.
